Summer season doldrums, or not swoons and groans before taking the big

It's the time of the year when every business owner is anxiously counting the days before the "season" starts. Or is it?

Something peculiar seems to be going on this year. At a recent Sun roundtable on real estate, one Realtor said she had seen no drop-off in interest. She said she's been busy all summer showing homes — and selling them.

Ralph Allen, owner of the King Fisher Fleet of commercial ships at Fishermen's Village, said he has had a "strong" summer also. Lots of fish to catch and sunsets to view, he said.

But, it's not just his boats that are

"I like to talk to the people who own the shops here (at Fishermen's Village) and they are all telling me it seems like the season was just extended," he said. "They are feeling better about the

The more I heard, the more intrigued

Could this be the summer that bucked tradition?

Dawn Hamilton, owner of All About You Salon Spa in Port Charlotte, shared a similar experience.

She said her business has been steady all summer. "We've really been busy," she said as she snipped a client's hair. "I think after the rough winter, people just decided to stay or move here, Hamilton said, and the client shook her head in agreement.

Next stop, Fast and Easy Auto Repair on Easy Street, where my buddy Boris was performing his latest miracle on one of my cars.

So, Boris, how has your business been

"You can see," he said, waving his arm at the cars filling his parking lot. "I stay busy. It's been a very good year.' His wife told me he plans to take a vacation in September just to get ready for the winter rush — as if it could get any busier. Just a little north on Tamiami Trail, Dan and Liz Loupe of Abbe's Donuts said they have seen a downturn since winter, but business remains good. As a matter of fact, Dan said the day they came back from a week-long summer vacation, people were so ready for doughnuts that he may have set a record for sales. Same story at Abbe's Donuts in North Port. Robin, who can pack a box of doughnuts as fast as anyone, says the lines still form every morning. In Englewood, Rosie Viton, manager of Good Times Diner, agreed that business has been better than normal this summer. "It is steady, much better than last summer," Viton said of the restaurant, which has been serving customers for more than 20 years altogether, six under the current owners. Joni Boger, owner of Frames of Mind in Tiffany Square Plaza, said business is not what it was at peak of season, but it is much better than any summer she can remember.

"I hear people say they are building or buying and staying here," she said.

All that bodes well for the "season." Imagine, if business owners are happy now, what a sweet tune they'll be singing come November.

And, with a northern winter resembling 2013-14, we can all brace for the migration.

School's back in session

Thousands of students from Charlotte, Sarasota and DeSoto counties are heading back to school today, and authorities are reminding drivers to remain vigilant and watch their speeds.

"It can sometimes take a few weeks for drivers to get used to the routine of having school zone lights flashing again at certain times of the day," Charlotte County Sheriff Bill Prummell said in a press release. "So we want to remind everyone to remember to slow down and watch out for children, particularly at bus stops and crossing zones. If necessary, leave a little early so you don't feel rushed."

MONDAY AUGUST 18, 2014

School zones are effective 30 minutes before and after the start of the school they are around.

Deputies will be increasing their patrols in and around the schools this week, with a special emphasis around the elementary and middle schools, officials say, and will strictly enforce all traffic laws. The citations carry greater fines than regular speeding infractions.

Minister speaks about protest, arrest

By SAMANTHA GHOLAR STAFF WRITER

PORT CHARLOTTE — Armed with a lot of support and a heart for equality, the Rev. Amy Kindred took to our nation's capital in hopes of making even the slightest stir in the government. Arrested and detained by police, Kindred was one small part of the large protest on July 31 to urge lawmakers to change immigration policies.

Kindred, who ministers at the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Charlotte County, spent her Sunday

vacation; the first week of my trip was more business-related, that's when all this happened in D.C.," she said Sunday following her sermon.

During her address to the congregation, Kindred explained how the entire idea of equality and immigration advocacy began for her.

"It was back in 1998. I was living in Fort Lauderdale," Kindred said during her sermon. "Friends and I were out at the beach. One of them said to me how lovely the beach was with the ships out on the horizon. Then this friend said to me 'Can you believe in 1939, that an entire ship of Jewish refugees seeking to get away from Hitler was turned away from these shores?' It just hit me, right in

Filmmaker hopes for community support

By DREW WINCHESTER STAFF WRITER

NORTH PORT — A local filmmaker is looking for businesses and investors to help get his latest project across the finish line, and hopefully highlight the region and all it has to offer along the way.

Dave Lepage, a 20-year North Port resident, is gearing up to shoot his 12-part Web series, "Necessary Evil," which he describes as a cross between two popular series, "Dexter" and "The Sopranos."

The plot involves a former "mob enforcer" who spends his free time "killing the scum of the Earth," Lepage said, as biker gangs and the mob also try to hunt down the lone enforcer.

It's based on a completed short film called "Ten Minutes," which will act as the first two parts of the 12-part series. Each section is estimated to run 10 minutes long, Lepage said.

For "Necessary Evil," Lepage says he's bagged veteran performer Robert Lasardo, a character actor who has more than 100 film and television credits dating back to 1987. TV shows

As part of the Ice Bucket Challenge, the participants challenged others to donate to ALS or douse themselves with icewater — or both!

Taking and making the ALS Ice Bucket Challenge

By CHRIS PORTER EXECUTIVE EDITOR

It's called the ALS Ice Bucket Challenge, and you may be next.

So what will you do? Suzanne Graham knew what to do. She made her challenge in a big way.

Graham is the president of the Florida Homebuilders Association. She's also a past president of the Charlotte DeSoto Building Industry Association. On Friday afternoon, she and her friend Donna Barrett gathered Wendy Atkinson, Bob Miller and Charlotte County Commissioner Bill Truex outside the CDBIA office on Toledo Blade Boulevard to accept the challenge and reach out to other state leadAssociation.

They ended up soaked in cold water and laughing, as you can see if you watch the video.

The ALS Ice Bucket Challenge is pretty simple, which is maybe why it's caught on so quickly. It involves dumping a big bucket of ice water on your head while someone captures it on video.

The phenomenon was started by pro golfers challenging each other. It began to take off about a month ago.

My Englewood neighbor, Kelly Wise, posted the first I saw. It shows her challenging family members and friends to donate to the ALS Association or douse themselves with a bucket full of ice water. As the video ends, Kelly dumps the ice water on her head and sputters out a laugh. Oh, no.

Within days, dozens of similar videos popped up on my Facebook news feed. Hundreds and thousands of videos are making their way across the Web. The folks on the morning news shows talked about it. Steven Speilberg accepted Oprah's challenge. The U.S. Navy's Blue Angels

While this is all fun, ALS is absolutely not.

The initials stand for the insidious Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, and is also known as Lou Gherig's disease for the great ballplayer who contracted it in 1931 and died in 1941. This nasty neuromuscular disease is progressive, meaning it gets worse with time, debilitating people as it takes its course. Most people who are diagnosed with it die within a few years, although some live longer.

Last week, the challenge came to me all the way from Massachusetts from my college buddy, Doug Knight. Thanks for thinking of me, Doug.

What to do? Make a donation? Make a video? Both?

Graham and Barrett made it easy for me on Friday. Donna contacted the Sun, saying Suzanne was gathering Commissioner Truex, a former CDBIA president, along with board member Atkinson and current CDBIA president Miller. They were going to challenge builder T.J. Thornberry, State Rep. Ken Roberson, State Sen. Nancy Detert and others.

Then she said Suzanne was making her challenge in the name of her late friend, Dave Bitner.

You may have known Dave. He represented this area in Tallahassee as a state representative in the 1990s. Before that, he was general manager of the Charlotte Sun, my boss at the time and an energetic community leader. ALS cut him down. Dave died in 2011.

I grabbed my camera and went to go cover the video shoot.

When I got there, we started chatting about Dave, telling stories. I remembered the last time he came by the Sun and we sat and talked about his grandkids, Kelly and Dylan.

It turns out Donna Barrett is a pretty good photographer. She was able to hold my camera as well as her smartphone to capture the video of the challenge. So now it's out there.

The ALS Association has reported receiving nearly $10 million because of this phenomenon. Wouldn't it be great if this was the tipping point in the fight against this disease?

Justice center expansion; to be or not to be?

yriad questions have swirled so much around the proposed $36 million expansion of the Charlotte County Justice Center in Punta Gorda, that the Answer Man has been tasked with answering them.

Why, with crime declining; why now after only 14 years; at what cost; who's going to pay for it, and is this just another boondoggle to extract hard-earned dollars from the pockets of county taxpayers, the majority of whom will probably never see the inside of the facility?

Well, some of the answers are relatively complex, as finances and alleged politics usually answers are compelling. There is, in fact, a critical need for the expansion.

State law clearly mandates that counties provide necessary office and court space, equipment and furnishings for circuit courts, public defenders and states attorneys.

Initially, a $29.6 million, 197,000-square-foot complex that opened in 1999 was designed, accurately it turns out, to function in its present

So for the past four to six years, major internal modifications have been undertaken — walls removed, offices and conference rooms created, a law library and the grand jury conference suite eliminated, a once vacant 16,000-squarefoot first floor room is now the "file farm," filled with 22,000 boxes containing 650,000 files, some dating back to when the county was created in 1921.

There were once five public defenders. Now there are 14, and they all share one conference room for private conversations with their clients.

Grand juries now meet in an administrative conference room. There is only room to assemble 100 prospective jurors at any one time.

In situations like the recent Rotonda sewer case, 100 assembled jurors made the space unavailable for other cases.

The State Attorney's Office has 50 staff crammed "like sardines"into 10,000 square feet. Their caseload has increased 51 percent since 1999. The existing courtrooms and judges are inadequate to handle jury space, restrictions on docket and calendar management create rollover dockets and rolling trial dates.

All of this and more, Administrative Judge Paul Alessandroni told the Answer Man, "seriously compromise the judicial process." Expansion, he said, is "critical." And that's only to mitigate present conditions.

According to the recent consultants' study on expansion, county population is expected to increase 16.6 percent through 2032, leading to an increase in caseload of 51 percent.

The study notes that historical trends indicate cases arise out of human interactions, and the potential quantity of interactions goes up geometrically as the population increases.

For example, from 2002 to 2012 county population grew by 14 percent, while the number of court filings rose 49 percent.

the study projects judi-

Its recommendation is for a gross addition of 78,700 square feet, encompassing functional space of 66,500 square feet, to be completed by 2022.

So, now that the expansion is off the sales tax ballot this year, how is the county going to pay for it, down the road?

According to Commission Chairman Ken Doherty, there are several options under consideration by the county administration to pay for various phases of the project through 2022. The commission, he said, will review each one carefully as they are presented by the administration.

County Administrator Ray Sandrock helpfully shared some options with the Answer Man.

First would be to apportion $800,000 for a design study to convert the first floor file room into offices for the state attorney's staff, by 2016. This would free up the preset state attorney's space for the construction of additional courtrooms in the following seven to 10 years. The files would be removed to storage space somewhere outside the center.

Next, Sandrock said, a "strong option" would be to have the commission place the expansion back on the ballot in 2016, when the county can provide the public with more detail and information about the need.

If that doesn't work out, he said, the next alternative would be to pay for the expansion through the county's Capital Improvement Projects fund, an existing millage rate used to pay for county building needs.

There would have to be some "reshuffling" in projects to be funded, he said, to accommodate the larger justice center expenditure, since funds are usually allocated for five years for specific projects.

A final funding option, which he doesn't see happening, he said, would be a future millage increase.

So there you have it, at least through 2032, with, perhaps, a question the Answer Man himself might ask: After that, what's next?

Joe Comeaux flew C-130 transports in Vietnam

By DON MOORE

SUN CORRESPONDENT

Joe Comeaux of Punta Gorda got out of high school in '69, just in time for the last of the Vietnam War.

"I was in ROTC in college taking pilot's training. I was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in the Air Force in May 1973 after soloing in a T-38 jet trainer at Craig Air Force Base in Selma, Ala.," the 63-year-old said. "I ended up flying C-130 (Lockheed-Hercules) four-engine turboprop transports.

"My first active duty station was Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. I was in the 776 Tactical Airlift Squadron, part of the Pacific Air Force," he explained. "We did all kinds of things, but mostly we dropped cargo to the troops in Vietnam."

Six weeks later the war in Vietnam was over. For 2nd Lt. Comeaux, it was an interesting 45 days.

"I participated in the evacuation of Saigon. Our squadron flew refugees out of Saigon to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines and on to Guam," he said. "Technically we weren't going to Vietnam. I have no Vietnam ribbons to show I was there.

"On my early flights to Saigon I was a door gunner. What I did, I was armed with a flare gun. I would hang out the window of the C-130 and scan the ground for (surface-to-air) missiles being fired our way. If I saw one I'd yell to the pilot and he'd try and break in the opposite direction. I would fire my flare pistol toward the SAM and hope it chased the flare instead of our airbiane. Comeaux explained. "I used to joke about my flare gun experience because my last job was working as a civilian for the Secretary of the Air Force managing a program called Large Aircraft Infrared Counter Measures. What we did was put infrared systems on large airplanes to protect them from enemy missiles. I'd tell people, I started out in this program in Vietnam and in those days all I had was a flare gun. "We would fly into Saigon at night. We'd come in at 10,000 feet and spiral down to the field. What we did was roll in on a 45-degree bank.

"We'd fly back from Vietnam in our C-130 loaded with Vietnam refugees. We'd put more than 200 refugees on floor mats. On one trip a flight had more than 300 people aboard. We'd have as many people sitting on the floor as we could get in the plane. Then we'd put cargo straps over them to try and hold them in place."

A C-130 was capable of flying 60 paratroopers and their equipment to a drop zone. On the flights out of Saigon with the refugees they took upward of five times that many on the transport.

Comeaux recalled that a C-130 from an Air Force Reserve squadron made the cover of Time magazine when it blew up on the runway at the airport in Saigon.

Joe today at 64, at his home in Punta Gorda Isles.

"They were flying in 'Daisy Cutter,' (which had) 10,000-pound bombs to be used against the North Vietnamese who ringed the capital city on the last day," he said. "Unfortunately it was hit by a North Vietnamese mortar round and exploded on the runway. Somehow, no one in the plane was killed.

"These guys in the C-130 that blew up after it was hit by an enemy mortar round were nominated for a Distinguished Flying Cross. Everyone just kinda laughed because they were getting a DFC for screwing up. They never got the award.

"We had an unspoken thing with the North Vietnamese. They would lay off taking the airport while we were flying refugees out. These were people they wouldn't have to deal with after taking over the country if we had flown them out in our C-130s.'

Comeaux said the flights they made to Saigon on the last day weren't nearly as hazardous as the ones the helicopter pilots flew during the final hours before the North Vietnamese took control of the city. The chopper pilots flew refugees to U.S. aircraft carriers waiting off the coast of South Vietnam. The people in the helicopters had a much greater chance of being killed by enemy fire than those on the C-130 flights. After Vietnam, Comeaux was reassigned to Pope Air Base next to Fort Bragg, S.C., home of the 82nd Airborne Division.

'What we did there was train. We dropped the 82nd on various training missions until I was seasick," he said. "We were also involved in the Granada invasion and we almost invaded Angola by dropping the 82nd. "I flew a lot of missions to Central America. Some of them were Special Ops missions. This was around 1979 when we were flying equipment into airports in Central America. Someone would meet us at the airport and take the equipment."

Possibly the deadliest mission Comeaux took part in happened about the time of Marshal Tito's death in 1980 and the crumbling of the Yugoslavian government into a number of individual countries. By that time he was a lieutenant colonel working as an air traffic controller. He took part in a UN mission over there as the UN commander of the communications part of the mission. "I worked with a bunch of good people, including a one-star Marine general named Jim Jones, who was my immediate boss. He later became commandant of the Marine Corps," he recalled.

"It was kind of a strange peacekeeping operation that came after the fall of the Berlin Wall. I was part of the Air Force component working out of Belgrade, Yugoslavia. We wore blue flak jackets, blue helmets and carried M-16 rifles. We rode around in a white Blackhawk helicopter with UN in black painted on its side with a big, black .50-caliber hanging out its door. There was serious genocide in these little countries Tito had controlled. Tens of thousands of people were killed. "Although we didn't stray off the concrete because of the many cluster bombs and land mines left behind, we were involved in dropping munitions to our people who were trying to keep the peace. We got hostile fire pay," Comeaux explained.

The last three years of his 24-year Air Force career were spent working at Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, D.C., as Director of International Programs. He was in charge of helping set up the Ops and Air Traffic Control programs for the Air Force.

On Feb. 1, 1998, Comeaux retired from the Air Force. He immediately went to work for the Airline Pilots Association, then he obtained a position with Delta Airlines and his last job was working as a civilian securement specialist for the Secretary of the Air Force. He finally retired from this position in June.

In school zones, current fines start at $151 in Charlotte County, and $156 in Sarasota County, for driving 1 to 9 miles per hour over the speed limit, and go up to $601 in Charlotte and $656 in Sarasota for 30-plus mph over. There is a mandatory court appearance for driving 30 mph or more over the speed limit, or passing a school bus on the exit side.

Failure to stop for a school bus garners a $266 fine in Charlotte, and $271 in Sarasota. MINISTER the pit of my stomach and I thought, what kind of people would do that? How can we live in a place that would do that?'

Many years passed and Kindred, still carrying the despair for immigrants and her ideals of equality and love, was given an opportunity to make a difference in the lives of the many people seeking safety and refuge.

After the fellowship received an invitation five weeks ago to join protesters for a march in D.C., Kindred knew this was her time to tackle the despair she had long felt.

"I thought long and hard about this. This despair that sat deep in me and began back at that beach in 1998, to it growing last year sitting in Congressman (Tom) Rooney's office last year knowing our voices wouldn't be heard. So I signed up," she said. "One hundred and fifty people signed up to be arrested. We knew what would happen. By the time we got ready to go to the White House, we were down to 112."

Surrounded by more than 400 supporters who accompanied the volunteers to Capitol Hill, Kindred and the other 111 volunteers removed jewelry, watches, belts and other items in order to cut back on their wait time when being processed following their arrests.

"I can't tell you how long I was detained because I didn't have a watch," Kindred said with a laugh during the sermon. "We brought nothing with us except $50 to post our bond and forfeit our trial, which you can only do in D.C. We were shown how to behave and how to not let our emotions get the best of us. The ones who were to be arrested were given white arm bands so the cops could identify us."

Five-hundred protesters walked to the White House gates. The 112 who volunteered to be arrested planted themselves in front of the gates holding signs and chanting.

"It was utter chaos," Kindred said. "You could see the silhouette of the police over the White House. Photographers were right in our face, cameras were set up everywhere, the SWAT team arrived along with the D.C. police, armored cars and barricades. ... We were given three warnings. On the third warning, the police came by and asked everyone their ages and told everyone who might have been under 18 to leave now. I can't say it was a comfortable experience, but that's not what the protest was about."

Kindred cited the 1,100 immigrants deported daily from the U.S. as the reason for being in D.C. According to Kindred, the vast majority of deported immigrants are children under the age of 18 from Central America. Though Kindred's short stint in a D.C. detention center won't show up on her record as a misdemeanor, it did teach her about strength and standing up for what one believes. "What will you do with your despair?" she asked her congregation. "I'm upset with our government right now. Something needs to be done. Some people can't go protest, but you can do something with your despair, and your feelings of helplessness and hopelessness.

Our View

Use caution on roads as schools open

OUR POSITION: Common sense basics as our children head back to school.

ike swallows returning to Capistrano, flocks of area children will begin their annual migration back to school Monday. After spending the summer spread out among summer camps, on the beach, ballfields and basketball courts, traveling, tethered to video game controllers or just sleeping in, tens of thousands of youngsters will take to our communities' sidewalks and school buses and head to class today.

That means the rules of the road have changed. School zone speed restrictions, bus passing laws and common sense dictate what drivers must do to keep the kids safe. Local sheriff's offices have released informative but stern warnings in advance of the opening bell. For example, the Charlotte County Sheriff's Office stated officers will be increasing their patrols in and around the schools next week, with a special emphasis around the elementary and middle schools.

The Sarasota County Sheriff's Office released a top five back-to-school safety tips:

- 1. Adults who drive children to school should leave early to avoid the rush.
- 2. All motorists should watch for kids in school zones and on nearby streets.
- 3. Vehicles must stop for all school buses when the stop sign is out and lights are flashing. This is true even if the bus is on the opposite side of the street, unless a median more than 4 feet wide divides the road.
- 4. Teach children to catch the eye of drivers when walking in front of a school bus or crossing the street.
- 5. Always drive slowly in school zones and pay close attention to crossing guards.

Both departments noted that fines for speeding in school zones range from $156 for traveling 1 to 9 miles per hour over the speed limit and up to $456 for 20 to 29 miles per hour over. There is also a mandatory court appearance for driving 30 mph or more over the speed limit, or passing a school bus on the exit side.

Sarasota County Sheriff Tom Knight said, "The greater risk is not to your wallet but to the life and safety of a child, so slow down and pay even closer attention when driving before and after school."

As more and more parents drive their children to school, drop-off and pickup lines are a frequent source of congestion and frustration. Parents may not realize that directional signs instructing them where and when they can travel on certain roads are just as enforceable as speed zones and bus passing laws. Parents who ignore designated traffic patterns exacerbate congestion, slow down the pick-up and drop-off procedures and frustrate fellow parents.

It's not just school zones where motorists need to be more mindful of pedestrians and cyclists and buses. While a sidewalk-building program has made those trips safer in recent years, there are still numerous routes where the boys and girls must travel beside or even on the roads if roadside shoulders are uneven or swales are filled with standing water.

The poet Carl Sandburg wrote, "There is only one child in the world, and the child's name is All Children." The best way to approach driving during the school year is to imagine every child on his or her way to or from school is yours and act accordingly.

Editor's note: We will be accepting letters related to the Aug. 26 primary election until 5 p.m. Aug. 19.

Colligan has the experience

Editor

I have read the backgrounds on the three candidates running for North Port Commission Seat 4 and have concluded that Jack Colligan has more experience in government and more knowledge of North Port than the other two candidates.

We do not want another commissioner without government experience. It is our job as voters to elect the right candidate. There is only one choice.

Jack has shown over and over again as Sarasota County parks manager that he is more than capable of working with the Sarasota County Commission, as well as the North Port Commission.

This is an area that has been lacking on the current Commission for a long time.

It is time to work together. I support Jack Colligan for North Port Commissioner Seat 4.

Candidate's rhetoric is alarming

Editor:

Recent letters to the editor have praised Dave Ivankovic to the hilt on his stand of build, baby, build. Any and all citizens of this county who are concerned about our water and air should be alarmed at the rhetoric of Ivankovic at recent talks around the county.

He has blatantly criticized local environmentalists and voiced a strong stand against environmental issues and conservation of lands in Charlotte County. He is bent on unbridled zealot expansionism. While we all know that business is needed, as well as construction interest, do we have to ignore the issue of good and responsible conservation of the land? Can it not be shared?

Apparently, Ivankovic does not think so. He has said as much. For those who wish to live in a Miami environment, please move there. We would like to preserve the qualities of life of a small-town environment which drew people here originally and now is a fading paradise because of non-conservationists and their ideologies — the true anti-conservatives.

Supporting Moore in North Port

Editor

I have come to know Jacqueline Moore over the past several months and feel compelled to write and offer my strongest endorsement of her for North Port City Commission.

Ms. Moore has an incredibly versatile and impressive resume and a wealth of experience which will help her bring a clear vision to our city.

Before posting a campaign sign at my office, I wanted to be certain I was endorsing the right candidate. I contacted Jacqueline via social media. I asked about her views regarding a specific vision of how she sees North Port growing in the future. I was particularly interested in developing and growing small business to include shopping, dining and (of course) health care.

She insisted we meet to discuss these issues and, after our meeting, I am convinced she is, absolutely, the right person for the North Port Commission.

Supports Schaff, Ivankovic

Editor:

I have read the letters of support offered by friends of our commissioners running for re-election. I won't dispute the integrity, honesty or general goodness of any of our current commissioners. I do dispute their judgment.

This past year I have witnessed them force sewers on citizens who don't want them and many can't afford them, allow the grossly incompetent CCU to raise our rates, and fall foolish prey to the whims of our judiciary who wants to spend $36 million refurbishing a 15-year-old, $20 million building.

Yet when the Cultural Center asked for $150,000 to maintain a county-owned building that services actual members of the community they said they needed to think about it. Inconceivable! I will not vote for a single

I will not vote for a single incumbent commissioner, nor will I vote to extend the penny sales tax. Not until our commission and bureaucrats show some fiscal responsibility.

I fully expect that as our property values rise, this commission will not lower the millage rate as they should. Commissioner Constance believes that our Community Development Department is wonderful because they were able to bring Cheney Brothers to Charlotte County. What about Walmart and Publix, both of which pulled out of here because of our community development department? Thirty-three percent is not a very good success rate.

I will be voting for Dave Ivankovic and Paula Schaff. I urge all to do the same in hopes of having some fiscal sanity in this county.

Yates, Whitehead have earned votes

Editor:

Elections for public office are not popularity contests. An elected official should win because he/she has earned your vote.

Our North Port commissioners make very difficult decisions. We need someone who will research and ask the hard questions. We need someone who can explain where they stand on any topic. We need someone who is not beholden to the political contributions received from "big money" once they reach the Commission Chambers. We need someone who will be accountable and accessible to North Port citizens.

One candidate has already proven her track record. Linda Yates has earned my vote for Seat 5. The media has portrayed her negatively and inaccurately. Check the public records for the true facts. Ms. Yates has proven she is diligent and takes her job, as a commissioner, very seriously.

Lorenzo Whitehead, Seat 4, has also earned my vote. As

The Sun /Monday, August 18, 2014

has also earned my vote. As a member of the Planning and Zoning Advisory Board, he has proven that he has the ability to do his research. Mr. Whitehead is approachable and can thoroughly answer questions on the multitude of North Port issues.

Do your own research on these two candidates. Contact them directly. Investigate who made contributions to the various candidate's campaigns. You'll see Yates and Whitehead received most contributions from local individuals. Yates and Whitehead may not be "popular," but I know firsthand they will do the job we elect them to do.

Improvements needed at dangerous intersection

Editor:

On Aug. 5, I was injured in an automobile accident at the intersection of Sandhill Boulevard and Deep Creek Boulevard when another driver ran a stop sign. I thank Charlotte County Emergency Services, Charlotte County Sheriff's Office and Bayfront Health Emergency Department for their rapid and professional attention.

I write to call attention to this dangerous intersection.

These roads stay busy with both permanent and seasonal residents, some of whom may be elderly or unfamiliar with local streets. These cross-streets offer nothing to alert oncoming traffic to the stop signs they are approaching after long stretches of road. The responding CCSO deputy said there have been a number of accidents at this location, including one fatality, while others have told of accidents and "close calls" here.

It's time for Charlotte County to address the dangers this intersection presents.
Small and economical changes, such as rumble strips,
warning lights or flashing
stop signs as installed on West
Marion Avenue, would help prevent property damage, injuries and even loss of life in the future.

Amos B. Hester III Punta Gorda

Deutsch is a hard worker

Editor:

I am not a letter writer. However, I believe that this is important to the people of Charlotte County.

I appreciate the efforts of Stephen R. Deutsch. I am writing this because I believe the people in our county need to know what a great job Commissioner Stephen R. Deutsch does for all of us. We need to re-elect him because he does such an awesome job.

No one works harder or represents the citizens better than Deutsch. He is everywhere, always trying to get people to work together or helping someone with a problem. I have heard it said that Stephen R. Deutsch is a true statesman. He uses his education and experience to solve problems and to help people and our county. He loves Charlotte County and works to do what is best for all of the people who live here.

Stephen R. Deutsch should be re-elected to continue doing his good job. He is honest and hardworking. We need to keep his integrity and dedication on our commission.

The Lauren Bacall standard

believe the really good people would be reasonably successful in any circumstance," the detective writer Raymond Chandler wrote in his notebook in 1949. If Shakespeare came back today. "he would have refused to die in a corner."

Shakespeare, Chandler theorized, would have gone into the movie business and made its tired formulas fresh. He wouldn't have cared about the vulgarity of Hollywood, Chandler thought, "because he would know that without some vulgarity there is no complete man. He would have hated refinement, as such, because it is always a withdrawal, a shrinking, and he was much too tough to shrink from anything.

Chandler had a tough, urban sensibility, and he created his own vision of the complete modern man, especially in the image of his most famous character, Philip Marlowe. Every new type of hero is like a new word added to the common vocabulary. It gives people a new possibility to emulate and a new standard of excellence. Chandler succeeded in giving his era a compelling male ideal.

Chandler was not particularly kind to women, though. It was up to director Howard Hawks and his star, Lauren Bacall — who died this week — to give that era a counterpart female ideal, a hero both tough and tender, urbane and fast-talking, but also vulnerable and amusing.

Vivian Rutledge, the lead female character in the movie version of Chandler's "The Big Sleep," is stuck in a classic film noir world. Every situation is confusing, shadowed and ambiguous. Every person is dappled with virtue and vice. Society rewards the wrong things, so the ruthless often get rich while the innocent get it in the neck.

The lead character, played by Bacall, emerges from an ambiguous past, but rises aristocratically above it. She has her foibles; she's manipulative and spoiled. But she's strong. She seems physically towering, with broad shoulders and a rich, mature voice that is astounding, given that Bacall was all of 20 years old when she made the picture.

She projects a hardened wisdom about the way the world works, and an ironic gaze. Her most outstanding feature is near perfect self-possession. She is composed and self-assured under stress. You get the sense that she has spent her life effortlessly wrapping men around her fingers. Her self-command must have seemed simultaneously masculine and feminine at the time.

The movie's plot is famously incomprehensible. But you get to watch Vivian meet her

equal. The badinage between Bacall's Vivian and Humphrey Bogart's Marlowe is a cross between swordplay and foreplay. (They were married during the drawn-out filming process.) The heiress greets Marlowe with a putdown, "So you're a private detective. I didn't know they existed, except in books, or else they were greasy little men snooping around hotel corridors.'

But he's self-sufficient enough to stand up to her. He wins her over with a series of small rejections. And he can match her verbal pyrotechnics. When she says she doesn't like his manners, he comes straight back at her: "I'm not crazy about yours. ... I don't mind if vou don't like my manners. I don't like them myself. They're pretty bad. I grieve over them long winter evenings."

A connoisseur of love games, she's soon enjoying the competition. The verbal dueling becomes a way of testing each other's composure and finally turns into pure come-on, which, of course, she leads. The most famous exchange in the movie is allegedly about horse racing:

Bacall: "Speaking of horses, I like to play them myself. But I like to see them work out a little first. See if they're front-runners or comefrom-behind. ... I'd say you don't like to be rated. You like to get out in front, open up a lead, take a little breather in the back stretch and then come home free."

Bogart: "You've got a touch of class, but I don't know how far you can go." Bacall: "A lot depends on who's in the saddle."

By the end, they are united by a moral sensibility. Both characters are constantly making character distinctions, identifying who's legit and who's not. The distinctions that matter in their world are not between rich and poor, or pure and impure; they are between those who are faithful to the code of their professions and those who aren't; between those who are loyal and honest and those who are petty, snobbish and phony.

The feminine ideal in "The Big Sleep" is, of course, dated now. But what's lasting is a way of being in a time of disillusion. At a cynical moment when many had come to distrust institutions, and when the world seemed incoherent, Bacall and Bogart created a non-self-righteous way to care about virtue. Their characters weren't prissy or snobbish in the slightest. They were redeemed by their own honor code, which they kept up, cocktail after cocktail.

Ferguson police arrest reporters for reporting ooks like police in Ferguson, Mo., took it upon themselves to suspend the First Amendment Wednesday night.

It seems two reporters, Ryan Reilly of the Huffington Post and Wesley Lowery of The Washington Post, were working at a McDonald's, which has been used as a staging ground by reporters covering the ongoing unrest following the Aug. 9 police shooting of an unarmed African-American man. According to their accounts, the two were accosted by police, some in militaristic riot gear, demanding identification and ordering them out. These officers refused to provide their badge numbers or names or a reason for the order and grew angry when one of the men attempted to take a video.

Both reporters were arrested. Reilly says a cop intentionally banged his head against the glass on the way out of the restaurant, then gave him a facetious "apology."

The two were transported to a lockup. No mug shots were taken, no fingerprints collected, no paperwork done. After some minutes, they were released. The men were told they'd been arrested for "trespassing."

At a McDonald's. Where they were customers.

"Apparently, in America, in 2014," tweeted Lowery, "police can manhandle you, take you into custody, put you in cell and then open the door like it didn't happen."

Actually, both men had been treated with a heavy-handedness and official contempt that are apparently all too familiar to black people in Ferguson — and to black and poor people of whatever tribe all over America. In arresting reporters for reporting, Ferguson police raise a pressing question: Just what are they trying to hide?

The same night Reilly and Lowery were handcuffed, after all, a local alderman who had posted video of the protests to social media was arrested. All last week we had reports of news photographers being ordered to stop taking the number of times the teenager was hit, and the picture that emerges is not one of transparency.

At least three witnesses have now disputed the official version of what happened, the tale of how Brown inexplicably shoved a police officer back inside the officer's car, and they wrestled for the officer's gun. One witness, Dorian Johnson, says he was walking in the street with Brown toward Brown's grandmother's apartment when the officer, who was in his car, commanded them to "get the eff" out of the street. The street in question, to judge from television images, is a quiet one. We're not talking Broadway at rush hour. Johnson says the officer reached out of the car and grabbed Brown and the struggle ensued,

Let us hope that between the time of this writing and the time of your reading, the fighting in the streets of Ferguson is done. It makes no sense to compound tragedy with tragedy.

But let us also understand: The mere restoration of order is not the same as peace. If events in Ferguson prove nothing else, they prove the status quo of police harassment and no accountability is untenable and intolerable. And what happened to these two reporters should be instructive to those whose reflex in such matters is to accord police the benefit of even overwhelming doubt.

Such people might want to reconsider. If this is how some cops behave when the whole world is watching, can you imagine what they're like when the whole world is not?

What to plant now

7hile it still may be blazing hot outside, there is time to conduct a few hot-weather gardening chores. Schedule this work early or late in the day if you can, and make a list of things to do in flowerbeds, herb gardens, vegetable gardens and the general landscape.

Your bedding plants still can make an impact. The use of heat-tolerant periwinkle, coleus, salvia and celosia will give color and sustainable plants on through the fall. To coincide with this, try some perennial herbs such as bay laurel, ginger and rosemary. These famous herbs are hardy, ornamental, and offer a dual purpose to any landscape.

Take advantage of the hot summer sun. Time is running out to solarize your vegetable garden, in preparation for fall planting, if you did not do it in July. Proper solarization of soil takes from four to six weeks, resulting in soil that is temporarily sterile and free of nematodes, weed seeds and plant diseases. The suppression of those microscopic worms called nematodes is particularly significant, as they can do damage to many vegetable plant roots, greatly reducing the crop.

August is also the time to plant tomatoes for the fall/ early winter garden. Seeds are available to grow as transplants, or garden centers have many ready-toplant cultivars to choose from. Seed expands your choice quite a bit — either off the rack or from a seed catalog - so try something new this year! I am trying an orange tomato variety called "Orange Slice Hybrid," just for a change. Into September, you can begin to plant some cool-season vegetables, such as broccoli, cabbage, collards and lettuce.

We are still in the "Restricted Season," as per the Fertilizer Ordinance, when no nitrogen or phosphorus can be applied to landscapes until Oct. 1. However you can, for example, use what is called a "Summer Blend," such as a 0-0-24, or its equivalent, which contains potassium plus magnesium, sulfur, iron and manganese, applied as per label directions for turf. Some landscape plants may benefit from an application of foliar nutrient sprays containing micronutrients — be careful, however, as this material can stain stonework and concrete. Now is also the time to feed your palms with a 0-0-16-6, which also contains potassium and magnesium, plus micronutrients.

Pinch your poinsettias for the last time this season before the end of August, so that there is sufficient time for buds to form. In early September, consider dividing and replanting perennials that have outgrown their site. It is a good idea to add organic matter (compost) to planting beds at this time, and water until the

Englewood 'mayor' candidates facing off

andidates for this year's Pioneer Days Englewood Mayorfor-the-Day should be sharpening their wits.

The four candidates -Darsey Mann, Brian Fargo, C. Romesh Weerasooriya and Debra Mosley — will face off for the annual Englewood Mayor-for-a-Day Debate 7 p.m. Tuesday at Ricaltini's Bar & Grille, 1997 Kentucky Ave. A meetand-greet starts at 6 p.m.

The candidates will face a semi-esteemed panel of questioners — Jon Cole, Ken Birdsong, Eric Fogo — and myself. Expect tongue-incheek questioning and bad puns.

Steve Reilly

Promoters of the event expect attendees of the debate to "bring your sense of humor and a few extra bucks to support your favorite candidates. The winning candidate for Englewood Mayor-fora-Day captures the title by raising the most money for his or her charity. Each $1 and people are encouraged to vote often. A $1 vote cast for the candidates supports:

- A vote for Mann, the Englewood Area Cancer Foundation.
- For Fargo, Big Brothers/
- Big Sisters of the Sun Coast. For Walston, L.A. Ainger Middle School Band.
- For Weerasooriya, Kids' Needs of Greater Englewood.
- For Mosley, the Englewood Elementary Backpack Program.

The final count for donations will be announced 10 a.m. Aug. 30 at the Pioneer Days Cardboard Boat Race in donation counts as one vote Indian Mound Park.

'It works well," Cole said of Englewood's Mayor-for-a-Day voting system. He also pointed out how money often helps other mayoral, congressional and presidential candidates get elected. The winning candidate does not earn a night in the White House nor a stay in New York's Gracie Mansion, but he or she will ride in this year's Pioneer Days Parade, get to wear a sash celebrating the win and the bragging rights for an entire year. Outgoing mayor John Mead raised $8,400 for Englewood Area Cancer Foundation last year. He will serve as the moderator of this year's debate.

Even the losing candidates do good for Englewood, not only by supporting their charities but also donating to the Friends for the Advancement of Musical Education, better known as FAME. The losing candidates split their donations 50-50 between their charity and the nonprofit FAME.

Last year, the debate raised $3,000 for FAME and that helped to purchase musical instruments that local school bands can ill afford. This is a win-win for the community no matter which candidate you support.

Donations for any of the four candidates can be made online at www. englewoodpioneerdays. com or dropped off at one of the local "voting booths"

American Legion honors Charley first responders

By AL HEMINGWAY SUN CORRESPONDENT

PORT CHARLOTTE — When the last gasps of the 150 mph winds of Hurricane Charley finally diminished a decade ago, Melinia "Mickey" Raymond was asked if she could park her mobile home at the entrance of Live Oak RV Resort Park on Route 17 in Arcadia.

Armed with a .38 caliber revolver, Raymond, now 81, remained at her post for 24 hours, seven days a week, for 78 days straight, stopping cars and trucks to determine if they belonged on the campgrounds.

"We had no looting where I lived," she said. "The DeSoto County deputies were really great. On their last day there, the Miami-Dade County Sheriff's Department, who came to assist us, lined up their cruisers and saluted me." On Saturday, at American Legion Post 110 in Port Charlotte, members held a "Ten Years After Hurricane Charley Recovery Party" to honor police, fire, EMS, and first responders from the Charlotte County Sheriff's Office, Charlotte County Fire/EMS, Punta Gorda Police Department, Punta Gorda Fire Department, DeSoto County Sheriff's Office, DeSoto Fire/EMS, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 5690, and "Mickey" Raymond, for their devotion to duty in the aftermath of the Category

"While there were people running away from the storm, these first responders ran towards it to protect lives and property," Michael "Gambler" Raymond, commander of American Legion Post 110, said. "VFW Post 5690 opened their doors to our Legion and also fed people after the hurricane."

For Michael Raymond it was an extra special day — he presented a plaque to his mother, "Mickey" Raymond, for her actions a decade ago for protecting her mobile park.

'She is quite a lady," Michael Raymond said. The all-day event

A stark reminder of August 13, 2004, the clock at the American Legion stopped at 4:17 p.m. when Hurricane Charley smashed into the building.

kicked off with a poker run sponsored by the American Legion Riders who retraced the path of the storm stopping at places where it had done extensive damage.

At noon, the American Legion Post 110 Color Guard posted the colors. Classic automobiles were on display from the Peace River Car Club, a water slide, bounce house, face painting and interactive computer games for children were provided by the Punta Gorda Police Department, and there was food from La Familia Restaurant.

"All the proceeds from this event will be given to the Vietnam Wall of Southwest Florida to build a half-size replica of The Wall at Laishley Park," Michael Raymond said. "The Sons of the Legion are also donating $1,500 to the Do The Right Thing Program sponsored by the Punta Gorda Police Department. All of this couldn't have been accomplished without the efforts of the members, Legion Riders, Sons of the Legion, the Ladies Auxiliary and support from other veterans' organizations in Charlotte County."

American Legion Post 110 did not escape the wrath of Hurricane Charley. The former building was destroyed and a clock hangs in the foyer with the time frozen at 4:17 p.m. — as a stark reminder of the ferocity of the storm.

Member John Ross said it took about two years

Hayley Hernandez, 10, makes her way down the bounce house for a new building to be built. A large tent was erected in the back of the property to conduct business.

"When the new post was opened, a lot of it was still unfinished," he said. "Once the ball got rolling, it went up quick. The camaraderie was great."

Ross said there were some tough times but today Post 110 is heavily involved in the community and donates to numerous local charities.

"The post has also made a major effort to embrace all the veterans groups in the area," he said. "Most of them meet here. We all support each other. We've come a long way in 10 years. The members are proud of that success.'

Federal autopsy ordered

Independent examination sought in Missouri shooting

By NIGEL DUARA and JIM SUHR

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITERS

FERGUSON, Mo. — U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder on Sunday ordered a federal medical examiner to perform another autopsy on a black Missouri teenager whose fatal shooting by a white police officer has spurred a week of rancorous and sometimes violent protests in suburban St. Louis.

The "extraordinary circumstances" surrounding the case of 18-year-old Michael Brown, and a request by Brown's family members, prompted the order, Department of Justice spokesman Brian Fallon said in a statement.

"This independent examination will take place as soon as possible," Fallon said. "Even after it is complete, Justice Department officials still plan to take the state-performed autopsy into account in the course of their investigation."

The Justice Department already had deepened its civil rights investigation of the shooting. Officials said a day earlier that 40 FBI agents were going door-to-door gathering information in the Ferguson, Mo., neighborhood where an unarmed Brown was shot to death in the middle of the street on Aug. 9.

He also said federal authorities want to calm any public fears that no action will be taken on the case.

Palestinians divided in Gaza truce talks

By MOHAMMED DARAGHMEH

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

CAIRO — The Palestinians appeared divided Sunday as the clock was winding down on the latest Gaza cease-fire, with officials saying Hamas was still opposed to a compromise Egyptian proposal that would ease the closure of the territory, while other factions, including delegates representing President Mahmoud Abbas, were inclined to accept.

Hamas officials said they were holding out in hopes of getting more concessions in the Egyptian-mediated talks. With a temporary truce set to expire late Monday, a range of outcomes remained possible, including a return to fighting that has brought great devastation to Gaza, an unofficial understanding that falls short of a formal negotiated deal or yet another extension in negotiations. The negotiations are aimed at ending the latest war between Israel and Hamasled militants in Gaza. Nearly 2,000 Palestinians have been killed — mostly civilians and more than 10,000 people have been wounded since the war began July 8, according to United Nations figures. In

Peek into brain shows how kids learn math skills

By LAURAN NEERGAARD AP MEDICAL WRITER

WASHINGTON — Sometime in elementary school, you quit counting your fingers and just know the answer. Now scientists have put youngsters into brain scanners to find out why, and watched how the brain reorganizes itself as kids learn math.

The take-home advice: drilling your kids on simple addition and multiplication may pay off.

"Experience really does matter," said Dr. Kathy Mann Koepke of the National Institutes of Health, which funded the Healthy children start making that switch between counting to what's called fact retrieval when they're 8 years old to 9 years old, when they're still working on fundamental addition and subtraction. How well kids make that shift to memory-based problem-solving is known to predict their ultimate math achievement.

Those who fall behind "are impairing or slowing down their math learning later on," Mann Koepke said.

In this Oct. 1, 2013, photo, third-grade teacher Melissa Grieshober teaches a math lesson at Silver Lake Elementary School in Middletown, Del.

But why do some kids make the transition easier than others?

To start finding out, Stanford University researchers first peeked into the brains of 28 children as they solved a series of simple addition problems inside a brain-scanning MRI machine. No scribbling out the answer: The 7- to 9-year-olds saw a calculation — three plus four equals seven, for example flash on a screen and pushed a button

Another Ebola problem: Finding its natural source

By MIKE STOBBE and MARILYNN MARCHIONE AP MEDICAL WRITERS

A scary problem lurks beyond the frenzied efforts to keep people from spreading Ebola: No one knows exactly where the virus comes from or how to stop it from seeding new outbreaks.

Ebola has caused two dozen outbreaks in Africa since it first emerged in 1976. It is coming from somewhere — probably bats — but experts agree they need to pinpoint its origins in nature.

That has had to wait until they can tame the current outbreak, which has claimed more than 1,100 lives in four countries the worst toll from Ebola in history.

"First and foremost get the outbreak under control. Once that piece is resolved, then go back and find what the source is," said Jonathan Towner, a scientist who helped find the bat source

Shooting draws protesters from near, far

FERGUSON, Mo. (AP) — Protesters who have for days lined a busy suburban St. Louis street not far from the place where a white police officer fatally shot an unarmed black teenager have walked from nearby apartments, driven from neighboring communities and flown in from states hundreds of miles away. Some are young parents carrying infants. Others, college students. Retirees. Professionals taking a break from their jobs.

They have chanted, marched, shouted, danced on vehicles and though most have remained peaceful — also looted and vandalized stores during late-night clashes with armored police who have fired smoke canisters and tear gas into the crowds.

The demonstrators are demanding justice for 18-year-old Michael Brown, which they say can only be accomplished if Ferguson police officer Darren Wilson is charged and convicted for the shooting. Many also cite larger causes.

Some vent frustration about what they describe as a pattern of harassment and intimidation of black residents by police — not just in Ferguson, but in numerous other predominantly low-income minority communities. Others see an opportunity to participate in what they consider a modern civil rights movement.

"Being black in America is basically being born with a target," said Keyon Watkins, a 26-year-old college graduate with a computer science degree who joined in protest on a late weekend night. "All of this is just built-up, pent-up aggression by being mistreated on a daily basis."

As Watkins stood on the curb of West Florissant Avenue, a parade of vehicles slowly passed by — some with teenagers dancing atop the hoods, some blaring music profaning police, many honking their horns in what has become a sounding call for the protest.

On another night, the rap musician Stackz drove up in a new white Corvette, parked it in the street and joined in the protest. Though he now lives in Atlanta, he grew up in the neighborhood.

NATIONAL NEWS

"This happened right in my area. It was a must to be here," said Stackz, who said his real name is Demarco Williams.

Brown had been walking with a friend down nearby Canfield Drive when officer Wilson told them to get out of the street. They kept walking. Police say a scuffle ensued, Wilson was injured and Brown was shot. Witnesses say the teenager had his hands in the air — a sign of surrender — as Wilson fired multiple rounds.

So the protesters chant "Hands up! Don't shoot!" while raising their own arms. They write the words on posters, and print them on T-shirts.

Some of the protesters said they already had been shot by police, or know relatives and friends who had been. Michael Johnson, 42, lifted up his shirt to show the scars on his torso that he said he received when he was shot by a St. Louis police officer at age 18. Because of the injuries, he had to abandon his dream of joining the Marines.

"That one night cost me my whole future," said Johnson, standing in front of a looted and burnt-out convenience store. "If I got to die tonight, I don't mind ... I'm dying for a cause."

There have been no reports of protesters dying in their clashes with police.

Have insurers found new ways to avoid the sick?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending insurance discrimination against the sick was a central goal of the nation's health care overhaul, but leading patient groups say that promise is being undermined by new barriers from insurers.

The insurance industry responds that critics are confusing legitimate cost-control with bias. Some state regulators, however, say there's reason to be concerned about policies that shift costs to patients and narrow their choices of hospitals and doctors.

With open enrollment for 2015 three months away, the Obama administration is being pressed to enforce the Affordable Care Act's anti-discrimination provisions. Some regulations have been issued; others are pending after more than four years.

More than 300 patient advocacy groups recently wrote Health and Human Services Secretary Sylvia Mathews Burwell to complain about some insurer tactics that "are highly discriminatory against patients with chronic health conditions and may ... violate the (law's) nondiscrimination provisions."

Among the groups were the AIDS Institute, the American Lung Association, Easter Seals, the Epilepsy Foundation, the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society, the National Alliance on Mental Illness, the National Kidney Foundation and United Cerebral Palsy. All supported the law.

Coverage of expensive drugs tops their concerns.

The advocates also say they are disappointed by how difficult it's proved for consumers to get a full picture of plans sold on the new insurance exchanges. Digging is often required to learn crucial details such as drugs covered, exact copayments and which doctors and hospitals are in the network.

Washington state's insurance commissioner, Mike Kreidler, said "there is no question" that discrimination is creeping back. "The question is whether we are catching it or not," added Kreidler, a Democrat.

Kansas' commissioner, Sandy Praeger, a Republican, said the jury is out on whether some insurers are back to shunning the sick. Nonetheless, Praeger said the administration needs to take a strong stand.

"They ought to make it very clear that if there is any kind of discrimination against people with chronic conditions, there will be enforcement action," Praeger said. "The whole goal here was to use the private insurance market to create a system that provides health insurance for all Americans."

The Obama administration turned down interview requests.

An HHS spokeswoman said the department is preparing a formal response to the advocates and stressed that today's level of consumer protection is far superior to what existed before President Barack Obama's law, when an insurance company could use any existing medical condition to deny coverage.

Bourbon production reaches high point since '70s

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) In a business where patience is part of the process, Kentucky bourbon makers are making a big bet by stashing away their largest stockpiles in more than a generation.

To put it in bartenders' lingo: Distillers are putting up the tab for millions of rounds of bourbon years before they are even ordered. The production poses an inherent risk, but hitting the moment right — a big supply meshing with big demand — could mean a serious payday for companies big and small.

Missing the target would leave bourbon makers awash with supply and leave future production in question, particularly for craft distilleries that have seen a surge in popularity. "People keep asking us, 'When will the bubble burst?" said Eric Gregory, president of the Kentucky Distillers' Association

For most in the business, the answer is not anytime soon.

Large companies are banking on continued international demand from places such as China and a culture in the U.S. that currently has a taste for bourbon, which has to be aged at least two years in new charred oak barrels.

"We are busier than I ever could have imagined," said Chris Morris, master distiller at Brown-Forman Corp., producer of Woodford Reserve and Old Forester bourbons.

Last year, Kentucky distilleries filled 1.2 million barrels of bourbon — the most since 1970, according to the Kentucky Distillers' Association. Inventory has topped 5 million barrels for the first time since 1977, the group said.

Production has surged by more than 150 percent in the past 15 years in Kentucky — home to 95 percent of the world's bourbon production.

"For many, many vears, bourbon was considered a Southern gentleman's drink," said Jimmy Russell, the longtime master distiller at Wild Turkey. "Now bourbon's become a worldwide drink.'

The last time the industry spiked production in the 1970s, a glut when demand went in a tailspin.

Back then, the industry had grown stale and many consumers switched allegiance to vodka, Scotch and other spirits.

"You had the same old brands, you were pretty much on autopilot," Morris said.

Now, distillers are premium small-batch offerings or putting new twists on recipes and flavors and companies are looking to real-time data from the digital world.

Sales trends and developments are tracked in markets worldwide. The numbers are crunched to make the best educated estimate of future consumer demand for a product that takes years to mature.

Straight bourbon whiskey ages a minimum of two years, though the average maturity is four years or older. Many popular super-premium brands age six years or longer, which are the toughest to stock in bars, restaurants and liquor stores.

residents can't even pay to use a new gym that's free to their market-rate neighbors. Other buildings have added playrooms and roof decks off-limits to rent-stabilized tenants.

New York is a city where the rich and relatively poor have long lived side by side, with who pays what often a closely held, widely varying secret. But a recent spate of buildings with separate amenities for the haves and have-nots is hurling that question out in the open, provoking an uncomfortable debate over equality, economics and the tightness of the social fabric. "Nobody treats me like a second-class citizen in my own home," says Jean Green Dorsey, who filed a complaint with the city Human Rights Commission this spring over her Manhattan building's fitness center. She and fellow rent-stabilized tenants aren't allowed to enter it despite a willingness to pay a fee; market-rate renters use it gratis.

Developers say they're motivated by business, not bias, and reserving some prime features for higher-paying residents is the price of having affordable housing in hot neighborhoods.

But officials are broaching proposals to force more inclusiveness, troubled by seeing landlords use affordablehousing tax and zoning breaks to create what critics view as a caste system. In a city where Mayor Bill de Blasio was elected last year on pledges to increase affordable housing and shrink income inequality, an outcry erupted after his housing department signed off last month on the affordable bona fides of the Manhattan poor door building; the project was approved and started construction before de Blasio took office. Its creator, Extell Development Co., declined to comment.

"We believe there should be a much more equal approach to all residents," said de Blasio, who as a councilman voted for the 2009 zoning code change that allowed such arrangements but says the "nuances" of different doors weren't evident then.

Texas Gov. Perry defends veto that led to charges

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Gov. Rick Perry on Sunday defended the veto that led a grand jury to indict him on two felony counts of abuse of power, noting that even some Democrats have questioned the move by prosecutors.

"I stood up for the rule of law in the state of Texas, and if I had to do it again I would make exactly the same decision," Perry, a potential candidate for the 2016 Republican presidential nomination, said.

Already the longest-serving governor in state history, Perry has made it clear that he plans to complete his third and final term in January as planned. In an interview with "Fox News Sunday," the governor noted that David Axelrod, a former adviser to President Barack Obama, had called the indictment "sketchy" while Harvard Law professor Alan Dershowitz had questioned the move.

A Travis County grand jury on Friday indicted Perry for carrying out a threat to veto state funds to the local district attorney, an elected Democrat, unless she resigned following her arrest and conviction for drunken driving. That 2013 veto prompted a criminal investigation.

Atlantic City fears closing casinos may be eyesore

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Before summer ends, Revel, Trump Plaza, the Showboat and the Atlantic Club will be shuttered ex-casinos, leaving Atlantic City officials looking for a way to avoid having dark, empty shells on its signature Boardwalk.

Analysts and entrepreneurs tell The Associated Press that a glitzy corporate headquarters, condos or timeshares, entertainment-related rentals or even student housing could be among the new uses for them.

Israel Posner, head of a gambling study institute at Richard Stockton College, said it's crucial to keep the buildings occupied and illuminated.

"If you rely on tourism, you want bright lights," he said. "All the promotional shots of Las Vegas are at night with the lights on. Darkness is almost the antithesis of entertainment."

Premier FBI cybersquad to add agents

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The FBI's premier cybersquad has focused attention on computerbased crime in recent months by helping prosecutors charge five Chinese army intelligence officials with stealing trade secrets from major companies and by snaring a Russian-led hacking ring that pilfered $100 million from bank accounts worldwide. Because of the Pittsburgh squad's success, the FBI is rewarding the office with more manpower, allowing it to take on even more cyberthreats.

"Where there's great work going on, invest in it," FBI Director James Comey said while visiting Pittsburgh two weeks ago.

Because of security concerns, the FBI won't say how many agents are in the Pittsburgh cyber office or specify how many agents will be added.

Man kicks police officer in face after Walmart theft

JUPITER (AP) — A West Palm Beach man is out of jail on a $4,000 bond after kicking a police officer in the face and pepper-spraying a loss-prevention officer while trying to steal a stereo speaker from Walmart.

The Palm Beach Post reported 19-year-old Velmando Williams tried to leave the store with a $100 speaker hidden in his pants. The police report said the loss-prevention officer was pepper-sprayed when attempting to stop Jupiter police officers found and arrested Williams, who began kicking the windows once inside the police car and banging his head against the glass.

Coast Guard obtains 900 pounds of marijuana

MIAMI (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has collected about 900 pounds of marijuana worth $800,000 after intercepting a go-fast boat near Haiti. The Miami Herald reported a U.S. Customs and Border Protection aircraft crew discovered a vessel off the coast of Haiti on Tuesday night. According to the Coast Guard, the crew suspected illegal activity and contacted the Coast Guard to investigate.

Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Ryan Doss said the crew chased the go-fast boat, but weren't able to stop it. Those aboard the gofast boat began tossing bales of marijuana into the ocean as they escaped. The Coast Guard recovered the marijuana and it will be turned over to the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Doss explained that smuggling boats are designed to cut through the water with speed using multiple engines.

Officials don't know the origin of the marijuana, but confirmed the boat came from the Haitian coast.

Suspect in 30 fires being held in Volusia jail

PORT ORANGE (AP) — A Sanford man believed to be connected to over two dozen fires is being held in Volusia County Jail after being arrested in Daytona Beach.

Ťhe Daytona Beach News-Journal reported that 40-year-old Steven Wayne Ångle was taken into custody following a short standoff with police in which he threatened to jump from a second floor balcony. Florida ALS group gets Ice Bucket Challenge boost ORLANDO (AP) — The Florida chapter of the ALS Association has seen its donations more than double from the same time period last year thanks to the viral Ice Bucket Challenge campaign.

Spokeswoman Alissa Gutierrez said that between July 22 and Aug. 14 the Florida chapter raised $63,664, compared to $27,517 in 2013.

The challenge became a viral sensation in the last couple weeks. Once "challenged," a person has 24 hours to pour a bucket of ice water over their head, or make a donation to an ALS charity. The Miami Dolphins, Jacksonville Jaguars, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Tampa Bay Rays, Florida Marlins, Tampa Bay Lightning and the Florida Panthers have all participated.

Nationally, the ALS Association has received $9.5 million in donations compared to $1.6 million during the same period last year.

DCF adds data to transparency website

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - State child welfare officials recently added five years of data to their new website aimed at improving transparency around child abuse deaths. The site was mandated by the Legislature.

The Department of Children and Families' public site is updated weekly with information on child fatalities alleged to be a result of abuse or neglect.

The agency says the website exceeds the requirement to publish basic information set by the Legislature. The website sorts data by county, child's age and prior history. Secretary Mike Carroll said the only way to end these fatalities is to know what issues families are facing and to use the data to meet their needs.

Critics have accused the agency of intentionally manipulating child abuse death investigations to make it appear fewer children were dying.

Passport kiosks coming to Tampa airport

TAMPA (AP) — Officials at Tampa International Airport will unveil the latest tool to make life easier for international travelers: the Automated Passport Control kiosk.

The Tampa Bay Times reports that the kiosks will be unveiled Monday. They will allow passengers to automatically go through the customs process after arriving from cities like London, Panama City, Toronto and Zurich. The program is run by the U.S. Customs and Border Protection.

U.S. and Canadian travelers can use the new system, as can eligible travelers from other nations visiting the U.S. through the Visa Waiver Program. Lawful permanent residents should be able to use the program by the end of the year.

The automated system is free and doesn't require travelers to preregister or join the program.

Street art shares the stage at Miami City Ballet

MIAMI (AP) — Shortly after Lourdes Lopez became Miami City Ballet's artistic director in 2012, her dancers surprised the outdoor Wynwood Walls gallery with a spontaneous performance, re-introducing the classical art to a city earning acclaim for bold, graphic murals freely spray-painted onto gritty warehouses.

STATE NEWS

The troupe will perform with a street art backdrop again in March, this time on their own stage in a collaboration between choreographer Justin Peck and contemporary street artist Shepard Fairey.

Like many tourists seeking a different side to a city mostly known for its Art Deco, glitzy high-rise condominiums and stiletto-heeled pedestrians, Peck made his way to Miami's Wynwood neighborhood last year while working with the ballet on a commissioned pas de deux.

Miami has many iconic backdrops — neon South Beach, the downtown skyline glittering over the water, the vast Everglades — but what Peck found in Wynwood felt new and representative of the city's recent cultural evolution. Many colorful and whimsical murals making both classical and comic book references have transformed several blocks of once-drab warehouses into an open-air street art showcase, where artists wielding spray paint cans have become stars during Miami's annual contemporary art fairs. Peck was especially drawn to Fairey's work, featuring large-scale portraits and mandalas and other repetitive patterns in shades of red, black, gold and blue. Peck, a soloist and resident choreographer at New York City Ballet, recognized elements of classical paintings that new without reducing to cartoonish forms.

Inspired, Peck agreed to a new commission from Lopez and sought Fairey to design the set.

Peck said his choreography will not be a painting come to life, though he found Fairey's creative process similar to his own.

"It's this very structural, well-proportioned, well-formatted pattern of art. I think that's a lot of what I strive to do in my choreography," Peck said recently at Wynwood Kitchen & Bar, a restaurant that prominently features Fairey's work.

in-person examples of his choreography, I looked at motifs related to pattern, fluidity, feminine elegance, and kaleidoscopic motion that overlaps with motifs within my own work," Fairey said.

The still untitled piece will feature 17 dancers performing to Czech composer Bohuslav Martinu's "Piano Concerto No. 1," a roughly 35-minute piece of music for piano and strings that vigorously references different periods of classical music as it slides from one movement into another.

'Turtles' tops weak debut for 'Expendables 3'

NEW YORK (AP) — Moviegoers continued to shell out for "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles,' while Sylvester Stallone's action ensemble "The Expendables 3" was easily out-gunned in its weekend debut.

Paramount Pictures' rebooted reptiles took in $28.4 million in the film's second weekend, according to studio estimates Sunday. That far surpassed the limp $16.2 million earned by Stallone's gang of aged but buff warriors.

The paltry, fourthplace total for "The Expendables 3" is well below previous debuts in the Lionsgate franchise. The last two "Expendables" opened with $34.8 million (in August 2010) and $28.6 million (in August 2012). The third film was the first to be rated PG-13 in the previously R-rated series, which potentially signaled watered-down explosiveness to an audience that was largely over 25, anyway.

"Expendables 3," which features a sprawling cast of Stallone, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Harrison Ford, Mel Gibson and others, also leaked online before its release, potentially damaging its impact in theaters.

Instead, Marvel's "Guardians of the Galaxy" came in second with $24.7 million, bringing its three-week cumulative total to $222 million for distributor Walt Disney. Along with the Nickelodeon Moviesproduced "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," the cosmic romp starring Chris Pratt has helped restore some strength to the summer box office. Sequels are already in the works for both films.

After box-office returns well off the pace of last summer, Hollywood has made a slight comeback in August, typically a dumping ground for studio leftovers. The summer overall is still running at a 15 percent deficit from last year's record-breaking season, but the gap had once been above 20 percent. August is up 14 percent on last year.

"It's called the dog days of August for a reason," said Paul Dergarabedian, senior media analyst for box-office tracker Rentrak, "but thankfully in a summer with a lot of ups and downs, this has been a really good August."

also helped. Opening in third place was the 20th Century Fox buddy comedy "Let's Be Cops," starring Jake Johnson and Damon Wayans Jr. It took in $17.7 million.

Also debuting was the Lois Lowry adaption "The Giver," a dystopian voung-adult tale starring Jeff Bridges and Meryl Streep. The Weinstein Co. release opened with an estimated $12.8 million.

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to Rentrak. Where available, latest international numbers are also included. Final domestic figures will be released on Monday.

1. "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," $28.4 million ($25.6 million international).

2. "Guardians of the Galaxy," $24.7 million ($33.1 million international).

3. "Let's Be Cops," $17.7 million ($650,000 international).

to say if the answer was right or wrong. Scientists recorded how quickly they responded and what regions of their brain became active as they did.

In a separate session, they also tested the kids face to face, watching if they moved their lips or counted on their fingers, for comparison with the brain data.

The children were tested twice, roughly a year apart. As the kids got older, their answers relied more on memory and became faster and more accurate, and it showed in the brain. There was less activity in the prefrontal and parietal regions associated with counting and more in the brain's memory center, the hippocampus, the researchers reported Sunday in Nature Neuroscience.

The hippocampus is sort of like a relay station where new memories come in — short-term working memory — and then can be sent elsewhere for longer-term storage and retrieval. Those hippocampal connections increased with the kids' math performance.

"The stronger the connections, the greater each individual's ability to retrieve facts from memory," said Dr. Vinod Menon, a psychiatry professor at Stanford and the study's senior author.

But that's not the whole story.

Next, Menon's team put 20 adolescents and 20 adults into the MRI machines and gave them the same simple addition problems. It turns out that adults don't use their memory-crunching hippocampus in the same way. Instead of using a lot of effort, retrieving six plus four equals 10 from long-term storage was almost automatic, Menon said.

In other words, over time the brain became increasingly efficient at retrieving facts. Think of it like a bumpy, grassy field, NIH's Mann Koepke explained. Walk over the same spot enough and a smooth, grass-free path forms, making it easier to get from start to end. If your brain doesn't

Mom has baby while registering son at school

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — A mother in the advanced stages of labor thought she had just enough time to stop off and register her 4-year-old son at a Houston-area school en route to the hospital. But she was mistaken.

A school nurse and police officer helped Vanessa DeLeon deliver her baby Thursday at the campus clinic of Fisher Elementary School in Pasadena. The boy, named Geovanni, weighed 6 pounds, 3 ounces.

DeLeon says her contractions began earlier Thursday but that she was intent on registering her son Alexis for prekindergarten at Fisher before giving birth to her fourth child.

The mother and her newborn were doing well when they were later transferred to Bayshore Medical Center.

And she successfully registered Alexis for pre-K at Fisher.

of another Ebola-like disease called Marburg. Towner works for the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Others say finding Ebola's origins is more than a down-the-road scientific curiosity.

"Confirming the source would definitely be important," said Dr. Richard Wenzel, a Virginia Commonwealth University scientist who formerly led the International Society for Infectious Diseases.

Throughout history, some of the biggest wins against infectious diseases have involved not just limiting person-to-person spread but also finding and controlling the sources in nature fueling new cases.

Plague was halted after the germ was tied to rat-riding fleas. With the respiratory disease SARS, civet cats played a role. With typhus it was lice, and with bird flu, live poultry markets. Efforts to control MERS, a virus causing sporadic outbreaks in the Middle East, include exploring the role of camels.

In the case of Ebola, health experts think the initial cases in each outbreak get it from eating or handling infected animals. They think the virus may come from certain bats, and in parts of Africa, bats are considered a delicacy.

But bats may not be the whole story or the creature that spread it to humans. The World Health Organization lists chimpanzees, gorillas, monkeys, forest antelope and porcupines as possibly playing a role. Even pig farms may amplify bats on the farms, the WHO says. "It's not clear what the infection because of fruit animal is. It's going to take a lot of testing," said Dr. Robert Gaynes, an Emory University infectious disease specialist who worked for the CDC for more than 20 years. Part of the puzzle is how long the virus has been in West Africa. Previous outbreaks have been in the east and central regions of the continent. The current outbreak began in rural Guinea, and the first suspected case was a 2-year-old case of a lone scientist doing an autopsy on a Coast and to a recent study that explored the possibility that past

Kurdish forces retake parts of Iraq's largest dam

IRBIL, Iraq (AP) — Aided by U.S. and Iraqi airstrikes, Kurdish forces Sunday wrested back part of Iraq's largest dam from Islamic militants who had captured it less than two weeks ago, security officials said.

The U.S. began targeting fighters from the Islamic State with airstrikes Aug. 8, allowing Kurdish forces to fend off an advance on their regional capital of Irbil and to help tens of thousands of members of religious minorities escape the extremists' onslaught.

Recapturing the entire Mosul Dam and the territory surrounding its reservoir would be a significant victory against the Islamic State group, which has seized swaths of northern and western Iraq and northeastern Syria. The dam on the Tigris supplies electricity and water to a large part of the country.

The Kurdish forces, known as peshmerga, launched the operation early Sunday to retake the Mosul Dam, said Gen. Tawfik Desty, a Kurdish commander, after a day of U.S. and Iraqi airstrikes pushed back Islamic State fighters.

A spokesman for the peshmerga said the clashes were moving eastward.

"The west is in control of peshmerga. But there are some battles taking place in the (east) right now," said Halgurd Hekmat, peshmerga spokesman.

Another commander confirmed the information, saying that by Sunday evening, peshmerga forces had crossed the Tigris to the broad plains held by the Islamic State.

The U.S. military conducted 14 airstrikes Sunday, damaging or destroying 10 armed vehicles, seven Humvees, two armored personnel carriers and one checkpoint, according to a statement by the Central Command. On Saturday, it carried out nine airstrikes near the dam, destroying four armored personnel carriers, seven armed vehicles, two Humvees and another armored vehicle, the command said.

The peshmerga, the fighting force of the largely autonomous Kurdish region of northern Iraq, surrounded the Islamic State-held city of Tel Kayf after taking the nearby town of Tel Kasouf, said the commander, who spoke on condition of anonymity in line with military regulations.

WORLD NEWS

The advance of Kurdish forces was hindered by roadside bombs and buildings rigged with explosives, planted by retreating Islamic State fighters, he said.

"They have reached inside the dam. There is no fighting, just the (roadside) bombs, and the abandoned buildings are all rigged with explosives," he said. "We will continue to advance and advance until we are given further instruction.'

The commander said the evening advance occurred after the Iraqi government delivered 16 military Humvees, at least one with a mechanized bomb-disposal unit that was dismantling the roadside explosives.

Even as they advanced around the dam in northern Iraq, the commander said fighting forces were so poorly armed that he did not believe they could hold onto captured territory without a fast infusion of weapons — or continued U.S. airstrikes.

We don't have the right weapons," he said.

Liberia: Ebola fears rise as clinic is looted

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Liberian officials fear Ebola could soon spread through the capital's largest slum after residents raided a quarantine center for suspected patients and took items including bloody sheets and mattresses.

The violence in the West Point slum occurred late Saturday and was led by residents angry that patients were brought to the holding center from other parts of Monrovia, Tolbert Nyenswah, assistant health minister, said Sunday.

Up to 30 patients were staying at the center and many of them fled at the time of the raid, said Nyenswah. Once they are located they will be transferred to the Ebola center at Monrovia's largest hospital, he said.

West Point residents went on a "looting spree," stealing items from the clinic that were likely infected, said a senior police official, who insisted on anonymity because he was not authorized to brief the press. The residents took medical equipment and mattresses and sheets that had bloodstains, he said. Ebola is spread through bodily fluids including blood, vomit, feces and sweat.

"All between the houses you could see people fleeing with items looted from the patients," the official said, adding that he now feared "the whole of West Point will be infected."

Some of the looted items were visibly stained with blood, vomit and excrement, said Richard Kieh, who lives in the area.

The incident creates a new challenge for Liberian health officials who were already struggling to contain the outbreak.

Ukraine says troops entered rebel-held city

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) - Army troops have penetrated deep inside a rebel-controlled city in eastern Ukraine in what could prove a breakthrough development in the four-month-long conflict, the Ukrainian government said Sunday. However, the military acknowledged that another one of its fighter planes was shot down by the separatists, who have been bullish about their ability to continue the battle and have bragged about receiving support from Russia. An Associated Press reporter spotted a column of several dozen heavy vehicles, including tanks and at least one rocket launcher, rolling through rebel-held territory on Sunday.

Ukraine's national security council said government forces captured a district police station in Luhansk on Saturday after bitter clashes in the Velika Vergunka neighborhood.

Weeks of fighting have taken their toll on Luhansk, which city authorities say has reached the verge of a humanitarian catastrophe. The siege mounted by government forces has ground delivery of basic provisions to a halt and cut off power and running water.

Although rebel forces have regularly yielded territory in recent weeks, they have continued to show formidable fighting capabilities.

Dmitrashkovsky said Sunday that the separatists shot down a Ukrainian fighter plane over the Luhansk region after it launched an attack on rebels. The pilot ejected and was taken to a secure place, he said. Another military spokesman, Andriy Lysenko, later said that the status of the pilot was still being clarified.

The column of armored vehicles was spotted southeast of Luhansk outside a town very close to the Russian border and was heading west, deeper into rebel-held territory. It was unclear whether the column had come from Russia. Among the armored vehicles was a Strela-10, a short-range surface-to-air missile system capable of hitting targets up to 3,500 meters (11,500 feet.)

The area is just across the border from where a large Russian aid convoy is poised to cross with supplies intended for Luhansk and other afflicted zones.

Part of the aid convoy headed to the frontier crossing on Sunday, but the 16 white trucks then stopped. The convoy of nearly 270 vehicles has been marooned for days in a town near the border amid objections from Ukraine, which initially complained that the mission was not authorized by the International Committee for the Red Cross.

The Red Cross, which would have were expected to meet in Berlin on Sunday evening over the crisis.

Pakistan politician calls for civil disobedience

ISLAMABAD (AP) A Pakistani cricketer-turned-politician on Sunday called on thousands of anti-government protesters to stop paying taxes and practice civil disobedience until Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif steps down, raising fears of instability in the nuclear-armed U.S. ally. Imran Khan, who heads Parliament's third largest bloc, made the announcement at a rally in the capital calling for Sharif to step down over alleged voting fraud in the May 2013 election, the first democratic transfer of power in a country with a long history of military dictatorships.

Khan also warned that his supporters would take over Parliament if Sharif does not resign within two days.

"We decide today that we will not pay taxes to his illegitimate government, we will not pay electricity bills, gas bills," Khan said to a charged crowd estimated at 10,000 to 15,000 people. "I urge all the traders to stop paying taxes.'

Khan and cleric Tahir-ul-Qadri, a dual Canadian citizen with a wide following who spends most of his time abroad, have mounted twin protests that have brought thousands of people into the streets in Islamabad. They accuse Sharif of rigging the election that brought him to power. Finance Minister and Sharif ally Ishaq

Dar called Khan's move unconstitutional, and Information Minister Pervaiz Rashid called the demand a "joke." But both ministers told SAMAA TV that their government was ready to negotiate with Khan over his demands for electoral reforms within the constitutional framework.

Pakistani Interior Minister Nisar Ali Khan said the government was setting up two separate committees of party leaders to open negotiations with Khan and Qadri. "We are ready to accept all of your constitutional and legal demands," he said.

While the crowds have fallen well-short of the million marchers that both men promised, their presence and the heightened security measures have virtually shut down business in the capital.

The rallies have nevertheless remained festive, with families picnicking and men and women dancing to drums and national songs.

Police estimate that the crowds in both sit-ins have gradually dwindled since they arrived in the capital late Friday. Both rallies began as caravans of vehicles setting out from the eastern city of Lahore. Police official Nasir Shah estimated that there were currently around 25,000 to 30,000 people in both rallies. Sharif has given no indication he intends to step down.

Pope makes biggest gesture yet to China

HAEMI, South Korea (AP) — Pope Francis made his strongest gesture yet to reach out to China on Sunday, saying he wants to improve relations and insisting that the Catholic Church isn't coming in as a "conqueror" but is rather a partner in dialogue.

Francis outlined his priorities for the Catholic Church in Asia during a meeting of about 80 of the region's bishops, urging them to engage with people of different cultures empathetically.

"In this spirit of openness to others, I earnestly hope that those countries of your continent with whom the Holy See does not yet enjoy a full relationship may not hesitate to further a dialogue for the benefit of all," he said. Then deviating from his text, he added: "I'm not talking here only about a political dialogue, but about a fraternal dialogue.

These Christians aren't coming as conquerors, they aren't trying to take away our identity." He said the important thing was to "walk together."

The Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Federico Lombardi, said the pope's remarks were "obviously a sign of goodwill for dialogue" with China as well as the other countries in Asia with which the Vatican doesn't have diplomatic relations: North Korea, Vietnam, Myanmar, Laos, Bhutan and Brunei. "This offer of the pope for dialogue is to all these lands and not just one, even if China is the biggest," he said.

He acknowledged that Francis has so far refrained from making any outwardly political statement about China, which counts some 12 million Catholics, but that the speech was a clear affirmation of a desire for dialogue.

By MATT BAKER TAMPA BAY TIMES

ST. PETERSBURG — Through 4²/₃ hitless innings, Tampa Bay Rays starter Jeremy Hellickson looked like the former rookie of the year and the veteran member of a staff on one of the best runs in club history.

One at-bat was enough to derail his afternoon.

Hellickson's two-out walk to Stephen Drew sparked the New York Yankees' three-run inning and fueled the Rays' 4-2 loss Sunday at Tropicana Field.

"It really came down to the walk to Drew that really sent the game the other way," manager Joe Maddon said.

Where it sent the Rays (61-63) was 10 games behind Baltimore in the AL East. By dropping two of three to New York, the Rays lost their fourth series out of the past 14 and their first against the Yankees since May 2013.

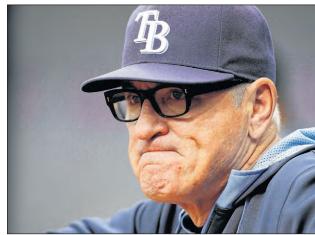

And it happened after Hellickson failed to convert with two strikes, in front of a Yankeesleaning crowd of 28,812.

Hellickson was coming off back-to-back solid outings and had good stuff and solid command early. Maddon figured he could last another six or seven innings.

But then Drew — who entered Sunday batting .167 in 14 games as a Yankee — took a 3-2, two-out pitch for a walk in the fifth.

"I've got to make him swing the bat right

"We made progress from last week and that's what we wanted to see. We wanted to see progress in all areas. Everybody wants to talk about the offensive line. We're concerned about it and other positions, too. The offensive line got better (Saturday) night."

Specifically, the new

■ AWAY AT COLLEGE: Avery Nolin

Nolin ajusts to new position

By BARBARA BOXLEITNER SUN CORRESPONDENT

College soccer has been a transition for Avery Nolin.

The former North Port High School midfielder has had to adjust to being a defender and a forward for Missouri Valley College.

With the position changes, Nolin has gradually earned playing time. Last year she played in 10 of 19 games (11-5-3), with one start, after playing in one game as a freshman.

"It's a personal goal for me," said Nolin, who has had two-a-day workouts since reporting

Stanton finishes six-RBI weekend as Marlins win series finale

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — Giancarlo Stanton hit his 32nd homer and drove in four runs to power Miami to the win.

Stanton has a career-high 88 RBIs, one more than he had in 2011. He went 7 for 14 with four walks and six RBIs in the four-game series against Arizona.

Garrett Jones also homered for the Marlins, who have won five of seven to get back to the .500 mark at 62-62. Tom Koehler (9-9) pitched six innings, allowing two runs.

Stanton hit a three-run homer and Jones also connected in the first against Josh Collmenter (8-7).

Arizona's Ender Inciarte extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a bunt single in the sixth.

Dodgers 7, Brewers 2: In Los Angeles, Jonathan Lucroy tied a season high with five RBIs, including his first home run in more than three weeks, and Milwaukee completed a three-game sweep. Wily Peralta (15-7) tied Johnny Cueto and Adam Wainwright for the major league lead in victories, allowing five hits in six scoreless innings. The right-hander is 6-1 with a 1.79 ERA in his last seven starts.

Royals 12, Twins 6: In Minneapolis, Alex Gordon, Salvador Perez and Josh Willingham homered, and Kansas City won for the 20th time in its last 25 games.

Kansas City sent 11 batters to the plate and scored seven times in the second, keyed by two-run singles for Alcides Escobar and Nori Aoki. The Royals also increased their AL Central lead to 1½ games over Detroit, which lost 8-1 to Seattle.

Orioles 4, Indians 1: In Cleveland, rookie Kevin Gausman pitched six strong innings and Baltimore salvaged the series finale, beating Cleveland to avoid being swept for the first time since May.

Gausman (7-4) allowed just one run and two hits. Zach Britton finished the combined two-hitter for his 26th

Mariners 8, Tigers 1:

In Detroit, Chris Young pitched six shutout innings and Seattle won the weekend series, moving back ahead of Detroit in the race for the second AL wild-card spot.

Seattle's Lloyd McClendon. managing his first series in Detroit after serving as Jim Leyland's hitting coach, was ejected for the second straight game. McClendon was tossed for arguing after Detroit's Alex Avila drew a seventh-inning walk.

Giants 5, Phillies 2: In San Francisco, Michael Morse got three hits and scored twice as San Francisco won consecutive home games for the first time in over two months.

Andrew Susac had two hits and drove in the go-ahead run for the Giants. Brandon Crawford drove in a pair of runs.

Cardinals 7, Padres 6: In St. Louis, Matt Carpenter homered, doubled and drove in three runs for St. Louis, and Adam Wainwright moved into a tie for the major league lead with his 15th win.

Jon Jay's two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning when the Cardinals batted around against rookie Odrisamer Despaigne (3-4).

Cubs 2, Mets 1: In New York, Starlin Castro hit a tiebreaking homer on the first pitch of the ninth inning to lift Chicago to the win.

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 5: In Chicago, Conor Gillaspie hit his first grand slam and Jordan Danks added a two-run shot to cap a six-run first inning, and Chicago held off Toronto.

Toronto's Edwin Encarnacion hit a two-run homer, his 27th this season and first since returning from the disabled list on Friday.

Rangers 3, Angels 2: In Arlington, Texas, Adam Rosales and Mike Carp hit RBI singles in the ninth inning off Angels closer Huston Street, rallying Texas.

Astros 8, Red Sox 1: In Boston, Jose Altuve hit his first grand slam after Boston shortstop Xander Bogaerts made a mental gaffe on a play that would have ended an inning, carrying Houston over the Red Sox.

Rockies 10, Reds 9:

In Denver, Drew Stubbs capped Colorado's five-run ninth inning with a three-run homer, sending the Rockies past Cincinnati in the first game of a doubleheader.

Nationals 6, Pirates 5:

In Washington, pinch-hitter Scott Hairston's sacrifice fly with one out in the 11th inning scored Jayson Werth to give the Washington a win to complete a sweep there," Hellickson said. The next four batters didn't have that problem. Martin Prado followed with a two-strike double down the leftfield line. Brett Gardner and Derek Jeter followed with twostrike hits of their own, and Jacob Ellsbury's RBI single capped the Yankees' rally.

Hellickson said his pitches were OK — except for the one to Ellsbury that caught too much of the plate. But they weren't big enough to help him escape the inning.

"I gotta make big pitches when I need to and start putting guys away with two strikes," Hellickson said.

As Hellickson faltered, Yankees starter Hiroki Kuroda picked himself up after a rocky start. Ben Zobrist and Matt Joyce each singled in the first, and Evan Longoria's groundout knocked in Zobrist for the game's first

But the Rays got little else the rest of the way. Kuroda used an excellent sinker and good slider to retire the next 16 batters.

"He had everything in his arsenal" Sunday, Yankees manager Joe Girardi said.

The Rays got to Kuroda again in the seventh, with Joyce's leadoff double and Longoria's RBI single. But the second half of the lineup stranded Longoria at third. The Rays' 5-9 hitters finished a combined 0 for one more in the eighth, with Mark Teixeira's solo home run off reliever Joel Peralta. The 412-foot blast snapped the Rays' club-record streak of 12 games allowing three or fewer runs and provided an insurance run against a Rays team that hasn't allowed more than four runs in any of its past seven losses.

"To get to the promised land," Maddon said, "you've got to figure it out somehow."

Stone Crabs let sweep get away

STAFF REPORT

JUPITER — The Charlotte Stone Crabs split a double-header with the Jupiter Hammerheads on Sunday afternoon, after games between the two teams were rained out on Friday and Saturday.

The Stone Crabs coasted to a 4-1 win in the first game behind lefthander Blake Snell, who allowed one run on three hits in 4½ innings. Jordan Harrison came on in relief and gave up no runs on two hits in 1\% innings to pick up the win. Colton Reavis pitched a perfect seventh inning for his third save of the year.

Charlotte seemed poised for a sweep after jumping out to a 4-0 lead in Game 2, but the Hammerheads scored five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. The Stone Crabs responded with a run in the top of the sixth, but Jupiter walked off in the seventh by scoring off Ryan Garton.

Stone Crabs outfielder Granden Goetzman hit his first home run in the fourth inning. The Palmetto native also raised his average to .200 with that hit.

Rose and Davis shine in USA win

Marion signs with Cleveland

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Derrick Rose heard the cheers and showed some of his old explosiveness, fellow Chicago product Anthony Davis scored 20 points, and the U.S. beat Brazil 95-78 late Saturday night in a tuneup for the World Cup of Basketball.

With fans roaring for Rose all night, the Chicago Bulls point guard flashed some of his MVP moves. He also seemed happy to defer to his teammates in his first appearance at the United Center since his latest season-ending knee injury, finishing with seven points.

Davis, who like Rose grew up on Chicago's South Side, dominated down the stretch, and the U.S. pulled away after Brazil kept it close for three quarters.

With a five-point lead going into the fourth, the U.S. went on a 14-2 run to break open a 68-63 game. Klay Thompson nailed a 3 to start it, and Davis took over.

Cavs add Marion: A person familiar with the negotiations said veteran free agent forward Shawn Marion has agreed to a contract with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Marion informed the Cavs this weekend that he will take a minimum deal and play for them next season, said the person who spoke Sunday to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the contract has not been finalized. Marion also had interest in signing with Indiana.

ESPN.com first reported Marion's agreement with the Cavs.

The 36-year-old Marion, a fourtime All-Star, gives Cleveland another veteran with postseason experience to compliment superstar LeBron James. The team has previously signed shooters Mike Miller and James Jones, who won two NBA titles with James in Miami.

Marion has played in 103 NBA playoff games. He's averaged 15.8 points and 9.0 rebounds during his

Montoya wins at Milwaukee Mile

Morgan Lucas wins at rainplagued Lucas Oil Nationals

By The Associated Press

WEST ALLIS, Wis. -With traffic ahead and teammate Juan Pablo Montoya closing in from behind, Will Power stepped on the accelerator.

The IndyCar points leader maneuvered through the high-speed gridlock to claim a crucial victory Sunday at the Milwaukee Mile.

Power added a little breathing room in the standings over second-place Helio Castroneves and boosted Team Penske's hopes for a season title with two races to go. "We're a well-oiled machine right now with all three cars," Power said about the team that also includes Castroneves. "If we have a couple more days like this, of course, it's going to be a great finish."

A Penske driver has finished second each of the previous four seasons and five of the last six.

Power raced to his third victory this season, and his first on an oval. Montoya finished second, while Tony Kanaan was third.

After coming into Milwaukee with a four-point lead, Power heads to the road course at Sonoma next week with 602 points, 39 more than Castroneves.

Plus, Power proved doubters wrong who said he couldn't win on ovals. It was Power's third career oval victory, following Texas in 2011 and Fontana last year.

"Yes! I love winning on ovals! I love winning on ovals!" he yelled on his radio after taking the checkered flag.

Hunter-Reay announces contract extension: A smiling Ryan Hunter-Reay and team owner Michael Andretti formally signed the paperwork for a three-year extension in front of cameras before Sunday's race at the Milwaukee Mile. DHL also announced it would remain the primary sponsor of Hunter-Reay's No. 28 car another three years.

Lucas wins at Lucas Oil NHRA Nationals: In Brainerd, Minn., Top Fuel driver Morgan Lucas won for the third time in his career at Brainerd International Raceway to close the rain-plaqued Lucas Oil NHRA

Lucas was on and off the throttle of his 10,000-horsepower dragster as the engine erupted in flames when it crossed the finish line just in front of series points leader Doug Kalitta's charging dragster. Both machines lost traction early in the final round, but Lucas was able to guide his machine to his 10th career victory.

The Funny Car final between John Force and Ron Capps, and the Pro Stock semifinals and final were postponed due to darkness and inclement weather following a day filled with multiple rain delays.

"Joey, as we rolled up to some of the restarts not that last one, but some of the other ones as guys were starting to sort of anticipate it, he was slowing down, and when he slowed down, everybody got bottled up, and then he'd take off," Gordon said. "That last one, I thought he had a good start, but I had a good one, too.' Harvick was second, the Chase.' Logano was second to Gordon in qualifying. He led 86 laps and Gordon was in front for 68.

"We can win a championship. I really feel we can do that. That's the message I want to put out there," Logano said. "We've got to find a little bit more speed to keep up with one car today -24 car was the best, only because he was good on the long run. We weren't as good on the long run. There were eight cau-

Auburn joins Tide in Top 10

By JOHN ZENOR ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Alabama and Auburn are no strangers to going into seasons ranked in the Top 10 — just not at the same time.

The second-ranked Crimson Tide and No. 6 Tigers share that lofty preseason billing in the Associated Press poll for the first time since 1995 and only the fourth time ever in the storied rivalry.

It's the Tigers' highest preseason ranking since coming in No. 4 in 2006.

"We haven't even talked about it," Auburn coach Gus Malzahn said. "Last year nobody picked us to do anything, and so we don't get wrapped up in that."

The only other times the dual Top 10 rankings happened were in 1964 and 1975.

Both of those involved likely the most revered coaches in the respective programs' history -Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant and Ralph "Shug" Jordan, both Hall of Famers.

The high rankings aren't a surprise. If the four-team playoff had been in place last season, the two might have met in a semifinal rematch of one of last season's most thrilling games.

Auburn won 34-28 when Chris Davis returned a missed field goal 109 yards for a touchdown on the final play.

Coincidentally, Auburn struggled in '64 and '75 while Alabama lived up to the billing.

The Crimson Tide won a second national title under Bryant after opening at No. 6 in 1964. Jordan's Auburn team went 6-4 after opening at Alabama captured an SEC championship after opening the '75 season at No. 2. Auburn started out ranked seventh but fell to Both teams won eight games in 1995.

The Tide has much more experience at trying to live up to the Top 10 mantle, having opened ranked that high 32 times.

The Tigers have done it 15 times but have sometimes been at their best when little was expected.

Led by quarterback Nick Marshall, Auburn opened last season unranked and played for a national title. The 2010 national champs started out ranked 22nd while the 1957 team that won Auburn's other national title wasn't ranked.

Tommy Tuberville's 2004 team went from 17th to second by season's end.

Recent history indicates the No. 2 ranking is a good spot for Alabama. That's where the Tide's 2011 and 2012 national title teams opened. The 2009 team that brought Nick Saban's first title to Tuscaloosa began at No. 5.

national championship in 1993, Florida State started 1995 at No. 3.

Fisher's Seminoles have a long way to go to compare to Florida State's unprecedented run of national championship contention, a string of 14 straight seasons during which the 'Noles finished the season ranked in the top five of the AP rankings.

Still, make no mistake: Florida State is built to

"We're the second-winningest team in the country the last four years, the winningest team the last two years and have had the most NFL players," Fisher said. "We've recruited well, too. Recruited a lot of great young players we've been able to mentor and develop as we go, so we're very comfortable with the guys who are replacing the guys that left."

The Seminoles were an overwhelming choice as No. 1, receiving 57 of 60 first-place votes from the media panel. No. 2 Alabama, No. 2 Oregon and No. 4 Oklahoma got one first-place vote each.

Ohio State is No. 5 and Auburn, which lost the final BCS national championship game to the Seminoles 34-31, is No. 6.

Last season was a good reminder that preseason rankings can look silly by the end of the season. Four teams that finished in final top 10 last season (No. 2 Auburn, No. 3 Michigan State, No. 5 Missouri and No. 10 Central Florida) were unranked to start the season. Throw in No. 13 Baylor, No. 20 Arizona State and No. 23 Duke, and seven of the teams that either won or played for the championship in the six conferences with BCS automatic-qualifying status began 2013 unranked.

The Bowl Championship Series is gone now, replaced by the College Football Playoff. The top four teams will be placed into national semifinals to be played on New Year's Day and advance to the championship game about a week and half later.

Expect surprises, though coming up with a scenario in which Florida State is not part of college football's first final four is difficult.

Winston will make a run at his second Heisman behind an offensive line that returns four starters. There's turnover at receiver and running back but still plenty left of four- and five-star talent left behind.

Same goes on defense, where sophomore safety Jalen Ramsey and defensive end Mario Edwards step into leadership roles.

Florida State is the hunted again. Fisher wants them to still act like hunters.

"We better have that attitude. It's got to be your attitude every year," said Fisher, starting his fifth season as Florida State coach. "We call it an attitude of domination. You can never be satisfied."

Florida State starts its season with a rebuilding Oklahoma State team at AT&T Stadium in Arlington, Texas, which, coincidentally, is also the site of the first College Football Playoff national championship game.

saw improvement," Smith said. "But as I said all along, our plan is to let everybody have an opportunity one way or another as we go through.

"When you get to the third preseason game, you're getting ready for the season and the group we put out there right now, they earned that right to get the majority of the plays this week. It will all be fairly clear on what we're thinking this week."

Having not addressed players who were off Sunday, Smith stopped short of saying the Bucs plan to stick with Cousins at left guard and Omameh at right guard. But Saturday's game at Buffalo will essentially be the final dress rehearsal for the No. 1 offense, with starters expected to play into the third quarter.

Few, if any starters are expected to play in the preseason finale against the Redskins on Aug. 28 at Raymond James Stadium.

"We had some guys who played better than others," Smith said of the line. "Anthony Collins played well. Evan Dietrich-Smith. Demar (Dotson) didn't play as well as he played last week. Patrick Omameh did a good job for his first time out."

In fact, Smith felt good enough about his starting guards that he offered no evidence for changing that combination this week. On Omameh, an undrafted free agent from Michigan signed off the 49ers practice squad on Oct. 11, Smith said, "I think he held up. And when I say played well, I'm talking about all the things we ask him to do.

"Inside, you've got to be able to one-on-one block versus the run, versus the pass. Our quarterbacks, we held a couple balls, but for the most part protection gave them time to hit the receivers. Patrick was a part of that.

"Last week, the guar were at the top of our minds because of that constant, quick pressure inside. And he didn't really allow that. That's his first time out. We'll just kind of continue."

Cousins, entering his seventh season with five career starts, would seem to have the position locked up. "For Oniel to be in there two weeks, that's telling you I think we know what he is for the most part," Smith said. "Played solid ball."

But with the Sept. 7 regular-season opener against the Panthers looming, the Bucs' starters will have one more chance to make Smith smile. "You go to 32 different teams, we're not there yet," Smith said. "It's just about improvement. This offense was better this week than last. And I expect to see more improvements this week."

Injury report: A week ago they had a stockpile, but now the Bucs might be in the market for a running back. Mike James suffered a shoulder injury against the Dolphins and probably will not play Saturday at Buffalo, Smith said. "I've got to be careful what I say right now, but we're not in as good of shape as we were before," Smith said. . . .

DE William Gholston (shoulder) will not play against the Bills. "It's going to be a while for him," Smith said. . . .

CB Rashaan Melvin (ankle) and S Major Wright (back) also did not finish the game against Miami. Smith said CB Alterraun Verner will practice and could play this week. DE Steven Means (groin)) and DL Da'Quan Bowers (groin) are making progress.

Denver Broncos quarterback Peyton Manning has time to throw against San Francisco during the first half of Sunday's preseason game in Santa Clara, Calif., in the NFL opener for the 49ers' new stadium.

Broncos spoil stadium opener for San Francisco

By The Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — The San Francisco 49ers turned their hyped Levi's Stadium debut into a real dud. So bad, in fact, tens of thousands of fans left the snazzy new Silicon Valley digs midway through the third quarter.

Colin Kaepernick was thoroughly outshined by 38-year-old Peyton Manning in Denver's 34-0 rout Sunday, with the San Francisco quarterback going 5 for 9 for 39 yards in his two series.

The 49ers turned the ball over four times and gave up big plays on defense.

"We're off. It's that kind of off right now. It's a little, it's correctable, but it shows up," coach Jim Harbaugh said. "That's football, it punishes mistakes. It rewards execution and precision. That's where we're off right now. We're not a precise team."

Manning threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Julius Thomas and dominated in his two series to spoil the NFL debut at sparkling $1.2 billion Levi's Stadium.

Major League Soccer's San Jose Earthquakes beat the Seattle Sounders in the stadium's first sporting event Aug. 2.

"It's been a good start. That's all it is, though," Manning said. "We've still got some things we have to improve on."

The 38-year-old Manning, beginning his 17th season after throwing for an NFL-record

55 touchdowns last year, completed 12 of 14 passes for 102 yards and a 120.8 rating. He was 8 for 8 on Denver's second drive, then backup Brock Osweiler took over in a preseason matchup of the past two Super Bowl losers.

Saints QB Brees returns to practice: New Orleans Saints quarterback Drew Brees fully participated in practice for the first time since straining his left oblique muscle two weeks ago. Brees hasn't missed a start due to injury since coming to New Orleans in 2006 and said he plans on playing Saturday against Indianapolis in the Saints' third preseason game.

Falcons LT Baker out for the season: The Atlanta Falcons' revamped offensive line took a major setback when left tackle Sam Baker was ruled out for the year after injuring his right knee in a preseason game. The Falcons announced that the injury plagued Baker sustained a torn patellar tendon in a 32-7 loss to the Houston Texans. First-round pick Jake Matthews could move from right to left tackle to replace Baker, but the injury is a major setback to Atlanta's efforts to bolster a line that was one of the league's worst a year ago.

Jaguars WR Shorts returns: Jacksonville Jaquars receiver Cecil Shorts III was back on the field but out of form. Shorts returned to practice for the first time since July 25 and could play in Friday's preseason game at Detroit. Shorts worked with the first-team offense, a little more than three weeks after straining his right hamstring in the team's opening training camp practice. He even caught a pass on the first play of 11-on-11 drills. "It felt good," he said. "After that, it was just downhill. Rusty, rusty, rusty. But I'll be fine."

Romo's back holds up; on to the Dolphins: The first time Tony Romo set up to pass on Saturday night, he had to twist slightly and move forward in the pocket before zipping a throw to Dez Bryant. When Romo botched a handoff for a fumble a few plays later, the Dallas quarterback found himself hanging onto Baltimore's Courtney Upshaw with one hand, unsuccessfully trying to prevent a touchdown. The good news, following surgery for a herniated disk, is that Romo's back held up. Now he and the Cowboys must figure out how much he'll play Saturday night in an exhibition game at Miami. That figures to be his last action before the opener Sept. 7 against San Francisco.

Is prostate to blame for slow-to-empty bladder?

DEAR DR. ROACH: I would like your opinion on enlarged prostate. My primary-care doctor sent me for a blood test and said my PSA number was too high, then sent me to a urologist. He said my bladder is not emptying and that I am having urine retention in the bladder. After one week of medication (Rapaflo), I had a catheter inserted for another week. He measured the urine in the bladder, and it was 880 ml. Now he is suggesting surgery. Is he going too fast? What are your thoughts on the procedure and side effects? Will this correct the problem? — D.G.

ANSWER: The bladder is drained via a tube called the urethra, and in men, the urethra runs right through the middle of the prostate. As men get older, the prostate commonly enlarges, and this can cause resistance to flow. The symptoms can range from mildly annoying to complete obstruction. Complete obstruction is an emergency, since the kidneys will fail within a few days of being unable to drain urine at all.

But the obstruction does not need to be complete in order to cause kidney damage. It's the high pressure in the urethra, bladder and ureters (the tubes that allow urine to flow from the kidneys to the bladder) that causes kidney damage. Placing a catheter allows the urine to drain at low pressure if the problem is in the urethra.

Normal bladder capacity is between 300 to 400 ml. At 880 ml, you would experience very abnormal bladder drainage and would be at high risk for ongoing kidney damage. Thus, I completely agree with your urologist that something, probably surgical, needs to be done quickly.

It's not completely clear to me whether your inability to drain the bladder is due to obstruction from enlarged prostate, even though an elevated PSA suggests that this might be the case. It also is possible that there is something wrong with the nerves that go to or from the bladder. I suspect your urologist has done additional bladder tests to help sort this out.

The booklet on the prostate gland discusses enlargement as well as cancer. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Roach — No. 1001, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I read your column on Reglan and have a question. I have GERD and a hiatal hernia, and have been on Nexium for many years. I had an endoscopy, and the doctor put me on 10 mg of Reglan, which I have been taking for a couple of years. It does help me, but after reading your column and the side effects of Reglan (it should be taken for only about 12 weeks), I wonder if I should continue taking it. My doctor told me that the low dosage he prescribed would not have the side effects

ANSWER: Reglan is used for some people with GERD or hiatal hernia to help the food and acid move forward and not backward into the esophagus. I wrote about the dreaded side effect of tardive dyskinesia, a movement disorder that usually goes away if the offending drug is stopped immediately, but which can be permanent. Tardive dyskinesia is more likely with high doses taken for longer periods of time. Most people who developed tardive dyskinesia did so after being on metoclopramide (Reglan) for more than a year. It is considered low-risk if given for 12 weeks or less.

DR. ROACH WRITES:
One more update on the husband of R.F., who was diagnosed with normal pressure hydrocephalus. He had the surgery, was discharged the following day with no pain, is doing well and will follow up with physical therapy. It's not always an easy decision to make, but he was fortunate to have excellent care and a good result so far.

Jumbles: TWIRL CLASS HORRID TRUDGE Answer: When they told them they'd be driving clockwise, the drivers said - ALL RIGHT

Dear Readers: Here is this week's sound off, about public restrooms:

"As the graphic artist at your hometown newspaper, I get to read your column before anyone else in town. Here's a suggestion for your Monday Sound Off column: Why are public toilet stalls so narrow? Why do the merchants insist on putting the dispensing part of the toilet-paper dispenser below your knees, usually with a serrated edge? And why can't the auto-flush wait until the stall door opens to flush? — Henry in San Antonio

Henry, nice to hear from you, and gee, you get to read the column first! This is a "hot" topic! Many public restrooms are NOT user-friendly, but egar, then rinse. Repeat if they do serve a purpose, and they are free. Who knows why the TP holder is usually situated so low? If someone can tell me why, I'd love to hear and pass along the reason. — Heloise

Hints from Heloise

Spilled drink stain

Dear Heloise: While out the other night, my kids spilled some soda on themselves. How can I remove the stain? - Mom in Massachusetts

These things do happen! Since the clothes are washable, when you get home (next time!), dab with white household vinnecessary. If the stain still shows, use liquid laundry detergent and rub it into the area, then wash as usual. When out, rinse with cool water ASAP to help keep it from setting. Stains can be tough to get out. That's why I have a pamphlet full of hints to remove tough stains. To get it, send $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (70 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Stain Guide, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. Got a fruit-juice stain? Rinse in cold water immediately. If you still have a stain, rub liquid laundry detergent into the area, let sit a few minutes and wash in warm water. — Heloise

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE By Lynn Johnston

Angry wife resents husband for hiding news of his health

DEAR ABBY: When my husband is sick or needs to have surgery, he refuses to tell his family and doesn't want me to. This puts me in a very awkward position. I'm damned if I do tell them because he will be upset with me, and damned if I don't because his family won't trust me, and I don't want things that way.

Invariably, when he gets home, he calls his family and tells them all about his surgery, and I'm left looking like I withheld the information, when it's not me at all. I have asked him what if he DIES? His family will be upset not only by the tragedy, but also at me for having kept them in the dark.

I'm considering leaving him over this. I don't deserve this from him. And no, he won't see a counselor and I won't do it alone, so do you have any other advice than that? — IN A DIFFICULT POSITION

DEAR IN A DIFFICULT POSITION: You should not be made to feel that you're stuck in the middle. It would be nice if your husband understood that when he is sick enough to be hospitalized that YOU might need the emotional support his family could offer. But since it's not going to happen, he should make plain to his family that he prefers to be the bearer of this kind of news, and the reason they aren't hearing it from you is because he wants it that

DEAR ABBY: I love my sister and enjoy chatting with her, but our schedules make it difficult to connect. When we do speak, her husband often interjects or starts another conversation with her, as if she isn't on the phone. She also settles spats between her toddlers and other things her husband could manage while we're talking.

When this happens I say, "I can tell you're tied up. Can we talk later when things settle down?" Her reply: "We can talk now. Things are always crazy around here."

Dear Abby

As it stands, we speak only a few times a year, and I'd like her undivided attention. I have tried bringing this up a number of times, but she feels life doesn't stand still for anyone.

Is it too much to ask for 30 minutes, three times a year? We live several states apart, so having a face-to-face isn't an option. Any help would be appreciated, because I'm hurt. — MISSING MY SISTER IN GEORGIA

DEAR MISSING YOUR
SISTER: I don't blame you for feeling hurt, because apparently your sister isn't interested in having the kind of contact you would like. It may be that her husband is ultra-controlling — hence the constant interruptions from him —
or that her household is so disorganized she's in the middle of a whirlwind.

If you haven't already, write her a letter and express your feelings. It's one way of getting your thoughts across without being interrupted. I don't think 30 minutes three times a year is a lot to ask of her. Propose setting a specific time to talk when her kids and husband aren't around. Then cross your fingers and hope she sees the light.

BIBLE

"For God hath not given us a spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." — II Tim. 1:7.

Be as quick to reject what is not of God as to receive what is from Him. Fear is not from God; therefore, turn up your faith and turn your back on fear. Father, in Jesus' name, we plead His precious blood over every tormenting fear that is dragging us down and holding us back from your best. We praise you.

♠ K 3 ♥ 9 7 5 ♦ A 10 9 6 ♣ 6 5 3 2

The bidding: SOUTH WEST 1♦ 1& Pass What call would you make?

A - It is tempting to bid three clubs. raising partner, but spades were bid on your left. The lead will come through your king at trick one and your hand may not be very useful.

Q 2 - Neither vulnerable, as South,

♠ Q 9 8 3 ♥ Q J 10 ♦ K 7 5 ♣ K 8 5

The bidding: SOUTH WEST Pass What call would you make?

Your hand is worth an invitation. Bid two no trump and give partner a chance to get out of spades if he has raised with only three-card support.

Q 3 - East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ K 10 6 ♥ K ♦ K 8 7 5 4 ♣ 10 8 7 4

Partner opens one no trump. What call would you make?

A - Usually, nine points and a five-card suit would see us raising to game. This hand, with weak long suits and a singleton king, suggests caution. Bid two no trump.

Q 4 - Both vulnerable, as South, you

The bidding:

Pass NORTH 1♣ 2♠ SOUTH WEST Pass Pass What call would you make?

A - Four-card support from partner would be better, but three-card support is still adequate. We'll play in spades, but how high? Bid four spades

Q 5 - North-South vulnerable, as South, you hold:

▲ K 9 8 6 ♥ K 10 8 ♦ K J 8 7 ♣ 10 6

Partner opens one heart. What call would you make?

A - To respond one spade when you have heart support requires a hand strong enough to jump to three hearts at your next turn. This hand qualifies. Bid one spade. A 4-4 fit, if there is one, is preferable to a 5-3 fit.

Q 6 - East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ Q J 7 ♥ A 9 8 5 3 ♦ A 5 ♣ J 3 2

Partner opens one heart. What call would you make?

A - This hand is worth a game force, but an immediate four-heart bid shows a different hand type. We need a two-bid route to game with this hand. Whether you bid one no trump (forcing), two no trump (fit-showing) or a natural, forcing two clubs, depends upon your agreed methods. In all cases, four hearts will be your
