Acer, acris – sharp, keen, fierce {eag, eg}

Acerbus – bitter, sharp, tart

Acetum – vinegar

Acus – needle

Acutus – sharp, keen, violent, shrewd {cut}

¹Etymologically 'bitter or sour wine;' when 'wine' ferments too long, it produces acetic acid in a dilute form, which is also known as vinegar. ²The word cute originally meant 'acute,' in its sense of shrewd or clever; from there, the meaning moved on to approval of people who were thus shrewd, and later, by extension, became applied to their attractive physical characteristics. ³From the Greek cognate akone, 'whetstone.'

Ager, agri – field, country {agri-, egr}

Agros (Gr.) – field {agro-}

Agrios (Gr.) – wild

¹The word pilgrim comes from 'peregrine,' which etymologically means wandering 'through fields;' a pilgrim is a foreigner who has come from another 'field' or country.

¹If something is to be exact, it must be ‘measured out.’ ²To navigate is etymologically to ‘drive a ship.’ ³To swat a fly is to ‘compress’ or squash it; swat is an alteration of squat, which itself is a ‘compression’ of the body since one becomes smaller as one squats. ⁴Via Latin prodigere, ‘to drive forth, waste.’ ⁵Via Latin exlitigare, ‘to exculpate in a lawsuit;’ the meaning later changed to ‘declare something as true in legal proceedings.’ ⁶Latin for ‘things to be done.’ ⁷Via Latin coactum, ‘collected;’ Plyushkin possessed a cache of so many things that he had ‘collected’ over his life that there existed only a narrow, labyrinthine passageway through his house: rubbish claimed every other inch of space.

Alo, alere, alui, altum – to feed, nourish, cause to grow

Altus – high, deep, grown tall {alti-, alto-, hanc, haught, haut}

Adolesco, adolescere, adolevi, adultum – to grow up, mature

Abolo, abolere, abolevi, abolitum – to destroy⁴, disallow, get rid of

¹An adolescent is etymologically 'growing up.' ²An adult is all 'grown up.' ³An alma mater, Latin for 'nourishing mother,' is the school that has 'fed' one many things, thereby aiding educational, social, physical, and character 'growth.' ⁴If one destroys something, it can no longer 'grow.'

Aptus – suitable, fit, attached {ept}

Copula – bond, connection {coupl}

¹There are two primary suggestions for the etymology of April, which comes from the Latin adjective Aprilis, 'second month of the year;' some have suggested that Aprilis itself derives from the Greek goddess of love, Aphrodite, while others suggest that it comes from aperire, since April was one of the 'opening' months of the year. n.b. The original Roman calendar year began in March, with the advent of spring. ²Via Old French artillier, 'to equip;' the etymological idea behind artillery is of equipment that is 'fit' or 'suitable' for the militia.

Oboedio, oboedire, oboedivi, oboeditum – to listen to, submit to {obey, obed}

¹The idea here is that a barrel forms a 'barrier' for its contents, not letting them out; this is a debated origin.
²The etymological notion behind embarrassment is that one's sense of self is put 'into or behind bars' for public inspection; one becomes highly and often blushing 'self-conscious' until once again freed from such a 'disconcerting' or embarrassing restraint.

Cado, cadere, cecidi, casum – to fall, die, happen {cay, cid, chanc, cheat}

¹When one cheats, one morally 'falls.' ²Things 'fall' through a chute, such as water, just as one 'falls prepared' in a parachute. The para of parachute comes from 'parasol,' which resembles it in shape. ³I was convinced that the charlatan was guilty of casuistry; words 'fell' from his lips a little too glibly.

 Julius Caesar²

Caedo, caedere, cecidi, caesum – to cut, kill {chis, cid, cis, -cide}
 Caesar, Caesaris – Caesar

¹When one makes a decision, one must ‘cut off’ or ‘cut away’ all other possibilities to arrive at a judgment.
²*Caesar* was either a reference to being reputedly ‘cut’ from his mother’s womb, the first recorded ‘cesarean’ section, or to his “full head of hair,” a jocular cognomen since most busts of Caesar show him to be balding, his hair ‘cut’ away.

¹Both chafe and chauffeur came through the Latin verb calefacere, 'to make warm;' chafed hands are 'warmed' by rubbing, whereas a chauffeur originally 'stoked' early automobiles, steamships, and trains, and eventually came to drive the automobiles. ²A calorie is the energy required to 'heat' one gram of water one degree Celsius. ³A nonchalant person is 'not heated' by thorny situations, but rather remains 'cool' and 'unruffled.'

Camera – room, chamber {chamber, camar}

¹Roman taxi drivers would calculate fares by placing ‘pebbles’ in a counting box each time a designated distance was crossed; once the destination was reached, the ‘pebbles’ were counted to determine the fare. ²This primary tool of photographers was so named because of the small ‘chamber’ or box in which the film resided, and where external images were formed. ³Probably short for someone with whom one shares a ‘chamber.’

¹A Roman candidate for political office wore a toga of 'brilliant whiteness.' ²Via Latin canarius, 'of dogs;' a canary is a bird native to the Canary Islands, which were well-known by the Romans because of a singular breed of 'dog' that lived there. ³Via Italian canaglia, 'pack of dogs.'

¹Short for 'cabriolet,' which was a type of small, horse-drawn carriage that bounded about unpredictably on its springs like the equally unpredictable 'goat' leaps about. Note that Grimm's law states that the consonant 'p' can shift to 'b.' ²One explanation for the origin of this word is that someone who acts capriciously is as unpredictable as the direction in which a 'goat' may leap; for another possibility, also see note 5, p. 49.

Caput, capitis – head, summit, source, origin, leader, capital, horizontal extreme {capt, cept, chapt, chief, chiev, cipit}
 Capitulum – little head

¹Short for 'recapitulate.' ²A cattle farmer's principal or 'head' property is cattle, which is a variant of 'chattel,' 'property.' Cattle farmers talk about the number of cattle they own in terms of 'head' of cattle, such as '1200 head.' ³The biceps has 'two heads,' or points where it attaches to bone, the 'triceps' has three, and the 'quadriceps,' four. ⁴One who creates mischievous is the 'source of bad' behavior. ⁵A capricious person can unpredictably nod her 'head' either way; see also note 2, p. 46. ⁶The word cad comes from 'cadet;' since a 'cadet' is a young person at the 'head' or 'origin' of his training, he is bound to make mistakes—a cad, too, makes mistakes, but they tend to be of an unprincipled and intentional nature.

Caro, carnis – flesh, meat

¹A coward turns 'tail' and runs. ²If one 'rejects' something, one etymologically 'hurries' or rushes away from it; although the spelling of rush is hard to justify etymologically and linguistically, the word is nevertheless onomatopoeic, sounding like someone in a 'hurry.' ³Just as one 'avoids' or 'dodges' something one 'rejects,' so too does one 'dodge' a tricked victim by means of a ruse.

Cavus – hollow

Cavea – coop, hive, cage, stall, dungeon {cag, jail}

¹Latin for 'let him beware.' ²Via Latin gaviola, 'little dungeon.' ³When one cajoles another into doing something, one tries to gently entice him into a metaphorical 'cage' of one's own wishes. ⁴To lead someone 'away' from her protective 'hive' and into a 'cage;' hunters often place avian decoys on bodies of water to entice birds, especially ducks, to the spot where the decoy is floating.

Cedo, cedere, cessi, cessum – to go, move, yield, withdraw, come to an end {ceas, ceed}

¹To succeed is etymologically to 'go to the foot of' one's goal ²If something is necessary, one can 'not go' without it. ³One person 'succeeding' another is etymologically 'moving (up) from below,' such as a prince to a king; the prince's succession will formally occur after the last funeral rites of his lately deceased father.

Certo, certare, certavi – to compete, strive, contend, fight, struggle

Clivus⁵ – slope, hill

Cohors, cohortis – enclosed yard, courtyard, retinue, group of people {court, curt} Hortus – garden ¹A code can be a 'collection of laws,' or can be a secret way to communicate using different symbols based upon a secret 'law' that, if one discovers the key to the 'code,' can then be 'decoded' or understood. ²A court is not only an 'enclosed area' in which events take place, but can also stand for those people who are present in the court; a courtroom, for instance, is an 'enclosed area' in which trials are conducted, whereas the jury, judge, defendant, plaintiff, and lawyers comprise the 'group of people' of the court. ³When the word courtship originated, men often 'courted' women in the confined and protective space of a 'garden,' or 'enclosed yard,' not only for the purposes of relative privacy, but also of modesty (gardens were close to homes); such 'courtiers' were encouraged to be 'courteous,' or chivalric and respectful, when 'courting' their lady love. A woman showed respect for her 'courtier' by 'curtsying.' ⁴A curtain is a simple way to 'enclose' a space by providing a visual screen.

Kings dubbed knights, or gave them an accolades, by tapping a sword on either side of their "necks." ²A portcullis is etymologically a huge iron 'gate' which acts as a 'filter' to 'strain' out the enemy.

²The industrious leprechaun means 'little body;' his counterpart, the 'clurichaun,' was more into having fun.

 Sincerus – pure, clean⁵

¹If something is incredible, it is almost 'not believable.' ²One etymologically has little 'trust' or 'poor belief' in a miscreant. ³The disloyal soldier was labeled a recreant, having given 'back his belief' in the cause after viewing firsthand the horrors of war. ⁴*Recreation* is all about play, and 'creativity' is the underpinning of play. ⁵The connection between sincerus and creare goes back to the Indo-European root ker-, 'to grow;' just as 'producing' something is a form of 'growing,' so too does something 'pure' 'grow' from the same stock.

Crux, crucis – cross {cross, cruix, crus}

¹To cruise about town is etymologically to ‘cross’ town. ²The Crusades, undertaken by European Catholics (the primary symbol of which was the ‘cross,’ or ‘holy rood’), were a series of warlike attempts to “regain” the Holy Land from the Muslims; many ‘crusading’ knights, to show their faith, wore ‘crosses’ sewn into tabards which covered their armor. ³Etymologically, the crux of a situation is the point where the two pieces of the ‘cross’ meet, its critical or ‘crucial’ point. ⁴Via Latin excruciare, ‘to torment;’ excruciating pain is similar to the mental and physical agony one would undergo via the ‘torment’ of the ‘cross,’ or ‘crucifixion.’

Cum – with, together, thoroughly

¹The 'intensive' form of many prefixes, which can be translated as thoroughly, e.g.: to 'compel' another is to thoroughly push him into doing it; to 'correct' a mistake is to make it thoroughly right; to 'complete' a task is to thoroughly fill it; if a metal is 'corroded' it is thoroughly eaten or gnawed away. Many prefixes have this intensive force.

Curtus – shortened, short

¹*Cursive* handwriting ‘runs’ together, or is ‘connected.’ ²The cursor is the little arrow on one’s computer monitor that ‘runs’ all over the screen. ³A school’s curriculum, or ‘course’ of study, is that series of subjects that ‘run’ or ‘continue’ throughout the years of a child’s education. ⁴*Discourse* with another person is etymologically a ‘running to and fro’ with them. ⁵The idea here is ‘running’ to the aid of someone. ⁶Cloudy; the notion could be of common maintenance or ‘run’ of things throughout the day, hence ‘not refined.’

Decoro, decorare, decoravi, decoratum – to adorn, grace, glorify

Decorus – suitable, graceful, proper, decent

¹Julius Caesar constructed the 'Julian' calendar, the same calendar we use today; he named the seventh month after himself. ²It was said that Jupiter (aka 'Jove'), the king of the Roman gods, bestowed the gift of happiness upon those born under the sign of the largest planet, naturally named Jupiter.

¹See also Index tree, p. 174. ²See also Iudex tree, p. 179. ³See also Vindex tree, p. 417. ⁴Latin for ante meridiem, 'before noon.' ⁵Latin for post meridiem, 'after noon.' ⁶Perhaps from the medieval Latin dialis, 'daily;' its application was to a 'sundial,' which measures the length of a 24-hour period (dials on 'rotary' phones used to be circular!). ⁷From the Latin dies mali, 'evil (or unlucky) days.' ⁸From the Latin adverb cotidie, 'everyday.'

Divido, dividere, divisi, divisum – to separate into parts, divide {devic, devis}

¹A device has been 'devised' or etymologically 'separated out' to do a certain task. ²*Dividend* is Latin for 'to be divided;' the dividend in a 'division' problem is the number 'being divided,' whereas the divisor is the number doing the 'dividing,' or 'separating' into groups. ³An individual is 'separated' from everybody else; the etymological idea is that an individual is 'indivisible' or 'not divisible,' that is, she cannot be 'divided' any further, being whole unto herself.

¹A date 'gives' one information 'placing' a particular day on the calendar, whereas data are pieces of information 'having been given.' ²In the ancient world, dice were used to 'decree' the future, revealing that which 'has been given' by fate. ³*Par* is a variant of the Latin per, here used intensively; hence, to pardon is to 'thoroughly give' someone the 'gift' of forgiveness. ⁴Via Greek doron, 'gift'; Pandora's name means 'all gifts.' ⁵Latin for a 'thing to be added;' addenda is the plural form, 'things to be added.' ⁶Etymologically 'something given not to be published.' ⁷Please see top of next page for additional roots.

Duco, ducere, duxi, ductum – to lead {du}

Dux, ducis – leader {duch, duk}

Educo, educare, educavi, educatum – to bring up, lead forth {edu}

¹Etymologically a product is anything 'led forth,' i.e., an item 'created' or 'manufactured.' ²The Latin word ducatus described not only a 'duchy,' but also a 'gold coin' probably owned by the 'duchy.'

Eo, ire, ii, itum – to go, pass

Ambio, ambire, ambii, ambitum – to go round, canvass, surround
 Comes, comitis – companion, one who ‘goes’ with another {count, con²}
 Exeo, exire, exii, exitum – to go out, leave {issu}
Initium – beginning, entrance {enc³}
 Iter, itineris – journey, a ‘going’ somewhere
 Obeo, obire, obii, obitum – to go over, meet one’s death, pass away

 Subito – suddenly, entered upon at little to no forewarning {sudden}
 Transeo, transire, transii, transitum – to go across, go over {tranc}

¹If one shows ambition, one likes fervently to ‘go around’ seeking a goal (originally referring to votes); burning the candle at ‘both’ ends, causing it to ‘go’ out quickly, would be a nice metaphor for ambition. ²In ‘constable.’

³In ‘commence’ and forms thereof.

Finis – end, boundary, limit

Finio, finire, finivi, finitum – to end, count, form a boundary, complete

¹A fine is imposed upon the ‘completion’ of a ticket, or a ‘completed’ conviction in a court of law. ²A fine test grade is nicely ‘finished,’ or given a grand ‘end,’ just as a well-sharpened pencil has a fine or ‘finished’ point: both the pencil and the test have a fine quality about them. ³To show an affinity for someone or something, one etymologically shares similar ‘boundaries’ or ‘preferences’ with them. ⁴The infinite has ‘no end.’ ⁵*Financial* responsibility not only depends upon how well one ‘counts’ one’s money, but also ‘counts’ out timely payments of debt. ⁶A finicky person’s ‘boundaries’ are a little too ‘fine,’ as they are difficult to please. ⁷The infinitive form of the verb is ‘unbounded’ by a subject, taking the form of ‘to do’ something.

Flabellum – fan (with which to cool oneself)

¹Someone physically or mentally feeble can be considered etymologically to be in a 'lamentable' or 'pathetic' position. ²A profligate has been etymologically 'struck down' to dissipation. ³A somewhat confusing origin; perhaps one could think of a flavor as a tasty 'exhalation' from a food. ⁴Another difficult origin; as one shows 'contempt' or 'mockery' for someone or something, one is 'blowing' out a good deal of insulting air.

Fluo, fluere, fluxi, fluxum – to flow, stream, glide {fluor-, fluoro-}

Fluctus – a wave, undulating movement

Fluvius – river, running water

¹The flu, short for influenza, was once thought to 'flow in' from the evil 'influence' of the stars. ²Light is emitted or 'flows' out from a fluorescent bulb. ³Wealth 'flows towards' an affluent person. ⁴The most reactive element is fluorine, which can therefore be thought of as 'flowing' eagerly towards other substances such as water, organic compounds, minerals, etc., to combine with them; fluorine is rarely found isolated. ⁵From Greek phloios, 'bark,' by which food 'flows' through a plant; phloios is possibly a cognate of fluere.

Folium – leaf {foil, fol}

Frango, frangere, fregi, fractum – to break, crush, mitigate {frag⁵, frair, fray, fring}

Fragilis – easily breakable {frail}

¹An hors d'oeuvre is served 'outside' the main course. ²This word is completely dependent upon one's frame of reference; e.g., there is truly no such thing as a purely foreign language because every language is native to someone. ³To forfeit a match is to have its outcome 'made outside' the playing ground. ⁴Purportedly wayward Greeks were ostracized by their fellow men by the casting of votes on broken potsherds (see note 1, p. 544); it is possible that the Latin word suffragium, 'a cast vote,' whose origin is frangere, refers to 'broken' tiles once used for casting ballots as well. ⁵Sometimes the letter 'n' can drop from a word.

Futilis – untrustworthy, pointless, of a leaky vessel⁵

Gens, gentis – clan, tribe, nation, people Gentilis – of one's tribe, house, or family {gentl, jaunty}

¹Originally, if a boy was of gentle birth, he came from a good and wealthy 'family;' since he was therefore gentle, or a 'gentleman,' he treated others courteously, a meaning which later evolved into being 'tender,' which is a courteous way to treat others. ²Someone from a good 'family,' i.e., one of 'noble' birth, often acted with a 'confident air' due to their high social status.

Gero, gerere, gessi, gestum – to bear, bring, carry, wear, achieve, perform {jest}

Agger – pile, items brought and heaped up in one area

Regero, regerere, regessi, regestum – to record, carry back {regist, registr}

¹If someone suggests something, they etymologically ‘bring it out from below’ for consideration, or ‘carry it to the foot of’ possibility. ²If one is suffering from indigestion, food is ‘not being carried through’ one’s digestive system as it normally should be. ³Just as the body digests food by a process of ‘carrying it through’ the alimentary canal, so too can the mind digest information by ‘processing’ it. ⁴A gesture is a characteristic expressive ‘performance,’ ‘carried out’ by moving the hands or limbs. ⁵A jest is a comedic ‘performance.’ ⁶If one exaggerates, one is metaphorically moving ‘outside the pile’ of reality. ⁷Since the gestation period of a sheep is five months, the ewe ‘carries’ the lamb for that long before it is born.

¹Since the generous prince is truly 'noble-minded,' he naturally wants to 'give freely.' ²Something of a general nature affects the whole 'type' or 'kind;' for instance, a general remedy for a headache is aspirin, which works for nearly all people. ³A generator 'gives birth' to energy. ⁴An engine is a 'clever device' that 'produces' motion by using energy. ⁵A genie is a 'spirit' that does one's bidding. ⁶A genie is a section of DNA that 'brings forth' physical characteristics, such as blue eyes or a big nose. ⁷The genuine truth is the 'honest' truth. ⁸An animal indigenous to a region is 'born' and lives there; from the Latin indigena, a 'native.' ⁹An ingénue is a 'babe in the woods' whose 'honesty' and 'guilelessness' are her primary character traits.

Grador, gradi, gressus sum – step, move {gred}
Gradus – step, degree {gree}

¹A grad or graduate of a school has taken the next 'step' up the educational ladder, or has 'moved' on to bigger and better things. ²A grade school consists of several 'steps,' or 'grades,' in which students must receive passing grades to successfully 'step' forth towards 'graduation.' ³To progress is to 'step forth.' ⁴An ingredient is a food item that a cook 'moves into' a recipe. ⁵Moving gradually is taking things 'step' by 'step.' ⁶*Congress* is etymologically a 'moving together' of people, in this case elected officials. ⁷If one is aggressive, one 'steps towards' someone or something vigorously or with hostility. ⁸A transgression is a 'stepping across' of a line that should not be crossed.

Granum – grain, seed [garn, grain, gren]

Note the consonant shift from the 'v' of gravis to the 'f' of grief. ²*Gravitational* force makes objects 'heavy.' ³A gregarious person is highly social; he likes to 'flock' with others, or 'congregate' with them. ⁴*Egregious* behavior is far beyond social norms, etymologically 'outside the flock,' or grossly wayward.

Humor – moisture, liquid, bodily fluid Humeo, humere – to be moist, be wet

¹Medieval medicine taught that the body possessed four fluids or humors: black bile, yellow bile (choler), blood, and phlegm; the relative concentrations of these four humors, different for each person, determined mood, health, and general disposition. In time, the word humor became related simply to one's mood (as in a person being in a 'good' or 'bad' humor), and eventually evolved into the more specific meaning of 'funnyness.'

¹Note that the Latin letter ‘i’ changed to a ‘j’ before a vowel in English derivatives, primarily for ease of pronunciation. ²The Roman god Janus had one head but two faces, one that looked ahead, and one that looked behind; he was god of ‘doorways’ because he could look both ‘in’ and ‘out’ at the same time, and had the month January named after him because it was the ‘end’ of the old year and the beginning of the ‘new.’ ³A janitor was originally a ‘door-keeper.’

Ioculus – little joke {jocul, juggl}

¹The entrée was once served before the main dish, as an 'introduction' to it; now it refers to the main dish.

²The intrinsic value of anything is its 'inner' value, usually subjective, that does not depend on outer market forces, that is, an item that is worthless on the market can have infinite intrinsic value to an individual. For example, I have an old pipe wrench of my father's that is maybe worth a few dollars, but I wouldn't part with it for one million as it has much sentimental value for me alone; also see note 2, p. 341. ³To vie for a prize is to 'invite' competition as one contends for it. ⁴A juggler used to be a 'jester,' or a court entertainer/joke teller, who would also 'juggle' for the court. ⁵Since Aaron was in jeopardy of losing his slinky via Alec's vile villainy, he etymologically had a jeu parti, or 'divided play' (i.e. equal chance) of counteracting the pernicious plot.

¹Rafael completed such an elaborate painting that he received an A+ from Mrs. Reams, who asseverated that it must have taken him months to ‘work out’ every fine detail. ²A collapse is a ‘thorough falling.’ ³One would expect something like ‘avalanche’ (keeping in mind Grimm’s law of ‘b’ shifting to ‘v’) to come from labi, but this word also underwent metathesis, so the ‘v’ switched with the ‘l;’ an avalanche is etymologically a ‘falling towards’ the ground.

Loquor, loqui, locutus sum – to talk, speak

⁴Note that the English word long is from the Old English lang, 'long.' ⁵*Eloquent* people 'speak out' articulately and clearly. ⁶*Colloquial* refers to 'talking together,' or to the 'spoken' language.

Malleus – hammer {maul}
Malleo, malleare – to hit with a hammer (to shape)

¹The idea of a shopping mall originated from a large area that was needed to play a game named ‘pall mall,’ which used a ‘mallet’ to hit a ball; an expansive area in London, once used to play the game, later was used as a promenade, or public walk, appropriately dubbed ‘Pall Mall;’ later on outdoor shops would grace public walkways, and, for the sake of convenience, at last became enclosed, forming the modern mall.

Mantellum – a cloak {mant, mantl}

¹A menial is a 'house' servant who performs menial or servile tasks. ²Morpheme in 'ménage' and 'menagerie.'

¹Via Old French retirer, 'to draw back.' ²Via Old French tirer, 'to draw out;' steps are 'drawn out' in a series of rows in a tier, whereas a tirade is a 'drawn out' censorious lambasting. ³The second syllable of this word is related to the derivatives with the tir morpheme, as the Old French tirer can also mean 'to endure;' a martyr must sufferingly 'endure' a trial which is 'drawn out' or unduly 'lengthened.' ⁴'Female' is not etymologically related to 'male,' although they look similar; rather, it derives from femella, a Latin diminutive of femina (see p. 121). ⁵Again, a Latin 'c' could change to 'k' during the move to English.

Mater, matris – mother {madr}
Materna – belonging to a mother, motherly
Materia – material, substance {matt}

¹*Matter* is etymologically the 'mother,' or 'building blocks,' of a 'substance,' or that which gives 'substance' its 'material' existence: as a 'mother's' uterus builds her child, so too does 'matter' form all objects. ²*Matrimony* is that church-sanctioned state, i.e. 'marriage,' in which it is considered lawful for a woman to become a 'mother;' it can also be thought of as a man and a woman leaving the protective shelter of their respective 'mothers' to join with each other. ³Latin for 'nourishing mother.'

Medius – middle, in the middle, in half {mezz}

Medianus – central {mean}

Dimidius – half {demi}

¹The word medal comes from a Latin coin which was valued at 'half' a denarius; a medal also looks like a coin.

³Etymologically 'arising from' a liquid, the opposite of 'immersing' in a liquid. ⁴Rowyn immersed himself in the hilarity of Don Quixote, barely coming up for air as he eagerly devoured each chapter.

¹A dimension is a 'measuring across' a space. ²An immense mountain is so vast that it etymologically has 'no measure' in the sense that it cannot be 'measured.' ³Note the dropped 'n'; also see note 5, p. 140. ⁴She who emigrates, or 'moves out of' one country is an emigrant (referring to her country of origin); when she 'moves into,' or immigrates to another, she becomes an immigrant (referring to her destination): if Brunhilda were permanently moving from the United States to Ireland, she would correctly refer to herself as an emigrant from the United States, but as an immigrant when referring and traveling to Ireland.

¹The minute hand of the clock tracks the 'lesser' or 'smaller' division of time than the hour hand, that is, 'one-sixtieth' of an hour. ²Diners were often offered a full 'family-style' dinner or full-course meal at hotels, and those not wishing to thus dine could order items from a 'smaller' list, or menu; now the menu lists most things a restaurant offers. ⁴If one finds a situation amenable to one's tastes, one finds it far from 'threatening,' hence one can be easily 'driven' to it. ⁵One's demeanor is how one conducts or 'drives' oneself.

Moderor, moderari, moderatus sum – to guide, restrain, temper, regulate Modestus – temperate, restrained, unassuming
Modulus – standard measurement unit, small measure {mold}
Commodus – suitable, convenient, desirable, agreeable, useful

¹A 'small measure' representing a larger object. ²A mold is a 'model' that surrounds something to be formed.

¹To demolish a building is to level its ‘mass,’ or ‘take away its mass.’ ²A molecule is etymologically a ‘little heap’ of two or more atoms that forms a substance, such as NaCl or H₂O. ³A mole of atoms consists of a ‘heap’ of 6.02 X 10²³ particles of that atom, also called Avogadro’s number. ⁴The semantic connection lies in the idea that a ‘mass’ or throng of people can quickly lead to a disturbance. ⁵A mollusk is a ‘soft’ animal within its shell, much like a nut is the ‘soft’ part within its shell. ⁶From the Latin bonus, ‘good,’ and malacia, ‘calm sea,’ via Spanish bonanza, ‘calm sea weather, tranquility.’ ⁷One etymologically ‘softens’ one’s hands by getting them ‘wet,’ and thus ‘soiled,’ as one ‘toils’ or is involved in ‘turmoil;’ please don’t blame the author, as he did not make up this convoluted language.

Moneo, monere, monui, monitum – to warn, advise, remind Monstro, monstrare, monstravi, monstratum – to show, point out, teach {must}
Monstrum⁴ – monster, portent {monst}

¹From the Latin emolumentum, the 'compensation' that millers demanded for the 'grinding' of grain. ²A monument is a visible 'reminder' of a person or an historical event. ³From the Latin summonere, 'to remind in private.' ⁴A monster was originally a 'portent,' or indication of impending doom (hence the connection with 'warning'); later a monster became a visible symbol or manifestation (hence the relation with 'showing') of the doom itself.

Mons, montis – mountain, hill {mount}

¹The connection with a ‘mountain’ and mounting, or getting on, for example, a donkey, is that you must ‘climb’ both to get to the top. ²The word amount comes from the Latin ad montem, ‘to the hill;’ one can think of an amount as that which metaphorically must be added ‘to the hill,’ for instance, of money, to purchase something. ³The ‘Green Mountain’ state. ⁴One surmounts a problem by etymologically going ‘over the mountain.’ ⁵Influenced by Mons; also see Minere, p. 225. ⁶From Rodomont, a braggart in Ariosto’s Orlando Furioso; his name means ‘roller-away of mountains.’ ⁷A mountebank was a clever ‘charlatan’ who would ‘mount a bench’ so that a crowd would gather round, at which point he would hawk nostrums or snake oil, employing a ‘toady’ who would eat a toad (once considered poisonous), drink the purported wonder panacea, and declare himself cured; great sales of the mountebank’s miraculous concoction would then follow.

Mos, moris – custom, habit, manner, humor

¹*Mortgage* etymologically means ‘dead pledge;’ if a ‘mortgagor’ fails in his ‘pledge’ to pay off a mortgage, the property then becomes forfeit, or ‘dead’ to him, and he can no longer live at the property. ²Georgina was so mortified when her boyfriend saw her wigless that she almost ‘died’ of embarrassment. ³The greeting of the Roman gladiators to the presenter of the games in the Colosseum: ‘We who are about to die salute you.’ ⁴From the Latin morosus, ‘hard to please, peevish;’ hence, acting in a sullen ‘manner’ or gloomy ‘humor’ due to untoward persnickitiness (pernickitiness).

Nomen, nominis – name {noun, noun}

¹Etymologically ‘condition of reversal of the knot:’ the ‘untying’ or ‘resolution’ of the ‘plot knot’ at the end of a narrative. ²A noun is etymologically a ‘name’ for a person, place, or thing. ³A pronoun is simply a word, like ‘I’ or ‘she,’ which stands ‘forth for’ or ‘in place of’ a ‘noun.’ ⁴The denominator ‘denominates,’ or ‘names’ the number of parts into which a whole is divided, such as the ‘4’ in ‘¼,’ that is, ‘1’ part out of the whole ‘4.’ ⁵Jesse James, whose ‘name’ is known to most, possesses great renown for his notorious acts of train robbery in the annals of the American West.

Nota – mark, sign, letter, word

¹Etymologically, an umpire is a neutral official in a game, ‘not equal’ with either side; also see Par tree, p. 265.
²An enormous anaconda is ‘outside’ the customary ‘standard’ size. ³*Enormity* has nothing to do with great size, but rather with moral acts that are ‘outside the standard or norm,’ or extremely bad, evil, or flagitious; ‘enormousness’ is the noun form of ‘enormous.’ ⁴A word’s connotation is the implied ‘signs’ that go ‘with’ its literal denotation: ‘roses’ are ‘red flowers’ (denotation) that connote love and romance, which are ‘images’ or ‘signs’ that are part and parcel ‘with’ roses.

Novus – new {nou}

⁵Masks of Bacchus were used as ‘swinging’ amulets to protect grapes. ⁶A door is the ‘mouth’ of a building.

Pater, patrou (Gr.) – father

¹When a 'patron' gave monetary support to an artist, he might also give an 'example' or pattern of the work he wanted the artist to perform for him. ²The perpetrator of a crime is etymologically the 'father' of it. ³Via Latin repatriare, 'to return to one's country,' one can repair to a mountain retreat, or one's special 'place.' ⁴From the perfunctory performance of the Latin paternoster, the smug priest's incessant and mechanical patter bored us all to tears.

¹One does 'endure' and 'suffer' to a degree when one patiently awaits something that seems to never come.
²To show true compassion is to 'suffer with' someone who is ailing. ³The underlying root of passion is a 'suffering' for one's beloved. ⁴A poser is a 'difficult problem' that 'stumps' one, or gives one 'pause.' ⁵Via French poser, 'to put;' hence, a purpose is a goal 'put forth,' and a pose is a position in which one 'puts' oneself.

Pendeo, pendere, pependi, pensum – to hang, weigh {pois}

Penso, pensare, pensavi, pensatum – to weigh out, make up for

Pondero, ponderare, ponderavi, ponderatum – to weigh, consider

¹An expensive item's price etymologically 'outweighs' its worth, that is, it 'costs too much.' ²Via French pensée, 'thought;' poets have remarked that this flower seems 'weighed' down with thought, a great example of 'pathetic fallacy.' ³John considered Sue completely dependable because he was 'able to hang upon' her every promise. ⁴Via Latin expendere, 'to weigh, pay out;' to spend is etymologically to 'weigh out' money for a purchase. ⁵From the Latin pondus, 'weight.' ⁶Just as the appendix 'hangs upon' the large intestine, so too does one find an appendix 'hanging upon' the end of a book. ⁷The condition of 'not hanging upon' anyone or anything, in this case Britain. ⁸To 'weigh out' a stips, Latin for 'small payment.' ⁹To exhibit poise in a troubling situation is to 'hang' in there steadily, showing a certain amount of 'weight' so as not to be unduly moved or ruffled.

Pes, pedis – foot {pawn, peon, pied, pion}

Impedio, impedire, impedivi, impeditum – to hinder, entangle, obstruct

¹Something perfect is 'thoroughly done.' ²Not from, as one might expect, the Latin forma, but the French fournir, 'to furnish;' to perform is to 'thoroughly furnish' or 'supply' an action. ³To expedite a process is etymologically to 'free its feet' for 'unimpeded' proceeding. ⁴The impeached president was 'impeded' from doing his job any longer. ⁵The 'foot of a crane;' genealogical charts often contain lines that look remarkably similar to a 'crane's foot.' ⁶Via Old French avantpié, 'in front of the foot;' one often must 'refurbish' shoes and stockings.

 placebo⁵

Placeo, placere, placui, placitum – to please, suit, be acceptable {plais, plea, pleas}

Placo, placare, placavi, placatum – to calm, soothe, allay

¹The prefix ex- has an intensive force here, so a ‘thorough atoning’ for sins committed, with a subsequent return to ‘piousness.’ ²By mercifully giving a pittance, one shows ‘tenderness’ or ‘pity’ to the indigent.

³*Complacent* can mean one is so ‘pleased with’ oneself that one has become quite ‘smug,’ or can also mean ‘complaisant,’ or ‘eager to please;’ the first meaning is by far the one usually intended. ⁴One can think of a plea as a request that one hopes ‘pleases’ the person in power to grant it. ⁵Latin for ‘I will please;’ a placebo ‘pleases’ the patient psychologically, but has no direct physiological effect.

Planta – sole of the foot; plant, sprout {clan, plan}

Planto, plantare, plantavi, plantatum – to drive in with the sole of the foot, plant

¹Via Greek planktos, 'wandering,' a cognate of plessein (something 'wandering' is 'beat away'). ²One is suddenly 'stricken' by a 'stroke.' ³A plan is etymologically a 'scheme' that has been 'planted' and hopefully grows. ⁴Via Old Irish cland, 'offspring;' the idea is of 'offspring' that 'sprouts' which helps the clan to grow.

¹*Multiplication* is etymologically 'the act of folding many times.' ²To 'fold out' for all to see. ³An employee is one who is 'folded into' a place of business. ⁴Something simple is only 'folded once.' ⁵A plight is a 'predicament' which is difficult to 'uncoil.' ⁶A perplexed person's thoughts are so 'thoroughly coiled' that they become 'confused.' ⁷Something pliant is 'bendable.' ⁸A complex situation is so 'thoroughly folded' that it is difficult to 'untwine.' ⁹An implied rule is 'folded in' indirectly, and does not need to be explanatorily 'unfolded.' ¹⁰One can think of one's complexion as the texture 'woven' into one's features, such as the face and character; it originally referred to the combination of the four humors (see note 1, p. 168). ¹¹To 'fold out' in explanation. ¹²Inspector Hugo revealed Rupert's duplicity when he caught him using a different alias for the same night in question, thus exposing his 'double-dealing.'

Plus, pluris – more

¹Lead' was a common component of pipes until more modern times. ²When lead was used to 'plumb' the depths of water, it would plunge or 'forcefully enter' the water due to its density. ³*Plummeting* implies great speed, which implies great weight 'hurtling forth,' like heavy 'lead;' of course, unless there is air resistance, all objects fall at the same speed. Note that the notion of plummeting came first from 'plumbing' by using 'lead' to quickly sound the depths, as 'lead' sinks at great speed. ⁴Due to the weight of 'lead,' 'plumb' lines fall straight to the bottom, metaphorically holding their 'composure' or exhibiting 'poise' against buffeting waves. ⁵1 plus 1=1 'more' than 1. ⁶'More' than one. ⁷Gilbert was so nonplussed by the baffling lecture on "the seasonal germination of gillyflowers" that he could mentally take 'no more.' ⁸'One from many;' note that plus, pluris in the plural form means 'many' or 'very many.'

Pono, ponere, posui, positum – to put, place, set up, put down, specify {pos, post, pound}

¹Etymologically a word 'placed before' another word. ²To 'place against.' ³To be positive is to be so 'sure' about something that one can confidently 'put it down' in writing; this sense of 'certain or real existence' gave rise to the 'positive' number, which is a visible representation of things in the 'real' world as opposed to a negative number: one can see '3' oranges, but not '-3' oranges. ⁴Via Italian posta, 'station;' in the early days of the 'postal' system, riders, such as members of the Pony Express, were 'placed' at 'stations' at regular intervals to carry mail. ⁵Via Latin supponere, 'to place under;' when one supposes something, one etymologically 'places it beneath or under' the realm of possibility. ⁶To 'put together.' ⁷Since one has 'thoroughly placed' oneself by exhibiting composure, one is 'not easily ruffled.' ⁸Simply a noun 'placed near' another noun.

Porta – gate, entrance

Portus – harbor, port

¹A combination of the Latin porcus and piscis, or 'pig-fish;' the porpoise's snout may have inspired the name.

²Via the French porcelain, 'cowrie shell,' due to its 'china-like' sheen; apparently a 'pig's' back was thought to resemble such a shell.

³From the Latin porcus and spina, or 'spiny-pig.'

⁴The word opportunity comes from the Latin opportunus which described a good time for a ship to approach a 'harbor,' such as when the wind was blowing favorably.

⁵The stickybeak importuned me so relentlessly for information about the Hollywood marriage that I could find 'no harbor' to shelter me from her repeated entreaties.

Porto, portare, portavi, portatum – to carry

¹One wants to 'carry in' and tend to something important. ²*Transportation* is 'the act of carrying across' from one place to another. ³A reporter 'carries back' a story to tell. ⁴Short for 'disport,' etymologically to 'carry apart' or 'divert;' a sport therefore is a form of entertainment or diversion that 'carries' one away from everyday activities. ⁵How one 'carries' or 'conducts' oneself. ⁶The prefix pur- is a variant of pro-, 'forth;' hence, a purported sighting of the Loch Ness Monster is one 'carried forth' as 'supposedly' having happened. ⁷*Portly* once referred to one's 'dignified bearing;' today it refers to one who 'carries' a good deal of weight.

¹Elizabeth's precarious hold upon the edge of the precipice induced her both to 'pray' and to curse. ²A 'prayer against' someone. ³To surprise is etymologically to 'seize from above' unawares. ⁴Claire was apprehensive about the upcoming murder trial, turning it over and over again in her fickle mind. ⁵A reprehensible act is one that must be etymologically 'seized again' and censured. ⁶An apprentice 'seizes' the knowledge of the master under which he works. ⁷An enterprise, often undertaken by an entrepreneur, is a 'seizing between' the hands to bring about a desired result.

Ramus – branch

¹A radical wants to change something by going to the ‘root’ of the perceived problem and eradicate or ‘root it out.’ ²A tricky history: rascal possibly came from a word meaning ‘commoners’ or ‘mob,’ which were often filled with mischievous rascals; this in turn may have come from a word meaning ‘scab’ or ‘mud’ (things needing to be ‘scraped’ off) which often covered the rascals in the mob; rapsCALLION is probably a variant form of rascal. ³Jillian kept on ‘scratching’ her rash, which had spread over her entire body. ⁴A ramification is etymologically the ‘making of a branch:’ each action forms a new ‘branch’ or ‘development/consequence.’

Rapidus – quick, flowing swiftly⁵

¹Brynna was so enraptured by Botticelli's Primavera that, for ever after, it 'seized' her aesthetic senses.
²Etymologically a 'seizing from below,' hence 'stealthy' or 'clandestine.'
³The ravenous werewolf 'grabbed' all the sheep in the pasture, and ate the shepherd too.
⁴The Lady of the Lake's ravishing beauty 'seized' the hearts of all King Arthur's knights.
⁵Rapidus could refer to a 'swiftly flowing' river with the intimation that such a 'fast moving' current would 'snatch' away anything in its path.

¹The Romans nailed rostra, the 'beaks' or 'prows' of warships used for ramming, onto the Forum's central speaker's platform, appropriately dubbed the rostra; these military trophies of naval conquest were a highly visible reminder of the might of Rome which could be seen when anyone, citizen or visitor, frequented Rome's center. ²Possibly originally a 'charlatan' who pretended to be a beggar and thereby deceptively 'asked' for money. ³An arrogant man 'solicits' undue claims for himself in an overbearing fashion. ⁴Via Latin derogare, 'to detract, take away from.' ⁵A surrogate is etymologically someone who is 'asked for in place of' another. ⁶*Supererogatory* behavior is etymologically an 'asking over and beyond' that which is formally required.

¹The word romance early on referred to a medieval tale written in French, a vernacular language descended from 'Rome,' that is, from Latin; these tales were often of 'love' and 'daring adventure.' ²Languages descended from the language of 'Rome,' Latin: Spanish, French, Italian, Portuguese, and Romanian.

Rota – wheel

Rotato, rotare, rotavi, rotatum – to revolve, move in a circular path

Rotula – little wheel {rol, roll}

Rotundus – round {round}

¹Via French contrerolle, ‘accounting roll copy;’ medieval counting houses employed ‘counter-rolls’ to ‘check’ or control accounting accuracy. ²Actors’ lines, comprising their role, were once written on rolled-up sheets of paper. ³Cowboys ‘round’ up animals in a rodeo. ⁴A gardener often cuts in a ‘rounded’ shape when she prunes a plant; from the Latin pro and rotundus. ⁵After Tolbert had learned the class notes by rote, ‘circling’ the facts again and again in his mind, the information just ‘rolled’ off his pen during the exam. ⁶Via the Latin ore rotundo, ‘by means of a round mouth.’ ⁷See note 5, p. 394.

Sal – salt⁴

Salsus – salted {sauc, saus}

¹A part of ancient salaries included 'salt,' considered a valuable commodity at the time. ²*Sauces* often contain a good deal of 'salt;' the saucer is etymologically the 'dish' for sauce. ³*Salad* dressing often contains 'salt.'
⁴The English word salt is derived from Old English sealt, which is cognate with Latin sal.

Sanctus – holy {saint, san}

¹Romans used the greeting salve! to say 'hello' to fellow citizens, thereby wishing them 'good health;' later on, important personages were bombastically 'greeted' with a 'flurry of gunfire.' ²Ted's sanctimonious, or 'holier than thou' attitude, grated upon all his acquaintances.

Saturnus – Saturn

¹Although one may never have ‘enough’ assets, one can certainly work ‘towards’ having ‘enough.’ ²A satire was originally a literary work that dealt with a medley of miscellaneous subjects, or a ‘full’ plate of different items; only later did it evolve into its present meaning of a ‘work deriding follies.’ ³*Saturn* was variously regarded as the titan of civilization, agriculture (especially viticulture), and the Underworld; the planet Saturn was probably so named because of its proximity to Jupiter, Saturn’s son. ⁴Medieval astrologers considered those born under the planet ‘Saturn’ to possess a ‘gloomy’ disposition.

Skandalon³ (Gr.) – trap, snare, stumbling block, offense {scandal, sland}

¹Scan developed its current meaning of 'examine' from the close analysis of verse; this 'examination' can be hastily or methodically carried out. ²To condescend is to 'thoroughly come down' to the presupposed level of another in a patronizing fashion. ³These seemingly unrelated root words both come ultimately from the Indo-European root skand-, 'to leap, climb, jump;' one attempts to 'climb' or 'leap' a 'stumbling block;' n.b. scalae is also from skand-, as one 'climbs' a ladder.

Scintilla – spark, glittering spot

¹Note how the s sounds help mimic the sound of something ‘splitting.’ ²The etymological idea is that, just as something that ‘glitters’ beautifies, so too does a stencil help to ‘adorn’ the page upon which it is used; note the metathesis of the ‘c’ and ‘t’ sounds from scintilla to stencil, also present in ‘tinsel.’

¹The president of a nation ‘sits before’ all the nation’s people, and ‘presides’ over them. ²To size or a size suggest a ‘settling’ upon an amount. ³The idea here is ‘sitting in ambush’ for or ‘settling down secretly to wait for’ someone; from the Latin insidiae, ‘trap, ambush.’ ⁴Most etymologists agree that sedulous is not from sedere, but a combination of the Latin se ‘without’ and the Greek dolos, ‘trickery;’ if one promises sedulous industry, one works ‘pertinaciously’ or ‘without trickery,’ i.e. not slacking off—but one can also faithfully ‘sit upon’ a task until its completion. ⁵Via the Latin supersedere, ‘to sit over, desist.’ ⁶The etymological idea of ‘possession’ is the ‘holding of property’ upon which the owner has the ‘power to sit’ and thereby ‘retain;’ also see Possum tree, p. 292.

¹The noun season originally referred to that time of year for ‘sowing seeds;’ only later did it come to mean one of the four main divisions of a calendar year. When one seasons food, one scatters spices upon it, similar to the ‘scattering’ of ‘seeds’ when planting; this makes the food ‘riper,’ so more palatable to the tastebuds. ²The ‘seeds’ of ideas are planted and mature during a seminar. ³See note 7, p. 217.

Sidus, sideris – star

Desidero, desiderare, desideravi, desideratum – to express longing for, request, find lacking {desir}

¹To consider was originally 'to watch the stars' for the purpose of foretelling the future; after having carefully contemplated or considered the position of the 'stars' and planets, the astrologer could supposedly predict happenings in advance—the meaning of the word eventually changed to 'thinking over an issue or idea carefully.' ²The relation of 'star' to desire is unclear, but a few suggestions follow: perhaps one can derive hope for one's desire 'from' observing auspicious omens in the 'stars;' maybe a lover can 'express longing for' his beloved by sending up wishes 'from' the earth to the 'stars' for fulfillment; perhaps that which one 'finds lacking' here on earth one can 'desirably' find 'from the stars;' or, lastly, one's desire at times may seem as 'far away' as the 'stars,' or certainly as 'lofty' as them.

Signum – mark, seal, sign, distinguishing feature, signal

¹Anything significant has etymologically ‘made its mark’ upon a given situation. ²Most official ‘seals’ were embossed in ‘red’ wax; scarlet passed through Old French escarlante, a predominantly rich, ‘red’ cloth. ³If the president were to resign, he would etymologically give ‘back’ the ‘seal’ or ‘mark’ of his office. ⁴*Tocsin* comes from the notion of ‘touching a bell,’ the bell being the ‘signal’ by which the ‘alarm’ is sounded.

¹To assist in a task is etymologically to help another ‘stand firm’ in its accomplishment. ²On the northern hemisphere’s winter solstice, the sun ‘stands still’ over the Tropic of Capricorn, and on the summer solstice, it pauses over the Tropic of Cancer—the seasons are reversed for the southern hemisphere. ³If one exhibits consistent excellence, one etymologically ‘thoroughly stands firm’ in that laudable behavior. ⁴The etymological connection is of a ‘standing still,’ or pause between opposing objects which is indicative of a narrow ‘space’ or interstice. ⁵After the bug-eyed boy had watched the ninth consecutive situational comedy, his veggie brain imploded.

Solidus – solid, whole, firm {sol, sold}

Sollicitus⁵ – troubled, worried, attentive, anxious, vexed {solicit, souc}

Sollemnis – established, traditional, customary {solemn}

¹If something is obsolete, it is no longer 'in the habit of' being 'used;' in contradistinction, anything obsolescent, such as the typewriter or rotary phone, is slowly fading but not completely out of 'use.' ²*Insolent* people do 'not' behave in the 'customary' polite or civil way. ³The word soldier is derived from solidus, a type of 'pure' or 'solid' gold coin first issued during the reign of Diocletian in an attempt to reverse the debasement of coinage at the time; the notion is that a soldier worked for such 'coins' or 'pay.' ⁴A console is a cabinet for a stereo system or television that unites all components into a 'whole.' ⁵*Citus* comes from the Latin verb ciere which means 'to move or stir up,' hence sollicitus is the 'movement of something once held firm,' which consequently causes 'worry' or undue 'anxiety.' ⁶The insouciant halfpipe champ was 'not' in the least 'troubled' that he fell on his first run.

¹When one solves a problem, one etymologically ‘unties’ or ‘loosens’ it when providing a correct solution, or that which has ‘untied’ the issue. ²When sugar dissolves in water, its molecules are etymologically ‘untied’ or ‘destroyed,’ and hence disappear. ³If your teacher is absolutely correct, she is ‘free’ or ‘loosened from’ all error. ⁴If one is resolute or shows resolve, one is determined to be ‘loosened’ or ‘untied’ from any impediments that might hinder an endeavor. ⁵Etymologically ‘set free’ from any warmth, or molecular motion, at all. ⁶If one is financially solvent, one can meet, or etymologically ‘destroy’ or ‘loosen’ all financial obligations. ⁷Cognate with Greek hypnos, ‘sleep;’ see p. 493.

Sono, sonare, sonavi, sonatum – to sound {sound}

Sonus – sound {sono-, sound}

Persona⁴ – mask, role, character

¹A consonant is a letter that must 'sound with' a vowel. ²Etymologically a 'little sound' or 'little song.' ³The repetition of similar vowels that 'sound near' each other in a text. ⁴A highly debated etymology. Some sources indicate that the Latin persona probably ultimately comes from the Etruscan phersu, 'mask;' others aver that persona is related to the Latin verb personare, 'to sound through.' Indeed, a 'mask' is that which an actress 'sounds through' as she acts her role, whether it be physical or metaphorical; in turn, all persons sound through 'masks,' as it were: it is very hard to divine the true nature of anyone, so we must resign ourselves, even if we can say we know someone 'personally,' to only knowing their 'mask,' or their outward, facial appearance that they want us to perceive, rather than their inner, true self.

Sto, stare, steti, statum⁶ – to stand, stand still

{stag, stanc, stant, stet, stic, stit}

¹A stage is a place an actor 'stands' upon to act; a 'stage of life' is yet another step upon which one 'stands' as one journeys through life; cf. 'stagecoach.' ²This is the verb rest which means 'to remain,' as in 'rest assured that we will all live,' and the noun that means 'remainder;' 'rest,' as in a 'break from work,' comes from Middle English. ³Etymologically that which 'stands together.' ⁴Via constare, 'to stand with;' a price 'stands with' every product. ⁵See note 2, p. 599. ⁶Please see derivational roots of stare on the top of the next page.

Tempero, temperare, temperavi, temperatum – to regulate, mix properly, exercise moderation, modify {tamper}

¹To take the 'cover off.' ²Via the Latin toga, etymologically a 'covering' for the body. ³Nowadays, one in a temper does not 'exercise moderation.' ⁴*Temperature* originally meant 'mild weather,' or weather that was 'mixed properly,' that is, neither too hot nor too cold; this meaning later evolved into how warm or cold the weather actually was. ⁵*Temperament* refers to one's 'properly mixed' character traits.

Tempus, temporis – time, side of the forehead¹ {templ, tens}
Tempeſtas – period of time, season, weather, storm

¹Although these two meanings of tempus seem completely unrelated, the connection between them seems to be that when a man's temple, or 'side of his forehead,' was 'properly placed,' that is, advantageously turned towards an assailant, it was then the right 'time' for the attacker to fruitfully strike his 'temporarily' vulnerable spot.

Ostendo, ostendere, ostendi, ostensum (ostentum) – to show, exhibit

¹A tent is 'stretched out' on a frame. ²To pretend is etymologically to 'stretch out in front of' reality. ³To give attention one etymologically 'stretches out towards' someone. ⁴The root tendere only influenced the formation of tendon; for the direct root, see the Teinein tree, p. 602. ⁵A 'stretching in front of' the truth. ⁶A 'stretching before' others to make them take notice. ⁷Something intense is 'stretched taut' so as to be extreme or a 'strain.' ⁸'Stretched out' towards a particular point of view.

Terra – earth, land {ter, tur}

¹A trite observation has been 'worn away' of any useful meaning or interest; a good synonym is 'hackneyed.'

²Via the Latin terracea, 'earthen mound;' a terrace today of any form is etymologically a modified 'earthen mound,' such as a porch, platform, or patio. ³This breed of dog originally ferreted game from holes in the 'earth.' ⁴The sea 'in the middle of the land.' ⁵To place 'into the earth.'

Testis – witness, proof, indicator

¹A text is words ‘woven’ together that forms a narrative. ²The thickness or fineness of a ‘weaving’ determines its texture. ³A bodily tissue, such as muscle, is comprised of strands of fiber ‘woven’ together; paper tissue is formed from ‘intertwined’ fine paper fibers. ⁴‘So many lies that they have become ‘intertwined,’ or ‘woven’ together. ⁵A person’s toilet originally referred to the act of dressing (i.e. with ‘cloth,’ which is ‘woven’) and grooming; it was later extended to the room in which one dressed which had access to a lavatory, containing what we know today as a toilet. ⁶A word in context is ‘woven with’ other words which creates a grammatical and semantic relationship. ⁷A subtlety is etymologically a passing of the finest thread ‘under the web’ to ‘weave’ the finest of cloth; this later metaphorically developed into the making of ‘fine’ or subtle distinctions. ⁸Susha was caught in the toils of despair, entangled by a ‘web’ of difficulties beyond her control.

¹Via an alteration of Spanish tronada, 'thunderstorm;' English, through possible metathesis or most likely simply confusion, followed the meaning and spelling of the Spanish tornado, 'turned' (which today means 'hurricane'), thus converting tronada into tornado, whose meaning became a 'violent whirlwind.'

¹The electric ray, also known as the numbfish or torpedo, is a type of torpedo-shaped fish that numbs its prey, much like a military torpedo can disable an enemy. ²A flammable material is 'wound' around the end of a stick to produce a torch. ³This etymology is obscure; some sources suggest that tortoise and turtle are derived from torquere because of the 'twisted' shape of their legs.

Tremo, tremere, tremui – to shake, tremble
Tremulus – shaking, trembling {trembl, tremol}

¹This is draw not only as in ‘pull,’ but also the ‘dragging’ of a pencil across paper, evident in the derivative ‘trace.’ ²The etymological notion is that something tremendous is capable of making one ‘tremble.’

¹A trait or characteristic 'granted to' someone or something. ²To 'disentangle.' ³The intricate puzzle's pathways were so convoluted that they 'played tricks against' everyone's mind; only after painstaking effort was the puzzle solved. ⁴The unwelcome intruder 'thrust' himself 'into' our pleasant party. ⁵His broken femur protruded from his right leg after having been 'thrust forth' during a violent skiing accident. ⁶Linda's literal mind could not follow the abstruse argument since it was 'pushed away' from more comprehensible concrete reality.

¹When one avoids a place, one keeps it ‘empty’ of oneself. ²A vacuum is created by ‘emptying’ space of air (matter) by sucking it all out; hence, ‘vacuum cleaner.’ ³In compounds of vadere only; vadere properly has no fourth principal part because it is intransitive. ⁴His vague explanation concerning his previous night’s whereabouts ‘wandered’ about without providing any clear insight as to his actual location. ⁵From ‘Tervagant,’ an abusive character in morality plays, and later a ‘shrewish woman;’ the character’s name probably comes from Trivagante, the ‘moon,’ which ‘wanders’ under the aegis of ‘three’ moon goddesses.

¹Manhattan was originally colonized by the Dutch; Peter Stuyvesant, hired as the last Dutch governor to rejuvenate an effete New World venture, fortified the territory with a ‘wall’ to thwart (ineffectually) the encroaching British; the ‘wall’ was located where Wall Street is now. ²Dr. Higginbotham’s vaunted concoction purportedly gave everlasting life; his rodomontade, like his elixir, proved ‘illusory.’ ³The teacher’s vapid lecture was rife with a plethora of platitudes, bromides, and clichés that left it ‘flat.’

Veneror, venerari, veneratus sum – to worship, revere, honor
Venus, Veneris – goddess of love, beauty, and charm
Venenum – love potion, poison {venom}
Venor, venari, venatus sum¹ – to hunt

¹The archetype of 'desire' is the etymological essence of these four roots.

Venio, venire, veni, ventum – to come, approach, arrive
 Advenio, advenire, adveni, adventum – to arrive at, reach, come to Convenio, convenire, conveni, conventum – to come together, meet, agree

¹A convenient date is a mutually 'agreeable' time to 'come together' for an activity. ²An event is something that etymologically 'comes out,' or 'happens.' ³During an adventure, one 'comes upon' many people or 'comes to' many places, some dangerous, some highly rewarding. ⁴To invent something new is to 'come upon' it for the first time; via Latin invenire, 'to find.' ⁵Via Latin subvenire, 'to come to mind,' the idea is that a souvenir is etymologically a 'coming under' as a 'support' for the mind to recall a place one has visited. ⁶The advent of anything is when it first 'comes towards' or 'arrives at' existence. ⁷The dilettante's adventitious commentary during the expert's lecture 'came near' the truth, but added little to the professor's essential message. ⁸The parvenu suddenly 'came through' to untold wealth when he located the lost caverns of Ali Baba.

¹When it comes to grammatical terms, especially parts of speech, English was not particularly inventive; to wit, a verb is simply an action 'word.' ²An adverb is etymologically a 'word' that sits 'near a verb.' ³A proverb is etymologically a 'word (put) forth' expressing common wisdom accessible to all. ⁴*Verve* originated as energetic 'verbal' expression.

¹Advertisements seek to 'turn' clients 'toward' a product or service. ²From the Latin universus, 'whole, entire:' all of perceptible creation 'turned into one.' A university, also derived from universus, offers a 'whole' range of degrees, from undergraduate to graduate. ³Having a conversation is socially 'taking a turn with' another person. ⁴A 'turning apart' of husband and wife. ⁵A vertebrate possesses vertebrae, etymologically bones upon which other bones can 'turn.' ⁶One can think of a verse as a 'turning' or 'moving' from one line of poetry to the next. ⁷One having 'thoroughly turned' towards a particular point of view. ⁸To 'turn the mind towards' something in a censorious or critical fashion.

¹One 'turned against' another. ²Not (intentionally) turning towards' something. ³To pervert is to 'thoroughly turn' someone from normal behavior; the much less forceful peevish, 'discontented, contrary' may derive from this sense as well. ⁴Hair 'whorls out' or 'turns' from the 'top of the head.' ⁵Via proversus, 'turned forward;' prose is 'straightforward discourse' as opposed to the more labyrinthine and figurative expressions of poetry.

Via – road, way, journey {vey, vi, voy}
Obviam – in the way, in one's path

¹'Beasts of burden,' because of their strenuous toil and 'long-standing' service, eventually become sick and require medical attention. ²The octogenarian's inveterate stand on the abortion issue never once wavered during his 'long' tenure in office. ³The Latin word trivium meant 'place where three roads meet' or 'a crossroads,' a common meeting area for travellers where they would exchange news, or pieces of 'common information.' ⁴The 'way from' normal behavior. ⁵To convey something implies movement from one place to another along a 'road' of some sort. ⁶The impervious castle wall did 'not' give the Crusaders a 'way through.' ⁷If one encounters a hindrance that is 'in the way,' one tries 'to get rid' of it.

¹When something is vibrant, such as color, music, dancing, or a city, it seems so alive that it is etymologically bursting or ‘shaking’ with energy. ²Via Middle English bailiwick, ‘town bailiff.’ as a ‘bailiff’ oversees a ‘neighborhood’ so too is one’s bailiwick a supervisory area of expertise; n.b. wik comes from vicus.

Villa – farmhouse, house

¹The word villain originated as 'villein,' 'feudal serf,' i.e. someone 'low-born;' it is easy to see how 'scoundrel' could become associated with the word villain since peasant serfs were often viewed as boorish, uneducated, and unrefined. ²*Nasty* may have come from Old French villanastre, 'bad villein,' someone who would not think twice about doing nasty deeds.

Vinum – wine, grapes used to make wine {vign, vini-, vino-, win}

¹See note 1, p. 2. ²This highly used plastic was given its name due to its chemical relationship with alcohol (in its original sense of ethanol). ³One definition of vignette is a 'decorative border' in a book, often illustrated with vine leaves and tendrils; a 'short, literary sketch' is a metaphorical extension of the contents of that decorated book page.

Vita – life {vi}

Vivo, vivere, vixi, victum – to live

¹See note 2, p. 265. ²The biochemist Casimir Funk constructed the word vitamin from vita and Ammon, the latter a Greek word (see p. 435) from which the word 'amino acid' is derived; Funk thought vitamins contained those basic building blocks of protein which help form all 'living' things.

Vocabulum – word, name⁵

Vox, vocis – voice {voic, vow}

¹A vowel is the 'sounding' letter in a word without which it could not be 'voiced'; cf. 'consonant,' p. 353, note 1. ²One's 'calling' in life. ³A 'calling away' from one's 'vocation,' that is, a 'hobby' or 'pastime;' n.b. this word can also be synonymous with 'vocation.' ⁴See note 1, p. 4. ⁵A 'name' is that which you 'call' something or someone.

Volvo, volvere, volvi, volutum – to roll, wrap up, turn round, orbit, stretch out in a curved path {vault, volt}

Volumen, voluminis – book

¹A ceiling is said to be vaulted when it ‘turns’ or ‘curves’ at the top like an arch; an Olympian is said to have vaulted when she has ‘stretched out in a curved path’ skyward, or ‘jumped.’ ²A book, or volume, was originally a ‘rolled-up’ scroll; later, large books added to a sense of ‘size’ when considering volume, ‘amount.’ ³Insurgents who revolt, fomenting a revolution, etymologically ‘turn round’ or ‘roll over’ against an established rule. ⁴‘Thoroughly wrapped up.’ ⁵‘Words just ‘roll off’ the voluble Vanessa’s tongue.’

Angeion – blood vessel {angi, angio-}

¹The Andromeda galaxy is the galaxy closest to our own, the Milky Way; Andromeda, etymologically ‘ruler of men,’ was a daughter of the Ethiopian queen Cassiopeia who unwisely angered the sea god Nereus, who retaliated by sending the sea monster Cetus to eat her child, who, in turn, was saved by Perseus. ²An eponym of the ‘Neander’ valley in Germany, which in turn was named for Joachim ‘Neander,’ whose great-grandfather’s name, erstwhile Neuman, was translated into the Greek Neander, ‘new man.’

Anthos – flower {antho-}

¹A 'messenger' from the heavens. ²The spreading of 'good news.' ³That part of a 'flower' that bears the pollen.
⁴An anthology is etymologically a 'gathering of flowers,' or metaphorically a 'collection of the flowers of literature,' that is, the 'best works' of a given author 'collected' in a book; the Latin derived counterpart is 'florilegium,' a word which never really caught on.

¹Etymologically ‘chief builder.’ ²Formed from the notion that ‘governments’ tend to keep ‘historical records.’
³Possibly just influenced by, not derived from, archi; in any case, the ‘principal sea’ of the Greeks was the Aegean, in which many islands are scattered about. ⁴A ‘ruler’ is in ‘first place’ or at the ‘topmost position,’ that is, at the ‘beginning.’

Artus (Lat.) – joint

Articulo, articulare – to divide into small joints, speak clearly⁴

¹A meteor is a celestial object ‘thoroughly raised up’ in the sky. ²The Greeks thought that the ‘aorta,’ the main ‘artery’ of the body, ‘lifted’ up the heart, holding it in place. ³A ‘joint’ connects things, such as the three parts of each finger; in turn, articles in a newspaper or magazine ‘join’ together to form the whole publication. ⁴To articulate is to ‘speak words clearly,’ or form distinct ‘connections’ or ‘joints’ between each syllable.

Ballein – to throw {blem}

Bolos – a throw

Ballizein – to dance⁹

Parabole – parable, proverb, analogy, comparison, parabola {parabl}

Parabola (Lat.) – speech, comparison, parabola

¹A symbol is a sign that stands for or represents something, etymologically 'throwing (the two) together.' ²Via French parler, 'to talk;' a parlor is a room to entertain visitors. ³Via Greek diabolos, 'slanderer,' etymologically 'cast across;' the devil, known to be the ultimate 'slanderer' of heaven, was said to have been 'cast across' from heaven into hell. ⁴An emblem is a distinctive design 'thrown into' or 'inlaid upon' a surface to represent something symbolically. ⁵Anything 'thrown forth' that can cause difficulty. ⁶Via Greek metaballein, 'to change;' the idea is of a 'throwing beyond,' or 'changing' one substance into another within a living cell. ⁷A ballad was originally a musical piece that accompanied a 'dance.' ⁸Via the Latin parabola, 'verbal expression;' a prisoner 'verbally expresses' a promise to conduct himself honorably while conditionally freed from prison. ⁹To dance is to 'throw' oneself about (with control).

Basis – tread, base {basi-, baso-}
Bainein – to go, walk, step, tread {bat, bet}

¹So-named for its supposed use in ‘royal’ remedies. ²Today a basilisk is a type of lizard that runs on its hind legs and has a crest, or ‘crown’ on its head; in earlier times a basilisk (also known as a ‘cockatrice’) was thought to be a dreadful serpent whose breath and glance were deadly, and which bore a ‘crown-like’ spot on its head. ³See note 2, p. 433. ⁴One of the symptoms of diabetes is the ‘going’ or ‘passing’ of a large amount of urine ‘through’ (i.e. ‘out of’) the body.

Bous – cow, ox, bull {bo, bu}

Bous tyros – cow cheese {butter}

Boubalos – wild ox {buffalo}

Bos, bovis (Lat.) – ox, cow, bull {beef, bugl}

Butyrum (Lat.) – butter {butter}

¹The word bound sounds like the noise made when ‘bounding’ or ‘booming’ along. ²Via Old French bufef, ‘cow.’ ³A bugle, via Latin buculus, ‘little cow,’ was a ‘cows’ horn’ used for hunting, and later evolved into the musical instrument. ⁴Note how Grimm’s law helps with the consonant shift from the ‘b’ of boubalos to the ‘f’ of buffalo. ⁵The wings of butterflies are often yellow, like ‘butter.’ ⁶Via Greek boukolos, ‘cowherd;’ ‘cowherds’ are part and parcel of a ‘rustic’ setting. ⁷Myron’s softly vacuous gaze was remarkably bovine.

Praesto⁵ – at hand {prest}

¹Most sources transliterate the Greek letter chi to 'kh;' I employ 'ch' for utilitarian ease only. ²*Character* is the 'mark' impressed upon someone that separates her from others. ³Originally 'chirurgeon,' or a physician who etymologically 'works with his hands' during 'surgery.' ⁴Etymologically 'the act of using nimble fingers' which are capable of performing magic tricks; 'legerdemain' is an apt synonym. ⁵Cognate with cheir via the Indo-European root ghes-, 'hand.'

Chondros – grain, granule, cartilage {chondro-}

¹According to the theory of the humors (see note 1, p. 168), an excess of cholera, or 'yellow bile,' made one 'angry' or 'irritable.' ²Etymologically 'black bile;' according to the medieval theory of the humors, an excessive amount of 'black bile' caused 'depression' or 'gloom;' also see note 1, p. 168. ³Etymologically 'solid bile;' cholesterol was first isolated in gallstones. ⁴Etymologically 'under cartilage,' specifically 'rib cartilage;' the abdomen lies beneath the ribs, which was once believed to be the center of melancholy—a person habitually 'depressed' about his overall 'health' status evolved later.

Choreia – choral dance

¹The latter part of this word is of unknown origin. ²The word umbilical derives from the Latin umbilicus, 'navel.' ³A forerunner of the piano which had 'strings' plucked like a 'harp'; the 's' may have been added to ease pronunciation, aid euphony, or perhaps was simply a mistake. ⁴The second part of this word comes from the Greek aulos, 'flute.'

¹Via Greek diagramma, 'plan, linear figure.' ²Via Greek programma, 'public announcement.' ³See note 1, p. 434. ⁴The word glamour is simply an alteration of 'grammar'; glamour charms, as if one were under a spell, much in the same way that 'grammar' was once the study of the occult (and always of great learning), which included the casting of spells; clearly, the correct speaking of and orderly arrangement of words was important in making the spell work—language is truly powerful and magical! Also see note 1, p. 72.

Holos – whole, entire {holo-}

¹Etymologically a 'journey after' something, via Greek methodos, 'pursuit;' as one takes a 'road' somewhere 'beyond' to 'pursue' a goal, one must have a method, or a systematic 'way' of proceeding to attain that goal lest one is waylaid. ²A period in time is etymologically the 'road around' it, or the interval one must traverse before the period has elapsed; a period in a sentence marks the end of the sentence's 'journey about' the page. ³Via Greek episodios, 'entering in alongside;' now an episode of a story is one integral part of a sustained, cohesive narrative. ⁴The mission of the Catholic church is revealed by the etymology of its name: it seeks to bring the 'entire' world into its fold (the prefix cat- acts here as an intensive, driving home the point).

Horan – to see

Horama – sight, view

Theoria – a looking at, viewing

¹Etymologically 'not the same.' ²British variant, which can also include 'homœo-.' ³Via French encore, 'again,' which itself may have come from a Latin phrase containing the word hora, 'hour;' sources vary widely as to the exact phrase. ⁴ Einstein had to 'look at' the Universe closely before he established his theories.

Hydor, hydatos – water {hydr-, hydro-} Hydra – water serpent

¹Via Greek horizein, ‘to limit;’ the horizon is the perceived ‘boundary’ line between the land and the sky. ²Her shrewd aphorism succinctly delimited the thorny ethics of good and evil. ³*Hydrogen* ‘produces water’ when it combines with oxygen. ⁴The Hydra was a nine-headed ‘water serpent’ that Heracles overcame in his second labor. ⁵The periodic table derives Hg as its symbol for ‘mercury’ from the Greek hydrargyros, ‘silver water;’ another name for mercury is ‘quicksilver.’ ⁶See note 1, p. 292.

Koinos – common, shared {cen, ceno-, coen}

¹Greek geographers once divided the earth into 'sloping regions,' or climates; later, the meaning of climate came to refer to the 'weather' of those 'sloping regions.' ²A clinic is filled with 'beds' for the sick, on which they 'lean' for comfort. ³A ladder 'leans' against a wall for support, the top of which is etymologically the climax, or 'culmination' of its rungs. ⁴Cognate with klinein, derived from the Greek kleitoris, 'clitoris.' ⁵Root of 'decline,' 'incline,' and 'recline.'

Konos – cone {con}

¹Via Old French colper, 'to cut;' the etymological notion is of giving a 'blow' or 'punch' to the price of an item, thereby reducing its cost by the use of the coupon. ²When Max received a 'blow' to his finances after the stock market tanked, he had to recoup his losses. ³We all must cope with the various 'cuffs' of fortune which inevitably arise in life, resolutely giving back 'blow' for 'blow.' ⁴Via Old French couper, 'to cut;' etymologically, a copse is a suitable 'thicket of trees' for 'cutting.' ⁵Via Greek enkomion, 'speech lauding a victor.'

Kryptein – to hide {crypt, crypto-, grot}

¹The validity of the evidence was apocryphal, 'hidden away' from any certainty not only as to who provided the bloody knife, but also as to whether the purported murder weapon could even have been so skillfully and forcefully wielded by the infirm defendant. ²Etymologically 'like a grotto;' pictures found in excavated Roman buildings had elements of the grotesque in them, that is, they were somewhat 'bizarre' or 'outlandish,' and hence were appropriately 'hidden' away. n.b. Grimm's law accounts for the consonant shift from 'k' to 'g.'

Kyklos – circle, wheel {cycl, cyclo-}

¹This is the plural form of 'Cyclops;' 'Cyclop' is not a word. ²Short for 'bicycle,' or 'two-wheeled' vehicle. ³The etymological notion of recycling is the 'circling back' of an item to be used again. ⁴An encyclopedia can be thought of as a book that contains a general 'circle' of knowledge for 'children.'

Kyrios – lord, master {chur}

¹The original Greek ‘Cynics,’ the founder of whom was probably Diogenes, lived like ‘dogs’ in the street, not only sleeping in barrels very much like ‘dogs’ sleeping in doghouses but also unabashedly and publicly performing natural canine functions, all because they had an extreme mistrust of civilization and its attendant value system, preferring to be as natural as possible to counter the perceived artificial trappings of societal refinement. ²Via the Greek kynosoura, ‘dog’s tail, Ursa Minor;’ the constellation ‘Ursa Minor’ contains Polaris, the North Star, which serves as a ‘guide’ to the north since it does not change its position in the sky; ancient mariners ‘focused’ on that point to ‘center’ their navigation. n.b. The Greeks knew the constellation ‘Ursa Minor’ both as the ‘dog’s tail’ and as Arktos Mikra, the ‘Little Bear.’ ³Via medieval Greek kyrkon, ‘house of worship;’ a church is etymologically the ‘Lord’s house.’

¹An eclipse of something is etymologically a 'leaving out' of it, e.g. a 'solar eclipse' is the 'leaving out' or 'blocking' of the sun by the moon. ²A combination of leon and Greek pardos, 'big cat.' ³Etymologically a 'lion on the ground;' I cannot explain why this feeble animal was named after a 'lion,' except perhaps that it can be considered obliquely 'courageous' because of its ability to camouflage itself, thus not having to greatly fear predators, just like the 'king of the jungle' has no predators it need fear. ⁴See note 1, p. 93.

Lyra – a lyre

¹To analyze a problem is to 'loosen' its difficulties 'throughout,' thereby 'dissolving' it. ²To 'destroy' the use of the body 'on one side.' ³A catalyst 'thoroughly loosens' a situation or reaction so as to get it moving. ⁴A variant of 'paralysis.' ⁵A Greek singer of poetry often used a 'lyre' to accompany the words to his song.

Morphe – shape, form {morpho-}

¹A sophomore etymologically thinks he is 'wise,' but is actually quite 'stupid.' ²Etymologically a 'sharp dull:' 'jumbo shrimp,' 'original copy,' 'random order,' and 'awfully good;' note that the word oxymoron is also a good example of an oxymoron. ³Without a shape. ⁴Etymologically to go 'beyond one shape' and into another; the unfortunate boy, afflicted with both lycanthropy and boanthropy, would with the former metamorphose into a wolf on the night of each full moon, and with the latter believe himself to be a cow during a random hour of each day.

Mys, myos – muscle, mouse³ {myo-} Myelos⁴ – marrow, brain, inmost part, medulla {myelo-}

¹Collections of 'fine art' are often found in museums. ²The Muses were minor goddesses who provided inspiration for those following the fine arts: Clio (history), Melpomene (tragedy), Erato (lyric poetry), Urania (astronomy), Terpsichore (dance), Euterpe (flute playing), Thalia (comedy), Polyhymnia (sacred music, mime), and Calliope (epic poetry). The Muses were the daughters of Zeus and Mnemosyne, the goddess of memory—one must have a very good memory to perform well in the fine arts. ³See note 1, p. 238 for the connection between mouse and muscle. ⁴Probably derived from mys, 'mouse, muscle;' the semantic connection is unclear, but one might think of 'muscle' as being the 'core' of strength of the body, just as the 'marrow' is the 'core' of the bone, and the 'brain' is the 'core' of the central nervous system.

¹*The drink of the gods* was 'nectar' which made the gods immortal. ²A nation's economy is etymologically how funds are 'managed, allotted, or distributed in its house.' ³The word nemesis derived from 'Nemesis,' the Greek goddess of vengeance, who humbled the proud and the arrogant; an academic nemesis certainly can humble one. ⁴A variant of the Greek Neapolis, 'new city,' which was founded by the Greeks circa 600 BCE. ⁵So named because its discovery was 'new' when founded in 1898. ⁶See note 2, p. 437.

Ornis, ornithos – bird {ornitho-}

¹An organ of the body is a 'tool' which helps it function, just like organizing one's finances helps them flourish.

²All functional and successful organizations have as their core coordinated efforts, or 'instruments' which, when working together, enable the organization to prosper. ³*Organic* chemistry is based upon the element carbon, which naturally exists in all living things as an inherent part of their molecular 'organization,' hence, organic food is grown by not using synthetic drugs, chemicals, or hormones, and by using pesticides or fertilizers which have their origin in animals or plants, i.e. are carbon-based.

¹Possibly via French piere, 'breakwater;' in this suggestion, a pier would be essentially a solid structure of 'rocks' providing both a 'breakwater' for a harbor and a 'platform' on which ships could land. ²Etymologically 'rock celery.' ³Etymologically a 'stone licker;' lampreys do in fact suck on 'stones.' ⁴Etymologically 'oil from rocks.' ⁵The eso morpheme is unexplained. ⁶A sarcophagus, or aboveground stone 'coffin,' is etymologically an 'eater of flesh;' ancient sarcophagi were made of limestone, which quickly consumes flesh.

Phainein – to cause to appear, show {phan, phas, phat, phen, pheno-}

Phantasia – imagination, perception, apparition {fanc, fantas, pant}

Phantos – visible

¹Fancy dress is highly 'imaginative.' ²A fantasy is a product of the 'imagination,' which enables images to 'appear' in the mind. ³A phantom is an 'apparition' which 'appears' or becomes 'visible' sometimes exclusively to the mind. ⁴*Phases* of life 'appear' during certain times, only to be replaced by others later on. ⁵When one pants, one etymologically reacts in shock as if one has seen an 'apparition,' or 'phantom.' ⁶Billy-Bob emphasized the fact that his hunt was successful by the 'showing' of his ten-point buck to all and sundry. ⁷A phenomenon is any worldly thing that 'appears' to the senses. ⁸A 'shower of figs;' one possible explanation is that 'toadies' would inform authorities about crooks who were illegally exporting 'figs' from Athens.

Pherein – to bear, carry

Phoros – a carrying

Onkos⁶ – burden, mass, tumor {onco-}

Probrum⁷ (Lat.) – a reproach, abuse

¹A metaphor is a figure of speech, or trope, in which one thing is figuratively 'carried beyond' to another, such as observing that a maple's crimson fall leaves are as a 'glorious fiery fountain,' or bleakly suggesting, as Macbeth does, that "Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player,/That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,/And then is heard no more" (V.v. 24-26), or more positively suggesting, as Jacques does in As You Like It, that "All the world's a stage,/And all the men and women merely players" (II.vii. 139-140). ²The periphery of a house is etymologically the 'bearing around' it, or the 'boundary.' ³'Transports of joy' is the etymological idea. ⁴A phosphorescent organism 'carries light' within its body. ⁵A 'bearer of darts.' ⁶A 'burden' must be 'carried.' ⁷The etymological idea is of 'carrying' a grudge or complaint against another.

Phyein – to produce, cause to grow, bring forth
 Physis – nature {physi-, physio-}

¹Etymologically a 'doctor of the natural world;' the meaning has now shifted to 'doctor of medicine,' although a physician surely does care for one's 'physical,' or 'natural' body. ²Via Greek emphyein, 'to implant, graft;' one 'grafts' young shoots, which later became extended to 'small children,' especially 'mischievous' ones.

³Pertaining to the study of that which has its being 'beyond the natural' world.

Ploutos – wealth {plut, pluto-}

¹Etymologically a 'broad' space or area. ²Etymologically a 'flat' thing, whether a dish, piece of metal, license on a car, home base on a baseball field, etc. ³From a Spanish diminutive of plata, 'silver, plate;' platinum has a 'silvery' color—note that 'plate' in this sense means 'household implements,' especially 'dinnerware covered with silver or gold.' ⁴*Plato* was a sobriquet of Aristocles, one of the three greatest philosophers of all time; the nickname may have referred to his 'broad' forehead, waist, shoulders, or ideas. ⁵*Pluto* (Greek 'Hades') was the god of the underworld and of wealth; one finds 'wealth' in mines 'under' the ground, much as there is 'wealth' in the fields because crops grow up from 'under' it. Pluto the planet was so named because of its unfathomable distance away from the light-giving sun. ⁶Just as the planet 'Pluto' follows 'Neptune' (most of the time) in the solar system, plutonium was so named because it follows 'Neptunium' in the periodic table.

Pragma, pragmatos – deed, act

¹Via Old French puie, ‘balcony;’ a pew can be thought of as a ‘base’ or ‘bench’ upon which one sits.

²Etymologically a ‘flat-footed’ creature. ³Via Greek trapeza, ‘table,’ or ‘four-footed’ piece of furniture; today, a trapezoid is (very) roughly ‘table-like’ in shape since it has only one pair of parallel sides. ⁴Via Greek kalapous, ‘shoemaker’s last;’ a ‘last’ is a form used for making or repairing shoes, and thus can calibrate their size correctly, ensuring that each shoe’s caliber will be of high quality. ⁵Etymologically ‘swollen foot;’

Oedipus’s father Laius pierced his infant son’s ‘feet’ together with a nail and exposed him to die on Mount Cithaeron because he knew, via the Delphic Oracle, that a son born to his wife Jocasta would murder him.

⁶The class chose the practical solution to the problem because they all considered it ‘doable’ or ‘achievable.’

Proteros – before, earlier, former

¹Etymologically 'foresight;' Prometheus, the creator of mankind, was portrayed as highly original and boldly inventive, hence the eponymous adjective Promethean—his brother's name, 'Epimetheus,' meant 'hindsight,' for which there is no corresponding adjective 'Epimethan,' although it could certainly be put to use.

Protos – first {proto-}

Proteus – first man

¹The proton is that positively charged part of the atom which solely forms the nucleus of the 'first' element, hydrogen. ²The etymological origin considers the idea that protein is of the 'first' order of significance of the substances that sustain the body. ³*Protocol* can be thought of as the 'first or foremost glue' which binds people together by rules of appropriate conduct. ⁴The god Proteus had the ability to change into any form he wanted.

Pyr – fire {pyro-}

¹See note 3, p. 459. ²See note 2, p. 539. ³A disputed etymology; in this suggestion, a pyramid, like this tree, is shaped like a tongue of 'fire.' ⁴Ancient cosmologists taught about the empyrean, a realm of pure 'fire' which existed in the highest heavens, hence the adjective empyrean, 'lofty, sublime, elevated, celestial.'

¹This is not the 'boxing' of 'fighting,' which comes from Middle English, but of putting items in a receptacle, or 'box.' ²Boxwood, which comes from a box tree, is much used by craftsmen who work with wood, such as turners (who work with lathes); 'boxes' are also made, for instance, from the soft white wood of the 'box' elder, or Acer Negundo. Note how very helpful Grimm's law is in determining the relationship between pyxos and 'box,' as the 'p' shifts to 'b.'

Epokhe⁴ – point in time, pause, cessation {epoch}

¹'Sheltered' or 'roofed lizard.' ²See note 3, p. 460. ³Via Greek eune, 'bed' and ehkein, 'to keep;' the primary original job of a eunuch was to 'keep' or 'guard' a woman's 'bed;' since the eunuch was castrated, he was particularly suitable for the task. ⁴These roots ultimately come from the Indo-European root segh-, 'to hold,' as does schole, 'leisure' (see p. 583); all, indeed, have something to do with 'holding' or 'being in a certain condition.'

Schole – leisure, learned discussion, school

¹Perhaps related; a schedule, etymologically a ‘strip of papyrus,’ is written on a piece of paper. ²Although school may seem today to have little in common with ‘leisure,’ nevertheless in the ancient world only those children whose parents were wealthy could afford the ‘leisure’ time for ‘schooling’—the rest had to work.

¹*Strap* is an alteration of ‘strop,’ a kind of strap; a strap is a strip of material ‘twined’ or ‘twisted’ together.

²*Strep* is short for ‘streptococcus,’ a type of bacteria that is found ‘twined’ or ‘twisted’ together in chains, and that causes strep throat and scarlet fever. ³A punctuation mark that shows where a letter has been ‘turned away,’ such as the ‘o’ in ‘don’t’ or the ‘i’ in ‘it’s.’ ⁴A sudden ‘thorough turning’ for the worse, or ‘calamity.’ ⁵A strapping young man has a well-developed muscular physique, which comes from the notion of a ‘strap’ making something secure and strong. ⁶A literary apostrophe occurs when someone or something is addressed or spoken to that is not there, or is ‘turned away’ from the speaker, which nevertheless is treated as if present and able to comprehend what the speaker says.

¹*Syntax* governs how words are grammatically ‘arranged together’ in a sentence to form meaning. ²Caesar’s battle tactics for successfully storming fortresses were so cleverly ‘arranged’ that no stronghold was impregnable. ³The scientific ‘law of arrangement,’ that is, ‘orderly classification.’

 Theseus⁴ Treasure Island

Tithenai – to put, place, set {thes, thet}

Thesis – a putting, arranging

Thema, thematos – proposition, plan or idea put forth

Thesauros – treasure, a store laid up {treasur}

¹One could fruitfully think that the element titanium was so called because of its great strength, but in actuality its name originated because it was discovered right after the element 'Uranium,' and since the 'Titans' were children of the sky god Uranus, for which 'Uranium' was named, the new element logically became titanium. ²The Titans were gigantic. ³*Parentheses* are upright curved lines within which one 'puts (a comment) alongside' a sentence, or 'inserts' an explanatory remark. ⁴So named because his father's sword and sandals were 'placed' under a rock for Theseus later to uncover. ⁵A thesis is a 'proposition,' or idea 'put forth' in order to 'arrange' perceived information into a forceful argument. ⁶Today a 'treasury' of words. ⁷*Synthesizing* is 'putting together' to form a whole, whereas a synthesis is the 'whole' thing 'having been put together.' ⁸A term 'placed upon' a person or thing, such as 'the Magnificent' in 'Lorenzo the Magnificent.' ⁹In the case of anathema, something etymologically 'put back' is 'accursed' or 'shunned.'

Tomos – a cut, cutting, slice, section, part of a book {-tomy}

Temnein – to cut

Templum (Lat.) – temple, a place cut for auguries

¹The ancients believed that an atom could 'not' be 'cut' since it was the smallest known particle of matter. ²In order to study the body, one must 'cut up' its parts to reveal them. ³An entomologist studies insects, which are 'cut into' sections; see note 2, p. 335. ⁴To contemplate originally meant to meditate or consider 'thoroughly' in a 'temple.' ⁵Via Latin epitome, 'summary;' a 'summary' is a concise 'cutting' from a larger work. An epitome today is also a 'representative' or 'characteristic cutting' of a group, e.g. Nancy was the epitome of what a great hairstylist should be. ⁶Via Latin tonsus, 'sheared.'

Tonos – a stretching, string, pitch, sound, tension {tono-, tun}

Teinein – to stretch, stretch tight, strain, extend {ten}

Tasis – a stretching, tension, intensity

Tenon – sinew, tendon {tend}

¹One alters or ‘tunes’ the tone of a stringed instrument by how much the ‘tuner’ ‘stretches’ its strings. ²A variant of ‘tone;’ to ‘tone’ a piano is the same as to tune a piano. ³A tonic revitalizes bodily ‘tone,’ or fitness. ⁴A tendon attaches a muscle to bone, etymologically a link by which a muscle is ‘stretched’ to bone. ⁵The Achilles tendon was so named because Thetis, the mother of Achilles, dipped her infant son into the river Styx in order to make him invulnerable, but the heel by which she held him stayed vulnerable since it did not touch the water—any weakness today is known as an ‘Achilles’ heel.’ ⁶Via Greek tetanos, ‘rigid, stretched tight;’ tetanus, also known as ‘lockjaw,’ causes muscles to ‘tense’ and spasmodically contract. ⁷See note 3. ⁸The hypotenuse is the side of a right triangle that is etymologically ‘stretched under,’ or opposite, the right angle.

Topos – place {topo-}

¹The topic of a paper etymologically ‘places’ the reader within the parameters of a particular subject.

²Etymologically ‘no place;’ ‘nowhere’ on Earth is utopian, or perfectly ‘ideal.’ ³Etymologically ‘same place;’ isotopes of a given element occupy the ‘same place’ in the periodic table.

Tornos⁷ – circle, turning-lathe, tool for drawing a circle {tour, turn}

¹An attorney ‘turns’ her attention ‘towards’ a client in matters of law. ²Snobbert had to ‘circle out’ of his way as he took the circuitous detour through downtown New York City. ³To ‘circle back.’ ⁴The travel company took us on a tour all ‘around’ Italy. ⁵A chess tournament features a complete ‘circle’ or ‘series’ of competitions in which all contestants compete; the champion prevails in the final ‘round.’ ⁶The appealing, ‘rounded’ contours of the sleek Porsche hastened my frenetic writing of a rather large check. ⁷The English derivatives of this root possess the notion of ‘turning,’ or ‘going round’ something or somewhere, just as one ‘turns’ about or ‘goes round’ a ‘circle,’ or as a craftsman ‘rotates’ a piece of metal or wood rapidly on a ‘lathe’ to shape it.

Trophe – nourishment, food {tropho-, -trophy}

¹Etymologically ‘goat song;’ the highest form of drama for the ancient Greeks was tragedy, and many suggestions have been made as to the origin of ‘goat song,’ to wit: contests were often held to see which playwright could produce the best tragedy, the prize for the top one being a ‘goat;’ Greek tragedies included a chorus, members of which could have been dressed as ‘satyrs’ (half-men, half-goats); or a song was sung upon the sacrifice of a ‘goat’ (a suggestion which has the merit of containing the ‘tragic’ element of death which is found in most tragedies). ²The emaciated cat’s muscles had atrophied as it had gone ‘without nourishment’ for two weeks. ³A degenerative disease of the muscles in which they appear to receive ‘poor nourishment’ which causes them to waste away, or ‘atrophy.’

Tropos – turn, direction, way, manner {triv, triv}

Trepein – to turn {trop}

Trope – a turn, change {-tropic, -tropism, tropo-, -tropous, -tropy}

¹Trophies were originally handed out in remembrance for triumphantly ‘turning back’ an enemy. ²The Tropics, or hot areas of the Earth (known as the Torrid Zone), are bound by the tropic of Cancer in the north, and the tropic of Capricorn in the south; these two lines of latitude mark the southernmost and northernmost boundaries of the sun’s travels—once the sun shines directly over one of the them on a given solstice, it ‘turns’ to head back to the other, thereby marking the seasons. ³Via French trover, ‘to find;’ when a golden retriever ‘finds’ a stick, he returns with it. ⁴Via French trover, ‘to find;’ when the pirates placed their treasure-trove on Oak Island, they hoped to return some day to reclaim it. ⁵We all try to contrive clever ‘ways’ to do things by ‘turning’ them in many different ‘directions’ to find the best ‘manner’ for their completion. ⁶A literary trope is a ‘turn’ away from the literal, or a figurative ‘way’ of using words; the four primary tropes are metaphor, irony, metonymy, and synecdoche. ⁷*Entropy* is a ‘change’ in matter (or a system or society) from an organized state, or one of high energy, to a disorganized state, or one of low energy.

Tyrannos – absolute ruler⁹

¹One types on a keyboard by making ‘impressions’ on the keys with one’s fingers. ²A type of candy is the ‘form’ it takes, just as character traits ‘form’ a type of person. ³A typical day describes the ‘form’ that it usually takes. ⁴An archetype is etymologically a ‘beginning form;’ an archetype can be a ‘prototype,’ or example from which others are derived, or an ideal ‘type’ or ‘form’ that is viewed as the best example or ‘impression’ of its class. ⁵See note 5, p. 589. ⁶Etymologically a ‘first impression.’ ⁷This is probably related to typos as a cognate of the Indo-European root steu, ‘to beat, knock.’ ⁸‘King of the tyrant lizards.’ ⁹An absolute ruler must and unrestrictedly does have things his own way, even if and when they are detrimental to those he rules.

¹An enzyme is etymologically a 'leaven' that gets a biochemical reaction going. ²A leaven is a 'yeast' which causes bread dough to rise via fermentation; if leaven is not added to bread, it is known as unleavened bread, which is used for some religious rites.

Appendix I: Seedlings

Although the ‘seedlings’ do generate important derivatives, they are either insufficiently prolific to warrant a tree, or, in a few cases, have no black or green-level words. As in the trees, the derivatives are color-coded: List I contains primarily black-level derivatives, List II primarily green and violet. Many of these derivatives appear in trees as well due to having multiple roots. I have not attempted to make these lists exhaustive since the most prolific morphemes of the language have been fully illustrated in the trees. Stems are only indicated if the Latin or Greek spelling is identical to the English.

Appendix II: Suffixes and Infixes

A suffix is simply an affix added either to the end of a word or onto another suffix, where it forms a new word with new grammatical properties and usually imparts a new meaning. Most words contain suffixes, so to know something about them is crucial. Suffixes are surely the most difficult part of the language to list; there are so many permutations, exceptions, and single instances that exhaustiveness would be both maddening and pointless—this highly extensive list focuses on utility.

Whereas most prefixes have their origins in prolific classical roots, the roots of suffixes come from many languages. This list contains both non-classically and classically-derived suffixes, except for those latter which are already listed in the trees; it also covers suffixes that are both formative and non-formative, that is, they either are or are no longer regularly used to form new words.

Suffixes inherently have two functions: semantic, which adds meaning to a word, and grammatical, whereby the suffix indicates a specific part of speech. For example, in the word ‘inventor,’ the dual-function suffix ‘-or’ means ‘someone who performs a specific action,’ and also indicates the formation of a noun, thus the noun ‘inventor’ etymologically means ‘one who comes upon something.’ In the word ‘experiment,’ the single-function suffix ‘-ment’ forms a noun, but imparts no meaning. To clarify this potential dual function, this list includes both a column for a given suffix’s meaning and its grammatical function—when the meaning column is left blank, the suffix has purely a grammatical function. Most suffixes fall under both.

In addition to suffixes, the five most common infixes are also listed: ‘-i-,’ ‘-o-,’ ‘-cul-,’ ‘-ul-,’ and ‘-it-.’ The first two are used purely as connectives, which ease pronunciation by linking morphemes to suffixes or other morphemes, e.g., in the word ‘democracy,’ the primary morpheme or stem is ‘dem,’ the suffix is ‘-cracy,’ and the connecting word, or ‘infix,’ is ‘-o.’ The ‘-o-’ connective is used primarily to link Greek roots, whereas ‘-i-’ is used most often to link Latin roots. The second group, ‘-cul-’ and ‘-ul-,’ are used as diminutives, such as in the word ‘molecule,’ or ‘little mass’ of something, and ‘calculus,’ or ‘small stone.’ The last infix, ‘-it-,’ is employed as a frequentative, or indicator of repeated action, such as in the word ‘habitation,’ etymologically a place which one ‘holds’ over an extended period of time.

It is my hope that this comprehensive list of suffixes will continue to aid the student in analyzing English vocabulary by enabling her to pick apart any suffixed word she finds and easily deduce the function of its suffix or suffixes.

Appendix III: Supplementary Prefixes

The vast majority of prefixes that are used in the formation of English words are classical in origin. As such, they have already been detailed in either the trees or the seedlings above. There are, nevertheless, a few non-classically derived prefixes that are used with some regularity in English—these are the focus of this appendix. n.b. Some prefixes, especially of a technical nature, are also used as primary morphemes, viz. ‘benz-,’ ‘bor-,’ and ‘quin-.’

Appendix IV: Supplementary Vocabulary

A small percentage of exam vocabulary is not derived from classical roots. This appendix lists important SAT and GRE words that are not derived from Greek or Latin, many of which, however, are cognates of the classical languages. A contextual sentence¹ is given to help retain the meaning of the SAT and GRE Level I words; most of the GRE Level II words are included in a small story to enhance mnemonic retention. A good exercise after ascertaining what each word means is to find a classically-derived synonym.

ISEE; SSAT; PSAT; SAT; GRE Level I

Abiding: Brett possesses a profound, abiding love for Camel's Hump that he has felt ever since he scaled it over two decades ago.

Ail: Although Cassandra is ailing from a two-year battle against ovarian cancer and can no longer run competitively, her outlook on life is nevertheless remarkably optimistic.

Akin: When Carl visited northern New Mexico last year, he experienced a striking feeling akin to belongingness, almost as if he had lived there in a past lifetime.

Aloof: My girlfriend often becomes aloof if I do something she dislikes: she gives me the cold shoulder and simply will not look me in the eye.

Angst: Max struggled through a great deal of personal angst after he lost his wife, his job, and both of his parents in one horrifying year.

Balk: Maxine balked at the career opportunity because it involved a move far away from all her friends and family.

Banal: Josh's life has become so banal that he himself is beginning to resemble the manila envelopes he perpetually stuffs at his vanilla, assembly-line, repetitive job.

Bane: The bane of Jocko's poker success was Richard: he could never beat him in a game of Texas Hold 'Em even if his life depended upon it.

Bedlam: Bedlam followed in the wake of Katrina's spent fury as unscrupulous looters and amoral lowlives began ransacking the shops of the temporarily lawless and unorganized New Orleans, smashing through plate glass windows with greedy abandon.

Bellow: The huge man bellowed in pain when he fractured both femurs while skiing.

Benchmark: The benchmark for investing success has been set by Warren Buffett, whom many investors have attempted unsuccessfully to emulate, and thus follow in his footsteps by buying his stock.

Bent: Tooty has a bent for old movies, preferring those filmed in black and white, whereas Frooty has a bent for black-and-white photography, having won many awards for her outstanding pictures of vanishing indigenous peoples.

Beseech: We all eagerly beseeched Tom to make us one of his patented Mai Tai's since we simply could not resist their tasty, hasty buzz.

Bicker: My father would often angrily berate my sister and me as we bickered in the back seat of the car, arguing over trivialities that must have seemed exasperating to an adult driver.

Bilk: The pump-and-dump scheme, touting a stock that seemed to offer El Dorado itself, bilked the unwary investor out of a thousand dollars.

Blanch: King Egbert blanched as he saw the apparition of his murdered wife, becoming so terrified that his physiognomy assumed the color of the phantom itself.

Blatant: The teacher's blatant discrimination in the classroom, grossly favoring her two best students, seemed to be visible to everyone except herself.

Blemish: Harold's cheating episode on the AP Chemistry exam blemished his academic record to the point that his college counselor feared he would not be accepted into a good college.

¹The sentences are not meant to be examples of excellent style, but rather have been written to aid the student in recalling the meaning of the given derivatives.

Blight: The blight of poor education in the public school system has forestalled the potential of many a brilliant mind, lulling them into a torpor of listlessness and nonchalance towards anything academic.

Boycott: The wronged nation instituted a temporary boycott of all goods being shipped to and from the United States in the hope that its questionable warmongering policy would change via considerable economic pressure.

Brash: The brash young man, callow in regards to social savoir faire, drank too much and spoke too loudly at the business gathering.

Brawn: The gargantuan Greg was the brawn and brilliant Brynna the brains of the highly successful smuggling operation.

Brigand: When the brigands heard that Robin Hood was abroad in Sherwood Forest, they decided to give up their thievery and join his band of merry men, rationalizing that the success of Robin Hood and his cronies was considerably better than their own.

Browbeat: Gluggux the orc, because of his monstrous size and powerful political connections, was often able to browbeat his foes into doing exactly what he wanted them to do.

Buffoon: Timmy Tompkins was so skilled at buffoonery that not only was he able to make all but the sourest of people laugh, but he was also able to persuade the lovely Lena Lingard to marry him, a coup considered quite impossible by the most informed but less entertaining of her suitors.

Buttress: The techniques taught in the study skills class helped buttress Jan's success in school by providing her with an organizational scaffolding that was second to none.

Canny: The canny businesswoman could not be outfoxed by even the most seasoned of shifty contractors who constantly tried to shortchange her by doing shoddy work; they were often baffled by just how much she knew about their devious shortcuts to make more money.

Carouse: After carousing all night in town with his drinking buddies, the star lacrosse player felt sluggish the next morning during practice.

Charade: Although the school superintendent had seemed serious about wanting to install air conditioning in the Virginia elementary school, we realized two years later that his promise was yet another underhanded charade to extend his pointless stay in office.

Charlatan: The medical charlatan tried to trick Black Bart into buying some ineffectual snake oil, but the canny client saw right through the false doctor's specious window dressing.

Cleave: As Clifford did cleave to his new trophy girlfriend, so too did his estranged wife of twenty years cleave her relationship with Clifford, hitting him with a nasty, hasty divorce.

Cliché: When I asked the highly touted guru at the top of the mountain for some sage advice concerning my most personal issue, I was flabbergasted when I received a string of insipid clichés that I could have found in any trite self-help guide.

Daft: My best friend is rather daft at times, coming up with the silliest of ideas that are comparable to a fish out of water in their potential survivability.

Debut: Kristin was a huge success at her film debut, and so whereas once she was a complete unknown, she was now plastered over all of tinseltown's newspapers, touted in the most glowing of terms.

Defile: The Viking looters of Clonmacnoise not only stole the golden monstrance, but also defiled the church by smashing its altar and defacing the sacred paintings that covered its walls.

Deft: Ronnie was not only a deft carpenter, constructing beautiful cabinetry, but managed his craftsman's business just as skillfully.

Disregard; doting: After a year of marriage, Joan was now wishing that her doting husband, whom she felt was smothering her, would simply disregard her for a short time and watch a football game instead.

Drone: Not only did the unwanted visitor successfully groak and subsequently eat half our dinner, but also, during his gluttonous consumption, droned on and on about his numerous trials and tribulations that left us all feeling sorry for no one but ourselves.

Dwindle: Due to the evils engendered by excessive, ubiquitous, and irresponsible development, the society's moral state dwindled from one of outstanding character and principles to one of effete nonchalance; some believed this was a result of the fact that there was nothing beautiful to look at anymore.

Eke: The mendicant was barely able to eke out a living by his begging and busking.

Fathom; faze: Despite the fact that Muffy was unable to fathom what on earth the professor was talking about, she did not seem at all fazed by her lack of comprehension, but rather showed up dutifully for class each and every day as if she were totally entranced by what he was saying.

Fickle; filibuster: The fickle congressman would seemingly switch allegiances at a whim, delivering the deadliest and lengthiest of filibusters that would leave one side reeling until the next day, when he would randomly delay either side once again.

Flabbergast; flag: We were all flabbergasted when Iron Ike, who had trained so hard for three years, began to flag with exhaustion as he entered but the 10th mile of the marathon, and completely dropped out after the 12th.

Flaunt: No one likes people who brashly flaunt their success by trumping it to as many people as possible in as advantageous a situation as possible.

Foil; ford: Our attempt to ford the wild river was foiled by its swiftly moving current: we were unable to cross it for a week.

Fortnight: My teacher told me today that a fortnight is short for "fourteen nights."

Foster: It is often advantageous for teachers to foster good relationships among their students by providing them with challenging but accomplishable collaborative tasks that allow individual strengths to flourish and be universally admired.

Fraught: The countryside suddenly became fraught with danger as Don Quixote heard what he believed were fearsome giants trampling in the foggy distance.

Garish; gauche: Not only were the tawdry, brightly-colored reflective beads that Flo's necklace flaunted considered garish at the sophisticated black tie affair, but her country manners were quickly labeled gauche as she drank lustily from the spiked punch ladle.

Gaunt; gibe: Duke Slubberdegullion served his gaunt, starving subjects not with kindness and good food, but with barbed *gibes*¹ that did nothing to allay their hunger but everything to hamper what shreds of confidence they once possessed before he became lord.

Girth; goad: Filbert's girth became wider and wider as his corpulent wife Wilma goaded him into eating twenty Moon Pies per day, while she resolutely stuck with a salubrious dietary restriction of merely fifteen, except on holidays.

Gossamer: The Lady of Shallott's gossamer gown shone with a shimmering brilliance, seeming to be fashioned from the very beams of the silvered moon.

Gouge: The unscrupulous archaeologist gouged out the hardened ash deposits of ancient Pompeii with a jackhammer that created a wake of cultural destruction.

Gourmand: Gordy the gourmand loves to frequent dining establishments that offer an exquisite all-you-can-eat menu which also includes the choicest of fine wines.

Grimace; guile: I grimaced with frustration and embarrassment when I realized that I had been completely duped by the guile of the used car salesman who cunningly sold me a souped-up piece of finely-detailed junk.

¹'Jibe' is an alternate spelling of gibe.

Hackneyed: My cousin Todiha's pretentious claims to brilliant counseling techniques were deflated the first time she tried to counsel my son: she used nothing but hackneyed advice that the bored Timmy had already heard hundreds of times from every Tom, Dick, and Harry.

Harangue: Jack Sprat resolutely put up with the protracted, withering harangues from his wife Marge Sprat concerning his ineptness to fatten the pig only because she allowed him to have the lean with each and every meal.

Harvest; havoc: The paucity of a fall grain harvest among the multitudinous Visigoths caused havoc amongst weaker tribes: the Visigoths were forced to decimate their populations in order to feed their own.

Hindsight: It is very easy to have 20-20 hindsight after something has happened, but to possess 20-20 foresight is truly rare.

Hue: The startlingly crimson hue of the rare breed of roses delighted the princess, who wanted a bouquet of them picked for her visual pleasure each and every day.

Irk: Sancho Panza was irked by the command that he had to stand by Dapple for three days without even a (discreet) bathroom break.

Jargon: Those who were not in the know could not understand the jargon of the uppercrust, lorgnette-loving ladies, who often spoke of things that only the very affluent could appreciate.

Jeer/jilt: The jilted crowd of peasants jeered mockingly at the unpopular king who had yet again raised their taxes without making life any better for them.

Keen: Her keen understanding of the silk trade allowed her to charge and collect the highest consultation fees.

Kowtow: Slim often eagerly kowtowed to those in authority by unquestioningly obeying their every dictum whether or not they had any merit.

Leery; linger: I am often leery of lingering in stores: I fear that if I stay too long the employees may trick me into buying something that I really do not want or need.

Lithe: The lithe athlete gracefully moved over the rough terrain with the nimbleness of an antelope.

Loathe: Marissa so loathed the mindset of developers that she wouldn't even travel on a road where the land was being ripped apart for mindless profit.

Longing; lore: The intense and painful longing of Lancelot for the married Guinevere was once only contained in the capacious memories of medieval bards as the most poignant of lore, until later it was first recorded by Chrétien de Troyes in the late 12th century.

Lull: The mothering washing of the waves lulled me into a tranquil sleep, despite my anxiety about the sales outcome.

Lurk; lush: The lush foliage of the rain forest provides an effective hiding place in which a jaguar can lurk with relative confidence that it will remain unseen by its prey until it's too late.

Maelstrom; mainstay: The family members were all caught up in a maelstrom of confusion and doubt about their future when the mother of the family tragically died in a senseless act of violence, sending the family's lives spinning out of control since they had lost the mainstay of their world.

Mar; maverick: The marvelous reputation of Mucky Mark's Marshmallow Emporium was marred by the malevolent maverick who successfully discovered a new way to sell marshmallows that not only completely altered marshmallow mercantilism, but also charged half the price, making all competitors look like unscrupulous price gougers.

Meld: The two lovers melded into one as they stepped upon the dance floor, entwining each other in a close embrace.

Mellow: Although Gladys was highly strung during her early years in the company, she mellowed after she turned forty, wisely taking the company's vicissitudes in their stride.

Minion: Caesar's minions unquestionably obeyed him when he gave a command, since they knew his uncanny ability to foresee a way to successfully storm any fortress.

Mirth: Minnie's mirth knew no end as she laughed and laughed with genuine happiness at the success of her latest gold-digging venture.

Morass; nadir: Stuck in the morass of daily living that had spiralled beyond her control, Griselda was at last convinced that her life had reached the nadir of awfulness, and so she set out to change her life by cutting all ties and moving to Kaua'i, only to discover that she herself was still along.

Nimble: The nimble ninja leapt and cavorted with dexterous ease about his enemy until he so utterly tired the inimical villain that he easily moved in for the killing blow.

Offshoot; ordeal: One offshoot of Kendra's thirty-day survival ordeal in the remote forests of the Congo was that she now felt much more self-confident in the everyday and comparatively easy tasks of living in Beverly Hills.

Paltry: His contribution to the relief fund was so paltry that it had no effect in alleviating any suffering whatsoever.

Parch: The strength of the sun's rays on the summer solstice parched our thirsty tomato plant, causing its leaves to turn a crisp brown.

Pilfer: Shoplifters often pilfer the most trifling of items, but are still justifiably punished as if they had stolen something of real value.

Pithy: The effectiveness of Martin Luther King's speeches often centered around pithy statements that stuck in the minds of his auditors long after the speech was over.

Pore: The sorcerer pored through tomes for a fortnight before he found the master word to complete the casting of his spell.

Pun: The wittiest of punsters can often throw out plays on words seemingly unwittingly, glibly riding with their paromania with ease.

Quagmire; quandary: Bobbert was stuck in a quandary over whether or not he should date Blinka, sinking him into a quagmire of indecision that completely befuddled his usually sharp cognitive processes for days.

Quiver: The bandits quivered with fear when they saw Robin Hood's tell-tale green quiver filled with brightly-tipped arrows.

Ramshackle; ransack: The Huns did not bother to ransack the ramshackle hovels of the peasants because they did not think that their dilapidated exteriors promised any riches lying hidden within.

Rash; raving: The rash act of eating too much fly agaric turned the would-be berserker into a raving, frothing-at-the-mouth, limp lunatic instead of a well-oiled, fearless fighting machine.

Reverie: After I met the girl who enchanted my life, I often was awakened from my reveries of her by people who could not understand my sudden change of temperament and fussed about my glazed-over eyes that did not register their officious presence.

Rift: An unhealable rift was caused in the couple's relationship when one of the children died due to parental negligence.

Rile: His uncanny ability to cope and unflappable personality were never riled until he encountered the unjust persecution of the Cathars, at which point all his heretofore hidden rage was unleashed at the Church.

Saunter: Mary Beth sauntered casually and confidently into the lecture hall because she knew perfectly well that not only had she aced the test, but that she had done better than the rest of the class.

Scanty: The trial evidence was so scanty that it was not nearly enough to convict Al Capone of any wrongdoing.

Scathing: The son's scathing criticism of the psychiatrist's advice was probably justified since Dr. Psychoist had managed not to unify his family, but rather to tear it apart.

Scoff; scorn: Established authorities scoffed at the young professor's report that she had discovered a living plesiosaur within the depths of the Congo, heaping scorn and derision upon her reportedly shoddy and unsound research techniques; they quickly backtracked two weeks later when she produced irrefutable evidence of her claim.

Seething: The unjust seizure of the rare Raphael left the museum curator seething with anger, particularly because he had made its protection his life's mantra.

Sere: The sere, desert landscape provided the former denizen of the rainforest with a totally new perspective concerning life's extraordinary tenacity in arid, harsh conditions.

Serendipity; shrewd: Although the accidental discovery of penicillin was certainly one of medicine's most famous cases of serendipity, it was Fleming's shrewd recognition of its utilitarian potential that should most be remembered.

Shun: Most people shun a one-star restaurant unless they have no taste buds.

Smite: Many Old Testament stories gloatingly describe the wrath of God smiting and consequently obliterating enemies of the Chosen people.

Sound: Jason's jellybean argument was sound since it was supported by carefully chosen facts that buttressed its validity.

Spur: The cowboy spurred his lazy horse into action with his sharp spurs.

Spurn; squander: After the prodigal son left home, he spurned thriftiness and squandered his entire inheritance in a short time, returning home penniless.

Stalwart; stark; steadfast: Despite the stark, featureless appearance of the environs of her new home and the stark realities of its harsh weather, Desiree was not only stalwart in continually defending her decision to move to the capital city of her favorite organization, but also steadfast in inveterately supporting the city's considerable economic advantages.

Stealthy; stifle; stymie: The brilliantly stealthy plans of the bank robber not only stifled all attempts at guessing where he would strike next, but also stymied all recovery efforts to ferret out the stolen loot since the elusive villain always seemed to disappear without a trace.

Taut: The string on William Tell's bow was so taut that it prematurely snapped the first time he tried to shoot the apple from his son's head.

Thwart; trek: Our trek north was thwarted by too much snow, and so we reluctantly delayed our departure.

Trifling: Spunky's broken pinky finger was a trifling injury compared with Blinky's lopped-off nose.

Trounce; troupe: Shakespeare's troupe of actors was named the favorite of Queen Elizabeth I because it trounced its competition by putting on a superior performance.

Tryst: The tryst between the lovers Lancelot and Guinevere in the emerald forest was meant to be secret until it was disastrously discovered by the meddling Sir Kay.

Tundra: The featureless plains of tundra stretched before our eyes in unremitting splendor, filling the iciness of northern Canada with pristine, treeless land that hopefully would remain untouched by man.

Utmost: I did my utmost to stop the destruction, but even my best efforts were too little.

Veneer: Although the veneer of the Potemkin village certainly was enticing, the guts behind the glitzy storefronts were ramshackle at best.

Veer: The car veered off the road, careened into the ditch, hurtled over the side railing, and launched over the cliff, depositing driver, daddy, and Donald in five fathoms of froth-filled ocean.

Waive: I hope that the judge, after he has received his steep request fee, will waive the ticket so that I do not have to go to defensive driving class.

Wallow: The attention-seeking Wilma wallowed in pretentious self-pity after she failed to entice the winsome William to attend the local goat exhibition with her.

Wane: Jeanette's love for James began to wane when she discovered that he was not only married, but also had two other secret families; nevertheless, she did admire his organizational skills, so hired him to run her international logistics business.

Wary: Be wary of Greeks bearing gifts, and be especially sure to look their gift horses in the mouth.

Waver: The etymologist never wavered in his love for words, waking up each and every day to renewed enthusiasm and dedication.

Wax: As the moon waxes, it grows larger and shines more brightly, just as a candle that has received more wax burns brighter and longer.

Weather: Success is often determined by those who can best weather the difficulties that inevitably arise along the way.

Wily: The wily Billy the Kid escaped from baffled authorities many a time.

Winnow; wrath: After the candidates were winnowed down to three from the original ten, the wrath of the severed seven knew no bounds, and they angrily protested what they considered to be the unjust proceedings.

Wrenching; writhe: Although I managed to wrench the locked door off its rusted hinges, I also managed to tear my rotator cuff, causing me to lie on the floor writhing in agony until my kind brother knocked me unconscious with his trusty pipe wrench.

Wrought: The tsunami wrought havoc on the island nation, destroying almost half of its homes and soiling the water supply.

GRE Level II

Group I: cabal/canard/doughty/dudgeon/asunder/ombudsman/lampon

The cabal, a doughty group of tenacious insurgents who plotted to cleave asunder the established government, was in high dudgeon when its primary plan, a spurious front-page canard that blasted and lamponed the reigning dictator, was deep-sixed at the eleventh hour by an ombudsman who had infiltrated the organization's interior by posing, of all things, as a cable guy.

Group II: drivel/hone/droll/windfall/wry

Gumperdink sagely advised Humperdink with a wry smile that if he expected any sort of quick windfall from his ailing affluent aunt, he was going to have to hone his daily irritating and boring drivel about the weather that he seemed to think his aunt liked to a droll laughter-inducing banter that would not only fully engage her and subsequently endear her to him, but also would eventually cause her heart to palpitate so fiercely that it would help precipitate an untimely demise.

Group III: gnarled/swarthy/wrangle/writ/welter/wizened

After the creamy-skinned woman, who had fallen on hard times, joined the migrant workers who picked peaches on a large plantation in southern Georgia, her delicate hands became gnarled with overuse, her skin turned swarthy as it adapted to the sun's rays, and her entire body transformed from a healthy fleshiness to an emaciated one wizened with wrinkles. One day, however, an ancient court writ was discovered that gave her sole proprietorship to the land, and so, after much legal wrangling and wrestling over the rights to the peach orchard that caused a welter of confusion among the current landowners, the former beauty turned crone reverted to beauty in a stunning and unprecedented twist of fate that resembled peach flesh to pit to flesh.

Group IV: wraith/willy-nilly/whet/slough/soused/doltish/beleaguer/meted/doldrums/nigging/dogged

The wraith that flitted willy-nilly about the haunted adobe mansion, haphazardly and terrifyingly appearing from room to room, whetted our appetites to find a cure for such a nigging plague that worried us to no end; when dogged Doug suggested for the tenth time that the ghost be summarily soused with salsa each and every time it beleaguered us, we all laughed at the seemingly doltish idea until we, mired in a slough of missed opportunities and wallowing in the doldrums of ineffective despair, decided to try his seemingly silly suggestion—thus was born Salsa Sally, who, somewhat like the Minotaur, fell to slurping the capacious helping of salsa we lavishly meted out on her, after which gluttony she left us all alone for glorious nine-year stretches at a time.

Group V: dross/patois/affray/glower/waggish/wag/quail/waffle/toady/pedantic/prude

The fun-loving Wilbur, a wag whose clever antics and humorous conversation were usually met with approval, glowered sullenly at the cranky old crone who simply would not laugh at anything he said, but rather focused on pedantically labeling his regional patois as an unacceptable and low-quality linguistic dross, rigidly preferring proper use of standard English. To waggishly counteract this stuck-up old prude, one day Wilbur led an affray against her in the street, mockingly sporting gigantic pink boxing gloves that caused her to quail not only in fear, but also to waffle and finally recant her disapproval; later, she turned into a slavish toady that did nothing but support and flatter his humorous ways.

Group VI: sloth/hinterland/behemoth/bellwether/riven/fell (adj.)/fell (v.)/rent/heinous/lumber/stockade/meet/bolster/juggernaut/skulking/harbinger/götterdämmerung

Far, far away in the rural hinterland of northern Cimmeria lived the gigantic behemoth, a sloth-like colossus which, despite the fact that the monstrous leviathan lumbered along slowly and somewhat awkwardly, could nevertheless act as an unstoppable juggernaut as it fell large trees in one fell swoop in a senseless, fell fashion: the trees' once mighty roots were riven from the ground, their trunks cruelly rent in half and tumbled haphazardly in all directions. This truly heinous conduct, shocking as it may seem, instead of being a catastrophic götterdämmerung that brought about the end of the native peoples who subsisted upon the forest, actually was a positive harbinger of better things to come: the Cimmerian people were able to use the felled trees, too tough for them to cut by themselves, as poles to create a mighty stockade that not only penned in their animals, but also served as a meet fortification that bolstered their safety by keeping out skulking wolves that could eat and attack them by night.

Group VII: milk/dither/knell/slipshod/grouse/prattle/brook/eschew/bay/stint (v.)/ stint (n.)/glibly/tout/dearth

I could no longer brook the shameful conduct of the politician who had milked not only my contribution money, but also my precious vote. While in office he did nothing but ineffectually dither over environmental issues, unable to make any important decisions; as he showily grouched about how slipshod and sloppy conservation efforts were, he nevertheless eschewed trying to correct any problems, although his incessant prattle certainly sounded genuine. When I realized that he was just going to continue baying at the moon, never stinting in not providing help, I myself decided to try a stint at his position: I won the next election by not only touting my own excellent qualifications but also glibly shooting down my opponent, only to discover to my horror that, at the end of my term, my contributions exhibited the same dearth as his own.

Group VIII: shard/slake/quaff/qualm/kismet/die/gavel/foist/skulduggery/gaffe/piddling

One day Dr. Wisconsin Willie found a shard of what he claimed to be the lost sword of Excalibur. After he had quaffed many a toast to slake his thirst and revel in his find, he felt no qualms whatsoever in taking his landmark find to a local pawn shop, where he tried to foist the find off on Pawned Patti, who believed that her kismet was to discover an item of rare value that no one could recognize but her, so she rolled the die of chance and offered slick Willie five thousand dollars for the piece of sharp metal. When Patti's husband, Merchandise Mike, discovered Willie's devious skulduggery, he took the case to court, accusing Willie of underhanded misrepresentation that took unfair advantage of his professional status. As the judge pounded his gavel upon his desk, he said that Mike was the one who had made the gaffe, and that the item was not only worth at least ten thousand dollars, but would remain in the jurisdiction of the court system. Later, when Willie met the judge, he forked over the relatively piddling thousand dollar bribery fee, and walked away with an extra four thousand bucks.

Group IX: roil/boor/stilted/nettle/thrall/masochist/moniker/harrowing/sidle

The unprincipled and rude boor inveterately nettled our susceptible temperaments, disturbing and roiling our equanimity by his stilted, unnatural outbursts that held us in thrall to his overwhelming personality; because we subconsciously possessed masochistic tendencies, we unwittingly remained under the sway of this harrowing ruler that constantly upset us—we never directly approached him but nevertheless sheepishly sidled within his influence, and so we were given the epithetic moniker of “the boored.”

Group X: gerrymander/tawdry/fodder/simony/debutante/jeremiad/chutzpah/dally/cringe/cow/cower/comely/untoward/brazen/gainsay/baleful/abeyance/suborn

The comely debutante, having successfully entered upper class society primarily via her beauty and secondarily through her never-say-die chutzpah that often trampled on the toes of those highest in stature, decided that the people of the upper class were simply not quite enough fodder for her designs of power, so she began a brazen campaign for political office that left no tactic unused. Employing the somewhat untoward ploy of wearing tawdry, flashy clothing to match her tawdry, morally-compromised standards, she caused the most fearful parts of men's souls to cower, cowing and suborning them into believing that if they voted for her, she would bring about a modern-day utopia where they would all be millionaires, and if they did not, they would all be poorer than they were now. After she had successfully dallied with the puppet-like populace, she began to deliver jeremiads against her opponent, long speeches which warned of doom if anyone even thought of voting for such a despicable monster—even her stalwart opponent began to cringe in terror at such diabolical methodology. No one was able to gainsay her road to triumph; years later, after all the good things in life had fallen into abeyance and a newer age had arrived in which hatred and baleful conduct towards one's “fellow” man became the norm, the jilted people finally awoke from the vampiric charm that had utterly ruined their lives.

Group XI: curmudgeon/maudlin/mawkish/list/prate/steeped/nether

Carl the curmudgeon usually complained about every person and institution on the face of the planet, but when he drank he reversed roles, becoming maudlin as he mawkishly sentimentalized everything from his childhood to his present-day old age. And so, before the Titanic's hull tragically listed on its side prior to sinking within the ocean's nether regions, Carl prated on and on about how unsafe icebergs were, but after the Titanic sunk, he drunkenly lamented, steeped in rum, about the tragic loss of life.

Group XII: pharisee/wan/debauchery/slovenly/chide/motley/waspish/abash/gall/quell/riddle/grovel/pariah/chagrin/awry/demimonde/wanton

The young pharisee, pretending to be religious to please his waspish mother, who was always mean-spiritedly chiding him about his lack of complete devotion, one day decided that he could never please her and so left home, entered the demimonde, and subjected himself to a life of wanton debauchery that, after a two-year period, left him in a compromised state of health, both financial and bodily. At last caving in, he appeared one day on his mother's doorstep, slovenly dressed in tattered, motley, haphazard clothing that was, in fact, his entire wardrobe assembled on his thin frame; his abashed mother hardly recognized his wan face, once so florid with life. Galled at the disheveled condition and base conduct of her son, she soon quelled his inclinations to rebellious license, riddling him with a veritable salvo of reproaches that soon had him groveling at her feet, profusely apologizing at being a once-pariah of her religion, admitting that he felt a great deal of chagrin at his embarrassing way of life, and promising that no longer would she have to worry about his life going so awry from her, and now his, moral principles.

Group XIII: tycoon/pogrom/filch/bludgeon/hew/about/coterie/husband/bulwark

In order to garner even more land on the large island, the evil property tycoon and his dastardly, selfish coterie decided to enact a pogrom against whom they termed "the squatters," but who were actually legal property owners, by bludgeoning them with clubs and hewing them down with scythes all so that they could filch their "vacant" land, which so inconveniently abutted their own. Jacques, getting wind of this flagitious plot, united the landowners; after husbanding their resources so as not to waste any, they quickly and almost miraculously created a bulwark that defended themselves from the tycoon, and lived happily ever after.

Group XIV: shirk/cosset/askew/simper

Antonio began to shirk his duties at work and spend less time with his friends when he began cossetting his cute new puppy: buying it food, taking it for walks, making sure that its beauty parlor and tailoring arrangements were right on schedule, and taking it to the vet once a week; when asked why his personal life was so askew and his work was suffering, he sillily *simpere*d and saccharinely said: "Dada luvs his itsy witsy bitsy Diddly-dwoggie."

Group XV: fallow/hidebound/carp/moot

When medieval peasants discovered that leaving one field fallow during planting season would make for a better harvest, only the most hidebound of them, who considered the newfangled idea a moot point, objected by planting all their fields anyway, and did not listen to anyone who carped at them about their agricultural tomfoolery, whom nature itself finally had to convince as their soils grew poorer and poorer, and those of the more technologically advanced richer and richer.

Group XVI: jangle/staccato/askance/poacher

We all glanced somewhat askance at the accordion player whose sharp staccato playing in a minor key was annoyingly jangling everyone's nerves, much as a poacher who illegally killed animals on protected land might jangle the nerves of a forest warden.

Group XVII: spoof/lambaste/pundit/doggerel

Although the author claimed that his poetic spoof on the current crisis in Iraq was not meant to be taken seriously, but rather was simply comic doggerel, an incisive pundit revealed that it actually lambasted the current administration's handling of the affair with unsettling accuracy.

Group XVIII: singe/fluster/bluster/flurry

After the adroit fire eater at the luau ate his torch's flame, he began unconscionably to bluster vociferously at the unappreciative front table and consequently singed their hair; they, becoming understandably flustered, ran away in a flurry of panic—the rest of the audience, however, soon realized that it was all a clever part of the act.

Group XIX: fawn/quisling/jaded/butt

The jaded affluent nephew, fawning on his rich aunt, said and did everything he thought must inevitably be done in order to be included in her will even though he had previously successfully done so with three other aunts; after Aunt Millie passed away, he ho-hummed the million dollars she had willed to him, and, typical of his quisling-like nature, and egged on by his malicious Uncle Milton, heaped vitriolic invective upon her and made her the butt of his cruel jokes.

Group XX: bustle/buffet/byway/allay/abet

In the daily hustle and bustle of our busy lives, we are often buffeted by misfortunes and difficulties, but if we look upon the less important byways of our jobs as secondary to our spiritual growth, we will be able to allay that stress and fear in our lives while aiding and abetting studied and fruitful focus on the important things in life.

Group XXI: choice/ersatz/blithe/rant

We blithely accepted the art dealer's expostulations that what he wanted to sell us was a genuine choice Monet; when we found out that it was conversely ersatz, we all began to rant and rave, and peremptorily demanded our seven-figure investment returned at once and in full.

Group XXII: martinet/cheeky/hoyden/breach

The teacher, who thought he was a strict and successful martinet who could keep order in any classroom setting, was astounded when Helga the Hoyden entered his class in the fall of '92, for he had never dealt with such a cheeky tomboy before, and had no idea how to control her rude behavior that breached all acceptable classroom norms.

Here follow alphabetized smaller groups of GRE List II words in context:

Arsenal; hallowed: The warmonger's personal arsenal included two powerful shotguns, three high-caliber pistols, a wicked looking knife, and a peashooter from his hallowed childhood from which he could in no wise part.

Bemused; champ; muse: I stood somewhat bemused as the ravenous horse champed its way through fifteen apples and then nickered for more; I could not fathom why the well-fed horse would be this hungry, and my musings upon the subject for several days brought no acceptable resolution to the conundrum.

Callow: The callow youth's inexperience in social situations often caused breaches of etiquette that took months of excellent conduct to repair.

Carom: The stock car caromed off the guard rail after it spun out of control, reminding me of a bank shot in pool.

Chortle; ribald: The amused Miller merrily chortled at the ribald tale of licentious adultery.

Eddy: The flowing water edded around and around the fairy's hand who held the sword in the midst of the beautiful river.

Ilk: Shakespeare is in such a class of his own that there are no other playwrights of his ilk.

Kitsch: The pretentious kitsch topiary that looks like a tree sporting green meatballs was once thought to be at least novel, but is now considered vulgar and in poor taste.

Lissome: Lisa was born to be a dancer: she was lissome, graceful, and her metabolism kept her thin throughout her life.

Mottle/mote: The kind poet described the mottled, spot-covered features of her face as motes of sunlight-revealed dust that accentuated her radiant spirit.

Quack: The quack doctor promised me that his miraculous nostrum would cure any ill that might develop throughout my entire life.

Rife: Some non-creative children's minds are rife with dullness because their thought patterns have been formed by the vapid narratives they have seen over and over again on television.

Risqué: His risqué conduct left us all wondering if he had been subsumed and thoroughly corrupted by the sexual revolution.

Rivet; wane: When we first saw mimes in Paris, our attention was riveted upon them; now that we have become used to them, our attention upon them is waning as we focus on finding new things to make our lives interesting.

Splice: When I was a third-hand at 3M, I would create splices that united two rolls of moving carbonless paper.

Teeter: Mark teetered on the edge of financial ruin after his company's stock plummeted 50% in one afternoon.

Tithe: Tithes, a tenth of one's income demanded from the Church, hit the poorest of us the hardest.

Zeitgeist: The current zeitgeist of American society is one of acquisition, development without sustainability, and wanton use of energy; it appears as if the "spirit" has been removed from the "spirit of the age."
