An estimated 200 North Loup High alumni, spouses, and friends gathered at the Ord Elks Club Sunday night for their annual class reunion. Theme of this year's celebration, "Thanks for the Memories," was carried out in centerpieces, nut cups, and other decorations.

Honor classes were those graduating in a year ending in the digit eight. They, along with members of the Silver Jubilee Class of 1953 were honored.

Sunday afternoon returning alumni toured their old school in North Loup. Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Sinter, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Sinter, and Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Sinter were hosts.

A roll call of those present Sunday night showed no one from the class of '08 was present.

Fraudulent Drug Buy Is Attempted Monday

Quick work by an Ord pharmacist halted what could have been an attempt to obtain drugs fraudulently Monday, May 22. A man, described as 6'1" tall and weighing 230 pounds, presented Anderson Pharmacy with a prescription supposedly written by a Burwell doctor.

The pharmacist noted the prescription didn't look legitimate, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld, and stalled for time. The man took off.

Sonnenfeld described the prescription as being for a controlled type substance.

Fall Claims Life Of Ten Year Old

A ten year old boy was killed by a fall from a horse Tuesday morning near the District 85 School House in Eureka Township in the northwest corner of Valley County. James Michael Clayton, son of Larry and Lynn Clayton of Casper, WY was reportedly riding his horse in a county road when he lost his balance. He fell to the road. The blow to his head killed him instantly.

Taken to a Burwell Hospital by a rescue unit from that town, he was pronounced dead on arrival.

A nearby Valley County road crew saw the accident and summoned help.

Ord Pool to Open In Next Few Weeks

The new Ord Municipal pool should open sometime within the first two weeks in June according to Ord City Councilman C. J. Klimek. He told the Quiz most pool construction is nearly completed. All that remains are landscaping, installing, sodding, and finish work.

The pool was once scheduled to open Memorial Day. Details have forced this target date to be moved back.

New Postal Rates In Effect Monday

Postal rates jumped again last Monday. As of 12:01 May 29, the cost of a first class stamp is 15 cents, up two cents from the previous 13 cent high.

As recently as 1968 the first class letter rate stood at five cents. It has tripled since then. The cost-of-living, as measured by the government has risen 85.1 percent during that same time.

Postal patrons using the new 15 cent stamp will note it lacks an imprinted price. While the government is printing a supply of 15 cent stamps, post offices will be selling a stamp with no price printed on it. Regular 15 cent stamps will be available in about a month.

An anticipated 16 cent postal rate failed to materialize. This left the post office with 650 million newly printed 15 cent stamps on hand. Those same 16 centers will be sold people mailing parcels and other more expensive items.

Along with the first class letter rate, nearly all other postal rates are soaring to new costs. Post cards went from nine cents to 10 cents; second class mail (newspapers and magazines) increased an average of 29.6 percent. Third class mail (advertising circulars) increased 20.3 percent and fourth class mail was up 36.8 percent under the new rates.

North Loup-Scotia Alums Recalling Good Old Days

North Loup-Scotia High alumni recalled the good old days during their reunion at the Ord Elks Club Saturday night. Honor classes this year were those from 1963, '68, and 1973.

The class of '63 was the first freshman class at the consolidated North Loup-Scotia High. The annual that year was dedicated to Rolland Essman, North Loup-Scotia High voc. ag. instructor. Essman and the land judging team of Roger Johnson and Dean Everett, David Weeks, and FFA advisor Floyd Whiting placed first in area and state competition. They went on to take fourth place in national competition in Oklahoma.

That was the year Jerry (Jethro) Stine willed his belt to Gary Worell so his pants could stay up in football games next season.

The 30 'seniors took off for Omaha on their sneak day. Those attending from '63 were Jerry Stine, Audrey Keep Kaston, Bruce Severance, Leonard Williams, Roger Johnson, David Weeks, and Pam Sixel Sweeley.

That class of 1968 contained some scholars. They narrowly missed the division trophy at the Kearney Interscholastic Contest that year. The senior class of 25 had the motto, "We build the ladder by which we rise."

Former seniors from that class returning Saturday were John Hazel, Bob Thomas, Bernie Keown, Robert Otto, Jim Jeffries, Allen Freeman, Dave Winter, Duane Psota, Chris Williams, Emerson, Darlene Psota King, Gladly Morgan Maring, Pat Cadek, Doggett, and Marti Hill.

The 31 graduating seniors in the class of '73 had a bleak athletic season recorded in their annuals. The football team had a 1-3 record for the season. Basketball with a 4-13 record was somewhat better.

That year the annual was dedicated to photographers Ray and Mary Marshall along with class sponsor Don Hansen.

Graduates returning were Colleen Ketchmark Pedersen and Marcella Schultz Thorne.

Alumni president Mildred Bensen (far right) presented Gale Boyce (left) the prize for the male traveling the farthest distance (Albuquerque, NM) and Nadine Babcock (middle) the prize for the female traveling the farthest to the reunion. Nadine came from Brighton, CO.

Along with the fun and festivities there was serious discussion about whether or not there should be continued North Loup-Scotia reunions. Alumni president Mildred Benson noted declining attendance numbers and wondered aloud if future reunions were practical.

Some alumni contended that attendance in recent years has been declining. Others said it has been declining the last several years. Solutions including shifting the time and place and date were suggested. Various forms of "recitation" were also suggested.

"We've got to do something if we want them (alumni) to come back," one alum stated. "Most there had the belief that it was those remaining closest to home that failed to attend the Wildcat reunions."

One man told of traveling 900 miles to attend the banquet Saturday. "If we can make it," he wondered, "why can't they?"

In the end alumni at the banquet agreed to hold the 1979 reunion at either DJs or the Ord Elks Club Memorial Day weekend.

Roger Johnson, class of '63 won the door prize, the table centerpiece.

Project Permit On Hold For 30 Days

It will be at least 30 days before the Corps of Engineers decides whether or not to issue the Bureau of Reclamation a work permit to allow construction of the Calamus Dam and reservoir to start.

The Corps of Engineers held a public hearing on issuance of the work permit last week in Burwell. Both opponents and proponents of the irrigation project testified. Reports indicate most persons making their views known were against the project to irrigate an estimated 53,000 acres.

Under existing law, the Corps of Engineers has responsibility for any work connected with stream or water flows in the United States. Thus, it must issue a work permit before the Bureau of Reclamation can proceed with construction. That work would be on a dam to be located seven miles northwest of Burwell.

Ralph J. Miller, chief of the regulatory functions branch of the Operations Divisions of the Corps of Engineers presided at the meeting.

Ordination Anniversary

Father Stanley Gorak observed the 40th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood May 26 at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in Ord. The well-known priest was ordained in Grand Island, Nebraska May 26, 1938 by Bishop Stanislaus Bona.

He offered his first Mass at St. Casimir's Church in Chicago, Illinois June 5, 1938.

Father Gorak came to Ord in 1958. Shortly after he arrived the parish celebrated its golden jubilee and the debt of St. Mary's School was completely liquidated.

Under Father Gorak's leadership a new church and rectory were planned. Ground was broken in 1966 and the completed church was dedicated October 9, 1967. An important date for the parish was February 11, 1973 when a mortgage burning ceremony was held.

Taps Sound Remembrance For War Dead Memorial Day

Taps sounded during Memorial Day services May 29 were a somber remembrance of servicemen and women who had made the ultimate sacrifice for their country. Ord Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion members and their auxiliaries recalled fallen comrades in ceremonies at Ord High.

Overcast skies and intermittent showers revised an agenda calling for Memorial Day services at the cemetery in Ord.

Guest speaker during ceremonies Monday was Jay Brady. Brady warned that liberties our servicemen fought to protect could be easily lost by default and neglect.

In remarks made at Ord High, he wondered what servicemen who had died would think if they could return for a day or a week. "I just wonder," he said, "if they would think their sacrifice was worth giving."

He contended so many things they fought for, present Americans are giving away. Brady told the audience he is appalled at primary and general elections with a voter turnout of 50 percent or less.

In his estimation Americans became enraged when learning of judicial decisions and various demands slowly eroding basic freedoms on which this country was founded, but then do little or nothing.

He commended those holding Memorial Day services but suggested that a more enduring tribute would be for each American to make a day-by-day effort to keep his country strong and free.

American Legion Commander Leon Klanecky pauses to remember the nation's war dead.

Cut Cable Kills Telephone Service

While telephone crews were installing new facilities, Wednesday, May 24, in the Ord area, workmen accidentally cut a 900 pair cable that served part of the south and southwest section of Ord affecting approximately 600 telephones. Telephone workers installed temporary telephone service to the Valley County Hospital and radio station, KNLV, within a relatively short time.

Cable was dispatched from Columbus to repair the damage, while local workmen were uncovering the cable in order for it to be repaired. Work was continued throughout the night and service restored Thursday.

Rae Jean Gogan (left) hands Allen Masters a cup of coffee during the open house. Both lauded Congresswoman Virginia Smith for helping them get through red tape connected with the housing project.

Hawthorne Manor Holds Open House

Hawthorne Manor in Arcadia held open house Sunday. Area residents got to tour the eight-unit low income senior citizens housing project.

Each of the eight units has a kitchen, bedroom, living room, and bath. These along with a laundry room and recreation room are included in the 130 by 47 foot housing complex.

According to Housing Director, Rae Jean Gogan, the project cost about $200,000. To get funds the Arcadia Housing Authority was formed and application made for a 50-year F.H.A. loan.

Loan approval came last July and construction started the following fall. Weaver Construction of Kearney was named general contractor. Work was completed a few weeks ago.

Of the eight units, five have been rented, according to Mrs. Gogan. Persons interested in moving to the retirement center should contact her.

That newly completed complex, was named Hawthorne Manor by Linda Johnson in a recent contest sponsored by the Arcadia Housing Authority. Mrs. Johnson suggested the name Hawthorne because the Hawthorne family was prominent in early area history. The housing unit is located in the town's Hawthorne addition.

Along with Mrs. Gogan, members of the Arcadia Housing Authority were on hand Sunday during the open house. Authority members are Byron Pester, Delmer Dietz, Max Staab, Dwayne Johnson, and Allen Masters.

Plea Draws Fullers From North Loup To Mission Post In Malawi

A plea — some could call it a prayer — landed Menzo and Audrey Fuller of North Loup in the African nation of Malawi. Their trip, and the prayer, began in 1973.

Back then, Menzo had been operating a body shop in North Loup for 22 years. His wife, Audrey, was a Registered Nurse employed by a medical clinic in the same town. With their four children raised and gone, and an adequate income, these should have been the best years of their lives.

They weren't. Menzo explained, "It got so I wasn't happy with my shop." Asked why, he replied, "No special reason. I had a good home and a good business, and the children were grown."

Yet this nagging discontent, a sort of an uneasiness, continued. Finally one day Menzo said, "Lord, if there's more, I want it."

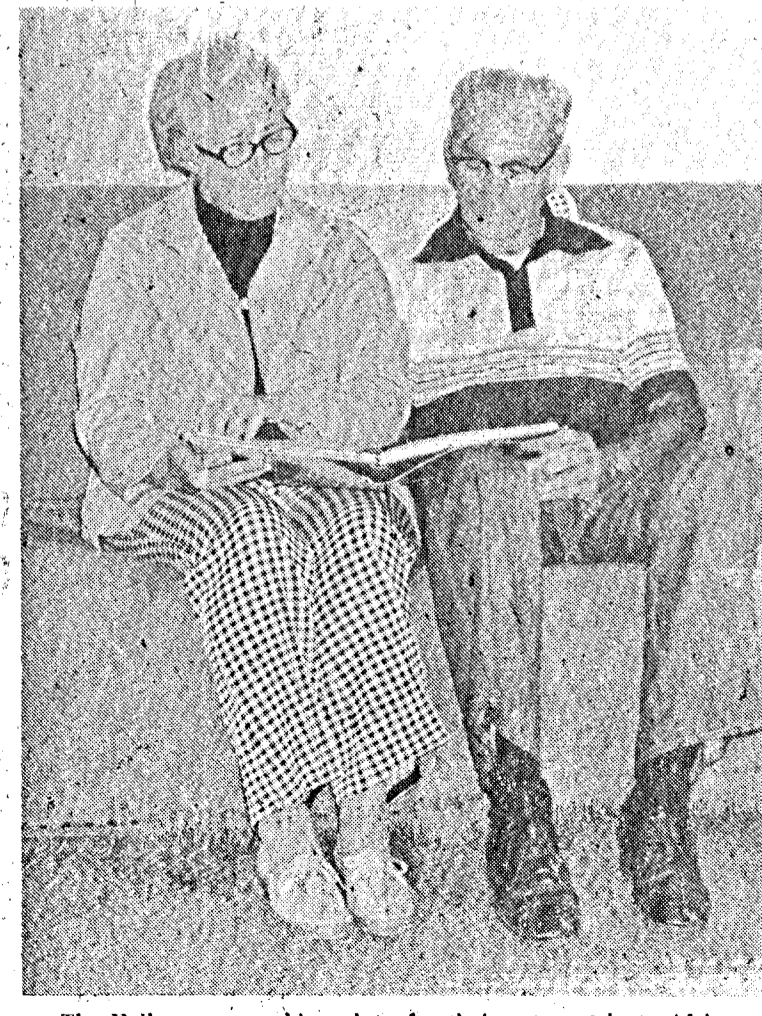

Months later, Seventh Day Baptist publication had an ad that caught his eye. A mission in Malawi was seeking a man-wife team. The job description called for one partner having mechanical skills. The other partner should have a medical background. If possible, she or he should be a Registered Nurse.

After some discussion they called church offices in Rhode Island. The reply came back "get packing."

After a two week mission training course, they returned to North Loup where they sold their home and business.

In July of 1973, they packed their remaining possessions in a U-Haul trailer and left for the east coast. After a six-month wait for needed work permits, they were on their way.

"We flew from the JFK airport in New York December 1,"

The Fullers... making plans for their return trip to Africa. Audrey recalled. Two days later they were in Malawi. They described it as "a beautiful country with perfect climate," located in central Africa. Formerly part of Nyassaland, Malawi is sandwiched in between Zambian and Mozambique. (Continued on page 6)

Stuhr Museum Opens Outdoor Exhibit

Stuhr Museum of the Prairie Pioneer opens its outdoor exhibits Monday, May 29 according to Jack Hartsuff, executive director. Summer hours will be 9-6 weekdays and 1-6 Sundays.

Stuhr's summer attractions center around a reconstructed Railroad Town of the late 1800s, complete with a turn-of-the-century steam train which takes visitors for rides around the grounds. Rides are scheduled for 10:30, 12 noon, 1:30, 3 and 4:30 Monday through Saturday. On Sundays, the train will make non-scheduled runs from 1 until 5:30 p.m.

The Railroad Town's 56 buildings include a bank, general store, barbershop, show repair shop, newspaper office, hotel and town hall. Business building and three homes are furnished to the era, including the cottage where Henry Fonda was born.

Several craftsmen-in-residence will be demonstrated include blacksmithing, pottery, mezzatint and wood block carving, wood sculpture, woodcraft and stained glass.

The recently completed Gus F. O'Neil Memorial Rotunda, located south of the main building, houses the Indian and Old West collections of the late horseman and civic leader.

Hartsuff Restoration Efforts Include Guardhouse-Barracks

Restoration work currently in progress at Fort Hartsuff includes putting a finishing coat on the guardhouse and pouring a new front wall for the barracks building.

Located on the south side of the parade ground, the barracks building contained a barber shop, kitchen, wash room, dining hall, and a dormitory for 60 men. The new wall being poured on the front or north side of the building measures 80 by 30 feet according to Hartsuff Superintendent Roye Lindsay.

A large veranda on the front of the structure will likely be added by this fall, he told the Quiz.

The second project in progress is putting a new exterior coat on the guardhouse. Wind, rain and other elements have worn away the original surface coating. Portions of the gravel, rocks, and other items in the cement are visible in spots.

The new cement coat will be blended and colored to look like the original surface finish, according to the superintendent.

Students working on these projects and others this summer are Terri Clamp and Dave Otto. Terri said she isn't in a field related to museums. "It's a job for the summer," she told the Quiz, "and I like it."

Dave appears to be undecided about his future. The Wayne State sophomore, a history major, conceded he might go into a field related to state parks and museums. His brother, Don Otto, is Director of the Fort Worth, Texas Museum of Science and Industry. Roye Lindsay is his uncle.

Adams Omitted

The Ord Quiz omitted the name of Wynne Adams from the list of top ten graduating students from Ord High last week. Graduating third in a class of 77 students, Wynne was active in vocal music, basketball, track, and volleyball. A member of the National Honor Society, she also belonged to the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and the Pop Club. When a junior, she was a delegate to Girls State. Her future plans include attending Kearney State College and majoring in music.

Omaha Fire Guts Ordite's Church

Presbyterian Church of the Master in Omaha, which burned early Monday, was the pastorate of former Ordite J. Keith Cook.

According to reports, the State Fire Marshal's office was to begin an investigation Tuesday into the fire which destroyed the interior of the northwest Omaha structure.

Rev. Cook said the fire apparently began in his office around 3 a.m. May 29. There was no estimation of the loss nor was there any determination as to the cause of the blaze, as of Tuesday morning.

Firemen from Irvington and other nearby departments battled the blaze for about two and one-half hours, according to Cook.

Rev. Cook was a 1953 graduate of Ord High and has returned occasionally to visit and attend alumni reunions.

Uher to Establish His Own Practice

Ord attorney David Uher will be leaving Ord sometime in July, he told the Quiz. His future plans are to establish his own practice in Norfolk.

He and his wife, Linda, first came here in April, 1974, just after he graduated from the University of Nebraska Law College. Uher joined Marvin Weems in practicing law.

CAROL'S CORNER by carol leggett

JUNE TIME... We have finished that merry month when we hung pretty baskets, honored Mom on her day, and also noted a day for fish, taverns, the Salvation Army plus the observance of graduation at many high schools and colleges.

Just mentioning the word June immediately turns our thinking to weddings, for tradition still has June as the month of weddings. Making a list of other June happenings we remember to observe National Seat Belt Month, National Little League Baseball Week, Fight the Filthy Fly Month and don't forget Let's Play Golf Week, National Humor Week and National Root Beer Week.

There are more specifics too for on June 6 we must remember D-Day when General Eisenhower, in 1944, with the allied forces landing on Normandy beginning the greatest invasion in history. A few days later in this month, on the 14th, we have the opportunity to celebrate Flag Day and Sunday, June 18, is Father's Day.

Father's Day was described by one wit as being just like Mother's Day except that you buy a cheaper present. A silly remark.

Next comes Summer — the 21st of June — and bugs galore will officially come out of hiding in search of victims.

I am willing to believe that this month will be as busy a time as all others. It seems to have started that way.

Six VanZandt Students Complete Sweet Subject

Six students of Ladine VanZandt completed a sweet subject Thursday in her Ord residence. The six students had just concluded a toothsome seven week course in cake decorating.

Thursday, they brought their "final exams" to class in the VanZandt basement. Their instructor surveyed the six cakes and announced her student had passed the course with flying colors.

Their confectionary masterpieces completed a sweet subject started seven weeks ago. Each student baked a cake a week and brought it to class for decorating instruction. Students learned how to make icing, apply it smoothly, how to create bushes and flowers, and other decorative items.

Most of these flow from the lip of a cake decorating gun. Frosting in a small flexible bag is extruded through a nozzle into a metal tip. The size, diameter and shape of the nozzle determines the different frosting patterns.

The traditional colorful flowers that grace most wedding cakes come from a medium bore nozzle. Ladine showed the students how to use a cake decorating nail. A small steel nail is capped with a flat head about the size of a silver dollar. Rotating the nail slowly, Ladine squeezed the decorating gun. Frosting sprouted out on the rotating nail in a few seconds, a white rose bloomed, ready for a cake.

Ladine's students used these methods and others when working on their final exams at home. They brought their masterpieces to class Thursday for a evaluation. Subjects ranged from a castle hearts and flowers to a football game. Said teacher VanZandt, "I'm amazed at what they've done."

The students reciprocated her praise by calling her a good teacher. Of the six, four plan to decorate cakes for fun and profit.

The were warned it would likely be more of the former and less of the latter. Food colorings, frostings, and other ingredients can eat into profits faster than a hungry husband.

With 15 years experience in cake decorating, Ladine should know the market. "I first started in 1963 and taught myself," she proudly stated. Her first work was her parents, 50th anniversary cake.

Since then she has turned out a steady stream of colorful creations. "I just ask them what they want and take it from there," she quipped. She recalled one weekend with four weddings. All had placed orders for cakes. "It was hard," she admitted, "but we made the deadline."

Decorating the cake is just part of her ordeal, she revealed. Often delivering them intact is an adventure in itself. Icy roads, sudden stops, and torrential rains have all produced some heart stopping moments.

Despite these obstacles, she has continued decorating cakes. Her future plans include keep baking.

More To Home Ec Than Cooking And Sewing — Just Ask Phyllis Garnick

Phyllis Garnick

There is more to home economics than cooking and sewing. Just ask Phyllis Garnick. A former Ord High home economics teacher with 20 years experience, she has a sound knowledge of the field.

She first came to Ord High back in 1946. In those days there was a wood burning range in the home ec room on the first floor. Many rural homes not having electricity, learning to cook on the old-style stove was a must for students then.

White laboratory tables with swing-out stools and gas hot plates rounded out cooking equipment in the department. There was an electric oven.

"Back then," Phyllis recalled, "the family was a basic unit of production. Many households grew their own vegetables, raised their own food, and often made their own clothes." Home economics courses taught then reflected this idea. Many were of a how-to nature. Students learned how to cook a meal, how to sew properly, and how to be sound future homemakers.

After teaching two years, Phyllis quit to have a family. When the youngest child started school in 1957, she resumed teaching. Though she chuckled, "I would go for a semester." That semester stretched into 18 years.

During that time she observed many changes in the home economics department and the American family. That last group has undergone a change from manual labor to consumerism, according to Phyllis. Nowadays everything is purchased, she told the Quiz. Few things are raised or made at home.

The modern home economics curriculum reflects this new interdependency. Included now are subjects like how much it costs to buy and maintain a home, what to look for when purchasing a shirt, and a whole series of personal adjustment courses.

"Basically," Phyllis observed, "the high school program is to develop the student as a sound family member. It prepares her for the most important profession there is — being a homemaker."

Along with that, home economics courses can prepare a girl — or boy — for careers in everything from personnel work to interior decorating, according to the former teacher. In a recent speech she called the career options available with home ec courses unlimited.

If home economics careers can be many and varied, so also has been the teaching career of Phyllis Garnick. In 1974 she was one of a handful of teachers selected to draw up a handbook for use by home economics teachers across the nation, in conjunction with their Future Homemakers of America organizations. Ord High school students dedicated their annual to her in 1969. While teaching at Ord High, she was voted president of the State Home Economics Teachers Association.

On her retirement in 1975, Ord school board members presented her with a ring in recognition of that 18 year "semester."

Phyllis and her husband Harold call Ord their home. Former students frequently find their way to her residence, as do her many friends and neighbors.

Mushroom Hunting Called A Dangerous-Delicious Sport

Just as many Nebraskans eagerly anticipate the opening of the baseball season, many others look forward to another harbinger of warm weather. These are the hunters of the giant puffball, the shaggy mane, the sulphur shelf, and the morel, to name a few.

These hunters pursue one of the most dangerous and delicious sports of all — mushroom hunting.

There are thousands of varieties of mushrooms in almost as many shapes, colors and sizes, according to Teresa Shaffer, Extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Some can kill or intoxicate, but others are excellent food items. With picking sites passed down from generation to generation.

When purchasing fresh mushrooms, look for white, firm caps and beige-colored stems. The gills under the cap should be light brown, she says.

If you have fresh mushrooms, store them in a paper bag in the refrigerator for up to one week. Just spread them on a shallow tray or rack, cover with a paper towel half wrung out of water and place so air can circulate around them.

Fresh mushrooms may be frozen or dried. To dry, simply string on a heavy thread, dry until brittle and store in an airtight container to reject the dried mushrooms for eating. Run them through several changes of salted hot water until they "flesh out."

Guest RKDs Beat Dymonelles 36-7

The Ord Dymonettes bowed to guest RKDs 36-7 last week. Ord's run came in the closing innings of the game.

Ord coach Darrel Heisner noted the girls are a young team. Of the 21 players, only 3 have had previous experience. He speculated this could be a building year for the Dymonettes.

The Dymonettes next game is at Burwell this Thursday.

Midgets Edged By Three In Seventh

The Ord Midgets bowed to St. Paul 6-3 in the Broken Bow Tournament Sunday. Going into the seventh, the game was tied 3-3. St. Paul got three runs and Ord couldn't catch up.

Coach Eldon Mulligan remained optimistic despite the loss. According to him, the team's pitching looked promising and there was some good fielding by the boys. Sunny skies around Ord could help warm a winning streak for the team. Frequent rains recently have made practice sessions a hit-and-miss affair.

Overcast skies and intermittent showers bogged the tournament at Broken Bow, too. The once carefully planned schedule was turned into a mish-mash of hastily arranged events by sudden down pours.

Tuesday, May 30, Ord was scheduled to vie with host Broken Bow for third place, weather permitting.

St. Paul went on to play North Platte the next day, Monday.

Blue Bullets Snap Winning Streak; Championship Game

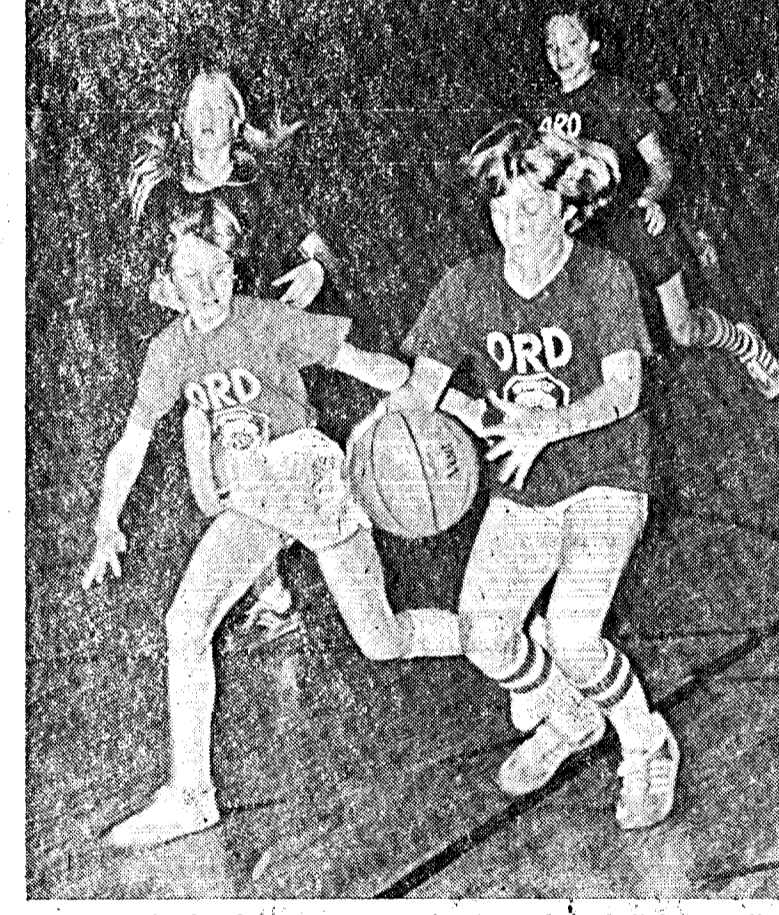

The "Blue Bullets" of coach Barb Kittle upset the previously undefeated "Gunners" of coach Jane Gogan 62 in the Ord Optimist basketball championship game last week. Behind the strong inside play of forward Chris Johnson who led the way with four points and Pauline Penas with eight rebounds, the Bullets controlled the game most of the way. Amy Schroeder collected the final two points for the Bullets. The Gunners with scoring star Kim Cook held scoreless, managed only one basket from center Roxanne Ostrander in their bid for an undefeated season.

In consolation action the "Green Machine" of coach Vickie Mason breezed to an 8-4 victory over a much improved team the "Winners" of coach Wynne Adams. Balanced scoring spelled the way to victory as Sue Dworak, Patti Wagner, Kathy Warner and Marci Marshall each scored a bucket for the Green Machine. The Gunners were led by Angie Kamarad and Jennifer Hansen with two points each.

Mr. Murray felt the season was a great success and he thanked all the players and coaches for a job well done. He also wished to thank the Ord Optimist Club for sponsoring the league again this year.

Where you look for wild mushrooms depends upon the season you hope to find, says Shaffer. She notes that state lands aid national parks allow mushroom gathering for private use only. Before foraging on private land, however, she recommends always asking permission.

About fifty varieties of wild mushrooms are considered edible, but the specialist says it's safest to stick to the "foolproof four" until you've become proficient at identifying others.

The moral, also called sponge, corn cob, honeycomb or inkler, tops the list. The fine flavor is one of the most delectable of the wild mushrooms, but finding it is nine parts luck and one part skill, she says. Look for its pitted, pinecone-shaped cap in old orchards, open fields, the edges of wooded areas and swamps near creeks and streams.

To prepare morels, Shaffer says to cut them lengthwise and clean well. Morels can be dipped in seasoned flour, then egg and sauteed in butter for a simple treat. Or stuff them with diced onion, hamburger, pork or chicken, bread crumbs and cherry and bake for 30 minutes at 350 degrees F. (176 C.).

Shaggy manes are so named because of their white caps covered with brownish tufts. You can bring out the fine flavor by steaming the mushrooms for five minutes then adding a little cream or melted butter, the specialist says. Shaggy manes also appear in late fall.

Sulphur shelf or chicken mushrooms grow in rows fan-like or orange shelves on trees and logs. "They look inedible, but sulphur shelf mushrooms taste like the white meat of chicken when fried, stewed or chopped in croquettes," she says.

Puffballs, the last of the "foolproof four," are appropriately named because they have no visible stem. The white, firm, fleshy mushrooms range from golfball-size to the largest, a two-foot-tall puffball found in Minnesota.

The creative cook can prepare puffballs as steaks or breaded puffball cutlets," Shaffer says.

Other commonly-eaten wild mushrooms include inky cap or mica cap, field or meadow mushrooms, oyster, and chanterelle mushrooms. The problem, however, is to distinguish between edible and "poisonous" varieties, she notes.

"Old wives tales maintain that inedible mushrooms or 'toadstools' will turn silver, turn dark in hot water or turn milky in vinegar, but these methods aren't reliable," she says. "Your best bet is to go mushrooming with an experienced adult and become familiar with the varieties, bia, Tanzania, and Mozambique. About the size of Connecticut, the country's main exports are tea and tobacco.

Malawi is ruled by a dictator - President for Life - Dr. H. Kamuzu Banda.

The Fullers stayed in Galatye, the nation's largest city, two days and then went to their mission. Menzo described their post as "a narrow strip about three miles long." The area contains a school, living quarters for 41 families, a hospital, and a maternity unit.

After being assisted by the former mission residents they were replacing for six weeks, the Fullers were on their own.

Mrs. Fuller's duties included operating the hospital pharmacy and being staff administrator. Nationals - "Please don't call them natives," she urged - do much of the medical work.

Along with the four Rs, reading, writing - arithmetic, and religion, the mission trains area residents to work in the hospital and perform medical duties. Audrey rated the students as being proficient and eager to learn.

Mission medical personnel sometimes have competition from area bush doctors often thought of as witch doctors. They have no education per se, but use medical knowledge handed down from one generation to the next.

Some of their remedies are pretty good according to the Fullers. Others they flatly rated as being disasters.

One other problem facing the Fullers was that they didn't speak Shichewa, the language of Malawi. Attempts to learn the language were constantly interrupted by their busy schedule.

Nor was this the only communications problem they encountered. Residents of Malawi receive only those publications having government approval. The Fullers declined comment on further problems along this line.

"Actually," Menzo interjected, "we don't miss the news. We are so very busy. A typical day starts at 8 a.m. By 6:30 they are at work. Mrs. Fuller is hard at it in the pharmacy while Menzo is busy with a work crew."

"They do," Menzo said, "just about anything that needs to be done." This could include fixing a leaky roof, repairing wiring, etc. Those mechanical skills he used in North Loup come in handy on a near daily basis according to the couple.

Their work ends, they related when the last job is done and the last problem is solved. Sometimes this can be late in the day.

Along with heading the mission hospital, Mrs. Fuller supervises a dispensary in another district. "The job," she conceded, "is pretty demanding."

"Added to this is yet another dispensary she helped establish about 2 miles away from the mission hospital.

The Fullers got a break from this hectic schedule recently when they returned to the United States. Arriving in North Loup about two weeks ago, they left last Tuesday. After visiting friends and relatives around the country, they plan to return to the mission for a two-year stay.

When that period is up, Menzo added, "We'll wait and see what the Lord wants us to do."

Who says no one reads the public or legal notices?

Some folks think people don't read public notices. These people are wrong. Notices about what's going on in state and local governments have a high readership, higher than most states. A recent survey has revealed that 95.8% of Nebraskans read one or more newspapers regularly. Of this high percentage, 84.2% read the public notices as published in Nebraska's weekly newspapers. That shows people are concerned. They're concerned about government spending, school board meetings and legislative decisions.

To reach this large and interested community, place your public notice in Nebraska's weekly newspapers.

Livestock Retail Meat Prices To Climb Upward

Livestock and meat prices will continue rising during 1978, according to UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension economist Dr. Al Wellman. Wellman said he concurs with USDA outlook information that prospects for only a slight increase in hog slaughter, smaller beef supplies and continued strong demand by consumers for meat will push prices upward. He forecasts these probable price levels: -Live hog prices to average $5 to $7 per 100 pounds higher than the $41 posted in 1977. -Choice slaughter steers may average in the high $40's for the year. -The annual increase in retail beef prices may exceed 12 percent. -Retail pork prices may average a tenth higher or more with per capita supplies up only slightly. Although the composite retail price of pork averaged 13 percent above a year earlier in the first quarter of 1978, recent increases in hog prices have not been reflected fully at the supermarket, Wellman said. On the producer side, Wellman said pork production in 1978 may be up only 2 to 3 percent - somewhat lower than earlier expectations. By quarter, production was slightly below a year ago during the first three months of 1978; a 2 to 4 percent increase in pork output is expected this spring and summer; fourth quarter hog slaughter is seen to be about the same or slightly above that of last fall. Some "ifs" cloud the picture in analyzing swine breeding intentions, Wellman explained. On March 1, the breeding herd was down 1 percent. Current profits suggest an expansion in June-August farrowings, he said, although producers planned to farrow 2 percent fewer sows this summer. Since sows and gilts slated to farrow this summer are bred from February through April, producers may have modified their March 1 intentions during the breeding season, the economist added. With the composite retail price of choice beef rising sharply during the first quarter, retail averaging more than 10 percent above a year ago - beef consumption for the year may fall from 125-plus pounds per person to around 120 pounds, Wellman warned. "Slaughter steer prices may rise by a greater percentage than retail prices, with some tightening of marketing spreads likely," he said. Beef production for the year may be 3 to 5 percent less than in 1977. "Combined with the slight increase in pork output and the expected expansion in poultry, total red meat and poultry supplies for 1978 are expected to be about unchanged from last year," Wellman stated. Cattle feeders continue to draw on the 9 percent smaller January 1 supply of feeder cattle. Responding to a favorable steer-corn price ratio, cattle feeders have bid feeder cattle prices sharply higher. Feedlot placements during the winter may have been about 10 percent larger than a year earlier. Marketings in 1978 have been around 3 percent larger as cattle continued to be marketed with minimum finish. Other forecasted trends in beef cattle supply outlook: -Fed marketings this spring may be up 6 to 8 percent from a year ago. -Total steer and heifer slaughter for the first six months of 1978 will be largely unchanged from a year earlier. -Slaughter of grass-fed steers and heifers could be reduced a third. -Beef production for the first half may be down about 2 percent. -With the fourth year of declining inventory of cows, total numbers of cattle and calves will drop again this year - perhaps by about three million head. -There will be continued heavy movement of heifers into feedlots. Cow slaughter, although it may be down about a fifth from last year, still will be relatively large in relation to the number of cows on farms.

Tax Problem Worries

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

Nebraskans who own farm and ranch land have been worrying more than usual this year about the uncertainties posed for them in the state's tax problems.

Taxes affect everybody of course, but land owners have more directly at stake in the decisions which are or are not made. The value of farmland in Nebraska, according to the USDA's Economic Research Service figures, has increased an average of 255 per cent from 1970 to February of this year. At the same time, the local property taxes on an average acre of farm and ranchland in our state increased 160 per cent between 1970 and 1976 (latest figure, available) and probably by now the increase is in the vicinity of 180 per cent.

It is natural for land owners to fear the effects of reappraisals and the application of actual valuation at today's inflated figures. This is true even though the tax burden is determined by the size of the dollar budgets of the taxing agencies. There is a suspicion that higher valuation totals do not necessarily mean proportionate reductions in mill levy totals.

The current hassle over equalization of property valuations between counties and the ultimate outcome involves a point of real injustice where multi-county tax levies are involved. Taxpayers in a county using outdated appraisal figures definitely have an unfair advantage over their counterparts in adjoining counties where more recent reappraisals have brought property valuations closer to what the property is actually worth. An example would be the application of a 1-mill levy in a Technical Community College District encompassing 5 or 6 counties.

The 1978 Nebraska Legislature failed to pass a bill aimed at a state-wide system to equalize valuations among all 93 counties and keep them updated. Great uncertainty prevails as to how present laws will be enforced and about what future Legislatures may decide and how courts may rule in legal challenges.

Voters this fall will go to the polls to decide whether LB 33, the state aid to education bill passed by the 1977 Legislature, is to be retained or rejected. It would add $20 million per year to the present $55 million in state aid for a period of three years to a maximum total of state aid to the public schools of $120 million. The money would come from state income and sales tax sources and that inevitably means an increase in those rates.

Opponents of LB 33 who conducted the successful petition drive to put the issue to the voters, generally argue that the distribution formula is at fault, a factor that has always been the principal bone of contention in state aid legislation.

Voters this fall, if another petition campaign is successful, may also ballot on another approach . . . this one in the form of a constitutional amendment to limit annual budgets of local taxing agencies such as school districts, city and county governments, etc., to no more than a 5 per cent increase over the previous year unless an amount in excess of that is authorized by the voters.

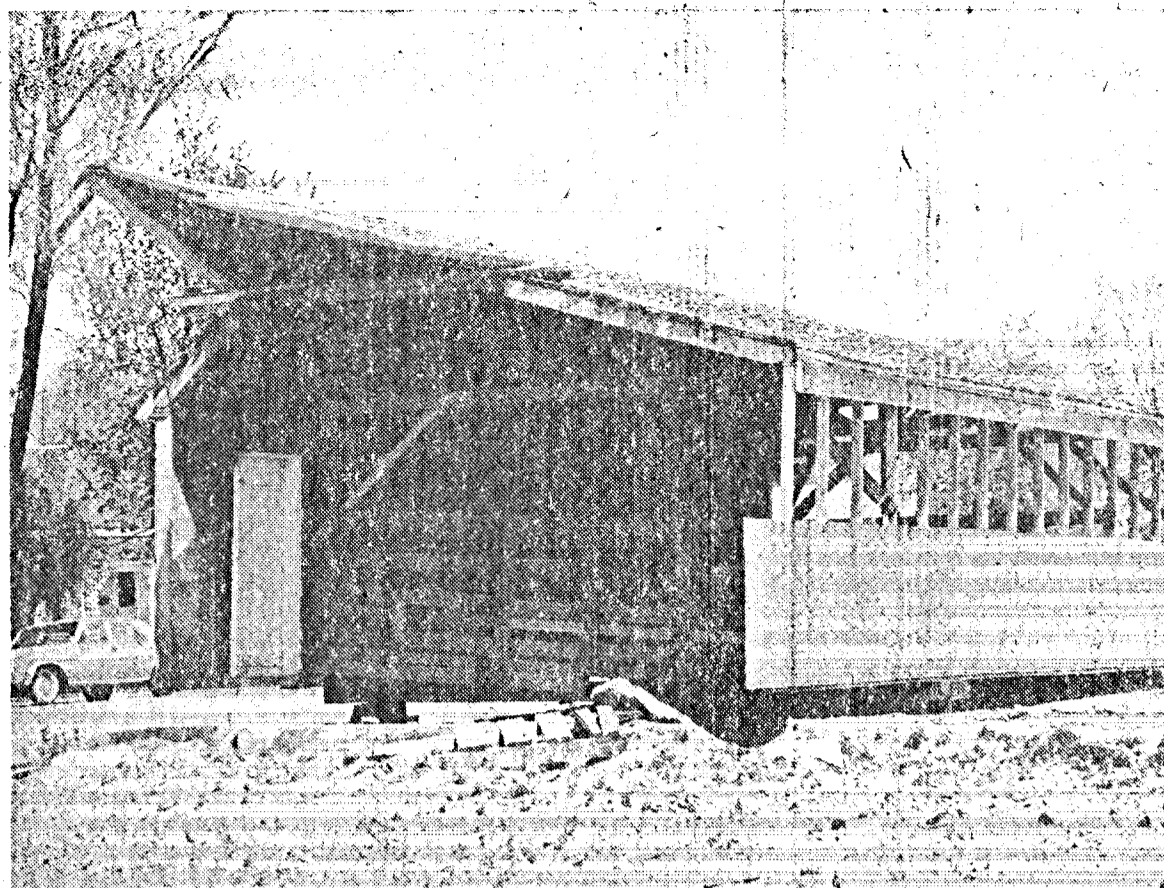

Opponents of such a "lid on spending" proposal say it is unrealistic and dangerous to "lock in" such an arbitrary requirement into the State Constitution. They cite the national inflation rate which has been running between 6 and 9 per cent in recent years and showing no signs of abating. Few farm and ranch operators could guarantee, for example, that they could hold their production costs each and every year to no more than 5 per cent increase.

There is no "quick fix" answer to tax problems. Farm and ranch people in the end will support or reject remedial proposals on the basis of how they think they will affect them personally. Most recognize that the tax burden will not decline and in the final analysis the decisions boil down to how individual taxpayers prefer to provide the money . . . in higher property taxes or in increased sales and income taxes levied by the State and returned to the local agencies.

In any event, there's "no free lunch" where taxes are concerned because everybody pays somehow, some time.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

RONALD I. ENGELKE

Deadlines Nearing for District, State Horse Show. Entries for the nine district 4-H horse shows and two horsemanship level III shows are slated for late June and early July across Nebraska as qualifying rounds for the upcoming Fanner Park - Nebraska State 4-H Horse Exposition July 17-20 in Grand Island.

Before participating in the performance classes in the state contest, 4-H'ers must garner purple or blue ribbons at a district show. Performance class entries for the district shows must be received by the Valley County Extension agent's office no later than noon June 6.

The same deadlines also apply to all halter horse and showmanship entries for the state horse show, which should be submitted at the same time as performance class entries for the district show. Exhibitors may enter two horses in halter and one in showmanship for the state show.

Halter classes for which no qualifying rounds are required, including fillies and geldings, as well as 2-, 3-, 4- and 5-year-old mares and geldings. Junior and senior boys' and girls' showmanship also is featured.

Youth planning to compete in the district shows must pass the 4-H horsemanship level II (intermediate) course by June 1. Level III (horsemanship) requirements also must be passed by June 1 before members can enter the horsemanship level shows at North Platte July 10 and Seward July 11, although only a level II certificate is required for English pleasure and horsemanship events at the level III shows.

Those entering the state show's halter and showmanship contests are not required to pass any minimum contestant level.

All 4-H'ers entering the district or state shows must be between 12 and 19 years old as of January 1, 1978. Last year, 5,110 youths were enrolled in the Nebraska 4-H horse program.

The schedule of district horse show at Columbus will start at 9 a.m. with junior and senior pony pleasure, pleasure horses and junior and senior horsemanship events. Afternoon performances will include county horsemanship teams, reining, pole bending and barrel racing.

An individual or horse may enter only one pleasure, horsemanship, reining, pole bending and barrel racing event, as well as the county horsemanship team.

In the pleasure and horsemanship classes, riders will work before the judge, and then return for the group workout.

The contestants will be divided into boys' and girls' divisions as well as into junior (12 and 13 year olds) and senior (14 years old and above) divisions, providing there are at least five youngsters in the class.

Classes in the level III horsemanship shows, which also will start at 9 a.m., include calf roping, dally team roping for headers and heelers, green hunter, dressage, English pleasure and English horsemanship. Level III qualifying shows are limited to three classes.

A $1.50 entry fee will be charged for each class a 4-H'er enters in the district show to defray expenses. An additional $1 fee will be collected from those contestants attending the state horse show. Those competing in the level III shows must furnish proof of completion of that level of instruction.

No health papers will be required at any district show, and although it is recommended, no Coggins Test for equine infectious anemia will be required at the state horse show. Only an official health certificate taken within 10 days of the start of the state show July 17 stating that the horse is free of infectious or contagious disease will be required.

Computerized Farming Operations Theme of 1978 Tractor Power & Safety Day. The impact of computerization on farming operations will highlight the 27th annual University of Nebraska-Lincoln Tractor Power & Safety Day scheduled at the NU Field Laboratory near Mead July 27.

"The Computer Comes to the Farm" is the official theme of the field day sponsored by the engineering department of the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Vying for attention with electronically-controlled planters and sprayers and computer-monitored wheel slippage on tractors will be a number of demonstrations or displays on solar energy, including a solar-controlled glider, solar-powered irrigation and solar grain drying.

Diesel pickups and cars, extraction from a tractor overturn, construction of a building at the program site using tilt-up well methods, and a demonstration of what happens in an elevator grain dust explosion also are on the program.

A demonstration showing differences between bias and radial tires of the pulling power of tractors will be conducted, along with braking systems for trailers or wagons pulled by tractors.

Added attractions will be exhibits by a number of commercial concerns, and from many departments of the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The perennial favorite — the parade of tractors tested by the UNL Tractor Testing Laboratory — will draw the interest of thousands of farmers and other interested onlookers, along with the antics of "Jughead," the clown with a serious message or safety.

THE Ord Quiz

Estab. April 1932. Ord, Nebr., Thurs., June 1, 1978. Vol. 97, No. 14. 2 Sects.

Irrigators who are going to use the Lower Loop Natural Resources District will be able to get recorded information starting June 1. The Hot-Line established by the NRD in cooperation with local county Extension Service Offices, offers irrigators a daily crop water use figure. The program is based on the presumption that if an irrigator knows how much water his crop is using, he can avoid under- and over-irrigating. By dialing a toll-free number (1-800-652-9329) or looking in their local newspaper, or by listening to a radio station, irrigators can get a daily record, in inches, of the water used by corn and alfalfa.

The NRD has established weather stations at Merna in Custer County; East of Burwell in Garfield County; and at St. Edward in Boone County. A station located at the Farwell Irrigation District Office in Howard County will also be used to obtain weather information. The four stations will monitor total wind, solar radiation, temperature, and humidity. Information is provided to the NRD office in Ord, where a computer is used to calculate the crop water use. Other input factors such as average planting dates, and stage of growth are provided by local county Extension Agents.

Crop water use information on the phone line and from the media will be given for three areas: Custer, Loup, and Park Counties; Area 1; Garfield, Wheeler, Valley, Greeley, Sherman, and Howard Counties; Area 2; and Boone, Nance, and Platte Counties, Area 3.

The recording will identify itself. It will then give the date, the counties within the area, and the period of time. For example, he felt was useful. Say about .25 inches was useful from a total of .50 inch rain. If the crop used 1.5 inches of water, then he needs to add about 1.25 inches. If the weather is hot and windy, he may want to add about 10% for evaporation. The method of operation is different for electric and water drive pivots, so contact your county agent for advice.

Irrigators using gated pipe will be using moisture blocks and probes. Again, your county Extension Agent will be able to assist you on any particular situation.

The entire program can be fine-tuned with the use of electrical resistance blocks (on heavy soils) and tensiometers (on sandy soils only).

Remember to watch your local newspaper, catch the announcement on radio or call the HOT-LINE 1-800-652-9329.

Well Enough Informed

Thursday, May 18, S. H. Brauer and John E. Halloran outlined their LID petition drive during a meeting at the Ord Elks Club. Under the proposed state constitutional amendment, which they hope to put on the November ballot via the petition route, yearly budget hikes for governmental subdivisions would be limited to five percent.

Exceptions for this budget ceiling would be made for:

1. Sudden hikes in a school district's or county's population.
2. Court mandated improvements, changes, or other like expenses.
3. If 4/5's of the Unicameral approved a budget hike beyond the five percent ceiling.
4. A budget hike surpassing the 5 percent lid, but approved by voters in a taxing district in a special election.

Interest in this LID issue is running high. Both opponents and proponents of the issue have gone to great lengths to make their views known. Wanting to get both sides of the question, the Quiz got documents, pamphlets, etc. from both proponents and opponents of the issue.

One leading opponent of the LID amendment is the Nebraska State School Boards Association. They contend a five percent ceiling would strap them into an impossible financial situation. Inflation, they point out, has been increasing at a rate greater than five percent. Ergo each year they could lose ground in the battle of the budget.

This argument and others were presented in a NSSBA publication dated May 16, 1978. That four-page item lists arguments both for and against the proposed ceiling amendment.

In most cases, their document presents both viewpoints in well-phrased, impartial statements. This is in keeping with the tradition of that long-time association of school board members.

However, one of their arguments against the proposed constitutional amendment stood out like a soldier out of step. That argument against the proposed change went as follows:

"Only a small proportion of the people can possibly be well enough informed on the issue to vote intelligently. The proposed amendment has too many ramifications for the masses to have the time to study them all."

We admit this issue is a complex one, and an important one to boot.

What we refuse to believe is the idea that only a small proportion of the public can possibly be well enough informed to vote intelligently on this issue — or any other for that matter. With near instantaneous communications on a state-wide and world-wide basis, three leading newspapers having state-wide circulation, and a host of local (God bless 'em) newspapers in Nebraska, this argument just doesn't hold up.

What is more, according to some school administrators — and some school board members too — the educational level of the public is steadily increasing.

Given this mass of information and a better educated public to interpret it, we won't buy the argument that this issue is too complex for the average man.

But even if that argument were true — which it isn't — we would still contend the issue should be put to a vote of the populace at large: True, school administrators and board members run educational institutions, but Joe Public is paying for them.

Ancient Ball Games

Yes, reading ancient files of the Quiz do prove engrossing, and I am glad to see that Elmer has discovered them, and is calling your attention to Ord as it used to be.

We don't pay enough attention to our own history, our antecedents.

His discussion of baseball in Ord fascinated me. In my first days in Ord I remember that there was a playing field in the center of the present Ord Golf course, and that I went to watch one day.

Accompanying friends, not knowing much about what was going on, I nevertheless howled encouragement so loudly that I won a huge bouquet of flowers. Flowers grown by dear little old Bud Shirley, long time park superintendent and the original Ord golf player.

(Here, too, football was played for years.)

I recall a number of bitterly cold Thanksgiving afternoon games — games of wild, lively football.

But baseball used to be the big family game.

In every yard, in the evening, Father would throw a few balls for the children who scrambled happily after them. That family baseball mania seems to have vanished, too bad. It was undoubtedly better for you than TV!

Eugene Leggett was a baseball nut, and spared every moment he could snatch from the printing presses to pursue his favorite game.

He managed the Ord team for a number of years. He went farther than that.

I remember printers who were hired because they were good pitchers. And kept their jobs several years too. Ord used to play a busy schedule with neighboring towns.

And I remember how Gene used to hear of a good baseball man who needed a job. One time, I know he went to see Howard

New Organization Fighting LID Drive

Capitol News
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondence

The Nebraska Press Association Lincoln — A new organization has been formed to fight the petition campaign under way to place on the November ballot a proposal to limit the spending of local governmental subdivisions supported by property taxes.

The Constitutional Government Committee, headed by former state Senator Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox and Louis Roper, a Lincoln banker and businessman, will strive they said, "to inform the people of Nebraska of the devils nature of the LID petition now being circulated throughout the state to amend our Constitution."

The proposed amendment would limit a constitutional 5 percent limit on budget increases of local political subdivisions and create chaos in this state, according to Ziebarth and Roper.

They advised Nebraskans to be "extremely cautious" before signing any petition to change the Constitution.

They said claims that the suggested amendment would give people the right to decide how much tax they are willing to pay and the statement that the Legislature could suspend the budget limit are "misleading."

Under the amendment the limit on spending could be disregarded if:

- Four-fifths of the state senators — 40 of the 49 lawmakers — approved an exemption.
- Voters in a taxing district authorized it in a special July election.
- Large population or student growth rates required a higher budget.

If the constitutional change were made, Ziebarth and Roper said, property taxes would increase substantially next year because the threat of the amendment would encourage the boards of political subdivisions to raise their 1978-79 budgets beyond actual needs in order to protect their future budget bases.

They also argued the people would have a right to decide how much their taxes would be — only once a year — in July — and couldn't exercise it the rest of the year.

Furthermore, they said, suspension of the budget limit by the Legislature by a four-fifths vote would be virtually impossible to accomplish.

If there are to be budget limitations, they should never be locked into the Constitution, which cannot be changed readily by changing circumstances, Ziebarth and Roper said.

A few days after they released their statement, S. H. Brauer, Jr., one of the leaders in the petition drive, predicted the 45,000 signatures to place the spending lid idea on the ballot will succeed.

He said his organization is shooting for the gathering of 100,000 names to drive home the fact that Nebraskans in general want to put some effective restrictions on the spending of their property tax dollars.

Several weeks ago, Brauer said he was sure that some of the strongest opposition to a spending lid would come from educational interests.

In Lincoln, the Board of Education and Superintendent John Prasch have gone on record as saying a limit on spending could hurt school staffing and programs.

The board also voted to oppose the campaign to put the ceiling proposal on the November ballot.

Prasch was directed to prepare a statement explaining some of the "negative effects" of the restriction.

Huff and talked him into the idea that he needed another mechanic . . . who just happened to play a fine ball game.

The man got the job. And Ord travelled happily about the valley, giving St. Paul and other towns fits.

Family games? They're gone. Where did they go? Right now it is kite-flying season . . .

It wasn't the first time Kendrick had been critical of the gasohol program. He said the costs and benefits of the product claimed by the state committee differ sharply from the information he has compiled.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I am reminded of the feller that saw the farmer whack his mule up side the head with a two-by-four. He hated to mess in other folks business, but he couldn't stand to see animals hurt, so he ask the farmer would he please not hit the mule, and try talking to it. The farmer said he loved his old mule, and he talked to her all the time, but first he had to get her attention.

It occurs to me, Mister Editor, that maybe that's what the Government is doing. It's talked fer so long about dangers of driving and working, and now it's beating us over the head. I'm thinking of all the safety rules we got to live with today. Most of em we think we could live better without, and we might be right. But, like the farmer and his mule, all the regulating agencies of Government have to stretch a point to make one. I can see where a carpenter working on the outside of a big building ought to wear a hard hat, cause nails, bricks and bolts get dropped by people working right on the building. But I can't see why a telephone installer has got to wear a hard hat when he comes in a busy office to move a phone from one place in the room to another. I go along with paper cutters in printing plants that are built so both hands are needed to make it work so the operator don't have a hand to stick under the blade, but I wonder about OSHA saying you got to wear a life jacket in the boiling sun working on a pier over three feet of water.

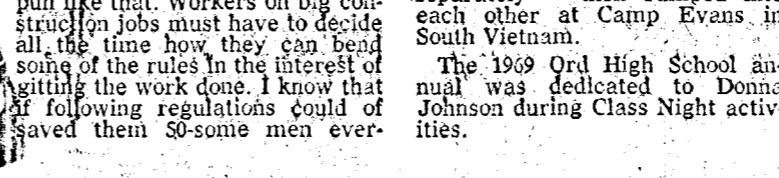

But then comes a terrible thing like happened to them people on the concrete tower in West Virginia the other week and you start thinking it is all just fer show, or is all the rules good if all together they could prevent someone like that. Workers on big construction jobs must have to decide all the time how they can bend some of the rules in the interest of getting the work done. I know that if following regulations could of saved them 50-some men everbody from the farmer and his mule on up wish they had of been. The fellers at the country store got to talking about that tragedy Saturday night after Ed Novak came in with a report where this woman in Tennessee had become the first person in the country charged with falling to see that another person was strapped in the car seat. Tennessee is the only state with a law that requires the driver to make sure children under three are secured with a federal approved device.

Ed said the law sounded silly at first, but when you extend it to cover helmets for motorcycle riders and concrete that has been allowed to cure long enough to hold men 120 feet in the air you realize that you got to take the silly to get the good.

The fellers was general agreed, Mister Editor. Ken Collins went on to point out that there ain't no limit to what Government will do to cover all the safety bases. Ken had saw where weather people have agreed to protect men from wimmen by naming storms after men too. Next we'll have boy boats for the same reason, he allowed.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

The gasoline committee, meanwhile, issued guidelines for local governments units that want to apply for $500,000 grants for grain alcohol manufacturing or storage plants.

The committee asked that applications be submitted by July 21.

KERRY ON

— holiday test —
Though I'm sure the Memorial Day Weekend weather altered many plans and disappointed most Nebraskans, I managed to turn it into a restful holiday.

Outside of the commemoration of the designated days, holidays are meant to be restful — in my thinking.

The excitement of camping, boating and fishing were left behind in my boyhood years. They offer little intrigue today. I prefer to spend my time quietly at home, enjoying the pleasures I often overlook during the busy workweeks.

While many loaded up camping supplies, my own last-minute weekend shopping was restricted to gasoline for the lawn mower, some fertilizer for the lawn, and some charcoal for cooking on the patio. I was in no hurry though I watched many hastily preparing for the trip to and from their distant weekend destinations.

After the brief showers both Friday and Saturday nights, the sun broke through Sunday, providing me with plenty of time to trim the lawn and then fix a cold glass of ice tea and soak up some sunshine on the patio. It was then I gave thought to this column and became even more appreciative of my home and small-town living.

In the quiet of our backyard I found I seldom take the time to hear during the week. The Visitors came and went from Parkview Village, bringing cheerful smiles from the many residents and sometimes tearful 'good-byes' at their departure.

The world I witnessed seemed deliberate and unhurried. It helped return perspective to my own world, reminding me of the values of life and living and people.

I may have done little over Memorial Day Weekend. There are those, I'm sure, who would ping-pong remark, "You just stayed home!"

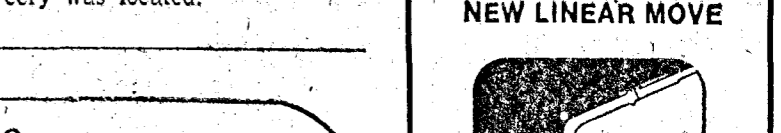

I'll simply reply, "Yes." How could you possibly explain?

Ericson News

Kim Heinz spent a week with her aunt, Mrs. Melvin Manning at Grand Island, she came home Friday night and Mrs. Manning came to spend the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Alicia Heinz.

Mary Hoefner was a Sunday dinner guest of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Booth. Her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pierce of near Grand Island were also dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce had spent several days at Lake Ericson.

I. Haller of Norfolk was a Saturday visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woodworth. Monday Tony Svoboda and Lottie were supper guests in this home.

I don't care how well they engineer the new cars, the biggest shock you will ever have to absorb is the price.

"I would like to talk to you about breaking a lifelong habit that is costing you money."

The habit of putting a little money in savings. And, leaving a lot of idle money in a checking account where it earns no interest and, so, costs you money.

Break the idle money habit!

The Money Service Account is first, and most importantly, a special savings account that earns interest every day. Yet, thousands of people prefer it to a checking account when shopping. For, with a Money Service Account, you deposit money to your account or withdraw cash—right at the store where you shop! So your money is earning interest for you, right up to the minute you actually use it.

Leaving idle money in an account was fine. Before inflation. Today, you can hardly afford to. The Money Service Account is the smart way to put your money to work.

And you can be pardoned for feeling just a little smug when you see friends, victims of a lifelong habit, standing in line to deposit pay checks in non-interest accounts.

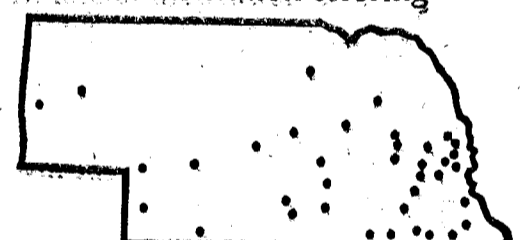

Many Money Service Centers

There is a Money Service Center at about 70 merchants across Nebraska. These merchants are open evenings, weekends, and on many holidays.

There is always someone at these Money Service Centers who can help you make deposits, get cash fast, or use your Money Service card as identification to cash checks.

Interchange program: 70 new places to get cash. Interchange means that now your Money Service card entitles you to get cash from your account at any office of any Nebraska financial institution offering

The Money Service, no matter where you opened your account! That's about 70 new locations to get cash!

A complete record, of course. You always know where you stand with a Money Service Account. We send you a complete, accurate record of all of your transactions regularly. So, The Money Service Account is easier to use than an ordinary passbook. And it is more convenient, in many cases, than a checking account.

Look for a Money Service Center

Money Service Centers are located in all stores honoring The Money Service card. Just look for The Money Service sign.

There you'll find informative literature which explains The Money Service Account and a simple form to open your account by mail.

Or, stop by any of the financial institutions offering The Money Service to open your account.

Break the old habit that is costing you money! Get hooked on The Money Service habit! You'll feel a lot better just as soon as you do!

Open your Money Service Account at any of these financial institutions!

New Seesaw Record Set!

Dennis Schmitt (left) and Hector Rodriguez, (right) got an assist from water boy Pedro Rodriguez.

A new world's seesaw balancing record has been set in Ord, Friday, May 26. Dennis Schmitt and Hector Rodriguez with an assist from Pedro Rodriguez set a new mark of 2 hours and 16 minutes in Bussell Park.
Their new time betters that set by Sue Smith and Jennifer Hansen last March. The two girls balanced for one hour flat in the Ord grade school park.
Information on seesaw records is rather skimpy. However, the two boys feel certain they have forged ahead to a new world's mark. If broken, the boys vowed they would meet or beat any new seesaw records.
The trouble with luxuries is that by the time you save enough money to buy them, they have become necessities.

Come To Church READ I JOHN 4:13-18 "Do not be afraid of sudden panic." (Proverbs 3:25 RSV) It was during the dark days of World War II that a church elder from blitzed Clydebank was making his way home in the blackout. With his key in his pocket, he became aware that he was being followed. If he hurried, the footsteps behind him speeded up; when he slowed down, they slowed also. Beginning to panic, he started to run, only to hear the pursuer breathing almost at his back. "Desperate, he stopped and shouted, "What do you want?" In answer a child's voice sobbed, "I was frightened, mister, and wanted to stay near you." Ashamed now and no longer afraid, the elder took the child's hand and escorted her home. When panic takes possession of us, we become blind and deaf to the greater needs of others around us. But when in sympathy we open our hearts to another's fear, courage comes in to take place of suspicion and aggression. PRAYER: Grant us, O Lord, Your perfect love which casts out fear and gives us courage to spare for others who are afraid. In the name of Christ, our Savior, Amen. THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: When love enters the door, fear flies out the window. - J. M. Orr (Stirling, Scotland). Copyright - THE UPPER ROOM

Bob Slowell to Bar Conference

Nebraska State Bar Association President Daniel D. Jewell of Norfolk announced Ord attorney Bob Slowell is one of 100 individuals chosen as participants in the NSBA's first Long-Range Planning Conference. This conference will be held at Dana College in Blair June 8-10. The 100 persons selected include 50 lawyers and 50 laypersons throughout Nebraska.

Conference participants will discuss four areas of concern relating to the legal profession: delivery of legal services, professional competence, the public image of lawyers, and the administration of justice. A discussion paper on each area will be presented to the group as a whole. Following each presentation, participants will form four smaller groups, equally divided between lawyers and laypersons, to discuss the subject in more detail and to make specific recommendations for action. When all four areas have been presented and discussed, the participants will meet as a group to rank recommendations in order from the highest priority for the NSBA to the lowest priority.

Following the conference, the NSBA Executive Council will review the recommendations and refer those assigned the highest priority to the appropriate bar committee. The committee will determine how the recommendations could best be implemented, and will present any suggestions for action to the House of Delegates for approval.

Pool Opening Ends Two Years Waiting

Nearly two years of waiting and working ended Tuesday afternoon when the new Ord Municipal Pool opened. Pool managers Rod Adams and Al Cudly revealed they and other pool personnel had been working on opening preparations for several days.

"Frankly," Adams told the Quiz, "I didn't think we were going to open Tuesday." Troubles with the pumping system were overcome and the newly completed L-shaped pool opened for business around 1 p.m.

The old pool, located on the same site near Russell Park, closed its door in 1977. Built 20 years earlier, it had been showing its age. Cracked cement, a faulty filtration system, and corroded shower stalls all pointed to the fact the pool had passed its prime.

The State Health Department was licensing the old structure on a conditional year-to-year basis.

The new pool is heated, and has underwater lights for evening swims.

Decision

Early in 1976, the City Council was faced with the decision of building a new pool or continuing to pour money into the then existing aging structure. The council opted for a new pool.

The city dads took their case to the public. Meetings were held, and discussions organized. Both the Ord radio station and the Ord Quiz backed them in their efforts.

These paid off when voters approved a $240,000 bond issue in the November 1976 election.

At first some feared the city would have to go it alone on financing the new pool. This didn't happen. On May 13, 1977 Councilman C. J. Klinek announced $100,000 in federal cost-sharing funds were available, reducing the city's financial load.

That summer Clark Emerson and the city council advertised for project bids. Low bidder was Christensen Bros. Inc. with figures of $31,425. The city picked up the $70,425 cost overrun.

Work started at the close of the pool last summer. City crews first salvaged various equipment and supplies. The concrete pool was razed shortly thereafter.

Construction work then began. A cold winter and a wet spring slowed workmen. The scheduled Memorial Day opening date had to be moved back. Tuesday, June 6, the pool opened for business.

The new L-shaped pool measures 82 feet long by 48 feet wide. The diving area is 36 by 34 feet. A wading pool for small tots is nearby.

No more will workmen have to sandblast the pool paint on a yearly basis. The new pool has stainless steel sides, reducing maintenance costs. Paint isn't needed.

Gone, too, is the old bath house. In its place is a fluted concrete and colored structure. Both it and the pool passed State Health Department inspection standards June 1.

The pool will be open from 1 to 5:30 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m. Mornings will be used for swimming lessons, with Monday evenings reserved for family members only. Wednesday evenings are reserved for adults only.

RULES

Pool managers Adams and Cudly announced the following rules are in force:

- Absolutely no cutoffs.
- No running on the deck.
- All swimmers must take a shower before entering the deck area.
- All persons having an infectious or communicable disease are prohibited from using the pool.
- Glass and food or drinks are not allowed on the deck area.
- Only one person allowed on the diving board at a time.

Council Approves Remodeling Plans

City Council members voted approval of first floor remodeling plans for the old Masonic Building during their Monday night session in City Hall. Their action came after discussion with Richard J. Stacy, architect with Great Plains Engineering and Architecture of Kearney.

The council signed a lease-purchase agreement with building owners, Ord Masons, last year. Located one door north of city hall, the building formerly housed a mortuary on the first floor. The city plans to remodel that area for use by the Ord Volunteer Fire Department and city employees.

Under the plan approved Monday, administrative offices and council chambers will occupy the front (west) half of the building on the first floor. Remodeling the building and constructing the offices was estimated to cost $35,000 according to architect Stacy. He said that estimate, made last fall, was preliminary and by no means final.

Materials now would likely be higher, he told the Quiz.

Plans for the back half of the building, for use by Ord firemen, were finalized earlier this year. They will use the structure for storage of equipment.

In other business, the council signed a plan to repair, repave and resurface highway 70 and 11 between 14th and 26th Streets in Ord. Under the contract inked Monday, the state will pay 65 percent and the city 35 percent of the project.

State officials are expected to sign the contract later this week. Ord's share of the project will be financed by general revenue funds and not special assessments.

Public Hearing-Bid Opening

A public hearing on that project is scheduled for June 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Council chambers. Bids will be opened there June 26 at 5 p.m.

Pool Inspection

Councilmen learned the just completed Ord Municipal pool passed a required state inspection June 1.

Pool engineers from Clark, Emerson, and Associates revealed all state and local standards were met as of that date. In a letter to the Council they termed the L-shaped pool "one of the more beautiful pools in the state."

The Council voted to give $100 to the Ord Chamber for use in promoting the July 4 baseball game here in Ord. Councilman Skala noted baseball on July 4 is as American as Chevrolet and apple pie.

Approval was given by the Council for advertising for a billing machine. It will be used by the city utilities department.

The Council recessed until June 19, 7:30 p.m.

Rattler Found on Dan Spilinek Farm

Dan Spilinek was chopping thistles on his farm 1 1/2 miles southwest of Ord Monday, when he caught this rattlesnake. He was working Monday night when he heard a buzzing sound and felt something strike his pants leg and boot.

"After he struck," Spilinek told the Quiz, "he took off. My first instinct was to kill him." He later held the snake to the ground with a spade, saving him for his son, Brad.

Earlier, Brad had given a speech on snakes in Ord High teacher Jim Sajevic's class. Brad's efforts rated an A minus, according to his father, Dan. The teacher commended Brad for a great speech but remarked he could have used a proper Monday Dan and Brad called on Sajevic. Unfortunately, it was too late to change the grade recorded earlier.

Project Problems Mostly Caused By Social Conflict

Ord Chamber of Commerce members learned most problems connected with the Calamus Project are related to social conflict during their monthly luncheon at the Ord Elks Club Thursday. Guest speakers were Henry Lange, Twin Loups Reclamation District president and Dave Wilde of the Grand Island Bureau of Reclamation.

Wilde told Chamber members the project involves acquiring an estimated 10,000 acres of land and relocating 12 families. The acquisition procedure is going along extremely well, according to Wilde. He thanked families to be relocated for their cooperation.

Of the 32 individual land tracts to be acquired, the B. of R. has ownership in 13 according to the government official.

The B. of R., he said, is currently involved in preliminary construction on the project. He broke this down into two phases. One is testing the dam area geological composition and work on the dam foundation. The second phase will be construction on the rest of the dam and other work on the Calamus or Twin Loups irrigation project.

The bureau recently opened a construction office in Ord. Wilde related. Located in the old American Legion building at 17th and N Streets, it now has 15 employees on the payroll. When construction is in full swing, 35 people will be employed in the office, according to Wilde.

This will likely be in 1983, according to the speaker. By then some 500 hard hat workers will fill this area. A break-down of these numbers, as supplied by Wilde, indicates that of every 100 construction workers, 47 will be drawn from the Ord area. The remaining 53 will come from other parts of the country.

Of these 53, 14 will be single, 14 will be married but with their families living some place other than the job site. The remainder will be married and will bring their families to the Ord area.

Twin Loups president Henry Lange told Chamber members 2/3 of the construction will be in Garfield, Loup, and Valley Counties. He predicted local merchants in that area will get what he called "the lion's share of the business."

The project, he speculated, will have a big impact on commerce in the Loup Valley.

Ground Breaking Date

Lange revealed a September 2 ground breaking date has been tentatively scheduled. "We've worked a long time on this project," he said. "I'd like for it (the ground breaking) to be more than just a passing affair. He suggested making plans to have a big barbecue.

"We're moving ahead, acquiring land, and should be able to hold ground breaking ceremonies next September," Lange continued. He voiced hopes that a couple of thousand people would attend the event.

Comstock Plant

Lange revealed he is promoting moving the reservoir on the Comstock Power Plant from the Wood Park area, 3 1/2 miles north of Comstock to a site near Milburn, NE about 30 miles west of Sargent. The dam will store water in the winter. This would be released in summer months to compensate for the low water level in the Middle Loup River.

Plane Crash Near Wolbach Kills Two

Two people were killed in a light plane crash 11 miles northwest of Wolbach Wednesday, May 31. An Illinois man and his wife died in the crash of a Cessna 140 on the Ralph Brown farm.

Nance County Attorney John Morgan reportedly identified the victims as William and Delia Tuinenga of Homewood, IL. The attorney said it is believed the plane was enroute to Boulder, WY where Tuinenga had a business.

Brown told reporters he was putting in fence posts and noticed something in the sky. "At first I thought it was a glider," he said, "but then I noticed there was more than one piece. It must have blown up in the air or got torn up by the wind."

Ord Receives a Downpour Sunday

A sudden downpour Sunday gave the Ord area nearly an inch of moisture. After a few preliminary sprinkles, the heavens opened and torrents of rain fell on the area in a two-hour period.

Glen Beerline, of 1819 M in Ord, measured .96 to an inch in his rain gauge. The Cash Wellbik farm, one mile east of Elyria, received around .90 of moisture at that same time.

The sudden shower had streets and highways in the area flowing with water.

As suddenly as it started, the downpour quit.

Public Forum on Project Planned

An open public forum on the Calamus Project on the Calamus and North Loup Rivers will be held Saturday, June 24, at the Ord Elks Club.

According to coordinator Naomi Geweke of Ord, the forum has been designed to expose varying points of view on the project in the areas of agricultural economics, recreation and fish wildlife resources. General information on project features and the hydrology and geology of the project area will also be provided, Mrs. Geweke said.

A panel discussion between both project proponents and opponents will conclude the forum.

Residents of the Ord and Burwell communities will host a free "whole-hog" barbecue with live musical entertainment and free overnight camping Saturday evening following the forum, at the historic Harford Grove northwest of Burwell on the Calamus.

Parents Group Voting

Eight candidates are running for positions on the Title One Parents Advisory Council. The eight will represent schools in both Ord and Comstock. These include the Ord Elementary School, St. Mary's Parochial School in Ord, Ord Junior High, and the grade school in Comstock.

Candidates are:

- St. Mary's School: Mrs. Dick Beran and Mrs. Joyce Wadsworth.
- Ord Elementary School: Mrs. Linda Cetak and Mrs. Galea Dulitz.
- Ord Junior High, Mrs. Addie Ballou and Mrs. Gwen Linke.

Candidates to represent the school in Comstock have yet to be chosen.

Parents of Title I students are asked to vote for one from each school.

The P.A.C. is a four member board representing Title I students. These are students needing supplemental help in various areas, usually reading and math.

Ord Public Schools officials are working to get a summer school for Title I students going. The summer session will be held only if students are interested and teachers available.

Classes in reading and math would begin August 14 and end August 22.
