

St. Paul students get top scores on national test

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

At current events time, the students shove all the desks back and sit on the floor, notepads in hand, hands ready to fly up in the air. Teacher Shirley Batche pops the questions.

"What's new?" she starts off.

Hands wave and answers come thick and fast. News about Lech Walesa, Lucille Ball, wounded Palestinians, malfunctioning missiles.

Batche doesn't let them go by without follow-up.

"Why are they fighting?" she asks about the Palestinians. Or, "who approved them?" of the missiles.

News about the Chicago man who removed his brain-dead baby from life support elicited mention of the moral and legal questions involved.

Mention of last week's Mumford High School candy store shooting brought in gun control, state regulation, lobbying by the NRA. This is no snap current events class.

In a recent test of current events, given to middle and high school students nationwide, the eighth-graders at St. Paul came in seventh. And Matthew Stentz personally placed ninth nationally.

Called Global Challenge '89, the test measured knowledge of current events, geography, law, business, aerospace, environment, national and international politics. The test is sponsored by the National Mathematics League.

It's a nice antidote to the media stories about the rampant ignorance of young people.

"If you want to learn current events, it isn't that hard," said one student. "You just have to read a little and watch 20 minutes of

Legislature to hold youths responsible for alcohol use

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Young people who are caught with alcoholic beverages or even attempting to get them will have their driver's licenses taken away for up to a year under a new law awaiting the governor's signature.

By a 66-29 vote the House sent the controversial bill to the governor, who is expected to sign it into law, effective in April 1990. The Senate unanimously approved Senate Bill 119 in March.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. James Barcia, D-Bay City, places a mandatory, first offense sentence of a 90-day driver's license suspension and a minimum $50 fine for anyone under 21 who purchases, possesses or attempts to purchase or possess alcohol.

A minor's second offense would call for a fine up to $500 and a driver's license suspension up 180 days. A third offense calls for the same fine and up to a one-year suspension of a driver's license.

The bill, which critics charge is authored by the liquor lobby, also mandates that liquor license holders and adults who sell or furnish alcohol to minors cannot be prosecuted unless the minor is also prosecuted.

Kids with spirits will lose driver's license

State Rep. Bill Bryant, R-Grosse Pointe Farms, voted against the bill last week and labeled it "absolutely obnoxious" and "absolutely ridiculous." He said it is not right that a minor who is drinking a beer on his own front porch or who is having a glass of wine with Christmas dinner should face having his driving privileges taken away.

Those opposed to the bill point out that the penalties for a youth with alcohol in or out of an automobile are stiffer than those for an adult who is actually caught drinking and driving.

Bryant further feared that police would use the law to "get" youths they didn't like or suspected of a serious crime, such as drug sales or use. He said the police would use the new alcohol bill to keep certain youths off the streets.

"They can have their police state," he said, "but I don't want any part of that... You give police tools they shouldn't have and they're going to use them."

"I think Bill's (Bryant's) concerns are sincere," responded Barcia, "but he's off base. I think he's dreaming up some of the most extreme circumstances."

Bryant and other detractors of the bill charge that it was written and promoted by the liquor lobby, which includes 28,892 state liquor license holders, including bars, restaurants and convenience and grocery stores.

"There's something cuckoo about this bill. It's been written by the retailers," said Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, who is quoted in the April 27 Gongwer News Service Report. Bullard added that he thought it was a mistake to make minors who purchase the alcohol criminals Barcia, however, said his bill was initiated by a request of Tuscola County Prosecutor Bill Bond and was supported by the Michigan State Police and state prosecutors' and sheriffs' associations.

He said the liquor lobby did favor the bill because it added "fairness" to how alcohol violations are handled. Barcia said that under existing law it is not illegal for minors to attempt to buy alcohol, and if they succeed in buying or possessing alcohol, all they get is a $25 fine.

"We want young people to realize that they just cannot indiscriminately go from store to store to purchase beer," Barcia said. Meanwhile, the state has clamped down on liquor license holders and mandated that if a license holder gets three violations within 10 years, he loses his license, Barcia said. The bill, if signed by the governor, will make prosecution of a license holder possible only if the minor involved is also charged and prosecuted.

Doug Cheek

As the the No. 2 man at General Television Network in Oak Park, Cheek, 36, has performed miracles with television commercials for Highland Appliance, Art Van, and the automobile companies, just to name a few.

Cheek, however, is quick to point out that GTN is not a film company. While the company's many talented professionals may begin and end with film, their expertise is in manipulation tape — video and audio.

As vice president and director of operations for GTN, Cheek is responsible for the day-to-day operations of one of the nation's leading video, audio and film production/post-production companies.

"We're a small company by comparison with some of the others," he said, "but our reputation of quality is right up there. In fact, we're the best."

GTN's income, which includes sales of video and audio equipment, has grown some 15 percent for each of the past three years and reached $13 million in 1988.

Board plans last-ditch cuts; pledges new millage push

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Appalled at the extent of proposed cuts in the school curriculum, upset parents and teachers crowded into the school board meeting Monday to urge the board to try harder for the millage.

"The status quo isn't good enough," said Linda Banovetz of the Farms. "I don't think people know that this means an elementary class with 31 kids."

A real estate agent said the community needs the full school program to maintain property values. "Without it, this will be just another neighborhood with clean streets," she said.

The board yielded a bit to the pressure and voted to collect taxes equalling no greater than an 8.5 percent increase -- if voters approve both requests in June.

Public confusion is not likely to lessen in the wake of the vote.

The June 12 election will ask two separate questions: a renewal of 25.35 mills and an increase of 2.2 mills. This is the same amount defeated in April; the difference is that it is now split into two questions.

As a result of the April defeat, however, the school administration is reluctant to actually collect the entire amount voted. Going into Monday's meeting, officials were planning to collect only an 8.1 percent increase if both requests are approved. That percentage would result in program cuts.

"This is a very painful process," said Superintendent John Whritner last week. "We're dealing with a lot of shock, a lot of anger. After our last experience, our confidence is shaken."

Whritner said then that the district needs the 8.5 percent increase in order to maintain the current program, but that less would be collected in deference to the voters' feelings.

"The best we can provide is the status quo, but considering the vote of April 10, that's the message we got," he said.

That's all changed now. The whole focus is on getting the millage passed and keeping the current program. Audience members representing various special-interest groups urged the board not to give up and to use the groups to boost the millage.

"You should use the Tower and the Northpointe to explain this to the students," said Brian Jackson, a South senior. "The lobbying effect of a student over the dinner table is just amazing."

The cuts if the millage doesn't pass are sobering. Whritner distributed a four-page list of cuts that will be inevitable if the 2.2 mill increase is rejected.

The entire program for gifted students (PACE) will be eliminated.

The planetarium will be mothballed again.

A social worker and a nurse will be axed, leaving those programs a shadow of their current selves.

Substance abuse counselors and computer consultants will be eliminated, completely ending those programs.

Community education costs will go up, so that programs pay for themselves.

Half of the St. Paul eighth-graders gather in a circle around top-scorer Matthew Stentz (arrow). As a group, the students placed seventh in a national current events test. "Current events is history we're experiencing ourselves," says Stentz.

news."

The kids agreed that it starts out to be boring, but the more you learn, the more interesting it gets. "When you get into it, you find that everything relates," said one girl.

Principal Elizabeth Burns credits St. Paul's strong showing to the school's seventh- and eighth-grade social studies program, taught by Batche.

"We believe it's important for our students to be informed," Burns said. "We stress not only what happened, but where and why."

Batche said she asks students to read newspapers and magazines and watch television news. Then she pops quizzes from Focus Magazine, dedicated to current events.

"I've always been a bug on having kids know what's going on," she said. "They're in touch through television and travel. Lots of these students travel."

What they learn seems to stick, Batche believes. Students often observe that a particular problem has occurred previously in a country or that a politician has been elected again.

"There's an emphasis on global education from the Council on Social Studies," she said.

But Batche has been pushing global education for 10 years, long before the spotlight shone on American global ignorance. She is also teaching the students to be discriminating in what they read.

"They're finding that the media can be inaccurate, especially on the first report," she said. "For instance on that Iowa accident, they were reporting at first that the gun exploded while it was firing. They're learning about different viewpoints, too."

Stentz was the school's top-scorer, as well as ranking nationally. Other high-scoring eighth-graders were Christina Anton, Caitlin Brazill, Emily Victor and Jamie Burdine. Randy DeFauw topped the seventh grade.

In addition to student awards, the school received a plaque for its excellent showing in the competition.

Car stolen

A 1985 Chevrolet Camaro was reported stolen April 28 from a parking lot of a restaurant on Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms.

According to police reports, a suspect was inside ZaPaul's restaurant talking to patrons, trying to guess what kind of car they drove.

Purse stolen

A woman's purse was stolen and returned in the City last week.

On April 13, a customer at a grocery store realized as she was loading her groceries into her car that her purse was missing from the cart. The next day, the purse was found in a Grosse Pointe Park drop box.

and extracurricular activities will disappear.

Class sizes will go up, while the length of the day goes down, reducing graduation requirements.

All these cuts would be phased in over three years, for a total savings of almost $6 million, out of a $46 million budget.

"People think these are scare tactics — they need to know this is reality," said one resident.

Whitner expressed pleasure at the fervor. "This is the kind of turnout we've hoped for all along," he said.

He asked the groups to pull together for the millage, although some fear their programs will be cut in any case.

"We can't have a limited focus," he said. "By the end of three years, this system will be a skeleton of itself. Everything that added richness will be gone."

Veterinarian Lawrence Herzog of the Grosse Pointe Animal Clinic rode high in a cherry picker to rescue a cat in a tree in the 700 block of Lincoln Monday. Hidden from view behind Herzog is Joe Willis, a tree worker for Cal Fleming Tree Service Co., which donated the use of the equipment and crew.

Vet, cherry picker rescue cat

City public safety officials, a veterinarian and a landscaping company's cherry picker were called Monday to get a cat out of a tree.

However, the cat, an orange and white male, became frightened by his rescuers and fell about 30 feet to the street below. The cat was reported in good condition several hours following the fall.

Residents in the 700 block of Lincoln, between Waterloo and Mack, reported seeing the cat high up in a tree since Thursday. The concerned residents were urged to give the cat time to come down, but by Monday morning they feared he would fall from fatigue and hunger.

A resident contacted Councilman William Montgomery, who in turn called City Manager Thomas Kressbach and Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy. The city was able to then get the assistance of Brian Fleming, of Cal Fleming Tree Service Co. of Roseville, and Dr. Lawrence Herzog, a veterinarian with Grosse Pointe Animal Clinic.

At noon Monday, Brian Fleming showed up at the cat's tree with a cherry picker and one of his tree crews. Also on hand were Montgomery, Kressbach, Kennedy, Deputy Public Safety Director Richard Clarke and many curious residents.

Herzog, who said he's not comfortable with heights, climbed into the cherry picker's basket with Cal Fleming employee Joe Willis. When they got near the cat, he ran down a little ways and then ran up another branch. This happened several times before the cat, which was by then halfway down, lost his grip and fell to the pavement below.

The cat immediately ran behind a nearby house. Herzog descended in the cherry picker, got back on firm ground and went in search of his patient, which he caught without harm a few minutes later. At the time, he said the cat looked fine.

He took the shaken feline to the Grosse Pointe Animal Clinic for X-rays. At 5 p.m. Herzog reported the cat was doing well and had no broken bones. He said the cat was suffering from constipation and was given a laxative.

Herzog said the cat had been neutered, indicating it has been taken care of, but he did not know who the cat's owner was. He said a lost-and-found ad would be placed in the Grosse Pointe News.

Kennedy said the rescue would not have been possible without the donation of the cherry picker and crew by the Cal Fleming company. Fleming said the equipment and workers were provided to the city free of charge as a community service.

The job also could not have been done without the assistance of Herzog, who not only braved the heights but also the possible pain of the cat's claws.

Building parking lots along Mack in Woods poses dilemma for city

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Obtaining additional property for municipal parking lots on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods would be a legal and financial nightmare for the city.

The Woods Planning Commission at its April 25 meeting discussed the feasibility of purchasing residential property behind businesses along Mack for the purpose of building additional parking lots.

A memo provided to the commission by City Administrator-Clerk Chester Petersen pointed out that most of the homes are protected by subdivision restrictions that limit the use of the properties to residential only. Not only would the city have to purchase the residential sites, but it would also have to get the properties rezoned for parking and somehow get around the subdivision restrictions.

City attorney George Catlin said the subdivision restrictions would only pose a problem if any one of the residents opposed the use of a residential site as a parking lot. It would only take one resident to object to get the matter bogged down in court.

He said the city's procedure would then be to use its condemnation powers to void the subdivision restrictions. The city would then have to pay financial compensation to all the homeowners in the subdivision who could prove economic loss due to the possible reduction of property values because of the parking lot.

Catlin said the homeowners adjacent to the parking lot would probably get the largest compensation, while homes farther away from the lot would be able to prove less economic loss, if any.

He said there is no way to foresee how much it will cost the city in legal work and homeowners' compensation. "You won't know until you do it," he told the commission.

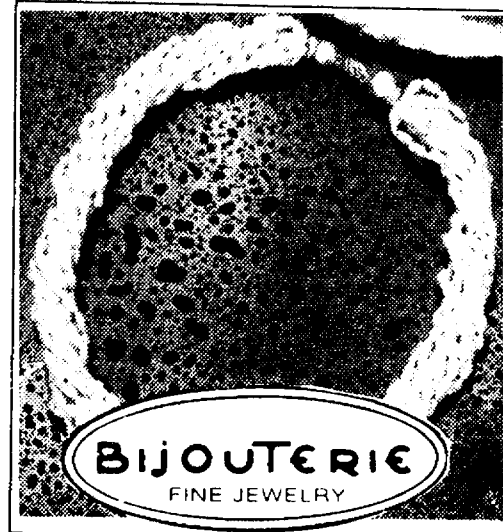

After discussing the problems involved in purchasing residential property for more parking lots, the Planning Commission voted to receive and file Petersen's report and took no other action on the matter.

The commission also discussed the 50 percent off-street parking allowance for some businesses on Mack. Because the businesses were built before the city set up minimum off-street parking requirements, the council has an ordinance that allows some businesses which have 50 percent of the required off-street parking.

Planning Commissioner John Kennedy said that eliminating the 50 percent requirement — thus making businesses provide all the off-street parking required — might help alleviate the shortage of street parking in front of businesses on Mack.

When asked for his opinion, Catlin said he thought that eliminating the 50 percent requirement would cause more hardship for the city and businesses. He said the number of appeals to the city would escalate by businesses unable to meet the stiffer parking requirements.

GTN is one of those companies that puts animated graphics and startling visuals into commercials and other film or video products. GTN also puts together training videos for small and large companies.

An insight into Cheek's management style can be gained by a couple of quotes hanging in his office. One reads: "It takes more than an idea to get the job done." Another advises: "If you're walking on thin ice, you might as well dance."

In the post-production video business, Cheek manages mostly young, talented people whose open collars are a symbol of their independence from conventional businesses.

"We have extremely intelligent, thinking type people here," he said. While he's the second in command at GTN, Cheek does not pass down orders from some corner office. His door is always open and a path is worn in the carpeting to the front of his desk.

"I need that input," he said. "I never wanted to be an ivory tower manager."

Another thing he likes about the rapidly changing industry is that he's never bored.

"When I put the key in the door in the morning, I never know what's going to be behind it," he said. "It's a challenge every day."

Describing what GTN does, Cheek said the company's work is called "teleproduction," which is another way of saying GTN uses hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of computerized image and sound manipulating equipment to produce amazing special effects on tape.

While Cheek and his staff at GTN can pull off special effects such as those people are familiar with in "Star Wars," the company's capabilities go far beyond "blue skying," — a technique of filming against a solid color background to achieve special effects, such as Superman flying over Metropolis.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Doug Cheek, vice president and director of operations at General Television Network in Oak Park, shows off some of the expensive, high-tech equipment used to make duplicate copies of videotapes.

In fact, a tour of the facility near Eight Mile and Coolidge is like peeking into the future. While GTN's technology is state of the art, Cheek said equipment he buys today may be obsolete in a few months.

"You don't camp for long in one spot in this business," he said.

The seven years Cheek has been with GTN have been the longest amount of time he's spent at one place since his college days at Wayne State University, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in psychology.

Even though a degree in psychology is probably helpful in any line of work, it is not what got Cheek into the post-production field. While in college he was working for a company that operated the closed circuit cameras at Hazel Park Race Track. After graduating he continued working at the company and traveled extensively.

He tired of the travel and took a job with a company that is now one of his competitors. He said he took the lowest rung job possible, but it was there that he gained the expertise necessary as a hands-on technician and engineer in the tape-production industry to land a job as production manager at GTN. He wasn't 30 years old yet.

"I must have done a lot of 'sponging,'" he said, explaining how he could have learned so much in such a short amount of time in the industry to become a manager.

While the others working at GTN are most often without suit and tie, Cheek's position and dealings with clients often means he has to don a suit. One day last week he was wearing a conservative gray suit, but his purple tie gave him away.

"The purple tie is just to make sure I'm still here," he said, referring to his ability to maintain an easy-going mental attitude.

Part of Cheek's attitude and approach to management is not to take himself too seriously. He doesn't readily accept responsibility for GTN's growing success. Instead, he credits the teamwork of his "topnotch group of professionals."

Of course, much of the credit for GTN's growth must go to its owner, Joan Binkow, who as chief executive officer has made a commitment to expand the company's technological capabilities.

GTN is in the midst of a $4 million expansion project, which began in 1986. The first phase, which included expanding the existing building up and out, has recently been completed, and the second phase, including a new boulevard entrance to the company, is about to be started.

As a good business resident of Oak Park and one of its biggest taxpayers, GTN's expansion was made possible in part through Economic Development Corporation funds and tax abatements. Cheek is appreciative for Oak Park's willingness to work with GTN to make the company's dreams a reality. The city is even widening one of the streets coming into the industrial complex into a landscaped boulevard.

As well as managing the day-to-day business, Cheek has also had to supervise the construction. GTN kept operating throughout the upheaval, with the computers being temporarily housed in trailers.

Currently, Cheek is putting the company through what he calls a technical expansion, which includes the purchase of new equipment. While Cheek wouldn't talk much about it, his company is looking at some equipment that will revolutionize the company's audio capabilities. He said some of the company's customers will be given a demonstration of the audio advances in about a month.

When not working — which is probably not too often since the video production business is prone to "all-nighters" — Cheek spends time with his wife, Shannon, and two children: Sara, 12, and Noah, 7.

The family moved from Detroit to Grosse Pointe Park six years ago, which, he said, is a great place to raise a family.

Registrations seen too high in the Pointes

Voter registration figures in the Grosse Pointe School District are more than 1,000 higher than the population warrants, the Grosse Pointe News has discovered from an analysis of statistics released with the results of the recent school election.

But don't get excited. Nobody has been breaking the law, so far as we know. Instead, a state law seems responsible for the strange situation.

The unofficial figures showed that an estimated 47,228 persons were registered for the April 10 school election with another 11,227 enrolled in the public schools. Adding the two figures together makes a total of 58,455, or 1,073 in excess of the estimated population of 57,382 for the district.

True, no subtraction was made for the 18-year-olds in the public schools who are registered voters. But it is unlikely that this factor could account for the disparity between the population count in the district and the number of persons registered, plus the number of children in the schools.

Furthermore, it is true that not every eligible person registers to vote, or once registered, that all of those eligible actually go to the polls. So it is clear that the registration figures are inflated. So what does account for the disparity?

Apparently the registration law bears the blame. It requires that municipalities keep the names of voters on the registration lists for four years unless the clerks are notified that the registrants have died or moved away.

The clerks do purge the registration lists each year starting in December. To do so, they notify by mail those whose registrations are expiring because they have not voted in the four-year period. If the clerks get no answer or notification after a second warning, the clerks remove the names from the list.

But this purging process itself takes about 60 days and is often not completed for several months into the next year, especially in view of the fact that December puts a heavy load of tax work on the clerks' offices.

In the Park, City Clerk Pamela J. Kondziolka said that the Park has a larger turnover on the registration lists than some of the other Pointes because of the Park's large proportion of renters. They tend to move more frequently than homeowners do, a fact that contributes to the inflation of the Park's registration figures.

As an illustration of how the process works in the Park, she pointed out that the registration last October just before the general election was 10,725. After the Park's purge of its list, which was begun last December and completed in late April after the school vote, the registration was down to 10,026. In other words, the Park's review of its registration list had purged the names of 699 eligible voters.

In itself, the lag in reviewing the registration figures appears to do little harm, except to another set of figures. At almost every election, the number of voters is measured against the number of people registered to get the percentage of eligible voters who actually went to the polls in each community. While the Pointes attract a large percentage of registered voters in presidential elections, the estimated 20 percent of the registered voters who went to the polls April 10 was regarded as one of the biggest turnouts in recent years in a school election.

In that vote, the proportions ranged from a low of 16 percent in the Park to a high of 23 percent in the City and the Farms. The percentage of voters was estimated at about 20 percent for the district as a whole. But if there is an inflation of more than a thousand in the number of registered voters, as seems likely from the figures quoted, it is obvious that the proportion of Grosse Pointe residents who voted on April 10 was considerably higher than previously reported.

In the Park, for example, the earlier report was that 16 percent of its registered voters had gone to the polls on April 10. But under the city clerk's revision resulting from the purging of the registration rolls, that figure moves up to 17.6 percent.

Unfortunately, the four-year wait means that the lists never will be completely up to date. In addition, the fact that in the Pointes the municipalities do not complete the purging of their registration lists at the same time contributes to the differences in the percentages of voters on the registration lists for a specific election.

Fortunately, at least as far as is known, nobody has sought to make use of obsolete registrations in the Pointes in order to vote illegally. Yet the state law that mandates the delay in purging would appear to permit people registered in more than one municipality to vote more than once unless they are officially challenged.

When justice becomes unjust

As our ponderous judicial establishment inches toward its decisions, it usually dispenses justice, but it often commits injustices in the process as well.

We make that observation because the Supreme Court of the United States at long last has decided to hear an appeal from the decision of former Attorney General Edmund Meese III approving a joint newspaper operating agreement for The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press.

That Supreme Court action on May 1 came almost three years after the May 9, 1986, date on which the two newspapers filed their application for a JOA. The granting of a hearing to the JOA foes adds a further delay of up to another year before the issue can be settled.

The new postponement means that the careers of several thousand newspaper employees have once again been put on hold, subscribers of and advertisers in both papers have been left in new uncertainty and stockholders in Gannett and Knight-Ridder, owners of the papers, have been subjected to further losses in their Detroit operations.

It may be in the public interest for the high court to test the constitutionality of the Newspaper Preservation Act, under which a JOA was sought, but surely the long delays in reaching a decision works a terrible hardship on the people involved, and especially the employees.

The philosopher Sophocles, who lived in the fifth century before Christ, once said: "There is a point beyond which even justice becomes unjust." And today's legal critics often say, "Justice delayed is justice denied." Both comments apply to the handling of the JOA.

From the start, the Grosse Pointe News has supported the JOA application on the grounds it would serve the public interest by guaranteeing daily newspaper competition at least five days a week in the Detroit market. In this newspaper's view, that would be preferable to having Detroit become a one daily monopoly city. Such an outcome remains a distinct possibility.

While the court's decision to hear the appeal may increase the chances of denial of the JOA, it doesn't change our view that the public would be better served by approval of the agreement.

No vote decline for elderly

A recent study by the Census Bureau disclosed that the turnout rate declined in the 1988 presidential election for every group except those 65 years old and older.

That finding was no surprise. Instead, it merely reinforced the belief that senior citizens take their civic responsibilities more seriously than do younger groups in modern society. In voting, the study found that the younger the age group, the greater the decline in voter turnout in 1988 compared with 1984.

The report also discovered a marked decline in turnout among the 19.7 million blacks of voting age in the population. The drop, from 56 percent in 1984 to 52 percent in 1988, was attributed in part to the strained relationship between the Rev. Jesse Jackson and the Democratic nominee, Gov. Michael Dukakis, and to registration plans that were not carried to completion.

As a result, the drop among black voters was twice as great as for whites, among whom the turnout at the polls decreased by two points to 59 percent.

Overall, the drop in voter turnout was greatest among the least educated. Those with no more than an eighth-grade education had a reported turnout of only 37 percent as contrasted with the 78 percent voting proportion by college graduates.

Yet it is encouraging that more people said they had voted, or were reported by other household members as having gone to the polls, than the number who actually had cast ballots. By the time the Census Bureau conducted its interviews two weeks after the election, some people may have forgotten whether they had gone to the polls or not. But it is more likely that those who did not cast ballots thought voting is something they should have done and so pretended to have done so when asked about it.

That is a good sign because the inflated figure apparently occurs in all population groups and thus its use does not invalidate the trends shown by the study.

"If you have an election that's essentially pretty dull or negative, it's more likely to turn off those who are not particularly interested anyway," said Jerry T. Manning, the author of the report who is also a Census Bureau demographer and statistician. "It takes more to pique their interest than it does others who are already strongly committed to the process."

Unfortunately, the study did not go into the possible effect, negative or positive, of the brief TV sound bites that now are often used for political commercials. It could be, of course, that these brief and ever briefer ads are turning off some people who otherwise might vote.

If so, we wouldn't be surprised. To be influential, even TV has to produce a message that can be understood as well as heard. Yet that still does not explain why more older people than young people vote, although we'd like to think it's because older people get more of their news from newspapers.

Eating in study hall

To the Editor:
Recently at Grosse Pointe North, the principal announced that a number of rules that already exist will be enforced. One of these rules is that you must have something to study or work on in study hall.

Not too long ago, I was sitting in study hall and the principal walked in. Next to me, a friend was almost suspended for not having any study materials. Then, about 10 minutes later, three girls ordered pizza and ate it in study hall. The principal walked in and saw them but didn't do anything.

Why is it that if you don't have any work, you get suspended; but if you order and eat a pizza in study hall, it's fine?

Do you know him?

To the Editor:

I was in the Army Air Corps during World War II and a member of the 17th Bomb. Group, 95th Squadron. The airplane we used was a medium bomber, a Martin B-26 Marauder. For the past 12 years we have been holding reunions and are still searching for our missing members. I have been helping in this search.

One of our mission members is Herbert J. Pattison Jr. and his wartime address was Grosse Pointe, Mich. He was a member of the 37th Squadron and his serial number was 0-440120.

From his serial number, we know he was an officer, so he could have been a pilot, a bombardier or a navigator. As a member of a combat crew that flew bombing missions, he probably flew overseas with his crew and airplane. The amount of time he spent overseas depended on how long it took to fly the number of missions needed to rotate back to the United States.

In contrast to this, the ground crews, of which I was one, whose job it was to keep the airplanes in flying condition, spent nearly three years overseas and went over by boat. The 17th Bomb. Group was stationed at air bases in North Africa, Sardinia, Corsica and Dijon, France, in that order.

I hope someone who knows Herbert Pattison and where he now is, sees this little article and contacts me so I can get in touch with him.

Spicing the journalistic stewpot

It was a delicious irony: a socialist working for the New York Times and — gasp! — that bastion of capitalism, the Wall Street Journal.

The journalism world was all aflutter a couple of months ago when the socialist in question, now a college professor, wrote of his former association with two of the most important papers in the United States.

Less delicious, but equally ironic in a democratic nation, was the fact that the FBI tried to get the guy fired from his reporting jobs. But, hey, that was 20 years ago when the FBI didn't know any better.

Unfortunately, some of the members of the journalism fraternity (I use that term ad-visedly, as most of the biggest shooters are men) seem to have forgotten all that constitutional stuff about freedom of speech and association. They think the FBI was right 20 years ago. Maybe they think the Constitution says you are free to think and say whatever you want, but don't expect to get a job if your ideas differ from the norm.

I tend to get dramatic when incensed. So when I read about this in the one of the professional reviews that circulate in our office, I emoted.

So much so, that a colleague, mistaking my fervor for panic, asked if I had been writing for the left-wing press and expected to lose my job.

I haven't. But this makes me wish I had. It's the principle of the thing.

A socialist for a gay or a black or a religious zealot or an old person — anybody outside the white baby-boom mainstream) can be good for a newspaper, or any other institution. A newspaper needs variety of perspective in order to stimulate its readers and to keep from falling into hackneyed repetition of establishment themes.

I Say

It's all too easy for a reporter to keep calling the same old sources ("the usual suspects," we call them. Isn't that cute? It's true, though.) Notice how many times the Detroit dailies consult same automotive analysts, for instance. I never heard of Mary Ann Keller either, but I know she's a big New York auto analyst, because she's always quoted.

Now this socialist explained that while he was working, he considered himself a reporter first, meaning that he took seriously the injunction to remain objective and not push a point of view. What he had to offer that others didn't, was an openness to the views of experts outside the mainstream. That is, he called the "un-usual suspects."

Readers may not realize how often the views of reporters and editors govern what stories get into the paper. Anybody who reads my ravings regularly knows that I'm interested in the environment, and you can depend upon it that when environmental stories get into the Grosse Pointe News, it's usually because I was interested enough to pursue them.

Sometimes the environment is news by everybody's standards, and then we would of course cover it whether I'm interested or not. Cases in point: the incinerator shutdown last winter or the establishment of a local recycling collection center.

In the same way, other reporters and editors pursue stories on the arts or medicine or travel or inventions. Government meetings always get covered because that's the nature of mainstream newspapers.

If you doubt the truth of this theory, consider a book on women in journalism by Kay Mills. Women have only been in the newsroom in any numbers for about 20 years; Mills believes they have actually changed the definition of news in that time.

"The news has been broadened to include concerns about child custody and child abuse, day care, toxic shock syndrome," says a review of "A Place in the News" in the Miami Herald. The same review quotes our own David Lawrence as saying that if women were in charge, the world would be covered more in terms of issues than of conflict:

"We might stop covering politics as though it were a football game."

If women can open our eyes to new ideas, so can socialists and libertarians.

I was sorry to see a similar fear expressed in the Free Press' recent profile of Darrell Dawsey, the leader of the sit-in at Wayne State two weeks ago. Dawsey will be a reporter at the LA Times when he graduates next month.

"Will he take his college activism into the world of professional journalism and its expectations of fairness and objectivity?" queried the Free Press rhetorically.

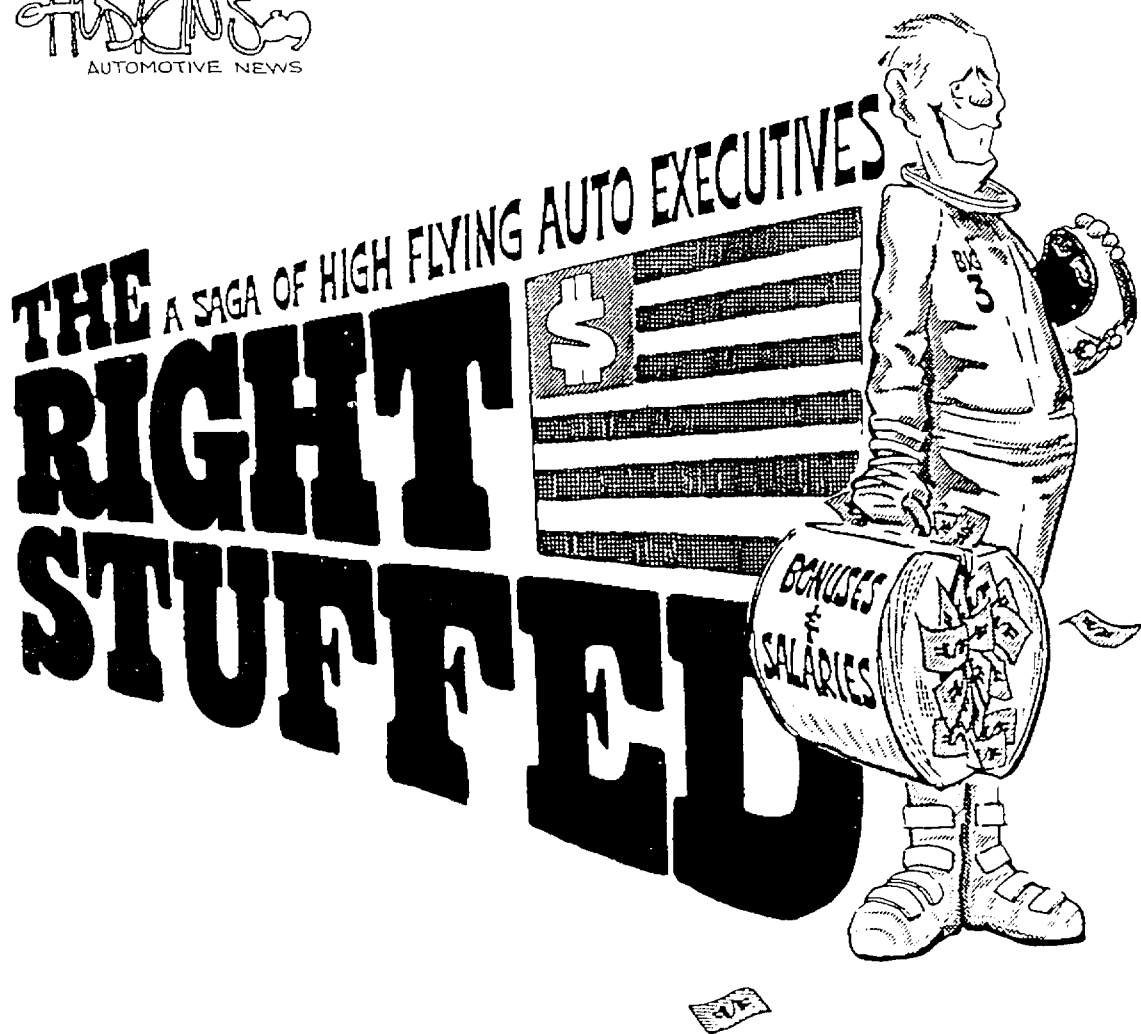

Of course one hopes that Dawsey will be fair. But does this question mean that newspapers prefer reporters without opinions? His point of view should be regarded as a valuable stimulant, rather than something to be feared.

Think how different the Grosse Pointe News would be with someone like him on the staff.

Now hear this

All hands on deck — with swabs!

Spruce up — or bust! Saturday is the big day. Load up the station wagon, Mabel, and head for the Hill. You're going to need grubbies, a trowel and garbage bags full of plastic, glass, metal and paper. They used to be called throwaways, but we know better now.

Saturday you'll be able to recycle at South High School (10 to 3). On the way, you can plant a flower on the Hill (8 till the job is done). On the way back, you can stop at Mack and Moross and plant another flower (same times, but they need more help on the Hill. More gardens.) And then — save a little energy — you can help pick up junk in the Mack shopping district.

Whew! The recycling is part of an ongoing effort by Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling. Look for more collection days, first Saturday of each month.

The Mack cleanup is done annually under the auspices of the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue. The business folks will appreciate any help you can give.

The gardens at both locations are done by the Grosse Pointe Farms Beautification Commission and assorted local garden clubs — not to mention people who just like flowers.

Ga-ga, goo-goo

The baby smiles innocently, his round eyes gazing at the camera, his toothless mouth gripping the nipple of a baby bottle.

Neither could the Humane Society.

The photo of that baby chimp in diapers, taken at Busch Gardens on a family vacation, won Kuskowski an honorable mention in the Michigan Humane Society's annual contest to benefit its emergency rescue program.

Almost 500 entries were received, with the grand prize going to Sharon Elliott of St. Clair Shores for her picture of a snow leopard.

Kuskowski describes herself as an animal lover: "We have two cats and a dog — and we'd have more if we could."

She's also a photography lover and is considering the craft as a career. "I'm looking at it seriously and seeing where I fit in," she said.

Nice start.

Reconsider

To the Editor:

Being a sophomore at Grosse Pointe North, I will be affected by the millage failure for the next two years. I hope the reason the millage failed was due to anger at the recent increases in home assessments and not a lack of understanding.

For Grosse Pointe to continue its Excellence in Education, the schools need money. It would be a shame for our schools to lose teachers and extracurricular activities, including sports and clubs, due to a lack of support from the community. Another program which would definitely be affected is the adult education classes. These are important aspects of a well-rounded education which is all we ask.

I only hope those who did not vote for the millage will reconsider in June for the sake of all our education.

Set sufficient tax

To the Editor:

(The following was read to Grosse Pointe South teachers at a staff meeting last week.)

As I read through a communique from Superintendent John Whritner, I realized that what the school board is considering as the rate at which the millage would be taxed is 6.3 percent on the renewal and we would have an effective tax rate of 8.1 percent if both the renewal and the additional millage passed. We need a tax increase of 8.5 percent to maintain the status quo.

The board feels the community told them to cut back. I am not so sure that is what the community said. I suspect the millage failed for three primary reasons: 1) the timing was horrible; 2) people did not understand what they were voting for or against; 3) many retired people live on fixed incomes and do have a difficult time paying increased property tax. I think the community should be given another opportunity to fund the current program and the tax rate should be moved to the necessary 8.5 percent figure.

You will see proposed cuts in program if only the renewal at 6.3 percent is passed. The realities are devastating to a fine school system. We all are affected. Cat fights among us on whether a cut should take place the first, the second, or the third year do not change the cumulative effect. All of the proposed cut programs with attendant increase in class size are in place in three years.

We could all point fingers at board members, at administrators, at people in the community, at other teachers — certainly not at ourselves — but to little avail. Time is short. Crying over "spilt milk" is a luxury we cannot afford. At the moment we need to get them to establish a tax rate which funds the current program.

From there we move on to how we conduct a campaign to pass both parts of the millage request. The necessary cuts will gain everyone's attention: both the teachers and the community.

Education as we know it is on the line. Support, not anger, is what the board needs, and is also what education in Grosse Pointe needs.

Good articles

To the Editor:

There were two excellent articles in your issue of March 16.

One was about William Sloane Coffin's appearance at the Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church. What good things he had to say: "This is a terrific time. Everything is busting up. There are new understandings... The 1990s could be a spectacular decade... I do not advocate disarmament through unemployment. We need national legislation... for economic diversification, conversion... The Defense Department might more accurately be named the Offense Department... The super powers (must) decrease their nuclear arsenals and accept inspection... With nuclear weapons, we are living beyond our moral means... How can we criticize Libya for manufacturing chemicals, weapons when... we have enough of them to kill everyone in the world 300 times over?... We need a new abolitionist movement, i.e. for nuclear weapons. Incidentally, the article merits a by-line.

The other article was in praise of St. Patrick's Day and the Irish by your skilled writer Marian Trainor. She's good.

Keep them singing

To the Editor:

Let's keep our kids singing!

Our Grosse Pointe Schools' choirs (grades 5-12) gave an outstanding performance in their "Choirs in Review" program, Tuesday night, April 25, at Grosse Pointe North's Performing Arts Center.

Programs such as this highlight our school system's excellent reputation in the fine arts. Our talented students repeatedly attain state honor status under the expert direction of dedicated teachers whose jobs will be eliminated unless the school millage is renewed. Vote affirmatively on June 12.

They got involved

To the Editor:

On Saturday, April 22, at about 11:30 a.m. I happened to be at Brys and Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods immediately following an accident involving two women, one young and one elderly.

I was so touched by the compassion shown by passers-by and the lack of hesitation "to get involved" and to help out. There were two women helping the elderly lady and an elderly man sat on the curb holding the young girl's hand as she cried from the terror of the accident.

The police arrived within three minutes and handled the people and the traffic so efficiently.

In this day of violence, apathy, and what seems to be lack of compassion for others, I wish everyone could have witnessed those moments in Grosse Pointe when strangers came to the aid of others. What a wonderful community we have.

Using animals to raise funds

To the Editor:

Some Grosse Pointe area members of the Michigan Humane Society (MHS), and some purebred dog breeders in your community have recently contacted us to seek our assistance about a local fundraising activity which they oppose.

Specifically, on Friday, April 21, Our Lady Star of the Sea parochial school conducted a fundraising auction, and item No. 142 was a purebred Lhasa Apso. We also heard (but could not confirm since we could not reach the school's principal for verification) that a second animal of some type was also auctioned.

Finally, we have also learned that a fundraising auction to be held on May 13 for the benefit of the Grosse Pointe Academy will include the auctioning of puppies and kittens. In this latter case, we have been able to communicate with volunteers coordinating the Academy's auction, and have asked them to not auction any animals. Hopefully, they will respond favorably to our objections.

Our objections to the auctioning of pets are manifold:

1) Animals are living, feeling beings, not commodities to be sold to the highest bidder.

Alcohol

The bill also provides the liquor license holders with a defense against youths using falsified driver's licenses or other fraudulent forms of identification. Barcia said that currently liquor license holders are held responsible for selling alcohol to minors even if the youths presented fake identification.

While Bryant believes revocation of a driver's license may be justified in a case where a youth has altered the license, he doesn't think revoking the license is necessary in all cases involving alcohol, in or out of a motor vehicle. He further objects to the driver's license revocation being mandatory, leaving the courts no options.

Bryant said it is a very serious matter to revoke someone's driver's license in an age when automobiles are a necessity. The local state representative introduced an amendment to the bill giving judges the discretion of whether or not to revoke driver's licenses, but the amendment was defeated by a 40-55 vote.

Barcia, however, said it is the importance of the driver's license to teenagers that will make the bill effective.

"We didn't go for jail or high fines," Barcia said. "I'm confident that after a few cases of kids getting punished and losing their licenses, the message will get out that this is serious business," he said. "I don't want to

2) Because of the excitement that accompanies an auction situation, people will obtain an animal which they later realize they really don't want, and will then pass the pet on to someone else.

In both cases, the primary problem is that absolutely no screening of these potential pet owners has occurred in order to ensure (as humane societies and reputable breeders would) that they will be responsible pet owners. Different breeds of animals have particular needs, dispositions, grow to become very large, etc. That is why the MHS and reputable breeders conduct adoption interviews to match up the right type of animal with the needs and lifestyle of the pet owner. This helps us protect the animals from the high statistical probabilities that a poor match will result in a discarded or abandoned pet.

3) When animals are sold at auctions no provisions are made to ensure that their owners will have them sterilized. With 500,000 pets being euthanized in our state alone (and around 15 million nationally), as well as even more millions killed on highways or from disease, injuries or starvation after becoming lost or abandoned — it is totally irresponsible for schools to contribute to this national tragedy.

4) The fact that someone has paid a large sum of money for an animal absolutely in no way ensures that the animal will have a responsible home or even remain in that home. If anyone disbelieves this claim, they need only come to any one of our three shelters to see all of the expensive purebred dogs and cats we care for and must euthanize by the thousands.

5) Finally, for educational institutions to auction animals as mere objects only sends a message to the young people attending such schools that it is acceptable for them to acquire an irresponsible attitude toward animals. It is particularly disturbing to see a Catholic school promoting such an unethical and insensitive concept, as it is the antithesis of everything that Jesus Christ and St. Francis of Assisi and their teaching represent.

If the principal and pastor of Our Lady Star of the Sea parochial school had been willing to return our calls, perhaps we could have persuaded them to not auction any animals. It is tragic that the desire for money has taken such precedence over important ethical and social problems like irresponsible pet ownership and pet overpopulation. With millions of animal lives involved, and millions of public and private dollars spent annually because of these two problems, one would have hoped that educational institutions would be helping us instead of contributing to these problems.

Thank you for your consideration of our views. On behalf of the animals and people we serve across Michigan, I remain

Extremely disappointed

To the Editor:

Well, so much for majority rule and democracy in action! It was obvious that at least 90 percent of the Grosse Pointe residents who crowded into the Grosse Pointe Farms council chambers on April 17, and supported by over several thousand petition signatures, were strongly opposed to the issuance of a Class C Liquor license to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

However, this seemed to have little effect on the majority of the members of the Farms council. The arguments opposing the liquor license were numerous, valid and reflected the deep concern and affection we all have for this beautiful community facility.

It was with surprise and dismay that we learned that the residency requirement for the Grosse Pointe War Memorial had already been dropped! Even now, any group, anywhere, can use the War Memorial as long as someone is a veteran.

Think about that for a moment, please! No one made clear by whose instigation or authority this decision was made but the director, Mr. Weber, acknowledged that this was indeed true. It was inferred that this would help clear the way for the Liquor Control Commission to approve the application for the Class C license.

Of course, this dropping of the residency rule had to be done with the consent of the War Memorial board in whom we had placed our trust. This discontinuance of the residency requirement in conjunction with a liquor license will place the War Memorial on equal ground with such banquet halls as Thomas Crystal Gardens, Barrister House, Gourmet House, etc., etc., etc.

Unquestioningly, this will change the complexion and character of the War Memorial. If this is what the Grosse Pointers really want, so be it. However, wouldn't it be interesting, and even democratic, if this were put to a vote?

Just so you know, we may find it difficult to consider the War Memorial a charitable institution rather than a commercial venture and continue to support it as such. Perhaps they can sell an additional case of Seagrams Seven and make up for it.

To put it mildly, we and over 3,000 signers of the petitions, are extremely disappointed with this action which will certainly tarnish Grosse Pointe's "jewel in the crown!"

Perhaps it is time to take another look at the people responsible for this ill-considered act. Shame on the Farms council and the director and board of our beloved Grosse Pointe War Memorial for placing the profit above the best interests of our community.

Law won't stop us

To the Editor:

Last month a new law came along stating that people under 18 cannot buy cigarettes. If they get caught buying or smoking them, they will get a $50 fine.

Well, if they smoked long enough, they are already addicted and it is extremely hard to stop just because it's against the law. A person who is addicted has to live with the other half of the world, those over 18 who can smoke and that's like a person with no money who hasn't eaten for days watching everyone around him eat and not give him any.

Everyone knows it's not good to smoke, but they started for some kind of reason and now they may want to stop, but it being against the law will not help.

If cigarettes are so bad for us, then why don't they just stop making them instead of torturing just the people under 18? This law will not stop anyone from smoking. It will make more start because kids like doing it just for the fact that they can't do it.

Beware of choke chains

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago an article appeared on the front page of the Grosse Pointe News. It concerned two dogs who had become entwined in one of the dog's choke chains and the assistance the veterinarian and the police officer gave.

My sister and I are the owners of those dogs. My sister's puppy had been wearing a choke chain for a week and none of us removed it, even though we knew our next door neighbor's dog hung itself by catching its choke chain on the fence. What I'm saying is: We knew better and it didn't make any difference. Please don't make the same mistake. My puppies are happy and healthy again. Unfortunately some aren't so lucky.

Many dogs die each year because they wear a choke chain as a collar. A choke chain is a training device and only that. It is used for its ability to tighten.

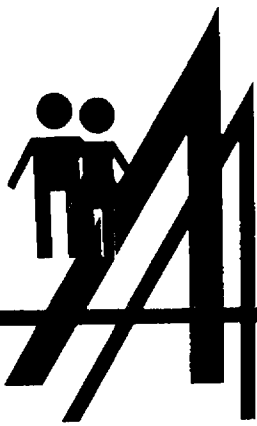

If your dog is wearing a choke chain, you should remove it; don't wait until you get a collar, take it off right now. Collars come in nylon and leather and aren't hard to find. All you need is your dog's neck size in inches and, depending on your dog's size and the type of collar you want, $4 to $20. It's not that much to spend when you consider that you may be saving your best friend's life.

Teens special targets of alcohol advertising

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

A chaste-looking, innocent young girl shyly gazes down, not meeting the onlooker's eye. A slogan emblazoned above her head invites us to have some "cherry."

It's not a very nice allusion for a family newspaper. It wasn't nice when it ran in a national magazine as an advertisement for a cherry liqueur.

Most magazine ads aren't as blatantly sexual as that one, according to studies done by communications professor Charles Atkin, a researcher at Michigan State University. But advertisements for alcohol in general focus on some form of attractive lifestyle, and too often the targeted audience is young.

"They usually target ads at those who already drink," Atkin said. "They want them to increase drinking or switch brands. They ignore the 40 percent of the population that is non-drinking."

"The problem comes with targeting teenagers, people who are theoretically non-drinkers."

Chris Dodds of the Farms is a volunteer for Maplegrove Center. She is concerned about the increasingly expensive and eye-catching ads with pop-ups and music that appeal directly to young people.

"Crown Royal ran an ad that looked like an Advent calendar," she said. "It uses heavy paper — the magazine opens to that page. Who's going to open those little windows? Not you and I."

Although the alcoholic beverage industry now spends about $2 billion a year on advertising (according to Nutrition Action Healthletter, April 1989), the ad budget has risen only slightly faster than inflation, Atkin says. Liquor sales have been dropping steadily over the last 10 years, leaving less money available.

That means careful targeting.

"Magazines have been doing quite well by specializing," Atkin said. "The general health of magazines has encouraged more advertising, especially that aimed at teens and women."

Beer is advertised more on tel-

vision than in magazines. Liquor, which is banned from television, advertises on billboards and in magazines. And there are six times as many magazines for women as for men.

All of this could change later this month if Surgeon General C. Everett Koop adopts a series of recommendations governing the advertising of alcoholic beverages. The recommendations would ban sponsorship of sports events by the industry, ban ads at public events where the majority of the audience is under 21 and require equal time for public service messages on the bad effects of alcohol.

Atkin wrote the report that dealt with advertising, including the recommendations calling for restrictions on ads directed at young people. He believes the surgeon general is likely to adopt the recommendations.

"We don't call for an outright ban on all ads," he said, "although my studies show that magazine ads have just as great an influence as television."

"We would reform the type of presentation. Now they're only telling the good parts. It's possible that in two years they will require warnings in ads," Atkin said. Warnings that alcohol can be dangerous to pregnant women and drivers already are required to appear on containers as of this November.

Meanwhile, parents should look at ads with skepticism, Dodds says. Even the ads like the latest Spuds MacKenzie campaign that counsels moderation.

"Those ads are intended to defuse the issue," Dodds said. "You'll notice that they don't say 'don't drink.'"

There aren't any statistics showing how well the moderation ads work.

"I contacted Anheuser Busch a couple of months ago to ask about evidence that the Know When to Say When campaign was working," Atkin said. "They refused to say."

Two of Dodds' pet dislikes are wine coolers ("developed specifically to bridge the gap between pop and hard liquor") and beer on spring break ("everything in spring break in Florida revolves around beer").

"Coolers are not (displayed) where the other alcohol is," she said. "More often it's with the pop. They've done everything they possibly could to make it look harmless."

Atkin agrees. "Wine coolers are not really sold as alcohol —

Intervention:

What to do when your child has a chemical dependency

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

By definition, intervention is interfering in the affairs of another person.

By current definition, intervention is the name of a relatively new process in which the family and friends of an alcoholic seek to interrupt that person's addictive behavior. The process became widely known when former first lady Betty Ford publicly discussed her family's intervention and her subsequent treatment for alcoholism.

Intervention is a formal process that is planned and guided by a trained professional, usually an intervention specialist. Participants in the process can number from four to more than a dozen and may include an employer, co-worker, clergyman and physician besides family members and friends. Participants are trained for about nine hours before the intervention process takes place.

It's serious stuff and it's successful. Maplegrove Center, which treats chemical dependency, reports that more than 90 percent of the adult substance abusers who have gone through the intervention process enter a treatment program.

Sheri Olsen

Intervention in the case of the adolescent substance abuser takes other forms, however. Sheri Olson, manager of the Youth Treatment Center at Maplegrove, says intervention occurs when a parent decides there is a problem and acts on it.

"When they take that initial step, that's intervention at that moment," she said. "They are intervening in self-destructive behavior."

While it can be done in a number of ways, Olson said that the formal process is not used because the adolescent is generally living at home and under parental control. "It's different because the parents have more muscle."

"We stay away from a lot of the more technical (aspects of) intervention, because it will create opposition and adolescents are inherently opposed," Olson said.

See INTERVENTION, page 11A

The chemically abusive adolescent

The chemically abusive adolescent . . .

- Has increasing difficulty in getting up in the morning and may also exhibit day-night reversal, i.e., staying up late and sleeping during the day.

- Has exhibited significant personality changes since entering junior high school; seems to be a "different person."

- Has changed friends significantly over the past two years; is now spending time with a clearly circumscribed group of four to five peers whom parents/teachers consider "trouble" or a "bad influence." The young person notices that the main thing they have in common with these new friends is their mutual chemical use.

- Isolates from other family members; is consistently testing limits.

- Exhibits hostility and distrust of authority figures; is often oppositional.

- Daily living habits have changed significantly.

- Will settle for almost any attention outside the home, even if it is negative attention.

- Seems to have significantly increased intake of fluids; will spend periods of time snacking almost continuously on carbohydrates (the "munchies").

- Has been threatened with expulsion (or has actually been expelled) from school; is considered a negative influence by school authorities.

- Demonstrates difficulty with maintaining good grades in proportion to his/her abilities.

- Displays increasing dishonesty with self and others.

- Is identified by self and by others who know him/her as being more "sensitive" than average.

- Has significantly decreased attention span.

- Has either been caught or been accused of stealing from family members or from others.

- Has become abusive with parents, siblings.

- Has seemed to have lost interest in things he/she was once interested in.

- Is likely to have been fired from a job at least once.

- Is overly preoccupied with privacy, secrecy.

- Is labeled by peers with terms similar to "burn-out."

- Has gotten caught at least once in possession of chemicals or using paraphernalia; when confronted, exhibits defensiveness and turns around the confrontation to make the questioner feel guilty or confused.

- Has noticed in him/herself an increase in the amount, frequency and scope of chemical use over the past 12 to 18 months.

- Is regularly using one or two different mood-altering substances and has experimented with at least one other chemical.

- First used purposefully around age 13.

- Often begins to use during inappropriate times or in appropriate settings, e.g., during school or work.

- May begin to purchase/obtain chemicals for personal use from persons he/she does not know.

- Increasingly will feel paranoid while high.

- Uses chemicals "just to get high," i.e., to medicate feelings.

- Exhibits "junkie talk," — the primary method of relating to or making contact with others is to talk about getting high.

- Experiences a chronic sense of insecurity and low self-worth, and will feel most comfortable with peers who feel likewise.

- Notices a significant increase in the priority of mood-altering substances in their value system; notices that an increasing amount of life-energy centers on getting high.

Program coordinator decries myths of 'responsible use'

By Susan Pearce
Special Writer

(First of two parts)

I wrote a letter to the Grosse Pointe News not long ago suggesting that to solve the problem of teenage alcohol use, we must first look at ourselves, not our children.

Our own attitudes and behavior are the strongest message our children receive from us, but even as adults it is easy to become confused about what is reasonable. As the Student Assistance Program Coordinator for the Grosse Pointe school system, I know that teenagers are not the only ones who feel peer pressure. Many well-meaning adults are confused or intimidated by other adults who advance the argument of "responsible use" of alcohol by adolescents, and we need to give more thought to the validity of those arguments.

I refer to some of these common rationale as "The Myths of Responsible Use." Here are examples of some of those myths:

Myth No. 1: "All kids will try drinking (and/or smoking pot). It's part of growing up."

This is a dangerous myth because it implies that such experimentation is harmless. Accidents are the leading cause of death among teenagers; suicide is second. And the age at which young people become sexually active is closely correlated with the onset of drinking and other chemical use. The natural risk-taking behavior and impulsiveness of teenagers is greatly exaggerated when they drink.

Teens who drink regularly are also much more likely to use other chemicals — and there are so many more chemicals available these days: cocaine, crack and "designer" drugs like "Ecstasy."

Mix that natural impulsiveness and risk-taking behavior with the fact that adolescents tend to believe that nothing bad can happen to them — or their friends — and the accident statistics are understandable. Educators know that the impact of an anti-drug "scare" movie or speaker will last about a week or two for most adolescents. Developmentally, they still believe in their own immortality.

Clearly there are some things that are simply too dangerous for young people to try, just to show their independence and rebellion against authority. The use of alcohol is in this category. While we cannot be naive enough to believe our children won't challenge us, given the natural tendency of adolescents to do things that make them feel grown up, I think we do them a disservice when we don't let them know alcohol experimentation, like sexual experimentation, is not harmless or without serious risks.

To condone such experimentation as "part of growing up" is not responsible.

And when they say, "Don't you trust me?" You say, "Of course I trust you. I trust that you are a normal, healthy, curious teenager who wants to be popular, to feel grown up, and to see what you can get away with. And it's my job as a parent who loves you to do my best to see that, as you do those things, you don't do anything too dangerous."

Myth No. 2: "I drank when I was in high school and it never hurt me."

First of all, the comparison is probably not valid because the amount of drinking and use of other drugs that now goes on in high school and in middle school has increased dramatically since most parents were in school.

I think most people who make this statement are talking about sneaking a flask into the homecoming game or celebrating after graduation — not about getting drunk every Friday and Saturday night, beginning in the eighth or ninth grade, as is becoming more common today.

And for those who did drink in high school and can honestly say they never suffered any serious consequences, can they also say that they never knew anyone who did? That they never knew anyone who got into a serious accident, did poorly in studies or dropped out of school or had any number of other alcohol-related difficulties? How many of us are willing to take the chance that our children will survive by having our "luck"?

Myth No. 3: "They drink because we make such a big deal of it. In Europe there is no drinking age and they don't have this problem."

While it's true that some countries have very low rates of alcoholism, others have very high rates. The key factor seems to be not whether there is a legal drinking age, but rather how clear the cultural standards are about what, how much, and when it is appropriate to use a drug.

In countries such as Italy, where public drunkenness is ridiculed, there is little alcohol abuse. In countries such as France and Germany where such drinking is condoned, alcoholism is a major social problem.

In the U.S., we not only condone excessive use, we glorify it at every televised athletic event, in print advertising and in music.

Our children's use is not a rebellion against our attitudes. It's a reflection of them.

On a positive note: Surveys consistently show that parental attitudes, expectations and consequences have a major impact on how much a teenager drinks or uses other drugs. We can make a difference — but we must be very clear and consistent about what we say and do.

Jeep: From general purpose to sophistication

Its rugged, macho good looks mark an American classic. It is sporty, it has a flair, it sells in good volume despite a hefty price tag and it is fun to drive. But it is not a sports car, it is a truck.

The Jeep Cherokee is one of the most popular nameplates in the very hot-selling sports-utility market. Market studies indicate that the sports-utility vehicle is today's equivalent of the European sports car of the '50s, with the same kind of attraction and sporty flair. But because it is also practical, which was not so like and Wagoneer lines and into the Grand Wagoneer. These vehicles have become very civilized and sophisticated, but they are clearly the descendants of the the Great Depression. It built a small car, an American version of the English Austin called, fittingly enough, the American Austin. But even in the depths

But the Army did like a little military vehicle the company had developed and after rigorous tests, it ordered 1,500 of them. Dubious of American Bantam's production capabilities, the Army placed orders for similar vehicles with Willys-Overland and Ford Motor Co.

After more testing and some changes in specifications, Willys' version of the vehicle was standardized. Willys could not satisfy the Army's demand for the vehicle so Ford was also appointed to build the vehicles, known in military parlance as "vehicle, quarter-ton, GP (General Purpose). The "GP" was quickly Americanized to "Jeep."

American Bantam, which had laid the groundwork for the design of the Jeep, went out of business shortly before World War II began. Since Willys had designed the version that the Army finally used, it got the rights to build civilian versions of it after the end of World War II.

It soon became Willys' most successful version, particularly its all-steel station wagon which seemed the right vehicle with which to brave the suburbs building up after the war. A sporty version called the Jeepster is now a collector car, but it was the wagon that sold well and one can still see the genetic similarity in today's urbane and sophisticated Jeep Cherokee, Wagoneer and Grand Wagoneer models.

The Jeep was not enough to save Willys as the Big Three shifted into high gear after the war. The Willys nameplate died in the early '50s, but Kaiser-Frazer, also on the way out, acquired the Jeep operation. Frazer, then Kaiser died, but Jeep survived to become a part of American Motors, where it was AMC's most successful project.

It was Jeep that made AMC attractive to Chrysler Corp. and the Jeep still has a peculiarly American panache.

The Cherokee is Jeep's mid-range vehicle and that's a pretty wide range. Base prices start in the low teens, but those bright red four-wheel-drive Cherokees with the gold trim that look so good anywhere can easily top $20,000.

The Jeep panache is standard.

of the MGs, Austin-Healeys and Sunbeams of an earlier age, these vehicles have become an important part of the market.

The '89 Jeep Cherokee is a far cry from the military Jeep with which many Americans have had a love-hate relationship, but its styling still evokes that no-nonsense, bare-bones bucking-bronc of a vehicle. This is true of all Jeep models, from the Wrangler which is very similar to the military Jeep through the Chero-legendary Jeep, which made its debut in World War II.

The Jeep is now part of the Chrysler stable, but it got there through a surprisingly circuitous route from its beginnings in the summer of 1940, when the U.S. Army tested a small, lightweight vehicle developed by American Bantam Co. of Butler, Pa.

American Bantam began building cars at a most inauspicious time in 1930, just as the nation was sliding headlong into of the Depression, Americans did not like small cars and it ceased production in 1935.

A couple years later, it began production of a very jaunty little car, the Bantam, which is now a collector car. But it wasn't then. Jaunty or not, Americans still did not much like small cars.

At the Maple Grove Youth Treatment Center, which deals with 12- to 18-year-olds, the parent provides information about the child. The data-collecting process includes contacting the school the adolescent attends.

"Schools are great agents to spot (substance abuse) behavior," Olson said, "many times before parents. It's important for parents to listen to them."

The parents and the adolescent then go to the center together for an evaluation interview, done separately. After the interviews, an admission committee sifts through the information and recommends a treatment program.

If the adolescent is admitted to Maple Grove, he or she will spend six weeks in the facility that includes classrooms, a gym, lounges, art and music rooms and therapy rooms. The first week or two consists of evaluation after which the patient and family meet with the staff to decide if the recommended treatment should be continued or a different type of care is required.

Most adolescents move into the second phase, treatment.

They continue with their school work, participate in group therapy, listen to chemical dependency lectures, attend AA meetings and meet individually with members of the treatment team.

After four weeks, the adolescent returns home and to his or her own school. During the third phase, which is recovery, individual and family therapy is continued as well as attendance at AA meetings.

The program involves the entire family and requires a commitment by the parents to participate in all phases. And it's not cheap. The average cost for a six-week program is $9,000. Longer term care can cost up to $15,000. In most cases, insurance will cover the majority of the cost. Maple Grove also treats indigent students.

Recognizing a child has a chemical dependency and acting on it is a painful process, Olson said, but it's an act of love.

"It's one of the most loving things a parent can do," she said. "Kids want them to intervene. They say, 'why didn't my parents do anything?'"

It's also critical, she said, for the parent to address the problem immediately, because adolescents don't have the defenses an adult has. Adolescents are more destructive of property and themselves.

Alcohol is the No. 1 drug of choice among adolescents, Olson said, accounting for 99 percent of Maple Grove's admissions. The reason, she said, is accessibility. The drug that is most abused next is marijuana.

For information on the Maple Grove intervention program for adults, call 661-6100. For information about the Maple Grove youth treatment program, call 661-6500. Both programs are part of the Henry Ford Hospital Behavioral Medicine Specialty Group. Cottage Hospital offers an ongoing community education series of four sessions for people who are concerned about the chemical use of a friend or loved one. Sessions are held on Thursdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The Miller Brewing Co. found out the hard way that colleges are beginning to take a dim view of the beer-and-spring break connection. A special 16-page promotion meant to be distributed with campus newspapers instead started a firestorm of criticism ("Micap recap," March 23, 1989, a publication of the Michigan Interfaith Council on Alcohol Problems).

The newsletter reports that Miller's jokes about "scamming babes" at the beach, which included tips about "sucking down" beer and "getting naked," instead infuriated campus editors and readers. Miller ended up having to send a public relations person on a campus tour to apologize.

Actual counts of alcohol ads in national magazines usually turn up "People," "Newsweek," "Cosmopolitan" and "Gentlemen's Quarterly" in the top 10, Dodds said. "Omni" also has a high number of alcohol advertisements.

"But on the average, there are twice as many alcohol ads per page in "Rolling Stone" and "Time."

Ruth Zinn is, like Dodds, a volunteer for Maple Grove and a former president of Grosse Pointe's SAC.

"Attitudes are very difficult to measure," she said. "There's a greater acceptance of people who choose not to drink, and less stigma toward those who seek help. That was really kept in the closet. You have to credit people like Betty Ford for that."

"The attitude toward drunk driving has changed — but the sad thing is that people don't care how much you drink if you're not (perceived as) drunk."

Peer pressure

"Adolescents are particularly vulnerable to the subtleties of alcohol advertising," said Grosse Pointe school Superintendent Kenneth Brummel in a statement for SAC² in 1983. "... Beer and wine ads on television seemingly sell companionship. Young people hunger for immediate gratification and rewards. Beer advertising offers that."

Mass media researcher Charles Atkin agrees that advertising is a special problem for teenagers. "There's a problem with the humorous aspect of drinking — partying and fun," he said. "Ads focus on romance, glamor, sexual enjoyment and, sometimes, outright hedonism."

A 1985 story in the New York Times states, "... Advertisements aren't the only inducement to drink... But incessant commercials that glamorize drinking help shape youth's attitudes and behavior."

Nine bikes stolen within one week

Nine bicycles were reported stolen in Grosse Pointe Park within a six-day period, according to a police report.

Two bikes were believed to be stolen from the side of a home in the 1000 block of Kensington by suspects who attempted to break into a home in the 900 block of Park Lane at 9:56 p.m. April 21.

One bike was reported taken from a garage in the 800 block of Barrington sometime overnight April 21-22, and another bike was stolen from a garage in the 1200 block of Beaconsfield sometime overnight April 25-26.

Three bikes were taken from a porch in the 1200 block of Wayburn during the night hours of April 18-19. Two more bicycles and a lawnmower were taken from under a porch in the 1200 block of Wayburn sometime overnight on April 21-22.

Park detectives recovered one of the bikes when they saw one of two juveniles, both of whom were known to police, riding the stolen bike home on April 24.

Farms residence used for party while family away

A house in the 400 block of Labelle Road in Grosse Pointe Farms was used for a beer bash by unknown parties while the homeowners were away one weekend in April.

According to police reports, the family went to Florida during the weekend of April 22-23 and returned home to find the house messed up and beer cans all over the place.

The 40-year-old woman living at the address said her three children, two 15-year-old boys and a 16-year-old girl, had no idea who could have used their home. She said a door was left open so a 16-year-old Woods boy could come over to take care of the dog. She said the Woods youth knew nothing about the party.

One neighbor reported seeing many youths in the home around midnight April 22, but they didn't report it because he thought the family was at home.

Wellness for kids

The Grosse Pointe Public Schools will televise a wellness program for elementary school-children on four consecutive Wednesdays at 9 p.m. on Channel 19.

Titled "The Grosse Pointe Public Schools — What We're Made Of," the programs focus on a Wellness Festival sponsored by the school system in April and attended by 270 elementary children.

Students learn the importance of exercise; how to manage stress; what to expect in an operating room; how to kick the junk food habit; sport safety; and other tips for living healthy lives.

The first two programs were April 26 and May 3. Others are May 10 and 17 at 9 p.m.

The show was produced and directed by Tim Golobic, a South senior and a student in the Advanced TV Production class. Golobic is also a partner in STC Entertainment, a group that supplies disc jockeys for all occasions. He plans to attend Indiana University in the fall.

City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING OF INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan will hold a public hearing at 7:30 P.M. on Monday, May 15, 1989 in the Council Chambers at the Municipal Offices, 17147 Maumee, on the proposed 1989 City tax levy and on the proposed 1989-90 City budget. Copies of the proposed budget are available for public inspection during regular business hours in the office of the City Clerk beginning May 11, 1989.

In 1988, the City of Grosse Pointe levied 15.38 mills ($15.38 per $1,000 SEV) for both City operating and debt service purposes. In 1989, the City anticipates levying a total of 14.56 mills ($14.56 per $1,000 SEV) for both City operating and debt service purposes.

Due to an increase in the State Equalized Value of existing property in the City, the State "Truth in Taxation" law (P.A. 5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for 1989 City operating taxes be decreased to an estimated 14.03 mills.

To fund the City's proposed 1989-90 budget and to maintain the present level of City services, the City finds it necessary to restore a portion of its operating millage reduction. An additional millage rate levy of .40 mills (40 cents per $1,000 SEV) is proposed above the estimated 1989 base operating tax rate. This represents an increase of 3% in property taxes (both operating and debt purposes) for City residential property owners.

In accordance with P.A. 5 of 1982, the City has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate as authorized by law and the City Charter.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the public hearing on the proposed additional millage rate and on the proposed City budget.

Walton is Presidential Scholar semifinalist

Angela Walton, a senior at University Liggett School, has been named one of 500 semifinalists nationwide in the 1989 Presidential Scholars Program.

The daughter of Gloria Walton of Detroit, Angela is also a National Merit Scholarship finalist, a finalist in the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students, and a member of both the French Honor Society and Cum Laude, a national honor society.

She will attend Harvard University in September. She is the editor of the yearbook, a senior class officer, the box office and house manager for the ULS Players, and the chairperson of volunteer and special events for ULS's Blue Key Society, a service organization.

From the 500 semifinalists, up to 141 graduating high school students will be selected next month as Presidential Scholars, the nation's highest distinction bestowed upon exceptional high school seniors.

The 500 semifinalists were selected from 1,500 students who were identified as potential candidates for the program on the basis of their exceptional scholastic achievement. Nearly 3,000,000 students will graduate from U.S. high schools in 1989.

Angela Walton

The semifinalists were chosen by a panel of educators on the basis of test scores on either the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the ACT Assessment, grade point average, contributions to the school and community, essays, self-assessments, recommendations and transcripts.

Final selection of the Scholars will be made by the White House Commission on Presidential Scholars, a group of 50 citizens appointed by the president.

Student Spotlight

Peter Haarz

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following was written by Peter Haarz, second-grader at University Liggett School. His parents are Patti and Bill Haarz.

If I Were President

If I were president, my vice president would be Andy Sheldon because he is very smart and Andy would probably give me lots of good ideas. I would try to get all the drug dealers and put them in jail for 150 years. I would clean up the oceans and lakes and rivers and most of the land. I would hire people to clean up the land and seas. The regular speed limit would be 35 and where there are no sidewalks and a lot of children live there, the speed limit would be 22 or less. I would give money and food to the poor people. And I would make sure that there are no wars and I would very much hope that everybody would love each other.

Peter Haarz

Bova wins scholarship

Laura Bova, a senior at Grosse Pointe North High School, has been awarded an Evans Scholarship to Michigan State University, where she will enroll in the fall. Evans Scholars are chosen on the basis of high school grades, moral character, financial need, and their performance as caddies at Lochmoor Country Club.

The award covers tuition and housing for one year and may be renewed for a total of four years by meeting the standards of the Evans Scholarship Program.

This scholarship is financed by the members of the Lochmoor Country Club, who are among the 10,000 golfers nationwide who contributed to the Evans Scholarship Foundation in 1988.

Girl Scouts learn outdoor skills

About 150 Girl Scouts and their leaders had a busy day at Three Mile Park April 15. They moved through five rotating stations where they learned to lay trails, do first aid, plan ceremonies, cook outdoors and fire safety.

At the ceremonies station, the girls donated and planted five trees. The cooking station was the busiest as each girl baked her own individual pineapple upside down cake in a coffee can oven. They also cooked pizzas over charcoal and made a gingerbread-type cake and cherry pies.

In first aid, they learned to care for nose bleeds and what to do in cases of fainting, heat exhaustion, bruises and cuts, burns, animal bites and choking. They made a stretcher out of materials that would be available in the woods. A first aid kit was made for future troop outings.

Pretzels were used as "wood" in different sizes to teach the girls to build three types of fires — A-frame, log cabin and teepee. Charcoal and wax fire starters were made as well as buddy burners in tuna cans to be used with coffee can vagabond stoves.

At the trails station, girls learned compass skills, trail signs with sticks and stones and made animal prints with plaster of paris.

Six girls from Girl Scout Troop 125 planned and carried the skills day for their Silver Award project. They are Julie Birnbryer, Katrina Novak, Cathy Oglesby, Anne Koenig, Tisha Oglesby and Kathy Ownby, all students at Pierce Middle School.

Bringing back the lustre: Restoring — not refinishing — is an art form and David Hawkins is spreading the gospel

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Everybody, at one time or another, has tried his hand at it — buy an old table at a garage sale and sand and stain and varnish and, voila — a new piece of furniture.

But David Hawkins has been at it a little longer, more than 50 years, and the items he restores are usually worth more than a discarded table.

Take for instance the Louis XIV piece he restored over a 14-month period which recently sold for more than $2 million.

"That's the stupidity of modern times," he said. "If you think about it, all he got was a piece of scenery."

Hawkins' Farm, by he ain't.

"It may sound arrogant, but I can do just about any wood restoring job you give me," the 67-year old Brit said. His work is in museums across the country, and now that he is retired but still restoring, he shares his expertise through lectures, including a series at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. (See below.)

David Hawkins restores a mahogany table with care and precision, using methods hundreds of years old.

"There's hardly anybody practicing this anymore," Hawkins said.

He is here with Chris Collins, an American furniture restorer (although Hawkins teasingly calls him a wood butcher) who lives in Los Angeles. Collins, who is hoping to absorb as much information as he can in this two-week apprenticeship, says he has restored furniture for the two most famous Elizabeths in the world — Queen and Taylor.

"I find that part of my life incredible," Hawkins said, "that someone would fly me 4,500 miles to restore furniture. It's a huge tribute to the apprentice system and the trade system."

Restoring, however, is a lot more than a job — it's an art form, and much more than an adventure.

For instance, he was allowed to examine a box taken out of the tomb of Egypt's King Tutankhamen. "It was veneered in ebony, and people think veneer is a new thing."

Business is picking up for him, due in part to a renewed interest in antiques and the increase in prices for them. If people are going to pay $1,000 for a piece of furniture, they're going to pay to restore it, he believes.

You can call him an artist or a restorer, but Hawkins jokes that most of the people who know him would call him "an irascible old sot."

The work is lonely, Hawkins and Collins said, but it is rewarding to see hundreds of years of dirt and grime removed and the original beauty of the piece restored. Hawkins doesn't refinish; he revives. He takes away years of dirt and spray polish buildup and recreates a piece of art that was being forgotten.

Hawkins' lecture series began Monday and continues tonight with his discussion of "The Rescue of the Petworth Panels." On Monday, May 8 he will discuss "Boullework from 1650 to 1900," and on May 11 he will talk about the care and attention of furniture. Tickets are $20 a session. Advance registration is recommended. For information, call 881-7511.

Collins, in the back, and Hawkins work in the Hudson's garage.

Woods boys pour, ignite gas in sewer

Two Grosse Pointe Woods boys poured about a gallon of gasoline into a street sewer drain at Wedgewood and Avon Court last week and threw a match to it, causing a small explosion and singeing the hair of one of the boys.

According to police reports, the 14 and 15-year-old boys, who are friends and live near each other in the 800 and 900 blocks of Avon Court, could give no reason for the stunt.

The 14-year-old's mother told responding firefighters that her son was involved in the explosion. The officers found the other boy at his home. He had just taken a shower when one officer arrived. According to the officer, the boy's hair was singed and his face and ears were slightly reddened. Neither of the 15-year-old's parents was home. When the boy's mother got home, she determined her son did not require medical attention.

Police told the mother that she could be responsible for any damage to the sewer that may have resulted from the gas explosion.

Two houses broken into; vehicle stolen

Two neighboring homes in the City were burglarized last week, with the unknown thief taking one resident's car.

The residents of the two abutting homes in the 500 block of Nell were at home April 25 at about 3 a.m. when the burglary and car theft occurred. Both families reported hearing a noise, but they each thought it was their neighbor.

The burglar got into the first home by an unlocked sliding glass door, but did not take anything. He got into the second home by prying a window up. In the second home he took cash from a purse and a set of car keys to a 1981 Chrysler station wagon, which he then used to make his getaway.

On Monday the City police said the car had still not been reported found.

There will be demonstrations of sheep-shearing and cow-milking, Disney cartoons to entertain the little ones and plenty of photo opportunities for mom and dad.

Tickets are $3, children ages 1 and up (infants free), $1.50 adults and $9 family rate. Hot dogs, chips, ice cream and beverages will be available for purchase. Event will be held rain or shine.

Learn Middle Eastern dancing

The art of belly dancing, a feminine yet complete exercise program, will be offered at the War Memorial Thursdays, May 4-June 22, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

This for-women-only class is taught by Middle Eastern dance artist, Aida Al-Adawi who was a protegee of the legendary dancer Jamila Salimpour of San Francisco.

Al-Adawi has 18 years teaching experience.

New and continuing students are welcome to register. Class fee is $85 for eight sessions. Call 881-7511 for further information.

Weaver to be roasted

Television personality Joe Weaver, a Grosse Pointe resident, will celebrate a number of milestones this year — his 60th birthday, his 40th year of broadcasting and his 25th year of broadcasting in Detroit.

There will be a roast in his honor Wednesday, May 10, at 6 p.m. at the Westin Hotel in downtown Detroit. Proceeds will benefit the Leukemia Society of America's Michigan Chapter's research efforts.

"The roast is a salute to Joe and his wife, Angie, for their many civic and charitable contributions over the years," said Suzanne Rabideau, event chairperson and a Grosse Pointe resident. "Everything about the evening will be lighthearted."

Tickets are $125 — "... the sum of the three milestones Joe is observing, 60, 40 and 25." Rabideau said.

For ticket information, call 885-6550 weekdays during business hours.

Help Grateful Home

Grateful Home, a residence for recovering alcoholic women, is hoping to expand its program with a second, larger house. There will be a fundraising dinner Sunday, May 7, at the Shish-Kebab House, 15506 Mack at Somerset in Grosse Pointe Park.

Seatings will be at 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Reservation deadline is May 5. For reservations, call Harry or Joyce at 885-1481.

Founded in 1962 by Irma Weston, a nurse at Hutzel Hospital, the first Grateful Home was opened on Cooper Street in Detroit. After seven years, Weston and the board of directors bought the current home at 335 East Grand Blvd.

The home is now averaging 40 calls a month from women seeking treatment for their illness. Executive Director Sara J. Snyder and the board hope to triple the number of beds with another building they hope to buy.

The dinner will also celebrate the accomplishment of Mary Brennan, assistant director of Grateful Home, who will graduate from Mercy College May 6. Brennan, who, like Snyder, is a former resident of the home, will then begin work on a master's program at Mercy.

Snyder and a number of the board members are Grosse Pointe residents.

City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, May 15, 1989 in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza to receive testimony and to discuss a proposed increase in the 1989 general fund operating fund.

In 1988, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods levied a total of 12.8920 mills ($12,892 per $1,000 SEV). This consisted of 11.1970 mills for general operating fund purposes, 4.570 mills for swimming pool bonds, .7380 mills for park redevelopment bonds and .500 mills for emergency medical services. In 1989, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods is proposing to levy a total of 12.3420 mills ($12,342 per $1,000 SEV) for the City's general operating fund, debt service and EMS purposes. This represents a .5500 mill decrease in the total City millage rate, however, such tax levy would provide for a 9.59% increase in total property tax revenues.

The City's 1988 general fund operating tax levy was 11.1970 mills ($11,197 per $1,000 SEV). However, under the State of Michigan "Truth in Taxation" Law, Public Act 5 of 1982, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods' base tax rate would have been required to have been reduced to 10.3730 mills ($10,373 per $1,000 SEV) for 1989 which in effect would have produced a tax revenue equal, plus an allowable 4.50% inflation factor, to the 1988 general fund operating tax levy.

Because of an increase in the City's State Equalized Valuation (SEV) and a primary 4.5% in salary/wage increase for its employees; 4.5% increase in street lighting costs; 32% increase in incineration costs; to provide necessary funds to replace and/or maintain the City's infrastructure and to provide operating funds for the City's new community center to be constructed in 1989; the city finds it necessary to restore its mandated millage levy reduction and to levy an additional millage rate of .4179 mills ($0.4179 per $1,000 SEV) above the 1989 Truth In Taxation General Fund base operating rate. This adjusted millage increase will provide an estimated total tax dollar increase of $74.15 for the 1989 tax year for an average residence in the City of Grosse Pointe Woods having a State Equalized Valuation (SEV) of $60,000 and will represent a 9.59% increase in property tax dollars for the aforesaid residence.

In accordance with P.A. 5 of 1982, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within maximum millage rate as authorized by the electorate in the City Charter.

TRUTH IN TAXATION COMPUTATION OF GENERAL FUND TAX LEVY FOR AVERAGE HOME IN GROSSE POINTE WOODS HAVING AN SEV OF $60,000

Current 1988 SEV of $60,000 X 1.0 factor X 12.8920 mills (0128920) equals 773.52
Proposed 1989 SEV of $60,000 X 1.1447 factor X 12.3420 mills (0123420) equals 847.67

COMPARISON OF TAX LEVIES

General Operating Fund	11.1970 mills	10.7909 mills
Swimming Pool Bonds
(Electorate Approved)	4.570 Mills	3908 mills

FIRST FEDERAL OF MICHIGAN

By moving in close with an extension bellows, Monte Nagler transformed an ordinary tulip and leaves into an exciting, dramatic photograph of tones and textures.

Move in close: A world awaits

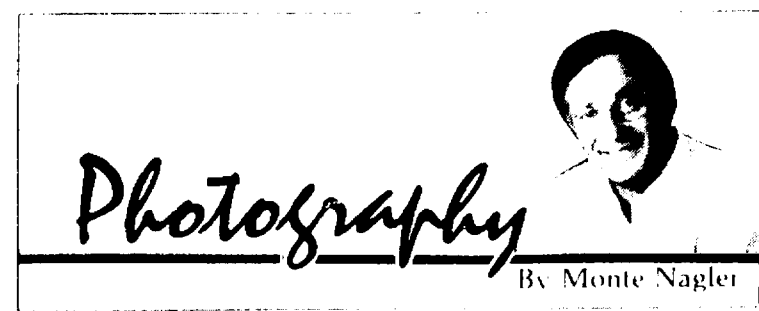

Moving in close is one of the most important guidelines in helping to improve your photography. But most all 35mm cameras can only bring you in to within 24 inches of your subject. Being able to move in extra close — even to only one or two inches — will open whole new horizons for you. The world of close-up photography is exciting and rewarding and you will see things you never noticed before.

With close-up photography, you can take the ordinary and transform it into something beautiful. A single drop of morning dew clinging to the underside of a blade of grass, the delicate intimacy of a flower or leaf, a detail of peeling paint on the siding of a deserted barn — all can become magnificent portrayals of mood and sensitivity.

Shooting close-ups is fun, easy, and can be achieved with a minimal investment. There are four types of close-up accessories from which to choose.

Close-up filters: These are the least expensive means of taking close-ups and usually come in sets of three. They act exactly like magnifying glasses when screwed onto the front of your lens. A No. 1 filter will allow you to focus to within 16 inches. A No. 2 to about 10 inches, and a No. 3 to approximately 6 inches. Combining two or all three will enable you to focus down extremely close to your subject.

Close-up rings: Also called extension tubes, these rings are sold in sets of three. The idea is to attach one or a combination of the hollow tubes between the lens and the camera body. The further the lens is away from the body, the greater the degree of magnification.

Extension bellows: Here, a flexible bellows is placed between the lens and camera body similar to extension tubes. The advantages of bellows are that you have infinite latitude of lens to subject distances, and you can achieve greater degrees of magnification than either close-up filters or extension tubes.

Macro lenses: A macro lens is a close-up lens in itself. Macro lenses can be carried on your camera as a normal lens, and then can quickly be converted to a close-up lens without stopping to add accessories. Many of today's popular zoom lenses have a macro mode which is fine but may not move you in as close as a pure macro lens.

Remember that any exposure increase with close-up equipment are adjusted for automatically on cameras with through-the-lens metering.

Depth-of-field is one of the most important factors to consider in close-up photography. As you know, the closer you are to your subject, the less depth-of-field you get at a given aperture. By the time you are very close to the subject, depth-of-field may be a mere fraction of an inch. Focus thus becomes very critical and often a small aperture is a must. In addition, it follows that when an image is magnified, the slightest camera movement will be exaggerated in the finished print. Therefore, a tripod is a necessity when shooting close-ups.

When you move in close, details are magnified and surfaces can lose their texture unless you light them in a way that accents their miniature topography. Therefore, aim for side or back-lighting to bring out and enhance pattern and texture. Usually, shooting in the early morning or late afternoon will do the trick.

Close up photography can be a fascinating experience. It will sharpen your vision, improve your knowledge, and reward you with truly exciting photographs.

Bon Secours summer speech program set

The Bon Secours Hospital speech pathology department's annual summer speech program for children and adolescents will feature an expanded therapy plan this year, according to Karen Schmanski, M.A., C.C.C., Bon Secours speech pathologist and summer program coordinator.

"We are pleased to announce that we will now offer small group therapy in addition to the individual therapy provided previously," she said.

The summer program, aimed at children and adolescents 2 through 18, will be held June 26 through Aug. 18. Fifty-minute sessions, conducted by certified speech/language pathologists, will be held twice a week at the speech pathology department, located at Bon Secours Hospital, 468 Cadieux Road, Grosse Pointe. The cost is $175 for the eight-week session.

The program will include therapy for children with speech and language disorders including articulation, stuttering and auditory processing deficits. Therapy for youths in middle, junior high or high school will include sessions on verbal expression, grammar skills, conversation strategies, vocabulary building, articulation and written expression.

Children and teenagers may be referred to the program by schools, physicians, hospitals or clinical speech pathologists. Diagnostic sessions may be arranged at an additional cost for children who have not been seen previously by speech pathologists. Appointments may be made at Bon Secours Hospital by calling Schmanski at 343-1622.

Registration for the speech program must be arranged by May 22 by completing an application form, available from the speech pathology department.

Red Cross seeks teenage volunteers for summertime

Summer is for more than just hanging out, getting a great tan at the beach, or brushing up on your tennis or softball skills.

It's also a great time to make a real difference in your community by joining America's Red Army — The American Red Cross — as a youth volunteer. The American Red Cross is looking for an army of young givers to fight an unconventional war against accidents, disaster and disease; against apathy, ignorance and isolation.

Young people, ages 14-17, can share their skills or interests in crafts or sports with handicapped children in day camps. Or, they may wish to bring cheer into the lives of persons in area hospitals and nursing homes. Or, help to maintain the community blood supply by working at blood drives during the summer months when the need for blood is especially critical. The choice is theirs.

Flexible volunteer hours make it possible for students to be youth volunteers year around and still hold paying jobs. They can volunteer as few as four hours per week right in their own community.

Red Cross youth volunteers who help those in need are publicly recognized for the work they do and gain personal satisfaction from knowing that they have made a difference in people's lives. Student volunteers also have the opportunity to explore career options, develop leadership skills and make new friends. And, while serving their community, students discover for themselves the many benefits derived from helping other people.

It's easy for young people to volunteer to join America's Red

From border to border

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you about a special project that will take place this Saturday all along Mack Avenue and what it means to every one of us who lives or works in the Grosse Pointe area. The special project I refer to is a clean up of Mack from Alter Road to the St. Clair Shores border at Old Eight Mile. The Mack Avenue Business and Professional Association is involved in a joint effort with the cities of Grosse Pointe, Grosse Pointe Park, Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Woods, Detroit, local beautification commissions, volunteer groups and the business owners on Mack Avenue. We have planned to have the street swept, the medians cut and trimmed, litter picked up and flowers planted in an effort to maintain and enhance the beauty of the Mack business district that runs the length of our city.

Why is this important to you as a business person? A safe, clean, attractive business district attracts more clientele. A street that is dirty and unkempt will have the opposite effect; it will drive potential clientele away. It's just that simple. As business owners, we must also convey a sense of pride and commitment in the community in which we make our living. For the most part Mack Avenue looks good. It is a fine place to do business. However, there are some problem areas. We all know where these are. If you've driven or walked Mack, you can tell what spots are in trouble and what spots are not well cared for. With our continual attention, Mack can get better. Even the Alter Road area of the avenue has made positive improvements. Nevertheless, more has to be done to maintain the viability of the business strip.

Why is this clean-up project important to you as a resident? As an owner of property adjacent to Mack Avenue, this effort is particularly important since it has been shown in studies that the value of residential property is directly related to the viability of the commercial business area that it borders. A strong business district means a strong neighborhood.

Come Saturday, I urge all business people on Mack to take an hour or two between 9 a.m. and noon to rake the boulevard, sweep the sidewalk in front of your store or office, plant some flowers, wash your windows or do any other project you may think of that will make Mack a little more attractive.

I urge you, the residents of this community, to take a walk on the avenue Saturday morning. If you see a merchant or business person doing a particularly nice job, tell them so.

This project still needs volunteers. If you know of a Girl Scout or Boy Scout troop, a service organization or individual who would be interested in helping with clean up, contact the Mack Avenue Business and Professional Association at 881-8603 or 884-7887.

Bill to make takeovers more difficult

Last week the House passed a bill which will make it more difficult for hostile corporate takeovers of Michigan businesses to occur.

House Bill 4548 provides greater protection, more than federal law, from corporate takeover. The bill changes from 80 percent to 90 percent the percentage of shares required for a successful takeover vote. It also establishes a five-year substantial share ownership period before a shareholder could force a sale.

The definition of a "beneficial owner" of shares has also been clarified as it relates to a person involved in proxy solicitation and tender offers. A person could not be considered the beneficial owner of voting shares if the person's right to vote the shares arose solely from a revocable proxy or consent given in response to a proxy or consent solicitation to 10 or more persons.

Designed to stop merger mania, House Bill 4548 tells the world that Michigan is the place to locate for any company which dares to think beyond the bottom line of the next fiscal quarter. It encourages any company which believes in corporations having a focus, corporate goals and values other than moving money around and ad nauseam diversification. The bills attempts to provide a climate in which companies can retain earnings, do research and grow. This nation cannot compete in the future if its good businesses are constantly swallowed up into huge conglomerates.

Bill would mean victory for whistleblowers

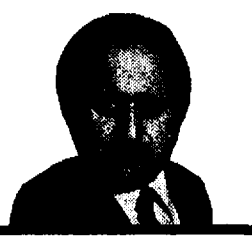

In 1970, an Air Force cost analyst named Ernest Fitzgerald told Congress about cost overruns on the C-5A troop transport plane. Fitzgerald was outraged that taxpayers were being ripped off as their hard-earned dollars were being poured into a project that kept growing more and more expensive.

Neither the Pentagon nor the Nixon Administration appreciated Fitzgerald's testimony. The president himself gave the order to fire Fitzgerald and he was quickly dumped. It took him 12 years before he got his old job back.

Fitzgerald may be the most prominent government employee to be penalized for blowing the whistle on governmental waste, fraud and abuse. But he is far from the only one to face retaliation for doing what he knew was right. In fact, over the last decade an estimated 2,000 federal workers have complained of reprisals for whistleblowing.

These people shouldn't be punished. They should be praised. They are front-line soldiers in the battle against waste, fraud and mismanagement. Giving protection to them is a very simple and very effective way to save taxpayers' dollars.

That is why I've authored the Whistleblower Protection Bill. It's also why I'm proud that my bill has passed the Congress and was just signed into law by President Bush.

The law protects whistleblowers by making it easier for them to prove that they were retaliated against for reporting instances of waste or mismanagement. It also grants federal employees the right — for the first time — to appeal their own cases to an administrative appeals board. And it ensures the independence of the Office of Special Counsel (the agency charged with protecting whistleblowers) and requires it to work in the interest of whistleblowers.

Getting this bill passed was no picnic. Last year both the House and Senate unanimously passed an almost identical bill. Nevertheless, President Reagan vetoed it. He said that it would block the government from firing incompetent workers, an argument that just doesn't hold water.

Fortunately, the Bush Administration joined Congressional supporters in working to produce an even stronger bill. The final version makes a number of substantive changes in last year's bill. Those changes meet some of the president's concerns and also correct some provisions which had been weakened in a vain attempt to win President Reagan's support.

We cannot solve our nation's most difficult problems — like the budget deficit — through confrontation and partisanship. We can solve such pressing problems if we work together.

City of Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES AND ON THE PROPOSED 1989-1990 CITY BUDGET

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms will hold a Public Hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, May 15, 1989 in the City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, on the proposed 1989 City tax levy and on the proposed 1989-1990 City Budget. The proposed Budget is on file in the Office of the City Controller for public inspection during regular office hours, 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The following is a summary of the proposed Budget:

GENERAL FUND

BUDGET ACCOUNTS	EXPENSE APPROPRIATION
Administrative.....	$623,860
Police.....	$1,832,100
Fire.....	$742,000
Public Service.....	$155,800
Public Works.....	$1,609,100
Recreation.....	$400,000
Municipal Court.....	$140,400
Sewage Pumping.....	$404,300
Debt Service.....	$92,470
Major & Extraordinary.....	$500,000
General.....	$750,800
Total Expenses.....	$7,270,000

FINANCING

Other Funds.....	$320,000
Estimated Revenue-State Shares Fine, Permits, License, Fees, etc.....	$1,860,000
Surplus Appropriated.....	$766,000
Tax Levy.....	$4,324,000
Total Financing.....	$7,270,000

PROPOSED TAX RATE 11.50 per thousand Based on Est. State Equalized Value of $376,000,000.

Last year (1988) the City levied 12.10 mills ($12.10 per $1,000 SEV) for City operating purposes. Because of an estimated increase in the State Equalized Value of existing property in the City, state law (Act 15 of 1982) provides that the base rate for 1988 City operating tax rate be decreased to 11.00 mills ($11.00 per $1,000 SEV). This is 1.10 mills ($1.10 per $1,000 SEV) lower than the 1988 tax rate.

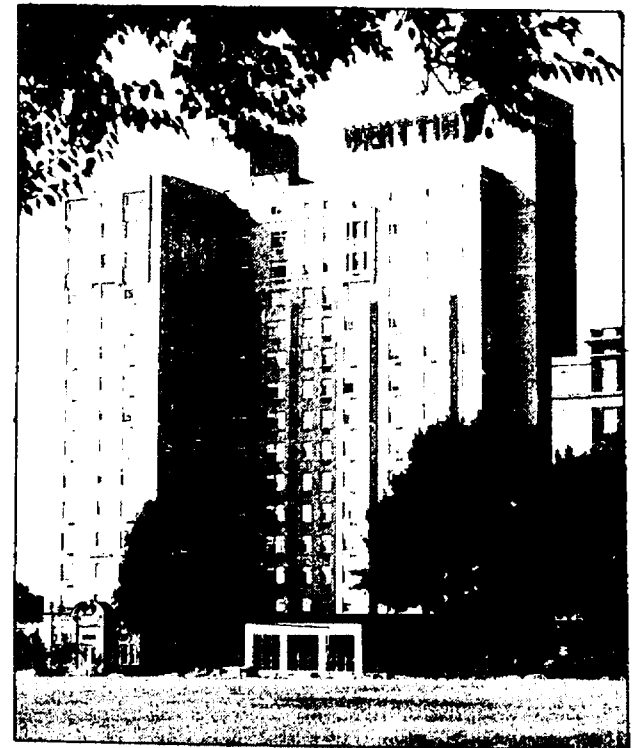

Under the City's proposed 1989-1990 Budget provide for Debt Service and to maintain the present level of City services, the City finds it necessary to increase its operating tax levy. An additional millage rate of .50 mills ($.50 cents per $1,000 SEV) is proposed above the 1988 base operating millage rate. This would provide an estimated 5.1% increase in City operating tax revenues.

Public comments, oral or written are welcome at the Public Hearing on the proposed City Budget.

Shores village president, 4 trustees to be elected May 16

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Voters in the village of Grosse Pointe Shores will elect a council president, three trustees for a two-year term and one trustee for a one-year term on Tuesday, May 16. For the first time in years, there is a contested race.

The sole candidate for village president is incumbent Edmund M. Brady Jr. Six people are running for three two-year terms: incumbents John Huettelman III, N. William O'Keefe and Rose Garland Thornton; and Frank P. McBride Jr., John F. Potvin and E. Ray Stricker. Two candidates, incumbent John F. Monahan and Kristin Ann Hoffman, are vying for a one-year term to fill an unexpired term.

One reason for the number of candidates is due to a shake-up last December when then-President Gerald Schroeder resigned after 34 years on the council, 17 years as president. There was some controversy among the council as to the manner in which his successor, Edmund M. Brady Jr., was elected.

When the smoke cleared, Daniel Beck, another councilman, resigned, leaving two open seats that were filled with the appointments of Monahan and O'Keefe.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Vernier School. Voters may apply for absentee ballots by mail or in person at the village offices by 2 p.m. Saturday, May 13. Emergency requests may be made until 4 p.m. on election day. Absentee ballots must be turned in by 8 p.m. May 16.

The League of Woman Voters of Grosse Pointe will also publish and distribute a voter guide for the election.

complished. "We have made a tremendous amount of progress in roads and other improvements," he said.

He cited work on roads, including new curbs and the repaving on Lakeshore. Work on the infrastructure has kept the Shores up to date, he said, and the council will continue to keep ahead of needs.

While there are a number of issues facing the Shores, there is none more important, says Brady, than the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Authority's incinerator which has been closed since late December.

"And it's more than community-wide, it's worldwide," Brady said. He added that the council is in the planning stages of having a city-wide recycling program, a program he believes may one day be mandated by the state.

The village has explored the possibility of placing receptacles for recyclable items at its offices, and is considering the possibility of home pickup.

"But the key issue is that the citizenry is going to have to react," he said.

He said he hopes they react during the election, too.

"The community does not experience too many contested elections," he said, adding that the recent change in board members may have led to the number of candidates.

"(The number of candidates) is very healthy for the community," he said.

"I've lived in Grosse Pointe Shores for 35 years, and I love it. I've really enjoyed my time on the council, and I think we will continue to work well for the benefit of the city."

Kristin Ann Hoffman

sue facing the Shores, she said, and added that the council should do extensive research before deciding how to move ahead.

"I support the council we have now," she said. "I don't think you can ask for more than what they're doing. I just want to add my voice to theirs."

John F. Monahan

John F. Monahan was appointed to the council earlier this year to take the place of Daniel Beck. He has lived in the Pointes for 40 years, and in the Shores for the last 17.

He is married and has seven children.

A general contractor, he has been president of Edward V. Monahan, Inc. for 30 years. The company specializes in hospital-type buildings and has built most of Cottage and Bon Secours hospitals and renovated the Punch and Judy Building.

His background in construction led to a position on the Shores Planning Commission on which he has served for the past two years. He has been on the council for three months.

"My interest really in the Shores has been with the Planning Commission," he said.

While on the commission, he said the main issue was the establishing of a new zoning classification which was in response to accretion along the lakeshore.

"I liked the job and I have a lot of interest in this community. It's a marvelously run community," he said.

But there are some issues which the council must address — the foremost being waste management.

"Recycling is the wave of the future," he said. "Everybody should be involved in it. The Shores is looking into it now."

Monahan is past president of the Friends of Bon Secours and is on the War Memorial board. He is involved because he wants to be of service to the community he lives in, he said.

"I really think I have something to contribute."

John Huettelman III

John Huettelman III is running for his third term on the Shores council. He is following in his father's footsteps who was involved with village government for 20 years, part of that time as president of the council.

President of John Huettelman Co., a food brokerage business with offices throughout the state, Huettelman has lived all his life in the Shores, and calls it "the pride of the state."

John Huettelman III

"I shared the interest my father had in this city," he said. "I got very interested in it as a young boy. I think I've got that same love of community that he showed."

Huettelman is proud of the work the council has done regarding the beautification of Lakeshore, and says the Public Safety Department and the Department of Public Works, are state of the art and provide the best services around.

Although he praises the Shores, he still believes there are things to be done.

The two main areas of concern to the village are the infrastructure and the incinerator situation.

Updating the infrastructure before a problem develops is something the council has specialized in and will continue to do so, he said.

"I don't think any of us really knows what will be done about recycling," he said, "but we're trying to be the forerunner." He said the council is looking into city-wide drop-off receptacles, but is proceeding cautiously.

"We don't know what the state will do and we don't want to spend money foolishly," he said.

He is looking forward to another term on the board.

"I've put a lot into the council and I have a lot of things started that I want to see completed," he said.

Frank P. McBride Jr.

Frank P. McBride Jr. is running for office for the first time since the early '60s when he successfully ran for precinct delegate. Aside from that, he has not ventured into politics.

He has been active, though. He was president of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial board, has chaired the Port Huron-to-Mackinac Race and the Spirit of Detroit race.

McBride, who owns his own insurance company which bears his name, is best known as a sports announcer for WJR radio. He reports on boating and other outdoor sporting events.

Edmund M. Brady Jr.

Edmund M. Brady Jr. has been on the council since 1980. Prior to that he served for five years as the Shores clerk.

He is a senior partner with the Detroit law firm of Vandevier Garzia P.C. Brady is married and has three children. He is president-elect of the Detroit Bar Association.

Brady's father was chairman of the Shores planning commission and a municipal judge. Brady said he was raised with the idea that public service is an honor.

In his eight years on the board, he said a lot has been ac-

Kristin Ann Hoffman

At 27, Kristin Ann Hoffman is the youngest candidate in all the fields. As manager of the Grosse Pointe Shores Municipal Park for the past three years, she said she has been in touch with residents and knows their needs.

Hoffman graduated summa cum laude from the University of Michigan with a degree in economics and finance. She will be entering U of M's law school in the fall.

While she praises the current council, she believes the residents — especially the boaters and those who use the park — can benefit from her representation.

"The biggest money-eater," she said, "is the park. I think the boaters would like a bigger voice on the council."

"I would like to see the council shift its focus to long-range planning," Hoffman said. She would like to see the budget process formalized to make it clearer to the residents and departments.

"I would also like to see the Shores get into line with the other Pointes," she said. For example, the Shores does not receive Grosse Pointe Cable, which it should, she believes.

Hoffman would also like to see the departments of Public Works and Public Safety have more input in decisions, and not just be called on to implement council plans.

'Loverboy' fails in attempt to have redeeming social value

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Before we start saying all the nasty things we have to say about "Loverboy," let's get one thing out of the way first.

It seems reasonable to suspect this film has aspirations of being more than just a hormone-out-of-control teen movie. It wants to be a hormone-out-of-control teen movie with a conscience.

There's a difference, of course, but only when the conscience aspect is as strong as the hormone aspect.

Still, a film that even bothers to consider love, respect and morality should receive some kudos for that consideration.

Now that we've cleared that up, let's look a little more closely at what's going on here. A mix of "Risky Business" and a hundred other teen films of lesser-quality, this picture asks us to consider what would happen when a young man finds that prostitution is his only alternative if he wants to return to the woman he loves.

It goes like this: The young man's father is tired of paying money for his son's college education when all his son does is party and flunk classes. The son, who knows the only way he'll ever be able to truly win the heart of his girlfriend is while they're together at college, cooks up an elaborate scheme for money.

It seems the woman he delivers pizzas to are interested in more than just pepperonis and anchovies. They want their delivery man. With the works.

At $200 a delivery, the money adds up pretty fast.

Just to make things complicated, throw in the delivery boy's parents who can't make up their minds about whether to be intelligent or totally pinheaded. They think their son is gay, and you can only imagine the problems this presents for a respectable middle-class family. Throw in too, a Blake Edwards-ish world in which everybody is somehow related to everybody else: the better to increase the comedies of error as the film comes to its awkward conclusion.

Once the girlfriend finds out what's been going on, she's none too thrilled, of course. She tells the pizza boy she never wants to see him again. Five minutes later, she's in his arms, dancing into the credits. It seems the pizza boy is able to convince his woman that he was a prostitute because he loves her. How many men would be willing to go through such an ordeal, we're asked to ponder.

It's an insult to our intelligence, of course. As is the argument that the pizza boy didn't do anything wrong — he was just making 40 neglected rich women feel loved and wanted.

How noble. I don't buy it. And neither will viewers. If the creative forces behind this picture were actually trying to make a film with a conscience, they offended too many people in the process, and lost all credibility.

Patrick Dempsey stars as Randy Bodek, who becomes a reluctant loverboy, as his summer job as a pizza delivery boy becomes a wild escapade that returns romance to Beverly Hills in "Loverboy."

If they were trying to make a hormone-out-of-control movie, they failed at that, too. Because this film obviously isn't aimed at adults. And it won't do anything for the adolescent crowd except bore them.

'Red Scorpion' is Russian Rambo imitation

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

There's something beautifully — if not poetically — ironic about "Red Scorpion."

Here is a film starring Dolph Lundgren, whom most viewers will recall was Sylvester Stallone's Russian opponent in "Rocky IV." During their time together on the "Rocky" set, Sly must have taught Dolph everything he knows about how to develop a complex character.

Which is to say he taught the tall blonde muscleman how to play a non-verbal mercenary-type hero who runs through the jungle and leaves destruction in his wake.

In "Scorpion," Lundgren plays a Russian Rambo. He's been trained by the top military brass to be a fighting machine; able to tackle the missions that nobody else can.

Sound familiar?

Film

Listen close now, because here's where things get complicated. The big, bad government types in the Kremlin are worried about how things are going in a small African country they have invaded. It seems the Cubans they left there to keep an eye on things have their hands full with a group of African rebels.

Dolph's mission: Get inside the rebel camp and exterminate the leader.

Sound familiar?

Anyway, somewhere along the line — right about the time Dolph fails in his mission, gets chewed out by his bosses, has needles stuck through his skin and gets stung by a scorpion — there's an incredible transformation. Dolph develops a conscience. He decides his country's atrocities are wrong.

After being befriended by a bushman, he befriends all the aborigines. And fights for them. And kills for them. And becomes a man without a country. All of which is all right, of course, because Dolph is strong enough in body and spirit to stand against the entire world.

Sound familiar?

It should, unless you've missed each of the (count them) three "Rambo" pictures. If, on the other hand, you've seen any of the (count them) three "Rambo" pictures, and you've seen what to date is the (count it) fourth installment of the "Rocky" series, you know exactly what to expect here.

Lots of guns. Lots of violence. Lots of blood. Lots of "Good Golly Miss Molly" (don't ask). Lots of nothing in terms of conversation.

And, if Dolph learned anything, lots of sequels.

Stephen King's 'Pet Semetary' achieves sheer terror

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Stephen King, the King of Horror, has established a reputation for never letting his fans off the hook once he has their attention. "Pet Semetary" which he wrote, and is based on the book which he also wrote, is a classic example of his macabre attempt to reach out and take readers/viewers to the edge of dread.

The tale begins when Dr.

Louis Creed (Dale Midkoff) moves to a small town in Maine with his wife, Rachel (Dale Crosby), their two children, Ellie and Gage, and their cat, Church.

It's a major move for the young doctor who is uneasy, as most new homeowners are, at the enormous debt he has incurred. He looks for reassurance to his wife and is relieved when she gives her approval. The children seem happy. Ellie has spotted a tire hanging from a tree and is swinging on it. Gage is toddling around inspecting his new surroundings. Everyone seems satisfied.

Then things begin to happen. The swing breaks and Ellie is hurt. When Rachel and Louis rush to attend her, Gage wanders off toward a busy truck route road. The grind of brakes is heard. Jeff and Rachel rush out front where they meet Judd Crandall (Fred Gwynne) who has just pulled Gage out of the path of the trucks. Judd lives alone in a house across the street.

As the two men become better acquainted, Judd becomes a father figure to Louis who lost his own father at the age of 3. Unwittingly, he also sets in motion the terror to come.

When they return from their walk, there is a call for Louis to come to the hospital. A young man has been hit by a truck and is in critical condition. Louis tries his best but the young man dies. That night as Louis sleeps, the young man, mangled and bleeding, appears in the bedroom and commands Louis to come with him down the path to the cemetery. Once there, he warns Louis never to go beyond that point. Louis is certain it is a dream. But why does he wake up with mud all over his feet in the morning?

A series of incidents follow that appear to be really happening but at the same time are beyond belief.

This amazing talent of King to convince his fans that they are witnessing the probable when in their minds they know what they are seeing is a product of his imagination is part of what makes his work so fascinating. First-time director Mary Lambert makes her debut with an enthusiastic zest for realistic detail, no matter how scary. She appears to have the same ability to make the unbelievable believable and to contrast such scenes as a toddler laughing with delight as he watches a kite soar into an unclouded sky with a little monster bent on blood curdling acts of violence.

"Pet Semetary" doesn't depend on fabricated monsters of spectacular special effects to raise goose bumps. It achieves sheer terror with a story involving real people.

Fright fans will applaud "Pet Semetary" even as they shudder.

Blue and Gray to battle again at Fort Wayne

The thunderous roar of cannon fire will herald the opening of Historic Fort Wayne's 1989 season May 6 and 7 as it celebrates its 15th annual Civil War Days.

This event traditionally marks the opening of the Fort and features re-enactments of battles fought during the War Between the States. Authentically clad and equipped interpreters will portray Union and Confederate soldiers and will demonstrate military life and battle during the 1860s.

Civilian participation in the Civil War will not be overlooked in this authentic re-enactment. Interpreters will re-enact the roles played by relief agencies and societies as well as local townsfolk. There will also be a patriotic entertainment program with a military tableau and music, temperance rally, medicine show, and a fashion show of period dress.

The only remaining river fort built during the city's 300-year history, Fort Wayne offers visitors an experience that can't be found anywhere else for hundreds of miles.

"We are the only original fort remaining in the lower peninsula," said Dr. William Rhenix, curator of Military History for the Detroit Historical Department and curator of Historic Fort Wayne. "We pride ourselves on being a family facility with our location on the Detroit River and full schedule of activities — many of them free of charge."

The gates of the 147 year-old Fort open at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday through Sunday and close at 5 p.m. Admission to the fort including all Civil War Days activities, is $1 for adults, and 50 cents for children and senior citizens.

Historic Fort Wayne is located at the foot of Livernois and W. Jefferson, off I-75.

'Carousel' ready to spin

With its universally familiar songs like "You'll Never Walk Alone," "If I Loved You" and "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," the Broadway musical "Carousel" is coming to the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts for a three-night run.

A touring professional theater company will present fully staged and costumed performances at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, May 19-20, and at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 21.

The show, set in the late 1800s amid the clean-living people of New England, was the first musical written by the team of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein following their tremendous success with "Oklahoma."

The lead male role of Billy Bigelow is played by Nat Chandler, whose professional credits include his portrayal of Lun Tha in "The King and I" and several parts in Metropolitan Opera productions. Playing Julie is Maureen Dodson.

Tickets are $18 for adults and $16 for students and senior citizens. They may be reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222 weekdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Opera for children scheduled

Children's theatre at the Hilberry, a summer tradition for 18 seasons, takes a new turn this coming summer with the presentation of an opera for children, "Ke-Nu and the Magic Coals." Matinees are scheduled at 10:30 a.m. weekdays from June 26 through July 14.

The opera was composed by Grosse Pointe resident James Hartway, professor of music at Wayne State University, with libretto by Anca Vlasopolos, WSU English professor, and her husband, Anthony Ambrogio. The work was commissioned by Michigan Opera Theatre, which toured it throughout Michigan in 1987 for some 30 performances.

Based on American Indian lore, the one-act opera tells the story of Ke-Nu, a young Indian brave, and his adventures as he fights to save his village from the Spirit of Ice and Cold.

The production is made possible by a grant from the DeRoy Testamentary Foundation.

OK expected for Pointe developer's outlet mall

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

The $35 million factory-outlets mall being built by a Grosse Pointe developer was unanimously recommended for approval by the Chesterfield Township Planning Commission last week, and the county board's OK is expected soon.

The 560,000-square-foot outlets mall at Hall Road and Interstate 94 is being developed by Russell Development Inc. of Grosse Pointe and will include two hotels with a total of 250 rooms.

Grosse Pointe resident Edward J. Russell III, executive vice president of Russell Development Co., said the outlet mall and hotels project is the largest ever built by the group of companies operated by the extended Russell family. The 85-acre retail-hotel complex will be called Lighthouse Pointe.

"We're working with getting a couple of anchor stores signed," Russell said. "And we have a couple of major hotel chains ready to go."

He would not say who the major retailers are that he is negotiating with, nor would he indicate what hotel chains are interested. Russell said he is not having a problem finding major retailers and is trying to decide which anchors to sign up that would allow for the best possible retail mix.

Russell and his cousin, Richard Russell Jr., are working together on the Lighthouse Pointe project. Richard Russell Jr. will be supervising the construction along with Construction Management Specialists Inc. of Livonia.

The Russell group of companies are also involved in custom-home building and multi-family and condominium construction. The original Edward J. Russell, Edward Russell III's grandfather, began building in Grosse Pointe some 75 years ago and built many homes on Lakeshore and thousands of homes throughout the Grosse Pointes and the east side.

More recently, the Russell companies have built the Briarwood Place and Windemere Place subdivisions in the Farms.

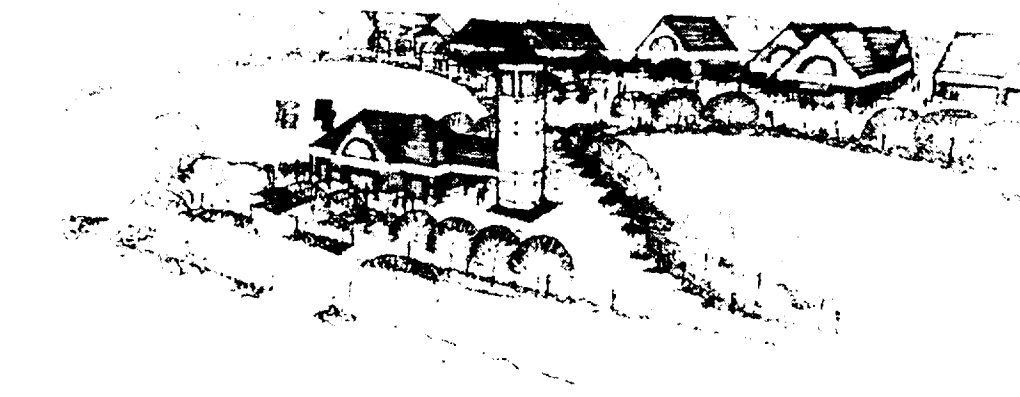

In Clinton Township, the Russell companies are building an $18 million office, retail and condominium complex near Harper and Metropolitan Parkway. Named Stonegate, the project will include 140 condominiums and 35,000 square feet of retail space.

Lighthouse Pointe will include a food court and upwards of 150 stores, with the total number of retailers depending on how much space the anchor stores use, according to Joseph Rokicsak, president of Construction Management Specialists.

Rokicsak said Lighthouse Pointe will also have a pond and park-like area and a lighthouse that can be seen from the interstate. The hotels will most likely be a mid-priced one and an economy inn, he said.

Russell said it is premature to announce the chains that are looking at operating the hotels because all final agreements are on hold pending the Chesterfield Township board's final approval.

Chesterfield Planning Commission Chairman Rodger Knight said the matter was expected to come before the board May 1. The board usually tables rezoning recommendations from the Planning Commission for two weeks, he said.

Lighthouse Pointe, a $35 million project by Russell Development Inc. of Grosse Pointe, will include some 150 factory-outlet stores and two hotels at the intersection of Hall Road and Interstate 94.

The vacant property owned by Russell Development Inc. is currently zoned commercial and multi-family residential. The rezoning, if approved, would put the land under the township's C-4 classification, which gives the township more control in the planning process but also allows the developer to build large, multi-use projects.

Knight said there has been no opposition to the project in Chesterfield Township, and he said the factory-outlets mall and hotels will work well with the current widening of Hall Road. Easy access to Hall Road and I-94 will keep Lighthouse Pointe's traffic from overburdening township roads, Knight said.

According to a study by the state Department of Transportation, some 178,000 vehicles a day travel through the intersection of I-94 and Hall Road.

Rokicsak said the mall and hotels should create 1,000 to 1,500 jobs. According to the state Department of Labor, the Lighthouse Pointe development will create some 3,000 jobs, including the many peripheral businesses that will spring up around the mall.

Russell and Rokicsak hope to have the first retail stores open by spring of next year and the entire project done by spring 1991.

Frank P. McBride Jr.

His involvement with boating led to a position on the Michigan State Waterways Commission, which is part of the Department of Natural Resources. The commission regulates the more than 70 harbors and 800 public access sites for boaters.

"Grosse Pointe Shores is the finest of the Grosse Pointes in terms of services rendered and the maintenance of the city," he said, "and my desire is to see it continue to be that."

The main issue facing the new council is recycling, McBride said.

"Refuse disposal is a problem that's not unique to the area," he said. "And we're going to be doing a lot of recycling, if we want to keep our incinerator operating."

Because of his involvement with boating and waterways, he said he could add an important voice to village government.

"I think we've got a great community, and I want to keep it this way," he said.

N. William O'Keefe

N. William O'Keefe is another new board member, appointed in January to fill the seat held by Edmund Brady Jr. who in December replaced Gerald Schroeder as president.

O'Keefe, a self-employed insurance consultant, has lived in the Shores for 14 years and in that time has served on the village's Board of Review, the Planning Commission and as a trustee of the Shores Foundation, of which he speaks highly.

N. William O'Keefe

He has also been involved with PTOs, the North Dads' Club and was a member of the citizens' advisory committee when the school board was studying school closures. He was the charter president of Lakeshore Optimists, of which he is still a member. He is married and has two children.

"I want to continue to serve the community and to stay involved in community activities," he said.

He praises the board for its work on the senior citizen transport service (Pointes Area Assisted Transit Service), and for the groundwork which is being done regarding recycling. He also lauds the council's support of the Family Life Education Council and its projects.

"Basically our residents don't have any real problems," he said, due to good planning by the council. "They've done an excellent job."

He said he enjoys serving his community and hopes to continue with another term in office.

John F. Potvin

John F. Potvin is new to the Shores, but he has lived most of his life in the Grosse Pointes.

He is a shareholder in the law firm of Plunkett and Cooney, practicing out of the firm's Mount Clemens office. He is a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserves Judge Advocate General Corps. He is active with the State Bar of Michigan where he sits on committees, and is president of the board of trustees of DeLaSalle High School, his alma mater.

John F. Potvin

He is married and has two grown children. This is his second attempt at public office, running unsuccessfully for Grosse Pointe Park council years ago.

"I noticed when I moved into the Shores and voted last time that it seemed there was no opposition," he said. "To keep the best candidates, you need opposition."

He hopes for a position on the council to ensure that residents get their tax dollars' worth. He praised the Shores Public Safety Department for its quick response time and the low number of crimes in the city.

"The assessments are up in the Shores and the people want to be sure they are getting their due," he said. "That's really the only issue facing the council."

Recycling is another issue, he said, but needs to be studied before the council takes any action.

He believes he can bring hard work and a common sense approach to the council.

"I thrive on being busy," he said. "I enjoy being on committees and working hard."

As for common sense: "I practice law that way, and I think most problems can be solved if common sense is used."

E. Ray Stricker

E. Ray Stricker has lived in the Shores for 25 years. He was prompted to run for office at the urging of a friend, and because he wants to keep a watchful eye on the council.

Stricker has a boat at the Shores park, and was bothered by the deal the Shores made with the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club in which the village gave some property to the yacht club and in exchange, the club installed new boat wells for the Shores.

E. Ray Stricker

"I never got a straight answer, and it bothered me that they gave this land away," he said. "We are a very small community and I don't feel we should be giving away land."

A retired dentist, Stricker has been active in his church and professional organizations. He is married and has three grown children.

"I'm of a different background than the rest of the board," Stricker said. "I grew up relatively poor. I'm not a paper shuffler, and I think I would be quite conscientious in serving."

He supports the work being done in respect to waste disposal and urges recycling and composting. "It's really a big issue worldwide," he said. "We're a disposable society. How can we go back? It's one of those slow things, but it will happen."

"I can never stand still and I want to serve my community," he said. "I'm proud of the community and I want to make sure nothing sneaks in the back door."

Rose Garland Thornton

she said. "I enjoy being on the board. It's like running a good home."

Thornton has been involved with senior citizen programs, and was instrumental in getting the Shores to provide funding for Services for Older Citizens.

SOC's programs include one that provides minor home repair for which qualifying residents only make a token payment.

"We discovered that many older people are home-rich but cash-poor," she said.

Thornton also led the way for the Pointes Area Assisted Transit Service and also sits on the board of that organization.

She praises the council and its work.

"I'm very happy about what we're doing now, and I still want to continue to serve the city," she said.

Action Auction '89:

The ultimate in one-stop shopping

By Margie Reins Smith
 Staff Writer

Action Auction — the title of Grosse Pointe Academy's annual fundraiser — has become a Grosse Pointe buzzword.

This year's preview and mini auction will be Wednesday, May 10, from 6 to 9 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Academy.

Saturday, May 13, is the main event. Silent auction bidding begins at 4:30 p.m. at the Academy and ends at 6:30 p.m. The live auction action runs from 7 to 9 p.m. Lawrence and Ernest J. DuMouchelle will serve as auctioneers.

An optional dinner and dance follows at the Country Club of Detroit.

The first Action Auction was in 1967.

Photos by Margie Reins Smith

Co-chairwomen of Action Auction '89 Joan Gehrke, left, and Thumper Haggarty are finalizing plans for Grosse Pointe Academy's annual fundraiser May 10 and 13.

"We raised $35,000 that year," said Joan Gehrke, co-chairwoman of this year's event. "The headline item was an Acapulco vacation for two, donated by Mrs. Diego Rivera."

"It's probably the oldest auction in the country for a school our size," co-chairman Thumper Haggarty said. And the Academy's Action Auction is the most successful fundraiser of its kind in the country, according to Gehrke.

Last year, the event brought in more than a half million dollars. The co-chairs estimated they'll raise more than $650,000 this year.

It all goes to Grosse Pointe Academy's operating budget for such items as scholarships, endowments and restoration and preservation of the school's historic lakefront property, 171 Lakeshore, in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"People appreciate the treasure we have here," Gehrke said, with a sweep of an arm indicating the 103-year-old Lakeshore building.

Originally a private school for girls, Sacred Heart Academy was built in 1886. The Lakeshore building has been listed as a Michigan Historic Landmark since 1977 and it was recently added to the National Register of Historic Places.

Gehrke said about 150 volunteers work on the fundraiser for nearly a year. For the last 10 years, computers have increased their efficiency. The project includes more than 950 donors and hundreds of volunteer hours devoted to acquiring donations, record-keeping, cataloging, and letter-writing as well as taking reservations, designing brochures and programs, planning publicity and ticket sales.

"We couldn't do it without a computer," Haggarty said. Barbara Prues, the sole salaried full-time auction worker, said she uses a computer to log in every item, every donor, every price. She has a list of everyone who attends. She has address lists for thank-you notes and correspondence and other mailings. She has lists for next year's auction plans.

Over the years, headline items have become more spectacular and more unique — making that 1967 Acapulco vacation look rather ho-hum.

The event is the ultimate in one-stop shopping. Publicity chairwoman Ardis Gardella speculated that a serious shopper could furnish an entire house with purchases from this year's auction. "There's everything," she said, "including a bathroom sink. And it's all top-of-the-line."

For instance, for the house:

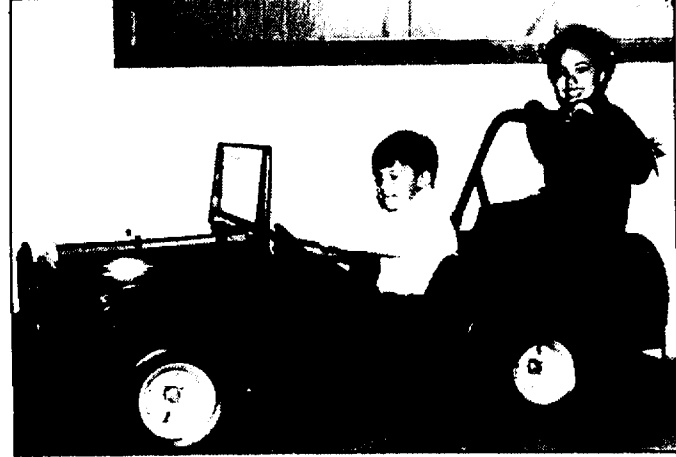

- A Seiler grand piano.
- A Pierre Deux bedroom set, including carved queen-size headboard, mattresses, armoire, triple dresser, two mirrors, and linens.
- Giant-screen color TV and VCR.
- Art: a Kristich oil; a Bittar oil; two Peter Max lithographs; several bronze sculptures.
- A Henredon dining room ensemble, including double pedestal table, six side chairs, two arm chairs and sideboard.
- Twelve five-piece settings of Tiffany Sterling flatware.

History is bunk? Not at the Village Antiques Show

At Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, spring means more than bursting blossoms and baby lambs. It's also time for the fifth annual Village Antiques Show. This spring the show dates are May 12-14.

Ranked as one of the top five antique shows in the nation, the annual event will feature 47 dealers from all over the U.S. displaying a variety of antiques in Lovett Hall.

In addition, a bonus: two free lectures on practical aspects of antiquing.

Proceeds from the show will help support Henry Ford Museum's educational programs — including tours for school and youth groups, hands-on experiences for children, overnight programs and classroom experiences for kids in the museum's historic school buildings. The educational programs reach an estimated 350,000 children annually.

Friday's 3 p.m. lecture, by Robert O. Stuart, is "Building an American Furniture Collection in the 1990s: A Strategy for Contemporary Collectors."

Saturday, at 3 p.m., Michael Stone will lecture on "Connoisseurship — The Endless Quest."

Tickets are still available for preview night Thursday, May 11. It includes an open bar and gourmet dinner along with a chance to preview and purchase. Benefactor tickets are $125 per person; patron tickets are $100 per person.

Admission to the Village Antiques Show is $5 at the door; $4 in advance. Hours are Friday, May 12 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, May 13 from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m.; Sunday, May 14 from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Scratch-and-Sniff: Culinary herbs enjoy revival of interest

Over the last few years there has been a great revival of interest in herbs, a subject with a venerable history.

With a new respect accorded to herbs by the medical profession, the herbalist physicians of the Middle Ages have been viewed in a new light, and new research into the many healing properties of herbs is opening up fresh approaches to the chemist and pharmacist as well.

Culinary herbs have again acquired the importance they had during the Middle Ages when the ladies of every manor house, farm or castle had their still-rooms where they compounded herb vinegars, mixtures of dried herbs for seasoning, and confectios and preserves based on the herbs they had grown in their gardens. The perfume industry is one of the largest users of herbs which are used as aromatics, accents and blenders in nearly all of the popular perfumes of today.

Books on herbs and herb lore abound. There are 18 of them in the library of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center.

One of the most charming and informative of the newer books on herbs is "Herbs: Gardens, Decorations and Food," by Emile Tolley, who will be the speaker at the Garden Center's Spring Berry Memorial Lecture to be held next Thursday, May 11, at 10:30 a.m. at the Fries Auditorium at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. She will be on hand to autograph copies of the book which will be available at the reception following the program.

Garden Center members may attend the lecture free. Others will be most welcome at $7.50. To attend the subscription reception, where some of the treats to be served will be made from recipes in Tolley's book, checks made out to the Grosse Pointe Garden Center for $3.50 will constitute reservations.

Among the beautiful prizes to be raffled are a topiary peacock and an antique botanical print which has been framed courtesy of Marilyn Harris of the Mack Avenue Framing Gallery. Herbal creations and garden gifts complete the prospect for this delightful occasion.

Some of the most popular herbs in use today have romantic pasts. Sweet basil, so marvelous in tomato dishes, is sacred in India to Krishna and Vishnu, and to die with a sprig of basil on one's breast is to wear a passport to paradise.

The Moldavians consider the basil to be an herb of such potency that a man who accepts a sprig of it from a woman will be so enchanted that he will love her forever. And in Italy it is said that basil engenders sympathy between those who may wear it.

There are probably more legends and myths connected with thyme than almost any other herb. Among them is the idea that if you brush your eyelids with wild thyme you will be able to see elves, gnomes, fairies and sprites invisible to everyone else.

Chervil, on the other hand, one of the ingredients in the so-called "fines Herbes" mixture, was one of the most basic herbs in the gardens and kitchens of ancient Rome. In the 15th century it was one of the basic staples of the kitchen and was also used as a strewing herb scattered on floors to give a sweet scent to the rooms in the house.

Oregano, a basic herb in spaghetti sauce recipes, was very popular in the early 19th century as a sachet ingredient to be carried in a small packet to sniff in case of faintness instead of smelling salts. And a rinse made of cooled oregano tea was poured through the hair to condition it and to prevent hair loss.

Also very popular during the 19th century as a hair rinse was a tea made of chamomile leaves and flowers. This was guaranteed to keep blonde hair from darkening. It is a foolproof garden asset as well as it is easy to grow and is very ornamental. Its nickname is "plant's physician" since it seems to promote the vigor and health of any other plants grown near it.

The flowers have many uses beside hair rinses. They make an aromatic herb tea, are wonderfully fragrant in potpourris, are an insect repellent, and have definite antiseptic properties. Chamomile tea is the oldest herb tea on record. It has been popular for literally thousands of years.

Sage is nearly as venerable. The Chinese have long considered it with great respect, and in past generations held it in such high regard that they would barter four units of tea for one of the precious herbs. Its brew was thought to aid digestion and to have the power to markedly slow the aging process. Sage derives its name from the Latin word meaning to heal and it was considered, in ancient Rome, that if one were anointed with this herb one would become exceedingly wise and possibly never grow old.

There is Mother's Day and Father's Day but for some reason Grandparents Day has never really caught on. Perhaps it's just a case of overkill. Too many special days. Too much strain on the pocketbook. And then, grandparents usually discourage parents from spending money on them. They remember their own struggles as young householders and feel embarrassed about budgets being squeezed to honor them.

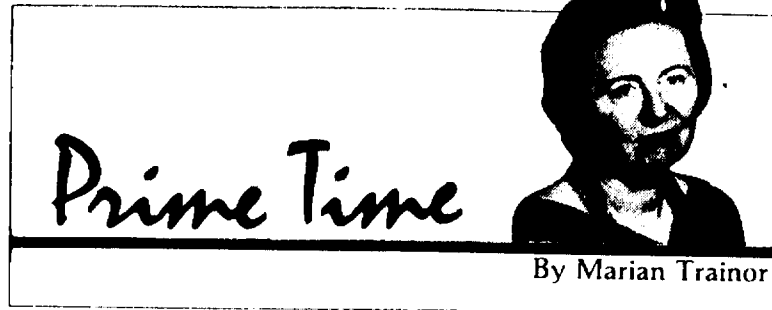

But still in all, they like to be recognized. They are appreciative of the schools that set aside a day in spring as "Grandparents Day."

On that day, grandparents are invited into the schools to visit their grandchildren's classes, eat lunch with them, admire their talents in an entertainment put on especially for them, stroll the halls decorated with art projects and generally get acquainted with an important phase of their grandchildren's lives they see only on this special day.

For most of them it is a revelation. Where once children sat in neat rows, they now sit in groups. Where once rote and textbooks were the rule, children now learn by many methods. Where once they learned as a class, they now learn as individuals and progress at their own speed.

Libraries are media centers with classrooms centered around them, making it possible for students to do research freely whenever they need information to complete a report. Filmstrips, films and video tapes are available to introduce a new topic and reinforce classroom learning. Computer literacy is taught from kindergarten up, either in classrooms where a computer is part of the classroom equipment or in a computer room where children come as a class. The world has changed since most grandparents' time, and schools are making valiant efforts to keep up with it.

IN MANY WAYS grandpar-

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

ents have also changed. Once grandparents could be counted on as built-in babysitters. Now because of medical advances they are healthier and more vigorous and have more interests, than their grandparents had.

The sign is on the door. "Grandma and grandpa don't live here any more." They are off to Florida, on the golf course, taking a cruise or have jobs. Not that they don't love their grandchildren and enjoy spending time with them. It's just that they are no longer on call.

They are entitled. They have earned their independence. But that availability has created a problem. What does a working mother do about care for her young child?

Day care centers, child care centers are available in most neighborhoods. They fill a void but for many mothers it is a daily wrenching experience when they leave their child off in someone else's care for a whole day.

Now mothers are deprived of those early years and the close bonding that mothers of another era enjoyed: the daily cuddling, the first smile, the first tooth, the first step. Moms of today now must share that joy with caregivers.

It's a problem, but like all problems, it has a solution. That solution seems to be one that industry could solve by providing child care centers in the workplace.

Mothers would feel more comfortable if their child was close at hand where they might drop in at lunch time or on breaks to be with them.

WHY BUSINESS HAS shied away from providing this service is puzzling. In workplaces where that service has been provided, statistics show that there are fewer absences among female employees and the volume of work produced has increased.

It's a big jump from Grandparents Day to on-the-job day care centers but grandparents — even modern, mobile grandparents — share their children's concern for their young children.

With loving concern, grandparents fear for their grandchildren, particularly their future in a world where the threat of nuclear war hovers like a black cloud over the world. They fret over water, air and noise pollution. They fervently pray that their grandchildren will never be caught up in the drug scene.

They ponder over what they can do to assure a good life for their children's children. As grandparents they hope, as generations before us have hoped, for the best. There have been few times in history when the present was not beset by trouble and the future uncertain. There is some comfort in the thought that each generation has survived to perhaps worry aloud about their grandchildren.

And yet grandparents do worry because of present dangers and the threat of worse ahead. But we also forget that we are sometimes tired, our flow of optimism is at a low ebb and our enthusiasm has dimmed. This is not so with young people. They are fired with enthusiasm, courage and the strength to tackle whatever obstacles that lie ahead.

Nevertheless, there is a need to provide the kind of care for our babies that ensures close and loving contact during those first all-important years.

Saratoga presents series for seniors

"Realities," "Relationships," and "Resources" — the three Rs of a series of lectures for senior citizens called "Growing Older, Growing Bolder," will be presented at Saratoga Community Hospital during May.

The three-part series is designed to help seniors maintain a sense of humor and creativity while dealing with the challenges of their lives. It's offered through Saratoga's ElderMed America program in celebration of Older Americans Month.

Part one will explore "Realities" — the myths about aging and the good news about getting older. It will be Wednesday, May 10 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Part two will discuss "Relationships" — redefining old relationships and making new ones: love, sex and aging; concerns of dealing with aging parents and/or adult children; widows and widowers. It will be Wednesday, May 17, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Part three will concentrate on "Resources" — tapping into community resources and providing for the changing lifestyles of seniors. It will be Wednesday, May 31, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Last week I noted that the experts count their winners and losers (Plan their play as declarer) before they play from Dummy to the first trick. This is one of the significant differences separating the average and good players. If you discipline yourself to do so, it can be a rewarding achievement.

Take the following example: North/South correctly bid to a good three-No-Trump contract.

The Defense gets off to a fine 8 of Spades lead by West. The expert Declarer now plans his play for nine tricks by counting winners and losers before playing Dummy's first card. Let's join him for a moment in his counting process: Win the A of Spades . . . even if the King Clubs is off side, I win five tricks in that suit. Add to that at least two Hearts and one Diamond and I have my contract, with possibly more. If the King Club is wrong and West returns a second Spade, can it hurt me? No! So that's my line of play and conceivably I might win more than the required nine tricks.

The non-counter, Mr. Mediocre, at trick one only sees the free finesse that West has given him and he plays low and blows the contract. An alert East wins the King Spade and decides there's no future in continuing spades. Upon careful thought and with good reason, he switches to Diamonds. The result becomes embarrassing for the non-counter as the defense gathers in a Spade, four Diamonds and one Club to down two.

We learned to count in school. It's a good practice to continue at the bridge table.

"Overweight Patients Lose Too Much Weight!"

ORANGE, CA — A significant weight loss breakthrough of unprecedented magnitude has just been made. A new bioactive diet pill program containing amazing "E.A.B. Plus" has been perfected and is being marketed under the tradename Anorex 2000™.

Researchers are calling it the "diet miracle of the '90s." Anorex 2000 with "E.A.B. Plus" actually turns the body into a "fat burning machine" which consumes its own stored fat, flab and cellulite thus shedding pounds and inches like magic. A panel of leading U.S. doctors and health experts found Anorex 2000 "safe for effective weight loss." However it is an extremely powerful anorectic - instructions should be followed carefully.

Expense Delays Marketing

Anorex 2000 was developed after years of expensive research. Consequently it is not cheap - but it works! As one doctor commented, "My patients would pay many times the cost of Anorex 2000 to finally lose all the weight they want and need to lose - to finally realize their dreams of a thin, beautiful, healthy body. Some of my overweight patients actually lost too much weight with Anorex 2000."

Free 30 Day Trial Offer

Anorex 2000 is so effective and the results are so astonishing that the manufacturer is offering a 30 day free trial. If you postdate your check a full 30 days, it will be held to let you prove to yourself that you can safely lose all the weight you want. If you are not 100% satisfied with the remarkable change you see in the mirror, just return your Anorex 2000 and your check will be destroyed uncashed. You have no risk - you can't lose money, only years of unwanted fat and years off your appearance.

Send check or money order for $36.45 (+$3.50 for shipping and handling) for a 30 day supply or $64.00 (+$3.50) for a 60 day supply to Anorex 2000, 4642 E. Chapman Ave., Dept. A50, Orange, CA 92669. For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY simply call Anorex 2000 - 24 hours a day, 7 days a week TOLL FREE: 1-800-633-2222, Dept. A50, and use your VISA, MasterCard or American Express. Sorry, no C.O.D.s.

(Note: Because Anorex 2000 is such a powerful weight loss compound, doctors have advised the manufacturer to sell no more than one 60 day supply per customer.)

Medical eye care for the needy elderly

Here's how you can help elderly friends obtain medical eye care if they cannot afford it. Ask them to call the toll-free Help Line of the National Eye Care Project at 1-800-222-EYES.

Each qualified caller will be connected with a nearby ophthalmologist (a medical doctor who specializes in eye care). The doctor has volunteered to provide medical eye care for disadvantaged elderly at no out-of-pocket cost to the patient. If the elderly person is covered by Medicare or other health insurance, the doctor has agreed, for this project only, to accept insurance as payment in full. If the patient has no medical insurance, the care is free.

To qualify, the patient must be age 65 or older and U.S. citizen; the patient must no longer have access to an eye physician and surgeon (ophthalmologist) he or she has seen in the past.

This is not an eyeglasses program, and prescription drugs or hospital care are not covered. The National Eye Care Project is designed to detect and treat eye disease, which is prevalent among the elderly and a frequent cause of blindness.

St. John Hospital and Medical Center is located at 22101 Mackross at Mack.

Cancer support group for teens

Support for adolescents with cancer or those in remission, is offered the first and third Thursdays of each month at St. John Hospital and Medical Center. The next sessions are May 4 and 18.

The group meets in the hospital's pediatrics unit at 7 p.m.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These, too, are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here — open to all residents — are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special-interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund-raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

Kerri-Sue Kelly and Darcy Jones are two high school athletes who have quickly become two of the area's finest fast-pitch softball pitchers.

It amazes me to see Kelly, who pitches for North, and Jones, who hurls for South, use the buggy-whip motion to attack would-be hitters.

Women whipping the ball at 50 mph, and women hitting and fielding the ball.

Just juniors, Kelly and Jones have already met and beaten many opponents. Each pitch seems like a challenge, but one challenge I think they haven't had is pitching to a sports editor.

Swing away

That's right, I'm tossing my hat into the batter's box and challenging Kelly and Jones to hurl, whirl and twirl pitches toward me — not at me.

I'm going to get into the box and see if I can hit their best stuff, without being hit. Hitters from L'Anse Creuse, Romeo, East Detroit, Port Huron and other schools have gone home looking foolish because of Kelly's and Jones' precision, but I remain undaunted.

The ball looks easy to hit, but it's probably not. The ball comes and drops just before the plate, consequently baffling hitters. With Jones and Kelly on their respective mounds, sometimes no infielders or outfielders are needed.

The Grosse Pointe tandem is probably one of the state's finest. Both can toss the grapefruit-sized softball around 53-55 mph. To equate that, pretend you are trying to hit a Nolan Ryan fastball. Another difficult thing in softball is the reaction time. Jones and Kelly stand 40 feet away and baseball pitchers are perched at 60 feet, 6 inches.

I will . . .

Ah, 40 feet from getting smacked in the back with a Jones fastball, or a Kelly change up. Actually that's not true. The hallmark of both pitchers is their ability to control the ball — I hope. If either one decides to pitch a high hard one, I'm not sticking around to see which hospital I'd be taken to. On the other hand, if they toss a curve or a slider, I'll send it DEEEEEEP to left — the bat, not the ball.

If I am hit and unable to continue, or if I wind up in the big bullpen in the sky, I bequeath my mitt, my spikes and my bat to my wife Sandy, to display in our apartment as a memorial to my stupidity. To my nephew Jason goes the $20 my brother owes me, and my sister Susan, whose feet have been operated on several times, gets my feet in a transplant.

However, in the case that I survive, I get to live with the

Sports programs face serious problems

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Despite being fiscally responsible, the athletic programs at North and South face serious cutbacks if on June 12 Grosse Pointe voters do not approve the millage renewal and the 2.2 mill increase.

Since the millage was turned down April 10, the board has worked rigorously on a campaign to completely inform the community about the potential devastation the entire school system would face if the millage is rejected again.

Working on several assumptions, athletic directors at North and South have put together a series of proposals based on three situations:

- 1) If the renewal is granted, but the increase is denied.
- 2) If both pass.
- 3) If neither passes.

"When we were asked to take a look at our programs and make suggestions for cuts, it seemed like an innocent amount," said North Director of Athletics, Thomas Gauerke. "But when we went through it more specifically, it was — and is — very devastating."

Under the current vote, Gauerke and South Director of Athletics Jo Lake, have tried to maintain as many programs as possible. However, over the course of the three-year millage renewal and increase, every sport team will be directly affected.

"If the renewal only passes, then it would impact every sport in some way," Gauerke said. "We are facing the possibility of total elimination of some sports over the three years." That would be a cut of one-third to the athletic programs.

Within the first year, supposing the renewal only is passed, then the schools will need to cut $163,000 from the athletics/clubs/activities budget, $60,000 of which comes directly from the athletic budgets: an approximate cut of 20 percent.

The board has given the athletic directors the jurisdiction of what cuts to make, but they were given no choice about hockey.

Hockey at North and South, a 6-year-old program, costs approximately $25,000 per year, per school to operate. Therefore, if the renewal only passes, then hockey is slashed. The board, however, has given no guarantee that if both the renewal and increase are granted, that hockey will be retained.

In defense of the hockey program, Gauerke said, "It has the highest level of interest from participants and spectators. Kids and parents have really supported the programs at both schools."

The hockey programs, which according to superintendent Dr. John Whritner are a "big ticket item," have suffered through one year of board-imposed probation, been watched closely by administrators and the public, but have overcome people's worst fears.

"When hockey was first approved I was against it," said Woods' resident Dick Cooper. "But, after probation two years ago, I was ready to defend hockey because the kids turned it around and with hard work it's now a first class operation.

"Hockey supporters can go out and push this election and then you may turn around and eliminate it," Cooper added. "That would create a lot of hard feelings."

Hockey, which costs the school approximately $1,500 per player, per year, won't be the only program cut. Some assistant coaches would be eliminated, transportation for teams would be cut, as would several ninth-grade programs, and athletic trainers at North and South.

"We're trying to keep as many programs as possible, but what we would be losing is quality coaching from our assistants," Gauerke said. "All cuts will be accumulative."

Under the renewal-only vote, each school would have to cut $18,500 from its athletic budget in the second year. That would mean varsity wrestling and gymnastics, along with some supplies, would be abolished. The projected cuts for the third year would virtually eliminate all cheerleading, freshman football, freshman volleyball, freshman basketball, freshman baseball and varsity golf.

"In all areas, we've been fiscally responsible," Gauerke said. "I believe we have not wasted any of the tax payers' money. In fact, in order to keep the classrooms stocked with materials and supplies, we have not spent any money on equipment renewal or new equipment in two years."

In six weeks, voters will go to the polls holding the fate of the school system in their hands.

"I would like to believe that if we can get out and beat the bushes, that we can have the same programs," Gauerke said. "I believe the people in this community have been supportive of this quality program. And I hope they continue to be."

Blue Devils throttle Norsemen in tennis

Ever the eternal optimist, Grosse Pointe North tennis coach Ken Gutow believes that the 7-1 shellacking his team received from South last week will actually perpetuate confidence.

his team can salvage at least something from the loss.

"After the match, I was not all that upset," Gutow said. "The fact of the matter is that we played one of the best teams in the state and for the most part stayed with it. This, I think, will

Norsemen score 34 runs, win baseball tournament

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

OK, so all is not wasted this baseball season.

Until last weekend, the North baseball team had been suffering through one of its worst droughts in history. However, Coach Frank Sumbera's team cured the ailment by heading to Alpena for a four-team baseball tournament.

North (4-8) scored 34 runs over three games to win two of three contests en route to the championship.

Until an 11-10 win over Bay City Handy in the opening round, North had lost seven straight. It last won on April 11.

"I hope this means we have turned the corner," said Sumbera. "It makes a great difference in our game when we have our seniors in the lineup."

Scott Schorer, who was out three weeks with a broken wrist, was back in the lineup and made the all-tourney team by rapping out five hits, including three doubles, to go with nine RBI. Kevin McCarron, who had been hampered with a finger injury, also made the all-tourney team by stealing 10 bases in 10 attempts. Mike Rancilio, who hadn't thrown a pitch since hurting his shoulder in mid-April, and Jamie Acord were North's other all-tourney players.

"We're healthy now," Sumbera said. "We get the seniors back and look what happens. We were struggling, no doubt, because of our inexperience, but now maybe we've turned the corner. Winning the tournament certainly puts the kids in the right frame of mind."

AGAINST HANDY, North put together a desperation seven-run rally in the bottom half of the seventh to win the game.

"We've had some comebacks, but this one was probably the most exciting," Sumbera said. "The kids played hard, enthusiastic baseball."

Trailing 10-4 entering the seventh, Tim Robertson and Chris Meathe hopped aboard on a walk and single, respectively. Kevin Endres and Kevin McCarron roped RBI singles, but the big blow was Dave Senter's two-run single.

Still trailing, Rancilio and Schorer drew walks and then a wild pitch allowed North to tie the game, 10-10, with Acord coming to bat. Acord's smash drove in Paul Straske, who ran for Schorer, giving relief pitcher Jon Seagram the win. Seagram tossed the final three innings after Handy knocked starter David Vormelker out. Vormelker gave up eight hits and seven runs. Seagram, a left-handed sophomore, struck out.

"It set the tone for the rest of the tournament," Sumbera said. "From that point on the kids played even better."

Despite losing in game two to Cadillac, 13-12.

"We scored 12 runs and lost," Sumbera said. "We should have beaten Cadillac, but we didn't. It's that simple."

Freshman Paul Straske, who helped his own cause with a home run, earned his first varsity start on the mound and went five innings, before giving way to loser Kevin Endres. Endres took over a 12-6 lead, but he and the Norsemen squandered two six-run leads.

Lou D'Angelo smacked a two-run homer and Schorer added four RBI on two hits, but North couldn't hang on.

Cadillac picked up solo runs in the sixth and seventh for the win.

IN THE TITLE game, North battled host Alpena and weathered a two-inning rally to come up an 11-9 winner.

The Norsemen gave starter and winner Mike Rancilio a 7-1 cushion going into the fourth, but Alpena chipped away with three runs in the sixth, and four in the sixth before Rancilio fanned two hitters to preserve the win.

Schorer's three-run bases-loaded double in the second inning gave North a 5-1 lead, and Senter's two-run single in the third kept the merry-go-round turning.

"We were hitting the ball and running," Sumbera said. "We almost allowed Alpena to do what we did in the first game."

The boys' track team suffered one defeat, but salvaged the week with a big win over Lakeview.

North, 2-0 in the league, 5-2 overall, came from behind to win

Berschback said. "They really made this team work and we're fortunate to have them."

The other "pretty good job" for North came from the No. 4 doubles team of Nadeen Elian and Rob Duross. Elian and Duross took South's Jim Pappas and Steve Carlin to a third set, before bowing, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, in a two and one-half hour match. It was the first loss for Elian and Duross.

South's Peter Bourke and Chris Schilling also handed North's No. 3 doubles team of Jason Serwa and Brad Hea its first defeat, 6-3, 6-4. Bill Wundrum and Matt Smucker, South's top doubles team, had to fight a pesky team of Bob Hetchler and Scott McSkimming, but prevailed in straight sets, 6-2, 7-5. Hetchler and McSkimming were previously unbeaten.

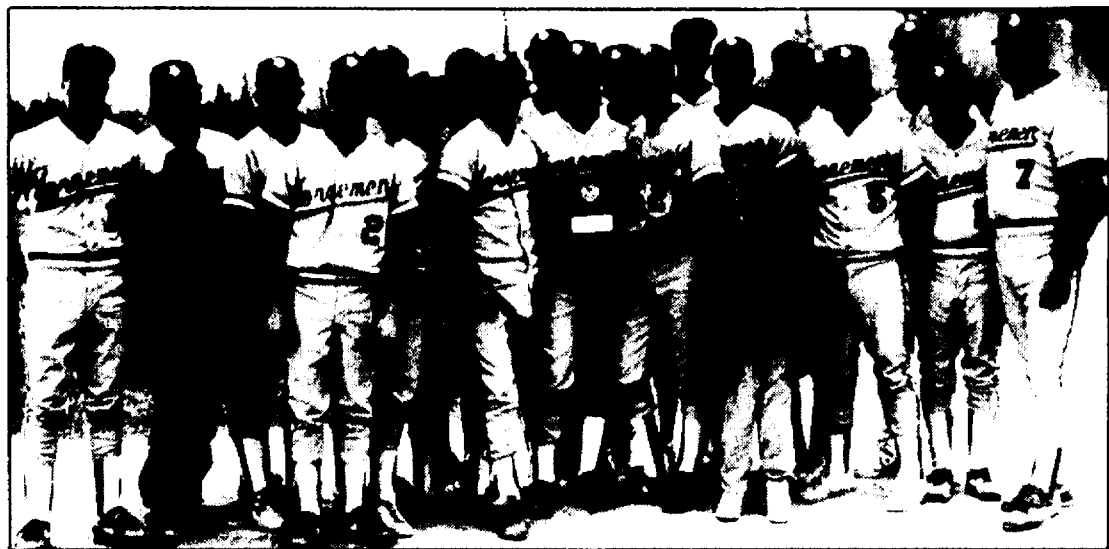

South's final victory came from Craig Kostecke at No. 4 singles. Kostecki beat Amod Sarnaik, 6-0, 6-2.

"This is pretty degrading," said Hetchler, who along with McSkimming, co-captains the team. "Losing to South makes us feel like we are the inferior school in tennis right now, but we'll get 'em back."

This year, however, South got North back.

"We wanted to beat them pretty bad," said Nick Lorenzini. "It's always big to beat North." "We wanted to get them back because they beat us (4-3) last year," said Lee.

North and South will be competing in the University Liggett School Invitational May 5-6 at ULS. For more information on the tourney, call Bob Wood at 884-4444.

The North varsity baseball team beat Bay City Handy and Alpena, to win the Alpena baseball tournament last weekend. North's only loss of the tournament was a 13-12 decision to Cadillac.

the 3200-meter relay, but it wasn't enough in the 88-49 loss to Port Huron Northern. Scott Collins, Andy Torrence, John Karabetos and Bob Straske teamed for the win.

Derek Lawson continued to have a fine senior season as he won the 400 dash (53.1). In the distance department, Collins breezed to a somewhat easy 4:49 win.

At home against Lakeview, Greg Donahue led the assault with a double win in the hurdles. Donahue won the 110 highs (16.3) and the 300 intermediates (44.0). Scott Nesom snatched a pole vault win (9 feet), and Collins ran his personal-best time of 4:37 in the 1600.

For the girls, the season continues to have a goose egg in the loss column.

In a home meet with Port Huron Northern, North took three of the four relays to win, 97-31.

Knights boys' track team hosts, wins invitational

On an afternoon suited more for ice-fishing, the University Liggett School boys' track team hosted and won the ULS Track and Field Invitational by compiling 197 points.

Southfield Christian finished second with 135 points, and Roper was third with 74.

Top scorers for ULS were junior hurdler and relay man, Derek Van De Graaf, who won both hurdle events and ran a leg on both sprint relays; and sophomore Jonah Smith.

Smith snagged seconds in the 300 hurdles and high jump; third in the long jump, and ran a leg on the second-place 3200 relay team.

The only two seniors to compete for ULS, Steve Grant and Nikki VanOppens dominated both the 1600 and 3200 runs, while Liz Bolden sprinted and jumped to firsts in the 200 run, 400 run and long jump.

Junior Jane Rice carried the hurdle load against Lakeview by winning both hurdle events in a 115-13 romp.

VanOppens paced the distance crew with wins in the 1600 and 3200.

North will put its perfect 8-0 record on the line May 4 at home against the ever-powerful Grosse Pointe South Blue Devils.

Softball

Coach Bill Taylor's team struck for runs in the first and third innings en route to a 10-6 league win over Cousino.

Alicia Lynch and Kerri-Sue Kelly led the team with three hits each, and Lucy Barry and Gail Marlow had two hits each.

Kelly pitched a strong first game at home against Warren Woods-Tower, and Melissa Drouillard hurled a one-hitter in game two as the Lady Norsemen swept the Titans, 18-2 and 6-0.

In the nightcap, Kelly had two hits, including her second home run of the day. Drouillard bagged the shutout by fanning nine hitters.

The team is 4-1 in the White Division and 8-4 overall.

Soccer

The team more than made up for a 1-0 loss to Fraser, by shell-ing Cousino, 13-0.

In the lopsided win, Christie Mack and Beth Stevenson led the offense with five and four goals, respectively. Julie Hielscher posted her third shut-out of the season in goal.

give us more confidence for the rest of the season and should elevate our game."

South is ranked No. 5 in Class A and No. 7 in all classes, and first-year head coach Tom Berschback maintains his team is more than worthy of those selections.

"We're No. 5 right now and there's really only two teams, according to a general consensus, that are stronger than us," he said. "Those teams are Okemos and Brother Rice (ranked No. 1 and 2 in the Class A polls).

"No team is going to have an easy time with us, however," Berschback said.

Because of Lee, Nick and Emiliano Lorenzini, Gutow knew his team would face a quick 3-0 deficit when the top three singles matches were completed. He didn't, however, expect to get drilled in the doubles competition, also.

"By rights, we could have won all the doubles matches," said Gutow. "We knew at the beginning of the year that our doubles teams would have to win consistently for us and we'd have to get a big win from at least one of our singles players."

North's only win came at No. 2 doubles, where Peter Szatkiewicz and Tom Moisesides beat Ray Tumacter and Brian Disser, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

South coach Tom Berschback also anticipated a different outcome in the doubles.

"I was happy to win the doubles, 3 to 1," he said. "I thought maybe we'd split, but we came out of it a little better than expected."

The trio of Lorenzini -- all nationally ranked -- remained unbeaten on the year, as did the team.

"It's been a relatively easy year for us," said Lee, South's No. 1 singles player who beat Frank Lucido, 6-0, 6-1. "We had a tough time against Catholic Central, but we managed to beat them and that was a big one for us. I think it helped the entire team's confidence."

At the time, Catholic Central was ranked No. 4.

Nick Lorenzini beat Matt Kim, 6-0, 6-0, at No. 2 singles, and Emiliano laced Ben Fong, 6-0, 6-0, at No. 3 singles.

"Let's face it," Gutow said. "The Lorenzini are machines. They are great players, but I think our kids did a pretty good job."

The Lorenzini, who have given up very few points this season, are undoubtedly the bread and butter of the team.

"As a group, they have to be in the top 15 of the state,"

Jerant took second in the shot put, third in discus, fourth in high jump, and ran a leg on the second-place 1600-meter relay team with Lynn Sinkel, Diann Imbriaco and Jennie Miller.

Junior hurdler Stacey Molitor also tallied 20 points with wins in both the 100 and 300 hurdles.

Miller scored 18 points, as she took second place in both the 800 and 1600 runs, and ran a leg on the second-place 3200 relay team. That team included Shannon Burrows, Sinkel and Imbriaco.

Tri-captain Alexis Collins, who will compete for the University of Michigan next year, remained undefeated in the high jump and took sixth in the long jump.

Angela Mitchell, tri-captain Elena Hunt, Rae Goolsby and Natasha Levy combined to win the 800 relay. Second-place finishers were Mitchell (200 dash), Julia Caputo (100 hurdles) and Yohanna Suezek (300 hurdles).

Others scoring for ULS were Stephanie Battles, Karen Bowman, Carla Caputo, Tonya Clawson, Andrea Graham, Crystal

Martin and Shalini Srivastava. Pilar notcher a personal-best in the shot and discus.

Coach Cathy Schmidt reached a special plateau with the win, as she notched win No. 102, against 18 defeats in her career.

ULS hosts St. Agatha and St. Clement on May 9 at 4:15 p.m.

Soccer

Coming off disappointing losses to Bishop Foley and Warren Mott, the ULS girls' soccer team rebounded to win three straight last week.

ULS, now ranked No. 10 in the Class B-C-D polls with a 5-3 record, beat East Detroit, 4-1, Fitzgerald, 4-2, and Ann Arbor Pioneer, 2-0.

After 30 minutes of scoreless play at East Detroit, Monica Paul notched her first goal of the season. Within five minutes, the Knights took a 2-1 lead on Sarah Haggarty's goal just before the half.

Julie Palmer and Teresa Parejo combined for second-half goals, sparked by Carrie Carpenter, Ali Frederick, Rachael Robichaud and Haggarty, to capture the victory.

At Warren Fitzgerald, Stacey Allen booted her first goal and Meghan Brady found the net as ULS took a commanding 2-0 lead early in the game.

Sylvia Ristic countered the Spartans' first goal with a boot that gave ULS a 3-1 lead at the half.

In the second half, Parejo iced the game with a solo shot.

On April 29, ULS hosted Ann Arbor Pioneer, a team with just one loss on the season, and put together what Coach David Backhurst called, "probably the team's best game so far."

At the 27-minute mark, the Lady Knights' first goal came off a free kick, driven in by Haggarty to Pioneer's far goalpost. Brady won the ball and drilled it into the net. In the second half, Brady scored her second goal of the game and her ninth of the season to cap the scoring. Freshman goalie Beth Weyhing played well as the team recorded its second shutout.

Doug Wood (left) and Mike Niccolini have been University Liggett School's winningest combination this season. Wood and Niccolini play No. 1 singles on the tennis team.

"We came through some low moments with the two losses the previous week, but these three victories were certainly sweet," said Backhurst.

ULS travels to Dearborn May 6. On May 9, the Lady Knights host Anchor Bay at 4:30 p.m. struck out 17 hitters during his 10 innings on the mound.

On May 6, ULS travels to South Christian for a night game.

Tennis

Last week, after losing to Kingswood, 6-1, and Brother Rice, 7-0, the ULS boys' tennis team defeated Birmingham Seaholm, 4-3, and finished second in the ULS Tournament of Champions.

The No. 1 doubles team of Mike Niccolini and Doug Wood was the only win for the Knights at Kingswood.

In the victory over Seaholm, ULS winners included Sean Byrne (No. 1 singles), Niccolini and Wood, Dike Ajiri and David Allen (No. 2 doubles) and Ken Prather and Cheo Ramsey (No. 3 doubles).

On April 29, ULS finished second (15 points) behind East Grand Rapids (16).

Flight champions for the Knights were Byrne, Mike Niccolini and Wood, and Prather and Ramsey.

"East Grand Rapids is ranked No. 1 in the state in Class B, so I guess coming that close is a good performance," said ULS coach Bob Wood. "One of our goals every year is to beat East Grand Rapids. So far this year we are 0-2 with one more chance to beat them at the Midland Invitational."

Before that invitational, however, ULS will be hosting the 22nd annual University Liggett School Invitational May 5-6. Teams vying for the trophy will include, North, South, Greenhills, Dearborn, Dearborn Edsel Ford, Ann Arbor Pioneer, South Lake and ULS.

May 5 matches begin at 3:30 a.m. on May 6. All finals will be played at ULS. For further information, contact Wood at 884-4444.

Blue Devils pick up 1st E.M.L. victory of the season

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

It's taken five tries, but the South varsity baseball team has finally earned its first Eastern Michigan League win.

Senior left-hander Bill Leonard, who tossed a one-hitter earlier in the season and lost 1-0, finally received offensive support as the Blue Devils crushed L-Anse Creuse North, 13-0.

Leonard went the distance for the win, striking out seven and yielding only three hits.

Catcher Matt Wysocki, who has really come alive both offensively and defensively, sparked a seven-run first inning with a two-run double, as did Kevin Nugent, and designated hitter Dale Wilson cracked his second home run of the year. Leonard helped himself out with an RBI single, and Scott Adlhoek knocked home one.

In the second inning, Leonard rapped a two-run double, and two innings later Wilson hit his second homer of the day to add to the lead. Wilson finished with three hits in three trips, and 4 RBI. Tom Moellering added a two-run single in the fifth as South scored three times to end the game on a mercy rule.

Two days before the win, however, the Blue Devils blew an early 3-0 lead to Port Huron Northern, eventually losing, 10-8.

Mark Jungwirth started, but was relieved by Sean Von Schwarz after lasting only 2 1/3 innings. Jungwirth gave up five hits, including a home run. In relief, Von Schwarz struck out four and gave up five hits.

"We have got to cut down on our errors," said South coach Dan Griesbaum. "We're not making a lot of them, but we're making them at crucial times."

"We're not good enough to overcome the errors when we make them," Griesbaum added.

Port Huron erased South's lead with three unearned runs in the second inning, and then picked up three more in the third.

But, South had had enough. Wysocki, who went 2-for-5 and scored two runs, got the fourth-inning rally off the ground with an RBI single. Northern then gave up a run on a balk and then Joe Cladwell, who was 2-for-3, singled home another run and South enjoyed a 7-6 lead.

In the sixth, Northern tied it at 7-7, but South yielded three unearned runs after two were out in the seventh to lose, 10-8.

In a doubleheader May 1 against Mount Clemens, South moved to 3-4 in the league with a sweep, 12-2, 4-2.

Dan Monahan picked up the win in the first game by striking out 11, and Jason Weissert had four RBI.

Mark Jungwirth got the win in game two and Mike Oliver picked up the save.

Softball

Darcy Jones tossed a two-hitter at Port Huron Northern April 26, but took the 3-0 loss; South's first league loss on the season.

Jones had two hits and Lori VanTassell laced one hit, but South committed five errors to help Northern.

The Lady Devils also stranded four runners in the last two innings.

"We had our chances, but we didn't get the job done," said South coach John Bruce. "It was a good ball game, but we hurt ourselves with the five errors."

At home against L-Anse Creuse North, Jones whirled a four-hitter, struck out four and gave up one earned run as South won, 2-1.

"We proved that we could win the close ball games," Bruce said. "The girls were a little down after losing to Northern, but came right back to win."

Down 1-0 in the sixth inning, South mounted a two-run rally thanks in part to a couple of errors, but it was Becky Wysocki's hit that proved the difference.

"Becky hit a ball that was tough to handle," Bruce said. "She made things happen by putting the ball in play."

Jones, whose .65 ERA leads the Eastern Michigan League, was her own worst enemy in the opening round of the Romeo Tournament as she walked five hitters in the 3-2 loss.

South then faced Utica Eisenhower and didn't "play very good ball" as it was dumped 12-9.

Ann-Marie Swink struck out four and issued five walks for the loss.

Eventual tourney champ Birmingham Marian was up next for the Devils, and Jones notched the win in relief of Swink.

Swink left after the third inning and South trailing 5-3. Jones faced 13 hitters over the final three innings and while she was doing that, South picked up six runs in two innings for the 8-5 win.

Kathy Apple had two hits in four trips, as did Julie Cartwright. Van Tassell had one RBI on two hits.

South will be playing North at 8:30 a.m. May 6 at Parcels. It will be the first game of a round-robin tournament. Milford, ranked No. 4, and Regina, ranked No. 7, will also be participating.

Boys' track

At the prestigious Chippewa Relays in Mount Pleasant, high jumper Pat Bruce won his event with a jump of 6 feet, 2 inches, but he went on to clear the bar at 6-6.

Kyle Schomaker, a senior, finished sixth in the 110 high hurdles (15.4), and Mark Sonnenberg was seventh in the 1600 race (4:38) for the Devils.

Soccer

Goalie Michele Kovalcik took to the nets last week and picked up one win and a tie.

South, 2-4-1, shut Clawson out, 6-0, and then snapped Mott's eight-game winning streak by tying the Marauders, 1-1.

Leslie Brathwaite scored two goals and had two assists in the win over Clawson, and solo goals were added by Kathy Gayman, Julie Gayman, Kate Finazzo and Alex Anglewicz.

Brathwaite converted Finazzo's pass to score in the Mott game.

Girls' track

Under Steve Zaranek, the girls remained unbeaten after downing L-Anse Creuse North, 98-30 last week.

South took 13 of 16 first places in the meet that improved its record to 6-0.

Fitness for senior citizens

At what age does the body no longer benefit from exercise?

At what age do the risks of exercise outweigh the benefits?

The answer to both these questions is: never.

It is never too late to start a fitness program. In fact, many of the physical changes in older people are actually due to a lack of physical fitness. By the time a sedentary person reaches age 65, loss of muscle mass may cause overall muscle strength to decline almost 80 percent.

Inactive persons are more unfit, age faster and look older than those the same age who are physically fit. Being inactive and not physically fit produces many of the physical problems and complaints that people get as they age: headache, insomnia, constipation, joint and muscle aches and pains, back pain, high blood pressure, weight gain and weakness.

Many recent medical studies have documented the positive impact of exercise on the health of seniors. One such study showed that active men age 65-70 were at least 50 percent less likely to have a heart attack than inactive men the same age.

Other research reports that regular exercise can reduce blood pressure, lower total cholesterol and raise HDL cholesterol (the 'good' cholesterol), decrease a diabetic's insulin requirements, decrease the risk of stroke and protect against many types of cancer (leukemia and cancer of the brain, colon, kidney, breast, ovary and uterus).

A recent study from Brown University of 4,500 people between 40 and 85, found that remaining physically active can add about 25 years to a person's performance ability (i.e., physically active 70-year-olds could perform physical tasks as well as inactive 50-year-olds).

Physical activity is an important contributor to general good health, resulting in fewer hospitalizations and fewer doctor visits. Exercise is a great way to reduce emotional stress and tension and can actually help alleviate depression. The degree of protection that physical activity affords is as great or greater in the elderly as it is in younger people.

The best exercise is aerobic exercise.

Aerobic simply means "with oxygen." Aerobic activity trains your heart and lungs to become more efficient for prolonged work — the heart becomes a stronger muscle, and lung function is improved.

To get the maximum benefits from aerobic exercise, the exercise session should last 20 to 60 minutes. That routine would include 10-40 minutes of aerobic activity, preceded by a 5-10 minute warm-up and stretching period, followed by a 5-15 minute cool-down period. As fitness improves, increase the activity portion up to 40 minutes. There should be at least three exercise sessions per week.

The goal of achieving peak cardiovascular conditioning can be achieved by exercising at 60 to 75 percent of your maximum heart rate. Your maximum heart rate is easily determined by subtracting your age from 220. Multiply this number by the intensity level you wish to achieve (i.e., 60-75 percent) and you have your "target zone" heart rate.

The safest and simplest aerobic exercise activity is a brisk walk. Other aerobic exercises include jogging, swimming, cycling, rowing, dancing and cross country skiing.

Actually, it may not even be mandatory for you to achieve your "target zone" heart rate in order to improve your health. Some studies have shown that people engaged in some form of moderate activity achieved the same health benefits as those engaged in vigorous sports.

Any activity performed just hard enough to increase the breathing rate noticeably and produce a little sweat may be beneficial. This includes such activities as working on the lawn and garden, making home repairs, playing golf and bowling. An average increase of one-half hour a day of light and moderate physical activity has been shown to result in a one-third reduction in coronary heart disease mortality and fatal and non-fatal heart attacks.

Another study showed that people who engaged in mild activity such as climbing stairs and walking lived up to two years longer than those who were sedentary.

I have many patients well into their 80s and even 90s who exercise regularly. Age is not an excuse for becoming a couch potato. In fact, it is all the more reason to become active. Investigators at the Center for Disease Control, in Atlanta, believe that more people are at risk of coronary heart disease from physical inactivity than from hypertension, high cholesterol, or smoking.

Tennis, anyone?

Eat Smart

By Mary Busse

1989: Mares eat oats, and people do too

As the year of 1988 bowed out, and 1989 said hello, the American public was hot in the pursuit of oat bran.

Oat bran had become the "designer food" of the late '80s. There were even rumors being spread as to why it had become scarce in many market places. Was there a conspiracy among the food companies to actually hold back stock and create an "oat bran frenzy?"

Nutritionists touted oat bran's great cholesterol-reducing abilities, while skeptics poo-pooed all the attention this unassuming, shy little food product was getting.

Grandma was right

So what are the facts about oat bran and what is the fiction?

To begin with, our grandmothers knew what they were talking about. They may not have been able to explain themselves in detailed, scientific terms, but they were right on the button when they urged us to eat our oatmeal and finish all of our vegetables.

In the midst of all this "fiber frenzy" we should remember one important fact that gets left out: All carbohydrates, (any food that originally grew with its feet in the ground), contained fiber.

If we eat a balanced mixture of fruits, vegetables, grains and legumes we will meet our daily requirement for fiber. Fiber is made up of undigestible carbohydrates and cellulose, and is necessary in the functioning of the intestinal and bowel tract. Low-fiber diets can use the food we eat to remain too long in the large intestine, and this can cause a build-up of toxic compounds. And while you are taking a survey of what you consume in carbohydrates per day, remember the key word is FRESH!

Unlike W.C. Fields, we cannot count the fruit in a drink like an "Old-fashioned" and consider that we have met our fresh fruit needs!

So how much of this dietary fiber do I actually need? According to the National Cancer Institute, we need to eat 20 to 35 grams of dietary fiber per day, and it should come from a variety of high fiber foods. The variety is essential because some foods contain a sticky or gummy form of fiber, while others contain a more woody texture. Each type of fiber performs a different but necessary function in the body.

As you begin to increase the amount of fiber in your daily eating pattern, you will begin to notice that your bowel tract is working more regularly, your stools may become softer, and constipation is rarely a problem.

Sometimes, when an individual first starts to increase the amount of fiber intake, a bloated, intestinal gassy feeling may take place. It is always recommended that you consult with your physician before making significant changes in your dietary habits. Also, check with your doctor at the first sign of discomfort. Your physician can make the correct diagnosis.

One of the most important aspects of increasing dietary fiber is to also increase your daily intake of water. Many people jump on the "high-fiber" bandwagon and forget that they must also drink plenty of water. The daily water intake recommended is 8 (8 oz.) glasses. Again, check with your physician if you have any questions or concerns about your particular health needs. Water is the conduit of all life. Interestingly, the human body is made up of two-thirds water, and two-thirds of the earth's surface is also water.

How to begin

The following are some guidelines and recommendations to help you increase your daily fiber intake, and also a short list of food sources and their fiber content.

Why should I eat more fiber? Fiber has been proven to reduce blood cholesterol and oat bran can make a significant difference. Before you spend a lot of money on oat bran packaged products, buy a box or can of 100 percent oat bran cereal. It will cook up in a few short minutes, contains no additives or unnecessary ingredients, and will save you money at the cash register!

Fiber has been proven to help prevent colon cancer, intestinal disorders and bowel disease. Eat whole grain cereals, breads, fruits (with the skin on) and green leafy vegetables.

How can I make sure I am getting enough of my daily fiber requirements without carrying around a calculator?

Eat at least 1-2 servings per meal of a whole-grain food or use it as a snack. Eat at least 3 to 4 servings per day of fruits and vegetables. These should be eaten raw or steam your vegetables. Drink at least 8 (8 oz.) waters per day, unless otherwise directed by your physician.

Menu suggestions

Breakfast: Start your day with a bowl of oat bran cereal, a piece of fresh fruit and a slice of whole grain bread.

Mid-Morning: Use a piece of fruit or a bran muffin as a snack.

Lunch: Eat a large tossed salad with plenty of leafy greens, a small amount of protein, (chicken or fish) accompanied with a whole-grain product such as a whole-wheat roll.

Late Afternoon: Grab a piece of fruit, such as an apple for a quick-pick-me-up, instead of a candy bar!

Dinner: Try a meal using kidney beans in a chili, without red meat, serve with another small tossed salad, a whole wheat roll and a piece of fresh fruit for dessert.

Fiber-rich-foods

100 percent oat bran: 1 cup serving, equals approx. 23 grams.

Shredded wheat: 2 biscuits, 6.0 grams.

Apple: 1 small, 3.1 grams.
Applesauce: 1/2 cup, 1.7 grams
Strawberries: 1/2 cup, 2.6 grams

Kidney beans: 1/2 cup, 3.6 grams

Lentils: 1/2 cup, 4.0 grams
Broccoli: 3/4 cup, 1.6 grams
Carrots: 3/4 cup, 2.1 grams
Peas: 1/2 cup, 3.8 grams
Orange: 1 small, 1.8 grams

The above list is just a few of the many suggestions.

There is no better time than today to begin a new routine. And your body is sure to say THANK YOU!

EAT SMART is written by Mary Busse, a diet counselor in Grosse Pointe.

Hide and seek: Steroids and drug testing

They pump you up, but they can also blow you away.

The dangers of steroids have been known for years, but the ethics of athletics seem to say, "Win at all costs."

It seems that many of today's athletes are willing to take the risks of steroids along with the benefits. These drugs are used by even the top athletes in their field, as the stories from the last Olympics revealed.

The dangers are clear: steroids can cause loss of sex drive, erratic mood swings, liver damage and early changes in the heart, which can lead to cardiac death.

Anabolic steroids are derived from the male hormone testosterone. They are used to increase muscle mass and to help athletes recover from injuries sooner. However, according to Thomas Sodeman, M.D., pathologist and Associate Dean of the Texas Tech University Medical School, "Their effects are temporary, and this represents the addictive aspect of steroid use."

More and more, it has become sports regulating bodies, such as the International Olympic Committee, which must employ sophisticated drug tests to try and stop the use of steroids. The athletes, in turn, use sophisticated methods to try to fool the tests, to "mask" the drugs. The adage, "Cheaters never prosper," couldn't be more wrong when worldwide fame and millions of dollars in endorsements and contracts are at stake.

Pathologists use advanced technological means to test athletes' urine for steroids. So advanced is this technology, and so expensive, that the labs in North America qualified to do the tests number in the single digits.

Can these expensive tests be fooled?

"Theoretically, no," said Dr. Sodeman. "But some athletes do try to 'cover' the steroids. Some female athletes might take birth control pills, hoping the test will mistake one substance for another." This was the contention of a member of the 1988 U.S. Women's Ski Team, who claimed her birth control pills were mistaken for steroids.

The most common method used to test urine for evidence of steroids is called gas chromatography/mass spectrometry. In this method, the sample is atomized — turned into vapor — and mixed with another gas. As this mixture of gases rises up a tube or column, different substances in the urine move at different speeds. A detector at the end of the column takes a reading as each substance crosses the finish line and registers the readings as peaks on a computer graph. These peaks are compared with those of a sample known to contain steroids and, if they match, steroids are present.

In mass spectrometry, components separated by chromatography can be broken down into smaller fragments, which can be measured based on their electrical charge. Mass spectrometry increases the sensitivity of gas chromatography. Together, they are an extremely specific means of detecting steroids.

The threats posed by steroids, to athletics and athletes, may conceivably be controlled, soon, but there looms a larger and mostly unknown trait: Human Growth Hormone (HGH).

HGH is a new substance, but "It is readily available to athletes, on the street," said Dr. Sodeman. The problem is that the effects of HGH on humans are largely unknown, other than it has been of some relief to patients suffering from dwarfism. HGH also cannot be detected in urine even using sophisticated methods like gas chromatography/mass spectrometry. Athletes who use HGH are literally performing uncontrolled experiments on themselves.

If there is any hope that these substances will be abandoned by athletes, in favor of the old-fashioned "no pain, no gain" method, it may lie in their own realization that performances enhanced by steroids are a fraud.

The gain in muscle mass experienced by body builders, for instance, is partly due to the fact that. "Steroids cause the body to accumulate fluid," says Sodeman. "As soon as they stop taking the drugs, the fluid leaves the body. It's a sham."

Scientists urge changes for lower cancer risk

Despite many advances in understanding and treating cancer, the number of cancer cases is still growing. It is estimated that more than 1 million Americans will fall victim to cancer this year and that 502,000 cancer deaths will occur.

"Cancer prevention offers one of our best current hopes for reducing the tragic price we pay to cancer," said Dr. Maryce Jacobs, vice president for research for the American Institute for Cancer Research and a former cancer researcher.

Jacobs noted that while progress has been made in cancer detection and treatment, there is still no cure for cancer.

"We can reduce cancer risk today through simple dietary changes," added Jacobs, "but to do that means consumers must be more aware of their food choices and the effects those choices can have on their health."

The American Institute for Cancer Research has been a leading national organization in the area of cancer prevention. The institute sponsors cancer research and provides numerous consumer programs on diet and cancer risk reduction. The institute was also the first national organization to promote the Dietary Guidelines to Lower Cancer Risk, a set of easy to follow guidelines based on the National Academy of Sciences interim dietary recommendations. The recommendations are:

- 1) Reducing dietary fat to 30 percent or less of daily calories.
- 2) Increasing consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grain products.
- 3) Consuming salt-cured, smoked and charcoal broiled foods only in moderation.
- 4) Drinking alcoholic beverages only in moderation.

"These guidelines are not a cure for cancer," Jacobs said, "but since research estimates link from 40 to 60 percent of all cancers to our diets, and because some scientists estimate that as many as 35 percent of cancer deaths are directly related to diet, these changes could bring significant future reductions in the rates for many types of cancer."

"Our lack of a complete understanding of the diet and cancer relationship is not a reason to avoid making these simple dietary changes," Jacobs said. Jacobs also noted that not only has research indicated that such changes could mean lower cancer risk, but that these guidelines are in agreement with dietary recommendations to reduce risk for other diseases, such as heart and kidney diseases.
