

FROM THE Editor's Corner

My wife occasionally accuses me of being a chauvinist.

And I usually reply that if that's true there are two in the Haire household. One of them is female. There may be as many as three (I have two daughters.)

Really the situation at the Haire's is only distantly related to what I'm about to prattle about today.

It's the use of Ms. for either a married or unmarried (or slightly married) female.

I'm for it. Not that it really makes any difference in the chauvinist controversy that highlights many a cocktail party. A rose by any other name would smell the same.

But using Ms. does solve plenty of problems for a beleaguered editor and staff.

Some of the stickiest wickets I've encountered have appeared after we printed Mrs. when it should have been Miss or vice versa.

Nothing stirs the fires of righteous indignation like saying they are when they ain't. It's almost as bad as printing a woman's age, although it doesn't compare with printing her age and having it off a year on the wrong side of the ledger.

Whoops! I'm digressing almost to the point of chauvinism. After all, there are some men who have been known to chop a year or so off the calendar.

What makes Ms. so beautiful is that it enables us to change our style. Prior to the female revolution when in doubt and all else failed we printed Miss or just the given name and forget the whole thing.

Now when we don't know we'll just Ms. it and no one but us will know that we didn't know.

The Chronicle gave serious consideration to dropping Mrs. throughout the paper. But we didn't. Somehow it just didn't seem right to run personal items Mr. and Ms.

So we'll continue to be mildly chauvinist around here.

But we haven't turned our back entirely on the new trend. In some stories you'll find that Ms. sprinkled throughout the story.

When? Certainly when interviewing any gal who feels offended if we don't.

And even more certainly whenever we really don't know for certain whether the subject is really single or really married.

Sometimes these days it's hard to tell.

Chauvinistic trends aside I'd predict that the new Ms. will sooner or later become the "right" way to address any woman.

That's because it does eliminate a communication bottle neck. It's more convenient.

It may be later than sooner. Language change doesn't exactly move with the speed of light.

A quarter century ago I felt that ain't was about to become an accepted, correct usage. As far as I can tell it's still in limbo.

And ain't that a shame. (Ms.) Name?

CCDC issues

$2 dividend

The board of directors of Cass City Development Corp. issued its third dividend in the 18 years it has functioned in Cass City.

Issued with the notice of the annual stockholders meeting slated Feb. 20, 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, was a check for $2.00 per share. The $2 amounts to 4 per cent on the investment of subscribers.

Clifford Croft, a member of the board, said that the most recent dividend makes a total of $14 that has been returned to investors for each $50 share of stock originally purchased.

The CCDC was organized to buy land and build a building for Walbro. Since this time land was sold to Bassett Manufacturing, Anrod Screen Cylinder Co. and Armea, Inc. More land has been purchased for future development.

The board is now in the process of completing details for building and equipping a dental clinic south of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Authorities said that the book value of the stock is currently over $150.

A WRECKER HAULS away the car from the accident scene on Richie Road where Frank Joe Jordan Jr. was instantly killed. (Photo by Ed Bergman)

Frank Jordan Jr. killed as car crashes into Richie Road stump

Frank Joe Jordan Jr., 21, of Gagetown was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon when he lost control of his car on Richie Road, just south of Bay City-Forrestville Road.

Jordan was evidently traveling south on Richie Road when he lost control of his car and left the road on the west side and hit a tree stump.

The accident was reported to Bad Axe State Police at 7:05 Tuesday night, but authorities theorized that the accident occurred sometime in the afternoon on the dead-end, little travelled road.

Medical examiner Dr. James Ballard pronounced Jordan dead at the scene. Evidently he was jammed against the steering wheel of the vehicle by the impact.

It was Tuscola county's second fatality of the year. The combination of uncertain weather and the mid-winter congregation of deer caused a number of accidents in the area over the week end.

Wednesday, Feb. 7, a collision occurred at the intersection of M-46 and M-24 in midafternoon when a car, driven by Lottie Bell Wittman, 84, of Van Gieson Road, Caro was struck in the rear by a car driven by Basil Robert Randall, 54, of the Froede Road, Kingston. Both vehicles were heading east and Ms. Wittman was waiting for traffic to clear for a left turn when the accident occurred. Randall told deputies he failed to see the Wittman car and was cited for failure to stop in a sure distance.

A two-car collision at 6:30 a.m. Thursday on Hurd's Corner Road caused minor injuries to Ila Marie Sournevck, 55, of the Jacobs Road, Gagetown, and Colleen Patricia Hawley, 48, of 4786 North Hurd's Corner Road, Cass City.

According to the report, Colleen Hawley pulled out of a driveway on the east side of the road and into the path of the Sournevck car heading south.

Friday evening at 6:40 p.m., John Porter Pugh, 46, of North Crawford Road, Deford, was heading west when a doe deer ran into the path of his car on the Deckerville Road just west of the Plain Road. Pugh was unhurt but the animal destroyed.

Saturday night just 24 hours later, at 6:30 in the evening Richard Jones, 33, of 6340 Shabbona Road, Decker, was heading east on the Deckerville Road west of the Kingston Road when a buck jumped into his path coming from the south. Again the deer was destroyed but the driver was uninjured.

Minor injuries were sustained Sunday afternoon at 2:55 p.m. when Dorothy Mabel Graboski, 45, of Detroit, slid out of control on the Hurd's Corner Road as she headed south near the Shabbona Road. The car jumped a ditch and slammed into a tree injuring Mrs. Graboski with minor injuries as well as 16-year-old Garry Graboski, a front seat passenger. Two other children were unhurt.

A two-car accident Feb. 8 resulted in substantial injuries to three persons. According to the Bad Axe State Police, Edward Keith Mitchell, 30, from Owendale, was heading south in his car, apparently crossed the centerline and struck a northbound car driven by Carl A. Lackenby, 63, of Pigeon Road, Elkton. Lackenby and his wife, Lucille, 52, were taken to Hills and Dales Hospital with their injuries while Mitchell was treated for a fractured wrist and then released.

The accident happened a little after 5 p.m., just north of the Tuscola county line on the Elkton Road.

To censor school paper

School will shield drug users trying to kick habit

The Cass City School board adopted a new policy regarding drugs and narcotics and agreed to censor the news in the school paper published by the Journalism class at the high school in actions that highlighted the board's regular meeting Monday at the high school.

The drug policy adopted was the result of several months of discussion.

Essentially it calls for school authorities to call legal authorities and parents when school children are found illegally using drugs and to shield students who voluntarily seek help to kick the drug habit.

Students asking for help will receive it from the school administration. The student will not be referred to police nor will the parents be notified.

The drug policy is one that has been pushed by Citizens for Improved Education (CIE) and others.

It is one phase of the drug abuse prevention program. Another phase is the drug survey.

The survey is designed to try and determine just how serious and wide-spread the problem is in the community. The survey is still in process.

It was revealed that the drug policy adopted did not cover smoking or alcohol. This touched off a round of debate by observers and members of the administration.

The observers quoted the school paper as a source showing that smoking in the bathrooms occurred frequently. Principal Robert Stickle said that the bathrooms are checked three times a day and that smoking as a regular thing "just isn't done". We have a couple of offenders, but haven't caught them yet. Smoking in school calls for suspension and, after three offenses, possible expulsion from school.

Several of the members objected to an article in the school paper talking about homosexual activities in a Wayne County Jail. It was reprinted from the Detroit Free Press.

Principal Russell Richards explained that the matter had been brought up in a class by a guest speaker and that was the reason for the article.

He said the article was reprinted without identifying the source. The copy had not been read before publication.

Because of the complaints, all of the copy will now be censored before publication. Richards assured the board and the members present.

John Haire, an observer, said that he felt much of the value of the course was dissipated when students were denied the opportunity to edit the paper.

Wayne Dillon reported to the board that 54 students are working as co-op students. He also explained shared time programs and named committees to serve as vocational representatives on the intermediate district level.

PAY IN ADVANCE

The board authorized a contract and payment in advance to Alan Luce, professional negotiator from Saginaw who represents the board in meetings with the Cass City Teachers Association and other school unions.

Previously Luce had been paid $350 a month on a retaining basis. Under the new arrangement he will be paid the same amount with the exception that it will be paid in advance for the rest of 1973.

A couple of other items on the agenda were broached but no decision reached.

One was adopting a name for the newsletter that the board sends at taxpayer expense to selected members of the school district. Several names have been suggested. Deciding which to use was referred to the CIE. Supt. Crouse submitted bids for a 32-inch high stage to be used at graduation and other times. Cost would be $1,349. However, a decision was delayed for further investigation. The board asked the superintendent to check with other schools to see what type stage might be best for Cass City.

It was the consensus of the board that Craig Ryland received a bargain when he purchased the school's 1968 wagon.

He was the lone bidder for the vehicle and bid $226. After much discussion on whether to reject the bid and try again it was decided to sell the car to Ryland.

Perplexing problem

Collon loses job in draft snafu

"Nice guys finish last", that famous quote of baseball manager, Leo Durocher, might just apply to the bizarre case of Dennis Collon, industrial arts teacher at Cass City Schools.

Collon resigned at the end of the first semester because he had received his draft notice for January. The school board hired Merrill Harvitt to replace him.

Collon resigned to give the school time to replace him. If he hadn't resigned, he probably would be teaching today.

The January and February draft call was axed, and Collon to replace Collon.

After discussing the affair in a session closed to the press and the public the board decided to keep Harvitt and deny Collon's request for reinstatement.

Meanwhile, Dave Stafford, of the Michigan Education Association, said that Collon's case has been referred to the union attorney.

He said that it was his understanding that Supt. Donald Crouse had asked Collon to resign his contract so that his replacement could be hired.

It is normal operating procedure to ask for formal notice when teachers plan to leave so a replacement can legally be hired.

Supt. Crouse said that he asked Collon for notice of the vacancy that was to occur, not for a resignation, and then called the Selective Service to see if there were a chance for a deferment before moving to fill the position.

It could well be that the case will finally be decided in the courts.

Civic duty a labor of love for 'smoke eater' Neitzel

Chasing fires is the most natural thing in the world for Fritz Neitzel and after 25 years of it, he still responds to the siren call almost like he did a century ago.

I guess I've always chased fires, said Fritz, as he leaned back, running his hand through steel gray hair. Doesn't every boy?

Maybe it's because my dad was a fireman in Detroit for four years.

Whatever it was, I attended fires every time the whistle blew when I first arrived in town.

After I'd been here a year there was a vacancy and Ed Baker came over and asked me to be a fireman.

You might as well join, Baker told me, you attend every fire, anyway.

Believe it or not, Neitzel recalled, I wasn't going to join. But my dad said it was a civic duty and so I said yes. That was 25 years ago and a lot of good men who were members have passed on since that day... Howard "Baldy" Ellis, Bud Burt, Mort Orr and Andy Bigelow. I took Andy's (Bigelow) place when he resigned, Neitzel said.

You know, we're better equipped and cover more territory today than we did 25 years ago. But fighting fires is still the same.

Back then we were the Cass City Fire Department and got by with just one truck. When the township took us over we became the Elkland Township Fire Department and added a second unit.

The first fire we fought out of town was just a mile north, Fritz said.

Now, of course the department is on call for the entire township plus many sections of surrounding townships for which they receive stand-by fees.

Actually, says Fritz, we fight fires wherever we are called. We have agreements with other county communities through the Tuscola County Firemen's Association. We go when called, they come when called.

If necessary we can go to Marlette or other communities when a major fire call goes out.

Sometimes it takes a near-disaster to bring about changes. Two-way radios became standard operating equipment after a fire south of town. I can still see it plainly, says Fritz.

It was a simple grass fire, not very big, not very potent. But the excitement caused the lady of the house to succumb to a heart attack.

She was lying on the ground and the fire was slowly licking its way towards her and the grandmother, evidently hobbled with the infirmities of age, was trying her best to stamp it out around her daughter, one slow step at a time.

A while later a State Police car from Bad Axe came and called for an ambulance.

We could see the need, says Fritz, so the firemen chipped in and bought one with their own money. That was the first one, now we have better equipment paid for by the township, Neitzel explained.

For Neitzel fighting a blaze at the end of the hose is where it's at. I guess I'm just an old fashioned smoke eater, he said, with a rueful grin and a hint of pride.

You know, he added, some guys like to drive the truck. That's not for me. I never drive. The only fire school I never attended teaches volunteers how to drive the fire truck. But I've been to four others, showing the latest fire fighting techniques, he said.

Neitzel and the rest of the volunteers needed all the expertise they could muster and a little more at the two worst blazes that Fritz can recall in his 25 years.

The first was a barn fire on the Donahue farm just north of the village limits. It happened in the middle of the night and it was so light that you could read a paper from the glow of the blaze, says Fritz.

Just as bad, and perhaps worse, was the fire at the former Frutchey Bean Elevator. The sky was lighted for miles around.

While Fritz will talk freely about most things connected with the department, he's a clam about one subject. The danger connected with the job.

Our wives worry enough, he says. You'll never get a fireman to tell about close calls.

It's obvious that the men don't want the ladies to know everything. What Fritz does want everyone to know, however, is that the wives play an important role to the firemen.

Peg gets me up, gets my clothes and holds the garage door on those midnight fires. She's responsible for getting me there on time. Every fireman's wife deserves all kinds of praise, he contends.

She keeps me going, Fritz added. While Neitzel didn't say so, it's obvious that the luster of fire fighting hasn't dulled over the years.

It's likely that the 25-year department veteran will keep at it as long as he can handle the nozzle at the end of a hose... and as long as his wife can keep the garage door open.

WHEN THAT PHONE rings Fritz Neitzel is ready. Twenty-five years hasn't dulled the luster of fighting fires for loquacious Fritz.

ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pettinger of Ubyly announce the engagement of Ardis Pettinger to Wayne Dean, son of Lyle Dean of Bad Axe and the late Lillian Dean. Ardis Pettinger is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Pettinger. An April wedding is planned.

Mrs. Daniel B. Crumm

Cheryl June Letterman became the bride of Daniel B. Crumm Dec. 2, 1972, at a three o'clock Nuptial Mass at St. Agatha Church, Gagetown.

The Rev. Fr. Donald Christensen officiated at the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Letterman Jr. of Gagetown and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Crumm of Sebawaing.

Miss Janet Zaraw, soloist, was accompanied on the organ by Miss Debbie LaFave.

The bride approached the altar at her father's side in a modified Empire waist gown of bridal taffeta, adorned with imported French lace which was frosted with miniature pearls. It was designed with a high neckline and bishop sleeves.

Its back featured a built-in Chapel train. All was topped with a matching lace edged Cathedral veil secured to a Camelot headdress.

She carried a bouquet of white mums and streamers.

Marlene Van Hoost of Unionville attended her cousin as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown, in floral print on white moire, of A-line styling with gathered ruffle at the hemline. The jumper-like bodice was royal blue velvet with a Victorian neckline and long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations and wore a floral headpiece of blue and white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Marilyn Letterman of Cass City, sister-in-law of the bride; Donna Burke of Gagetown, cousin of the bride, and Sara Peirce of Kalamazoo, sister of the groom. They wore gowns, identically styled to the maid of honors, in deep purple and carried similar bouquets and floral headpieces in matching colors.

Royal Van Hoost of Unionville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a miniature wedding gown styled like the bride's. It was made by her grandmother, Mrs. Alvin Hoppe. She wore a circlet of blue and white carnations in her hair and carried a similar bouquet.

Tom Holland of Sebawaing, friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsman were Mike Winters of Sebawaing, friend of groom, Richard Peirce of Kalamazoo, brother-in-law of the groom, and Donald Letterman, with the Armed Forces, brother of the bride.

Peter A. Letterman of Cass City, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Peter M. Letterman IV of Cass City, brother of the bride, and David Kain of Sebawaing, friend of the groom, seated guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 400 guests was held in the American Legion Hall in Unionville.

The bride's mother greeted guests in a floor-length gown of Amber taffeta with a ruffled hem and featuring an Empire bodice of brown velvet, long sleeves with Amber taffeta wristlets. Her accessories were gold and she wore a corsage of bronze mums and a matching floral headpiece. The mother of the groom chose for her ensemble, a gown of royal blue velvet with satin sand colored cuffs, collar, and jabot. Her accessories were blue and sand colored and she wore blue and white flowers in her hair.

The cake table was centered with a bridge cake made by the groom's mother.

Pre-nuptial showers were given by Marilyn Letterman, Donna Burke, Marlene Van Hoost, Sara Peirce and Mrs. Ray Krause.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Crumm are residing at 61 1/2 E. Main St. in Sebawaing.

Everyone needs a DPH

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Professional baseball, American League variety, is showing the rest of us how to live. What this world needs is more Designated Pinch Hitters (DPH).

There may be some of you who don't know what I'm talking about. Generally, it is hard for me to communicate with anyone who wouldn't faint at the sight of Hank Greenberg. But herewith is a quick explanation of DPH for all you opera lovers.

Historically, with the exception of guys like Red Ruffing and Freddy Hutchinson, pitchers have been lousy hitters. Which is really not as unbalanced as it might sound because it is just as historical that hitters are lousy pitchers. I remember once when outfielder Rocky Catovito tried pitching. He was so wild all people sitting within 50 yards of home plate were automatically placed on the endangered species list.

Of course, there are some hitters who not only can't pitch, they can't hit, either. They are generally called fielders when they are on defense. When they are at bat, they are called bums. DPH will have an effect on the lives of baseball players who can't hit because they are pitchers, and also upon the lives of players who can't hit because they are bums.

Another thing: DPH will also make a big change in the lives of players who can't pitch and can't field but can hit. There are a lot of these players. They are generally known as big bums except when they get a hit. The Detroit Tigers have a couple of these non-fielding hitters. One is Frank Howard who is so big that, during night games, the other players have to keep telling him not to stand in the light. Howard can hit a ball 52 miles but he can't hang onto a ball unless it is mailed to him in a box. The Tigers had planned to station Howard in deep centerfield this year, with the American flag tied to his head. But now they can use him as a DPH.

By now, DPH is probably clear to even those readers who never had been dripped on them from the upper deck. The idea is that the pitcher, or maybe the slick-fielding bum, won't bat anymore.

Say the Tiger pitcher is Mickey Lolich. Your sick grandmother on crutches can hit better than he can. So when it is Lolich's turn to go to the plate, he sits down instead. Frank Howard takes his place. Unless your grandmother is available.) This goes on for the entire game but Lolich can keep pitching and Howard doesn't have to try to catch the ball unassisted by a mailman.

I probably should have pointed out earlier to you opera lovers that, under the old rules, Lolich could not have returned to the game after Howard batted for him the first time. He would have taken "an early shower" as clever sports announcers are often heard to say. Under DPH, Lolich will work longer between showers which may cut down on the number of conferences between Lolich and his catcher.

Also, before DPH, Howard could not bat for Lolich more than once unless he also played a defensive position, usually left field or 1st base depending on which way his manager wanted the field to tilt.

Now that you understand what a Designated Pinch Hitter is, you can certainly see how wonderful it would be if we all had one. I am a marvelous driver, for instance, but I am no good at changing license plates. My DPH would do it for me.

You might be good at reading the financial pages, but lousy at reading this type of nonsense. Your DPH could read it for you. I'd part his hair with partici-

IN BAND - Two students from Cass City participated in the annual Tri-county honors band, staged this year at Laker High School. Selected to play from Cass City were Jeanne Alexander, flute (left) and Katherine Kloc, bass clarinet. Next year the honors band performance is tentatively slated at Cass City, said Director George Bushong. (Photo by Bushong)

Festival kicks off busy music season

The busy season for the Cass City Schools instrumental music department starts this week when the annual Senior High Solo and Ensemble Festival is scheduled at Davison High School Saturday starting at 8:56 a.m.

Cass City musicians will compete in 18 events, Director George Bushong reported this week.

After the Senior High Festival the spotlight switches to Cass City when a festival concert will be staged by the Senior band at the Cass City gym Tuesday, March 13.

Other activities for the band include: March 17 - Sr. High Band Festival.

Late April - Intermediate Bands concert.

Mid-May - High School "pops" concert.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

When our ad gal was around talking about Boy Scout week recently, Dick Erla relayed that it is national apple month and why don't I say something about it?

Why not indeed. The best way that I can think of to show how wonderful apples really are is to have Dick's wife, Chris, that premier cook, bake an apple pie and drop it off at 4172 South Seeger.

A new wrinkle in raffles for worthy causes is to limit the number of tickets sold. Cass City Rotary is doing this on a trip for two to Las Vegas . . . selling just 250 tickets at $5 per copy.

It's effective, too. Over the years I've sold tickets for just about every type of raffle there is in various fund raising schemes.

The other day, for the first time, someone asked me to sell them a ticket. I was astonished. . . barely recovering in time to whip out my pen, write his name down and collect the $5. I hope he wins.

The names are withheld to protect the guilty, but I just have to tell this.

A couple of weeks ago, a king of jokers called the home of a Cass City family. . . a family with a hefty income tax payment every year.

The caller lives in Bad Axe. Posing as a member of the internal revenue bureau he proceeded to instruct his victim to prepare for an audit in Saginaw.

Bring all your records for the last three years, he said, and then went on in great detail in the same vein for about five minutes before cracking up with laughter.

He left his subject just a little weak in the knees and with a strong determination to get even.

The chance came when the families were at a buyers' convention. The gal who had been victimized knew one thing about her tormentor. . . he liked to sleep in. Especially after a night conventioning.

So she instructed the desk clerk to wake her at 5:30 a.m. the next morning, adding that she was a heavy sleeper and to be sure to call back again at 6 a.m. to make sure she was up.

After stressing again the importance of the calls, she gave the room number of her friend, the income tax kid.

Poetic justice.

Mike Klinkman, a senior at Cass City, is in a dilemma. Mike had the rare distinction of becoming a National Merit Scholarship semi-finalist last year.

Because he was, Northern Michigan University has offered him a scholarship of $1,500 a year for four years.

So what's the problem? Mike had his mind made up. . . he was going to the University of Michigan to study pre-law. Now he isn't quite sure just what he will do.

If you have to have problems, these are the kind to have.

Caro girls at 4-H training session

Several older 4-H members attended a special Recreation Team Training Session at Camp Kett Feb. 7-8.

The young people from Caro were Landa LeValley, Kathy Merz and Marie LaJoie. Their adult advisor was Mrs. Jack LeValley who is the county 4-H Service Club advisor.

Any group who would like more information or help on recreation for youth should contact the county 4-H office.

Nixon budget cuts stymie plan for sewer

The county's Department of Public Works received bad news last week when they learned that President Nixon's budget cutbacks have apparently stalled the plans for sanitary sewers in the Akron-Fairgrove area.

Akron-Fairgrove was to be the fifth Tuscola county area to embark on a sewer project with a half a million dollars in federal participation. Reese and Millington have completed their projects. Kingston has nearly completed its sewer system and Mayville is in the planning stage. The plans for Akron-Fairgrove were to build a lagoon disposal system in between the towns with the pipelines from each town emptying into the lagoon. Construction of homes has been stalled pending completion of the system but the delay will apparently be indefinite.

Letters to Editor

We want the community involved in education

Feb. 12, 1973
Letter To The Editor
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich. 48726

Mr. Haire:

We would like to add the following thoughts to last week's article.

What has the CIE accomplished as a group?

We wanted to initiate a parent-volunteer group to assist teachers in the classroom. This has been done and although we are now doing this it's too soon to evaluate the effectiveness and success of such a service. It is our hope we can involve more parents and citizens in this area. By the entire community becoming involved in education it becomes more meaningful, exciting, and we will all gain from the experience.

It was stated in last week's article that we would like a parent in every classroom, not because we distrust our teachers but we believe they can use our help. The teachers thus far have seemed pleased with our efforts.

We wanted to increase the safety of village children in going to and from school. And although the Village is proposing some safety precautions we feel it is not enough. Crossing guards would be more effective and would give a chance for some of our senior citizens to supplement their incomes by serving as those crossing guards. This is one of our future goals. But at least for the present some improvement will be made. We will be working with safety in the school bus. There is much room for improvement in this area.

Thus far we have found the school most responsive in our endeavor to become actively involved in our school system. They have welcomed our interest and by being concerned with education, we convey to our children that education is an important part of their lives and will hopefully reinforce an added motivation to learn.

What are our future goals? To promote programs that will make our community a better place to live, work and play and to recapture a genuine community spirit to become involved, this pertains to all ages. If we are to make any real progress in alleviating some of our social ills we must remain open to new ideas and approaches. We welcome involvement of all and will encourage our young adults to take an active part in their school and community.

Our young adults are sometimes put down or discouraged when they suggest changes, we believe they can be helpful in the search for new solutions to some of our existing problems. We hope to encourage a more meaningful contact with them. Though our efforts to change or improve our community may not accomplish a great deal immediately, we will not be easily discouraged or distracted. As a Chinese proverb has it, every long journey begins with a step, we believe we have taken that step.

Joyce M. Lane

Thank you wonderful teens

Feb. 12, 1973

Dear Editor,

Would you please print this in your paper. We hear so much about Generation Gap, and these so called bad Teenagers. It isn't so in Cass City, we have wonderful young people, if given a chance. We know. This is what happened on Thur. Feb. 1st, when our car stalled on the corner of Huron and Seeger St. Three young men drove up in a dark blue pickup truck, stopped got out, asked if they could help. They did.

They pushed our car across the street and it started, and as we couldn't stop at that moment, and they were on their way back to school, we didn't get a chance to get their names or to thank them.

And we really want to thank them for being so thoughtful and kind to older people. So a big Thank You to three gentlemen.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Creguer
P.S. Thanks also to the Editor.

Local solons move to kill sewage farms

Four legislators interested in the future welfare of several counties in Michigan's Thumb area are taking steps to pressure the United States corps of engineers to abandon its plans to create huge sewage farms in that area.

Sen. Alvin J. DeGrow (R-Pigeon) said he, Rep. Quincy Hoffman (R-Applegate), Rep. Loren Armbruster (R-Caro) and Sen. Patrick McCollough (D-DeARBorn) are gathering support for a legislative resolution demanding that the army engineers abandon the sewage farm plans.

"The army engineers have come up with a grandiose scheme to turn an estimated 1,100 square miles of the northern Thumb area into giant sewage farms to dispose of liquid waste from the metropolitan area," said Sen. DeGrow.

"This wild project could be expected to cost billions of dollars and certainly would eliminate one of Michigan's finest agricultural areas, to say nothing of destroying a fine tourist and resort area.

"If this brainstorm is allowed to reach fruition, it will mean that many longtime residents of the area will have to move elsewhere. We certainly intend to do all in our power to thwart this wild flight of engineering fancy."

Sen. DeGrow said the army engineers envision their project as making lush farmland out of some marginal land while disposing of up to 2.7 billion gallons of raw sewage and storm water daily.

"Most of the land that would be involved is valued at from $500 to $1,200 an acre right now and undoubtedly will increase in the years ahead," said Sen. DeGrow.

"It is unthinkable that we should permit the army to carry out this impractical scheme.

"Most of the industrial waste would come from the Detroit area and these inorganic wastes will form a crust over the soil rather than promoting plant growth.

"I just cannot believe that we want such wastes as mercury, lead and cyanide sprayed over land that is growing beans, sugar beets and other edible crops.

"We cannot just sit back and think the engineers will not carry out this wild-eyed proposal. The people of Huron, Tuscola and other nearby counties must join with the legislature in building a backfire to stop this thing before it gets out of hand."

THE WALLS OF THE $1 million skilled nursing home under construction for Provincial House Inc. are about complete. Authorities say that construction is well within the June opening target date. Now there are about nine men working on the building. When the roof is up and the building is heated, 30 or more men will be on the job.

The Cass City facility is one of many under construction by the corporation. We have about $40 million in building construction underway at the present time, said one spokesman.

Sentence Miller to Jackson prison

In Tuscola County Circuit Court several sentences were handed down in criminal matters.

Terry Miller, 20, Decker, was sentenced to Jackson Prison for from 2 to 4 years, for larceny from a building. Miller has a substantial record of appearances in district and circuit court and Judge Norman Baguley recommended that he be given vocational training.

Terry Lynn Mammario, 18, of Caro, was put on six months' probation, ordered to pay $200 costs at the rate of $35 a month. The first five days of her term is to be spent in the Tuscola County Jail. She was convicted on her own plea of concealing stolen goods.

Mark Richard Bluer, 19, Millington, had his sentence delayed for a year after his plea of guilty to the charge of larceny in a building for the theft of a snowmobile suit from an elevator in Mayville.

Harold Brown, 61, Millington, stood mute on the charge of taking indecent liberties. His bond remains at $1000.

Charge youth with concealing stolen property

State Police arrested Charles Witkovsky in Caseville Sunday on a charge of concealing stolen property with a value of over $100.

Police allege that Witkovsky had snowmobile parts in the trunk of his car, including a small engine, snowmobile rails, snowmobile spark plugs and other snowmobile parts.

The parts were allegedly taken from Marshall Distributing, Inc., where Witkovsky was employed.

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson assisted in the investigation.

Also under investigation by Cass City police was a larceny at Cass City Schools. Ronald Sieradzki reported a watch, cigarette lighter and $3 taken from his locker while he was in gym class.

Investigation later revealed the watch on the floor of an adjacent locker. The other items have not been found.

Big Brothers need helpers, says director

Big Brothers of Tuscola County now has offices at 230 North State Street in Caro and David Parsch, director, is looking for volunteers to serve as Big Brothers.

The only real qualification necessary to help as a Big Brother, Parsch says, is that the man be interested in helping fatherless boys ages 6-17.

In Tuscola county it is estimated that there are 400 fatherless boys.

Men interested in sharing time with one boy on a regular basis to help contribute to the boy's personal development and render a service to the community are asked to contact the Caro office (phone 673-6996).

County residents can also call the Caro office to register a boy for involvement as a Little Brother.

Office hours are:
Monday: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Tuesday: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Wednesday: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Thursday: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Friday: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

$400 loss in one of 3 area fires

The Elkland Township Fire Department answered three alarms during the week. Two of the calls were minor and the third was a house fire Wednesday, Feb. 7, at the George Hawley home on Seelye Road, five miles west of Cass City.

A chimney leading to a coal burning heater overheated and fire broke out in the attic of the building. Firemen estimated the loss at $400.

Saturday night the fire fighters were called to the home of Cleo Spaulding to kill a blaze in a dog house on the farm, about six miles southwest of Cass City.

The final alarm was turned in Monday evening to distinguish a blaze in a fish shanty at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Damoth, Cass City.

ROTARY TRAVEL & ADVENTURE SERIES

"Lumberjack's Alaskan Adventure"

"LUMBERJACK'S ALASKAN ADVENTURE" is a thrilling arm-chair trip to a part of our 49th State, that few know exists. This all-color film is an intriguing pictorial diary of an Alaskan logger and his buddy. Their bold adventures will take us to one of the greatest stands of virgin timber on the North American continent. We will see magnificent scenery, and wade through lush meadows and fish-filled streams. This is probably the most spectacular true-life adventure ever filmed, and Don Cooper is one of the most fascinating personalities.

R. Schroeder dies in hospital

Robert L. Schroeder, 84, of Gagetown died Saturday, Feb. 10, in Huron Memorial Hospital at Bad Axe following a lengthy illness.

He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, July 8, 1888, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schroeder.

He married Miss Glennella Reid in Cincinnati in 1912, where the couple made their home until moving to Detroit. He had resided in Gagetown for the past five years.

Mr. Schroeder was in the purchasing department for the City of Detroit before his retirement.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Richard (Alma) Mouton of Gagetown, Mrs. Burton (Helen) Whitehead and Mrs. Josephine Waite, both of Wayne, and Mrs. Glennella Sawoinski of Dearborn Heights, and four sons, George and Gerald Schroeder, both of Fraser, Richard Schroeder of Gagetown and Adolph Schroeder of Wyandotte.

Others are: a sister, Mrs. William Wiggins of Cincinnati, three brothers, Cletus, Herman and Leonard Schroeder, all of Cincinnati; 45 grandchildren, 65 great-grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at St. Agatha church, Gagetown. The Rev. Donald Christensen officiated. Burial was in St. Agatha cemetery. Little's Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Jill Bardwell on WMU dean's list

Beehive

Tier upon tier, window by window, modern apartment and office buildings are like human beehives. The people who live and work in them are often as busy as bees, too. Each day rushes by, each hour is filled, and when morning comes, it starts all over again.

Monotonous? Well, sometimes it is both monotonous and discouraging to live and work in a beehive. It seems as if you're just a drone, as if individuality has flown out the window. But is this true?

Whether you live in a palace or a penthouse, a hut or a one-room efficiency, you are you. Your uniqueness is your God-given gift. Your potential to be different, your capacity for accomplishment, is infinite.

If you've lost sight of that fact, you've been forgetting something — like going to church, maybe?

If I happen to talk about the dangers of smoking to a few lay people, some of them are likely to tell me that they are satisfied that the statistics are not sufficient to show that smoking cigarettes can produce cancer of the lungs, or that tobacco smoking of any kind can produce cancers here and there in several parts of the body. Or they tell me of someone they know who never smoked a day in his life, and died of lung cancer.

But it might influence some of these people if they could read the release that was just sent me by the New York State Department of Health. The State Health Commissioner, Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, reported the results of a study of 4,491 members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Medical Society of New York. The women were questioned about their own smoking habits and those of their husbands.

Dr. Ingraham learned that "Smoking has become a personal 'no-no' for almost three-fourths of the physicians in New York state, and more than 60 per cent of their wives." As the women told the researchers, of the physicians who had once smoked, only 19 per cent were still smokers, and of the wives who had once smoked, 25 per cent were still smokers. In both groups, the rate of consumption averaged about one pack per day. In contrast, a 1968 survey showed that the number of physicians who had stopped smoking at that time was about 65 per cent; the number of wives who stopped smoking at that time was 40 per cent.

It was noted that smokers tend to be married to smokers, and non-smokers tend to be married to non-smokers or former smokers. Nearly 54 per cent of the physicians' wives who stopped smoking said they quit for reasons other than a health warning, family request, or participation in the anti-smoking programs. About 13 per cent responded to a physician's warning, while 12 per cent listed multiple reasons for quitting. Of those wives still smoking, almost 27 per cent said they would like to stop. Nearly 40 per cent were undecided on the question of quitting.

Another survey was reported concerning the smoking habits of Florida physicians. Drs. J. Fulghum, M. Groover Jr., A. Williams, and W. Braatz studied the smoking habits of 5,736 Florida physicians in 1972. The researchers learned that 27 per cent of the physicians never smoked cigarettes; 45 per cent smoked cigarettes previously but have now quit, and 18 per cent are now smoking them. In comparing statistics with a survey made in 1964, the researchers found that fewer physicians are now starting to smoke; in 1964, 25 per cent had never smoked; also more doctors are quitting each year.

They also learned that with reference to age, older physicians are discontinuing the pipe and cigars, but the heavy two-plus-pack-per-day cigarette smoker is continuing to smoke. Younger smokers are not taking up smoking cigarettes, but some do start smoking pipes or cigars. The more years the doctors had smoked, and the heavier smoker they were, the less successful they were at quitting.

Interestingly, urologists and obstetrician and gynecologists smoke the most cigarettes, while pathologists (experts who study tissues to determine whether they are normal or diseased) and radiologists smoke the least. It is possible that the pathologists and radiologists smoke less because in the course of their work, they see cancerous lungs, and the various changes that cigarette smoke can bring in the lung tissue and all down the digestive tract.

The doctors were asked about seven of the diseases in which some evidence of association with cigarette smoking has definitely been found—lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, empysema, oral pharynx cancer (the pharynx is the throat), coronary artery disease, peptic ulcers, and cancer of the urinary bladder. Of the physicians who reported that they had one of these diseases, most were smokers who had quit—obviously not soon enough. A 65-year-old urologist reported having lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema and coronary heart disease. In all but two cases, the smoker quit the habit when he learned that he had the disease.

A third of the heavy smokers who quit said that when they stopped using tobacco, their health had definitely improved. Another study, reported to the American Heart Association by David M. Spain of Brooklyn, should interest women particularly, because the doctor said that autopsy data, collected over 20 years, shows that women are catching up with men in the incidence of death from heart attacks. Dr. Spain says that this increase seems to be attributable chiefly to the increasing use of cigarettes by young women.

Twenty years ago, men under 51 years of age were 12 times more vulnerable to sudden heart death than were women within the same age bracket. Today the ratio is 4 to 1. Until 10 years ago, it was rare for women up to the age of 50 who were free of diseases such as diabetes and high blood pressure, or excess levels of blood fats, such as increase the chance of heart disease, to die suddenly from heart attacks.

Dr. Spain says also that all cigarette smokers, whatever the cause of death, appeared to have had their life expectancy dramatically shortened. Non-smokers in the sudden death group had a mean age of 67 years. For heavy smokers it was only 48 years, while for moderate smokers it was 55.

Legion Auxiliary slates projects

Twenty, including several guests, attended the monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Monday evening in the Cultural Center.

During the business meeting, members voted a contribution to the county March of Dimes drive. The group authorized an order for 1,500 poppies for the May 17, 18 and 19 annual Poppy Sale.

The Auxiliary is to furnish seven ladies' handkerchiefs and Mother's Day cards for the Saginaw VA Hospital.

The next district meeting will be March 4 at Reese when past district presidents and commanders will be honored.

Members signed cards to be sent to three hospitalized members, Mae Wise, Jean Quinn and Ruth Stapleton.

Mrs. Joyce Sparring of Yale, Seventh district association president, was a guest and discussed the year's programs with the Unit.

At the close of the meeting, games were played and refreshments served by Mrs. Eva Bair and her committee. The door prize went to Mrs. Rosella Cherry.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

One of the fellers at the country store Saturday night wanted to know what come of plans to celebrate the country's 200th birthday. He said he recalled reading about a committee being named to work on it, but he ain't seen anything about what the committee is doing. The question got discussion going among the fellers, and I give Ed Doolittle a chance to get in a few words for Abe Lincoln.

Bug Hookum was of a mind the bicentennial committee still is alive, but it wasn't doing anything exciting enuff to make the papers. Bug said it's hard to git folks worked up over sompun three year off when they is so much being done to em now. This was special true in a national election year, went on Bug, when voters had a hard time jest seeing beyond the promises of the politicians.

While Bug was catching his breath, Ed, that carries a picture of Honest Abe in the back of his watch, said he wondered how Abe would of handled some of the problems we got in this country today. For instant, said Ed, if Abe was in charge now, deals like the breaking in at Democratic headquarters and paying college boys to spy on Democratic candidates would go a long way toward gitting rid of the "honest" in front of his name. Ed said Abe was the daddy of the Republican Party, but he wouldn't be to proud of some of his offspring he found running things now.

Clem Webster allowed them was harsh words coming from Republican Ed, but they hold true all across the political scene today. Clem said the other feller that has a birthday this month was the daddy of the whole country, and if he could see what we has managed to git into in 200 year he'd probable be as ashamed as he was amazed. One of the first things George would recommend, declared Clem, would be to change the name of the capital. To call the city by the same name you call the man that couldn't tell a lie jest wouldn't set well with George, allowed Clem.

General speaking, said Zeke Grubb, history is a one-sided report no matter who gits it up. Abe and George had some rough scrapes in their day, he said, and he was of a mind they wouldn't be all that surprised by anything they found. They ain't a whole lot new in politics since Ceazer had that little mixup with Brutus, was Zeke's words.

Politics has been called the art of the possible, declared Zeke, and whether a politician is dealing with $10 and 10 voters or 100 million of each jest means you have the same problems with less and more choices with more. After 200 year, declared Zeke, we've jest figgered more ways to pull the same wool over more eyes.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Hollowell rites held in Kentucky

Funeral services were held Friday in Winchester, Ky., for Mrs. Bess R. Hollowell, who died Wednesday, Feb. 7, at the Fisher Nursing Home in Mayville.

Mrs. Hollowell was born in Tyler, Tex., March 5, 1893. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. John Barker. She was married to Howard Hollowell in Tyler in January, 1922. He died in 1968.

Mrs. Hollowell came to Cass City in 1970 from Royal Oak, where she was a member of the VFW Auxiliary. She taught school for a number of years before retiring, and was a member of the First United Methodist church of Winchester, Ky. She had been a patient at the nursing home since August, 1971.

Surviving are: a daughter, Mrs. Bruce (Pat) Gee of Cass City; a son, Philip Hollowell of Houston, Tex.; a brother and two sisters, all of Texas; four grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Prayer services were conducted at Little's Funeral Home Wednesday evening, with Rev. Elizabeth Isaacs of Trinity United Methodist church officiating. Burial was in Winchester, Ky.

Patience may be a virtue, but not when it is spent waiting for something to turn up.

BPW club hears Mrs. Henderson

Thirty members attended the BPW club meeting Wednesday, Feb. 7, at Veronica's Restaurant.

Phyllis Wenk, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Mollie Henderson of Sandusky, a lecturer for Diet Watchers, who spoke about food and diets.

The club voted to send $50 to the BPW Club of Managua, Nicaragua, for members made destitute by the recent earthquake. Members discussed methods of assisting in the campaign to get doctors and dentists to come to Cass City.

NO EASY SOLUTION

The high cost of living is one problem—and the taste for high living adds still another.

Elect Cliff Croft lumber Veep

Clifford Croft of Cass City was elected vice-president of the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers Association at the group's annual convention held last week at Grand Rapids. Attending the convention with Croft was Elwyn Helwig.

20 ladies learn menu planning

"The Things Kids (Should) Eat" was the main topic at the Cooperative Extension Service recent lesson "Little Meals for Little Folks", taught by Mrs. Sherry Lowell, Extension Home Economist.

Feb. 7, 20 women participated in the lesson and played food games. They represented six extension study groups and three cooperative nurseries in this area. Mrs. Janet Ihle of Caro received one year's subscription to Young Homemaker magazine upon winning one game of Basic 4 Food Bingo. While the mothers learned about menu planning for little folks, attractive food service and nutritious snack ideas, their ten preschool children thoroughly enjoyed making macaroni necklaces at the nursery planned and conducted by Mrs. Beverly Hartman and Mrs.

Alma Wald of Gagetown. Mrs. Ethel Young of Reese acted as hostess for the lesson. Three foods prepared especially for children were eaten by everyone after the lesson.

Plan joint 4-H summer camp

Tuscola county 4-H leaders have made plans to hold a joint 4-H youth camp this summer with Huron and Sanilac counties.

The camp will be held at Sleeper State Park during the week of July 9-14. It will be open to 9 to 14-year-old youths and will make plans to include youth 14 years and older as counselors.

All interested youth should contact their local 4-H club or contact the county 4-H office, Civil Defense Center, Caro.

The best turn some men can do is to turn back and start over.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Sally J. Goodall and Gary B. Silvernail were mid-year graduates of Central Michigan University. Mrs. Goodall is teaching in the fifth grade at Campbell Elementary School.

Bonnie Spencer, who is a senior at Alma College, is treasurer of the Physics Club there.

Mrs. Jack Laurie is elected Thursday by Farm Bureau Women as their representative for a meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World.

James Knoblet, a junior at Albion College, left for France where he will spend the semester studying the French language and the customs of the country.

The George McKee family was the winner of a free week-end holiday at a Pick motel, provided by local merchants.

Walter Bertel of Snover was injured when the milk tank truck he was driving crashed into two concrete abutments on M-46.

TEN YEARS AGO

Voters have shown more than ordinary interest in the village primary election. Two new trustees are sure to be nominated. Incumbent Leo Ware is dropping out of local politics and veteran trustee Lee Rabideau is scheduled to move up as village president.

Teachers of Cass City High School receiving supplementary pay have been asked to attend a special board of education meeting to tell why this pay should not be dropped from next year's contracts.

The sign-up for the 1963 feed grain program in the ASCS county office is being held. Mike Singer, chairman, said provisions follow those for 1961 and 1962 crops by giving feed grain producers an opportunity to participate in the program by reducing acreage at least 20 percent and devoting them to an approved conserving use.

Ten-year-old Lynn Atwell of Cass City won the first place trophy in the 10-year-old and under category at the Michigan Ski Meet at Holly.

Cass City is slated to receive $3,721 as its portion of the $46,177,676 fourth quarter Motor Vehicle Highway Fund collections being distributed to the state; 83 counties, and 511 incorporated cities and villages.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

D. A. Krug, Shellane bottled gas distributor of Cass City, was presented with a bronze plaque by J. W. Southworth in recognition of 17 years of business relationship with the Shell Oil Company.

A letter to the Erwin Binders from Mrs. Ali B. Jarman in Fairbanks, Alaska, stated that the lowest temperature up there, so far, was 36 degrees below zero. It also said that prices were increasing and the fuel bill for the parsonage and church alone amounted to $162.80.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Maharg were hosts of Grant-Elkland Grange which met at the Bird schoolhouse. It was reported that during the recent Friendship Caravan drive in Tuscola county, Grant-Elkland Grange raised $93.20 for beans. The contribution was made by individual members in either beans or cash. The beans were sold to local elevators and the cash was sent to Saginaw where all the beans were bought and shipped to France.

The Woman's study club met in the home of Mrs. Raymond McCullough. Mrs. John Safran spoke on "Interracial Understanding. What Constitutes Race." Mrs. S. P. Kinn spoke on "Cultural Contributions of People of Another Color."

$17,562.25 has been raised during the drive which has been in progress for about 5 weeks to secure funds for the Community Hospital, according to reports sent to Willis Campbell, campaign manager.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

All farmers owning a few swarms of bees as a sideline are invited to attend a beekeepers' school in the basement of the Tuscola county courthouse in Caro.

The Detroit Edison Company has scheduled five cooking schools for Tuscola county at which women are invited to attend a free demonstration of electric cooking. Miss Marian Pyan will conduct the demonstration each afternoon.

Members of the common council of Cass City were presented with a petition signed by 279 citizens asking that the council by resolution or ordinance prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages on Sundays.

Ralph Partridge has been appointed as an authorized dealer in the Case "77" line of farm machinery. He will carry stocks of Case repairs and machines.

Frank Bullock, son of William Bullock of Evergreen township and Arthur Seltzer were two Central State Teachers' College students who represented that normal school in a debate before a radio audience over WKAR in East Lansing. Both students are members of the college "negative" league team.

AROUND THE FARM Calf mortality key dairy problem

By Don Kebler

If a number one priority of importance is to be defined in a total dairy operation, it would be that of reducing dairy calf mortality. Second to this will be calf care to produce a thrifty, vigorous healthy high production cow.

Actually there are no ifs as to the number one dairy operation priority among economists, researchers and dairy operations when they all declare calf mortality is number one.

After all, why shouldn't the calf be the most important foundation and stepping stone for a growing, vigorous and successful dairy operation?

I need not expound on the merits of the sound, healthy calf raised healthy into a high producing dairy cow to dairymen. They know the value of the total lifetime milk production of their top cows. They also know the value of that good thrifty calf they save for sale purposes.

Knowing all this, and having extreme concern in the way too high calf mortality rate, these dairymen no longer feel they can neglect their calf program. They now are willing to devote the time, investment and operating costs, and calf management techniques necessary to remedy high calf mortality problems. They are placing as high priority on calf housing as free-stalls and milking parlors and are devoting more time and care to their calves' health and development.

The trend toward improved calf housing facilities is a structural system involving controlled atmosphere housing. These units are insulated, heated in the winter to a 50 to 55 degree F. temperature, ventilated, dry and allow for a regular complete exchange of air. The most critical period in a calf start to good health is the first 6 to 8 weeks after birth. These units are designed and managed for this critical period.

In the last three years, county dairy operators like the Clare, Dick and Robert Carpenters, Ronald Opperman and Sons, Ronald Hampshire and Walter Will have gone to the controlled atmosphere calf housing units. There are others in various stages of construction too.

We have a unique controlled atmosphere feeder calf production unit now in operation in our county. David Moody who lives east of Deford is using this system to care for and produce feeder calves to market as feeder cattle.

I don't wish to infer that the only way to produce healthy, thrifty dairy calves and decrease mortality is by having a controlled atmosphere unit. Healthy calves can and are being raised in cold atmosphere systems and having low mortality rates. Special care and more management hours are required to do a proper job.

Heat lamps are used to protect the newly born calves from the chill until their body thermostat begins to function properly. More bedding is required, the building must be draft free, ventilated to remove excess moisture and insulated.

However, by the time one has constructed or remodeled for a proper cold housing system, the only extra expense necessary to convert it into a warm controlled atmosphere system is to remove the heat lamps and install a heating unit.

Concerned dairymen can now have a good, money making and proven calf housing unit. Their annual mortality record converted into dollars will tell them part of what could have been earned to finance a proper unit had they had it that same year.

Hungry? Gun Club solves that problem every Sunday

THE CASS CITY Gun Club is a little off the beaten path but more and more area residents are finding out about the hearty economical Sunday breakfast served there.

INTENT ON HIS work as a volunteer cook is Robert Bookey of Cass City. Members do the work on a rotating basis.

Every Sunday morning members of the Cass City Gun Club do a little shooting... without ever firing a gun.

What the 35 members of the club do is shoot down high prices at an open-to-the-public breakfast from 7 a.m. to 12 noon.

It's the kind of breakfast that old-time farmers used to eat to fortify for a long, hard day of physical labor in the fields and the barn.

Line up and take your choice. Sausage and eggs, the way you like them. Or golden brown pancakes with plenty of butter and syrup, surrounded by tasty link sausage. Coffee and milk aplenty.

Take what you want... or take everything and eat, eat, eat until there's just no way you can eat anymore.

No one goes away hungry, says Dick Haney, a member of the committee and a frequent volunteer worker on the project.

And for all of this, you pay what you feel you should. It's voluntary. Guests simply toss their money into the conveniently located coffee can on their way to the tables.

Naturally, what goes into the community pot varies... no one will tell you how much you "should" pay. But an average for a meal might be around $1 a person... and where else can you eat like this for that amount?

Maybe it's because of the low overhead that the club makes out. Help at nothing an hour helps to keep the costs down.

Whatever the reason each year the Gun Club does manage to salt away $1,000 to $1,200 to apply against the mortgage incurred when the clubhouse was built a few years ago.

While the Sunday morning banquets have become a tradition it didn't start out that way.

We were up against it for mortgage payment money, Haney recalled so we staged the breakfast to pay some bills. Then we staged another and another. Pretty soon people started asking when the next one was coming up and we decided to do it every week.

Folks seem to congregate out at the club for a variety of reasons. The most important is the good food. There is a steady stream of patrons in and out all morning.

Others like the fellowship, too. After breakfast, some of the regulars stick around... play a game of cards, shoot a game of pool or just visit with friends.

It's a little hard to tell just how many will be around on any given Sunday. Sometimes we'll serve only about 10 dozen eggs and other days 16 dozen will be served, says Haney.

Usually a 16-dozen-egg day is reserved for Sundays when there is a shoot.

Members pay $1.25 to shoot 25 clay pigeons and non-members pay $1.50. That's during practice days. On days when a prize shoot is going the cost is $2.00 for members and $2.75 for others. The club buys the prizes and the pigeons. Guests are welcome.

Actually there isn't much profit in staging the shoots. The club makes its money from the Sunday breakfast and from dinners staged by the Gun Club Auxiliary.

They've whittled away at the $5,500 mortgage now until it's down to $3,400.

What happens when the club is out of debt? Haney isn't looking that far ahead. Right now every club member gets a turn at KP about once a month and members of the board get tapped more often. Every month there are five Sundays, the board of directors take an extra turn.

It could be that without the incentive of payments to reach the Sunday tradition could cease.

It will be a sad day for Cass City chow hounds when it does.

THIS IS THE WAY you pay at the Gun Club's Sunday breakfast. Simply drop in a donation in the bucket and then eat all you want. No one goes away hungry, say gun club members. Bill Chippi watches while Brian Kelley tosses some money in the pot.

School okays new building

The Cass City School Board authorized a new storage shed on the grounds at Cass City High School for an estimated $5,500 at its regular session Monday night.

The building will be 28x56 feet and will be of pole type construction. It will have three garage doors, an entrance door and will be nine feet high at the eaves.

It is expected that the building will house a tractor, vans and miscellaneous equipment. Bids will be taken for the work.

Several other bids were accepted by the board. Five bus bodies will be purchased from McFadden Co., the low bidder among five bidders at a cost of $4,655 each.

A request by Principal Stickle for 50 health books at $4.50 each was authorized. The books will be hard covered. Paperbacks in the same edition cost $1.75 each but Stickle told the board that the hard covers were the best for this class.

The board agreed to receive payment of school taxes in full each year and give up the interest that would accrue from late payments.

Supt. Crouse explained that the loss in interest money would be balanced by reduced book-keeping costs.

Four bids for 19 used bus tires were received. The tires were sold to the high bidder, Erla's, Inc. for $237.50.

Unusual crash nearly destroys 1973 auto

A 1973 model automobile was nearly totally wrecked in an accident in a parking lot Saturday.

It was an unusual accident in that neither car involved was travelling very fast when the crash occurred compared to the damage recorded.

Anna Lucille Torro, 35, of Owendale was backing up in the parking lot at General Cable when she collided with a car driven by Shirley Marie Ross of rural Cass City.

Both cars were going at minimum speeds, according to Chief Gene Wilson, but the Torro vehicle was scraped all down one side and then the impact shoved the vehicle into another parked car and the opposite side was dented the same way.

Damage to the car was out of all proportion to the accident, the chief said.

Full season corn hybrids are best

In 1972, the Tuscola county corn producers experienced an abundant rainfall and a shorter growing season with a limited amount of sunshine. This has prompted many corn growers to lean toward earlier hybrids for 1973.

In looking at several corn report summaries, we find the full maturity corn for Tuscola county still producing the maximum profit per acre. This is especially true for the cash crop producer with a dryer and storage.

We find the full season hybrids returning approximately $10.00 above drying costs compared to the shorter season hybrids producing 20 to 30 bushels less of dry shelled corn per acre. Therefore we believe a corn producer should be leaning towards the full season hybrids for Tuscola county.

The Tuscola county corn plots for 1972 listed the following ten hybrids with the highest yielding dollars per acre:

Variety	Moisture	Dry Bushel/Acre	$ Value Acre
P. A. G. SX-53	31.4	158.2
O's Gold SX-1100	31.6	156.7	$156.63
Northrup King PX-50A	31.5	154.6	154.37
P. A. G. SX-69	32.5	154.6	152.93
Funk's G-4343	27.9	147.6	151.29
Asgrow RX-58	31.6	153.3	151.24
Garno S-94A	31.8	153.3	151.23
Funk's G-4444	31.2	151.6	151.12
Super Cross S-25	30.4	150.7	150.63
De Kalb XL-12	26.3	144.3	150.60

We believe this will be of help to you in selecting top producing corn in Tuscola county, states Bill Bortel, County Extension Director.

Eye shield laws to help protect the public

What is a "shield law"? People will be hearing much about this sort of thing in coming weeks. Solid shield laws are in public interest, and it is important that people understand about them.

Who would be "shielded" under bills now proposed for Michigan?

Shield laws, in effect, say no court, no grand jury, no legislative committee can force a reporter to divulge the sources of confidential information he has secured. It would give reporters and their sources no more rights than already are held by lawyers or doctors and their clients and patients.

In actual practice, it is not the reporter who is shielded by the law, but the source of the information; the person who wants to give information of value to the public but is afraid of economic or physical reprisal.

There are many instances in which it is necessary to protect the source of the information in order for the information to come forth.

A hypothetical case could involve a city employee who knows of kickbacks to fellow employees by city contractors. The employee wants to expose what is going on, but he has a wife and several children at home and his superior is one of those on the take. He could lose his job.

With shield law protection this man could alert a reporter about what is going on with little fear of personal reprisal by his superior. The reporter could protect his identity. But if the reporter could be forced to identify the source, he would not come forth with his information and the situation would not be uncovered. The public would be the loser.

Michigan has a shield law now which protects news people from grand jury contempt citations only, but that is not enough. Now several people in Lansing are moving to correct the situation.

A four bill package was introduced by Rep. Jackie Vaughn, III, D-Detroit, and is now before the judiciary committee. The bills would make it impossible for news people to be cited for contempt because they did not divulge the source of information they have to a court, grand jury or legislative committee.

They would also specify that communications between reporters, agents or employees of the print or electronic media would be considered privileged information similar to the relationship between doctors and their patients or lawyers and their clients.

Earlier attempts to pass a law by Sens. Richardson, R-Saginaw, and Jerome T. Hart, D-Saginaw, were not successful. Both senators indicate that shield bills they introduced in last year's session of the legislature will be pushed harder this year.

And Gov. William G. Milliken has done a great deal of research in the area. He will be making some proposals of his own.

The basic point is not one of Fine Izydorek for careless driving

William Gerald Izydorek, Sherman St., Cass City, pleaded guilty in Tuscola County District Court Jan. 27 to a charge of careless driving.

He paid a fine and costs of $100.

Help line

Is it a prank call?

Written by Helen Woloshen
Professional answers by Marge Clos, Ph.D.

"Hello. This is Help Line". No answer.

There's whispering on the other end of the line. Lots of giggling. Sounds like a party going on. Loud music. Unfamiliar sounds.

But you try again. "Hello, Help Line." Somebody laughs and says, "Look, I have this problem. I thought maybe you could help me."

If you take the background noises seriously, you might think it's a prank call. But is it?

How many Help Line calls are actually prank calls and what's the Help Line's philosophy concerning this kind of call?

Marge Clos says this. Treat the call seriously. Why? Because it's one of the best ways to stop this kind of behavior. Most persons looking for fun in this manner want to annoy, upset or anger the answerer. By not responding in any of these ways, the caller doesn't get any fun out of the call.

Also, many people who make prank calls have problems and this is a way of testing the service or getting suggestions without appearing as though the caller has the problem.

The one exception to this would be an obscene phone call and Help Line volunteers are not expected to listen to this type of call. They would hang up the phone and if the caller persisted in trying to make this kind of call, the telephone company would be notified.

Remember, most of these calls are made by young people and they have difficulty making the change from childhood to adulthood. Growing up is uncomfortable. Laughing is the way they ease their tension, cover their embarrassment. They're nervous and a little bit afraid of calling a stranger. Afraid they might be laughed at.

Once they get over these awkward feelings, the young caller often presents a very serious problem to the volunteer. They may need help with a dating problem or they may be thinking of committing suicide. Maybe they're working on a school project or thinking of running away from home. A friend may be trying to pressure them into doing something they feel isn't right and they need some moral support. A young girl may want to know how she can build a better relationship with her mother.

Young people have all kinds of problems. They need to talk about them. But often they feel their parents don't really listen to them, don't understand. No matter how minor or childish their problems may seem to adults, young people think their problems are important.

So does Help Line. That's why they feel no call should be taken too lightly.

Another recommendation of the board was that social studies teachers be "extremely wary" of using only textbooks as instructional tools in the classroom.

It said that even the best textbooks need to be supplemented by library books, magazines, newspapers and other publications dealing with the subject being studied.

Karr named to planning group

Tuscola County Commissioners named four representatives from the county to serve on the 14 county regional planning group representing the Northeast Central Michigan District. Named were Edwin Karr of the Cass City area, Alton Reavy of Almer township, Betty Grzemkowski of Reese and Kenneth Kennedy of Millington.

In what appeared to be a relatively quiet day the board named a new dog warden, Michael Franko of Vassar. He serves for two years. They also discussed microfilming of the old records in the courthouse.

Village nets 12.4% more for street work

Area counties and villages, including Cass City, will benefit from sharply increased collections during the fourth quarter of Motor Vehicle Highway Funds.

Up some 12.4 per cent over the same period in 1971, the collections are for the period October through December 1972.

The formula provides 46 per cent of total collections for the State Department of Highways; 34 per cent for counties, and 20 per cent for cities and incorporated villages.

Tuscola county's share was $342,135. Sanilac received $330,876 and Huron county, $303,792.

Cass City received $7,828 for the quarter. That's $818 more for street work in the period than the village received in the quarter in 1971.

Other area towns received the following amounts: Caro, $14,574; Gageton, $2,673; Kingstons, $1,970; Owendale, $2,065, and Ubyly, $3,470.

Ah! that defense—Hawks press their way past Marlette and Harbor Beach

IT WAS A DARK moment for Hawk fans Friday night when Scott Hartel lay in agony on the floor with an ankle injury. Things brightened the next day when it was learned that there were no broken bones and that the Junior forward is expected to be back in action for the Sandusky game and the tournaments that follow.

It was a Tuesday non-conference game that meant nothing in the Thumb B League title race but it proved some important things for followers of the Cass City Red Hawks.

In the satisfying victory over Harbor Beach, 53-42, Cass City proved that it has a bench that can come in and do the job and that the pressing full-court zone defense adopted at mid-season is effective against a good, big team.

For make no mistake, the Hawks played a good team Tuesday.

The Pirates have an agile quintet that is tall, tall, tall. Cass City gave away a couple of inches per man to Harbor Beach and still held their own on the boards.

It was a great night for Nick Gibas as he had his best game on the boards of the season. Gibas was obviously challenged by the size of the Harbor Beach quintet.

Another bright spot for followers of Coach Fred Hurlburt's charges was the performance of his bench. With Scott Hartel not available, Handy Wright stepped in at a key forward position and Jerry Toner and Kim Glaspie paired up to power the Hawks after Paul Bliss, the Hawks' ace backcourt star, was sidelined in the third period with five fouls. When everyone is healthy, it appears that Hurlburt has seven players that he can use without loss of efficiency.

It was another bright, bright night for Dave Hillaker. The Junior forward furnished the offensive fireworks with 22 points and played a bang-up defensive game.

It was a strange game. In the first half the Hawks' press completely throttled the Pirates' offense. Cass City went in front in the opening period and stayed there.

But after that initial period when the Hawks scored 18 points it was the defense that held Cass City in the game.

In the second quarter Cass City scored only eight points, but the Pirates could do no better and at the intermission Cass City was in front by a healthy 10 points, 26-16.

But four minutes into the third period that all changed. Harbor Beach found the nets while Cass City went stone cold dead.

Midway into the third quarter, the host Pirates had tied the score.

Things went from bad to worse after this. When the carnage in the period ended, Bliss had fouled out. Harbor Beach had forged into a 34-30 lead and Cass City had posted its lowest point total of the year... making just four points in the eight minutes.

If the mark of a good team is to respond when the pressure is on, fans at the game Tuesday should be convinced.

With Jerry Toner taking over the key ball handling role in the backcourt, the Hawks overcame the Pirate half-court press, took the lid off the basket and bounced back into the game and into the lead.

In the dying moments, Hillaker killed any chances for the losers to come back as he calmly sunk four for four from the charity circle to clinch the victory.

Besides rebounding well, Gibas netted 18 points to aid the offense. For Harbor Beach Ron Wruble netted 17 points and Paul Eppenbrock added 12.

Friday the Hawks swing back into conference action against Vassar. On the basis of the season's records the Hawks will reign as heavy favorites.

JUNIOR VARSITY WINS

The Hawks made it an all-victorious night with a 62-51 decision in the Junior Varsity game.

MARLETTE GAME

The 1972-73 basketball season is headed into the home stretch and the question that Cass City cage fans are asking each other is: can the Red Hawks maintain the fine edge of recent games through the remainder of the season and into the district play-offs?

For certainly there is little doubt that the Hawks in recent games have been playing better than they have all season. This delightful circumstance was reaffirmed again Friday when the Hawks annihilated Marlette, 89-39.

Coach Fred Hurlburt used the full court press that he found so effective against Millington and Frankenmuth during the whole game.

Frosh chalk up 3 more in victory skein

The Cass City Freshmen chalked up victories nine, 10 and 11 this week with wins over Uby, Marlette and Frankenmuth.

The Hawks used a full-court press to help them to the victories. Coach Dale McIntosh said.

Against Uby the game was about decided after the first period as the Hawks raced to a 31-6 advantage and then coasted in for a 67-50 decision.

Chuck Bliss with 16 points and Dave Zawilinski, with 12, led the attack.

Everybody played against Marlette as the Hawks won an easy 68-47 decision last Thursday.

At the end of the first quarter the Hawk Frosh were in front, 25-2, and it was simply no contest all the way.

Monday the Frankenmuth Eagles were the victims, 77-54, as the press caused many turnovers.

The Hawks scoring was well balanced. Ken Lowe chipped in 22 followed by Zawilinski, 14; Clark Hillaker, 16, and Bliss, 19.

The B team lost a 37-23 decision to the Eagle B squad. Steve Schneeberger was high for the Hawks with seven points.

The next game will be at Bad Axe Thursday, Feb. 22.

The Red Raiders were unable to cope and turnovers and ball handling errors were frequent.

Cass City used all of its players as Hurlburt emptied his bench in the second quarter and kept substituting complete teams the rest of the way.

The easy victory could prove costly for the Hawks.

Scott Hartel, a top rebounding forward, suffered a severe ankle sprain and a broken blood vessel. He will miss at least the next two games but should be back in action for the crucial Sandusky Itracas and the district tournament that follows.

Ironically enough, it was against Marlette last season that Hartel suffered a broken foot that sidelined him for the season.

The game was decided in the first period. Cass City jumped into a 25-12 margin in the first quarter and it was easy sledding the rest of the way. Dave Hillaker continued his fine shooting, netting the first 10 points in the period.

The margin continued to increase as Hurlburt sent in a new five-man team in the next quarter. At the half it was Cass City 43, Marlette 21.

The Hawks upped the margin to 22 points in the third period and then turned the game into a rout with a 30-8 advantage in the final quarter.

Nine of the 10-man varsity squad scored.

Hillaker rammed home 27 points. Nick Gibas added 15 while Scott Hartel scored 12 despite leaving the game midway through the second quarter with his injury. Randy Wright was in double figures with 12.

Others racking up points were: Paul Bliss, 6; Kim Glaspie, 7; Jerry Toner, 2; Kim Hopper, 2; and Phil Berridge, 4.

DAVE HILLAKER drives the baseline for two points against Harbor Beach. The Junior forward played a key role in the Hawks' victory over the Pirates.

JERRY TONER missed this short jumper, but the Hawks won easily against Marlette Friday. The Sophomore guard is improving with every game.

Card benefit donkey cage game Feb. 20

A donkey basketball game has been carded at Cass City High School Feb. 20 at 7 p.m. and already the winner is known.

It will be the Cass City High School Athletic Club to whom all proceeds will go.

The game itself pits the teachers against the students and the outcome of the game itself promises to be less exciting than the way it is played.

For donkeys on the circuit are trained... trained to be cantankerous and unruly.

If previous performances are any guide, spills and laughs will be the rule of the night.

Women jail employees to slate union vote

Feb. 20 has been set as the date for eight women employees of the Tuscola county jail to vote on whether or not they want the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees to represent them at the bargaining table or not.

The deputies in the sheriff's department are represented by the Fraternal Order of Police and have been for several years. The women have had no representation and they include five persons in the office, a matron, and two cooks. The American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees have become the union for three county hospitals, including Hills and Dales, in recent months.
