

Paper, community say farewell to news man

Reporter Jay Meisel passed away Sunday

STAFF REPORT

SEBRING — For the past nearly six years, Jay Meisel spent his time walking the halls at the Highlands County Courthouse, going to the Sebring Police Department, and attending night meetings of the Sebring City Council, all for a story to appear in the Highlands News-Sun or former Highlands Today. He laid his pen and notebook down for a final time last week and died quietly in his sleep Sunday night.

He was 61, having celebrated his birthday late last month.

Highlands News-Sun Publisher Tim Smolarick said, "I am deeply saddened to lose Jay as both an employee and a friend. I have a strong admiration for those who dedicate their lives to making communities a better place to live. We will miss Jay and fondly think of him often."

Jay started working at Highlands Today in December 2012.

Jay's first job in the newspaper industry was here in Florida, but his love for the business also took him to Arkansas and North Carolina before returning to Florida for an editor's position in Fort Pierce.

His brother, Dean, said Jay was very much in to his work. "That was what we talked about: what's the latest in the news he was covering. Then you'd have to try to get off the phone with him. When he was on his subject, he liked to talk."

Dean said Jay "was not a high school football player or class president, but anything that was going on, he had to go too. His friends took care of him everywhere he went. At every paper he worked at, there was always a group of people who just kind of picked him up and made sure he stayed on the straight and narrow."

As much as Jay loved working to inform readers of issues in their communities, he was just as passionate about cats. He had two of his own, which were like children to him, and he was a big supporter of the Humane Society of Highlands County.

Judy Spiegel, manager of Humane Society of Highlands County, knew Jay well. "What a friend he was to the shelter.

Sheriff Paul Blackman had this sign erected in the parking lot at the Highlands County Sheriff's Office. Blackman and Highlands News-Sun Staff Writer Jay Meisel had a "running joke" about Jay getting his own parking spot at the new office. Blackman did just that in May.

Every time we would take in a horrific case, he wanted to be there to write a story about who we are and what we do. He wanted so much to do the story about our Primary Care Clinic. I'm so sad he didn't live long enough to see it happen. We are so close to it opening. He would constantly ask about it and say 'I want to do that story.'"

Spiegel said Jay's favorite place to visit at the shelter was the cat room. "Whenever you were looking for Jay at the

Highlands News-Sun ownership (kind of) changes

STAFF REPORT

SEBRING — In the never-ending change of landscape in the newspaper industry, Sun Coast Media Group, the parent company of the Highlands News-Sun, has sold its coastal properties to Adams Publishing Group. One of our current owners, President and CEO David Dunn-Rankin, has made the decision to retain the newspapers in Highlands and Polk counties as well as the Sun Events division.

Dunn-Rankin announced the family's decision Monday afternoon. The new media company formed by David Dunn-Rankin will be called DR Media, effective immediately.

Highlands News-Sun Publisher Tim Smolarick said, "We are happy to be a part of David Dunn-Rankin's new company. His strong belief in community service was the driver of success with Sun Coast Media Group and will only be enhanced as we move forward with DR Media."

Dunn-Rankin said the family-owned Adams Publishing Group has developed a reputation for sustaining its newspapers' commitment to good journalism and a strong loyalty to employees.

Those Sun Coast Media Group newspapers being purchased by Adams Publishing Group include the Venice Gondolier Sun, Charlotte Sun, North Port Sun, Englewood Sun and Arcadian in DeSoto County.

In the announcement, Dunn-Rankin said it was a difficult decision that the family had to make. "But, we remain confident in the future of the community newspaper industry, and especially in the vision and culture of SCMG's new

Dispute delays plans to demolish AP Wilde Building

AVON PARK — The City of Avon Park's plans to demolish the dilapidated Wilde Building on Main Street have been put on hold with the building's former owners disputing the property's foreclosure.

The building was purchased at a foreclosure sale by the City of Avon Park in 2017.

Mayor Garrett Anderson said Monday the city is in a deadlock now until the matter is remedied, which could take a couple of months or longer.

A court document from May 2017 shows that Jayeola and Helen Enigbonjaye were the defendants in the case against the City of Avon Park as the plaintiff. In that document, the defendants' motion to seek relief from the judgment favoring the City was denied.

The court ruling noted that a previous owner of the building failed to pay property taxes and had also accumulated a "small fortune" in fees for code enforcement violations.

In 2013 the property was

Geometry a high point for Highlands state exam scores

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — The Florida Department of Education released statewide test scores recently including the Florida Standards Assessment End-of-Course Exam scores.

The most recent results are from the Spring administration of the exams.

Some advanced students take the courses and the end-of-course exams, such as Algebra I, geometry and biology, in middle school, but the majority of students take the exams in high school.

For each exam The Florida Department of Education releases the overall scores for all grade levels and the scores for each grade level.

For the Algebra I EOC the largest testing group is ninth-grade.

Test results fall into five achievement levels with Level 5 the top achievement level.

The main barometer for comparing scores is the percentage of students in Level 3 and above.

Phase II begins in Publix plaza renovation

By KIM LEATHERMAN

LAKE PLACID — There they go again; construction has begun again on Phase II of the South Highlands Shopping Center at the corner of Dal Hall Boulevard and U.S. 27. The first phase was the demolition of the old Publix and the building of a new, freestanding store. The construction on that did not go quite as quickly as the grocery store company thought; originally, Publix told the Lake Placid Town Council the new store would open in January 2016. The store opened just after the New Year 2017. Phase II construction began when the old Publix store was retrofitted and redesigned for the Beall's Outlet store, which moved from the north side of the plaza to the central spot where Publix was and opened in January 2018. A large space was left to fill on the north side where Beall's Outlet was formerly located. Wells Fargo had already left the plaza. Current construction is a continuation of Phase II, Highlands County Planning Supervisor Jodene Thayer confirmed. Much will be done during this portion of the plan.

According to Thayer, the old Beall's Outlet location will be retrofitted to fit nine smaller businesses inside of it. Some of those businesses include ones that are already housed in the building's southern wing. Those include Domino's Pizza, Subway and a nail salon. The Publix Liquor store will bookend the shopping center by landing in the northernmost section of the strip mall. "They should be making that into a number of smaller shops," Thayer said. "The north end will have part of the (old) Beall's off the back end and making these stores much smaller than the old Beall's was." In Phase III, Publix will demolish the southern wing of the plaza. The intent is to make it a grassy area. Publix had to create a massive storm water plan and execute it with large retention ponds and areas of percolation for the water before the Town Council would approve the initial construction. The storm water from that hill runs into Lakes Clay and Blue. The city refused to let any of the retailers pollute the lake.

AP man charged with battery on cop

AVON PARK — An Avon Park man approached Sebring Police officers at Club Cino in Sebring and began uttering racial slurs and hate language toward the law enforcement officers, according to an arrest report. The situation escalated and the suspect began physically assaulting a police officer when he was being placed under arrest.

Markeith Syvioun Jones, 24, of Avon Park was charged with violation of municipal ordinance 3-3 regarding an open alcoholic container, resisting an officer with violence and battery on a attempting to get one of the parties involved in the disturbance to leave the parking lot. As they were dealing with the situation, Jones walked past them and began hurling insults at the police officers, using hate language, profanity and racial slurs, the report stated. He walked behind a total of four officers and responded to them in the law enforcement officer.

Sebring Police responded to a disturbance in the parking lot of Club Cino and were

An officer requested that Jones leave the premises. He responded with profanity and verbal defiance of the order, the report stated. The officer smelled alcohol on Jones' breath and noted he was holding a cup with an alcoholic beverage. At this point, officers informed Jones he was under arrest.

Jones attempted to resist arrest by grabbing and squeezing an officer's neck, according to the arrest report. When the officer broke Jones' hold on his neck, Jones grabbed for his face, stuck his finger in the officer's left eye and spat in the officer's face.

5 THINGS That Will Make You SMARTER

1. The first suspenders can be traced to 18th century France, where they were basically strips of ribbon attached to the buttonholes of trousers. Back then, suspenders were considered an undergarment never to be seen in public.

2. In fact, visible suspenders were considered risqué as recently as 1938, when a town in Long Island, New York tried to ban gentlemen from wearing them without a coat, calling it "sartorial indecency." The ban was later overturned after residents complained.

3. In the early 1820s, British designer Albert Thurston began to manufacture the first known modern day suspenders.

4. One of the first U.S. patents for suspenders was issued in 1871 to Samuel Clemens (better known as Mark Twain) for "Adjustable and Detachable Straps for Garments," that attached to everything from underpants to women's corsets and were designed as an alternative to suspenders, which Clemens reportedly found uncomfortable.

5. Metal clasps were invented in 1894 so that suspenders could be clipped on rather than buttoned

Supreme Court sides with Florida man in free speech case

By JESSICA GRESKO

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A man who has been an outspoken critic of the south Florida city where he lives is now 2-0 in disputes with the city before the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court on Monday sided with Fane Lozman in a lawsuit that began with his 2006 arrest at a City of Riviera Beach city council meeting. Lozman, who also won a case against the city at the Supreme Court in 2013, was arrested while talking about corruption in the county during a public comment portion of the meeting.

Lozman, 56, argued he was arrested in retaliation for being a critic of the city and sued. But a lower court said Lozman was barred from bringing a lawsuit for retaliation because a jury found a police officer had probable cause to arrest him for disturbing a lawful assembly. The Supreme Court disagreed, with Justice Anthony Kennedy writing in an 8-1 decision that Lozman's lawsuit isn't barred. Justice Clarence Thomas dissented.

"What happened to me was wrong. It happens all the time to public speakers. This is going to tell municipalities that you're not immunized from legal actions. There is a price to pay," Lozman said in a telephone interview after the decision was announced.

The decision doesn't end the case. Kennedy wrote that an appeals court should look at several issues when re-evaluating the case, directing the court to use as guidance a previous case that Lozman had advocated. The appeals court could rule in Lozman's favor or against him, said Kerri L. Barsh, one of Lozman's attorneys, but said the court had previously suggested Lozman made a strong case that he was retaliated against.

An attorney for the city, Benjamin Bedard, called the decision "narrow" and said there are various arguments open to the city when it returns to the appeals court. He said the city hopes to persuade the appeals court to rule in favor of the city and said the city never had a policy or agreement to retaliate against Lozman.

"They really were just trying to run their meeting in an efficient manner," Bedard said, adding that if Lozman had followed a councilwoman's direction and "moved on to other topics then none of this ever would have occurred."

It's also possible the case could settle. Lozman said part of what'd he'd want is an apology and for the city to pay his legal fees and other costs, which now are over $200,000.

Lozman was arrested on Nov. 15, 2006 after he began using the meeting's public comment time to talk about government corruption in Palm Beach County, where the City of Riviera Beach is located. He kept speaking after a member of the council warned him not to continue with the topic. The charges against him were ultimately dismissed, but Lozman then turned around and sued the city.

Lozman claimed the city violated the First Amendment's free speech guarantee by arresting him in retaliation for his criticism of city officials and policies and a separate lawsuit he'd filed against the city.

Numerous First Amendment and media organizations, including The Associated Press, filed briefs supporting Lozman.

Lozman's win Monday comes five years after his last victory at the court. In 2013, the justices sided with Lozman in ruling that a floating home that he had docked at a city-owned marina was a house, not a boat subject to easier government seizure under laws that govern ships and boats.

The case decided Monday is 17-21, Lozman v. City of Riviera Beach.

FLORIDA NEWS BRIEFS

Attorney: Roller coaster riders will have lifelong injuries

ORLANDO — An attorney for three passengers who were riding a Florida roller coaster when it derailed last week says his clients could have lifelong injuries.

Attorney Matt Morgan said at a news conference Monday that he has hired two ride-safety experts to evaluate what went wrong with the Sand Blaster roller coaster when it derailed last Thursday on the Daytona Beach Boardwalk.

Morgan says his clients will contemplate a lawsuit if the ride's insurance companies fight paying them.

Morgan's clients all come from Kentucky. They were visiting Daytona Beach as part of a work trip.

They include Amanda Bostic, one of two riders who plummeted 34 feet (10 meters).

They also include a rider who was forced to hang from the ride until being rescued.

2 Georgia men drown off Florida Panhandle beach

PANAMA CITY BEACH — Two Georgia men drowned in separate incidents off a Florida Panhandle beach.

The News Herald reports 21-year-old Tony Orlando Jackson of Cartersville, Georgia, was found in the water off Panama City Beach on Sunday, several hours after police responded to a distressed swimmer call.

Witnesses told police Jackson didn't resurface after being overtaken by a large wave.

His body was taken to the medical examiner's office.

On Saturday, 67-year-old Eugene Spann of Atlanta was pulled from the Gulf of Mexico. Police said he was pronounced dead at a hospital.

Authorities: Woman leaves 3-year-old in vehicle overnight

SANFORD — Authorities say a Florida woman left a 3-year-old girl in a vehicle overnight, where she was overheated and drifted in and out of consciousness.

A Seminole County Sheriff's Office news release says investigators learned 33-year-old Casey Dyan Keller traveled to a liquor store Saturday night with three children, returned home but left the 3-year-old in the car.

Authorities tell news outlets Keller realized the child wasn't in the apartment Sunday morning and called 911 to report the vehicle missing with the toddler inside.

Deputies responded to Vista Haven Apartments and found the girl inside the vehicle with the windows up.

Authorities say the child is in critical but stable condition at a hospital. Keller was charged with child neglect with great bodily harm. It's unclear if she has a lawyer.

Florida state trooper strikes, kills pedestrian

ST. AUGUSTINE — A

Florida Highway Patrol officer struck and killed a pedestrian while trying to pull over a vehicle.

WTLV-TV reports officer Kenneth Montgomery was traveling on U.S. Highway 1 in St. Augustine in a marked patrol car at about 2 a.m. Sunday when 33-year-old Vincent Kinslow walked into his path. Kinslow wasn't using a crosswalk. Kinslow later died at a hospital. Investigators said Montgomery is part of FHP's DUI patrol and was trying to track down a driver when the accident happened. An FHP press release said investigators are trying to determine if Kinslow was drinking.

shelter, you would find him lying on the floor in the cat room with cats crawling all over him. When we did something about dogs on Facebook, I would get a call saying 'What about the cats? They are as important as the dogs.'

Jay's news beat included the city of Sebring.

Sebring City Clerk Kathy Haley said, "I worked with Jay a lot. He was really good about making sure the story was straight. It's hard to have a reporter that makes sure he double-checks everything to make sure it is right. When he wrote a story, it was spot on. (Highlands County Public Information Officer) Gloria Rybinski and Scott Dressel (PIO for Highlands County Sheriff's Office) were just talking about how Jay could be like a bull dog, but his stories were always spot on and he always got it right."

She said Jay always thanked her for taking his calls and answering his questions as quickly as she did. "He told me I was the best city clerk he had ever worked with and that just got to my heart. He is going to be missed."

City Administrator Scott Noetlich agreed. "With Jay, you never knew if his jokes were dry or if he was simply trying to provoke a reaction from you," he said.

Jay's news beat also included covering the courts and crime. Dressel said Sheriff Paul Blackman and Jay had a running joke between the two of them that when the new Sheriff's Office building was built, Jay needed his own parking spot. The sheriff made that happen soon after learning of Jay's illness. A sign was erected in the front parking area at a spot closest to the door. The sign simply said in big letters "Reserved for Jay Meisel."

He never saw the sign in person, but did see a picture of it and smiled.

Blackman said Monday morning, "We here at the Sheriff's Office are extremely heart broken by this news. Jay was a great guy and I am glad I had the opportunity to get to know him. Even though, I know he could not read his own notes, he never misquoted me or our staff. As well if we mentioned something was off the record you could bet he would not print the information. Jay had great integrity and we will definitely miss him around the Sheriff's Office."

Blackman said he will keep the parking sign up for a short time in Jay's memory.

Jay also had a special working arrangement in Assistant State Attorney Steve Houchin's office. "I have what I called the Jay Meisel Office. He would come in and want to look at records so we'd set him up with everything at a desk in a spare office and let him go at it. Jay was a colleague and a friend. He was someone I could trust. If he asked me a question and I couldn't answer it, he understood. I was always confident that he would never betray my trust," he said.

Pallavi Agarwal worked as Jay's editor at Highlands Today and on the weekends he was assigned to work.

She said, "Jay stood for what he believed in and didn't mince words, whether it be politics or something he was passionate about. He could be opinionated as a person but was always fair and balanced in his stories as a reporter. He particularly cared about child welfare stories and did what he could to help the Humane Society. He loved his cats, he loved strong opinions and was never afraid to question authority."

She said over the last few months of his illness she came to call Jay her friend. "It was heartbreaking to see him so sick but to the end he soldiered on with so much dignity — he would drive himself to work, do what he could and never ask for help or pity. That is the Jay I will always remember."

Highlands News-Sun Managing Editor Karen Clogston said, "Jay could be a tough person to work with — always had an opinion on an issue, never backed off from an argument and was never afraid to let you know how he felt about something no matter how jarring or unsettling it was. It is what made him an excellent reporter.

"His unpolished personality wasn't for everyone and many times I wasn't sure how he would be received on an assignment. But Jay was a consummate professional and he had a natural ability to get people to share their stories along with covering hard news — he hated to miss out on covering breaking news. He had a soft spot for animal welfare stories, especially cats, and he enjoyed covering the Humane Society. In the last few months as his illness progressed, we became friends and we talked a lot about family and life. It was so sad to see him in pain; I am glad he is at peace now."

Jay is survived by his brother, Dean (Jackie); his mother, Beverly Meisel; and four nieces.

Those who would like to make a donation in Jay's memory are asked to do so by making a donation to the Humane Society of Highlands County, 7421 Haywood Taylor Blvd., Sebring, FL 33876, or Good Shepherd Hospice, 1110 Hammock Road, Sebring, FL 33870.

A service for Jay will be announced at a later date.

ANOTHER VIEW

Too tight to make sense

The horrific scenes from a South Florida nursing home, where 12 residents perished in the sweltering heat after Hurricane Irma knocked out power to the facility, will haunt Floridians for a long time to come.

But the broad, sweeping rules Gov. Rick Scott mandated — and their hasty timeline — were unrealistic. An administrative law judge ruled in November that the Agency for Health Care Administration didn't have the authority to force every nursing home and assisted-living facility in the state to invest in emergency generators and fuel by Nov. 15. That deadline sailed by, but in the spring, the Legislature adopted a modified version of Scott's plan. The new law doesn't require permanent installation of generators, but does mandate that every facility secure enough emergency power to cool 20 to 30 feet of space per resident for at least 96 hours.

As of May 25, 102 of the state's 686 nursing homes had adequate equipment available, and another 348 had asked for six-month extensions, which certifies them as compliant under the law. The numbers are far worse for assisted-living facilities, which typically offer less-intensive services. In that category (which covers 3,102 locations across the state), only 205 have equipment lined up. Another 344 have approved extensions.

That leaves state regulators with a hairy decision. Do they level harsh fines against roughly two-thirds of the state's long-term care facilities? Or do they simply throw up their hands and declare the entire mess "too big to succeed"?

Neither option makes much sense. The best option may be for Scott and legislative leaders to negotiate a little wiggle room, understanding that the state must keep driving toward the goal of making each of these facilities as safe as possible, and as soon as reasonably achievable.

That starts with prioritizing nursing homes, where residents are usually frailer and, for the most part, incapable of doing anything to get themselves to safety during and after a natural disaster. That was one reason the death toll at ... The Rehabilitation Center at Hollywood Hills was so high; there was a hospital just across the street with room for the elderly patients, but home administrators didn't move them, focusing instead on trying to have the facility's power restored. According to a report by the South Florida Sun-Sentinel, by the time nurses at Memorial Regional Hospital realized how dire the situation was, patients were dead and dying.

That should never happen again. Those nursing homes that can't provide on-site generators and air conditioning must have a workable plan to get their frail charges to safety. Fortunately, they can access Medicaid funding to do so. State regulators should focus their efforts on a continued push to prepare for emergencies in the most practical ways, saving punitive fines for those facilities that simply defy the law.

The situation at assisted-living facilities is more complex. For starters, many of the residents at ALFs are still alert and agile; some still drive, and very few are confined to their beds. Furthermore, ALF administrators don't get help from Medicaid in prepping their facilities for storms. The Legislature gave those facilities slightly more flexibility, but they will probably need more. As with nursing homes, the focus should be on crafting workable plans that fit each facility's residential mix and access to safe alternatives.

Eventually, all long-term care facilities should have on-site generators and adequate fuel, safely stored. But the state's accelerated timeline was too tight to be realistic, and driving facilities out of business with harsh fines and license sanctions could only make matters worse.

An enduring legacy

It is hard for Father's Day to pass by without thinking of my dad, as I'm sure it is for you. While I wish this brought wonderful memories for all, it's naive to believe that, of course. I asked some of my friends to share a memory or two about their dad. A lack of space, not desire, prevents me from sharing all of them. I am glad to report that most of those who shared had good memories.

Many shared qualities their dad has taught them. Things like wisdom, grace, being on time, the value of a good education, as well as the priority of family and how to love and laugh. Some shared the instruction and example they received from their dad. They spoke of their dad teaching them of respect and gratefulness. A few shared of the example provided by their dad. They recounted of their dad's work ethic and willingness to sacrifice so his children had all they needed and most of what they wanted.

A few of my friends shared the deep emotion and affection they feel for their dad. One described her dad as her "knight in shining armor." Two brothers said of their dad, "He is my true hero. He is the man I want to be." One young lady lovingly described her dad as "her biggest supporter and I cherish the love he gives me each and every day."

Sadly, there are those whose memories are less than favorable and have had to contend with this as they make their way through life. One shared that he doesn't "know him too well but wished he knew him better." Another said that although growing up in her home was difficult, she recognized that her dad loved her "as much as he was capable of loving anyone." Sadly, and regrettably, a friend of mine simply said, "I never knew him."

My dad, by all accounts, didn't have the ideal life growing up. Most of the details are scarce because it was not a topic he cared to discuss. He was on his own from a young age surviving by working a variety of jobs. He had a particular affinity for the ladies as evidenced by an almost unbelievable number of marriages — a total of 11!

I did not come along until his eighth wife. (I know what you're thinking right now. No, this is not a typo, the numbers are indeed accurate.) My sister followed two years later. And, what may be the most remarkable fact, is that by all accounts my sister and I are his only two children. As was the pattern, my dad divorced my mom when I was 5. Not too long after that came wife number nine. She was the lady who had the most influence in my life growing up.

While my dad was, by all accounts, a rascal in his relationships with women, there was not one single moment in my life that I doubted or questioned his deep, absolute love for me. My dad changed jobs often, we moved a lot, and his love interests were ever-changing, but his love for me was constant and unconditional. He made many mistakes and dumb choices in his life but he deeply cherished my family and me. That is his enduring legacy.

Visit the real heroes

These crybaby millionaire players and billionaire owners should get into their private airplanes and fly to Washington D.C. and visit our real heroes at Walter Reed Hospital.

Walk among the beds of the veterans and tell them you're not standing up when the national anthem is played.

As a World War II veteran, I'm disgusted with these people not honoring our country and flag.

A good way to cure these individuals who kneel when the anthem is played is to boycott the game itself and have the stadium empty. When the money dries up maybe they will have learned a valuable lesson. "Do not degenerate our country & flag."

Build that wall

In an attempt to resolve the Democrats latest effort to disparage ( all rise please ) President Donald J. Trump by blaming him for the separation of illegal children from their illegal parents at the Mexican/US border may I suggest:

1. Parents and children from any country attempting to enter the United States through Mexico should stay put in Mexico until they are notified of their hearing date via the Mexican Postal Service, which is one of the worst in the world. ( I really like that one.)

2. Parents and children should be placed in detention centers under the command of former Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arapio until their hearing. On June 15 in an interview on MSNBC Michael Steele, who must be the dumbest person alive, along with former Obama 2012 deputy campaign manager Stephanie Cutter, compared the Trump administration's detention centers for illegal immigrant children to Nazi concentration camps (a place where large numbers of people, especially political prisoners or members of persecuted minorities, are deliberately imprisoned in a small area with inadequate facilities, sometimes providing forced labor or to await mass execution. This term is most strongly associated with the many camps established by the Nazis in Germany and occupied Europe in 1933-45). Then this nincompoop went so far as to say "your kids could be next." These morons must be the "deplorables" Hillary was referring to.

3. Parents should make application from their country and stay home with their children until notified of their hearing.

4. Build that big beautiful wall and just fuhgettaboutit!

Don't litter, donate instead

I saw on Facebook that the Palms of Sebring is doing a balloon release for a fundraiser to support the Alzheimer's Association on June 21. Though I agree with the proceeds of the fundraiser, I do not support the release of balloons. I sent the Palms a message on Facebook and on their page and received a response back stating that they are using "eco-friendly" balloons from Amazon.com and hemp for the string and that they are also having bird seed available as an alternative; I searched on Amazon and all the "eco-friendly" balloons were made from latex rubber.

Latex is biodegradable, but it still takes up to six months (could even be more) for the latex to breakdown completely. During that time the latex balloon with the hemp string is in the environment, it could easily get tangled with or digested by wildlife such as birds and sea turtles; these animals do not have six months to spare as they could choke and starve or loose a limb or worse. Also, releasing balloons is just plain littering the planet and makes nature less pleasing.

I urge everyone who is planning on attending the Palms of Sebring Alzheimer's fundraiser to not donate money for a balloon release but instead donate the money for the bird seeds or just donate the money to just donate money. Finding the cure for Alzheimer's or honoring a victim from the disease should not include littering our planet and potentially harming wildlife.

sold at a tax sale to an entity known as Catalina Tax Company, which then resold it to Mr. and Mrs. Enigbonjaye for an amount considerably less than the code enforcement lien. Apparently the defendants (Enigbonjayes) were led to believe that the tax sale extinguished the code enforcement lien as well, the court ruling noted. The court ruled otherwise as a matter of law and entered a final judgment of foreclosure on behalf of the City of Avon Park, which subsequently purchased the property at the foreclosure sale. In May the City Council voted approval to get quotes to demolish the two-story structure at 101 W. Main St. Highlands County Building Official Eric Longshore inspected the building May 7 and recommended its demolition after finding the structure to be in "very poor condition" with several structural issues. The two-story abandoned building's interior shows termite infestation resulting in massive decay, the inspection report shows. The wood floor system of the second floor shows evidence of failure. The second floor has been gutted to the stud wall.

AVON PARK – In the scorching Florida heat the Avon Park Red Devils took on the Lake Placid Green Dragons to see who would advance to the AAA (ages 9-10) District 8 Championship game on Sunday.

Avon Park came out swinging and shutout

Lake Placid with a final score of 12-0.

“We came out today swinging the bats and we jumped on them early,” said Avon Park Coach Doug Lemler. “We were able to put a lot of runs on the board in the first inning. Eric Harrison threw a great game and Jatavis Fuse made a great play for a double play to win the game. I am super proud of them and they earned it.”

Jatavis Fuse scored first for the Devils in the top of the first. The bases were loaded when Joshua Lemler stepped to the plate and drew a walk sending Jace King home.

With bases still loaded, Devin Torres hammered the ball straight up the middle deep into center field driving home all three runners for a three-run RBI double.

Jose Martinez hit a single to advance Torres to third. John Nelson was hit by the ball to load the bases once again. Logan Talley hit a grounder for a single to drive home Torres. Josiah Mitchell

Avon Park falls to Okeechobee in AAA title game

By RUTH ANNE LAWSON
CORRESPONDENT

AVON PARK – After coming off of a shut out of Lake Placid, the Avon Park Red Devils fell to the Okeechobee Brahms by a score of 14-3 in Sunday's AAA District 8 Championship game at Durrah Martin Sports Complex.

“We battled through the heat,” said Okeechobee Coach Johnny Tijerina. “Avon Park had a good showing having played two games. I told my kids if we hit the ball the way we do no one is going to beat us. We were stroking the ball pretty good and I was impressed with the way our kids showed what Okeechobee can do. I am beyond happy. We are going to get back on the diamond and get ready for the state tournament.”

Avon Park struck first as Jace King drew a walk, Eric Harrison stepped to the plate and clobbered the ball to the center field fence for a double and King advanced to third. Garrison Rowe hit a grounder to plate King for a 1-0 lead.

Okeechobee answered in the bottom of the second. Ignacio Gomez hit a grounder to shortstop and took second when the throw to first was wild. Gomez then took third on a passed ball and eventually scored on a wild pitch tying the game at 1.

Bottom of the third the Brahms took a huge lead. Carsen Williams, Bradley Phillips and Bradyn Lineberry each drew walks to load the bases.

Lathon Stokes hit a single driving home Williams for an RBI claiming the lead at 2-1. The throw to first was wild allowing all the runners to advance including Phillips who made it home extending the Brahms' lead to 3-1. Gomez hit a grounder to left field for a double bringing home Lineberry for an RBI.

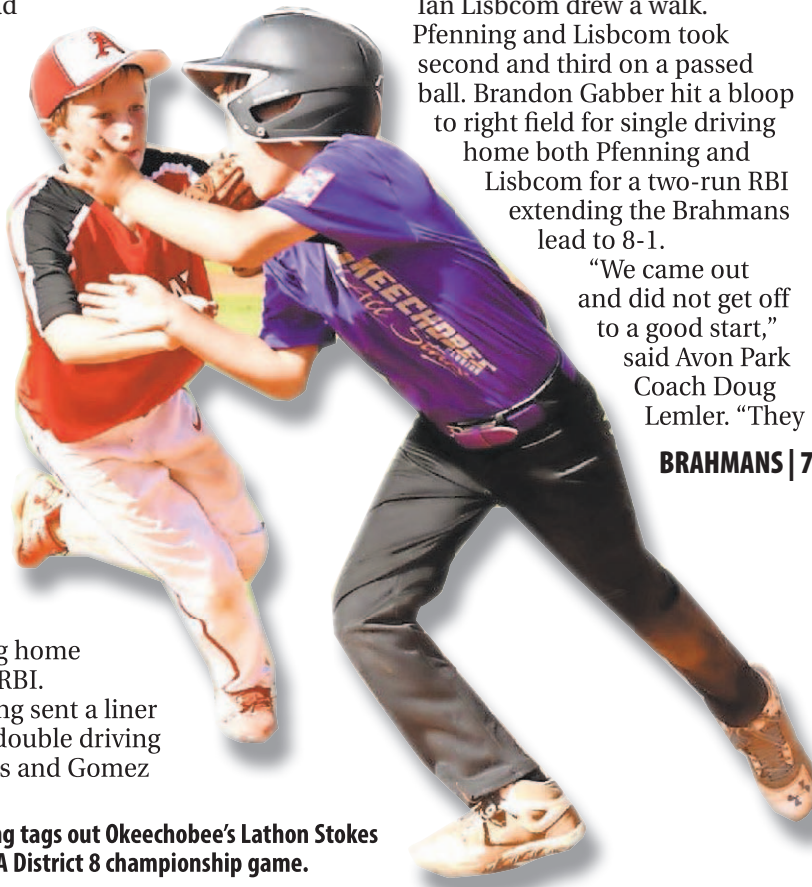

Nathan Pfenning sent a liner to left field for a double driving home both Stokes and Gomez for a two-run RBI giving Okeechobee an overwhelming 6-1 lead.

Ian Lisbcom drew a walk. Pfenning and Lisbcom took second and third on a passed ball. Brandon Gabber hit a bloop to right field for single driving home both Pfenning and Lisbcom for a two-run RBI extending the Brahms lead to 8-1.

“We came out and did not get off to a good start,” said Avon Park Coach Doug Lemler. “They LA CROSSE, Wis. — Anglers who have fished the Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa portions of the Mississippi River will tell you that the so-called “postspawn funk” is a very real thing.

The bass in that section of the mighty waterway are voracious as they prepare for the spawn during late winter and early spring. Then they work tirelessly building and protecting their beds while the spawn is underway.

When it's over, they need a moment to catch their breath — and they seem to have caught it just in time for the Bassmaster Elite at Mississippi River presented by Go RVing.

The tournament is scheduled for June 21-24, with takeoffs at 6 a.m. each day from Veterans Freedom Park. The weigh-ins the first two days will be held back at the park 3 p.m., and the Saturday and Sunday weigh-ins will be held at 3 p.m. at Valley View Mall.

With the late-spring doldrums over, the weights could be impressive.

These kids have been out here since January practicing and pouring their hearts into the game. I am extremely proud of all of them."

Avon Park tried to rally in the top of the fourth. King singled, Harrison singled to center field and Paola Vargas stepped to the plate and ripped a single into center field driving home King for an RBI and Harrison advanced to third. Harrison raced home on a wild pitch to trim the Red Devils' deficit to 8-3.

Okeechobee clinched the victory in the bottom of the frame.

The Brahmans scored six more runs to bring the mercy rule into effect giving them an overwhelming 14-3 lead.

As District 8 champions, Okeechobee is automatically in the AAA State Tournament.

Avon Park took second place in District 8, but it is unclear if they will be able to play in the AAA State Tournament as the district runner-up.

better today than the other games. Our team is good. Avon Park has done really well this year in high school so if we win districts that would be great. Our team gets along really well. We try to cheer for each other. My goal is to win state this season."

regular on the Mississippi River. "The past few weeks, they've definitely been in their postspawn funk that you often hear about. But now, we're seeing more and more standard summer patterns emerging."

The water level has been holding steady at 7 to 7 1/2 feet, and it's expected to remain that way throughout the tournament. Shaver said that means an angler might be able to find a good, solid pattern during practice and rely on it for all four competition days.

Ott DeFoe, a four-time B.A.S.S. winner who won the last time the Elite Series visited the Mississippi River back in 2016, said numerous patterns could work well — and fans should expect to see both largemouth and smallmouth brought to the scales.

"When I won in 2016, I think I only weighed in one smallmouth out of the 20 bass I brought in," said DeFoe, who also had a 15th-place finish in La Crosse in 2013 and a 27th-place showing there in 2012. "But Seth Feider finished in second place in 2016, and the majority of the fish he weighed in were smallmouth."

"I think both species are definitely going to play."

DeFoe said it's possible to catch a largemouth on one cast and a smallmouth on the next. But most of the time, he said, anglers on the river have to make a conscious choice on which species to target.

No matter which one they choose, he expects it to take 65 to 67 pounds to win the event — and he expects it to be won shallow.

"It's a really good shallow-water fishery," DeFoe said. "You don't have to spend a lot of time fishing deep — and I like that."

"The largemouth are going to be a little more focused in the backwaters, while the smallmouth are typically main-river oriented."

In 2016, DeFoe had a 6-pound, 1-ounce largemouth that earned Phoenix Boats Big Bass honors as the largest of the tournament. While that fish was a godsend for him on what was a tough Day 2, he said you don't necessarily have to have a bass that large to win.

"There's a good number of 3- and 4-pounders there, and there are always a few 5-pounders caught," he said. "Those are the fish you really need. You can't have a really bad day where you only catch 8 pounds or so and then hope to go out and make up for it by catching 25 pounds the next day."

"You have to be consistent. If the smallest fish you weigh in the whole week is 2 3/4 pounds, you're going to be right up there."

With constant current and two species of bass to fish for, DeFoe said he expects to see everything from light-line finesse tactics to heavy-braid power techniques. Shaver said two patterns are already shaping up.

"Smallies are getting caught out in current around the (wing dams) and sand drops," he said. "The frog bite is really starting to ramp up for largemouth. We should see plenty of fish being caught in a variety of ways."

Competitors are allowed to fish both sides of the river, as usual, but this time they won't have to worry about differing restrictions on the practice of culling, or releasing a small bass in their creel and replacing it with a heavier one. In 2013 Elite Series angler Brandon Palaniuk had a commanding lead in an Elite event on the river when he inadvertently culled a bass while just inside Minnesota waters. His catch was disqualified, and Palaniuk fell from first to 77th.

"Minnesota changed their regulations regarding culling last year so that tournaments permitted in Minnesota or in Wisconsin now have the same rules on the pools of the Mississippi River that these two states share," said B.A.S.S. Director Gene Gilliland.

NOTICE OF HEARING TO IMPOSE AND PROVIDE FOR COLLECTION OF FIRE RESCUE SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS

The City of Avon Park imposes annual special assessments to fund a portion of the costs incurred each year in providing fire rescue services throughout the City, a map of which appears below. The City Council is currently in the process of adopting the fire assessment for the fiscal year commencing October 1, 2018 ("FY 2018-19"). As part of that process, the City Council will hold a public hearing at 6:00 p.m. on July 9, 2018, in the Council Chambers, 123 East Pine Street, Avon Park, Florida, for the purpose of receiving public comment on the rate of assessment proposed for such fiscal year. The City Council is considering adopting the same fire assessment rates as last year, with no increase. All affected property owners have a right to appear at the hearing and to file written objections with the City Council within 20 days of this notice. If a person decides to appeal any decision made by the City Council with respect to any matter considered at the hearing, such person will need a record of the proceedings and may need to ensure that a verbatim record is made, including the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made. In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, persons needing a special accommodation or an interpreter to participate in this proceeding should contact the City Manager's Office at (863) 452-4400, at least three days prior to the date of the hearing.

The assessment for each parcel of property is based on each parcel's use category and the number of dwelling units for residential property and square footage for non-residential property. The following table reflects the proposed fire rescue assessment rate schedule for FY 2018-19:

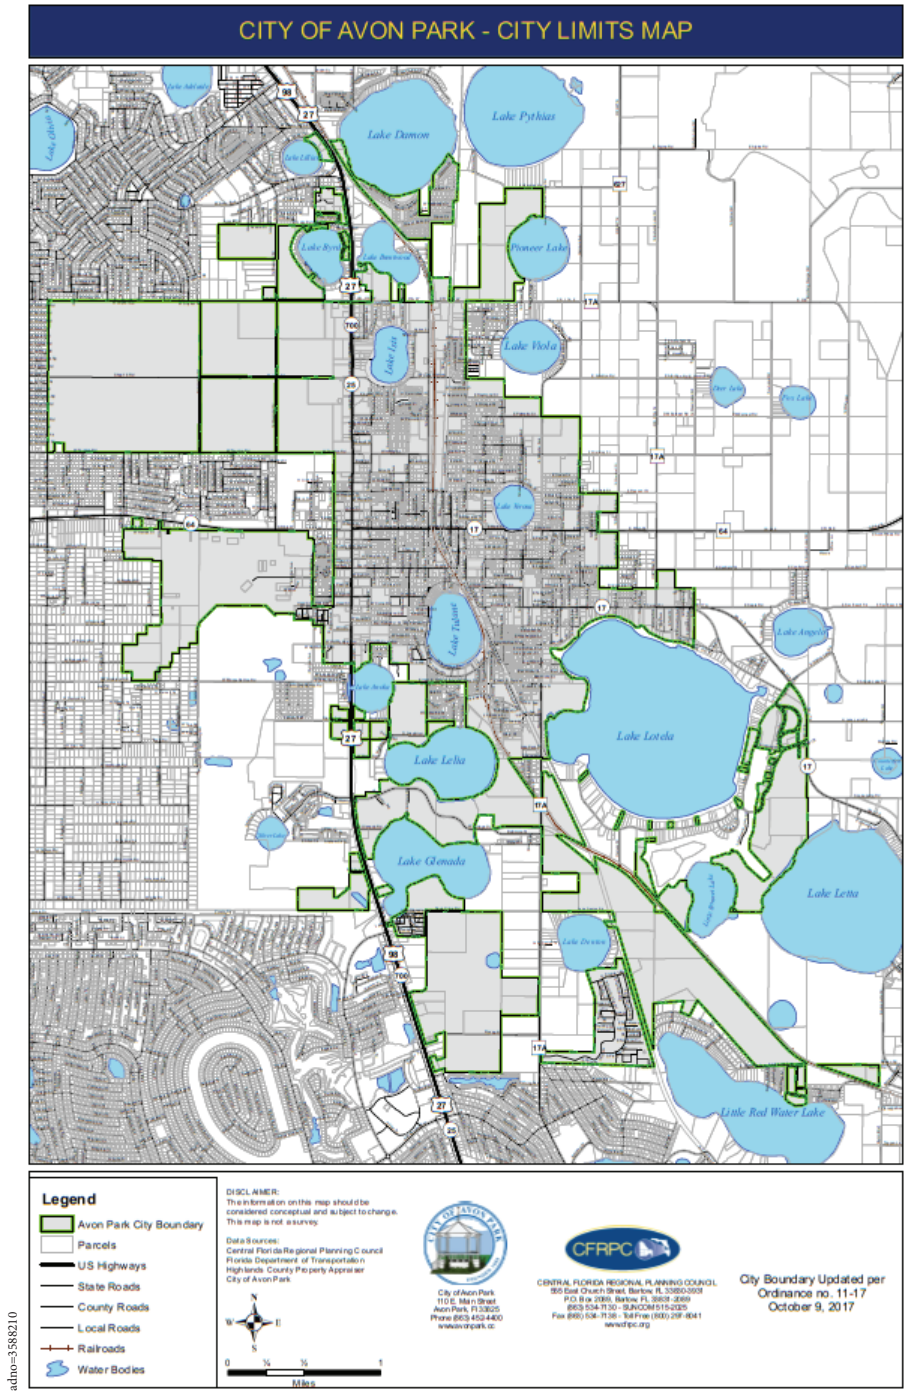

Property Use Category	Assessment Unit	Proposed Assessment Rate for FY 2018-19
Residential	Dwelling Unit	$80.00 per dwelling unit
Commercial	Square Foot	$0.043 per square foot
Industrial/Warehouse	Square Foot	$0.007 per square foot
Government/Institutional	Square Foot	$0.018 per square foot

Copies of the City ordinance and resolutions related to the fire rescue assessment, and the updated assessment roll for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 2018, are available for inspection at City Hall, located at 110 East Main Street, Avon Park, Florida.

The assessments will be collected on the ad valorem tax bill to be mailed in November 2018 by the Highlands County Tax Collector, as authorized by section 197.3632, Florida Statutes. Failure to pay the assessments will cause a tax certificate to be issued against the property which may result in a loss of title.

If you have any questions, please contact the City Finance Department at (863) 452-4400, Monday through Friday between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Cast your vote for cast iron

If you feel that cooking in cast iron is more your grandmother's speed than your own, you might want to rethink that out-dated belief.

Cast iron is an efficient way to cook and it's a healthy option, too.

I think those old-fashioned cast iron skillets deserve a place in even the most modern of kitchens.

I don't recommend cooking in non-stick pans because of all the chemicals required to prevent food from sticking. When the surface of those non-stick pans are scratched, you're ingesting those chemicals — chemicals linked to cancer, early menopause, liver damage and even developmental problems. Even the fumes are harmful when those pans are heated up at high temperatures.

(If you don't want to worry about food sticking, but you can't get into the idea of using cast iron, look for ceramic-coated pans.)

Let's take a look at a few more reasons why cast iron is a good choice.

- Heat conduction. Cast iron skillets conduct heat like a dream. You don't get hot spots you do like with other cookware. Cast iron can also conveniently go from the top of the stove to the oven without any problem — there's no plastic handle to worry about.

- Long lasting. Cast iron — if taken care of — will last a lifetime. In fact, even with daily use, a cast iron skillet is likely to outlive you.

- Use less oil. When a cast iron skillet is seasoned properly, it's essentially non stick. That means you only need a scant amount of oil to cook with.

- Fortify your food with iron. The cast iron pan you cook your steak (or eggs, or whatever!) in won't leech out chemicals, but it will release iron. When you cook tomato sauce in a skillet, or another very acidic food like applesauce, you actually increase the iron content of that food ... by 20 times! A newer pan leeches more iron, so if increasing your iron count is important, don't depend on your great-grandmother's cast iron pan to help you too much.

Now, taking care of your cast iron is important. Here's how you can extend its life.

How to season a cast iron pan

When you bring your cast iron skillet home, put a thick layer of kosher salt on the bottom of the pan and cover that with about half an inch of cooking oil. Put some heat on under the skillet until the oil starts smoking. Then, discard the contents of the pan and rub the inside of the skillet with some paper towels until it's nice and smooth. These steps will give you a nonstick surface forever.

Investing in yourself through continued education

By DOROTHY HARRIS
CORRESPONDENT

Taryn Yancey became a certified dental assistant in 2004 and has been a registered hygienist since 2007. Two years ago she refocused on continuing her education at St. Petersburg College and has now completed her Bachelor of Applied Science in Dental Hygiene.

Yancey is happy and loves what she does, but wanted to be prepared for her future. "Basically it provides many options to continue in my career. Perhaps later when my kids are grown I will look at becoming a clinical instructor, doing marketing or pharmaceutical sales."

The program Yancey attended allows licensed dental hygienists to progress from their associate to a bachelor's degree via an online program. Yancey is quick to admit she never could have completed her advanced education without the supportive encouragement of the doctors she works for at Dental Care of Mid Florida.

"Dr. Owen and Dr. Forsee were so helpful to me in the process." Yancey wrote a thank you letter to them upon the completion of her degree because as she said, "It was so challenging that without their support, I may not have been as successful." She felt completing her degree was an enlightenment of who she is and can become. "They allowed me to take the chance on myself, my career and my future."

Since completing her degree, she has altered her approach to dental hygiene and periodontal treatment and feels strongly her new knowledge brings enhanced benefits to the practice and patients. She feels she is a better clinician. "I didn't know what I didn't know, but now have a broader understanding of my field. I love dental hygiene. I am so excited and grateful for them believing in me."

Make no mistake. Attending college while working full time and balancing motherhood to two small children and being the wife of a first responder created many challenges. She is quick to give credit to her parents and husband. "I couldn't have done this alone. Even now, I'm wondering how I managed," she laughed. Not a delegator by nature, Yancy had to learn to ask for help.

Her parents pitched in with childcare, her husband cooked dinner and her doctors tweaked the schedule so somehow it all came together.

"The hardest part is there just aren't enough hours in the day," admitted Yancey. Her husband's demanding career as a Firefighter/Paramedic in Charlotte County requires him to work 24-hour shifts, leaving days she balanced the demands on her own. "I had to pick where to pull extra time to focus on my schoolwork."

As the pair balanced their

RIGHT AT HOME: Storage for the urban kitchen

By KIM COOK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

For city dwellers, adaptability comes in handy in the kitchen. Urban kitchens are typically tiny, presenting storage challenges.

And for food storage, there's also the frequent problem of unwelcome houseguests, like mice or bugs.

Luckily, there's a lot of great gear to keep perishables and pantry goods organized and protected, much of it pretty stylish too.

Alex Weibel, senior food editor at Rachael Ray Every Day magazine, spends a lot of time cooking and developing recipes in her tiny Brooklyn,

New York, kitchen. When her cookbooks began to buckle her cabinetry, she realized it was time to triage the collection.

"I moved my aspirational cookbooks to shelves outside the kitchen," she says.

And then she used the same approach with everything else.

"Anything not vital to daily activity doesn't belong on kitchen shelves," she says. "I disguise visible pantry storage in attractive vessels, like vintage Pyrex containers which are easily stackable. And I live by the 'first in, first out' mantra I learned in

'Little Women' and author Alcott resonate 150 years later

By SARAH BETANCOURT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONCORD, Mass. — A century and a half before the #MeToo movement gave women a bold, new collective voice, Louisa May Alcott was lending them her own.

Society had far different expectations of women in 1867, when publisher Thomas Niles asked Alcott to write a "girls' story." At a time when women were expected to marry, often did not hold employment and could not vote, Alcott had her doubts about the success of "Little Women."

Since then, the coming-of-age book has been translated into more than 50 languages and made into films, a musical and a recently aired PBS "Masterpiece" miniseries. The novel constantly finds new audiences as women worldwide confront sexual misconduct, misogyny and pay inequity.

Mayela Boeder, 34, of Appleton, Wisconsin, read "Little Women" as a girl and thinks it's still relevant.

"You could say that strong females in literature, TV and every other medium have slowly shaped the minds of modern strong women," she says.

"We grew up with Buffy, Hermione, Katniss, Jo, Lizzie Bennet, Sara Crewe, among others," she says, "and so we have almost been groomed to fight for what's right and to not let others take advantage of us."

Alcott drew heavily from her experiences living in poverty with progressive parents Bronson and Abigail Alcott and three sisters in Concord, Massachusetts. Although her transcendentalist father led his family through 30 homes, one stands out as the place where "Little Women" was written: Orchard House.

Alcott was 26 when her family moved into the then-dilapidated house in 1858. The enterprising family turned the tenant farmhouse, once slated for destruction, into a place where Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau and other literary neighbors would drop by for intellectual discussions. Bronson encouraged his wife and daughters to join and built Louisa a desk at a time when writing was considered by scientists to be injurious to the female psyche.

Looking back, says Orchard House Executive Director Jan Turnquist, the Alcotts were feminists. "They believed all humans have agency," she says.

She tells of how Louisa May Alcott was the first woman to register to vote in Concord in 1879, when Massachusetts gave women the right to vote in town elections on education and children issues.

In 1880, Alcott and 19 other women attended the Concord town meeting and cast their ballots. In a letter to periodical Woman's Journal, Alcott wrote of voting: "No bolt fell on our audacious heads, no earthquake shook the town."

Alcott did other unconventional things. At 30, she served as a nurse in the Civil War. She traveled alone when most women could not. And she wrote stories that are the equivalent of a modern-day James Patterson thriller at a time when female authors were not popular.

Although there's no evidence Alcott was ever sexually assaulted, she was harassed and had to endure misogyny as an ambitious, unmarried woman.

After writing the first part of "Little Women" in 1868, Alcott received a flood of letters asking if the main character, Jo March, would marry neighbor boy Laurie. Pulitzer Prize-winning Alcott historian John Matteson says, "Her publisher said, 'You have to marry her off,' and wanted the character to marry Laurie."

Alcott was mortified that her mother had to scrape to keep the family going financially. "She knew what a trap marriage could be," Matteson says. "She very much intended not to marry Jo off at all."

Alcott appeased Niles, the publisher, by writing in Professor Friedrich Bhaer, a homely German professor, as a husband.

One of Alcott's goals was to lift her family out of poverty. She took jobs as a teacher, seamstress, writer and, in one instance, a live-in companion for the sick sister of a man named James Richardson.

Instead of having her tend to his sister, Richardson had 18-year-old Alcott do housekeeping and spend evenings listening to him reading romantic poetry. He started slipping suggestive notes beneath her bedroom door and added backbreaking work to her chores as she rejected his advances. She quit, making only $4 for the seven-week stay.

While she hesitates to call that a #MeToo encounter, Turnquist says it was "sleazy and not appropriate," and bordered on sexual harassment.

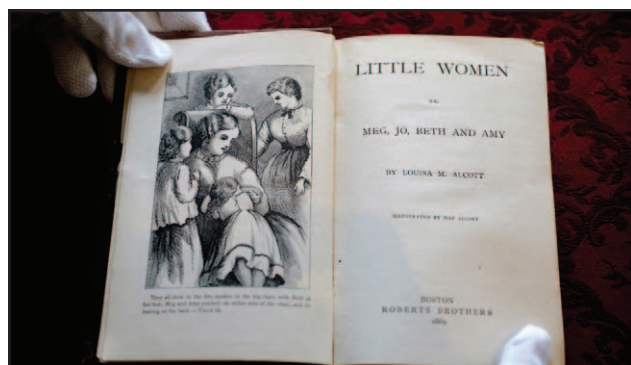

Alcott wrote an essay on the experience, which friend James Field, editor of The Atlantic, assessed and said: "Stick to your teaching. You can't write."

Nevertheless, she persisted.

"She would be so supportive of the #MeToo Movement and equal pay for equal work," Turnquist says.

To celebrate the sesquicentennial, Orchard House will host many events, including a conversational series to discuss the book's modern-day relevance. On the actual 150th anniversary, Sept. 30, it will be read sequentially in parts and videotaped worldwide.

Barbara Barker: 100 highest-paid athletes include no women

By BARBARA BAKER
NEWSDAY (TNS)

It's been more than a week since Forbes released its annual list of highest-paid athletes, and I'm still struggling to reconcile the fact that a one-time NBA All-Star like Brook Lopez cracked the list at 95 while not a single female athlete made the top 100.

This is the first time women have been shut out since the list was expanded in 2010, and there's been a lot of talk about the reasons for this with the most obvious one being that Serena Williams took time off to have a baby and Maria Sharapova is still dealing from the fallout of a suspension for using a banned substance. Yet, for fans of women's sports, the primary explanation for the female no show is a lot more disconcerting than the personal circumstances of a handful of tennis stars.

The problem is enough of us just don't watch women's team sports, which has translated into comparatively stagnant salary growth for women's team athletes.

Eighty-two percent of the athlete's on this year's all-male list play team sports, compared with 68 percent in 2011. Men's salaries in team sports have exploded over the past several years, thanks to the huge media contracts handed out for live sports content. At the same time women in team sports — even incredibly successful women like the World Cup winning U.S. soccer team — have had to threaten lawsuits and boycotts in order to make a decent wage.

According to a 2015 Gallup Poll, 51 percent of women and 66 percent of men in the U.S. consider themselves to be sports fans. Despite the growing number of women who say they watch sports on television, that viewership has been slow to translate into watching women's sports, especially team sports.

"It's subconscious," said Marie Hardin, the dean of Penn State's Bellasario College of Communications who has conducted research on women's sports. "People will say I support women's sports and they mean it. But sitting down and watching a women's basketball game, that's a whole different thing and unfortunately there are consequences there."

The biggest consequence is that the revenue doesn't exist for women in team sports to support top 100-type salaries. For example, the WNBA's new TV deal with ESPN is worth $25 million per year, while the NBA is earning $2.5 billion from its national deal. This season, the highest-paid players in the WNBA make $115,000 base salary, while Stephen Curry of the Warriors, the NBA's highest-paid player, made $35.7 million.

Whitney Wagoner, the director of the Warsaw Sports Marketing Center at the University of Oregon, said there are a couple of reasons fans are more likely to watch men's sports than women's sports.

"A huge part of it is that it's not how we grew up," Wagoner said. "Adult female heads of households who make decisions for their families didn't grow up watching women's sports. It's not their natural tendency.

"Another part of it is this vicious cycle we are in where it's hard to watch women's sports. We don't know when and where they are going to be on. They are on obscure channels. There's less predictability. It's not in prime time. So there's this really nasty negative cycle where no one watches because it's not on, and because it's not on, nobody watches."

In 2014, a USC study of television news media found that ESPN's SportsCenter devoted just 2 percent of its airtime to women's sports. That lack of exposure leads to what Wagoner calls the water cooler effect.

"If you turn on social media and the top five stories don't include a story line about female athletes, it signals to you this is not what people are doing," Wagoner said. "The social currency, whatever the modern water cooler is, you are attracted to the things everyone is talking about. You are attracted to the things your friends are doing and to the things society says is cool."

Hardin believes a lot of this had to do with the fact we are still stuck as a society with some pretty firm rules about gender roles. This is part of the reason why women's individual sports — ice skating, golf, tennis, gymnastics — can draw large audiences where team sports will struggle.

"I think there are gender norms that we are comfortable with as a culture," Hardin said. "For women and men to sit down in front of women's sports when women are performing and using their bodies to demonstrate strength and power, it doesn't always line up with commonly accepted gender norms and practices."

Of course, even when a women's team does draw more attention than a men's team, it doesn't always automatically translate into higher compensation. The U.S. women's soccer team had to file a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission about wage discrimination because they were paid significantly less than the men's team despite the fact they generated $20 million more in revenue and were ranked No. 1 in the world, 30 places above the men.

Pay equity remains a hot topic in society at large, and perhaps nowhere is it more complicated than in the field of sports. Though I'm not completely convinced that compensation has to always be directly tied to revenue, there is only one sure way to make sure that salaries rise in women's sports.

Go to a WNBA game, vow to watch at least one National Women's Soccer League game on Lifetime, enter a women's Final Four basketball pool along with a men's pool next year and take your kids to a women's college hockey game.

Because until we proactively support women's sports and teach our kids to do the same, we're going to have a lot more lists like the one by Forbes.

Tuscan Spinach and Ricotta Dumplings topped with marinara

By SARA MOULTON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was my great good fortune recently to spend a week in Tuscany on a culinary tour, assisting a friend of mine with some cooking classes. Of course, I was as much a student as a teacher, and I learned a ton as we banged around from town to town. One of the recipes that especially impressed me was gnudi (in English, we'd say nude). These scrumptious little dumplings are built out of leftover ravioli filling — usually ricotta, spinach and cheese (pecorino or parmigiano-reggiano) — combined with a bit of egg and flour, rolled into a ball and poached, then served with a brown butter sage sauce. But why “nude”? Because basically they are ravioli that are stripped of the pasta with which they are generally clothed.

Although gnudi are very similar to the venerable Italian potato dumplings called gnocchi, they're much easier to make and lighter in texture. If you have a little extra time on your hands, you can drain the ricotta in a sieve to remove excess water, then pat it dry — a step that concentrates the flavor and decreases the amount of flour needed for the recipe. Here I've skipped that step to save time. The dough will be quite wet, but with the help of a bit of flour coating, it will still be very easy to shape.

As mentioned, gnudi are usually served with a butter sauce flavored with fresh sage. But I wanted to top my gnudi with something lighter, a sauce that would provide an acidic counterbalance to the natural sweetness of the dumplings. (The source of that sweetness? The milk sugar in the ricotta.) So I went with marinara. You can make your own or opt for your favorite store-bought version.

These dumplings can be cooked ahead, drained, chilled and refrigerated for two to three days. To revive them, simmer them for a few minutes in a pot of boiling water, then top the gnudi with the heated marinara. A glass of chianti — Tuscany's justly celebrated signature wine — is the perfect beverage to drink with this dish. Saluti!

Tuscan Spinach and Ricotta Dumplings

Start to finish: 1 1/4 hours

Servings: 4

1 1/2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
8 ounces baby spinach
1 cup whole milk ricotta

1 large egg, beaten lightly
1/2 ounce grated Parmigiano-Reggiano, plus extra to garnish the finished dish
1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon zest
1/4 teaspoon kosher salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
3/4 cup all-purpose flour

2 cups marinara sauce
Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil.

In a large skillet heat the oil over high heat, add half the spinach and cook, stirring until it starts to wilt; add the second half with a pinch of salt, reduce the heat to medium-high and cook, stirring until all of the spinach is wilted. Transfer the spinach to a strainer and let it cool. When it is cool enough to handle, working with a small handful at a time, squeeze the spinach with your hands to remove as much excess liquid as possible. Transfer the spinach to a cutting board, chop it fine and add it to a medium bowl along with the ricotta, egg, cheese, zest, salt and pepper. Stir until combined well. Sprinkle 1/4 cup of the flour over the top of the mixture and fold it in, folding just until the mixture is combined.

Lightly sprinkle some of the remaining flour onto a small rimmed sheet pan and put the rest of the remaining flour into a pie plate or shallow dish. Scoop heaping teaspoons of the dough onto the flour in the pie plate, coat your hands with flour and roll the mounds of dough into balls (the dough will be very soft). Transfer each ball after you have shaped it to the sheet pan. You should end up with about 36 balls.

In a saucepan heat the marinara over medium heat until it is hot.

Working in two batches, add the dumplings to the boiling water and simmer them until they float (this will only take a few minutes). Transfer them as they are done to pasta bowls, top each portion with some of the sauce and sprinkle it with cheese.

Turn yellow squash or zucchini into ribbons for a fun side

By AMERICA'S TEST KITCHEN

Quick-cooking and delicately flavored, yellow summer squash and zucchini are favorites in Mediterranean cuisines and perfect for a light side dish. To create a fresh, simple recipe, we started with very thinly sliced squash, using a peeler to make even “ribbons” and discarding the waterlogged seeds.

The ultrathin ribbons browned and cooked so quickly that they didn't have time to break down and release their liquid, eliminating the need to salt them before cooking.

The cooked squash needed little embellishment; a quick, tangy vinaigrette of extra-virgin olive oil, garlic, and lemon and a sprinkle of fresh parsley rounded out the flavors.

We like a mix of yellow summer squash and zucchini, but you can use just one or the other. The thickness of the squash ribbons may vary depending on the peeler used; we developed this recipe with a peeler that produces ribbons that are 1/32 inch thick.

Steeping the minced garlic in lemon juice mellows the garlic's bite; do not skip this step. To avoid overcooking the squash, start checking for doneness at the lower end of the cooking time.

SAUTEED ZUCCHINI RIBBONS

Servings: 4-6

Start to finish: 20 minutes

1 small garlic clove, minced

1 teaspoon grated lemon zest plus 1 tablespoon juice

4 (6- to 8-ounce) zucchini or yellow summer squash, trimmed

2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon extra-virgin olive oil

Salt and pepper
1 1/2 tablespoons

chopped fresh parsley

Combine garlic and lemon juice in large bowl and set aside for at least 10 minutes. Using vegetable peeler, shave off 3 ribbons from 1 side of summer squash, then turn squash 90 degrees and shave off 3 more ribbons. Continue to turn and shave ribbons until you reach seeds; discard remaining squash.

Whisk 2 tablespoons oil, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, and lemon zest into garlic-lemon juice mixture.

This image provided by America's Test Kitchen in May 2018 shows the cover for "The Complete Mediterranean Cookbook." It includes a recipe for sauteed zucchini ribbons. (America's Test Kitchen via AP)

Heat remaining 1 teaspoon oil in 12-inch nonstick skillet over medium-high heat until just smoking. Add summer squash and cook, tossing occasionally with tongs, until squash has softened and is translucent, 3 to 4 minutes. Transfer squash to bowl with dressing, add parsley, and gently toss to coat. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve.

NASA's record-breaking spacewoman retires as astronaut

By MARCIA DUNN
AP AEROSPACE WRITER

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — NASA's record-breaking astronaut, Peggy Whitson, retired Friday less than a year after returning from her last and longest spaceflight.

She's spent more time off the planet than any other American: 665 days over three space station missions. She's also the world's most experienced female spacewalker, with 10 under her spacesuit belt.

Whitson was the first woman to command the International Space Station, holding the position twice, and the oldest woman ever to fly in space. She was also the only woman to have served as chief of NASA's male-dominated astronaut corps.

Fellow astronauts called her a "space ninja."

"It's been the greatest honor to live out my lifelong dream of being a (at)NASA Astronaut," Whitson said via Twitter, thanking "all who have supported me along the way."

"As I reminisce on my many treasured memories, it's safe to say my journey at NASA has been out of this world!"

The 58-year-old biochemist, who grew up on a Iowa hog farm, joined NASA as a researcher in 1986 and became an astronaut in 1996. Her last spaceflight, spanning 2016 and 2017, lasted close to 10 months.

Only Russian men have spent more time in space: Gennady Padalka holds the record with 879 days over five missions. NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine called Whitson an inspiration, citing her determination and dedication to science, exploration and discovery.

"She set the highest standards for human spaceflight operations," Brian Kelly, director of flight operations at Johnson Space Center in Houston, said in a statement, "as well as being an outstanding role model for women and men in America and across the globe."

Before leaving the space station last September, Whitson said she would miss the orbiting outpost — an "awe-inspiring creation" — and the views from 250 miles up.

"I will miss seeing the enchantingly peaceful limb of our Earth from this vantage point. Until the end of my days, my eyes will search the horizon to see that curve," she said.

The secret to avoiding dry tenderloins in the slow cooker

By AMERICA'S TEST KITCHEN

Cooking a lean roast like pork tenderloin in a slow cooker is tricky because it can quickly turn overcooked and dry. We discovered that nestling two tenderloins side by side, alternating the narrow and thicker ends, helped to insulate the meat and prevented it from overcooking.

Once we had the method in hand, we developed the flavor, coating the pork with a teriyaki glaze made with equal parts sugar and soy sauce and seasoned with fresh ginger, garlic, and mirin.

To ensure a properly clingy glaze, we simply thickened the sauce with some cornstarch before applying it to the pork, and then we ran the tenderloins under the broiler before serving.

To prevent the pork from overcooking under the broiler, we removed it from the slow cooker just shy of 145 F. You will need an oval slow cooker for this recipe. Because they are cooked gently and not browned, the tenderloins will be rosy throughout. Check the tenderloins' temperature after 1 hour of cooking and continue to monitor until they register 145 F.

Servings: 4

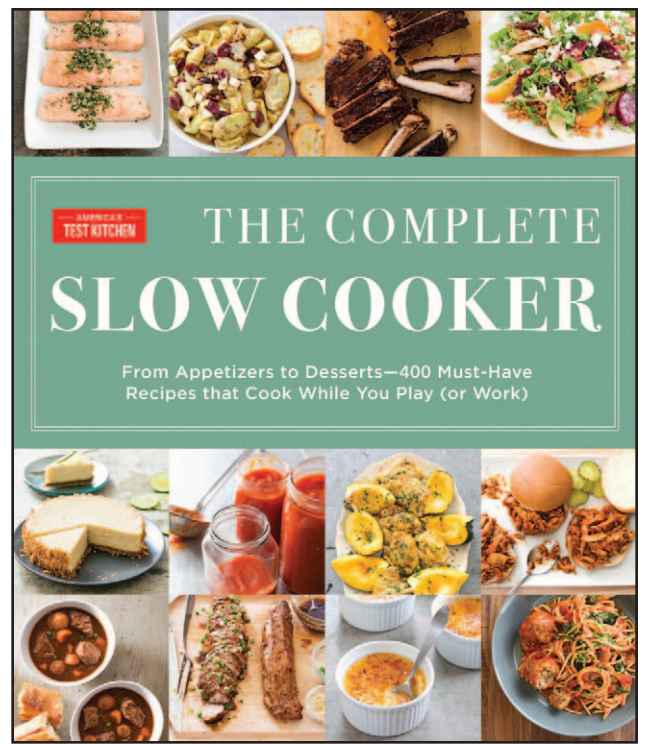

This undated photo provided by America's Test Kitchen in May 2018 shows teriyaki pork tenderloin in Brookline, Mass. This recipe appears in the cookbook "The Complete Slow Cooker." (Carl Tremblay/America's Test Kitchen via AP)

Start to finish: 1 to 2 hours on low
Slow cooker size: 4 to 7 quarts
1/3 cup soy sauce
1/3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons mirin
1/2 teaspoon grated fresh ginger
1 garlic clove, minced
2 (12- to 16-ounce) pork tenderloins, trimmed

1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
2 scallions, sliced thin
1 teaspoon sesame seeds, toasted
Combine soy sauce, sugar, mirin, ginger, and garlic in slow cooker. Nestle tenderloins into slow cooker, side by side, alternating thicker end to thinner end. Cover and cook until pork registers 145 F, 1 to 2 hours on low. Adjust oven rack 6 inches from broiler element and heat broiler. Transfer tenderloins to aluminum foil-lined rimmed baking sheet. Transfer cooking liquid to small saucepan and bring to simmer over medium heat. Whisk cornstarch and water together in bowl, then whisk into cooking liquid and simmer until thickened, 3 to 5 minutes.

Liberal brush tenderloins with glaze and broil until spotty brown on top, about 5 minutes. Transfer tenderloins to carving board, tent loosely with foil, and let rest for 5 minutes. Slice tenderloins 1/4 inch thick, then transfer to serving dish. Drizzle with remaining glaze and sprinkle with scallions and sesame seeds. Serve.

family and careers so Yancey could focus on her education, it required more than simple time management as her daughter is involved in competitive travel cheerleading. Somehow they never missed a single out of town competition or thrice weekly practice during the November through May season. "My laptop was basically attached to my hip for the past two years," joked Yancey.

Using every spare moment, often times she was completing classwork from the bleachers. "My husband was so supportive. He's an awesome dad and there's nothing he doesn't do."

Classes were offered one at a time for six to eight weeks, followed by a week off. Online discussion boards provided opportunity to get to know other students in the program and the capstone lasted 14 weeks. Somehow Yancey crammed it all into her busy professional life. "Both my daughter and son got to see me graduate and they were so proud of me. It made me feel amazing."

She feels that most women make sacrifices in the short term to succeed in the long term. "It seems we are expected to do more nowadays than perhaps in the past. So many of us work, mother and manage our homes."

For now, she is content with her accomplishment culinary school, strategically positioning perishables in the front so they get used first."

Weibel went to Home Depot for a large wire shelf to mount on an empty wall, and stows her hundreds of spice containers on it. "Now my spices are easily accessible, and look charming," she says.

You can also mount metal-lidded jars under cabinetry by affixing a sturdy, strong magnetic strip.

Yamazaki Home's under-cabinet white metal storage shelf is a handy place for resealable bags or tea towels.

Rolling chef's tables or carts with wooden tops provide more surface and storage in tiny kitchens with limited counter space. The cart's shelves and baskets can house hand mixers or other small appliances.

Don't forget about the inside of cabinet doors. A short curtain rod attached to the inside of a cabinet can hold small tools on ring clips; put a peel 'n' stick cork panel behind it for a message board. A larger rod under the sink can stow spray bottles, paper towels and trash bag rolls.

Lowe's spokesman Matt Michaels has a pro tip for keeping the fridge functioning well: "Clean door seals regularly with soap and water." He says dirt and grime can prevent a tight seal, so the fridge doesn't stay cold. "Test your seals by sliding a piece of paper in the closed fridge door; if it falls out, it's time to replace them."

For countertops or cabinets, consider a system of matching containers that stack and stow seamlessly together. Rubbermaid's Brilliance storage set, made of BPA-proof plastic, is leak-proof, air-tight and stain-resistant, with sturdy latches. Vents allow for microwaving, and the pieces not only stack but are freezer and dishwasher safe. There's also a system for produce, called FreshWorks. Its containers have trays in the bottom and a vent on the lid that keep moisture away and increase airflow to keep fruits and vegetables from spoiling too quickly in the fridge.

microwave-safe glass. And the Pyrex sets can go straight from fridge to oven. Identify all the containers using erasable food storage labels.

Target has a set of sleek stainless steel canisters for cereals, pasta or baking essentials. A steel rack stowed in a cabinet will hold pot lids, pie pans, and baking and roasting sheets more efficiently than stacking. There's also a collection of glass storage cylinders with decorative stained wood tops.

Pest removal and prevention services may be provided by landlords, or you can try some non-chemical methods, like those Katie Voytasek, of LA Best Pest Control, posts on <http://www.forrent.com>.

As soon as you bring food home, for instance, transfer it out of its paper, cardboard or Styrofoam packaging and into pest-proof receptacles.

Cleaning is key to keeping a small urban kitchen prep-ready and pest-free. Attend to dishes and counters right away. That includes the dishwasher. If it's got dirty dishes in it for too long, roaches and ants will find their way in.

Unapologetic Trump digs in on immigration despite outrage

By ZEKE MILLER and KEVIN MCGILL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — An unapologetic President Donald Trump defended his administration's border-protection policies Monday in the face of rising national outrage over the forced separation of migrant children from their parents. Calling for tough action against illegal immigration, Trump declared the U.S. "will not be a migrant camp" on his watch.

Images of children held in fenced cages fueled a growing chorus of condemnation from both political parties, four former first ladies and national evangelical leaders. The children are being held separately from parents who are being prosecuted under the administration's "zero-tolerance" policy for illegal border crossings.

"I say it's very strongly the Democrats' fault," Trump said Monday as his administration rejected criticism that the policy has resulted in inhuman and immoral conditions.

Trump pointed to more lenient policies under past administrations that had not charged all migrants who had crossed illegally.

President Donald Trump shows off a "Space Policy Directive" after signing it during a meeting of the National Space Council in the East Room of the White House on Monday.

Trump announces plans for Pentagon to create 'Space Force'

By MARCIA DUNN
AP AEROSPACE WRITER

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Vowing to reclaim U.S. leadership in space, President Donald Trump announced Monday he is directing the Pentagon to create a new "Space Force" as an independent service branch aimed at ensuring American supremacy in space.

Trump envisioned a bright future for the U.S. space program, pledging to revive the country's flagging efforts, return to the moon and eventually send a manned mission that would reach Mars. The president framed space as a national security issue, saying he does not want "China and Russia and other countries leading us."

"My administration is reclaiming America's heritage as the world's greatest spacefaring nation," Trump said in the East Room, joined by members of his space council. "The essence of the American character is to explore new horizons and to tame new frontiers."

Trump had previously suggested the possibility of creating a space unit that would include portions equivalent to parts of the Air Force, Army and Navy. But his directive will task the Defense Department to begin the process of establishing the 'Space Force' as the sixth branch of the U.S. armed forces. He said the new branch's creation will be overseen by Gen. Joseph Dunford, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"When it comes to defending America, it is not enough to merely have an American presence in space. We must have American dominance in space," Trump said. He added: "We are going to have the Air Force and we are going to have the Space Force, separate but equal."

The president also used the White House event to establish a new policy for reducing satellite clutter in space. The policy calls for providing a safe and secure environment up in orbit, as satellite traffic increases. It also sets up new guidelines for satellite design and operation, to avoid collisions and spacecraft breakups.

Trump was joined by Vice President Mike Pence, who leads the recently revived space council, and several Cabinet members, NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine, retired astronauts and scientists.

Report: 1 billion small arms in world

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — There are over 1 billion firearms in the world today, including 857 million in civilian hands — with American men and women the dominant owners, according to a study released Monday.

The Small Arms Survey says 393 million of the civilian-held firearms, 46 percent, are in the United States, which is "more than those held by civilians in the other top 25 countries combined."

"The key to the United States, of course, is its unique gun culture," the report's author, Aaron Karp, said at a news conference. "American civilians buy an average of 14 million new firearms every year, and that means the United States is an overwhelming presence on civilian markets."

The report said the numbers include legal and illegal firearms in civilian hands, ranging from improvised craft weapons to factory-made handguns, rifles, shotguns and, in some countries, even machine guns.

The estimate of over 1 billion firearms worldwide at the end of 2017 also includes 133 million such weapons held by government military forces and 22.7 million by law enforcement agencies, it said.

Compulsive video-game playing could be mental health problem

By JAMEY KEATEN and MARIA CHENG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

GENEVA — Obsessive video gamers know how to anticipate dangers in virtual worlds. The World Health Organization says they now should be on guard for a danger in the real world: spending too much time playing.

In its latest revision to a disease classification manual, the U.N. health agency said Monday that compulsively playing video games now qualifies as a mental health condition. The statement confirmed the fears of some parents but led critics to warn that it may risk stigmatizing too many young video players.

WHO said classifying "gaming disorder" as a separate addiction will help governments, families and health care workers be more vigilant and prepared to identify the risks. The agency and other experts were quick to note that cases of the condition are still very rare, with no more than up to 3 percent of all gamers believed to be affected.

Dr. Shekhar Saxena, director of WHO's department for mental health and substance abuse, said the agency accepted the proposal that gaming disorder should be listed as a new problem based on scientific evidence, in addition to "the need and the demand for treatment in many parts of the world."

Dr. Joan Harvey, a spokeswoman for the British Psychological Society, warned that the new designation might cause unnecessary concern among parents.

"People need to understand this doesn't mean every child who spends hours in their room playing games is an addict, otherwise medics are going to be flooded with requests for help," she said.

Strong quake rattles area near Osaka, Japan

By MARI YAMAGUCHI and KEN MORITSUGU
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO — Residents in western Japan were cleaning up debris Monday evening after a powerful earthquake hit the area around Osaka, the country's second-largest city, killing four people and injuring hundreds while knocking over walls and setting off fires.

The magnitude 6.1 earthquake that struck the area early Monday damaged buildings and left many homes without water or gas. The quake also grounded flights in and out of Osaka and paralyzed traffic and commuter trains most of the day.

By evening, bullet trains and some local trains had resumed operation, and stations were swollen with commuters trying to get home, many of them waiting in long lines. An exodus of commuters who chose to walk home filled sidewalks and bridges.

Some commuters took refuge in nearby shelters instead of going home. NHK public television showed dozens of men wearing ties and carrying briefcases sitting on gym mats at a junior high school gymnasium in Ibaraki city, where some families also gathered.

Takatsuki city confirmed another victim late Monday, as the death toll rose to four. City officials didn't have details of the victim, but NHK and Kyodo News reported that an 81-year-old woman was found dead underneath a wardrobe that fell on her at her home in Takatsuki.

Also in Takatsuki, a concrete wall at an elementary school fell onto the street, killing 9-year-old Rina Miyake as she walked to the school. NHK showed the collapsed upper half of the high wall, which was painted cheerfully with flowers, trees and blue sky and surrounded the school swimming pool.

Mayor Takeshi Hamada apologized over her death because of the wall's collapse. The city acknowledged that the wall did not meet building safety codes. The structure was old and made of concrete blocks — a known risk in earthquakes. Chief Cabinet Secretary Yoshihide Suga ordered the Education Ministry to conduct nationwide safety checks of concrete block structures at public schools.

More than 1,000 schools were closed in Osaka and nearby prefectures, Kyodo News reported. Wall cracks and other minor damage were found at several schools.

Puerto Rico struggles with jump in asthma cases post-Maria

By DANICA COTO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Shortly after he turned 2, Yadriel Hernandez started struggling to breathe. His doctor prescribed an inhaler and an allergy pill for asthma, and his symptoms were mostly under control.

Then Hurricane Maria devastated Puerto Rico, strewn mold-producing wreckage across the island and forcing many to use fume-spewing generators for power. The boy, now 8, started having twice-monthly attacks and needing nearly four times the amount of medicine he used to take.

His mother said weekly power outages in their coastal town of Aguadilla also feed his anxiety, which can make symptoms worse. He panics about not being able to turn on the plug-in nebulizer that helps control his attacks.

"The lights go out and he breaks down," said Johana Hernandez. "He cries out, 'The power is gone, mom! The power is gone! I'm going to have an asthma attack!'"

Doctors in Puerto Rico say they are seeing an alarming rise in the number and severity of asthma cases that they attribute to destruction caused by the deadly hurricane that walloped the island in September. The chronic lung disease is caused by such things as pollution, airborne mold and pollen, all of which have increased post-Maria.

Puerto Rico had high rates of asthma even before the hurricane. An estimated 435,000 people on the island of 3.3 million, or 13 percent, had asthma before Maria pummeled the territory on Sept. 20, according to Puerto Rico's Health Department. That compares to 8.3 percent who suffered from asthma on the U.S. mainland in 2016, according to the latest available figures from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control.

Experts say the high rates may be partly due to the relatively high humidity in the Caribbean and the poor state of housing and infrastructure because of Puerto Rico's high poverty rate and bankrupt government.

Canada temporarily shuts fishing areas to help right whales

NEWPORT, Quebec (AP) — The Canadian government says it is taking steps to protect endangered North Atlantic right whales from encounters with fishing vessels and gear.

The whales are one of the world's rarest marine mammals, and they have struggled with high mortality in recent years, especially in Canadian waters. Fisheries and Oceans Canada says it's enacting temporary fisheries closures in the Gulf of Saint Lawrence and off Quebec.

The Canadian agency says the closures go into effect Tuesday afternoon and will stay in place until further notice. The agency says the closures are due to the presence of right whales in the area.

UN says over 25,000 people fled Yemen fighting at Hodeida

SANAA, Yemen (AP) — The U.N. spokesman said on Monday that tens of thousands of residents have fled the fighting along Yemen's western coastline where Yemeni fighters backed by a Saudi-led coalition are engaged in fierce battles with Iranian-backed Houthi rebels.

Stephane Dujarric, the spokesman for the U.N. Secretary-General, told reporters on Monday that about 5,200 families, or around 26,000 people, have fled the fighting and sought safety within their own districts or in other areas in Hodeida governorate.

"The number is expected to increase as hostilities continue," he said.

Israel PM, Jordan king meet after months of strained ties

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu told Jordan's King Abdullah II that he is committed to the status quo at holy sites in contested Jerusalem, trying to reassure the monarch in a rare meeting after months of strained relations.

They held talks in Jordan ahead of a visit to the region this week by two senior Trump administration officials who are trying to promote a plan for an Israeli-Palestinian deal on partitioning the Holy Land, including Jerusalem.

Details of the plan have not been released, but Palestinians fear they will get little more than a symbolic foothold in the holy city, after President Donald Trump recognized Jerusalem as Israel's capital late last year.

Supreme Court leaves door open to curbing partisan districts

By MARK SHERMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday allowed electoral maps that were challenged as excessively partisan to remain in place for now, declining to rule on the bigger issue of whether to put limits on redistricting for political gain. The court issued a pair of unanimous rulings in partisan redistricting cases from Wisconsin and Maryland that decided very little, and ensured that any resolution by the nation's high court would not come before the 2018 midterm elections. Proceedings in both cases will continue in lower courts. Meanwhile, the justices could decide by the end of June whether to take up a new case from North Carolina. Still, the outcome was a setback for advocates of limits on what is known as partisan gerrymandering because they hoped they had finally found a way to prove their case to a long-skeptical Supreme Court and Justice Anthony Kennedy, in particular. There were two cases on the court's agenda, one brought by Democrats and the other, by Republicans. The justices had a range of options before them, including a broad, statewide look at the issue in Wisconsin, where Republicans have a huge edge in the legislature in a state that is otherwise closely divided between the parties. A three-judge court in Wisconsin had struck down the map as unconstitutional. In Maryland, Republicans sued over a single congressional district that was redrawn in 2011, as the state's Democratic former governor said, to turn a Republican seat Democratic. The Maryland case is only in its preliminary phase and has not yet had a trial. That will now happen. Rather than endorse limits or rule them out altogether, the court decided each case on procedural grounds. In Wisconsin, the court said that the plaintiffs had failed to prove that they have the right to sue on a statewide basis, rather than challenge individual districts.

The majority opinion written by Chief Justice John Roberts in the Wisconsin case cast doubt on the broadest theory about the redistricting issue known as partisan gerrymandering. Roberts wrote that the Supreme Court's role "is to vindicate the individual rights of the people appearing before it," not generalized partisan preferences. The usual course when the justices find that parties to a lawsuit lack the right to sue, or standing, is to dismiss the case. But, Roberts wrote, "This is not the usual case." So the voters who sued will be able to try to prove they have standing. "This is definitely not the end of the road," said Sachin Chheda, director of the Fair Elections Project which organized and brought the lawsuit. "There is no vindication for the state's rigging of the maps and disenfranchising of our voters here," Chheda said. "We know as well today as we did when we started that our democracy is threatened and we need to return the power to the people."

Stocks recover from sharp early drop, finish mixed

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks shrugged off early losses and wound up with a mixed finish Monday. Household goods companies took some of the worst losses as the S&P 500 index fell for the third time in four days. The S&P 500 dropped as much as 22 points early on. Consumer products and packaged foods companies stumbled and drug makers and distributors fell, as did health insurers. That came after indexes in Europe and Asia fell. German stocks took steep losses as investors wondered if a dispute over migrants could eventually threaten the German government. But stocks gradually recovered most of their losses as energy companies rose along with oil prices and technology companies managed to make some gains as well. Smaller and more U.S.-focused companies climbed higher. That continued a pattern that has persisted for more than three months. It's been a turbulent few months for stocks, but the benchmark S&P 500 is a bit higher than it was when international trade tensions started to weigh on the market in late February. Terry Sandven, chief equity strategist at U.S. Bank Wealth Management, said it's a good sign that some sectors that have struggled are now doing better. The S&P 500 fell 5.91 points, or 0.2 percent, to 2,773.75. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 103.01 points, or 0.4 percent, to 24,987.47. The Nasdaq composite edged up 0.65 points to 7,747.03.

Director: FBI won't repeat mistakes noted in watchdog report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is determined to not repeat any of the mistakes identified in a harshly critical watchdog report on the handling of the Hillary Clinton email investigation, Director Chris Wray said Monday at a congressional hearing at which he repeatedly sought to distance himself from his predecessor. Wray told lawmakers that the FBI accepted the findings of the Office of the Inspector General report and has begun making changes, including about how it handles especially sensitive investigations, like the Clinton one. The FBI is also reinforcing through employee training the need to avoid the appearance of political bias, a key point of criticism in last week's report, and has referred employees singled out in the report to the agency's investigative arm for possible discipline.

"The OIG's report makes clear that we have significant work to do and as I said we're going to learn from the report and be better as a result," Wray said, even as multiple Republicans on the Senate Judiciary Committee pounced on the report's findings to allege rampant bias within the FBI.

EPA shifts oversight of coal waste to a state for first time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has approved the first state permit program for disposal of toxic ash from coal plants, a switch from federal oversight that the coal industry had sought. Coal ash is the residue left after burning coal to generate power. It can contain toxins such as arsenic and chromium and contaminate ground water.

EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt had delayed implementation of a 2015 federal rule that set tighter guidelines for waste from coal plants.

Pruitt says the first approval of a state permit program, in Oklahoma, gives oversight to "those who are best positioned to oversee coal ash management — the officials who have intimate knowledge of the facilities and the environment in their state."

Texas, a top coal producer, is among other states pursuing approval.

Some Amazon investors side with ACLU on facial recognition

SEATTLE (AP) — Some Amazon company investors are siding with privacy and civil rights advocates who are urging the tech giant to halt a powerful face recognition tool used by police.

The American Civil Liberties Union is spearheading the effort against Amazon's Rekognition product, delivering to its Seattle headquarters Monday a petition with 152,000 signatures telling the company to "cancel this order."

They're asking Amazon to stop marketing Rekognition to government agencies because of privacy issues they say can be used to discriminate against minorities.

A group of 19 investment managing companies including Harrington Investments, Inc. and Walden Asset Management also sounded the alarm on the tool, which they say could open the company up to lawsuits.

Amazon says it can be used for fighting human trafficking and finding lost children.

How much radiation is too much radiation for the body?

DEAR DR. ROACH: A year ago, I had surgery for bladder cancer, and had a small stroke and pulmonary clot. During this past year, I've had five CT scans, three chest X-rays and a couple of other scans to diagnose the stroke and clot. I also had some kind of scan in radiology to put in and then take out an IV blood filter. I am having another CT scan to check kidney function and another chest X-ray in May. Now my GP says I'm due for a mammogram. How much is too much radiation? — R.W.

question the necessity for any additional X-rays.

Fortunately, the amount of radiation in a mammogram is very small. The amount of radiation in a CT scan is roughly 20 times the amount in a mammogram. If you are between 50 and 74, the benefits of mammogram screening almost certainly outweigh the risks of the radiation.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 65-year-old male, quite active and weight appropriate. I have been taking hydrochlorothiazide for several years. Due to a glitch with the pharmacy, I ran out of the meds for a week. During the time I was off the medicine, I took my BP five times per day for four days straight. The average of the 20 checks was 125/74. After finally getting the refill, and restarting it, I again took my BP five times per day for four days straight. The average of the 20 BP checks while on HCTZ was 127/71. My blood pressure while on and off the HCTZ look very close. Am I getting enough benefit from taking this prescription to outweigh any kidney damage or other effects of long-term use? What would you recommend? — D.B.

ANSWER: It's very helpful to have this level of detailed information, especially since yours is an unusual situation. The most important information are the readings while not taking the medication. If the readings you have represent the time after the HCTZ has worn off, then it would be unlikely that you would be recommended to start on treatment, since your risk for developing a problem with a blood pressure of 125/74 is low.

It is also remarkable that the HCTZ was not effective at lowering your blood pressure. Twenty-five milligrams of HCTZ normally lowers the blood pressure by about 8 systolic points and 3 diastolic points in people with high blood pressure; however, it has been shown to reduce stroke risk in people over 65 with hypertension better than some other agents.

I'm not sure you need any medication. You should discuss discontinuing it with your doctor. If you jointly decide that you still need medication, I would consider a different class.

Cancer patient discusses too much detail in public

DEAR ABBY: A dear friend has been battling cervical cancer. Her condition has left her dependent on a colostomy bag. She's not shy about discussing it on Facebook and in public, where she speaks loudly. I have tried to be understanding and supportive, but there are limits.

Dear Abby

My problem is, she's hell-bent on making sure I see this colostomy bag by frequently checking to see if it's full, even after returning from the bathroom where I'm certain she checked it. More recently, we were at a restaurant and she exposed her bag in full view of others while they were eating.

and ask her not to do it in front of you.

Not only was it disgusting, it's also unhygienic should the bag become disconnected or rupture. Am I insensitive for thinking this is inappropriate and that she should excuse herself to go to the bathroom? — Nauseated In Michigan

DEAR ABBY: During the last year, a female friend of mine has started suggesting that she wants more from our relationship than just a friendship. She has had a history of doing this whenever she becomes friends with a guy.

When she started sending me pictures that became more and more suggestive, I decided to distance myself from her. But in the last month, she has been getting increasingly bold with her advances. How do I handle this? — Friend And Nothing More In Iowa

DEAR NAUSEATED: While a colostomy bag is nothing to be ashamed of, because it involves human waste, decorum dictates that it be kept away from the dining table.

DEAR FRIEND: Tell your friend you like her, but what she has been doing is making you uncomfortable. Be direct about saying you are not interested in a sexual relationship with her. Then, if she persists, continue to distance yourself from her.

Have a frank talk with your friend, tell her her behavior is inappropriate,

Recycling back in the cards

Dear Readers: Back in January, I told you that St. Jude's Ranch for Children had concluded its program in which the children took the fronts of RECYCLED GREETING CARDS and made new cards that were sold in the gift shop and online.

Well, here's a HELOISE UPDATE: St. Jude's will soon be unveiling a new version of the program. In the meantime, you still can send the (front only) recycled cards (except for Hallmark, American Greetings and Disney) to: St. Jude's Ranch for Children, 100 St. Jude's St., Boulder City, NV 89005. HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). In order to celebrate what is, you'll have to let go of what you thought it would be. This shouldn't be too hard, since there's much about the way things are right now that suits you better than you'd ever dreamed. TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Sometimes inspiration strikes. Other times, including now, it's more of an itch, a slow tug or a nudge that gets you on the path. Once there, life starts to feel like a custom design made just for you. GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Yes, there were deals that didn't quite pan out, arrangements that never found their groove and actions that didn't land as you might have preferred. But if it made you smile, there's nothing to regret about it. CANCER (June 22-July 22). Unfamiliar people will be especially hard to read, and it may be best not to try. Assume nothing. Ask questions instead. It would be easy to overdramatize the significance of social interactions today, but try not to. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The most important thing in life is this. Literally this. Because "this" is what you're doing now — or, more precisely, 12 words ago. The present moment is your domain. Seize it over and over. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The first hint was when they said, "Repeat after me: I am free." Well then, why don't you feel like it? All of this "acting normal" might have something to do with it. What was that idea you had that came from you and only you? LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Anyone who's loved a television character or been devastated by the plotline of a book knows that something doesn't actually need to happen to feel real. You can use this principle to your advantage. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The young who set out to learn who they are tend to miss the point. Those who have become who they are tend to be so completely self-conscious, they no longer think about such things, if they ever did. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Today's road isn't exactly smooth, but this only makes you more appreciative of the paved paths of your past and future. Keep a sure footing and move ever forward. You can't stumble over something if it's behind you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your attention is a precious commodity that's all yours to distribute how you see fit. Sometimes you give unconditionally, but today you let people earn your attention. You're both better for the effort. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The beauty is all around you today, mostly because you have the eye to pick it out. You're also excellent at bringing together the elements that will feature beauty in its best frame and light. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You've been in the equivalent of a chorus line — where blending in, kicking the same height as the others and working as one were necessary qualities for success. Today it's time to step out with solo work. TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 19). There will be three months of closing karmic circles. Past kindnesses will catch up to you, and you'll also enjoy the delayed benefits of work you did long ago. You'll be generally embraced and applauded in 2019 to the extent that you might often choose a low profile just to take a break from the spotlight. Leo and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 20, 13, 35 and 28.

THE ESCAPE

Both vulnerable, East deals

Hand distribution for Goren Bridge: NORTH (K Q 10 9 4, J, A J 9 8, 10 7 2), WEST (A 8 5 2, Q 10 8 7 5 4 3, 6 3, 9 4), EAST (J 3, A K 9 2, K Q 4, Q J 8 3), SOUTH (A 8 5 2, 6, 10 7 5 2, A K 6 5)

The bidding: EAST SOUTH WEST NORTH INT Pass 2♦* 2♥ 3♥ 4♣ All pass *Transfer to hearts

Opening lead: Nine of ♣ North's two-heart bid, a cue bid of West's known suit, was an intelligent take-out for the other three suits. It was a creative bid, and the meaning was obvious to everyone at the table. The opening nine of clubs lead was covered by the 10 and jack, and won by South with the ace. The ace of spades and a spade to the king drew the trumps, and a low club was led from dummy. East rose with his jack, a key play, or South would have inserted his six and never lost a club trick. Declarer won with his king and led a low club to dummy's seven and East's eight. Seeing the impending endplay, East courageously under-led his ace-king of hearts to West's queen! West got the message and quickly shifted to a diamond, which South had to duck in dummy. East won and exited safely with his last club. In time, East came to a second diamond trick and the contract was defeated.

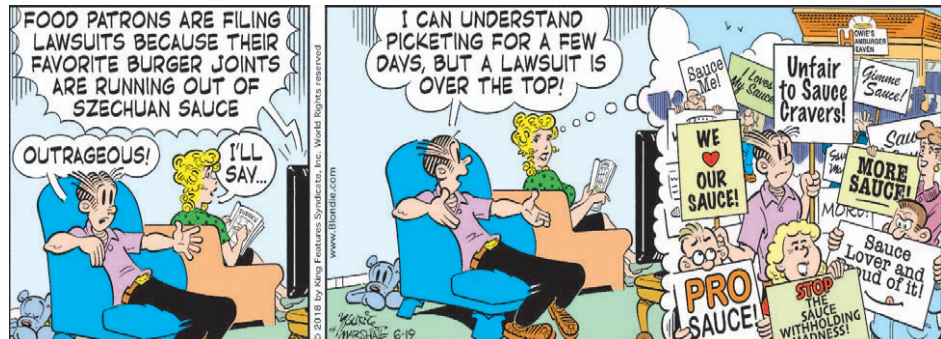

The opening club lead did not help the defense, but it's hard to fault West for leading a worthless doubleton when the lead of his worthless diamond doubleton would have been perfect. The contract can actually be made on a heart lead. We'll leave it to interested readers to work out the winning line. We'll offer a big hint. South will have to lead a low club to dummy's seven on the first round of the club suit.

Trump threatens new tariffs on Chinese imports

By JEFF KAROUB
and ZEKE MILLER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump directed the U.S. Trade Representative to prepare new tariffs on $200 billion in Chinese imports Monday as the two nations moved closer to a potential trade war.

The tariffs, which Trump wants set at a 10 percent rate, would be the latest round of punitive measures in an escalating dispute over the large trade imbalance between the two countries. Trump recently ordered tariffs on $50 billion in Chinese goods in retaliation for intellectual property theft. The tariffs were quickly matched by China on U.S. exports.

“China apparently has no intention of changing its unfair practices related to the acquisition of American intellectual property and technology,” Trump said in a statement Monday announcing the new action. “Rather than altering those practices, it is now threatening United States companies, workers, and farmers who have done nothing wrong.”

Trump added: “These tariffs will go into effect if China refuses to change its practices, and also if it insists on going forward with the new tariffs that it has recently announced.”

Trump said that if China responds to this fresh round of tariffs, then he will move to counter “by pursuing additional tariffs on another $200 billion of goods.”

Trump’s comments came hours after the top U.S. diplomat accused China of engaging in “predatory economics 101” and an “unprecedented level of larceny” of intellectual property.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo made the remarks at the Detroit Economic Club as global markets reacted to trade tensions between the U.S. and China. Both nations started putting trade tariffs in motion that are set to take effect July 6.

He said China’s recent claims of “openness and globalization” are “a joke.” He added that China is a “predatory economic government” that is “long overdue in being tackled,” on matters that include IP theft and Chinese steel and aluminum flooding the U.S. market.

“Everyone knows ... China is the main perpetrator,” he said. “It’s an unprecedented level of larceny.”

“Just ask yourself: Would China have allowed America to do to it what China has done to America?” he said later. “This is predatory economics 101.”

The Chinese Embassy in Washington did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Senate backs bill blocking deal with Chinese telecom firm

By MATTHEW DALY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Monday approved a defense policy bill that includes a pay raise for the military and would block a White House plan to allow Chinese telecom giant ZTE Corp. to buy component parts from the U.S.

The Chinese company is accused of violating trade laws by selling sensitive technologies to North Korea and Iran. The Trump administration announced a deal with ZTE earlier this month, but Senate leaders have sought to reverse it by tucking a provision into the must-pass defense package.

The Senate approved the bill, 85-10, sending it to the House, which approved the measure last month without the ZTE provision.

The $717 billion measure would give troops a 2.6 percent pay hike — the largest in nine years — and address shortfalls in military readiness such as pilot training, maintenance of equipment and procurement of new weapons systems.

Sen. John Cornyn of Texas, the Senate’s No. 2 Republican, said passage of the annual defense authorization bill “is how we make sure that all of the men and women in uniform are paid, that our alliances are strengthened and that military facilities are properly modernized and maintained.”

The Commerce Department barred ZTE in April from importing American components for seven years after concluding that the company deceived U.S. regulators after settling charges last year of sanctions violations. Instead of disciplining all employees involved, ZTE had paid some of them full bonuses and then lied about it, Commerce said.

The decision amounted to a death sentence for ZTE, which relies on U.S. parts. The company quickly announced that it was halting operations. The ban also hurt American companies that supply ZTE.

But earlier this month, the U.S. and China reached a deal that allows ZTE to stay in business in exchange for paying an additional $1 billion in fines and agreeing to let U.S. regulators monitor its operations.

Lawmakers from both parties have criticized the deal. Sen. Marco Rubio, R-Fla., tweeted that ZTE

“is a much greater national security threat than steel from Argentina or Europe,” a reference to tariffs imposed by the Trump administration.

“President Trump was flat-out wrong when he decided to go easy on ZTE and allow it to start selling its technology in the United States,” said Senate Democratic leader Chuck Schumer of New York.

“ZTE has violated U.S. sanctions, lied about it, but even more importantly, its technology has been deemed a national security threat by the FCC, the FBI and the Pentagon,” Schumer said.

Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen said in an appearance before the National Sheriffs’ Association in New Orleans. “Illegal actions have and must have consequences. No more free passes, no more get out of jail free cards.”

Nearly 2,000 children were separated from their families over a six-week period in April and May after Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced the new “zero-tolerance” policy that refers all cases of illegal entry for criminal prosecution. Prior procedure had limited prosecution for many family entrants, in part because regulations prohibit detaining children with their parents since the children are not charged with a crime and the parents are.

The policy change was meant to deter unlawful crossings — and Sessions issued a warning last month to those entering the U.S. illegally that their children “inevitably for a period of time might be in different conditions.”

The current holding areas have drawn widespread attention after journalists gained access to one site Sunday. At a McAllen, Texas, detention center hundreds of immigrant children wait in a series of cages created by metal fencing. One cage had 20 children inside. Scattered about are bottles of water, bags of chips and large foil sheets intended to serve as blankets.

Administration officials said they do not like the family separations either — calling it the result of legal loopholes — but insist migrants who arrive illegally simply won’t be released or loosely kept track of.

“The United States will not be a migrant camp and it will not be a refugee holding facility,” Trump declared. “Not on my watch.”

Sessions, on Monday, echoed the administration’s defense of the zero tolerance policy, and called on Congress to act.

“We do not want to separate parents from their children,” he said. “If we build the wall, if we pass legislation to end the lawlessness, we won’t face these terrible choices.”

Mindful of the national outcry, lawmakers in both parties rushed Monday to devise a targeted legislative fix.

GOP senators, including Lindsey Graham of South Carolina, Jeff Flake of Arizona and Susan Collins of Maine, said they were considering legislation that would keep migrant families together, provide additional judges so detained families would face shorter waiting periods and provide facilities for the families to stay.

ARMS

Karp said the new global estimate is significantly higher than the 875 million firearms estimated in the last survey in 2007, and the 650 million civilian-held firearms at that time — mostly due to increasing civilian ownership.

While the United States was dominant in civilian ownership in 2007 and 2017, the report said the U.S. is only fifth today in military firearms holdings, behind Russia, China, North Korea and Ukraine. It is also fifth in law enforcement holdings, behind Russia, China, India and Egypt.

The Small Arms Survey released its study to coincide with the third U.N. conference to assess progress on implementing a 2001 program known as Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms, which includes marking weapons so they can be traced. The conference opened Monday and ends June 29.

Small Arms Survey director Eric Berman stressed that the Geneva-based research and policy institute isn’t an advocacy organization.

“We don’t advocate disarmament. We are not against guns,” he said. “What we want to do, and what we have done successfully for the last 19 years, is to be able to provide authoritative information and analysis for governments so that they can work to address illicit proliferation and reduce it — and to reduce also the incidents of armed violence.”

Karp, a lecturer at Old Dominion University in Virginia, said that since the 2007 report, “we have a much more accurate picture of the distribution of firearms around the world than we’ve ever had before.”

According to the report, the countries with the largest estimated number of civilian-held legal and illegal firearms at the end of 2017 were the United States with 393.3 million, India with 71.1 million, China with 49.7 million, Pakistan with 43.9 million and Russia with 17.6 million.

But Karp said the more important number is the estimated rate of civilian firearms holdings per 100 residents — and in that table India, China and Russia rank much lower than the U.S. and outside the top 25 while Pakistan ranks 20th.

MENTAL

Others welcomed WHO’s new classification, saying it was critical to identify people hooked on video games quickly because they are usually teenagers or young adults who don’t seek help themselves.

“We come across parents who are distraught, not only because they’re seeing their child drop out of school, but because they’re seeing an entire family structure fall apart,” said Dr. Henrietta Bowden-Jones, a spokeswoman for behavioral addictions at Britain’s Royal College of Psychiatrists. She was not connected to WHO’s decision.

Bowden-Jones said gaming addictions were usually best treated with psychological therapies but that some medicines might also work.

The American Psychiatric Association has not yet deemed gaming disorder to be a new mental health problem. In a 2013 statement, the association said it’s “a condition warranting more clinical research and experience before it might be considered for inclusion” in its own diagnostic manual.

The group noted that much of the scientific literature about compulsive gamers is based on evidence from young men in Asia.

“The studies suggest that when these individuals are engrossed in Internet games, certain pathways in their brains are triggered in the same direct and intense way that a drug addict’s brain is affected by a particular substance,” the association said in that statement. “The gaming prompts a neurological response that influences feelings of pleasure and reward, and the result, in the extreme, is manifested as addictive behavior.”

Dr. Mark Griffiths, who has been researching the concept of video gaming disorder for 30 years, said the new classification would help legitimize the problem and strengthen treatment strategies.

“Video gaming is like a non-financial kind of gambling from a psychological point of view,” said Griffiths, a distinguished professor of behavioral addiction at Nottingham Trent University. “Gamblers use money as a way of keeping score whereas gamers use points.”

He guessed that the percentage of video game players with a compulsive problem was likely to be extremely small — much less than 1 percent — and that many such people would likely have other underlying problems, like depression, bipolar disorder or autism.

Musician wins suit against ex who sabotaged his scholarship

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A woman has been ordered to pay more than $200,000 to her ex-boyfriend for sabotaging his opportunity at a prestigious scholarship because she didn’t want him to leave.

Eric Abramovitz, currently with the Nashville Symphony in Tennessee, is a Canadian clarinetist who in 2013 applied to study at Los Angeles’ Coburn Conservatory of Music. But when his acceptance email came in, his girlfriend Jennifer Lee intercepted the email and deleted it, according to a lawsuit filed in Canada’s Ontario Superior Court of Justice.

The lawsuit says Lee accessed Abramovitz’s email account to decline the scholarship offer. She also sent him a faked rejection letter from the school.

In a ruling released last week, the court granted a default judgment against Lee, who neither had an attorney nor defended herself in court.

Less than two weeks after lifting the Stanley Cup, Barry Trotz is a free agent and the Washington Capitals are looking for a new coach. Page 2.

Gholston: 'No Excuse' for 2017 season

BY GREG AUMAN
Tampa Bay Times

Will Gholston is painfully honest about a 2017 season that wasn't anything close to what he wanted it to be. Ask him about last year, and there are no parentheses in his world to soften what he remembers here.

"I just played (crappy), completely. That's just being real," the Bucs defensive end said last week. "There's no excuse for it. It was awful, crappy. If I said it once, I said it a million times: It was a (crappy) year. I openly admit to it."

Gholston had just landed a lucrative extension with the Bucs, and after making about $3.7 million total in his first four NFL seasons, he earned $7 million in 2017 in the first year of a five-year, $27.5 million contract.

All over, his stats were down: Zero sacks, and after three straight seasons with at least eight tackles for loss, he had just four, along with his fewest total tackles since his rookie year in 2013.

The Bucs defensive line, dealing with multiple injuries, struggled against the run (which had been one of Gholston's strengths) and finished last in the league with 22 sacks. Ask him if he's moved on from that disappointing season, and the 26-year-old says he can't.

"It's something you can't not think about," Gholston said. "When you play football, you can see and feel it. It's not a good image to have in your head."

The Bucs could have walked away after only one year on the new deal and cut him without any salary-cap consequences. Despite sweeping change on the line, adding five new contributors via free agency, trading and the draft, Gholston is back, and eager to show he's not the same player in 2018.

"I feel like I'm a totally different person than I was last year, to be honest," he said. "My whole approach and mentality was completely different from what it is now."

BY JENNA FRYER

MOSCOW — With or without Mohamed Salah in the lineup, Egypt should give Russia an indication if it has any shot at making a mark in this year's World Cup.

Russia dismissed Saudi Arabia 5-0 in the opening game of the tournament, but the lopsided victory failed to show if the team is actually good enough to succeed in international competition. The Saudi team didn't put up much of a fight, so any questions about Russia's readiness were left unanswered.

Either way, the Russian team understands that one victory from its next two Group A matches can put the team in the knockout round. A win over Egypt in St. Petersburg on Tuesday, coupled with an Uruguay victory over Saudi Arabia on Wednesday, would be enough for Russia to advance.

Egypt knows it is in a must-win situation following its 1-0 loss to Uruguay. Salah, nursing a shoulder injury, did not play in the opening match. The decision not to use him could have centered on protecting him from the physical Uruguayans, but with the tournament on the line, the Liverpool striker will almost certainly play.

Salah is Egypt's star player with 33 of the team's 57 goals, and he scored 44 goals in 51 games for Liverpool.

"Of course he stands out, but obviously we're not up against a single player," Russia coach Stanislav Cherchesov said. "I believe in my players. We are ready to do this and we will do this."

Salah hasn't played a game since May 26 and will have fresh legs if he gets on the field against Russia.

He still ranks among the team's top 20 in career receptions and receiving yards.

Dawsey worked with the Bucs during OTA workouts from May 22-31. He isn't coaching anywhere right now, as he worked at his alma mater, Florida State, from 2007-17, but didn't go with Jimbo Fisher to Texas A&M and wasn't retained as part of Willie Taggart's new staff at

As USF-Yuengling bond grows, is SEC's stance on alcohol sales slowly shifting?

BY MATT BAKER

USF's expanded partnership with Yuengling — including naming rights to the Sun Dome — is only the latest part in an evolving relationship between college sports and alcohol, as my colleague, Joey Knight, wrote on the front page of today's Tampa Bay Times.

So what about the SEC, the only Power Five conference that prohibits the sale of alcohol in its general-seating areas (but allows it in premium seating areas, like club suites)?

The league's stance on alcohol is slowly shifting, too.

At least five SEC programs sell beer or wine during football games. Florida began doing so in 2016.

Barry Trotz resigns as coach of Stanley Cup-winning Capitals

By STEPHEN WHYNO Associated Press

Barry Trotz abruptly stepped down as coach of the Washington Capitals on Monday after failing to agree to terms on a new contract, leaving the newly minted Stanley Cup champions without a coach with the draft coming up later this week and free agency opening next month.

Winning the Cup less than two weeks ago triggered a two-year extension for Trotz that would have given him a slight bump in salary to just over $2 million, a person with direct knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the team did not announce the extension. Trotz and the team could not agree on an annual salary that would have put him in line with other Cup-winning coaches. Toronto's Mike Babcock makes the most at $6.25 million, Chicago's Joel Quenneville is next at $6 million and Montreal's Claude Julien brings in $5 million.

"After careful consideration and consultation with my family, I am officially announcing my resignation," Trotz said. "When I came to Washington four years ago we had one goal in mind and that was to bring the Stanley Cup to the nation's capital. We had an incredible run this season culminating with our players and staff achieving our goal and sharing the excitement with our fans."

In a statement, the team thanked Trotz for the past four years and said it was grateful for his leadership and accomplishments. General manager Brian MacLellan was expected to address reporters later Monday.

The 55-year-old Trotz went into the season with an uncertain future after ownership and MacLellan declined to talk about a contract extension last summer after back-to-back Presidents' Trophy-winning seasons that ended with second-round exits.

As part of the uneasy arrangement, associate coach Todd Reirden — who was not allowed to interview with other teams last summer — remained on staff and was considered the coach-in-waiting. Reirden is now the leading candidate to replace Trotz, who will be an intriguing figure on the coaching market.

Only the New York Islanders have a current coaching vacancy, though given Trotz's success in Nashville and Washington, other teams might consider making a move to hire him. Trotz has the fifth-most victories in NHL history and has guided a team to the playoffs in 11 of his 19 seasons. He is 762-568-60-134 overall with the Predators and Capitals, and he won 205 of his 328 regular-season games (63 percent) since taking over as Washington's coach in 2014.

Trotz's situation was a significant story line throughout the Capitals' somewhat surprising run that ended with the first championship in franchise history. MacLellan said the coach would be back if he wanted to, but asked the day after the championship parade if he was confident of bringing Trotz back on a new contract, MacLellan responded: "I don't know. We'll find out."

Trotz had his fingerprints all over this championship, pushing all the right buttons by putting goaltender Braden Holtby back in net early in the first round and making the correct lineup decisions throughout the playoffs. He was also a popular coach with his players, helping playoff hero Devante Smith-Pelly and others find their stride.

"He changed this team with family mentality," top-line winger Tom Wilson said last week. "He did a really good job of creating that team atmosphere. You look three or four years back, there was a lot of skill on this team, but there wasn't really that team mentality and you can never take that away from what that did for this locker room."

Despite his contract situation, Trotz appeared relaxed throughout the post-season, even as Washington vanquished playoff nemesis Pittsburgh. After the Capitals trailed in all four series and came back to win the Stanley Cup, Trotz told fans at the victory parade last week: "We're going to do it again!"

Instead, Trotz is looking at the next stop in his career and the Capitals are looking for a new coach.

Charlotte steals one in extra innings

PORT CHARLOTTE — A brief respite can make all the difference.

Since both teams were well-rested following the all-star break, apparently the Charlotte Stone Crabs and Lakeland Flying Tigers didn't mind playing extra baseball Monday night.

In what was a back-and-forth contest, the Stone Crabs finally broke through for a victory in the 11th inning, on a Josh Lowe RBI to win 5-4.

"It's not every night you get put in that opportunity," Lowe said after the game. "I'm just glad I was able to help the team. The pitchers did well and so did the defense., I'm just glad I got the opportunity to win the game."

After the Stone Crabs tied the game at 4-4 in the bottom of the ninth on a single from Jake Fraley which scored Robbie Tenerowicz, both teams scored a run in the 10th inning to extend the contest an additional frame.

the field," Stone Crabs manager Reinaldo Ruiz said. "It's huge for us. I think that means we're ready for the second half."

Lakeland pitcher Liarvis Breto had his best outing of the season. He spent last season in the Canadian-American Association — an independent league — Breto has made now five appearances in 2018, establishing a season-high by working 5.1 innings Monday night. He struck out five batters while holding the Stone Crabs to just two runs on four hits.

Breto finished on the losing-end, but he didn't out-duel Charlotte's starter Brock Burke, who had a nice outing as well. Burke also allowed just two runs also, lasting six innings, allowing six hits with six strikeouts.

"(Burke) did a really good job," Ruiz said. "He got us through six innings and gave us a chance to win."

Stone Crabs reliever Reece Karalus allowed one costly run in his two innings of relief work. The Stone Crabs had an opportunity to tie the game in the bottom of the seventh inning when they had runners on first and second with just one out. Reliever Burris Warner allowed the two runners to reach base before he was taken out of the game for Fernando Perez.

Perez managed to get a much-needed double play to escape the seventh while preserving their 3-2 lead.

The Flying Tigers grabbed their 3-2 advantage in the top of the seventh when Anthony Pereira — the first batter Karalus faced — began the frame with a leadoff home run.

Just moments before that home run, the Stone Crabs tied the game at 2-2 on an RBI single from Tenerowicz. The single from Tenerowicz plated Tristan Gray from second, who reached that base on a double-steal attempt in which Lucius Fox was thrown out at third.

Fox scored Charlotte's first run of the game in the 1st inning, after his lead off single paid dividends, as Tenerowicz delivered the Stone Crabs first RBI, grounding out allowing Fox to score.

Fox, Tenerowicz and Jermaine Palacios each had two hits in the win. Tristan Gray continued his doubles tear, stroking his 18th two-bagger of the season.

MEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL

High-scoring White ready for shot at UNC point guard role

BY AARON BEARD
Associated Press

WILSON, N.C. — No one questions whether Coby White is good enough to help North Carolina immediately as a freshman.

Rather, the pressing question as White heads to campus this week is this: can the instate McDonald's All-American who scored more points than any high school player in state history help the Tar Heels replace departed point guard Joel Berry II?

"I want to play. Who doesn't want to play?"

White said in an interview with The Associated Press. "But I know it's going to take a lot to learn the offense and defense of North Carolina. ... I feel like I'm a quick learner and I have a high IQ for the game. Basketball is just reads to me. I think I always make the correct read."

The 6-foot-4 White is ranked as the nation's No. 23 recruit by 247sports, joining McDonald's game MVP Nassir White (a 6-7 small forward ranked third nationally) and four-star 6-8 guard Rechon "Leaky" Black. Berry's absence could be the biggest void.

He was a Final Four most outstanding player, floor leader and won't-back-down competitor.

UNC coach Roy Williams began recruiting White as a point guard and an "instinctive passer." Of course, he's not overlooking White's scoring punch, either.

"If you're the leading scorer in North Carolina history, it means you shot a hell of a lot," Williams quipped. "He did, but he makes a bunch of them, too. ... The one thing that will have to become more important to him is his field-goal percentage."

NBA DRAFT

Bagley, Porter top available forwards

BY AARON BEARD
Associated Press

Marvin Bagley III dominated at Duke, while fellow freshman Michael Porter Jr. barely saw action at Missouri due to injury. Yet they'll likely be the first forwards to hear their names called during Thursday's draft.

Bagley is a possible No. 1 overall pick and double-double machine with a long frame. But many considered Porter to be the top NBA prospect in last year's class as he works to prove he's past the back injury that required surgery and limited his college career.

Here's a look of the top forwards in the draft:

MARVIN BAGLEY III

The 6-foot-11 forward checks a lot of boxes: athleticism, inside-out ability, length. He averaged 21 points and 11.1 rebounds while shooting 61 percent from the floor and nearly 40 percent from 3-point range.

Bagley is still developing defensively, particularly when it comes with what is happening away from the ball. He also tends to be too left-hand reliant at times and needs to improve going the other way.

MICHAEL PORTER JR.

Porter was considered by many as last year's top recruit with his scoring, playmaking ability and athleticism. He was a McDonald's All-American in high school after averaging 36.2 points and 13.6 rebounds per game during his senior year.

There's little to evaluate with Porter against college competition considering he was hurt minutes into the season opener. He didn't play again until the postseason.

MILES BRIDGES

Bridges did a lot of things well last year while averaging 17.1 points, 7.0 rebounds and 2.7 assists.

Bridges needs to continue honing his perimeter skills. He shot nearly 39 percent from 3-point range as a freshman, but slid to 36 percent last year.

WORLD CUP

4-1 victory over Japan in the final game of group play in the last World Cup, and both rosters contain some of those same players.

Japan's first World Cup appearance was in 1998 and it has not missed the tournament since, so many of its current players are on the international stage for a third consecutive time.

POLAND VS. SENEGAL

6 p.m. (11 a.m. EDT; 1500 GMT)

The final opening match of the tournament features Senegal, which in its debut World Cup in 2002 defeated defending champion France in the opener and went on to reach the quarterfinals.

Senegal is led by Sadio Mane, who scored 20 goals this season for Liverpool and had the fastest hat trick in Premier League history when he got three goals in a 176-second span for Southampton in 2015.

Poland is coached by Adam Nawalka, a member of the country's 1978 World Cup team, and he has improved the squad from 76th in the FIFA rankings in 2013 to eighth.

The team is led by captain Robert Lewandowski, who led European qualifying with 16 goals and scored five goals in a nine-minute span for Bayern Munich in February.

The match is at Spartak Stadium in Moscow.

for its spring game, and athletic director Scott Stricklin said the program will likely continue the idea this fall. The beer garden was a way to add to the festive atmosphere new coach Dan Mullen wants games to become, and Stricklin said the controlled environment caused no issues during its test run in April.

"A bunch of old people showed up," Stricklin said. "It actually was one of the quieter places on campus that day."

For at least one more season, the Gators and their SEC peers will have to limit their alcohol sales to premium areas. The league's powerbrokers declined to change the SEC's policy during their recent spring meetings in Destin.

That doesn't mean the policy will never change; commissioner Greg Sankey said the conference has "ongoing dialogue" about expanding alcohol sales away from their meetings.

Those conversations stem in part from administrative turnover at the SEC's schools; eight of the 14 athletic directors have been on the job for less than three years. When a new AD or president joins, they ask why the policy exists while trying to determine what's best for their campus.

Those questions could eventually lead to legislation that would give schools autonomy to form their own alcohol policies.

"Perhaps every day we're closer," Sankey said, "but that doesn't mean we are."

GHOLSTON

That includes physical change. Gholston is listed at 281 pounds on the Bucs' roster, but he said his weight got to over 300 pounds last year, and not in a good way.

"Biggest I was, I was in the 3(0)0s, for sure. It got to the 3(0)0s and it was all bad weight," Gholston said. "I dropped down coming into camp, but I came in out of shape last year. ... I didn't want to be bad big, too much body fat."

Midway through offseason drills last month, Bucs coach Dirk Koetter had already seen a difference in him.

"We thought he got too heavy last year," Koetter said. "He agreed, and he did a really good job of slimming it down. He looks good out there."

Asked about his current weight, Gholston said "in the (2)70s, teetering to (2)80s here and there."

"I think it was a great suggestion," he said. "It was the best thing for me, mentally, physically and emotionally. You can't be fat."

Gholston had 13 tackles in the Bucs' first two games last season, then had no more than four in any game the rest of the way, even as several players were sidelined with injury. Gholston himself missed two games with a neck injury in November.

He played the fewest snaps he's had since his rookie year, and while the Bucs cut Robert Ayers and didn't re-sign Ryan Russell, they upgraded by trading for Jason Pierre-Paul and signing Vinny

Curry, who plays much the same game as Gholston as a versatile run-stopper. Playing time won't be easy to come by.

The Bucs kept Gholston knowing he was due to make $6.5 million in 2018, and his contract gets more team-friendly next year, with the salary dropping to a more reasonable $3.75 million in 2019. He's battling for his longterm future with the team now but said he likes the way the new defensive line has come together going into training camp.

"The one thing I can say that's different is the mentality of the approach," he said. "We came together, the guys who returned and the guys who came in and joined collectively and tried to jell and build that trust. We all have the same mindset though, to go out there and get it."

Drug Companies Fear Release Of New $2 Sex Pill For Older Men

Men in clinical trial see huge boost in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity without side effects.

NEW YORK - It's hard to believe that in America today an affordable pill that could improve the sex lives of millions of men is in danger of being yanked from the shelves. And it's just because big drug companies fear for their profits.

The pharmaceutical industry is desperately trying to stop shipments of the remarkable new "JackedUp" pill. Big Pharma is worried because men are reporting increased sex drive, stronger erections and more stamina - all without the side-effects and $40-per-pill price tag associated with drugs like Viagra. Clinical results show men feel these benefits within just a few weeks of taking JackedUp's active ingredient.

The pill, made for men

"If you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. Drug companies do NOT want men to know about this affordable new pill..."

Big Pharma Worried: Older men are having better sex after taking the newly released $2 pill called JackedUp. Clinical trials show active ingredient triggers surge in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity in older men.

on men 40 - 65 years old, and the results were remarkable. The men who took the active ingredient in JackedUp reported major improvements in their sex lives. Their ability to get and keep erections went up by over 200%. Libido and sex drive ingredient has strong clinical results and lacks the side effects seen in current drugs on the market. This makes it an easy option for doctors to suggest.

Dr. Laguna-Bedia, a specialist in internal medicine says, "A lot of men think their lack of interest and inability to perform are simply parts of aging. This is just not true. JackedUp can help these men regain a healthy appetite for sex and the physical ability to perform."

"JackedUp works by boosting key male hormones without side effects. The benefits of these hormones to sexual health are well known, but they actually do more than that. Men also report more energy, less body fat and higher motivation," said Dr. G. Pereira, a renowned surgeon in Florida.

Dr. Jacob Moss notes, "I recommend JackedUp if you're struggling with getting and keeping erections or low libido. It's also a great option for men who want to last longer and have more control over when they orgasm."

Special Opportunity for Our Readers

Drug companies are fighting hard to get rid of this product. This is making inventory disappear fast. Thankfully, a special discounted supply has been reserved for Charlotte Sun Newspapers readers. But only for those who call within the next 48 hours.

This is the best opportunity to try JackedUp risk-free with their 100% results guarantee.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives all men an equal chance to try JackedUp.

Starting at 6:00 am today the order hotline will be open for the next 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE 1-888-413-2876 and the company will do the rest.

Due to the possibility of JackedUp being pulled from the shelf, phone lines are often busy. If you call and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. Current supplies of JackedUp are limited, and callers that don't get through to the order hotline within the next 48 hours will be forced to wait for more inventory to be produced. This can take as long as 6 weeks.

over 50, was released early last month. Despite Big Pharma's efforts, sales have already exceeded expectations.

Exciting Benefits

There are very good reasons why sales are booming and drug companies want it gone. Apart from costing just two dollars per daily dose, the clinical results confirm JackedUp's active ingredient is very impressive. It greatly boosts a man's ability to get and keep erections. Stamina during sex also improves.

The product also has a unique ability to help men feel more passion, desire, and sex drive. These impressive benefits come from boosting testosterone levels by up to a whopping 193%.

Doctors are astounded by its effects.

Why do drug companies want this pill stopped? Since the "JackedUp" pill is natural, drug companies can't patent it (like they did with Viagra) and make big profits. Plus, if you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. If you can safely boost your testosterone, you won't need their expensive pills. That's the very reason big business is trying to have it pulled from the shelves.

Strong Clinical Results Worry Big Pharma

Recent clinical trials on JackedUp's active ingredient have made the drug companies more desperate. The trial results were published in major medical journals, and doctors are now recommending JackedUp to patients.

The testing was done surged. Even staying power and stamina during sex more than doubled!

Head of product development, Dave McNeill, said the big drug companies weren't worried at first. "They didn't care because the active ingredient can take a few weeks before many men really feel the benefits. But these awesome clinical trials really got their attention. They're learning A LOT of men will wait a few weeks if it means avoiding negative side effects and saving money."

How It Works

The "JackedUp" pill works by helping older men produce more testosterone. It doesn't force dangerous fake testosterone into your body like injections do. Instead, it works with your body to produce testosterone naturally. And the results have been extraordinary. It's like your body reboots itself to feel like it did in the prime of your life.

Initial Users Are Thrilled...And Worried

"JackedUp has been awesome for my sex drive and performance! I'm worried it may not be available in the future. The idea that it may be taken away just to secure some big drug company's profits is very frustrating."

- Rob H., 49 years old, Colorado Springs, CO

"My wife and I were both sexually vibrant until I had prostate cancer. After my surgery we tried everything my doctor recommended but nothing worked. Within a few weeks of taking JackedUp, everything has been functioning beautifully and we've been riding high ever since!"

- Ken S., 78 years old, Phoenix, AZ

Doctors Speak Out

Drug companies are also concerned that doctors are now recommending JackedUp. The active

ROUNDUP/MATCHUPS

Nationals 5, Yankees 3, Game 1: Juan Soto's pinch-hit two-run homer in the sixth inning of a game that began and was suspended because of rain last month, five days before he made his major league debut, lifted Washington in the opener of an unusual doubleheader. Game 1 resumed with the score 3-all and the Nationals about to bat in the bottom of the sixth. After Bryce Harper struck out, and Anthony Rendon singled, Soto drove a 97 mph fastball from Chad Green (4-1) to the back of the second deck in right field. It was the 19-year-old outfielder's sixth homer since he was called up from Double-A Harrisburg on May 20. His stats — and all others from Game 1 — will count as being part of the originally scheduled game on May 15, but Soto's official debut will still be considered on the actual date it happened, according to the Nationals, citing the Elias Sports Bureau. Pirates 1, Brewers 0: Trevor Williams pitched one-hit ball over seven innings. Williams struck out seven and walked two for his first victory in a month. Jordy Mercer drove in the lone run with a seventh-inning double, and Pittsburgh won for the fourth time in five games. Milwaukee entered the day leading the NL Central but suffered their third straight loss.

THIS DATE IN BASEBALL

JUNE 19

1927: Jack Scott of the Philadelphia Phillies pitched two complete games in a doubleheader. Scott beat the Cincinnati Reds 3-1 and lost 3-0 in the second game. Scott was the last pitcher in major league history to complete two games on the same day.
1941: En route to 56, Joe DiMaggio hit in his 32nd consecutive game, going 3-for-3, including a home run, against the Chicago White Sox.
1942: Paul Waner got hit number 3,000 — a single off Rip Sewell — but the Boston Braves lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6.
1961: Roger Maris' ninth-inning homer off Kansas City's Jim Archer was his 25th of the year, putting him seven games ahead of Babe Ruth's pace in 1927.
1974: Steve Busby of the Kansas City Royals hurled his second no-hitter in 14 months and gave up just one walk in beating the Brewers 2-0 at Milwaukee.
1977: The Boston Red Sox hit five home runs in an 11-1 triumph over the New York Yankees. The five homers gave the Red Sox a major league record 16 in three games. Boston hit six homers on the 17th and five on the 18th, also against the Yankees. In the series the Yankees had no homers.
1994: John Smoltz became the 14th major league pitcher to give up four homers in an inning when he was tagged by Cincinnati. The Reds set a team record for home runs in an inning, connecting four times in the first inning. Hal Morris, Kevin Mitchell, Jeff Branson and Eddie Taubensee homered.
Today's birthdays: Austin Brice, 26; Christian Villanueva, 27; Jacob deGrom, 30; Devin Mesoraco, 30; Collin McHugh, 31; Blake Parker, 33.

Mexico dreams big at World Cup after beating Germany

BY CARLOS RODRIGUEZ
Associated Press

MOSCOW — Mexico is starting to dream big after beating defending World Cup champion Germany.

The 1-0 win was among the biggest victories in Mexican soccer history, and is giving the team's players confidence that they could reach the quarterfinals in Russia or perhaps beyond.

"I don't know if we've sent a message to other teams, but internally we've spread a clear message that that we can, and are completely capable of competing with anyone," defender Miguel Layun said after training Monday. "It helps us to know we're capable and that when we work together, we can accomplish anything."

The most successful international tournament for Mexico was winning the gold medal at the 2012 London Olympics in London.

Coming into Russia, fans didn't have big hopes for the team's chances of going far in the World Cup. But that changed overnight with Sunday's victory.

"The feeling is indescribable because no one really expected much from us. I think we're the only ones who believed in ourselves," midfielder Jonathan Dos Santos said. "We have made history in a way that no one ever has. Starting out on the right foot was good for us, and there's a long way to go, but we're doing well."

Mexico hasn't made it past the second round since the 1986 World Cup, when it hosted the tournament and reached the quarterfinals. This generation of Mexican footballers, however, is the first to have 15 players from leagues outside their home country, and insists that it can make it to the quarterfinals or even further.

El Tri has never had so many players from foreign leagues, besides its squad in South Africa in 2010, which had nine. That year, Mexico was knocked out by Argentina in the round of 16.

"We didn't come to Russia just to beat Germany and go home. We hope to beat South Korea and leave all negativity in the past," said forward Javier Hernandez, referring to Mexico's next match in Rostov on Saturday. "We have the mindset to achieve. Yesterday was just a first step on the way to the final."

Federer moves back to No. 1 in rankings

Associated Press

LONDON — Roger Federer is back at No. 1 in the ATP rankings, once again swapping spots with Rafael Nadal.

Federer's title at the grass-court tournament in Stuttgart, Germany, last week pushed him up from No. 2 on Monday.

Nadal dropped down from No. 1 after sitting out last week following his 11th French Open championship earlier in the month.

This is the fifth time the top ranking has changed hands between Federer and Nadal. That's the most switches at No. 1 in a single season since there were also five in 2003.

The record for most changes at No. 1 is 10, set in 1983, when John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors and Ivan Lendl all spent time there.

This is Federer's record-extending 310th week at No. 1.

on former Bucs assistant Herm Edwards' new Arizona State coaching staff after spending the last two years as a Sun Devils radio sideline reporter.

- Darnell Stapleton, who worked as a Walsh fellow with the Bucs offensive line in training camp last year, was back working with the team from June 4-7. Now the offensive line coach at Sam Houston State, he played two years with the Steelers and was part of the Pittsburgh team that won a Super Bowl at Raymond James Stadium in 2009.

- Roderick Chance, who worked with the Bucs from June 4-7, is the defensive coordinator at Southern Utah State. He overlapped with current Bucs defensive backs coach Brett Maxie at Vanderbilt, where he was a defensive quality control coach in 2014-15.

FSU. He also worked in Tampa from 2004-06 as USF's receivers coach.

Current Bucs receivers coach Skyler Fulton came to the Bucs as part of the Walsh fellowship program. The Bucs will have more Walsh fellows during training camp, which starts in late July. The other coaches who worked with the Bucs during OTAs as part of the program were:

- Derek Hagan, who was briefly with the Bucs as a receiver in summer 2013 and played for Dirk Koetter at Arizona State from 2002-05, topping 1,000 receiving yards in each of his last three seasons. Hagan, who worked with the Bucs from May 22-24, is now an offensive analyst

WORLD CUP ENGLAND 2, TUNISIA 1

Late header from Kane gives England victory over Tunisia

BY ROB HARRIS
Associated Press

VOLGOGRAD, Russia — Twice wrestled to the ground during the match, England captain Harry Kane finally evaded the Tunisian defense just as time was running out.

Kane found an open area of space at the far post and used his head to meet Harry Maguire's flick-on, scoring the winning goal Monday in a 2-1 victory at the World Cup.

It was relief for Kane and Gareth Southgate, who leapt into the air in delight as his World Cup debut as a coach got off to a winning start.

"The best teams in the world keep that belief in what they're doing," Southgate said, "and in the end they break the opposition down."

England shouldn't have found it so tough in its Group G opener against such opposition. Not after Kane got England off to a perfect start with an 11th-minute tap in. But after Kyle Walker softly conceded a penalty that Ferjani Sassi converted in the 35th, many of the fouls went against England.

"Maybe there was a bit of justice at the end,"

Kane said.

Finally, Kane showcased on the international stage the predatory instinct in front of goal that has served Tottenham so well. Only two years ago, the striker failed to find the net at the 2016 European Championship, which ended in humiliation with a loss to Iceland in the last 16.

The team has been transformed by Southgate since then. For all the placidness and togetherness within the group, Southgate has added persistence and doggedness.

"It shows the work we have put in these last few weeks," Walker said. "Togetherness and believing in ourselves."

At the last World Cup, England couldn't even win a game. Low expectations for this year's overhauled team were dispelled early in Russia when Kane reacted quickly to score after John Stones' header was saved. But England struggled to finish it off.

When Walker's flailing arm caught Fakhreddine

Ben Youssef, a penalty was awarded and Sassi slotted it in to equalize.

England's players later thought they deserved the same verdict when Kane was grappled to the ground twice by Tunisians on either side of the halftime break. Both times, the referee decided against punishing the culprits.

Despite it all, Kane remained patient and delivered in the first minute of stoppage time.

"You go until the last second," Kane said, "and I'm absolutely buzzing."

Walter Bahr, last living member of team that upset England, is dead

BY RONALD BLUM
Associated Press

When Walter Bahr walked off the field in Brazil after the famous United States victory over England at the 1950 World Cup, he didn't expect to become a soccer celebrity.

Known for many years as the father of two NFL placekickers, Bahr regained prominence in his own right when the Americans returned to soccer's showcase in 1990 after a 40-year absence.

The last living player from that 1950 team, Bahr died Monday in Boalsburg, Pennsylvania, at age 91, according to granddaughter Lindsey D. Bahr, a film writer for The Associated Press. His death was caused by complications that resulted from a broken hip.

"I say the older I get, the more famous I become," Bahr told the AP in 2010. "I wasn't for famous for 50 years."

and Tom Finney, who earned knighthoods.

"Walter Bahr was one of the greatest people to ever be part of soccer in the United States," former U.S. Soccer Federation President Sunil Gulati said. "Not only was he a pioneer and a fantastic ambassador for our game over many years, he was a true gentleman."

Quick with a story, a laugh and a smile, Bahr started all three U.S. matches at the 1950 World Cup. A defender who scored one goal in 19 international appearances, made his international debut in a World Cup qualifier against Cuba in 1949, joining a national team that had lost its seven previous international matches by a combined 45-2. The Americans tied Cuba 1-1 in his debut, lost to Mexico, then beat Cuba as Bahr scored and earned a trip to the 1950 tournament in Brazil.

The U.S. wasted a late lead to Spain in its opener and lost 3-1. England was coming off a win over Chile.

"We knew we weren't in the same class as the English team," Bahr said. "But anybody worth their salt when they go out onto the field, they always think there's some possibility that something can happen, that they could steal a victory."

In the match at Belo Horizonte on June 29, 1950, Bahr collected a throw-in from Ed McIlvenny and took a shot from about 25 yards that Joe Gaetjens deflected past goalkeeper Bert Williams with a diving header late in the first half. Frank Borghi had some spectacular saves that made the lead stand up.

"As much as we were very thrilled and pleased to win the game, most of us felt the same way: 'How's that English club going to go back home and face their fans?'" Bahr said. "It was a lot easier for us to explain the victory than for them to go back and explain that defeat."

WORLD CUP BELGIUM 3, PANAMA 0

Belgium wakes up in 2nd half, rolls past Panama

BY TIM BOOTH
Associated Press

SOCHI, Russia — Unlike the other World Cup favorites that struggled through their opening matches, Belgium looked every part the title contender.

Having Dries Mertens and Romelu Lukaku capable of scoring the way they did against Panama helps.

"People know I am supposed to score goals," Lukaku said. "The most important thing to me is to win matches."

Lukaku scored twice in a six-minute span in the second half after Mertens' perfectly struck volley gave Belgium the lead, and the Red Devils beat over-matched Panama 3-0 Monday.

Saddled with massive expectations and a lineup of talent the envy of other teams in the tournament, Belgium showed flashes of being a team worthy of title consideration.

A shaky first-half performance by Belgium was replaced by a confident, attacking group in the second that was finally able to find gaps in Panama's defense and convert those chances into goals.

"In the World Cup you have to play 90 minutes. You have to be aware that in any game you go into, if you don't score early on, you have to be prepared to work hard and go through periods in which you are tested," Belgium coach Roberto Martinez said.

The two goals from Lukaku came shortly after Mertens scored from about 18 yards in the opening moments of the second half, finally relieving some pressure after Belgium was unable to break down Panama for the first 45 minutes.

Lukaku's first goal came 20 minutes later, but the pass from Kevin De Bruyne made it possible. Rather than shooting through a crowd of Panama defenders, De Bruyne cut a pass with the outside of his right foot onto Lukaku's head and into the net.

Lukaku added a second on a breakaway minutes later, chipping Panama goalkeeper Jaime Penedo as he left his net.

"For me it's important to have the right line in the box," Lukaku said. "Usually I'm in the right position at the right time."

Belgium is now unbeaten in its last six World Cup openers, dating back to a 1986 loss to Mexico in the opener.

How to Read the Mutual Fund Tables

Here are the 4,300 biggest mutual funds listed on Nasdaq. Tables show the fund name, sell price or net asset value (NAV), daily net change and weekly net change. Underlining highlights the funds ranked in the top 20% in each of the last 5 years:

Name: Name of mutual fund and family. Obj: The fund's objective group. Abbreviations listed below. NAV: Net asset value. Chg: Net change in price of NAV from previous day. Rtn: The fund's total return, or percent change in NAV for the time period shown, with dividends reinvested. If period longer than 1 year, return is annualized. Rank: Fund's letter grade compared with others in the same objective group; an A indicates fund performed in the top 20 percent; an E, in the bottom 20 percent.
