The Canton Connection

HONORED: Omnicom Cablevision has been presented, for the second time, an award giving them statewide recognition for their service to the American Legion. The nomination for the award was submitted by the American Legion Passage-Gayde Post 391 of Plymouth.

Omnicom has provided the American Legion, locally, with a forum via its live Call-In program on Tuesday evenings as well as other specials such as on Reyes syndrome, and has covered Legion programs such as Youth Recognition Night, and the Canton Flag Dedication Ceremony.

Program director Maria Holmes also has been recognized for outstanding community service by the Big Brothers organization of Wayne County. She was presented an award for producing several public service announcements over the past two years.

AN AUCTIONEER: Col. Larry C. Huebler of Cherry Hill, Canton, recently completed the course in auctioneering and auction sales management at the Missouri Auction School in Kansas City. Huebler received his diploma and the honorary title of colonel bestowed on auctioneers by the school. Subjects covered in the course included antique auctions, livestock, furniture, business liquidations, real estate, rare coin, auto, machinery, general merchandise, estate auctions and the rapid fire chant of the tobacco auctioneer.

HELPING DEAF: Canton Township has purchased four telephone communication devices, commonly known as TDD Devices, for the deaf and hearing impaired. The devices are in operation at the police department, fire department, and township administration building. Access to the township through these devices can be made at the following phone numbers: police emergency, 397-3350; police business, 397-3000; fire emergency, 981-1111; and township administration, 397-1000.

Visible address can be life-saver

By Diane Gale
staff writer

If you don't have a street address number on your house or business expect a knock on the door.

Every building in Canton must have a displayed street address, and fire officials say the issue could be a matter of life and death when they are trying to find a house.

"If there's no number then it's guess potluck," said Canton fire Lt. Don Adams.

When there is a fire it's usually easy to spot the house, Adams said. But medical emergencies are hard to find especially if someone isn't waiting outside. Houses can be located through the department's card file but this also takes time.

MORE THAN 500 residences, businesses and industrial shops have received advisory notices that street addresses are required by Canton Ordinance 62 adopted in 1975.

The ordinance says every building must have Arabic numbers — not script — at least four inches in height with a contrasting background. When the numbers are written in words it takes emergency operators extra time to read, Adams stressed.

If numbers aren't up 30 days after the advisory notice, a second notice could be issued allowing another 30 days before a building inspector visits. If there still isn't compliance the inspector writes a violation, which is a misdemeanor with a penalty of up to $500 or imprisonment of not more than 90 days.

"We don't want to play hardball, we just want compliance," Adams said.

The township doesn't have an "overwhelming" problem with buildings that lack street addresses but as the population and business climate increase the situation could worsen, according to Aaron Machnik, Canton building director.

Building inspectors are irritated by the absence of addresses, but the real problems surface during an emergency.

"Every new business that goes in we require that the address be there for commercial, industrial and residential," Machnik said.

JAKE DINGELDEY, DPW director, says there's an "occasional" problem with meter readers trying to find a house — especially in rural areas where houses are further apart.

Canton Police haven't had a major problem trying to find a location that didn't have a number on the building, said Lt. Alex Wilson adding that addresses written in script are more difficult to read in a hurry.

Trying to measure the effect of an emergency unit taking a few extra seconds to get to the location is difficult, he added.

"If you're out on the west side of the township and houses are a quarter of a mile apart, it could cause a problem because you have to go to the next house to see what that number is," Wilson said.

Woman charged in fatality

By Diane Gale

A 20-year-old Westland woman has been charged with manslaughter in the head-on car accident that killed a Canton woman Dec. 13.

Yvonne Marie Hillier, who appeared in court on crutches with cuts on her upper lip, was arraigned Monday before 35th District Judge James Garber.

Bond was set at $15,000 personal recognizance and a plea of not guilty was entered by the court. A preliminary examination date to determine if there's enough evidence to hold a trial is scheduled for Jan. 16.

DORCAS RUTH AUMANN, 67, was dead at the scene of the accident, which took place about 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 13, on Joy Road at the I-275 overpass.

Hillier allegedly drove her car from the parking lot of the Plymouth Rock Saloon on Joy west of Haggerty.

According to police, she turned east onto Joy and sideswiped a car east of Haggerty.

Hillier was driving on the wrong side of the road with the lights off, said police.

A limited white Christmas

Lisa and Chris Jackson of Village Court will be the only Canton residents enjoying a white Christmas. The snow was delivered to their front lawn compliments of the Canton Parks and Recreation Department's "Guaranteed White Christmas" contest.

Her ancestor had role in statehood

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Residents can relay their belated thanks for Michigan's statehood to Plymouth Township resident Betty Norman.

Norman's maternal great-grandfather, Archibald Yard Murray, was one of 72 delegates from 18 counties who attended the "Frostbitten Convention" on a cold Dec. 15, 1836 day at the Washtenaw County Courthouse in Ann Arbor to push for statehood.

There are differing accounts about the origin of the term. Some historians attribute it to the several inches of snow that were on the ground during the convention. Others maintain that it was a derisive term for those opposing statehood.

The delegates reluctantly accepted the U.S. government's terms of giving up the "Toledo Strip," a heatedly debated southern boundary that contained land near the Maumee River, to Ohio in exchange for the western Upper Peninsula and statehood.

Little did the delegates know that the western Upper Peninsula held the largest commercial deposit of native copper in the world and would far exceed the value of the "Toledo Strip."

MURRAY SERVED one term in the Michigan Legislature when it was still a territory and one term after statehood.

In honor of the sesquicentennial event that commemorated Michigan's final step to statehood, a celebration was held at the Ford Presidential Library on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor last week.

Betty and husband Louis were present at the celebration.

"There were 10 descendants present. I was the only one from Wayne County. I was given this card and told to rise and say, 'As a descendant of Archibald Murray, I vote 'yes,'" she said.

Betty, 74, recalls discussion of genealogical history during her childhood but admits she and her sister, Louise Tritten, a Plymouth Township resident active for many years in the Plymouth Grange, didn't always pay much attention.

"Two of my aunts, Mabel Spicer and Fannie Doerr, belonged to the Daughters of the American Revolution, so we were conscious of history. We lived it and it didn't impress us at the time. I can just barely remember my grandfather, Hiram Murray, then a widower.

"Three generations lived in the Archibald Murray home at Napier and Warren in Canton Township. It was built so that my grandparents had their side of the house and we had ours. There were six fireplaces. The original house was two-stories high and made of logs with five rooms on the lower level.

"In 1838, a new house was built using straw and clay brick which were pressed right on the farm. It was the first brick house in the neighborhood and had 10 rooms and an attic playroom. In 1900 the old brick house was expanded and it had a total of eight bedrooms and two staircases to the second floor. The house later burned down."

NORMAN REMEMBERS milking, making maple syrup and driving a team of horses on the hay wagon.

She also remembers taunting her sister, Louise Tritten, who was afraid of chickens by holding one by a leg and chasing her.

Norman's mother and sister organized the Plymouth Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association in May 1936.

Norman married Louis, a neighbor, in 1940. They built their home on Ann Arbor Trail and Spicer in 1939. Louis Norman is a former Plymouth Township firefighter who later became an excavator. He later served as a trustee on the Plymouth Township board.

Betty's father, Samuel Spicer, was township treasurer.

After the Normans married, Betty became active in the community as a member of the historical society.

"My parents, Samuel and Alma Spicer, just missed being charter members."

Betty Norman was president of the society from 1967-69.

"My dad was so taken up with the historical society and wanted to see things preserved."

Gladys Gyorke of Plymouth looks forward to working Christmas Day at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. Gyorke is a cafeteria supervisor at the hospital.

By Mary Klemic staff writer
"Since my husband passed away it was a day for me to keep busy. Now I enjoy it very much.
'It's just like magic around there," she said. "Everyone comes in with a great mood and everything. I enjoy the hospital, the sisters. We work with a great group of people."
PAT FORDYCE will work six hours Christmas Day as a senior information operator for Michigan Bell at its Livonia office. Fordyce, who lives in Canton, used to work in Michigan Bell's office in Plymouth.
"Usually (it's busy) later on in the afternoon," she said. "People call for store (numbers) they want to return presents. They call for banks, even though they know they're not open. Or they try to find a parent."
Fordyce chooses to work on Christmas. An employee of Michigan Bell for 14 years, this will be her third Christmas at the Livonia office.
"My family has our Christmas on Christmas Eve," Fordyce said.
JOE HINCKLEY of Garden City will show up for work Christmas Day at Checker Drugs, 190 S. Wayne Road in Westland, where he is floor supervisor.
"Other people like to have the day off. I celebrate on Christmas Eve with my family. We have our store party Christmas Eve.
"(Christmas customers) are usually in the holiday spirit," he said. "They need some last-minute things for dinner. A lot of people say that (they're glad the store is open), they need sour cream for their potatoes."
Things are usually slow Christmas Day at the Best Western Coach and Lantern Motor Inn, 25255 Grand River in Redford.

On the job
Dec. 25 is just another workday for these folks

WCAR-AM Radio engineer Russell Sumner sets up the next commercial during an early morning pre-recorded show. Sumner doesn't mind working on Christmas Day or other holidays at the Garden City radio station.

EMPLOYEES HAVE ways to avoid feeling lonely on the Christmas shift. Biscuit Co. is decorated with bright tinsel. Workers don't have a little Christmas party of their own, but they may listen to holiday songs on the jukebox, Bucci said.
And besides, working on a holiday has some advantages.
"I've worked every holiday since Memorial Day," Sumner said. "It's not so bad. It's relaxing. It's nice. It's quiet."
"Wow could it be (lonely)?" Janek said. "There are so many beautiful people out there. A lot of people out there are very lonely. You just say 'hi' to them on the air and it's like a million dollars. That's a payment there."
KEN BUCCI of Garden City is owner of Biscuit Co., a 24-hour restaurant at 6071 Middlebelt in Garden City. The business' previous owner kept it open on Christmas, a policy that Bucci has continued.
"We're definitely busy," he said. "Number one, most wives don't like to make breakfast. We do the bulk of our business at breakfast. They go to church and the first stop is getting something to eat."
Also, many customers come from the Garden Towers senior citizen complex, located across the street, he said.
Biscuit Co. is at full staff (nine workers) in the morning, Bucci said. This number is cut by approximately half in the afternoon. The employees live in Westland, Livonia and other communities.
FOR DENISE KING, live-in administrator at the Livonia Opportunity House for developmentally disabled adults, being on the job on Christmas is a joy. She and the residents, who are mildly to moderately retarded, may open presents and visit other members of her family on Christmas.

Manslaughter charged

Aumann, a retired Detroit school teacher, was a passenger in a small-sized 1987 Dodge driven by her husband, Bruce E. Aumann, 69. Aumann pulled his car onto the shoulder of the road in an unsuccessful attempt to avoid a collision.
Hillier and Aumann were hospitalized and have since been released.
PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP Police by Monday hadn't received written confirmation of Hillier's blood sample to determine her alcohol level, said Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry.
Police are working with the Liquor Control Commission to determine if Hillier was inside the bar, whether she was intoxicated and whether she consumed the liquor on the premises, Berry said.

The two potential LCC violations would be serving a minor and serving an intoxicated patron. Depending on the results of the investigation Plymouth Township Police could recommend the LCC file charges against the bar owner with a maximum penalty of revoking the liquor license, Berry said.
The manslaughter by vehicle charge carries a maximum 15 years in prison.

He's ready to plunge in

By Tori Banaja
staff writer

It was two years ago that Livonia's Edward McNamara, remarking on his 1982 loss to William Lucas for county executive, said: "I think he can have it from what I've seen of it."

A lot has happened since then, not the least of which was Lucas' decision to step down, and McNamara's comeback last August.

On Saturday, Jan. 5, the pair will face each other again, this time in official ceremonies turning over the reins of county government.

In a recent interview, McNamara outlined his plans for economic development, his incoming staff, a get-together message to his rivals, and what he expects to accomplish in the next four years.

"In four years, we're either going to have a smooth-running county or we're going to have a shambles," he said.

Following up on his campaign pledge to move development ahead, McNamara has assembled a department staff to be headed by Dewitt Henry, the outgoing director of the Downriver Community Conference.

employees, he said the department will be "lean and mean and mobile . . . to convince people Wayne County is a good place to locate."

ON HIS APPOINTMENTS, McNamara is counting on a smooth transition. He has teamed up a group of former Lucas appointees and his own campaign loyalists which include campaign manager Michael Duggan, deputy CEO, administrative assistant David Katz and Livonia finance director Jack Dodge. Lucas appointees who will become part of the McNamara team include parks director Eric Reickel, community services director Yernice Davis-Anthony, and budget director Irvin Morehead.

"We were looking for competence — that was the number one requirement. . . . And I really have some excellent people."

"The favors' were really to people who did an outstanding job in the campaign and had a particular vocation that fit into what we were going," he added.

McNamara said he is hoping that the 13 positions that require commission confirmation will receive it. Though some have privately questioned Duggan's youth (he is 28) and inexperience for the deputy spot, it's not expected that any controversy will surface over it.

"Mike Duggan is probably the brightest person I've ever run into. He's street smart; he has a good analytical mind. He understands people; he understands the political system and how to get things done," McNamara said.

McNamara said that he'll rely on his appointees to handle "day to day" matters.

"I want to be out there where the work is being done. I want to be working with the commission; I want to be out there working with Coleman Young, Dan Murphy (Oakland county executive) and whoever it is in Macomb County. I want to be sure that whatever is happening back here, I'm kept informed and it's happening."

TO ENSURE getting off on the right foot with the 15-member board of commissioners, McNamara has met privately with the Detroit black caucus and met individually with suburban representatives.

But if he has made friendly overtures to commissioners, he's also been stern in his dealings with fellow Livonian Sheriff Robert Ficano, one of his chief rivals in the primary.

Earlier this month Ficano filed suit in circuit court over a funding battle with the county executive and commission. In fighting the suit, Duggan, working as a county attorney detailed criticisms and attacks on the Ficano administration.

"I decided right away that the first guy that goes to court is going to wish he never had. When I get through playing hardball with Robert Ficano for his demand for $6 million in court, there will never be another department head who goes to court," McNamara said.

Livonia Mayor McNamara says he will mobilize efforts toward economic development when he assumes the job of county executive next month.

Coalition offers plan to run Westland facility

By Teri Banas
staff writer

The Sisters of Mercy Health Care Corp. withdrew its offer to take over management of Westland Medical Center Tuesday after directors of Southwest Detroit Hospital Corp. decided to pursue another offer.

"It was under the impression that they would accept the offer until 2:55 p.m. today (Tuesday)," said spokesman LeRoy Fahle, Mercy's chief executive in charge of Mount Carmel Hospital in Detroit.

Serious negotiations between the two corporations had been ongoing for months with Mercy's board of directors approving an intent to manage and purchase the hospital on Dec. 9.

Those plans apparently fell through after Southwest decided to review an 11th-hour proposal from a coalition of three area hospital groups, including Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, Dearborn's Oakwood Hospital and the People's Community Hospital Authority.

'The board attempts to do what is in the best interest of the hospital. The new proposal, even though submitted in the 11th hour, appears that it might be in the best interest of the hospital to pursue.'

— Charles Arnold
Southwest trustee

SOUTHWEST'S executive director, Reginald P. Ayala said this week he was not "prepared to discuss" the other proposal at this time.

"We hope to have a public announcement in the very near future. Probably, if not for the holidays we'd have something within two weeks.

"We're on a very rapid track in making final arrangements," he said. "Our board has given us direction on this. It's our direction to develop this other alternative."

Southwest Trustee Charles Arnold called the other offer "seemingly more beneficial if it comes to fruition. It just isn't a complete, finalized version—or it may not happen at all."

According to Arnold, the three area hospitals have discussed forming a separate entity to buy the financially ailing Westland facility. Last year, Southwest lost over $1 million in its operation of Westland Medical Center. Particularly troublesome has been a low occupancy rate at the 310-bed facility of about 30 percent. In recent years, its 85-member physician staff had slipped in numbers from a one-time average of 125 doctors.

For years as a county-operated facility, the center, then called Wayne County General Hospital, recorded annual deficits of $15-$18 million.

Arnold said no action has been taken at this time.

"There will be continued negotiations to determine specifically what the proposal entails," Arnold said.

Arnold, WHO said he learned of the coalition's interest for the first time at Tuesday's board meeting, said: "Well, things change from time to time. The board attempts to do what is in the best interest of the hospital. The new proposal, even though submitted in the 11th hour, appears that it might be in the best interest of the hospital to pursue."

Neither Arnold or Ayala would discuss specifically what caused the change of plans with Mercy, but Mercy officials expressed disappointment.

"We are very disappointed," said Fahle. "We really felt we had something to offer . . ."

"I expected to be celebrating in the hospital (Mount Carmel) this afternoon, but it didn't work out that way."

He said the Farmington Hills-based Catholic hospital group's offer to Southwest included: "Enough to clear up their bills and debt obligations, a substantial dollar amount that's a moot question right now."

Armed robber takes car, cash

A Canton woman was robbed of her wallet and car by an armed man outside a fast food restaurant Monday, Dec. 22.

At about 3:45 a.m. a 46-year-old woman was returning to her green 1979 Ford Fairmont station wagon, which was parked in the White Castle lot at Ford Road and I-275.

As she prepared to turn the ignition key a man knocked on the driver's window with a small silver automatic handgun.

HE ORDERED her to open the door. She refused. He banged on the window again and said if she didn't open the door he would shoot her. She agreed and the man got into the driver's side of the car pushing her to the passenger seat.

The man drove to the south side of the building and ordered the woman out of the car. He told her she could pick the car up later that day at Michigan Avenue and Hannon. The car hadn't been recovered earlier this week.

The man ordered her to face south and he drove away east, with the woman's purse, which had $100 cash and a White Castle payroll check.

The man is described as being white, 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 150 pounds with a thin mustache and no beard. He had short light blond hair and wore a three-quarter length coat.

The man, who spoke with a slight southern accent, was described by the victim as polite and clean. He didn't appear to have been drinking or using drugs.

There were no injuries, witnesses or suspects. Police ask anyone with information about the incident to call 397-3000.

Holiday tours continue at Ford estate

This marks the first time that tours are scheduled immediately after Christmas, said Donn Werling, estate director. The post-Christmas tours follow a record year for the estate, which saw a 50 percent increase in visitors. So far, 20,000 people toured the estate in 1986.

Werling attributes the 1986 increase in tours largely to $500,000 in

The Hong Kong waterfront and central business district presents a picturesque line of buildings as a viewer looks across the legendary Victoria Harbor at Kowloon Peninsula.

Traveler sends her holiday greetings from Hong Kong

Dear Reader:
Philippine Airlines flight No. 310 arrived in Hong Kong at 6:35 p.m., just as the lights were coming on in the city.

We had seen the whole 411 square miles of the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong as we approached, a jagged peninsula protruding from the mainland into the South China Sea, with hundreds of islands scattered around it. A few of the colony's 235 islands are populated, but most of the 5 1/2 million people live here in the city built on either side of Victoria Harbor.

I won't be in Hong Kong long enough to do a detailed travel story, so I am writing you a letter about my brief stay and to wish you a happy holiday season.

Kai Tak International Airport is built right into the harbor, so as our plane lowered for a landing we could see the lights coming on in the high-rise buildings on either side of us, like silver paper cutouts of a city pasted against dark slopes.

To the right is Kowloon, which runs past a wall of mountains and 21 miles of mainland farms to the Chinese border. To the left is the city skyline of Hong Kong Island, Kowloon and Hong Kong Island, and the boat-busy harbor between, are what most people think of when they think of Hong Kong.

THIS PART of the world has been a trader's paradise ever since the British started hauling opium from India to China in the 17th century in exchange for the silks and teas so popular in England.

They created a drug trade that has its 20th century counterpart in America, and were eventually thrown out. The Chinese gave them a 99-year lease on Hong Kong Island, Kowloon and the New Territories in 1898; it runs out in 1997.

It is hard to believe that it was only a hundred years ago that a British Foreign Secretary described Hong Kong Island as a "barren island with hardly a house upon it."

My window view, from the Regent Hotel, at the very tip of Kowloon, shows a lighted pageantry of ships moving day and night against the skyline of Hong Kong Island.

Car ferries, people ferries, long low barges, fishing boats, battleships, were all there in a full regalia of lights shining against the high-rise buildings climbing step by step up the steep mountain slope. Where the main skyline stopped, more lights went on up to the houses that climb to the very top of Victoria Peak.

THE HARBOR DRAMA was still going full blast in the morning when I walked past the hotels and new shopping centers along Salisbury Road to the ferry terminal.

The Star Ferry is one of the world's travel bargains for the equivalent of 10 U.S. pennies it takes you on a fast seven minute ride across the harbor to either the offices and banks of the Central District or the shops and restaurants of Causeway Bay on Hong Kong Island.

You can also cross the harbor on the fast, new subway system or by driving through the undersea tunnel, reminiscent of the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel.

All of these transportation systems get some of the 5 1/2 million people of Hong Kong back and forth across the harbor, which is a traffic jam itself. I followed the crowds off the ferry on the island side, past the two rickshaw drivers waiting to have their pictures taken.

THEY STILL license a few of these man-pulled carts so that tourists can photograph or even ride them, but it was hard to imagine them braving the modern rush of cars and people going purposefully down Connaught Road.

There is talk of banning all automobiles except taxis in this downtown area of Hong Kong Island. People who live in the city, like those who live in New York City, often don't own cars. Those who live in beautiful homes set on mountain slopes on the other side of the island must drive or be driven to work.

The Hong Kong Tourist Association, which is on the 35th floor of the Connaught Center in the Central District, organized a car and driver to take me around the island, and sent Jessie Wong Shui-Kuen to help me get the most out of my limited time.

We rode the tram up to Victoria Peak, for a glorious view of the city, then drove completely around the island, with stops at Aberdeen, Repulse Bay and the Stanley Market.

Aberdeen is the site of the original fishing settlement on Hong Kong Island, and the place where two of the famous tourist attractions are located—the floating restaurants and the sampans and fishing boats that are home to a floating population.

ONE OF THE MYTHS of Hong Kong is based on all the photos you have seen of people living on fishing boats. As we rode a sampan through the boats and around the floating restaurant, Jessie told me that those teak fishing boats cost about one million Hong Kong dollars with a little help from the government. At 7.5 Hong Kong dollars to the U.S. dollar, that is about $133,000 U.S.

There are of course many other things to do in Hong Kong. You can take a day's trip. You can shop in Causeway Bay or in Kowloon, especially in places like the Jade Market. You can take a tram tour by night, a dinner cruise on the harbor. So many things. I didn't have time to do any of them.

I did have time, however, to go out for two wonderful Chinese dinners with new friends. We had dum Sim at the Unicorn in Causeway Bay and a glorious feast in the dining room of the Regent Hotel. I even tried snake soup.

Well, that's my Christmas letter for this year. I hope you have a very happy holiday season and all good things in 1987. If you want to spend your holidays dreaming about a Hong Kong holiday for the next year, contact the Hong Kong Tourist Association, 333 North Michigan Avenue, Suite 2422, Chicago, 60601 or telephone (312) 782-3872.

NOT EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY.

Take a look at your own pet. Can you picture him, cold and starving? Or abused? Or worse? It's an awful picture. Yet it's one that thousands of animals are forced to live every day.

We at the Michigan Humane Society are putting a stop to that. But we need your help.

We offer more than just shelter to lost and abused animals. We provide them with the medical attention and love they so desperately need. And we have a legal branch that investigates and prosecutes cruelty cases. But it takes money to continue this work. Please help.

Give to the Michigan Humane Society.

Booklet available on hazardous waste

A new booklet on state pollution control and hazardous waste management programs and services for state businesses is now available, state Commerce Director Doug Ross announced.

Entitled "Pollution Control and Hazardous Waste Management: State Assistance for Michigan Business," the booklet outlines services and incentives available to Michigan businesses to help them meet regulatory requirements and reduce the related costs, Ross said.

"The State of Michigan, while firmly committed to a clean and safe environment, recognizes that pollution control equipment and proper hazardous waste management can be costly," Ross said. "This booklet describes programs and services available to state businesses to help them meet those goals."

Sources of financing, tax incentives and technical assistance services for financing pollution control and hazardous waste management equipment are covered in the booklet's three sections. It outlines specific programs and services of the Michigan Strategic Fund, which includes the Industrial Development Revenue Bond Program, the SBA-Guaranteed Pollution Control Financing Program and the Capital Access Program. Other state funding sources cited include the State Resource Fund and the Michigan-Resource Recovery Loan Program.

The booklet is free and may be obtained by writing Cindy Cooper, librarian, Communication Services Department of Commerce, PO Box 30004, Lansing, MI 48909.

Despite new law we can give time to help others

THE GOVERNMENT — it can tax your wages, tax your savings and even steal away your incentive to donate money to others. But it can't steal away your dedication to others. Not yet, anyhow.

crackerbarrel debate Steve Barnaby

We all should be thinking about that during this holiday season. After these few final days of giving — to your family and friends and to charitable organizations — the feds will be foisting a most surly tax law on Mr. and Mrs. Middle Class America.

OTHER CHARITABLE donations foster less ostentatious results. But the impact is the same.

You may have given it little thought as you signed a check or two to help out the local Goodfellows in your town or some other charitable organization. Sure you give because you care. But in truth many people give a little more, and sometimes much more, because a tremendous tax write-off is available.

Hardly anyone likes to give more to the government than is necessary to fulfill the requirement. Neither can the government afford to fund all the charitable causes in the nation.

AND THAT'S all right. We all know that tax incentives inspire us to do things we may otherwise have forgotten to do. Good enough.

So the charitable write-off has worked.

But the power barons in Washington, in all their collective wisdom, have decided to put the kibosh on a charity system that has worked perfectly well for many years.

Next year will be bedlam in the charity business. Not even the tax experts are sure how the system works. You and I, the taxpayers, will be even more confused with all the other new tax regulations we will have to follow.

It not only has aided the poor, it has been a considerable factor in the development of colleges and universities around the nation. Next time you happen to be on a campus, take a look around and see the number of buildings tagged with a person's name.

The results — millions of people won't give a dime, some because they are fearful that they can't write it off and others because they won't be able to write it off.

Many times you've probably never even heard of the person. Nobody famous, you say. But fame is in the eyes of the beholder. And when a person donates tens of thousands or even millions of dollars to a university, that person possesses a definite type of fame in the eyes of university trustees. Hence a building, hence a name on that building.

A real sad state of affairs brought to you from our national leaders who often are out of touch with the rest of America.

Northampton vet seeks shipmates

IT'S A SMALL world. And in it may be more survivors of the USS Northampton, a heavy cruiser that was sunk off Guadalcanal late in 1942.

Next year, if you find yourself shut out from donating to charity, make a new resolve. Dedicate some of your time.

Doug Bowyer, a Livonia contractor, would like to hear from them at 591-3973. He'll invite them to the 1987 annual reunion of Northampton survivors.

While money always is appreciated, time can mean a heck of a lot more to an organization. Just a couple of hours a week from you can mean the difference between success or failure for an organization trying to help others.

"They formed this organization about 19 years ago," said Bowyer, who learned about it only in recent years. "Each year they have a reunion in a different city."

Give it a thought. It could be the nicest gift you ever gave someone — or yourself.

"The last one was in Atlanta. One guy came all the way from Guam. Does it every year."

Discharged in November 1945, Bowyer did remodeling work, mainly kitchens, in Southfield and Livonia. One son is in the Navy. A daughter is a paratrooper, and a second daughter married a paratrooper.

IN WORLD WAR II, the Northampton was in six major Pacific battles and had shelled Japanese-held islands before the night of Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

"I lived in the Seven Mile-Mound area of Detroit. I was 16 years old in May of 1942 and changed my birth certificate so I could volunteer," Bowyer recalled.

"I started as a loader on the No. 8 five-inch gun. Two weeks before she went down, I switched because they needed a loader on the starboard side. It was a good thing because when she blew (was hit), No. 8 went, and there were no survivors there."

HE'S RETICENT about talking about himself — fearful folks would think he's promoting himself when what he really wants to do is locate Northampton veterans.

Eight enemy destroyers ripped her with torpedoes. Although the Northampton sank, only 49 of the 1,200 crewmen were lost.

But I thought we should tell his story because it would encourage others to contact him. All he has is a printout with names and ranks of officers at the time of retirement.

"A sister ship, the Pensacola, wasn't sunk but lost 250 men."

"This is almost unbelievable. I count 10 admirals, 10 captains, eight commanders and one (Marine) brigadier general," he penned in the margin.

"MOST OF our survivors were picked up by two destroyers," Bowyer said. "I swam all by myself. It was dark. I swam toward a destroyer — one of ours, by the silhouette. The son of a gun would move each time I got near. I finally caught up to it."

The ship's biography, in official nautical form, says she "took a large part in major naval actions during the early months of World War II. She participated in the battle of Midway, bombarded enemy shore installations, had numerous brush with enemy aircraft, and took a toll of Japanese shipping before she was sunk off Guadalcanal . . . and earned six battle stars on the Asiatic-Pacific area service medal."

"They ran us back to New Caledonia," he said, and Northampton

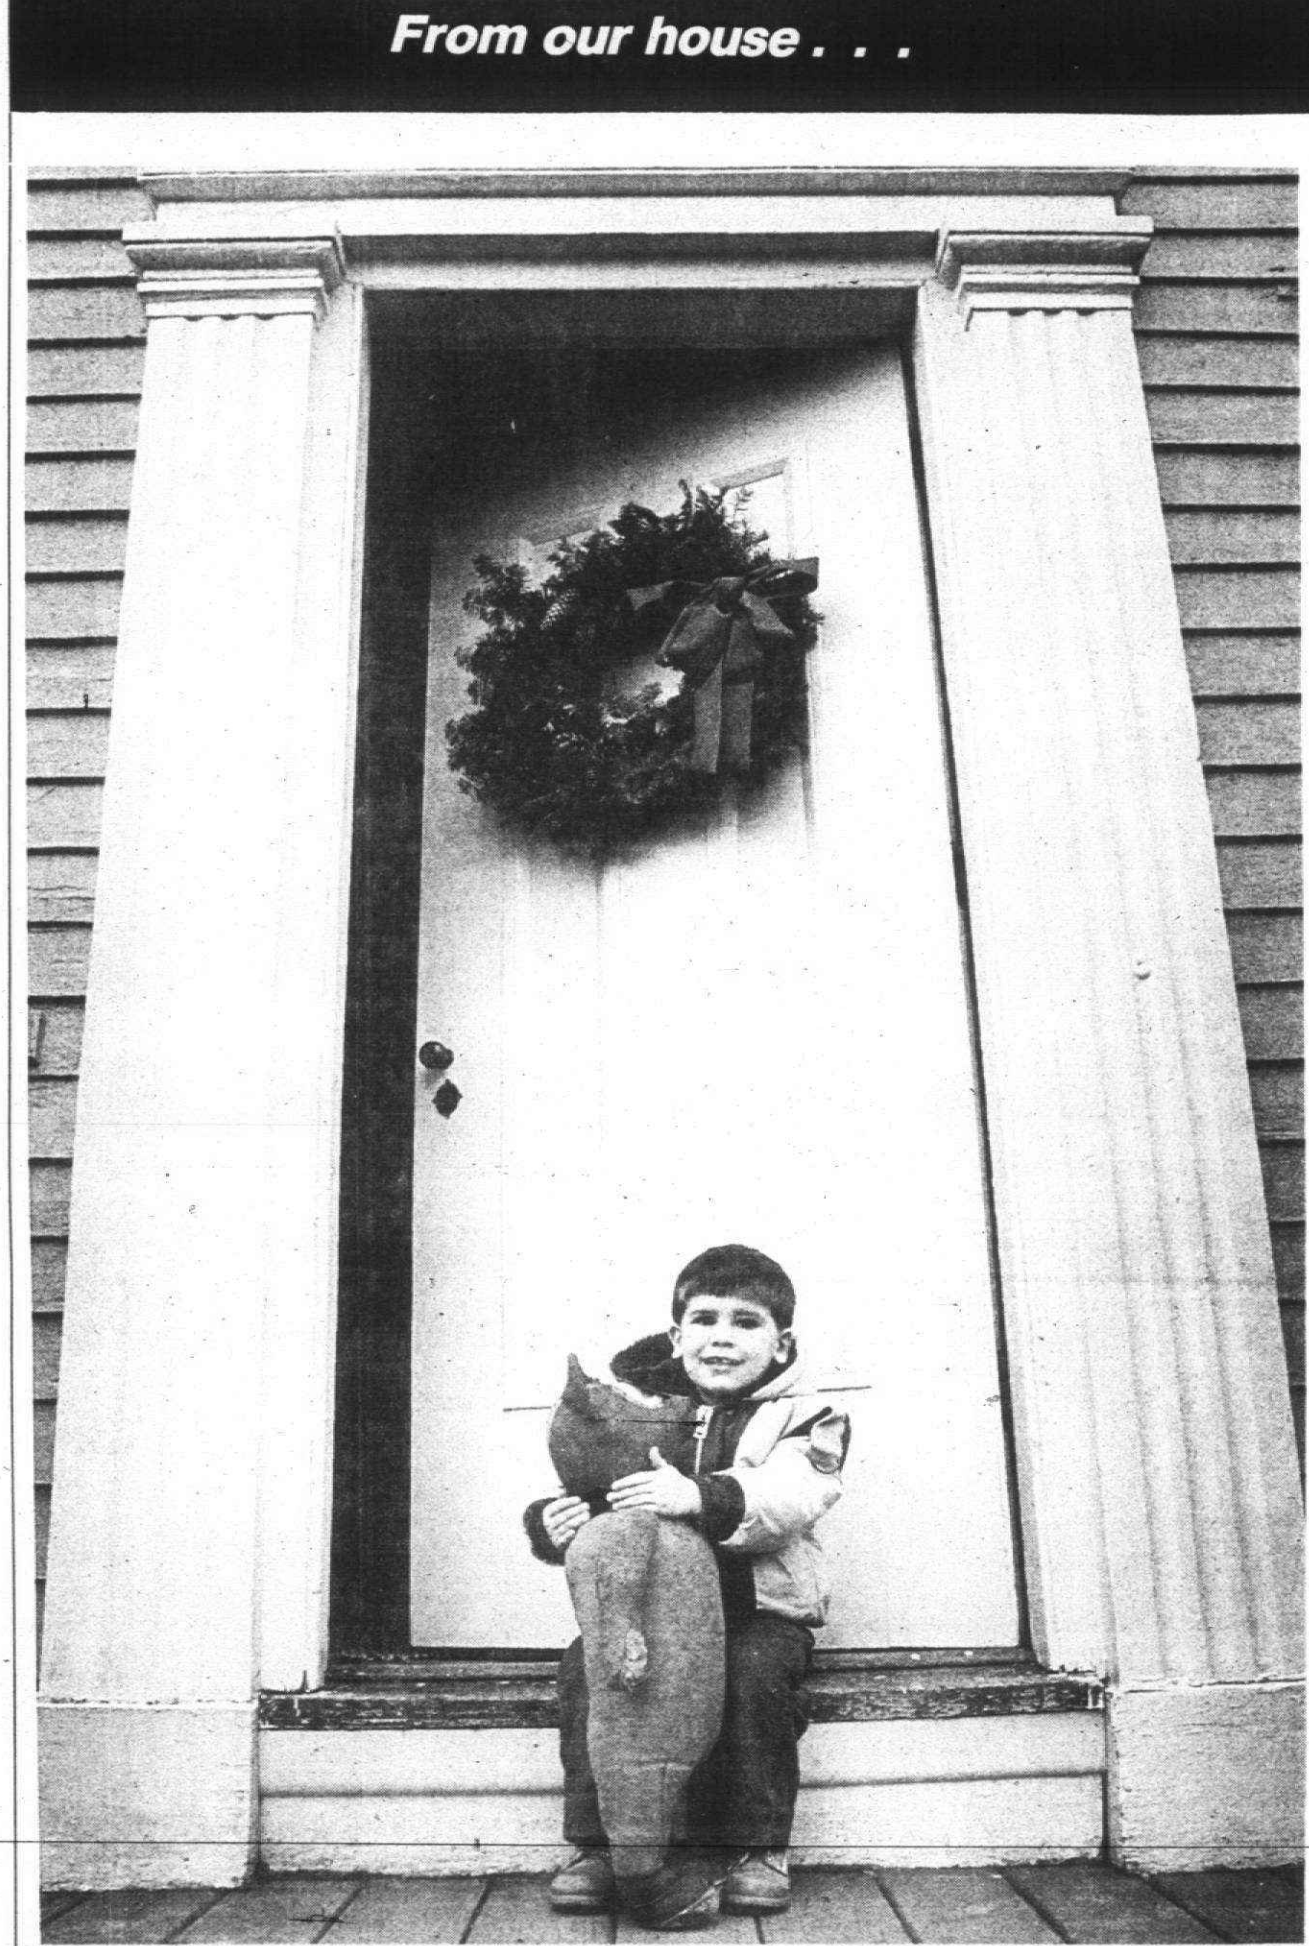

After risking their lives time after time and beating heavy odds by surviving, the crew disbanded after the war and just recently reunited.

Now that he's lived most of a lifetime, McCullough knows something he may not have fully realized 40 years ago: The bombing crew was not made up of the brave war heroes of the movies.

Oh, they were brave, all right. But they weren't war heroes until after the fact. When they started flying missions, they were not much more than children.

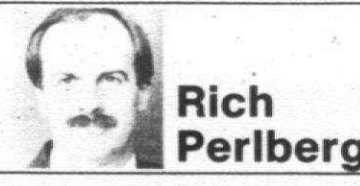

That's why the Doug Bowyers would rather talk about their ship's proud record than about themselves.

Young Nicholas Strauch's hug for his special friend is enthusiastic and genuine and so is our wish to all of our readers this season. Whether you celebrate Christmas or Hanukkah, may peace and joy fill your home this holiday season.

Unending search for peace

A COLUMN should be many things — interesting, informative, funny, provocative — but its message should not be obvious. If it is obvious, that fact should be carefully hidden.

'I have a baby. He's also an innocent. He's just 3 months old. Tomorrow, he'll see his first Christmas, a time when his family celebrates peace on earth, good will toward men. I hope those are words he learns to live by.'

This column is making an obvious point. I cannot hide that fact. The point is this: War is stupid.

No great revelation there. Most of us already have decided that war is atrocious. For those few on the other side, there is nothing I'm about to say that will change their minds.

War is stupid, and most of us are not stupid, yet we keep having wars. You figure it out.

After risking their lives time after time and beating heavy odds by surviving, the crew disbanded after the war and just recently reunited.

Now that he's lived most of a life-

They were innocents. "We were all 20 years old," McCullough said. They were so young that they should have been cruising the main drag of small towns, instead they were dropping bombs on other human beings, some of whom were doing their best to kill them.

At 20, you can be young enough to think the world lasts forever; when they were 20, they were old enough that each heartbeat could have been their last.

That's about as old as you can get.

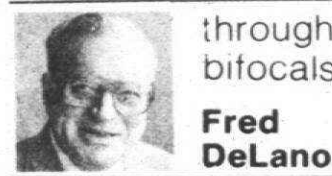

HOW STUPID IS war? If this crew today met the people they were trying to kill (or who were trying to kill them), they would buy each other a drink and compare life stories. Forty years ago, they would have tried to kill each other.

That's really stupid. I have a baby. He's also an innocent. He's just 3 months old. Tomorrow, he'll see his first Christmas, a time when his family celebrates peace on earth, good will toward men. I hope those are words he learns to live by.

Someday he'll ask why, in a world where all want peace, he may be asked to kill a stranger, or to be killed by one. "That's stupid," he'll say. What do I tell him?

Somehow, he'll get to Pasadena

SINCE THE third Saturday in May, I have been carrying $4 that belongs to Karl Hyslop, hoping to bump into him somewhere along the strip because this is what he won on the place horse, Ferdinand, in a Preakness pool I sort of sponsored. But no luck.

through bifocals Fred DeLano

What the book claimed was his phone number brought a voice that said they'd never heard of the guy. There was no response at his supposed address. But I kept hoping, because I knew Karl had been sick and would reach me when he could.

To be honest with you, "sick" is an understatement. The problem really is that this teddy bear-looking man has terminal leukemia. Last January, doctors told Hyslop bluntly, "There's no cure," and gave him nine months to a year to live.

From the Texas Medical Center at Houston I received a postcard last week that said, "still hanging in there. Removed my spleen last week. Finally, Arizona State vs. U of M. I knew it would happen. I'll get there somehow. Got to cheer for both sides."

Maybe I should start at the beginning. In two of the last few college football seasons prior to '86, I joshed occasionally with Karl about how the Big Ten representative would mop up on his alma mater, Arizona State, if the latter made it to the Rose Bowl. Both times, the Sun Devils blew it.

CAME '86 when ASU finally did win the Pac-10 title and the right to face Michigan at Pasadena on New Year's Day, my line of communication with Hyslop seemed to have disappeared.

A Detroit native who grew up in Port Huron and played high school ball there, Karl went on to Arizona State as a mechanical engineering major graduating in 1958. He starred as a linebacker under Coach Dan Devine when the Sun Devils, then in the old Border Conference, went through three seasons with only three defeats. He happens to be the only Arizona State graduate I know personally.

We first got acquainted when he was vice president of operations for a steel company in the area, having gotten into the steel business following four years as an Air Force pilot. In August 1984, working as general manager of a steel firm in Novi, he went to a physician for a physical exam and leukemia was discovered. If he lives, he'll be 50 in February.

His football playing weight in college was 185. Then he ballooned well over 200, but had shrunk 50 pounds when we last talked in May.

"MY BONES are deteriorating, the fingers won't bend, elbows are getting stiff, and no longer is there strength even to grip a golf club. I used to be a seven-handicapper. I feel like I'm coming apart at the seams," I recall his saying.

"There's always someone who has things worse," he added. As a case-in-point he mentioned the Special Olympics program in which he had become greatly involved while he was able through our mutual friend, Ron Kramer.

"I don't dwell on it, nor will I," he said of his own disease. "I try to put it in the back of my mind. I had a strong Catholic upbringing and what hurts most is that I won't see my son and daughter grow up."

There was a pause, then what passed for a laugh, and finally a true competitor's philosophical conclusion, "Maybe the research they're doing on me will help someone else a long way down the road."

Just as Christmas itself is special, so does Christmas bring special happenings. That postcard from Houston was like the sound of sleigh bells, or adding another light to the tree. If God has kept Karl around this long, maybe He'll grant that dream of actually getting to Pasadena. I have $4 that says Karl makes it.

Holy Grail far easier to find than Victoria

IT HAPPENS many times that when I am standing at the coach stop waiting for my morning bus into the city. I am seeing swarms of younger people passing by in colorful sweatshirts and other exercise gear. They are either jogging along the roadside or huddled over the handlebars of a 10-speed bike.

Roy Denial

For the reflection that is coming back at me shows bulges where formerly there were not even places. And in those regions of the globe where it is customary to have muscles, I note that there has been considerable erosion of the topography.

Which leads me to thinking once again about this girl with the knock-out proportions. Name of Victoria. The one whose picture has been nagging at me from the pages of the morning newspaper.

So one day at breakfast I am laying down before wife a copy of the ad featuring Miss V. "If I do what she asks, how soon could I look like her?"

Wife, however, is stating that she does not wish to be married to a transvestite. And besides, she doubts that even radical surgery would help.

While I do not wish to become a radical, I am not averse to a conservative Lord Arnold of Schwarznegger. So with a hearty "Hiyo Miss V!" I am trotting down to join her at the local health and fitness club. However, on my first visit, I am not greeted by Miss V. In fact, for the next several weeks I am putting my body through a substantial amount of torture, and everywhere I am looking for her.

FIRST I AM checking the aerobics class. But all I am finding is that the constant gyrating of the arms and legs quickly become a puzzlement.

No matter how fast I am moving, always I am two or three steps behind everyone else. Several times this is leading to violent collisions with a large bowl of Jello on my left.

Then I am seeking Miss V on the track, puffing my way along behind dozens of persons with olympic builds. Since I am running somewhat slow, the thundering herd of other joggers is passing me many times before I am finishing the first lap. And I am noting that while I do overtake various and sundry other people, mostly they are walking.

And to catch sight of Miss V, I am even going down to the huge pool where all sorts of sleek young Jocks and Jills are cutting through the water. With strokes swift and sure, they are quickly reaching the far side and returning. Through it all I am holding onto a small surf board and kicking. While to the casual observer I might not appear to be moving, at times I am producing ripples of some size.

EVEN SO, during the next several months, while I am energetically using up all this energy, I am getting somewhat exercised about all this exercise. And all I am finding is that Miss V cannot be found.

"Miss V," I am mumbling to myself. "I am putting in all these hours, and you do not so much as put in a single appearance. Not even a married appearance."

Finally, I have had enough. I am deciding to cancel my membership and sue Miss V for breach of fitness. But back in the lockerroom as I pull on my pants, I am glancing at the mirror and reflecting on what I see. I note that now I am somewhat loose in the caboose. Any my vest — no longer does it suffer from curvature of the buttocks.

Suddenly the truth is hitting me. Somewhere between the clavicle and the umbilical there has been a miracle. How could I have been so blind, Miss V! I am owing you a note of gratitude for my loss of pulchritude. It is you who helped me begin to exercise. And it is you who made it possible for me to learn that more important than the goal of losing a few inches is the prize of gaining two feet.

Because now when I am looking down, I am not merely seeing the spot on my vest. For way down in the mists far below, peeking out from the bottom of my trousers, I am catching glimpses of my two feet. Hello feet. Long time no see.

Michigan's 'shield' law still has loopholes

AP — In removing a legal loophole that saw a television producer jailed for refusing to identify a source, the Michigan Legislature did little to solve the underlying dilemma facing journalists, several experts agree.

The House and Senate sent Gov. James Blanchard a bill that extended to broadcast journalists the same right to protect confidential sources from state grand juries now held by newspaper reporters. It will become law as soon as the governor signs it, a move expected soon.

Despite the loads of praise offered by broadcast and newspaper associations backing the bill and the sponsor's claim that the law "is a step forward in equality between the broadcast and print media," a closer examination shows reporters in Michigan still have less protection than journalists in other states.

"I'D LIKE to see us go back and deal with the larger issues," admits the bill's sponsor, state Rep. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing.

But Stabenow said if the Senate's attempts to weaken the bill during this fall's legislative session are any indication, "I'm not sure we'll be able to broaden it" during the next session.

Some said the Senate weakened the existing shield law by adding a number of provisions that senators said balanced the First Amendment rights of journalists with the Sixth Amendment right of defendants to a fair trial.

Under one change, electronic and print reporters could, for the first time, be compelled by a grand jury to disclose the identity of a source if the prosecution can convince a judge the source may have information regarding a criminal case that carries a life sentence.

"It opens the door to all kinds of abuses," said Rep. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods.

REP. ERNEST Nash, R-Dimondale, noted that reporters will no longer be able to guarantee a source complete anonymity.

"No one would know whether the information they obtained would someday be sought for a capital crime," Nash said.

But as Stabenow says, Nash's reservations about the exception underline shortcomings already in the current law.

Unlike reporters in other states, newspaper reporters in Michigan have never had the legal right to withhold the name of a confidential source in civil or criminal trials. Although some have successfully used First Amendment guarantees, no protection is included in state law.

So as Stabenow says, "In a strict sense reporters probably shouldn't be promising strict confidentiality right now."

TODD SIMON, director of Michigan State University's Journalism Law Institute, said a much more comprehensive shield law is needed.

"I run into a lot of journalists... who maybe as a result of the Brad Stone case... believe we have a shield law in this state until they find out it covers next to nothing," Simon said.

Stone, a producer for WJBK-TV station in Southfield, was jailed for refusing to hand over videotapes sought in an investigation of the slaying of an off-duty state trooper in Detroit.

When his case got to the Michigan Court of Appeals, a three-judge panel ruled that Michigan's 1949 law did not protect broadcasters because it only mentioned newspaper reporters.

ALTHOUGH STABENOW introduced her expanded shield law in the aftermath of the Stone case, she now admits it's unclear whether the amended version of it would have kept Stone out of jail.

"In Brad Stone's situation, it really would depend on the judge and whether he was satisfied the prosecution had exhausted all other avenues," Stabenow said.

Journalists gained ground in another of the new law's provisions, which adds editors, news directors, producers and all others involved in gathering the news the same protection previously stipulated only for reporters.

McNamara sworn in as county exec

Just one of those legal technicalities, he called it.

After 17 years as Livonia mayor, Edward McNamara took the official oath of office for the job of county executive on Sunday afternoon without fanfare or public notice.

Accompanied by his wife, Lucille, a few long-time friends and some staff members, McNamara was sworn in as county executive in the mayor's City Hall fourth-floor office. District Court Judge James McCann of Livonia, a long-time friend, administered the oath of office.

McNamara said he had been advised that he should take the oath of office 10 days before he is to start his term as county executive because of a quirk in the law which makes it necessary for an official to be sworn in before the actual start of a term.

The private ceremony took place while a farewell party was being held in the city hall lobby. It was an opportunity for city staff members and residents to bid farewell to the mayor.

"MY FIRST official act?" McNamara said in response to a question. "I shook hands with Jim (McCann)."

McNamara said his campaign manager Michael Duggan, slated to become his deputy executive, advised him to take the oath after some legal research. The county executive's term officially begins Jan. 1.

An elaborate day-long celebration and public swearing-in is scheduled for January 3. Following a prayer breakfast, McNamara will be administered the oath of office by Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer at 11 a.m. in Cobo Hall.

The day's celebration will include a $1,000-a-person VIP reception at the Westin Hotel and an Inaugural Ball in the Westin's Renaissance Ballroom featuring the Tommy Dorse Orchestra.

The first part of the school year has gone by quickly for Mary Catherine Campbell.

Reading is one of the subjects Mary Catherine Campbell teaches at Hulsing Elementary School.

Teaching

She enjoys the challenge of each day

By Julie Brown
Staff writer

MARY CATHERINE Campbell's first few months as a teacher have been both challenging and rewarding.

Campbell began teaching fifth grade this fall at Hulsing Elementary School in Canton. Last week, she and her students finished up their work before going on their holiday break.

Although these past few months have been busy ones for Campbell, she has enjoyed her new teaching job. She teaches a variety of subjects to the Hulsing students.

"I have wanted to teach forever." When she was in elementary school, Campbell tutored a fellow student in her split fourth/fifth grade class. She enjoyed doing that tutoring.

The new teacher, who is a Dearborn resident, enjoys working with children, helping them to learn. Seeing that look of understanding on a child's face "when that clicks" is rewarding for her.

CAMPBELL, THE daughter of David and Janet Campbell of Plymouth, is herself a graduate of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. She graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1978.

She received a bachelor of arts degree from Alma College in 1982 when teaching jobs were more scarce in Michigan — and worked for a few years at Sage Food Service at Oakland University. Campbell was transferred to Illinois and worked there for awhile.

Becoming a teacher, however, was always in the back of her mind. Campbell decided to complete the requirements to become a teacher, doing the necessary work at Alma through Madonna College as a guest student.

"I'm so glad I did because I really enjoy the kids."

Campbell did her student teaching at Miller Elementary School in Canton. The class where she did her student teaching was a split one with first- and second-grade students.

Being a regular classroom teacher is quite a bit different from doing student teaching, Campbell has found.

"I like it a lot better."

She began her student teaching in the winter. The regular teacher had already established the rules and the atmosphere in that classroom.

ALTHOUGH THE rules in that classroom were good ones, Campbell has enjoyed being able to have her own classroom right from the start this year.

"It was a different feeling. They're just so wide-eyed that first day, so excited."

The new teacher was a bit nervous the first day of school this year at Hulsing. She's heard from more experienced teachers that they too are nervous on the first day of each new year.

"It's a whole new group of children. You start all over again."

The other educators at the school have helped Campbell get settled in. The students have also been helpful.

"They're really nice kids on the whole. They're very supportive, too." The fifth-grade group at Hulsing is a good one, she said.

"They care and listen and want to learn."

She enjoys working with the older elementary school students.

"They're more mature, and we can do things together." The students come up with some impressive ideas when they're doing writing projects, Campbell said.

In her classroom, Mary Catherine Campbell works to establish a good learning atmosphere that's also fun for the students.

Santa stars

Santa Claus was the guest of honor Friday morning at the Christmas party of the Moms and Tots and Morning Play Group of the Canton Newcomers. Renee Fowler (above) was glad to meet Santa, but Michael Gross, 18 months, wasn't quite so happy. The Christmas gathering was held at the Faith Community Church in Canton.

John Lewis made this key ring during the library program.

Fun at the libraries

THE HOLIDAY season is a special time for children at the libraries in Plymouth and Canton. Several fun-filled programs for children were held at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth last week. On Tuesday, Dec. 16, 3- to 5-year-olds met at the library for an evening of Christmas and "sleepy time" stories. The youngsters wore their pajamas for the program. "They were really cute," said Mary Lou Curtin, children's librarian at the Dunning-Hough Library. Approximately 60 children signed up for that program. Thursday, two programs for older children were held at the library in Plymouth, with approximately 35 to 40 signed up for each.

Children ages 6 to 8 met at the library in the afternoon, with the program for 9- to 12-year-olds held in the evening. The 6- to 8-year-olds listened to holiday stories and watched a film. They also enjoyed a relay race — each child racing across the room while balancing a cotton ball on a spoon in his or her mouth — and sang Christmas carols. MARY FORMAN led the afternoon's musical session, playing her guitar and singing for the youngsters. "Frosty the Snowman" and "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" were among the carols sung. Forman, who lives in Central America, is visiting her parents in Northville. She lives in Belize with her husband and three children and will return there in January.

Although life in Belize is quite a bit different from life in the United States, Christmas is also celebrated there. "They definitely celebrate Christmas," said Forman, a Michigan native and Wayne State University graduate. "Christmas is a big celebration." Activities for the older group of children at the Dunning-Hough Library were a bit different. They saw a film and worked on a craft project, making key chains suitable for holiday gift-giving. "Kids are always looking for something to make for their parents," said Curtin, who worked on the programs along with Kathy Petlewski, children's librarian. At the Canton Public Library, the Marjorie Brown and the Storytellers troupe entertained children during a Dec. 3 program. "She did a variety of interpretations of different children's stories," said Roberta Reeves, department head for children's services. MARJORIE BROWN and the three other performers from New York City presented the program to approximately 90 local children kindergarten age and older.

The Dec. 3 program included the use of puppets, creative drama, storytelling and dance. The puppets used by Brown were developed by Jim Henson, creator of The Muppets.

The performers did an excellent job of holding the youngsters' attention, Reeves said.

"It was wonderful. The children really enjoyed it."

Those planning the Canton program decided to hold it in early December, to avoid the holiday crunch.

"It's difficult to get a good attendance" close to the holidays, Reeves said. "That's why we wanted to do it early."

The Moravian tradition celebrates Christmas with a Lovefeast and a candlelight service.

Moravians to have traditional service

Centuries-old customs will again take place Christmas Eve at Faith Community Moravian Church on Warren Road in Canton.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. today and will be about an hour in length. The service is open to the public.

The congregation will celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ with a service that combines a "Lovefeast," or agape meal, and candlelight service.

The Lovefeast has its origin in the "Agape," a simple meal Christians celebrate together primarily for the purpose of fellowship. The first Lovefeast took place between the late first and early second centuries, according to the Rev. Bill Myers, pastor at Faith Community Moravian Church.

THE TRADITIONAL Moravian Christmas Eve candlelight service follows the Lovefeast. The first such service was on Christmas Eve 1747.

Candles of Hanukkah to be lit Friday

HANUKKAH commemorates the first struggle in recorded history for religious freedom and personal liberty.

This year, the first of eight candles to be lit nightly, will be kindled on Friday, Dec. 26. Each evening, until Jan. 3, an additional candle will be lit. It is appropriate that Hanukkah is called the Festival of Lights.

The word Hanukkah itself means "dedication." While the holiday is a festival uniquely observed by Jewish families, usually sometime in December, it should not be considered a "Jewish Christmas" since Christmas is a major Christian holy day that celebrates the birth of Christ.

Parties, concerts and plays held in gaily decorated settings celebrate the Festival of Lights along with family observances at home. Many Jewish community organizations arrange special Hanukkah celebrations.

The king also ordered that the central Jewish Temple in Jerusalem be to be polluted and called Zeus Olympus.

In a small town called Modin, northwest of Jerusalem, a man named Mattathias and his five sons, called Jews from all over the country to join in opposition to the Syrians and their decrees. "Whoever is for God follow me," he said.

ON HIS DEATHBED Mattathias asked his son, Judah Maccabee, to continue the fight for religious and personal freedom. "Maccabee" is the Hebrew word for hammer.

Judah Maccabee and his followers won a series of brilliant military victories over the numerous Syrians. In 164 BCE, the fighting culminated with a victory over the Syrians whereby the Maccabees gained control of Jerusalem. They began to cleanse the temple, which had been desecrated by the Syrians. They set the date for rededication of the Temple to coincide with the third anniversary of Antiochus' evil decree.

Historic tradition holds that, at the time of rededication, only one oil cruse could be found to burn in the Eternal Light which hung over the Holy Ark containing the Torah scrolls. This container of oil held only enough to burn for one day, but instead the oil lasted miraculously for eight days.

THIS IS the miracle of Hanukkah that children celebrate and sing of to this day. Since the Maccabee victory, Hanukkah candles have been lit in Jewish homes in all parts of the world.

The candles commemorate the relighting of the Eternal Light.

Yule time can provide rest from world's ills

TRADITION HAS it that Christmas is a day for peace and good will. It is a time to rejoice and be glad. Even those who write on such a day should be careful, lest they intrude upon the festivities with matters of moment, matters that miss the mood.

So, even if it only be for a while, put the world's ills on the shelf.

In that frame we could write of sugar plums and reindeer and such. We could dwell on shepherds of old and angels on high. We could speak of Bethlehem town and wisemen and more. We could speak of Joseph, or Jesus, or Mary, or all three. We could muse over the possibility of what might have been had there been room at the inn.

In a more intrusive vein we could point to the lack of peace on earth. We could ask some difficult questions about this Jesus from Bethlehem town. How would he handle the matter of running guns - to anyone? What would he say about military-industrial complexes? What would he say to today's voters, or tomorrow's politicians? Who would he endorse in the international popularity contest?

SO, EVEN if it only be for a while, put the world's ills on the shelf. If only for a few hours. Maybe then you'll be able to lift them up again with a different hand and a different heart.

Look at the tree and watch the lights. Listen to a carol and retrieve a pleasant memory. Be aware that the birth celebrated did not take place in a perfect world. It too was world of war and struggle for power. It was a world with broken dreams and shattered relationships not unlike our own. But it was world into which was born one who offered a way through it all.

The baby grew up and showed us a way to overcome the real evil of life. He said to look at Him and learn the way. He said what needed to be said and gave what needed to be had. Many believe that He was right.

So today we take the hymn. We cry a tear. We smile a warm thought and share a warm word so that tomorrow we can see whatever is there from a different perspective. That is the promise. That is the hope - even if on some levels things don't happen a whole lot faster today than they did in long ago Bethlehem. Have a warm holiday in whatever way you celebrate and with whatever you believe.

A Chip comes of age

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Missy Duczynski had felt this way before. She didn't like it.

The first six games as a collegiate basketball player had not gone exactly as she would have liked. After all, Central Michigan University had called Duczynski a "prize" recruit when it lured her from her home in Plymouth and Farmington Hills Mercy High School last winter. In six games Duczynski had averaged 2.7 points. She was getting about nine minutes of court time each game, usually in two- to three-minute segments.

By her own admission, Duczynski was not playing up to her capability. She was playing overly cautious basketball. The CMU coaches recruited her as a scorer, but Duczynski was reluctant to shoot.

"I was starting to feel like it was my junior year in high school all over again," Duczynski said. "I felt like there was someone else there to do it for me, why should I do it?"

If you know Missy Duczynski, you know that to let someone else do her job runs completely against her grain. This is the same person who took charge of the Mercy basketball team midway through the 1985 season and led it into the state Class A quarterfinals. This was the same unheralded player who came out of nowhere to win All-Area and all-state honors her senior season.

DUCZYNSKI SHOOK the ugly deja vu feeling Friday night. And while she was at it, she sparked CMU's stunning 83-70 victory over heavily favored Brigham Young in the first round of the Felpausch-Michigan State Holiday Classic Women's Basketball Tournament before a record crowd of 4,278 at Jenison Field House.

"I broke out tonight," said a delighted Duczynski after the game.

CMU coach Donita Davenport agreed: "This was the first night our freshmen didn't play like freshmen. It was the first time they looked like they knew what they were doing."

Here's what Duczynski did: She entered the game with 4:12 left in the first half and CMU trailing BYU 28-22. BYU had just run off 10 unanswered points and Central hadn't scored a field goal in more than six minutes.

"Coach just said, 'You know how to score. Go in and be a shooter,'" Duczynski said.

The first time Duczynski touched the ball she knocked down a 15-footer from the corner to snap Central's dry spell. That's all it took to

RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Missy Duczynski, Mercy grad and Plymouth native, got her first extensive action of the season for Central Michigan last Friday and responded well to the challenge.

ignite the Chippewas. Before the half was over, Central was leading 36-33.

"IT FELT great to hit that first shot," she said. "It just gave me more confidence. I could feel it kind of lift the team up, too."

Duczynski got a surprise at half-time. Davenport said that Duczynski would start the second half.

"I was surprised because I think I have let her down the first part of the year," Duczynski said. "I haven't performed up to my ability. It was good to get the feeling back I had in my senior year at high school. My confidence is back."

In the early moments of the second half, Duczynski was all over the court. She grabbed an offensive rebound and a defensive rebound in alternate possessions. She forced a turnover, made a nice assist to Jody Beerman to put the Chips up 41-36. Later she scored on a short jump shot.

When she left, CMU led 47-44. In the 13 minutes she played, CMU went from a six-point deficit to a three-point lead and control of the game. She finished with four points, four rebounds, two assists and a much brighter outlook.

"This was the first time I played when it really counted. Usually I play two minutes here, two minutes there just to give the others a breather," she said. "Tonight I needed to perform. The team needed it. I got the good feeling back again."

Brad Emons

Allow fans, players to decide 3-pointer

THE 3-POINT SHOT.

It seems you either love it, hate it or want to modify it. But there's no doubt about it, the new semi-circle, 19 feet, 9 inches away from the basket, is causing a lot of discussion among basketball aficionados.

If you listen closely, the people squawking about it the most aren't the players or the fans. It's the coaches, particularly the college coaches.

Putting it bluntly, Indiana University's Bob Knight reasons: "It's a tragedy for the game."

Villanova's Rollie Massimino, who told the NCAA News that he wants it banned before the season ends, adds: "I think it's ridiculous. It's changed the game mentally and physically. I don't know one coach I've talked to along the way who said he likes it."

Apparently Massimino hasn't talked to one of his Philadelphia colleagues, John Chaney of Temple, who beat Villanova last Saturday night.

"WE NEED INNOVATIONS," Chaney told the Association Press.

"It's no longer a game played in a cage for the coaches. It's an entertainment thing. It (the three-point goal) keeps people in the stands late in the game. The players love it."

You don't have to poll the players. I'd bet the house on their response.

Other coaches aren't sure. But like Mikey in the cereal commercial, maybe if they try it, they'll like it.

The issue has become a hot one and some day members of the Michigan High School Athletic Association will have to take a stand on the three-point shot.

Right now the MHSAA is leaving it up to the individual conferences, foregoing the shot, at least for this season, for state tournament play.

SEVERAL AREA leagues have adopted the shot, including the Tri-River League, Greater Oakland Activities League and Metro Conference.

The 12-team Western Lakes Conference has not adopted the shot, although all of its league members have the three-point line painted on their floors.

"I've got mixed feelings about it," said Farmington Harrison coach Mike Teachman. "I don't like it in college because you have everybody shooting all over the place, but it opens up the inside and it will change coaching strategies a lot. It's going to stop the all bouncing bodies inside."

"The negative side of it is that, first, you don't have skilled enough people (in high school) to make it worthwhile and you're going to showcase only one or two guys, and secondly, when you're 15 or 16 years old, you haven't developed the strength and you may not be smart enough to know when or when not to shoot it."

Plymouth Salem coach Bob Brodie would like to see it adopted on a "trial basis."

"IT'S GOOD AS far as going goes and teams won't be able to pack their zone inside," he said. "The negative side is you work so hard to get your kids to get the shots inside. To make those shots worth less than a 20-foot bomb will make the kids think twice about busting to work the ball inside."

"As a coach, defensively we like to force teams to shoot from 12 feet. We may have to change the philosophy if they're going to get three points from that range."

Brodie also added that 19-9 is too close for college, but perfect for high school.

Like Massimino, Bloomfield Hills Lahser coach Mike Fedio doesn't care for the three-pointer.

"I think the game is fine the way it was," he said. "I don't see it enhancing the game. I've seen it in college and it's the distance I don't like."

"The pros (23 feet, 9 inches) needed something to keep the interest in the game."

"I'M NOT A win-at-all-costs coach. It's not my job to entertain the Lahser fans. I teach my team to work hard and make sacrifices, playing to their strengths and weaknesses. In high school athletics, it is not for the fans, it's for the players in high school. College is different, it's almost like the pros."

As a writer covering games, I'd like to see the preps try the shot on an experimental basis, maybe during the summer, as Teachman suggests.

I think it would win over some coaches, who, year after year, don't have the inside people to compete with the big boys.

Spartans chase coveted Joe Louis arena hat-trick

Will Michigan State University get the coveted Joe Louis Arena hat trick this year?

The Spartans will shoot for the first goal this weekend when they compete with Western Michigan, University of Michigan and Michigan Tech in the 22nd annual Great Lakes Invitational Collegiate Hockey Tournament Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 27-28 at Joe Louis.

MSU, the reigning NCAA champ and winners of four straight Great Lakes titles, just missed gaining the hat trick two years ago when it lost in the preliminary round of the NCAA championships. The hat trick consists of the Great Lakes, Central Collegiate Hockey Association and NCAA titles.

A MSU championship this weekend would tie the tournament's consecutive win record. Michigan Tech won the tournament five straight years, from 1976-1980.

ON PAPER, it appears MSU will be the heavy favorite again this year. The Spartans, who will take on Western at 7 p.m. Saturday, have a 16-2-0 record. Western is 10-8. U-M (6-12-0) will play Michigan Tech (4-15-1) at 3 p.m.

But as all four coaches said at a recent press conference, "It's not the team with the best record going into the tournament that will win the GLI, it's the team that plays the best on those two days."

hockey

Each team will have its own motivating force. Herb Boxer and his Tech program are hoping to prove they are still a force in the tournament. Tech teams have won or placed second in all but three of the 21 tournaments. The Huskies have won the title nine times.

Red Berenson, head coach at U-M, is looking for his first GLI title. The Wolverines won the tourney once, in 1975.

Western, though no stranger to the Joe Louis ice, is making its debut in the tourney. Western beat MSU last March at Joe Louis in the finals of the CCHA tournament.

AS ALWAYS, the Great Lakes region will attract a throng of NHL scouts. Although a large percentage of the players in the tournament have been drafted, NHL scouts continue to monitor and evaluate the progress of their players.

"A hockey program with a heavy emphasis on practice is what the NHL wants for their college draftees," said Berenson. "So by having a player remain in school, both sides benefit — the pro team has their draft pick in a solid program and the player receives an education."

Being drafted does not guarantee any player an NHL contract. Western coach Bill Wilkinson thinks this reality makes his drafted players work harder.

"They know they are still being watched," he said. "If they don't play hard, they don't play at all — drafted or not."

THE NUMBER of Observer & Eclectic players competing in the tournament is down somewhat this year. Don McSweeney (Plymouth) is the anchor of MSU's defense. U-M features Alex Roberts (Bloomfield Hills) and Paul Rossi (Birmingham). Dave Bramble (Livonia) and Bob Worden (Canton) play for Western. Tech is devoid of area players. However, the Huskies have picked up an entire western Wayne County university. Wayne State has adopted the Huskies as its hockey team. The Tartars will be out in full force Saturday and Sunday.

The championship game will take place at 7 p.m. Sunday. The consolation game will start at 3 p.m.

Tickets, $9.50 and $8.50, are available at Joe Louis and all TicketWorld outlets. A two-day GLI pass can be purchased for $22. A three-event, 12-game ticket for the GLI, CCHA and NCAA tournaments can be purchased for $89. Call 567-6000 for more ticket information.

GC wins Cougar mat title

What a weekend it was for the Garden City wrestling team. The Cougars repeated as champions of their own Christmas Invitational, pulling rank in numerous matches and scoring 40 points on pins alone.

Garden City tallied 167 points to outdistance second place Dearborn Heights Annapolis (128) and Dearborn Divine Child (124 1/2). Livonia Churchill took fourth with 116. (See statistical summary).

Coach Phil Freeman, to say the least, was happy with the outcome. "We placed higher than we were seeded in eight weight classes," he said. "We pulled 11 upsets."

Freeman also watched one of his own wrestlers, 167-pounder Tim Howell, walk off with the Tournament MVP award.

"The 167-pound class was a dog-fight," said the Garden City coach.

HOWELL, a state qualifier last year, won a pair of overtime matches, including the final. Trailing 8-2 in the last period, Howell rallied to tie before pinning Chuck Sanom of Berkeley (in 57 seconds of OT) for the championship.

"Sanom was a regional qualifier last year and he makes a he-man look like a 98-pounder," said the Garden City coach.

The 167 class also included Rob

Despite finishing eighth overall, Plymouth Canton boasted one individual champion, heavyweight Tony Callaway, who pinned Gibraltar Carlson's Mike Mayville in 1:33.

But it was the Cougars' day to celebrate. There was even a guy dressed as Santa (Ron McKella) who presented medals to the winners.

MSU coach Karen Langland kind of smiled when asked to comment on Archer's defensive prowess.

"The irony is, defense is not really her specialty. When she first came here, she didn't really play defense well.

But she has developed into a good defensive player."

"That's really the answer to the lingering question: Is she still the same Kim Archer on the court? No, she isn't. She's a more refined, more intelligent, more team-oriented basketball player."

"I'm a different player now than I was in high school," Archer said. "I'm more under control on the court now. In high school I pretty much did everything. I scored and rebounded and brought the ball up the court. And I was so out of control. But now I know my role and I like it. I'm happy to get the ball to our scorers and play defense."

Said Langland: "Every game she plays better and better. She keeps getting closer to where she was in her freshman year. With Kim, it's not so much physical, but mental. She has not played for two years and it takes a while to catch up."

AFTER THE game, Archer was at the center of the media attention. The local television cameras were rolling, five or six reporters encircled her — the scene was claustrophobic.

Archer loved every minute. She joked with the reporters. She answered the tiring "How's the knee?" question over and over. Kim Archer was in her glory, as happy as a little girl on Christmas morning. Her smile, after two years of painful, lonely rehabilitation, was heartwarming.

"I'm just happy to be playing again," she said.

"I got the idea last summer when I saw 'Isiah Thomas' (No Crime Day)," said Goldberg. "I thought he was on the right track but he needed another avenue. Kids need something to occupy their time. Something like basketball."

"In today's world, kids have too much idle time on their hands," he said. "Especially at this time of year. I'm hoping that some of our speakers will have an effect on some of these kids."

Some of the guest speakers scheduled to appear at the clinic include Bill Laimbeer and Rick Mahorn of the Detroit Pistons, Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers, Charlie Coles of Central Michigan University, Don Sizzo of the University of Detroit, and former Piston coach Dennis Butcher, now of Converse.

Participants also will be asked to sign a contract promising not to do any drugs or alcohol for the remainder of the school year. Anyone signing a contract will receive a free poster of a National Basketball Association star.

Southfield High School Athletic Director Fred Goldberg is joining the fight.

Through Goldberg's inspiration, Southfield schools and Converse shoes are sponsoring a free clinic to help fight drugs, from 1-3 p.m. Friday, Dec. 26, in the Southfield High School gymnasium.

"Contracts are the latest thing in high school today," said Goldberg. "The kids are up on these things so we decided to incorporate contracts into our program."

The Plastics Group of General Electric Co. had considered installing the machine at its Application Development Center in Southfield. But company officials decided that having it on use only 30 to 40 percent of the time was impractical.

So GE Plastics struck a deal with Allmand, an advanced prototype house, that allows both companies to use the machine at the Allmand facility at up to 90 percent capacity.

Allmand Associates of Livonia has purchased a 3,000-ton press intended solely for experimental or developmental work for large automotive exterior parts.

The press will give Detroit-area automotive engineers a chance to work with all resins and alloys. It will be used to mold bumpers, fenders, fascias, door panels, rear quarter panels, air dams, and rear and front spoilers, said Nick Bogdanos, Allmand's general manager.

Family memories inspire his role

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

FILLING IN on 24-hour notice was no problem at all for Bob Carroll, who replaced Paul Lipson during rehearsals for the Birmingham Theatre production of "Fiddler on the Roof," opening Saturday, Dec. 27.

When Lipson was out of the show due to cellulitis, Carroll was asked to take over the lead role of Tevye. Although Lipson has played Tevye more times than any other actor — even the musical's original star, Zero Mostel — Carroll has played the part on a national tour from 1969 to 1972 and appeared twice in the show at Detroit's Fisher Theatre.

Carroll, who joined other members of the cast rehearsing in New York, spoke about the show over the phone from American Theatre Productions there, last week during his lunch break.

Not only does Carroll have lots of experience in the part of Tevye, he has a natural affinity for the role. "Don't let my name fool you," he said. "My real name is Mark Kaufman."

He's from a Jewish family and modeled the character of Tevye after his grandfather on his mother's side. "We were poor in Brooklyn," he said. "We had little." When the Russian peasant Tevye sings, "If I Were a Rich Man," probably everyone in the audience shares the feeling of what more money could do to increase happiness.

CARROLL, recalling his childhood, remembers good times despite a humble background. "Basically, the family was laughter-oriented," he said.

"My grandfather had a terrific sense of humor about himself. He had a fierce temper when he was upset. He had a red handlebar mustache that used to scrape me when he kissed me."

"He was really a character out of Sholom Aleichem," Carroll continued. Describing his grandfather's appearance, he said, "He looked more like a middleweight fighter than a farmer."

Similarities to Tevye didn't end with his grandfather's temperament. "He worked in a men's clothing factory. After one and a half years, he sent for grandmother and their seven children. This is all relevant to the kind of aspect Tevye has for a better life."

The topper, however, is, "They came from Kiev, where the show is actually set. My family lineage on that side was remarkably akin to Tevye's background."

Is Tevye's tantalizing "If I Were a Rich Man" Carroll's favorite song in the show? He replied, "I still love 'If I Were a Rich Man' but my other favorite song in the show he doesn't sing. It's sung by Tevye's daughter, Hodel, 'Far from the Home I Love.'" Hodel sings it when she leaves to join the man she loves, a non-Jew, to whom her father has finally given his approval.

"Tradition is being broken one more time," Carroll said of the show's theme.

The actor-singer has performed in the Detroit area many times, most recently in July when he was guest baritone with the Detroit Symphony and Skitch Henderson and Margaret Whiting at Meadow Brook Music Festival.

HE APPEARED at the Fisher Theatre in "La Cage aux Folles," playing the father and understudying Peter Marshall in the lead role of Georges. He went on as Georges when Marshall was ill in Philadelphia.

"I began coming to Detroit in 1960, with 'Fiorello,'" he said. Carroll also played the Fisher in "Shenandoah."

He had just finished with the "La Cage" tour and was home a few weeks ("Now I'm a Long Islander. I live at Port Washington, New York.") when the call came to do "Fiddler." Carroll was planning a vacation, which has been postponed until after the show closes Sunday, Jan. 25.

"I think the cast is going to be really super. They're so well chosen. It's a shame we're only going to be working for five weeks," he said.

Carroll's acting career has included roles in TV soap operas, "Edge of Night," "Another World" and "Texas." He also had an exchange of lines with Dudley Moore in "Arthur" and appeared as "a cloak and suiter" with Frank Sinatra in "Seventh Avenue." Both film parts were snipped before the movies' completion.

His biggest success has been performing in Broadway shows and singing as guest vocalist with symphony orchestras. He started out as a singer — "a boy vocalist, seated alongside Lena Horne in Charlie Barnett's Band. Then I was in Glenn Miller's Air Force Band — me and Johnny Desmond. Then I spent a year with Jimmy Dorsey."

FROM THERE he went to night clubs, recordings and variety television. In the late 1950s, he had his first job in stock, playing Sky Masterson in the musical "Guys and Dolls." "Then I did a whole raft of shows," Carroll said.

In the early '50s, he began singing with David Rose and other orchestras.

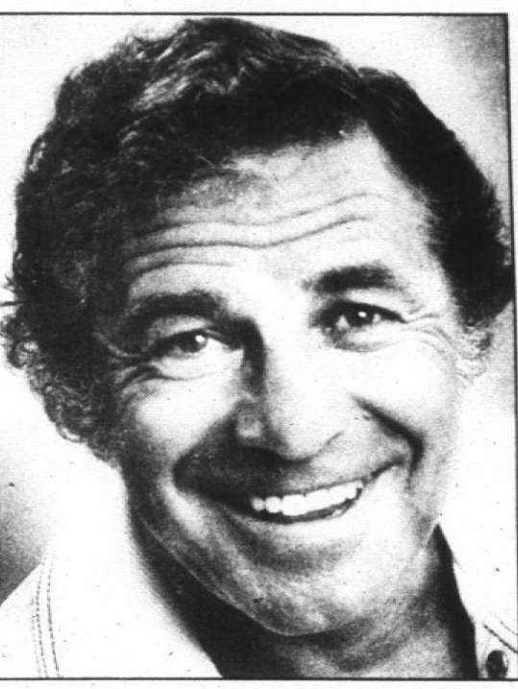

When he's at home, the entertainer likes to relax by doing carpentry work for fun, and home remodeling. He also describes himself as an amateur chef. After open-heart surgery and a triple bypass in 1983, he favors Oriental cooking, making East Indian dishes from the American Heart Association Cookbook.

Cooking for friends on Long Island, he may use two woks. "When I'm on the road — in Birmingham — I will cook," with a single wok, he said.

He casually gave a couple of recipes over the phone, one for a fillet of fish dipped in flour and curry powder, pan-fried, with blanched walnuts. "Serve it, and I'll come right over," he said. Another recipe is for Mandarin chicken, pan-fried, with mandarin oranges and juice over it.

Carroll and his wife, former Cover model Nadine, have four children and eight grandchildren. He also has a daughter, Chris, by a previous marriage, who is married to Viri Osmond, one of the Osmond brothers, and has seven children.

"Another grandson was born June 8, on my birthday last year," he said. "I'm up to my ears in kids and happy."

Bob Carroll (left) as he appeared at Meadow Brook Music Festival last summer, singing with Skitch Henderson and the Detroit Symphony Pops, and (right) in his role as Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof." Usually Carroll grows his own beard for the role, as shown here, but because he took over the part in the Birmingham Theatre show at the last minute, his beard this time will have to be a fake one.

Chef Famie does dinner for 6

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

DINING AT Chez Raphael in Novi is elegant enough, but when the celebrated young chef of that prestigious restaurant comes to prepare a meal in your own home, well, that's really extra special.

Dr. James Lawson, a plastic surgeon, and his wife, Wendy, of Bloomfield Hills, a registered nurse who manages the office, attended a benefit auction last spring and were the lucky bidders on a dinner for six by chef Keith Famie.

Wendy said they originally planned to have the dinner served at their new swimming pool was installed this summer, but when the pool was completed until fall, they decided to make the dinner a holiday event instead.

The day after the dinner, she said, "It was five-star, believe me."

Famie had asked her what she would like to eat, and she replied she would like to eat veal. The only thing she specified was veal for the entire.

"It was the best, most wonderful veal I've ever had," she said Monday, about the dinner Sunday.

C.D. STOUTER

Chef Keith Famie (center) of Chez Raphael, Lawson of Bloomfield Hills, who made the assisted by Tim Clark, prepares the first winning bid on the dinner at a benefit auction.

Famie, in a phone conversation last week, described some of the dishes he had selected for the menu.

"I am doing one of my best veal dishes," he said, "a stuffed veal loin filled with foie gras, sweetbread and wild mushrooms, and wrapped in spinach sauce. It will be really different."

The chef took one assistant, Tim Clark, and one waiter, Martin Kibben, to the Lawsons' home to help with the meal.

Asked how Wendy declined to name the price but said, "There were quite a few bidders. I fought for it."

Famie said it would be a very extensive meal, but that he was willing to do it because the money went to a good cause. He also took on the meal, which he called "The Lawson Family Christmas Extravaganza," because he is thinking of starting to cater in private homes, for six-eight people.

"I find it to be very creative but, most of all, it's very personal," Famie said.

Wendy said, "My husband and myself, we like to do a lot of our own gourmet cooking. Basically the French cooking, rich and fattening." She said she also likes fine restaurants. On their 20th anniversary in October, they had dinner at Chez Raphael's and Chef Famie looked after them.

"He made us a marvelous dessert, in the shape of a champagne bottle," she said. "He did it special for us."

A resident of Novi, Famie, 26, was raised in Farmington and graduated from Farmington High School. His parents still live in Farmington Hills.

Famie's 136-page, softcover cookbook tells a little about his background in culinary arts, including a vocational cooking course in high school and restaurants in the Detroit area (among them, the Great Dane, the Benchmark and Jacques), Brussels, Belgium; Monte Carlo on the French Riviera, and New York.

The rest of the book is devoted to recipes, which he claims are basically very simple, with some of the ingredients just different combinations of familiar ones.

Famie said he has been in the industry 10 years. "I can teach people and manage people quite well," he said.

"Two favorites of mine are in there," he said. These are a grilled duck breast marinated in molasses and black pepper with Chambord liqueur — a dish that is on the menu every night at Chez Raphael's — and shrimp in a marinade with 16 ingredients, another grilled dish occasionally on the restaurant's menu.

His cookbook priced at $13.95 is available at the Merchant of Vino and Kitchen Glamour locations.

Each course, excluding the salad, was accompanied by a special wine. A 1979 Bruno Paillard — Brut went with the hors d'oeuvres and a 1983 Mercury Clos de La Rocheette "Faveley" with the appetizer. The entrée was enhanced by a 1979 Morey St. Denis Faveley, and the dessert was paired with a 1984 Moscato d'Oro Robert Mondavi.

After the dinner, Mrs. Lawson gave the guests Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schaefer and Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Smith, all of Bloomfield Hills — copies of Famie's newly published cookbook, "The Flavor of Famie," which she autographed for them.

The Lawsons enjoy good food, and wine. "I am doing one of my best veal dishes," he said, "a stuffed veal loin filled with foie gras, sweetbread and wild mushrooms, and wrapped in spinach sauce. It will be really different."

The chef took one assistant, Tim Clark, and one waiter, Martin Kibben, to the Lawsons' home to help with the meal.

Asked how Wendy declined to name the price but said, "There were quite a few bidders. I fought for it."

Famie said it would be a very extensive meal, but that he was willing to do it because the money went to a good cause. He also took on the meal, which he called "The Lawson Family Christmas Extravaganza," because he is thinking of starting to cater in private homes, for six-eight people.

"I find it to be very creative but, most of all, it's very personal," Famie said.

second runs

Whether you're going to ring in the new year watching television, or just turn on the tube to see what's on, this time we've seen it all before.

Kathleen Turner and Michael Douglas return in the lead roles as the romance novelist and adventurer who try to discover what happens after the first glow of romance fades. Danny DeVito, back as a sleazy, chortling bad guy, makes this Jewel sparkle. He's funny when the movie lags but don't expect this one to be as delightfully funny as the first. Not a bad way to away a few hours. It's shown on all the premium channels this month.

ON THE OTHER hand, don't miss "Brief Encounter" if you haven't seen this 1946 story of two married lovers who manage to conduct an affair on a few furtive afternoons. It's featured at 2 p.m., Jan. 1 on Showtime and repeated throughout the month. Directed by David Lean and written by Noel Coward, the film stars Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard. They're neither a young nor glamorous pair of lovers; they're a sympathetic middle-aged couple. Underlining the doomed-from-the-beginning relationship is the music of Rachmaninoff. If you love "Masterpiece Theater," chances are you'll enjoy this one.

"Lost Horizon," based on a novel by James Hilton, proved to be an absolutely horrible 1937 musical. The 1937 version with Ronald Coleman and Jane Wyatt made for a fine film. Stranded in the Himalayas, the survivors of a plane crash are rescued by a lost mystic civilization whose members live forever. Coleman ponders the meaning of life a lot, not a wholly inappropriate theme for a new year.

Joining the trend of showing restored versions of movies, Cinemax includes footage cut after this film's original release, directed by Frank Capra. Throw a bag of popcorn in the microwave, sit back and enjoy this one.

IF YOU'D RATHER laugh than get all teary-eyed, wait until 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 1. New Year's Day, when HBO shows "Jewel of the Nile," the 1985 sequel to the successful "Romancing the Stone." As a spoof of the adventure/romance genre "Romancing" is a funny, on-

State's architecture deserves better

By Dale Northrup
special writer

Five of the top 10 architectural award winners in the 1986 Michigan Society of Architects design competition are in the local area.

They are the Brooks Farm, Troy; the headquarters for the Kresge Foundation, and Holtzman and Silverman office interior; Farmington Hills, both by William Kessler of Detroit; Comerica Operations Center, Auburn Hills and First Center office complex, Southfield, by Harley Ellington Pierce Yee Associates; and Maccabees Mutual Life Insurance Co. lobby, Southfield.

Smith Hinchman Grylls of Detroit.

The 84 projects submitted were joined in Denver by a group of Western designers.

The Brooks Farm project by Kessler pays homage to the past while recognizing the Kresge Foundation's needs for expansion. The 10,000-square-foot office addition doesn't efface the 1852 farm homestead on Big Beaver Road, but rather complements it.

The roofline of the two-story addition (the first level is one-half level below ground) meets the line of the cornice on the house. Serpentine in configuration, the structure faces east with a vast expanse of glass looking out over the farm buildings. Some of these contain the mechanical units for the complex.

A SKYLIGHT dormer on the west side of the structure permits light to filter into the two-story opening on the east side. Planter boxes are constructed of stone, the same material that covers the house. Overall the addition is a study in contextualism.

The Kessler-designed Holtzman and Silverman office interior, 13,000 square feet, is based on a three-dimensional grid system punctuated by circular forms.

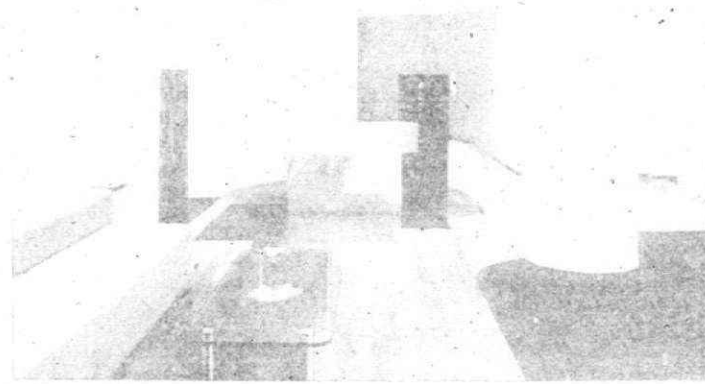

The architects made use of elements that can be easily relocated when the clients elect to move.

Except for the white interior of the atrium, the building has a predominance of gray tonalities both inside and out with offices off to the side much like the cell blocks of old prison movies.

When seen from a distance the building with its vaulted skylight is imposing. Up close it's a "persona non grata" in regard to site integration. It would be more appropriate in Detroit's financial district.

In the same manner, the First Center Office complex in Southfield is a 750,000-square-foot megastructure.

The design solution involved three pairs of buildings related to one another as a pinwheel with a skylit atrium between each pair creating a hermetically sealed environment and conforming to the fast-paced anonymity of Northwestern Highway.

The office of Holtzman & Silverman was designed to project an image of sophistication and at the same time be relatively easy to move when a change of location takes place.

WITHIN THE speculative complex there is some question about architecture elevating the human experience with perhaps the exception of the stereotypical glass-enclosed elevator.

First Center, at least, is an urban oasis surrounded by asphalt, lacking a street presence by its very nature. It lives up to the designation speculative space not place.

The rear lobby of the Maccabees Mutual Life Insurance Co. Southfield by Smith Hinchman Grylls is a study in spatial gymnastics with inset panels playing on the viewer's binocular vision. The nature of the materials reflects the integrity of design and "superiority" of craftsmanship.

As indicated in the proposals by the architects, the two-story lobby conceals a sense of timeless elegance with its groin vaulted ceiling.

There are much better public lobbies in this metropolitan area.

This metropolitan area deserves better. The total of 84 projects submitted to the Michigan Society of Architects doesn't say much about what Michigan architects are doing.

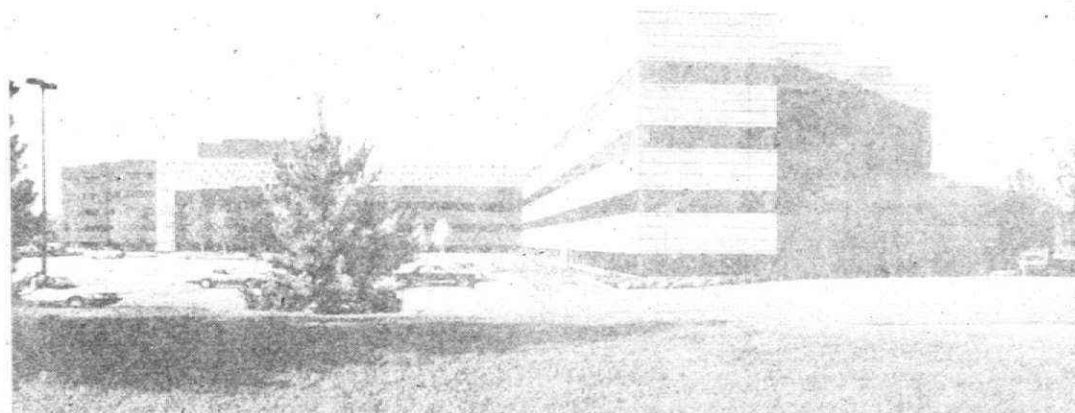

One architect had smaller firms "rent" afford value the time or the money to participate in the design competition.

Final formal architectural criticism was a pamphlet by Inland Architect magazine following last year's awards.

On the other hand, if these six awards truly represented the best work of the last 100 years, architects are in trouble.

The office block of the Comerica Operations Center is bisected by a 30-foot-wide, four-story skylit atrium, which allows daylight to penetrate deep into the building.

Southfield is the First Center Office Complex in Southfield. The design places three pairs of buildings related to one another as a pinwheel with skylit atrium between each pair.

Glass collection goes to UM-D

The man who gave the University of Michigan-Dearborn much of its art collection was honored recently with a "distinguished leadership" award.

Alfred Berkowitz, a retired Birmingham pharmacist and self-made millionaire, describes himself as an "impetuous buyer" and contributor to many causes.

The award — the second given by the UM-D campus — was presented at winter commencement ceremonies. It honors people for any combination of service, and financial or political support to the campus.

"They needed a nucleus, a little something to start a little fire," Berkowitz said of his gifts and his encouragement of eight other donors.

BETWEEN THEM, the benefactors have contributed nearly 1,000 works from private collections to make the UM-D Library a fine arts center.

UM-D's collection includes prints, mixed media, paintings, drawings and two-dimensional works by Picasso, Miro, Rembrandt, Chagall, Degas, Goya, Toulouse-Lautrec, Appel, Nevelson, Nesbitt and Jenkins.

Berkowitz made available his extensive glasswork collection that now occupies much of the library's second floor.

Several years ago, he met UM-D's former head librarian, C. Edward Wall, and learned the new library would be designed to hold an art collection.

"Someone suggested, 'Why not UM-D Dearborn?'" said Berkowitz, who thought of the campus at that time as "absolutely the poorest little mouse I'd ever seen."

AFTER SELLING his Gaylord house, Berkowitz faced the question of what to do with the 4,000 square feet of museum-quality art.

"The collection came from all

Birmingham pharmacist Alfred Berkowitz, left, talks with admirers about the glass collection which he recently gave to University of Michigan-Dearborn.

over the world. We're talking over 55 centuries," he said.

The Detroit Institute of Arts would accept only a couple of pieces, not an entire collection.

UM-D accepted everything. "They listened to reason," Berkowitz said, adding the university agreed not to sell non-museum quality pieces for at least a year.

Since then he has given UM-D much Barcarat crystal work.

HIS PRIVATE collection began to take shape in the early 1950s, when he was traveling to Germany several times a year as a steel importer. Later he traveled often to France and Switzerland.

"I'm an impetuous buyer. If you're impetuous, you pay what they ask," he said.

"I love education. I love to give to schools. Education is the only thing that no one can take away from you. They can take away all your material belongings, but they can't take your education away."

A 1932 pharmacy graduate of Wayne State University, Berkowitz also has been known to volunteer his time during the holiday season to local pharmacists so they can spend time with their families.

Photojournalism develops

Among the examples of outstanding photojournalism in the exhibit, "Life: The Second Decade" at Detroit Institute of Arts through Feb. 5 is this one of the audience watching "Bwana Devil." It appeared in the Dec. 15, 1952 issue of the magazine and shows the audience wearing Polaroid spectacles to enjoy the three-dimensional sequences. The exhibit, in the De Salle Gallery of Photography, is open free of charge during regular museum hours, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday. Closed Mondays and holidays.

NOT EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY.

Take a look at your own pet. Can you picture him cold and starving? Or abused. Or worse.

It's an awful picture. Yet it's one that thousands of animals are forced to live every day.

We at the Michigan Humane Society are putting a stop to that. But we need your help.

We offer more than just shelter to lost and abused animals. We provide them with the medical attention and love they so desperately need. And we have a legal branch that investigates and prosecutes cruelty cases. But it takes money to continue this work. Please help.

Give to the Michigan Humane Society.
