Building permits still booming

Canton is still the new housing champion of Wayne County and the second-fastest growing community with a population of more than 50,000 in southeastern Michigan, according to figures compiled by SEMCOG.

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER
sdaniel@oe.homecomm.net

For the third straight year, Canton appears to be the second fastest growing community in metropolitan Detroit. According to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), Canton trails only Macomb Township in the number of building permits issued in 1999. It doesn't come as a surprise to Supervisor Tom Yack.

"I think there's a certain excitement to live in a place seen as desirable," he commented. "People go where they see strong public safety, recreation and other services. I think we've stayed ahead of the power curve in those areas."

SEMCOG recently released building permit figures for January through November. A final tally should come later this year.

The organization collects data on Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Livingston, Monroe and St. Clair counties.

For the 11-month timeframe, a total of 1,066 permits were issued for single and multiple family units in Canton. That trails only Macomb Township, which reported a whopping 1,933 permits issued for the same period.

The two municipalities have been tops in permits issued since 1997. Canton and Macomb appear to be anomalies in terms of development last year, however.

Each of SEMCOG's other top five

Village is likely theater site

If a Partnership for the Arts facility is to become a reality, it will be in Cherry Hill Village.

Partnership's board made that decision a few weeks ago. Now it's waiting for the results of a business plan, which will determine if the project should move forward.

"We hope it will be completed by February," Partnership for the Arts Board of Directors Secretary Joan Noricks said of the plan. "Everything else hinges upon it."

Talk of a performing arts center has been on-going in the township since 1996. A steering committee was formed about two years ago and consisted of members of local arts agencies, such as Canton Project ARTS, the Plymouth Community Chorus and Plymouth Theatre Guild.

The committee guided several feasibility studies. One revealed that proper funding for a 500-800-seat center does exist.

A Partnership for the Arts board formed last March. A nonprofit organization of the same name followed.

Connecticut-based AMS Planning and Research was subsequently hired in July by Canton Township to devise the business plan.

Before AMS could complete the plan, Noricks said the board had to provide the parameters of location and size.

Cherry Hill Village became the prime location after developers committed $2 million to the project, she said.

"The strongest reason was that a number of developers wanted it there," Noricks said.

Cherry Hill Village developer and Troy-based Biltmore Properties will contribute $1 million. Local developer Dick Lewiston will match that figure, Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said.

Originally, plans called for the center to be placed near the Plymouth Canton Community School District's new high school. But several factors worked against that idea.

First, plans for the school moved from Joy and Beck roads to a more

School board votes 5-0 to approve Booher deal

BY TONY BRUSCATO

The Plymouth-Canton school board made it official Tuesday morning. Kathleen Booher is the district's next superintendent.

On a vote of 5-0, board members approved the 3-1/2-year contract at an annual salary of $125,000 for Booher, currently the Berkley Schools superintendent. Board President Susan Davis and Trustee Roland Thomas were absent.

"I can't tell you how excited I am to begin the new millennium and ... have you aboard," Trustee Mark Slavens told Booher, who attended the 7 a.m. session.

"I think the whole process has been very educating," added board member

Steve Guile. "I feel we got to know her (Booher) very well."

Booher, wearing a pin on her red blazer that read "Children First," said Friday will be her last day in Berkley.

"I'll be taking a couple of weeks break in between and finish out some things in Berkley and get organized to come here," said Booher. "I want to spend time here getting better acquainted with some of the people I'll work closely with, having a few meetings where they can update me further, rather than leaving that for the first day I walk in the door."

Booher said her first official day on the job in Plymouth-Canton will be Jan. 31. She comes amid high expectations from the board and community.

Y2K no problem here, Canton officials report

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER
sdaniel@oe.homecomm.net

Like most everywhere else on the planet, Y2K proved to be a non-event in Canton.

Computers worked, traffic lights continued to flash and blink and police were no more busy than any other Friday night in December.

In other words - ho-hum. "We saw really no Y2K problems at all," Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said. "Zero. All systems worked well."

More than 80 township employees worked New Year's Eve.

Canton prepared for three scenarios: A "normal" response to New Year's-Eve activities where no or minimal disruptions occur, a loss of essential services for three to seven days and finally a major loss of essential services lasting up to 14 days.

Yack and other top township officials were at the Emergency Command Center at Fire Station No. 1 well before midnight. He said it became clear earlier in the day, however, that nothing would happen when the calendar flipped to Jan. 1.

"It was a non-event," Yack said, "which was great."

Brad Thompson, who oversees Canton's Management Information Systems department, said 18 months were spent preparing for Y2K.

But commissioners were surprised at the news of the $10 million budget shortfall.

The veto allows the county's general fund balance to remain at $20 million. Another $26 million is in a separate rainy-day fund.

Naughton believes the new child care program will bring slower growth in costs of juvenile justice. "The contracts require performance reviews where we will be able to monitor those that are efficient and those that are inefficient," Naughton said.

For the short-term, the CMOs will need to be monitored. County officials won't know the long-term effects, those are only known when juveniles grow into adults and whether or not they commit crimes.

McNamara vetoes use of fund balance for juvenile justice

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK

'For obvious reasons, reoccurring financial problems require permanent answers, not temporary raids on limited fund balance reserves.'

Edward McNamara
Wayne County Executive

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara has vetoed the county commission's use of $5.8 million from the county's $20 million fund balance to pay for part of the county's portion of $68 million for juvenile justice programs.

With the veto on Dec. 23, McNamara's proposed budget cuts of $10.2 million automatically became effective Tuesday, the first day of county business after the holiday break.

In December McNamara requested that county commissioners approve those cuts, but most commissioners agreed to trimming only $4.6 million, choosing instead to use $5.7 million from the county's fund balance to cover the shortfall.

On Dec. 20 commissioners had voted 9-5, with support coming from Chair Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit; Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland; and Commissioners Kathleen Husk, R-Redford, and Detroit Democrats Robert Blackwell, Edna Bell, Christopher Cavanaugh, George Cushingberry, Ilona Varga and Jewel Ware.

Commissioners opposing the general fund expenditure were Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia; John Sullivan, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton, and Edward Boike, D-Taylor, Joseph Palamara, D-Allen Park, and Bernard Parker, D-Detroit. Commissioner Susan Hubbard, D-Deerborn, abstained.

In his veto letter, McNamara called the commission decision to use $5.7 million of the fund balance "expedient but imprudent."

"I do not believe the commission action to use fund balance is financially prudent and therefore I have no choice but to veto your action," McNamara said in his veto letter.

McNamara said the fund balance should not be used for ongoing budget problems, and using it would increase debt service costs on new bond projects, and delay or eliminate capital projects.

"For obvious reasons, reoccurring financial problems require permanent answers, not temporary raids on limited fund balance reserves," McNamara said. "Escalating child care costs are not a new problem in our county."

The cuts do not necessarily mean layoffs for any county employees, but it does mean public safety agencies will not be able to fill vacancies.

Sheriff Robert Ficano's department faces $2.1 million in cuts from nearly $70 million in general fund appropriations covering costs of jail operations and park patrol budgets. "At this point, 80 percent of these cuts are coming from law enforcement," Ficano said. "We've gone through the budget process, and suddenly, there is a $10 million deficit."

County Prosecutor John O'Hair's budgeted $24.3 million general fund appropriation was cut $750,000. O'Hair believes public safety should be the "No. 1 concern" of county officials.

O'Hair said McNamara's budget cuts were "unsound" and that the budget process "lacked integrity" when department heads lobby the commission for appropriations only to have them cut by the administration.

"The ink isn't even dry on this budget, then these funds are taken out of the budget," O'Hair said. "Integrity is lacking. Departments should have a finalized budget that they can rely on."

Chief Financial Officer Tom Naughton said he wished he didn't have to adjust the budget. "It's an unfortunate fact of life that these budget adjustments are required," Naughton said.

Naughton said McNamara vetoed the action because the commission's plan to use the fund balance was "irresponsible." Naughton expects the commission will have further discussions later about the budget once the next quarterly financial report is released later this month.

"Every department for the most part has a lot of latitude in how to provide for the cuts," Naughton said. "If they have alternative work that can be another option."

Naughton said county budget officials wanted to fund the child care program in an earlier proposed budget. At that time, Wayne County was negotiating with the state for a juvenile justice block grant and had not received contracts from service agencies to become care management organizations (CMOs) for the county.

communities in 1998 dropped significantly in permits issued last year - even considering incomplete totals.

No. 3 Chesterfield Township, for example, granted 602 through November. That compares to 865 issued in 1998.

Sterling Heights, which was No. 4 in 1998, dropped to 551 from 822. The fifth fastest growing community, Shelby Township, went from 740 to 555, according to SEMCOG.

"Overall, Oakland and Washtenaw counties experienced the biggest decline from 1998 levels. A total of 6,251 permits were issued in Oakland through November, a drop of about 1,400. Washtenaw dropped nearly 900 permits.

The slow down should come as no surprise.

SEMCOG reported that building hit a 25-year high in 1998. Yack said several other factors have slowed development in outnumber multiple units such as apartments. "I think we'll see 400-500 single family units," said Yack, "maximum."

The township has been able to keep pace with services despite the quick growth. Larger, more expensive homes provide a greater tax base, said Yack.

"We're getting the type of homes that contribute a lot toward public services," he added.

SEMCOG estimated Canton's population at 74,624 through November of last year. That's up 30.8 percent since 1990.

That kind of growth is not an accident, according to Yack. He said Canton is the type of community and has the kind of housing stock that a wide variety of people find appealing.

"I think people vote with their pocketbooks," Yack said.

easterly site adjacent to the district's two existing high schools. Yack said the new location didn't appeal to Arts' board members and others.

"Arts organizations were not in favor of locating it on the high school site," he added.

The Partnership for the Arts center would be located near Cherry Hill Village's center. The village green would be adjacent as would shopping and restaurants.

Yack said the center would have more "ambiance" in the village than near a high school.

As for the size of the facility, Noricks said 750 seats are planned. A main floor would contain 500 seats and a balcony 250.

'Arts organizations were not in favor of locating it on the high school site.'

-Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor

The Plymouth Theater would likely use just the main floor for its performances while the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra would include the balcony. Noricks said the two groups are currently seen as the center's main occupants.

If the project goes forward, Yack hopes the center will be used educationally.

"I still think there's interest in the community for a first rate educational facility," he said.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Michigan Opera Theater and Eastern Michigan University have all expressed interest in that regard, said Yack.

The facility would cost $7-$8 million to build. Besides $2 million from developers, Canton Township has committed $2.5 million.

If Partnership for the Arts Board approves a business plan next month, Noricks estimated that it would take about a year to raise funds for the other half of construction costs.

"I think it would be a year before we were ready to break ground," she added.

Community Chorus seeking new members

The Plymouth Community Chorus begins rehearsals for its annual Spring Concert Jan. 11. Open auditions for new members will be conducted by appointment Jan. 11, Jan. 18 and Jan. 25 and Feb. 1, beginning at 7 p.m. at First United Methodist Church, 45201 N. Metro population grows 4.6% in 1990s

The seven-county region of Southeast Michigan closes the 20th century with an estimated population of 4,802,071, according to figures released by SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

This new estimate represents a 4.6 percent increase since the 1990 census. The region's fastest-growing county in the 1990s is Livingston County. During the decade, it grew 34.1 percent, from a population of 115,645 in 1990 to a current estimated population of 155,041. At the beginning of the 20th century, Livingston County had a population of 19,664.

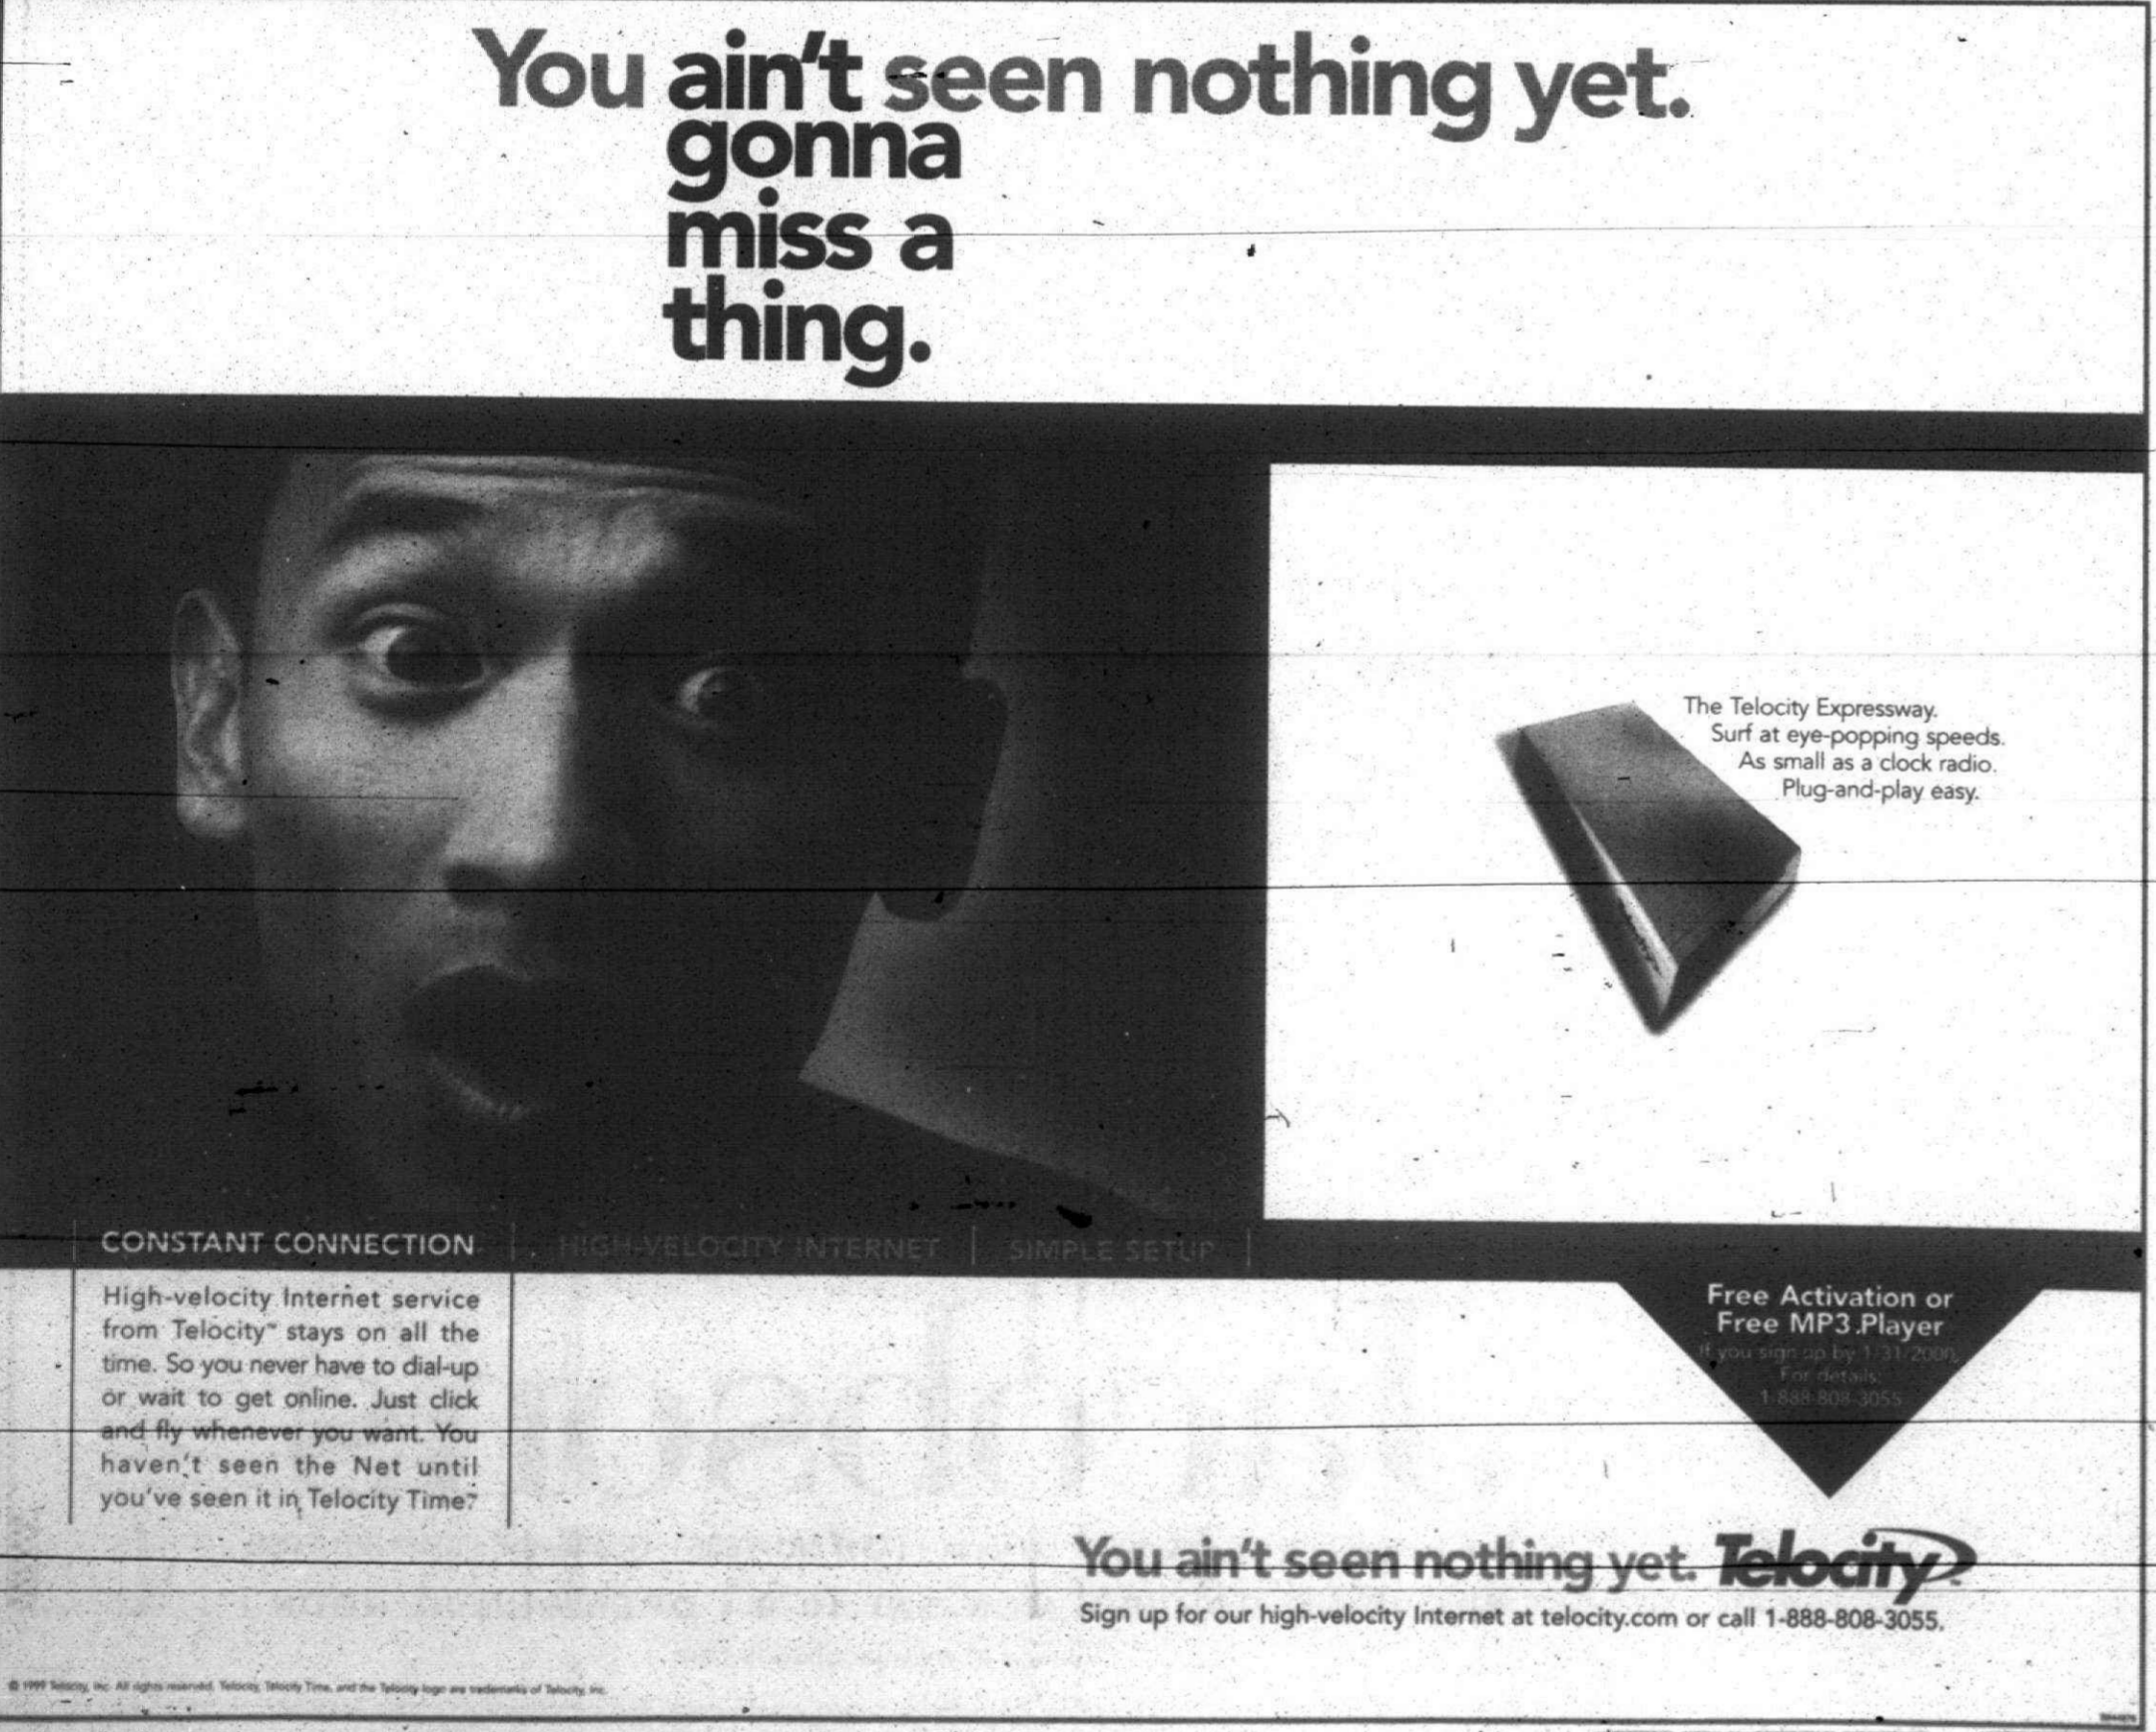

Macomb Township grew the most in the 1990s, beginning the decade with a population of 22,714 and ending it with an estimated population of 50,398, an increase of 121.9 percent. Other fast-growing communities in Southeast Michigan include Iosco Township and Oceola Township (both in Livingston County), Washington Township (Macomb County), Oakland Township (Oakland County) and Pittsfield Township (Washtenaw County), all with population increase of more than 60 percent.

The number of households in Southeast Michigan grew by 8.9 percent in the 1990s. There were 1,698,819 households counted in the 1990 census. The region closes the decade with an estimated 1,850,715 households.

Population and household figures for all counties and communities in Southeast Michigan are updated monthly on SEMCOG's Website, www.semco.org/data/popoc/popecc.html. A poster, visually describing the 1999 Southeast Michigan Population and Household Estimates, is available by calling SEMCOG Information Services at (313)961-2242.

Sen. McCotter takes on rat bounties, other outdated state laws

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.com

If you turn in an empty beer bottle in Michigan you get 10 cents. Of course you know that. But did you know a severed rat's head is also worth a 10-cent bounty?

That's right. Act 50 of 1915 states: "Any person who kills a black, brown, gray, or Norway rat shall be entitled to receive ten cents for each head of a rat that is presented to the city, township, or village clerk."

State Sen. Thaddeus G. McCotter, R-Livonia, chairman of the recently formed Senate Law Revision Task Force, wants to ensure that no rat heads slide across the desk of any city official, election year or not. He's sure his mother, Livonia City Clerk Joan McCotter, appreciates his efforts.

"My mother has decidedly expressed her disinterest in accepting or disposing of dead rats' heads. I assured her a repeal would be my first bill of the new millennium."

Task force members are on a search and destroy mission, scouring the list of state statutes to determine how many archaic laws still exist. McCotter plans to begin repealing the archaic laws identified in the task force's report when the Senate returns in January.

"Senate Majority Leader Dan DeGrow has assured me that he is committed to acting upon our recommendations early next year," he said.

Here's a partial list of other old laws about to get the ax:

■ Immoral advertising. Act 328 of 1931 forbids ads offering cures or treatments for venereal diseases, the restoration of "lost manhood," and products producing abortions or miscarriages. If enforced, the law would subject Viagra spokesman and former presidential candidate Bob Dole to a misdemeanor charge. So what would it be, Bob, a year in jail or a $500 fine?

■ Images of dead ex-presidents. Act 328 of 1931 makes it a misdemeanor to use or reference a deceased ex-president of the United States in the advertising of liquor or spirits.

■ Sleigh bells. Act 328 of 1931 applies to the use of sleigh bells in the Upper Peninsula. At least one animal pulling a cutter or sleigh that is moving faster than a walk must wear sleigh bells.

■ Dueling. Act 328 of 1931 states that a person who engages in or challenges another to a duel is guilty of a felony and may be imprisoned for 10 years or fined $5,000. A person who accepts a challenge or promotes a duel is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be imprisoned for one year and fined $500. Both parties are barred from being elected or appointed to any public office.

■ Horseshoer's lien. Act 160 of 1897 provides for the placement of a lien on a horse or mule by a blacksmith to cover unpaid shoeing bills.

■ Official cream tester. This statute defines the duties of a county's official cream tester. It allows the county to spend up to $150 to provide the official cream tester with the necessary equipment to carry out his or her duties.

McCotter expressed hope that the report will "remind Michigan legislatures that, especially in the era of term limits, not all laws, however popular for a time, stand the test of time."

Jan VanRaemdonck, a secretary in the Livonia City Clerk's office, knew nothing about any of the archaic laws. Nobody has ever turned in a rat's head or applied for a job as an official cream tester.

That doesn't mean it hasn't happened, she said. "I'm new here."

But officer, Elizabeth loves Viagra, too!

Don't just impress the neighbors.

to organize and motivate employees and our youth and adult carrier forces makes him an excellent choice for the position," said Rosiek.

Gibson has worked at the Observer for the last six years as an area manager in Canton, Plymouth and Farmington/Farmington Hills. Before joining the Observer, he worked as the circulation manager at the Associated Newspapers in Wayne and at the Dearborn Press & Guide Newspapers in Dearborn.

As circulation manager, Gibson oversees a workforce of 11 full-time and part-time employees, more than 1,400 youth carriers and 75 adult drivers and adult newspaper carriers.

A graduate of Roosevelt High School in Wyandotte, Gibson holds a certificate in business management from Walsh College. He lives in Dearborn with his son, Troy Jr., a senior at Fordson High School.

"My focus is service - working with area managers to satisfy all customers and to make sure they receive a complete newspaper on time on Thursdays and Sundays," Gibson said.

Troy Gibson

"I plan to be active in the community, recruiting youth carriers and demonstrating that having an Observer newspaper route is a learning experience in business and in life," he added.

Gibson can be reached at (734) 953-2118.

Geiger has worked at the Observer Newspapers for 23 years. A Livonia resident, he has been an assistant home delivery manager and from 1978 until 1993 he ran circulation operations in Farmington, North Livonia, Plymouth and Canton.

Larry Geiger

Geiger's new position will involve consumer sales and marketing of the HomeTown Savings Card, a discount card for area businesses which is available free to paid subscribers. He will also be involved in establishing a Newspaper in Education Program for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

He can be reached at (734) 953-2234 or by e-mail at lgeiger@oe.homecomm.net.

proud to represent the school district and its communities," added Booher. "I would only want them to feel equally excited about that relationship."

Booher becomes Plymouth-Canton's first female superintendent, putting her in a category of just 10 percent of superintendents nationwide.

"I'm pleased that I'm one of the women in this profession who are able to cross over and be very competent and demonstrate we can do the job," she said. "But on the other hand, I don't spend a lot of time thinking about it." Booher admits that being known as a role model is somewhat uncomfortable for her.

"However, I certainly enjoy mentoring other people, men as well as women," said Booher. "As far as children, I think it's very important that our students see men and women in a variety of roles, not just traditional ones. And I'm happy to be able to do that."

The six-month contract for interim superintendent Ken Walcott expires Jan. 11. However, Walcott said he expects the board to extend the contract through Jan. 28 at next week's regular board meeting.

"I appreciate my opportunity here," said Walcott. "This district has a lot of potential. It is a quality place to be."

"If I was 10 years younger, I would have wanted to take this on full-time," he added. Walcott said he'll go back to educational consulting, working about 25 hours a week, and spending more time with his family in western Michigan.

COLLEGE SPORTS

Ocelots put it together in win

Offensively, there were no complaints, but defensively the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team drew rave reviews. The Ocelots opened Eastern Conference play in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association with a 108-41 victory Monday at Macomb CC.

Tajana Raukar looks nothing like a typical ice carver. At 5-foot, 2-inches tall, she more than likely will be dwarfed by the rest of the competitors at the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

But don't underestimate this Plymouth woman. Underneath all that heavy clothing beats the heart of a carver that can wield a chainsaw with the best of them.

In the two years she's been carving ice, Raukar's taken gold nine times and recently placed third in the National Ice Carvers Association national competition in Pennsylvania.

"All those guys tell me it's unusual to compete against a woman carver because I'm so small and all those guys are so big," said Raukar. "It is physically exhausting. I have to think about that when I'm drawing. I have to make smaller pieces and fuse more because the ice is so heavy."

Raukar plans to enter not only the individual category but also the 20-hour team competition beginning 6 p.m. Friday, Jan. 14 in Kellogg Park. She and her husband Paul will work together during the grueling event in which carvers create large scale sculptures from 10 blocks of ice that weigh 300 pounds each.

Not just a competition

"It's not just to compete or winning the prize," said Raukar. "It's 'do you like your sculpture?' I like that the sculpture expresses certain feelings so they're not just blocks of ice but come alive. Ice sculpture is here and then it's gone but that's the beauty to catch that moment. If you miss it, you miss it."

Even though Raukar received her culinary training in Croatia, it wasn't until after moving to America four years ago that she began carving. As a food artist for the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn, Raukar displayed a natural talent for carving vegetables. Her supervisor encouraged Raukar's sculpting abilities by giving her a set of Japanese carving tools. At the Ritz-Carlton, Raukar uses the mediums of butter, chocolate, taro root, napa cabbage and other vegetables to create colorful displays for tables. A visit to the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Festival two years ago triggered her interest in ice. To learn the basics, she took classes at Schoolcraft College in Livonia with Chef Dan Hugelier.

After carving hundreds of ice sculptures, from a 14-foot Eiffel Tower to horses and corporate logos for Jaguar and Audi, she opened a commercial carving business, Ice Dreams, in Plymouth. "Practicing makes you do better," said Raukar. This is the first time, Raukar will compete with professionals at the Plymouth competition. Last year, she won two gold medals as part of the Schoolcraft College team. Students spend four hours carving while professionals must endure 20-hours of cold to complete their creations in the team event. Raukar and Paul, who've been working side-by-side in the culinary industry for 10 years, will dress warmly in ski suits and several layers of clothing. In years past, wind chills have sent temperatures dipping to 20 degrees below zero. In that cold, exposed skin can freeze in a matter of minutes. Raukar isn't worried. Carving will keep her warm.

"Carving is non-stop exercising," said Raukar. "You're doing many push-ups placing the ice and moving it into position. How you hold the chain saw is important to get your cuts, so you have to dance around it."

Outdoor museum

Watching the carvers create their sculptures is part of the fun of the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular. Sandra Watts, who organizes the festival with her husband Mike, said that "it's like an outdoor museum experience" because visitors can walk around and see all of the sculptures. More than 100 of them will be displayed in front of businesses and throughout the downtown area.

A skating party with the Plymouth Whalers at Compuware Arena, celebrity charity carving competition, a "Celebrate the Centuries" exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum, and an appearance by artist William Moss at Creative Framing & Gallery on Ann Arbor Trail adds to the festivities.

From 1-5 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Jan. 15-16, hammer dulcimer music by Betsy Beckerman, and free hot cider at the Saint Joseph Mercy Arbor Health Building on the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey provide a respite from the cold. There will also be a warming center in the Flagstar Bank at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey.

Talk about a Y2K bug that won't go away.

In "Dangerous Obsession," the psychological thriller at Meadow Brook Theatre, audiences will find a winding trail of clues leading to the answer of why a mere acquaintance is terrorizing a happily married couple living in Grosse Pointe Park.

Smooth sailing into the millennium horizon? Not exactly. This bug provides plenty of jitters.

The yuppie couple is unexpectedly tossed into a stormy sea of uncertainty when a man whom they met months earlier during their vacation shows up unannounced at their door.

The uninvited guest is partly a stalker who envies the couple, and partly in shock since his wife was killed in a car accident. How are his obsessions with the Grosse Pointers and the circumstances of his wife's death related?

Well, therein lies the mystery. Written by novelist N.J. Crisp, "Dangerous Obsession" was initially performed in England in 1987. And the play was last performed at the American Hartland Theatre in Kansas City in 1999.

The three-character play is directed by Debra Wicks, interim artistic director, who directed last fall's "Tintypes," an American musical set in the 1890s. She also directed last season's award-winning, "Gift of Glory," a story about the relationship

DINING

Giovanni's offers central-Italy spin on its dishes

BY ELEANOR HEALD
SPECIAL WRITER

Abruzzi is the mountainous province in east-central Italy. Both the Italian Apennine mountains and Adriatic Sea are major food influences for the region.

These and the cuisine of San Marino create the culinary twist at Giovanni's, a landmark Detroit family restaurant since 1968.

Proprietor Frances (Fran) Cannara Truant and her son Randy cherish their family restaurant traditions begun by Fran's brothers Vince and Tony. They opened the location, 50 yards from the family's home, as Giovanni's Pizza Parlor (a name honoring their father) in a former Detroit Italian neighborhood. Their mother Rosa Cannara, who died in 1995 at age 87, remained active at Giovanni's until she was 83 years old.

In 1978, Fran teamed up with Paulina Tarducci, a chef from San Marino, Italy, and changed the name to Giovanni's Ristorante. It was Tarducci's creative cooking that brought metro-Detroit attention to Giovanni's. In December 1996, a fire destroyed the original Giovanni's, but not Fran's spirit. She rebuilt the restaurant with its private home dining ambiance and reopened in July 1997. "Detroit is my city," she said. "This is why I stayed here."

On most days Fran greets her loyal clientele at lunch and dinner and introduces newcomers to the fabulous flavors of Giovanni's dishes.

Tarducci's recipes are re-created at lunch by Chef Joe Bushnell, who has worked at Giovanni's since 1984. At dinner, Schoolcraft College culinary grad Tony Polito heads the kitchen. He has worked at Giovanni's since 1990.

Their pasta dishes are enhanced by 74-year-old Irma

Giovanni's Ristorante

Giovanni's Uncorked

Proprietor Randy Truant knows his Italian wines. He recommends:

- Olindo's Special (named after Randy's late father) with 1995 Ceretto Chardonnay "La Bernardina."
- Manzo Braciola with 1994 Badia a Coltibuono Chianti Classico Riserva
- Veal Giovanni with 1994 Poggio Scalette "Il Carbonaione" (100 percent sangiovese)

Appetizing: Dinner Chef Tony Polito (left), proprietor Randy Truant and Lunch Chef Joe Bushnell prepare Polenta Napoleon, a Giovanni's appetizer special.

Morri, who each morning, makes all the fresh pasta for that day as she has for the past 20 years. Several waitstaff, including Tracie Alpert, Noleen Baker, and Shirley Magryta, have served diners for a collective 57 years. This has to be a record!

Randy Truant earned a mechanical engineering degree from Lawrence Technological University in 1992. He never worked using this education.

"I'm cut out for pasta not corporate America," he said. What Randy has brought to Giovanni's is a passion for Italian wine. His all-Italian list recently won a coveted "Wine Spectator" magazine Award of Excellence.

Among antipasti, several are favorites. Bistecca Calamari Frita, fried calamari strips with the best caper, tomato and red onions in buerre blanc sauce, this side of San Marino. Then there's the central Italy tradition Pizza Bianco, thin white pizza with fresh sliced tomatoes, olive oil, oregano and four cheeses. Raviolo di Abruzzi are dual-colored raviolis filled with four cheeses and topped with lobster, red and yellow sun-dried tomatoes in a white wine cream sauce. It's a knockout.

While the Minestrone is excellent, for something different in an Italian soup, order Pasta Fazole.

Choices of pastas are angel hair, linguine, tagliatelle or fettuccine with four typical sauces. Where the pasta bar gets raised is the house specialty pasta dishes, all served with garlic bread, pepperonata and soup or salad.

Capeletti Verde Pesto is meat and cheese filled round spinach ravioli topped with pesto sauce. Gnocchi di Patate Verde is homemade spinach potato dumplings topped with creamy Alfredo sauce.

My favorite is Manicotti Verde Pomodoro, thin sheets of spinach pasta filled with ricotta, mozzarella and Parmesan cheese, topped with pomodoro.

Simple, delicate, al dente pasta and the great flavors of cheese and tomato make this dish elegant.

Piati della Casa are served with garlic bread, pepperonata, soup or salad and a side of linguine. Favorites are Manzo Braciola, thinly sliced beef tenderloin rolled around prosciutto, garlic and parsley, braised in a tomato mushroom sauce; Veal alla Giovanni, medallions of veal sauteed with artichokes and white wine; and Pollo alla Francesca, boneless breast of chicken sauteed in a mild lemon caper sauce.

My favorite over the years is Saltimbocca Romano, medallion of veal topped with a thin slice of imported prosciutto, sage and fontina cheese sauteed in a white wine sauce. This slightly salty dish, a specialty of Rome, is simply delicious.

If you leave room, dessert selections change daily. If available, order Tiramisu, made with Kahlua and brandy or the house-made cannolis.

There are a lot of Italian restaurants in greater Detroit, but none matching culinary wizardry, atmosphere, service, cordiality, and heritage as well.

psychological thriller!

JAN 5 THROUGH JAN 30

Just how far would you take revenge? This modern-day, psychological thriller goes the distance. Tragedy compounds tragedy in this tale of a man obsessed with pinning the blame for his wife's accident on a prominent Grosse Pointe Park couple. Trust is broken, faith is shattered and relationships collapse. It's so suspenseful, the Times of London observed that "the audience dared not cough for fear of missing the next turn of the screw."
