STREET SCENE

Different drummer: A five-man band that doesn't have a drummer? For some groups, that may be like going to the beach and forgetting the swimsuit. But not so for the Skeleton Crew. With guitars, a keyboard and strong vocals and lyrics, the group has come up with a sound that is anything but lean and bony. /4B

Play it again: There are truly some things that get better with age. Fifty years after being released, "Casablanca" is still a favorite with film buffs who are expected to fill the Fox Theatre this summer for its golden anniversary revival. /5B

Yack critical of land sales

Plymouth-Canton school officials OK'd the sale of four properties — sales that mean more than $2 million in revenue. Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack lobbied against the sales, contending that they will not serve the community's best interests.

BY M.B. DILLON

The sale of four land parcels bought years ago for possible use as school sites was approved by the Plymouth-Canton school board last week, deals that will translate to more than $2 million in revenue.

The first site, 17 acres in Plymouth Township north of Ann Arbor Trail and west of Glenview, is being sold for $850,000 to The Selective Group.

The second site sits on 50 acres in Canton south of Cherry Hill and east of Lilley. It's being sold to Fairfield Development of Bloomfield Hills for $1.1 million.

The third is 27 acres in Canton on the south side of Joy between Beck and Ridge roads. It will go to Tepee Realty of Plymouth in exchange for 30 acres at Joy and Gotfredson roads.

The fourth site, also in Canton, is 15 acres on the south side of Proctor west of Canton Center. The land, which has no water or sewer, is being sold to the township for preservation as open space; it's being sold for $81,000, its appraised value.

Yack objects

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, a former Plymouth-Canton school board member, urged the school district not to sell the Cherry Hill/Lilley Road site near Field Elementary School.

In a letter to associate superintendent for business Ray Hoedel, Yack said "I realize the district is facing an uncertain financial future. I also realize the sale of surplus properties may mitigate to some degree budget pressures by supplanting some general fund expenditures with building and site dollars."

"Although this effort may prove to be useful to some extent on a short-term basis, I believe that your efforts to sell surplus parcels may prove to be injurious on a long-term basis to both the Canton community and the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools," Yack added.

Canton officials are concerned about "the extreme density on the east side of Canton Center Road," he said. "It is a goal of the Canton Board of Trustees and the community to reduce density through retaining open space where possible."

It would be best to retain as open space the land south and west of Field School because the surrounding area is extremely dense, "four and five units per acre," he said.

Additionally, Field Elementary is already crowded, and new housing would produce many new students, possibly requiring redistricting. The Field community values the open space and would object to another subdivision, and the cost of educating additional students would not be offset by increased tax revenue, Yack said.

According to Yack's analysis, the district will spend nearly $500,000 more than property taxes will generate. "By retaining the open space, the district is not forced to respond to increased housing and students," he said.

Fighter pilot: Marine Corps Capt. Barry Moore, 27, a 1982 graduate of Plymouth-Salem High School, flew a McDonnell-Douglas F/A-18 Hornet into Willow Run Airport last Thursday for the AirMichigan '92 air show.

Pilot home for July 4th show

Former Plymouth resident Barry Moore learned how to fly airplanes before he knew how to drive.

That was 11 years ago. Now the 27-year-old man, who admits to having been a "general average geek" in high school, drives a Suzuki Katana 750 motorcycle when he's not busting through the sound barrier or pulling eight G's in air combat maneuvering in a Marine Corps McDonnell-Douglas F/A-18 Hornet jet fighter worth more than $30 million.

Capt. Moore touched down lightly at Willow Run Airport Thursday after a 90-minute flight from the Marine Corps air station at Beaufort, S.C., ready to show off his bird to guests at AirMichigan '92, a Fourth of July event at Willow Run.

"Barry wanted to fly ever since he was a little guy," said mother Pat Moore, who is also the principal of Central Middle School. "I've never seen him fly (the Hornet) before, so this will be a thrill for me."

Pat Moore was somewhat apprehensive when her son began flight training in a Cessna 152 at age 16. "I

'I've never seen him fly (the Hornet) before, so this will be a thrill for me.'

used to sit on the deck and commune with the source of the universe to keep him safe," she said. "Please God, make him interested in raising horses or something else."

For his part, Moore loves flying and still gives thanks that the Marines didn't assign him to prop planes or helicopters.

After graduating from Plymouth Salem High School in 1982, Moore attended Western Michigan University and got involved in the Marine Corps Platoon Leader program. During the summers between terms, he survived boot camp and officer candidate school. Once Moore had his bachelor's degree in communications in 1987, the Corps commissioned him a second lieutenant.

Following basic flight training, Moore was selected for jets and earned his wings in March 1990. A year spent in the F/A-18 training squadron kept him safely out of the Persian Gulf War. Then Moore was assigned to fighter squadron VMF-451, otherwise known as the Warlords.

Next fall, the Warlords are scheduled to deploy to Turkey for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization exercise. Moore expects they'll be in the thick of things if fighting in the former Yugoslavia demands U.S. air intervention. "If Sarajevo heats up, they'll come knockin' on our door," he said.

Moore is also qualified to land on aircraft carriers, as are most Marine pilots. Landing in darkness, he said, is primarily comprised of "just a lot of praying," but daylight landings are "a lot of fun." However, "if you don't have your harness locked . . . I know a couple of guys who ended up eating the instrument panel."

And how did Capt. Moore manage to pull the coveted air show duty? "I just lucked out," he said. "They gave me a bad deal (three weeks on staff duty), so this was kind of a payback."

Foes shun Kosteva

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, issued a debate challenge to his two Republican challengers last week, but Dan Calabrese and Deborah Whyman aren't biting.

Whyman and Calabrese said Thursday they'll debate Kosteva after the Aug. 4 primary election, but not before.

"A debate involving two Republicans and one Democrat before the primary makes no sense," Calabrese said.

"Normally (in a debate) all the candidates are doing battle with each other on the same level.

"I think it's unusual for an incumbent to challenge his challengers to a debate."

Calabrese agreed that the debate challenge "might be" an indication that Kosteva is worried about his chances of re-election.

Kosteva took issue with that and said he's ready to get specific on all the relevant issues, but his challengers apparently aren't.

"I've seen a lack of specifics from both candidates," he said. "People want to discuss issues this year, not personalities and not campaign rhetoric."

Said Whyman: "I'm sure we can get very specific on Aug. 5 (after the primary), and I would be very happy to get very specific on Aug. 5."

She agreed with Calabrese that "it seems pretty silly on (Kosteva's) part to take two of us on. It doesn't make sense for him to debate two Republican opponents before the primary."

However, Whyman added, "a debate will only help me."

Asked if Kosteva might be worried about his chances for reelection, Whyman said, "No comment."

'A debate involving two Republicans and one Democrat before the primary makes no sense.'

Educator recalls career spanning 29 years

BY DARRYL CLEM

Snow had piled up a foot deep on that wintry morning in 1978, but Wayne Westland school officials didn't cancel classes. School bus drivers somehow made the trek along Palmer Road — then a mucky, dirt road — and dropped off students at Stevenson Junior High School. Only 200 of 1,200 pupils showed up. Many teachers stayed home.

Inside Stevenson, principal Thomas Svitekovich shook off the cold and made the school a warm, inviting place by organizing an impromptu assembly.

"We sang songs, we did skits, and we gave away free ice cream," he said. Then students went home early.

He made the best of a bad situation. That's been his style, supporters say. Memories have come flooding back as Svitekovich, 49, prepares to leave Wayne Westland after 28½ years. His last day on the job is Tuesday.

The next day he will achieve a career landmark by becoming superintendent in the Flint-area Carmen-Ainsworth district. He couldn't take some vacation time between jobs. But his dedication here wouldn't let him, supporters say.

"Wayne Westland's loss is certainly the greatest gain for Carmen-Ainsworth could ever have," said his friend and mentor, Dennis O'Neill, a longtime Wayne Westland superintendent.

Svitekovich has taught or been an administrator at every junior high and high school — six altogether — in the district. He talked about his career last week as he drove his van from school to school during an on-the-road interview.

Starts career

As a 21-year-old senior at Eastern Michigan University, Svitekovich took on his first local assignment in 1963 as a student teacher at Franklin Junior High School. He worked under teacher Ray Fritz, who was nearing retirement.

A year later, Svitekovich earned his bachelor's degree from Eastern and got a job at Marshall Junior High, where he worked for a half-year before being transferred to Adams Junior High. Earning $4,900 a year, he was only several years older than his peers. In 1965, he helped to start the district's alternative program for troubled students — one of the state's first. That program remains in place and has kept the dropout rate in check.

That same year, he married his wife, Sharon, and joined a teachers' strike during the last week of school. Students missed some class time, but the strike didn't interfere with graduation ceremonies.

"It was a tense time," he said. In 1967, Svitekovich began teaching math at Wayne Memorial High School and rose rapidly through the ranks, receiving his master's degree from Eastern in 1968 and becoming Wayne Memorial assistant principal in 1969. The school had 2,600 students — twice its current enrollment — when he worked there.

He left Wayne Memorial in 1977 to accept his first principal's job at Stevenson Junior High. By then, he and his wife had two children, Tim and Lisa, now in their 20s, and had moved from his native Allen Park to Wayne.

"We wanted our children to attend Wayne Westland schools because they had a tremendous reputation," he said. Three years later, Svitekovich climbed another rung and became John Glenn High School principal, earning a hard-line reputation among students. His John Glenn experiences were among his best and worst.

Memories of high school seniors being killed in graduation-night car accidents still haunt me," he said.

One morning at John Glenn, Svitekovich recalls being shocked when he arrived at school and saw that a row of tall trees in front of the school had been chopped down by construction crews installing sewer lines along Marquette Road. The city hadn't warned the school.

When students and teachers arrived, the school turned the incident into a dual lesson about the environment and the necessity of public relations.

Over the years, some students have become Svitekovich's personal friends. He still gets Christmas cards from some, and he has seen some become successful in local businesses.

Somewhat of a businessman himself, he has earned the district hundreds of thousands of dollars by securing lease agreements for unused buildings.

Joins cabinet

In 1984, Svitekovich climbed to the cabinet level, where he has remained. He worked under O'Neill in an administration that — despite having some strong supporters — took some hard knocks in the last two years. Critics have cited concerns about rising taxes in a district that they perceive as on the decline.

O'Neill stepped down under school board pressure in November and Svitekovich, as deputy superintendent, assumed his duties. Stung by O'Neill's treatment, Svitekovich again made the best of the situation and led the 16,000-student district.

But, saying "it's time to move on," he will go to Carmen-Ainsworth on Wednesday, despite mixed feelings about leaving a school district where he had expected to retire.

"This community has given me a lot in return for what I've given the community," he said. "It's been a great place to live, raise a family and get an excellent education for my children. I want to thank the people here. And I will never forget them."

The start: Members of the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees lead off the parade, carrying a banner.

Parade day

The weather cooperated and the politicians were all smiles.

It was the 4th of July in Plymouth. And the parade sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees went off without a hitch.

Thousands lined Main Street to hear the sounds of the East Middle School Band, the Plymouth Fire and Drum Corps and a Civil War era marching band.

But there was more than music. Plymouth's Fred Hill Briefcase Drill Team made an appearance.

And there were politicians. With the primary election coming in August, local candidates for Plymouth Township office were out in full force, along with judicial candidates.

In fact, the number of politicians marching jumped the number of units from 55 to 72.

For the first time, the parade will be broadcast live on school station WSDP, 88.1 FM, and parade goers are urged to bring portable radios to listen in.

Flag waver: For Matthew Baczor, 16 months, there's more to watching a parade than the bands, there's the flag. The young patriot found a new use for the flag. He is being held by his mother, Joanie Baczor. She said the fire trucks were his favorite.

Red Cross to use UAW hall for disaster center

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER

Where would you go if a disaster like last week's train wreck/chemical spill near Lake Superior forced you from your home?

Try a Plymouth Road union hall as your first stop.

The Southeastern Michigan region of the American Red Cross has established a Disaster Response Network center at UAW Local 182, across from Ford Motor Company's Livonia Transmission Plant.

The cooperative project, which was announced Wednesday by Red Cross and Local 182 officials, marks the first out-county effort by the relief agency in Metro Detroit. It's part of a national program begun two years ago when union halls were staffed by Red Cross workers as hurricanes ripped through the Accident witnesses sought

Police are seeking witnesses to a fatal accident Wednesday afternoon on Farmington Road, south of Schoolcraft.

Killed in the two-car collision was William A. Lewis, 78, of Romulus.

The second driver, a 37-year-old Dearborn woman, was treated for minor injuries, police said.

"The details we've been able to put together are kind of sketchy. There had to be more people who saw the accident," said Sgt. Kevin Dawley of the Livonia Police traffic bureau.

School district spokesman Richard Egli said Yack's points were given careful consideration. "We do need to work cooperatively with other units of government, no question," he said. "Staff took time to look at his concerns. The board also acknowledged his concerns, and looked at whether it made sense to sell and put it back on the tax rolls or not to sell. They looked at other concerns too."

District response

In responding to Yack's contentions, school administrators said new housing developments "appear to have a leveling effect on our total district enrollment, and without it, the district would most likely experience a decline. Older neighborhoods are now experiencing a declining enrollment."

New housing "could very well add to the overall value of the surrounding existing housing," they said.

Attendance boundaries are scheduled to be redrawn in the fall of 1993, anyway, Hoedel said. The cost of increased enrollment will not be offset by increased revenue, he added. "The assumption that Mr. Yack makes that for every new student who registers it costs the

What you had there (60,000 temporary evacuees in Wisconsin and Minnesota), that's exactly what this is designed for," said Edward Amos Jr., Red Cross region director for disaster and military services.

"Tornadoes would probably be a more typical example of when the center would be activated though."

"We're honored the Red Cross chose Local 182," said Frank Baker, local president.

"We think we have an excellent facility here, although we naturally hope we never have to use it under emergency conditions," Baker said.

If emergency activation does become necessary, residents will be directed to the union hall via radio and television public service announcements and from area hospitals or police stations, Amos said.

Dawley said Lewis' 1985 Dodge and the other car, a blue 1980 Mercury headed south on Farmington, collided at 2:55 p.m. Both cars ended up on the east (northbound) side of Farmington, Dawley said.

Lewis was conscious after the accident and was taken to St. Mary Hospital. He died en route to University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor, according to police reports.

district $4,800 per year is misleading. New students are placed into existing spaces.

"At the same time we are experiencing new students, we are experiencing a decline in other neighborhoods throughout the school district. Part of the operating cost of the schools is fixed costs, such as utilities, administrative support and other instructional support staff, which will go on and be maintained, regardless of the number of increased students."

Said Yack: "If the district was in formula (receiving general state aid), do you think they would be using that argument with the state of Michigan? For every kid, they would figure the cost of overhead. 'I don't think they really want to argue along those lines with someone who's been around the educational finance game.'"

Yack said he was disappointed but not surprised the district sold the Field site. "I certainly had enough dialogue with some of the members of the school board and administration to know they were going to move forward. I don't want to jeopardize what I consider a good relationship with the schools, but I'm not sure that what was done was in the best interests of the entire community."

The telephone is answered from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. weekdays.

The telephone service is paid for by the league's education fund. The League of Women Voters is a non-profit organization that works to keep voters interested and informed about governmental issues.

The Livonia local will serve residents within a 15-20-mile radius.

The only Red Cross disaster facility for the region is at a UAW building on East Jefferson in Detroit.

The Livonia building already meets Red Cross requirements for square footage, restrooms and parking.

It also has kitchen facilities. Under the agreement with the union, additional phone lines may be installed with the UAW paying for their use during normal activities.

"Just about everything is in place. All we have to do is hang our sign," said Jim Kreuger, executive director for the Red Cross.

Kreuger said the Red Cross has leaned heavily on UAW, AFL-CIO and other union volunteers in previous emergencies.

The relationship has been beneficial, he said, noting close friendships that developed after the 1989 San Francisco earthquake. "After three or four months we had union barbers coming in and giving haircuts," he said. The Livonia UAW volunteer effort will be coordinated by Lawrence Bodziany, chairman of the local's community service community.

Bodziany and others will be trained by Red Cross staffers.

Family wins award in suit

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The family of a Plymouth man killed by a falling tree at Fox Hills Country Club has won nearly $900,000 in a damage suit.

A Washtenaw Circuit Court jury on June 26 ruled that Fox Hills management has to pay $1.8 million in damages, due to negligence in the storm-related incident. But attorney Stephen Boak, representing the family of the man killed in the accident, said that judgment would be reduced by half.

That's because the jury also found Paul Domes, killed in the May 31, 1991, incident, also negligent, under Michigan law.

Presiding Judge William Ager said that by the degree to which Domes was found negligent, 50 percent of the award to Domes' family is cut in half.

Domes' widow Barbara Domes was the plaintiff in the suit. John Gillyool, attorney representing Fox Hills, declined comment on the case pending the entering of the judgment, expected in the next two weeks.

Ager said the amount of the damage award, nearly $900,000, would stand, when the judgment is entered.

According to the court complaint, Domes and her husband were taking shelter among some trees during a storm "when without warning or notice a dead and deteriorating tree fell and struck Paul Domes in and about his head."

He died soon after from injuries stemming from the incident.

The complaint maintained that the golf course had a duty "to make visual inspections of the golf course and the trees which were contained within its boundaries and to remove trees with defects which may pose an unreasonable danger to the general public."

In their response, legal counsel for Fox Hills maintained that the Domes "proceeded in the face of an open and obvious danger failed to take precautions for their own safety."

The response to the suit maintained the Domes "failed to exercise that degree of reasonable care required of reasonably prudent golfers."

A Fox Hills manager declined comment on the jury verdict.

Boak said the family sought damages based in part on the condition of the tree that struck Paul Domes.

Two days after the incident, a relative went to the scene — the fourth hole and noticed the fallen tree "had no green on it," Boak said.

The claim for damages was also based on the premise that Paul Domes, a plumber, "would have continued to earn sums of money and benefits in increasing amounts," the complaint said, for support of his family.

Arson

A 26-year-old Plymouth man told Canton police that someone tried to set fire to his 1987 Pontiac Sunbird the night of June 29.

A police officer observed a 4-inch-by-6-inch patch of the driver's seat had been burned out, causing $300 in damage, the police report says.

The officer didn't believe an accelerator was used, but found eight burned matches on the seat, the report said. Also, the turn-signal lever was broken off and the sunroof gasket had been torn down from the roof. The car was unlocked.

Theft

A 21-year-old Westland man told Canton police that his 1984 Chevrolet S-10 pick-up truck was broken into between 12:30 and 5 a.m. Wednesday in an employees' parking lot on Ronda Road.

The police officer found the passenger window, mirror and door lock broken, according to the police report. The victim said a leather coat worth $200 and a gold rope necklace worth $350 were missing.

They found herbs to their taste

By BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

If you can't eat it, use it as medicine or make something out of it, then the Brautigen of Plymouth don't have it in their garden.

Cindy and Mike Brautigen are "back-to-basics" people. Ten years ago, they decided to sell their Southfield home and when they couldn't find another house that they liked, they settled for 10 acres of property on Brookville and Curtis roads in Plymouth.

"There was nothing really here, but we liked the character of the land," Cindy Brautigen explained. "We built our own house and intended to start a Christmas tree farm."

Instead of a Christmas tree farm, the Brautigen ended up with an orchard, an herb garden and a vegetable garden, as well as a barn where they host classes on herbs, crafts and composting. Brookville Gardens was born.

"We try to be as organic as possible. We use very few sprays and that is why several restaurants come to us for fresh herbs," Brautigen said. "We really concentrate on the culinary aspects of gardening. My husband loves to cook so we experiment with many of the things we grow."

The couple may live up to a salad with fresh nasturtiums or violas, while fresh mint is added to teas and herbal wreaths for the home.

The couple has always been avid gardeners. When they purchased the land, however, Brautigen decided she needed more instruction. She completed a master gardener course with the county extension service and set out to establish a very "serviceable" garden.

"They also traveled to England with a national herb growers group and saw many of the classic, old gardens there."

"That trip really put me over the edge," Brautigen said.

In addition to hosting classes and selling to restaurants, Brookville Gardens is also open to simple gardeners. Brautigen hosts several garden walks during the year to really help give novice gardeners ideas for getting started.

"The business has been slow growing, but things are picking up a bit now and we are even expanding our classroom facilities to accommodate for larger groups," Brautigen said.

Both gardeners continue their careers — Mike Brautigen with Ford

Motor Co. and Cindy Brautigen at an area hospital — but they enjoy the quiet and simple life they have found in rural Plymouth.

"It has not been a terribly lucrative business for us, but we reap benefits in other ways, such as a much healthier lifestyle," Brautigen said.

The Brautigen children, mostly grown, also work in the gardens. Their mother is pleased to have exposed them to two different ways of life.

Most customers find the Brautigen through trade publications and word-of-mouth, but they are also discovered by passersby on the country road that they call home.

Salesman started small

By BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

At age 27, his co-workers consider him the Whiz Kid of sales. If they knew him when he was in the fourth grade, however, they would know that he was born a salesman.

Chris Knight is now a real estate agent with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Plymouth, but he started his sales career with the Observer newspapers.

"I lied about my age so that I could carry the paper," Knight said. "I then convinced the people on my route to keep the papers and at the end of the year I would gather them up in my red wagon and turn them in for money."

Knight earned enough money this way to buy himself a pony.

He then attended horse shows and would buy saddles and then sell them to make a profit. In later years he moved up to selling farm machinery.

Now, the Plymouth-Salem High School graduate has "bigger fish to fry."

He joined the real estate profession right after high school and also earned an associate's degree in marketing and management.

"Things just kept getting better and better for me," Knight said. "The poor economy hasn't really affected me at all."

His success is evidenced by the fact that he's been named the top realtor for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer for four consecutive years. His $35 million in career sales has netted him a post in the President's 30 Club and the Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate Founder's Award, the Coldwell Banker International President's Circle Award and the title of number-one sales associate company-wide for buyer-controlled sales.

His nine years in the business has led him to build a strong client base who offer him repeat business on a regular basis.

Knight says he is hard on himself most of the time and his competitive nature keeps him working seven days a week, 12 to 15 hours a day.

"That's probably why I'm not married," he said with a smile. He attributes his success to being able to put himself in his customers' shoes and becoming personally involved with their home-buying decisions.

Grangers remain viable

Plymouth Grangers would like the community to know that while they're without the building they sold to Jack Wilcox a couple of years ago, they're a viable organization nonetheless.

Grangers, who number about 40, are meeting at the VFW Hall the third Thursday of every month, and at members' homes for last-minute meetings or when the hall is booked.

It's not the set up the Grangers envisioned when they sold the building. Plans called for the Grange to sell its facility to Wilcox on a land contract, and move into a wing of the Wilcox apartments to be built behind Wilcox's house.

The Grangers bought the building in 1912 from Wilcox's father. It originally served as a barn and stables for the Wilcox house.

Grangers thought they'd be in their new quarters long before now. But ground hasn't even been broken for the project.

Granger Ruth Strebbling says the organization hasn't been informed as to the reason for the delay.

"We are not getting anywhere; we can't get through to Jack Wilcox," said Strebbling. "Ground-breaking was supposed to be in April. As far as I know, nothing has been done on that building. No one seems to know where the building is going or what's happening."

Wilcox says that because he's a limited partner in the project, he has no control over the construction schedule. The general partner, Marcello Scappatichi, couldn't be reached for comment.

Wilcox is renting the Grange building to the YMCA, which is using it for classes.

Attorney Jim Lewandowski, who's handled legal issues involving the Grange, says the Grangers never should have moved out. "My advice to them was to stay where they were until they were able to move into the new building. They didn't have to move unless the building was going to be torn down, and it's still standing. They could be back in there, theoretically."

For decades, the Grange opened its doors to the community the weekend of Fall Festival. People flocked to the Grange, renowned for its homemade pies and pickles, split pea soup and sloppy joes.

Lewandowski says the Wilcox project would have gone ahead if not for the recession. "I think it was the fact the economy was going bad, there were financing problems, and this and that," he said.

Banks have tightened restrictions, further complicating the situation.

Strebbling says the reason the Grange sold and vacated the building so fast was because "Jack wanted the building. They were going to tear it down in 30 days. That's what we were told."

Helen Eckles, community service chairman of the Grange, says she has no interest in moving back into the building. ("Where the Grange is housed) I don't think is anybody's business but our own," she said.

Eckles and the Plymouth Grange were acknowledged at the recent Michigan State Grange conference in Flint for their many hours of community service in 1990-91. They were recognized for donations and volunteer service to the Inter City Soup Kitchen; for transporting the sick and elderly; and donating items to nursing homes and church charities.

Currently, the Grangers, who range in age from 25-90, are making by hand lap quilts for a VFW hospital, baby quilts for infants with AIDS, and bibs and layettes for families of unwed mothers. They've supplied mattresses for needy families and do volunteer work for nursing homes on an ongoing basis.

The Grange also is putting a Canton girl through college.

Bill seeks to protect 'vulnerable' victims

By WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

Penalties would increase for criminals who target seniors, children and handicapped individuals under a bill proposed by an area state legislator.

Two years would be added to the sentence of those who commit crimes against people in all three categories under a bill proposed by Justice Barnes, D-Westland.

"Initially, it was just for seniors, but we've expanded it to include all vulnerable members of society," Barnes said.

The additional time would be added to sentenced felons, as well as those found guilty of committing a misdemeanor.

A second conviction would bring an additional sentence of five years. Ten years would be added to the sentence of those found guilty of a fourth offense.

A hearing was conducted last week in Dearborn.

"It went pretty well," Barnes said. "Some concerns were expressed over the cost of enforcement, but it's hard to find anyone opposed to the concept."

The bill also proved popular with police and seniors during a previous hearing in Muskegon, Barnes said.

The bill grew out of a task force put together by Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

"We brought together people from the community, our department and the Detroit Police Department," Ficano said. "We heard from seniors that they feel increasingly vulnerable."

The bill, he said, "sends a strong message" to those who target seniors and other at-risk groups.

"In addition to violent crime, there's a lot of fraud directed at these people," Barnes said.

The bill defines seniors as those age 60 and over.

Barnes said he hoped the bill would come before the full House sometime next fall.

Steering clear Abortion non-issue in 13th House race

By WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

When it comes to abortion, most Republican 13th District Congressional challengers are in agreement: They wish the issue would go away.

To this point, all are campaigning on economic issues — none on abortion and other social issues.

"I think too much emphasis is being placed on the issue of abortion when jobs, taxes, crime and education are equally demanding issues before us," said Earl Adkins, one of the six GOP hopefuls. Adkins is considered pro-life.

Fellow candidate Bill Steele agreed.

"Abortion is just one issue," said the pro-choice Steele. Abortion has always been a major, emotional issue. It only grew more so after last week's U.S. Supreme Court ruling upholding abortion, but giving states greater regulatory powers.

With Democratic incumbent William Ford co-sponsoring legislation to extend abortion rights nationwide, it's also become a major issue in the local Congressional race.

"My consistent position has been that Congress is incapable of making this personal decision for a woman," Ford said, in announcing his support for the Freedom of Choice Act.

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, a GOP contender, said preliminary polls have shown him pro-choice district voters were a majority.

That could be a problem for Geake, Adkins and Glen Kassel, all of whom have identified themselves, to varying degrees, as pro-life.

Geake, who opposes the proposed freedom of choice bill, said poll results won't change his position.

"For me, it's a moral issue," he said.

Of all the GOP challengers, only Raymond Tarter has taken a strong pro-choice stand.

Tarter, a University of Michigan professor, supports the bill.

"By upholding most of the provisions of Pennsylvania's restrictive abortion law, the court makes clear the need for Congressional action to legalize the right to choose," Tarter said.

Herbert Scott, said he opposed abortion but noted the GOP platform calls for choice in almost all other areas.

"Our platform is one of choice — we back schools of choice and individual choice in health care," Scott said.

Kassel, meanwhile, said pro-choice and pro-life activists should get together to draft legislation agreeable to most members of either side.

"I believe it's time people sat down and talked to each other," he said.

Until that unlikely event happens, abortion will remain a campaign issue, albeit an uncomfortable one.

Here's who is running in House primary:

Six men seek the Republican nomination in the 13th Congressional District.

They include:

- Earl Adkins, formerly of Southco, owner operator of an automotive-related business
- R. Robert Geake of Northville, an incumbent state Senator and child psychologist.

- Glen Kassel, a Westland real estate agent
- Herbert Scott of Canton Township, an executive with a pharmaceutical company
- Bill Steele of Plymouth, an employee of Nabisco.

- Raymond Tarter of Ann Arbor, a University of Michigan professor

All seek nomination in the Tuesday, Aug. 4, primary. The winner will meet Democrat William Ford and Tisch Party candidate Paul Steven Jensen in the fall.

The district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Garden City, Westland and a section of Livonia, south of Five Mile, west of Farmington Road.

5 YEARS IN THE COMMUNITY • 150 YEAR TRADITION

U of M expertise in your neighborhood!

Although we're celebrating our fifth anniversary, the University of Michigan has been around for 150 years! It set the standard of excellence for health care in this country. The U-M was the first college in the nation to establish a University-owned and operated teaching hospital, and was one of the first universities to admit women and minorities for medical training. The vaccine to prevent paralytic polio was perfected here by Dr. Jonas E. Salk, and in 1969 Michigan physicians pioneered the use of 3-D radiation therapy in treatment for cancer. And we remain at the forefront of medical research with breakthroughs in many fields including cancer and gene therapy.

At the U-M Health Centers we are proud of our affiliation with such a comprehensive health care system. But we're even more proud of the relationships we've developed with the communities we serve.

The University of Michigan Health Centers have all the specialists your family needs, at a location close to your home. You can see a family practice physician, a pediatrician, an internist, an obstetrician/gynecologist and clinical nurse specialists, all credentialed members of the U-M Medical Center staff. This gives you access to the state-of-the-art technology at the University's seven hospitals and 110 specialty clinics.

For your convenience, our appointment times include evenings and Saturdays. We have on-site laboratory and X-ray facilities with plenty of free parking. Call the health center most convenient for you to schedule an appointment.

Zoologist calls land healthy

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

While humans have battled over the future of the Peltz-MDOT acreage in Farmington Hills, plenty of wildlife and fish have settled into the property and call it home.

"Typically, we have a very healthy habitat," said Rick Usher, a zoologist who is working with Todd Holloway, a consultant with the city and Peltz-MDOT ad hoc committee.

Holloway has developed plans for the current replacement of wetlands from the 12 Mile boulevard project to the northwestern section of the MDOT land, south of I-696, between Farmington and Drake roads.

"There's too much here not to protect the backbone of the site ecology," Holloway said of the acreage.

Ron Spitzer, district fisheries biologist for the state Department of Natural Resources agreed. "We have to address the whole Rouge River system as valuable," he said. Spitzer has that opinion despite discouraging efforts lately to locate two threatened or endangered fish species in the larger of two creeks traversing the Peltz-MDOT property.

Spitzer, as well as Cathy Bean, who works in surface water quality for the DNR, and Jennifer Beam, of the DNR's Land and Water Management Division, conducted a survey of fish species in the creek by what is called electroshocking. A measured amount of electrical current is put in the water that stuns the fish long enough for the DNR representatives to determine the species.

"For as low as the flow was, we saw an abundance of fish," Spitzer said. But they didn't find the Red Side Dace or the Northern Mad Tom, both fish that are either threatened or endangered but believed to be on Peltz-MDOT.

"It's discouraging. But it doesn't mean the fish aren't in the system," Spitzer said.

In his surveys, Usher however, includes both fish as ones he has seen in the creek.

Usher offered his services to conduct what he calls a short overview of the property. As far as mammals go, Usher has found raccoons, mink, badger, striped skunk, white-tailed deer, eastern cottontail, snowshoe hare, woodchuck, eastern chipmunk, southern flying squirrel, fox and red squirrel, red tail hawk. Birds included cooper's hawk, eastern screech owl, and great horned owl.

That's not to mention the northern water snake, massasauga (or timber) rattlesnake, eastern garter snake and northern ribbof snake in the fish category. Usher found the tadpole mad Tom, spoonhead mottled sculpin, northbrook silver-side, creek chub, common shiner, central mud minnow and log perch.

"The fish were a pleasant surprise in the creek, which is a rather tortuous environment," Usher said, referring to the small environment, which he called "ripple and pool."

What's especially surprising is the type of fish living in the two creeks on the property, which is affected by human development upstream.

Ethnic leaders put their faith in new state law

By WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

Area ethnic leaders agree bigots and bullies will still face punishment, even in the wake of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling striking down one state's anti-hate crime law.

But they worry there could be more of them to punish.

The recent high court unanimously struck down a Minnesota law banning cross burnings, display of Nazi symbols and similar provocative actions.

"It tells us the Supreme Court favors one person's right to free speech over another's right to live in dignity and without fear," said Bill Nabers, president of the South Oakland chapter of the NAACP.

While disappointed, ethnic leaders take solace Michigan's own 1989 ethnic intimidation law remains on the books.

"Anybody who burns a cross in anybody else's lawn in Michigan is still going to go to jail," said Richard Lobenthal, director of the Anti Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Still, they fear the high court ruling sends the wrong message.

"It's a disappointment," said Sam Yano of the Chaldean Federation of America. "It's going to make it more difficult for all-minority groups."

David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, chief sponsor of Michigan's law, said it is substantially different from its voided Minnesota counterpart.

"There was some pressure at the time to adopt a law with provisions very much like those in the Minnesota law," Honigman said. "But my feeling was that they were unconstitutional."

Michigan's law is directed at actions specifically directed at others, Honigman said.

"It's the difference between symbolism and action," he said. "You can burn a cross on your own lawn, but if you do it on someone else's, without their permission, it's a crime."

Honigman said he believed the high court correctly struck down the more restrictive law.

"It's regrettable, but it's better than having the government step in to regulate speech," he said.

For minorities, the balance between free speech and personal attack carries bitter irony.

"It's a very fine line," said Terry Ahal of the American Arab Anti-Discrimination Commission. "If you call me a name, that's your business. But if you call me a name and point a knife at me you should be punished."

County doesn't use intimidation law

Though Michigan's ethnic intimidation law has been on the books for three years, it isn't universally enforced.

In Oakland County, there have been 15 convictions in 15 cases — with four more cases pending trial.

In Wayne County, with nearly double the population, there have been three cases.

Oakland prosecutor Richard Thompson believes his county has been fairly aggressive in pursuing ethnic intimidation cases.

"Our cases generally involve physical contact or destruction of property," he said. "They also most frequently involve white on black incidents."

By design, Wayne County has been less aggressive in bringing ethnic intimidation charges.

"Our philosophy is why go for two years for ethnic intimidation when you can go for four years for assault," said the Wayne prosecutor's chief of operations Richard Padriesski.

Michigan's ethnic intimidation statute is essentially a supplemental law, with charges most commonly brought along side those for other crimes.

"From what I've seen there's been a drop in racist graffiti," said Richard Lobenthal of the Anti Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Recycling, phone-in registration top McDowell's goals for S'craft

Schoolcraft College president Richard McDowell received a raise and contract extension a few weeks ago.

Now, college trustees have given him his work assignments for next year, with recycling and phone-in registration among the issues to be explored.

Schoolcraft's lack of a unified recycling program has been a continual concern of trustees in recent years.

Trustees also asked McDowell to look into the possibility of phone-in class registration.

College marketing is another key goal, with trustees asking the president to produce a promotional video for the college.

McDowell's goals include also securing state approval and financing for a new college office building. The building is designed to consolidate offices and services currently housed in buildings along Haggerty Road.

In a design change, the building will also include classrooms. College officials are optimistic state money will be available for the project, delayed for over a year due to state cutbacks.

Another goal involves exploring the possibility of a campus-wide recycling program.

Trustees also asked McDowell to expand the partnership program with local public school districts and help the Schoolcraft College Foundation raise $100,000 for student scholarships.

On staff matters, trustees asked McDowell to continue Target Specific Bargaining — a new, information-sharing strategy used to settle this year's negotiations with the college faculty union. They also asked to president to expand opportunity for staff development.

An additional goal, conducting college planning with community members, college staff and students, was tabled for further study.

Richard McDowell: The Schoolcraft College president has his work cut out for him in the next year.

In May, McDowell received a 5 percent raise and one-year contract extension. His contract runs through 1995.

Edison grant to renovate Madonna's science wing

Madonna University has received a $30,000 pledge from the Detroit Edison Foundation for renovation of the university's science wing.

The university received the first $10,000 recently with the remaining $20,000 to be distributed over the next two years. The pledge is part of the $10 million Campaign for Academic Excellence launched at Madonna in 1988 to raise money for renovation, operations and endowment.

Construction already is under way on the science wing. The university's plans include modernizing the rooms to meet the needs of science classes, building additional office space to house expanded faculty and staff and updating the mechanical and electrical systems.

Among science disciplines to be upgraded and expanded are biochemistry, microbiology, physics and medical technology.

The Detroit Edison Foundation was established by the utility in 1987 to help improve the quality of life in its service area. This year, the foundation awarded grants totaling more than $1.5 million to nearly 100 organizations.

Sen. Geake goes after sex offenders

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, has introduced legislation that amends the Mental Health Code and creates a mechanism to protect citizens from sexually violent habitual offenders.

"Our No. 1 priority is to protect our citizens from these severely disturbed and dangerous individuals," said Geake. "Unless we take immediate stern action, no one will be safe from the Leslie Williamses of the world. The people of Michigan need to be assured that violent sexual offenders are not allowed to roam our streets."

The legislation will allow a prosecuting attorney to petition the court to determine if a person is a habitually violent sexual offender when:

- The sentence of a person who has been convicted of a sexually violent offense is about to expire, or has expired;
- The person charged with a sexually violent crime has been determined to be incompetent to stand trial, is about to be or has been released;
- The person charged with a sexually violent crime has been found not guilty by reason of insanity and is about to be or has been released; and

- The term of incarceration for a person who has committed sexually violent crimes as a juvenile is about to expire or has expired.

If it is determined beyond a reasonable doubt that the person is a sexually violent habitual offender, that person would be committed to a secured facility for control, care and treatment until such a time as the person is no longer a threat to the public.

POINTS OF VIEW

Teachers can't work under school's shadow of fear

QUESTION: I am a teacher in a school where the building principal manages by intimidation. We are written up for everything. The morale is low, many teachers are frightened, most want to transfer, some are physically sick. What percent of teachers that go before the tenure commission are fired? I am a tenured teacher but worry about my job security all the time.

ANSWER: Public school teachers in Michigan today probably have the greatest job security (called tenure) of all jobs in the U.S. You are fortunate because that was not always the case. Prior to 1937, there was no teacher tenure, and there were no teacher contracts.

Some boards and administrators, in those early days, functioned in an extremely arbitrary, conspicuous and paternalistic manner. Teachers rarely challenged the system.

Today, the arsenal of weapons teachers have far exceeds what most professions in this country have available.

In 1964, Michigan residents voted for statewide teacher tenure. In '65, collective bargaining passed the Legislature. Today a teacher can appeal state tenure results through the court system. If that doesn't work, they can try the civil rights commission (I'm being released because I am too tall, too short, Irish).

Tenured teachers (and I consider myself a former teacher) literally have to be caught in some gross act to be dismissed, and generally it is not their teaching nor teaching style.

Indeed, many teachers see themselves given a bad rap because of the total lack of commitment of a few. I taught next to a guy in high school who came to class 10 minutes late and left 10 minutes early. He assigned busy seat work so he could read the newspaper. At the end of the year, he got the same raise I received. Quality teachers know what I'm talking about, and those reading this column probably have someone in mind.

Justin King, executive director of the Michigan Association of School Boards,

DOC DOYLE

As a former assistant superintendent of schools, if I received requests for 10 teachers in a building, let alone most of the staff, where building morale is at the bottom, where teachers are frightened and some physically sick, I would set up a major staff development program for the principal and give that person one year to put the building together.

Teachers can't work effectively under constant shadow of fear some people with positions of authority use as a cover up for their own low self esteem. Those with enough degrees and a fat resume can become a school administrator, but not all become competent and respected leaders.

James "Doc" Doyle, a former teacher, school administrator, university instructor is president of Doyle and Associates, an educational consulting firm.

"Good teachers don't need tenure and the bad ones shouldn't have it."

The average cost of a tenure case to a school district is about $100,000 for legal and other fees. One clear-cut case I know of cost the district more than $250,000, and the district still lost in an appeals court.

I don't know the details of your own personal situation, but when you say (assuming it is true) that most of the teachers want a transfer out of the building, the major problem in the building may be the principal.

There is no such thing as "collective guilt." However, let me hasten to note that ethnic Wisian people do constitute the single exception to this rule.

It pains me to say it, but this same concern needs to be borne in mind in dealing with most Wisian-Americans as well. Wisians are undeniably clannish, shrewd, vulgar, flashy, secretive, unsanitary, lazy, loud, lecherous and quite often drunk.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident most recently was an administrative assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth-Canton district.

OK, admit it — didn't my sneaky incursion against those Wisian rascals have you going for maybe just a second or two? Ally, Wisians are a creation of the National Science Foundation, which asked a sampling of Americans what they thought about a list of ethnic groups that included this imaginary one.

In the survey, "Wisian-Americans" got rated "undesirable" by a full four out of respondents! Such a disturbing statistic should cause all of us to think seriously about Wayne Dyer's phrase: "Too many of us are too ready to 'believe it' when it doesn't even exist."

Don't believe everything you hear about those Wisians

Dr. Wayne Dyer has been my friend ever since he was my assistant track coach at Detroit's Pershing High School and later a charismatic counselor at Farmington's Mercy High. An author clever with word play, he reversed two words in an old saying to devise the famous phrase, "You'll see it when you believe it."

To that I add the cautionary caveat, "But don't simply believe it: First, take care to distinguish it from your past experiences with things to which it merely bears some similarity." As a caveat to my own caveat, I further add, "Never deceive yourself into 'seeing' with your imperfect memory of previous similar experiences or to uncritically accept what others recall of theirs."

"Similar" isn't "same." And even a fairly accurate recollection can be distorted by the passing of time and by having "reviewed" the recollection through what I call the "prism of cultural orientation." We must take care lest that prism of our own culture distort our view of other cultures in the same way that peering through a crystal prism distorts how we see the physical world.

The late Senator Sam Hayakawa of California wrote about a hypothetical "Mr. Miller" who was immediately seen as a miserly, clannish, untrustworthy radical by people who had just been introduced to him. They saw him this way because they had been given just one piece of information about him — that he was Jewish.

Prismatically, they saw the rest based on that isolated piece, even though it bears an ancient stereotypical baggage distorted by the blurring prisms of diverse cultures and by

Insurance reform overdue

Im writing concerning Tim Richard's recent Point of View editorial concerning automobile insurance. First, let me say that I am a life long conservative Republican who voted for Gov. Engler last election. However, I do not share your view on his role in the auto insurance fiasco. Here is how I see it.

On April 3, Gov. Engler vetoed a bipartisan no-fault bill which would have reduced premiums by 15 percent and would have provided the consumers with true reform of the auto insurance law. Engler has made it clear that protecting insurance company profits and creating false campaign issues mean more to him than lowering auto insurance premiums for consumers.

You may think the Republicans in the legislature agreed with Engler and supported his political deceit. They didn't, because on this one, the governor stands alone.

For the past 15 months, Engler established himself as the only person in this state who did not want to resolve the no-fault debate. He alone did not and still does not want a no-fault bill. Here's why.

Engler wanted to use the failure of the Democratic-controlled House to pass auto rate releases as a campaign issue to elect a Republican majority in November. Of course, he will blame the trial lawyers' refusal to compromise on tort liability restrictions as the reason for the absence of a reform bill — killing the proverbial two birds with one stone.

On March 26, the House Republicans had enough of the governor's stonewalling and voted 63 to 36 to send a bipartisan no-fault bill to the Senate. Five days later on March 31, even the Republican Senate could no longer justify denying insurance rate relief to the citizens of our state merely to placate Engler's political greed and chicanery. The Senate passed the House bill 24 to 14.

The final concurrence of the House was a dramatic 94 to 12 approval! The governor now stands alone having vetoed a 15 percent rate rollback because "it doesn't contain enough cost savings for the insurance industry" (An industry that netted a nifty $81 billion profit during the last "crisis" between 1976 and 1985).

Why did Engler lose control of his party and the Senate? He lost control because his personal vendetta to punish the trial lawyers had reached such extremes that it could no longer be tolerated — not even by members of his own party! Even conservative Republicans know, and now believe, that there is no meaningful cost reduction in tort liability restrictions.

The governor stood alone and in opposition to this bill. Hopefully, the voters will remember that Engler had a chance to protect their interests but instead chose to protect the profits of the insurance industry and pursue his own political aspirations.

Crowds don't hurt Mount Desert's charm

BY WAYNE CURTIS
NEW YORK TIMES SYNDICATE

It's been three-quarters of a century since automobiles were given the run of Maine's Mount Desert Island, after being barred for years by island residents wishing to preserve the tranquility.

The traffic over the causeway from Trenton hasn't slowed since. Last year some four million visitors came to sample the island's charms.

While the crowds on Mount Desert Island — which is only about 108 square miles — can be vexing in midsummer, the place still has the capacity to enchant.

In Acadia National Park, which occupies about half the island, the vistas of ocean, granite and spruce have remained largely unchanged since the land was acquired for public enjoyment by society notables, including the Rockefellers and Vanderbilts, at the turn of the century.

The island towns, while suffering mild erosion in quaintness during the 1980s land rush, are still imbued with a pleasant, drowsy disposition.

Even Bar Harbor, which has unabashedly catered to the tourist trade for more than a century, has preserved some of its classic architecture.

When a devastating 1947 fire claimed 17,000 acres of forest and residential neighborhoods, downtown Bar Harbor and some of the grand homes along the water were spared the flames.

In addition to Bar Harbor the island's principal towns include Northeast Harbor, a fashionable enclave of shingled summer homes (and the departure point for day trips to the Cranberry Islands), and Southwest Harbor, a working waterfront village where top-of-the-line Hinckley yachts are manufactured.

Bass Harbor, near the island's southernmost tip, is a rough-hewn fishing village with ferry service to rural Swan Island, a pleasant destination for bicycle excursions.

The National Park Service maintains more than 120 miles of hiking paths, some along the coast and others through quiet woodlands or up manageable mountains. The park's visitor center off Route 3 in Hulls Cove has a list of trails.

Desert Island High School, a short drive from downtown Bar Harbor. Among the highlights this year are an all-Mountain program performed by the violinist Stephanie Chase and the forte pianists Steven Lubin and Masanobu Ikemiyu (July 27). Tickets are $12 at the door. For more information write to The Arcady Music Festival, P.O. Box 780, Bar Harbor, Maine 04609; or call (207) 288-3151.

On July 25 the Garden Club of Mount Desert Island will sponsor a garden tour in Northeast Harbor. Seven gardens will be open for inspection, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., including two public gardens and five on the grounds of area homes.

The tour costs $15; tickets are limited. Order in advance by mail from Mrs. William Bancroft, Cranberry Island, Maine 04625.

First-run movies are shown nightly in Bar Harbor's Criterion Theater, which is worth a visit for its extravagant 1932 art-deco interiors. For more information call (207) 288-3441.

Outings

Most Acadia visitors make at least one circuit on the 20-mile Park Loop Road ($5 per car, a pass good for a week), but it would be a mistake to limit one's exploration of the park to this drive.

The National Park Service maintains more than 120 miles of hiking paths, some along the coast and others through quiet woodlands or up manageable mountains. The park's visitor center off Route 3 in Hulls Cove has a list of trails.

The Arcady Music Festival celebrates its 12th season this year with a series of Monday night concerts until Aug. 31. All are at the Mount Northeast Harbor has two extraordinary gardens. Thuya Garden, a semi-formal perennial garden in the style of Gertrude Jekyll, is high on a wooded hillside above the harbor.

After wandering the well-tended garden with its reflecting pond and gazebo, stop at rustic Thuya Lodge, the former home of the noted Boston landscape architect Joseph Henry Curtis. An inviting network of paths and terraces descends from the lodge through the conifer forest and rocky outcrop pings to the harbor's edge.

The gardens are open daily July 1 to Labor Day from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The lodge is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A $2 donation is requested. For more information call (207) 276-5150.

Nearby, at the intersection of routes 198 and 3, is the Asticou Azalea Garden. This 2.5-acre garden has a very different character than that of Thuya Garden, even though both were designed by Charles K. Savage.

The azalea garden shows a strong Japanese influence, including an austere sand garden modeled after those found in Kyoto in the late 15th century. Azaleas typically bloom the last two weeks of June; Rhododendrons and laurels bloom a few weeks later.

The Asticou Azalea Garden is open during daylight hours between April 1 and Oct. 31. No admission is charged.

Climbing Mount Fuji to see sunrise

By GENE AND ADELE MALOTT
SPECIAL WRITERS

Louis and Gloria Calfin, who are avid mature travelers from West Bloomfield, wanted to climb Mount Fuji to see the sunrise.

"Don't worry," Gloria Calfin told her husband. "Thousands of Japanese climb Fuji every year. It must be easy. And don't forget the saying, 'He who climbs Mount Fuji is a wide man.'"

"Yes," he replied, "and don't forget the rest of it: 'He who climbs it more than once is a fool.'"

As mountain climbing goes, the five-hour ascent of Mount Fuji is relatively easy, especially for healthy seniors. It is a continuous uphill climb with no forbidding intermediate peaks or steep overhanging cliffs to scale.

Or, as Louis Calfin now puts it, working up the 12,400-foot summit "is just a matter of putting one foot before the other."

Participants move in a line. They are guided by a long chain bordering the mountain path. Each person tugs on the chain for an occasional boost.

Climbers wear sturdy shoes, a hat and gloves for grasping the chain guide.

The Calfins decided they would make the climb after first visiting Tokyo. When they were ready, they sent their baggage on to Kyoto, then took a bus to Kawagushiko, at the base of Mount Fuji.

"It is best to climb at night, since then you will be able to see the gorakoi (sunrise)," was the advice the Calfins got from their Japanese innkeeper — who lent them knapsacks, sweaters, windbreakers and flashlights.

When it came time to board another bus to Gogome, where the climb would begin, a large crowd of Japanese young men and women was already assembled.

They all wore colorful costumes and carried jangling pole-bells — long, wooden climbing poles topped with bells and ribbons.

The Calfins purchased their own climbing poles, which proved invaluable for keeping steady while scaling the mountainside.

It was 8 p.m. and completely dark when the climb began. A cold wind forced the Calfins to quickly don their sweaters and jackets. The flashlights saved many a misstep on the loose lava rock.

They climbed until midnight, using the poles and chain guide along the steep path, reaching a large hut, where some of the faster climbers were already asleep on the floor.

Louis Calfin says he and his wife rented two thin mattresses from the owner of the hut, put them on the tatami-matted floor and tried to sleep.

But it was cold — and they had only a thin blanket. So at about 2 a.m. they joined the but owner and his daughter who were sitting at the far end of the room. Their feet were dangling in a well in the floor. Hot water in a giant kettle replenished the well water and made welcome steamy drinks.

About an hour and a half later the other climbers arose to start the final ascent.

But Louis Calfin had developed leg cramps. "I owe that to being out of condition," he now says.

So the couple decided to remain at the hut and see the sunrise from there — at 10,000 feet.

At 4:30 a.m. the magic began. First the sky turned red, orange and violet. Shadows bathed the mountain peaks in mystic blue.

"It could have been a surrealistic scene by Dali," Calfin says.

Within 10 minutes the sun burst into view, a brilliant reddish orange. No one uttered a sound as the miracle of nature took place.

It was well worth the mountain-climbing adventure, the Calfins say. After the experience — and exchanging boxes of goodbye with their companions — they began the descent.

And that, says Calfin, was a breeze. Thanks to a volcanic sand slide, called sunabashiri, people can practically slide downhill — which takes about three hours.

Climbing season is July 1 to Aug. 31.

Budget issues split state-delegation

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress voted on major roll call votes in the week ending here's how area House members were recorded on four key balanced budget issues in the week ending June 12.

mitted only in wartime or if allowed by three-fifths majorities of both houses. Taxes could have been raised by simple majority votes.

A yes vote supported the Stenholm proposal. Voting yes were Pursell and Broomfield. Voting no were Hertel, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin.

gressmen voting yes: Hertel. Voting no: Pursell, William Ford, Sander Levin, Broomfield.

No on Barton Proposal: Voting 200 for and 227 against, the House rejected a balanced budget proposal (HJ Res 248) for Rep. Joe Barton, R-Tex. Its main distinguishing feature was requiring three-fifths majorities of the House and Senate to raise taxes, compared to the simple majority required by the Stenholm measure (above).

Barton said his proposal would "make it just as difficult to make that decision to raise taxes as it is to borrow money."

Opponent Don Pease, D-Ohio, called it wrong "to tie the hands of future Congresses as this amendment would do." A yes vote supported the Barton plan: Area Congressmen voting yes: Broomfield. Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin.

No on Kyl-Allen Proposal: The House rejected, 170 for and 258 against, an offering by GOP Reps. Jon Kyl of Arizona and George F. Allen of Virginia that was similar to the Stenholm amendment (above) except that it gave presidents a line-item veto to control spending and limited spending to 19 percent of the gross national product.

Allen said that by linking spending hikes to GNP expansion his proposal "actually gives Congress an incentive to adopt positive economic growth policies."

Opponent Leon Panetta, D-Calif., referred to the 19 percent figure and said "when we start using mindless formulas and build them into the Constitution, we become mindless."

A yes vote supported Kyl-Allen proposal. Michigan Congressmen voting yes: Broomfield. Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin.

HOUSE

No on balanced budget amendment: By a vote of 280 for 153 against, the House failed to approve a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. Supporters fell nine votes short of the two-thirds majority needed for passage of the measure (HJ Res 290) sponsored by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Tex. Congress and the president were to have kept spending within each year's anticipated revenue, beginning as early as fiscal 1995, with deficits per-

No on Gephardt Proposal: By a vote of 103 for and 327 against, the House rejected a balanced budget constitutional amendment (HJ Res 496) sponsored by House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

It differed from the Stenholm proposal (above) by exempting Social Security from spending cuts, enabling only the president to initiate requests for deficit spending and requiring only simple majority votes to approve red ink requested by the White House.

Splash of lemon juice makes oysters lovable

It used to be true that oysters should only be eaten in months that end with an "r." For all we cared, the months could end in "z," because swallowing one's first raw oyster is a rite of passage reserved for that minute classification of people who dared eat pate, escargot and/or sweetbreads.

Oysters are neither cute nor do they have a compelling aroma. One must work at loving oysters.

If memory serves me correctly, I was well into the age of adulthood before I sampled my first raw oyster. Being told not to chew but to swallow aimlessly to appreciate the true flavor, I was neither impressed nor did I desire to repeat the process. Only years later, at a true "raw bar" somewhere just outside of Boston, I discovered that a splash of lemon was all that was needed to outfit a fresh shucked Cotuit. I was immediately hooked and have enjoyed them ever since.

All oysters are considered "filter feeders," meaning that they do not necessarily move about to get their food but instead, get nourishment by pumping hundreds of gallons of water a day through their valves and filtering out tiny larvae and plankton for nourishment.

Defining oysters

Oysters thrive on every coast and are categorized by that geographical definition. Domestically, there are Atlantic oysters, Pacific oysters and Gulf oysters. In the last few years, an incredible amount of new classifications of oysters have sprung into prominence.

What used to be simple groups like Bluepoints, Olympias and Cotuits have been integrated with the assorted tastes like Belons, Hog Island Sweetwaters and Portuguese, along with about a dozen or so other varieties. And that doesn't even begin counting the thousand or so varieties available from other worldwide coastal areas.

It used to be written in seawater that oysters should only be consumed during months that end with an "r." (Namely, September, October, November and December). Oysters reproduce during the summer, and as a result, most summer mainland oysters used to be unappealingly fat (about to spawn) or have a strange texture (just spawned). However, oyster harvesters now say that oysters can be perfectly acceptable in summer, especially if you order some of the colder climate varieties like those from Washington state, British Columbia or Nova Scotia.

Health concerns

Because oysters are filter feeders, they are continuously exposed to infectious bacteria and viruses that get pumped through their bodies along with the food supply. These bacteria and viruses are usually found in waters polluted by industrial wastes and sewage.

Periodically, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration issues advisories, warning consumers not to eat raw shellfish, including oysters, but the FDA has never really come forward and said that eating raw oysters is harmful. If it's any consolation, all oyster harvesters and distributors must use a detailed system of tagging every box of oysters that reveals the exact date of harvesting, including the specific oyster bed and the date received by the distributor and the date received by the restaurant. Restaurants are supposed to keep the tags on hand for 60 days, insuring that any resulting health problem could be traced quickly.

Cost increasing

Judging from oyster sales, safety is not weighing on most oyster lovers' minds. Oysters have become so popular that for several years they've been over-harvested. As a result, there are fewer and fewer oysters, and they cost more and more.

According to data from the National Marine Fisheries, on the East Coast alone, 48 million pounds of oyster meat valued at $46 million were sold in 1976. By contrast, in 1986, there were only 35 million pounds sold, valued at $72 million. That's a 27 percent decline in production and a 57 percent increase in price.

A call to some of Observerland's major seafood retail outlets found some interesting assortments of oysters for sale. Some, like the Belons, are definitely for discerning palates, but for the most part, a basic supply of the top flavor getters are available, for a price.

Expect to pay anywhere from 39 cents to about $1.50 each, depending on where they came from and their size. All of the retailers polled stressed that they can special order just about any type of oyster. These oysters are best when eaten raw but also can be baked, fried or steamed.

Neptune's bounty: Colorful and nutritious, seafood on the grill satisfies summer appetites.

on grilled seafood

Low in fat, and bursting with flavor, grilled fish and seafood are catching on. Chefs share secrets for cooking Neptune's bounty.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Grilling fish is a lot easier than you think. The possibilities are endless. If you like steak, consider meaty fish like Alaskan halibut or salmon, shark, tuna or Mahi-Mahi. Scallops and shrimp can be paired with vegetables and fruit on a skewer.

"You can put Little Neck clams on the grill in the shell, when they open they're done, brush with some barbecue sauce," said Nick Tringali, who manages Jack's Seafood Market at 33224 W. 12 Mile Road in Farmington Hills. "Oysters can be put on the grill too. Shuck them, leave half shell, when they start to bubble a little they're done."

A small whole fish like trout, salmon, striped bass or bluefish is also good grilled. Consider buying a fish grilling basket. They cost about $13.95 for a small basket, $20.95 for large. "It keeps the whole fish firm, and helps retain moisture," said Tringali.

"You've gotta have a clean grill, the grate and underneath," said Chef Chuck (Rocky) Rachwitz of Livonia, corporate executive chef for the C.A. Muer Corp. "Spray the grill with non-stick cooking spray."

Chef Steve Wren of the Metropolitan Musicafe in Farmington Hills recommends finishing most seafood with a Sensational sajads: Combine green beans, potatoes, crab or shrimp for a refreshing salad on a warm summer evening.

Fish fillets: There's more than one way to beat the heat. Make fish fillets with salsa in your microwave oven.

squeeze of lemon or lime as it's coming off the grill. "Never salt the fish until just before it goes on the grill," said Wren. "Other seasonings are OK. Never put salt on the fish after it's been put on the grill and turned. Salt won't penetrate the cooked side of a fish."

Here are some more tips from the National Fisheries Institute.

Always buy fish and seafood from a reputable source. Fish should have a firm, elastic texture and a bright, shiny color. On a whole fish, the head, tail and backbone should still be intact.

Take a smell. The aroma should be mild and fresh, somewhat like a sea breeze. If it smells "fishy," it's not as fresh as it should be. Check for tightly closed shells on clams, oysters and mussels.

Start the fire about 30 minutes before you want to start cooking. Spread charcoal evenly to equally distribute heat. Adjust the grill to four to six inches above the heat. When the fire is moderately hot, it's time to cook.

The general guide for cooking seafood steaks is 10 minutes per inch of thickness at 450 degrees. "Every grill is different," said Rachwitz. "When you push the flesh of the fish with a fork and it starts to flake it's done. It's better to under-cook than over-cook." When the fish flakes easily, and the watery, translucent appearance becomes milky and opaque, it's done.

Scallops turn opaque throughout when done, shrimp turns bright pink and the center, when cut open, is milky white.

If you're cooking a whole fish with the tail on check for doneness at the thickest part, which is just behind the head.

Try to use fresh seafood within a day of purchase. Store live shellfish in a shallow dish covered with damp towels or paper towels. Mussels, clams and shrimp should be used within two to three days. Oysters in the shell can be held seven to 10 days. If they open during storage, tap them again with a knife; if they don't close, discard them.

Chef digs growing flowers, herbs, vegetables

BY KEELY WYGONIK

Steven Allen didn't know what he was getting into when a friend told him about an opening at the Golden Mushroom restaurant, 18100 W. 10 Mile, Southfield.

"I was just out of high school and working as a dishwasher," he said. "I was totally alarmed when I got the job."

Allen completed the chef's apprenticeship program at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills while working at the restaurant.

In 1989, the Golden Mushroom sent him to southwest France where he worked with a chef for six months. Allen said he also learned a lot from Golden Mushroom chef/owner Milos Cihelka. Allen has worked at the Golden Mushroom 10 years, and is in charge of the kitchen. The Golden Mushroom is celebrating its 20th anniversary this month.

What's a normal dinner at your house?

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Chef's ingredients: Chef Steven Allen of the Golden Mushroom uses fresh herbs, various wild mushrooms, and foie gras in the dishes he prepares.

"Usually I'm working 70 hours a week so I eat at the restaurant a lot," said Allen, who is single. "It's a good way to sample the food, and see what's going right in the kitchen. When I cook, it's usually something simple like chicken sautee or roasted chicken."

Hobby?

"I've had a garden since I was 10," said Allen. "I love to get my hands in the dirt. I like the beauty of flowers and the smell of herbs. I picture my garden as a food show. I also grow tomatoes and cucumbers. There's nothing better than fresh picked tomatoes and cucumbers and herbs mixed with a little vinegar." He also enjoys tropical fish, and has a 60 gallon aquarium.

Cooking tip.

"Cook with care. Cook with pride. If you cook to please someone else and not yourself, why do it?"

WALLEYE (PICKEREL) SAUTE WITH HAZELNUT CRUST

Walleye filets, about 8 oz. per serving, skinless
Roasted and skinned hazelnuts, finely ground, mixed with fresh white bread crumbs, equal amount as hazelnuts

Preheat a large skillet or two to medium hot. Season fish with salt and pepper, dust with flour. Dip fish in "egg wash" and then in crumb hazelnut mixture, coating evenly on both sides. Shake excess off.

Four about 1/4" of clarified butter into skillet and place fish in. Over moderate fire brown gently on one side and turn over. Brown gently on other side, drain all butter from skillet (or transfer fish to a sheet pan) and place fish in 350 F. oven for about 5 minutes (depending on thickness), until done.

LEEK AND RASPBERRY VINEGAR SAUCE

1 cup white and pale end of leek, sliced
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1/2 cup clam juice
1/2 cup heavy cream
salt
white pepper
3 tablespoons raspberry vinegar

In a heavy bottom, stainless steel saucepan gently saute leeks till transparent. Add clam juice and cream, bring to boil, reduce fire to

To serve, arrange lettuce on 4 plates and spoon potato bean mixture on top. Divide crabmeat among the plates and garnish with olives and tomatoes. Drizzle remaining dressing on top. Yield 4 servings. Serve with crusty French bread.

KABOBS OF SALMON SPIRALS AND SHELLFISH

1/4 pound salmon filets, skinned
4 sprigs fresh dillweed
1 medium zucchini
1 medium-sized yellow bell pepper
1/2 pound sea scallops or medium shrimp
1/2 cup lime juice
1 tablespoon reduced-calorie margarine, melted
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon chopped fresh dillweed cucumber dill sauce (recipe below)

Cut salmon into strips 5 inches x 1 1/2 inches. Place a sprig of dillweed on each strip. Curl each salmon strip to form a spiral; secure with a toothpick and set aside.

Cut zucchini in half lengthwise, then cut diagonally into 1/2 inch pieces; set aside. Cut pepper into quarters; remove seeds and stem; cut each piece in half. Thread one salmon spiral (remove toothpicks) with scallops and/or shrimp, zucchini and peppers alternating onto 4 skewers. Place skewers in a large, shallow dish.

Combine lime juice and the next 3 ingredients; mix well and pour over kabobs. Cover and refrigerate 30 minutes.
Remove kabobs from marinade; set aside. Coat a grill with vegetable cooking spray. Place kabobs on grill 4 inches to 5 inches from hot coals. Grill, brushing kabobs with marinade and turning once, just until scallops are milky and opaque and

CUCUMBER DILL SAUCE

1/2 8 oz. package light cream cheese
1 tablespoon nonfat plain yogurt
2 teaspoons lime juice
1 1/2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1/4 teaspoon paprika
3 tablespoons seeded, finely chopped cucumber, well drained
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dillweed

Combine the first 5 ingredients in a bowl; beat until smooth. Fold in cucumber and dillweed. Cover and refrigerate until needed.

Pat fish dry with paper towels. Arrange in an 8-inch square glass baking dish so that pieces are toward the sides of dish. Combine salsa, tomatoes, cilantro, lime juice and coriander. Spoon mixture over fish. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Rotating dish midway through cooking, microwave on high 3 to 4 minutes, or just until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Serve on a heated tortilla garnished with sprigs of cilantro. Yield 4 servings.

FISH FILLETS WITH GREEN TOMATO SALSA

Ferrari-Carano committed to producing fine wines

Don Carano is a Reno, Nevada, attorney and owner of the Eldorado Hotel and Casino. In 1981, he and his wife, Rhonda, founded Ferrari-Carano Vineyards and Winery in Sonoma County's Dry Creek Valley.

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Their stylistic goal is creation of multi-dimensional, complex wines through blending individually fermented lots grown in a variety of climates and soils.
Fruit for the Ferrari-Carano wines originate from four different viticultural areas within Sonoma County: Dry Creek Valley, Alexander Valley, Knights Valley and Carneros. The 500 acres of winery-owned vineyards are tended by Barney Fernandez, one of the best vineyard managers in California, who has been instrumental in the acquisition and development of new vineyard sites.
The Ferrari-Carano vineyards are spread over a 50-mile radius which encompasses both hillsides and valley floor locations. "Mountain soil is less hospitable, stressing the vines and producing smaller crops,"

FOCUS ON WINE

Fernandez said. "When blended with the softer fruit from the valley floor, the result is a more complex wine style."

The first Ferrari-Carano releases were white wines, chardonnay and fume blanc, with impressive fruit balanced by the indelible imprint of barrel fermentation. The Caranos are now escalating their efforts to develop their red wine program. The core of this effort is to give their winemakers George Bursick all the tools he needs to produce richly concentrated, Bordeaux-style red wines.

The vineyards are planted to cabernet sauvignon, merlot, cabernet franc, malbec and petite verdot, the five red varieties used in Bordeaux. Bursick has overseen the design and construction of a state-of-the-art winery but is a firm believer that technology should not be over used.

"The best wines are grown in the vineyard and the winemaker must be a good caretaker," he said.

Grapes harvested for the red wine program are fermented and aged in separate lots to retain the original taste identities of their unique origins. Each is treated as an individual, capable of making a special contribution when the blend is assembled. The varied supply of fruit provides Bursick the palette of flavors...and aromas he needs to achieve the multi-dimensional wine that has become the Ferrari-Carano signature.

The most recent addition to the red wine program is an 8,400 square foot, Bordeaux-style, underground, temperature and humidity controlled, barrel aging cellar holding 1,500 60-gallon capacity French oak barrels. When a first-time visitor sees the cellar, with its vaulted ceiling and wine-stained French cooage, it brings back the sight of the barrel that at Chateau Mouton-Rothschild.

The cellar is situated next to the future site of "Villa Fiore" — a 14,500-square-foot Italianate villa designed to become the new Ferrari-Carano public tasting room and visitor's center. This spectacular property is fast becoming Sonoma County's destination winery for the aficionado touring California's wine country.

Wine Selection

The wines of Ferrari-Carano available locally include a medium-bodied 1991 Fume Blanc ($11), a flavorful 1990 Chardonnay ($20), a rich, oaky, 1989 Reserve Chardonnay ($32), an intense 1989 Merlot ($17) and a generous and supple 1988 Cabernet Sauvignon ($15).

If you plan a visit, drive north of Santa Rosa on Highway 101. Take the Dry Creek exit, turn left and drive nine miles to the gateway entrance on the left.
"We are not in a hurry at Ferrari-Carano," said owner Don Carano.

Shuck your fears, discover the flavor of oysters

See Larry Jones' column on Taste front.

OYSTER BISQUE

1 pint oysters, in liquid
4 cups milk
1/2 onion, sliced
4 sprigs parsley
1 bay leaf
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
dash fresh ground pepper, preferably white

Drain oysters, reserve liquid. Chop oysters, set aside. Combine milk, onion, parsley and bay leaf in a saucepan. Scald milk. Cook celery in a small amount of butter or margarine until tender. Add to milk mixture. Melt butter or margarine in a second saucepan. Blend in flour, salt and pepper and make roux. Strain milk mixture through a sieve and stir into roux mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add oysters with liquid. Heat through but do not boil. Serves 6-8.

OYSTERS ROCKEFELLER

18 large raw oysters
2 cups spinach, cooked and well drained
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
dash salt and pepper
3 drops Tabasco sauce
1/4 cup soft breadcrumbs
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Open oysters; remove from shells. Place shell halves on a bed of rock salt in a large, oblong baking dish. Place an oyster or half of one in each shell. Put spinach, onion, parsley, salt, pepper, tabasco in a food processor or blender and blend until well chopped. Stir in breadcrumbs and saute in butter or margarine for 5 minutes. Spoon over oysters. Bake at 400 degrees, for 10 minutes or until oysters are heated throughout and hot. Serve with lemon slices.

OYSTER STUFFING

4 quarts toasted bread cubes,

Oysters vary in size, taste and texture

Some of the selections available locally include: Belons: Use to hail from Brittany, France but is now grown on both coasts. They have round, flat shells with a pronounced metallic flavor, especially iron. Bluepoints: Originally from Blue Point, Long Island this oyster is no longer harvested. Bluepoints are generic terms for mid Atlantic oysters.

Cottaits: From Cape Cod, Mass., medium to large size with a plump body and salty flavor.

Hog Island Sweetwaters: about 32 sizes
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup chopped celery
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
1 quart oysters with liquid
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon powdered sage

From Tomales Bay, Calif., small to medium sized with a deep shell. Plump, creamy and sweet with a light, smoky flavor.

Louisiana Gulf: Found in the bayous of the Mississippi Delta. Thick shell and soft fatty texture, slightly salty with a light metallic flavor.

Malpeque: From Prince Edward Island, Canada, this small oyster has a light, bitter, lettuce-like flavor with a clean aftertaste. Chinoteagues: From Maryland and Virginia, small to medium sized with a flat, round shell. Sweet with a distinctive aftertaste.

Olympias: From Puget Sound, Wash. and Humbolt Bay, Calif. Round and flat shell with a robust flavor and a mild coppery aftertaste.

Pacific Jumbos: From Fanny Bay, British Columbia, large, oblong and greyish, about 5 inches long. Has a mild flavor and firm texture.

Quilcene: From Quilcene Bay, Wash., tastes fairly briny with a cucumber flavor and strong aftertaste.

Rhode Island Select: From Rhode Island, these are meaty, with a crisp flavor.

Willapa Bay: From Washington medium sized with a deep cup and a clean, salty and sweet flavor.

Attention to detail makes Muer's cookbook 'simply great'

KEELY WYONIK

Chuck Muer is sharing some of the recipes that have made his restaurant, success. In "The Simply Great Cookbook," Subtitled "Recipes and the Experience of Fine Dining from the Kitchens of Chuck Muer," (Morton Books, Ltd., Ann Arbor) the book presents the culinary creations and wisdom of legendary Loretto (Chef Larry) Pagliara, his successor "Rocky" Rachwitz of Livonia, and many others. Rachwitz and pastry chef Carmen Vilcan tested many of the recipes at home.

"When we make soup at the restaurant," we use 20 gallons of chicken broth, 20 pounds of beans. You can't take a calculator and reduce the amount," said Rachwitz. "Restaurant pots and pans are different from the ones you use at home. We had to rebuild every recipe, and rework it using the kinds of pots and pans you use at home."

This kind of attention to detail is what makes Muer's cookbook special. The chef also provides lots of tips. For example, bacon is easier to slice if you freeze it first. Use a sharp knife and slice it while frozen. Here's another — Using arrowroot as a thickening agent insures a clear sauce and enhances the colors of vegetables and peppers.

Beginning cooks will appreciate the tips for cooking pasta, cleaning mussels, roasting red peppers, and opening clams. There are also a lot of definitions for things like key limes, zest, and roux.
Creative cooks will enjoy the suggested variations for recipes — roasted walnuts can be used in place of toasted pine nuts, or use the raspberry-maple dressing as a marinade for seafood and poultry.

Fleshing it out: They may call themselves Skelton Crew, but there's nothing lean and bony about the music being produced by Chris Badynee, Scott Christy, Bill Pilipchuk, Russ Epker and Dan Hess. All of their songs are derived in an acoustic setting and encompass elements of folk, rock, jazz and country.

Nothing lean about this Crew

A five-man band that doesn't have a drummer? For some groups, that may be like going to the beach and forgetting the swimsuit. But not so for the Skelton Crew. With guitars, a keyboard and strong vocals and lyrics, the group has come up with a sound that is anything but lean and bony.

By LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

According to members of Skelton Crew, the most formidable task for a band is merely surviving. "This is a group, whose collective resume includes memberships in Bitter Sweet Alley, Cadillac Kidz and Second Self, that appears to be preparing towards this goal."

Music to the five people in Skelton Crew is not about performing a glut of local gigs or in quest of a bonanza record deal or tied to some mad. "Whether it's about harmony — whether being in a band, writing music or performing live. A local derivative of Up With People? Hardly. "We're not pushing anything," said bass guitarist Chris Badynee, 33, who lives in Westland.

This feeling is evidenced in the timelessness of Skelton Crew's vocal epiphany. All of the songs are derived in an acoustic setting, encompassing elements of folk, rock, jazz and country while being cemented in seemingly effortless harmonies.

A cursory comparison to Crosby, Stills and Nash would be haphazard, but not without some substance since the Skelton Crew also performs minus a drummer. "Going drummerless just sort of happened, much like the formation of the band itself. As the story goes, guitarist Scott Christy penned a song a couple of years ago and had friend and former member of Bitter Sweet Alley Bill Pilipchuk do the vocals for it. The two began collaborating on material and then added another former BSA member Russ Epker, who lives in Bingham Farms.

Keyboardist Dan Hess, who was a member of Second Self, and Cadillac Kidz luminary Badynee joined 1 1/2 years ago. Skelton Crew has kept a tight profile, performing a selected number of shows that usually turn out to be rather special affairs.

Gigs have ranged from opening for the likes of Foreigner, Kenny Loggins, the Smithereens and Robert Palmer at a Pine Knob or the Ritz to performing at cozy venues such as the Java Coffeehouse in Rochester. The group has also garnered a reputation for rousing renditions of the National Anthem, performing Francis Scott Key's number at The Palace and Tiger Stadium.

The reason for so few shows? For one, they don't have to perform regularly. "Bill lives in pain, he's very emotional," Badynee added. "If something is funny, he's the one rolling on the floor and laughing. If something is painful, he's the one on the floor rolling in tears."

From all the members come a scattering range of influences. Christy speaks of being enamored with XTC and the Beatles while adding Pilipchuk is into everything from Burt Bacharach to Dionne Warwick. Badynee adds he's going to see Hank Williams Jr. in concert soon.

"We can play jazz; we can play rock; we can play country; and we'll still sound like a band," Epker said.

Skelton Crew perform 3 p.m. Saturday, July 11, on the local stage as part of the Palace Summerfest, 2 Championship Drive, Auburn Hills. Tickets are $6 for adults; $4 for children 12 and under for the festival, which runs Wednesday through Sunday, July 8-12. Other local bands performing Saturday include Opaque at noon and Vudu Hippies at 1:30 p.m. For information, call 377-0100.

Triffid's newest is a wall climber

LARRY O'CONNOR

Now before parents contort themselves in Church Lady-like facial seizures and start writing letters to get a warning sticker on this six-song CD, that's Satan in sheets, not in Satan as in the holder of the pitched fork. Get it? We did looking at the song title, leaving the 12 minutes of Serbus gurgling and ensuing grunge ballistics rather unnecessary.

Part of the inspiration for the number is said to come after Serbus saw "Satin rules," scrawled on the wall. He is poking fun at the illiteracy of those behind it.

Serbus and the rest of his Mol Triffid mates (including drummer and Birmingham native Scott Mast) prefer to romp in the darkest domain of the human psyche, sardonically worshipping icons of schlock in "William Shatner Sleeps on the Eve of the Harmonic Convergence: He Dreams?" and "The Devil and Sammy Davis Jr.," which vividly describing the distasteful sights and sounds in "I Wanna See Pretty People Doin' Ugly Things."

But one suspects Serbus' skewed vision would be half as shocking if it weren't for the gallery of guitar sounds gushing from one Kimmo Ball. His angular style of play ranges from his enough overpowering grunge to scatter the fray in "Love Mystery," while being sinuous and alluring in the opening of "Love, Dave." Ball singularly creates a fort and shimmering acoustic strumming are some rather heart-wrought lyrics, in which the author conveys a myriad of emotion. Christy calls Pilipchuk one of the most poetic lyricists he's worked with.

"Bill lives in pain, he's very emotional," Badynee added. "If something is funny, he's the one rolling on the floor and laughing. If something is painful, he's the one on the floor rolling in tears."

From all the members come a scattering range of influences. Christy speaks of being enamored with XTC and the Beatles while adding Pilipchuk is into everything from Burt Bacharach to Dionne Warwick. Badynee adds he's going to see Hank Williams Jr. in concert soon.

"We can play jazz; we can play rock; we can play country; and we'll still sound like a band," Epker said.

Skelton Crew perform 3 p.m. Saturday, July 11, on the local stage as part of the Palace Summerfest, 2 Championship Drive, Auburn Hills. Tickets are $6 for adults; $4 for children 12 and under for the festival, which runs Wednesday through Sunday, July 8-12. Other local bands performing Saturday include Opaque at noon and Vudu Hippies at 1:30 p.m. For information, call 377-0100.

'Casablanca,' 'Pinocchio' still popular as time goes by

JOHN MONAGHAN

A wooden boy and a hisping bar owner. The unlikely pair will provide the summer's biggest thrills for vintage movie buffs as "Pinocchio" and "Casablanca" return to area screens this week.

The animated chestnut, originally released in 1940, was the second feature film for Walt Disney Studios after the landmark "Snow White" in 1938. The production was more elaborate, the animation more meticulous, yet the film lost many due to the escalating war overseas.

It releases each decade for a new black-and-white prints. The next 50 years have ensured the popularity of "Pinocchio." Enhanced color and a re-recorded Dolby soundtrack make "Pinocchio" look and sound better than ever, while the studio has wisely released all prints in the original aspect ratio, which is much squarer than modern films.

In whatever form you see it, "Pinocchio" still delivers a darned good story. Gepetto, a lonely toy maker, wishes that his new marionette could be a real boy. A good fairy brings the puppet to life that insists that Pinocchio prove that he knows right from wrong before he can make the transformation to flesh and bone.

"Uketele Ike provides the voice for Jimmy Cricket, the nattily-dressed insect who serves as the wooden boy's conscience. He also sings the award-winning "When You Wish Upon a Star," which quickly became the Disney theme song.

Most impressive this time around are the underwater sequences, where the watery reflections and distortions are just unsurpassed. "Casablanca," meanwhile, kicks off its 50th anniversary revival this weekend at the Fox Theatre. Crisp new black-and-white prints will further enhance a picture whose popularity only grows as time goes by.

One of the most famous films ever made, "Casablanca" is also among the most misunderstood. Film fans already know that Bogey never said "Play it again, Sam" in the movie. Ingrid Bergman's Ilsa actually came closest to the line when she urged Dooley Wilson to "Play it, Sam. Play 'As Time Goes By.'"

Other myths have been harder to dispel. Humphrey Bogart didn't drop into the project after George Raft and Ronald Reagan turned it down. Bogart was always Jack Warner's first choice to play cynical bar owner Rick Blaine who is haunted by the return of an old lover. The idea that none of the actors knew how the film was going to end until the last day's shooting is also rebuked by a glance at the shooting schedule. The climactic "we'll always have Paris" sequence at the airport caper closes to the middle of production.

One thing remains true about "Casablanca." All of the elements click, from the no-nonsense direction by Warner workhorse Michael Curtiz to the rousing score by Max Steiner. The film also employs the era's best character actors in Sydney Greenstreet, Peter Lorre and Claude Rains.

The Fox has a battery of gimmicks planned for the re-release. Newsreels and short subjects will precede some shows; the piano used in the film may be wheeled in for a general admission at $10 each, with the film showing July 10 to Aug. 2. Show times are 7:30 p.m. nightly, with 2 p.m. matinees on weekends and July 15.

MONDAY, JULY 6, 1992

C. J. RISAK

Dome to have too few games

I shouldn't have surprised me. I'm not talking about the snub. Nine cities — or "venues," as the international soccer community prefers to call the World Cup '94 sites — were selected to host games last March. Detroit's Silverdome was one.

On Monday, eight of those nine venues were granted games extending beyond the four-game first round. Chicago will host the opening ceremonies and the first Cup game, featuring defending champion Germany against somebody on June 17, 1994.

The semifinals will be in Los Angeles, at the Rose Bowl, and in New Jersey, at the Meadowlands, July 12-13. The Rose Bowl gets the championship match July 17.

And what does Detroit get? Nothing beyond the first round. It's the smallest schedule of any of the venues, and it upset me. Here America gets to do something no one else has ever done — play a series of soccer matches indoors, under a dome, on real grass — and the Silverdome has agreed to do it, and to foot the expense.

After selling this unique proposal to FIFA, soccer's governing body worldwide — something even Roger Faulkner, chairman of Michigan's host committee, thought unlikely 18 months ago — one might think we'd try to take full advantage of it.

No confidence

But no. Instead, as Alan Rothenberg, chairman and chief executive officer of World Cup USA '94, explained at Monday's teleconference from Zurich: "We had to reduce from nine (sites) to eight. The only reason we did not continue forward with Detroit is because we are proceeding with something historic, playing indoors."

"We ought not to push our luck any further than that." Now that's an endorsement, isn't it? Certainly, it is a truly American reaction; it will reinforce the world's impression of us. Those Americans. Put all this money into something outlandish, then stop half-way.

But, as I said, getting snubbed really didn't surprise me. And after I thought it over, neither did our local organizers' reaction to it.

Obviously, I don't like the decision. I would have liked at least two more games here. And considering the investment going into the Silverdome's transformation, I thought we deserved it.

But Faulkner didn't blast the snubbery. Following the course set when they fought an uphill battle to land Detroit's bid, the Michigan committee tried to make a positive out of a negative.

"I'm not in the least bit surprised," said Faulkner. "The gamble — and it's not really a gamble — but the decision to play indoors is a remarkable one. We have to consider ourselves blessed to have four games."

A test next June

Faulkner then began to call it a five-game series, because the Silverdome and its grass surface will be the site of a U.S. Cup match next June. Joseph Blatter, general secretary of FIFA, described next summer's match as a dress rehearsal: "Naturally, we have to have a rehearsal in this stadium."

That sounds a bit suspicious, particularly when they included alternate sites (Phoenix, Ariz., Columbus, Ohio, and Denver, Colo.) for World Cup '94 games in Monday's press conference. Of course, the optimistic Michigan committee isn't worried, even though the time allowed to develop a sure-fire indoor grass surface now is halved.

Already, the "great grass experiment" is underway in the Silverdome. Under the direction of a host of turf doctors and experts from Michigan State University, every possibility is being explored. Dozens of three-foot blocks are scattered at one end of the dome, to be studied and analyzed.

In August, the blocks will be transported to East Lansing, where they'll be planted under another dome for further experimentation. Like some sort of sod masochists, the MSU turf specialists will subject their patients to all sorts of extremes to see just how much each can withstand.

Come June '93, the Silverdome's grass will be tested and ready. And the U.S. squad will play one of the top five teams in the world — perhaps Germany or England — on it in what promises to be one of the top matches of the year.

It's reason for excitement. Still, I think World Cup USA '94 should have had a bit more confidence in our domed grass. Maybe I'm just greedy, but I just know the grass won't be greener anywhere else in the country in '94.

Mr. Rodgers Neighborhood: Scott Rodgers was master of the mound for five innings Wednesday, leading Hines Park in its win over first-place Little Caesars.

Hines Park dumps LC

Former Plymouth Salem all-stater Scott Rodgers is having the same success for the Hines Park collegiate baseball team as he did when he pitched for the Rocks a year ago.

Little Caesars lost more than a ballgame Wednesday at Ford Field. It lost first place in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Caesars faced one of the league's hottest young pitchers — Hines Park hurler Scott Rodgers (Plymouth Salem).

Rodgers, who is third in the league with 20 strikeouts, tossed five solid innings to give Hines Park a 4-0 win.

The loss, coupled with Walter's 12-2 win over Wendy's, puts Caesars in a second-place tie with Hines Park. Each is 11-7 and one-half game behind Walter's (11-6).

Rodgers went the first five innings before giving way to Keith Bozyk (Redford Catholic Central) and Chris Newton. The trio combined on a four-hitter.

Hines Park scored three runs in the first, sparked by a two-run single by Mike White. It added a run in the fourth when Jason Riggs (Plymouth Canton) scored on a wild pitch.

Mark VanAmedeys went the distance for Caesars, striking out seven and allowing seven hits.

Mike Giacomantonio paced Caesars offensively with two hits.

Walter's barely on top

The turnaround came in the fourth inning Wednesday, and it helped give Walter's Appliance a tentative hold on first place in the LCBL.

Walter's was leading 3-2 in the top of the fourth of its game against Wendy's at Ford Field, but Wendy's had already scored once and still had runners on first and second base with one out. Walter's coach Mike Keller pulled starting pitcher Bryan Pfeifer and inserted Steve Ross (Redford Catholic Central/Henry Ford CC).

The move proved to be a good one. Ross "shut the door" on the rally, said Keller, and Walter's, in the bottom half of the inning, scored three more runs — two on a home run by Kevin Young (Farmington High/Central Michigan). That lit the fire as Walter's blazed to a 12-2, six-inning mercy.

"The combination of Ross shutting the door and Young's home run gave us the lift we needed at the time," Keller said.

Top players receive all-area honors

BY C. J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

When one team reaches the state baseball semifinals and another spends much of the regular season ranked first in the state in Class A — and both are from the same area, you might expect they would dominate an all-area team.

Not so in Observerland.

Redford Catholic Central was listed as the state's top team for much of the season and proved the rating accurate by winning the Catholic League title and Operation-Friendship game. But CC lost in the Class A regional tournament to Westland John Glenn, which made it to the state semis.

But each had just two players selected to the all-Observer first team. It wasn't a snub to either; rather, it was an indication of some superb talent scattered throughout the area.

As proof, CC was not the only league champ in the area. North Farmington collected the Western Lakes crown and Garden City shared the Northwest Suburban League title. John Glenn, by the way, placed fourth in the Lakes Division during the regular season.

Coach Norm Hoenes' ability to turn the Rockets' season around, not merely salvaging a decent record but leading them to the state's Final Four, has earned him the Observer's coach of the year honors. A 26-year coaching veteran at John Glenn, Hoenes took the Rockets from a 2-6 start to win 15 of their last 17 games; they finished 17-8. And Hoenes? He has a 369-239 career record.

FIRST TEAM

Scott Kapla, Catholic Central, pitcher — His pitching record speaks for itself, and was enough to land Kapla a spot on the all-Observer team: a 9-2 won-lost mark and a

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

All-Area: Mike Stafford earned a spot on the All-Observer second-team playing for Canton High.

1.30 earned run average. He pitched 75 innings, allowing 58 hits, 44 walks and 14 earned runs. He struck out 86 and was selected All-Catholic.

But there's more. Kapla, a senior righthander headed for Eastern Michigan, batted .462 with a team-best 49 hits, 37 runs and 12 doubles. He knocked in 24 runs, added a triple and a home run and stole eight bases.

"He was our best player, our best athlete," said Shamrock coach John Safter. "Besides pitching so well, he really helped us defensively. We could put him in so many places. And he was on base all the time. He has great running speed."

(EMU) is getting a real versatile athlete."

Mark Temple, North Farmington, pitcher — Like Kapla, Temple — also a senior righthander — is an all-around contributor. He surrendered just 10 earned runs on 37 hits and 23 walks in 61 innings, posting a 9-2 record with a 1.15 ERA. Temple struck out 79 and posted seven shutouts, earning him a spot on the All-WLAA team.

When not pitching, Temple played a strong shortstop. At the plate, he hit .481 and posted an on-base average of .677. He had two doubles, a triple and two homers, driving in 22 runs and scoring 19 more.

His coach, Iv Horwitz, praised Temple not just for his ability but for his attitude. "What I've always said about Mark Temple is, he's a team player," Horwitz said. "He never said 'I the whole season. He was a clutch hitter and he never quit. He's the best pitcher I've had.'"

Brian Theis, Redford Union, catcher: An all-NSL selection, Theis posted some impressive numbers as a senior. He batted .405 for the Panthers and had a .489 on-base average; his slugging average was .689. Theis collected two doubles, three triples and six homers, driving in 21 runs and scoring 22. He also stole 11 bases.

"He's an all-around ballplayer with tremendous potential," said his coach, Rick Berryman. "He's an untapped resource as a pitcher. He moves the ball very well. And he can play a variety of positions — pitch (he was 2-2 with a 3.21 ERA), catch, or in the outfield."

Ed Gundry, Plymouth Salem, infielder: Gundry, a senior shortstop, was Salem's top player, according to coach John Gravin. That's one reason why he was named to the All-WLAA's first team.

Here are some others: Gundry batted .509, with four doubles, three triples and five homers. He drove in 19 runs.

Gundry's playing days are hardly over. Before entering EMU this fall, he'll compete at the Junior Olympic Festival for the North team. He is one of 64 players competing on the four teams in the 12-day tournament this summer in Idaho. If he is one of the top 18 players in the tournament, he'll be invited to tryout for the Olympic team.

Eric Bates, Wayne Memorial, infielder: Bates, a senior third baseman, was the big reason the Zebras came within a game of winning the Wolverine A Conference. He batted .379, slugging seven doubles, one triple and four home runs, driving in 31 runs and scoring 20 others. His season earned him All-WAC honors.

Pro dream motivates all players

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Before he could swing a bat during the Cincinnati Reds tryout camp at Livonia's Ford Field, Randy Willsey already had two strikes against him.

Willsey, who attended Marshall Junior High in Westland, is only 14 years old and he plays catcher — despite not owning a catcher's mitt. Major League scouts usually aren't interested in 14-year-old catchers and it's hard to make an impression behind the plate without wearing a catcher's mitt.

But Willsey, wearing a Rawlings fielder's mitt, tried anyway.

"I've got to buy one (a catcher's mitt), maybe I'll get one for my birthday or something," said Willsey, whose step brother is Pete Quinn, a varsity baseball player at Redford Thurston who also tried out for the Reds. "I didn't have much of a chance, everyone else is older or more talented. But every day I work hard at it. I want to be a pro."

That was the typical response from most of the ballplayers who showed up Friday, whether they were 14 years old or in their mid-20s. Unfortunately for Willsey, he never got a chance to swing a bat because the first two qualities scouts look at are running and throwing.

If a player's running and throwing aren't up to the scouts' standards, it's time to go home.

"We'd be more likely to go with a player who can run and throw because if he ever hits he'll go right to the 'big,' " said Reds scouting supervisor Gene Bennett, who has been with the Cincinnati organization for 40 years, the last 32 as a scout.

Some of the players Bennett has found at these kind of tryouts are Reds stars Barry Larkin, Chris Sabo (Redford Catholic Central) and Paul O'Neill and the Tigers' Skeeter Barnes.

Players are given numbers when they register and Bennett doesn't know any prospects' names unless they turn his head or he sees them again at another camp.

"Most of the guys we draft or sign come from these tryouts," Bennett said. "We see them in camps and when they're eligible we know a lot about them."

"We always have camps where kids can't play. But we give them the same opportunity. They think they can play or they wouldn't be here."

Willsey was joined by dozens of other "wannabe" pros who went home without the scouts letting them hit. Some, like those in their mid-20s, went home for the last time.

Bennett gives the players a friendly send-off and a little inspiration. For a guy like Willsey that's good news since he has the rest of high school and possibly college to improve.

"Just 'cause a guy didn't play good today doesn't mean he can't play," Bennett said.

The tryout begins with a 60-yard dash for all players except pitchers. As the 50-plus players lined up for sprints, some looked forward to it, while some frowned. Mount Clemens' Dave Turner, 22, played four years of baseball at Albion College.

But Turner doesn't run a fast 60 yard dash time. Some guys have run as fast as 6.3 seconds for the 60 and that's flying," according to

Walter's scored two more runs in the fifth and four in the sixth to force the mercy. Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Borgess/Madonna University) singled in two runs in the sixth, giving himself three hits and three RBI for the game while pushing Walter's lead to the necessary 10 runs.

Jeff Schaffer (Livonia Franklin) who had two hits in the game, added a run-scoring double in the inning.

Young had three hits and three RBI, too, and Dave Wood contributed three hits. Paul Pirronello (Catholic Central/University of Detroit) collected two hits.

Pfeifer got the victory; he allowed both Wendy's runs and all three hits (two doubles and a single) in 3 1/2 innings, walking five and striking out four. Ross earned the save, pitching 2 1/2 innings of scoreless and hitless relief. He walked two.

Bob Hartman was the loser, surrendering six runs, only two of which were earned, in four innings. He walked two and struck out two.

Joe Kaley paced Wendy's offense, doubling in the third and later scoring on a single by Bill McCann. Ted Meadows knocked in the other run with a double in the fourth. Wendy's committed five errors.

Defensively, Bates possesses one of the best arms at his position. "He's definitely got an arm," said his coach, Jim Czironowski. "He was our No. 3 hitter all year. Bates hit with authority. His bat was the main reason we were able to finish second in our league. He was the straw that stirred the drink for us."

Mike Pesci, Farmington Harrison, infielder: Pesci, a senior, was just a top-notch third baseman, but was the Hawks' top pitcher and hitter. He posted a 5-4 won-loss record but gave up just six earned runs in 57 1/3 innings (0.73 ERA). He allowed 44 hits and 46 walks, striking out 73.

Jeff Kozakowski, Garden City, infielder: One thing is certain: The Cougars would not have been nearly as successful (18-6) without Kozakowski. The senior led the team in both hitting and pitching. At the plate, Kozakowski—who played first base when he wasn't pitching—led Garden City in batting average (.389) and was second in RBI (20) and total bases (41).

WHAT EVERY MAN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT IMPOTENCE.

IT'S TREATABLE.

The real tragedy of impotence is letting it go untreated even one more day. Stop denying yourself and your sexual partner an important part of your life. Impotence can be treated in almost every case.

The STAR* program developed by Grace Hospital provides complete diagnosis and treatment of male impotence. This confidential program is directed first at determining the cause of the problem. Diseases such as diabetes, cancer, multiple sclerosis and problems with prostate, heart and high blood pressure are common causes. There are many others. Injuries to the spinal cord, and low hormone levels can also cause erection failure. So, too, can fatigue, alcohol, drugs, smoking, stress and depression. Medicines used to treat such things as depression, high blood pressure and ulcers can be part of the problem. Age alone is not a cause of impotence. And, yes, some impotence problems are psychologically based, even organic impotence has an important psychological component that requires identification and treatment. An accurate diagnosis is the key to effective treatment. Sometimes, only a change in medication is needed. More serious problems may require surgery. But help is available. Complete, confidential and supportive. Call today and talk to one of our professionals.

Carrier Night at the Zoo
Join the Fun!

Carriers get to go to the Zoo.

And that's just one of the things they get to do. When you're an Observer & Eccentric carrier you get to compete for prizes—you even get a chance to win a 10-speed bike! Everything depends on how well you handle your route, take care of the money you collect, and treat your customers. It also depends on how well you accept the responsibility of delivering papers to the people on your route twice each week.

And you have fun, too.

Like this trip to the zoo. You get to invite your family to go with you. And they keep the Zoo open just for us so that it's a really "cool" evening with Moslem Highland Shriners and their lady clown unit, all the neat animals plus good stuff to eat.

Maybe you should think about being an Observer & Eccentric carrier, if you aren't one already.

If you are, tell your friends to call us so that maybe they can be one, too.

HOROSCOPES

By C.C. Clark

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Be wise in matters of finance. There are changes for the better in the works for you. Keep an open mind and make the right choices.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
Find a way to relieve stress and rid yourself of anxiety. Negativity will surely do harm to your mind and body. Take a day to pamper yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
It's time for the workaholic Virgo to take a long, much-needed rest. It seems you can't please anyone lately, least of all yourself. Review your priorities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Those around you may be taking advantage of a specific situation. Someone is trying to get your attention; show your care.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
The road is rocky and it's not going to get any easier for a while. Rely on strength to get you through whatever might come your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
A new friend may not be all he or she seems to be. Don't let a nagging health problem go unchecked. Your lagging spirit will be uplifted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
Don't let confusion get in the way of finding out the truth about a certain situation. Be tactful, especially when dealing with the elderly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
All is not lost: You have a lot more going for you than you might realize. If you have done something wrong, you should come forward and confess.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
A disagreement with someone close to you could put your nerves on edge. This period of unease will soon pass and your spirit will be renewed.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Make your feelings known to those around you. You may surprise a few people with your ingenious ideas concerning a certain project.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Try to stay out of trouble. You probably feel mad at the world, so take a few hours to cool down and see what is good in your life.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
An unexpected turn of luck is headed your way. The odds could definitely be in your favor. Don't overindulge in food or liquor.

Lights, camera, action: Democrats in New York

Cable coverage swells, networks cut back

By Steven Alan McGaw

Every four years, competitors from around the world gather to test themselves against each other. Politics and nationalism are inextricable from the event, but the core of the thing, the competition, is relatively pure. The contests are called the Olympics, they're in Barcelona this summer and the world will surely watch with excitement and admiration.

On the same schedule, two separate groups, numbering about 4,000 each, meet in major American cities to test their endurance and shove each other on the floor of a large arena. Politics is the core of the thing, but many windy exhortations are made about the "national interest" and the future of life as we know it. Little about the event is perceived as pure. These two gatherings are the Democratic and Republican National Conventions, and they occur, respectively in New York and Houston. The opportunity exists for the nation to watch, with a likely mixture of curiosity, confusion and ennui.

The Democratic National Convention, the next stepping stone toward the 1992 presidential election, begins on Monday, July 13, in New York City. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton is expected to be officially ratified as his party's presidential nominee, but there are many other questions waiting to be answered.

"No. 1 is definitely, 'who's going to be the vice presidential candidate?'" says Jacquelynnynn Floyd, a journalist assigned to cover the convention for "The Dallas Morning News." Other issues, Floyd says, include outlining a comprehensive economic plan, how the campaign will appeal to women and younger voters ("a crucial component") and uniting the sometimes-fractious Democratic party itself.

Asked who the key personalities of this convention are likely to be, Floyd mentions Mario Cuomo, Jesse Jackson, and California senatorial hopefuls Diane Fienstein and Barbara Boxer. "But it's hard to say," the journalist admits, adding, "every convention seems to create one new star, like Ann Richards in '88," referring to the now-Texas governor's hilarious "Poor George" speech.

In all, about 15,000 media persons will attend the convention, but television viewers used to watching the Big Three networks may be surprised at the paucity of prime-time coverage. NBC will air one-hour summary of convention activity each night, the rest of the time pooling its resources with those of PBS. The result is an impressive team in the broadcast booth, consisting of Robert MacNeil, Jim Lehrer and Tom Brokaw. While the peacock network is apparently downgrading its coverage, rivals CBS and ABC offer even less: one hour of prime-time coverage nightly, with no second broadcast alternative. All three are sure to collect armloads of sound-bites for use in their nightly news shows.

Why the cutbacks? "Politics now is viewed as a bitter medicine," says Floyd. "In the '60s, it was our civic duty. The networks aren't buying that anymore, there are too many other options. If people don't want to swallow the medicine, they'll go somewhere else."

"Somewhere else" could, however, be cable. CNN, under a yearlong banner of "Democracy in Action," promises extensive reporting of the conventions and all election-related activities. Information junkies will naturally be riveted to C-SPAN's customary gavel-to-gasp coverage.

"We offer our viewers a seat in the convention hall itself," says Steven Scully, C-SPAN's political editor.

CNBC will have representatives at both conventions, as well as its weekly series, "Money Politics Campaign '92." The Monitor Channel will produce a series of "American Issues '92" specials in association with Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Lifetime calls its "Women and Politics: A Lifetime Challenge" an "election year public awareness program" about issues of particular concern to women. American Movie Classics is busily promoting voter registration through on-air announcements. Viewers in search of the lighter side can tune in "Indecision '92" on Comedy Central

One important new player in the field of election coverage is MTV.

With its highly touted "Choose or Lose" campaign headed by reporter Tabitha Soren, the music video network has embarked on a vigorous project to bring the election to younger voters. Becky Cain, national president of the League of Women Voters, praises the effort. "Young people need to become more involved. They're the most under-represented group of voters," Cain says.

Floyd agrees, adding, "They've not been very good about voting, but maybe part of the reason is that they don't feel like anybody is speaking to them."

BITTS AND PIECES

Downs proves a good student; PBS upholds its traditions

That would look nice in the rumpus room: Longtime television personality Hugh Downs recently received a special certificate in geriatric education from New York's Mount Sinai School of Medicine. The co-host of ABC News' 20/20 is the only non-physician ever to complete the course.

Downs, who holds a post-Master's degree in social gerontology from Hunter College, attended various seminars and patient conferences in addition to the five-day course.

"I've been interested in gerontology since I was 30," Downs says, "when I did a television program on longevity, and I'm delighted about getting this certificate. My interest in geriatric medicine is sharpened by the fact that the more time goes by, the closer I move to becoming my own laboratory."

They keep making those TV movies. CBS has cast Melissa Gilbert-Brinkman as an amnesiac au pair girl in the psychological thriller With a Vengeance. Michael Gross and Jack Scalia co-star. Produced by CBS yet intended to air on Showtime is Double Jeopardy, an upcoming two-hour drama starring Bruce Boxleitner, Rachel Ward, Kim Cattrall and Sally Kirkland.

Hugh Downs

PBS reaffirmed its role as the leading producer of diverse, non-commercial programming by committing almost $89.9 million to support 20 of its trademark series for future seasons starting in the fall of 1993. PBS executive Jennifer Lawson says that "continued support for our signature programming, such as Sesame Street, The MacNeil/Lehrer Newshour, Nova and Great Performances, ensures that PBS will uphold its tradition of delivering quality television to the whole family, whether at home or in the classroom."

TIME OUT

ABC presents 'Thorpe Awards'

By Jeff Thompson

Bob Saget, star of Full House and America's Funniest Home Videos, will serve as host Monday, July 6, when ABC presents the first Jim Thorpe Pro Sports Awards.

Presenting the awards for achievement in football, baseball, basketball, boxing, hockey, auto racing and other pro sports are Hollywood stars and sports celebrities including Dyan Cannon, Leezza Gibbons, Wilt Chamberlain and Bo Jackson.

The awards fall into 10 categories, with special tributes for the recipients of the Lifetime Achievement, Individual Achievement and Thorpe Legacy awards.

Judging is done by a "blue-ribbon panel" of sports heroes and distinguished sports journalists. The combination of athletes and journalists on the judging panel is intended to ensure the credibility of the awards.

Named for Jim Thorpe, the awards honor the memory of the man widely considered the best all-around athlete of the first half of the 20th century. Thorpe (1888-1953) was an American Indian who endured bigotry in the sports world long before Jackie Robinson's time. Thorpe is one of only two athletes ever inducted into four sports halls of fame, but he is most widely remembered for having been stripped of two Olympic medals after it was revealed that he played a season of semi-pro baseball in exchange for room and board.

Bob Saget serves as host for the Jim Thorpe Pro Sports Awards, Monday on ABC.

SOAPS TALK

Reader defends sex on soaps

By Candace Havens
Dear Candace: I recently read your response to a letter from a Days fan. The fan's name was John Haskins and he was complaining about the sex scenes in soaps.

I'm sorry, but sex sells and it helps the ratings. And it's only a show on television. I wish I could be as naive as Haskins about what goes on in the world, but this stuff happens in real life here in my hometown. —Sharon Cooper, Morehead, Ky.

Dear Reader: Thanks for your comment.

Dear Candace: I love to watch Jack (Matthew Ashford) and Jennifer (Melissa Reeves) on Days of Our Lives. I heard that Reeves is pregnant and also that Ashford's wife is pregnant. What I want to know is if they are the same person in real life, are Reeves and Ashford married to each other? —Tracy K., N.M.

Dear Reader: I can see where you might be a little confused. Reeves is pregnant, but she is married to Scott Reeves (Ryan, The Young and the Restless). Their baby was due in June. On the show, Jennifer won't actually have her baby until September.

Dear Candace: I've watched As the World Turns since it began, 35 years ago. I've never missed an episode. But lately I've been upset about how bad the show has become. I've always enjoyed the scenes with Emma on the farm. It all seemed so real and cozy. It was the best part of the show. I couldn't believe it when Cal went to bed with that crazy Lucinda a while back. I liked the show because it always seemed to have morals, unlike some of the others. But now it is just as bad as the rest of them. I'm 88 years old and I want to see more of the wholesome scenes with Emma on the farm. —Isabelle Pfeiffer, Mauston, Wis.

Dear Reader: What an incredible viewing record! Thank you for your comment.

Dear Candace: I'm writing to ask if Tad Martin is returning to All My Children. We miss him. —Elinor Wells, New Braunfels, Texas.

Dear Reader: I wouldn't be surprised to see Michael Knight (Tad) show up in Pine Valley some day soon. For the moment, Knight is busy planning his wedding to actress Catherine Hickland.

LET'S TALK

Abby on 'Homefront'; Clara Bow remembered

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My husband and I love the ABC show Homefront. Recently, my mother told me she read in another column, Dear Abby, that the show is being canceled. Please tell me it's not true! If it is, why? I know it's very popular in our area. —J. Rucinski, Esmond, Ill.

A: It's refreshing to know that Abby is branching out. Once satisfied with dispensing advice on party etiquette, she must have realized life's true happiness comes from television criticism. However, the plain truth is that Homefront has not been canceled and is only on summer hiatus while new episodes are being developed for the fall, when it will move to Thursday nights. Homefront was a successful show for ABC this year in their prime-time Tuesday lineup.

Q: I work in a retirement home for merchant marines. A resident there was once the shipmate of (actor) Cliff Robertson during World War II. When Ralph Edwards recalled Mr. Robertson's life on This Is Your Life in 1971, this man was invited to participate. He is so proud of that experience. He is not in good health. Could you tell me where to write to Cliff Robertson, in hopes he might consent to write this man? —Dee Bryson, Newport, N.C.

A: You may write to Robertson in care of his agent at ICM, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.

Q: I've been trying to recall the name of a western I saw on TV with Robert Preston. He and his family were traveling in a covered wagon and Preston kept rattlesnakes in a bag. Can you help? —Jessie Snyder, Fort Worth, Texas.

A: The Chisholms first aired on CBS as a miniseries in 1979. The story of a family's arduous journey westward co-starred Rosemary Harris and Ben Murphy. It proved so popular that the network brought it back as a series the next year. But when Preston's character passed away, so did the series.

Q: Can you tell me what Roy Rogers' real name is? I saw it on TV but can't remember what it was. It's the name of a wild animal but I can't think of which one. —Jennie Reese, Halfway, Mo.

A: A leopard can't change its spots, but Leonard Slye can and did change his name to Roy Rogers.

Q: I'm interested in knowing what happened to Clara Bow and her husband, Rex Bell. I'm an oldie, and she was my favorite — she was so pretty. I

They'll be back: Homefront's Harry O'Reilly, Sammi Davis-Voss know she made Hoopla, The Fleet's In, Dangerous Curves, Wings and a couple of others. —M. Semenak, Ironwood, Mich.

A: Clara Bow passed away in 1965, three years after husband Rex Bell. Bow's film career was a bittersweet testament to the end of an era, where many silent-film stars were lost in the shuffle to movies with sound.

The daughter of an impoverished Coney Island waiter, Bow won a bit part in a movie through a fan-magazine contest in 1921 when she was 16, and it launched her screen career. Her most famous role was in 1927's It. "It" was what we now call sex appeal, and Bow had it. She became a symbol of the flapper era and was known as the "It Girl." (The animated vamp Betty Boop was supposedly modeled after Bow.) But her sexuality fell out of favor with the public in the more conservative Depression era, and romantic scandals combined with her physical and mental fragility to bring her career to an end shortly after the advent of talkies. A meager comeback attempt failed, and Bow finally retired in 1933 after Hoopla, the last of her 55 films. Bow spent much of the next three decades in sanatoriums.

After eloping with Bow in 1931, Rex Bell's career as a Western star slowed but didn't end until 1961 with a bit part in The Misfits, which starred Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe. Bell was elected lieutenant governor of Nevada in 1954 and ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1958.

TRIVIA, ETC.

TV's first two-parter?

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. Identify the first TV movie shown in two parts.
2. What was Walter Matthau's occupation in The Bad News Bears?
3. Identify the actor who played Ali MacGraw's disgruntled dad in Goodbye Columbus. (Bonus: What popular-60s band performed the title song and other numbers on the soundtrack?)

4. Name the female director who formerly did a comedy act with director Mike Nichols.

5. John Huston became a citizen of what country in 1964?

6. Keep up with this one. A) Name the 1951 film in which Rod Steiger made his movie debut; B) name the character's occupation; C) the star of the same film had a brief, ill-fated romance with one of the '50s' most popular stars; Name him; D) what was the date of his death?; and E) name the film for which Rod Steiger received the Academy Award as Best Actor.

Answers:

1. The Heat of the Night (E) (C) James Dean; (D) Sept. 30, 1955.
2. The music was done by The Asso-Widmark.
3. Jack Klugman played her father.
4. He serviced swimming pools.
5. 1971's Vanished, starring Richard Widmark.
