Car hits sign; man killed

A 37-year-old Ann Arbor man was killed Sunday from injuries in a car accident on Michigan Avenue and Lotz.

Phillip Milan was a passenger in a 1984 Mercury Lynx, driven east bound by his wife, Linda Milan, 33, at about 4:05 p.m.

The car was in the left lane and "apparently left the roadway and struck a no parking sign," said Dave Boljesic, Canton Police information officer. The car continued east bound and stopped in a ditch.

Neither Linda or Phillip Milan were wearing seatbelts and both struck the windshield. Linda Milan is listed in very serious condition.

A doctor who was passing by the accident stopped to help a Canton officer administer CPR to Phillip, who was pronounced dead at 4:39 p.m. at Westland Medical Center.

Linda Milan was taken to Annopolis Hospital in Wayne and was transported by helicopter to the University of Michigan Medical Center.

"Seatbelts might have made a difference here," Boljesic said.

Board seats, tax on ballot

The selection of two school trustees and the fate of a millage issue will be decided when the polls close tonight.

Two residents will be elected to four-year terms to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Also on the ballot will be the election of members to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

The money ballot issue is a request to collect the full authorized levy.

Because the tax base has grown faster than the cost of living this past year, the Headlee Amendment requires the school board to get voter approval before collecting the full tax rate (37 mills) previously authorized by voters.

The names of nine candidates will appear on the ballot for the two positions on the school board.

Seeking re-election are incumbents Roland Thomas Jr. and Dean Swartzweiler, both of Plymouth.

Challengers are Robert Anderson of Canton, Brenda Anderson of Canton, William Brown of Plymouth, Barbara Graham of Plymouth, Mary Dahn of Canton, Nancy Quinn of Plymouth and Chris Robinson of Canton.

The polls will close at 8 tonight. Anyone standing in line at that time will be allowed to vote. Votes will be cast at the regular school precincts, which are not the same as municipal polling places at all precincts.

Light vote forecast in Wayne-Westland

Less than 10 percent of the 70,000 voters in the Wayne-Westland school district are expected to cast ballots in today's school board election, according to Lorraine Roulo, district elections clerk.

The district includes part of Canton Township.

Roulo said the turnout should be about the same as it has been the past couple of years.

There are four people seeking two four-year terms, Larry Hines, Mathew McCusker, Phyllis Runion and Sharon Scott. Three campaigning for the single three-year term are Terri Johnson, Timothy Naughton and Thomas Spann Jr.

The incumbents are McCusker, Scott, both seeking the four-year terms, and Johnson, named to a vacancy last September.

In 1986, about 5,500 people, or 7.8 percent, took part in the election. They rejected a 2-mill property tax increase and elected Rex Wilhoite —

Fisher case still in limbo

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Almost three years have passed since their daughter was murdered. And still Manuel and Evelyn Mercado wait for the justice system to finish its work.

The case has been in limbo since a jury's guilty verdict was nullified more than 15 months ago.

"To us it means the man is still free," Manuel Mercado said last week. "The frustration is tremendous because we don't know what to do."

Bizarre twists occurred at every turn in the case, starting with the way Ella Maria Mercado-Fisher, 32, was ambushed and her head was wrapped with duct tape in her Canton home July 14, 1984. She died in the hospital from complications caused by loss of oxygen to her brain.

Her husband, Dr. Charles Ray Fisher, was arrested in the Virgin Islands and charged with first degree murder in a case bolstered by Manuel Mercado and based on circumstantial evidence.

'Telling them that we have to wait is like telling a parent their child is seriously ill.'

— Doug Baker
assistant prosecutor

A SOAP-OPERA story unfolded in the courtroom.

Testimony suggested a romantic link between Mercado-Fisher and her cousin, who lived in Germany. She had tickets to visit him July 17, 1984, three days after the attack.

Fisher's attorney, Dan Burrell, who was forced to drop the case when he became a Livingston County judge, argued the couple was burglarized and the assailants attacked Mercado-Fisher.

The prosecutor maintained Fisher was callous about his wife's death. A witness said Fisher placed an advertisement in a newspaper on Aug. 14, 1984, — one month after his wife's death — requesting responses from a white, Hispanic or Oriental woman who would be a "friend, wife or possible lover."

The prosecutor drew a picture of a rocky relationship that started when the couple met in Virginia and continued when they moved to Texas, Missouri, Turkey, Dominica in the West Indies, back to Missouri, Detroit and, finally, Canton Township.

After a three-month trial, the jury found Fisher, a microbiologist, guilty of first degree murder. But in an unexpected move, the judge overruled the verdict citing misconduct

High tech: Ground broken for research complex

By Diane Gale

A $14 million high tech research and manufacturing complex is the second development in a 97-acre industrial-commercial park along Michigan Avenue.

Developers Eric Yale Lutz & Associates and Nat Korash, an investor with the company, broke ground at the 22.5-acre parcel last week.

The high tech research and manufacturing complex will be leased to tenants, said Mark Canvassar, Eric Yale Lutz & Associates director of acquisition.

"We'll develop a variation of multitenant and research development facilities," Canvassar said. "We're dealing with a great variety of people. We're talking to high tech users."

CANVASSAR DECLINED to name the potential tenants.

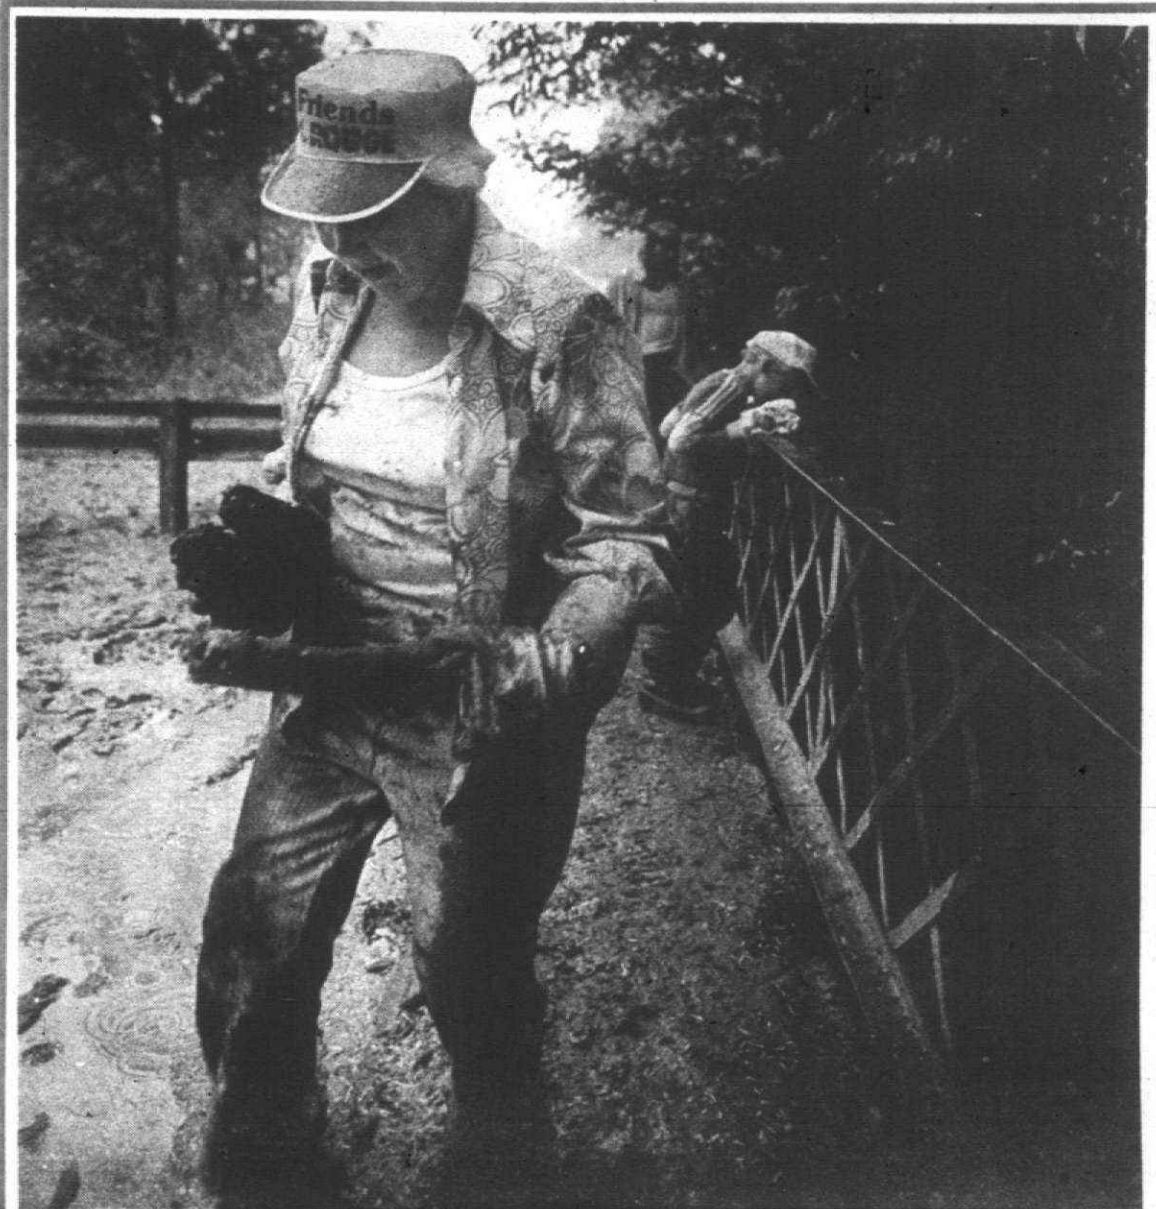

"The people we're talking to are looking for a business campus," Canvassar said. He described growth along the I-275 corridor as a plus and lauded Canton as having easy access to other major thoroughfares.

"Michigan Avenue is a major road that has been long overlooked," Canvassar said.

The new development is in the Canton International Commerce Park, a 97-acre parcel touted by its owners as potentially having a $60-$75 million value when it's completed at its target date in 1989.

The owners of the park are: Hal Rosin of Dearborn Real Estate, Mike Koza of Franklin and Glenn Shaw Jr., who contracts as assessor for Canton.

Man gets probation in fatal car accident

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A 21-year-old Canton man, who struck and killed an elderly Plymouth woman while driving last February, was sentenced to two years probation and fined $330 after pleading guilty to leaving the scene of a personal injury accident.

As part of his probation, John E. Pary was ordered to maintain full-time employment and complete 120 hours of community service work. His driver's license was revoked.

An additional charge against Pary — driving with a suspended license, second offense — was dismissed.

Judge James Garber, who sits on the bench in 35th District Court, sentenced Pary while serving as a visiting judge in Wayne Circuit Court.

THE PROSECUTOR'S office, who agreed to the plea arrangement, and the county probation department recommended probation, Garber said. The victim's family didn't raise any objections to the sentence, he added.

Pary could have received a prison term of up to two years and fined up to $2,000.

Pary wasn't charged with any crime regarding the collision itself.

Mary Froczila, 80, who lived in the Sheldon Park Apartments, was struck by Pary Feb. 9 as she attempted to walk across Sheldon Road a few hundred yards north of the traffic signal at Ann Arbor Road, police said.

It was dark and the roadway there isn't well lit, police said.

Froczila wasn't in a crosswalk at the time, said Lynne Jakubiak, Pary's lawyer.

Pary has expressed much regret about the incident, she said.

"I can tell you myself he was extremely contrite, very upset," Jakubiak said. "It was a devastating experience for him as well as his entire family. He was not the least bit cavalier about it."

"His only problem was he panicked and took off," Jakubiak said.

Cruising law could cause problems

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

An ordinance to curb cruising in downtown Plymouth would have "some constitutional problems" in the view of David Goldstein, staff counsel with the American Civil Liberties Union in New York.

Cruising, a nocturnal phenomenon plaguing not just Plymouth but cities throughout the country, transforms business districts into outdoor parking lots as partying young people drive up and down main streets.

The result is traffic congestion and added work for police, who cite youth for traffic violations, urinating in public, vandalism and other offenses.

Plymouth's recently proposed ordinance would establish "no cruising zones" and traffic control points. Drivers would be prohibited from passing the control points more than once every three hours.

At last week's meeting, commissioners defeated the proposed ordinance by a 6-1 vote. The ordinance was drafted at the request of Plymouth Mayor William Robinson.

CITY OFFICIALS say the emergency ordinance, based on laws passed in other states, is a good one and that it could be used in the future.

Commissioners decided to continue their use of less cumbersome anti-cruising measures, such as prohibiting turns onto Main Street and the banning of parking in certain places.

"I'm not prepared to say no court would uphold a cruising ordinance, but it's pretty clear there are some constitutional problems with it," said Goldstein, with the ACLU's national headquarters.

"The language is both vague and overbroad in the sense that it doesn't really provide for implementation."

An anti-cruising ordinance raises other constitutional problems, as it likely would be selectively enforced and would restrict freedom of movement, Goldstein said.

"The problem is that this leaves a lot of discretion with police. I'm not sure a middle-aged couple looking for a parking place would be ticketed, whereas a carload of scruffy kids might," he said.

"When a law is directed at a particular class of people whom city officials think may cause trouble, police know that. There's a high potential for them to engage in selective enforcement."

A city can't legally restrict "who drives downtown or into a public area," added Goldstein.

Detroit's ACLU office declined comment on the issue.

Citing the judicial canon of ethics, 35th District Judge James Garber said he was unable to comment on the proposed ordinance. Garber said that conceivably both constitutional and unconstitutional cruising ordinances could be drafted.

MAYOR ROBINSON'S proposed ordinance closely mirrors those passed in Greenville, S.C., Phoenix, Ariz., and cities in the San Francisco Bay area of California.

City and police officials contacted in those states say their ordinances haven't been challenged in the courts. Checkpoints have gone a long way toward alleviating the problem by taking the fun out of cruising, they say.

To tackle its cruising problem, San Jose's police department created a special youth services division. "Youth service officers are assigned to an area where we have a large number of cruisers, and all they do is enforcement in that area," said San Jose Officer William Puckett.

'There's a high potential for (police) to engage in selective enforcement.'

— David Goldstein
ACLU attorney

While the ACLU hasn't gone to court over cruising ordinances, it raised a parallel legal argument when the state of Michigan attempted to nab drunk drivers by randomly setting up highway checkpoints and administering Breathalyzer tests.

Charging that the checkpoints represented warrantless, unconstitutional stops, the ACLU in Wayne Circuit Court obtained an injunction halting the practice.

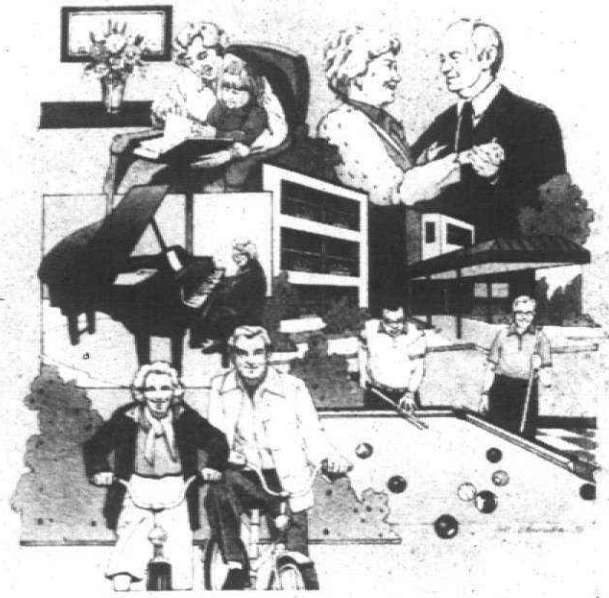

The state attorney general is appealing the decision. The state of California addressed the cruising issue when an ordinance passed by the city of Los Gatos was challenged.

"It was thrown out by the state Court of Appeals on the basis that it was pre-empted by state law," said Evet Abt, chief deputy attorney for San Jose.

The court held that because all traffic control laws were controlled by state law, cruising ordinances were pre-empted by state law, said Abt.

City cruising ordinances may not deviate from California law, which provides for traffic control points, said Charles Triebel, city attorney for Pleasant Hill, Calif.

Plymouth city manager Henry Graper says the mayor's proposed ordinance is "a very good one that I think would hold up constitutionally."

Rouge Rescue '87

Volunteers brave rain, bugs

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Say this for Rouge Rescue '87 workers - they care.

An estimated 2,000 volunteers braved cool, drizzly weather Saturday while helping clean the polluted Rouge River. Rain and obstacles ranging from slippery river banks to dive-bombing mosquitoes didn't dampen enthusiasm.

"Our workers were terrific," said Jeanne Treff of the Livonia Department of Public Works. "They showed up on time and went right to work."

VOLUNTEERS from Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Redford, Canton and Plymouth townships participated. Cleanup events were conducted at 22 sites from eastern Washtenaw to northern Oakland County.

Many local volunteers helped clear log jams and haul debris from sites along Hines Drive.

Volunteers came in various shapes, sizes and ages but their reasons for participating were similar: they saw a problem and thought they could help.

"I've lived in this area all my life, and I know what a resource this park can be if the river is clean," said Bill Jetchick of Westland, a volunteer at one of the Hines Park sites. Many volunteers were attracted by the Rouge Rescue's "hometown" nature.

"THIS IS something you can do in your own backyard," said Jeanine Gillikin of Canton who brought her husband, Robert, to her community's Morton Taylor Road cleanup site.

A number of young people participated. "We're learning about the Rouge River in school so we thought we'd help out," Redford resident Peggy Griffin said. Griffin and Redford Union classmate Dawn Hatcher were two of many students who tested Rouge water quality last month, then returned for the Rouge Rescue.

Some youngsters, like Jerry McCann and Jamie Karum of Canton, conducted Boy Scout service projects. Others, like Jim Neville of Livonia, joined their parents.

RAIN KEPT crowds down at several sites, but the 100-plus people who showed up in Livonia apparently exceeded last year's turnout.

"There's a lot more people here than there were last year," said Saburo Kanimatsu of Livonia.

Many who participated were first-time volunteers. "I wanted to help last year, but I was working the midnight shift," said Duff Mikowski of Canton.

Plymouth Township resident Kelly Richardson would have helped last year, "but I was in the (Marine) Corps."

In Livonia, Westland and Plymouth, workers cleared branches and stumps. But rusted auto parts created the biggest tie-ups at the Canton site.

"I'll bet they pulled out enough to make three cars," Friends of the Rouge president James Murray said.

MOST WORKERS stood along the banks, moving material already pulled from the river by municipal public service workers.

Volunteers at several sites were aided by minor offenders sentenced to community service. Seventeen workers were bused to Livonia courtesy of the 18th District Court.

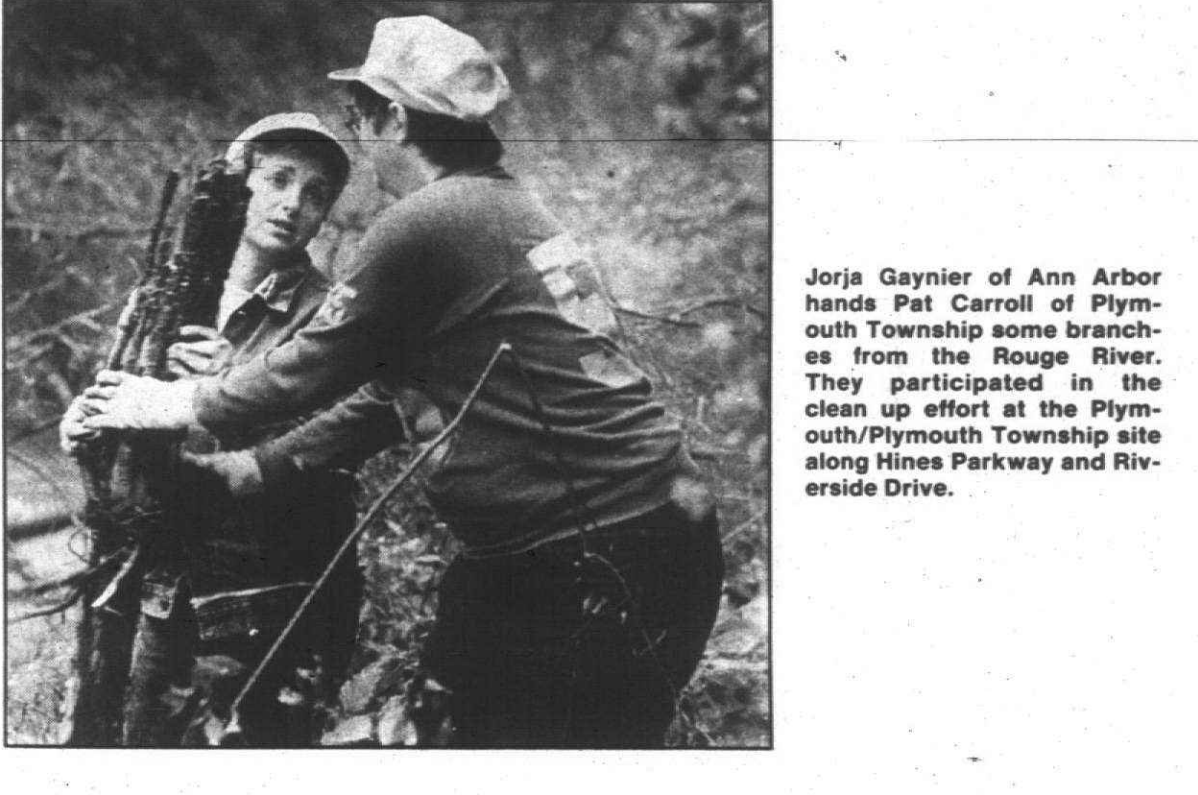

While 5,000 volunteers were projected, organizers seemed pleased with what was accomplished.

"We had about the same number of people as last year, but there was a lot more work done," Friends of the Rouge director Bonnie Anderson said.

"I think we were a lot better organized this time," Murray said.

Jonette Niemann of Belleville keeps dry as she puts on her gloves before going to work. Oakwood Hospital Health Center employee Jan Petroske gets ready to spray Niemann with bug repellent before she heads to the Canton Township site to clean up the Rouge River.

by the prosecutor during closing statements.

NOW MORE THAN a year later the case still is pending.

The Wayne County Prosecutor's office is awaiting a Michigan Supreme Court decision on People vs. Burton to determine if the prosecutor's office can appeal a judge's ruling. The decision isn't expected before fall.

"The waiting has taken a toll" on the Mercados, said Doug Baker, the assistant prosecutor who worked on the case. "They're angry and there's a real feeling of injustice that stings."

Preparing the Mercados for the continued court postponements has been tough.

"Telling them that we have to wait is like telling a parent their child is seriously ill," Baker said.

If the prosecutor's office doesn't appeal the case, another trial will be held.

Meanwhile, Fisher has been free on $25,000. Police don't know where he's staying and since he posted the money himself, a bond company isn't worried whether he meets his court dates or leaves the country.

After the trial, it was said Fisher was living in Missouri where his parents reside.

"We see the man still free, doing whatever he wants," Manuel Mercado said. "No one's watching him. The police don't know what he's doing."

CANTON POLICE Lt. Larry Stewart said police "aren't keeping tabs on him."

"We don't have a right to follow him around," Stewart said.

Dawn VanHoek, Fisher's court-appointed attorney, acknowledges Fisher is accustomed to traveling.

"He also has a history of always showing up in court and that's the most important thing," VanHoek said. "There really is no reason for concern. I would expect he would show up for any future proceedings."

She said Fisher is interested "in the speedy resolution of any charges."

VanHoek declined to comment on whether she knew where he was staying.

Associates will be on the north end. Construction is expected to begin in the next couple of months.

"In the middle we hope to get 12,000- to 20,000-square-foot facilities," Shaw said. "Other acres will be divided in one- or two-acre lots. I would anticipate seeing more office development toward Michigan Avenue and Haggerty at the corner."

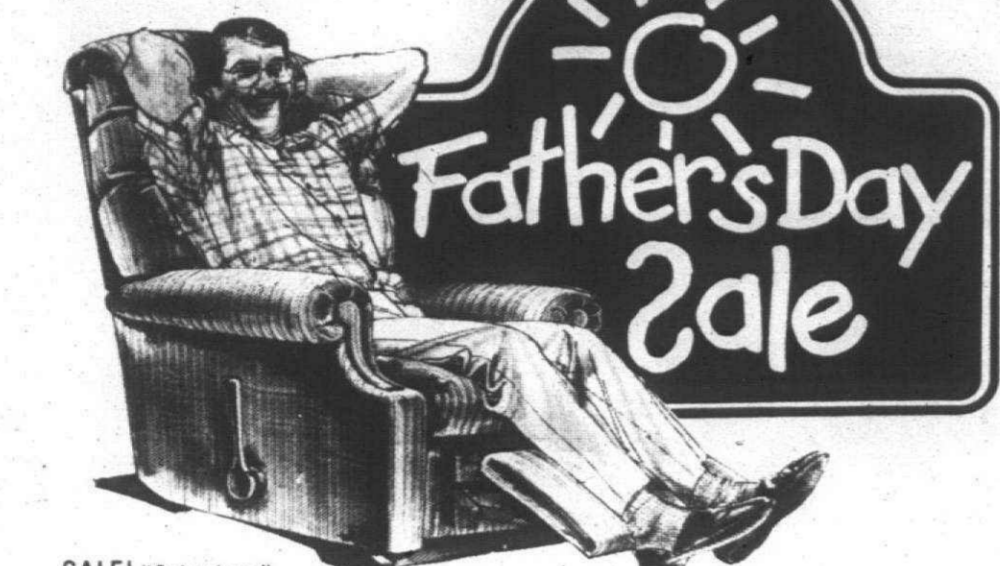

Shaw, Dearborn Real Estate and the Canton's Community and Economic Development department hosted a ground-breaking ceremony for the park last week. Ed McNamara, Wayne County executive, Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths and local officials applauded the proposed facility.

turnout, Roulo said.

"The turnout is usually a little bit heavier when there's a money question on the ballot," she said.

Polls will be open until 8 o'clock tonight.

Bank customers robbed after withdrawing cash

Gunmen robbed two bank customers last week after they had just withdrawn money from an automatic teller window. Both holdups took place in the parking lot of National Bank of Detroit, 27637 Grand River.

The first holdup took place at 8:45 p.m. Sunday. A Southfield woman had just withdrawn $20 and was returning to her car when she was approached by a man carrying a handgun. The man first demanded the $20 and then demanded the keys to the woman's car, a 1984 gray Toyota.

After getting both, he drove east on Grand River. Police said the car the gunman left behind, a 1985 Buick, had been reported stolen.

The second holdup took place near the teller window at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday. A Knolston resident flagged down a police car and told police he had just been robbed at gunpoint.

He said he was getting cash when he was approached by a man who demanded money. The man pulled a handgun from the waistband of his jogging suit. He grabbed $100 from the man's hand and climbed into the driver's side of an old Chevrolet.

2 home break-ins

While residents slept, thieves recently broke into two homes.

The first break-in took place sometime Saturday night in the 10900 block of Garvelt. One person was sleeping in the family room when the thief pried open a window and ransacked the bedrooms. Reported stolen was $2,900 worth of furnishings, including a VCR, telephone and numerous pieces of jewelry.

The second break-in took place between 6 a.m. and noon Sunday morning in the 29600 block of Joy. The homeowner said he went to bed at 6 a.m. and when he awoke, he discovered his home had been broken into

A man fired shots from a pellet gun Friday at an Osmus resident who was walking across his front lawn.

The resident told police a man in a passing car yelled at him. When he looked up to see who it was, he saw a long barrel protruding from the rear driver's side window and pointed at him. When he instinctively put his hands up to cover his face, he was struck in the palm by pellets.

The victim said the shots were fired from a light blue Buick and $1,350 missing. Police said the thief stepped on an outside meter to get through a rear window.

Plymouth the year Lincoln became president

(Part 2)

We are standing on Main Street in Plymouth on June 1, 1860, facing the business block opposite Kellogg Park. This is the day the U.S. Census is being taken.

In front of Lauffer's leather goods store, talking to Bethuel Neaves (the future village president) is Michael Conner, owner of the hardware store at the corner of Main and Sutton (today's Penman Avenue.)

Conner, age 36, was born in England. His wife, Jane, age 28, is from New York State. The Conners have an infant daughter, Mary.

Mike Conner is a leading light in the Plymouth brass band that practices amidst the pots and pans of his store. He will become president of the Village of Plymouth at least ten times between 1868 and 1890 — no mean feat for a Democrat in a Republican town.

THAT YOUNG FELLOW driving the car in his buggy is L.H. Bennett, another native of New York State.

Bennett and brother Charles H. Bennett own a fanning mill factory at the corner of Main and Union Streets. In the 1890s, L.H. Bennett will chair the citizens' committee formed to locate a good source of water for the village. That will lead to the establishment of the town's first water and fire protection system in 1893.

Bennett has an even more solid claim to fame — he will father the Charles H. Bennett who will preside over the fortunes of the Daisy Manufacturing Company from 1920 to 1956.

That man on horseback is J.J. Covert. Covert, age 57, is toll gate keeper for the plank road that runs from Plymouth to Detroit. His gate is at the corner of Main and Mill Streets where the Hardees fast food restaurant will be located in the 1980s.

The plank road was chartered in 1850 by a man named Otis Farmers who used the road to take his produce to Detroit. He was supervisor of the plank road and was warring and that rotted wood in some past and present

spots is dangerous for their horses. Some farmers are beginning to "run" the gate when Covert is not watching.

THE GENTLEMAN who just said hello to L.H. Bennett is one of the town's best-known citizens.

He is Ebenezer J. Penman, a native of New York, who is 55 this year. The census will show that his personal value is $5,516 and that the value of his real estate is estimated at $110,000. There will be, however, a notation after the latter figure, which will read: "for self and J.A. Austin, deceased."

Penman arrived in Plymouth 20 years ago. He was supervisor of Plymouth Township ten years ago and became the first man Plymouth sent to the U.S. Congress in 1851. In 1854, he was a member of the Whig group that met in Jackson, Mich., to oppose the opening of the road to slavery. Next year, after the south fires on Fort Sumpter, Penman and Henry Frazier, also of Plymouth, will raise, equip and fill the muster roll of the first company of Union soldiers in the State of Michigan that enlist for three years.

That's another prominent resident just turning the corner of Ann Arbor Trail. He's Jonathan Shearer, a farmer, who lives with his wife, Christiana, on North Territorial Road just west of Ridgewood. Shearer is now 64.

A native of Massachusetts, Shearer came to Plymouth in 1836. He was township supervisor in 1837 and again in 1847-48. In 1841, he was elected to the State Senate, serving three terms.

As Senator, Shearer was among those who secured the establishment of the State Normal School (now Eastern Michigan University). He was a founder of the State Pioneer Society and will become its president in 1876-77.

SEE THAT MAN sitting on a bench in the park. That's John Kellogg, who is 73 this year. He and his wife, Eleanor, and their five sons and two daughters arrived here from the east about 27 years ago.

In 1835, Kellogg bought 212 acres of William Starkweather's original 240-acre tract, which included the park in which he is sitting. During the same year, Kellogg built a fine home on Ann Arbor Trail where the Christian Science Church will be located many years later.

Kellogg sold business and residential lots, established the Plymouth Hotel at the corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail, and ran a potash and soap factory "east of Main Street."

Just last year, he sold 50 acres of his property to one of his sons, Cassius.

In 1867, he and his wife will transfer the remaining 23 acres of their land to another son, Joel R. Kellogg, for $800, and support for the rest of their lives. John Kellogg will die in 1871 at age 85. Kellogg Park will be named after the Kellogg family.

That young fellow standing at the watering trough with the roan horse is 25-year-old George A. Starkweather. George, the first child born of settlers in Plymouth, has real estate valued at $5,250 and a personal estate of about the same amount. He inherited much of his property from his parents, William and Keziah Starkweather, who built their first home here in 1825.

George studied law in New York City and returned to Plymouth to farm and become the village lawyer. Five years from now he will marry Amelia Heywood, purchase a general store from Joshua Scattergood in the Main Street business block and continue in business as store owner, lawyer and notary public.

Clean Rouge is costly

Legislators say local funds needed for project

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

As demonstrated last weekend, local grassroots efforts have spearheaded the Rouge River's cleanup. And lawmakers say local dollars may have led the way in financing the massive public works projects needed to achieve a pollution-free Rouge.

A group of legislators, ranging from U.S. Congressmen to county commissioners, pledged support for the river's revitalization during a legislative meeting last Friday at Fair Lane, the Henry Ford Estate on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

But they said the Rouge couldn't be fully cleaned without local money.

U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Trenton, is calling for a General Accounting Office study on the Rouge's problems. While the study is seen as an important first step, Dingell said cleaning the Rouge will be "very, very costly."

"WE FOUGHT with the (Reagan) administration over a $20 billion allocation for clean water," Dingell said. "Cleaning the Rouge would take all of Michigan's share of that allocation."

U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, said the GAO study could define the federal government's role but locals will have to lead the way. "There's going to have to be a local effort," said Levin, who represents Redford Township.

State legislators said they were going to form a pro-cleanup block. "We're going to have to get together on this," Rep. Lyn Banks, R-Livonia said. "This affects the quality of life not only in Wayne County but in Oakland and Washtenaw counties, too."

State Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, whose district includes Garden City, said federal and local dollars should be used to clean the Rouge "but the state has a role."

FRIENDS of the Rouge, the volunteer group that sponsored last weekend's Rouge Rescue '87 brought legislators together at Fair Lane to discuss the pollution-laden river and rally to kick off this year's cleanup. A countywide millage or bond issue were among the financing solutions discussed.

"What the people of Wayne County have to understand is their quality of life will deteriorate if something isn't done," Wayne County Parks and Recreation Director R. Eric Reichek said. "There may be concerns about money. But you have to ask yourself: What is the alternative?"

Wayne County doesn't have the money to participate on its own, according to county commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, whose district includes Westland and Garden City.

"Anything I can do to help — short of providing money — I'm ready to do," Beard said.

Despite periodic clean-up efforts dating back as far as the late 1960s, the Rouge remains off limits to swimmers and boaters.

The Rouge can be cleaned within a generation with governmental help, Friends of the Rouge supporters said.

Despite the lack of assurance over financing, legislators who attended Friday's session said the Rouge's cleanup was a worthy project.

"I remember when my children used to swim in the Rouge," State Rep. Justice Barras, D-Westland said. "My grandchildren haven't been able to, but maybe my great-grandchildren will."

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara was released Saturday from St. Mary's Hospital, Livonia, after being admitted three days earlier with an undisclosed ailment.

A spokeswoman confirmed McNamara had been admitted to the hospital. A hospital administrator, however, declined to comment on the reason "at the request of the family and doctor."

McNamara, 61, was elected county executive in November. He had previously been mayor of Livonia.

Potatoes—historical & nutritious

You say potato, I say Po-Ta-Toe. . . . Planted the annual Janes garden a few weeks back and thought I'd try something a little different. After visiting my local farm market and purchasing the usual staples like tomatoes, zucchini, snap peas, lettuce and onions, I was standing in line at the checkout when I noticed bushels of seed potatoes. Kennebec, Pontiac Reds, "new" and the ever-popular Russet seed potatoes were there at 5 lbs. for a dollar.

After grabbing a small sack and filling it with about 30 potatoes, the bag weighed in at only 2 lbs. Now since the old garden is only about 15x30, I found myself with plenty of seed potatoes to fill a row. This, in turn, wetted my appetite to do a little re-search on the old spud.

Did you know that the potato is not actually part of the roots of the potato plant but is instead a tuber formed from underground stems? The spud was first cultivated between 4,000-7,000 years ago in the Andes of Bolivia and Peru. Sixteenth Century Spanish explorers observed the use of potatoes by the Andes Indians (No relation to the Cleveland Indians). The explorers traded for the spuds and found that eating them on long sea voyages would prevent scurvy (All that great Vitamin C). And so, of course, the potato made it to Europe by way of Spain.

Potatoes were first grown on a large scale in Ireland — hence the name — Irish Potato. It was during a famine that the spuds were found to be plentiful and easy to grow, especially in the moist, sandy soil. Many Europeans viewed potatoes negatively because of their familiarity with the "nightshade family" (grown underground) which during the 16th century was known as a "poison." It didn't really help that there was no mention of potatoes in the Bible either.

Potatoes were first brought to the North Americas in 1719 by Irish immigrants (of course). As in Europe, North Americans were slow to adapt and potatoes were not grown on a large scale till the depression era during the nineteenth century.

Since 1950, the consumption of fresh potatoes has declined steadily while the use of processed potatoes has risen to where more than half the total crop is now processed. Potatoes are used in starches and flour, canned soups, stews and hash, frozen food entrees, and (in my favorite way) made into chips and shoestrings.

Speaking of french fries, did you know that frying reduces the water content of a potato to the extent that the cooked product contains twice the solids, three to four times the calories and double the protein of baked or boiled potatoes?

Now for even worse news, each ounce of french fried potatoes contain almost 1 teaspoon (5 ml) of pure FAT. Even my favorite chips and shoestrings are high in calories mainly because of the low water content (two percent) and high fat content (40 percent). They can contain as much as 2,700 calories per pound and up to 5,000 milligrams of sodium. Remember when you could polish off a whole bag, with dip and a quart of Coke? So much for memories?

An average raw potato (7 ozs. or 200g) contains only 115 calories, 3.2 g of protein. Boiled and baked potatoes have the same nutritional make-up except that the boiling process causes the Vitamin C to lose a little "oomph" in the process.

Sometimes when cutting into a delectable, steaming spud, you will notice a slightly green tinge to the skin or worse yet, a "hollow heart" or "black heart" somewhere throughout the spud.

"Greening" occurs when the spuds are exposed to natural or artificial light for long periods of time. You will usually notice this for potatoes "held over" after the growing season is long over. "Hollowheart" is the formation of a hollow cavity or hole inside the spud and usually requires only minor trimming. "Blackheart" is a rotten spot that is easily trimmed and should be discarded.

High quality control by wholesalers, shippers and retailers make these problems few and far between. Stay away from potatoes that are very green, wrinkled, spoiled or sprouted because they can contain harmful amounts of a toxic alkaloid called Solanine. Never eat the potato "greens" from the plant and make sure to trim off all sprouts as they also contain this toxic alkaloid.

As far as filling as with sour cream, cheese, bacon bits is the rage at today's "potato bars" cut calories by using some plain yogurt or whipped cottage cheese. Season these with chives, dry horseradish, dry mustard, oregano and pepper for a great taste and almost zippo calories!

STRAWBERRIES

By Arlene Funke
special writer

Every year at this time thousands of local people get an uncontrollable urge to taste luscious, juicy Michigan strawberries.

Visions of homemade jams, ruby-red strawberry pies and sauces fill the mind. Mouths water.

Good news: Local growers are predicting a good season for strawberries.

"I think there will be an ample supply," said Bob Blessed, owner of a 10-acre strawberry farm three miles west of Plymouth.

The Michigan strawberry season is short and sweet, usually a month in duration. The berries are ripe the first or second week of June, and "are always gone by July 4," Blessed said.

Most Michigan berry farms are the U-pick variety, which means the customer does the work.

"The only way to assure yourself of quality and freshness is to pick your own," said Vera Sullivan, horticulture consultant with the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service, based in Wayne. "It's cost-effective to pick your own."

Besides tasting good, strawberries are low in calories and a good source of vitamin C.

A publication from the Michigan Department of Agriculture, called "Michigan Country Carousel," lists by county U-pick farms and farm markets. The booklet names more than a dozen U-pick berry farms in western Wayne County, northern Oakland County and the Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor area of Washtenaw County.

Several U-pick strawberry farms are concentrated in Belleville, which honors its prize crop annually with a strawberry festival. This year's Belleville Strawberry Festival will be held June 19-21. For information call 697-3137.

Exactly when the berries are ripe and ready for picking depends on the weather. Customers should call the farms or watch for advertisements and signs.

"There are a lot of people with one or two acres (in production) that do a good job," according to Sullivan.

Linda St. Cyr, of the 30-acre Thornhollow Berry Farm in Belleville, predicts "a great year for strawberries."

Last year's crop started out fine, but many of the berries couldn't be picked during an extended rainy spell, St. Cyr said.

"When people can't get out to pick, the berries begin to decay," she said. "Good picking weather is what we're hoping for."

The supply of berries is also dependent on the economy, St. Cyr said. Demand for U-pick strawberries rises during periods of high unemployment.

"When the economy is good, people would rather buy (at the store)," St. Cyr said. Several growers gave the following tips, to assure a good return on time and money:

- Always call ahead before driving out to a U-pick farm. Growers can give hours of operation and picking conditions.

- Confirm prices and if containers are provided. For example, many growers sell by the quart (1½ pounds). A price of 75 cents per quart would average out to 50 cents per pound.

- Pick in the morning, when the weather isn't as hot. Wear protective shoes which stand up to heavy morning dew, and a hat to shield skin from the sun. Wear old clothes, preferably long sleeves and pants for protection against insects.

"Most people come between 8-10 a.m.," Bob Blessed said. "After lunch it really tapers off."

- Parents must supervise their children at all times. Toddlers are considered too young to bring along. Always check to see what ages are permitted.

Tips on picking, transporting and storing berries include:

- Pick only red berries. White berries are immature and won't redden after they're picked.

"A lot of people are used to buying berries with a white tip," said

• Protect berries from the direct sunlight. The berries can deteriorate in a hot car. It's a good idea to open a window.
 • Refrigerate immediately, and don't wash berries until time of use. The stem shouldn't be removed until after the berry is washed.
 • "So that water doesn't seep into the center of the berry," explained Blessed.
 • Happy eating, cooking and canning!

Sweet tooth blues?

Winning the battle starts with commitment

Florine Mark

"Do you have a sweet tooth?" People always are asking this question of me. It seems that because I represent weight loss, have lost 50 pounds and kept it off for 21 years, they assume I must have lost my sweet tooth!

I must admit, I have considered consulting with my dentist to determine exactly what tooth is the sweet tooth, then pulling it. I am sure if it were that easy many of us would be less one more tooth.

Do not despair. Learning to live with and love your sweet tooth begins with learning to love fruit. It begins with making a commitment. A commitment to think differently about what we eat and when we eat, to change the way we think about food.

up calories during the week. Then spend them on Saturday.
 This applies especially to sweets. Eat sweets less frequently — save for them. When you are ready to spend — Buy the best! Get the best chocolate, chocolate, torte, ice cream, your favorite. You have saved for it, enjoy it! But in a smaller portion. The first bite tastes as good as every other bite — don't eat the whole thing!

What do you do when the sweet tooth strikes for something cool and creamy, you haven't saved and fruit just won't do? Try this milkshake that has been a favorite of mine for years.

Poaching chicken helps cut calories

AP — Who says you can't have it all? This chicken main dish tastes sensational, looks great and fits right into today's high-nutrition meals. It has the right amount of protein and is low in fat but high in fiber and vitamin A. Poaching the already lean skinless chicken breasts keeps the calorie count low, too.

Missing python replaced

Monty, a 13 1/2-foot python snake missing from the Tropical Paradise Pet Shop on Main Street in Plymouth since May 13, has been replaced.

Leonard Henning, owner of the store, said he's acquired another mascot — a 12-foot python.

Henning doesn't harbor much hope for the return of Monty. "I think it's pretty much gone."

While the missing snake could bite, it's more likely to cause injury by wrapping around an animal or person and constricting, crushing with pressure.

A python at large would most likely eat rats, chickens and mice, Henning said, and maybe even a cat if it were able to get hold of one.

People with information about the missing snake should contact Plymouth Police at 453-8600 or Henning at 451-0064.

It is open to the public 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Admission price is $1 for adults, 50 cents for those ages 11-17 and 25 cents for children 5 to 10. Introducing an HMO that gives you access to some of the most impressive medical technologies known to man.

Behold the frontiers of diagnostic understanding, the latest weapons against disease and trauma, the medical technologies available to you through M-CARE, the new HMO from The University of Michigan.

To get a closer look at these medical marvels, look inside the medical bag of an M-CARE primary care physician. It contains a stethoscope, pen light, reflex hammer, blood-pressure cuff, a device for looking into ears called an otoscope, another for looking into eyes called an ophthalmoscope, a handful of tongue depressors, latex gloves, a couple of handbooks on prescription drugs, and a tape measure.

Okay, so maybe this equipment isn't so sophisticated. Maybe you've seen it all before. The truth be known, the contents of the typical medical bag haven't changed much over the last two generations. The stethoscope, for example, is more than 150 years old. But these things perform impressive feats indeed in the hands of a highly-trained and experienced physician, the kind of primary care physicians in internal medicine, obstetrics/gynecology, pediatrics, and family practice that come with M-CARE.

Of course, you won't find the most important tool an M-CARE physician possesses in a medical bag. That's an ability to listen to you. Through simple conversation and a well-directed physical examination, a good doctor can get a very good picture of your health, confirm the need for specific tests, refer your care and treatment to a specialist, or give you the simple assurance that everything's going to be okay.

Even with the world-renowned U of M Medical Center at our disposal, a personal relationship with a highly knowledgeable, compassionate and caring primary care physician is, perhaps, still the most impressive medical technology M-CARE can offer.

Ask your employer to include M-CARE among your health care options. For more information, please call (313) 747-8700.

Salem bats quiet in pitchers' regional

RICK SMITH/staff photographer

Plymouth Salem catcher Chris Michalek fields a sacrifice bunt by Scott Canfield and throws out the Livonia Franklin runner at first base in Saturday's regional baseball game. The Rocks, however, lost in the first round 5-3.

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Pitching was expected to be the determining factor in Saturday's Class A baseball regional at Wyandotte Memorial Park, and there were certainly no surprises in that regard.

Redford Catholic Central's Greg Haeger and Joe Mackiewicz pitched three-hit victories, and Doug Martin shut the door with strong relief hurling in the Shamrocks' title-clinching 4-2 victory over Livonia Franklin.

Haeger won a pitchers' duel with Taylor Kennedy's Pedro Fuentes as CC claimed a 1-0 victory in the opener.

But the Shamrock staff wasn't the only one to make an impression. Besides the one-hitter, Fuentes threw against CC, Franklin's T.J. Kramer and Henry Miller also were outstanding.

KRAMER HELD the usually-potent Plymouth Salem lineup to three hits and guided the Patriots to a 5-3 win and a berth in the final. Miller had just one bad inning but, otherwise, gave an excellent account against the Shamrocks.

With Martin still not fully recovered from a pulled back muscle, CC coach John Salter opted to start Mackiewicz, who went four innings and improved his record to 5-0. He departed with a 4-2 lead after giving up a lead-off single in the fifth.

Enter Martin. While the CC bats also were unusually silent, he finished what Mackiewicz started, retiring the first eight batters he faced, allowing only a two-out single by Tim Napier in the seventh and earning a save.

baseball

"When Doug came in in the fifth and stopped them, that was the key," Salter said. "Mackiewicz had thrown about 70 pitches to that point, and I thought he was getting a little tired."

"THEY'VE GOT a good hitting ball club, and Doug's velocity is a little bit more than Joe's."

Martin had pitched only two innings in the last two weeks; however, he was ready if needed to start the final.

"I didn't think he'd pitch at all today," Salter said. "When he warmed up, he said he felt OK and could throw. But I decided to stay with Mackiewicz and hope Joe would give us a few innings."

Mackiewicz did his part and so did Martin, whose apparent recovery was a source of encouragement for Salter, who will lead his team into the state semifinals at 3 p.m. Friday at Lansing Municipal Field. CC now boasts a 24-8 record.

"If he can throw that way next weekend, I think we've got a pretty good chance," he said.

MILLER WAS equally impressive for Franklin as he no-hit the Shamrocks in five of the six innings. However, CC did all of its damage (five hits) during a four-run second.

Haeger opened the inning with the only extra-base hit of the day — a double — and Mackiewicz, Mike Czarnota, Kevin Rogers and Bob Malleck knocked in the runs as CC sent eight men to the plate.

"That hurt but he pitched a fine game," said Franklin coach Jerry Cullin of Miller, who struck out three and walked two. "Outside of that, they didn't do anything to him."

"If (Salter) hasn't got Martin pitching behind Haeger, we're in the ballgame. But I can't complain; Henry pitched a helluva game."

Franklin, which ends the season with a 16-11 mark, scored its runs on two of the Shamrocks' three errors.

KRAMER ALSO pitched well against Salem, 22-5. After Franklin jumped in front 4-0, the Rocks got all three runs in the sixth inning. But Kramer, who had five strikeouts and walked the same, couldn't be faulted as Salem's rally was aided by two Patriot errors.

Mike Davis had RBI singles in consecutive at-bats, and J.J. Swindall keyed a three-run third with a bases-loaded, two-run single. Andy Gee and Steve Woodard drove in a run apiece for the Rocks.

Salem coach John Gravlin opted to start Craig Hawley instead of Fiddell Cashero, who pitched the opener of the district tournament the week before.

Hawley gave up a walk and three straight hits in the Franklin third before Todd Marion, who no doubt would have started a second game, took the mound in relief.

He held the Patriots to one additional run on Pat Greener's RBI fielder's choice in the seventh, but Salem could never generate the offense needed to overcome the early deficit.

"I WAS a little concerned about Cashero walking people," Gravlin said. "In a big game, I wanted Hawley, who throws strikes."

"Craig made a couple of bad pitches, but he could have easily pitched out of it," he said, pointing out Hawley was 5-0 with a 0.33 earned run average going in. "So it wasn't like we were throwing some whimpy pitcher out there; it was someone who had done the job all year."

Gravlin emphasized the Rocks' failure to hit, saying he thought Hawley might give up a run or two, but he thought Salem's failure to produce more hits and runs was the most telling aspect.

CC won the first game when Bob Malleck scored an unearned run in the bottom of the sixth inning.

He led off with a walk, moved up on John Gotts' groundout and scored from second when the Kennedy second baseman overthrew first base on a potential inning-ending double play.

HAEGER, WHO struck out 10 and walked three, retired the side in order in the Kennedy seventh, improving his record to 8-4 while Fuentes dropped to 5-1.

Kennedy coach Wayne Hamilton started Fuentes, a senior who planned to attend afternoon commencements, instead of his ace, junior Steve Avery, for fear the Eagles wouldn't have a quality pitcher to throw in the second game.

"Both teams were hanging in tough, and we just got the break on the error," Salter said. "Usually, in a 0-0 game, after five innings, whoever gets that first run is going to win it."

Cougars prowl into state semifinals

By Brad Emons
staff writer

If you're a Garden City softball fan, then Green Acres Park was the place to be Saturday.

The Cougars kept their unbeaten record intact by winning the Class A regional in Hazel Park with a 2-0 victory over Farmington Hills Mercy.

Garden City (29-0) advances to the state semifinals at 5:30 p.m. Friday at Michigan State University in East Lansing. The Cougars will face the East Detroit (26-3), which captured its own regional with a 4-0 win over Romeo.

The championship victory erased some doubts about the nucleus of the Garden City team, a core of multi-talented seniors who had always seemed to come up short in past state softball, volleyball and basketball tournaments despite impressive regular season records.

"They've fallen a little shy at the end of some seasons, but for these seniors this is it, their final chance," said Garden City first-year coach Barry Patterson. "But they've never quit, especially when they were down."

"From here on out they're going to get the recognition they deserve as one of the better teams in the area."

IT APPEARED Garden City was down and out in its regional semifinal game against No. 1-ranked Temperance-Bedford. But the Cougars erased a 4-1 deficit and eventually ousted the Mules in 10 innings, 5-4, setting up a showdown with Mercy, an up-and-coming team which captured the other semifinal game against host Hazel Park, 7-2.

In the championship game, Garden City senior ace Shelly Malone pitched a four-hit shutout, never allowing a Mercy runner to get past second base.

"We made some nice plays," said Patterson of the final. "We were pretty much flawless in the field, which is important in this kind of game. I thought we played the way we were capable of. You've got to play this kind of game at this stage of the season."

The Cougars scored what proved to be the game-winning run in the first inning.

Shortstop Mikey Gorak singled and advanced to second base when Mercy center fielder Kerry Sayers couldn't come up ball cleanly. Gorak then went to third on Karen Sandman's sacrifice bunt and scored on Mary Hebert's groundout to short.

The Cougars added an insurance

run in the sixth when Terri Paul singled and later scored on a Mercy infield error.

MERCY'S ONLY SERIOUS threat came with two-out in the fourth when Linda Raymond and Missy McKenna both singled, but Malone got designated hitter Amy Kuznir on a fly out to left to end the inning.

'Mercy is tough. They're a young team, and I expect them to be unbearable next year.'
—Barry Patterson
Garden City softball coach

Malone, who alternated most of the season with junior Kristen Wasil, made the most of a rare consecutive start. She retired the Marlins in order in five of the seven innings.

"I think Shelly enjoyed pitching both games," Patterson said. "It's the first time she's been able to do that in awhile. I decided to start her again because she's a senior and deserves the shot."

Mercy coach Suzanne Brown, whose team bowed out with a 18-9 record, gave Malone and the Cougars credit.

"WE COULDN'T come up with any hits back-to-back," she said. "We had some decent pokes. They covered our bunts well and we didn't get them out of their game plan."

Not to be outdone was Mercy sophomore pitcher Amy Edward, who pitched a sterling game in her own right.

She allowed only five hits in the championship final. In the win over Hazel Park, Edward was equally impressive, striking out 10 and scattering six hits.

Edward is one of several underclassmen who will return next season. Only one senior starter graduates.

"Mercy is tough," said Patterson. "They're a young team and I expect them to be unbearable next year."

Added Brown: "We definitely squeezed every ounce of energy out of these kids. We had a 2-0 game with a Garden City team that's supposed to be one of the best teams in the state. I can't ask for anything more. In a game like this I can't gripe."

IN THE REGIONAL semifinals, Garden City appeared to be playing on borrowed time.

Each team scored a run in the first — Bedford on a homer by Kelly Wotring and GC on an RBI double by Denise Kokowicz.

Bedford then took a 2-1 lead in the third on an RBI single by Carey Meinhart, but muffed a chance to break the game wide open when runners Stacey Heams and Chris Linzie were tagged out at the plate, both trying to score on wild pitches by Malone. GC catcher Jeny Williams, alertly scrambling back to the screen, assisted on both plays.

Bedford, however, scored twice in the fourth to take a 4-1 lead, but GC answered with three in the sixth to knot the score at 4-4.

In the sixth, Mary Hebert and Kokowicz led off with singles and both ultimately crossed home on pair of Bedford infield errors. Amy Thompson then singled in the tying run.

Malone, meanwhile, settled down after the fourth, allowing only three hits over the final six innings.

The Cougars tallied the winning run in the bottom of the 10th.

Hebert walked, advanced to second on Kokowicz's single (her third hit of the game), took third on Paul's single (also her third hit of the day) and scored when Bedford pitcher Chris Bodine walked Kim Reith with the bases loaded.

"THERE WERE several situations where we could have been out of it," Patterson said, "especially when Bedford had the bases loaded and got only one run (in the third)."

"We ended up taking advantage of the breaks. But when we get down we don't give up. We've trailed in several games this year when we had to come back."

Livonian's hockey career gets boost

By Brad Emons
staff writer

It was only a year ago that Dennis Smith's pro hockey career was clinging to a Red Wing and a prayer.

But the 22-year-old Livonian made the most of his opportunity last season with Adirondack (N.Y.) of the American Hockey League. Registering the third best plus-minus rating with Detroit's top farm club, Smith, a free agent, is hoping to sign an NHL contract soon. His agent, Southfield attorney Bob Goodenow, is expected to sit down and talk with Red Wing general manager Jimmy Devellano about Smith within the next few weeks.

Smith's value to Adirondack didn't go unnoticed. He teamed up with Doug Houda, a highly touted prospect drafted in the second round three years ago by the Wings, to form one of the best defensive tandems in the AHL. Houda and Smith graded out plus-31 and plus-28, respectively, during the regular season, first and third on the club. During the AHL playoffs, Smith was never on the ice for an opponent's goal. (Adirondack finished second during the regular season and was ousted in the semifinals of the AHL playoffs).

ADIRONDACK COACH Bill Dineen summed up Smith's play in a story written by Mike Kane of the Hockey News (April 3 edition): "Dennis is the most pleasant surprise of any player that's walked in here unheralded."

"I liked his effort right away, his effort and desire. He's shown great improvement, not only in his skills but in his positional play and every facet of the game."

Last summer, Smith was nearly at wits' end over his hockey career. But a quick change of agents allowed his career to take a turn for the better.

"I had another agent from Toronto and nothing was happening and it was only a week before the NHL training camps were opening," Smith recalls. "I didn't know where I was going to play, but I knew I didn't want to go back to the IHL (International Hockey League)."

Last year Smith was the Peoria (Ill.) Rivermen's Rookie of the Year, a St. Louis affiliate, but the NHL Blues showed little interest in inviting the 190-pound defenseman to their training camp. "It was the beginning of September and I asked of friend of mine, Mike Donnelly (a Livonian now with the New York Rangers organization), to see if he could get ahold of Goodenow to help me out," Smith said. "He (Goodenow) got in touch with Neil Smith (the Adirondack GM) and they gave me a one-game tryout."

SMITH MADE a good first impression, scoring a goal. He was later extended a 25-game tryout and then was signed for the remainder of the season.

"I never thought I'd have a chance to play with Detroit because I had never talked to their people before," Smith said. "It was a lucky break and I took advantage of it."

"It was a good atmosphere in Adirondack. There wasn't a bad guy on the team. Just playing with the caliber of players helped my game. We had some good veterans who helped me out a lot. And Bill Dineen is the best coach I've ever had. You'd want to win just to please the coach."

Smith was frustrated at bouncing around the lower rungs of the minor leagues. He spent 1985-86 in Peoria and the previous year in Sweden before finishing the season in Erie (Pa.) of the famed Atlantic Coast Hockey League. He also played Junior A in Kingston of the Ontario Hockey League.

"I'll be 23 in July and I'm still young," Smith said. "I figure I'm like a player now coming out of college, but I have more experience than a player out of college. I know the ropes."

SMITH CALLS himself a "defensive defenseman." He believes he could fit into the Red Wings' style of play under coach Jacques Demers.

"I think I could show him (Demers) that I could fit into his game whether it's next year or this year," said Smith. "They (the Red Wings) gave me a good break and I'd be more than happy to sign with them now if they give me a contract. I think I deserve one and I'll sign if they give me one."

Smith said he is going to get into the best possible shape for next season and would like a chance to be invited to a training camp, whether it be in Detroit or any other NHL club.

He is currently taking things easy until his shoulder heals. He suffered a first-degree separation at the tail-end of the season causing him to miss 12 league games and four more in the playoffs.

But even a freak injury couldn't dampen Smith's outlook on the future.

"Mr. Devellano saw me play this year and some of the Red Wing brass know what I can do," Smith said. "Last year eight guys made it to Detroit and some day I hope to do the same. It would be like a dream come true."

Just grazing

Rikki's American Grill in the American Center in Southfield has gone to a new grazing menu.

Grazing is the term for less-expensive, smaller-portion entrees, to appeal to the diner who may want a lighter meal, or to sample several offerings. David Tims, general manager, said the grazing menu (with entrees from $5.50-$11.25) will be available all day. In addition, there will be luncheon and dinner specials, which include more traditional choices and some larger meals.

"Some of these are a bit adventurous for some people's tastes," said Tims of the grazing menu created by Rikki's new chef, Bill Wolf.

At a recent tasting of new dishes from the menu, Chef Wolf prepared food that was exquisite to look at and to eat.

The colorful, artistically arranged offerings included salmon cutlets and scallops with vegetable slaw in savory leaves; phyllo crumple with smoked range hen and mushroom pesto; steamed mussels and scallops tossed with spring vegetables; red pepper puree and cilantro; kiwi and champagne sorbet with fresh fruit salsa; and Japanese sahani of yellow-fin tuna and wasabi.

For those who don't want something different, lunch specials include sandwiches, salads, croissants and veal dishes, $3.95-$8.95. Dinner specials are priced $9-$17.

There are changes on the wine list, too. Michigan wines have been added for the Sequoia.

"We wanted to create a new menu worth coming to this location for," said Tims. "We experimented for 2½ months to see the public response. It was very positive." The new chef, Bill Wolf, trained with Chef Milos Cibekla at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield and is a member of the Culinary Olympic Team.

Benny, Jets to rock WJR

It's a first when Benny and the Jets play rock 'n' roll live on radio station WJR on Monday (June 8).

"We will be the first band to play in the new studios at WJR," said Benny Speer of Canton, leader of the 15-year-old band that plays '50s and '60s music. "In fact, we will be the first rock 'n' roll band ever to play at the studios," he said.

WJR recently moved from the 21st floor of Detroit's Fisher Building to new studios on the 22nd floor. The band will play on the air at 9 p.m. Monday on "Hal Youngblood's Nighttime Detroit." Youngblood will interview Speer on the program, which will be dedicated to music of the '50s and '60s.

Benny and the Jets also features Rick Khron of Livonia and Chris Christy of Huntington Woods. Speer is a graduate of Plymouth High School.

The oldies band plays locally on Sundays at Ashley's Lounge at Joy and Telegraph roads in Redford.

Festival offerings are tuneful

The upcoming Ann Arbor Summer Festival will present musical entertainment ranging from jazz to classical, from folk/pop to contemporary.

In jazz, the festival opens at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 20, offering "An Evening With Dave Brubeck." Members of Brubeck's quartet are Randy Jones on drums, Chris Brubeck (Dave's son) on electric bass and trombone and Bill Smith on clarinet.

The World Saxophone Quartet makes its first Ann Arbor appearance at 8 p.m. Friday, July 3. The foursome - Oliver Lake, Julius Hemphill, Hamiet Bluiett and David Murray - began performing as a unit in 1976.

Two pianists with Michigan roots will perform solo recitals of mostly light classical music during the festival. Young pianist Michael Gurt returns to Ann Arbor at 4 p.m. Sunday, June 28, at the Power Center Rehearsal Hall.

International artist Louis Nagel, who teaches on the faculty of the University of Michigan, will perform at 4 p.m. Sunday, July 12, in the Power Center Rehearsal Hall.

A Buxtehude Organ Series will feature the works of Danish composer Dietrich Buxtehude played by organists in eight recitals. Performances run daily at 5:15 p.m. from Wednesday-Wednesday, July 8-15, at the First Congregational Church of Ann Arbor.

'We've always stressed that we want well-rounded people. We don't want the type of people William Shatner parodied on "Saturday Night Live," people who live only for gaming.'

game player

Battlemech figurines such as this griffin are used in futuristic board games.

GAMES

They're really on a roll

Game players of all kinds are expected in Southfield Friday for Michicon '87, an annual convention for people who like to play games.

There will be gamers of all ages. Monopoly, Stratego and other easy-to-play games are available for younger players. For the older gamers, there are Advanced Squad Leader and Advanced Dungeons and Dragons.

Trivial Pursuit and chess also will be played. Almost all gamers began playing board games when they were young.

"I got started sort of gradually, through a process of osmosis. I started playing the simple games back in 1970, when I was 11, and it just sort of mushroomed," said Richard White of West Bloomfield.

"I'M NOT a fanatical gamer, but I still enjoy gaming," White, at 28, is editor of "The Deck of Many Things," a local bimonthly gaming publication. "Gaming is a place for people who don't do drugs."

But many people stop gaming when they graduate from college and get a job.

"They think they're mature and that, as adults, fun is not allowed," White said.

Others stay with gaming. "I found Gettysburg and Tactics II at Hudson's when I was in high school," said Mike Bartnikowski, a junior high school teacher in Highland Park.

"I've been playing for 20 years. Gaming is still satisfying for many of the same reasons it was when I started."

Matt Kiriazis of Canton Township learned about games when teenage friends showed him games that depended on strategy, not the luck of the dice. He became more involved at Wayne State University.

"I USED to play cards with friends in college when one day I took in a gaming magazine. One of the guys said, 'Hey, let me look at that. You play war games, too?'"

"In the late '60s, it was very fashionable to be pacifistic and anti-war, so you had to hide your interest in war games."

Games need not be competitive and militaristic. Role-playing games demand cooperation. One player doesn't even get to play; he is the game master, who tells the other players where they are and what they have encountered.

Many games can be played solo, much as a chess player would try to solve a white-mates-in-two-moves problem.

"WINNING IS NOT a real important part of it," Bartnikowski said. "You attack games as a type of problem-solving exercise. And it's an exercise in socializing. There are some people we don't play games with anymore; we just socialize."

Please turn to Page 4

How you can get into the games

So where can you buy one of these offbeat games? A few stores specialize in board games, and many stores carry some games. But very few used games turn up at garage sales.

Role-playing games and their books frequently appear in paperback book stores. Board games can be found at almost any department or discount store. But the real aficionados frequently end up at one of the following stores:

Alcove Hobby Shop, 2424 N. Woodward, Royal Oak. 569-0744. All types of board and role-playing games and miniatures.

Comic Kingdom Hobby, 13600 Gratiot, Detroit. 527-5642. All types of board and role-playing games and miniatures.

Classic Movie and Comic Center, 19047 Middlebelt, Livonia. 476-1254. Fantasy role-playing games.

Gags and Games, 17134 Farmington Road, Livonia. 261-5740.

Jinski's Hobby Store, 45624 Van Dyke, Utica. 731-3066. Board and role-playing games and miniatures.

Joe's Hobbies, 105 S. Livernois, Rochester Hills. 651-8842.

Mach-kit Shoppe, 10505 Seven Mile, Detroit. 862-5389.

RC Hobbies, 921 W. Huron, Pontiac. 881-1441.

A&B Hobbies, 29068 N. Campbell, Madison Heights. 547-2381. Role-playing games.

If you are looking for players, try one of the following:

Detroit Gaming Center in Detroit. 833-3016.

Tri-County Gaming Center in Ferndale. 546-6900.

Wish you were here

These two little hombres hail from south of the border — south of the Southfield-Birmingham border.

They are Jordan Gruber, 3½, and his brother Joshua, 7, on holiday with their parents, Avi and Abby Gruber of Southfield.

The Grubers were vacationing in February in sunny southern California, which was anything but sunny.

"We were in San Diego for a week, and it was a rainy, cold week," Abby Gruber said. "The one nice day we had was in Tijuana. We had a ball there."

The photograph was taken at a Tijuana shop where Jordan and Joshua were trying on ponchos and sombreros.

Crazy . . . like a Foxx

DJ has a zany touch

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Morning radio: A plethora of hard news, information and music woven together and delivered in expedient fashion.

Michael J. Foxx, morning DJ at WHYT-FM, obviously believes in giving his listeners the hard info with the music.

Why else would he be soliciting information from the listening audience about the most important question of the day: Where is the teeny bopper rock group Bon Jovi staying while in Detroit?

Sure enough, in the style of Edward R. Murrow, Foxx gets the info. The group (as a call to their manager later confirms) is holed up at the Dearborn Hyatt Regency. The lead singer, Jon Bon Jovi, is under the handle of Butch Cassidy.

As a public service, Foxx passes the news along to his listeners.

Foxx even decides to call Jon Bon Jovi once again at 9:20 a.m. His previous phone call that morning was cut short when the person on the other end, presumably Jon himself, hung up. The phone rings and it's picked up. There is silence.

"COMON JON, talk to me," pleaded Foxx, who lives in Southfield. "We play your damn record three times a day. . . . If you don't talk to us, we're not going to play your records any more."

No luck. Silence prevails.

Another try later finds the line busy.

Welcome to the Burn Your Buns portion of the Power 96 Morning Zoo. Every one from Larry King to Ruth Westheimer is fair game.

"We woke up Dr. Ruth one time," he said between calls. "She was real upset."

Next morning, all is forgiven with Bon Jovi. Foxx and the Morning Zoo bought breakfast for them and had it sent to their rooms.

It seems almost like radio sacrilege having a madcap DJ like Foxx in the same building as Jimmy Lounce, J.P. McCarthy and Hal Youngblood. WHYT and WJR are sister stations.

LEGENDS DON'T appear to impress Foxx. He'll even take a swipe at his radio dial neighbor, Dick Purtan.

"I think his show is really boring," Foxx said. "I guess his show tries to be the Johnny Carson of morning shows. We try to be the David Letterman."

The show bears resemblance to the wacky late night host's in a few ways. To go along with the wake-up calls, there is fun poked at celebrities and general banter between Foxx and his partners, Lisa "Lisa Dee" Dillon of Farmington Hills, Rick "Captain Rick" Jaeger and Tamara Nelson.

The tools of his zany trade are the latest copies of the National Enquirer, GQ and Rolling Stone.

A major difference is that Foxx's show is in

"We woke up Dr. Ruth one time. She was real upset."

— Michael J. Foxx
WHYT DJ

the morning. He gets up at 3:30 a.m., only two hours after Letterman's show has ended.

He doesn't mind rising before the sun, though.

"I THINK it's a really fun job," he said. "A lot of people have jobs that they hate. I feel fortunate I have a job that I like."

And like to the point where his resume reads like a road map. He's had stints in Baltimore, San Jose, Sacramento, San Antonio and Columbus, Ohio, before arriving in Detroit in January.

"I've never been fired," he pointed out.

Rick Gillette, the program director at WHYT, was one of the major reasons for his coming to the competitive Detroit market. The two worked together in Sacramento.

"I like Detroit . . . because there is a lot of energy," he said.

There's also a lot of energy in being a morning DJ. Foxx hardly sits still for a minute during his shift, changing tapes and answering phone calls.

"I WANTED to be a singer," he said, recalling how he got into the radio business. "I didn't have the voice to be a singer. But I had a deep voice and thought I could make big bucks as a DJ."

Actually," he added later, tongue firmly planted in cheek, "I used to work the two-way (public address system) at McDonald's. I figured if I had the voice for the two-way at McDonald's, I could be a DJ."

Foxx can also know a question before it is asked.

"The name? I take (grief) about that," he said, referring to the similarity in handles with actor Michael J. Fox. "For one thing, mine has two Xs in it. Apparently, that's not his real name either."

"It works out in the end. People remember it."

Listeners have a memory for morning radio names, mainly because DJs are the first thing to assault the mind in the day. Apparently, Foxx does it well.

The station has moved from a 4.4 to a 5.2 share from January to March in the Detroit Arbitron ratings.

"People driving to work are usually by themselves for 20-30 minutes," he said. "It's like having the DJ in the car next to you."

Or in Jon Bon Jovi's case, ringing right in your ear.

His new record "Sixteen with a Bullet" may finally win Scott Morgan the respect he deserves.

The record's about teen shootings in Detroit. Because those shootings are a national news story, the record has drawn attention from Cable News Network and Rolling Stone, among others.

"What I tried to do is get rid of the stereotypes," said Morgan from his Ann Arbor home.

The song, in the hard Detroit-rock mode Morgan helped pioneer with his late-'60s band the Rationals, ends on a chilling note:

*It doesn't really matter
Who was wrong or right
No it sure don't matter
Who was black or white
Sixteen with a bullet
In the cold hard ground
It's not the way they planned it
Now they're glory bound.*

"That probably sums it up," Morgan says. "They had everything going for them, they were glory bound. Then towards the end, they were glory bound in the worst way."

If you're under 30, you probably haven't heard of Morgan or the Rationals, the Detroit band he fronted in the late '60s. If you're over 30, chances are you remember their local hit "Respect."

"They had everything going for them, they were glory bound. Then towards the end, they were glory bound in the worst way."

— Scott Morgan
on the teens who were shot

THE RATIONALS' version moved Aretha Franklin to do the song, considered one of her classics.

Rock critic Dave Marsh, whose second biography of Bruce Springsteen is a current top seller, once called Morgan "the boy wonder of soul." Grande Ballroom goers of the late '60s will tell you Morgan was the finest singer among Detroit rockers of the day, who included Bob Seger, Iggy and The Stooges and MC5.

While the Rationals never landed a national record deal, Morgan's next chance at rock 'n' roll fame came in the late '60s. That's when Blood, Sweat and Tears asked him to join as lead singer.

But he turned them down, opting to stick with the Rationals.

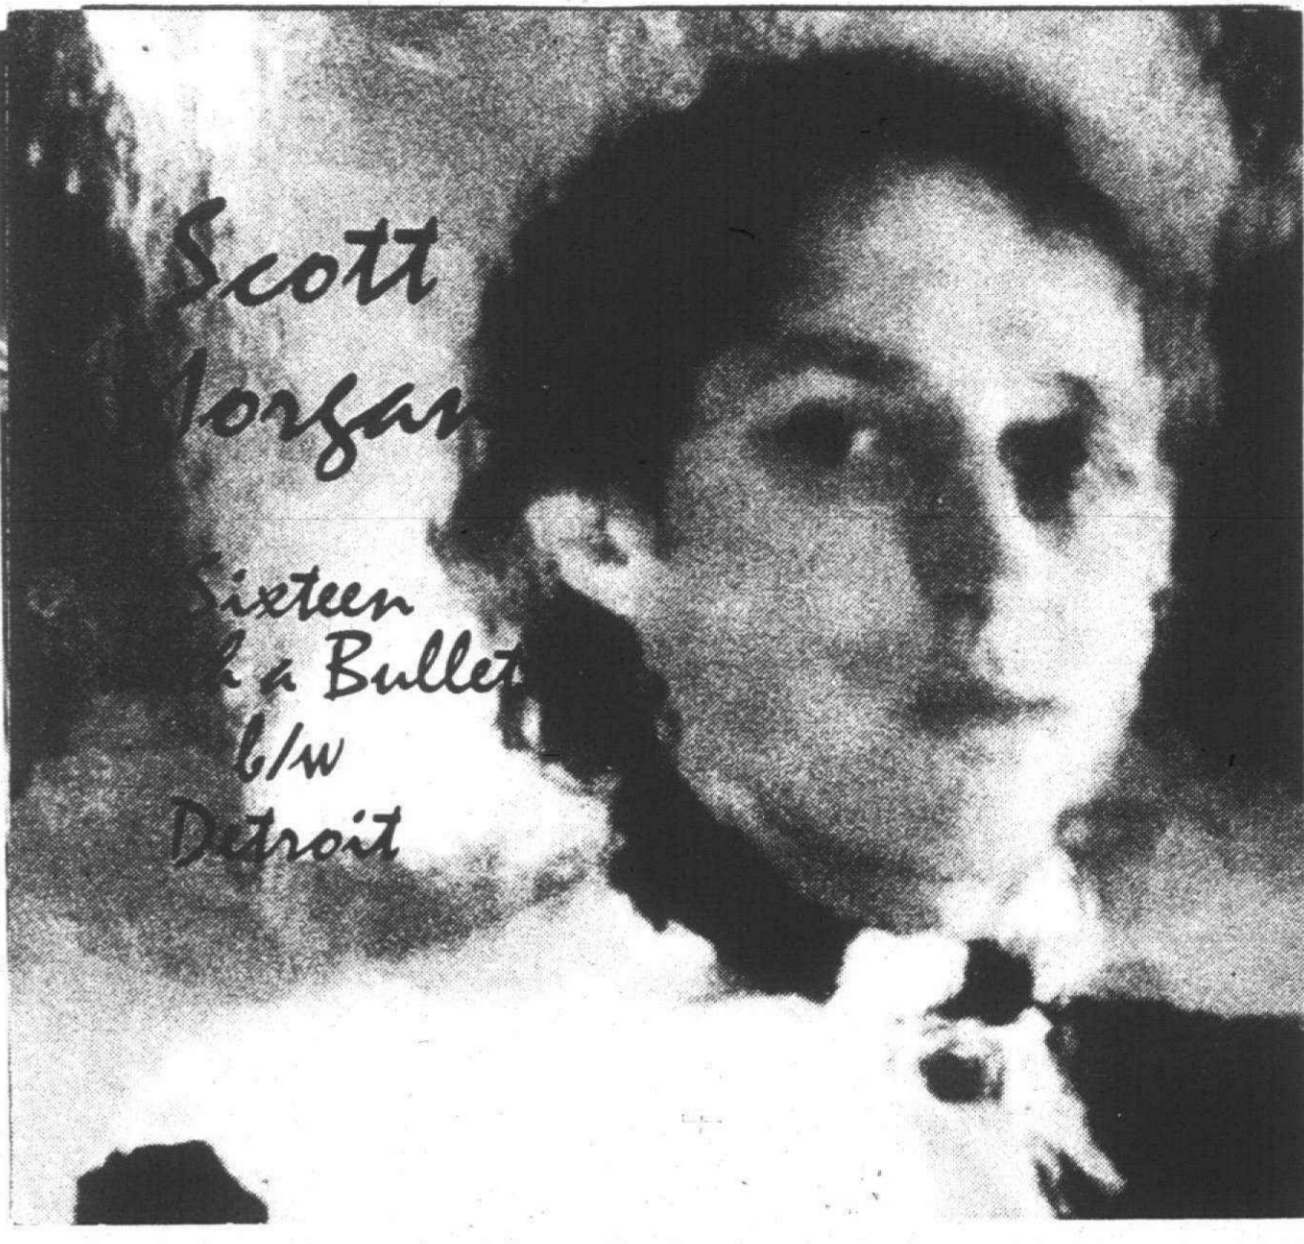

So instead, David Clayton Thomas got to hang the gold records on his wall. And Morgan continued in relative obscurity.

In the mid '70s-early '80s, Morgan sang with ex-MC5 guitarist Fred "Sonic" Smith in Sonic's Rendezvous Band. Many locals will tell you the band was great — well-crafted original songs, pounding drums and thrashing guitars. But they broke up when Smith married rock star Patti Smith and lost interest in the band.

WHEN SOMEONE says "Sixteen" sounds a little like Sonic's Rendezvous, Morgan laughs. "Well, there's three-fourths of Sonic's Rendezvous on it."

Backing Morgan on drums is Scott "Rock Action" Ashton, original drummer with Iggy and The Stooges. Bassist Gary Rasmussen who plays on the single, recently backed Patti and Fred Smith during New York recording sessions. Kathy Deschaine adds backing vocals.

The news media attention the song has drawn is new for Morgan. "Yeah, that strikes me as real strange. But I kind of suspected it might happen."

Originally, "Sixteen" was started as a song for another band, sparked by a story of a shooting at a Detroit party store. Following more reports of teen violence, Morgan finished and recorded the song last summer in Ann Arbor.

RELEASED IN APRIL on Jukebox Records, it's carried by the Harmony House chain and other local outlets.

Harmony House buyer Roy Burkheart said the record has sold more than 30 copies since the chain decided to carry it a few weeks ago.

"That's pretty good for a local single with a limited amount of airplay," said Burkheart, who recalls Morgan's work with other area bands.

The lack of local airplay puzzles Morgan. "The weirdest thing to me is there's so much press, and nobody's playing the record," he says, except for WDET disc jockey Dave Dixon.

"Being a local legend in New York wouldn't be any better than in Detroit."

— Scott Morgan
ex-member of the Rationals

Currently, Morgan's lawyer is contacting major record labels to negotiate a deal for "Sixteen."

Asked why he's never beat the traditional path to New York or Los Angeles in search of success, Morgan laughs. "Being a local legend in New York wouldn't be any better than in Detroit," he says.

He offers more reasons for the near-misses that mark his music career. "It's frustrating. It's partly being where we are. Detroit's a big city, one of the five biggest in the country, but it's not a media center."

"And it's probably partly me, partly the people we've done business with, partly people I've played with."

Morgan said the band is trying to play around in support of the record.

In April, they played a record release show at The Roostertail in Detroit. On June 4, another record release show was held at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor.

In the meantime, Morgan said the band may record an album for Jukebox Records, including "Sixteen," the flip side, "Detroit," some new songs and some Sonic's Rendezvous classics.

How to halt sexual advances

Dear Joan:

What is the difference between a sexual advance and sexual harassment? The company I work for has outdated attitudes on appropriate behavior of managers toward employees of the opposite sex, in my opinion.

In some ways the company is progressive in promoting women to executive positions, but then the lack of knowledge concerning appropriate behavior of male managers toward their female employees negates those efforts of progressive practices.

Is there some way I can bring this to the top level's attention?
D.C., Waterford

Sexual advances are not sexual harassment. Sexual harassment involves threats and bribes for sexual favors in exchange for your job. The type of incidents you mentioned in deleted portions of your letter constitute sexual advances and downright obnoxious behavior on the part of a manager toward the women in his department.

A woman in any job situation today, whether the lowest on the organizational chart or the highest ranking woman in the company, has the right to object to such behavior loud and clear!

The first step is to make your objections known directly to the offender, one on one. Tell him you will not tolerate being pushed up against the wall when he slides into your booth next to you, or his suggestive remarks.

You needn't worry about being fired for not going along with insulting behavior. Have a letter from your local chapter of NOW with you at all times. The letter will state the kind of treatment a woman does not have to tolerate. Show this to the person who seems to be operating on some very outdated ideas.

It could be the guy is just downright dumb, and you will be doing him a favor by broadening his education. This approach applies to the male who is receiving unwanted advances from the female manager as well.

Dear Joan:

The company I work for has brought in a new managing director, and I work closely with this person. The first few times the new manager made changes in procedures, I called attention to the past manager's success with the established way of doing things.

I have since noticed a cooling in attitude toward me from this new managing director. Did I do something wrong in calling attention to the past procedures and their success? If so, how can I correct this career error?

Never but never refer to past management's superior works to the new management! That is a lesson that every business college graduate should be tested on before going out into the real world.

There is an expression, "New broom, clean sweep," which applies to the new management approach of hassle-free changes in company policies. Many times a new director will bring in his/her own people for just this reason.

Management wants people loyal to their methods around them. You can repair your relationship with the new managing director by mentioning as often as seems polite that his/her methods have made positive changes throughout the company more rapidly than anything you've ever seen before.

Look for the positive in this new person, innovative changes usually are beneficial for a company and the employees. Your praise will be sincere because you did not mean to offend by mentioning the past management's methods.

Now you know why the loyal subjects of kingdoms past would shout, "The King is dead, long live the King!"

House wren returns to the roost.

Birds just wing it to find way home

All the birds that will breed in southeastern Michigan have now arrived from their wintering grounds and are nesting. Some species, such as the cardinals, chickadees, and nuthatches, remain here all winter and begin nesting early in the season.

Others, such as the northern oriole, scarlet tanager, and house wren, arrived from wintering grounds in Central America, Peru, and Texas.

They fly north during the night at about 40 miles per hour. Depending on the weather conditions, they flew at an elevation of about 4,000 feet. On clear nights birds fly higher than on cloudy overcast nights.

DURING THE DAY, they rest, feed, and wait for favorable weather conditions before continuing their journey. Their flight north in spring is usually rushed because it is to their advantage to get to the breeding area as soon as possible. Males want to get first choice of the best breeding territories.

Birds are also able to detect the Earth's magnetic field and use it in orientation. There may even be other mechanisms that we have not discovered yet.

When you see your back-yard migrants return each year, you can marvel at their ability to travel such distances and to orient to the same area year after year.

those adults will return back to the same area to raise their young.

Even before we learned that individual birds return to the same area year after year, man has been intrigued by the phenomenon of bird migration. How do the birds find their way from South America all the way to your back yard?

It has been determined from banding studies that most birds return to the area where they were raised. So the wren that has been nesting in your back yard for the last couple of years is likely to be the same wren. Young raised by

Our ROAD RALLY

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

The Turkovichs — Dan, Carol, Robert and Marilou — and the Borowiecs finished first even though they couldn't remember the name of that popular Hawaiian singer.

The Winkler van finished second even though they remembered Don "Tiny Bubbles" Ho.

The Winkler van had expected to win. As they approached the finish line, a restaurant parking lot, the Winklers and the Suzios felt certain no one was ahead of them. They had solved those clues and followed that trail. They approached the finish line an hour earlier than expected.

But when they pulled into the parking lot, feeling that victory tingle, they saw the Turkovich van. The Winkler van would have to settle for second best.

AND SO IT goes with road rallies. Sometimes you got it, sometimes you don't.

On this day the Turkovichs and the Borowiecs had it.

What they got was $75. What they did was finish first in the Laurel Park II subdivision's first road rally.

Laurel Park II is a Livonia subdivision of 220 homes. Twenty-two cars — vans, actually, were preferred — and 105 people took part in the rally. Each vehicle had to have at least one Laurel Park native.

Each vehicle also had: a roll of toilet paper, a dictionary, a phone book, an almanac and, hopefully, some quick-thinking occupants.

This rally sent participants on a route of 10-20 miles. Each van had to solve a clue that led to a particular destination. That destination led to the next clue, which led to the next destination. And so it went.

ROAD RALLIES or treasure hunts or scavenger hunts as they are also known are popular in the Detroit area. The popularity may involve the native's fascination/obsession with anything automotive. More simply, it may have to do with the native appreciation of a good time.

And these road ralliers did have a good time. At the restaurant near the finish line, pizza was served to all 110 ralliers, even those brought in by search parties.

They talked of the clue that required ralliers to measure a chain link gate with toilet paper. It measured 59 sheets.

Rick Borowiec, who drove the Turkovich van, said a little experience and a lot of teamwork helps. He had participated in about six rallies previously. The van carried Rick's wife Pat, along with Dan and Carol Turkovich of Farmington, and Robert and Marilou Turkovich, who live in Laurel Park II.

Here we are celebrating at Buddy's after the road rally. We all won, and we sure had fun doing it!!

Dan and Robert are brothers, and Carol and Marilou are sisters. Teamwork.

"We clicked on all the clues," said Borowiec. The crew divided up the clues to expedite things.

THE WINKLER VAN contained driver Doris and Steve Winkler, Paul and Pat Suzio, and Rich Gilbertson.

All five live in the subdivision. The Winklers and the Gilbertsons met when Doris Winkler backed her car out of the driveway and into a car parked in front of the Gilbertson's house.

Gilbertson is president of the Laurel Park II homeowners association. His wife, Ann Marie, is part of the very active social committee that set up the rally.

"I swear to God I don't know the answers," Rich Gilbertson said. Rocco Iacobellis, former homeowners' association president, didn't believe Gilbertson.

The Winkler van worked together, too. "It was really funny," said Steve Winkler. "Everyone contributed. Everyone knew this or that."

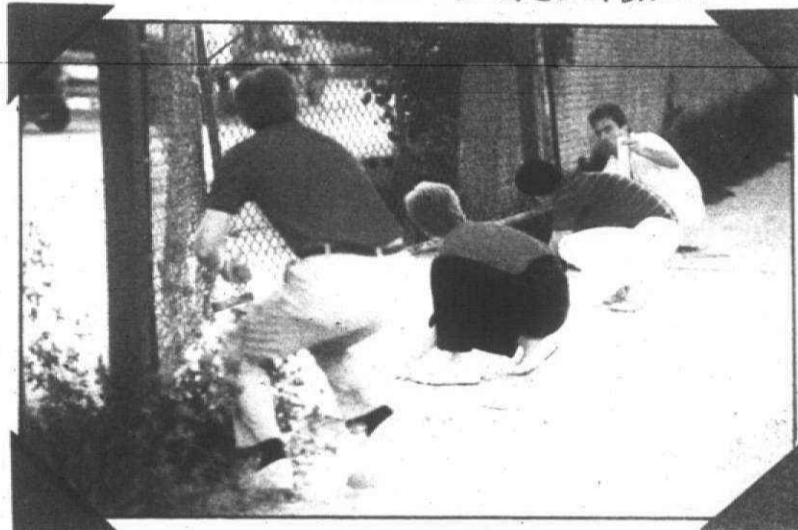

But despite the teamwork and Gilbertson's acumen, the Winkler van's second-place finish didn't hold. They took shortcuts involving clues, and the scorekeepers subtracted points.

The Winkler van didn't win first prize. Gilbertson did win a bottle of wine raffled off at the restaurant. Rocco Iacobellis became even more suspicious.

Iacobellis didn't win anything but he said he'd be on the road rally next year.

Our intrepid group in search of clues... Ann Bawol, Tom & Diane Koch, Paul & Brenda McDevitt and John Bawol — what a crew!

This was crazy! That's Steve Winkler, Pat Suzio, Rich Gilbertson and Paul Suzio measuring the plant gate — with toilet paper!

You can have one too!

John Alf would rather be treasure hunting.

"I've been going on them since 1970," said Alf, who lives in Livonia.

He was once on a treasure hunt that finished in Cleveland, and another that began at Livonia Stevenson High School and finished in Grayling.

During treasure hunts, or the similar road rallies, participants in teams and in cars try to solve puzzling clues that reveal the hunt's route. An average hunt has about 10 stops and ends up at a restaurant. The first car to reach the finishing point wins and often must organize the next rally.

BUT ALF, you see, is not the average treasure hunter.

He is a member of United States Treasure Hunters Inc. and is quick to point out the group's acronym is USTHInc (sounds like "us think"). The THInc-ers are dedicated not to proper grammar and usage but to the preservation of their pastime. They send out a newsletter listing upcoming hunts.

USTHInc also published a book aptly titled "Guide to Treasure Hunting." The book gives sample clues and offers tips to solve them. The book also lists some tips on successful hunting.

Alf teaches short classes as part of the Plymouth and Livonia adult education programs. As in the book, he tells those who enroll the mechanism of the hunt — how to organize one, and how to solve the clues.

THE TREASURE HUNT is a social activity with a dash of competition, according to Alf. Organizing one can be difficult. The secret is in the clues. They can be neither too easy nor too difficult. The mixture must be just right.

"Anybody could come up with impossible clues; that's not the point. No one would have fun then, including the organizers."

Alf doesn't know how many hunts he's been on. It's a tough question, he says. He remembers the first, though.

His wife told him about a hunt neighbors were organizing. He wasn't excited by the idea but begrudgingly took part.

"Actually I found it enjoyable," he said. "I guess you could say I was snakebit."

HUNTS ARE especially popular here. Alf has helped organize them for churches, civic associations and other groups.

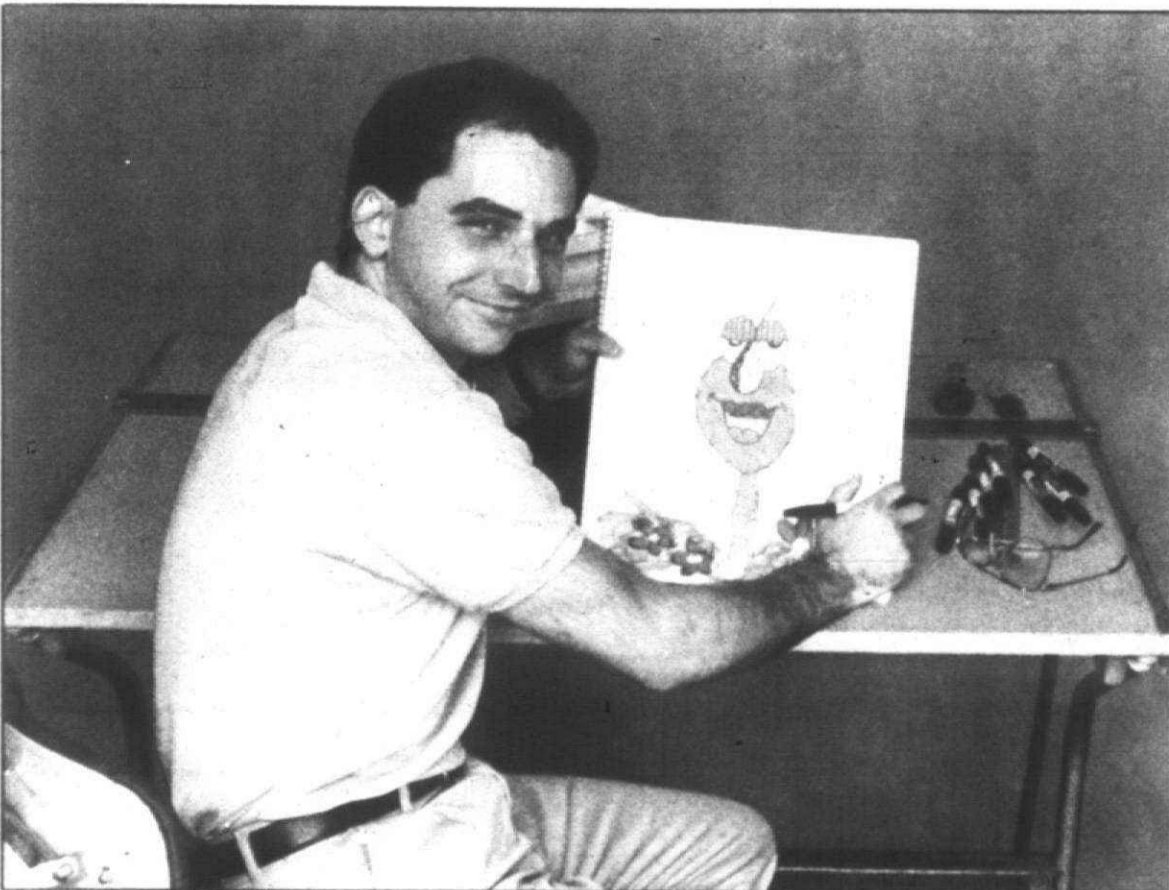

You can get copies of the book "Guide to Treasure Hunting" or get on USTHInc's mailing list by writing to: USTHInc, P.O. Box 633, Northville 48167.

Doris and Steve Winkler trying to crack those clues.

We put the toilet paper to good use later to celebrate at the finish. Doris Winkler, Pat and Paul Suzio got all wrapped up in it.

Cartoonist Neal Levin and his creation Grumblecord send their greetings to Street Scene readers.

Meet Grumblecord

By Richard Lech
staff writer

Grumblecord makes his debut this week in Street Scene.

What, you may ask, is a Grumblecord?

We can safely say that he is the star of one of two cartoons that are making their first appearance in Street Scene this week.

But as for further details, we'll leave those up to Grumblecord's creator, Birmingham cartoonist Neal Levin.

"Grumblecord is an animal called a Garblemidon," Levin explains. "Obviously this is not a real animal. It springs entirely from my imagination."

"The name Grumblecord refers to two things. 'Grumble' refers to his expression and personality. 'Cord' refers to his tail.

"Grumblecord is often grouchy and complains a lot, but he has a bright side as well. His personality will come out more in this strips. He is often confused by the modern world, and his goal is to make sense out of today's society."

Grumblecord's world, for the present, has two other residents: Harrison the hare and a turtle named Rushmore.

LEVIN, 23, has always had an interest in drawing but has been cartooning for only six years. A 1981 graduate of Bloomfield Hills Andover High School, Levin took up cartooning while attending the University of Michigan.

"I learned how to cartoon on my own, mainly by practicing," Levin said. "My specialty is drawing animal characters, and I have created about 200 of them, although only a few are well developed in terms of having a personality."

His first cartoon character was a walrus named Walton. His comic strip "PHISH," about a fish who teaches school (a school of fish, of course), ran for the past two years in the student newspaper at U-M-Dearborn.

Grumblecord first saw the light of day three years ago this month.

"I was sitting at my desk scribbling the way people sometimes do when they're talking on the phone, and a cartoon character resulted!

"This is not uncommon for me, and many of my characters are created this way. I liked the way this specific character looked and drew him a few more times, revising him a bit with each drawing."

While polishing up Grumblecord, Levin was finishing up his education. He graduated from U-M-Dearborn in 1985 with a bachelor's degree in psychology and went on to get an elementary teaching certificate and became certified in December.

WHEN NOT putting pen to paper, Levin is a substitute teacher in the Birmingham, Farmington and Bloomfield Hills school districts, mostly at the middle school level.

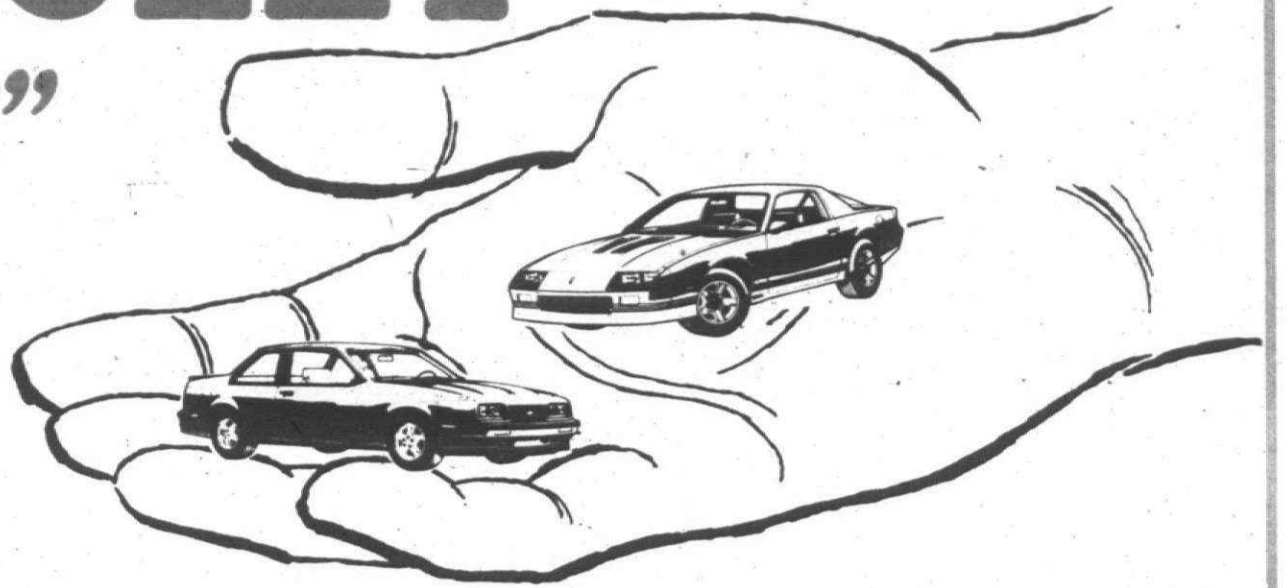

He will be spending his summer at Camp Walden in northern Michigan, teaching cartooning and editing the camp newspaper.

But while his creator's up at camp, Grumblecord will be camped right here, just for the fun of it.

(The creators of R.U. Syrus, our other new comic strip, will be profiled in an upcoming issue.)
