The Canton Connection

Counseling program launched

Canton Family Services will begin Jan. 15 providing support for people needing crisis intervention, counseling or family and marital help.

The program is sponsored by Canton Community Foundation in cooperation with the Catholic Social Services of Wayne County and Family Services Detroit and Wayne County and funding assistance from the United Way of Southeastern Michigan.

The services will be provided in the office of the Canton Community Foundation, 44958 Ford Road. Canton residents should call 454-5428.

Spelling bee planned

The Canton Rotary Literacy Committee will sponsor the Second Annual Community Spelling Bee at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 14, in the Canton High School Little Theatre on Canton Center Road.

The event is a friendly competition between corporate sponsored three-person teams. Registration is limited to the first 20 teams that complete the registration form and turn it in with a $100 registration fee.

Registration forms will be available Feb. 15 from local supporters and Community Literacy Council Inc.

Proceeds from this event will benefit local literacy efforts, including the Community Literacy Council Inc., which is a non-profit community based organization that offers free volunteer tutors to adults who want to improve their reading.

For more information call the council at 451-6555.

Emily Pirronello, 12, a Canton resident and a member of the Garden City Figure Skating Club, is attending the national competition for figure skating. The competition is being held Jan. 4-12 in Orlando, Fla.

Pirronello skates on a novice level pairs team. Her partner is Brent Echols of Pontiac. The team made it to the nationals by placing second overall at the regional competition and then placing second overall again at the recent Midwestern Sectional competition in Lakewood, Ohio.

Pirronello attends Canton's Lowell Middle School and is in the seventh grade. This will be her first national competition.

Dinner auction planned

Reservations and checks for the 1991 Canton Chamber of Commerce Dinner/Auction at 6 p.m. Jan. 25 at Fellows Creek Golf Club need to be in the chamber office by Jan. 15.

The money the chamber makes on the auction will go into a building fund, annual scholarship for an area college business student and for chamber daily operating expenses.

In other chamber news, Hazen Hiller of Master Lighting has been named the 1992 president.

"Our mission for the chamber remains the same: to provide leadership in the development of a healthy business through public relations, promotion of civic pride, advocacy efforts, educational programs and other opportunities," Hiller said in a newsletter column.

Land swap angers home owners

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Proposed new school district lines in southwest Canton could mean higher taxes and a lower resale value for Joe Valerio and other residents who would be affected by redistricting.

"I don't want my taxes to be raised and the value of my property to go down," Valerio said.

His land is in the Plymouth-Canton School District and if a new plan goes through his property would be in the Van Buren Township School District.

THE LAND swap would include about 260 acres in the Plymouth-Canton district for about 80 acres in the Van Buren system.

In Plymouth-Canton taxpayers pay 33.5 mills or $1,340 annually for a home valued at $80,000 compared to 47 mills or $1,880 annually for the same Van Buren house.

The land swap involves Canton's long proposed golf course project that incorporates a residential area.

Developers want the entire project in the Plymouth-Canton district. However, plans call for building 150 houses valued at $200,000 on 80 acres in the Van Buren district.

Plymouth's Pama Investments developer Genesio Masciulla owns the 80 acres and he wants the land in the Plymouth-Canton school district. If the school lines are redrawn about 15 Canton property owners will be affected.

Loren Bennett appeared at a Van Buren Township Board of Education meeting to promote the switch. Yack said he hasn't talked to the property owners about the possible change.

THEY WERE accompanied by Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann, who is also a private attorney representing Masciulla.

Amann denied a possible conflict of interest between jobs.

"Rules of professional responsibility require that I can't deal with anything that has a conflict with the governmental body," Amann said. "At no point at any time could there be involvement (by the county commission). There's no potential for a conflict."

Yack said he wants to see the school district lines changed to straighten boundaries. Canton's third school district is Wayne-Westland.

"I'm more concerned about that as a neighborhood," Yack said. "And that the kids all attend the same schools and that it creates a cohesiveness. There's beginning signs of problems in a couple of subdivisions divided by

Plymouth logs no new year babies

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Detroit had its first baby. So did Canton and lots of other towns.

But as of Friday afternoon — 2½ days into the new year — there were no Plymouth births to report.

We checked with St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. We called St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti. And we called Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn and Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

Sorry, they said. No Plymouth babies.

Is there a reason?

According to the reference desk at the Dunning-Hough Library, the median age of folks in Plymouth and Plymouth Township was projected at 34.7 years for 1990 and 36.3 for 1995.

That is a bit older than the U.S. median age, which census figures pegged at 32.6 years in 1989.

Also, consider that the median age in the U.S. for women who give birth is 26.2 years. Again, that's several years younger than the average Plymouth resident.

So, Plymouth's increasing age could be a factor.

But surely, other factors could be working here.

On the one hand, you might think that old-fashioned Plymouth is conducive to romance, evidenced by the many wedding chapels and bridal salons here.

But could the placid charm and quiet quaintness of Plymouth cast a wet blanket upon thoughts of romance and consummation of same, required to produce babies?

We'll continue to follow this story.

Canton mom delivers New daughter is first born locally in '92

By Diane Gale
staff writer

While the rest of us were ringing in a new year at 12:01 Jan. 1, the Carollo family of Canton was anticipating a new life.

In fact when their daughter, Angela Marie Carollo, was delivered at 7:08 a.m., weighing in at 9 pounds and 4 ounces, she was the first baby of the year to be born at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

The next day her father, Anthony, bounced her 16-month-old brother, Anthony, on his lap, and said: "Two down and three to go."

His wife, Lisa, added: "I wanted six and he wanted five. We both come from big families and we're both very family oriented."

At 11 p.m. New Years Eve, Lisa Carollo began contractions right on schedule with her due date.

After two hours of active labor Angela Marie, named after a character on "Who's the Boss," was born.

"She's got some long feet," Lisa Carollo said. "She's really alert and she's an eater."

ONE OF Anthony's hopes for his daughter is that "she stays healthy."

Area police say 'scissor' law speeds punishment

By Diane Gale

Canton and Plymouth police have added scissors to their arsenal against drunk drivers.

A new law gives police officers across Michigan the right to start cutting up licenses of drivers pulled over with blood alcohol levels above the legal limit.

And only 40 minutes into the new year, Plymouth Township police cut up the license of a 24-year-old Novi man, stopped after making an illegal

After the officer noticed an odor of liquor, the man was given a field sobriety test to test his reflexes. He failed portions of the test, the incident report stated. The man then refused a breath test, and was arrested and jailed on suspicion of drunk driving.

THEN JUST 18 MINUTES later, a 21-year-old Ypsilanti man was spotted by a Plymouth Township officer driving through a red light on Ann Arbor Road near I-275.

After making a traffic stop, the officer could smell a "moderate odor of intoxicants," and administered a field sobriety test.

Like the earlier driver, he failed parts of the test and was seen swaying while standing, the incident report continued. A breath test put his blood alcohol level at .125, above the .1 level denoting legal drunkenness, and the man was arrested and charged with drunk driving.

It was one hour after the new law went into effect that a Canton offi-

Psychics bomb, so writer takes a try

NATIONAL ENQUIRER, the weekly tabloid on the supermarket stands, each year reports the predictions of psychics. The predictions make entertaining reading, but how good are they? Old manie that I am, I saved The Enquirer's edition of Jan. 1, 1991. Eliminating things like the divorces of sitcom stars, here's what was predicted for public affairs.

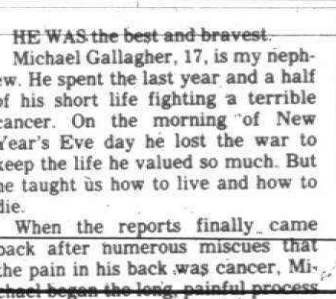

Tim Richard

"FLORENCE VATY, the Los Angeles psychic who predicted Donald Nixon's resignation, foresees the world's worst oil spill will occur in the Persian Gulf this spring when two tankers collide." "Lou Wright, the Denver psychic who predicted the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II, foresees: "New gene-engineered pets will appear — and the first ones will be tigers the size of kittens." "An air disaster will kill hundreds of vacationers on the way to Hawaii in March. A public uproar will then force the government to make stiffer safety rules for airlines." "Clarissa Bernhardt, the California psychic famed for her uncanny earthquake predictions, says that in the coming year: "The much-heralded earthquake that was supposed to hit Missouri in December (1990) will actually strike next fall (1991)." "St. Louis seer Beverly Jaegers, whose amazingly accurate stock market predictions have confounded experts, predicts: "After years of being the nation's No. 1 exercise guru, Jane Fonda will fall in love with gourmet food and pack on 40 pounds." "One of the world's richest oil fields will be discovered in the northeastern U.S., giving the American economy a tremendous shot in the arm." "Jackie Onassis will stun her family by announcing that she'll wed a third time — to a man 15 years her junior!" "SHAWN ROBERTS, the New York psychic who has amazed experts with her accurate economic forecasts, predicts: "Sen. Ted Kennedy will reunite with ex-wife Joan after he is hospitalized with a temporary heart rhythm problem." "John Monti, the New York psychic who foresaw the shooting of President Reagan, predicts: "Fidel Castro's failing health will finally force the Cuban strongman out of office — and he'll be replaced by a woman." "An Omaha, Neb., woman will give birth to eight miracle babies after taking fertility drugs — and all will survive." "MARCIA GRACIETTE, the Los Angeles seer who foresaw the Manson murders, predicts:

Despite cancer, CC teen strove to do his best

Michael Gallagher

HE WAS the best and bravest. Michael Gallagher, 17, is my nephew. He died last year and a half of his short life fighting a terrible cancer. On the morning of New Year's Eve day he lost the war to keep the life he valued so much. But he taught us how to live and how to die.

When the reports finally came back after numerous misuses that the pain in his back was cancer, Michael began the long painful process of chemotherapy and radiation. But he determined that he would go on living. That meant he also wanted to continue striving for the best. He knew anger, fear and bitterness, but he also kept his sense of humor and his deep concern for others. The Plymouth Township teenager was a senior at Catholic Central in Redford Township where he excelled as a student and a debater. A table in his home testifies to his talents, numerous trophies, certificates and plaques from debating forums throughout the country. In his junior year he was captain of the highly regarded CC team. He was also a member of the National Honor Society and CC's Gabriel Richard Club, an academic honor.

THROUGH THE pain and inconvenience of his medical treatment, Michael continued to debate. The traveling was often wearing, but Michael leaned on the strong support of his family and friends to attend as many debates as possible and often showed strong performances with his well researched arguments and rapier wit. The wit came first. As a little boy, Michael wanted to be a stand up comedian. He would often inflict his routines on visiting relatives. The jokes were awful and his delivery won us over more for its sincerity than its timing. As he grew older his ambitions turned from comedy to the law, to follow the path set by his father. But the jokes got better. Michael was never one to let a chance go by to make a sharp comment. But his humor was always good natured and to the point. He might have had a career in stand up comedy after all. Imagination played a large role in

Homeless need help, not inmates

When these people are indeed sent to prison, is it actually meant to make them atone for their crimes? What kind of joke is this? Far too many of them go right back to their old ways within a year of freedom. What good is prison if it does not serve as a deterrent?

nevolent society that sent them there to "rehabilitate" and reflect on their wrongdoings? Hah! Who really pays for their crimes? Where does the state get the money to feed, clothe, and shelter the murderers, rapists, and drug dealers that exist like too many bloodsucking parasites on this society? Taxes. Our taxes.

There are many things that could be done with those hardened criminals that refuse to be rehabilitated. Put them to work at some back-breaking labor every day, make them pay for a percentage of the bill that they run up, and if that fails, execute them and be done with it.

State says teen parent ed isn't working

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan's $1.2 million investment in educating pregnant teens and teen parents has a poor payoff, according to a new state study.

The 104 state-funded programs have higher dropout rates than the state average.

"Over one-half of former students were reported to be on public assistance. Of the rest, one-third work only part time," said the Department of Education report.

The report got no coverage because the state Board of Education approved it the same day it hired Robert Schiller of Delaware as state superintendent of public instruction.

"WHEN TEENS Become Parents and Providers" is on its way to state legislators and local school districts.

One stunning conclusion was that 81 percent of local staffs said they could recognize "at risk" girls long before they became pregnant.

How? Half cited "provocative behaviors and dress" such as "seeking attention from male teachers through touching, hugging and keeping close physical proximity . . . excessive attention to appearance."

Half also cited "dysfunctional family backgrounds" — the girls came from single-parent families with unstable adult male relationships and abuse.

The situation is worsening, it said, because the second generation of teen parents has even worse prospects than their single mothers of the 1960s.

The study asked local districts to "give high priority to pregnancy prevention as a part of local dropout prevention programs."

They were asked to require annual reports on these programs, the same as for other academic programs under Public Act 25.

"Local school districts should assure that the academic program for pregnant and parenting teens is comparable to that provided for other students," the state recommended.

LAWMAKERS were asked to provide funds for the two-thirds of pregnant teens and teen parents not enrolled in programs, along with funds for better evaluations of the programs.

And lawmakers were asked to make reports on teen parent programs a mandatory part of PA 25.

Among the programs surveyed by the state staff were:

• Oakland County — Clarkston

STRIVE, Ferndale Adult & Continuing Education Teen Parent program, Huron Valley (Milford area) Alternative High School, Holly Young Parents Program, Madison Heights-Teens Improving Parenthood program, Southfield Program Services for Pregnant Adolescents, Walled Lake Teen Mothers Program, Pontiac Alternative High School.

• Wayne County — Garden City's Farmington School Alternative Education program, Detroit's Booth and Joffe schools and Teen Age Parent Education Center, Lincoln Park's Teenage Parent Alternative School.

The study was conducted by the Department of Education's office for sex-equity staff, which received a 98 percent return rate on a lengthy survey and visited several sites.

SOME 4,000 teens attend the alternative programs, with "little interaction" with other high school students.

The pregnant teens and teen parents — the latter includes some boys — take academic courses, a few unspecified vocational courses and lots of "life skills" — parenting, decision-making, interpersonal skills, nutrition, self-esteem, budgeting, job hunting, sex education and household management.

State observers saw few science labs, computer labs, electives or accelerated classes in the programs.

The report opens on a note of alarm: Births to unmarried women have "skyrocketed" from less than 4 percent in 1950 to more than 25 percent currently in the United States. The cost to U.S. taxpayers: $20 billion for Medicaid, ADC and food stamps.

"Nearly three-fourths of families headed by young single women with a high school diploma are living in poverty," and dropouts are "virtually guaranteed to be living in poverty."

Of the Michigan students, 56 percent were white, 37 percent black, 4 percent Hispanic, 3 percent Native American and 0.1 percent Asian.

The state report said pregnant teens and teen mothers have a higher dropout rate (34 percent) than the state average (26 percent), with half of former students winding up on public assistance.

Students had high expectations for professional jobs as accountants, engineers and lawyers, 42 percent of which expected to attain one or more college degrees. But in the jargon of the staff report: "The outcomes . . . are strikingly unlike the expectations of students."

Madonna honors sign language specialists

Two leaders in sign language research recently were awarded presidential citations by Madonna University President Sister Mary Francilene.

William Stokoe and Dennis Cokely were cited for their contributions to research and teaching and their active involvement in advocating sign language as a human right for deaf people throughout the world.

Sister Francilene acknowledged both individuals for "having enhanced the lives of thousands of men and women and having raised the level of understanding about the true nature of the deaf experience."

Stokoe is internationally known for his milestone books, "dictionary of American Sign Language" and "Sign and Culture." He also is editor of the journal, "Sign Language Studies" and has written numerous articles on deaf culture and linguistic aspects of sign language.

Cokely was recognized for his influence in the field of sign language interpreting and the development of videotape media for the instruction of sign language and deaf culture.

He is president of Sign Media Inc. and Linstock Press. Cokely has published "Interpretation, A Sociolinguistic Model."

Stokoe and Cokely were presenters at a two-day workshop last month at Madonna attended by more than 100 participants.

DOING BETTER BUT FEELING WORSE

The surgeon declares your hand, hip, or knee surgery a success, but you don't feel right. Since the operation, you have felt ill at ease, fretful, and concerned over your lack of progress.

You are not the victim of an unusual complication of the surgery, rather, you are experiencing post-operative depression. This is akin to post-traumatic reaction, or what follows in the recovery from stroke or a coronary by-pass operation. You mentally rebound from a serious breach of health. You came close to death or permanent personal helplessness, only after the event does the mind take in the danger at that time. You must replay the experience mentally until you can accept it emotionally; this process is not readily done, and can take from 12-18 months.

No anti-depressant medication helps, nor has group or individual therapy accelerated the process of accommodation. Trying to uplift yourself with mottos of cheer and faith is of small value. The mind, in an unconscious manner, recalls the serious events, and reworks your reactions until the anger and shock clear.

You should inform your family that such an unexpected result of "successful" arthritis surgery may occur. Others need remain patient and supportive until this inner wound, like the surgical incision, heals and fades.

Braves win battle of youthful teams

By Dan O'Meara, Staff writer

A pair of young basketball teams searching for stability in a still-young season began the New Year facing each other Friday night.

And Ypsilanti was the more successful team, stepping up its games in the second half to deal visiting Plymouth Salem a 61-52 defeat.

The Braves (3-2) accomplished the victory without star center Shannon Williams, a 6-foot-8 senior averaging 14 points and 10 rebounds. The discovery of a congenital defect in his spine will cause Williams to miss about two weeks, including Tuesday's game at Plymouth Canton.

"He has something wrong with one of the vertebrae," Ypsilanti coach Bob Rowley said. "It just happened to flare up now."

The Braves were still pretty good as junior guards Marlos Long and Keith Grant picked up the slack and combined for seven three-point field goals. Grant led Ypsilanti with 18 points, and Long was next with 15.

"KEITH GRANT came into his own," Rowley said. "He's been struggling. He's a good three-point shooter. He just hasn't been hitting them."

Ypsilanti matched up with the Rocks (2-2) on the boards without Williams. The Braves still had 6-6 Johnny Epps and 6-5 Ahmed Durham. Plus, 6-5 Chaz Robinson (six points) and James Johnson (seven points) had been little used reserves but came off the bench to complement the others.

Shannon was the only starter back from last year, so we're very inexperienced with Shannon," Rowley said. "If we hadn't had Shannon all year, we would have been a lot better tonight."

Salem got 14 points from sophomore James Head and 10 from senior Mike Abraham. John Flynn scored all seven of his points in the third quarter, and Eric Stemmer and Mike Slone added six apiece.

Head was scoreless in the middle quarters before finishing with 10 in the fourth. Abraham had eight of his points in the first half when the game was going well for the Rocks.

Salem was posting up its big men and scoring inside early in the game, taking a 17-12 lead in the second quarter.

BUT STEMMER and Head got three fouls in the first half and spent time on the bench. Then Ypsilanti, which led 27-25 at halftime, threw a press at the Rocks in the third quarter and widened the point differential with transition baskets and three-point shots.

"Our game plan was to take care of the tempo and slow it down," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "All of a sudden, we got into a piranha frenzy and wanted to shoot the basketball."

The Rocks were 4-of-16 from the field in the second quarter, 11-of-31 for the half and 22-of-57 overall. Ypsilanti made 23 of 51 field goals in the game.

"We broke down offensively," Brodie said. "We got some nice layups (in the first half), but it's a game of runs. They hit some threes and we got out of our game plan. They started pressuring us and we started to rush. It rattled us a bit. That's what a pressure is designed to do, and we didn't do a good job against it."

Because Ypsilanti still had some big players and the potential for an inside game, the Rocks couldn't over-compensate by guarding the perimeter, Brodie said.

"If they hadn't had any big players, (the loss of Williams) might have made a difference," he said. "Am I going to get beat by the three or the inside game? My philosophy is to contest as best you can and if they're hot (from outside) they're going to beat you."

SALEM WAS DOWN three points for most of the third quarter until the Braves scored the last 10 to lead 50-37 at the end. Head and Slone sank triples to start the fourth period as Salem got within six (50-44) before Epps and Grant scored to give the Ypsilanti offense a jump-start.

"Our goal is to improve and we improved since the Huron game," Brodie said. "We ran the same thing (then) and suddenly broke down. In this game, we only broke down for five or six minutes. Then we regrouped and had a chance at the end. I was pleased to see us come back like that."

Rocks test new offense

By Steve Kowalski, Staff writer

The Plymouth Salem volleyball team will go with one setter this year, employing a 5-1 offense instead of a 6-2.

Third-year co-coaches Brian Gilles and Allie Suffey are optimistic the new offense will help the Rocks earn another winning season.

Salem was 10-6-6 overall last year and will have to replace graduated outside hitters Amy Krajewski and Andrea Welling. Krajewski was an all-division choice a year ago.

"We started to run a quick offensive attack last year, with quick sets in the middle," Gilles said. "It's much easier for our hitters in that offense to adjust to one setter rather than someone else as well."

The key player in the 5-1 will be junior setter Caryn Tatterton, a two-year starter who also converted 90 percent of her serves, including 24 aces.

"I'm very happy with her; she's improved 100 percent over last year and has worked hard," Gilles said.

THE MAIN recipients of Tatterton's sets will be junior middle hitter Shelby Carey, senior middle hitter Julie Thomas and senior outside hitters Martha Bol, Nicole Santilli and Julianna DeLaRocque.

Carey and Thomas are co-captains. Carey had 63 kills and 35 blocks, while Thomas led the team with 68 blocks, had an 86 percent passing efficiency and 58 kills.

Bol led the Rocks with a 93 serve percentage and was second on the team with 62 blocks. DeLaRocque, an exchange student from Brazil, has been the most pleasant surprise.

The Rocks made it to the finals last month of the Madonna University Tournament before losing to Battle Creek St. Phillip, and DeLaRocque, Tatterton and Bol were named to the all-tournament team. "Julianna played a lot in Brazil," Gilles said. "She's a great passer, has a jump serve and hits the ball in the court from the back row. She keeps the ball in play."

JUNIORS CYNDI Platter, Jenna Stanton and Michelle Cronan will contribute to the varsity after playing last year on the JV, Gilles said. Platter and Stanton are hitters, while Cronan can play a hitting position as well as the back row.

The Rocks play in Saturday's 19-team Temperence-Bedford Tournament. Salem went 3-1-1 at the Madonna Tournament and already has a win to its credit over Temperence-Bedford.

"Based on what we did at the Madonna Tournament, we can play with anybody," Gilles said. "I'd be disappointed if we don't win 25 to 30 matches this year."

"It's up to the kids, how hard they want to keep working. We did well prior to Christmas. Now it's going to be a case where 'Are we going to be satisfied with how we did over Christmas, or are we going to keep working hard?'"

Chiefs want to improve

By Steve Kowalski, Staff writer

Plymouth Canton girls volleyball coach Jacqueline Getz is hoping senior leadership and togetherness enable the Chiefs to surpass the .500 mark this season.

The Chiefs were 13-13 a year ago and finished in third place in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Back row specialist Lorena Sanford, an all-division choice, outside hitter Rachel Poole and setter Cindy Granger will not return because of graduation. Also not returning is junior hitter Stephanie Gray, who chose not to play, according to Getz.

"Luckily, of the group I have, two (Danielle Meyka and Jennifer Davis) of the four seniors are in their third year on the varsity," said Getz, the third-year coach. "We'll be relying heavily on them, but I think we'll be a little bit better team."

"THE TEAM IS real cohesive, I have real hard workers and we'll be more aggressive. Also, defensively, we're quicker. That allows us the choice of a couple different defenses. The girls really have the desire to win and play."

Meyka played setter in 1991 but will play all-around along with Davis this season. Davis' play was limited last year because of a bad ankle, but she has returned at full strength.

"They've had a lot of playing experience at the varsity level," Getz said. "They've seen a lot of the top players in the league and have had a chance to watch them, see them develop, so that should give us a little bit of an edge."

The team's other seniors include 6-foot middle hitter Heidi Klaes and setter Alison Phillips, who has tremendous hands, according to Getz. Klaes' playing time increased near the end of the season.

An underclassman returning to the varsity is 5-8 left-handed hitter Karrie Drinkhahn, who played about five games last year before suffering a knee injury.

THE SENIORS should get plenty of support from last year's JV team, which is sending the varsity six players from the junior class. The first-year players are Tina Schafer, Michelle Metzger, Erin Olenech, Angela Fountain, Kathy Bahr and Laura Ciantar.

The 5-9 Schafer and the 5-10 Metzger are all-around players, while Olenech is a setter in the front row. Fountain is a setter and Bahr and Ciantar are back row specialists.

"The girls we brought up from JV are very aggressive hitters, so we'll look for a real strong offense from them this year," Getz said. "They're the type of girls that can hit any ball. That will give us an opportunity to create a lot of plays."

Getz expects the WIAA favorites to be either Livonia Stevenson, Walled Lake Central or defending Class A champion Livonia Churchill.

Perry Younce tries the fit of his midget race car while preparing for the '92 season in his dad's workshop.

Race-car driver thrives on fear

By Steve Kowalski, Staff writer

Question: Why does Perry Younce drive midget race cars?

Answer: Because he's afraid of them.

Say what? "I'm an idiot," for driving them, said Younce, who in the late 1970s and early '80s found more peace racing late-model stock cars, which are considered safer than midgets.

"The main reason I quit stock car racing is because I didn't have fear of them anymore," said Younce, a 30-year-old Canton resident who graduated in 1979 from Plymouth Salem. "They call midget cars 'Coffins on Wheels.' I love 'em. You can't make a mistake or it's all over."

"In stock cars you can bump cars around and here (in midgets) you can't get away with stuff like that. When you touch tires in midgets, you don't spin out, you start cartwheeling."

Now, understand Younce maintains his sanity despite having a thrill for the unexpected. After leaving the late-model stock car circuit in 1984, Younce raced go-carts competitively in 1985 and '86 and took up midget racing last year after his father, Clyde, bought a 1969 midget car. "Dad always loved midget cars," said Perry's mom, Shirlee. "I asked him when he got it, 'What are you going to do with it?' and dad said, 'I'm going to polish it and look at it — it's an antique.' The next thing I know, Perry's racing midget cars."

YOUNCE'S DEBUT on the Automobile Racing Club of America Midget Division was a success as he earned "Rookie of the Year" honors and finished second overall in the point standings. He placed fourth in his first race, won the next and was in first place overall prior to the last race — his 10th — of the season.

All this success is despite racing a midget car that most drivers would consider for show — not competition.

"They did laugh (at the car)," Younce said. "They don't now."

It's high tech . . .

By Pat Schutte
staff writer

HAVEN'T SKIED SINCE COLLEGE? Come to think of it haven't done much since college but work. Sound familiar? Life's far too short to give up something as much fun as skiing.

Remember the feeling you got in your stomach when you and your buddies would race to the lodge, holding a light tuck and letting the skis run as fast as they possibly could. Or the long, long, long arcing turn you made . . . the one that never seemed to end.

Then after the day had ended, you'd sit and laugh, swapping stories with a group. Remember? Here's some tips that you'll find helpful, if you plan on getting into, back into, or just staying in touch with downhill skiing.

THE SKI BOOTS:

By far, without a doubt, the most important ski-oriented purchase you make is the boots. Period.

Look at it this way. As long as the skis are the right length, you can get by. The new bindings you purchased, as long as they're set and installed properly by a certified technician, have already met strict design standards and release more properly than your 10-year-old bindings.

Poles? Pick a color. Your boots have to do three seemingly simple things in order to ensure your happiness. First, they have to be comfortable enough to wear for six-eight hours a day. Second, they have to keep you warm. And third, they have to perform up to your skiing ability.

As simple as these three things sound, they can be very tough to attain. Cut yourself short on any one of these three things, especially fit and warmth, and you can easily ruin a $1,000 ski vacation.

So what do you look for and what question do you ask when buying a new pair of boots?

(1) Make sure the shop has the knowledge and tools available on-site to customize the boot to your foot. With a little bit of extra foam, a hand grinder and squirt of glue, a professional ski boot fitter can work miracles around your feet.

(2) The shop should also be equipped to make custom insoles, or footbeds, for your boots. This after-market feature, while increasing the performance characteristics of the boot, can really be the exclamation point on fit and comfort.

(3) Take your time! Just don't throw on a pair of boots and say "Cool, I'll take 'em." Put two different brands on your feet, say a Nordica and a Salomon, and walk around the store for 10 minutes or so. Definitely move around. Not a lot of people ski in the seated position anymore.

(4) Make sure the shop has a lot of different models and brands to choose from. Pick an arbitrary figure on how much you want to spend and try on boots at, above and below that figure. The higher the cost, usually, the more comfort and features you get.

(5) If you don't already have them, purchase a nice pair of ski socks to use when trying on boots.

(6) Finally, buy the boot that fits best. If it's the most expensive one, fine . . . save money on the skis. Also keep custom footbeds in mind. They run around $50 with the purchase of boots.

According to Bob Thomas, manager of Birmingham's Don Thomas Sports, Nordica's Syntech boot "offers the ease of a rear entry boot with the support and performance characteristics of a front entry boot." The combination of the only two boot styles has come to be known as mid-entry boots.

Programmable boots, like the Salomon 83 and 93 series are pretty neat looking as well as functional. One buckle gets you in, several adjustments fit you up, and one buckle gets you out. Then when you put the boot back on, the "memo" returns to all the custom fit features to where you had the set before.

THE SKIS AND BINDINGS:

Although the ski may be most expensive piece of equipment you purchase, they should also be the easiest to pick out.

If you're getting back into new skis after a five-10-year layoff, steer clear of the two extremes in skis — entry level and racing. Entry level skis will be too sluggish and won't perform up to your ability once you get your ski legs back. Racing skis, while they may look cool, are too stiff and will make it tough to progress back into the sport.

This leaves us with the largest classification of skis — the performance class. These skis are similar in shape to a racing ski, yet are softer and much easier to turn.

A couple of the more popular ones, which you can consider as "can't miss" skis, have been with their company's for some time now and have remained relatively unchanged.

The K2 5500 and the Rossignol are probably the safest skis to buy in that they will perform as well for the athletic intermediate skier as they will for the expert-class skier. So if you're getting back into the sport as an intermediate skier, you need to buy only one ski over the next five to seven years and not have to worry about progressing out of it.

Since ski core design is pretty much either one of two things, wood or foam (with a dash of Kevlar, a bit of ceramic here and a graphite rod there), most companies have now incorporated a ski into their line that people can touch and feel to actually see the difference.

They're called cap skis. Instead of laminating a bunch of different materials together, the one-piece top is becoming a very popular way to construct skis.

"The cap pressurizes the edge of the ski quicker," said Thomas. "Energy transfer can be lost when you put a number of materials together."

Dan Reck, manager of the Bloomfield Hills Bavarian Village Ski Store, agrees.

"Cap skis seem to initiate a turn easier and take less energy to turn," he said. "That means more energy for a whole day's skiing."

THE BINDERS:

Chances are, the brand of the binding you first owned is the brand you will again purchase the next time you buy bindings. Brand name loyalty in the ski industry is at its highest with bindings.

The most critical link between having some exciting fun and potential knee-wrenching disaster, the binding must be purchased new or, in the case of used bindings (which isn't a great idea) should at least be function tested by a shop that specializes in skiing. This is not something you want some minimum wage kid messing around with.

Think of it as insurance for assurance of reliability. Trying not to get too technical, the latest innovation in binding technology comes with an item tested with success on the World Cup skiing circuit. Known as a DerbyFlex, the binding is actually raised higher up on the ski between which the DerbyFlex is mounted, giving the skier more leverage on the ski. It heightens the turn response and dampens the vibration.

Salomon is one of the first companies to incorporate this feature into bindings available to the general public. Called the Driver, the built-in feature is available in their top-of-the-line bindings.

Once you're ready for the slopes, there's the hotline. Don Thomas has a ski hotline — 626-2626 — that offer up-to-date reports on what's happening with ski conditions and events in southeastern Michigan as well as up north and out west.

Straw hats and tacky tuxedos aside, the trio of Pigtail Dick, Skipper and Goodtime as the New Duncan Imperials make loud, raucous seminal punk songs.

Imperials put their spin on music

By Larry O'Connor, staff writer

"It's just doing it our way, just how we feel and whatever comes to mind at the time." — Goodtime

Their set usually includes gaudy artifacts from the '70s, such as a Twister board, cultivated on countless expeditions into the darkest domains of white-trash.

NEW DUNCAN Imperials find their most receptive listeners in college area venues although their appeal transcends the docksider and I-Zod shirt crowd to punks, young children and older adults.

"We're a party band," said Goodtime, "but not a frat band."

The distinction is important to the outfit, which formed in 1989 and quickly made an impression on Chicagoland area audiences. The band released its first album, "Hanky Panky Parley Voo" on Pravda, spawning a local radio hit "I'm Schizophrenic (No I'm Not)."

Each band member seems to be well-versed in the art of parody. Skipper, perhaps, reached the pinnacle of spoof, performing "two years and four days" with an Elvis tribute act.

Other icons set their creative minds in motion.

"It's wonderful to hear Wayne Newton sing 'Danke Schoen' when he was 15 years old and Jim Nabors singing 'You Light Up My Life.'" Skipper said. "That's what inspires us to write songs; it makes you feel good inside."

The New Duncan Imperials perform Friday, Jan. 10, at the Blind Pig, 208 First, Ann Arbor. For information, call 996-8555.

'Bugsy:' Interesting but overrated

"Bugsy" appeared at the top of several critics' 10-best lists and now has an excellent chance at the Oscars.

Did I see the same film?

"Bugsy" still going strong on area screens, isn't exactly a disaster, but it's no masterpiece either. The story of Bugsy Siegel, a mobster whose vision of legalized gambling led to the modern-day institution known as Las Vegas, wears with me the same way Kevin Costner's "Dances with Wolves" did — mildly interesting but highly overrated.

Warren Beatty has long sought to bring "Bugsy" to the screen. In the script by James Toback, the gangster has an inflated ego and a sly touch with the ladies that almost surpasses Beatty's, whose off-screen antics have long been a source of excitement to his film projects.

The problem with Beatty is that he rarely lets himself look the least bit ugly, even when he's playing a killer. When he meets with notorious gangsters, he appears in a chef's hat or beneath a sunlamp.

Even when he takes a stool pigeon to court the press or was he advised to roll over or risk a possible financial flop?

Whatever the case, something about "Bugsy" has caught the fickle affections of the critics. Perhaps Beatty is as surprised as anyone at the success.

Atlas provides in-depth look at state's bird population

My eagerly awaited copy of "The Atlas of Breeding Birds of Michigan" recently arrived. It is the compilation of a six-year census of birds throughout Michigan and three years of analysis and writing about each species included in the census.

It is the first book of its kind for the state. Publications by other authors in 1983 and 1989 did not provide such detailed information about the distribution of each breeding bird in Michigan. During the census taking, more than 1,200 people spent a minimum of 10 hours in each of 7,080 assigned areas. Without the efforts of volunteer bird watchers, this project would not have been possible.

For Oakland County, the census indicates that approximately 76-100 species of birds nest within its borders. Wayne County ranges from 76-100 species in some areas down to zero in one township area.

OVERALL, 233 species of birds nest in the state. Three new species were added to the breeding list as a result of this census. The cattle egret, worm-eating warbler and Wilson's warbler had never been known to breed in the state.

At the opposite extreme, no breeding evidence was found for the greater prairie chicken, lark sparrow, gray partridge, little gull, Bonaparte's gull and northern hawk.

owl, all known breeders in Michigan at one time.

One unusual occurrence recorded during the count period was the nesting of a mixed pair — a western kingbird and an eastern kingbird. Typically two different species do not pair.

Beside the unusual breeding records, the entire census showed some interesting trends of species throughout the state. Our state bird, the American robin, was reported nesting in more areas than any other species.

The second most frequently counted nesting bird varied depending on the section of the state. In the southern lower peninsula the mourning dove was second, in the northern lower peninsula the cedar waxwing was second, and in the upper peninsula the song sparrow was second.

This volume will provide interesting reading for a long time. The body of this book consists of species accounts written by 60 authors. Each species has an illustration and information on its range in the United States and Michigan, preferred habitat, seasonal occurrence, status and conservation.

Both the status and conservation sections are very interesting. In the status section, each author compares the status of the species with previously published works dating to 1893.

Today, the cardinal is a common resident whose breeding range is throughout the lower peninsula and in scattered locations in the upper peninsula. But in 1912, it was recorded as a rare bird found only in the southern tier of counties. The first nest was recorded in 1881 in Monroe.

Before the lumbering era of Michigan ravens and pileated woodpeckers were abundant throughout the state. After the lumbering era pileated woodpeckers were very scarce in the lower peninsula and ravens retreated to the upper peninsula. Now, their ranges are moving slowly southward and expanding.

Historical perspectives and detailed maps on the location of each breeding species in Michigan make this a classic for those interested in birds. It will undoubtedly be referred to many times.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Courses target chemical dependency

Madonna University will offer courses on chemical dependency as part of its winter term continuing education program.

Courses are:
 • Chemical Dependency and the Elderly from 7-10 p.m. Mondays, Feb. 3 through March 16. The course includes assessment, psychosocial factor, treatment strategies, model program designs and other community resources that address the high-risk, problem-prone client population.

• Chemical Dependency: Staff and Program Development in Human Services Agencies introduces the development of effective chemical dependency treatment programs, program design, grant writing, human resource development, conflict resolution, supervision and available resources in the community. The course meets 7-10 p.m. Mondays, March 23 through April 20.

• Chemical Dependency: Special Skills for Professionals focuses on gathering information using special and specific tools and assessments. The course features how to use confrontation, rescuing and co-dependence, practice in empathy, and undoing family patterns and individual behaviors. The class will be held 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays, March 25 through April 22.

 • Chemical Dependency: Planning and Treatment illustrates chemically dependent persons, assesses problems, develops treatment plans and evaluates success and termination plans. The course will be held 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays, Feb. 12 through March 18.

You'll be wild about this rice

I like to live life on the wild side. I go crazy on the "Wild Mouse" ride at Boblo. I have a large bed of wild flowers, and I love wild rice.

"Wild" rice has no resemblance to ordinary white or brown rice in either taste, appearance, or the methods by which it is grown. It is actually "annual grass" which grows in single stems, five to 10 feet tall, with panicles about two feet long.

THE HUSKS are about an inch long, containing long slender grains which are a dark slate color when ripe. The plants are adaptable to quiet water two to eight feet deep, preferably the edges of ponds, lakes or flood river plains of rivers with mud bottoms. Early in June the shoots appear above the water. They mature about August and the grain is ready for gathering in August and September.

Although wild rice can be found in many parts of North America, it is produced in greatest quantities in the lake regions of northern Minnesota and southern Canada.

The cold northern winters are a necessary part of the reproductive cycle of wild rice. After the seeds have ripened in the fall and dropped into the mud at the bottom of the lake, they must lie dormant through the cold winter before they can germinate again in the spring. Less than 20 percent of the ripened seeds are obtained for food. The unharvested rice drops into the water and reseeds the area for next year.

EVEN THOUGH wild rice is abundant and readily available on supermarket shelves, it is estimated that less than 3 percent of the North American public has tied wild rice. It has a distinct recognition as a "gourmet" product.

Many consumers are shocked at what seems to be a high price tag. Wildly fluctuating retail prices that have existed because of poor crops have tended to give the product an expensive status. It is a known marketing fact that the public looks at wild rice as if they are buying steak; when one pound is purchased, one pound is consumed.

This is not the case with wild rice. It cooks up to produce almost four times its dry weight. What this means in household terms is that one pound of wild rice will cook up and serve more than 20 people. The best thing you truly like about any kind of rice is that there is never any waste. You cook up what you need and if you end up with more left over than anticipated, it can be easily recycled in different dishes.

Add some meat and a chopped onion and an egg, mix and you have meatloaf, add a few beaten eggs and some beansprouts and fry up as egg foo yung.

Of course, there will always be those folks out there who would say, "Yea, I'd like to try it but..." For those folks, here's an easy primer on the basic preparation of wild rice.

One pound raw wild rice yields about 11 cups cooked. One cup raw wild rice will yield about 3 1/2 cups cooked.

WASH THE rice first by running under cold water in a wire strainer until the water runs clear. Use five parts water to one part wild rice. (5 cups water to 1 cup rice).

Boil the water and add one teaspoon salt, add the rice, return to a boil, reduce heat to simmer and cook covered for 55 minutes.

If you made too much and want to store it for future use, take the cooked rice, drain and rinse it under cold water. Place in a covered container and refrigerate until ready to use.

One half cup of uncooked wild rice has more than 11 grams of protein, less than 1/4 gram of fat and more than 62 grams of carbohydrates. It's loaded with phosphorus, potassium calcium and niacin.

Chefs draw out color, texture of food

By Keely Wygonik
staff writer

JUST AS an artist works with brushes and paints, chefs work with pastry brushes and frosting. As in creating beautiful paintings, there's a lot of planning involved in creating elegant desserts, appetizing platters, crystal clear ice sculptures and intricate vegetable carvings.

Culinary arts can be learned, but to be a true artist, "you have to feel it," said Bob Kozak, executive chef at Fellows Creek Golf Club in Canton Township.

"It comes to you, it flows. You're working under a lot of pressure in the kitchen. You don't have two hours to put something together. Sometimes the only gratification a chef gets is seeing that platter leave the kitchen."

Then there are those like pastry chef Joe Decker, an instructor at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia, who believe-culinary arts are like other arts — 10 percent talent and 90 percent hard work.

"You acquire skill on how to hold the pastry bag," said Decker.

To make desserts look picture perfect every time, chefs use Plexiglass or cardboard templates to trace and transfer their designs. A pastry chef might put Plexiglass over a drawing, trace it, let the chocolate set and then place it on the dessert.

Melted chocolate can be poured on to a baking sheet, chilled in a freezer and cut into shapes or formed into curls with a teaspoon or the blade of a knife held at an angle.

But unlike other arts, culinary arts are fragile. "There's chemistry involved with artistry to make sure everything is in sync," said Decker. "It's important to know the functionality of the ingredients. You need to get used to how to work with things."

FOOD HAS a limited lifespan. If a sauce sits too long it loses its shimmer. Vegetables wilt, and fruit turns brown.

When making elegant chocolate desserts, success depends on the pliability of the chocolate. "If it is too cold and hard, it will break. If it is too soft, it will not curl up and will stick to the spoon," writes Helen S. Fletcher in her book "The New Pastry Cook," (William Morrow and Company, Inc. $24.95).

Chefs spend a lot of time thinking about food presentation. "To make food appetizing and eye appealing, you consider compatibility of flavors, and contrast of texture, color and taste," said Jeffrey Gabriel, certified master chef and chief instructor of culinary arts at Schoolcraft Community College.

"The trend is toward functional garnishing. Nothing should be on the plate if it's not to be eaten to contribute to the taste of the food."

"Close your eyes and think about what would taste good with a certain food. Nine times out of 10 you'll be right. Design the menu around taste," said Gabriel.

There are lots of ways to present the average meal of meat, potato and vegetables to turn an ordinary dinner platter into a work of art.

"COMBINE CRUNCHY and soft food. Instead of three piles of food on a plate, serve the meat on a bed of pasta, put the sauce under the meat instead of over it," said Gabriel. "Ring a platter of fish with asparagus or cucumbers instead of putting it on a bed of lettuce."

Consider the shape of the items being served. "As with color, variety is the key. A plate of meatballs, new potatoes and Brussels sprouts may taste good and have pleasing color, yet it is boring. Everything is round," writes Gerald Chesser in "The Art and Science of Culinary Preparation," (Education Institute of the American Culinary Federation, $32).

Table sets scene for dinner

By Geri Rinschler
special writer

It's hard to believe that 10 years have passed since hostess extraordinaire, Martha Stewart, presented her first book, "Entertaining." And as a result, or at least partly, there's been renewed enthusiasm for cooking for company.

Whether a party is large or small, indoor or out we all strive to design a table setting with that magazine look. A look that ties everything together, china, linens, flowers and accessories, and sets the framework for a successful party.

WHEN EMMIE Waldsmith of Bloomfield Hills first joined the Cranbrook House and Garden Auxiliary she often designed table settings for the late Henry Booth, the last family member to reside at Cranbrook House.

"I used to do all the flowers for all the parties, including lots of arrangements for dinners at Mr. Booth's home Thornlea, said, Waldsmith. As floral and decorating chairman, Emmie Waldsmith has been designing tables there for the past 15 years.

Among her fondest memories is a luncheon table for Booth and guest Leonard Bernstein using lots of pale pink rubium lilies which were Booth's favorite. Most recently, she designed the table in the main dining room at Cranbrook's annual fund-raiser, holiday tables using the Booth family antique dishes and amethyst crystal.

"There was no question about which dishes I was going to use to set the table this year," Waldsmith said. The English Wedgewood set given to the Booth's by their friend Mrs. George Trumbull are the most colorful and beautiful in the entire china collection and rightfully so.

THE OFF-WHITE border is covered with pink dogwood blossoms and turquoise leaves. The center of the plate is a brilliant, Chinese green trimmed in gold leaf. Although there isn't any purple in the plate, Waldsmith chose to accompany the china with amethyst Venetian hand cut crystal water goblets, wine glasses and fruit bowls. To tie the assemblage together, she added a turquoise dessert wine glass.

When designing an arrangement for a table setting, Waldsmith suggests taking one of the china pieces to buy the flowers so that the colors blend in harmony. Her centerpiece was made with hot pink roses (roses Jacquarandia) with white tulips, Rubium lilies, asparagus fern, Boston fern and variegated holly. When setting a small dinner table for two to four people, she will often use a balloon shaped wine goblet as a floral container.

Mary Lark of West Bloomfield has quite a reputation for setting a spectacular dinner table. "Before my husband Jim and I opened The Lark restaurant on Farmington Road, we gave dinner parties at our home all the time. Every month we would have at least one dinner party ac-companion anywhere from two to 50 guests.

Lark suggests after you have established the date, time and number of people coming for dinner, plan the table design and start with the china. She often takes one or two pieces of her dinnerware to shop for fabric or for a newly made tablecloth.

"Once you establish the color scheme it's easy to add the glassware and other collectibles," she said. You need to be flexible and add or take away accessories as you set the table. Lark doesn't like to see flower arrangements in the center of the table because it so often blocks the view. Instead, she sets floral arrangements in the room close to the dinner table. On many occasions her dinner parties focus around a food theme.

"Once we did a morel party, morels were incorporated into every course of the dinner. To carry out the theme, I covered the white tablecloths with Boston ferns and other greenery to get a forest look," she said. And then served everything on glass dishes, so as not to take away from the tablecloth.

NORMA SILK co-owner of Blossoms floral design shops is really in the business of designing tables. With shops in Birmingham, Berkeley, and Gröse Pointe he and his partner Dale Morgan are in the midst of developing a new concept shop, Party Blossoms, which will open in mid-February. They love to coordinate party themes beginning with the invitation, table covers, centerpieces and accessories.

Having spent 12 years working in his family's flower shop and later as a window designer for Jacobson's and Saks Fifth Avenue, Norman Silk has developed a personal and innovative decorative style. "Everyone knows they can order a floral centerpiece for a dinner table, an approach should not be so large that guests can't see over it," he added.

Entertaining with style, Martha Stewart says should not be too contrived. She discourages her readers from rushing out and buying a spread of gimmicky tableware and goblets that may be featured in a decorating magazine. She recommends that a table should be "harmonious, buy things that go with your home, that have age or inherent charm or utility not cacophony."

Chefs explain how they make food pretty to look at

"Try replacing the Brussels sprouts with green beans the new po-latter for balance and must be functional.

Simplicity is the key in food presentation, it is more attractive to have a simple plate presentation rather than an overworked, complex one. Elaborate designs often cause confusion.

Think of flavors. To place shrimp in cream sauce on the same plate with sweet-and-sour cabbage creates an unpleasant flavor for the guest. The acid in the cabbage dish curdles the cream in the shrimp as they meld in the mouth.

Serve food at the correct temperature. Serve cold foods on chilled plates, platters and serving dishes.

"Use the highest quality, freshest ingredients available," said Joe Decker, a pastry chef at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

"Don't be afraid to experiment," said Bob Kozak, executive chef at Fellows Creek Golf Club of Canton. "Try cooking with flavored vinegars. Use dried apricots instead of apples in stuffing."

Variety in platter arrangement is as important as color variation. "Garnish only when necessary. A garnish is only added to a plate or ometimes culinary arts aren't meant to be eaten, only appreciated as the case with ice sculptures.

In the days before refrigeration, ice sculpture kept food cold, and made it look pretty. Dishes were incorporated into the design.

Dan Hugelier, a certified master chef, teaches ice carving, sausage making, and butchering at Schoolcraft Community College. His craft requires a lot of planning.

"Chefs like to build things, put things together, but you can't take a chain saw and start wacking away at the ice," said Hugelier.

"You need a knowledge of architecture, you have to sketch your design and work from a blueprint."

Like drawing, painting, sculpting, and writing, most ideas undergo numerous revisions. A chef will often redraw and redefine plans.

Simplicity and elegance are the keys," said Decker. "Sometimes it's better to take away. Overly garnished items lose something."

Here are some tips on plate and platter arrangement from Gerald Chesser's "The Art and Science of Culinary Preparation," (Educational Institute of the American Culinary Federation, $32). Call (800) 624-9458 for ordering information.

Keep the food off the rim of the plate. The well of the plate is where the food is meant to be. If there is too much food for the well of the plate, get a larger plate or reduce the amount of food.

Arrange food in unity. Do not have food spread to all parts of the plate. The eye should focus on the center of the plate, not the edge.

Serve sauce under ground food. Be careful not to oversauce. Sauce is meant to complement and enhance the flavor of food, not hide the flavor.

Variety in platter arrangement is as important as color variation. "Garnish only when necessary. A garnish is only added to a plate or platter for balance and must be functional.

Simplicity is the key in food presentation, it is more attractive to have a simple plate presentation rather than an overworked, complex one. Elaborate designs often cause confusion.

Think of flavors. To place shrimp in cream sauce on the same plate with sweet-and-sour cabbage creates an unpleasant flavor for the guest. The acid in the cabbage dish curdles the cream in the shrimp as they meld in the mouth.

Serve food at the correct temperature. Serve cold foods on chilled plates, platters and serving dishes.

"Use the highest quality, freshest ingredients available," said Joe Decker, a pastry chef at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

"Don't be afraid to experiment," said Bob Kozak, executive chef at Fellows Creek Golf Club of Canton. "Try cooking with flavored vinegars. Use dried apricots instead of apples in stuffing."

There's never any waste when cooking wild rice

See taste buds column on Taste front.

CHEDDAR AND WILD RICE (serves 10)
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 1/2 cups mushrooms in butter until softened slightly. Toss with wild rice and cheese. Spoon into a buttered casserole, cover and bake at 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Uncover and bake 10 minutes more.

WILD RICE VEGETABLE DISH (serves 10)
1 1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 pound bacon, chopped
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup

3 cups cooked wild rice
Sauté the onion, celery and green pepper with the bacon. Drain off the excess fat. Add sautéed vegetables and drained bacon to the soup. Stir in the wild rice. Season to taste. If desired, store in the refrigerator and heat or serve as desired.

WILD RICE STUFFING (serves 10)
1 1/2 cups cooked wild rice
1/2 loaf of day old bread, cut into cubes
1/2 of a large onion, chopped
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup chicken bouillon
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/2 teaspoon sage
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Sauté the onion in half the butter and combine the wild rice and bread cubes. Add remaining butter by teaspoons. Toss to mix. Moisten with warm bouillon, using only as much as needed to wet the dressing ingredients. Season with salt, sage and pepper. Use as a stuffing or turn into a greased casserole and bake at 325 degrees, covered, for 30 minutes.

WILD RICE BARON (serves 10)
6 cups cooked wild rice
1 1/2 pounds lean ground beef or ground turkey
1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup soy sauce
1 1/2 cups sour cream
salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup slivered almonds (optional)
Brown the ground beef. Sauté mushrooms, onions and celery in the butter for 5 minutes. Combine soy sauce, sour cream, salt, pepper and almonds. Add the wild rice, beef, onion, mushrooms and celery and toss lightly. Place in a greased casserole and bake at 350 degrees uncovered for 45 minutes, adding water if necessary to prevent it from drying out.

Ethnic cuisine's popularity grows

Ethnic cooking and foods are in a recent National Restaurant Association study shows that restaurateurs across the country are adding more ethnic items — usually hot and spicy often tomato-and-oil based — to non-ethnic menus.

Approximately three quarters of all Americans said they had eaten in Chinese, Italian and Mexican restaurants, and more than half said they would dine in ethnic restaurants more frequently if given the opportunity.

The most popular entries appearing on non-ethnic menus were Italian, Mexican and Asian. From 1986 to 1991, the number of entries drawn from French, Greek and German cuisine also increased.

What's your favorite ethnic cuisine? What countries would you like to see featured in our "Taste of the month" Call or write: Keely Wygonik, Taste editor, 953-2105, The Observer & Eccentric, 38251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. On Jan. 20 we're featuring the food of South America. In February, we'll be writing about Finnish food.

annual Kraft Singles Outrageous Sandwich Recipe Contest. She's in the seventh grade at St. Damian's Catholic School in Westland.

Her creation? "The Jubilee Waffle Sandwich," a mixture of mayonnaise, peanut butter, tortilla chips, vanilla ice cream, whipped topping and Kraft Singles nestled between two toasted waffles. Here's the recipe:

JUBILEE WAFFLE SANDWICH
2 frozen waffles, toasted
1 teaspoon mayonnaise
1 tablespoon peanut butter
2 Kraft American Singles Pasteurized Processed Cheese Food
1/2 cup tortilla chips
1 bar (2 ounces) chocolate coated crunchy peanut butter candy, chopped
1 scoop vanilla ice cream
1 tablespoon thawed non-dairy whipped topping

FRESHEN THE air at your house with homemade potpourri. Sylvia Treitman, a home economist for the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, Oakland County office uses cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and some dried fruit.

Summer in a pot of water or cider on the stove. "The natural aroma of spices is very appealing and much more appetizing to most people than the heavy perfumed scents so commonly found in commercial products," she said.

Chefs explain how they make food pretty to look at

ometimes culinary arts aren't meant to be eaten, only appreciated as the case with ice sculptures.

In the days before refrigeration,

ice sculpture kept food cold, and made it look pretty. Dishes were incorporated into the design.

Dan Hugelier, a certified master chef, teaches ice carving, sausage

making, and butchering at Schoolcraft Community College. His craft requires a lot of planning.

"Chefs like to build things, put things together, but you can't take a chain saw and start wacking away at the ice," said Hugelier.

"You need a knowledge of architecture, you have to sketch your design and work from a blueprint."

Like drawing, painting, sculpting,

and writing, most ideas undergo numerous revisions. A chef will often redraw and redefine plans.

Simplicity and elegance are the keys," said Decker. "Sometimes it's better to take away. Overly garnished items lose something."

'Last Wish' makes important TV statement

Flawed film still enjoyable, provocative

By STEVEN ALAN MCGAW
On Sunday, Jan. 12, ABC presents "Last Wish," a telefilm based on the 1985 bestseller by journalist Betty Rollin. In the controversial book, Rollin revealed that her mother's death had been a suicide; it also made it clear she had helped her mother to die.

Indomitable, humorous, full of advice about real estate and the nutritional worth of wheat germ, Ida Rollin was diagnosed with ovarian cancer in the spring of 1981. Obeying her doctor's instructions, she underwent successive rounds of chemotherapy, but the treatment did little good. Proud of her appearance, she lost her hair; stern in her independence, she soon required round-the-clock care, trained persons to deliver the food she could not eat and administer the painkillers that offered no relief. With appalling swiftness, Ida Rollin became weak, ill-tempered, dependent. She surely must have been unrecognizable, even to herself, as the bustling, dynamic widow who met life with vigor, joining her daughter across town for lunch, or finding delight in a children's theater troupe.

The ordeal was nearly as traumatic for Rollin's daughter Betty. Herself a survivor of breast cancer (documented in the best-selling book "First You Cry"), Rollin was unprepared for her mother's grim prognosis, or swift decline.

Rollin was also unprepared for her mother's eventual decision and plea. Knowing her condition was terminal, bitter at her weakness and the constant nausea, the ceaseless pain, Ida Rollin wanted out. "They put dogs out of their misery," she reasoned, "why can't they do the same for me?" At first, her daughter was shocked. Was she serious, did she really mean it? "Next to your happiness," Ida Rollin answered softly, seriously, "I want to die more than anything in the world."

It's not, however, that easy, as mother and daughter were quick to learn. Suicide is illegal, and few doctors are willing to discuss it as a legitimate alternative, much less assist. Betty Rollin knew, unless extreme care was taken, she and her husband might be found culpable, even indicted. For her part, Ida Rollin was ready for death. She was not ready for more pain.

At length, a method was found. Referred to a sympathetic physician in Holland, Rollin learned of an available prescription drug that, if taken in sufficient quantity, would painlessly release her mother from life. On Oct. 17, 1983, Ida Rollin found the "door" for which she'd searched and, as her daughter would later write, "it closed, gently, behind her."

"Last Wish" stars Academy Award-winners Paty Duke as Betty Rollin and Maureen Stapleton as her courageous mother, Ida. Dwight Schultz co-stars as Rollin's supportive son-in-law, Ed.

"The story of 'Last Wish,' of Ida and Betty and Ed, is a love story," Paty Duke told reporters last July. "Utter, absolute, passionate love story. That's what made me want to do it." Rollin, also on hand, expressed her happiness with ABC's film and stressed that,

BITIS AND PIECEIS

Charlie Rose returns to national television

Rose blooms again: Absent from national television since he quit the syndicated Personalities last year, Charlie Rose returns on Monday, Jan. 6, when his public affairs/discussion series on the PBS affiliate WNET begins its one-day delayed broadcast on The Learning Channel. The WNET program has drawn a cult following in New York, and TLC has high hopes that Rose will pull in faithful audiences for them. TLC will air new episodes of Charlie Rose Monday through Saturday with late-night repeats. The hour-long forum will examine topics ranging from AIDS to Broadway plays.

Charlie Rose

The results are in. Figures obtained from the National Cable Television Association indicate that 1991 was a very good year for them. Largely due to CNN's news-coverage coup in the Persian Gulf war, for the first time basic cable beat one of the major networks (ABC) in the ratings battle during the first six weeks of 1991, finishing third behind CBS and NBC. Since its deregulation, investment in basic cable programming has risen steadily. The NCTA stated that now 69.6 percent of all U.S. homes are cable households, and that the number of students who supplement their education with Cable in the Classroom doubled in 1991.

Now you can sleep with the soaps. Heartland Apparel, Inc., is introducing a line of sleepwear featuring the logos or designs of ABC's four soap operas. Besides a scrub-suit sleeper similar to the ones worn on General Hospital, there are nightshirts sporting the logos of GH, All My Children, Loving and One Life to Live. Amy Dorn Kopelan, an ABC vice president of marketing, claims, "Soap opera viewers tend to be very loyal to their shows and the Heartland line will remind them of the soaps they love so much." Sorry, torrid romance not included.

Rising country star Travis Tritt delivers a rousing performance On Stage, Thursday on TNN.

Patty Duke talks about the telefilm Last Wish on Friday's installment of Entertainment Tonight.

Over 30 and still a paperboy? Saturdays on Fox, Chris Elliot keeps trying to Get A Life!

LET'S TALK

Reader very curious about Andrew McCarthy

By Taylor Michaels
 Q: I would like to know about Andrew McCarthy ... where he is from, his home, his hangouts ... just about anything you can give me. I can't find anything about him in magazines anywhere. I would also like to know where he stays when he visits Maui. Has he ever gotten romantically involved with his co-stars and do they keep in touch. I have all of his videos. —P.F., Kihē, Maui.

A: Early details are sketchy. According to two references, McCarthy was born in 1963, but one says 1962. Two references say he was born in New York, but one lists his birthplace as Westfield, N.J. He decided to become an actor after being cut from his high school football team. Later on, while attending New York University, a classmate told him about the casting for an upcoming movie called Class. McCarthy won the starring role opposite Jacqueline Bisset. During the filming of that movie, he met Rob Lowe and subsequently became known as one of the "Brat Pack," mainly a media grouping of all the young, successful actors at that time. I don't know where he stays when he's in Maui or where he "hangs out." I've never heard of him getting romantically involved with any of his co-stars. He currently lives in Greenwich Village in N.Y.C. He's an avid Yankees fan and enjoys golf.

Q: When I was a small child in the '60s, I remember I was never allowed to watch Dark Shadows. My mom told me it was harmful to watch, and nightmares would occur and scare me. I am an adult now, and the show came back on television. I did not find it horrible or repulsive. I fell in love with the timely gothic but beautiful story. Is there a place where I can buy the story? —Natalie Adkins, Mount Pleasant, Texas.

A: Waldenbooks has both a printed tribute to the show and a companion book to the series. There are videos available of the old series, but not the most recent one, which was canceled with no plans to bring it back. If you are interested in buying the videos, you can call the Video Library of Philadelphia at 800-669-7157. Or check your local video store; maybe they can special order the tapes for you.

Q: A friend of mine has bet me that James Coburn is the son of the late actor Charles Coburn. I say he is not. Who's right? —Alesta Pacelli, Big Bear Lake, Calif., 92315.

A: I would have to say you're right. I can't find any mention that Charles is the father of James.

Q: Where can I write Jean-Claude Van Damme? —Mary Davies, T or C, N.M.

A: You can write to his fan club. The address is P.O. Box 4149, Chatsworth, Calif., 91313-4149.

Q: Would you please give me an address where I can write to Sharon Gless of The Trials of Rosie O'Neill? I have been following her career since

Andrew McCarthy

Cagney & Lacey and think she is an inspiration to all women. —S. Wills, Morehead City, N.C.

A: Write Gless c/o CBS, CBS Television City, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90036. If you are a fan of the show you might want to also write to that address and let the network executives know you like it. It was recently placed on hiatus and is in danger of being canceled.

Q: I am interested in obtaining a video copy of an episode of the show That's Incredible that aired in the '80s. Would you please supply me with the address for the network or whoever otherwise could assist me with this? —Ronald S. Donakowski, Enterprise, Ala.

A: Try writing to MCA TV, 1100 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif., 91608. They are the current distributors for the show. —TV Listing Inc.

Soap Opera awards air Jan. 10

By Candace Havens

The eighth annual Soap Opera Digest Awards airs live Friday, Jan. 10, on NBC, and for the first time it will be shown during prime time. Each year I like to indicate my personal choices in each category (but not necessarily the nominees I expect will win), so here goes:

For Outstanding Daytime Show, I like Days of Our Lives, because, if nothing else, it is never boring. In the Outstanding Lead Actor category, I'd really like to see the funny and very talented Stephen Schnetzer (Cass, Another World) get it. For Outstanding Lead Actress, Elizabeth Hubbard as Lucinda on As the World Turns is the best.

In the Supporting Actor and Actress categories, I'd have to pick two from General Hospital: Stuart Damon (who plays Alan) and the devilishly fun Jane Elliot (as Tracy). And if you were giving an award for the evilest of evil deeds, the Outstanding Villain statuette would surely go to Michael Zaslow (who plays Roger on Guiding Light). On the distaff side, my pick for Outstanding Villainess is Lynn Herring, as the money-hungry Lucy on General Hospital.

In the Outstanding Newcomer categories, John J. York (who plays Mac on GH) gets my nod for being the guy who made the most impact on the television viewing audience. Victoria Rowell (as Druella on The Young and the Restless) has really come a long way and should win the prize.

For Outstanding Younger Leading Actor, I'd like to see Ricky Paull Goldin come away the winner. The prize for Outstanding Younger Leading Actress should go to Beth Ehlers (as Harley on GL). She's a talented lady and deserves to win.

This year's award for Best Wedding should go to Y&R for Danny and Cricket's wedding. Even though this entire relationship totally disgusts me, their wedding, filmed in Hawaii, was beautiful. AMC should get the award for Best Death Scene for the deaths of Tad Martin and Billy Clyde Tuggle, since these are the only two characters who have stayed dead. The award for Outstanding Comic Performance should go to the intensely funny Robert Mailhouse, who plays Brian on Days. And finally, the year's Best Love Story belongs to Jack and Jennifer on Days.

while it may stir important debate, the film does not address the broad issues of suicide, or euthanasia. "The film is about the escape of a woman who was trapped in life and how she got out."

For bringing "Last Wish" to television, ABC deserves to be commended. The film is sure to be controversial, especially in light of recent events concerning physician-assisted suicides. Both Duke and Stapleton give energy and conviction to their performances, and some scenes are profoundly moving. As a whole, however, the film falls a little flat, perhaps through too great an effort to exercise restraint. A forgivable sin, certainly, when balanced with bringing to the screen an important book on a topic that cannot be ignored.
