Seminary battle not over yet

The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit won the latest round Friday in the court battle over who will develop St. John's Seminary. But a circuit judge said a developer is free to return to court with proof of financing.

The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit is free to make renovations at St. John's Seminary, a Wayne County Circuit judge ruled Friday.

But Judge William Giovan also ruled that developer Eric Lindquist, who is seeking to establish a senior housing center on the Plymouth Township site, is free to return to court to pursue his project, a court clerk said.

Friday was a court-imposed deadline for Lindquist and his attorney H. Rollin Allen to present a $15.5 million letter of credit to establish that Lindquist has financial backing to buy the property from the archdiocese.

Earlier this year, the archdiocese declared an earlier purchase agreement with Lindquist void, as he had not produced evidence of financing by a contracted deadline.

In March, Archbishop Adam Maida announced plans to build a youth and family life center at the former seminary. But Lindquist has continued to seek the creation of a senior housing center at the property.

Allen said on Friday, "We were going to ask for an adjournment on the letter of credit," as Lindquist has not yet secured it.

Judge Giovan said Lindquist was free to present the letter of credit to the court at a future date, but lifted an earlier injunction keeping the church from developing the property.

"When he (Erickson) gets it we'll file a motion again," Allen said. "I Touring the rain forest: From a motorized canoe, Ashley Bowsman saw piranhas, alligators and pink dolphins in the teeming-with-life Amazon.

Young environmentalist sees rain forest

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Before she won an environmental arts contest and an expedition to the Brazilian rain forest, Ashley Bowsman of Plymouth said she felt she "had to get involved with saving the rain forest. Now I feel I want to."

Bowsman, a freshman at Plymouth Canton High School, read about the contest sponsored by Sebastian International in Contact magazine last year. She spent weeks researching the rain forest and preparing her entry; a color-penciled collage of macaws, tigers, monkeys, toucans, river otters, hummingbirds, tree frogs, pythons and caterpillars peeking out from their lush habitat. Each animal had a tear in its eye. The words "going, going, gone; recycle before it's too late" appear above them.

At first, Bowsman was confident about her chances, but her optimism faded. "I got thinking about the other 100,000 entries from the whole entire world. I've seen kids just at my school who can do better," she said.

Bowsman was flabbergasted when the phone call came last June, informing her that she and her mother had won a trip to the Amazon. "I'm like, 'whoa!' I just sat there. I couldn't say anything," said Bowsman, who spent Aug. 23-31 in South America.

Sebastian's hair salons invited a panel of U.S. congressmen involved with environmental affairs to select the winners in judging at Washington, D.C.'s Capitol Children's Museum. Bowsman's work was selected along with that of young artists from Utah, North Dakota, Texas, and British Columbia.

Sebastian launched its Little Green International Children's Campaign in 1991 to bring "pro-

Township residents: Leave well enough alone

Attention Plymouth Township residents: Don't rake your leaves in the street!

Leaves in the township are not collected by a vacuum system at the curb, as they are in the city, the township solid waste department reminds residents.

Plymouth Township residents must bag leaves or put them in marked containers and set them out at the curb.

Leaves raked in the roadway can clog sewers and cause flood problems, causing trouble for street sweepers. When these leaves get into rivers, they deplete oxygen and cause problems. Burning leaves is illegal.

Leaves should be placed in special paper compost bags — not grocery bags — or in containers marked with a large "X" or "compost" and placed at the roadside. Plastic bags are not accepted. Brush should be tied in bundles with branches not exceeding 6 inches in diameter or 3 feet in length. Bundles can weigh no more than 50 pounds.

Compost bags are 25 for $7.50 and available at Kroger, 44505 W. Ann Arbor Road, and at the township solid waste department, 46555 Port St.

Mulching leaves into the lawn is recommended. Dr. Paul Rieke, Michigan State University professor of crop and soil sciences, recommends mowing leaves into tiny bits and leaving them on the lawn to decompose, to save time and money, add organic matter and encourage earthworm activity.

The compost collection program for township residents runs through Dec. 2. After that date, compost will be collected with regular trash.

Detroit woman is park murder victim

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Police on Sunday identified a woman found strangled Friday in the Rouge River in Hines Park as Mary Evelyn Busby, 36, of Detroit.

Busby's husband made the identification Sunday at the Wayne County morgue.

The victim had likely been raped, as her chest pants and underwear were around her knees, said Nancy Mouradian, Wayne County Sheriff's Department's chief of staff.

"She was half in and half out of the water, on the bank," Mouradian said Sunday.

"We suspect perhaps she had been killed elsewhere but we don't have conclusive evidence to that effect," she added.

Mouradian said the victim had no identification on her when discovered Friday. An autopsy revealed the victim had been strangled.

The body of the blond, blue-eyed woman was found by a teenager at about 5 p.m. Friday.

"She was in the water we would say not more than 24 hours,"

Mouradian said.

Police said they have no leads on the murderer.

The victim was found south of M-14 behind the former Radisson Hotel.

A dirt road leads from the Rouge River to Hines Drive near the place where the body was found, and Mouradian said that suggests the killer likely knew the area well.

"Our investigators are talking to the Ann Arbor police in relation to some of their cases," she said, referring to the much publicized series of rapes in Ann Arbor, about 12 miles away.

Mouradian said there was at this time nothing to suggest a connection to the Ann Arbor deaths, but authorities weren't ruling out a possible link.

"That's baloney," said one local police official, asked if there could be any connection to the Ann Arbor murders.

Sources say Busby and her husband owned a towing company in the city and managed several properties there.

Rollover accident

Fertilizer spilled: At 11:15 a.m. Thursday, Plymouth Township police were called to the scene of a roll-over accident where liquid fertilizer was spilled from a tank on the back of a 1994 Ford pick-up truck. The incident happened near a bridge over I-96, at Schoolcraft. Firefighters at an adjacent township station were able to soak up the spill with absorbent sand, and help from a hazardous materials unit was not needed, police said. The driver was slightly injured in the incident, but did not seek transportation to a hospital from police. He was cited for careless driving and for not wearing a seat belt.

Man arrested for pointing gun

A witness said a neighbor on Grand Street was pointing and cocking a rifle at people as they drove by at about 11 a.m. Thursday, and Plymouth Township police arrested the man on charges of felonious assault and possession of a firearm during commission of a felony.

When police arrived at the man's home, he was outside the house but not holding a gun. According to the report filed by police, he told officers the gun was on his couch, and police confiscated it.

Man arrested

Shortly after 1:30 a.m. Oct. 3, Plymouth police arrested a 21-year-old Plymouth man for possession of drug paraphernalia and driving while his license was suspended. An officer observed the man driving westbound on Ann Arbor Trail. Crossing Mill Street, he went through a red light without stopping. He then went around the railroad gates on Ann Arbor Trail.

The motorist told police his license was suspended because of unpaid traffic tickets. His blood-alcohol level was measured at .083.

Police noticed a pipe on the console of his car and said it smelled of burned marijuana. The man was placed in double-locked handcuffs and taken to the station without incident and booked. He was released on $100 cash bond without being jailed.

Breaking and entering

An Ann Arbor Trail resident told police that sometime between Oct. 4-5, someone tried to break into his apartment. After his key wouldn't work in the lock, he noticed someone had tried to pick the brass deadbolt, apparently with a screwdriver. Damage was estimated at $20. The man suspects one of his neighbors.

Buck pole begins

COMMUNITY Buck Pole

It's that time of year again. The crisp fall days are more than a harbinger of winter, it's the time of year when our nimrods take to the woods in quest of deer.

And again this year the Plymouth Observer is reviving an old northern Michigan tradition, the buck pole. In those small, rural communities successful hunters would bring their deer to town and hang them on the community buck pole for all to see.

We can't manage a pole in our parking lot, but we do use the names of successful hunters. We'll also take your picture with your kill. To report success during the deer archery season which just opened, call us at 459-2700. Ask for Jeff Counts, the editor, Kevin Brown or Bridget Moran. If you're headed home and have that deer on your car, stop by our office and have your picture taken. We're located at 744 Wing St., Plymouth, and we're open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For hunters who would like to fax us their stories, our number is 459-4224.

Also, hunters can submit photos of themselves taken with their deer.

Math, science teachers meet for conference

The Detroit Area Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the Metropolitan Detroit Science Teachers Association held the annual Mathematics and Science Fall Conference Oct. 8 at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

More than 2,000 teachers from around the state took part in the daylong event, according to Ron Carlson, Plymouth Canton High School teacher and conference site co-chairman.

"Participants had the opportunity to attend hands-on sessions, lab workshops and see the latest in state education trends," Carlson said. "In addition, the conference featured over 100 companies who exhibited their science and math materials."

This was the fourth consecutive year the conference was held at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. PCEP is the location of the district's two high schools, Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem. The site was chosen again this year because of its ability to accommodate the large number of participants.

Seven teachers from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools were among the many teachers to present workshops at the event. All workshop sessions were held at Canton High School. Canton High School math teachers Sandy Downs, Liz VanWestenburg and Barbara Marshall examined "OBE - Outcome Based Education for Classroom Teachers."

"Riverwatch: Adopt-A-Creek Program" was presented by Plymouth-Canton teacher Sally DeRoos. Canton High School math teacher Peggy Bosworth presented two workshops this year, "Look What I Can Do with an 82!" and "Hands-on Mac Math Computer Programs." Steve Rea, Canton High School science teacher, explored virtual reality in his presentation, "Is it Real? Or is it...?"

Carlson presented a workshop entitled "Algebra and Geometry Classroom Experiments."

Building renovation uncovers history

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Look what turned up during a building renovation downtown:

A Women's Christian Temperance Union sign from the turn of the century, along with a ledger that could be a doctor's appointment book, were found in recent weeks at 336 S. Main.

Matt Hatcher has been working to renovate a space that in recent years had been used as office and storage space, above an antique store which used to house Fred Hill Haberdashers.

"I took the dropped ceiling and the plaster ceiling out, there were some oak medicine cabinets," Hatcher said.

Also in the ceiling was a yard-long wood sign with the initials "W.C.T.U." painted in black on a light background.

Hill speculated that the initials are for the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and Plymouth Historical Museum director Beth Stewart said that's likely true.

"They had a big organization in town," Stewart said.

And because the upstairs space was known to be a meeting place for a men's club earlier this century, one could speculate other groups could have also used the space for meetings.

Sam Hudson, in his writings on Plymouth history, recalled the activities of the temperance union in Plymouth.

"It doesn't say where they met," Stewart said. But temperance union spokeswoman Carrie Nation — famous for going into taverns with a hatchet and wrecking them — traveled to Plymouth in 1908 to deliver three lectures at a Baptist church.

Nation, Stewart said, was 6 feet and 175 pounds, and was likely a formidable presence behind a lectern.

Stewart said Plymouth had three taverns in the 1830s, and "farmers would come into town to get loaded," according to one historical record.

The Plymouth branch of the Entries are in pencil for the years 1876 and 1877. The doctor, not named in the ledger, typically charged 50 cents or a dollar for visits, and sometimes took goods in trade. One entry is for Jed Meyers, who paid a half pound of tea and yeast for services.

Women's Christian Temperance Union formed in 1874. "Their most active years were during Prohibition in the '20s," Stewart said.

After Prohibition, Plymouth went dry, and one couldn't buy a drink in town until the 1960s.

Stewart said the 18-by-8-inch ledger found by Hatcher and Hill likely belonged to a doctor, as some were known to have offices at the location.

One entry is for Jed Meyers, who paid a half pound of tea and yeast for services.

The renovation is being done to create two apartments. Hill said he plans to give the items to the museum.

Holding history: Fred Hill displays a doctor's ledger from the 1800s, and Matt Hatcher displays a Woman's Christian Temperance Union sign. Both items were found during renovations above Hill's former Main Street store.

City officials project savings

City officials estimate they'll save $140,000-$150,000 over the next 14 years by refinancing four outstanding bond projects.

City commissioners on Oct. 3 voted to direct the city administration to draw up papers to sell the refinancing issue. "Probably at the next meeting there will be a motion authorizing sale bids the first part of November," said City Manager Steve Walters.

Four outstanding bond issues are being refinanced: 1986 department of public works building bonds; 1986 district court refunding bonds; 1987 parking deck bonds; and 1988 parking deck and mausoleum bonds.

Walters said the last of the bond issues expires in 2008.

The city now pays up to 7 1/2 percent interest on the bond projects. While the new interest rate has yet to be set, Walters said, "We expect to see something in the under 6 percent range."

In a report to city commissioners, Walters said, "This savings is not as large as the refinancing bond issue in 1993, which saved a total of $387,403, including refinancing of the library bonds, downtown development authority parking deck bonds and city hall addition bonds."

The bond refinancing was studied by the city's financial consultant Warren Creamer.

Flooding concerns residents brought the matter to commissioners' attention at the Oct. 3 commission meeting.

"We're very concerned with the alley and the condition it is in," said Julie Nelson, another resident. "We have flooding in our garages on a regular basis."

Some residents reported pools of standing water in their garages after rain, as the alley grade is higher than some garages.

"It's in the interest of everyone involved to have the alley asphalted," Nelson told commissioners.

Another resident, Mike Caffery, showed commissioners photos taken after rainfall. The photos also show rain filling potholes in the alley.

"We have a drain in the alley that's all covered up," he said. "Let's see if we can't get some action before the snow falls. If the water freezes, somebody could fall down and sue the city."

Paul Sincock, city department of public works director, said, "Typically what happens is we go down there and try to level it out, fill the holes. We still have the condition of drainage into the garage area."

City Manager Steve Walters said it was late in the season to schedule paving of the alley.

He told commissioners they would have to determine if paving would be paid for out of the city's general fund, or by assessing adjacent property owners.

Mayor Doug Miller told the group the city commission would get a report on the matter from the city administration, before deciding on a course of action.

"We'll get with the DPW to see if there are temporary repairs that can be done to get us through the winter," Miller said.

Dedicated duo team up to fight multiple sclerosis

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Two remarkable people are teaming up for Sunday's Detroit Free Press/Mazda International Marathon. Ed Andrysiak, 80, of Plymouth Township and Phyllis Kelly, 67, of Canton are designated "soulmates" in the international event that will see 2,700 runners, racewalkers and wheelers cover 26.2 miles, beginning in Windsor and finishing at Hart Plaza.

Soulmates because veteran marathoner Ed Andrysiak is racewalking the marathon and raising pledges for the Multiple Sclerosis Society — beneficiary of the race — in Kelly's name.

MS is a chronic disease of the central nervous system whose symptoms range from slight blurring of vision to complete paralysis. An estimated quarter of a million Americans have MS, with nearly 200 new cases diagnosed every week.

Andrysiak and Kelly became acquainted at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton several years ago. Andrysiak is a eucharistic minister and Kelly, despite her MS, inquired about doing the same. They got to know each other better while working out with the Holy Strollers, a walking club Andrysiak started at St. John's.

Maya's Deli and Mel's barber shop in Plymouth are helping Andrysiak collect pledges. Also collecting are Andrysiak's six children, sons- and daughters-in-law; 10 grandchildren; two "surrogate" grandchildren ("They adopted me," Andrysiak says); and six great-grandchildren in Plymouth Township and states from Tennessee to Idaho.

Andrysiak told his family not to give him Christmas and birthday presents, to donate to MS instead. His hope is to top his total of last year, when he raised $1,053 in conjunction with the Free Press marathon.

The MS Society is lucky to have Andrysiak in its corner. He's a champion fund-raiser. "The mother of the person who delivers the Observer came by to collect and asked me if I was running the marathon for MS again this year," said Andrysiak, a top finisher in his age group at area races. "I told her I was, and she said she'd bring me a check. She asked me, 'How do you train for a marathon?'"

"I told her, 'You give me the check, and I'll give you a training schedule.'"

Ask him why he's doing this and Andrysiak simply says, "Because of the fact I like doing it for the MS Society and Phyllis is a friend of mine. I wish there were more people with Phyllis's attitude."

Kelly was diagnosed with MS 19 years ago at the age of 48. She's been in a wheelchair since 1981. A widow who lives at the Canton Place senior citizen complex, Kelly is constantly on the go.

Via bus or her two-battery, rear-wheel-drive wheelchair, she goes to a local health club to swim, attends MS support group and singles club meetings, and travels to a music store for piano lessons. She's fallen a few times. Recently she was hit by a car on Ford Road. "I was taken to St. Joe's, and my wheelchair was totaled," she recalled.

"I have MS, but it doesn't have me," added Kelly, who has seven children and taught school in Redford, Livonia, Dearborn Heights and Alpena. "Just because I have MS doesn't mean life isn't precious. I live life to the fullest."

Kelly, who plans to be at Hart Plaza to see Andrysiak finish the marathon, says, "Ed is a wonderful man. I'm impressed that despite his age and his history of heart trouble he's doing this. I can't pray enough for him to keep going."

A widower, Andrysiak trains with Ann Arbor coach Bill Stewart and a group of elite athletes, mostly women. "I'm a plowhorse with a band of thoroughbreds," he said.

His coach begs to differ. "His overall training pace on the track has gotten a lot faster," said Stewart, who began coaching Andrysiak last March and predicts a good race for the self-described "older-than-dirt, general troublemaker."

"The most significant thing is his leg speed," he said. "In the 100 meters, he's improved a great deal. His time has come down from 32 to 26 seconds, which is a big improvement. He's much stronger than he was before, and he likes it. That's the other thing; he likes to work hard. He's a good example for the rest of us."

School of Law sponsors Mass

University of Detroit Mercy School of Law will sponsor the Red Mass, the annual gathering which brings together lawyers and judges of many faiths at noon Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Celebrants will lead the procession of judges and lawyers from UDM's Law School at 635 E. Jef-erson to Saints Peter & Paul Jesuit Church next door. The celebrant of this year's Mass will be Bishop Bernard Harrington.

Named for the red vestments worn by the celebrant, the Red Mass is a continuation of a tradition that began in England six centuries ago when judges and lawyers gathered to invoke God's guidance at the beginning of the English year.

The Mass is traditionally held on the second Tuesday of October. Interested persons of all faiths are invited to attend.

Symphony has a new leader

BY M.B. DELLON
STAFF WRITER

In an effort to increase local industrial support as well as expand the outreach of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, Christa M. Grix has been hired as the new executive director by the Plymouth Symphony Society.

Appointed to the position in August, Grix, who has more than 20 years experience as a professional musician and leader of her own chamber ensembles, will be introduced to orchestra patrons and supporters at a special reception.

The event is slated for 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, at Ernesto's Italian Country Inn, 41661 Plymouth Road. Featured will be a premiere presentation of the PSO's compact disc, "Sound Waves."

Linda Alvarado, Plymouth Symphony Society president said, "Christa brings a wealth of musical background and arts management experience to the position. Her fresh viewpoint and enthusiasm will be invaluable in developing educational programs for the community's young people. Her special love for integrating music, culture, and the arts is sure to impact our organization and our community in a variety of positive changes."

Grix's educational background includes a bachelor's degree in music performance from Michigan State University, a master's degree in music from Boston University and a juris doctor from Wayne State University Law School last May.

The work is gratifying, said Grix. "I see it as the ideal synthesis of my love of music, my interest in community involvement and my desire for intellectual challenge."

Grix has a history of musical involvement in the Plymouth community, where she coordinated the "Music in the Park" concert series for the Plymouth Community Arts Council from 1989 to 1991 and worked as an administrative assistant for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra during the 1990-1991 season.

A Plymouth resident, Grix works throughout Michigan as a professional freelance harpist. She has performed with artists and in venues ranging from Johnny Mathis and Aretha Franklin to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the Michigan Opera Theater.

Grix is a member of the Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts, the American Harp Association, the World Harp Congress, the Tuesday Musicales of Detroit, and American String Teachers Association.

think he's very close to getting it."

Church officials have said they don't expect Erickson to get the letter of credit, adding they plan this fall to do some renovations at the site to get it ready for youth groups beginning in January.

An archdiocese spokesman has said the church has received much support from priests and church members over the planned project, and some parish youth groups have asked to book retreats there.

The former seminary is on 175 acres at the southeast corner of Sheldon and Five Mile roads.

After the church in 1992 voided an earlier signed agreement to sell the property to a Maryland firm, the matter ended up in court with the church prevailing.

Lindquist has proposed working with the church to develop the property jointly.

planet philosophies" to the frontlines of the global business community.

Before traveling into the jungle by boat, the winners and their parents toured Manaus, Brazil, where they stayed in a five-star hotel with a wave pool and a zoo. They toured the Science and Indian museums and the Opera House.

In the Amazon, the group stayed in a five-story, tree house-style hotel. "The hotel was like giant cans of coffee and each room was like a slice of pie," said Bowsman, who was amazed at the area's natural beauty.

"You had to have good legs," said Bowsman's mother, Ruth Ann Morrell. "The rec room, the dining room; everything was on a different floor. There was even a suspended pool."

"You could look out from the 300-foot tower and see pink dolphins and blood-sucking fish jumping out of the water. Monkeys and parrots were everywhere. The monkeys would take your cup, dump your drink and drink it, or sit on your shoulder and eat your banana," said Bowsman, who was bit on the ankle by a unhappy monkey.

Because there are no roads, "people go everywhere by boat, helicopter and sea plane," she added. While touring the Amazon in a motorized canoe, Bowsman noticed smoke in the distance and asked the guide what it was.

"It was from a lumber mill.

Before traveling into the jungle by boat, the winners and their parents toured Manaus, Brazil, where they stayed in a five-star hotel with a wave pool and a zoo.

Every year, an area the size of Florida is cut down," she said. "That's 80 acres of tropical rain forest destroyed every minute. Cattle graze on the land. But after they do, the land can't regenerate. Nothing can grow once cattle have been on it."

"This contest really made me aware. We began boycotting beef. We didn't eat it," she said.

Morrell said Americans need to become more aware. "I go to the grocery store and realize so many products in boxes and plastics. I know now what a waste of trees that is," said Morrell, a teacher who found the "people beautiful" and was amazed to meet teachers who had one book for their entire classroom.

Bowsman said the experience changed her forever. "Now I really understand the region and the people. I really respect them. When I grow up, I definitely want to do something with writing and art. If I ever make a lot of money, I want a house in Brazil in the rain forest and one up here. I'll visit you, Mom," she told Morrell. "Gee, thanks," said Mom.

Area artists to offer their work for sale

Women of Artistry announce their third annual champagne reception, exhibition and sale, from 1-6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30, at their new location, the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer St. in Plymouth.

This gala event is open to the public and features live jazz by New Concept with Gary Cooper and Terrance Lester.

The Women of Artistry Exhibition features fine art created in five unique styles and in a variety of media. Sharon Lee Dillenbeck offers watercolors, freshly painted with delicate impressionistic strokes of broken color. Susan Argirof has created classic and contemporary marbling techniques on paper and on cloth. Julie Giordano continues her work in photorealistic portraits, fire trucks and Michigan scenes.

Carol Lynn McCreedy uses watercolor in a lifelike approach to her garden paintings. Norma McQueen has a style all her own in oil paintings, acrylics and watercolor. For the last two years, this exhibition has been a great success, beyond all expectations, and each artist has been working hard to create new work for this important event. The Women of Artistry are looking forward to this year's reception because of its new, convenient location in the freshly remodeled ballroom of the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Musicians to open PSO's 49th season

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will open its 49th season at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 15 at the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium, on Joy Road at Canton Center.

PSO conductor Russell Reed will welcome patrons to the premiere, featuring guest artist/pianist Pauline Martin. On tap are the "Euranthe Overture" by Weber, "Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Major" by Prokofiev, and "Symphony No. 1 in C Minor" by Brahms.

Tickets are $12 for adults, $10 for seniors and $5 for students. Tickets, which can be charged, are available at Beitner Jewelry; Evola Music; the Novi Civic Center; Bookstall on the Main in Northville; the Gitfiddler in Northville; Dearborn Music Co. in Canton; and at the box office 30 minutes before the performance.

There'll be an after-concert

State jobs commission gives to Women's Resource Center

The Michigan Jobs Commission is giving $29,000 to the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center to provide job readiness, placement assistance and related support services to women.

"This program is designed to help individuals who have not been active in the labor market attain the skills, competencies and self-confidence necessary to compete in today's workplace," said Jobs Commission Director Doug Rothwell in a press release. "Our goal is to put in place the resources and support structures that will foster economic self-sufficiency for all Michigan residents."

Those eligible for services under the taxpayer-funded Displaced Homemaker Program are individuals who have worked as a homemaker for more than 10 years, have not been gainfully employed outside the home for an extended period of time and have been displaced because of divorce, separation, or the death or permanent disability of their spouse.

Mall hosts power ranger Jason

Austin St. John, who appears as Jason the Red Ranger on The Mighty Morphin Power Rangers TV show seen on Channel 50, will appear 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, near Crowley's in the Livonia Mall.

Free photographs and autographs will be available.

St. John will also attend a luncheon 12-12:45 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, to benefit the Livonia Police DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program.

Tickets are $20 per person and must be purchased in advance.

Call Bill Checks at (810) 476-1166 to make reservations.

The DARE program offers preventive strategies to enhance those protective factors — especially bonding to the family, school and community — which experts say appear to foster the development of resiliency in young people who may be at risk for substance abuse or other problem behaviors.

Libertarian launches buck pole

Jon Coon, the Libertarian candidate for U.S. Senate, has announced a buck pole for Michigan residents.

Hunters are asked to bring legally killed whitetail deer to Coon's Hazel Park campaign headquarters.

A photograph will be taken of hunter and deer. Turn in your kill tag to the Coon campaign and they'll enter you in a contest.

The prize is a chance to go hunting for wild boar with Coon and Ted Nugent on the latter's game ranch in Jackson.

The buck pole will be open until election day, Tuesday, Nov. 8.

The contest is co-sponsored by Ted Nugent World Bowhunters, Michigan Big Game Hunters and Hunters for the Hungry.

Those wishing to donate meat to the Hunters for the Hungry program will be provided with assistance.

Coon's opponents in the U.S. Senate contest are Republican Spencer Abraham and Democrat Bob Carr.

Feeling Depressed?

Common symptoms of Depression are sadness, loss of interest or pleasure, insomnia, poor appetite and weight loss, feeling tired, worthless or guilty, and difficulty thinking or concentrating. Some people also have suicidal thoughts, which can be a major risk if their Depression is left untreated.

Depression is among the most common psychiatric conditions. Approximately 6% of adults have at least one significant episode of Depression during their lifetimes. Women are affected twice as often as men. In spite of how common Depression is, it is treated adequately only 50% of the time.

Depression can occur in episodes, with normal times in between, or be continuous and persistent. Occasionally people who suffer from Depression have high or manic episodes as well.

There are many psychological theories regarding the cause of Depression. Biological factors, including possible deficiencies of adrenaline-like neurotransmitter chemicals in the brain, are also potential causes. It is known that Depression tends to run in families, and evidence supports hereditary or genetic factors.

Several new antidepressant medications have recently been introduced. The incidence of side effects are lower with these newer medications, but some people still experience side effects such as agitation and sexual dysfunction. Also, antidepressants currently available must be taken over a period of weeks before they begin to work. Research is underway to develop additional antidepressants that will work faster, for more people, and have even fewer side effects.

The Mood Disorder Institute, 26105 Orchard Lake Rd., Ste. 301, Farmington Hills, is one of approximately 12 locations nationwide studying these new antidepressants. For additional information, or to see if you qualify for this FREE out-patient study, you may call 1-800-882-WOOD.

Office gift shops aid busy workers

Last week I took you inside two unique shops that prosper in unusual locations, a public library and a hotel lobby. I so enjoyed making these discoveries that I scouted out several more hidden treasures for today's column. Next time you need a gift, try shopping at your community hospital, the local art association, a neighborhood church or synagogue, or even the office building on the corner. Often, the most intriguing retailers operate without the advantages of neon signs or glitzy window displays. It's up to you and me to uncover their charms.

Shopping breaks

Judy Franker & Associates is one such gem. Located in a nondescript office suite at 2900 Maple Rd. in Troy, this antiques and decorative arts gallery makes the most of its inconspicuous space. Franker fills the showroom with affordable antique accessories and furniture, vintage toys, textiles and architectural. A quick tour will give you a sampling of her selection.

Upon entering, I immediately spotted some gorgeous pillows made from heirloom fabrics and a grouping of tramp art that includes a box, circa 1890 ($345), frame ($145) and mirror ($225). One shelf holds soot-suited statuettes carved by an Iowa baker in 1930 (four for $225) and irresistible Tiffin glass vases in pinks, blues and greens. You'll find beaded handbags (under $200), including examples from the Niagara Indians that were made for the tourist trade. An intricately beaded bird is $175. Delicate dress trims are artfully framed, as are black and white prints of 1860 furniture styles ($75). We picture a grouping that includes a turn-of-the-century Carrom game board from Ludington, an early 20th century wire bird cage ($250), and Art Deco gold leaf fiberboard store displays from the 1950s ($245). You'll also find inexpensive McCoy pitchers, 1940s tablecloths and celluloid picture frames to add to your collections. Visit Judy Franker's hideaway Monday-

Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursday, 10 a.m. to noon. The business men and women who spend their days in the Travelers Tower building at 2655 E. Rivergreen in Southfield, are all very familiar with Entrepreneur Gifts and Books on the first floor. Manager Dede Andrews greets her customers by name and often acts as their personal shopper, ordering favorite gifts and expediting their gift lists. Her shoppers know they can browse in on their lunch hour, choose a baby gift for the shower after work, and Dede will have it wrapped and ready to go at 5 p.m.

On the spot service

The need for personal service and convenience is what prompted owner Susan Maxwell, a teacher at Berkeley High School, to open her store in an office building, catering to nine-to-fivers. "Women often run in in the morning needing a pair of earrings for a meeting because they forgot theirs at home," says Andrea. "We just let them borrow a pair for a few hours, and they usually like them so much, they end up buying them." Lunch hours and afternoon breaks fill the shop with those looking for a greeting card, a bestseller (all discounted up to 40-percent), stationery, business-related books, stuffed animals (the $30 Iguanodon is a top seller), candles and children's toys. Store hours are Monday-Friday, 10 a.m. to around 5:15 p.m.

Family events mark mall's 30th year

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

It was 30 years ago that the Livonia Mall opened at Seven Mile and Middlebelt with anchors Sears and Crowley's, billing itself, "A Family Shopping Center." "We're still the place to shop for and with the family," said Jeanne Hildebrandt, also celebrating a 30-year anniversary, as mall manager. "Children through senior citizens shop here everyday. It is our main concern that the center be clean and safe, the merchandise always acceptable and tasteful to families." As a special thank you to Livonia Mall's families, a free $10 gift certificate will be given out for every $100 spent at the mall during anniversary week, Oct. 16-22. The certificates will be distributed Oct. 24 and 25.

Hildebrandt said the Livonia Mall was opened in 1964 by partners Jack Shenkman and George Klein. Klein is deceased, but Shenkman continues to oversee operations at the mall. In 1987, the shopping center was completely updated and Mervyn's was added as a third anchor. The mall has a long philanthropic relationship with the city of Livonia and various community agencies, opening its doors to fitness walkers, scout troops, the humane society, the local Y and the Muscular Dystrophy Association through its annual Celebrity Auction for MDA. "A lot of the credit for the mall's success belongs to my marketing director Bill Checks," said Hildebrandt. "Bill works very hard creating and executing family entertainment programs at the mall. We want this to be a center where people come together." A leader in the community, as well as among her retail peers, Hildebrandt recalled that she was one of the first women in the country to run a shopping mall. "There are more of us now," she smiled. "But back then it was considered a man's job." Hildebrandt, the mother of three grown children and grandmother of four, sits on the boards of the Family Y and the American Heart Association. She is also president-elect of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce. With no plans to retire, Hildebrandt talks excitedly about leasing programs, adding more refreshment centers and a menswear retailer to the center. She said she is not worried about the future of shopping malls because, "women will always love to shop." Her forecast for the upcoming holiday season? "It will be a good November-December because the auto companies are working overtime and the unemployment rate is low," she predicted. Janet Barber of Livonia walks for exercise at the center. She recalled the many events in her life that had her off the mall to shop. "My girls got their back-to-school clothes here. We bought our appliances through the years from Sears. The mall was the first place my daughters drove to after getting their driving licenses," she said. "The Livonia Mall is really like an old friend." See LIVONIA MALL, 7A

MALLS & MAINSTREETS

Symphony Orchestra played "Come Back To Sorrento" and "Sunrise Sunset," seven bridesmaids in dark green velvet gowns and two flower girls in white lace, marched through the mall to center court. On the hand of her father, Norbert Rebb of Oxford, Deena Rebb prepared to greet her waiting groom, Ron Collis.

Last Valentine's Day, Malls & Mainstreets reported the pair's love story, how Collis of Lake Orion, a new mall security guard, met and fell in love with sales associate Deena Rebb of Mrs. Field's Cookies.

The pair got to know one another while hanging mall holiday decorations. They dated and became engaged on a mall bench outside the coffee shop. Collis bought the ring at the mall's jewelry store, R. Nouveau. The floral arrangements would be made through Keepsakes by Sarah in the mall. With the blessing of mall manager Jim Westcott, the couple decided to hold their marriage ceremony right in the mall.

After the brief exchange of vows and wedding rings, Judge Nelson proclaimed the pair man and wife. The wedding guests burst into applause made more thunderous when all the shoppers who stopped to watch the event joined in.

"When I heard the music, and saw the flowers and chairs, I thought this was a benefit for the symphony," said Natalie Gillet of Rochester Hills, who stopped to have a cup of coffee nearby. "But, by golly, it's a real wedding."

Lia Hilaire of Bloomfield Hills wondered aloud if the honeymoon would take place at the Mall of America in Minnesota.

The Collises, who both took new jobs outside the mall, are making their home in Rochester Hills and putting off the honeymoon for a while.

"It was a lovely ceremony and we appreciate the mall's hospitality," said Inka Rebb, mother-of-the-bride.

A reception followed at the Carpathia Club in Sterling Heights.

Tapper's traces wedding ring history

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Engagement rings have come a long way from the days when sweet grasses were tied around a bride's wrists and ankles so she could not run away.

Just how far, is evident in a collection of 30 historic engagement rings on display at Tapper's Jewelry in Southfield, Oct. 13-15.

The "Power of Love" exhibit, arranged by the Diamond Information Center in New York, will travel to just three U.S. cities before returning to Europe.

Highlights of the exhibit include replicas of the rings Maximilian of Austria gave to Mary of Burgundy, Henry VIII presented to Anne Boleyn, and Robert Browning bestowed upon Elizabeth Barrett.

The exhibit also traces the development of engagement rings from the gimmel (twin interlocking) ring which Martin Luther gave to his bride Catherine Bora in 1525, to the 1890 Tiffany breakthrough — the plain metal band with prongs lifting the diamond above the band to expose the stone's facets.

Renown gem expert Antoinette Leonard Matlins, author of The Complete Guide To Buying Gems and Gem Identification Made Easy, will attend the exhibit opening to answer questions and greet guests.

In a phone interview from Germany, Matlins said that the history of wedding and engagement rings can be traced to primitive tribes who used plaited grasses to tie a bride's hands. This was followed by the use of leather thongs, hoops carved from bone or stone, and eventually rings of gold and silver.

"Signets were the first embellishments, then jewels," Matlins said. "The custom of wearing the betrothal ring on the third finger of the left hand probably originated in ancient Egypt where it was believed the vein of love ran from that finger to the heart."

It was not until the 15th century that polished diamonds were used in engagement rings. Because of a diamond's hardness, they became the symbol of unbreakable love with the mysterious inner fire of a diamond likened to love's passion.

"In fact, the form a diamond is found in nature resembles two pyramids set base to base — another symbol of an impenetrable bond," she said. "In the 1500s, diamonds were rare. The only known source was India. Diamonds were a substance that would not yield to the flame or the sword, so people attributed many powers to them."

Matlins explained that in the 1700s, diamonds were discovered in Brazil and in the 1800s in South Africa. These finds coincided with the industrial revolution where a growing middle class suddenly found itself able to afford the diamonds, which had become more plentiful.

The bride's double ring tradition, receiving both an engagement and a wedding ring, began in Victorian times. Prior to this, "love rings" and "posie rings," simple bands inscribed with verses, were the rage.

In the 16th century, the gimmel was in vogue, two hoops interlocked to appear as one. Elaborate enamel work embellished these rings.

In the 17th century, the gimmel ring merged with another romantic symbol, two clasped hands. The hands were joined together when the ring closed.

According to the Diamond In-

Max loves Mary: This 15th century diamond engagement ring is a copy of one in the Kunsthistorisches Museum in Vienna, believed to be the gift of love presented to Mary of Burgundy by Maximilian of Austria.

Northville artist exhibits her work

Artwork created by Johnnie Crosby, a Northville water color painter formerly of Plymouth, will be on display at the Our Town Art Exhibition and Sale at the Community House in downtown Birmingham at 380 South Bates. Our Town, now in its ninth year, is a juried exhibition featuring 360 pieces of art from 230 Michigan artists. The exhibition opens 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, with a private preview, and is then open to the public Thursday, Oct. 20, through Sunday, Oct. 23. There is no admission fee. All artwork is for sale.

Partial proceeds from the sale of the art will benefit The Community House, a nonprofit organization established in 1923. It is a multi-purpose facility that provides educational, social and cultural programs, child care, employment assistance, meeting rooms, banquet and catering services, and group travel activities.

Five days of programs, speakers and awards have been planned beginning with the Gala Preview at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19. At 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 20 Julie Dawson, a Birmingham artist, will speak at the Professional Women's Breakfast. The title of her talk is "The World Through the Heart of an Artist." The tickets are $5. At noon that day, there will be a luncheon and speaker held at The Community House. Tickets for this event are limited, cost is $20.

TASTE BUDD

LARRY JANES

Wake up with coffee brewed to perfection

Talleyrand, the noted French diplomat, described the perfect cup of coffee as "Black as the devil, hot as hell, pure as an angel, sweet as love."

Americans, though somewhat less vehement, also take their coffee seriously; we drink an astonishing two-thirds of the world's supply. Excuse the pun but specialty coffee shops are the "hot" items at every mall you walk through. Good old Gloria Jean, the metro area's coffee queen, had better be prepared because rumor has it that we're about to be tempted with another major coffee retailer.

I'm one of those people who can't seem to function without my morning wake-up coffee. Lately, with prices envying that of choice meat, I've cut back to two big cups per day, but have been known to put away much more. Like wine grapes, coffee beans vary in quality from year to year, and that's why prices skyrocketed about 3 months ago. They will stay that way until late spring or summer of 1996 when the new harvest begins.

Coffee is the world's second largest commodity, right after oil, but it's a much more fragile and delicate product than most people think. Coffee beans are not beans at all, but the pits of a cherry-like fruit from an evergreen tree grown in many parts of the world.

Coffee is imported from Central American and South America, notably Brazil, Costa Rica, and Guatemala. It's also grown in East and West Africa, Ethiopia, Indonesia and the West Indies. We've all heard of Kona which is grown on the slopes of Hawaiian volcanoes. Trial by fire in a roasting machine produces roasts from the lightest cinnamon color to the blackest espresso. The more versatile and most blended coffees usually are roasted a chestnut color with the fuller flavor Viennese, French and Italian roasts coming in nearly black.

For those of us who have a tendency to shake a bit after the first cup, decaffeinated coffees have been freed of their stimulating effect by a chemical or organic solvent which reduces the kick, but supposedly preserves the taste.

Coffee rules

To make a perfect cup of coffee, whether from commercially vacuumed packages or freshly ground beans, you should follow certain rules.

First, match the grind of the coffee to the method of brewing. Percolators use a regular grind while automatic drip and filter cone makers take a drip grind; vacuum coffee makers use a fine grind as does espresso makers. Always use two level tablespoons of coffee to six ounces of freshly drawn cold water newly brought to a boil.

Those coffee makers who program the night before to be ready with the smell of fresh coffee are not what they're cracked up to be because the fresher and colder the water, the better the coffee. The best way to make coffee is with the quick and easy drip method, while the ubiquitous American percolator wins the prize for making the absolute worst. It either boils the coffee or fails to heat it enough and usually extends the brewing cycle, extracting oils mercilessly from the beans producing a bitter, parboiled liquid.

Beans

No matter how careful your preparation nor how fine your machine, it will all be for naught if the beans or ground coffee aren't fresh. Once beans are roasted, they usually maintain their freshness for only about three weeks.

Once ground, all beans begin to lose their flavor immediately and are at their best for only 4-5 days. For the freshest coffee, buy the coffee in small quantities and store the beans or ground mixture in an airtight canister at room temperature or in an airtight glass jar in the refrigerator or freezer. This method should keep them as fresh as possible for at least 2-3 weeks, but remember that everytime you open the lid, a little freshness escapes.

So now you have the freshest beans, the coldest water and the right measurements. What you need to realize now is that the pot itself must be absolutely clean and free of any oils and residues from previous batches. The pot should be washed in hot soapy water and meticulously rinsed and drained on a daily basis. The pot itself should never be allowed to sit on a heater element for longer than one hour. Leftover coffee grounds, by the way, make an excellent compost and mine occasionally end up around the rhododendron and azalea bush in the backyard.

Americans are known to have the biggest coffee habit in the world, so you might as well exceed the national average of 2.5 cups a day with blends that please you. No matter what, it is unlikely that your consumption will match Vietnam's 7.5 cups a day or that your cup will equal the "bath-tub sized" one brewed by Tokyo baristas (who speak softly and always carried a big mug.)

Restaurants pitch in to feed hungry

■ Eat out on Oct. 13 to support Michigan's campaign to fight hunger. Participating restaurants will donate up to 7 percent of their gross receipts hunger relief.

BY BRIAN LYSBAGHT
SPECIAL WRITER

If you've ever walked past a restaurant dumpster on a sweltering summer day a question might come to mind. How much food gets thrown out, and isn't there a better way?

Closer to home, plenty of food gets wasted in our houses and apartments, from the moldy tomatoes to the rotted lettuce to the chocolate cookies gone soft. It wouldn't hurt any kitchen to get more efficient and less wasteful.

The issue arises because Oct. 13 is World Food Day, and it's worth thinking about such things, for one day at least.

It is also worthwhile to note that dozens of Detroit-area restaurants again are taking part Oct. 13 in the Seven Percent Solution, a pledge on the part of restaurant owners to donate seven percent of their gross receipts to the Food Bank Council of Michigan. The organization is a statewide network of food banks that supplies soup kitchens, shelters and other non-profit feeding agencies.

"We're in the food business and this is our way of giving back to the community," said Robert Jacobs of Buddy's Pizza, who is participating in the event with over 100 restaurants throughout the metro area. "We're trying to raise money, and generate an awareness of world hunger. The problem is much greater than you might think," said Jacobs, a resident of West Bloomfield.

Gleaners Food Bank in Detroit is one of the food banks who will benefit from the event, and president Jean Gonya said the Seven Percent Solution helps increase awareness of the problem of hunger and that the money raised "feeds a lot of hungry people."

The Gleaners Community Food Bank's member agencies serve about 150,000 meals per year.

But back to the question of efficiency. Ifendu Nnanna, associate professor of food and nutrition at Wayne State University, said he has observed that restaurants in America can be wasteful places.

"You see people go to a restaurant, order something, take a bite, then leave it to be thrown away and still pay for it," said Nnanna, a Nigerian native. "That is not some-

They have dinner ready and waiting for mom

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYBY

SUPER SUPPERS

While many parents have a chagrin look on their faces when talking about their teenagers, Kathy Barton of Troy usually wears a smile when she mentions Karie, 16, and Marcie, 14. There are many reasons for this, one of which is that the two girls make dinner for her just about every night.

"After working all day it's great to come home to a hot meal that's ready to go on the table," said the single mom. "And it's usually a good meal. As the girls get older, their cooking and baking gets better."

Marcie, a freshman at Troy High School, is the main chef in the family. She picks the recipes, adds the needed ingredients to the shopping list, and prepares the dishes. Her sister, Karie, a sophomore at the same school, helps by making salads, stirring up soups, and setting the table.

"I'm doing something, it's usually cooking," she said. "I just don't like cooking as much as my sister does."

According to the girls, they make dinner, not because it's an assigned task, but because they want to show their mother how much they appreciate all she does for them.

"She works real hard to give us the things we want," said Marcie. "Making dinner is just one way we can thank her."

Karie added that there is an advantage to having dinner ready when mom arrives home. "We don't have to waste time waiting for mom to make dinner. We eat right away then and we have the whole evening to do other things, such as homework and talking to friends on the phone." Other things include babysitting and working on SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) projects.

Barton said that she feels fortunate to have such caring daughters. "I'm also glad that I taught the girls basic cooking and baking skills when they were young."

While they had a foundation of cooking from their mom, the girls said that home economics classes that took in middle school gave them the confidence to prepare and serve "whole" meals.

"In school I learned what to serve with main dishes and what should be included to make the meals healthy," said Marcie.

Some of the recipes Marcie uses came from her cooking classes. Others are family favorites. Also, all three Barton women look for new recipes in newspapers and magazines.

"I try to make a variety of dinners, so that they are not the same thing night after night," said Marcie. "Basically, I make a meat, a potato or rice and vegetables, unless I make a pasta dish."

Karie said that her sister is usually a good cook. "There were just a few times that her meals just didn't make it, including the bright pink chicken (it was undercooked) that she recently served."

Barton said that she is happy that the girls, especially Marcie, have become more proficient in the kitchen. "When Marcie first started to cook she would out herself regularly. Now she is much better with kitchen utensils."

thing you see" at restaurants in underdeveloped nations, where there is less food to be had, let alone wasted.

Of course, what people do with their food once it is served is something that restaurants cannot control. A patron can eat or not eat, request a doggy bag or not. If not, what remains probably goes to the dumpster.

One organization, Southfield-based Forgotten Harvest, collects surplus perishable food from bakeries, food wholesalers and other health department-approved sources. The organization delivers the food to soup kitchens and other feeding centers. They collect an average of 20 tons a month.

Southfield-based Forgotten Harvest collects surplus perishable food from bakeries, food wholesalers and other health department-approved sources.

Bill Winkler, owner of Mr. Bill's restaurant in Walled Lake, said most restaurants make great efforts to be efficient in handling food. Inventory control and efficient food handling is cost-effective for restaurants — as it is for any kitchen.

"Most restaurants that are wasteful are restaurants that won't be around for a long time," said Winkler, whose eatery will be donating its seven percent Oct. 13.

"The stuff that comes in the back door is stuff that, for the most part, you are going to use in a day or two. If not, it gets thrown out."

He offered a few common-sense tips for helping to reduce wasting food.

"Don't over eat, or over-estimate. A lot of it has to do with the amount of food people put on their plates," Winkler said.

Don't cook what you don't need, but take care to use promptly fruits and vegetables.

Promptly and properly package and freeze leftovers. Don't over-cook food.

Winkler said he tries to ensure that his wait staff is trained to communicate with customers and relay their food orders accurately.

Matt Prentice, whose Unique Restaurant Corp. operates nine eateries and a bread-baking company, said the 7 percent solution is a benefit that makes a lot of sense for restaurateurs, many of whom get frequent requests for contributions to charity.

"My first area of focus is feeding the hungry, because I make my living feeding people. It is appropriate," said Prentice.

"This is one thing we do every year." Business has picked up every year on the designated day, he said.

Prentice noted that restaurants probably have little to do with the ultimate inefficiency in food distribution that creates haves and have nots.

Hunger "would be a really easy problem to solve from a provision of food standpoint."

"Our problem is a socially based problem." That's a significantly more difficult problem to solve.

BUDDY'S CREAM OF BROCCOLI SOUP

- 2 bunches broccoli
- 1/2 pound onions, diced
- 3 ounces (6 tablespoons) chicken base
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 2 teaspoons thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 2 1/2 quarts milk
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 1/2 cup flour

Use a 6-quart stock pot. Cut off stems from the broccoli and reserve florets. Chop stems and run the stems through the food processor on a fine setting. Combine ground broccoli, onions, 1 tablespoon butter, chicken base and water in pot. Cover and cook on high heat until the onions are transparent.

Add thyme and white pepper. Stir and reduce heat to simmer for 5 minutes.

Use a double boiler or heat milk in saucepan on low heat until milk reaches 120 degrees F. Be careful not to scald milk. Remove from heat.

Roux: Melt the remainder of the butter. In a separate bowl combine the melted butter and flour and mix until smooth.

Combine warm milk with cooked broccoli and onions. Heat to 180 degrees F. over medium heat.

Gradually add the flour mixture (roux) to the pot with a wire whip, stirring constantly to thicken. Cook on medium heat for 20 minutes. Remove from heat.

Cut broccoli florets into bite-size pieces. Blanch florets in water for 5 minutes. Shock in cold water and add into soup. Makes 1 gallon soup.

MICHIGAN AUTUMN FRUIT TART

- Tart shell: 2 cups pastry flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 12 tablespoons (1 1/2 sticks) cold, unsalted butter
- 7 tablespoons ice cold water
- Michigan Fruit Mixture:
 - 1/2 pound dried Michigan blueberries
 - 1/2 pound dried Michigan cherries
 - 1/2 pound dried Michigan cranberries

- 1/4 pound fresh Michigan McIntosh apples, medium dice
- 1/4 pound toasted walnuts, small dice
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 3 tablespoons sugar

- Custard:
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1/2 cup heavy cream
 - 3 whole eggs
 - 2 egg yolks
 - 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- Sabayon:
 - 7 egg yolks
 - 1 cup superfine sugar
 - 1 cup Chateau Grand Traverse Reising

To make pastry: In a bowl, mix the flour and salt together. Then cut the butter into small cubes and work it into the flour with your hands.

Add the water gradually until the dough comes together. The amount needed will vary.

Remove dough from bowl; knead briefly; cover with plastic wrap and let rest 30 minutes. Roll dough out 1/4-inch and line tart shells. Refrigerate until ready to bake.

Bake at 325 degrees about 15 minutes with a foil blinder and beans. Remove and let cool.

Toss all fruit and nuts with sugar and cinnamon; then place in shell and bake 20 to 25 minutes.

While the tart is baking, make the custard by mixing milk, cream, eggs, yolks and sugar — strain. Pour half the custard over fruit and bake five minutes. Remove and add remaining custard but do not overfill or the crust will get soggy. Remove after custard is set and glaze if you wish.

To make sabayon: Mix the eggs and sugar in a bowl over a double-boiler. As it becomes thick, thin gradually with the wine. After all wine is incorporated, continue to whisk until of proper consistency. Serve under tart and drizzle a bit over top.

Or, serve tart with Sabayon and garnish with little piles of the fruit ingredients and fresh mint or edible flowers.

Sauce complements delicious coffee cake

See Larry Janes' Taste Buds column on Taste front.

Coffee fanatics will certainly appreciate the taste of coffee in this sauce, which is spectacular over ice cream or, even better, a fresh coffee cake right from the oven!

COFFEE SAUCE

- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup strong, hot black coffee
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup whipped cream

Beat eggs and slowly drizzle in the hot coffee. Continue beating over (not in) boiling water and beat in the sugar and the salt until the mixture coats the back of a spoon, about 5 minutes. Chill.

Just before serving, whip in the cream and serve. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

OK, so this recipe doesn't have any coffee in it, but what could possibly go best with coffee than a luscious, homemade sour cream coffee cake, direct from momma's personal files.

SOUR CREAM COFFEE CAKE

- Streusel topping and filling:
 - 1/2 cup light brown sugar
 - 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
 - 1 cup walnuts or pecans, chopped
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
 - 1/2 cup cake flour
 - 4 tablespoons unsalted butter
- Combine all ingredients and mix well. Set aside

COFFEE CAKE BATTER

- 4 large egg yolks
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 cups sifted cake flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 12 tablespoons (6 ounces) butter

In a medium bowl, combine egg yolks with 1/4 the sour cream and the vanilla. Set aside. In a large mixing bowl, combine the dry ingredients and mix on the low speed of a mixer for 30 seconds. Add the butter and the remaining sour cream.

Mix on low speed until the dry ingredients are moistened. Increase to medium speed and mix 1 minute. Scrape down the sides of the bowl and gradually add the egg mixture beating for 1 minute.

Butter the bottom and sides of a nine inch springform pan and pour in half the batter. Smooth the surface and sprinkle with 1/2 the streusel topping. Drop the remaining batter in blobs over the streusel topped batter and then top the cake off with the leftover streusel topping. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 55-60 minutes or until a wire cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean.

(Hint: the cake will shrink from the sides of the pan only after being removed from the oven, so be careful!) Allow cake to cool in the pan on a rack for 10 minutes before unspruing the pan. Hint: Momma says this cake is better after the second day!

Lasagna is Mom's dinnertime favorite

See related story on Taste front.

AUNT MARILYN'S FAVORITE LASAGNA

- Meat mixture:
 - 2 pounds ground beef
 - 1 medium onion, chopped
 - 1 teaspoon oregano
 - 1 (15 ounce can) tomato sauce
 - 1 (20 ounce can) tomatoes, chopped
- Cheese mixture:
 - 16 ounces ricotta cheese
 - 16 ounces shredded or grated mozzarella cheese
 - 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1/4 cup parsley
 - 1/2 (10 ounce) package cooked and drained frozen spinach
 - 1 teaspoon oregano
 - 1 teaspoon salt
- Other ingredients:
 - 1 package (nine) lasagna noodles
 - 1 small jar spaghetti sauce

In frying pan, brown ground beef and onions. Drain fat. Add oregano, tomato sauce and chopped tomatoes. Simmer until thick. While meat mixture is simmering, mix cheese ingredients in a bowl and cook noodles according to package directions.

When meat mixture is done, line bottom of greased 9- by 13-inch baking pan with three noodles. Top with 1/4 meat mixture, then 1/4 cheese mixture. Repeat layers two more times. Cover top with spaghetti sauce. Cook at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Makes six to nine servings.

APPLE CRISP

- Peeled and sliced cooking apples like Macintosh to fill a (heaping) an 8- by 9-inch pan
- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup sliced butter

Mix flour and brown sugar. Cut in sliced butter until mixture is crumbly. Spoon mixture over apples. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes.

Can be served hot or cold, and with a whipped dairy topping or vanilla ice cream. Makes four to six servings.

Common fall vegetables are uncommonly delicious

LOIS THIELEKE

Parsnips, turnips and rutabagas are all fall vegetables worth a taste. These are old time vegetables with history. Parsnips have been a good source of starch for thousands of years, this hardy vegetable was a staple in many households until it was replaced by potatoes. Turnips history also goes back to the Romans. In England turnips are referred to as "turnip-rooted cabbages" while in Scandinavia they are called Swedish turnips or "swedes."

Michigan is the second largest producer of parsnips. Turnips come from California, Colorado and Indiana, while Canada supplies most of the rutabaga! All three of these are available year round.

A parsnip resembles a top heavy, ivory carrot with a mild celery like fragrance and a sweet nutty flavor. Parsnips are a member of the carrot family but unlike carrots, parsnips are always eaten cooked. Cooked they have a texture and flavor somewhere between carrots and sweet potatoes. Parsnips have no beta carotene but are a good source of vitamin C and fiber.

Parsnips can be left in the ground even after a hard frost. The cold air starts the conversion of starch to sugar which gives the parsnip a sweet flavor. The ones purchased, have been stored in cold storage after harvesting to make the starch to sugar conversion. Some gardeners leave parsnips in the ground and dig them the next spring.

Parsnips keep best in perforated plastic bags in the refrigerator crisper. Remove tops before storing in refrigerator and store up to four weeks.

Look for parsnips that are small, the larger ones may have tough woody cores. Something about the size of a regular carrot, eight inches long is a good size. Choose those that are uniform in size and not terribly misshaped to eliminate waste.

Cooking tips

Just before cooking, cut off the root and leaf ends, then scrub or peel the parsnip. They can be peeled after cooking if you want to puree for soup or stews. Mushy overcooked parsnips are not good, add the parsnips the last half hour of cooking for a mixed vegetable stew.

If you are only using parsnips to flavor soups and stocks expand your horizons. You'll be surprised what a flavorful side dish they make. Bake seasoned with stock and herbs, or add orange or apple juice, brown sugar and ginger. Savory herbs such as tarragon, rosemary, thyme, parsley and chives compliment parsnips: Cook them until tender crisp and toss with herbs and butter. To bring out their sweetness, accent parsnips with nutmeg, ginger, mace, cinnamon.

Turnip and rutabagas are called "just plain folks food." They are economical, grow in poor conditions and all a good source of complex carbohydrates and vitamin C. Turnip greens (tops) are also rich in vitamins and minerals. Both of them make a wonderful addition to soups, stews and salads. Raw turnips and rutabagas make a colorful coleslaw by themselves or added to cabbage. Try adding thin slices of both to next raw vegetable tray. Cook and mash either of these and add equal portions of regular mashed potatoes, they are delicious. Sweet spices like ground ginger and cloves go well with turnips or rutabagas. Orange or lemon zest, fresh ginger, black pepper basil and dill are all good seasoning for these.

Turnips and rutabagas look very different. Turnips are golf ball size or a little larger while rutabagas are more baseball or larger size. A turnip has reddish pink top with the lower part that is buried under ground is white. A rutabaga is tan with a purplish band, they are lumpy and irregular shaped. For the sweetest flavor, choose smaller rutabagas, the larger they are the more apt to have a woody interior. Large ones also may be really strong flavored. This strong flavor can be "tamed" down by blanching before baking, braising or stir-frying.

Do not cook turnips in aluminum or iron pans, it makes their flesh darken. Turnips are usually peeled before cooking. Rutabagas have wax applied that must be peeled away before cooking. Quarter them first before peeling, it makes it a little easier. Peeled, boiled and buttered rutabaga make a delicious companion to meats, ham, duck and pork. Slice and parboil with apples for a side dish for pork chops.

Don't forget these old common fall veggies that can add new dimensions to your meals. They are usually reasonably priced, easy to fix and good for you.

your HEALTH

by Sandra John

EAST VS. WEST

It is only relatively recently that the diet of Westerners has shown a preference of fat over fiber. Only the last 200 years, following the Industrial Revolution, has seen a shift in American and North European diets away from high carbohydrate dishes based on grains, fruits and vegetables toward meats and milk products. This change may please the palate, but it has seemingly insulted the rest of our bodies. Evidence continues to mount that a high-fat diet contributes to an increased risk for cancer and heart disease. Westerners would do well to borrow from the example of the carbohydrate-based diets of Asian countries, where these diseases are nearly nonexistent.

Unfortunately, the historical rise in influence of the meat and dairy industries has had much to do with this change. Perhaps we should strive to publically inform consumers as to the dangers of a diet centered around meat. At the GOOD FOOD CO., we are committed to offering the lowest prices possible for the highest quality natural foods and supplements. Our case-stack displays have some of the lowest prices around! If you have any questions, please feel free to call us at 851-8100. We are conveniently located at 42615 Ford Rd. We are open for business Monday-Saturday from 9-9 and Sunday from 10-6.

P.S. Of all the dietary fats, the saturated fat found in animal fat has the most negative impact on health.

Chili champ cookoff repeater

Ken Horn, the Plymouth resident whose chili lights up the palate like the Fourth of July, traveled this weekend to the World Championship Chili Cook-Off in Reno, Nev.

Horn's Fireworks Chili earned him a first and second place, respectively, in this year's Ohio and Michigan state chili cook-offs. It's his third trip to the world competition, where dozens of cooks from the United States, Canada, Mexico, Guam and elsewhere will match recipes.

Annette Horn, Ken's wife, who qualified for the world competition last year, could not attend this year because she was busy organizing a Plymouth art show. Her husband said she has helped him refine his recipe during competitions.

"I don't like to taste my chili when I'm cooking it because it does change your flavor sensations," said Ken Horn, a product manager at NBD. "I like to taste it near the end, when I'm almost done."

He is guided by smell while cooking, he said.

Last year, Horn finished among the top 25 in Reno but did not make it to the final five, who win cash prizes. Last year, the winner took home $25,000.

Clinics will aid low bowlers

TEEN-POP ALLY

AL HARRISON

Which kind of bowler are you? There are those who are able to throw a lot of strikes and make most of the spares, and there are those who seldom get strikes and keep missing the spares by a half-inch or so. If the latter description seems to fit you, there is still hope.

It is time for some of the lower average bowlers to take advantage of these clinics to learn the fundamentals of the game. Included in the two-hour segment will be how to find a ball that fits you, how to correctly hold the ball, how to deliver the ball down the lane and, most of all, how to have a great time.

The clinic sites are listed as follows with phone numbers since the dates and times will vary. It is best to call first. Bel-Aire Lanes, Farmington (310-476-1550); Bowl One Lanes, Troy (510-568-4850); Cloverlans, Livonia (313-427-6410); Country Lanes, Farmington (810-476-3201); Drakeshire Lanes, Farmington Hills (810-478-2230); Merri-Bowl, Livonia (313-427-2900); Garden Lanes, Garden City (313-427-2900); Mayflower Lanes, Redford Township (313-937-8420); Plaza Lanes, Plymouth (313-453-4880); Plum Hollow Lanes, Southfield (810-353-6540); Redford Lanes, Redford Township (313-535-8300); Southfield Bowl, Southfield (810-354-3087); Town in Country Lanes, Westland (313-722-5000); Westland Bowl, Westland (313-722-7570); Woodland Lanes, Livonia (313-427-1060); Woodland Lanes, Livonia (313-522-4515).

Most of the dates will be toward the end of October. If you are among those who can use some help, call now for the exact times and dates.

The Fifth Annual Tail Waggers Bowl will take place Saturday, Nov. 12, at Woodland Lanes in Livonia. Sponsored by the Michigan Humane Society, its purpose is to raise money for the Strike

Out Cruisely to Animals program. So far the tournament has raised more than $85,000 for this worthwhile purpose, and this season will bring the total to more than $100,000. For details call 313-552-4515.

Gamble pays off for Stevenson

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Coach Jack Reardon rolled the dice Friday and his Livonia Stevenson football team came up a 13-10 winner, spoiling Westland John Glenn's homecoming.

Despite having a much-maligned passing attack, quarterback Dean Bacheiler hit slotback Chris Mullett on a 4-yard swing pass with only 2:06 left to give the Spartans the all-important victory.

Stevenson, Glenn and Farmington are now all tied for first place in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association with 3-1 records.

The Spartans, now 5-1 overall and in the hunt for a playoff spot as well in Class AA-Region II, can win the right to meet the Western Division champ with a victory this Friday over Farmington.

The game-winning touchdown came on fourth-and-goal from the Glenn 6. Reardon, the Spartans' head coach since 1966, never had second thoughts about going for a field goal, which could have sent the game into overtime.

"I just felt the play was going to be there," he said. "I just felt we were going to do it. I had a feeling, plus I was afraid of the extra point."

The Spartans, outgained and outplayed most of the night, drove 80 yards in 10 plays for the winning score. Two big runs, 32 and 26 yards by senior fullback Craig Martin (nine carries for 86 yards), put the Spartans in position for the victory.

"When you're in a big game you've got to make something happen," said Glenn coach Chuck Gordon, whose team is 3-3 overall. "They made a decision to go and made that play."

"I'm not sure you're ever going to shut them down. They're very patient on offense. They run those counter-plays and they hope to catch you for a 'big one' some time down the line."

Glenn, out of timeouts and starting from their own 34 after the ensuing kickoff, tried to get into field goal range. The Rockets got as close as the Stevenson 39 before turning the ball over on downs.

The Rockets lost despite piling up 315 yards total offense to Stevenson's 224. Glenn also ran 57 plays to Stevenson's 36. They also won the battle of first downs, 12-6, but the Spartans prevailed on the scoreboard.

"Glenn plays awfully good defense and we had trouble moving the ball," Reardon said. "They were bringing down their tackles and running their ends across. John Glenn plays great defense and we didn't get a lot, but when we needed to block, we were able to come through (for the final drive)."

Senior tailback Scott Goldman (seven carries for 97 yards) got the Spartans off and rolling when he broke through and raced 76 yards for a touchdown on the game's second play from scrimmage. (Steve Vezina added the extra point.)

The TD stood up until intermission, but Glenn failed to capitalize, with good scoring position, on two different occasions in the opening half.

Brian Kolb just missed wide-right on a 37-yard field goal in the first quarter, while quarterback Jason Hagelthorn was picked off at the goal line by Mullett after Rockets moved it to the Stevenson 5.

Glenn tied it up on the second play of the second half when speedy senior tailback Brent Washington, who led all rushers with 181 yards in 24 carries, bounced out of a pile of tacklers and sprinted 73 yards for a TD.

Late in the third quarter, Glenn's Eric Davey recovered a fumble at the 16 when the Spartans muffed a punt return. Kolb then booted a 30-yard field goal on the first play of the fourth quarter to give the Rockets a 10-7 advantage.

The score stood that way until Reardon's gutsy, if not gambling call on fourth down.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

GLENN HOSTS HARRIERS

Westland John Glenn will host its 13th annual Freshman-Sophomore boys and girls cross country meet Tuesday at Central City Parkway. Action gets under way at 4 p.m. with the girls race. The boys follow at 4:30 p.m. with the open race at 5 p.m.

The 10-team field includes Glenn, Redford Catholic Central, Garden City, Northville, Ann Arbor Huron, Ypsilanti, Belleville, Dearborn Heights Robichaud, Dearborn and Dearborn Edsel Ford.

SQUIRT HOCKEY CHAMPS

Coach Alan Buchanan's Livonia Squirt AA Knights hockey team recently defeated the Michigan Dynamos, 2-0, to win the 17th annual Woodhaven Early Bird Tournament. The Knights, sponsored by Systrand Manufacturing, also scored wins over Allen Park (1-0), Plymouth (4-1) and the Michigan Nationals (3-1) en route to the championship.

TV FOR KIDS

Lamb Chop adding segment on numbers

BY SUZANNE GILL

Whenever Shari Lewis and her famous puppets Lamb Chop and Charley Horse open their mouths, children are entertained. Two years ago, Lewis created Lamb Chop's Play-Along, a series for children ages 2-9 that encourages viewers to stretch their minds and bodies with games, songs and good conversation. It airs weekdays on PBS (check local listings).

"I have been off the air for many years in America because I would not do a junky show," Lewis says. "I believe that children deserve the very best. That's how taste is developed." Currently Lewis uses proceeds from the sale of Lamb Chop toys to offset the cost of the show.

PBS' new Ready to Learn initiative, a unifying principle for all its children's educational programming, "has clearly focused me on letters and numbers," Lewis says. In Play-Along episodes for 1995, Lewis will add a segment called Fun With Numbers.

"As we learn to read," Lewis notes, "we're motivated by our curiosity. What does the street sign say? What does the cereal box say?"

Finding the same "comfort with numbers," she believes, is more difficult. "We find that comfort by using them again and again in playful ways ... giving kids a sense that numbers are fun and useful tools at our command."

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
 You may find you have made a mistake that will be difficult to rectify. Someone close to you might offer assistance, but it may be too late.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
 It is important to open your mind to change. You may think twice about being part of an organization just for the sake of belonging.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
 A karmic lesson has been completed, and you should have learned from the experience. There will be improvements in business and health.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
 It seems as though something is out of sequence, and it will not be easy to get it straightened out. Take another look to see if your original goals are on course.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
 Someone who opposes your ideas could delay your plans. It is imperative that you put a stop to any unnecessary spending.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
 There could be problems with relationships at home and work. Getting away from it all, even for a day, will help you see the situations more clearly.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
 There are times when you wish you could be anywhere but where you are, and this is one of them. There is a need to bring order to your personal life.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
 Are you being overly possessive about money or belongings? It is time to stop and smell the roses. A situation may not go as planned.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
 You are blessed in many ways and will soon see just how much. There is no need for unwanted ties. Make the changes you desire.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
 Don't be lazy about going after the things in life that are important. Neglecting your responsibilities now will only make things worse later.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
 If it seems like no one understands you, it is probably because you never let anyone know how you feel. Talk to those closest to you.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
 Your position is stronger than you think, and you can't let others take advantage of you. Be patient; everything will work out in the end.

Things looking Hope-ful in Chicago on CBS

BY JEFF PLASS

Chicago Hope, airing Thursdays on CBS, is a fine medical drama.

Unfortunately for both the program and the television viewing population, the show goes head to head with NBC's ER on Thursdays. And as long as the two programs air simultaneously, viewers will be forced to choose between the two, and both shows will suffer.

Hope stars Mandy Patinkin, Adam Arkin, E.G. Marshall, Roxanne Hart, Peter MacNicol, Roma Maffia and Hector Elizondo. The program examines the all-too-human sides of the people who practice contemporary medicine within the walls of Chicago Hope Hospital.

The show's creator and executive producer, David E. Kelley (L.A. Law, Picket Fences), admits that while the medical profession is changing by leaps and bounds every day with the discovery of genetic breakthroughs and much more, "we are really only beginning to discover the beginning of discovery."

What really drew Kelley to the subject matter was the role that doctors have to play in today's society while wielding such awesome responsibility.

"Doctors today have to function as both practitioners and pioneers," Kelley states. "They live in a world where the Lazarus Syndrome is there very day, where they're caught between their human emotions and having to play God."

"That was the seed of the idea that drew me to the subject matter. It does get away from the law, but a lot of the ethical arguments that I found fascinating in the world of law are also prevalent in this world (medicine)."

The show's ensemble cast boasts a slew of multitalented, award-winning (and numerous nominated) actors. Indeed, the show seems to be getting some substantial mileage out of Tony Award-winner Patinkin's virtuoso vocal chords.

His character, the brilliant, forceful and somewhat egomaniacal Dr. Jeffrey Geiger, often is featured crooning in various settings that range from the operating room to behind the wheel of his BMW.

"Normally," Patinkin jokes, "what will happen is for most of the show, if it's 45 minutes of show time, I sing for about 42 minutes, and there's a small, little operation."

Patinkin, who recently released his third solo album, "Mandy Patinkin Experiment," began his concert singing career in 1989. Since then, he has toured across the United States and Canada, performing songs from the stage by writers such as Stephen Sondheim, Rodgers and Hammerstein and Kander and Ebb, among others.

"There (was) a certain amount of discussion whether or not a doctor, like the one I play, would be able to sing the way I sing," Patinkin adds. "Maybe I would have to not sing that way. Sing rotten is the idea. So I (needed) to speak to David (E. Kelley) about that."

Evidently, Patinkin's pleas didn't fall on deaf ears. Dr. Geiger has appeared singing beautifully on the show, most touchingly in a scene in the second episode, where he sings to his institutionalized wife, comforting her through her straightjacket.

It really is a crying shame the powers that he decided that competing for the almighty advertising dollar is more important than bringing quality television to the masses.

Goodness knows the world could do without programs like Walker, Texas Ranger and umpteen different Dateline programs per week. Why not submarine one of these shows in order to free up a nonconflicting time slot?

Obviously the answer to that question lies buried in a sea of numbers, ratings, points, shares and the like, but it would be nice to live in the kind of world where some of the best shows the networks have to offer didn't have to cannibalize each other and everybody could just get along.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

Bon Jovi masters drop cloths; Masters drops Domingo into season

Rocker Jon Bon Jovi will make his acting debut as the romantic lead in Moonlight and Valentino, with Whoopi Goldberg, Kathleen Turner and Elizabeth Perkins.

Kathleen Turner

The rock star plays a house painter who sweeps a young widow off her feet.

HBO's current production slate includes The Celluloid Closet, a feature-length documentary set to air in late 1995. The film is based on the Vito Russo book about the portrayal of gay and lesbian characters in mainstream movies.

Meanwhile, HBO Showcase is developing Atomic Mafia, a two-part dramatic miniseries about a plot to smuggle nuclear materials out of the former Soviet Union and what might happen if they fell into the hands of terrorists.

Material for the script is being gathered from eyewitnesses with links to Scotland Yard, Interpol, the CIA and the KGB. Atomic Mafia is also set for a 1995 debut.

Next on HBO's to-do list is Going, Going, Almost Gone! Animals in Danger, a family special being produced in cooperation with the World Wildlife Fund.

Slated for a November debut, the half-hour special will feature voice-overs by Phil Hartman, Bernadette Peters, Ed Asner, Jasmine Guy, Judd Hirsch and Geoffrey Holder.

The Kennedy Center Honors, presented as a gala two-hour special each holiday season on CBS, is scheduled to be taped in early December in Washington, D.C. The honorees are Kirk Douglas, Aretha Franklin, Pete Seeger, composer Morton Gould and producer/director Harold Prince.

And speaking of people outstanding in their fields, PBS' American Masters begins the season in November with a tip of its 10-gallon hat to cowboy humorist Will Rogers.

Also on tap are retrospectives of the work of Tennessee Williams, Edgar Allan Poe, Rod Serling, Richard Avedon, the comedy team of Mike Nichols and Elaine May and "adopted American" Placido Domingo.

Adam Arkin plays a doctor at a large hospital in Chicago Hope, Thursdays on CBS.

Fridays on Fox, Gillian Anderson plays FBI agent Dana Scully in The X-Files.

Charlotte Ross plays newlywed Bree in The Five Mrs. Buchanans, Saturdays on CBS.
