From the Editor's Corner

We've beat the drums for more money for education consistently in this column, believing that it was the best investment for the future of the area.

The dollars and cents value of education is usually impossible to pinpoint. But this week a Republican in the Kennedy cabinet did it.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said that the state is losing defense work "because of tight-fisted legislatures."

In effect, McNamara said that defense contracts go where the brains are and generally they are not in Michigan because the people of Michigan are not financing the universities enough to attract the top men or to keep them.

While we probably will never be able to prove it as graphically as McNamara did, we believe that when taxpayers turn down requests for school funds locally they are hurting the community and the kids as much as the same curtailment of funds do at the state level.

We welcome back to the Chronicle the Rev. Robert Searls whose column, "It Seems To Me," will appear on a regular basis. The addition is counterbalanced by the loss of "Wandering with Warren" which will end when Mrs. Hene Warren heads for California to join her husband in a couple of weeks.

We've had numerous requests for the new maps given free by the Michigan State Highway Department. While many newspapers received a supply to give to residents of their area, the Chronicle did not.

The reason for this could be, we suspect, that we have been critical of the give-away program as a needless spending of taxpayers' money.

When free maps are available at nearly every gas station, why the state should print their own has always been something that we have never been able to understand.

Grass, Roof Fires Keep Township Firemen Busy

Elkland township firemen were called out three times during the past week, twice in one day, according to Chief Al Avery, to fight a barn roof fire and two grass fires.

Tuesday evening, firemen doused a small grass fire in the back yard of James Wallace, Cass City.

Saturday was their busiest day with a barn roof fire at the Ira Osentoski farm southeast of Cass City and a grass fire at the Paul James farm northwest of the village, both reported within an hour of each other.

Damage to the barn roof, under repair, was reportedly slight. Approximately 15 acres were burned off in the grass fire which was ignited by a spark from nearby burning brush.

State Aid to Make School Solvent

Members of the Cass City School Board and Supt. Willis Campbell were quick to call the Chronicle's attention to the story about the school's finances last week as a story in the paper gave an erroneous impression of the school's financial position.

The Chronicle listed the school as being in debt some $18,000. Actually, when the complete financial statement was reviewed, it revealed the school was in a healthy financial position and nearly out of debt.

The reason for this apparent gigantic mistake revolves around state aid to the school.

When the annual financial report was given at a recent board meeting, it showed that the school owed $12,750.00 on short

There will be rides for the kids, popcorn and cotton candy for sale on the streets and bargains for everyone Friday and Saturday at the annual Sidewalk Sale, the summer's big town-wide sales event in Cass City sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce.

A total of 21 different merchants are advertising literally hundreds of values in a wide variety of wanted merchandise.

Sale items include food, clothing, shoes, baked goods, meats, swim wear, paints and notions.

Saginaw Youths Plead Guilty in Narcotics Case

Three Saginaw youths, arraigned before Circuit Court Judge Timothy Quinn for possession of narcotics, entered pleas of guilty during a court session Wednesday, July 11.

Pre-sentencing for Gabino Dominguez, 19, Andres Flores, 22, and John Arroyo, 20, all of Saginaw, has been ordered for August 1.

The trio were arrested in Vassar July 8, by Vassar policemen, when a routine traffic violation stop uncovered a bundle of the marijuana on the back seat of their car.

Subsequent investigations has led to the discovery of a large crop of the narcotic in the state.

In other court business, Gerald Hile, 27, Caro, was given two years probation and ordered to pay a $150 fine, costs of $100 and restitution of $245.77, on a charge of breaking and entering.

Hile married, reportedly broke into Hanson Hardware, Caro, on May 25.

He was ordered to make payment at the rate of $20.00 per month.

Stolen Bike Found With Liner Ad

A Kingston youth has his bike back, thanks to an honest area resident and Chronicle liners. Elmer Sherman found the bike in a ditch on Shabbona road and ran the following ad:

FOUND—Boy's bike on Shabbona Road. Owner to identify and pay for ad. Call 7146-R.

The youth reported that the bike had been stolen from his home. He said it was one of the bikes won in the Friday night raffle in Cass City, Sherman reported.

THE PIKE ARE HITTING on the Cass River. Wayne Seeley, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Seeley of Cass City, nabbed this 26 1/4-inch beauty on the north branch of the Cass Saturday afternoon. He used a live frog for bait. Fishing with a friend, Bob Watson, the boys bagged four pike. Another local angler, Joe Gruber, reported in Sunday with an even larger pike. This one measured 30 inches and was caught Sunday on the south branch. Gruber said he had a three-inch sunfish caught a few moments earlier for bait.

IS THIS YOUR IDEA of a lobbyist? Looking more like the Cass City farmer that he originally was, lobbyist Audley Rawson points to a 20-acre field of beans that he takes care of when not lobbying for a group of seven insurance companies. A lobbyist for the past 16 years, he entered the field after racking up a distinguished political record. (Chronicle photo)

No Crooks on the Job There

Audley Rawson Tells What A Lobbyist Does in Lansing

Mention the terms "lobby" and "lobbyist" to most persons and they conjure up pictures of senate investigations, someone giving away refrigerators or vicuna coats and illegal proceedings in general.

Because of bad publicity and misconduct by some lobbyists, the popular consensus is that lobbying is an evil and unnecessary practice.

Ask Audley Rawson, rural Cass City, about lobbying and its aid to legislation and the answer is somewhat different. Rawson is a legislator turned lobbyist and he knows the story from both sides.

Employed by seven insurance companies for the past 16 years as a "public relations" man, it's Rawson's job to keep his employers informed of laws being enacted that will affect them.

Assists Lawmakers
It is also his job to assist lawmakers in deciphering the technical points of various laws and explain how they will affect his companies and the public.

He began his political career shortly after the 1929 stock market crash by being elected supervisor of Elkland township. Four years later, a hotel fire in Lansing took the lives of the county representative, Knox Hanna, and several other legislators.

Rawson was drafted by a Cass City group to seek the post left vacant by Hanna's death and in a special election in 1935, won the county representative seat.

He spent eight years in the House of Representatives, four as floor leader, and served four years in the Senate.

Upon his retirement from the Senate, he was asked to become a lobbyist for the insurance companies.

Paid Salary
As a lobbyist, Rawson is paid a monthly salary and is given an expense account. He is required by law to keep his expense account records for six years, in case Legislature decides to investigate.

Who can be a lobbyist? Anyone can.

According to the Michigan Lobby Law, as explained by Rawson, "anyone lobbying in Michigan has to register and pay $5.00 fee. The Secretary of State issues a "Legislative Agent" card which must be carried at all times. A lobbyist can represent as many people as he wishes."

Blames Bad Publicity
Rawson blames bad publicity as the reason for the public condemnation of lobbyists in general.

"Never in the 16 years I've been with my companies, have they asked me to do anything unethical... I'm merely there to represent them," he explains.

When asked if he knew of any of the state's 60-70 lobbyists who were getting kickbacks for favors, he answered, "Not in the state... I don't know of a single one in the state that is paid on a commission. I can't help anyone if there is a promise of payment involved."

"The national picture is something different," he explained.

Explains Job
To further explain his job, Rawson pointed out that in a recent legislative session, 1,195 bills were brought up for enactment.

"Out of that group, there were 40 bills that affected my companies, dealing with bonds, workmen's compensation, safety bills and so forth. The insurance companies don't know what is going on unless I'm there," he stated.

He has to attend all hearings on the bills, classify them and send the material to the companies. He works directly with the presidents of the companies and their legal counselors.

"They depend on me to get information on when the hearings will be held and to talk to the senators and representatives about the bills and analyze them for the lawmakers," he reports.

Friends Important

"I try to make and keep friends in the Legislature and the House... I'm a Republican, but it doesn't make any difference... I try to help in anything I can to keep good relations," he continued.

Lobbyism and lobbyists are not a modern innovation, according to Rawson. How long have they had lobbyists? "Ever since there has been government," answers Rawson. "Law requires representation and that's how my companies are represented."

Rawson and his wife have lived in their large white farm house five miles north of Cass City for the past 45 years. The house, distinctive with its white columned porch, is surrounded by well-groomed shrubs and trees and stands at the head of the 160-acre farm. He rents most of the land and raises cash crops on the rest. He and his wife keep an apartment in Lansing and when the Legislature convenes in January, they move back.

Civic Leader
Besides a distinguished political career, he has held a number of civic and organizational offices. Concluded on page two.

County Approval Next Board Approves $21,250 Low Bid

A low bid of $21,250, submitted by Frank McComb, Cass City contractor, on the construction of a 15-student special education room at Cass City High School, was approved by the Cass City Board of Education at a special meeting Tuesday night.

Next step will be the approval of the bid by the County Board of Education at a meeting tentatively slated for tonight (Thursday) in Caro.

McComb's bid was one of seven submitted. Sub-contractors for the job are Ryland and Gue, Cass City, mechanical, and Iles Electric, Saginaw, electric. Completion time was 90 days.

Present for the reading of the bids were Dale Abke, deputy county school superintendent, and Dick Snider, architectural representative. Also present were 11 contractors and their representatives.

The bids ran from McComb's low bid to a high bid of $29,995 by a Port Huron concern.

Other bids included: Room's Construction, Bad Axe, $25,200; Consolidated Construction, Bay City, $28,560; Fay McComb, Cass City, $26,820; Clarence Phillips, Port Huron, $29,995; Vesely Construction, Lapeer, $26,356, and Vollmer Construction Company, Saginaw, $27,580.

County approval is necessary

Spend $12,000

Finish Village Street Work

The village of Cass City has nearly finished its road improvement program that will cost village taxpayers some $12,000 and includes blacktopping of several village streets.

Much of the work was planned before the current building season started and a little of it was a last-minute addition to the program.

Village Engineer William Schram says that it is still too early to tell exactly how much the projects will cost.

He estimated that the blacktopping work on South Seeger would cost about $6,000 and that the erection of the curb and gutter alone will run about $2.10 per foot. Property owners are paying $1.75 per foot for the work in front of their property.

Approximately another $6,000 was spent on Hill Street and in the Hills and Dales subdivision. Originally, plans by the council called for work to be done only on Hill Street (running past Hills and Dales Hospital) but last-minute additions to the schedule resulted in the blacktopping of Hunt Street and Huron Street at about twice the cost of doing Hill Street alone. Total cost of the work was estimated at $6,000.

Street Ready
Schram said the decision to do the Hills and Dales area was reached for several reasons.

There will be no curb and gutter in subdivision streets and the street is now adequately drained.

Because the road is built on a slope and the water runs down it freely, it is a big maintenance problem.

The village received a better price from the asphalt company than originally planned. The council had figured to pay around $10 per ton for bituminous concrete and wound up paying $6.60 a ton for bituminous aggregate.

Other Projects
The Chronicle quizzed a member of the council's building committee, Harold Gunther, and Schram about the effects of this year's program on future street work in the village.

It seems to be the consensus that resurfacing will not be done until adequate drainage and curb and gutter are completed on village streets.

Garfield Street, east of Seeger, has been a problem spot. This year drainage work on a portion of the street has been done.

Since more drainage is necessary and the village is now out of funds for this work this year, hardtopping of this street is probably out of the question for at least two years.

At the present time, Schram said, he knew of no plans for hard surfacing any village streets next year.

Members of the streets and sidewalks committee besides Gunther are Lee Rabideau and Leo Ware.

County Approval Next Board Approves $21,250 Low Bid

because the addition will be paid for out of the three-quarter mill Special Education levy.

If accepted by the county board, the addition will be the first in the county for special education. Special education room additions are being planned for Kingston and Mayville.

Three other county schools, Caro, Vassar and Akron, have special education rooms, converted from already existing rooms.

Until the room is completed, special education classes will be taught in the art room in the high school.

The board also approved a motion to borrow $10,000, against anticipated state aid, for operating expenses.

New IGA Store Near Completion

Construction of the new Foodtown IGA is moving rapidly ahead. This week 175 feet of shelving is being erected. Already completed has been the interior painting of the building and the blacktopping of the large parking area.

Harry Lenda says that the work is proceeding on schedule, but declined to say just when the new store will be ready for occupancy.

Wheat Yield Down

There will be less wheat harvested in Tuscola county and the Cass City area this year but the grain pouring into local elevators is of excellent quality and should help counteract the reduced yield.

According to the County Extension Department and Barney Hoffman, manager of Farm Produce Co., wheat has suffered from winterkill and some of the kernels are shrunk.

For these reasons, Cass City area wheat yields have been reported to average 30 to 32 bushels an acre on lighter ground and 40 to 45 bushels on heavy ground.

Hoffman said that at his elevator yields have ranged from a low of 20 to a high of 58 bushels per acre. These figures are considerably under the past two years when average yields were approaching the 60-bushel mark. Don Kebler, extension agent, says that he checked a Fairgrove elevator and the story is the same there... about 35 to 40 bushels per acre.

However, the grain has been weighing about 59-60 pounds and is of excellent quality. Last year a bumper crop was in sight when the rains came with only about 40 per cent of the crop harvested.

Farmers were unable to harvest the dead ripe wheat and much of it sprouted. Every farmer who had wheat in the field after the rains hit was docked for damage and some of the crop was so bad it was good for nothing but feed.

If the rainless weather continues for another week or 10 days, the current crop will be about harvested and all will be of excellent quality. Although there will be fewer bushels per acre, farmers will receive more for their wheat because of its quality.

About a third of the crop was harvested Monday and wheat is bringing the support price of $1.97 per bushel.

THE SUMMER MARKET

In the six weeks ending June 30, dealers take in more used cars as trades on new car sales than in any other six weeks in the year. This volume means that used car buyers purchasing in this abundantly supplied market can choose from a much greater variety of models, often at reduced prices.

The car business is like any other when it comes to the costs of maintaining a large inventory of products, in this case used cars. It is very much to the dealer's interest to keep his supply to an economical minimum so as to reduce his daily overhead.

This is especially so this year when auto sales are nearing their all-time top record of 1955. Recent industry statistical reports show sales in April reached their highest point in 6 1/2 years with market forecasts for early summer of "glowing strength" according to Ward's Automotive Reports.

Bulen Motors believes that thoroughly reconditioned used cars sold with reliable guarantees are both easier to sell and build repeat business for a dealership. As a matter of fact, it is the used car operation that spells success or failure to most dealers in our business today. Certainly a dealer would have a difficult time succeeding handicapped by a poor used car operation.

It is for this reason that we take pride in our used cars. Time and effort and money spent in conditioning them is returned in many ways, but most especially in customers who come back to buy their next car and who often bring others.

Every car sold (over $900.00) GUARANTEED in writing. 25th Anniversary Sale !!!!

Watch for it the first of August. It doesn't seem possible, but in August 1937 the then "Bulen Chevrolet Sales" opened for business across the street where the Bassett Manufacturing Co. now holds forth.

I had been married just two weeks, and, came here with the sublime faith that I could sell cars. Now, I wonder at my courage, but, it worked out, proven by more than 4,000 cars sold. Most proud of the people we have been doing business with ever since. Proof, I think, that we treat people right.

Pair Die in Crashes Near M-24 and M-46

Two accidents within a quarter mile of each other took the lives of two men during the past week, according to reports filed by sheriff's deputies.

Killed Monday night when his pickup truck rolled over and pinned him was John E. Weston, 26, Mayville. He died of a crushed chest and internal injuries.

Investigating Sheriff's Deputies Paul Berry and Robert Larsen reported that Weston's vehicle ran off M-24 about a quarter mile south of M-46, rolled over two and a half times, landing on its top in a ditch pinning Weston.

Less than a week earlier, on Wednesday, July 11, Oran C. Smith, Farmington, was pronounced dead on arrival at Caro Community Hospital after a semi-truck and trailer slammed into his car at the intersection of M-24 and M-46.

County Students Prefer Colleges Close to Home

Approximately two-thirds of Tuscola County's 344 students enrolled in Michigan Colleges and universities show a marked preference for two particular schools, according to a report from the Michigan Council of State College Presidents.

The two schools are Michigan State University, 129 county students, and Central Michigan University, 116 county students.

The concentration on the two schools and eight other state schools is indicative of a current trend toward attending colleges closer to home rather than out-of-state colleges, according to the report.

The report used Northern Michigan College, Marquette, as an example. Of the 2,301 students enrolled, 951 are from Marquette county and all but 405 of the remaining 1,896 are either from adjacent or other counties forming the Upper Peninsula.

The 89 other county students at state-supported Michigan colleges are spread out over the eight schools. Enrollment includes: University of Michigan, 42; Michigan State University-Oakland, two; Wayne State University, six; Western Michigan University, 14; Eastern Michigan University, seven; Michigan College of Mining and Technology, 13; Ferris Institute, 14, and NMC, one.

Judge Quinn Seeks Supreme Court Post

Circuit Judge T. C. Quinn of Caro has announced that he will seek the Michigan Supreme Court Justice's post if nominated by Republicans at the GOP state convention next month. If nominated and elected he will be the first Supreme Court Justice ever to serve from the Lapeer-Tuscola circuit.

Judge Quinn has earned a name for himself as a hard working official. Besides handling his circuit with dispatch, he is frequently called to preside in other circuits.

Candidates for the supreme court are elected on a non-partisan ballot but are nominated at party conventions.

Quinn will be running against two men appointed to fill vacancies by Gov. John B. Swainson. They are Otis M. Smith and Paul L. Adams. They replaced Taihot Smith, who was named to the federal bench, and George Edwards, who took the post of Detroit police commissioner.

Incumbents have an advantage in the balloting because as members of the Supreme Court their title, "Supreme Court Justice," appears under their name on the non-partisan ballot, while the name alone of candidates not members of the court is listed.

Quinn has been judge of the Tuscola-Lapeer circuit since 1953.

Farm Bureau Ladies Host Huron Group

Tuscola County Farm Bureau women entertained 22 Huron county women at a picnic on Thursday, July 12, at the Cass City Recreation Park.

A potluck dinner was served to approximately 50 women and was provided by the county group. Mrs. Earl Taggett, Caro, presented a short program in which Mrs. Clare Carpenter, Mrs. Gail Parrott, Ms. Stanley Lagos and Mrs. Eldon Bruce, all from the Cass City area, participated in a panel discussion.

The ladies honored Mrs. Carpenter on her anniversary with an appropriate poem and gifts.

During a short business meeting Mrs. Bessie Monte and Mrs. Marilla Robinson, both of Caro, reported on the cruise sponsored by Michigan Farm Bureau Women.

Mrs. Fred Black, Akron, spoke on the State Bean Cook-off to be held at Fairgrove on September 3. An open class this year enables anyone to enter without first having to win in county competition.

The chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Lagos, announced the election of Mrs. Carpenter as chairman of the Tuscola County Women's Committee for the coming year. Mrs. Walter Moderow, Reese, was elected secretary.

The group was taken on tour of the Walbro Corporation by Vic Guernsey and Dick Wallace, company officials.

Telephone Booth Demolished in Gagetown Accident

A Michigan Bell Telephone booth was the only casualty reported in an accident Monday afternoon in Gagetown, according to Bad Axe State Police.

A report filed by Trooper Byron Cluckey stated that the aluminum and glass booth was smashed when an unmanned car owned by Joe Patnaude, Unionville, rolled out of a service station parking lot and down a hill.

Patnaude reportedly forgot to apply the emergency brake when he parked his car and went into a nearby store to pay a bill. The car rolled across the road, down the hill, struck the booth and came to rest against a telephone pole.

The booth was demolished. Damage to the car was slight.

Water Carnival Next on Agenda

The annual Recreation Program Water Carnival is slated for Thursday evening, July 26, at 7:00, according to Program Director Mrs. Richard Case.

Scheduled to highlight the carnival will be synchronized swimming, diving for pennies, inner-tube races and stunt and regular diving. Tentatively scheduled is a watermelon dive. The public is invited to attend.

The water carnival will be followed by a "Gala Junior Olympics" Friday, July 27, which will conclude the decaathlon started Wednesday, July 25. All grand winners will receive prizes.

Tennis matches will also be held this week. Schedules and further information may be obtained at the playground.

Pirate Dress-up Day on Wednesday, July 11, was the main attraction of last week's program. The children, some dressed in costumes, searched for approximately 300 pieces of candy and money during a treasure hunt. Small prizes were given for the most "authentic" costumes.

Approximately 20 children competed in the first rounds of the decaathlon the same day. Included in the competition was rope climbing, baseball throws and rope jumping. Further competition was scheduled for this week.

On Friday, July 13, 75 children took a hike through area woods and participated in free swimming during the morning program.

In other recreation business,

Mrs. Case expressed her thanks to all those who contributed handicraft supplies during a recent plea for help. She also extended an invitation to parents to visit the program and see how the supplies are being used.

Wars will cease only when nations learn to let bygones be bygones, and strive for peace on a sound, practical basis.

A Joker in a Tight T-Shirt Set the Pace

By Dave Kraft

The only reason I'm confessing this incident is to warn all you men, married or otherwise, of an insidious television program calculated to rob you of your masculinity and put you in the hospital.

It happened early last spring. For some reason or other, I came home an hour and a half late for lunch.

My wife was sitting in the middle of the floor, touching her toes!

As soon as I noticed her, I looked the other way, hoping she'd pull herself together and get to her feet.

I looked back. Still there. Different position. One leg high in the air.

I tried to be cheerful. "Hi", there, sweetie. Got a Charley horse or are you just off your nut?"

"Don't be smart! I'm exercising."

Now my wife wouldn't do an exercise if her life depended on it, ordinarily. But this wasn't an ordinary situation. She had the TV set on and some joker in a tight T-shirt was setting the pace.

He had muscles. No, he didn't have muscles, he was a muscle. He wasn't bad looking, either. I started for the TV set.

"You touch that dial and I'll break your arm."

I knew she was kidding, but since I didn't know how long she'd been taking those exercises. I wasn't sure how strong she was.

"Well how about my lunch?"

"Well, what about your lunch?"

"I'M HUNGRY!"

"So, eat."

"There's nothing ready!"

"So wait until I get done."

"You know, it wouldn't hurt you to do these exercises either," she went on.

I told her, in no uncertain terms, that if she thought I was letting some muscle-bound moron make me do tricks like a dog, she was goofier than I thought she was.

"Okay, no lunch."

"You wouldn't dare."

"Try me."

The little woman drives a hard bargain, but one of these days just before I put her into orbit, we'll see who drives the hardest bargain. Anyway, that's how I got started on the exercises.

"Okay girls," Muscles was saying, "this next one is for the chin."

He jumped up and down, waved his arms around and then patted himself under the chin two or three times. I felt like I was going to be sick.

"Come on, get going," urged my wife.

I jumped up and down, waved my arms around but didn't pat myself under the chin because my left hand got tangled up in the table lamp.

"Okay girls, now to get rid of that pounciness around the thighs," Muscles said in his girlish voice.

"If he says 'girls' once more, I quit."

"Now, down on the floor," Muscles continued. "That's it... now sit Indian-style... good... now bring your knees up as high as you can get them and draw your feet as far to the side as you can... some of you aren't trying."

He was right. What this does is break your legs... if it doesn't break your legs, it knots your muscles up so bad you can't move.

"Now ladies, rock back and forth, holding onto your feet while you rock."

I rocked back alright, but when I rocked forth, I fell on my head.

I'd probably still be lying on the floor in that position if my wife hadn't grabbed me by the shoulders and pulled me back into a sitting position.

"Now for the bust line."

That's where I quit. I figure I can get into enough trouble without developing some of my own.

Since then, if I'm late for lunch, I just don't go home. I'd rather starve than go through that again. Besides, I got the feeling I was intruding.

Throughout the ages men have always found it easier to conquer others than themselves.

Many people could retire comfortably on what their experience has cost them.

A man whose normal weight is 150 pounds would weigh about 50 pounds if all the water in his system were dried up.

Every Year State's Budget Jumps to A New Record

Every year a new record. That's the story of Michigan's state government budget, which this year jumped to $511.5 million.

In recent years it has grown, in leaps, from $436.5 million in the 1960-61 fiscal year to $482.6 million last year, and now $511.5 million.

But many of the large budget-consuming departments and divisions will work this year with basically the same budget they had last year.

Educational institutions, from the grade schools through the colleges and universities, gained the highest boosts. The education budget last year was $109.6 million. Some $116.5 million was set aside for it this year.

This year a boost in the school aid formula and the anticipated increase in primary enrollments pushed the budget for school aid payments to $98 million from $46 million in the past fiscal year.

Republican majority leaders in the Legislature estimated revenue from taxes around $536 million. The excess, if there is any when the taxes are collected, is designed to reduce the still mounting deficit.

A new item in the budget this year calls for the creation of a state camp facility similar to the Civilian Conservation Corps units in use in the 1930's.

The Legislature set aside $100,000 for operation of the facility for juvenile delinquents, and $80,000 for its initial physical establishment.

Michigan officials have high hopes of cornering about 11 percent of the Federal appropriation for manpower development and training programs.

Initially 14 courses under the act will be offered to some 400 persons in Alma, Battle Creek, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Muskegon. Later courses are planned in Bay City and Detroit, as well as several other cities.

The projects will be a prime example of federal-state-local cooperation.

The Federal government set down the ground rules and will provide the funds. State officials are coordinating the programs, which are suggested and designed by local committees working with public school officials and the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Charles C. Killingsworth, Michigan State University labor-industry expert, predicts great success for the program in the state.

The courses offered are set up on recommendation by local officials after a study of the needs of the labor market. Killingsworth estimates that 4 out of 5 trainees under the program will have jobs waiting for them when they conclude the courses. The others will "have a good chance to get a job," he said.

Courses under the program will be similar to several already conducted in various areas under the Area Redevelopment Act, with one major change. Under the Area Redevelopment Act, communities must be classified as "distressed areas" to qualify for Federal funds.

Success of the ARA courses has already been evidenced. In the Detroit area, three nurses' aide programs were completed in May. Of 19 persons who completed the courses, 15 were employed.

A similar ARA course in Port Huron for spring machine operators had 30 students. All 30 had jobs waiting for them.

Basically the manpower development and training programs will be geared to help the unemployed re-situate themselves in a labor market for which they are not presently qualified.

Killingsworth said Michigan hopes to receive $43 million of the initial $485 million Congressional appropriation. This would allow the training of an estimated 100,000 persons in Michigan.

Something new was recently added to Michigan's network of freeways. A 24-hour patrol by State Police was inaugurated on a semi-permanent basis after a month-long pilot study.

"About 100 troopers split into three shifts will be assigned to the freeway patrol from 20 posts," said State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs. "They will be there to assist stranded motorists as well as for traffic supervision and crime prevention."

The uses of the freeway patrol were shown well in the preliminary study of the idea.

The pilot test covered an 83-mile stretch of Interstate 94 between Battle Creek and New Buffalo. A special compilation during the month showed assistance was provided to 571 motorists.

Of these, 189 were for tire failure; 91 motorists ran out of gas; 164 had motor trouble; 37 needed help with other mechanical failures; and 100 wanted information on food and lodging or routes, became ill, or needed assistance for other miscellaneous reasons.

Childs said cars which run out of gas on freeways will be supplied enough to get to the nearest filling station.

The test patrol also handled its share of traffic control problems. The compilation showed 281 arrests for traffic violations and 584 oral warnings to drivers, most of them for speeding. During the period 32 accidents were handled, two of them resulted in traffic deaths. "The patrols will be in the experimental state for some time," Childs emphasized. "We still have the same manpower as before and must carry out our usual other duties on other highways."

A horseback meeting will be held Sunday, July 22, at the grounds south of Cass City by the Junior Wranglers 4-H Club, according to Barbara Bustamante, reporter.

The horseback meeting, scheduled by the members during their meeting Wednesday, July 11, at Martin's Restaurant, is being called so leaders can set up the square dance team and so members can practice for the Tuscola County Fair in August.

Also in conjunction with the fair, the members quizzed each other on the parts and diseases of the horse. During the meeting, members voted to wait until later in the summer or fall to hold either a trail ride or a hayride.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, August 8. Dave Bullock is president of the group.

Forbidden Fruit Is Much More Tempting

By Ilene Warren

A friend stopped at the office one day to have a brief chat with me. One of his comments was "I love to read - in fact, I'd rather read than eat!" In this viewpoint he had found a bosom companion for I, too, love to read. Most anything from the comic strips to philosophy can catch my interest with few exceptions -- but there ARE exceptions, such as the confession magazines.

My sister-in-law Peggy entered the family when I was about six years old. A couple of years later, she and my brother Bill moved their little house from Dryden to a spot behind our house. Peggy did one thing of which my mother disapproved: she read true story magazines. Mother cautioned her, "Don't leave them around for the girls to find." The girls being my sister Lillian and I.

Forbidden fruit, as so beautifully illustrated by dear Eve, is much more tempting than that readily and freely offered. Thus, as I grew a little older I became quite curious about these magazines. Finally, I smuggled one out of Peggy's house and sneaked it into ours. I sprawled, in one of those ungainly postures that only children can achieve, across an ottoman in the living room to read the magazine that lay on the floor on the other side of the footstool, hidden - I hoped - from my mother's eyesight should she enter the room. Mother did come in once, as I recall, and asked, "What are you doing down there?" "Oh, just sitting," came the half-truth as I nonchalantly lolled against the ottoman.

There were a couple of interruptions when Mother called me for a small task or errand and my obedience was prompt and accurate, for to have Mother come to prod me was just what I didn't want -- and each time I left to obey, I was most careful to tuck the magazine under the footstool. However, the stories weren't nearly so fascinating as I had imagined - nor could I quite comprehend why all the fuss had been made about my reading them -- and in my disinterest I became careless so that the last time the magazine was tucked under the footstool, a corner of it was visible. In my disinterest the magazine was forgotten... until mother spied it and quite roundly scolded me (almost more for being sneaky than for reading) and chided Peggy.

Whether it was my disappointment in my initial introduction to this type of magazine or the fact that better books were made available, at any rate an interest in so-called confession magazines never developed. For this, I am most grateful; for the books we read should stimulate our thinking and challenge our lives -- whether they be fact or fiction.

Once upon a time there lived a fellow known as Happy Prince. Happy Prince lived in a lovely little principedom nestled beside a beautiful blue sea. There, protected by the broad wing of his friend, Big Republic, Happy Prince enjoyed life in his pretty pink principedom and took as his wife the exquisite Golden Princess.

Big Republic smiled with indulgence at the happy couple and treated Happy Prince as though he were a spoiled but entertaining child. This grew irksome to Happy Prince who was growing weary of being merely tolerated and he exercised a bit of foolish independence. Oh, my! This made Big Republic very angry and he thundered, "You'd best be a good boy, Happy Prince, or I'll take away your principedom."

Will Happy Prince meekly abide? And, if he does, will this dissuade Big Republic from taking away the pretty pink principedom? What a plot for a Victor Herbert operetta. I can almost hear the tunes, can't you?

Nevertheless, this is not a comic plot but the not-so-comic truth. The story isn't ended - you'll have to learn the denouement, along with me, in the newspapers.

How many of you like the chore of dusting? I have found three ways of dusting. You must dust every round of every chair, or just dust the tops of things, or you can pull the shades. Sometimes I have found the last way isn't so bad because most days are 24 hours short and there just may not be that 25th hour to get the dusting done. So what are you to do?

Let's take a "positive approach to time." We are very prone to say, "do this or that" to save time. Just what are we saving time for? I think we should spend our time in doing the things we really want to do and it is up to every homemaker to make her own decision because she knows whom she wants to please (at least she should know.)

One of my friends decided to please her husband, herself and her children, in that order. She had up to this time been trying to please her perfectionist mother-in-law, or her drop-in visitors. She realized that she had gotten into a "keep-up-with-the-cleanliness-of-Mrs. Jones' house" sort of rut, while many more important things to her had to be neglected.

I have a very good bulletin available to those that wish it on "How Does a Young Wife Manage?" This is a reprint of an article which first appeared in the Farm Journal. In it, the best ideas of 1,500 women are combined to answer the question so many homemakers have, "I have so little to show for my work, in spite of everything I've tried to do." Contact my office for a copy of the bulletin if you wish it. It may lift you out of yourself a little while and show you that millions of other homemakers share the same frustrations and joys that you feel within the home. I would like to suggest that while you are reading it, you pull the blinds.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was taking note of several evils that is besetting the country and was recommending the cure fer same.

First off, Ed Doolittle allowed as how the Government ought to build a fence around the District of Columbia to keep the "experts" out. He claims they git more numerous with ever administration and that the New Frontier has now got more of them varmints in Washington than we got Congressmen. Ed says we need about 98 per cent of 'em like he needs them buttons on his coat sleeve. The fellers voted unanimous fer Ed's fence bill.

Clem Webster brung up the item of television advertising and allowed as how 95 per cent of it insulted what little intelligence the Lord had give him. Clem said back when he was a boy and they was studying the blueback speller, his teacher told them that "a" meant "one." If you had a apple, you had one apple. But now, claims Clem, it will be announced that we will now have "a" word from the sponsor and some feller with a voice that sounds like a bullfrog with the group will come on and demonstrate fer 10 minutes how to shave sandpaper with a electric razor. It was agreed that about all the advertising that made any sense these days was what you saw in the newspapers. Furthermore, Clem was instructed by the fellers to write a letter to our Congressman about the matter.

Zelke Grubb said everybody ought to be mighty happy about the cut in income taxes them Congressmen was fixing to give the people, but Bug Hookum throwed the damper on that item. Bug claimed it was a waste of time to decide on how to cook the rabbit till you git the rabbit. The fellers was all agreed with Bug and it was voted to make no decision on how to cook the rabbit fer a spell longer.

When we got around to discussing the November elections, the fellers was divided on account of some being Democrats and some Republicans. That was to be expected, Mister Editor. I recollect, fer instant, in the Roosevelt-Dewey campaign in 1944 when the Democrats come out one morning and claimed Roosevelt was going to carry Vermont, the Republicans come out that afternoon and claimed Dewey was going to carry South Carolina. That's the way politics works at the national level and that's the way they work at the country store, along party lines.

But the meeting adjourned on a unanimous note. All the fellers claimed that political polls ain't worth a 1962 dime. The boys at the country store ain't never been polled about nothing, and until they git polled, allowed Ed, the public trend ain't been trended. Anytime, Mister Editor, you want to know how things is going, just git me the word and I'll poll the delegation.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

County Farmers Plan Trip to Beltsville

A trip to the Beltsville Research Center for Tuscola county farmers has been discussed for several years. At a meeting July 5 of the board of directors of the Tuscola County Association of Certified Seed Growers, it was decided that with the present outlook for an early small grain harvest, this would be the year to plan the trip, according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

It was decided that the week of Aug. 6 would likely find most of the farmers pretty well finished with wheat, barley and oats harvest. The Association of Certified Seed Growers has agreed to sponsor the tour to the U. S. D. A. Research Center.

The visit to the Center, while sponsored by the County Association of Certified Seed Growers, will be open to any and all farmers whether cash crops, dairy or beef and swine producer. To eliminate the uncertainties of getting a busload more or less, each farm family will get together with neighbors and make up a carload. Arrangements will be made to meet as a group to start the 1½-day tour of the station on Tuesday noon, Aug. 7, at 1 p. m.

The Beltsville Center is located approximately 15 miles northeast of Washington, D. C., on U. S. Highway No. 1, and is about 600 miles from Caro. This means that most folks would leave on Monday, stop overnight and arrive at the station by noon Tuesday.

The tour through the Center for cash crop farmers will include: research work on sugar beets, beans, weed control, fertilizers and a discussion of foundation seed work, if the group so desires. Dairy, livestock, or farmers interested in some other phase of research would be directed to those parts of the Research Center.

Some folks have expressed an interest in observing some of the new farm machinery in use at the Center.

Beltsville is the nerve center for agricultural research covering a wide area and folks from all over the world visit there. This will be a real opportunity for many progressive farmers to take a "look" at research which some day may influence decisions made on their farms, said Ballweg.

For further details, contact the Cooperative Extension Office, Court House, Caro.

The directors of the Tuscola County Association of Certified Seed Growers are: Raymond Hecht, Reese, president; Lyle Aldrich, Fairgrove, vice-president; Russell Le Valley, Akron, secretary-treasurer; Francis Starkey and Glyde Rohlf, both of Akron, and John Sahr, R 4, Saginaw.

Stay healthy—it's a lot cheaper to stay well than to get well.

IT SEEMS TO ME
It's Good to Be Back Writing Again

By the Rev. Robert J. Searls

Well, it seems good to be back in Cass City's newspaper, chatting with old friends again. Much has happened in and around Cass City since I took 'a week or two off'. Some of it would have gotten into this column at the time, but is no longer newsworthy. As before, this column will be a commentary one week, a book review the next -- when and if I get 'unmoved' and can find the type-writer, paper and time.

Now I can speak of Hills and Dales Hospital from the inside. I had just come home from Ford Hospital in Detroit when I was entered in H and D one night about 8 o'clock. Fact is, I chased my colleague, Lloyd Wilson (pastor of the First Nazarene Church), home to get a bed. But I wander (not with Warren). This stay was a good opportunity to see just how something functioned in which I, as director of the Chaplaincy service there, had a role. What I discovered was efficiency matched with friendliness, which is a rare thing to find.

Just a word, too, about what happened to me since then that now joins me (age 41) with Melvin Vender (ageless) and others in the ranks of clergymen retired and living in Cass City. A victim of Parkinson's Disease (hereinafter - PD), I am unable to work more than a few hours of each day. But this is a wondrous age in which we live! While moving, the daily press told of a new procedure for PD, created by Dr. Irving Cooper of the St. Barnabas Hospital in New York.

This is the same fine physician who discovered the procedure ('doctoreze' for surgery) I have already had. I know by now how many letters and calls Dr. Cooper must have had from PD victims the world over; not to mention inquiries made to chiefs of Neuro-Surgery everywhere. I know my surgeon heard from me, volunteering myself for experiment (that sounds much more glamorous than to say that I wrote, begging to be among the first to have this radical new surgery).

One doesn't mind having an 'incurable' illness when hope lies ahead. In the meantime, we have moved, the children are in Seattle at the World's Fair (their maternal grandparents live in Seattle) and I hope to find news just begging to be handled in this column.

If you have some ideas about something here, wrap it in asbestos (to protect normal mail) and send it to me. I do not promise to use it, but I do promise to read it. John Haire, my boss in this enterprise, loves letters he can use and will welcome your correspondence, too. Or so it seems to me.

Pinoski received instruction in operating Morse code equipment and field radios and in Army radio procedure and maintenance. He entered the Army last January and completed basic training at Fort Knox.

The 23-year-old soldier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester L. Pinoski, Gagetown, attended Cass City High School.
