The proposed sale or closure of a Japaneseowned aluminum die casting plant in Niles could affect nearly 200 jobs, according to the Metaldyne Corporation, owned by Asahi Tec, announced that it would divest its Niles plant at 6119 W. Howard St. as well as a Middleville, Mich. facility.

"Our first objective is to try and sell the plants," said Metaldyne spokeswoman Marge Sorge. "We have great work forces there."

The sale will affect 167 hourly employees and 21 salaried employees at the Niles plant, which functions primarily as an auto parts supplier and has

"There is interest in the plants," Sorge said. "We don't know when they will be sold, but they will continue to operate until then."

Of course, Sorge said, there is no guarantee the plants will be sold or that they will continue to operate as they have been under a new owner they could be closed.

"There is a market for the products these plants produce, so we think we'll be able to sell them," she said. "But all of that will be up to the new owners."

Metaldyne is headquartered in Plymouth, Mich. and has annual revenues of approximately $1.8 billion. The company employs more than 6,300 employees at 33 facilities in 14 countries. Metaldyne is an indirectly wholly owned subsidiary of Asahi Tec Corporation, a Shizuoka, Japan-based

'Green-themed' shuttle starts in District 219

By KATHY ROUTLIFFE kroutliffe@pioneerlocal.com

In what Superintendent Nanciann Gatta described as "a tip of the hat to going green," Niles Township High School District 219 has started an employee shuttle program that could cut the number of cars in Niles North and West High School parking lots.

The service will provide three pickups between 6:14 and 7:24 a.m. from both the Morton Grove Metra station and in (Chicago), I take public transportation without a second thought. I think people should as much as possible be able to live and go to work without needing a car. Most importantly it allows teachers to think about education instead of having to think about being caught in traffic."

Steve Grossman, who heads the Niles Township Federation of Teachers, said the program hasn't been discussed during negotiations, "but the district seems pretty

The shuttle program was announced last month during the regular district school board meeting. Transportation will be handled by district security drivers whose existing district van routes will be rearranged to include the new service. The employee shuttles won't increase labor costs. Gatta

"It's been in the back of my mind for a while, and was also a response to the growing price of gas," she said last Friday "After living abroad and committed to green efforts. It might be limited to people who live close to the train stations, but having the ability to relax or go through papers on the way to work instead of dealing with traffic could work really well for some people."

Gatta said letters about the new program have been sent out to employees, asking them to contact the district if they are interested in taking part. Administrators will look at the program later in the school vear to evaluate the response, "but we've already had some good feedback about it."

Cost to send 8th-grader to school: $650

tbertuca@pioneerlocal.com

Today (Thursday) is the first day of school at East Maine Elementary District 63, and parents who have been opening wallets and purses all summer have been tapped once again for "back-to-school" season.

After a flurry of shopping and a cluster of checks to pay various school fees, moms and dads might be wondering just how much eash has gone out the door.

Below is an estimated cost based on the exact. fees charged by District 68 and the cost of supplies the district requires for junior-high students.

Like most school districts. District 63 charges certain fees for books and materials, as well as activities like field trips.

Kindergarten fees include: $45 for books and materials; and $10 for universal activity.

In grades 1-6, fees include: $55 for books and materials; $10 for universal activity; and $5 for Whenever you appeal your property tax assessment in Cook County with the Board of Review and win. give a quiet prayer of thanks to Maureen Murphy, who died Aug. 9.

If it weren't for Murphy, who was representing her south suburban constituents in the Illinois House of Representatives from 1993 to 1997, the tax appeal process probably would still be business as usual in Cook County.

Reform doesn't come swiftly, but Murphy was chief sponsor for legislation to replace the two-man Cook County Board of Appeals with a three-member review board elected from three different districts.

A state-level appeal process — already available elsewhere in Illinois — was finally opened to Cook County residents. And when Murphy left the legislature she ran for the review board.

The fact that she won a seat — being a Republican and the first suburbanite to do so — and was chosen as the Board of Review's chairman meant that she also had an opportunity to set a lot of procedures and policies. Although she lived in Evergreen Park, her district included many of the north and northwest suburbs and parts of Northwest Chicago.

Public notice on appeals deadlines for different townships within Chicago and its suburbs improved. The Board of Review started outreach sessions all over the county, for big audiences and small community organizations, to explain the appeal process to the average citizen. The success rate of these appeals was a mixed blessing at first - because the board inherited a lot of cases to review, delaying the bills countywide for a couple of years — but the purpose of the process was fulfilled.

Chicago residents might have had a head start in understanding the property tax appeals process from outreach - from Patrick Quinn's city office of tax appeals back in the 1980s under the Harold Washington administration. However, for many suburban Cook residents, access to appeal information often depended on their township assessor's ability to unsnarl red tape.

Murphy also pioneered on other fronts, serving as the first woman chairman of the Cook County Republican Party (2002-2004), as well as the Worth Township Republican Committeeman and state central committee delegate from the 1st Congressional District.

It's never easy being a Republican, or a Republican woman, in Cook County politics. After two terms, she lost her Board of Review seat at the last election to Democrat Brendan F. Houlihan, but only by a 2 percent margin. She was back on a ballot earlier this year, as a delegate for then-GOP presidential hopeful Fred Thompson.

Hope for the world in the produce aisle

I hope you're not one of those shoppers who moves thoughtlessly through your summer produce department. You know, grabbing some fruit and a few vegetables as you move on to the more exotic meat and bakery aisles. Big mistake!

Mom always advised us on the merits of our summer fruits and vegetables. A friend of mine is a produce manager. and he reinforces Mom with specific advice on how to pick produce at its peak. While I lack their credentials, I have some advice too. For shoppers seeking the answers to life's eternal questions, pause over your produce. For example, When you choose among your summer berries, pause to rejoice at nature's goodness. Summer fruits are one more reason to feel life is good, the planet is still not dead, and God is in his heaven. The day summer harvests fail to vield up the joys of strawberries. blueberries and blackberries is the day to cash in your government bonds. Until then, caress your berries like you do your children (and you don't have to send them to college).

Then, pause over your lettuce and tomatoes. They present an altar of opportunities to reflect on the variety you can find in life. Kids may think of these in unitary terms - lettuce is lettuce, tomatoes are tomatoes. But never the thoughtful adult. Life

District 219 absorbs effects of fuel costs

By KATHY ROUTLIFFE kroutliffe@pioneerlocal.com

Skyrocketing fuel prices are hitting school district pocketbooks just as noticeably as they have challenged families.

The proposed $117.3 million 2008-09 budget for Niles Township High School District 219 reflects that, district officials said.

People can comment on the budget at tonight's board meeting (7 p.m., district headquarters, 7700 Gross Point Road, Skokie; closed session followed by open meeting at 7:45 p.m.) The school board expects to approve the final budget at tonight's meeting.

"It's affected us as much as anyone else. That's reality," Paul O'-Malley said at the Aug. 12 meeting. O'Malley, assistant superintendent for business services, said

"It's affected us as much as anyone else. That's reality."

Paul O'Malley

"we pay conscious attention to conserving as much energy as possible in an effort to mitigate those costs." Fiscal director Susan Husselbee said fuel price is also reflected in higher costs for other supplies.

The budget is almost 8.2 percent higher than the 2007-08 budget. Direct operating costs comprise just over $100 million of that - the district's education, operations and maintenance, transportation, legal liability, and retirement funds. That's just over 7 percent more than the current year's operating budget. Transportation costs show the largest (Technically, so-called "other financing sources" hike total projected revenue to $129.8 million, 5.9 percent more than last year. However, those are often intra-budget transfers or flow-through funds, and aren't considered true revenue process ... I liked it. I thought, 'These people are not messing around. It's not going to be a case of them saying, oh good, she's normal, let's hire her.' They wanted me to prove myself."

The proposed budget is available for review until the meeting, at public libraries within District 219's boundaries, at the District office, and through the district's Web site at, www.nileshs.k12.il.us/pdf/tentativebudgetfy09.pdf.

On working with district employees:

"I'm comfortable with the concept that adults have needs that we need to meet. I can talk with everyone, as long as they know that nothing will ever come at the expense of the children. If what adults say they need comes at that expense, or if people don't take the children's needs into consideration, then they've forgotten why we're here. That's not negotiable."

On the importance of public input to education:

"Criticism, in the best sense of the term ... is analysis. People forget that, but I was an English teacher, and I remember. Asking for criticism in a school district is inviting people to take ownership of their schools."

On the importance of education:

"The one true success of America is its school system. We've gotten that right, but until it's right for every student, we still have work to do."

Children's artwork often winds up on refrigerator doors, but the young people who attended summer classes and summer camps at Brickton Art Center get to see their creations on gallery walls. KidStuff, the 7th annual celebration of children's creativity, runs from Aug. 21-Sept. 3, at 306 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge.

There is an opening reception on Friday, Aug. 22, from 6-8 p.m. It's a chance to view artwork by more than 350 young artists, ages 3-13, listen to live music, eat dilly bars and participate in games, face painting and other activities. Suggested donation is $10 per family.

"We had classes in ceramics, sculpture, painting and mixed media," reported Executive Director Alvssa Kulak. Children had a range of camps to choose from, including ones focusing on clay, Egyptian art and masks.

Kulak said the exhibit lets visitors see "what children in Park Ridge and the other northwest suburban youth are up to, what kind of art they're making and the things they're interested in. It's a good opportunity to support the local youth and which the Historic Methodist Campground is located was donated by Socrates Rand, one of the first permanent settlers of Des Plaines. That makes it a fitting place to stage "Tales of the River," by Des Plaines residents Daniel Scott (book and lyrics) and Tim Vana (music and additional songs). The story of Rand and other early residents of the area along the Des Plaines River will be presented in four performances in the Campground's dining room, the weekend of Aug. 23-24.

Scott and Vana were commissioned by the Des Plaines Historical Society to create a local version of Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" in 2003. That first production, in the Waldorf Tabernacle on a success, the society asked Scott and Vana to restage the show this year. The current production features actors Scott, John Jasionowski, Stephanie Wootten-Austin and Jocelyn Mills playing multiple roles. Music is provided by Vana, Kimberly Vana, Dan Zahn and Randy Cerqua. Scott recalled that, five

In-person collaboration

"There was no e-mail." Vana reported. The pair would get together and Vana would play the music for Scott, "As somebody who writes a lot, I really had an affinity for the way Dan was developing the characters," Vana said. "And I'm very proud of the music that I came up with for this."

The project required extensive research by Scott and the Historical Society staff. Lifelong Des Plaines resident Vana, a history buff, was also a valuable

Both creators knew that

Socrates Rand would be a prominent character in the show. "Usually, he gets short shrift in this area." Vana said. "Who even knows who Rand Road is named after? And he was so influential in the development of the Des Plaines River Valley. He was sort of a mix of Renaissance meets the Industrial Revolution. He is the guy who brought the railroad out from Chicago to Des Plaines. He was a friend of Augustus Conant, arguably the most original mind that came through Des Plaines. He was a Unitarian minister and many of his sermons are still preserved in the Chicago Historical Society."

Personal insights

"We have Conant in the show," Scott reported. "His diary is really fascinating because it gives you an insight into what life was like here at the very beginning. He saw the Northern Lights here and he talks about wolves howling. Of course, the Native Americans were still here and Rand dealt with them — they traded."

The show also features Grandma Ahbe, a midwife who delivered more than a thousand children, the last tune dedicated to her. "Grandma Ahbe's Song." was an instant hit five years ago - with the audience singing along. "The lyrics are written in the program and it's a fairly easy melody to grab hold of, but I had not had that experience before," Vana

Scott is a professional actor, director and acting teacher, who had written cemetery walks and other projects for the Des Plaines Historical Society when he was chosen to create "Tales of the River." The two believe there are more stories to be told about the Des Plaines River Valley beyond those in "Tales of the River." "I want to do the prequel," Vana declared. "Tim and I have talked about doing Marquette and Joliet," Scott added. "Maybe that will come down the pike sometime"

The Rocker $\star \star$ 1/2

"The Rocker" basically wonders what would happen if Ozzy Osbourne went on tour with The Partridge Family and the answer, unfortunately, is not much.

Opposites in this case don't play off each other as much as they cancel each other out.

Rainn Wilson, the obnoxious dweeb Dwight on TV's "The Office," has the title role of "Fish" Fishman, an '80s heavy-metal drummer who gets kicked out of his band just before they go multi-platinum. Twenty years later, he gets a second chance to rock in the wholesome teenage treacle-pop band of his social-outcast

Peter Cattaneo, who also made "The Full Monty." It's also reasonably amusing from time to time, thanks to some snarky dialogue from the ex-"Simpsons" and ex-"Larry Sanders Show" screenwriters (plus the borderline emetic bit about the band breaking through when footage of Fish drumming nude in rehearsal hits Youtube). And it occasionally pushes the right buttons when the kids are appalled by the old-guy's old-school rock

'n' roll-animal behavior. But Fish is just a little too well-behaved and the kids in the band are just a little too hip and blasé to take the comedy to an entertaining extreme.

Is it an edgy rock 'n' roll comedy? Is it a wholesome entertainment for the whole family? It's both, it's neither, it's somewhere "The Rocker" is pleasunsatisfactorily in-beant enough as directed by

Hamlet 2 $\star\star\star$ 1/2

Sometimes an idea can be so bad it starts to be good again. That's not my thought.

It's a quote from the highschool newspaper drama critic who routinely savages the musical adaptations of dubious movies staged by the spectacularly untalented drama teacher Mr. Marschz (Steve Coogan). Marschz has just run his idea for a sequel to "Hamlet" past the kid, as a backup to his original plan to create a musical version of "The Lake House" starring Keanu Reeves and Sandra Bullock. It doesn't matter that Shakespeare killed

The beat goes on: Rainn Wilson in "The Rocker."

Marschz says. He can put Hamlet in a time machine and use it to undo the "downer" of the original.

Yes, it's a truly, truly bad idea and co-writer/directer Andrew Fleming (who also made the sharpwitted Watergate satire "Dick") puts it to very good use in this surprisingly sophisticated portrait of a desperate man who has failed as an actor. failed as a teacher, failed

THE DARK KNIGHT *** 1/2

Writer/director Christophe Nolan ("Memento") returns with star Christian Bale after "Batman Begins" with the Big Bat suffering more angst about his moral ambiquity while cleaning up Gotham City as a dark vigilante, "The Dark Knight" looks fantastic and the adrenaline-pumping action sequences are spectacular, but it's Heath Ledger's powerfully strange performance as The Joker that makes it a must see. ### PINEAPPLE EXPRESS ***

FILM CLIPS

Imagine Cheech and Chong wandering, completely blitzed, into a hyperbolic action movie directed by John Woo or Michael Bay in his "Bad Boys" phase, and you'll have a pretty good idea of how "Pineapple Express" is going to play out. What you might not get, though, unless you've already formed an idea of what to expect from the Judd Anatow comedy factory is that "Pineapple" is smarter and funnier than you'd have a right to hope from anyone else making a similar movie Co-writer Seth Rogen and James Franco (much better used here than in "Spider-Man") play a couple of stoners on the run from a murderous drug dealer with a backhack full of the titular ultra-powerful weed to keep them sharp and focused. Celebrated indie director David Gordon Green ("Snow Angels") brings out surprising textures in the film's characters and its overall look and we get plenty of insane car chases and epic oun battles (involving some grisly violence), but the best thing about this movie is that it's often extremely funny - and not just in the way you might expect from a doner comedy. It's also essentially good-natured, like all Apatow comedies, despite the runaway mayhem. That's another way of saying that the righteous prevail - or, at least, the righteously stoned. (BI) (111 min.) Rated R for pervasive language, drug use, sexual references and violence.

THE SISTERHOOD OF THE TRAVELING PANTS 2

Three years after discovering the magical jeans that fit - and unite – them all, four young women (Amher Tamblyn, Alexis Riedel America Ferrera, Blake Lively) move on to college. (117 min.) Rated PG-13 for mature material and sensuality.

STEP BROTHERS

* * 1/2 Will Ferrell, John C. Reilly and writer/director Adam McKay had so much fun and made so much money with "The Ballad of Ricky Bobby" that they decided to get together and do it again. This time, Ferrell and Reilly play a couple of developmentally-stunted 40-yearolds who become step-brothers (and mortal enemies) when their parents get married. There's not a lot going on beneath the rude and raunchy surface in "Step Brothers" - in fact, this premise is so thin I'm not even sure it has a surface but, until it runs out of momentum three-fourths of the way through, it's often ridiculously funny. (BI) Rated R for crude and sexual content, and pervasive language.

TROPIC THUNDER *** 1/2 War is hell, but it's also extremely funny in "Tropic

Thunder," a deeply strange and outrageously violent blend of Hollywood satire and war-movie parody that makes the madness surrounding the filming of "Anocalypse Now" look restrained by comparison. Ben Stiller co-wrote directed and stars as Tugg Speedman, a fading action-hero movie star, who has been dropped into the jungle with four other actors to film a disastrously overhudget and behind-schedule Vietnam war movie querilla style only to find themselves fighting a real battle against a real enemy. "Tropic Thunder" makes fun of war movies in satisfying, but predictable, ways, with grotesquely nory and absurdly pyrotechnic hattle scenes and much macho posturing and blubbering battlefield hathos. This film's at its best. though, and that's really quite brilliant at times, when it sticks it to the movie business. Particularly while exploring the raging egos and rampaging insecurities of the little group of actors, cut off from their support systems and wandering lost in the jungle. Robert Downey Jr. steals the show as a method-acting five-time Oscar-winner who has dved his skin black to play an African American platoon sergeant. And you'll harely recognize Tom Cruise as a fat bairy hald and rat tlesnake-mean studio chief with a taste for dirty dancing - hip-hop style, (BI) (107 min.) Rated R for per vasive language including sexual references, violent content and ready to believe that Woody Allen should hang up his writing/directing shoes, he comes up with some thing surprising: Like "Match Point" or this smart, sexy, funny, provocative romance. "Vicki Cristina Barcelona" isn't quite on a par with Allen's best ruminations on love. like "Annie Hall" or "Manhattan" or "Hannah and Her Sisters." but it's close – and it's well worth a look. Rebecca Hall and Scarlett Johansson play two young friends summering in Barcelona, with entirely different ideas about love, who become romantically entangled with a bohemian Spanish artist (Javier Bardem) - who hasn't entirely cut his ties with his hrilliant, talented, beautiful and violently cuckoo ex-wife (Penelope Cruz). It's an impressively complicated love story that could have been played, with a slight shift of emphasis, as a particularly racy bedroom farce. But Allen isn't really interested in laughs here. He's primarily concerned with sorting out all the relationships in unexpected ways - and suggesting that safe, secure, stolid romance might be the way to go. Passionate love being crazy, chimerical and even lifethreatening. (BI) (96 min.) Rated PG-13 for mature thematic material

The world of Gilbert and Sullivan is as oblique and strange as the cosmos inhabited by opera. The audience must suspend disbelief and enter into a sphere where the wise are befuddled, the foolish win the day and everyone pretty much believes in Light Opera Works opened G&S's "Iolanthe" Saturday night (Aug. 16) at Cahn Auditorium in Evanston and there were fairies everywhere. Unless you accept this, nothing wonderful can happen.

And wonderful things do happen in Gilbert and Sullivan's topsy-turvy world, where they tweak the noses of the pompous, in this case the British House of Lords, and even bend the laws of the fairy kingdom for a happy end-

Here's the setup. Iolanthe is a fairy who 25 years ago broke a fairy command and married a mortal. She had a child. Strephon, who is half-human, half-fairy, whom she raised in exile as a shepherd. He has fallen in love with Phyllis, a shepherdess, who is also a Ward in Chancery - like being a minor ward of the state. The Queen of the Fairies commutes Iolanthe's harsh sentence and she is allowed to be with her son again.

However, fairies stop aging at 17 years, so when Phyllis spots her beloved kissing his mother, she believes he is untrue and

Lords of pretension

Gilbert and Sullivan make fun of everyone, but saved their harshest satire for the Lords, who arrived wearing red capes with large ermine collars. "Bow, bow, ye lower middle classes," they sing, "Bow, bow ye tradesmen, bow ye masses."

You get the idea. Courtney O'Neill designed a very pretty production for Light Opera Works. The first act is set in an Arcadian landscape. When the curtain opened Strephon, played by Colm Fitzmaurice and Phyllis, sung with distinction by the lovely soprano Alicia Berneche, were in matching pale blue outfits and with their blond hair they resembled 18th century porcelain figurines. Ten twinkling fairies, all superb dancers, included two standouts: Heather Brandon-DeSouza as Leila and Natalie Ford as Celia. Ford had the title role in Light Opera Works' recent production of "Gigi." There were 10 members of the House of Lords and their main players were Bill Chamberlain as Tolloller and Alex Honzen as

The second act, set in the House of Lords, included a silhouette of the London skyline.

Iolanthe was played by Jessye Wright, who is a natural. Her mezzo-soprano voice was unforced, she moved with utmost grace, and she is a fine actress. The Queen of the Fairies is a comic role and Veronice McHale had fun with it. Private Willis, the object of her affections, had a little number in which he wondered wryly why every child born in England was either a liberal or a conservative.

Patter master

Gilbert and Sullivan provided the musical world with wonderfully intricate tongue-twisting numbers called patter songs, "Iolanthe" has one of the most famous: "The Nightmare Song," which was sung by multiple Jeff Award-winner James Harms as the Lord Chan-

As he navigates the patter song's dense and multiple rhymes, the singer must go faster and faster until he is gasping for breath. To say that Harms tore up the covers would be an understatement. He not only nailed the words, but he finished with a dazzling acceleraregular Cooper, but you can definitely tell there's some extra length. It looks like a stretched version of the popular little car.

Another visual difference is the rear barn doors. Instead of a single hatch, the barn doors open out. The doors are surprisingly fluid because of the gas struts and they shut with a solid

The downside to the dual doors is the center joint. While driving the area where the two doors meet create a bit of a blind spot. Luckily, the dividing line is only a couple inches wide so you do get used to it after driving for a bit.

Another difference between the Clubman

2008, Mini expands its lineup. Lit-creases the overall length by 9.6 inch-access and 9.18 cubic feet of cargo volume.

I've always been a fan of the Mini. It's cute, it's

The Clubman has the same basic styling as the small and it's really fun to drive. Now there's just

The new Clubman model inand the original Cooper is the rear-access "club" door. It's situated behind the front passenger and gives backseat passengers easier access to the rear of the vehicle.

The interior of the Clubman is exactly what you'd expect from Mini, right down to the oversized speedometer on the center stack. I love this quirky little feature, especially when you're driving alone. If you have passengers, they're likely to take the role of backseat driver and comment on your speed. If you speed, that is.

The toggle switches that work the windows, lights and optional sunroof are attractive if not es, adding a "club" door for backseat entirely functional. The main difficulty is that if you have a tall beverage in the cup holder, it blocks access to the window toggles.

Similar to the original Cooper, the Clubman comes with a two-engine lineup: the base 118-horsepower, 1.6-liter four-cylinder engine and the turbocharged, 172-horsepower four-cylinder engine contained within the S model.

The test vehicle was a Clubman S and I had a blast zipping onto the highway and around city streets. Even with its extra length, it's a petite vehicle that can maneuver well through city traffic and is easy to parallel park. You can feel the extra length with aggressive driving, which I tested on a racetrack, but it still does pretty well in regular driving situations.

My one beef with the handling of Clubman is the turning radius. For such a small car, the turning radius is a big fat zero. Trying to do a U-turn and getting out of my tight condo parking space were more difficult than they should have been.

While I'm still a fan of the original Mini, I can see the need for a slightly larger car if you need a little more space for cargo and people. The great thing, however, is that even with the increased size, fuel economy doesn't suffer. In fact, Environmental Protection Agency estimates that the Clubman gets exactly the same miles per gallon as its smaller sibling

The base 118-horsepower engine incurs outstanding city/highway mileage numbers of 28/37. The Clubman S with the turbocharged engine has slightly lower numbers, but they're still pretty good at 26/34 miles per gallon. During the test period, my mileage in the Clubman S hovered between 30 and 32 miles per gallon during heavy city driving. The mileage is great but keep in mind that the Clubman uses premium fuel.

The test vehicle didn't have any Mini accessories, which help customize the car with Union Jack flag roofs or checkerboard door handles, but it did come stacked with pretty much every available option, totaling more than $11,000. Option highlights included the premium package with the panoramic sunroof ($1,500), convenience package ($1,500), sport package ($1,500) and Steptronic automatic transmission ($1,250).

Base price of the Clubman is $20,600. The Clubman S jumps up to $24,100. Fully optioned, the test vehicle rang in at $33,200.

For a premium car, the starting point of $20,000 is pretty attractive, but to get what you want, you're going to spend significantly more. At a minimum, I'd make sure my Mini had the convenience package, which includes an iPod hook up and Bluetooth connectivity. Heated front seats, panoramic sunroof and auto headlights would also be high on my list. And that would put me in the $25,000 range for the base Clubman.

Cute, apparently, has a price tag. But, I have to admit, as gas prices go ever higher, spending a little more up front seems to make more sense than slowly bleeding cash every time you fill up. With the extra space and easier access to the back seat, I think the Clubman is the right car at the right time.

"As always with The Autobarn, you can assume we'll have a great selection at a great value!"

The down and dirty on car washes

BY JEFF TAYLOR

On Monday I compared two car wash products for those who clean their own machines. Today I turn my attention to commercial car washes.

If you don't have the time, place or desire to wash your vehicle, you have to take it to a car wash. Old-style car washes are being replaced by affordable car-care centers. These centers offer simple washes to full detailing and even sell parts and accessories to personalize your ride.

At these centers you have two options: friction automatic and touchless automatic wash set-

While the name may cause you to bristle a bit. friction automatic systems use spinning or gently massaging cylinders/strips of thick, soft cloth to gently scrub and lift the dirt and grime off your car. You pull into the building, select the type of wash or indicate your preference to an attendant and you or the attendant drive the vehicle onto a track where it goes down a wash line and passes through various sections where the scrubbers clean your vehicle with a variety of cleaning agents; hot wax can be applied.

At the exit your vehicle is wiped dry by attendants. The drawback to these systems is that they don't get into all the nooks and crannies because the strips can't reach those areas like hand washing allows. Friction automatic car washes cost $6 to $9 for a standard wash.

At a touchless automatic wash, you drive your car into a bay and high-pressure water jets spin automatically up, down, around and under your vehicle to power off the dirt, bugs and road grime. Like the friction system, a variety of cleaning agents and hot wax are applied while the high-pressure water is washing your vehicle.

Once the water jets have finished you drive through a curtain of hot air dryers that blow-dry your vehicle. The disadvantages to a touchless automatic system are that it still does not clean the hard-to-reach areas and the timed air dryers turn off before your vehicle is dry. When I use this type of car wash I bring the Absorber (a soft chamois-type cloth) with me to finish the job. This type of wash is a good way to clean your car after winter to remove the winter salt and crud. These washes cost $5 to $8 before adding optional cleaning services.

A nice benefit to these car-care centers is that attendants vacuum the inside of your car or there are high-power self-serve units available that work better than most home vacuums. The larger centers offer interior cleaning services and glossy protectants for the interior. Do yourself a favor and skip the air fresheners unless you want your car to smell like a pack of gum or cough syrup.

I don't advise the old coin-operated self-serve wand/soap brush units because the bristles can be too abrasive even with mild scrubbing and the soap quality is unknown. Many of the newer self-serve coin-operated centers do have decent brushes but make sure you check them out first.

Whether you do it yourself or take it somewhere, there are no excuses for driving a dirty

CTS Sport Wagon is the face of Cadillac's renaissance

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. - Amidst the beauty rear profile injects fashion-forward design into into Cadillac dealerships in spring 2009. and history of the Pebble Beach Concours the formerly utilitarian world of wagons. Cad'Elegance, Cadillac treated car enthusiasts to a dillac's upcoming wagon offers ample interior Sport Wagon is well synchronized with today's world premiere of its latest production-car de- space and includes a range of six-cylinder ensign. The 2010 Cadillac CTS Sport Wagon made its debut last weekend on the Monterey Peninsula, showcasing a dramatic design that elevates and updates the classic wagon body style.

the new CTS Sport Wagon is an unmistakable and dynamic presence. The car's intricately cut will move to the auto show circuit this fall and "The addition of this dramatically designed changing consumer tastes as a compelling alternative to SUVs or other larger vehicles," says Jim Taylor, Cadillac general manager. "This is an important step in Cadillac's ongoing global expansion and of course in international markets like Europe, wagons have been and continue to be very significant."

The CTS wagon has a silhouette that suggests speed and aerodynamic efficiency. It rides on the same 113.4-inch wheelbase as the CTS sport sedan and is 0.3-inch shorter. However it offers a generous cargo area of 25 cubic feet behind the rear seats

The CTS Sport Wagon, like its sedan predecessor, includes available features such as allwheel drive, a 40-gigabyte internal hard drive. pop-up navigation screen and a hand-cut-andsewn interior with Sapele wood accents.

Direct injection technology helps the CTS offer more power while maintaining fuel economy and lowering emissions. It delivers fuel more precisely to increase the efficiency of combustion. This means less fuel is consumed and lower emissions created

With the CTS Sport Wagon's 3.6-liter V-6 direct injection translates to 304 horsepower, no loss of fuel efficiency and a 25 percent drop in cold-start hydrocarbon emissions. It also runs on less expensive regular unleaded gasoline. The Sport Wagon's fuel economy is expected to be similar to the peak rating of the existing sport sedan's 26 miles per gallon highway rating. The standard 3.6-liter VVT engine that produces 263 horsepower and 253 pounds to feet of torque serves as the base engine in North America.

Just like the CTS sport sedan, the V-6 engines are matched with fuel-saving six-speed transmissions, including an Aisin six-speed manual or an electronically controlled Hydra-Matic 6L50 six-speed automatic. As is the case on the sport sedan, CTS Sport Wagon includes all-wheel drive as an option.

Exciting architecture makes custom homes unique

L xciting architectural design has made Harris Builders' custom homes a legend in the Barrington and Inverness area for the past 35 years. By combining superior architectural design and the latest product trends. Evan Harris has been successful in building innovative custom homes and reaping repeat business.

To bring the outdoors in, Har-business.

To bring the outdoors in, Harris Builders utilizes a variety of unique windows in their home designs. Palladian and stacked windows flood the interiors with natural light. Front doors with beveled or leaded glass sidelights and transom windows over the doors enliance front elevations and create greater curb appeal. Transoms are also prevalent throughout the house as a decorative crown for French doors.

"When we position a home on a specific lot, we make sure to maximize picturesque vistas," said general manager Dean Snow.
"Rooms that are washed in sunlight help our homeowners relax and enjoy spectacular views of a neighboring lake, valley, meadow or golf course."

Adding to the overall beauty of each room is the decorative mill-work that surrounds the window. Thick casings, carved moldings and beautiful accents embellish the glass, while 10-inch baseboards balance the height of a large room.

Another popular window form is the oversized bay or bow window, which enlarges a room and

Solstice on the Park's renewed green commitment inspired by early Chicago settlers

When early European settlers arrived in southeastern Chicago, they traveled west by following the sun. The summer June solstice was an important seasonal marker to help chart their arthous journey.

Many of these pioneers settled before the harsh winter December solstice near what is now Hyde Park. They established roots in Pottawatomic Indian territory and domesticated what

HAVE Dreams scholarships thank volunteers

For HAVE Dreams, a Park Ridge-based program that works with young people with autism, an important goal is helping their young clients to emerge and interrelate with the world.

Through the "Social Buddies" program. young people from local schools have been volunteering as mentors to work with the autistic individuals. They start as early as sixth-grade, and continue through their high school years, learning as they help to teach and finding ways to reach these special friends. There may be between two and three dozen "Buddies" helping on a regular basis.

And, as some graduated from high school and expressed an interest in going on to major in special education fields, HAVE Dreams established a scholarship program to help them get started.

The first five scholarships — $1,000 each were presented July 24 at a ceremony at the HAVE Dreams headquarters on Busse Highway, and state Sen. Dan Kotowski, D-33rd, joined the HAVE Dreams staff in congratulating the recipients. Each had spent five to six years in the Social Buddies program.

Recipients include:

Jessica Collins, 19, Park Ridge, a graduate of Regina Dominican High School, Wilmette, is starting her sophomore year at Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis.

Cecilia Rice, 19, of Park Ridge, a Maine South graduate, will be a sophomore at DePaul Univer-

Daniel Fansler, 19, of Skokie, a Niles North graduate, will be a sophomore at Illinois State

Mallory Machon, 18, of Park Ridge, and Carly Cara of Niles, both Maine South graduates, will be freshmen this year at Illinois State Univer-

Local chefs spill their family secrets

Contributor

On Christmas Eve 1969, a 14-year-old boy arrived in Chicago from Sicily. Along with his clothing and aspirations to run a restaurant, Phil Campenella brought with him recipes, habits, and traditions he learned watching his mother and grandmother in their kitchens.

These days, Campenella spends Christmas Eves mingling with guests and cooking for them in his kitchen at Regina's in Arlington Heights, the Italian restaurant he opened 23 years ago with his wife of 30 years, Regina.

"Tradition holds families together," Campanella said, standing under a framed photo of his mother teaching his daughter how to make the Italian flatbread known as focaccia.

It's one of dozens of family photos of weddings, birthdays, and holidays that cover the walls at Regina's. The décor reflects the homespun philosophy of their familyrun business, which includes Regina's Via Trent Uno restaurant in West Dundee.

Family values

In both their restaurants and at home, the Campenella's follow hand-me-down values like keeping their kitchens stocked with fresh fruits and vegeta-

"Kids are what you give them," Campanella said. "They have to learn when they're young. If they get used to fast food, they're going to eat fast

27 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights. (847)394-2728. www.Reginas.net. For a limited time. Regina's will celebrate their 23rd anniversary by offering "create your own" 12-inch thin crust pizzas for $10. They'll also offer 8-punce carafes of red or white wine from C.R. Cellars for $3.50. CLARKE'S RESTAURANT food all their life." Regina's nightly specials, too, are often inspired by what Campanella saw his mom and grandmother do while he was growing up.

"They planned our daily menu and made the food with whatever they had on hand. If they had chicken that day, we'd eat chicken." Campenella said.

That's how he developed Chicken Regina, a favorite house dish made of chicken breasts, garlic, chopped onions, mushrooms, peppers, and plum tomatoes.

"It's really simple," he said. "You can have this on your table in less than a half hour."

Wine for flavor

He cooks the chicken and vegetables together in a shallow pan on the stoyetop. He throws in a few splashes of chardonnay white wine and lets it burn off, leaving only its flavor behind.

Campenella serves it over fettucine, but recommends using short pastas for kids. His advice for cooking perfect pasta? "Make sure the water is boiling before you put the pasta in. Otherwise, you're going to get pasta sticking to each other," Campenella advised, adding that different types of pasta, like angel hair, will cook faster.

Campenella can tell if pasta is done by the way it moves in the water, but he suggests this test for less experienced cooks: "Bite into it. If you see a very thin, white line in there, that's when you know it's al dente," he

He tops off the dish with a sprinkle of shredded Parmigiana and Romano cheeses and a sprig of fresh basil or parsley

"I like to put greens with reds," he said.

Greek taste

Blue and white --- or the colors of the Greek flag - are dear to Stefanos Dionysopoulos. He came to Chicago from Greece and opened Clarke's, a 1950s-themed diner in Evanston 25 years ago with his business partner, Tom Tsatas.

Since then, they've opened two more restaurants, one in Chicago's Lincoln Park and one in Wrigleyville. Because they cook American foods, their menu doesn't offer Greek meals they grew up with, but their business is based on the wholesome, healthy, and tasty ethos both men learned from their mothers.

"It was a big thing for my mom to cook. She cooked every day." Dionysopoulos said.

They make soups from scratch daily, including

Tsatas' mother's tomato soup, which is packed with carrots, celery, and onions. "It could be called carrot soup," Dionysopoulos said.

They use 100 percent chicken broth to make her chicken noodle soup. "It's four times as expensive as regular broth," Dionysopoulos said.

But like the buttermilk Tsatas' mother's pancake recipe calls for, it's worth

To adapt to the restaurant, they only skimp on one of their mother's ingredients: salt. "You have to make things less salty, so people can add as much as they like," Dionysopoulos said.

Barron, Samuel H., M.D.
Dr. Samuel H. Barron died on May 3, 2008 in Orange County, California at the age of 89. Born in Chicago on November 4, 1918. Graduated from the University of Illinois School of Medicine in 1943 and in the same year married Jeanette ("Bunny") DeVin. In the Army Medical Corps, he served in France and Germany from 1944-46 as a young doctor responsible for the welfare of his supply company and German POWs. He received the Bronze Star for brav-pediatrics at Cook County Hospital and Illinois Re search Hospital and taught pediatrics at the Univer search Hospital and Taught Pedatrics at the University of Illinois until opening a private practice on the North side of Chicago. He later moved his practice to the Northwest suburbs. He was on the staff of Skokie Valley Hospital and a founding member of Lutheran General Hospital where he served in many capacities, including chief of pediatrics, chie of the medical staff and member of the hospital board of directors.

Dr. Barron was much beloved by his patients and their families. He delighted in their growth and development and endeavored to make an emotional connection with every child in his care as well as with their parents. His practice was filled with several generations of families, many of whom were the children of medical colleagues.

After 52 years of practice, at the age of 79, he retired to California. He leaves his wife of 64 years, of Laguna Woods; their three children, Paula (Jose) Garber of Mexico City, Stephen Barron of Mexico City, and Ruth Barron MD (Jennifer) of Lincoln, Massachusetts; his seven grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. great-grandchildren. # Niles North to build on last year's success

BY JON YEE Contributor

Niles North hopes to build on a successful 2007 season, which saw the squad compile an 11-8-2 overall record and capture a regional title in a thrilling four-overtime game against Evanston.

The Vikings' run ended last year with a disappointing loss to State qualifier New Trier in the sectional semifinals, but co-head coach Yoon Lee believes his experienced team is poised for another impressive campaign this

"Last year was a successful year in our eyes, especially since we took regionals," said Lee, who serves alongside Dan Edminster as head coach. "This year we think we can take at least third in the CSL and once again take regionals."

Niles North should benefit greatly from the return of several players in many key positions, 'highlighted by Division-I prospect Javi Torres and senior goalkeeper CJ Lenhardt. Torres, whom Lee described as a workhorse, provides an immediate scoring threat at forward who should get plenty of service from the senior midfield duo of . Costa Minchev and Erik Rodriguez. Minchev possesses one of the strongest legs on the squad, and he also kicks for the football team, while Rodriguez holds the honor for most minutes played last season.

Lenhardt offers stability and experience in goal, and he will be aided by defender Danny Braubach. Both players were pivotal to the team's defensive success in 2007, and Lee expects more of the same from the seniors this year. With preparation for the fall just kicking off, it is still too early for Lee to see which newcomers to the team will crack the starting lineup, but he believes at least one freshman and a handful of sophomores will con-of rising juniors. "We should have a nice mix of veteran and younger players, and it will be important for us to improve in our play, understanding and communication on the field as the season progresses along," Lee said.

The Vikings open the 2008 season with road games against Buffalo Grove on Aug. 26 and Maine South on Aug. 28 before traveling south to Quincy one day later for the Notre Dame Invite.

NILES WEST BOYS SOCCER

Wolves commit to further improvement

By JON YEE Contributor

Niles West began last season with a somewhat disappointing 2-5-3 mark through its first 10 games before finally catching fire in the second half of its schedule.

The Wolves closed out the year with eight wins in their last 12 games, and they have carried on that improvement throughout the offseason and summer. Much of the team participated in a summer workout program that increased the players' physical strength and conditioning, and which should pay huge divseason ' idends when the regular season kicks off.

months has convinced head coach Scott Ackman that his players will not only avert another lackluster start but that they will pick up right where they left off at the end of last season. "We started out a little shaky last year but we came on really well at the end of the year." Ackman said. "And since last season we have had a lot more dedication from our kids. Three days a week they do strength and the other two days they do conditioning, so they have been working last year, Ackman returns a wealth of talent to his lineup, headlined by senior Ben Pintilei. Pintilei (27 career goals) has struggled with an ankle injury recently, but Ackman expects his leading returning scorer to be healthy enough at the start of the season to challenge the school's all-time scoring record of 36 goals.

Among the other veteran standouts for the Wolves are seniors Hani Arabi, lonut Ciocan (allconference in 2006 and '07) and Santos Reyes (allconference in '07) and junior Mahi Mameledzija. In addition, senior Cesar Alvarez and junior Martin Tomic have showed tremendous improvement during the summer months and are on the verge of break ing into a loaded starting lineup.

Although preparations for the season are just getting underway, the players already have specific goals in mind and they are poised to meet them when their season begins at home against Fremd on Aug. 26.

"We added a much stronger schedule this year," Ackman said, "And we want to have a much better record. We also want to try and win conference and once again do well in the sectionals."

Coach hopes team will rebound after off year

By JIM EDISON jedison@pioneerlocal.com

For most high school athletic programs, there are always those figurative bumps in the road.

Last year was one such season for Notre Dame's golf program. The Dons. who have had many successful years under longtime coach Bob Beckman struggled in the regular season and finished with an overall dual-meet record of 5-9.

And while there will be no superstars on the 2008 squad, Beckman thinks the Dons will return to their competitive style as they make their way through the East Suburban Catholic Conference and beyond.

"Last year was just an off season," said Beckman, who took over ND's golf program in 1988. "The year before (2006) was our best ever, but I lost all those guys. So in 2007, I had only two re-

"It was difficult and we were under .500 for the first time in quite a while. But amazingly, we did well in the regional as we had three qualifiers in Phil Bogusz, Padric Canavan and Anthony Salerno."

The good news for Beckman is that two of those regional qualifiers will be back on the course. Leading the attạck this fall will be Canavan, who got in plenty of rounds this past spring and summer.

"Padric is looking pretty good at this point." Beckman said. "He played in junior tournaments and shot a 77 in one of the bigger ones."

Backbone of squad

Four other seniors who will form the backbone of the varsity squad are Justin Horodecki, Harry Johnson, Dennis Walsh and John Kronon.

The Dons will bring back a strong bunch of juniors. In addition to Salerno, Beckman expects solid contributions from Tom Rueve, Robby Martin, Matt Carlucci and Dominick VonAulock.

As is always the case, the Dons will face stiff competition in the ESCC.

"St. Viator will be very good this year." Beckman said. "And Carmel and Benet should also be tough. Benet is the only team in the league that I have never beaten as a coach. Last year we came very close, but lost by a

"In nonconference action, it looks like we will play a dual meet with Loyola for the first time. And we are looking forward to our season opener Friday against Ridgewood at home (the Rob Roy Golf Course in Prospect Heights).

"I told the kids not to get too excited, but to just play the best they can at their own level."

Veteran seniors to shoulder Niles North load

By JON YEE Contributor

Niles North head coach Ryan Geu will be the first to admit that his young team may have struggled throughout last season.

With a lack of senior leadership on last year's roster, the Vikings finished with a 2-13 record, including a 1-4 mark in the Central Suburban League, and they ended the season fifth in confer-

"We had a young team with only one senior on varsity last year," Geu said. "And there were some matches last year that we could have won."

What the players lacked in victories and trophies a season ago, they more than made up for with hard work and effort, and they have since added another valuable weapon to their bag: experience. Four of Geu's top five returnees are now seniors, and junior Tommy Madigan played on varsity last season as well.

Seniors Max Kirshenbaum, Russ Nupnau, Dev Patel, Jon Perlin and Madigan are expected to carry the load for Niles North this time around, and Geu also believes a handful of underclassmen can make an impact, too. "Our top five returning golfers are all fairly equal in talent and potential." Geu said. "One of the greatest strengths they all have is the ability to keep their composure during a round. They are also very teachable and have immensely improved their golf game over the years. We also have a good group of freshmen who made the team this year and we do have some sophomores who might play up on varsity as Many of the team's experienced players have set a benchmark for the younger players by improving their strength in the offseason and working on their individual games throughout the summer. With a veteran group to rely on, Geu feels that the Vikings' win total has little choice but to improve.

improvements on our 18hole tournament scores. which was a major weak point for us last year." Geu said. "We have basically the same team as last year, minus the one senior we lost (Zach Olander), so I expect to be better than we were last com national survey of large lenders. A basis point is one-hundredth of 1 percentage point. The mortgages in this week's survey had an average total of 0.38 discount after the end of September. Because it takes time to sell cash-out refinances. Some of them will see higher fees, and origination points. One year ago, the mortgage index a loan, lenders will start passing along the higher cost to depending on credit score and loan-to-value ratio.

was 6.66 percent; four weeks ago, it was 6.48 percent.

The benchmark 15-year fixed-rate mortgage climbed basis points to 6.27 percent and the 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage was up 3 basis points to 7.68 percent.

Adjustable-rate mortgages went the other way. The benchmark 5/1 ARM fell 3 basis points to 6.32 percent.

Algorithms weeks ago, it was 6.48 percent. but passing atong the higher cost to depending on credit score and loan-to-value ratio.

Borrowers pay for lender losses and loan-to-value ratio.

Borrowers pay for lender losses are a way of recovering from the multibillion-dollar losses that Fannie and Freddie have suffered as a majority of mortgages underwritten nowadays, they can be higher cost to depending on credit score and loan-to-value ratio.

Borrowers pay for lender losses dollar losses that Fannie and Freddie have suffered as a majority of mortgage underwritten nowadays, they can be charge new fees with impunity. Lenders have nowhere says Dan Dowling, president of United Mortgage Capital cost to depending on credit score and loan-to-value ratio. and the 1-year ARM dropped 2 basis points to 6.24 else to go. percent.
'Adverse market' means more fees

the mortgage giant for the risks of doing business when here's the bottom line: house prices are falling in much of the country.

The fee is called an "adverse market delivery charge." will pay higher fees;

Some homeowners get a break Mortgage rates didn't move much in the last week, but adverse market delivery charge. For borrowers with anything but the best credit."

home loans are about to get more expensive for some mortgage insurance, Fannie will balance out the increase Fannie outlines various combinations of credit scores.

Mortgage rates were mixed this week, with fixed rates slightly higher rate.

The same applies to homeowners who refinance their rising and adjustable rates falling.

Now the fee will double to $500 per $100,000 borrowed, mortgages. Those with equity of 20 percent or more rising and adjustable rates falling.

Now the fee will double to $500 per $100,000 borrowed, mortgages. Those with equity of 20 percent or more or one-half of 1 percent. As a rough rule of thumb, a fee will pay more; those with less than 20 percent equity basis points, to 6.74 percent, according to the Bankrate.

Of one-half of 1 percent would translate into an increase won't pay higher fees, but will have to buy mortgage increase.

Corp., a brokerage in Altamonte Springs, Fla.

He says borrowers with credit scores above 740 will Not every borrower will get stuck with the higher fare well, "and there is significant cost to people with borrowers. This week, Fannie Mae announced that it will with an identical-size decrease in another fee, called a loan-to-value ratios and fees in a document called a double a fee that it introduced in December to compensate "loan level price adjustment." It's counterintuitive, but matrix, which is as easy to understand as the movie of the same name. As mortgage broker Dan Green writes in his Buyers who make down payments of 20 percent or more blog, The Mortgage Reports: "20 different conforming borrowers might be offered 20 distinct mortgage rates When Fannie introduced the fee eight months ago, it was $250 per $100,000 borrowed. Lenders paid the fee and won't pay higher fees, but will have to buy mortgage It's one reason why 'ballparking' a mortgage rate is so darn tough these days.'
