Boundary changes revealed to board

Proposed changes in school attendance boundaries will be made public tonight (Monday) by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The changes, when finally approved, will result in some students attending different schools than they do this year.

The adjustments are made annually because of rising student enrollment in the district. The aim is to balance population among the individual schools and to make sure no single building exceeds capacity.

THE MEETING will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater of Plymouth Canton High, on Canton Center Road just south of Joy.

The meeting is a workshop study session for the trustees and was scheduled to allow the boundaries and growth committee to present its formal report to the board.

Tom Yack, board president, stresses that the purpose of this meeting is to allow the committee to explain its recommendations to the board, and give trustees a chance to ask questions about the proposed changes.

The public is encouraged to attend the workshop session to gain background information about the changes, but questions will not be accepted from the audience at this meeting.

Residents will have an opportunity to ask questions and make their views known at a public hearing from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 6, in the Little Theatre of Canton High.

Before the public hearings, residents may ask questions or make comments by calling a special phone line, 453-0200, ext. 422, which will be operating starting today through March 5.

The board is scheduled to make decisions on the boundary changes at its regular meeting on Monday, March 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the board offices at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

In recent years the majority of boundary changes have affected elementary pupils as that has been where the bulk of the growth has occurred. This year, however, and in future years more changes will be occurring at the middle school level.

The high schools are not affected by the boundary adjustment process as the population between the two schools is balanced by the random selection

Site chosen for housing

The Wayne County Planning Commission has selected a site for the possible construction of a low- to moderate-income housing development near the Canton Commons apartment complex on Haggerty south of Cherry Hill.

The county's action follows a refusal of township board members at their Feb. 6 meeting to select the site themselves. Township planner Jim Kosteva had recommended a 10-acre parcel on Warren east of Lilley.

The county's site selection will be included in a booklet it is preparing of low-income sites. The list will be used by potential developers.

The site selection is part of the county's requirements for administration of the Federal Community Block Grant program. Wayne County is administering the HUD program for 32 communities.

TOWNSHIP GRANT coordinator Terry Carroll said the multiple-zoned site the county selected last week is the same parcel that it chose in 1978.

But Carroll said that this year's site selection is more formalized since it will be included in a shopping list of low-income sites. This year, the county gave communities the opportunity to select the site themselves.

But the new township board balked at the county's order to select any site. Board members are questioning the county's authority to interfere in the local planning process.

"We're playing it cool to see what our rights are," he said. "We don't want to do anything and then look like idiots."

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS hold that Canton already contains 12 times the number of low-income units reported by surrounding communities. Canton had 860 low-income housing units in 1974 when the last housing report was compiled.

Carroll said the low-income units are located in complexes that include Canton Commons, Fellows Creek and Canterbury Mews.

If HUD approves a mortgage subsidy to a developer, Carroll said Canton officials would be forced to approve plans for a low-income development on the site selected by Wayne County as long as the proejct meets zoning and site plan requirements.

The site selection requirement is attached to the federal community block grant program that is funding conversion of Dye Brothers Subdivision into an industrial park. Canton officials have already received $80,500 for the project and expect to receive an additional $350,000 over the next three years.

Police station has fire

Police officers usually go to the scene of a fire. In the case of the Canton Police Department, the fire came to it.

A fire, caused by a gasoline heater, was discovered in the department's security garage about 5 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14, by Sgt. William Lehaghan.

According to Chief Walter Macgregor, the Canton Fire Department responded to the call at once. Damage was minor, with some charring and destroyed insulation.

The security garage is in the building formerly occupied by the township administration, which is now being renovated to house the police department.

The area is used for officers to drive into and deliver prisoners.

The heater, Macgregor said, was one of the blower-type models and had been hooked up for the first time the day of the fire.

Township heating inspector Don Tilman said the heater will be replaced because it was defective.

County exec drive underway

By TIM RICHARD

A petition drive to put a Wayne County executive proposal on the ballot is under way and aiming to get 75,000 signatures by July 4.

The drive's spokesman is County Commissioner R. William Joyner (D-Plymouth), who said an elected executive — similar to a city's mayor or the state's governor — can bring more efficient government sooner than could a counter proposal.

"The move to put a charter commissioner on the ballot is a blockade," said the first-term county board member.

"It will cost $2 million just to hold special elections, and a total of maybe $5 million to operate the charter commission. And there's no guarantee a charter commission won't recommend no changes." A COUNTY EXECUTIVE is opposed by Detroit black and Polish political blocs. Several efforts by out-county commissioners to have the board put the executive proposal on the ballot have been shot down.

So Joyner and friends are using the petition route. He said they need 66,000 signatures and are out to collect 75,000 to be safe.

Attending a meeting he called last week in Plymouth Township were 20 persons, mostly from such western Wayne communities as Plymouth, Livonia, Canton, Sumpter, Allen Park and Brownstown, with one from Hamtramck. They include some local government officials and members of Jaycees and the League of Women Voters.

cees and the League of Women Voters.

A Jaycee himself, Joyner is looking to that group to be a major part of the drive. Jaycees spearheaded an effort to dump a number of county commissioners in 1968 and were a major force in calling for a state constitutional convention in 1961.

Jaycee chapters in Wayne, Plymouth and Canton are scheduled to consider the project soon, he said. Joyner added will make a presentation in two weeks to the Wayne County Jaycees board.

SUPPORT FOR a county executive has come from the Livonia Chamber of Commerce and the Wayne-2nd District Republican organization, Joyner said. He's hoping for endorsements soon from the Wayne-2nd Democrats and Livonia Interested Democrats.

The supporters of a county executive — the group has no name yet — will next meet at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 27 in the Livonia City Council chambers and March 13 in Dearborn City Hall.

Each group that joins the drive will be asked to contribute $50 to cover the cost of petitions, Joyner said.

Petitions will be ready by about

JOYNER'S CASE for a county exec-

JOYNER'S CASE for a county executive goes like this:

"The department heads report to no one. All they have to do is line up 14 votes on the board of commissioners for whatever they want.

"The department heads get no management evaluation, no management review. They ride roughshod over the board of commissioners."

* Suporters of an executive argue such an official could also exercise budget controls in a county notorious for its $13 million deficit.

Presto, chango, checks cheapen

Beware, cashiers, there's a Francophile in your midst.

Plymouth police are warning area merchants, including restaurant owners, to check out travelers checks before giving change.

It seems an unidentified plucky consumer has "made a killing," according to Officer Jerry Vorva, by turning in French franc travelers checks for payment of merchandise and meals.

The unsuspecting cashiers fail to notice that the checks are redeemable for French currency, valued at about 20 cents on the dollar, according to the Plymouth community service officer.

"He's just signing the check over, which is legal tender," Vorva says.

There's nothing illegal about not saying anything when a merchant gives him too much change, he adds, which means the responsibility for detecting the currency difference rests with the merchant.

Because the man is not doing anything illegal, police cannot reveal his name. And apparently embarrassed merchants in the area, who have been stung for more than $200 thus far, requested anonymity.

The travelers checks are identical to those made out in American currency, except for a small notation designating French francs, Vorva says. Apparently merchants are just looking at the numbers and failing to notice the currency difference.

The same thing happens frequently with travelers checks in checks redeemable in Canadian currency, he adds. However the currency difference represents a much smaller loss because the Canadian dollar is worth between 80 and 85 cents in American currency.

IT SEEMS a Canton podiatrist has been losing some business lately to the Observer office. During the last two months, at least 25 prospective patients of Dr. Gary Goodman have filled our receptionist's ears with their medical complaints before she could inform them that we do not cover the foot. It turns out that 411 operators were giving Goodman's patients the Observer number — 459-2700 — instead of the correct number — 459-2770. Michigan Bell has promised to correct the problem sometime this week.

YOU KNOW that guy you always used to see jogging around Canton, day and night, winter and summer? His name is Bruce Rich, and you won't be seeing him jogging away anymore. The long-distance runner is moving to Kalamazoo, where he will undoubtedly continue haunting the streets. Rich, who has only been running 13 miles a day lately because of an injury, has participated in the Boston Marathon, the Detroit Free Press Marathon and the Northville-Plymouth Marathon.

PIRST THE good news: Farmers' Petroleum Cooperative, a Michigan Farm Bureau affiliate, plans to distribute a fuel called gasohol in Michigan. The gasohol is made from ethahol alcohol, which is in turn distilled from corn, sugar, beets and other dried grains. The alcohol is then blended with unleaded gaso-Chechol is going to be distributed to selected farmers to run tractors and the like.

Now the bad news: Farmers Petroleum Vice President Ron Sprinkel says gasohol will probably sell for eight cents a gallon more than unleaded gas.

Couple faces culture shock during Iran visit

By CAROLINE PRICE

In March, the deserts of Iran burst into bloom for a brief, riotous moment of glory after the rainy season.

But all to soon, the flowers will fade and bake in the parched soil, and only the bloodshed of a country in revolution

A day seldom passes when the latest development of Iran's civil war doesn't hit the front page of the newspaper. The country's Shah is gone, its prime minister displaced and a once-exiled religious leader is now in power.

and Flo Nolan agreed to go to the country to teach at one of its universities, Iran was still an unknown land of mys-with their two-year old son, spent a year of their lives in Iran during the days when the Shah was still in power and the first student riots had already become part of history.

They consider their year in Iran an unforgettable experience. But their first impulse, after getting off the plane in Ahvaaz, about 80 miles north

But three years ago, when Ernest of the Persian Gulf, was to get back on the plane and go home.

It was August, 1975, and the temperature was 130 degrees.

The Nolans were taken to the Jundi The Nolans, who now live in Canton Shapur University, where Nolan had been hired by the Iranian government to teach in the college of literature and humanities.

The couple, on their first day in the country, were taken on a four-hour walking tour of Ahvaaz and ate dinner at one of the few places they were told was safe to eat in.

Nolan had an attack of food poisoning on the second day and was taken to the hospital.

"I think at that point both of us really wanted to go back home," Mrs. No-

"But Ernie had just finished graduate school at University of Notre Dame and we didn't have any money. The government paid our way there, but we still had to come up with money to pay for luggage and other expenses. Our tickets home wouldn't be paid until we were there two years."

Although at least one couple who arrived at the same time did turn around and go home after the walking tour, the Nolans decided to stick it out for at least a year.

Originally, only Nolan had been hired to teach. Eventually Mrs. Nolan also taught at the university's college of economics. While he taught literature to Iranian students, she taught English as a foreign language.

Neither of them knew more than a few words in Iranian at the beginning. "I think we developed a working Iranian vocabulary after a while." Nolan

AS THE COMMUNICATION gape closed, the Nolans got to know Iranian students and teachers, and began to understand the conflicts that set off the rioting against the Shah.

"The secret police (Savak) were very strong. We always felt its presence,' Nolan says.

"Because I taught literature, we would often run across the theme of freedom, and the students would get into discussions of liberty. They would ask me what it's like in America.'

Mrs. Nolan adds, "The Shah controlled everything. The year before we arrived, there a lot of student unrest. We weren't threatened while we were there, but there were riots."

The Nolans say they knew students who had been harassed by the Savak. They also felt the power of the secret

"Our letters were censored," Nolan says. "Once we sent my mother a letter. Someone read it and crumpled it up in the envelope.

"My mother got the letter, which was also dirty, and wrote an angry letter to the Iranian consulate in Chicago. The consulate wrote to the postmaster in Ahvaaz, who called us in and asked us why we told my mother our letters were censored."

The Nolans had to be careful in what they said and did, but their life was luxurious compared to most of the country's populace.

Although the Nolans visited other parts of Iran, some employees of the oil and utility companies never found the need to leave their compounds.

The Nolans remember visiting the British Oil Company compound, which had a swimming pool, bowling alley and well-equipped store. Many of the foreign company employees could take free trips to Europe every few months and were allowed to return to their own countries frequently.

The Nolans found the contrast between the prosperity and poverty around them a difficult one to absorb, just as Iranian students did.

Even the poorer people, they discovered, owned the oriental rugs that are so coveted in this country.

"It was not unformmon to see rugs worth $5,000 even in very poor homes, " Nolan says.

"The rugs are kind of like a savings account to people. Sometimes there would be rugs piled one upon another in homes.' Throughout their year in Iran, the Nolans saw discontent and unrest mount at the university. In their discussions with Iranian students and teachers, however, they only heard the name Khomeini mentioned once.

Khomeini, who recently returned from exile in France to take over Iran. believes the country should be ruled by Islamic religious laws.

"I personally think many groups, such as the Marxists, rallied around Khomeini just to get rid of the Shah." Mrs. Nolan says.

The Nolans returned to the United States in August 1976. They became the parents of Ernest, Jr. shortly after their return. Now, Nolan is chairman of the communications arts department at Madonna College in Livonia.

Mrs. Nolan is a substitute teacher in the Garden City School system.

Their lives are different now. There are cultural events to attend, books to read other than ones stored in a trunk and electricity that works every time they flip a switch.

But they still watch the developments in Iran with avid interest. They' believe they've gained something from: their experience.

"If I learned anything, it was an appreciation of the culture. It's the firsttime I was able to understand why. something so foreign can be so beautiful," Nolan said.

Home comforts

I was talking to a friend on the phone the other day and the conversation turned to the subject of neatness versus sloppiness.

My friend told me he was a very neat, orderly person. I told him I was a habitual slob. It suddenly occurred to me that the solution to my problem was as simple as the route taken by men every day of the week. You get yourself a wife.

I firmly believe that a career as a wife should not limited to women. Both sexes should be allowed to enter the field, just as both sexes should be allowed to become employers of wives.

Of course, you might have to alter a few traditional wifely duties to fit the situation. But consider what a service to humanity it would be if people who wanted wives only had to dial an agency. Thus, wives who decide they don't like the job can find suitable replacements for themselves and go on to other things.

Wives who suddenly find themselves unemployed will no longer have to become "displaced homemakers." They'll simply notify the agency that they are available for employment.

There will have to be some kind of qualification or testing for the job. Not everyone is suited to be a

A WIFE SHOULD have supper steaming gently on the table when you come home from a hard day

A wife should keep children safely out of sight and mind until you feel parental largess and chose to see them. Those children will be well-behaved, clean and respectful.

A wife should make other people terribly jealous of you for having such a beautiful person at your beck and call. A wife will not express interest in any other person besides you.

A wife will express no interest in going out into the big, bad world, but will manage to supplement your income by $20,000 a year by whipping up things on the sewing machine.

You of course will never see the sewing machine, or hear it, or be bothered by it in any way.

A wife will never mind it if you come home late or lose your temper unreasonably because a wife is understanding at all times.

A wife will be able to converse with you intelligently on any subject you choose, but never, never, make you feel stupid.

A wife will never ask you for money, yet will still manage to keep the refrigerator well-stocked, the house filled with beautiful furniture, and the entire family immaculately dressed.

Speaking of immaculate - that's the way the house will be at all times. A wife will be a gourmet cook, unless you prefer hamburgers.

A wife will be on duty 24 hours a day, for whatever kinky thing your little heart desires.

Now it's obvious from the qualifications listed above, that a wife is a rare jewel if you find yourself a good one. The best part about the job, at least from the employer's point of view, is that the job is unpaid. And, should the arrangement not work to your pleasure, you can simply call up the agency and get yourself a different wife.

You will notice I havent mentioned the word "love" as a qualification for wifedom. Love is usually the reason men employ wives and wives opt for the job, even if they fall short on the other qualifications.

Strangely enough, that seems to work out fine for many people.

Perhaps I should just settle for a houseboy.

help unlock the doors to inner awareness for other busy people during a noontime course offered by the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family Y.

For those who want to take a short break during the day to energize their resources, Mrs. Wade, a Canton resident, will be on hand from 1:10-1:50 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays, in the Plymouth Credit Union basement located on S. Harvey at Maple.

The course begins Feb. 26 and runs for six weeks through April 4. Y fees are $6 for members and $10 for nonmembers for one session a week, and $8 for members and $12 for non-members for two sessions per week.

Senior citizens' fees are half-price. Business persons are invited to bring a sack lunch to the sessions designed for "tuning in," as Mrs. Wade says.

"It will be an informal type of situation, with discussion, prayer and meditation," she says.

Meditation, she explains, allows one to get in touch with his or her inner resources — whether that is defined as a god, creative force, psyche, or subconscious. It's a time to slow down and listen to the inner self.

"I feel there's a tremendous need for people to recharge, to reflect on the upheavals of others, she says, involves a successful way to cope with probday's activities and hear what's going on within themselves.'

Her job as a leader involves demonstrating techniques that enable a person to get in contact with the inner guidance, she says.

The course is non-denominational and concentrates on such activities as positive thinking, balance of the inner life, and working with dreams. Topics to be discussed include "Get your communication going with God," "Detached loving," and "Following the inner-self with dreams.'

Freeing yourself from the emotional learning to symphathize without getting into emotional problems that drain your own energies.

FOR MRS. WADE, meditation has become a way of life since she started with prayer groups and in church work.

"Meditation is where you listen," she advises. "I can't cope with my day as well if I don't meditate in the morning.' As a self-described high-strung per-

County executive petition presented

With an executive. Wayne County could team up with Oakland County to get the Michigan Legislature to pass major structural reforms. Two key goals: Eliminating Wayne County's Board of Auditors and the two counties' road commissions.

Left in place, however, would be such county officials as the clerk, treasurer, register of deeds and drain commissioner. Reporting to an executive would be such functions as public works, social services, youth services, employee relations and all other services not assigned somewhere else.

BLACK LEADERS, in particular, are vehemently opposed to a county executive, charging it would dilute their political power.

The black-Polish bloc is proposing instead that a charter commission election be called to write a county home rule charter. The bloc last week said it would ask the legislature to appropriate the cost of the special elections and the charter commission's costs.

A charter commission proposal was on the 1968 ballot but lost. At that time, charter commissioners were to have been elected from the 27 county commissioner districts. Joyner said a county apportionment group would have to decide how to elect charter commissioners, but presumably would take the same path.

The political problem, Joyner said, is that Detroiters would control such a charter commission 14-13, based on the 1970 census. Since then, Detroit has lost population and the 1980 census is expected to show the suburbs have a

Canton breezes to Western-6 crown

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Plymouth Canton coach Craig Bell was all wet Friday night - after enjoying the traditional throw-him-in-theshower victories, climaxing the Chiefs' first-ever Western Six League basketball championship.

Canton, which has had no trouble in conference play all season long, got the clincher on its home court, an overwhelming 80-57 victory over Walled Lake Western.

It was all smiles in the Canton locker room following the historic triumph which raised the Chiefs' record to 8-0 in the Western 6 and 14-4 overall.

Bell was, no doubt, pleased with his squad's easy victory and their title quest. And he defended the teams which Canton beat in the league. Northville, the second-place team, is the only conference club with an above .500 record, besides Canton.

Chiefs' competition woeful

OK. Plymouth Canton won its first-ever Western Six League basketball title Friday night, and now everyone who cheers for the Red team is happy. But let's be realistic for a moment.

What does this title prove? Not much, really. Just one look at Canton's competition in the conference will tell you that. Canton is now 14-4. The 14 victories have set a new school record for triumphs in one season. But let's be honest. The Chiefs have beaten 14 bad teams and lost to the only four good teams they've played on their schedule.

Take the league, for instance. Second-place Northville was three games behind Canton going into Friday's action. The Mustangs were the only other league team above 500. But even the Mustangs are hovering around that break-even mark.

The other four teams, Waterford Mott, Farmington Harrison, Livonia Churchill and Walled Lake Western are all below .500. Of the four teams, only Mott has a chance to finish at a break-even point overall.

Canton's six other non-league victories were over Franklin, Thurston and Farmington of the Northwest Suburban League, Dearborn and Belleville of the Suburban Eight League, and Livonia Stevenson of the Inter-Lakes League.

Of these six schools, only Stevenson, the front runner in its conference, has been a league contender this season. And the Spartans recently beat the Chiefs on Canton's home court in a rematch two weeks

Examining Canton's four setbacks, you will find the Chiefs failed against squads with above .500 records.

Canton lost to Plymouth Salem and Livonia Bentley, the two top teams in the Suburban Eight League; Southfield-Lathrup, a second-place team in the Metro Suburban Association behind state-ranked Bloomfield Hills Lasher, and Livonia Stevenson. To put it simply, Canton hasn't shown it can beat the good teams.

THE CHIEFS' record is pretty. There's no doubt about that. They will probably finish undefeated in the Western Six League (10-0) and 16-4, overall.

And, ever since first-year head coach Craig Bell took over the Canton basketball program, he has stressed the Western-6 crown as the club's first priority. This goal is fine. Winning the league title should be every squad's original goal at the beginning of the But winning a league title doesn't prove one has a great basketball

Canton is evidence of that.

Sure. Canton is an above-average squad - probably one of the better ones in the area. But the Chiefs, despite their talented starting lineup, have yet to prove they are a great team because they have failed to beat the top teams.

The proof of Canton's greatness. or lack of it, will come in the districts at Plymouth Salem. There, Canton will have a chance to change this inferior image which has haunted them all year long.

The Rocks from Salem and Westland John Glenn are two formidable district opponents who will challenge the Chiefs.

Success in the state tournament is always the next goal for every prep basketball team. But in the Chiefs' case, it should be more than just a looking for a title not just for the sake of reaching a goal but the factor of pride. If the Chiefs win the district, then, and only then, will the team prove it can win the big ones.

Pride is definitely at stake. For Bell, his players, and for the Western-6.

Heaven knows the Western-6 needs to gain some basketball pride. There hasn't been too much of that this season.

"Any team in the league has five players who can play," Bell said. "And on any given night if you're not ready to play you can lose.

"It's a tribute to our kids that there were no breakdowns. They kept working hard.

"We had all the pressure at the beginning of the season when people said we would win the league. These people were right. We did win the Western 6."

The league title was the number-one goal for Canton this season. Bell said he now wants to go undefeated in loop action. The Chiefs face Churchill Friday and Northville next Friday to finish the league and regular season

Butch King led the Chiefs' scoring attack with 26 points. He hit 12 of 19 outside shots and two free throws to pace the way. Rusty Mandle played another outstanding floor game, scoring 12 points, pulling down nine rebounds and adding 11 assists.

These two players, the Chiefs' senior co-captains, have led the way all sea-

"We started slowly," Bell said of the Western victory. "But we got great senior leadership on the floor. Wemoved the ball around well, offensively. We were not selfish and we took good shots."

Bell added Mike Leary and Mike Gollnick, Canton's two senior inside players, dominated the boards. Dave Visser, a junior forward, also contributed with 10 points.

Western held an early 11-8 lead after the first six minutes of play but the outcome was never in doubt. The Chiefs led 18-13 after the first period, 38-25 at halftime, and scored 26 more points in the third quarter to put the game away. All the Chief reserves saw action the final six minutes of play.

The Chiefs hit on 35 of 75 shot from the floor for 47-percent, while the Warriors hit on only 20 of 75 shots for 27 percent. The Chiefs outrebounded Western 36-24.

Westland John Glenn, Wayne Memorial, Garden City East, Garden City West, Plymouth Canton and host Plymouth Salem will square off for the district crown during the week of March 5. The district championship game will be held on Saturday, March 10.

The winner of the Salem tourney will meet three other district winners in the Livonia Franklin Regional the following week.

According to state tournament rules, Salem, being the host squad, cannot draw a first-round bye. The Rocks will play on Monday and will need three victories for district honors.

Salem, Canton and John Glenn are considered the teams to beat. GC West could be a sleeper after its fine season in Tri-River League play.

Wayne and GC East are second-division teams in the Great Lakes Eight League and Northwest Suburban League, respectively. Neither squad is likely to be around for the finals.

Salem has beaten both John Glenn and Canton earlier this season in nonleague play. Glenn and Canton are the top two teams in their respective leagues, Northwest Suburban and Western Six, while Salem is in a dogfight with Livonia Bentley for firstplace honors in the Suburban Eight

Both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem girls gymnastics teams registered their best performances of the season last Wednesday in tri-meet action against Dearborn. Canton won the meet with an astond-overall record to 7-1. Salem is winless this season. Canton coach Barb Winn felt her club deserved to win the meet despite the wide point-spread and a potent Dearborn team.

"We did better and it was one of our best perfomances this season," the Canton coach said.

Salem coach Carol Michaels was also pleased with her squad's performance. "That's the best score we've gotten." she said. "We were down to around 40 points but now we're on our way back up again." Canton edged Dearborn in three of the four events. The Chiefs won the vaulting 22.75-21.25, placed first on the beam 21.2-16.4, and was best in the floor exercise 23.55-20.75. The Pioneers won the uneven bars competition 20.15-19.65.

Tankers triumph

By M. DAVID CAMPBELL

Despite missing 10 of its swimmers because of illness, Plymouth Canton's boys swim team trounced Western Six League foe Walled Lake Western, 98-75, Thursday night. The triumph raised Canton's overal dual-meet record to 10-0 this season — although the Chiefs fell to Detroit Catholic Central in tri-meet action earlier last month.

The Chiefs failed to a get a single first-place finish before the diving competition, trailing 25-21 at that point of the meet. It was the first time all season the Chiefs were behind at the diving portion of the competition.

After that, however, it was all Canton, as Chief head coach Bill Faunce used the versatility of his deep lineup to fight off the upset hopes of the Warriors.

Diver Steve Gray turned things around for Canton with a first-place total of 180.3 points. Western never recovered after that.

Ron Hurley, a sophomore, followed the diving competition with a first-place in the 100-yard butterfly. Hurley won this race with a :59.6 clocking. Bob Simrak, a freshman, took first place in the 500-yard freestyle race. His time was 5:35.2

To finish the meet, Canton won the 400-yard freestyle relay race in 3:33.9. Hurley, Simrak, Bob Cline and Dave Tanner combined for this winning time. The 200-yard medley relay of Jeff Seippel, Cline, Vince Tobin and Troy Haarala placed second in the opening event with a 1:54.3 timing Simrak took second in the 200-yard individual medley, while Tanner placed second in bothe the 100-yard and 200-yard freestyle races. Haarala took second in the 50-yard freestyle.

What is Lori Agnew up to these

The pretty, 1976 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School is busy cheerleading for Michigan State University.

While the Spartans have been successful in athletic circles recently, MSU cheerleaders have also been doing some winning of their own. Agnew, a former Plymouth gymnast, and her fellow Spartan cheerleaders were recently selected as one of the five finalists in the National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships.

The final competition, sponsored by the International Cheerleading Foundation, will be held in Provo, Utah, and will be televised in a 90minute special on CBS (Channel 2) April 16.

The 16 Spartan cheerleaders will perform a five-minute program at the finale. It will include pyramids, cheers, the MSU fight song, dances and pompon routines.

The other four schools competing for top honors are North Carolina, Southern California, Mississippi State and Tulsa.

Agnew is in her second year of cheerleading for the Spartans. She is a junior, majoring in elementary education. Agnew is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Agnew of 1200 Ross St. in Plymouth.

Canton humbles Harrison

Coming off a loss to Livonia Churchill that ruined any chances for first place in the Western 6, the Plymouth Canton varsity volleyball team added another win to its record by defeating Farmington Harrison Wednesday, 15-6,

The Chiefs had beaten the Hawks at the beginning of the season, 15-3, 15-12.

Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein said Harrison has shown a lot of improvement since their first meeting and that Harrison coach Peggy Moore has done a good job instructing the Hawks. Moore is a 1977 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School.

"Harrison's skills have improved but they lack the court sense needed to play successful volleyball," said Burnstein. "They get confused on the court and don't know what to do. That comes from the lack of experience.'

Key players in the Canton performance were junior Jill Peterson and sophomore MariAnn Pink. Burnstein complimented Pink on her successful saves throughout the match and Peterson for her work at the net in spikes and dinks.

Canton plays Redford Union in nonleague action at Redford Union tonight (Monday) and takes on Walled Lake Western in Western 6 action on Wednesday on the Canton home court.

The Patriots trailed 13-8 after the first quarter. The score was tied at the intermission, 20-20, and after three periods, 35-35.

Temple, which led by as many as eight points in the final quarter, went to a ball-control stall offense the final two minutes to preserve the win.

Temple used a 2-3 zone except during the second quarter, when a press was used to whittle the five-point deficit. Bethany used a 2-1-2 zone except late in the game when it was forced to scramble in an effort to catch up.

The victory was the Patriots' 15th in 19 games this season.

By BETTY MASSON

Shades of Rosie the Riveter! Now it's Lily the Lathe Operator.

Lily is one of the success stories of Ronald Cook, who works at the Michigan Employment Security Commission office in Livonia.

Lily, described as "a white-haired lady of about 65 whom you could believe taking bread out of the oven" decided several months ago that since she liked to spend money, she should get a "Sure, she'd had experience - she ran a lathe at Ford during World War II. She'd been home since, but what are a few years? No, she didn't have any tools. They had been stolen.'

Lily appealed to Cook and got his attention, his sympathy and his cooperation. "She had spunk, you know."

He got on the telephone to an employer who has hired older workers in the past. He would give her a try. According to Cook, he's glad he did.

Within a short time, Lily was keeping well ahead of the other workers. Inside a month, she was being paid $7 an hour. She had started at $4.50.

INSIDE OF two months she came back to visit Cook, driving a brand new

Lily is Cook's "star" in the role as an older worker specialist at the MESC office. For a little more than a year, the MESC has had older worker specialists in most of its offices throughout the state. The program was initiated by a federal grant administered by the Labor Department's Office on Aging.

Business for Cook and his counterparts in the Plymouth office, Mrs. Mildred Rady and Mrs. Anna Wilson, is growing. All say that with inflation many retirees are finding it extremely difficult to get along on fixed incomes and are forced to seek work again.

Others are looking for something to do, some way to use their talents. At 65, they still feel they have a lot to

But employers often don't feel this way. In fact, so strong is the emphasis on youth that an American becomes an "older worker" at 40 in the eyes of employers, according to MESC.

And older means obsolete. If you are over 40, you can't learn anything.

Wrong, says MESC, in the results of a survey it conducted in preparation for "Older Workers' Week" March 11-

EMPLOYERS THEMSELVES report that workers hired after age 40 attain a higher performance rating in a shorter period of time than workers who are hired before the age of 30, says the report.

Older workers tend to have a more positive attitude toward work than do the younger workers.

They have greater job stability and a better record of acceptance by employers . . . once they are hired.

They lose few days from work. The number of days lost for all reasons decreases as age increases.

"Ability is ageless," according to

Statewide, older worker specialists placed 2,346 workers last year, in everything from horse training to clerical, janitorial, factory and administrative work.

Older workers don't lack stamina either, according to Cook. "There are some jobs which are not suitable, of course, but for most jobs older workers bear up just beautifully. The 20-yearold gets bored.

IN INTRODUCING the position of older worker specialist, the MESC endeavored to hire exactly that, older workers who had been there and know what it is like.

Cook, who had a stroke three years ago, had been active in several heavy equipment businesses and at one time managed a large sales force.

Both Mrs. Rady and Mrs. Wilson have backgrounds in business and in counseling.

Cook is proud of Lily because her performance proves it can be done. He and Mrs. Rady and Mrs. Wilson not only work hard to make sure the worker will "fit" the job, but also stress the importance of "trying harder."

You have to talk straight to the oldr er person before you send him out," said Cook, recalling a recent telephone conversation in which he told a reluctant employer:

"This man sitting right here before me can outwork any two 20-year-olds

Before the man left for his job interview, Cook told him, "You heard what I told him.'

The job seeker replied, "Yeah, and that's right, too.

"Now when you go down there, don't you back up an inch," Cook said.

"He could wash out my whole pitch by going down there and being frail in personality, in spirit or in body. Now, if he will exude strength of personality, he'll get the job. THE OLDER WORKER specialists try persuasion, but sometimes employers are reminded that it is against the law to discriminate because of age.

Not all of the stories have happy end-

"He doesn't have the same work ings. Sometimes older workers have what Cook calls "a warped view of the world of work and what makes the world go around.' They hear that union members are getting $14 for a skilled trade, and they expect to make similar wages. But they are unrealistic about their skills. Sometimes would-be workers have to resolve personal, medical and other problems before they can work. Mrs. Rady and Mrs. Wilson find that telling people where to get help is an important part of their work.

It might be someone who has a problem with alcohol, or a 47-year-old mother who has been divorced or widowed and has never worked outside the Even among older workers, some people are difficult. Such as the man who was in desperate straits with a sick wife, a leaking roof and no transportation. He turned down a job in which transportation was provided because it didn't pay enough for him.

COOK RECENTLY was able to find "a perfect job" for a retired department store executive of 70 who was bored with retirement. He is now happily employed in a jewelry store, only five minutes from his home

But Mrs. Rady says that it is difficult fo find suitable employment for retired teachers who still want to work with children, but not on a full-time basis.

In fact, it is not easy to find jobs for anyone looking for part-time employment. And with an eye to social security earning restrictions, many applicants are seeking these kinds of jobs.

Shared-time, sometimes suggested for working mothers, in which two persons hold down one job, is not being done much here.

one continues to elude even the most determined tax reformers. Once again, Congress has worked long and hard at reshuffling the tax laws. Still, no one would describe the results as a new deal, equitable to all. An example of old inequities that persist is the "marriage penalty," which causes married couples to pay more taxes than two unmarried individuals with the same income, exemptions and deductions.

This was not an intended result. It was an inadvertent side effect of efforts to correct a previous imbalance resulting from still earlier adjustments in the tax code.

First, they can be extra diligent in identifying business deductions. With two people employed in the family there is twice as much likelihood of job-related deductions, such as business travel and entertainment.

If you have young children or a disabled adult you have to hire someone to look after so that both of you can hold jobs, look into the child-care credit. With two or more qualifying dependents, this credit could be worth as much as $800, depending on your income level.

Investors were greatly encouraged by the performance of the stock market during the first four weeks of 1979.

As measured by the Dow Jones Industrial Average, it gained approximately 50 points (six percent), compared to its year-end figure of 805, at its closing of 859 on Friday, Jan. 26.

Since then, however, it has been in a solid retreat. Most of the blame can be attributed to the situation that has developed in Iran.

The market seemed to ignore the early unfolding of events in that country. But from the moment of the Shah's departure, it became apparent that the situation was extremely serious, and the market began to reflect its concern by turning downward. Investor concern is entirely justified.

IN ADDITION to the serious dent in the world's supply of oil that has resulted from the Iranian turmoil, contracts for American products (mostly military) have already been canceled to the Young lovers Lynn-Holly Johnson and Robby Benson in "Ice Castles."

You'll be tearful as skating star faces adversity

"Yech!" is the greeting I received when I returned home after seeing "Ice Castles" (PG).

My tough-minded 12-year-old, who had not seen the film, correctly surmised its contents from the tone of the television commercials. "Just another one of those handicap pictures," he said. "You know, where someone has a terrible accident and then they win the Olympics or something.'

Twelve years of television has made him a cynic or a realist. I'm not sure which; maybe they're both the same. He certainly grasped the general drift and emotional level of this film.

"Ice Castles" belongs to the wet handkerchief variety of movies, somewhere between "The Other Side of the Mountain" and "Slow Dancing in the Big City.'

THE THEME IS braveness in the face of adversity. It's a theme everyone can relate to in some way. After all, many of us face adversity daily just driving in rush hour traffic. The film, then, is not without some appeal, especially to a younger audience because "Ice Castles" is also a Newcomer Lynn-Holly Johnson plays Lexie, a 16-year-old ice skater from a small town in Iowa. Lexie has great natural ability and tremendous potential as a championship skater, but she lacks expert coaching. She is also distracted by her cuddly boyfriend, Robby Benson. He drops out of pre-med to play professional hockey, then drops out of hockey to think about what he should do.

At a regional skating competition, Lexie is spotted by a top coach (Jennifer Warren) and whooshed away from small town to big city where she's given a socko publicity build-up. She leaves behind her childhood coach (Colleen Dewhurst), overprotective father (Tom Skerritt) and boyfriend as she succumbs to the attentions of sportscaster David Huffman.

Lexie gets as far as the cover of Sports Illustrated when the "terrible accident" occurs. You know the rest: Withdrawal, self-pity, hope, struggle and, finally, achievement.

To his credit, director Donald Wrye keeps the emotional pitch under restraint. "Ice Castles" might prompt a warm tear or two, no flood. Dewhurst as the eccentric old coach and Skerritt as the concerned father nicely balance the sweet young lovers and the aggressive, publicitysmart coach.

THE FREE SKATING scenes have a grace and beauty all their own, much like the ballet scenes in other recent movies. Little flaws in Lexi's character also help make her more of a real person and less of an

The one element in this film that cannot be compensated by acting or directing is the ending. We're expected to believe that Lexie can fool everyone into believing that she has no handicap. Now that's a handicap

Marcel Marceau's pursuit of the art of mime was inspired by such silent screen artists as Charlie Chaplin, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. He studied with the great master, Etienne Decroux, at the Sarah Bernhardt Theater in Paris. Since then Marceau's fame has swept the world, and he continues to win the critics' unanimous acclaim.

Road commission denies township's salt/request

Plymouth Township's plan to salt roads on an emergency basis fell by the wayside last week, as the Wayne County Road Commission refused a request to supply salt for the operation.

To take care of some of the trouble spets on township roads, Supervisor Tom Notebaert had proposed a plan to obtain free salt from the road commission, which township employees would use on an emergency basis.

The road commission responded that the supply of salt could run short before the winter is out.

"One sustained snow storm could deplete our entire reserve," wrote W. P. Meyers, county highway engineer.

The road commission does sand local residential roads that become icy and hazardous, he pointed out. Any specific locations that are ongoing problems should be reported to the road commission, he added.

The campaign committee got something resembling an endorsement and a promise of help from the Faculty Forum, bargaining agent for 160 fulltime and about the same number of part-time instructors.

Blood alcohol tests will be admissible as evidence in cases other than those involving drunk driving charges since the state senate approved the legislation Thursday.

The measure, sponsored by State Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia), whose district includes Westland, amends the Michigan Vehicle Code. The code had limited the use of the test as evidence to cases of driving under the influence

The Stroller

Minister's strategy

It was a cold blustery afternoon in February down in the Dutch country. It was snowing. In many places the drifts were more than four feet high. It was right after World War II when the post war depression hit and a fellow couldn't even buy a job.

On this particular day the weather was worse than many The Stroller had endured since coming to Michigan. And, as usual, on a day like this the male members of the neighborhood families had gathered at the town's fire

They had a dual purpose. First, it was to get out of the way of the women in the house and second to get together to spend the day playing pool, cards or just enjoying the company of each other over a bowl of bean soup.

In those days it was customary for the volunteer firemen - there were no paid firefighters - to make a clubhouse out of the hall and engage in a bit of culinary skill that usually resulted in a large kettle of bean soup.

At the start of the day we would each pool 15 cents for a large soup bone and a large bag of beans. The members of Congress in the nation's capitol never enjoyed their Michigan bean soup more than we did back in the fire hall.

WHEN THE WIND seemed to be howling its loudest this day, the door opened to the stairs leading to the basement and a voice called out, "look who just blew in.'

It was Rev. Peter White, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. None of us knew just how to react to his arrival when the hilarity seemed to be at its

"Often heard about thè fun you fellows have," the good reverend said, "so I thought I would join you for the afternoon.

"Make yourself right at home," he was told, with the added thought, "we hope there isn't a fire call." Rev. White smiled as he accepted a huge bowl of soup. He ate it with extreme pleasure and then asked, "Who made it? I'd like to have him come to our church bazaar and the duplicate the feat he just performed here.

Every one laughed, thinking that the preacher of the gospel was having a lit-the company of the firefighters.

Not only did he engage in the pool games, claiming it brought back memories of his college days when he took part in the games in the fraternity house, but he was slick with the cue.

WHEN THE POOL playing ended he went from table to table watching the card games.

He looked over the shoulders of the players and had a difficult time keeping from giving tips of what he saw. He was particularly pleased at the five card stud poker game where the stakes were matches instead of money. He stood amazed at some of the gambles the players were taking in drawing for

He seemed to enjoy himself to the utmost when The Stroller, then one of the players, connected with an "inside" straight and took all the matches.

He didn't get in to the game himself.

Instead he went from table to table just watching. Only once that The Stroller recalls did he voice surprise. That came when one of the players stood pat on a pair of kings and kept raising the bet until he forced all the other players to lay down their hands.

"My," he said, "I never thought you were the kind of a fellow with nerve enough to do anything like that and especially with just a pair of kings." FINALLY, AFTER what he termed a very pleasant afternoon, the good reverend announced that he was leav-

"I thoroughly enjoyed myself." be said, "and I want to thank you for a relaxing afternoon. And now that I visited you fellows why don't you return the favor and visit with me on Sunday morning?"

That's exactly what we did - about 20 strong. And that first Sunday morning gathering started a tradition that still exists with the volunteer firefighters back home.

The minister's strategy worked.

Reye's Syndrome:

A parent's nightmare

By ELLIE GRAHAM

Brian Rowland has no recollection of his trip to the doctor's office, to Beaumont Hospital, and then to Children's Hospital in Detroit.

'When I woke up, it was like a dream," he said. "I didn't know where I

For his mother, Nila Rowland of Ross Street, Plymouth, her son's bout with Reye's Syndrome was a night-

Life is back to normal for the 9-yearold now. He's playing junior basketball for the Mustangs and attending Smith Elementary School. When he dashes home for lunch at noon, he has time to give his dog, Candy, an extra hug.

BRIAN'S ILLNESS started last Nov. 21, the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. He was very drowsy and although he didn't feel much like going to basketball practice, he went. But the pounding of the bouncing balls was an unbearable sound and he went home.

On Wednesday morning, he vomited - not violently, but his stomach was upset. He still was drowsy and listless. His mother took him over to his grandmother's house to spend the day while she went to work.

As the day progressed, his grandmother became increasingly concerned about his condition. He was displaying hostility and didn't seem to recognize his grandmother.

His mother left her office, picked him up, and headed for their pediatrician in Farmington. At that time, Brian was passive, but disoriented. He did not recognize his mother.

"Brian had been hit on the head with a basketball on Monday. It could have been a concussion, or spinal meningitis. The doctor sent us to Beaumont Hospital," Mrs. Rowland said.

IT WAS on the way to Beaumont that the syndrom entered a new violent phase. He showed unusual strength, tearing off his shirt and screaming.

"If my mother hadn't come along (to Beaumont), I don't know how I would have managed the drive," Mrs. Rowland said

Brian added that he didn't even like to hear about that part of his sickness.

Doctors at Beaumont telephoned Dr. Edgardo L. Arcinue, director of the Reye's Syndrome Study Center at Children's Hospital. He suggested immediate treatment of Mannitol and Decadron,two drugs that halt brain

"There seemed to be an almost immediate calming reaction to the drugs. But the worst moment for me was when they asked me what last rites I wished for my son.'

An ambulance was dispatched from Children's Hospital to pick up the patient. It arrived at Beaumont with a doctor, two nurses and two ambulance

Brian was rushed to the hospital and placed in intensive care where Dr. Ar-cinue and his staff took over. At 6 a.m. Thanksgiving day, Brian's condition was reported as stable. His mother went home to change her clothes.

WHEN SHE RETURNED to Children's Hospital at 10 a.m., Brian recognized his mother. He was watching the Thanksgiving parade on television.

His speech was still slurred. But he was much better.

He stayed in intensive care until Saturday afternoon, when he was moved to a regular medical ward. He spent five days there.

"He started eating immediately and there was no more medication, once he was rational." He was tired and drowsy for a couple of weeks after he returned

His doctor advised getting back to normal as soon as possible, so he returned to school.

"We're still doctoring. He went to see Dr. Michael Nigro, his neurosurgeon, on Monday. His brain is still swollen but it's slowly getting down to normal size. We don't have to go back until June." Nigro headed the ICU at Children's Hospital when Brian was there. He is a resaerch associate in the Reye's Syndrome Study Center.

"And we still go to Southfield for brain scans," Mrs. Rowland said.

Mrs. Rowland believes excellent and timely medication saved her son. "Any child with Reye's Syndrome symptoms can get immediate attention. Once the center is contacted, they can be transported immediately to the roof of Children's Hospital by helicopter.'

Brian's case was an example of why the death rate from Reye's Syndrom feet and dilated pupils are symptoms that may last 12 to 24 hours.

"With Brian, everthing was speeded up," said his mother. He went through phases in 24 hours that usually take may take several adults to restrain three days.

After the vomiting, the next phase is behavior change. The child becomes irritable and negative, wanting to be left alone and is unusually annoyed if anyone speaks to him or touches him.

He may want to sleep all the time, feeling very fatigued or simply "washed out." He may be glassy eyed with prolonged staring. Many parents describe a hostile look on their child's face. This condition may last 12-24

Disorientation often follows and the child becomes generally confused. For example, he may find his way into the bathroom but will not find his way out. He is able to carry out simple requests, such as "brush your teeth," only with the most deliberate and basic step-bystep instructions. This period lasts 12-24 hours.

THE NEXT PHASE is hostility. The child becomes generally hostile and unable to recognize family members and Brian reached this stage during the drive from the pediatrician's office to Beaumont Hospital.

Coma usually follows. Brian did not reach this phase.

The child usually enters the semicomatose state, responding sluggishly and only after vigorous prodding. Soon, deep coma develops with no response. If death occurs, it is as a result of swelling brain tissue.

. The above is the usual progression in cases of Reye's Syndrom. However, symptoms, time intervals and sequences may vary.

Reye's is thought to be primarily a syndrom of white suburban or rural children. In 1974, a study revealed that nearly two-thirds of the reported U.S. cases occurred in states bordering the Great Lakes. The cause is unknown, therefore there is no specific cure

What to do if you suspect Reye's

The Reye's Syndrome Study Center at Children's Hospital, Detroit has prepared a guide for parents who suspect that their child may have Reve's:

· Don't panic. Even if one or more of the described symptoms do occur in your child or another's, the odds are that it is not Reye's Syndrome. Reye's strikes a very small percentage of the millions of children who contract the flu, chicken pox or some

· However, do consider Reye's. Quick action is imperative to give the Reye's child the greatest opportunity for recovery. · Call your physician immediately and explain the symptoms. Tell him you are concerned about Reye's Syndrome. This is important because Reye's can easily be mistaken for encephalitis or, in older children, for drug overdose.

The doctors will know quickly if Reye's is present and supportive therapy can be started immediately. . If it is Reye's, you have done the right thing. Therapy has started, and you have

Winter 'ruff' on your pets

Many outdoor pets are having a "ruff" time this winter, as evidenced by the hundreds of complaints of lack of shelter for pets being received this year by the Michigan Humane Society Cruelty

Investigation Division. The society says the most important item for an outdoor pet is an adequate shelter-a sturdy. waterproof doghouse, insulated with straw. The straw should be changed frequently, though, since it loses its insulating qualities when it becomes wet.

Abandonment unwanted pets is especially cruel in the winter, according to the society. An abandoned cat was recently found frozen to the roof of a Detroit hotel. The kitty was rescued and adopted by the hotel residents. Unwanted pets can be taken to any Michigan Humane Society shelter or an animal control center.

Winter is easier for pets when their owners give them adequate care and shelter. The Michigan Humane Society offers a free pamphlet on "The Care of the Outdoor Dog," available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit 48211.

'What do you mean you don't have my reservation?'

Here's a good traveler's motto: if at first you don't succeed, persist. If that doesn't work, scream bloody murder. The travel industry does not intend to cheat you, but sometimes it promises you prices and services occasionally not delivered. This happens because of human error, laziness, or the antics of a fouled-up computer.

It usually occurs because the employee who meets the public does not have the information necessary to deliver

What brings me to this poing is that some Observer & Eccentric readers have tried, unsuccessfully, to get the Mini-Holiday rates quoted by the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau. Several readers phoned the Ritz Carlton Hotel for the rate I listed on this page Feb. 5 for one person for two nights on weekends, which is half the regular rate. They were told that no such rate was available.

Mini-holiday rates are available. If you have a problem at any Chicago hotel I listed, insist on the rate by name or contact Wayne Dunham, director of public relations, Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau, 332 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 60604, or telephone him at 1-312-922-3530.

THIS PROBLEM occurs often enough. The trick is to learn how to be assertive in demanding your rights.

Last fall, I arrived late and tired at the Holiday Inn in New York City. My reservation was made a week before. confirmed by telephone, and guaranteed. When I arrived, the desk clerk assured me there was no such reservation.

I believe him. In this case, I suspect the computer dropped my name somewhere between the interfaces. I had no intention of going elsewhere. I just kept repeating, much like a scratched record: "I made a reservation and I want a room." I got one.

You don't always win, but at least you know that somebody heard your complaint. That's what happened when I bought tickets, described as "two of the best seats in the house" for the play "Annie" at the Victoria Palace Theater in London last summer.

They were front-row-center in the balcony. It looked great on the seating plan. The hitch was that a double brass rail had been installed in front of the two seats on either side of the center aisle, probably to stop a careless customer from tumbling down the steep steps and over the edge. I couldn't see over or under the rail

I didn't win that battle, because the seats were full, but I wrote to the manager and complained. He said that "half a million people had seen 'Annie' from those seats and nobody had complained before."

Which, if true, certainly seems to prove my point.

Train trip across Canada highlight of a lifetime

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

You are either a train traveler or not. You do or do not enjoy moving out of a cold station, steam on the windows and rails converging ahead as the railway car begins its rough and noisy

Some people are aware only of the stopping and starting, the imperfect heating system in the roomette, where a bed takes every inch of space, the boredom of riding endlessly across lake, prairie and mountain country to the Pacific.

Train people perceive something else. They see the ride as a crossing of uncluttered land, where a solitary moose makes a yard by stamping the snow down with his feet on a lonely stretch of rock-and-tree country north of Lake Superior. Seeing the real countryside as history made it, in clusters of small towns with names like Sioux Look-Out and prairie cities like Winnipeg and Regina. Breathtaking views when the hight train startles the wilderness in the Rockies.

If you are a train person, a trip across Canada is one of the travel highlights of a lifetime.

Canada has two major train lines, the Canadian National (CN) and the Canadian Pacific (CP) railways. Both run on parallel lines within 100 miles of the American border from the Atlantic Ocean to Winnipeg, at the edge of the Great Plains. CP continues on a southern route through the mountain pass beyond Banff and CN turns north through Jasper before the two lines reunite at Vancouver on the Pacific

In late 1978, the two train services were merged to form VIA Canada, a rail passenger service. VIA is a crown corporation which reports to the minister of transport in the Canadian federal government system.

VIA manages all customer service from information and reservations to on-board services and scheduling, making government contracts for these services with CN and CP.

The future for the venture holds 50 new coaches, 22 LRC (Light, Rapid, Comfortable) locomotives and a computerized reservation and ticketing system that will plug into Air Canada's reservation system, all by early 1980.

The computerized reservation system, called ReserVIA, will make Canada the first country in the world where a traveler can make airline, train, car rental, hotel and motel reservations from a single computerized source.

THE NEW SYSTEM was designed to eliminate overlapping service. CP and CN pioneered Canada in the 19th century, and have since offered two almostparallel train routes from Montreal to Vancouver. A passenger could choose between crossing the Rockies at Banff or Jasper, but otherwise the route was similar.

VIA now runs a daily transcontinental train from Toronto to Vancouver and another daily train from Montreal to Vancouver, with passengers opting to cross the platform at Winnipeg for a choice of routes. VIA will run variously on both CN and CP tracks.

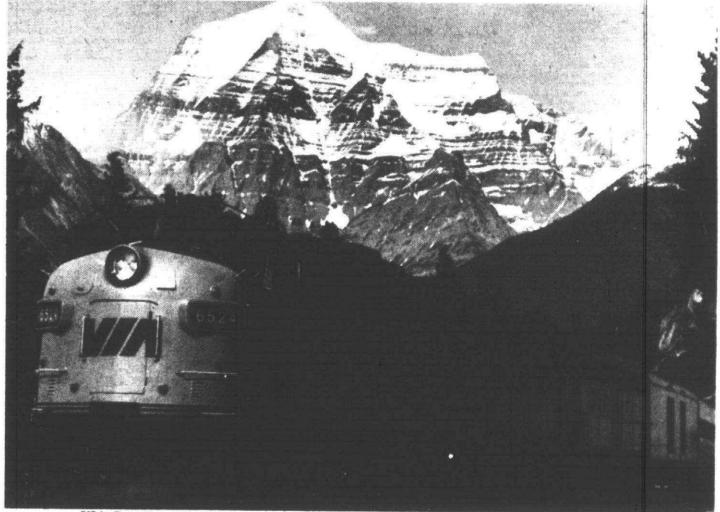

The new Fare-For-All plan includes round-trip rates at 11/3 of the one-way price, VIA passes within regions, and one-third off for senior citizens.

The rail corridor which runs from Windsor through Toronto and Montreal to Quebec City moves one-third of its business traffic.

One of the highlights of this run is the Turbo train which speeds from Toronto

Package deals offer round-trip club car passage from Toronto to Montreal on this train with a full-course meal. free parking at stations in Toronto and Montreal and one night's hotel accommodation at a choice of three or four top-notch hotels for $99 to $129, depending on the hotel.

Another unusual Canadian train package is called the Shaw Show Train. a 10-day cross-Canada journey complete with on-board performers from the Shaw Festival Company, a separate theater car with stage, piano and seats

The wheeled playhouse will run 10 times this year from Toronto to Vancouver for a package cost of about $1,100 (U.S.) including first-class hotel accommodations and meals.

AMERICAN TRAVELERS often are surprised to learn of major differences for 50 passengers, and special theater between traveling by train in the Unit- dred miles of butte and plains to the good, reasonably priced service crosscountry, so you will not see old train stations looking like broken down mausoleums. Canadian stations are alive and busy with traffic.

Ft. Wayne has group programs

Even though historic Fort Wayne is closed for the winter, its education program continues.

"Yesterday-on-Tour," a "hands-on" living history program, is being offered to schools and community groups throughout the metropolitan area.

The response has been overwhelming, according to William Phenix, curator of military history at the fort.

"Yesterday-on-Tour" has been seen by thousands of school children in the tri-county area. The four participants in the program have traveled to many Detroit schools as well as schools in such suburbs as Royal Oak, Troy, Union Lake, Grosse Pointe, Mt. Clemens, Grosse Ile, Plymouth, Rochester, Warren, Wyandotte, Birmingham, Highland Park, Oxford, and Utica.

"EVERYWHERE THEY have gone they have created a greater interest in local and national history and Fort Wayne as well," Phenix said.

Billed as a field trip without the cost, labor and expense of leaving school, "Yesterday-on-Tour" combines "Hardtack and Coffee," last year's outreach program on the Civil War, with "Les Francais a Detroit," which deals with Detroit's 18th-century French period.

As in last year's program, Michael Jones and Nora White of the fort's interpretive staff play the roles of Jacob Genner, a Civil War soldier, and Lydia Hall, a woman of the 1860s, the two players demonstrate how people lived during that era of our history.

Their presentation includes discussions of Civil War army life, a typical soldier's uniform and equipment, and domestic life during the war (especially women's active contributions to the war effort).

This year two new characters have been added to the program, Dennis Charboneau and Jeanne Godfroi, portrayed by Dennis Charboneau (no need to adopt a French name when one has a perfectly good one already!) and Jean LaViolette, both also from the interpretive staff.

Through artifacts and story they describe the life of the adventurous French "habitants" and "coureur du bois" (rover of the woods) in 18th-century Michigan.

"Yesterday-on-Tour" is available to school grades 3-8 and limited adult presentations. Each program lasts approximately 45-60 minutes and is adaptable to shorter lengths. There is a fee that is reduced when more than one presentation is scheduled at one loca-

–No longer a Fiesta ———

Ford shows concept Corrida

Ford developed this three-door concept car from a Fiesta base. Called Corrida, this one of a kind car has top hinged gullwing doors that fold in the middle (bottom) for easy access in tight parking areas. Another feature is the aerodynamic shape of the front end, with the nose slanted down sharply.
