Canton spruces up with plants

It's the season to spruce up and plant more trees to beautify Canton. The Canton Beautification Committee is sponsoring its annual seedling giveaway April 23. This year, the committee also is sponsoring an indoor plant exchange.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

It's almost that time again when Canton residents can beautify their yards with the annual seedling giveaway Saturday, April 23. But there's something extra in store for participants this year.

"We are going to have an indoor plant exchange," said Pam Swiderek, Canton Beautification Committee secretary-historian. "People can bring in their plants — alive and healthy — and exchange them with other people."

The exchange was the brainchild of new beautification committee member Christine Rollins, who will soon be state-certified as a master gardener. "It's a bit too early for an exchange with outdoor plants. So we thought this would be good for people who have indoor plants. We want people to bring their clippings or their overflow."

Rollins also will be on hand during the seedling giveaway 9 a.m. to noon in the lower level of Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, to share her gardening knowledge with anyone who has questions. Brochures featuring gardening and planting tips also will be available.

The beautification committee, in conjunction with Canton Building and Inspection Services, is again sponsoring the popular seedling giveaway. "We normally give five seedlings per person," Swiderek said.

The committee is providing approximately 7,000 seedlings free to Canton residents only. The tree seedlings and bushes are bought through the Wayne County Soil and Conser-

OK. There wasn't any ice. But that didn't stop the Canton firefighters from practicing ice and cold-water rescue skills.

"We are practicing different kinds of ice rescue," said Tom Kruger, who with fellow firefighter Greg Tellner spearheaded the three-day training.

With all the man-made ponds that are being built in Canton, including on the new Pheasant Run Golf Course now under construction, as well as retention ponds in subdivisions, Kruger and Tellner thought the rescue training would be timely.

The victim for the training was Van Buren firefighter Mike Moening, a member of the department's dive team. Tellner also donned a cold water suit that though not in-ulated is designed to keep the diver dry.

"There are basically five steps to rescuing someone that's fallen through the ice or is stranded in cold water," said Kruger, who with Tellner is a member of the department's training committee and attended a similar rescue seminar at the Ohio Fire Academy.

In ice-cold water, a person can last only 20 minutes at the most before body temperature begins dropping and hypothermia sets in. Even in 75-degree water, it only takes about 40 minutes before hypothermia occurs.

The training basically follows the Red Cross "reach, throw, row and go" program for water rescue.

The first step is called a soft rescue, where the victim tries to get

Smoking prohibition to help school district

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

A new prohibition on minors smoking or possessing cigarettes or other tobacco products in Canton is expected to help enforce no smoking rules at the Plymouth-Canton high schools.

"They (school officials) have asked for our help in enforcing the law," said Canton Police Capt. Laura Golles. "The main problem is at the high schools."

The amendment, which was introduced by township trustees March 22, prohibits the possession of tobacco by minors — youths under 18 years of age — as well as the sale to minors.

"This goes for any type of tobacco products," Golles said, including cigarettes, chewing tobacco and tobacco snuff.

The high schools have a no smoking policy. But school officials have asked Canton police for help in enforcing the ban. A state law also prohibits smoking in educational facilities. Generally, students caught smoking at school are given warnings.

It used to be that police had to catch a youth with a lit cigarette. The amendment allows police to cite a youth who has a cigarette or a pack, or other tobacco products in their possession, Golles said.

School security will work with police to enforce the amended ordinance. Any student caught smoking will be taken to either probate court — for youths younger than 17 — or district court, for youths 17-year-olds and older.

The amendment will allow police to ask probate judges to divert offenders to Growth Works where they will be required to successfully complete a 16-week program for non-smoking that also includes education on substance abuse and discipline, Golles said.

Violation of the new amendment is a misdemeanor that carries a maximum $50 fine for each offense.

Spelling bee

The Canton Rotary Literacy Committee is sponsoring its fourth Community Spelling Bee at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 21, at Plymouth Canton High School.

The bee is a friendly competition between three-person adult teams. Registration is limited to the first 20 teams who submit a registration form with a $100 registration fee. Proceeds from this event benefit local literacy efforts, including the Community Literacy Council.

The council is a nonprofit organization that provides volunteer tutors to adults who want to improve their reading skills.

The bee is part of the Plymouth-Canton Community School's Technology Fair. For more information call the Literacy Council, 416-4900.

Egg hunt

Canton Parks and Recreation Services is sponsoring its annual Easter Egg Hunt for Canton kids ages 10 and younger. This year's hunt will take place in Heritage Park, behind the township administration building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The fun will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 2. Kids in age groups, 4 and younger, 5-7 and 8-10 are invited. The event is free for Canton residents only. Car pool, if possible, and arrive by 9:45 a.m.

For more information, call parks and recreation, 397-5110.

Cleanup

Canton Waste Recycling is sponsoring Canton Cleanup weekends this year during which residents can bring large waste items to the facility, 42020 Van Born.

Next month, cleanup dates are Friday and Saturday, April 8-9, and Friday and Saturday, April 22-23. Canton Waste Recycling will be open for recycling April 15 and April 29. There will be no May cleanup in Canton this year. For more information, contact the facility at 397-5801.

himself out of the water with a pole or other item. The second step is shore-assisted. "Again, with this step, no one is going in the water. Here we're using an inflated fire hose for the victim to grab," Kruger said.

In the third step — boat-assisted rescue — firefighters would use a boat, but only as an operation point from where lines can be thrown to the victim. When these methods fail to retrieve the victim, a boat-based rescue may be used. Firefighters would take a boat out to the victim and try to pull him in.

The fifth step is to get in the water with the victim and bring him to shore. This method of rescue is not the first used because of the problems it can pose for rescuers, Kruger said.

Master plan gets the nod

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

It's done. "A lot of work led to that approval," said Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack, referring to the revised master land use plan — the first element of a comprehensive, multi-faceted plan to guide the township's future development.

After months of discussion and review, the township planning commission adopted the revised plan, which includes a written document featuring strategies and policies to help commissioners make land use decisions.

Following a public hearing March 21 before a full house of residents, the commission changed only one item of the plan as presented by the planning staff. An area south of the Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport proposed as multi-family residential was changed to light industrial use.

"Perhaps eight families per acre (multi-family density) would find themselves less than a couple hundred yards from the runway," said a Mettetal pilot.

In addition to noise, the pilot expressed concern for safety. "It's not always as safe a procedure as many understand," he said, referring to landing planes.

Planner Jeff Goulet told commissioners that the change to multi-family use was requested by the property owner. "The safety issue was not something I had considered," said commissioner Tom Sullivan, who suggested a light industrial use.

Despite requests from representatives of developers to increase density on certain property in the northwest area, planning commissioners hung tough to the larger lots that characterize the area.

"We're looking for something here other than rank and file and the grid system," said commission chairman Vic Gustafson.

'I've listened to a lot of developers. They all give the same story. They can't make money at R-1 (one dwelling per acre). I would ask the planning commission to preserve what little R-1 is left.'

Eric Krupp
Canton

Northwest Canton homeowners would agree. "I've listened to a lot of developers. They all give the same story. They can't make money at R-1 (one dwelling per acre). I would ask the planning commission to preserve what little R-1 is left," said resident Eric Krupp.

Commissioner Melissa McLaughlin urged maintaining low density residential areas in western Canton. "Let us offer something that is more unique," she said. "I want to be able to give people the opportunity to go to the country and to give the amenities. You don't need to leave here (to upgrade housing)."

The master land use plan also reinstates the agricultural designation in western Canton. The lack of the designation caused troubles for landowners whose property tax assessments increased by triple digits in part because of a residential designation showing the potential for development.

Work will be under way on the remaining facets of the comprehensive plan that will include policies for utilities, transportation and recreation. The utilities and transportation portions should be completed by mid-year, with the recreation portion done by the third quarter.

For better or worse: Chris Johnston Mayo's human relations class enjoys a reception after a mock marriage ceremony.

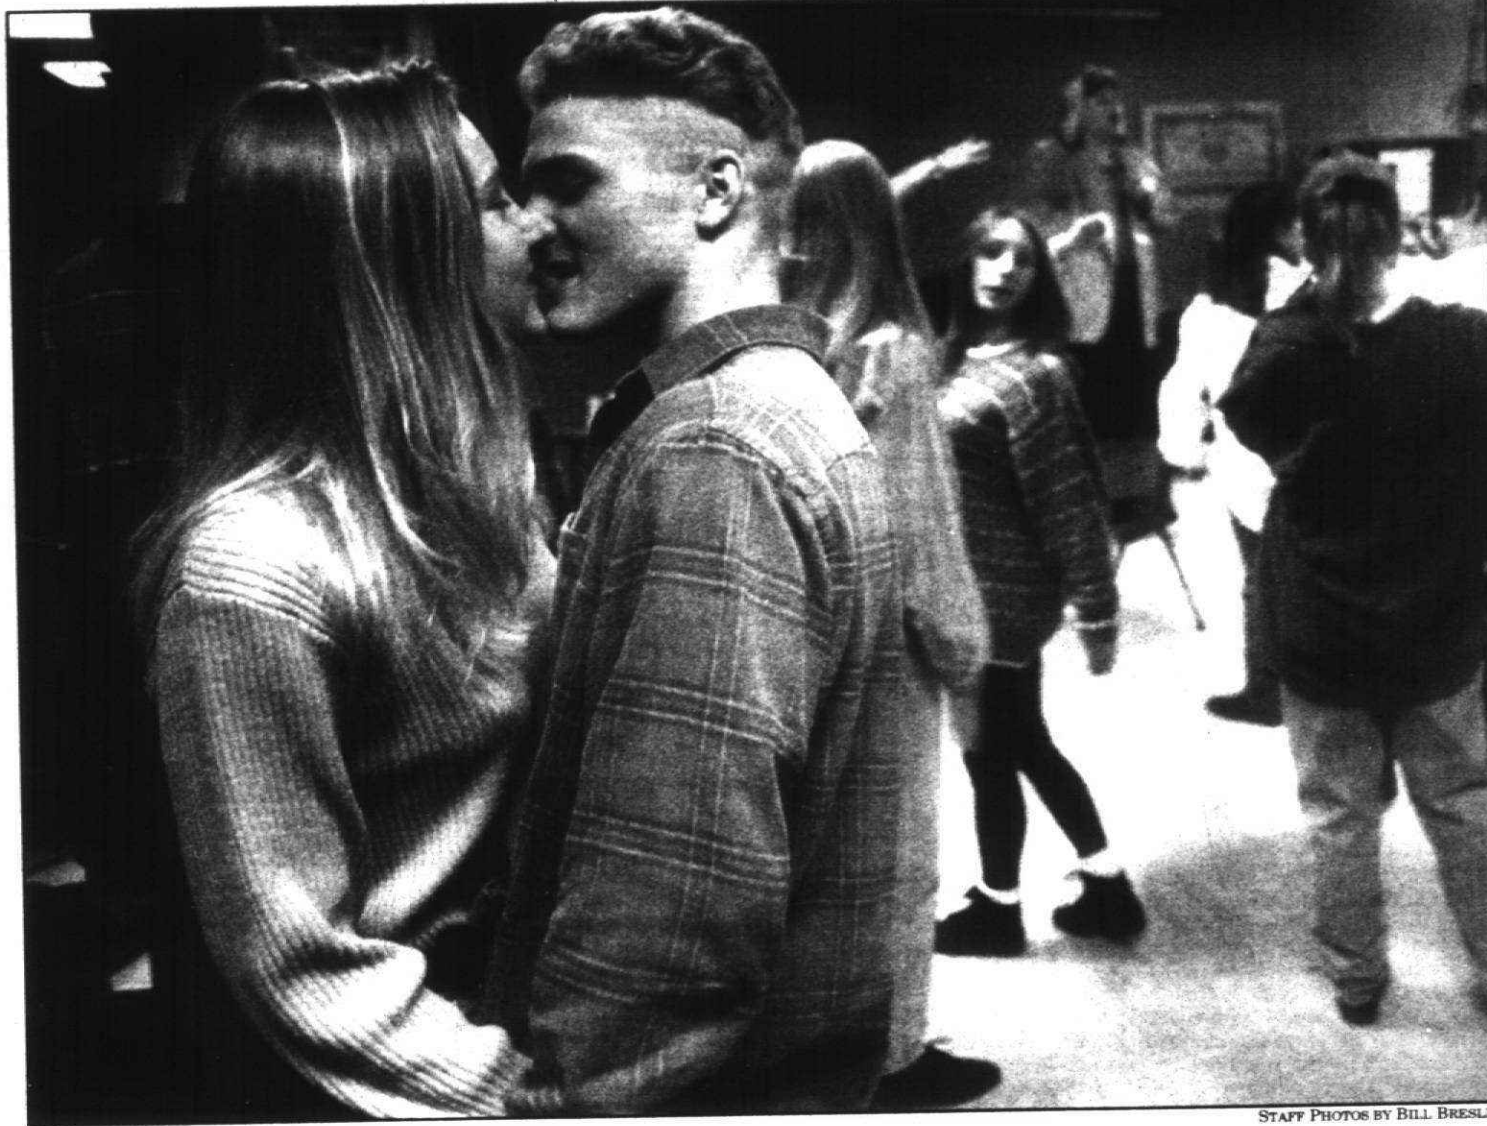

Saying 'I do' an eye-opener

High school home economics isn't what it used to be. In fact, home economics isn't even called home economics anymore. What's more, cooking and sewing are just part of what's taught in Plymouth-Canton's life management curriculum.

Danielle LeBlanc is a Canton junior taking her second Human Relations class. LeBlanc and her classmates recently took part in mock marriage ceremonies. This week, instructor Chris Johnston Mayo acted as the judge in a mock divorce court.

In May, the class will get an inkling of what it's like to be elderly as part of a geriatrics unit. "You learn a lot about relating with other people, which is something you're going to use forever," said LeBlanc. "We talk about relationships; we talk about marriage, death and divorce." The class has helped kids deal with problems involving drug and alcohol use too, she added.

Mayo says Human Relations was added to the curriculum because it's the "perfect complement to academics. While we've prepared students in the past for the scholarly world, we have found a lot of kids are not prepared for life. They don't have the skills to deal with some of the situations they run into.

"A lot of kids have made poor life choices and have gotten into relationships that have given them problems in life and interfered with career choices." Mayo said it's gratifying to see students better their lives by incorporating what they've learned. And the classes are growing in popularity. This year, more than 550 students enrolled in Human Relations courses.

"A couple students of mine were actually engaged in high school, and after going through the class postponed their wedding," said Mayo, who teaches at Canton High School. "Another couple decided not to get married at all. The class has helped students get out of abusive dating situations and to get help." The class has helped other students deal with severe eating disorders, she added.

Parents seem to like the class also, Mayo said. "I recently heard from a mother who said she thinks the class should be mandatory. She said her daughters had better self-esteem and were making better choices having taken the class."

Human Relations attempts to prepare kids for the future by going through the whole life cycle, said Mayo, whose counterpart at Salem High School is teacher

Diane Gailey. Units deal with self-esteem, communication, decision-making, setting life goals, getting along with parents, and conflict resolution with peers in addition to love, marriage, divorce, domestic violence, death and dying.

"There are no guarantees in life, but knowledge is power," said Mayo, who also does premarital counseling. "The more you know about yourself, the better choices you'll make. This is a small way of giving kids a dose of reality while they're still in high school."

Revised site plan allows leasing of center's space

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Leasing of vacant space in the New York Carpet World Center can begin again.

"If this is approved, they can continue," said Judy Bocklage, Canton Township associate planner, as township trustees approved a revised site plan for the center Tuesday night.

The action was the latest step to getting the Ford Road center back on track after leasing was halted when two mature silver maples were illegally removed from the property on Ford Road. The planning commission had recommended approval of the latest plan.

Developer Carmen Naccarato agreed to plant nine new trees, four of which must be 6 inches in diameter. Two of the nine trees must be 4-inch diameter and three must be 2½-inch diameter. The township requires a bond from Naccarato to ensure that the trees will be planted.

Township officials held Naccarato responsible for removing the mature trees. The action was in violation of his site plan for the center, which called for preserving the trees. Naccarato also was given credit for the two mature trees, allowing him not to have to plant other trees on the property.

Naccarato was cited for violating the site plan as well as the township forest preservation ordinance. He is expected back in 35th District Court April 18 to finalize an agreement requiring him to pay $400 in costs while allowing the court to take the two charges against him under advisement. Naccarato could have faced a maximum 90 days in jail and a $500 fine for each offense.

"I believe the township did the right thing in this," said Township clerk Loren Bennett. "I know there were a couple people who contacted me who, because of actions taken by the business, they did their shopping elsewhere."

There is a price to pay if we hold to a high standard," Bennett continued.

In response to the tree removal, the township revoked Naccarato's site plan in February, putting a temporary end to his ability to lease vacant space in the new center.

When a revised plan was up for approval before the planning commission March 7, planning commissioner Tom Sullivan suggested that Naccarato be allowed to plant trees larger than the minimum 4-inch diameter required in township ordinances.

vation District with money from the beautification committee.

The seedlings are medium- to fast-growing trees for this area. Among the trees to be given away are amur maple, black walnut, blue spruce, Douglas fir, Austrian pine and white pine. Bushes include highbush cranberry, red osier dogwood and red honeysuckle, all of which can be used for screening, said Geri Wojcik, committee chairwoman.

"This encourages people to be outside fixing up their landscaping and homes," Wojcik said. "This is a kickoff of our 'cleanup, fix up, plant up' theme and other general maintenance we encourage residents to do around their homes when the weather improves. The aesthetics of your home is part of family values and it improves property values."

The seedling giveaway is also a local way of honoring national Arbor Day, a tree planting day which is celebrated the last Friday in April. "We started this because Canton was meadowland. It was barren. There were no trees," Swiderek said.

Committee members encourage families to bring their kids to the giveaway. A movie will be available for them. Each child will receive an evergreen seedling. "We do it so kids can plant their own Christmas tree," Wojcik said. "It's exciting. This is something the family can do together."

Through its programs, the beautification committee work to encourage families and children to beautify their homes and yards, and to recycle and be concerned about the environment.

In May, the committee will be featured in the Canton Public Library's showcase. The theme will be "clean up, fix up, plant up."

Unlike 1993, the beautification committee this year will not be involved in a telephone book recycling effort. In conjunction with Ameritech, the committee with the help of Canton Community Foundation executive director Bill Joyner collected phone books through the DirectoRecycle program. Data Disintegration in Detroit recycles phone books for animal bedding.

"We are not doing it this year. We as a committee don't have an organization this year to help us do this," Swiderek said.

LIVE REVIEW

Fan appeal: Pearl Jam.

Pearl Jam scores a KO with its fans

By CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Pearl Jam drummer Dave Abbruzzese said in a 1992 interview that playing live shows with his band is like fighting Mike Tyson. If that's the case, Pearl Jam knocked out Detroit area audiences in the first round.

Performing two sold-out shows last weekend—March 19 at Detroit's Masonic Temple and March 20 at Ann Arbor's Crisler Arena—Pearl Jam reinforced their status as one of the top-selling acts in rock. Stripped-down stages adorned with only a few toys and burning candles didn't hinder the show a bit.

Tormented reluctant superstar/lead singer Eddie Vedder growled through 2½ hours of hits—and a cover of Neil Young's "Keep on Rockin' in the Free World"—in near perfection. (Like the 1992 Lollapalooza Festival, "Jeremy" was left off the set list.)

Bassist Jeff Ament, with a baby doll strapped to his back, jumped like a kangaroo around the stage as guitarist Stone Gossard kept his cool, bobbing his head in his trademark goose-like style. Mike McCready staked his claim on the left side of the stage, walking away on his guitar.

Unlike the Crisler Arena show, Vedder strapped on a guitar for most of Pearl Jam's Masonic set, complementing guitarists Gossard and McCready. In Ann Arbor and Detroit, bassist Ament traded his bass for a slim stand-up model during "Glorified G" and "Daughter" off their latest self-titled album.

Shortly after taking the Masonic Temple stage, Vedder mumbled what so far has to be the understatement of the year: "We're going to be here for awhile. We're going to play some songs. No big deal."

Proving that bands and audiences feed off each other's energy, the Masonic Temple crowd stayed primarily subdued due to a subtle request by Vedder and the abundance of security and police officers. The singer, unkemptly dressed in a dark T-shirt and jeans, stomped in small circles. He released some energy during "Leash," walking along the edges of boxes lining the stage, and swinging back and forth over the audience from rope ladders hanging from the lights.

At the end of the show, Vedder downplayed his role as teen idol, tossing cigarettes into the audience. Toasting the crowd, he advised them to enjoy their youth, let the past be the past, and look forward to the future.

Energy was no problem at the Crisler Arena show. Sweaty fans crammed up against the stage barricade and began body surfing long before Vedder slowly approached the front of the stage, head down, smearing black cream around his eyes. Once he was finished he led the band into a rendition of "Jeremy." The stage looked like an elevated slant pit with Vedder, leading the group, thrashing around the stage and dragging his microphone stand along with him.

Even Vedder seemed somewhat surprised by the energy of the Crisler Arena crowd. He offered an explanation: "The other night we had a bomb scare. Last night some crazy people snuck backstage. Then tonight I heard a few people escaped from a mental institution, and you can tell who they are by their yellow bracelets."

The main floor crowd, given yellow bracelets to wear, wasn't insulted the least bit. Although the Ann Arbor show was plagued by unsecure parking and overwhelmed, poorly marked ushers, most fans weren't fazed. As the band tore through "Why Go Home" from their debut album "Ten," fans seemed to take the chorus to heart. Leaving early wasn't on their mind.

Us3: Hip-hop and all that jazz

If you listen closely, you'll again hear the jazz musings of Reuben Wilson, Big John Patton and Art Blakey on "Hand on the Torch." Such samples are turning up in Us3's new release.

By CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

While Us3 producers Geoff Wilkinson and Mel Simpson were recording their debut "Hand on the Torch," they never thought about bringing their blend of jazz and hip-hop to the stage. But when their first live show turned into a near riot, they thought well, maybe there was a demand for it. "It was like one of the Beatles' gigs in the '60s," said Wilkinson via telephone from England about his mid-1993 show in Japan. "They actually pulled the (original) trumpet player (Gerard Presencer) off the stage. He was playing jazz in England, and he goes all the way to Japan and got pulled off the stage by screaming Japanese women."

"We started thinking that there could actually be a demand to do it live."

For that show, the band took six musicians with them. Since then the revolving band, which stopped at Detroit's Fox Theatre on Saturday, March 12, with UB40, has expanded to nine pieces. (Wilkinson and Simpson are the only two permanent members.) The musical force, which averages age 24, uses a few recordings (samples) at live shows, but mainly the work of saxophonists Tony Coft and Ed Jones, trumpeter Dominick Glover, bassist Geoffrey Gascoyne, drummer Cheryl Alleyne, keyboardist Timothy Vine, and rappers Raheem Kelly, Kobie Powell and Tukka Yoot. Although their stripped-down show in Japan was successful, Wilkinson and Simpson decided they owed it to the audience to play most of the pieces live.

"We thought the audience deserved it, really. Jazz is a music that has to be experienced live. I think we wanted to make it completely live in order to do justice to the music and not cheat people," Wilkinson said.

While researching what other jazz hip-hop bands were doing, they discovered that the shows lacked improvisation, which links the two music genres. Using samples was stale, Wilkinson said. Improvisation is what stir up excitement.

Passing the 'torch': Us3 uses a revolving group of musicians to educate young adults about jazz. The only two permanent members are producers Geoff Wilkinson and Mel Simpson, who do not travel with the group.

"Would an audience rather see the two guys that produced the album on stage, or would they rather see really hot soloists? I know which one I'd choose," he said.

Education is key. When the Wilkinson and Simpson created Us3, their original intent was to educate the public on the merits of jazz. As its tool, the band uses samples from the Blue Note Records' archives whose rights convinced, we could convince others. Us3, whose lyrics are written by Yoot and fellow rappers Raheem Kelly and Kobie Powell, educates subtly. There is no preaching. "Educate" is a horrible word when you involve it with music. We just kind of wanted to open the door and if people wanted to come through that door, it was there for them. I believe that young people have a real problem having access to jazz," Wilkinson said.

Radio and record company marketing specialists gear jazz toward an older audience, which alienates younger people, he said. Apparently, Us3. The video for the first single "Cantaloup (Flip Fantasia)"—sometimes affectionately known as the "bitty bitty bop" song—was included in MTV's trendy "Buzz Bin." Aside from that it has become a dance club hit. Many Us3 fans are unaware that they're learning something by Herbie Hancock other than "Rockit." The track uses excerpts from the musician's song "Cantaloup Island."

"They don't know they're actually dancing to Herbie Hancock. We get sort of a perverse delight out of that as well. It's a bit subversive," he said with a laugh.

A fine sample. "Hand on the Torch," which refers to the passing on of the jazz tradition, surprisingly is the only Blue Note album that has sold more than 500,000 copies. The legendary blues label's archives have included works by Reuben Wilson, Lou Donaldson, Big John Patton, Art Blakey & the Jazz Messengers, Thelonious Monk, Grant Green, Bobby Hutcherson, Horace Silver and Donald Byrd, all of whom are sampled on the record.

"At first I thought that was amazing, but then I thought 'It's a real shame,'" said Jones, who met Wilkinson at a "Jazz Rap Weekend" in England. "It's a real tragedy" that legendary artists haven't achieved that status, he added.

For rapper Yoot, it was a "dream come true." He sees it as repaying his idols for influencing him. In return, jazz purists have lauded the group's effort.

"We anticipated probably a lot more criticism from the jazz purists. In Japan the jazz purists seem to accept it straight away. Like in Japan, they think really seriously about jazz and they really took us to heart, which was phenomenal. I think even the purists that might not like what we're doing accept it. One of the things we're trying to do is get the younger people into jazz. Everyone understands that and accepts that."

Some have vehemently opposed what the duo is doing, however. "The one thing that we have been accused of is tearing pages out of the (jazz) Bible. But our 'stock in trade' answer to that is if we're tearing pages out of the Bible, then we're sanctioned by God."

Spontaneity counts for Howling Diablos

By MARK E. GALLO
STAFF WRITER

The Howling Diablos may not be who you think they are. In fact, they're hoping not. The element of surprise is one of the big components of their enormous local popularity.

Depending on what night of the week you see them, the time of night you walk in, where it's at and who's sitting in with the core group that night, you're as likely to see one of the most amazing blues bands in town as you are a screaming rock'n'roll or envelope-pushing free jazz band. Although they may begin the night with a straight-ahead Detroit blues groove, they'll just as likely end with the Johnny Evans affectionately calls a "nut out."

"Our shows are always real spontaneous," said founder and saxophonist Evans, "to the point where we'll play tunes and the band doesn't even know them. If you create that kind of space where magic and cool stuff can happen, a lot of time it will."

Evans and co-founder Martin Gross, both longtime local music veterans, have been working together for more than a decade, and the chemistry is almost tangible. Singer/songwriter/guitarist Gross is a veteran of the Progressive Blues Band, the Pop Cats, the Urbanations and Little Tino and the Hawaiians, who had the hottest single in Detroit in 1984 with "Crazy Bout Those Tigers."

Capra meets the Coens in Proxy

By JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

It's New Year's Eve. Snow drifts by a troubled man perched atop a skyscraper ledge 44 floors high—not counting the mezzanine. How he got there and whether or not he'll jump for a familiar springboard is old news. Capra movies like "Meet John Doe" or the ubiquitous "It's a Wonderful Life."

Mr. Capra, meet the Coens. Brothers Joel and Ethan, the writer/director team of "Barton Fink" and "Raising Arizona," have breathed new life into the shop-worn premise of "The Hudsucker Proxy," a fictionalized account of the inventor of the Hula Hoop and a visually dazzling tribute to fast-paced comedies of the 1930s.

Tim Robbins plays Norville Barnes, a recent graduate of the Muncie Business School, who lands a job in the mail room of Hudsucker Industries circa 1958. With the death of the company president and controlling interest up for public sale, Hud honchos want a new leader who can bring stock down, so they can be purchased for pennies.

In short, they want an imbecile, and they think they've found one in Barnes. After all, the earnest Midwesterner walks around with sketches of his new product idea, basically a circle drawn in the middle of a sheet of paper. "You know," he says, shocked that no one else recognizes its brilliance, "for kids."

The Coens, along with "Evil Dead" director and former Detroit Star Ramti, have scripted a clever little piece of nostalgia, dialogue of wisecracks and overlapping dialouge. And while the emotion of the story gets overpowered by set design and crazy camera angles, it easily ranks as the year's funniest picture.

In one of the movie's several well-edited sequences, a lone Hula Hoop rolls from an alley down the street and into the path of a little boy. Viewed from above, the shot recalls the apes eyeing that mystical monolith at the opening of "2001: A Space Odyssey."

At this exact moment, an elementary school has let out for the afternoon. As the boy picks the toy up and starts to swivel and shake, a pack of screaming school kids round the street corner and stare in amazement at what they see. The Hula Hoop, formerly a bust, officially becomes a craze.

For his part, Robbins plays the role with congeniality and "gee whiz" American enthusiasm. It's a pleasure to see him doing slapstick with Paul Newman, who too rarely gets a chance to let his silver hair down.

Blink and you'll miss cameo by character actors Peter Gallagher (as a slick Italian crooner) and Steve Buscemi (as a beatnik coffeehouse server). We could stand to see more of them, along with Bruce Campbell, another former Detroit and star of TV's "Brisco County," as Smity, the newspaperman.

'Kalifornia': A close call with crime

By LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

When faced with true, soulless evil, how would your average bleeding-heart intellectual respond? Would a close encounter with an utterly remorseless killer cause a change in the attitude that criminals need treatment, not incarceration and punishment?

On some levels that's the question posed by the 1993 film "Kalifornia" in which a writer and his girlfriend take along a killer and his girlfriend on a cross country drive. The writer, having spent his advance, needs help with expenses as he and his girlfriend, a photographer, visit the scenes of murders committed by serial killers.

David Duchovny and Michelle Forbes play the trendy leather-jacket-clad pair who maybe aren't as sophisticated and worldly as they might like to think. Duchovny's character in particular is fascinated and attracted by the sordid and twisted tales of mass murderers.

"You can't let stereotypes get in the way," he says after meeting their new travel companions.

There is a jarring contrast with the other couple, played as white trash personified by Brad Pitt and Juliette Lewis in the most memorable performance in the film. Pitt's greasy-haired and unkempt Early Grayce murders without a minute of remorse then makes a gift of a dead girl's shoes to the rather dimwitted Adele.

Early and Adele live in a rundown trailer, certainly not a mobile home, in the middle of what appears to be a junkyard. Early, who is already on parole, can't hold a job, telling his parole officer that they didn't treat him right.

Faced with jail, Early decides it's time for him to relocate with Adele. He tells Adele people think quicker in California because of the heat and by law each month's rent is free.

Duchovny's Brian is the smug sort who sees himself as superior to the harmless but primitive Early. In the end, the writer doesn't have a clue to who he is really dealing with in Early.

Forbes' photographer warms up to the hapless Adele and tries to help her. It's her suspicions of Early that spark the upclose violence that was surely inevitable anyway.

In one scene, the violent Early perfectly mocks the writer's amateur psychologist questions about how he feels when assaulting someone. The two even do a little shooting together.

Lewis' Adele, barely surviving on her meager wits and self-delusions, is the truly tragic figure of the quartet.

One of the things you might question about "Kalifornia" is whether the writer learned anything from his brush with terror. By the end of the journey that's not totally clear.

"Kalifornia" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call Leanne Rogers at (313) 953-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Evans was on that 'teenage Records 45, too, as well as putting in frontline time with the Urbanations, who were managed by former MC5 manager politico and impresario John Sinclair. It was Sinclair who, inadvertently, was responsible for the formation of the Howling Diablos.

"The first gig the band ever played was at the Michigan Gallery," Gross remembered.

"The first gig was a Gary Grimshaw art opening," Evans interjected. "He and I used to do this thing with John Sinclair called the Blues Scholars. He played drums; I played saxophone, and Sinclair would read his poetry. We were supposed to do this at the Michigan Gallery, and Sinclair had gone off somewhere, and Gary called up and said 'Why don't you and Martin put a band together for the opening?'"

Gross is quick to pay allegiance to the local poetry scene, as well, calling Mick Vranich and Word-band a particular favorite act.

"The band kinda grew out of more the poetry scene which, to me, is where the Howling thing came from, like Ginsberg's 'Howl,'" he said. "I never wanted to sound like a rockabilly band or anything else. Some people do draw those conclusions."

Rockabilly they most decidedly are not. Muddy Waters and Archie Shepp influences abound, and there are hints of stylistic processes like the MC5 and the Contemporary Jazz Quintet and peers like Was (Not Was), Fishbone and whatever else the band absorbs. Bassist Mike Hollis and drummer Vin E. (whose other band, Spingee, was just signed by Sony) make up the core of the band. However, the surprises always lay in which of their turntable selection of guitarists is on a session—Michael King, Bobby Ester, of Killing Floor, Tim Diaz of Red C, or Jeff Grand of the Butler Twins blues band.

"It's not the easiest way to go for making money in the music business," said Gross of the band's diversity.

"We've never tried to think of a hit, or thought of what we can do to be famous. It's always just being real truthful with this music and having faith in that. That's why we do it."

The Howling Diablos play Sierra Station, 15110 Mack, Grosse Pointe Park, Saturday, April 23. Call (313) 822-1270 for more information. They will also perform at the Q Club, 29 S. Saginaw, Pontiac, Saturday, May 14. Call (810) 334-7411 for more information.

Getting "pinned" is a fashion must

Historically, rites of passage have been commemorated with an appropriate pin. If you stop to ponder the decorative pin, you'll recall that your dad received a pin upon retirement or for 25 years' service to his company. You may have gotten pinned by your college boyfriend, a prelude to an engagement ring. That cherished pin was his fraternity insignia and probably still sits in the bottom of the jewelry box.

Jewelry designer Leslie Ann Pilling owns Presence II, 2926 Franklin Road in Southfield. She reminded me of an even loftier purpose given the pin. In the military, pins are used as symbols of rank and seniority. As campaign buttons they become political, used throughout history to reflect personal ideals and opinions.

Your mother may have positioned her fancy brooch just so on a suit lapel, or maybe she threw her cashmere sweater over her shoulder, securing it with a pearl sweater guard.

Those same bejeweled gems are back, but the styles and presentations have changed. The "guard" might be arranged asymmetrically on a blazer pocket or worn like an epaulet on the shoulder of a jean jacket ($60). Today, pins are everywhere. Pilling designs pin enhancers for pearls, hat pins to group on an oversized sweater, ($40) and pins attached to long necklaces that drape across the body ($198). Many women collect scatter pins to cluster on a collar or coat, tiny bugs or frogs or butterflies. Pins are even used as home accessories," says Pilling, pointing to a large gold mesh bow that forms a curtain tie-back.

Pin point plans

"Pins are a focal point. A woman takes the time to select them and put them on as an essential design element." She suggests displaying a pin collection on a beautiful pillow in the bedroom. Rhapsody in Beads is a medley of original beaded compositions by Beth Stone of West Bloomfield and her mother Ina Katz of Southfield. The two have designed and exhibited their beaded pins for the past few years and find that their customers appreciate their one-of-a-kind creations and enjoy collecting them. While Ina's designs are more uniform in color and involve a focal point vintage bead, Beth's creations are more contemporary and sculptural. See their striking pins at Objects of Art, 6243 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield.

Pin reminders

As in the case of campaign buttons that communicate a political preference, charities often offer pins to communicate a concern.

Two Hands Inc. encourages disabled, disadvantaged and seriously ill children to create designs for embroidered pins that include pineapples, giraffes, ice cream cones and kites ($12.50-$16).

The Alliance for Homeless and Disabled Artists employs homeless people to craft sparkling pins of recycled Mardi Gras gowns and costumes ($18-$38). Examples of these pins look terrific mounted on the brim of a baseball cap. They're available at select Hudson's stores.

More perfect pins include Tiffany's "Fireworks" burst with the radiant colors of pink, rubellite, violet tanzanite and sparkling diamonds. This spectacular pin collection explodes in showers of cascading gemstones ($18,000-$35,000) at Tiffany & Co. in the Somerset Collection in Troy. The "Race For the Cure" pin by Carolee depicts the figure of a female runner with a pink-enameled ribbon accent ($25). The pin is available exclusively at Neiman Marcus and proceeds benefit the Susan G. Komen Foundation for breast cancer research.

Trish McAvoy cosmetics keep it simple

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Trish McAvoy, 43, is in town this week launching her neutrals-only palette at Jacobson's — in the Laurel Park Place store in Livonia and the Briarwood store in Ann Arbor. "After more than 20 years as one of New York's top makeup artists, creating the faces that filled Vogue and Harper's Bazaar, McAvoy produced her own line of cosmetics in 1975. Until last year, she sold the products only to clients who visited her Central Park studio. Last year, she offered the line to Bendel's Department Stores, with an instant success she hopes to duplicate at select Jacobson's this year. Radiating the warmth that is also the trademark look of her cosmetics, McAvoy said makeup should be applied in a "fun frame of mind."

"The women who come to the McAvoy counter are the 16-year-old dressed in combat boots and 53-year-old dressed in a Chanel outfit with combat boots," she said with a wide smile. "I would use words like 'natural,' 'classic,' 'simple,' to describe my makeup philosophy."

McAvoy said she originally created the line for professional makeup artists and models. It differs from other cosmetics because the pigment is richer and there's a variety of yellow-based products, which McAvoy believes are more natural and attractive on most faces. To illustrate her point, she wiped the green eyeshadow and orange lipstick off the face of good-humored Anita Durham of Farmington Hills. Within 10 minutes, Durham's re-powdered and blended visage was the envy of onlookers. "Gee," Durham said, seeming not to miss all the color. "This makeup feels so light and looks so natural."

"I just enhanced your own good looks," McAvoy reassured. "That's what it's all about." A second feature of McAvoy's line is the natural animal hair brushes, which are in demand by anyone who knows makeup application. The brushes are a one-time purchase guaranteed to last for years. McAvoy's line is priced $15-$63. The shades are advertised as "trans-generational and trans-racial."

Toontown at Plymouth Animation Station

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

What's up, doc? Bugs Bunny, the quintessential smart aleck, has arrived in downtown Plymouth. Bugs brought with him Popeye, Groovy, Ben Stimpny, too. Cartoon lovers couldn't be happier. The new Animation Station, at 550 Forest Ave., cut the ribbon on a gallery that boasts a large selection of vintage Disney cells and drawings, as well as art from Warner Brothers, Nickelodeon and other major animation studios. Owners Vern Mitchell and Charles Eveleth left a holiday kiosk at the Livonia Mall to house their production cells, limited-edition cells, lithographs and other merchandise under a larger roof.

Plymouth's Downtown Development Authority is thrilled that the men chose Plymouth. "With the addition of the Animation Station, we continue to improve our central business core," said Steve Guille, DDA director. "The Animation Station is a unique destination store that will attract shoppers from beyond the city limits."

According to Eveleth, animation art is hot on the East and West coasts and in Florida. "But it's catching on in the Midwest," he added. "If you love cartoons, you're apt to be a collector. Anyone with a Mickey Mouse hanging from their key chain is a collector, whether they realize it or not." The merchandise at the Animation Station ranges between $50 and $5,000. In addition to selling cartoon works of art, the shop is a full-service gallery offering framing, cel repair and custom backgrounds for cells. It also houses stuffed cartoon celebrities, posters, mugs and other unusual toon toys. "Buying a cartoon cel is like buying a piece of your childhood," Eveleth said. "And it's guaranteed to make you smile every time you look at it."

Mitchell wants customers to know that if the Animation Station doesn't have what you're looking for, it'll be able to tell you where to find it. Plans call for guest appearances by famous animators to the gallery to coincide with special events in downtown Plymouth. The Animation Station is open Monday-Saturday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. For more information call the store at (313) 455-0190.

Whitewater a side issue when it comes to winter

You know it's been a long winter when the term Whitewater makes you envision a trout stream instead of the two condos, real-estate double-wide trailers, in the Ozarks that Bill and Hillary Clinton lost money on.

Parents need to be kept informed of child's performance

QUESTION: Overall our school district and its programs are excellent. But I have a complaint. Why is it some teachers don't inform parents early in the school year when their child isn't doing what he is supposed to be doing?

past performance would indicate. It was my fault as much as their fault. Nevertheless, my first six-week report cards went home with some solid B students getting C's, some "A" students getting B's, C students getting D's and a few students failed for lack of effort and for disrupting the class.

ANSWER: I agree! Parents have a legitimate right to be kept informed and notified immediately if there is any sudden or unusual change in school performance or behavior by their child.

Most of these parents were kind and reasonable; a few saw an opportunity to create a scapegoat for their own lack of control over their child. But all clearly indicated to me they wanted to be informed in a timely fashion...

Another form letter was developed as a follow-up. This form letter said something like: "I would like to take this opportunity to tell you how much your daughter has improved in my class. Her homework, attention to task, test scores, behavior, attitude (what-ever) has greatly improved and it is a pleasure to have her in my class."

Local commissioners want officials' names off signs

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County Commissioner Michelle Plawecki objects to signs throughout the county announcing "A better road is on the way" because county Executive Edward McNamara's name is on each sign.

"I've had people calling me up asking why his name is on those signs," said Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, whose district includes most of Redford Township.

It bugs Plawecki that signs at county maintenance yards have McNamara's name on them, but not the name of the local commissioner.

The commissioner's name should be on the sign, she said, because people need to know who to complain to.

"Ed McNamara is not the one who takes constituent complaints," she said.

As a result of Plawecki's protest, a proposed ordinance has emerged from the commission's committee on roads, airports and public services.

Sponsored by commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, and Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit, the ordinance would prohibit "the erection of signs which bear the names of elected officials," calling that practice "tantamount to the expenditure of public funds for the purpose of political campaigning."

The commission is expected to discuss the proposed ordinance

Tuesday, March 29, and vote on it as early as Thursday, April 7.

Plawecki is unhappy with the ordinance as currently written. She wants it to say that, if the county executive's name is on a sign, then the relevant county commissioner's name has to be on the sign, too.

Amann, who also represents Canton Township, said Friday he believes Plawecki doesn't have enough support for that.

"As far as I'm concerned, I don't want to see any of our names on signs," Amann said.

McCotter, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, has said he doesn't want his name on county signs.

McNamara did not return the Observer's phone calls by press time.

Draft says 'any person' can paint

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Although it likely will be altered if it becomes law, the initial draft of the Wayne County Commission's proposed sign ordinance permits "any person" to cover McNamara's name with spray paint on any sign in the county.

Section III of the ordinance, in part, reads, "Any person shall, however, have the right to enter upon county property or right-of-way at any reasonable time for the limited purpose of removing, erasing, or painting over the name of any elected officer which may appear upon a sign, vehicle, or equipment, provided that this work is done in a safe, neat and unobtrusive manner without defacing the remainder of the sign, equipment or vehicle."

When that portion of the proposed ordinance was read to Amann, he said, "That's crazy. Someone doesn't know what they're doing."

Amann predicted an early demise for that sentence.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Master the technique of eating artichokes

Think it was Julia Child who said - "The artichoke is the only vegetable that, when you finish eating it, you have more on your plate than when you started." We never ate anything as elusive as an artichoke in Wyandotte not because it wasn't available, but because the only vegetable we ate was corn.

I can to this day, recall the first time I ever encountered an artichoke. I was just a lad fresh out of high school, and was interviewing for a cook's job at the Top of the Flame, at that time a gourmet eatery on the top floor of what used to be the Michcon Gas building at the foot of Woodward downtown. Fortunately, I was accompanied by my neighbor's mother who was one of those gracious elevator operators that have gone the way of 10 cent ice cream cones.

Twila was her name and fine dining was her game. She acquainted the taste buds of this little ole boy from Downriver to the taste of life in the big city. I don't think I liked the taste of my first artichoke, especially when I found myself putting more effort into eating it than anything else. It was but a week later that I discovered the tasty thistle steamed and marinated at a little cozy bistro dubbed the Kickapoo on Grosse Isle. I have been a faithful admirer ever since.

Amongst its other devotees, the artichoke is regarded as a thing of epicurean elegance and delight. It first came into prominence as a foodstuff in 16th century Italy. It has gone on to win acceptance as a delicacy by many of the cognoscenti of the Western world, but is curiously left unknown or disdained among people's everywhere. My guess is that in addition to its velvety and buttery taste, it is indeed just a plain edible thistle with thorns.

Eating tips

An artichoke is by far the only vegetable I can recall that is so demanding to eat. There are three phases to enjoying an artichoke. The first is the most fun and requires the fingers. This stage consists of dismantling, one by one, the artichoke's outer layer of petals also known as bracts and dipping their fleshy lower tips into melted butter or a sauce. The petals are placed between the teeth and then gently pulled, extracting fleshy tidbits from their flowery base. There are some 40 odd petals to pluck, dip and nibble from a basic artichoke.

Phase two is the most exacting and requires the dexterity of a surgeon. Once the petals are enjoyed, the diner must coordinate the fingers and a knife in unison to extract and dispose of the inedible center, usually referred to as the choke. Unskilled laborers will leave fragments of the choke and yes, to consume the choke will, for a lack of better terms, "choke" you.

This done, phase three simply requires the diner to cut the remaining artichoke heart into bite-sized morsels, again to be enjoyed with a sauce or butter.

An unadorned artichoke is one of the least fattening foods on earth, averaging a mere 25 calories. This virtue, however, diminishes when the vegetable is accompanied by artery clogging butter, mayonnaise and hollandaise sauce.

Cooking methods

One of the best ways to enjoy an artichoke is to steam it. Ah, but that technique too deserves some special remarks. To first prepare an artichoke, the cook, to avoid any possible injury of the diner, should snip off the thorny tips of the artichoke petals. Best done with kitchen scissors, the artichoke will then have to be placed in an acidulated bath to keep from turning brown - (an acidulated bath is 1 quart of water mixed with 1/4 cup lemon juice).

Next, the long rubbery stem must be chopped off as close to the base as possible to facilitate standing. Yours truly prefers to remove about a dozen or so of the petals surrounding the base as these are usually tough and chewy, even after steaming.

Next, "X" marks the base with a sharp paring knife, about 1/4 inch deep to facilitate cooking and ensure a tender heart. At this point the artichoke can be steamed, covered for upwards of 30 minutes or boiled for about the same time. You can discern the doneness when a sharp paring knife is inserted into the base and easily pulls out.

Serve the artichoke immediately at this point, you can stuff the artichoke with a mixture of bread stuffing, eggs and/or meat.

Easter tradition: Braided or baked in a bundt pan, Polish Babka bread is a tradition in the Majewski home. Robert Majewski cracks eggs, while his son, Matthew, grates lemon peel for the bread dough.

Easter Bread

KEEPS THE HOME FIRES BURNING

Bread is the staff of life. For Dr. Robert Majewski, baking the Easter bread he made as a child, is a way of sharing his Polish American heritage with his family, and staying in touch with family in other states.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

"Having the same bread my family is having on Easter perpetuates the tradition," said Dr. Robert Majewski who grew up in Massachusetts. "We can't always be together, but can share the same bread."

Majewski, has lived in Livonia with his wife Judy and their sons, Mark, 11 and Matthew, 4 for the past four years. He learned how to bake the sweet citrus flavored raisin bread called babka from his mother when he was 10, and is passing the tradition on to his sons.

In addition to baking bread for family and friends, Majewski sends a loaf to his former instructor Dr. Chet Glomski in Buffalo, New York.

"When I was in dental school a friend of mine and I decided to bake Easter bread. We gave the extra loaf to Dr. Glomski. The first year I graduated from dental school I sent him one as a lark on Palm Sunday. He sent me a very nice thank you. I've sent him one every year. This is the 23rd year in a row," said Majewski a dentist at Mott Children's Health Center in Flint.

Since graduating from dental school, Majewski has finetuned his bread baking skills. His sons enjoy helping him.

On this particular day, Matthew is standing at the counter grating lemon peel, while his brother helps braid dough. Judy stands back watching. Baking bread is a father and son project.

Because of health concerns, Majewski reduced the amount of eggs in his mother's recipe, substituting two eggs, plus four egg whites for four whole eggs. The only noticeable difference is a lighter colored batter.

Southern cook cuts fat in 'down home' recipes

LAURA LETOBAR

Beth Mele of Livonia has a great recipe for those of you looking for an easy way to fill a lot of tummies. Mele moved to Livonia two years ago from Baton Rouge, La. As a clinical physicist at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, she is responsible for assisting physicians in administering radioactive implant therapy. Because her schedule sometimes keeps her at the hospital at all different hours, she likes to prepare recipes that are easy and provide leftovers for lunches and late dinners.

She is a wonderful cook but does not like to use all the fat most of the "down home" recipes require. Many Southern recipes call for a "roux."

This is a flour and oil mixture that is used to thicken a stew or make gravy. Mele says it takes practice and patience to make a proper roux.

Start by melting the butter or oil in a pan. Add equal parts of flour, stirring continuously. The flour and oil will make a paste. As the paste cooks, it turns a rich brown color. If not watched carefully at this point, it will quickly burn, and then you have to start over.

Although it does thicken the recipe nicely, it will add a large amount of unnecessary fat to the recipe. Fortunately, Mele believes it is not necessary in most recipes.

In her makeover recipe, I eliminated the thigh meat because of its high fat content. By using only boneless, skinless chicken breasts, I reduced the total fat from the chicken from 115.6 grams of fat to 30 grams.

Louisiana Chicken Stew
Original Recipe

- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
 - 2 large whole chicken breasts (about 3 pounds) skin on, cut into 8 pieces
 - 12 chicken thighs (about 4 pounds)
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped onion
 - 2 cups coarsely chopped celery
 - 2 medium green bell peppers, coarsely chopped
 - 1 can (32 ounces) tomatoes, chopped, with juice
 - 4 tablespoons tomato paste
 - 1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
 - 4 cups chicken broth
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 2 large bay leaves
 - 2 large garlic cloves, minced
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
 - 1/4 pound precooked, coarsely chopped andouille sausage
- Brown all chicken in a large Dutch oven with 1/4 cup oil. Remove chicken to a platter. Add flour to remaining oil to make roux. Place onions, celery and green peppers in roux and cook for 5 minutes. Add the tomatoes, tomato paste, lemon juice, hot pepper sauce, bay leaves, chicken broth, garlic, salt and pepper. Bring to a simmer. Return chicken to Dutch oven. Simmer, uncovered for 30 minutes. Add the sausage. Cook another 30 minutes, or until the chicken is tender and the sauce thick. Serves 12.

RECIPE MAKE OVER

Louisiana Chicken Stew
Reduced-Fat Recipe

- 1/4 cup water
 - 10 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into bite-size pieces
 - 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped onion
 - 2 cups coarsely chopped celery
 - 2 medium green bell peppers, coarsely chopped
 - 1 can (32 ounces) "no salt added" tomatoes, chopped, with juice
 - 4 tablespoons "no salt added" tomato paste
 - 1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
 - 3 cans (10.5 ounces each) Campbell's low sodium chicken broth
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 2 large bay leaves
 - 2 large garlic cloves, minced
 - 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
 - 1/4 pound precooked Louis Rich brand Polish turkey sausage
- Brown all chicken in large non-stick Dutch oven or stew pot. Remove chicken to a platter. Place onions, celery, green peppers and 1/4 cup water in pot and cook for 5 minutes. Add the tomatoes, tomato paste, lemon juice, hot pepper sauce, bay leaves, broth, garlic, and pepper. Bring to a simmer. Return chicken to Dutch oven. Simmer, uncovered for 30 minutes. Add the sausage. Cook another 30 minutes, or until the chicken is tender and the sauce is thick. Serves 12.

By eliminating the oil for the roux, 56 grams of fat was omitted. Substituting turkey sausage for andouille sausage saved 22 grams of fat. Andouille sausage is a spicy hot sausage that has a strong garlic flavor. Many southern cooks use it, especially in Cajun recipes.

To enhance the citrus flavor of the bread, Majewski uses pure orange oil. He uses golden raisins, because he prefers the flavor. Like their father, Matthew and Mark are drawn to the physical part of making bread — cracking eggs, grating lemon and orange peel, and kneading the dough.

Stir yeast mixture, orange peel, lemon peel, cinnamon and salt into margarine mixture. Stir in flour alternately with the milk, beating well after each addition until soft dough forms. Stir in raisins. Cover, let rise in warm place until double, about 1 1/2 hours. Stir down dough; spoon into greased and floured tube pan 10 by 4 inches, or 12-cup bundt cake pan. Cover; let rise until double, about 1 hour. Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Bake until bread is golden brown, 35 to 40 minutes. Cool 5 minutes. Remove from pan; cool completely. Sprinkle with powdered sugar if desired. Yield 1 loaf.

Artichoke dip tasty, easy to prepare

See Larry Jones' Taste Buds column on Taste front.
ARTICHOKE
4 artichokes
1 lemon, halved
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
Cut off and discard the stems of the artichokes with a stainless steel knife. Break off the tough outer leaves and cut off the top 1/4 of the artichoke.
Snap off the thorny tips of the artichoke leaves with scissors and rub the edges with half the cut lemon. Arrange the artichokes in one layer in a large saucen pan and add enough water to come halfway up the sides of the artichokes. Drizzle the artichokes with the remaining lemon juice and the oil. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Bring the liquid to a boil, covered, then reduce the pan to a good simmer and simmer the artichokes for 25-45 minutes or until base is tender.

1 cup real mayonnaise
1 cup Parmesan cheese (preferably freshly grated)
Drain and rinse the artichoke hearts and chop fine. Place in a bowl with mayonnaise and Parmesan cheese. Mix well. Pour into a lightly greased baking dish and place under the broiler for 5-10 minutes or until golden brown. Serve with crackers, party bread or breadsticks.
Chef's Secret: Try this recipe with some cooked, crisp, crumbled bacon or stir in a finely grated small onion. It can also be baked at 375 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes, uncovered, or until golden. Make this dip with real mayonnaise as salad dressing with separate while cooking.

How to keep produce fresh

Here are some tips from the Michigan Department of Agriculture to keep in mind as you prepare fresh food for you or your family.
Many shoppers place fresh fruits and vegetables into plastic bags provided by grocery stores. These bags are a convenient way of protecting the produce while shopping or during the trip home. But fresh food should never be stored in closed, plastic bags because condensation that occurs may hasten ripening or cause the growth of mold.
Never place washed produce back into a bag that once held unwashed food; you don't want to recontaminate clean food with micro-organisms.
Wash fruits and vegetables in cold water.
Some fruits and vegetables, like strawberries and mushrooms, have a high water content and should only be washed just prior to eating. Store these foods away from washed produce in the refrigerator.
If you have any questions about fruits and vegetables or food safety, call the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Food Division (617) 373-1060.

Lentils and rice, one pot meal

Protein plays an essential role in maintaining health, but many health experts are calling into question the amount of protein Americans normally eat. Since our meals typically focus on meat, poultry, eggs, cheese and other protein-rich foods, we often consume as much as twice the amount of protein we need each day. According to the American Institute for Cancer Research, the recommended daily allowance of protein is 50 grams for women ages 25-50, and 63 grams for men.

One pot meal: Lentil Rice Delight provides a meal in one pot, since the lentils and rice combined make a good low-fat protein source.

Studies have shown that countries where people eat large amounts of animal protein have a higher incidence of heart disease, diabetes and colon or breast cancer. However, although high-protein foods such as meat and dairy products are often high in fat — which is known to increase cancer risk — not enough is known about protein itself to rule it out as a potential cancer risk factor. Until further research is done on the health effects of protein, the American Institute for Cancer Research recommends choosing low-fat protein sources as part of a healthful diet. Eating skin and low-fat dairy products and extra cuts of meat is a good start, particularly in modest portions (three or four ounces of meat per meal). It is easier to cut back by replacing some animal protein with extra plant protein from dried beans, potatoes, pasta, deer, and use just a little meat or cheese for flavor. Whole-grain cereals and breads are also good protein sources.

VITAMIN E FOR MUSCLE SORENESS

Preliminary research seems to indicate that vitamin E supplementation may reduce the muscle damage that accompanies rigorous exercise routines. The evidence that led to this conclusion comes from a study of 21 normal young and older men who took part in an exercise program for 48 days. Half the men took 800 international units of vitamin E, while the other half took a placebo. Muscle damage in each man was assessed on the basis of biopsies from the younger men's leg muscles and the presence of by-products of fat oxidation in the urine of all the men. The results showed that the group taking vitamin E, an antioxidant, showed less exercise-induced muscle damage than the placebo group. Bearing this in mind, exercisers may want to take vitamin E to reduce muscle soreness and inflammation.

Vitamin E not only reduces muscle soreness and inflammation, but it is good for your skin, too! Supplementing a healthy diet with the right combination of vitamins and minerals can improve your overall health. The GOOD FOOD CO. natural food supermarket offers a tremendous variety of quality natural foods, along with vitamins and supplements to keep you in peak condition. Our staff always is willing to answer any questions you may have about a given product. Please call us at 981-8100. We are conveniently located at 42615 Ford Rd. Hours are Monday-Saturday 9-9 and Sunday 10-6. Happy Easter!

P.S. The older exercising men mentioned above seemed to benefit most from vitamin E supplementation during the Tufts University Human Nutrition Research Center study.

Farm owners get tax break from state Senate

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

State Senate Republicans passed a $22 million property tax break for agri-business, but not before they took a verbal blistering from Democrats.

Farms — even those owned by corporations and non-residents — will get the same homestead property tax break as homeowners unless a bill approved 20-11 Thursday. Nineteen Republicans and one Democrat voted yes; 11 Democrats voted no.

Said an angry Senate Democratic leader Art Miller of Warren: "It's fine we help some business people and do what's good for the farmer. But after spring break, I'm gonna put in a bill to help the electrician and plumber (who work out of their homes). What's good for rural Michigan is going to be good for small business, too."

The sponsor, Republican Joel Gougeon of Bay City, blamed Democrats for demanding separate tax rates for business and homeowners during 1993 negotiations. "We on this side of the aisle lost that argument," he said.

Tied to Proposal A

Senate Bill 1027, now on its way to the House, amends Proposal A, approved March 15 by voters.

Proposal A will activate a law placing a 24-mill school tax rate on all business property and second homes, and six mills on principal homesteads and farm property connected to a farmer's homestead. Leased farmland and disconnected farmland were to be taxed at 24 mills — until this Senate bill.

Voting yes were Republicans Michael Bouchard of Birmingham, Mat Dunaskias of Lake Orion and Robert Geake of Northville.

Voting no were Democrats William Faust of Westland and George Z. Hart of Dearborn.

Absent were Sens. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

During the Proposal A campaign, farmers protested the split rate on farm property, and Gov. John Engler agreed to give them a single rate.

Gougeon said that under Proposal A, 66 percent of farmland would have been taxed at six the question (of revenue loss)." Sen. James Berryman, D-Adrian, noted that Ohio, Indiana and Illinois residents who own vacation homes in Michigan will pay 24 mills, but those who own farm land will pay only six mills. The Senate rejected, 16 to 18, Berryman's amendment to charge non-resident farm owners 24 mills.

Gougeon thought a split rate on farms would be unconstitutional. Not so, said Democrat John Kelly of Grosse Pointe. "The interstate commerce clause doesn't let us put impediments on products from another state," he said, but Michigan may choose how it give property tax breaks.

Said Faust: "This body holds itself out as fiscally conservative, but it doesn't know the answer to in business. They say it (farming) is a movement. Well, it's not a movement for my retailers, gas station owners and cosmetologists."

"We give a couple hundred million dollars in breaks for farmers," Conroy went on, citing farm exemptions from the single business tax; exemption from sales and use taxes for seeds, tools and pesticides; income tax credits totaling $60 million; exemption for tractors from the personal property tax; and from motor fuel taxes for farm implements.

If farmers quit, McManus went on, "what do we want the landscape of Michigan to look like in the future? Do we want agriculture? Or do we want everything built up? What happens to the young farmers?"

Hollywood keeps writer in suspended animation

BY LARRY O'CONNOR STAFF WRITER

"Waiting in Hollywood is perhaps better than working with nuts and bolts at a hardware store. Al Jean, a 1977 Harrison High grad, has done his share of both.

The script writer worked in Jean's hardware on 12 Mile, owned by his father, Alfred Jean. The younger Al Jean worked there while in school before working on such shows as "The Simpsons."

"It's funny," Jean said. "I watch Home Improvement and I think I should work on that show, because it's about a guy who works with tools and lives in Michigan. So far, I haven't been offered anything yet."

Jean takes life and work one frame at a time.

After success with TV's cartoon "The Simpsons," Jean and script-writing collaborator Mike Reiss concocted another animated offering "The Critic," which has been aired on ABC-TV.

The sitcom centers on a portly New York film critic, who is sort of a schleppey Rex Reed. "Saturday Night Live" alum Jon Lovitz does the character's voice.

"We always say he's baldier than Siskel and fatter than Ebert," Jean said from his home in the Los Angeles area.

Six episodes of the show ran this winter, including at the height of the "Tonya Harding Olympics." Reviews were mixed.

"It was a little more difficult with this show," Jean said. "With 'The Simpsons,' you just had a family, a mother, a father and three kids."

"The Critic" has one central character, although "Jean said he'd like time to develop more. That's in the network's hands. Jean is waiting to see if "The Critic" will be picked up for the fall. Otherwise, he'll wait for

"None of our friends wanted to do it because it was a cartoon,"

Jean said. "We had nothing else going. We were out of work."

"The Simpsons" soon became a hit, pummeling "The Cosby Show" into retirement. The sitcom evolved beyond the Dennis the Menace antics of an underachieving urchin named Bart. The show aired Thursdays on Channel 50 parodies pop culture, the political landscape and anything else deemed fit to poke under the sardonic sun.

Characters such as the Indian convenience store operator Apu, the grumpy Glaswegian Willie the Gritskykeeper and the Kenne-dyque Mayor of Springfield Diamond Joe Quimby carry the show as much as America's No. 1 animated family.

Jean had a hand in the transition. He and his partner helped create Apu, the mayor and a jazz musician named Bleeding Gums Murphy.

Jean has some favorite episodes.

One included guest appearances by Jose Canseco, Darryl Strawberry and Roger Clemens, who were recruited by Homer's boss Monty Burns for the company's softball team. Another Jean fav was when Michael Jackson visited, providing the voice for an overweight white guy who he deludes of grandeur in which he is the pop star.

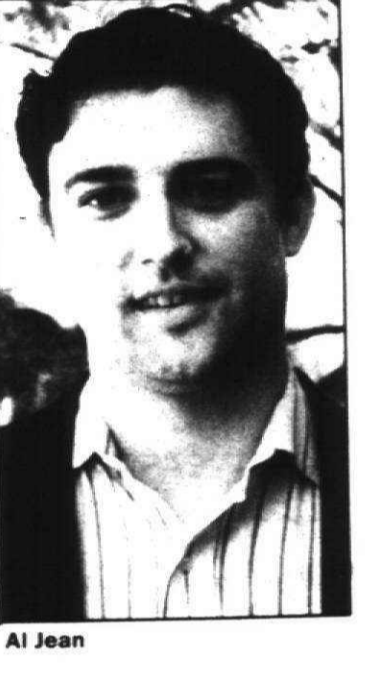

Writing for a cartoon has its pluses, Jean said.

"It wasn't difficult conceptually," he said. "Actually, it was kind of liberating because you can do anything you want, go anywhere you want. The big problem with live action is budget."

"A show like 'The Simpsons' is a year-around effort. Said Jean. "You find you're on a treadmill you can't get off very easily."

Jean and Reiss serve as consultants to "The Simpsons." They hope to work the same magic with "The Critic."

ABC-TV holds the key.

Retiring prosecutor praised for law enforcement stance

BY LEANNE ROGERS STAFF WRITER

His bar association membership card lists Howard Philippart Jr., but anyone who has even a nodding acquaintance with the veteran prosecutor knows him as Mickey.

Even certificates and awards hanging on his office wall are made out to Mickey. It's a nickname bestowed on Philippart as a child by his father and used during his days as an amateur flyweight boxer fighting at Olympia during the 1940s.

A Redford Township resident, Philippart is retiring at the end of the month after 26 years as a Wayne County assistant prosecutor, the last two years heading the out-county office in Westland.

"He's a policeman's prosecutor," said Redford public safety director Dave Pater who has known Philippart for about 20 years.

"If we had a major case, like a homicide, we'd call him if we had questions about what we could and couldn't do. He was always amicable about helping us whenever we called him."

During his years as a prosecutor Philippart was especially known for having a good relationship with police officers who don't necessarily hit it off with attorneys from either side of the aisle. Philippart would look at the whole case and what the officer was trying to accomplish with the warrant.

"He is highly thought of throughout all of Wayne County and I don't know of any detective who doesn't like him," said Parker.

For his part, Philippart said he always treated the officers as professionals and found they were eager to gain knowledge.

"I've been available and listened when people needed an ear. I like people," Philippart said. "The reason I like out-county is that it's like an old-time prosecutor. You get to know the judges and cops."

After attending Sacred Heart seminary and a brief stint in the Navy, Philippart decided to follow his father's career choice by becoming an attorney.

"I didn't think I was worthy of becoming a priest. It was natural that I would go to law school."

Asked where he attended law school, Philippart responded like any good Catholic school graduate: "There is only one law school: the University of Detroit."

Philippart was admitted to the bar in 1951, the same year his father died, and joined his father's firm in private practice. Philippart and wife Elizabeth, who had nine children, were married that year.

In 1968, two of the couple's children, boys 3 and 5, went with the father to the zoo. While they were out, the neighbor decided to include the children in a flight on a small private plane. The plane developed a gas leak and exploded, killing everyone but the pilot.

"It was a real shock," said Philippart. "The state police called to tell us where we should pick up the bodies."

A short time later his friend, William Cahalan, then Wayne County prosecutor, asked him to join the prosecutor's staff.

"He said I was a sensible person and he needed me. I figured $18,000 a year was good," Philippart said. "He and John O'Hair have both been good bosses."

Robert Sage, who was Philippart's boss at the out-county office until his retirement two years ago, said he was sorry Philippart was leaving.

"He was my right arm. He handled a lot of sexual assault cases, heavier homicides and conspiracies," Sage said. "We called him Capt. Smut because was in charge of pornography cases."

One of the first things on the agenda for Philippart and his wife after his retirement, a trip to Alaska. "I guess I get a little nostalgic. It's time to step down. They'll miss you for about a week."

We interrupt this newspaper to talk about television.

You probably gave it a lot of thought before you ordered cable television, after all, it is an added household expense.

Or maybe you were so excited when cable came to town, you signed up without a second thought. Either way, now you have it, so why not enjoy it even more by using our free Cable/TV Weekly book? The one that arrives every Monday with your Observer & Eccentric Newspaper.

Take a look at what's in there. You'll find interesting features and the usual network listings, but those cable numbers are what we really want you to examine. You see, they match your cable numbers and that makes your cable service more valuable! You'll find all with the numbers the cable company is using in your city! "More for your money" takes on new meaning as you discover that not only are the regular cable channels there, but your local channels are listed for you, too.

Cable/TV Weekly advertisers are local business people who are also helping you save money with specials and sales.

So try it. You'll get the most for your cable money when you use the easy-to-find listings and you'll save money by shopping the Cable/TV Weekly ads—all with our free cable book.

BRAD EMMONS

Operator: 'Can you help Moffat make this call?'

Maybe getting an audience with the Pope is easier than getting a return phone call from Redford Catholic Central High principal Father Joseph Moffat.

Following the retirement (or was it forced resignation?) of longtime basketball coach Bernie Holowicki, Redford Observer sports editor Steve Kowalski can't seem to get in touch with the CC principal.

Steve has had plenty of contact with CC public relations man Greg Grabowski, but breaking the inner circle on Breakfast Drive has been impossible.

What is Father Moffat trying to hide from? We can all read between the lines, but why not put the rumors to rest?

It's apparent, at least for now, that Holowicki did not leave under his own volition. In fact, Holowicki, who is the state's third winningest high school coach with 612 career wins, must be planning to get back into coaching somewhere else, otherwise he'd be coaching next month in the McDonald's All-American High School All-Star Game. Holowicki is also reportedly taking one week of his summer basketball camps to Garden City.

Holowicki, 62, did probably his finest job coaching this year, leading the Shamrocks to the Catholic League championship and district title over Detroit Henry Ford.

I'm sure that made it even more difficult when CC and he parted ways.

Father Moffat can run his school the way he wants, but let's get the facts out in the open and tell us the real reason why Holowicki isn't returning. Did parents start pressuring the principal?

All we want to ask is a few questions. What is the big deal? If there was a difference in philosophy between the two parties on the way the basketball program was run, why not admit it and get on with hiring the next coach.

That's basically what happened when Ladywood fired Ed Kavanaugh.

At first, principal Mary Ann Smith was reluctant to talk to me, shoving off all questions on athletic director Sal Malek.

But to her credit, she did return my phone call and cleared up quite a bit regarding the circumstances surrounding Kavanaugh's firing.

Father Moffat can take a cue from Sister Smith.

We don't need a private audience, just a return call.

Glenn tournament run

Some people may laugh, but Westland John Glenn was very close to winning the state Class A basketball championship.

This tournament run they made was not a fluke.

Glenn played to the level of its competition all year, and with a few breaks, could have been playing Friday at the Breslin Center against Detroit Public School League champion Detroit Murray-Wright in the semifinals.

Glenn nearly beat Battle Creek Central in the quarterfinals despite a hostile crowd, out-state officials and two questionable calls down the stretch.

Tony Goins, the 6-foot-5 senior forward, is my vote for Observerland Player of the Year. Nobody in this area had a better season.

Also, if Guy Rucker, Glenn's 6-10½ junior center continues to improve, who is going to stop him next year? All he needs is a summer on the weights and learn a couple of post moves.

Juniors Brent Washington and Savon Hubbard made great strides during the districts and regionals. Sophomore guard Albert Jones is a talent.

But the big question remains for next year: Who is going to replace Goins?

One candidate is 6-8 junior Eric Reppke, who played little this year, but shows a smooth shooting stroke. There also may be some help from the JV team, but Reppke needs to give coach Mike Schuette a commitment this summer.

If Reppke develops, Glenn and Battle Creek Central, another team loaded with underclassmen, could face each other again late in the tournament.

Thoughts of spring

I wonder if Carrie Cunningham is still on the pro circuit?

I'm still scratching my head over the "no contest" hockey decision made by Churchill principal Rod Hosman and Franklin principal Mike Fenchel. Could you do that in football? Also, what does the Michigan High School Athletic Association have to say about protest decisions regarding disqualified players?

Don't be surprised if Glenn's baseball team gets to the state finals, too.

Parents protesting coach's cuts

One of a coach's primary responsibilities is selecting the team. That is never an easy process, but now Plymouth Canton softball coach Jim Arnold's methods are under scrutiny by a group of upset parents who feel his selections were prejudiced.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

The parents of six girls cut from the Plymouth Canton softball program plan to bring the issue before the school board at tonight's meeting.

The players believe they were unfairly cut because they played slow-pitch softball in the summer instead of fast-pitch for one of Canton varsity coach Jim Arnold's two teams.

High school teams play fast-pitch during the spring months in Michigan.

Five of the six girls were in the school program last year, and all six played on Mid-America slow-pitch teams in the summer.

Senior Stacy Movinski was a varsity player last year, sophomores Anne Alioto and Aimee Breil played on the junior varsity and sophomores Nikki Kunec and Marci Dupont were freshman team members. Sue Huber is a freshman this year.

Ray Knickerbocker, manager of the Mid-America program and spokesperson for the girls and their parents, said they will ask the board to review the matter and might seek appropriate legal action — possibly an injunction to re-instate the players.

"This has been a festering boil, and Arnold just lanced it with his act of retaliation," Knickerbocker said, adding he knows of no Mid-America player who failed to make a fast-pitch school team.

"Two of the six girls are potential scholarship players and are being denied an opportunity. The sole reason is they didn't play fast-pitch in the summer."

Arnold, who has an 83-15 record in three years as varsity coach, was contacted for this story but declined to comment.

The players were cut March 9, two days after practice began, according to Knickerbocker. He and the parents met with Plymouth-Canton athletic director Paul Cummings and Canton assistant athletic director Jim Finn March 16, requesting the girls be re-instated and Arnold removed as coach.

Cummings informed Knickerbocker March 18, the date when Knickerbocker asked for a status report, that he was investigating. In another conversation March 24, he told them their demands would not be met. Cummings said he is confident Arnold made his selections based on ability.

"We have a lot of sports and we do a lot of cutting, and no one dislikes it anymore than me," Cummings said. "But it's still the coach's job to select the team. I'm sure anyone cut from a ballclub is very disappointed because young people work hard to make a ballclub, but that's just the process."

"I'm sure there's not a coach in the district who would select a player on anything other than ability. I'm no different from any other athletic director in the country. You rely on your coaches to pick their team. That's part of the job description."

Canton eyes another banner season

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

There's nothing a coach would rather do than tell this to anyone who asks about the prospects for his team's upcoming season: We won't rebuild; we'll reload.

It's particularly gratifying to the coach of a team that reached the state finals the previous year. Which is exactly the position Plymouth Canton soccer coach Don Smith finds himself.

Yes, the Chiefs have lost some top-drawer talent. Gone are two-time all-state keeper Jori Welchans, sweeper Kathy Bahr, forwards Leah Hutko and Colleen Connell, center midfielder Amy Westerhold and defender Kelly Reeves.

"Those girls will definitely be missed," said Smith, noting that all but Westerhold had four years varsity experience, and she had three. "But I think we'll be pretty strong. We definitely lost some quality ball players, but I think others will step right up."

Smith's optimism is anchored by the number of experienced players he has back. Nine seniors return, all with extensive varsity experience due to the Chiefs' severe injury problems last season.

"There were a couple times last year when we were down to 14 kids (from 24)," Smith said.

One welcome returnee is Britta Anderson, a senior forward who missed all last season after undergoing reconstructive knee surgery. She isn't the only one trying to bounce back from that type injury: senior forward Mandy Salin and sophomore sweeper Beth Ostach also had reconstructive knee surgeries last season.

Leading the returnees is four-year starter Alison Nounne, a senior midfielder. Other seniors returning are stopper Erica Anderson, outside midfielders Lynn Haines and Robyn Pashow, forward Angie Page, and defenders Christy Priebe and Nicole Burns.

"All of them got quite a bit of playing time last year," Smith said. "They got a lot of experience."

Another potential contributor is senior Therese Ideblad, an exchange student from Denmark. "She will definitely be an asset to us," said Smith.

If there's one thing he has plenty of, it's depth. Six juniors will vie for time on the field: Stacey Miller, Kara Moylan and Becci Brown, all defend-

High hopes: Alyson Nounne (in front) is back for the Chiefs; so is Jodee Wilsher (behind) for Salem. Both players plan to recapture past glories for their respective teams.

Player losses mean Salem must rebuild

BY C.J. RISAK

Every coach must face losing key players every season. In school sports, athletes graduate, sometimes taking their team's success with them.

Rebuilding year after year is something a high school coach adapts to. All they can hope to do is minimize the job by bringing back a slew of experienced players. Or at least a few.

Plymouth Salem girls soccer coach Ken Johnson thought he would have the former. Instead, through events he had no control over, he is facing the latter.

Gone from last year's 9-3-4 team are eight starters. Of those returning, only one — senior Susie Parrish, one of three team captains for '94 — was a full-time starter last season.

PREVIEW

What hurts is Johnson thought that, when school let out for summer in '93, he would lose just three starters and a fourth part-time player. Kris Goff, Michelle Cronan and Caryn Tatterton, who combined had 11 years of high school experience, were graduating; so was substitute Charu Sinha.

But Johnson didn't think he'd lose the rest of his nucleus. First, Mackenzie Emmett, a three-year starter at defender, moved. Then Mari Hoff, Stacey DeLong, Jenny Bazzarelli and Kelly Lukaik, all starters, opted to train for their club team, the Livonia Hawks, coached by Paul Scicluna.

"What can you do?" said Johnson, explaining he has talked to coaches in other sports who shoulder similar burdens. "It's a big chunk out of my team, but life goes on."

"Whatever happens, happens."

Of those returning, five have considerable experience from last season. Parrish, a junior, will inherit the center midfield position filled by all-stater Kris Goff, who played at Michigan State last fall. Parrish will roam around, filling both offensive and defensive needs.

Two seniors who share the captain's duties with Parrish are Jodee Wilsher, a defender, and Alexis Marinno, a striker. Both were part-time starters last season.

The only other senior on the squad is Jaimie Gardner, who just transferred into the school district. She'll see playing time at midfield.

Julie Buczek, a sophomore, returns at keeper. She took over as starter midway through the '93 season, so Johnson will have some experience in the net. Lisa Bares, a junior defender, is the only other player with varsity experience.

Martin heads sterling cast in CBS' adaptation of 'Christy'

BY SUZANNE GILL

Christy, Catherine Marshall's best-selling novel of faith and the testing of a young heart, comes to television Easter Sunday, April 3, on CBS. The two-hour movie, starring Kellie Martin ("Life Goes On") as 19-year-old Christy Huddleston was filmed on location in the beautiful Smoky Mountains of Tennessee.

Leaving the comforts of home in Asheville, N.C., to teach at the Cutter Gap mission school in 1912 is an eye-opening experience for Christy, whose students come to class barefoot and grubby, unable to give their home address because there are no streets or house numbers. The Scots-Irish Highlanders are a brooding lot, not given to long explanations. Some still carry on generations-old feuds. As harsh as the physical reality is the spiritual clash of faith, superstition and pragmatism among the people of Cutter Gap.

Christy's first friends in this strange world are Miss Alice Henderson, the sturdy and independent Quaker who founded the school, and David Grantland, the young mission preacher. They are played by Tyne Daly ("Cagney & Lacey") and Randall Batinkoff, respectively.

Christy tells Miss Alice she wants her life "to count for something," and she struggles hard to succeed at the open-air mission school.

"Christy has even more enthusiasm than I have," says Martin, who took the role after deciding to defer her entrance to Yale University from last fall to next.

"I love Christy's enthusiasm. She doesn't think that there's anything she can't do. She goes for it. And she believes in people. She follows her heart, and it sometimes gets her into some bad situations. But she believes in herself, and she believes in other people."

Strong in character, Christy is at the same time a gently bred young woman of the Gibson Girl era, from a medium-sized Southern city. During filming, Martin says, she had to remind herself that Christy would not have moved or spoken with the freedom a young woman enjoys today.

"She's very proper. She's very 1912. She's still very Southern, and I'm not," Martin says, adding that her character's moral fiber is more important to her than manners or mores. Her idea of a good role, she says, has a lot to do with "whether or not it is an admirable character. I am still a teenager, and I do not want other teenagers to watch the show and not look up to that character. So I wouldn't take a part that I didn't believe in, that I wouldn't look up to."

"I never would have wanted to do what Christy did," Martin says. "I don't know if I would've been able to hold out as long as she did. She was very frightened when she got there. But she stuck it out. And I don't know if I could have done that."

"I admire her very much for leaving her family and leaving a place where she felt safe and going to this backwards settlement of people who are uneducated, going into a classroom full of children who couldn't read, write, some couldn't speak, they didn't have shoes. I probably wouldn't have been able to take it."

Like opening a window on spring, CBS' decision to present "Christy" is a breath of fresh air after a winter of movies about women in crisis and litigation. It features strong roles for both sexes. Daly's Miss Alice is a sharp-shooting pacifist who lives with a deep sorrow caused by her own human frailty. Fairlight Spencer (Tess Harper), a mountain woman who befriends Christy, stands up to a local bully's threat to close the school. The local doctor, Neil MacNeil (Stewart Finlay-McLennan), turned down offers of more conventional practices to return to his people, many of whom mistrust his motives as much as his medicine.

Fortunately, this family drama does not end with Sunday's two-hour movie. The story of Christy continues in six one-hour episodes beginning Thursday, April 7.

If the millions of viewers who made "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" a surprise hit respond as well to "Christy," the series will return with more episodes next season. And Yale will have to wait a little longer for a certain young actress to join its freshman class.

SOAP WORLD

Gregory makes 'em laugh and cry

BY CANDACE HAVENS

By day Cynthia Jordan portrays an abused wife. April, on "The Young and the Restless." But you won't find Jordan crying at her nighttime gig - doing stand-up comedy at some of Los Angeles' hottest comedy clubs.

On the day of a recent interview, the actress looked scary. She was getting ready to film a scene that takes place after a fight with the abusive husband. She had a bloody nose, bruises, and her clothes were torn. "What a great day for you to meet me," she said.

The actress enjoys both her comedy work and her role on "Y&R." "Some days are really tough, because I have these emotional scenes and I get home and I don't really feel like going out to the club that night," Jordan says. "But I am really committed to doing comedy, and I make myself go, and it is wonderful."

The actress says working on "Y&R" is much different for her than it was 10 years ago. "It's funny because I have changed so much since I was on the show before, and my character has, too. But we could not be more different. I am much more light-hearted than April. Comedy and laughter are a huge part of my life," Jordan says.

"But you know, I'm not sure I could say I would not end up in the same kind of situation she is in. I don't think anyone willingly enters into an abusive relationship. It just sort of happens."

The actress says she enjoys working with her co-star Doug Davidson (Paul). She's excited Davidson signed on to do the prime-time version of "The Price Is Right." "Doug is so witty, and people are going to get to see a side of him that they rarely get to see," Jordan says.

Jordan comes from an off-beat background, and she says that really helps with her comedy routines. "My mom is an astrologer. When I was a kid she would come in and say, 'Don't bother getting up, you're accident prone today.' If Mercury was in retrograde I wouldn't get up for a week," Jordan laughs.
