Abstract – Data of 180 species of the geometrid subfamilies Ennominae and Geometrinae (148 and 32 taxa, respectively) are presented. Almost four decades of entomological exploration by the Hungarian Natural History Museum in the Korean Peninsula yielded the 3980 specimens discussed here, with a full list of the 230 relevant collecting events. Of the 180 species recorded 53 (~ 30%) turned to be new for the fauna of the northern part of the Korean Peninsula, including Selenia dentaria (FABRICIUS, 1775) (from Samjiyon, Prov. Ryanggang) as new to the fauna of entire Korea. A key to the species of Selenia HÜBNER, 1823 is given. With 6 figures.

Key words – Geometridae, Geometrinae, Ennominae, faunistics, new records, Korean Peninsula, Selenia dentaria.

INTRODUCTION

The cooperation of Korean and Hungarian biologists started more than four decades ago. Initially it meant faunistic investigations in the Korean Peninsula financed by the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. A long series of expeditions were carried out in the course of the first 27 years. The number of collecting events exceeded 1880 and a large amount of arthropods were preserved in the collections of the Hungarian Natural History Museum (HNHM).

* Zoological Collectings by the Hungarian Natural History Museum in Korea No. 199

One of the favourite groups of arthropods was Lepidoptera, especially macromoths. Therefore HNHM became an important source of Lepidoptera data for the knowledge of the fauna of Korean Peninsula. This is proven by various works treating bombycoid and noctuid moths in particular, where many published records are based on specimens collected by the Hungarian expeditions (PARK et al. 2001).

The family Geometridae represents a diverse group of macromoths, but only a small fragment of the records found in the collections were published (VOJNITS et al. 1994). In this paper we take the first steps to list the so far unpublished records with two Geometridae subfamilies, Ennominae and Geometrinae, represented in the Korean Peninsula by 334 species according to the catalogue of KIM et al. (2001). Geographical, spatial and temporal data of altogether 3784 specimens of Ennominae (148 species) and 196 Geometrinae (32 species) collected between 31.V.1970 and 8.IV.2006 are given. All these are based on specimens deposited in the HNHM.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

In the list of 230 collecting events the most important information are compiled from the HNHM records of all the 26 expeditions carried out in Korea by the staff members.

Pinned, set and properly labelled specimens representing ennomine and geometrine macromoths were assembled from the various accession parts of the Hungarian Natural History Museum Lepidoptera collection and arranged by taxa. Some species were identified and curated previously by various workers as KYU-TEK PARK, LÁSZLÓ RONKAY, BALÁZS TÓTH, and ANDRÁS VOJNITS; their curatorial labels were kept in voucher specimens representing the taxa. The material was revised and determined using the monograph of INOUE et al. (1982) and the catalogue of KIM et al. (2001). Each positively identified specimen was provided with a label containing a unique identification number. According to this the specimen was electronically databased in the “HNHM, coll. Lepidoptera, Korea adatbázis” using the program Microsoft Office Excel 2003.

From the specimen database a list of species was generated. Nomenclature and taxonomy strictly follows the catalogue of KIM et al. (2001). The databased specimens are listed according to their subfamilies, genera and species in alphabetical order. After the scientific binomen, the serial number of the collecting events is given (in parenthesis with the specimens recorded) in ascending sequence.

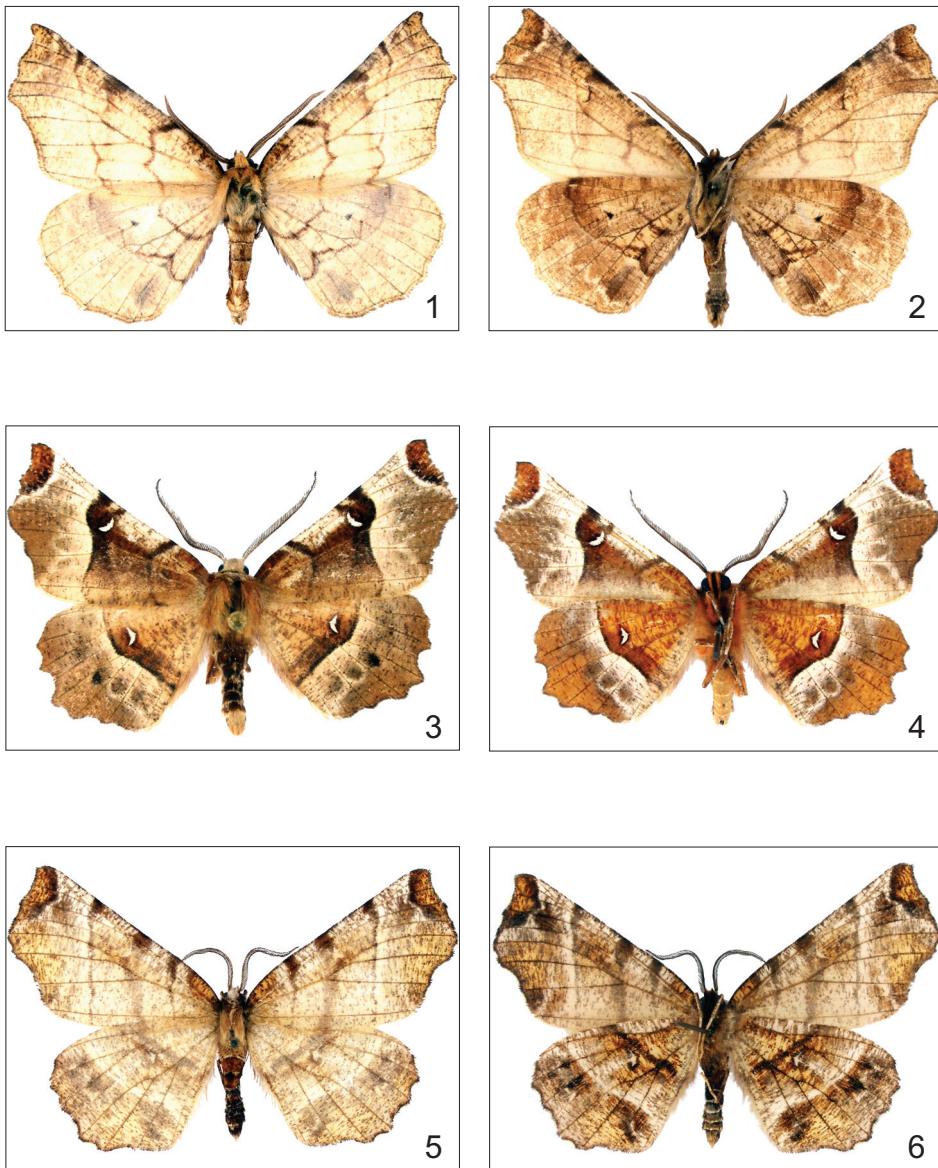

The species marked with an asterisk (*) proved to be new for the fauna of the northern part of the Korean peninsula (sensu KIM et al. 2001: 12). These species were diagnosed and documented in the KIM catalogue, but recorded only from the central and southern parts of the peninsula. Selenia dentaria (FABRICIUS, 1775) proved to be new for the fauna of the entire Korean peninsula. It is discussed in a manner compatible with the format of the KIM catalogue, and a key for identification of the congeneric species is also given (Figs 1–6).

LIST OF COLLECTING EVENTS

Each entry provides the following information: reference number in the List of species, province name, local name of collecting site (sometimes with distance to another settlement or/and altitudinal elevation), date of collecting (day, month and year), comment (on habitat type or collecting method), collector names, country (NK = North Korea, SK = South Korea), expedition serial number.

DISCUSSION

Species new to North Korea

The high number of the species recorded as new for the fauna of northern part of the Korean Peninsula reflects that the available material from the northern part for the authors of the KIM catalogue was limited and scanty. Species which are common and widely distributed in the southern part, often lack any northern record (Aethalura ignobilis, Descoreba simplex, Ectropis obliqua, Erannis golda, etc.). For others known only by a single or a few northern records in our list are represented by more data (e.g. Geometra dieckmani, Hemitea aestivaria, Jodis lactearia, Neohipparchus vallata, etc.).

Problematic identities

In the case of Cabera purus we recognized a phenotype, which did not correspond with any of the white Cabera images documented by KIM et al. (2001: figs 34–37), as it has two forewing dorsal surface transverse lines (in purus there are three), and there are no scales with brown pigments scattered in the wing surfaces, therefore the wing surfaces are pure white (in purus the wing surfaces have brownish tint). This phenotype was already indicated by a previous worker as “Cabera not identified”.

In the case of Macaria liturata we are of the opinion that this taxon occurs only in the southern part of the peninsula, whilst the other regions are inhabited by the taxon described as Macaria liturata var. pressaria CHRISTOPH, 1893 (syntype(s), type locality: “Vilui, Albasin. Amur sept.” = river Vilui, fortress Albasin, eastern Amur), considered as liturata subspecies by SCOBLE (1999: 568). The pressaria phenotype is somewhat darker, with more prominent median transverse line, and more ochre in the forewing apex compared to fuscaria (see INOUE et al. 1982: plate 85, figs 14–20). Further studies are necessary to clarify the taxonomic status of these phenotypes.

A species new to the Korean Peninsula: Selenia dentaria (FABRICIUS, 1775) (Figs 5–6)

Phalaena dentaria FABRICIUS, 1775: 623.

Selenia bilunaria ESPER, [1801]: 73; PROUT 1915: 324, Taf. 16a, fig “bilunaria”; WEHRLI 1940: 326; FORSTER & WOHLFAHRT 1973: 212, pl. 19, figs 20–21.

Selenia dentaria (FABRICIUS, 1775): VOJNITS 1980: 110, fig. 101.

Diagnosis – Forewing length measured from the base of costa to wing apex 17–21 mm (n = 3), the dorsal wing ground colour is warm ochre; whilst it is pale yellow in S. sordaria LEECH, 1897 or pinkish brown in S. tetralunaria (HUFNAGEL, 1767) (see the key below).

Material – Samjiyon, 1800 m, Prov. Ryanggang, 4.VI.1985 (2 males); ditto, 5.VI. (1 male).

Remarks – The species is known to be distributed from Europe (British Isles) to the northern part of Asia, Far East and the Amur region and Kamchatka (PROUT 1915, WEHRLI 1940, VOJNITS 1980), but not recorded from Japan (INOUE et al. 1982). In Korea this is the third Selenia species recorded, and easy to recognize (see above). Distribution of S. sordaria is restricted to the eastern part of temperate Asia, whilst S. tetralunaria has a somewhat wider, but principally similar range in Eurasia as that of S. dentaria recorded here first for the fauna of Korea.

Key to the species of Selenia HÜBNER, 1823
recorded in the Korean Peninsula

- 1 Wing dorsal surface pale yellow with transverse lines and pattern, forewing apex especially extended and slightly darker than submedian area; ventral hindwing basal area light, postbasal regions with conspicuous spot in tornal and anal area (Figs 1–2)
S. sordaria LEECH, 1897
- Wing dorsal surface darker ochre or pinkish brown with transverse bands, forewing apex less acute but conspicuously darker than submedian area; ventral hindwing basal area yellow, no spot in tornal and anal area 2
- 2 Wings dark submedian and light postmedian areas contrasting in colouration, hindwing with large postmedian spot in cell Cu1-Cu2, median band undulated (Figs 3–4) S. tetralunaria (HUFNAGEL, 1767)
- Wings submedian and postmedian area not contrasting in coloration, forewing with well visible brown straight medial band, no hindwing postmedian spot (Figs 5–6) S. dentaria (FABRICIUS, 1775)
