Bank to collect July tax

Residents of Canton and Plymouth townships may be the only property owners in Michigan whose school property taxes will be collected by a bank.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education has approved a "milestone" agreement for summer taxes to be collected by the First National Bank of Plymouth in the two townships.

July 1 will mark the first time that school taxes have been paid in the summer, an action made possible by a new state law which allows school districts to collect taxes twice a year — half in July and half in December.

Canton Township had refused to collect school taxes in the summer and Plymouth Township submitted a bid to the district for collecting summer taxes. The board and administration decided the bid was too high.

THE SCHOOL administration then negotiated with two local banks and with Wayne County to collect the summer tax. After offering both townships a second chance to bid, the district approached First National Bank of Plymouth, which agreed to collect the taxes in both municipalities for $3 a parcel.

Both school and bank officials report they know of no other district in the state which is using a bank to collect school taxes.

The bank also will collect summer school taxes in Northville Township, which declined to bid for the service this year because it had switched to a new computer system. The township plans to collect the tax next year.

Salem Township has agreed to collect the summer tax for $3.37 per parcel and Superior Township has agreed to perform the service for $3.56 per parcel.

The city of Plymouth will collect summer taxes free of charge the first year and then, based on its experiences, will decide what to charge the district next year.

THE CITY will continue to charge its 1 percent collection fee on school taxes instead of charging the school district a per parcel fee.

The city manager and city commission have had discussions about dropping the 1 percent collection fee. If the fee, which is charged on all taxes paid other than city property taxes, is discontinued, then the city would charge the school district.

The fee has been levied on school taxes by the city for years and is not related to the summer tax collection process.

City of Plymouth residents will be billed for half the school millage (18.5 mills) in July when city tax bills go out.

Canton and Plymouth Township residents, who normally pay property taxes only in December, will receive tax bills in July (or mortgage companies will, if the homeowner is paying taxes through escrow accounts).

Tom Yack, school board president, commented Monday that the agreement with the bank represented a milestone for both parties. "We don't know of a similar situation elsewhere in Michigan. This is uncharted waters for Student journalists Tami Budlong and Scott Callahan took their fight over access to Canton Police Department records to Washington, D.C.'s Student Press Law Center, and won.

Freedom of Information Student reporters take on cops

By Arlene Funke staff writer

A tenacious bunch of student reporters have won their fight to be considered legitimate members of the press.

In a change of policy, the Canton police department has agreed to give student reporters from the C.E.P. Perspective access to official police reports. The Perspective is operated for students attending Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth-Salem high schools.

Both schools are at Centennial Educational Park (C.E.P.), located at Joy and Canton Center roads in Canton Township.

'I think the police were surprised we took this so seriously.'

— Tami Budlong, C.E.P. Perspective staff member

In the past, students were denied those reports. But the students cited federal and state laws allowing student journalists access to official documents, including police reports.

The students won over the police, who met with attorneys prior to the change in procedures.

"I think the police were surprised we took this so seriously," said Tami Budlong, a 16-year-old junior at Plymouth Canton High and a C.E.P. Perspective staff member.

"When we do have to make that contact (with police), we will be more comfortable, and we will know we'll be able to get what we need," Budlong added.

THE ISSUE was sparked in early March when C.E.P. Perspective reporters Scott Callahan and Dave Owens

Political novices join recall bid

By Arlene Funke staff writer

Dave West of Canton says he's "never done anything like this before," but he's jumped solidly on the bandwagon which hopes to turn Gov. James Blanchard out of office.

Mike Crocket of Livonia, another newcomer to politics, is working with West to organize support for the recall effort in western Wayne County.

Supporters of the movement are furious with Blanchard for spearheading the recent 38 percent jump in the state income tax.

"This is a bipartisan action," said Crocket, a 26-year-old hydraulic pipe fitter. "It's a grass roots movement."

West, a 35-year-old warranty administrator for Cadillac Motors in Detroit, is overseeing recall activities in Canton, Livonia, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and several other western Wayne communities.

Mike Crocket

THE COORDINATORS want to have an organizational meeting around June 4, but they said they're having a tough time finding a location for the meeting. They've tried, without success, to reserve space at a civic center, civic lodge or similar hall.

"We've had no luck in getting a building," West said. "No one wants to have anything to do with it — good or bad, right or wrong."

The organizers want to sign up volunteers and garner signatures for recall petitions. But if tradition holds true, they're fighting an uphill battle.

Putting the issue on the ballot will require 706,000 valid signatures. And a state officer has never been recalled in Michigan.

BLANCHARD "rescued the state from bankruptcy" and now is concentrating his efforts on jobs and economic development, said Sue Carter, Blanchard's press secretary.

The state income tax increase is not a permanent tax, Carter said. She faulted the news media for failing to make that point more clearly.

The tax is structured to decrease in three increments and revert to 4.6 percent when unemployment drops below 9 percent, Carter said.

"A radical solution was required," she said. "The governor has said a fair-minded person won't blame him for doing the right thing. He inherited several budget problems."

"At this point, he is moving forward and not back, with programs for jobs and economic development," Carter added.

This is West's first venture into a political movement.

"The only (reason) I'm doing this is that we're opening the avenues for people to express how they feel," he said.

The recent tax increase places a burden on young and old and is driving people out of Michigan, Crocket said.

"I have talked to a lot of elderly people. They say if a lot of young people move out of the state, they feel they are going to be stuck in a state that can't support them. That's why a lot of elderly people support this recall."

Crocket and West said they had no alternative plans for solving the state's financial woes. But officials and legislators should be looking for ways to cut costs, Crocket said.

Some efforts also are being made to recall legislators who voted in favor of the tax increase, he said.

Crocket said he took a one-year wage freeze and his newest car is a 1974 Ford Torino.

"It (the tax increase) is a burden to the working person," he added. "My wife doesn't work and we're just getting by. I realize the state of Michigan is in trouble. But the answer isn't to raise the taxes."

Headquarters for the Recall Blanchard campaign are in Roseville. Residents can get additional information by calling 445-1776 or 445-1774. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

oral quarrel

Some Plymouth and Canton residents have joined the movement to file petitions asking to recall Governor James Blanchard.

The Observer would like to know how its readers feel about the proposed recall of the governor. This week's Oral Quarrel question is:

How do you feel about the proposed recall of Gov. Blanchard? Think it over and phone in your response to Oral Quarrel at 459-2704. Calls will be taken as soon as you formulate your views and up until 1 p.m. Friday, May 20. The answers will be published Monday, May 23.

Canton police investigate third rape in 8 days

Canton police are investigating their third reported rape in a little more than a week.

The latest case involves a 29-year-old woman who told police two men armed with handguns sexually assaulted her in her Canton Court apartment early Monday.

The victim told police she had talked with the two men earlier at a carnival in Ypsilanti. She said they followed her home around midnight, pulled a gun and forced her into the apartment, where they stayed about six hours.

There had been some drinking and talking in the apartment prior to the assaults, police said. The victim was raped by one of the men and forced to perform a sex act on the other, they said.

The victim told police the men stole a diamond ring, an AM-FM cassette player and $20 in cash.

THE CANTON Court incident is unrelated to earlier rapes which occurred during a four-day period last week, according to police.

A 23-year-old jogger was threatened with a sharpened screw driver, then raped on Lotz Road north of Michigan Avenue May 11, police said.

Shortly before 1:30 a.m., May 8, a 22-year-old woman was raped at gunpoint as she walked along sparsely populated Michigan Avenue west of Beck.

Police are unsure if the two earlier cases are related, but the incidents prompted Police Chief Jerry Cox to issue a warning for women to avoid being out alone during late hours.

Ice skaters to dazzle hometown crowd

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Local skaters will take the ice at the Plymouth Cultural Center this weekend as part of the first locally produced ice show in several years.

"The last ice show here was about seven or eight years ago. My hope is to bring it back," said Jim Millins, show director.

Millins, along with skaters ranging in ages from 5 to 70, will present Plymouth Ice Revue 1983 this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"Hopefully we'll be starting a trend for years to come," Millins said.

"The majority of our skaters are seasoned amateur show skaters," he said. "The show features some outstanding skating and isn't designed to be a recital."

If the credentials of several Plymouth-Canton skaters performing as featured artists indicate the level of talent in the show, patrons are in for a treat.

Included in the show will be feature numbers by:

• Gwen Cirbes, a 12-year-old skater, who has competed in the Midwestern Championships and is a ladies bronze medal winner.

• Colleen Armstrong, a 15-year-old skater, who is a Seven State Outstanding Regional Competitor.

• Deveny Deck, a 15-year-old skater, who was the 1982 runner-up in Seven State Regional pairs competition.

TWO OTHER local skaters performing featured numbers are Suzie Moffatt, 14, and Allison Brandton, 6.

The show incorporates other solo and group numbers, along with a special number performed by the students of Steppingstone School.

At showtime the performers will have put in some 50 hours of practice, Millins said.

"I think you'll be amazed at the professionalism of this show," said Millins, a former professional show skater.

"The big key to our show is that it's something you won't be bored at — no matter what your age. We've tried our best to keep it as fast moving as possible."

Student journalists win legal battle with caps

tried to see a police report on a traffic accident near the schools involving students. The incident allegedly involved youths who had skipped classes.

Police refused the request on the grounds it would be an "unnecessary invasion of privacy," and because the names of juveniles were in the reports.

Sgt. Alex Wilson said he was willing to outline the accident, but he thought the student reporters had "other plans" for the information in the report since they already knew the names of the drivers.

Student copy editors Ida Williams and Budlong went to the Student Press Law Center, a Washington, D.C. news service which provides legal research and information for high school and college journalists.

Their research indicated federal and state Freedom of Information laws give student journalists — as well as all residents — legal access to official records of governmental bodies, commissions, school boards and police records.

Under those laws, police files on juveniles may be open, but court records are closed.

"THAT NEWSPAPER," and the young people who work for it, have the (right to) access to any other newspaper or any private citizens," said Canton police Lt. Larry Stewart. "I don't anticipate there will be a problem."

But if the access issue is clear in some ways, it opens many other questions, Stewart said.

"There are cases that will be questionable, and we have to decide, as the keepers of those records, the rights of privacy versus the right to know," Stewart added.

"Through the years, police departments and, probably, attorneys, have said that anything that involved a juvenile isn't public," said Stewart. "Recent cases have changed that."

Rights of access can be denied in certain cases. These exceptions include cases where releasing information would interfere with an on-going investigation, if it would be an unwarranted invasion of privacy, if the information might endanger a defendant's right to a fair or impartial trial, and others.

According to Stewart, freedom of information laws are designed to prevent the government from amassing "George Orwell-type super files" on people.

None the burden of responsibility for use of information released under freedom of information laws will shift from the police to the person receiving the data, Stewart said.

"It's a tough spot to be in," Stewart added. "The balance is a tenuous one on what is public and what is private (information)."

"Even if you've seen other ice shows in the area, you'd be interested in this one because it's drastically different in the types of numbers being done," he said.

"We are transforming the building from an ice arena into an entertainment center."

All but one of the skaters are from the Detroit area.

"The juvenile issue that was such a great issue (in the past) seems to be an area of concern no longer," Stewart said. "The public might be upset."

Although the accident story is stale news now, the students are pleased with the outcome of their campaign.

They feel they have gained respect as journalists and have opened the lines of communication.

"We pursued it for the principle and for the purpose of establishing a relationship with the Canton police department," said Sue Welker, the students' adviser.

however there aren't too many opportunities to do it. When we announced we were doing a show, the people were more than eager to participate," Millns said.

"One of the goals of the show was to provide something for the community."

"I THINK we are doing that by providing local skaters with the chance to perform and providing the community with a good show. We're killing two birds with one stone," he said.

The show is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday; 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. The Cultural Center is on the corner of Farmer and Theodore streets.

Tickets are available in advance at the Cultural Center, and cost $3 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and children 16 and under. Tickets bought at the door cost 50 cents more.

"It's a show the whole family would enjoy seeing," Millns said.

the bank and us, but it is an indication of the bank's willingness to be part of the community by doing its best for the benefit of the taxpayers.

Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, said that, ideally, it was best for the governmental units to collect the taxes — especially for cities which already have the machinery in place for summer collections.

"City Treasurer Ken Way helped us and the bank officers understand better the summer tax procedure," said Hoedel. "He was a real consultant to us."

The bills will go out to taxpayers or mortgage companies on July 1. Any taxes not paid by Sept. 15 will result in an imposition of a penalty of one percent a month.

Hoedel added that Salem Township was not looking forward to summer school taxes, but felt if anyone was to collect property taxes it was the job of the township's.

Birth defect program offered

Dearborn Henry Ford Hospital's Medical Genetics and Birth Defects Center is welcoming participants into a new program at the HFH Fairlane Center in Dearborn at 19401 Hubbard Drive, at Evergreen.

Diagnosis, screening, testing, and counseling are being offered as a response to the growing concern of both doctors and the public about the role of heredity and environment in birth defects, genetic (inherited) disease and reproductive failure, said a hospital spokesman.

Increasingly, it is becoming difficult for family physicians and obstetricians to keep current on the vast array of teratogens, or agents which cause fetal abnormalities.

Almost a quarter million babies are born each year with significant birth defects — about one-fifth of whom have conditions so rare that few physicians ever encounter them.

Patients can make appointments at the genetics center by calling the HFH Fairlane Center business office at 593-8200. Referrals can be made by physicians, educators or therapists. Examination findings, test results and consultative data are shared with a referring physician to provide coordinated care.

The HFH Medical Genetics and Birth Defects Center personnel will answer telephone questions about the risks involved with pregnant women's exposure to potentially harmful agents such as industrial chemicals, radiation, medications, alcohol and infections.

The number is 876-3190. The hotline is staffed by HFH genetics specialists from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Tax reduction delayed Millage set at 37 mills; half due in July

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education has decided to delay for at least six months any consideration of a possible millage reduction.

The delay was made, the board said, to see if the state comes through on its promise to return extra money to school districts.

The board voted 6-0 to establish the 1983-84 tax rate at 37 mills, or $37 per $1,000 state equalized valuation (SEV).

The levy represents a reduction of one-half mill (50 cents per $1,000 SEV) on the debt levy.

The debt levy has been lowered in part because part of the district's debt has been paid off and because the district will be borrowing less and paying less interest this year because of the implementation of summer tax collections, according to Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business.

Of the 37-mill total levy, 18.5 mills will be collected July 1, 1983, and the remaining 18.5 mills will be levied in December of this year.

The result will be that the owner of a home valued at $70,000 and assessed at $85,000 will pay $647.50 in school taxes in July and $647.50 in December instead of paying $1,295 in one lump sum in December.

Glen Schroeder had asked the board to consider lowering the millage levy for operation.

Schroeder argued the state is collecting more money from the state income tax and has promised to allocate more money for funding education.

The district, Schroeder said, should be able to get by on less property tax income because of the increased state funding.

Superintendent John M. Hoben admitted a millage reduction was possible later in the year. But, he added, it was too uncertain now whether the district would get the extra money as promised.

"The governor has made a proposal and probably is very sincere in making the proposal," said Hoben. "But the money is not in the treasury yet to back up that promise."

State law provides that a school district cannot increase its levy mid-year, Hoben said. He said the board's attorney has advised that the tax rate could be lowered for the winter collection.

By September, Hoben added, the board will have a better idea about the level of financial support from the state and will know then if a reduction is possible.

Lowering it now, he said, would be too risky.

"If the money doesn't come into the state coffers," cautioned Hoben, "then regardless of the governor's proposals, we'll again be getting executive order cutbacks."

Schroeder said he would like local taxpayers to get some benefit of the added dollars going into the educational budgets from the income tax.

"I'm willing, though, to go along with the proposed levy now and then we can speak to the issue when we set the winter tax rate in September."

Administrative transfers raise flap

By Sandra Armbruster, staff writer

The reassignment of six Wayne-Westland school administrators erupted in controversy recently as board trustee David Moranty presented petitions and a letter protesting the transfer of Wildwood principal Eugene Barnyak to Taft.

Claiming that the reassignments would "create more chaos," Moranty presented petitions signed by about 200 people from the Wildwood Elementary area where he lives.

"If Mr. Barnyak is the only super human person we've got, you ought to double his wage and give him a special classification," Moranty said.

Moranty was referring to Superintendent Dr. Timothy Dyer who said Barnyak's skill was needed because there has been "a lot of turmoil at Taft."

Dyer listed Barnyak's skills in community relations, communications and as a reading expert.

DESPITE CAUTIONS from Dyer and union president Jose Mueller that the discussion was potentially libelous, board members continued to debate problems at Taft Elementary including achievement test scores.

As members of the audience complained about losing Barnyak to Taft and threatened to make the transfer an issue in the coming school board election, board Vice President Kathleen Chorbagan and Fred Warmber said that they had raised questions about the needs at Taft with the administration.

"My kids have suffered there for seven years," said Chorbagan at one point, arguing with Moranty.

Both Chorbagan and Moranty apologized later in the discussion for their handling of the issue.

ALSO REASSIGNED were Sally Ross-Hurd from Stottlemeyer to Roosevelt Elementary School; Dr. Waino Aukke from McKee, which is closing, to Hoover Elementary; Karen Obsniuk from co-principal at Stevenson Junior High to principal at Schweitzer; Jamison Hawley from Washington, which is closing, to associate principal at Marshall Junior High; and Thomas Drummond from assistant principal at Marshall to assistant principal at Stevenson.

Before voting on the reassignments, board President James LeDuc reminded trustees that the issue was "how to strive for excellence in education."

The reassignments eventually passed by a 4-3 vote, but not before motions to table the matter and to vote separately on the six transfers both failed.

DYER TOLD the board that the reassignments were the result of three school closings, three retirements and a request for transfer. He added that the other three or four more reassignments will be made as administrators receive job offers from other districts.

The end result, said Dyer, will be a reduction of seven to nine administrators or eight to 10 percent of the fiscal year's staff during this fiscal year.

Board members protested not having all administrative reassignments brought to them in a package, but Dyer said the remaining assignments would be made no later than the first meeting in June.

Although contracts with building administrators allow Dyer to make the changes without board approval, he said that he opted not to use his "unilateral authority because of the breadth" of the changes. During the discussion, Dyer said he would review that decision.

The board also approved the layoff of 56 teachers during the meeting as well as the retirements of Hoover principal Cletus Shields and area supervisor Lloyd Orwin under the early retirement incentive program.

Artfest poster winners told

Kurt Ewing has earned first prize in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools poster contest for the upcoming Student Artfest '83. Kurt is a ninth grader at Central Middle School.

Second-place winner of the district-wide contest is Kristen Cowan, an eighth grader at West Middle School, while Central seventh-grader Dave Hallway took third place.

The three were chosen from entries judged by art teachers in each of the district's elementary and middle schools.

The top 36 entries were submitted for final judging last week by a panel which included: Linda Anderson, executive director, Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce; John Howe, principal, Starkweather Elementary; and Barbara Carpenter, Plymouth Police parking monitor.

Awards of $15, $10, and $5 will be awarded the winners and the posters will be displayed in downtown Plymouth businesses.

Other posters which were created for the contest will be placed in buildings by art teachers to remind students of the upcoming Student Artfest '83 which is taking place 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, June 4, in Kellogg Park.

THE PURPOSE of the Artfest is to display student art work and talent, and to permit both performing and visual arts to share a daylong spotlight in the community.

State job program falls short — Law

Governor Blanchard's jobs program promises the hope of summer jobs to 80,000 people but "falls short of addressing the serious long-term unemployment problems of 600,000 jobless men and women," says state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth.

"While I support the program as far as it goes, I believe the only way to tackle the root problem of unemployment in this state is to address the problems that make doing business in Michigan too costly."

Governor Blanchard has not addressed those problems and is proposing, I'm afraid, a costly stop-gap plan that may not assure a single permanent job."

Law said that House Republicans have released a 38-point economic development agenda which calls for regulatory reform, reducing business costs and developing long-range, state policies to encourage job growth.

"We shared that plan with the governor, and although he did include some business relief in his program, he didn't recommend further reform of workers' compensation and unemployment insurance, the two major roadblocks to business expansion in Michigan," Law said.

lief for 23,000 small businesses outlined in Blanchard's speech was welcome news.

Republicans have argued for years that workers' compensation and unemployment compensation should be eliminated from the base of the single business tax to offer additional tax relief to businesses in the state, added Law.

"The governor said he will only consider it, I would have preferred if he had made an outright commitment to do that."

Law also said the governor's plan at this time avoids specifics on how he intends to implement the $875-million jobs program.

The program will have to be in place within a few weeks, Law said, and there may not be enough planning done to put the program into effect. "The phones are ringing off the hooks right now with kids and others trying to sign up for a jobs program that remains obscure."

"We don't know how this program will be administered, how much actual state dollars will be involved, how long it will continue, how much of it needs legislative approval — there are a lot of unanswered questions."

Opens on Friday Ice Revue 1983 show is coming this weekend

Local skaters will take the ice at the Plymouth Cultural Center this weekend as part of the first locally produced ice show in several years.

"The last ice show here was about seven or eight years ago. My hope is to bring it back," said Jim Mills, show director.

Mills, along with skaters ranging in ages from 5 to 70, will present Plymouth Ice Revue 1983 this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"Hopefully we'll be starting a trend for years to come," Mills said.

"The show features some outstanding skating and isn't designed to be a recital."

If the credentials of several Plymouth-Canton skaters performing as featured artists indicate the level of talent in the show, patrons are in for a treat.

Included in the show will be featured numbers by:

- Gwen Cirbes, a 12-year-old skater, who has competed in the Midwestern Championships and is a ladies bronze medal winner.
- Colleen Armstrong, a 15-year-old skater, who is a Seven State Outstanding Regional Competitor.
- Deveny Deck, a 15-year-old skater, who was the 1982 runner-up in Seven State Regional pairs competition.

"Skaters seem to enjoy performing, however there aren't too many opportunities to do it. When we announced we were doing a show, the people were more than eager to participate," Mills said.

"One of the goals of the show was to provide something for the community."

"I THINK we are doing that by providing local skaters with the chance to perform and providing the community with a good show. We're killing two birds with one stone," he said.

The show is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. The Cultural Center is on the corner of Farmer and Theodore streets.

Tickets are available in advance at the Cultural Center, and cost $3 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and children 16 and under. Tickets bought at the door cost 50 cents more.

"It's a show the whole family would enjoy seeing," Mills said.

Two residents who will be skating in the Ice Revue show this weekend are Gwen Cirbes (picture at left) and Colleen Armstrong.

JCs holding Sandbox Fill

The Plymouth Jaycees will be conducting its annual Sandbox Fill project this Saturday and next.

On Saturdays, May 21 and 28, the Jaycees will deliver sand to those residents who place orders.

The cost is $3 for a garden wheelbarrow-size order of sand and $4 for a construction wheelbarrow-size. Orders may be placed by calling Pat Sullivan at 455-1635 or Mark Jarmol at 455-2033.

Hines policed but closed?

Edward Hines Park and eight others in Wayne County may be shut down by the Fourth of July because of a shortage of money to operate them.

"What you're going to see this summer is a well-policed park system... that's closed down," said

Avery Jackson, director of administration for the Wayne County Road Commission, which operates the parks.

Jackson and Ed Mika, parks superintendent, appeared last week before the County Commission's public works committee to plead for an additional $500,000 appropriation.

The plea came as county government and communities along the 20-mile Hines Park were preparing a cleanup with volunteers this Saturday.

THE ROAD commission operates the parks with county general fund money appropriated by the Wayne County Commission. It does not use its revenue from the state gasoline and weight tax, which goes entirely to the road system.

Mika noted that the parks until a few years ago received $3 million to $4 million of general fund money.

"That has cut to $1.25 million in 1981 and to $950,000 this year. And the road commission has already spent the entire annual appropriation just getting the parks ready for summer."

County Executive William Lucas was asked for a recommendation but told the committee by letter: "This request is premature."

And the matter was referred to ways and means.

Lucas added that the parks division should not lean on the county general fund for more money but seek new, innovative sources for grants.

IMPOSSIBLE, replied Hugh MacDonald, road commission commission general administrator.

"These grants Lucas refers to are for funds to build park projects. We don't need more projects. We can't even take care of what we've got," said MacDonald.

"What we need are maintenance funds. For crying out loud, we're tearing down buildings out there because we can't afford to keep them repaired."

Ironically, the county has been able to come up with money for a 40-man Sheriff's Department patrol in Hines Park. That led to Jackson's remark that the county could wind up with a well-patrolled, but closed down, park system.

"It's difficult for us to approve money when we don't know where it's coming from," said Commissioner Freddie G. Burton Jr., D-Detroit, a member of the public works committee. "Perhaps we can get a better answer from the ways and means committee."

And the matter was referred to ways and means.

U.S. savings bonds can be attractive

By Sid Mittra
Special writer

In recent years, U.S. savings bonds have been out of favor with investors because their yields are low compared with those of money-market funds. However, in recent months these bonds have regained much of their old attraction.

In 1982, the Treasury Department set the interest rate of E and EE bonds at 85 percent of the average yield on five-year treasury bonds. Assuming that the yield on five-year treasury marketable bonds were to remain at about 12 percent, E and EE bonds held at least five years would return approximately 10 1/2 percent compounded semiannually. EE bonds with a larger minimum purchase amount of $25 replaced old $18.75 E bonds in 1980.

In addition, the Treasury put a floor under this market bond rate to protect savers against dramatic declines. This guaranteed floor may vary, but it would probably be around 7 1/2 percent.

ALONG WITH the proposed higher yield, savings bonds will continue to offer for their traditional unique advantages. Double E bonds are sold at a 50 percent discount from their maturity value. They now mature in eight years and, if held to maturity, will yield around 8 percent.

Federal income tax on the interest need not be reported or paid until the bonds are cashed in or until their final maturity, which is equivalent to the original maturity plus three 10-year extensions. On old 10-year bonds, this is 40 years. The interest is free of state and local income and property taxes.

The E or EE bonds can be converted into HH bonds, and the tax on previously received interest will be further deferred. The interest on HH bonds is paid to the investor semiannually and is subject to federal but not state or local income tax.

This deferral of income taxes provides a number of advantages. Taxes can be deferred until the bondholder retires, when he or she may be in a lower tax bracket. Bonds can be put in a child's name with a parent as beneficiary, and the tax on the interest either reported annually or deferred until college time. In either case, the tax owed by the child would likely be minimal or even zero.

AT SOME POINT, say at retirement, the bondholder could rollover E or EE bonds into HH bonds once a month for six months and thereafter receive a monthly income at 8 1/2 percent. When one or more E or EE bonds are rolled over, their value may not equal $500 or multiples thereof, so cash must be added or a partial redemption made to come out even.

Unlike passbook savings account, savings bonds do not automatically terminate at the owner's death. If in an estate, they can pass through several hands with continued income-tax deferral. They earn interest, however, only until final maturity. At that time, the income tax becomes due on all previously earned interest, if it had been deferred. This interest could be several times the face value of an older bond.

No moms allowed Father-daughter camp weekends set at Cherith

Two father-daughter weekends will be intended for camping season for Huron Forest Camp Cherith near Oscoda.

The first overnight begins Friday, June 3, at 10 p.m. and ends Sunday, June 5, at 12 p.m. The same program will be repeated June 10-12.

According to weekend director Linda Gillies of Livonia, these overnights are intended to strengthen relationships between camp, daughters and fathers. "Many of the girls have been to Camp Cherith before," explains Gillies. "This gives their dads a chance to meet the staff, see what camp is about, and why their daughters love it so much."

THE OVERNIGHT also introduces potential campers to Cherith through a sampling of camp activities throughout the weekend.

Accredited by the American Camping Association, Huron Forest Camp Cherith is part of a nationwide network of 20 camps, providing a Christ-centered, Bible-based camping program.

The Oscoda camp offers seven weeks of camp for girls of all ages, plus one week for boys and one week for families.

For more information about the father-daughter overnight and camping programs, contact camp director Sharon Youngren at 374-2288.

Awana have fun

Learning Bible verses for members of the Awana Club of Berean Baptist Church on Eight Mile Road in Livonia paid off. The members were treated to a carnival. But you couldn't use money. Admission was by tickets earned by memorizing Bible verses. Some of the youngsters like 4-year-old Erin Adams (right) learned as many as 90 different verses. She used some of her tickets to get her face painted, clown-style. Five-year-old Eddie Fitzpatrick (far right) of Livonia used his tickets to race around the Gran Prix track. Here he's going through a tunnel. Highlight of the carnival that had a 1800s theme was helicopter rides. Awana is taken from the Bible verse in Timothy 2:15.

St. John's marks organ dedication with recital

At special services at 4 p.m. Sunday, members of St. John's Episcopal Church, 555 S. Wayne Road, Westland, will dedicate the church's new organ. The instrument, built and installed by BVarian Fowler Pipe Organs of Lansing, has two manuals and 18 ranks.

Following Evensong at 4 p.m., the dedication recital will be played by Anthony Gaines, who has just completed studies leading to his doctorate in music with a major in organ performance at the University of Michigan. There will be no charge for the recital, and the public is invited.

Experts not the answer; maybe amateurism is

One of the remarkable phenomena of our age is the discovery that the solution of a social problem lies with the very population in which that problem arises.

The following examples are suggestive. Drug addicts are better than psychiatrists at curing addiction in each other; hence the growth and achievements of organizations which sponsor such programs of therapy.

Alcoholics Anonymous, with its proven record of successfully combatting drunkenness, has built an international organization of massive strength and enduring purpose basing its support almost exclusively on those who have suffered with, and successfully overcome, the malady of alcoholism.

University students tend to learn more from each other than from professors. While courses offer fixed and definite subjects it is the challenging and wide-ranging discourse students generate among themselves that often produces the greatest intellectual stimulation.

THEN WE wonder why they do not succeed. It may be because we are ignoring a major resource - the human resource - and refusing to acknowledge the vital power of participation.

properly, it can become a mighty force for remedying social ills and achieving social progress.

The President's Commission on Education has recently issued a report which decries the deficiencies and weaknesses of public education in recent years. This report, which has stimulated discussion and controversy, seems to focus public attention on improving the quality of American education.

More funds are needed, as well as new strategies to recruit teachers and improve the level of curriculum. Higher standards should be set.

But an essential element should not be overlooked. Concerned and involved parents on the community level should share in the continuing quest for the advancement of education. Matters of peace and war are too important to be left to generals.

Issues of public health are too important to be left to doctors. The training of our youth is too important to be left to the educational establishment. By drawing families and communities into this process educational institutions will acquire a host of partners and will draw strength from their insight and enthusiasm.

THERE IS a great new amateurism pervading America today. If channeled

Rabbi Irwin Groner

This is not to deny the need for federal spending, the urgent priority of allocating a far greater share of our national resources for rebuilding our cities, for eliminating poverty, for elevating the quality of life for all Americans.

Funds, in massive amounts, are an indispensable element in attacking the grievous ills of our society.

But we dare not reject the claim that has been voiced by the dispossessed, the afflicted, and those in need. "We want to get in the act. We wish to have a role in shaping our future, in ministering to our own needs, in making the decisions that affect our lives, in achieving the fulfillment of our goals, in assuming responsibility for each other."

Canton residents Johns and Gabriel will provide a pre-game karate demonstration, while halftime entertainment will be provided compliments of Ronald McDonald cheerleaders from both high schools. Local businesses have donated more than $400 worth of door prizes, which will be given away at halftime. Tickets, $3 each, can be purchased at the door, or at Canton Sporting Goods, Skatin' Station, McDonalds, Friends of Canton Library book sale, the Canton Bakery-Kings Row Plaza, and the Canton Recreation Department.

Pontiac Lake's fish make a comeback

Pontiac Lake's fishing stock is making a satisfactory comeback, according to a netting survey by the state Department of Natural Resources.

Fisheries crews used their nets the week of May 2-8, returning the fish after measuring them, said Ron Spittler, fisheries biologist, Pontiac, you'll recall, had its lake level drawn down for dam repairs and then suffered a heavy winterkill a year ago. It has been restocked.

Spittler's tally:

Northern pike — "doing very well"; 39 netted, average 10 inches, plus a number of 12-14 inchers.

Pumpkinseed sunfish — 255 of them averaged 6 1/2 inches, some more than 9 inches. Those are whoppers for this usually small species.

Bluegills — 32 averaged a healthy 7 1/2 inches, some 9 inches.

Channel catfish — 187 of all sizes, good survival rate, natural reproduction.

Black crappies — 187 fish, "excellent," average 8 1/2 inches, some 10 inches.

Bullhead — 1,100 averaging more than 10 inches, indicating high survival rate.

Perch — none seen, but the ice fishing season indicated good numbers. They were probably in deep water for spawning.

Black bass — only one, a lunker 18-inch specimen, was netted. Since bass are tough to net, DNR plans to electro-survey them soon.

Footnote: One of DNR's hoop nets was stolen from the west end of the lake. The more DNR has to spend on replacing equipment, the less there is to spend on fish.

VENUS, OUR planetary neighbor, is the first heavenly body visible at dusk in mid-May, according to University of Michigan astronomer Richard G. Teske. Watch the west-northwest sky, even before sunset.

"Venus owes its great brilliance to the high reflectivity of a layer of clouds that perpetually hides its surface from our direct view."

Attitude changes, education needed to curb rape

YOU COULD have heard a toothpick drop as ABC's Ted Koppel addressed a dining room packed with Alma College alumni at a recent benefit in Detroit.

On still another flight to the Gaza Strip, Koppel was privy to a conversation between a colleague from the "late, lamented Washington Star" and his associate from the New York Times.

SOME TIME ago, a Canton Township official at a board meeting informed the victim of a political "screw-up" that his plight was similar to that of a rape victim. He was advised by the official to "lean back and enjoy it."

Made offhandedly with the intent to amuse, such remarks reaffirm the warped, yet pervasive, attitudes that keep rape among the most popular crimes in America.

In eight days, 3 Canton women have been raped. A 23-year-old Canton woman jogger was threatened with a sharpened screwdriver, then raped on Lotz Road north of Michigan Avenue, about 7:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Days before, a 22-year-old Canton woman was raped at gunpoint as she walked along Michigan Avenue west of Beck about 1:30 a.m. A third rape was reported Monday.

CANTON POLICE reported 10 forcible rapes in 1982 and nine in 1981. Several would-be rapists have been fought off. Last summer, a woman escaped from a knife-wielding attacker on the I-275 bike path.

In Lincoln Park last month, a woman reporter stopped at a red light was attacked by an armed man who broke into her car by ramming a brick through the passenger window.

Many of the marchers belong to the Coalition Against Rape and to its outgrowth, the citizens advisory council on rape prevention. Since their founding in 1981, the groups have promoted a new city ordinance requiring landlords to install bolt locks on rental units, helped establish an all-night transportation service, and printed a city map locating areas where the incidence of rape is high.

THE CRIME prevention unit of the Canton Police Department is willing to speak to groups and offer women self-defense tips. Service clubs, homeowners' organizations and other groups should be availing themselves of such opportunities, and integrating anti-rape programs among regular meetings.

Women will always live the nights of their lives in fear. Whether they're walking a dog or getting some exercise, they'll know that for them, the fundamental right of liberty is conditional.

That's not to say more positive action by law enforcement, our educational and judicial systems shouldn't be sought.

As despicable as the facts are, women must get beyond them and be prepared to react effectively in the event they are assaulted.

The first step is determining whether one's tendency is to fight back or to freeze when attacked. Secondly, decide on a plan of action. Car keys can be used to fend off the would-be rapist lurking in a parking garage. When being followed, a woman motorist can drive toward a well-lit area and a destination other than her home.

A third step is to stop joking about rape. It serves only to stoke the fires of complacency.

Nick Sharkey Kids sports can be fun or nightmare

SUMMER WILL soon be here. With it comes the most traditional of American sports: baseball. For youngsters, baseball can be fun—or a nightmare.

That's where the Youth Sports Institute at Michigan State University comes in. Last week, representatives of the institute met with boys' baseball and girls' softball coaches from several Detroit suburban communities.

The institute emphasizes a relaxed recreational program that develops the skills of all youngsters—without regard for athletic talent. It discourages league standings, all-star games and playoff games.

Wolcott was a member of the Plymouth Salem state baseball championship team in 1975. He was also on the 1975 basketball team that went to the state semifinals.

ADULT PROBLEMS come from parents and coaches. Vogel said bluntly, "All parents live vicariously through their children. Most parents will tell you that they are not pushing their kids in sports, but their pressure is subtle."

YOUTH SPORTS INSTITUTE, so far, has conducted 3,000 clinics around the state for 18,000 coaches. Fees are modest. On Saturday, the institute will take part in a clinic run by the Metro Detroit Amateur Softball Association at the Oak Park Community Center.

For anyone interested in young persons and athletics, the Youth Sports Institute has something to say, backed by scientific research. More information is available at: Youth Sports Institute, Health and Physical Education Department, Michigan State University, East Lansing 48824.

Blanchard recall drive lacks merit

WHEN IT'S all over, the folks pushing the Blanchard recall petition drive may feel better for having vented their anger. It's unhealthy, you know, to bottle up your feelings.

Moreover, the movement to recall Blanchard lacks merit. Blanchard did not steal anyone's money. Take a bribe or give state land to a crony.

He advocated, and won legislative support for, a tax increase that amounts to less than 2 percent of the incomes of those of us who have jobs or dividend checks. It was a pinch, but not a felony. A recall isn't warranted.

GOV. BLANCHARD didn't raise taxes all by himself. He had the support of 58 members of the state House of Representatives and 20 members of the state Senate. A recall movement, if it were to be fair, should be aimed at the 78 members of the Michigan Legislature who voted for it.

What we get for our school taxes

OVER THE TELEPHONE the other morning came a loud, screaming voice asking, "When are you going to tell the real story about our school system? The enrollment is dropping. They are thinking of closing several school buildings, and yet my taxes don't get any lower. And I'd like to know why."

The Stroller was stunned for a moment by this unidentified voice, then he asked in turn: "Would you like to see your children forced to walk through snow and ice, sleet and slush during the winter months?"

"Not my youngsters," the voice said. The Stroller pointed out they would be forced to walk if there were no buses — though the dropping of buses would save millions of dollars and maybe lower your taxes.

"WELL, WE OUGHT to get something for our money," the voice shot back. "Does your wife ever take your daughters into the kitchen and teach them the rudiments of house-keeping — how to cook and bake?" he was asked. The unidentified screamer answered, "She could take a few lessons herself."

Tim Richard

And, in truth, our total tax burden is lighter this year, not heavier.

The simple reason Federal income taxes are down. The Reagan administration has consistently maintained domestic needs should be met by state and local units with less and less federal aid.

Michigan is far from alone in raising taxes. Some 30 states have either raised their taxes or are in the process of doing so. In many cases there is screaming and hollering, but nothing so outlandish as a recall movement.

IN THE 1982 campaign, candidate James Blanchard was a little vague on the tax issue, but no reader of this newspaper can say he lied about his position. We checked the tape of our Sept. 25 interview with him and heard him say: "I'm going to take all steps necessary first to save, and then improve, the quality of higher educational system because I think it's critical for our future, whether it's attracting business, keeping business, or providing the quality of our life we need. It will require scaling back the system, and it may well require additional doses of revenue.

the stroller W.W. Edgar

But that wasn't satisfying to the screaming voice. Then the Stroller asked: "How would you like to see your children swimming in Newburgh and Wilcox lakes that haven't been cleaned in months — even years? Well, they don't have to swim in these dirty waters because schools have fine, modern swimming pools with all the latest equipment. They even have supervised competition so your children can swim in safety and comfort."

"YOU DO get something," The Stroller said. "There are fine baseball diamonds, well kept, and all the accessories, such as showers after the game."

Blanchard didn't simply promise jobs, jobs, jobs and deliver taxes, taxes, taxes. He said additional revenue would be needed for higher education, that higher education had to be healthy to attract new business, and that business is necessary to provide jobs.

THIS NEWSPAPER might quibble with some details of the tax increase. We would have preferred to see some property tax relief worked in. We would have liked to see voters given a chance to increase the sales tax, either to replace the income tax or to scale back property taxes.

But we cannot say that Blanchard was dishonest or essentially wrong. And we can neither support nor encourage the recall effort. Those who disagree with Blanchard's policies would do better to give up their acrimonious and unwarranted recall effort, join the political party of their choice, learn how to do constructive precinct work and telephone canvassing, clip newspaper articles on the issues, and be ready for the 1984 and 1986 campaigns.

It's the same with football. And it's getting better for girls' sports.

"Suppose your boys were asked to solicit the merchants for sufficient money to purchase uniforms."

"Not my boys," said the unidentified voice. "Well, that's what used to happen in the old days when the players not only had to supply their own uniforms, but there was no official manager or coach — only former players directing the team as a hobby."

"How would you feel," The Stroller asked, "if the only games your girls could play were volleyball over the washline in your back yard?"

"AND HOW ABOUT their singing voices, if they are so inclined? "And how about those who yearn to play in the band? Do band members have to supply their own instruments and uniforms just for the thrill of marching in parades and at athletic events?"

At least he now knows where some of his school tax money goes.

Dems approve loans to bail out mortgages in peril

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 5-11.

roll call report

BAIL-OUT. The House passed, 216 for and 196 against, and sent to the Senate a bail-out bill for recession victims facing foreclosure on their home mortgages.

The bill (HR 1983) provides $760 million in taxpayers' dollars to be loaned at low interest to some 100,000 homeowners unable to make home payments.

Recipients would contribute about 38 percent of income toward their payment and the loan would cover the remainder for up to three years.

To qualify, homeowners must be delinquent "through no fault of their own," be sufficiently poor, allowing a government lien on their property, and be judged likely to start repaying the Treasury within three years.

Supporters called the bill an act of compassion to help innocent recession victims keep their most essential possession. Opponents labeled the program a budget-buster that is uneeded with economic recovery underway.

Supporter Henry Gonzales, D-Tex., said "We are not talking about a giveaway program or an entitlement program."

Opponent Buddy Roemer, D-La., said "This move today is the birth of yet another entitlement, the cost of which we can never calculate."

Members voting yes supported special aid for hard-pressed homeowners. Voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, William Ford, D-Taylor and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

amendment was an attempt to kill HR 1983 (above).

Sponsor Robert Walker, R-Pa., said "we have heard a lot about the American family's right to a home. Nothing more destroys that right than the high interest rates that too much government spending brings on."

Opponent Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., said that while "we are all for the deficit being reduced and eliminated," the fact is that "there are millions of people out there who are out of work through no fault of their own."

Members voting yes wanted to kill the loan program for delinquent homeowners.

Voting yes: Pursell and Broomfield. Voting no: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

SENATE

BUDGET. By a tie of 48-48, the Senate rejected a proposal to increase defense spending in the next fiscal year by an inflation-adjusted 6.5 percent.

The vote displeased the administration as well as conservative senators. While favoring a larger defense buildup, they were willing to accept 6.5 percent as the best compromise available to them.

It came during debate on the 1984 budget resolution (S Con Res 127), the fiscal blueprint that will guide Congress in later individual spending and taxation decisions. S. Con Res 127 awaited final action.

President Reagan asked for a 10 percent increase in 1984 defense outlays, to a total of $245.4 billion. The budget resolution sent to the floor by the Senate Budget Committee recommends a five percent hike, raising outlays to $241.5 billion.

Most senators voting yes wanted 1984 defense outlays to be increased by DEFICIT. The House rejected, 157 for and 254 against, an amendment prohibiting the $760 million loan fund for delinquent homeowners if it would increase the federal deficit. The WEAPONS By a vote of 74 for and 21 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to the fiscal 1984 budget resolution (above) to cut spending for the development of nuclear weapons.

Addressing weapons development within the Department of Energy, the amendment sought to limit funding to the fiscal 1982 level. This would have saved about $2 billion.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who voted to kill the amendment, said the amendment was out of place. "Frankly, this budget resolution is not the place to debate a nuclear freeze," he said.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., who sponsored the amendment, deplored "a mentality which drives itself to think of every conceivable way to use a nuclear weapon. This kind of thinking is, to put it simply, insane."

Senators voting no wanted to use the budget resolution as a vehicle to express their concern over the nuclear arms race. Voting no: Levin and Riegle.

MENTION in a recent column that Bev McAninch founded the League of Women Voters in the community brought instant rebuttal from several sources. I always thought that Bev had been involved in starting the league here — and she was, the second time round.

But there was a pre-World War II LWV in Plymouth. Mention of the league brought back memories to several longtime residents. Ann McGeorge, 91, was a president of the first league. She believes it was a branch of the Detroit LWV.

"Ruth Huston Whipple was president and an active member," Ann recalls. "The whole thing kind of died out after her death. Cora Chaffee was president, too."

Back in the mid '30s, the LWV sponsored assembly dances which were held in the Masonic Temple. Tickets were sold for the series of dances and Ann remembers that they were selling tickets for the series when the Presbyterian Church burned down in 1936.

"We met in the hotel and usually had an outside speaker," said Ann, adding that refreshments were served at the afternoon gatherings.

CHRIS AND JOE Witwer said they remember the assembly dances as dress-up affairs in the Masonic Temple. There were parties before and parties after the dances. Chris said that although she was not "politically inclined, I probably belonged to the league."

She said that they were among 10 or 15 couples that got together for social events. The group included the Dykehouses, the Chutes, the Johns, the Daltons, the Hoheisels, the Eatons, the Bennett girls and the Whipples.

"In those days, everyone knew everyone," said Chris.

DON'T FORGET the Centennial Dancers third annual recital at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Tickets may be bought at the door.

PLYMOUTH was well represented Monday evening at the Attic Theatre in Detroit for the dramatic reading of Bill Sonnega's play, "Carp Lake." This was the play that won first place in the recent dramatic writing festival at New York University.

Never having attended a staged reading before, it was most interesting to discover the four members of the cast knew their lines for the first act. Three of them depended on their scripts for the second act. Even the author was surprised at the preparation for act one.

"Carp Lake" is the story of Colt, his wife Skye, and their son, Riff, 15, and Blue, a black man who works on the assembly line with Colt. Colt and Blue are friends until Colt is laid off and he lashes out at all of them in what seems like an unforgivable outburst.

At the end of the performance, there was an adjudication with a drama critic, an actress, a moderator, the director and the playwright seated on stage.

Moderator Herbert Ferrer said the adjudicators would neither indulge nor insult the author. As it turned out, they said some very nice things about "Carp Lake."

Janice Reid, professional actress, said she enjoyed the play. "I cared about the people, even Colt, whom I didn't like when I read the play." She said she liked the closure and enjoyed the family.

Ed Hayman of the Detroit News said, "I enjoyed it very much. I felt very close to these people." He told the author, "You're a good reporter. Their manner and their language were authentic."

Hayman said the story included a lot of things — racism, the stress of unemployment, unfulfilled dreams, a very young marriage and a situation between a man and his son.

Hayman suggested that Colt talk to the audience more. "He's a complex man, smart and creative. Let him tell about himself."

Janice Reid said she missed the explosion — "it got diffused in the play."

The audience joined the adjudication and conversation centered on the play's ending with some wanting it left just the way it was.

Bill said the play had been a year in the making and this was the fifth draft. He had written a more violent ending.

The argument on the ending continued, in our car, all the way back to Plymouth.

Harold Guenther accepts the Landmark plaque for the Markham Building from Joyce Foust, head of the Landmark committee for the Plymouth AAUW. Sam Panzica (left), Mary Fritz, Kathy Sonnanstine, Sue Silletti and Peg Heiney observe the presentation.

Hoist doors in Markham Building date back to the days before elevators.

2 historic sites qualify for Landmark designation

Two historic buildings received landmark plaques in Michigan Week presentations by the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women. Both the old Tibbits farm and the Markham Building had important roles in the growth of the community.

The Tibbits barn was the meeting place for the early settlers when the time came to talk about a name for the community. They met there Feb. 26, 1827 and Plymouth Township was chartered in May of that year.

John Tibbits was among the first settlers to arrive in the area. The Land Act of 1820 made property available at $1.25 per acre and Tibbits bought 560 acres in Section 28 near what is now the junction of North Territorial and Beck roads.

John Tibbits lived and raised his family on this land for 32 years. The 1827 census recorded that four white males over 21, two white males under 21 and five females lived in the home.

The next owners were Reuben and Mary Durfee and their children for 82 years. The house was a typical L-shaped Michigan farmhouse with many porches.

Earl and Elizabeth Demel bought the property in 1939 and a major remodeling was effected. The front porch was removed; pillars, fireplace and bay window were added. The house took on the style of Greek Revival Colonial.

JUDGE RALPH Garber and his family bought the house in 1954. Further improvements were made during their tenure.

The 140th anniversary meeting of the establishment of Plymouth Township was May 25, 1967 in the restored barn.

In 1973, the remaining 53 acres of land was sold to Thompson-Brown Developers. At that time the request was made that 1 1/4 acres always remain with the house in deference to its historic importance. Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Golbesky of North Muskegon now own the property which is for sale.

The house has 15 rooms and a Michigan basement with stone walls and hand-hewn beams. A trap door in the floor at the rear reveals an open cistern. The flooring tells the story of additions to the house.

The oldest part has narrow oak slats, the upper bedrooms, usually covered with rag carpeting, have wide pine boards. The dining room has wide boards with wooden pegs.

Joyce Foust, chairman of the Landmarks committee said, "This 156-year-old farmhouse and its barn have a fascinating story to tell of our earliest rural community and the development of Plymouth Township. One cannot but hope its future owners respect and enjoy the proud heritage of this old homestead."

THE MARKHAM building, 340 N. Main Street, is the oldest commercial building in Plymouth, still in use. The three-story building, built in 1886 by W.F. Markham, housed the Markham Air Rifle Co., manufacturer of wooden air rifles. The first part of the complex was built in 1886 with additions in 1891, 1895 and 1901. An architect's drawing for the air rifle company hangs on the wall of the Plymouth Landing Restaurant on the first floor of the building.

Markham, a village trustee, started out manufacturing water troughs for livestock. In 1885, his company introduced a toy air rifle called the "Chicago." It was the first air rifle to be made in volume and sold at a popular price.

He moved to California in 1911 and sold his manufacturing company to Daisy Manufacturing Co. in 1912. Daisy continued to use the Markham facilities in conjunction with its manufacturing operation of air rifles. The Daisy established Plymouth as the air rifle center of the world.

Usage of the complex changed and, over the years, outlying buildings were torn down. The main building was used as a storage area with space also leased to other companies.

CLARENCE Moore of Plymouth Stamping leased space there for manufacturing. A major tenant for many years was the U.S. Selective Service. Many area residents recall getting brders at this site to report for duty with Uncle Sam.

Former Plymouth mayor, Harold Guenther, purchased the Markham Building in 1949. It continued to be used for storage. Guenther said that, as he pondered the future use of the building, he wondered, "Was it a building that had got in the way of time? Would obsolescence mean that it could be razed?"

He considered other uses for the landmark building. Sharing with him in envisioning new uses for the building were partners John Thomas, Sam Panzica, Jim Jabara and Austin Lynch. This group started a renovation project in 1978 which resulted in a Victorian showpiece.

The 18-inch brick walls were sandblasted inside and out. The dirt floor, typical of a Michigan basement, was cemented. Original beams were retained, pock marked by BBs fired by employees for testing purposes.

THREE FLOORS are used today, each with an area of 72,000 square feet. Principal tenants are Plymouth Landing Restaurant, Michigan Bell and Merrill Lynch. Memorabilia of the BB-gun era of the community are displayed in the restaurant. Diners may view pictures of air rifle manufacturing and original factory lighting fixtures illuminate the dining spaces.

The original high narrow windows still are in place, enhanced by new stained glass.

The Markham Building, after its renovation, remains true to its 1886 industrial style. The AAUW, in awarding the building Landmark designation, recognizes it as a distinctive building in the community.

Here's Sandy (would-be famous writer), new columnist

Surprise! Or, as Louana put it "Don't turn the page!" Here we are in Canton Chatter still chattering away, but now Sandy will try to relate the chatter to you. Now fear not, Kathy Freece and Louana Peontek are still close at hand to guide me through this so all is not lost yet.

Louana has been called to bigger and better things — actually to another state, which as you can well imagine makes writing Canton Chatter a little difficult. Besides, the news could be a little old by the time it gets from here, to there, and back here again! But she doesn't leave right away so she has promised to nurse me through. And Kathy — well you know Kathy — she'll never let you down.

I've always wanted to be a famous writer, but each time I sat down to my typewriter to begin my first novel, something didn't happen. To be more exact, nothing never came from the typewriter, probably because I never hit the keys. I'm hoping, for your sake, as well as my mental health, that I can beat that mysterious jinx and make the bigtime with something a little smaller. Thus, I enter your lives to tell you what someone else did, and someone else, what you did.

Now as well as my trusty silent typewriter, I will need a lot of help from you, the attentive readers. You see I need the information on who's doing what, when, where, why and how. Oh yes, and with whom you, or they, did it.

MY NAME is Sandy Preblich. I am a wife, mother, daughter, sister etc. etc. and I want to know what's going on. So start those cards and letters coming, and phone calls too!

Canton chatter Sandy Preblich exchange is a great opportunity for anyone who has ever thought of hosting an exchange student for a year. The exchange is for only six count 'em six weeks and gives you a chance to see how a foreign guest might fit into your home without obligating you for an entire year.

It also allows you to learn firsthand about the country for your choice. And if you like to cook, well just imagine all you do is ask this child to bring along some of his/her mother's favorite recipes!

financial requirements, only your time and care are required.

BEV and RON De Craene returned recently from their visit to Houston, Texas. Naturally they took their daughter Missy, who attends Miller School. The trip lasted a little over a week. They took the easy way and flew.

My family had a student last year and have had nothing but wonderful memories and correspondence. We just received a beautiful painting from him.

He even called us on Christmas. And the things my children learned from him, even to appreciate our country. All the simple things they take for granted amazed him. The only real problem is our son who doesn't think anyone could be as nice as Anders and wants him back again.

The big Soccer Spectacular will be held right here in Canton. We already have 96 teams signed up for the weekend of May 27-29. Contact the recreation office for details 397-1000.

How about a big store opening? You, indeed, I think a store opening anywhere deserves a celebration, but this one is opening right here in Canton and by local Canton residents, May 31 in Harvard Square — a great big Canton "you name it, we got it" type drug store.

Going up

Michael Mitchell, a member of the Centennial Educational Park drama troupe, adds some red paint to the financial thermometer in Kellogg Park. With the Plymouth Burroughs Corporation plant picking up the tab for shipping the players' set to Villach, Austria, they are almost on their way to the international drama festival. A few more sales of tickets, at $20 each, for the $1,000 cash prize and quite a few more sales of tickets, at $1 each, for the lawn swing and they'll be on their way. The players will be selling tickets at the opening of the Farmer's Market Saturday, when the $1,000 winner will be announced. The young actors were invited to represent the United States at the festival and they have been working on fundraisers for four months. Community donations and their hard-earned dollars may make the dream come true.

'Same Time, Next Year'

developed to its maximum

By Bob Weibel
Special writer

A scenario with interesting possibilities was exploited to the maximum potential by the Plymouth Theatre Guild, which presented "Same Time, Next Year" May 6-7 and 13-14.

If you're not familiar with the play, you might think the title refers to any number of situations — an annual vacation spot, an anniversary, even the IRS tax man. But these don't seem to offer many dramatic possibilities.

So, how about two happily married and otherwise faithful human beings who carry on an illicit rendezvous one weekend each year — for 24 years?

To be sure, the idea is a bit implausible. But playwright Bernard Slade turns it into two hours of comedy, while simultaneously examining the serious side of adultery. Much of it is written in the one-liner style of Neil Simon. "So, your wife is afraid of flying?" "No, crashing."

SHOW-GOERS may laugh but perhaps shed a tear later during a tender and poignant moment as the illicit lovers attempt to end their affair.

This is a two-character play, which requires performers with the experience and ability to establish characters that are believable and interesting. Carole McNulty and Michael Rothaar are superb in this respect. There is no tendency to get bored with their performance.

She is attractive and enticing as Doris, a woman who obviously loves her husband and children. And Rothaar as George looks like your typical accountant who is a good family man but characterization as she takes the more complex Doris from being an awkward and restless young wife to being a college student, an over-age flower child, a successful businesswoman and finally a mature woman.

Ultimately, what we have is a sextet of vignettes that enable us to track the lives of two people and laugh at their comic nature as they cope with the guilt and frustration of their arrangement.

At some deeper level, we know it is not really that funny. There is a price to pay.

Between scenes, the music and famous speeches of the day depict the passage of time. Time seemed to stand still for the actors and the motel room, however. George does become a bit gray, but Doris looks just as ravishing as she did 24 years earlier. Granted, she's had a facelift, but just a wrinkle or two and perhaps a little puffiness under the eyes would be more believable.

Rothaar is convincing as he takes George through stages of being uptight, stuffy and rich, into analysis, a late-blooming hippie and back into the establishment world.

"True Grit" (1969), 9:30 a.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 128 minutes.
It's Western Week (even with the inclusion of "Brannigan," which is a western at heart), and topping it off is "True Grit," the film for which John Wayne won an Oscar as best actor. Wayne's performance is memorable, if not distinguished, and the film, in which Wayne plays an aging sheriff who manages a last hurrah (ignoring for the moment the sequel to the film, which airs Tuesday night), is quite entertaining. Henry Hathaway, veteran director of such earlier Wayne vehicles as "North to Alaska" and "The Sons of Katie Elder," allows nary a dull moment, which compensates for one of the worst performances in film history, turned in here by Glen Campbell. Kim Darby, Robert Duvall, Strother Martin and Dennis Hopper also star.
Rating: $3.10.

"The Big Country" (1958), 3:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 166 minutes.
Gregory Peck, Jean Simmons and Charlton Heston star in this expansive western that's as long as the sky over Wyoming. The story involves William Wyler's "Big Country" is rarely dull and always a pleasure to watch. The emphasis is on thought rather than action in this laconic film.
Rating: $3.15.

"Rooster Cogburn" (1975), 2 Wednesday night on Ch. 4. Originally 107 minutes.
One of Wayne's less-regrettable efforts of his latter years is "Rooster Cogburn," the sequel to "True Grit," which co-stars Katharine Hepburn. But that's not to say it's a very good film, either. The unlikely teaming of Wayne and Hepburn makes this a pretentious film that's slow-paced and short on action in the hands of director Stuart Millar. But the character of Sheriff Rooster Cogburn is one of Wayne's finest efforts, and that alone makes this a picture worth seeing.
Rating: $2.70.

Bruce Campbell struggles to destroy the Book of the Dead in this gory scene from "The Evil Dead."

'The Evil Dead' deserves to rest

"The Evil Dead" represents a first effort. It's the premiere film of screenwriter-director Sam Raimi. It was made on a budget. The most expensive item on the list of production costs must have been the Karo corn syrup used to simulate blood. It was shot, in part, in the backyard and basement of the filmmaker's parents' home in Birmingham. In one scene the walls are, in fact, paper thin, because they are made of paper. The acting is amateurish, the characters hackneyed, the dialogue trite and the camera work clumsy. But it's the first effort of a 20-year-old filmmaker.

Does that fact excuse the film's many shortcomings? Not when tickets are $4 a pop.

As a student effort, "The Evil Dead" would be commendable. It might take home first prize in a campus film festival. But "The Evil Dead" is not a student film, although it was conceived by Raimi while he was a Michigan State University student.

And, he adds with some modesty,

review

It's a professional effort that commands top dollar at the box office. It's a film that's being shopped around the Cannes Film Festival this week. But, foremost, it's a film to be avoided.

"THE EVIL DEAD" is about five college students who vacation at a dilapidated cabin in the Tennessee hills. There they encounter "The Book of the Dead," an ancient tome that serves as catalyst in the resurrection of evil demons.

They also encounter creaking floors, creaking doors, creaking trap doors, creaking stairs, creaking windows, creaking bridges, creaking trees and creaking shower curtains. The only thing that doesn't creak is the chain saw, which roars like a dependable chain saw in a creaky horror film show.

Young filmmaker succeeds with low-budget horror movie

By Tom Panzenhagen
Staff writer

SAM RAIMI HAS ONE film playing at a theater near you and another scripted and awaiting a buyer.

This week he's at the Cannes Film Festival, showing the first film, "The Evil Dead," selling the second, titled for now "The XYZ Murders," and, more than likely, hobnobbing with friend Stephen King, "Carrie" author and "Creepshow" creator, who praises Raimi in a recent issue of Twilight Zone Magazine.

Sam Raimi, a Franklin resident out of Groves High School class of '77, is 23 years old.

He was 20 when he completed "The Evil Dead" with the help of Groves classmates Bruce Campbell and Ellen Sandweiss, who co-star in the film that opened in New York last month, in Detroit May 6 and in Atlanta this week.

Raimi began making home movies at 13. He had little classroom instruction in film technique but has been involved, with Campbell and Sandweiss, in school productions at Groves and a film society at MSU.

He credits youthful exuberance to the movie with his interest in film, citing such horror classics as "The Haunting" and "Night of the Living Dead" as inspirations.

He pleaded gully when asked if "The Evil Dead" was intended partially to resemble George Romero's "Night of the Living Dead," and added: "That was really a powerful film that scared the heck out of me."

Raimi also compared the form of his first film with the campy, Andy Warhol versions of "Dracula" and "Frankenstein." "I'm not comparing the films," Raimi said, "but that is the closest genre to 'Evil Dead.'"

Raimi expressed some concern over the impact that ultraviolent horror films may have on viewers. "So long as kids are old enough to know the difference between films and real life," Raimi said, "I don't think what they see in a movie affects them outside the movie."

"The same holds true for adults," he added. "Anything can set someone off. Superman could make them want to jump off a building. But 'Evil Dead' is a monster picture — it's not behavior that someone could emulate."

IT'S APPARENT from talking to Raimi that he's proud of his first effort, but he also maintains a sense of humor about its limitations. About three-quarters of the picture was filmed in Tennessee and the remaining portion at a cabin near Marshall, Mich., and in the backyard and basement of Raimi's parents' home in Birmingham.

The replicas were filmed one frame at a time, as Pierce brought about their decomposition, the end result being the ultimate destruction of the demons that haunt the film's hero.

Reviews of "The Evil Dead" have been mixed. The film has drawn rave notices from such quarters as Twilight Zone Magazine and Fangoria, another sci-fi publication, while more ecumenical reviewers have been less kind.

Raimi's reaction to criticism typifies his feelings about himself and his work. "I read every single thing that's printed about the film, and naturally I hope it's positive, but it just kills me that it's in the paper in the first place," he said.

Sam Raimi looks positively happy on location for "The Evil Dead," the backyard film that he has taken to the Cannes Film Festival and to commercial movie theaters throughout the world.

Developing creativity is educator's big challenge

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

EDUCATOR HELEN LANESE of Birmingham has always tried to help children find within themselves the ability to create, in the arts and the theater.

She continues to work with young people, as well as adults, at Lycee International. Lanese is realizing her fondest dream as director of the Academy of the Arts and executive director of the Actors Alliance Theatre Company at the Lycee, a bilingual college preparatory school at 30800 Evergreen in Southfield.

She's responsible for administration of both the academy, a school to train professional actors, and the Actors Alliance, a professional theater company at the school.

Lanese has a background in art, drama and teaching. She helped develop programs both at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills and at Will-O-Way Apprentice Theatre in Bloomfield Township before coming to the Lycee last year.

THE OPPORTUNITY at the newly established Lycee enabled her "to develop this program just the way I thought it should be."

"I always thought the right way to have a professional theater as part of it," she said. And the Actors Alliance is an adjunct of the drama school.

Just as at the Cranbrook Academy of Art, where students are taught by highly respected professionals, the acting academy at the Lycee uses teachers with impressive credentials in the theater, she said.

The professional theater company gives students an artistic standard to measure their work by, Lanese said.

Creating the arena theater where the actors perform was "a great challenge. It's set up magically and used over the weekend. Then it disappears into the gym and lunchroom."

For its first season of plays, the Actors Alliance, led by Artistic Director

Jeff Nahan, has already staged a variety of productions including "Rosencrantz & Guildenstern Are Dead," the family musical "Story Theater," "The Women Here Are No Different" and "Marat/Sade." Its current show is the Michigan premiere of the Off-Broadway comedy hit "Album."

TWO YOUNG PEOPLE are among those enrolled in the acting academy. They are Brendan Heffernan, 14, of Detroit, and Leslie Burns, 9, of Troy, who has been working with Nahan as a private student.

Brendan appeared in "Camelot" with Richard Harris at the Masonic Temple Theatre in Detroit and also has performed at the Attic Theatre in Detroit's Greektown.

Leslie has done some theater work at Greenfield Village. She is studying at the academy on an advanced level.

"We tend to serve the very gifted, very talented young. It's a professional theater training program, and the emphasis in the program is different than a college-level program that's really educational theater."

All instructors are working professional artists and members of Actors Equity, Lanese said.

"They know the nuts and bolts. They know the ropes of the theater. They have practical knowledge of the working theater."

Any young person can register for an introductory class at the academy but must qualify for advance placement. A young person taking an academy class for the first time would work in a studio showcase, doing scenes or a one-act play, combining training, rehearsal and performance.

"WE TRY TO give them a realistic idea of what the working theater is about." Students learn it's a very competitive profession, and what it's going to take to succeed.

Just a few of the important elements they need for success are to be very disciplined, have a good idea of how to market their skills, know their shortcomings, be persistent and be prepared, she said.

"What having a working, professional theater here does is make the student realize just what it takes." All students are encouraged to audition for productions being cast by the Actors Alliance.

"They learn what an audition in professional theater is like. It can be really tough. They don't get inflated ideas. They measure their own achievement."

Back in 1974, Lanese organized a seminar on Creativity in the Curriculum at the Cranbrook Academy of Art and also was involved with the AAUW, working with a grant. "My experiences (at Cranbrook) made me so aware of what the arts can do."

THEN SHE GOT involved in consultant work, staying in the local area but putting on programs through the Human Development Training Institute in San Diego. She was, she said,

"teaching teachers how to relate to children more effectively."

The purpose is to provide an environment in the classroom that encourages children to think more creatively.

As an example, Lanese might share with the children an idea of something she thinks is beautiful. In describing what they think is beautiful, the students learn there are no wrong answers. They feel safe making these statements and build confidence.

"You create an environment in which children are free to express themselves and be creative. In the theater, there's no one right way to play a scene. In the studio process, you can take those chances."

Lanese was exposed at a very young age to what was the best in arts, she said. Her father's avocation was art, and her mother was a teacher of the deaf.

'The Evil Dead' deserves to rest

At the direst moments of dread and distress, with characters decapitated or transformed into hellish fiends, lines like "Everything will be OK" or "You'll be OK" spew out with the detested regularity of the Karo syrup from victims' arms, legs, necks, heads, eyeball sockets — you get the picture.

Such juxtapositions of word and action make for the film's funniest moments, but one senses that this picture was not made with laughter in mind.

Raimi admits to inundating himself with schlock from triple-feature horror films at local drive-ins during the planning stages of "The Evil Dead." He also claims inspiration from another low-budget horror film that's become a cult classic, George Rom-ero's "Night of the Living Dead."

UNFORTUNATELY, Raimi's aim was off, falling below the level of mediocre horror films and far from the mark of Romero's classic.

The trouble with this film is that it is too earnest. It pays homage to the trashier horror films of the last 10 years while refusing to comment on them or range beyond the common denominator that binds them.

And, because of its zeal and one-dimensionality, it never comes close to capturing the spirit of a "Night of the Living Dead." The plot, although providing an abundance of gristle for demons to sink their teeth into, never gives the audience much to chew on for very long.

There's no edge to this film, no suggestion at what might be at the heart of the calamity, no hint of subject matter broader than the plot outline or thought deeper than the paper walls in one of the scenes.

"The Evil Dead" is, at best, a grade below the more tasteless horror films of the last decade.

grams for older people. After her stint at Cranbrook, she was artist-in-residence at the Pontiac Art Center. She received a grant to work with older people and for three years taught art and drama at nutrition sites.

SOFT-SPOKEN AND conservatively dressed, she is anything but picture of the flamboyant artist.

"Some people, that's their way of saying, 'I'm an artist.' I'm not that kind of person. I'm a mother."

She has two daughters, Lynn, studying for a master of architecture degree at the University of Illinois, and Jeanne, a sophomore at Michigan State University, who is interested in law.

"Both girls are very creative." Describing her own art, she said, "My paintings are large and strong. They don't look like they were made by a little person. That's how I express myself."

Pastiche quintet concert Friday

The Pastiche Wind Quintet brings its music to the Metropolitan Methodist Church, 8000 Woodward near Grand Boulevard, at 8 p.m. Friday.

The wind ensemble will perform Samuel Barber's "Summer Music," written 27 years ago for the Detroit Symphony Wind Quintet, in E Flat Major, and Mozart's "Sonata in F."

Music of Gershwin, folk music and compositions with a Latin influence will round out the program.

Tickets are $4 in advance, on sale at the church during business hours, or $5 at the door.

Members of the quintet are Susan Ivers Barna, flute; Stephen Caplan, oboe; Les Nichols, clarinet; Elizabeth Watson Encarnacion, horn, and Thomas Sefcovic, bassoon.

No detente for Soviet cagers

You've heard Al McGuire's prediction for months now: "The U.S. is not going to win the gold medal in basketball."

The former Marquette University coach and NBC-TV color analyst may have a good point even though Indiana's Secretary of Defense — Bobby Knight — will coach the 1984 U.S. Olympic squad.

The rest of the world is catching up with the United States in basketball, even though America still has the cream of the crop if you rate by individual talent.

Last Sunday, I ran across a team of future Olympians at the Atlanta airport — the Russian Junior National squad. They will be here to take on the Michigan AAU squad at 8 p.m. Sunday at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The Russian juniors started their U.S. tour May 10 in New York and will finish the 41-game swing Wednesday in Boston.

BECAUSE OF A U.S. boycott, the Soviets last visited Schoolcraft in 1980. In 1978, they put on a clinic against a Michigan squad that boasted Joe Kopicki, Trent Tucker and Walker D. Russell. Taking advantage of the rough-and-tumble international style of play, the Russian juniors literally beat up the Michigan stars and won handily.

I didn't need a tape measure at the terminal to see how physically imposing these lads are. A roster sent to me earlier this week confirmed what I had already suspected — a pair of 6-11s, two 6-10s, a 6-9, two 6-8s and two 6-6s (small forwards). And don't forget 7-foot alternate Aleksandr Okhotnikov.

But don't fret. Michigan has the Antoine (The Judge) Joubert to launch his 25-foot jumpers. He'll need a 20-for-20 showing to keep the score close.

The problem with this year's Michigan team is that they really can't match up inside against the Soviets.

AFTER WATCHING the Michigan AAU team two weeks ago, it appears Redford Catholic Central's Mike Maleske at 6-7 is the only true post player. But he won't play Sunday because of graduation exercises. That leaves Lansing Everett's Kevin Smith (6-7) and Detroit Cody's Vernon Carr (6-6) to battle the Russians inside. In an emergency, Southfield's 6-4 jumping Jack Mike McCaskill could go down low. The team's two 6-8 threats, Brian Humes of Saginaw and Mark German of Bronson, appear to be perimeter players.

The Michigan squad, which won the six-team Midwest AAU tourney two weeks ago in Indiana, will go with a three-guard offense, said coach Rocky Watkins.

"They (the Russians) play a 2-3 zone match-up defense, but they camouflage it with a 1-3-1," Watkins said. "They fast break very well and play power basketball. They're ready to rebound on the offensive glass better than the defensive.

"I'm not afraid of the Russians. They have to stop our jump shooters, and I think our guys will be 'geeked up' to play. Defense is the key, though."

Watkins, who took eight players to Indiana, will use Garde Thompson (East Grand Rapids) at the point, with Joubert and Flint Central's Darryl Johnson on the wings as shooters.

IN THE CHAMPIONSHIP game of the Midwest AAU tourney, Michigan defeated a team from Gary, 114-90. Thompson and Humes each scored 22 to lead the way. Carr added 20.

But the big win came against Indianapolis in the semifinals, 132-124, as Joubert, Carr and Steve Beck (Detroit Southeastern) combined for 90 points. Maleske contributed 17 and played well up front, Watkins said.

"Both Antoine and 'DJ' held Johnny Fort from Gary to nine points," said Watkins. "and he's going to Iowa."

"But beating Indianapolis was sweet. Scott Hicks had 43 points, and Tim McCallister, who is joining Waymon Tisdale at Oklahoma next year, scored 33. We had to play a great game to beat them. I was really proud of the guys."

After winning that tourney, Watkins said, "We'll make a good accounting of ourselves against the Russians."

"We'll try to slow their break. We'll go after their outlet rebounder. We may even have to foul him. New York is the only team that has beaten them, but I think we have a good chance."

AS AN ADDED attraction, the Detroit AAU and Suburban AAU squads play in a preliminary game at 6 p.m.

The Detroit team features Stan Heath of Catholic Central, Damon Jones of Detroit Country Day and Ray Keiser of Southfield.

The Suburban team has Lewis Scott of Redford Bishop Borgess, Bob Stebbins of Livonia Franklin and Jim Weiss of Redford Thurston.

Basketball junkies can arrive at 4 p.m. to see a Detroit AAU Junior women's team play the Suburban AAU squad. Livonia Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh will coach the Suburban team, which includes two of his players — Lavetta Willis and Ann Lukens.

The three game-set is going for $5 per person. Proceeds will go toward sending the Michigan team to the National AAU tourney in July at Jacksonville, Fla.

Kathy Young gets the bat on the ball and legs out a bunt single for Canton Monday against Churchill.

Big innings help Canton

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

One inning is all Plymouth Canton's softball team needs.

But it would be nice if the Chiefs wouldn't wait so long to put that inning together.

Tuesday, Canton exploded for eight runs in the fifth inning to bury Adrian, 11-1 in a state qualifying contest at Adrian.

And Monday, the Chiefs solidified their claim to the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) overall championship by rallying for 11 runs in the sixth inning, erasing a 7-1 Livonia Churchill lead en route to a 12-8 victory at Canton.

AGAINST ADRIAN, Canton led, 3-1, when Missy Aiken stepped to the plate at the top of the fifth. Aiken doubled and two Adrian errors loaded the bases.

Karen Schulte's single brought in two runs and Kathy Young and Sue Gerke each singled in a run. Marie Krashovetz then drove in two more with a triple, making it 9-1. Janine Carpenter's single scored Krashovetz.

Carpenter retired Adrian without a run scored in the bottom of the fifth and the 10-run mercy rule was invoked, giving the Chiefs the win. Aiken had two hits for Canton, as the Chiefs boosted their overall record to 9-4.

CANTON IMPROVED its WLAA mark to 8-1 Monday with the comeback victory over Churchill.

"We weren't hitting, weren't doing much, but got it rolling there," said Canton coach Max Sommerville of the game-winning rally.

The Chargers aided the Canton comeback with six walks and an error in the inning. Key hits for the Chiefs included a run-scoring double by Aiken, a two-run single by Young, RBI singles by Gerke and Krashovetz and a two-run double by Kris Harrison.

Aiken relieved Carpenter in the fifth and got the win. She went the final three innings, giving up three runs on four hits and five walks. Kelly Janes pitched the first 5½ innings for Churchill and took the loss.

Canton has a one-game advantage in the WLAA title race with four league games remaining. The Chiefs next state tournament contest is at home against Romulus Friday, May 27. The winner of that game goes against the Plymouth Salem-Ann Arbor Pioneer winner June 4. Salem hosts Pioneer May 27.

Clutch finish sparks Salem to triumph

Inkster (23) and Dearborn Heights Robichaud (14).

With only the mile relay remaining, there were just two ways Plymouth Salem's girls' track team could win the Western Wayne Invitational Saturday: by finishing first or second on that final event.

Did that put a lot of pressure on the team of Fran Whittaker, Carol Lindsay, Mary Beth Weast and Dawn Johnson? If it did, it didn't show. The foursome won the event handily, assuring Salem a first-place finish in the eight-team competition at Westland John Glenn.

The Rocks ran up 69 points to edge host-team John Glenn by three. Livonia Franklin was third with 55, followed by Belleville (52), Inkster Cherry Hill (47), Garden City (44),

"WE THOUGHT WE'D be way out in front after the field events," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "But John Glenn was right there."

Salem did score well in the field, totalling 31 points. But Glenn netted 27 and then took over the lead on the track.

"We were down 15 points," Thomann said, adding that it wasn't a position he expected to be in. Some strong finishes on the track made certain the Rocks didn't stay there long.

Salem's mile-relay team, clocked in 4:13.0, was an easy winner over second-place Cherry Hill (4:17.1). It was the fifth victory of the day for the Rocks.

Three of the wins came in field events.

Cheri Muneio, Whittaker and Cindy McSurely combined to take the discus relay (278-8); McSurely, Janine Gray and Johnson were best in the high-jump relay (14-4); and Johnson, Kelly Bemiss and Ann Glomski grabbed first in the long-jump relay (48-2).

Muneio's discus toss of 112-0 was the meet's individual best, as was Johnson's long jump of 16-10. McSurely cleared 5-0 in the high jump, tying for the meet's best.

SALEM'S OTHER first was captured by Shelly Simons, Lindsay, McSurely and Erica Bashor in the medley relay (10:09.9).

The Rocks' four-mile relay team of Lori Swierb, Amy Miyazaka and Trish and Michelle Donnelly placed second (25:00.7). Salem also had two fourths, with Heidi Dupret, Peru Bashar, April McCall and Ruth Ettinger accounting for one in the two-mile relay (11:30.0) and Karen Marciniak, Elise Mirto, McCall and Carolyn Jackson taking the other in the shuttle-hurdle relay (1:17.7).

The 880-yard relay team of Glomski, Stacy Stojeba, Nancy Smith and Gray finished fifth (1:57.4) and Muneio, Tracy Aldrin and Marciniak placed sixth in the shot-put relay (80-8).

Salem has now competed in three relays, winning two and finishing second in the other.

CANTON 9TH AT RU

Plymouth Canton scored in five events Saturday, but none was higher than third as the young Chiefs placed ninth in the nine-team Redford Union Relays.

Depth pushes Rocks to win over Bentley

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Depth proved to be Plymouth Salem's best ally Tuesday.

The Rocks captured just six of 15 firsts in their dual meet at Livonia Bentley. But they bagged all but one of the scoring seconds and swept the top three spots in three events in besting the Bulldogs, 75-57.

The victory evened Salem's dual meet record at 3-3 overall. The Rocks are 3-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA).

Four individual firsts went to Salem. Dave Houle won the shot put (43-11¼), Glenn Medalle was tops in the 110-meter hurdles (15.2), Marv Zurek finished first in the 300 hurdles (40.2) and Jerry Smith was best in the 400 (53.65).

If any event sparked the Rocks, it was the hurdles. They took the top three spots in both, with Zurek second (15.4) and Arvinder Sooch second (40.5) and Dan Allinger third (40.6) in the 300s.

Salem also swept Bentley in the 400, with Dan Harkness second (54.05) and Mike White third (54.5).

IN ADDITION to the four individual firsts, the Salem team of Marc Tindall, Jeff Arnold, George Condash and Zurek won the 800 relay (1:35.29) and the quartet of Sooch, Harkness, Karl Gansler and Tindall placed first in the 1,600 relay (3:37.6).

Other individual seconds went to John Cohen in the shot (43-11), Doug Spencer in the discus (125-8), Dan Lingg in the long jump (21-7), Randy Johnson in the 100 (11.83), Tindall in the 200 (23.5), Eric Pederson in the 800 (2:11.7), Brad Haertel in the 1,600 (4:49.4) and Frank Brosnan in the 3,200 (10:21.5).

Salem now must ready for the state regional meet Friday at Brighton. Of the 17 teams competing (including Canton and Salem), host Brighton, Milford Lakeland and Ypsilanti are expected to challenge for team honors. Lingg is seeded second in the pole vault and fourth in the long jump for Salem.

LAST SATURDAY, the Rocks traveled to the Highland Park Relays and came away with a fourth in the four-team meet.

Highland Park won with 54 points. Detroit Denby was second (38), Ferndale was third (28) and Salem fourth (24).

The Rocks had five seconds: Keith Urban (129-8), Doug Spencer (116-6) and Dan Hasley (99-6) in the discus relay (345-8); Lingg (19-0), White (18-2) and Arnold (18-0) in the long jump relay (55-2); Houle (45-2), Cohen (40-4¼) and Urban (38-¼) in the shot put relay (123-7¼); Zurek, Erich Hartnett and White (all 5-10) in the high jump relay (17-6); and Sooch, Hartnett, Zurek and White in the shuttle hurdle relay (1:02.5).

Lingg had his best performance of the year when he cleared 13-9 in the pole vault, which was good enough for third, and Sooch, Harkness, Gansler and Zurek raced to a third in the mile relay (3:38.1).

Ousted! First loss sidelines Bentley; Canton falters

By Paul King staff writer
Michigan's No. 1 ranked girls' soccer team took an early exit from the state tournament Tuesday night.

Amy Brown and Jenny Sawicky scored at the seven- and 35-minute marks, respectively, to give Livonia Churchill a 2-0 pre-regional victory over a stunned Livonia Bentley team.

The loss drops Bentley to 10-1 overall, while Churchill upped its record to 12-3-1. Churchill, the state tournament pre-season favorite, got solid goaltending from Terry Groat, who turned back 10 Bentley shots.

Bentley had won an earlier meeting between the two teams, 3-0.

ON MONDAY, Churchill dominated Farmington Harrison, 5-3, behind Jennifer Huggins' three goals. She now has 14 on the season.

Brow, Jessi Miller and Dorene Deak added other Churchill goals.

Sue Ferguson had two of Harrison's goals. The Hawks were outshot, 27-8. Bentley, meanwhile, used Lisa Rigstad's three goals and two assists to trim Brighton, 7-3.

Amy Eichhorn, Kim Patterson, Colleen McQueen and Amy Weber rounded out the scoring.

LIVONIA STEVENSON 2 NORTHVILLE 1
Senior forward Stephanie Riddle broke a 1-1 halftime deadlock with a goal 13 minutes into the second half Saturday to help the Spartans eliminate highly regarded Northville from state tournament play.

Stevenson got on the board first when Mary Kay Hussey scored off a Laura Martin pass, but Northville (14-2) came back before the half to tie the game.

ON MONDAY, the Spartans (11-3) had little trouble disposing of Plymouth Salem in a Western Lakes meeting, 8-2.

Leasa Klix and Husey led the Stevenson scoring attack with two goals each. Karen Kelly, Kathleen Berry, Julie Kusza and Andrea Bokos rounded out the scoring.

Julie Tortora and Dani Morin connected for Salem, which was outshot, 17-11. The Rocks (10-4-1) will have lost more than a game. Goalie Sarah Wallman suffered a possible shoulder separation just 10 minutes into the game.

PLYMOUTH SALEM 10 DET. MURRAY-WRIGHT 0
The Rocks used an eight-goal first-half scoring outburst to knock the Pilots from pre-regional action Friday at Belle Isle.

Shelly Staszak, a junior, paved the way with four goals. Maureen Dazer added two with Tortora, Morin, Laura Kacor and Tracy Greenhalge contributing one each.

Tortora and Greenhalge also collected two assists each.

The Rocks fired 32 shots at the Murray-Wright nets.

LIVONIA LADYWOOD 3 PLYMOUTH CANTON 1
Ann Schwartz put on a show Monday for the Blazers, netting all three goals in a lopsided tournament win at Canton. Lisa Russell kicked in the lone Chief goal during the second half to prevent the shut-out. Ladywood outshot Canton, 18-5.

ON TUESDAY, Kelly Jenkins had two goals and Denise Burr added another as the Blazers (5-1-3) defeated Garden City, 3-2.

Dawn Sullivan (from Lisa Clark) and Rene Clark (from Karen Pinegar) accounted for the Garden City (6-3-1) second-half goals.

ON FRIDAY, Grosse Pointe South and Ladywood battled to a 1-1 tie.

The Blue Devils opened the scoring just four minutes into the match, but Ladywood's Jane Moynan knotted the game for good 10 minutes later. Both teams had their chances in the second half, but neither could connect.

THE RACE was the first in a series of Michigan Week biking events. And it was what brought Pierce back to his hometown. He plans on competing in the entire week's events, including Saturday's sprint at Belle Isle.

"It was pretty important to me," he said of the Hines Park race. "I was fired up for it. The competition was not like what I had been experiencing, but it was tough."

"I was a marked man. Everyone knew I had been racing a lot."

"A lot" means all over the country and in Europe over the past few months. Pierce started the year training in Phoenix and at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, then raced 15 times during March in Texas.

If that sounds like a hectic schedule, compare it to a month-long stint in France that Pierce just returned from — 25 races in that stretch.

WHY ALL THE training? First, to reach his immediate goal: a berth on the U.S. team to the Pan American games Aug. 14-29 in Caracas, Venezuela.

"Unless the money improves or I get a real good pro contract, my plans after next year are to go out and get a job and be a real person," Pierce said.

Those plans are still more than a year off. And a lot can happen in that time.

Pierce returns home in triumphant fashion

By C.J. Riesak staff writer
"Right now, I'd have to say my chances are fair," Pierce said. "Realistically, there are about 30 guys that have a shot at it. There are a lot of ups and downs, a little luck involved. It depends on how everyone else rides."

"For this year that's my goal — to make the long team."

The "long team" is a selection of the seven or eight top cyclists, its name derived from when it's picked — long in advance. From that group, the three riders that will compete in the Pan Am games will be chosen.

Saturday's race through Hines Park earned four racers a shot at qualifying for the Pan Am team. Pierce needed no such chance. As a member of the national team, he already was assured of an invitation to the Pan Am trials.

THAT DIDN'T make the race any easier or any less challenging for Pierce. He managed to get out in front, but a flat tire stopped him midway through the race. Twenty-five seconds after the mishap, he had changed front wheels and was back on course.

His winning time was just over three hours, an average of nearly 27 miles per hour. Pierce figured that time to be a little fast over 80 miles. "I was more like 25 miles per hour. I have to believe that either the time was wrong or the distance wasn't quite 80 miles."

Pierce's goals do not stop in Caracas, Venezuela at the Pan Am games. They extend to Los Angeles and the 1984 Olympics.

"Unless the money improves or I get a real good pro contract, my plans after next year are to go out and get a job and be a real person," Pierce said.

Those plans are still more than a year off. And a lot can happen in that time.

With arms raised in victory, Jeff Pierce of Livonia crosses the Hines Park finish line in first place. Pierce is a top national cyclist.

Chief sluggers blast Churchill

Mark Bennett stumped Livonia Churchill on four hits and Mark Landini and Mike Scarpello knocked in two runs apiece to lift Plymouth Canton to a 10-2 baseball victory at Churchill Monday.

Bennett struck out five and walked seven in earning the victory. Doug Lobk started for Churchill but lasted just 2 1/2 innings, allowing eight runs (six earned) to cross the plate.

Scarpello's first-inning single drove in two runs. Landini had two hits to go with his two RBI and Marty McCarthy collected two hits for the Chiefs.

Six errors contributed to the Churchill demise.

Rocks reign

Farmington Harrison won the meet with 80 points. Redford Bishop Borgess was second (77). Canton scored 17 points.

Lisa Wood, Lori Schauder, Carolyn Nagy and Kim Bennett raced to a third in the 880-yard relay (1:55.9), the Chiefs best finish of the day. The same foursome also took a fifth in the sprint relay (3:12.0).

Michele Adams, Jan Alvarado, Cheri Remer and Pat Brennan placed fourth in the shuttle hurdles (1:13.9), while Wood, Bennett, Pam Barstow and Nagy were fifth in the mile relay (4:38.0).

Brennan, Adams and Alvarado tallied 39-7-4 in the long-jump relay to earn Canton a sixth. The Chiefs also recorded two non-scoring season bests: Remer, Schauder, Brennan and Koch in the 440 relay (56.2) and Nagy in the high jump (4-10).

Skier's 'calendar watch' pointed for Jr. Olympics

Like many girls her age, 10-year-old Lindy Tatala wishes she were older. But not because she wants to wear high heels, or stay up later.

Lindy wants to be 12 years old so she can try out for the United States Ski Association central division (CUSSA) Junior Olympics Team. Judging from her performance on the slopes this year, she's got an excellent chance for a berth on that team.

Tatala's race season started in January and included 18 CUSSA meets. She won 15 gold and three silver medals.

good for first ranking in state competition for 10-12-year-olds. Tatala is watching Tatala at Nub's Nob was Brian Shorter's uncle Bill, who is coach of the Harbor Springs High School ski team. The coach was so impressed with Tatala's ability and sportsmanship that he extended an open invitation to her to train with his team.

Foul weather at Nub's Nob left Tatala with a bad cold which threatened to affect her performance at the Select championships the following week. At that meet her competition included 15 of the top skiers from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Tatala's times on March 10 and 11 weren't up to her usual par, but she did gain enough points in two days of giant slalom competition to stay in contention with two other top girls.

On March 12 the giant slalom finals began. Tatala had regained much of her form, and came away in second place.
