Drill 127-130 #6, 7, 12, 16

6. Rōmae manēre poterō nec rūs cum sorōre mittar. ō mē fēlicem!

I shall be able to remain at Rome, and I shall not be sent to the country with (my) sister. O lucky me!

7. Verba tua nihil intellegō quamquam clārē dīcis.

Not at all do I understand your words although you are speaking clearly.

12. Miser est quī aurō suam amīcitiam rēgī inimīcō vendat.

Wretched is he who would sell his friendship to the unfriendly king for gold.

16. Nūllum dubium est quīn cīvēs arma ab hostibus relictā parvī habeant.

There is no doubt that the citizens consider the arms abandoned by the enemies of small (value).

Ch. 13 Exercises 1 & 3

1. Ex urbe ēgressus est Antōnius antequam mē vēnisse audīvit.

Antony went out from the city before he heard that I had come.

Ex urbe prius profectus est Antōnius quam ego eum vēnisse cognōscerem.

Antony set out from the city before I could learn that he had come.

3. Patriam infēlicem! Magnam est perīculum quia hominēs perditī vim īferendī grātiā arma petant. Etenim tālis erit cīvitās quālēs cīvium mōrēs ac studia.

Unfortunate country! The danger is great apparently because depraved men are seeking arms for the purpose of inflicting violence. And indeed of such a sort will the state be as the character and zeals of (its) citizens (will be).
