Votes send Scott to D.C.; DeSantis, Fried to Tallahassee

SEBRING — After a dozen days of both machine and hand recounts, Florida has chosen a new U.S. senator and picked a Democrat for agriculture commissioner.

Republican Gov. Rick Scott will take Democratic Sen. Bill Nelson's seat in the Senate, by barely more than a 10th of a percentage point, 10,033 votes out of 8.2 million votes cast. Meanwhile, Nicole "Nikki" Fried is the only Democrat to take a statewide seat, edging out Republican state Rep. Matt Caldwell by 0.08 percent of the votes for Florida Commissioner of Agriculture.

Her lead over Caldwell reached 6,753 votes on Sunday, according to the Florida Division of Elections at floridaelection-watch.gov.

Statewide, Scott had 4,099,505 votes, or 50.05 percent, after the hand recount. Nelson had 4,089,472, or 49.93 percent.

In Highlands County, Scott had 26,282 votes, or 66.22 percent. Nelson had 13,398 — 33.76 percent.

The agriculture commissioner race was only slightly closer than the U.S. Senate race. Fried carried 4,032,954 votes, or 50.04 percent, while Caldwell had 4,026,201 votes — 49.96 percent.

The same as with the U.S. Senate race, Highlands County voters turned out 2-1 in favor of the Republican candidate: Caldwell had 26,017 local votes — 66.02 percent — while Fried had 13,392 — 33.98 percent.

The week also finalized the governor's race, which stood for a machine recount, but did not qualify for a manual recount after Republican Ron DeSantis held onto a 0.4 percent lead over Andrew Gillum, mayor of Tallahassee.

On Saturday, Gillum conceded for the second time since the election, via Facebook live video, with his wife, R. Jai, by a lake in a public park.

He congratulated DeSantis for becoming the next governor of Florida, and of he and his wife, Andrew Gillum said, "I tell you this has been the journey of our lives. We've been so honored by the support that we received from people, really all across the country."

He said they could not have done the campaign without that support, and said it was more than just another election cycle.

"This was really about creating the kind of change in this state that really allows for the voices of everyday people to show up again in our government and our state and our communities," Gillum said.

The race for Agriculture Commissioner was a bit more contentious. Caldwell of Fort Myers had declared victory on election night with a 41,000-vote lead. However, Fried claimed victory on Nov. 10, according to The News Service of Florida, when the first unofficial election results showed her with a 5,326-vote lead.

Caldwell's attorney's claimed in a lawsuit that 17,000 vote-by-mail ballots were collected and counted in Broward County after the poll-closing deadline of 7 p.m. Nov. 6, The News Service reported. He also attacked Broward County Supervisor of Elections Brenda Snipes

Gyrocopter initial accident report released

By MARC VALERO

SEBRING — A report on the Oct. 30 gyrocopter crash in Sebring that killed two on the aircraft states that during two brief mayday calls there were sounds consistent with an engine increasing and decreasing in rpm.

The National Transportation Safety Board's preliminary report states that an experimental amateur-built Autogyro Cavalon gyrocopter was destroyed during its collision with a power pole, wires, terrain, a residence and a post-crash fire following a forced landing.

The pilot, 45-year-old Christopher Lord, and his passenger, 52-year-old Christopher Brugger, died after the aircraft crashed at 2:48 p.m. during a flight from Sebring Regional Airport to an airport in Palmetto in Manatee County. Both men were killed on impact.

destroyed a home at 2003 Caribbean Road in the Sebring Falls Retirement Subdivision. William Shortridge, 73, who was working on the adjacent home to the south suffered burns to his arm and leg.

Preliminary radar information from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) showed the gyrocopter was identified when it reach an altitude of 500 feet and it climbed to about 1,000 feet and traveled along the southern border of Lake Jackson, according to the NTSB report.

About 2:45 p.m., the radar showed a descent that began about 1,000 feet over the southwestern shore of the lake.

The descent followed the curve of the shoreline to the northwest and the radar target disappeared at 900 feet and 90 knots ground speed, about 4/10ths of a mile southwest of the accident site.

A witness stated he was driving southbound on the highway that paralleled the shoreline of the lake at the time of the accident. He said the gyrocopter was travelling northwest, about 300 feet above ground level "with very little airspeed" and appeared to be turning to the east.

The gyrocopter then "entered an autorotation" then, when it reached "about 150 feet, the nose of the aircraft dropped immediately turning toward [the] east then back toward the north," according to the witness. The gyrocopter descended from view before a large fireball was seen.

A commercial website monitored and recorded the common traffic advisory frequency. At 2:48 p.m. a "mayday" call was recorded.

SEBRING — Iraq War veteran Marilyn McNellis, along with her 18-year-old son, Gabe, called the annual Thanksgiving meals a "blessing."

U.S. Air Force veteran Roy Clark said it's a "nice gesture," and U.S. Army veteran Robert Luttrell, there with his wife, Carol, also thought the annual distribution of Thanksgiving meals to veterans from the Highlands County Veterans Service Office would help a lot of people.

Last year, the event provided 42 Thanksgiving meals to local veterans in need.

This year, 94 veterans got Thanksgiving dinner, doubling donations on the annual event.

"It's a blessing," McNellis said. "A lot of people don't have much."

Veterans Service Officer Denise Williams counted 27 meals distributed in the first 15 minutes when doors opened at 1 p.m.

At left, Highlands County Veterans Service Officer Denise Williams packs a Thanksgiving meal for a veteran, one of 80 provided this year by the Sun 'n Lake Veterans Relief Fund, chaired by Curtis McCullough, on the right. Williams said AMVETS Post 21 in Sebring and American Legion Post 25 provided enough extra meals to provide meals for a total of 94 veterans this year.

From left, Veterans Service Office volunteer Bob Ulmer hands a Thanksgiving meal to Marilyn McNellis and her son, Gabe, who will graduate Sebring High School in the spring. Like many veterans who received feasts this year, Iraq War veteran Marilyn McNellis was a first-time participant in the event.

Monday. She had veterans lined up outside starting at 11:30 a.m., waiting to get in.

By 1:30 p.m., they had distributed 30 meals and a total of 38 by 1:45 p.m.

Williams also expected another rush at 2 p.m., because a volunteer had told some veterans the wrong start time.

By 3:30 p.m., they had handed out 60 meals, Williams said.

The event itself ran from 1-5 p.m., which Williams figured they would need all that time to distribute all the available meals this year.

If people couldn't make it on Monday, they would still have

Sebring man facing drug charges

SEBRING — When a sheriff's deputy made a traffic stop, the deputy found marijuana and equipment used to sell it in the vehicle.

The Highlands County Sheriff's Office arrested Eric J. Davis, 24, of Sebring on Wednesday, Nov. 14. Davis also has an alias of Xavier Eric Davis. Davis was charged with driving while his license is suspended.

A deputy was advised that a Sebring man was driving with a suspended license. The deputy viewed a photo of Davis on his mobile computer and became familiar with his appearance. The deputy was informed that Davis was driving a silver 2010 Ford Taurus and was heading north on Memorial Drive.

Since the time was almost 6 p.m., the deputy had his lights on and faced them towards Memorial Drive. He observed the vehicle traveling toward him, so he initiated a traffic stop.

The deputy advised Davis that he was under arrest for driving with a suspended license.

Davis exited the vehicle and was placed in handcuffs. As the deputy and suspect were walking away, Davis closed the vehicle's door with his foot.

The deputy noted that no illegal drugs or contraband were found on Davis, but he did not have his keys.

"Where are your keys?" the deputy asked.

"I do not know; it's not my vehicle," Davis allegedly replied.

The deputy found the keys locked in the vehicle. Since the keys had been locked in the vehicle, the deputy contacted a K-9 unit and requested that a dog sniff around the vehicle.

The K-9 alerted on the vehicle, so the deputy used a Slim Jim to open the Taurus. When the vehicle was searched, the deputy reportedly found the following items:

- a clear bag with a green leafy substance that field tested positive for cannabis (less than 20 grams)
- a clear glass jar with a green leafy substance that field tested for cannabis
- a digital scale with cannabis residue on it
- two $20 bills
- an empty Gunmate gun holster and an empty 9 mm magazine
- a 9 mm semi-automatic black pistol with a loaded magazine with 17 unspent 9 mm bullets

Digital scales are commonly used to weigh narcotics for sale, and the separate cannabis packaging is consistent with packaging for delivery to customers. Davis was charged with possession of cannabis with intent to sell, in addition to the other charges.

For those who have their garbage picked up by Waste Connections (unincorporated areas of Highlands County), no trash pickup will occur on Thursday; the schedule will resume on Friday.

SHS student sells award-winning portrait

SEBRING — Francis Espiritu won an Emerging Artist scholarship for his artwork at the Sebring Art, Jazz and Wine Festival earlier this month, and when his artwork was displayed in the Highlands News-Sun, Lorida resident Jeffrey Galloway knew he had to purchase the portrait of George Harrison, the lead guitarist for the Beatles.

"I opened the newspaper, and I saw George Harrison's portrait," Galloway said. "Why is he [Harrison] in the newspaper?" Galloway collects Beatles memorabilia and has picture of the Beatles all over his house.

"Whenever I see anything of the Beatles, I grab it," Galloway said. "I love art and music; I've played in bands for over 30 years." He contacted the newspaper, because he wanted to purchase Espiritu's portrait of Harrison.

The Highlands News-Sun contacted Sebring High School, where Espiritu is a junior, and discovered that the portrait of Harrison was still available for purchase. Galloway coordinated his visit to the school with SHS art teacher Steve Van Dam.

While he talked with Espiritu about his artwork, Galloway asked the artist if he would paint the inside cover of the Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, which featured the four Beatles in their marching band uniforms.

Espiritu agreed to paint the scene and told Galloway he would look for the largest piece of paper he could find to do the artwork.

"The first time I saw the Beatles play was in 1968 on the David Frost show," Galloway said. "They sang 'All You Need Is Love' live. I've been hooked on the Beatles ever since."

The reorganizational meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. or as soon as practicable following the regular meeting.

Also, the board will select a chairperson and vice-chairperson, set its calendar for board meetings through Nov. 19, 2019 and review/discuss/approve School Board member liaisons.

After the reorganizational meeting, there will be a special meeting of the School Board's Leasing Corporation.

Assistant Superintendent of Business Operations Mike Averyt explained that when the district issued the certificates of participation in 2006 (borrowed funds for school construction), the Leasing Corporation, comprised of the School Board members, was established.

When the School Board goes through its reorganization, the names have to be changed on the Leasing Corporation as well, he said.

The agenda of this special meeting includes the appointment of the chairperson and vice-chairperson of the Board of Directors and naming of the officers of the corporation.

Lake Placid man accused of theft, fraud

By MELISSA MAIN

LAKE PLACID — A Lake Placid man allegedly stole money from an elderly person's checking account by using the victim's home computer. In addition, the suspect is also accused of scratching the victim's vehicle and slashing the tires.

Highlands County Sheriff's Office arrested Shaun Michael St. John,

ST. JOHN

20, of Lake Placid, on Tuesday, Nov. 6. St. John was charged with grand theft, more than $300 and less than $10,000, fraudulently impersonating another person and attempting to use the identification of another person without consent. The victim was over 65 years old.

The next day, on Wednesday, Nov. 7, HCSO arrested St. John again. St. John was charged with damaging property/criminal mischief over $1,000.

According to the arrest report, St. John had needed a place to stay, so he asked the victim if he could live with him temporarily. The victim agreed, but on Aug. 7, the victim noticed that he had fraudulent charges on his bank account for $1,000.

The next day the victim flew out of town, but he contacted his bank regarding the charges. Another $500 fraudulent charge was made on the victim's account on Aug. 13, but the funds from the second transaction were recovered, the report states.

On Aug. 15 the victim reported the fraudulent transactions from his banking account to the Sheriff's Office. The victim's bank reported that both transactions were "iPay" transactions and "the funds were deposited to an account in the name Shaun St. John," the report states.

The victim told deputies that the passwords for his accounts are stored on his home computer, and he has paper copies of the passwords in his desk.

After filing the report with the Sheriff's Office, the victim also requested that St. John leave his home and St. John complied.

On Aug. 24 the victim reported that his vehicle had been damaged. His 2014 Ford Escape had scratches that appeared to be from a key and two of his tires had been cut or slashed. The victim provided a repair estimate to his vehicle that totaled $2,725.53, the report states.

The victim suspected St. John had caused the damage, because the suspect had returned to his property to collect some of his belongings just prior to him noticing that his vehicle was damaged, authorities state.

Mental health comes in different forms

The Epilepsy Foundation of Florida is trying to combat the lack of knowledge about epilepsy in order to raise awareness, support funding and help those with the disease.

Epilepsy Florida CEO Karen Basha Agozi recently visited the Times-Union Editorial Board to point out this stark reality: while a great deal of work has been done toward treating illnesses like Alzheimer's and mental illness, epilepsy has too often escaped our focus.

In contrast to Alzheimer's, brain surgery sometimes can successfully treat epilepsy.

World Mental Health Crisis

A recently released report by a commission of mental health researchers — put together by the Lancet medical journal — declared mental illness to be a “global health crisis.”

According to the report, too many people around the world do not seek treatment or receive poor care for mental illness; in numerous countries, people with mental illnesses are abused, imprisoned or living on the streets.

In all, according to the report, an estimated 13.5 million people worldwide die needlessly from mental illness each year.

While we in the United States consider our nation to be an empathetic one, the uncomfortable fact is treatment for mental illness has been historically underfunded in our country.

Just look at Florida, which traditionally ranks among the worst states in per capita funding for mental health care. And the situation is only being exacerbated by Florida's refusal to accept billions in federal dollars for Medicaid expansion.

Dementia and Guns

When should doctors raise the issue of guns with those who may be confronting dementia?

Since 2012 about 100 Americans with dementia have killed themselves or others with guns, according to an investigation by Kaiser Health News and PBS Newshour.

The shooters were afflicted by paranoia, delusion, confusion or aggression — and they often shot spouses, children or caregivers.

In Florida, it was once unlawful for physicians to ask about guns; thankfully, several court decisions have led to the elimination of such gag orders.

Unfortunately, the investigation revealed that many physicians still don't ask dementia patients about their potential access to firearms.

There are now tools that physicians can use to guide those conversations: a toolkit titled “What You Can Do” was developed by the Violence Prevention Research Program at the University of California-Davis.

Meanwhile, both the Veterans Administration and the Alzheimer's Association recommend asking about firearms as part of a safety screening for patients who may be suffering from dementia.

The National Rifle Association offers tips on how to store guns safely by using trigger locks and gun safes. But this may not be enough for some patients — dementia often involves a decline in judgment as well as memory.

Many things to be thankful for

I love this time of year! No, it's not because I'm currently enjoying a week off from school ... well, maybe it is, just a little anyway.

I truly love Thanksgiving for many reasons. Among them is the fact that our country, from its very roots, was founded upon Judeo-Christian ideals and principles. While there is significant evidence that these traditions go back much further, I'd like to call your attention to the Thanksgiving Proclamation of 1789 by the first president of our United States of America.

“Whereas it is the duty of all Nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor — and whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint Committee requested me to recommend to the People of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness.” (Just as an aside, I don't understand how people can say that our country was not founded on Judeo-Christian principles.)

We can all agree, I think, that gratitude is a good trait to have which brings us all the way back around to Thanksgiving, the time set aside to give thanks. I'll start. In fact, I'll start with a disclaimer: Someone reading this column is going to disagree with me and maybe even get upset.

Well, let me just say that you'll have to get over it or live miserably.

It is my opinion that no country in the history of civilization has done more good for more people than the United States of America! Here are just a few examples. We have saved the world from tyranny three times — WWI, WWII, and the Cold War. Not by ourselves, of course, but undoubtedly, the U.S. was the biggest factor in all three of the wars. And, we have fought for, and spread freedom and democracy to more parts of the world, and it's not even close. Germany, Japan and South Korea are all free people today because of the United States. I love my country and I'm proud to say so.

Let's switch gears a little bit and get personal. As many of you know, my family history is messy ... well, before I was married, that is. I'm thankful today for the truth of life that just because something has always been, it doesn't always have to be. You see, we have the option to change the trajectory of our lives. There is absolutely nothing we can do about the family to which we are born, of course. But, there is everything we can do, with the Lord's help, about the family for which we are responsible.

So, during this Thanksgiving season, I am thankful beyond what words can express, for my family. My wife of 35 years is beautiful and wonderful! I have two incredible daughters, and a responsible, hard-working son-in-law, who loves my daughter, and the two most amazing grand-daughters in the world! In June, we'll be adding another son-in-law, who is equally responsible and hard-working. As you can see, I have much for which to be thankful. And, believe me, I am. Are you?

YOUR VIEW

It's about neutrality

Maybe it's been like this for so long, it passed me by. I've noticed more recently that we seem to have become a ‘right vs left’ society. Every news topic has to take on some combative spin.

The bar has reached bottom when calamities like hurricanes and wildfires become political playthings. Nothing can be taken at face value unless it first passes the liberal vs conservative litmus test.

Untold loss occurred this year in the Florida panhandle from a major hurricane and losses continue to mount in California from the worst fire season in the state's history. Yet, we manage to politicize these events and the focus seems to shift to casting blame rather than working to restore what's left.

In these two cases weather was the main culprit and there's nothing to discuss. Hurricanes are a part of summer in the South.

Months of dry windy conditions are common in much of California, which sets the stage for fire season.

It's not a Republican or a Democratic thing. Yet, California has been spanked for “mismanagement” that caused these devastating fires. Florida's building codes are not where they should be statewide but few things withstand a Category 5 hurricane.

So let's move on, pick up the pieces and learn from these misfortunes.

That said, I appreciate the column by (Highlands News-Sun Executive Editor) Romona Washington defending the articles and letters published in the Sun. I have lived in areas where the local paper was lopsided toward one position or another. I have seen many articles or letters in the Sun that I may not agree with, but also many that I do and I think the editors work hard to keep a balance.

In these times where free press is under attack, I continue to stress that free expression is a basic liberty enjoyed by all. Whether or not I agree with the paper or a particular news channel, I still defend their right to express a viewpoint. If we lose this, we have fallen.

Don't waste talent of EMS

It was sad to hear about the racer that died at the racetrack.

What is even worse is that when I was a trauma alert, I was shipped four counties away. The hospitals here have little accountability. I was sent by ground with my family trying to find this hospital late at night.

Yes the hospital staff are nice; they do a great job with what is available. But the counties in the center of the state like Highlands, Glades, Osceola, and Okeechobee counties not only put the patients at risk, but the families who will have to travel to unknown destinations in an uproar. Let alone with the Florida climate of rain, like what had happened to me, a helicopter is not available. The drive negates all the training for the paramedics seem wasteful.

The central hospitals need to upgrade to the specialized criteria for trauma, cardiac, and stroke alerts. Yes there is a cost, but when an alert is called the hospital cash register is in higher gear, and a better chance is made for survival.

I have participated in both ends of those criteria 30 years as a state paramedic, and as a patient, twice as a trauma alert. With grants, state funding, and education that could be used better, Highlands County Board of County Commission should ask better from the hospitals. We should not waste our EMS talent driving so far away then not be back for the residents.

RECOUNT

for "staggering incompetence" that "threatens the legitimacy of Florida's elections," The News Service reported, after her office failed to provide results of a machine recount to the Division of Elections by that deadline of 3 p.m. Thursday.

Fried, of Fort Lauderdale, won only 13 of Florida's 67 counties, The News Service stated, but among those were the most-populated urban centers.

Scott said Nelson "graciously conceded" in a phone call on Sunday, The News Service reported, and that he thanked Nelson "for his years of public service."

During the recount, Scott made accusations of fraud and political chicanery, but his victory statement called for unity.

"My focus will not be on looking backward, but on doing exactly what I ran on: making Washington work," Scott said. "I know change is never popular in Washington and that I'm just one person — but we have to start somewhere."

Nelson, 76, marked the end of a political career that includes 18 years in the U.S. Senate, 12 years in the U.S. House, six years on the state Cabinet and six years in the Florida Legislature.

"Well, things worked out a little differently than Grace and I had hoped. But let me say,

I by no measure feel defeated," Nelson said in a statement Sunday afternoon. "And that's because I have had the privilege of serving the people of Florida and our country for most of my life."

Nelson also called for an end to "all forms of voter suppression" and urged opposing political factions "to seek common ground with their colleagues on the other side of the aisle."

"Inevitably, at times, that effort will fall short. But we have to try," Nelson said. "We have to move beyond a politics that aims not just to defeat but to destroy; where truth is treated as disposable, where falsehoods abound, and the free press is assaulted as the 'enemy of the people.'"

She was not without helpers. The Sun 'n Lake Veterans Relief Fund, chaired by Curtis McCullough, donated 80 of the meals this year. His wife, Karen McCullough, signed in veterans as they turned in their tickets for their meals.

Williams said AMVETS Post 21 in Sebring provided another 10 meals, and American Legion Post 25 in Lake Placid provided five after that.

Other people handing out meals included Assistant Veterans Service Officer Carol West, veteran and volunteer Bob Ulmer, and both Helen and Howard Umphress.

Bob Ulmer's wife, Cyndee, ran the front desk, answering questions as veterans came in.

Matthew Metts, U.S. Army E-4 and a veteran of Afghanistan, also helped carry meals out to other veterans' cars. He was wounded by an improvised explosive device (IED) near the Alingar River.

"I made it out OK," Metts said. Some of his unit were not so lucky.

He met "Miss Denise" after he got back state-side, and after she helped him, he felt the need to give back.

Bulldogs ease past Streaks

Sebring fell short to Frostproof Friday night

SEBRING – The Sebring Blue Streaks battled against the Frostproof Bulldogs on a blustery Friday night at Firemen's Field, with temperatures plummeting into the 40s.

The Bulldogs blanked the Blue Streaks to get a 2-0 win. The loss drops Sebring to 0-3 for the season.

"We played good," said Sebring's coach T.C. Lackey. "We are young that all day. We are getting there. It is a long season, we play 23 games. We are doing well right now.

Defensively, our seniors stepped up like they were supposed to and the rest of the team went around it, which is good."

The Sebring Blue Streaks and Frostproof had a moment of silence before the game for Dulce Fabian-Tomas, who played for Sebring last year but tragically lost her life back in April.

"It is always hard to lose anyone," said coach Lackey. "The girls took it really hard when it happened. The girls would not take her number which was 15. She was a great person and player. She is deeply missed."

Ramos brothers have opportunities in professional soccer

By RUTH ANNE LAWSON
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — Two young men are helping put Avon Park on the map as they represented the city on a soccer tour of Spain and wound up getting offers from professional teams.

Dylan and Joshua Ramos were seen in July by the International Columbia Sporting Tour when they participated in the International Cup at Disney World.

They are the only two players from the United States participating in the Spain tour. Other players on the tour are from Columbia and Spain.

Dylan, 17, and Joshua Ramos, 18, have been playing soccer since they were just 3. Their dad, Greg Ramos, had been their coach until just a few years ago when their parents decided that they needed a more challenging training regime. Their hope is that the more challenging training will open more doors for the athletes.

The Ramos brothers now travel to Auburndale three or four times a week for training. As members of the Auburndale Scream premier team, they travel all over the state and as far away as North Carolina to play the competitive sport.

Joshua played soccer four years for the Sebring High School varsity soccer team. He is now a student at South Florida State College.

"We went to Disney and we played well," said Joshua Ramos. "We were seen by a few college coaches. My soccer career is taking off pretty well so far. Spain was amazing I was seen by professional scouts. There are three that have taken interest in me. It is super exciting and I did not think I would make it this far and I am nervous at the same time because it is far from home. The farthest I have ever been from my family is Sebring."

Dylan played three years for Sebring varsity but will play his final year of varsity soccer at Avon Park High School.

"I am very excited and nervous at the same time," said Dylan Ramos. "My parents have supported me the entire way. My biggest struggle has been getting taller, I have to get taller before I head to Spain. While in Spain I was able to play goalkeeper and got to play with my brother on the field. We play so well together. It was good to see all those people looking at me and telling me that I am good, really put a smile on my face. When they offered me this opportunity to go pro I did not think it was real. I want to get my grades up and practice hard to get ready for Spain."

Mandy Ramos, the boys' mother, described the tours as "highly valuable in an aspiring athlete's journey."

She said, "Coming from a small town, this is a huge accomplishment as soccer is not really a dominant sport in Highlands County."

"If I get the opportunity I will go straight to Portugal," said Josh. "They told me I have a spot on their team but I have to build my muscle as I wait to leave. I have to prepare not only physically but also mentally. It is going to be a lot leaving my family for the first time. My parents have supported me the entire time and have paid for everything. I really appreciate all they do

Michelin expanding in 2019

Michelin will provide tires for more than 100 race cars

SPECIAL TO HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

At the Motul Petit Le Mans last month at Road Atlanta, there were a total of nine race cars riding on Michelin tires, and all of them were racing in the IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship GT Le Mans (GTLM) class.

When the 2019 season begins in January,

Michelin will be providing tires for more than 100 race cars across three IMSA-sanctioned series and seven different classes of race cars as the new "Official Tire of IMSA."

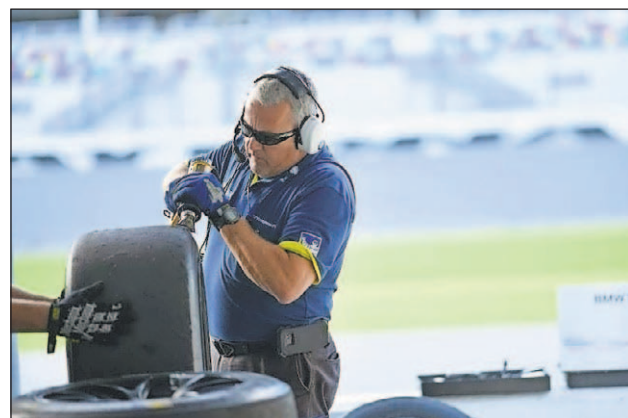

All four WeatherTech Championship classes – Daytona Prototype international (DPI), LMP2, GTLM and GT Daytona (GTD) – will use Michelins, as will both the Grand Sport (GS) and TCR classes in the newly renamed MICHELIN Pilot Challenge. Both of those series will kick off their 2019 seasons at Daytona International Speedway on the last weekend in January as part of the prestigious Rolex 24 At Daytona weekend.

And that's three weekends after the IMSA Prototype Challenge series, with an entire field of LMP3 race cars, opens its 2019 season with a three-hour race on the Roar Before the Rolex 24 At Daytona weekend that also will feature WeatherTech Championship and MICHELIN Pilot Challenge testing.

It's a tall task, to be sure,

IMSA PHOTO

but one that Michelin has been gearing up to take on since last year.

"It really started before we knew we had the business," said Michelin North America Motorsports Technical Director Ken Payne, who is overseeing the IMSA project. "Looking at the different classes and the cars being fielded and the range of tires to gain an understanding of what the scope of sizes, relative performance needs and such would be. Once we knew we had been awarded the business, it was 'Get to work' on figuring out exactly which tires we wanted to consider for use."

GTLM teams have routinely used what Michelin refers to as "confidential" tires, which are developed specifically for each of those cars' use, and those cars will remain on confidentials next season. The DPI and LMP2 prototypes will use what Payne referred to as "semi-confidential" tires, while the GTD class, both MICHELIN Pilot Challenge classes and the LMP3 cars will use what Michelin considers as "commercial" tires.

No, not "commercial" in the sense of them being the same Michelin tires you purchase from your local dealer and use on your daily driver. But if you had a race car and were competing in events at places around the world where Michelin had authorized race tire distributors, you'd be able to purchase and use these tires or something similar.

"The tires have a wide operating range," Payne said. "They're progressive, they're forgiving, they give a lot of good feedback to the driver as to how they're performing, so it's really a product that's quite suitable to the task at hand."

The availability of commercial tires for almost all of the cars competing enabled Michelin to get ahead in preparation for the 2019 season. What also has been valuable is a series of "track opportunities," which were test sessions at selected IMSA race-tracks during the course of the 2018 season for competitors to sample Michelin tires. There already have been five opportunities this year, with a sixth planned for next month.

"It gave us the opportunity to begin building a working relationship technically with the teams and to get some first-hand feedback on how our tires were performing," said Payne. "We have done that multiple times now at Road Atlanta, at Daytona, we've been to Watkins Glen twice, we did that at Road America and we've managed to work with teams from LMP3, TCR, GS, GTD and the Prototype category over a mix of cars."

battled for control. Sebring's Maria Areco ran down the right side of the field and took a shot on goal that hit the side of the net with 31:27 left in the first half. Blue Streaks' Leilani McMillan charged down the field and took a shot that Frostproof's goalkeeper Sarah True was able to stop.

Both defenses came up big in the first half and the score remained tied at 0 at the end of the first half.

Frostproof pulled ahead in the second half. Frostproof's Shelby Garrett made a long shot from 25-yards out putting the Bulldogs up 1-0 with 15:20 left in the game. The Blue Streaks made a total of nine shots for the night, three of which were on goal. The Bulldogs made a total of 16 shots for the night and seven were on frame.

"I think it was the best game we have played so far," said Sebring's Arely Marin. "We are used to losing to this team pretty badly, but we did awesome. Frostproof did not play too dirty and it was a fun game. We have a lot of new girls and we all work well together. We have never bonded this much as a team. I am really happy we are this close."

"As a senior captain I try to keep the girls up and let them know they are doing amazing. They can always come to me. This is my best year so far and I get to play with all of my friends so I love it. This season I want to try to get a soccer scholarship. As a team we want to keep our heads in the game and play our best."

Sebring's Nysia Lilly and Frostproof's Haleigh Snell fight for control of the ball in Friday night's game. The Bulldogs eased past the Blue Streaks with a final score of 2-0.

The Bulldogs got a corner kick with 10 seconds left on the clock. Garrett kicked the ball in and Sebring's goalie Bri Quinn tried to make the stop but the ball fell into the net giving Frostproof a 2-0 lead with just seconds left in the game.

"We will practice during the break," Lackey said. "We are going to work on power, touches, we have to work on fitness. We are going to try to get our legs in shape with sprints. It is a bit colder tonight but I don't think it affected the girls at all. A few of them said they had some trouble breathing but they are alright."

The Sebring Blue Streaks will be back in action after the Thanksgiving break. The Blue Streaks will travel to Lake Placid to face their old nemesis, the Green Dragons on Monday Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Roger Scarborough Memorial Field.

Dylan was offered to play for Real Valladolid and Joshua was invited to play for Portugal.

"The boys have always dreamed of becoming professional soccer players, but they know it's very hard to do as soccer is just now becoming more popular in the United States," the boys' mother said. "You have to get your skills out there and in front of coaches and scouts, and make people know your name. Building a resume with this sport can be challenging. You have to attend showcases and events that are highly populated with scouts because they [scouts] do not attend high school soccer events anymore. I am super proud of both of the boys. This is something a parent dreams of."

Joshua will leave in January to play professionally for Portugal and Dylan will head to Spain to play professionally for Real Valladolid once he has graduated from high school.

"It really is a dream come true," Josh said. "I never thought it would

How to time holiday shopping right

By METRO CREATIVE

The holiday season begins at the end of November and stretches into the first week of January. But this five-week stretch may not necessarily be the best time for everyone to shop. Harvard Business Review says that the retail industry has been turned on its head in recent years, and shoppers and retailers may want to rethink their approaches to the holiday shopping season.

Consumers are no longer interested in retailers dictating their shopping schedules, and some people have grown accustomed to buying products when they want them — especially when price is of no concern. Even budget-conscious shoppers have changed their habits, says the shopping advisor RetailNext. Many holiday shoppers are delaying their shopping until January to take advantage of post-season sales. Holiday shopping need not wait until after the holiday season, either. A 2017 RetailMeNot survey found that 45 percent of U.S. consumers said they planned to start shopping before Nov. 1. One-quarter of the survey respondents said they planned to start shopping before October, and 12 percent started shopping for the holidays in the summer. So when should consumers do their holiday shopping? It all depends on what fits a person's individual needs.

• Shop sales, not schedules. If budget is a big concern, shoppers should grab items that are on sale whenever they are available. That can mean shopping at any time of the year. People can try making a master shopping list early in the year and saving it on their mobile phones. While shopping throughout the year, items from the list can be purchased and

The concept of Vegan Thanksgiving

Vegan Thanksgiving. That might sound like an oxymoron to some, but to me it means a day spent with people who share the same lifestyle, and lots of goodies I might not get on a very common basis. There is really nothing different about Vegan Thanksgiving, except of course the food. People who aren't vegan are even invited to partake in the meal and events of the day.

The big question on everyone's mind when they first hear the term 'Vegan Thanksgiving' is "What would a vegan even eat for Thanksgiving?" After all, the star of the meal for many is often turkey, followed closely by ham. With sides such as mac and cheese, gelatinous cranberry sauce, and other various casseroles and dishes that would surely be off limits to someone who doesn't eat animal products.

However, the truth is that it really isn't that difficult to make substitutions to recipes or use vegan alternatives to things like milk and butter. A vegan diet is not as restrictive as one might think. This means that practically any dish you can think of has a vegan equivalent. This year on the menu we have things like mashed potatoes, classic pumpkin pie and even a vegan roast. As you can see, there aren't any items we're missing out on.

Something else that makes Vegan Thanksgiving especially dear to me is the opportunity to spend time with people I can relate to in a way I cannot relate to others as often. It is rare to find any other vegans in Sebring — though I have met a few of them through working at a restaurant. I do have one or two vegan friends in Highlands, but most of the other vegans I know live in a different city.

Since I will be working the entire Thanksgiving day, it will be nice to enjoy Vegan Thanksgiving a few days later. I am someone who really enjoys community, and having to miss out on gatherings with people I love is something that makes me quite upset. In fact, last year I had to miss Vegan Thanksgiving because of work, and it was my first year as a vegan.

Living a different lifestyle than others can become especially difficult when holidays or other family or group gatherings come around. After all, a lot of socializing is based on food. Dinner out with friends, drinks and snacks at someone's house, even quick trips out for dessert can be difficult. So when the chance to enjoy a meal where no ingredients lists have to be read, and no server must be interrogated comes up, I will jump at it.

I'm often asked by people who are unfamiliar with the vegan lifestyle if I miss eating the way I did before. As you can see, there are no differences between regular Thanksgiving and Vegan Thanksgiving. It is still about community and being with those you love, while enjoying dinner and the day with them all.

Increasing economic impact via tourism

Casey W. Hartt reviews the new Visit Sebring tourism guides soon to be distributed.

By DOROTHY HARRIS
CORRESPONDENT

With 20 years of experience in marketing, brand management, public relations and advertising, Casey W. Hartt serves as the Lead Marketing Consultant for the Highlands County Tourism Development Council. With the help of Administrative Assistant, Dana Knight, Hartt focuses on boosting tourism to Highlands County.

Hartt says Knight holds it all together and considering she has served in her support position since 2005, her institutional knowledge of the council's history is invaluable. "I joke Dana knows where all the bones are buried," laughed Hartt. Knight also handles the behind the scenes needs such as website maintenance, printing of banners, distributing brochures and processing grant reimbursements.

Hartt in turn serves the TDC as a consultant, owns Gray Dog Communications, and is a published author and highly-accomplished communications professional with a long-storied career in marketing campaign development. From her Getaway Girl travel brand to her supportive efforts for citrus growers during recovery after the 2004 hurricane season, Hartt is well-known in media and agricultural organizations throughout the country. With a Master's Degree in Communications from the University of Florida, this Highlands County native is well-versed in social media, digital, print and video imagery.

In her current role with the TDC, Hartt focuses on the mechanisms to increase economic impact for the county through tourism focused on golf, nature, agriculture, auto racing, arts and culture as well as events.

Following the Visit Sebring branding, which highlights all the county offers, the TDC was recognized with the Flagler Award in 2017. In 2018, the Citrus Golf Trail campaign garnered another Flagler Award for the county. "We also continue to receive great television media coverage."

Referring to free promotional coverage provided by Florida on a Tankful, about 12 separate highlights featured local arts and culture, nature-based tourism, fishing, golf and more. "Fox 13 also covered the Soda Festival and Caladium Festival," added Hartt, who reminded this was at no cost to the county.

The most prevalent markets are Miami, Orlando and Tampa. "All are within the two-hour driving distance and make Highlands County a great day trip destination." Hartt encourages events to contain an evening component in order to encourage visitors to stay overnight too.

The TDC is governed by county ordinances and is required to

How to get a stylish wardrobe on a budget

By METRO CREATIVE

Looking your best and emulating the latest runway fashions can be easy with an unlimited budget, or even a personal shopper. But the majority of the general public must shop on a budget, which can seemingly make it challenging to look stylish.

However, savvy shoppers know to upgrade a wardrobe without spending a fortune. The fashion resource Who What Wear commissioned award-winning financial planner Pete Dunn to calculate just how much a person should be allotting to his or her wardrobe.

The magic number Dunn came up with was 5 percent. Therefore, a person making $40,000 per year should be spending no more than $2,000 per year, or roughly $166 per month, on clothing. That may not seem like much, but with some smart shopping it can be enough.

Shop trendy, but affordable Retailers such as Target, Zara, H&M, Everlane, and more offer pieces that focus on current fashion trends but at deeper discounts than high-end shops.

While shoppers may not be walking out with designer duds, they will benefit from similarly cut and styled pieces and accessories that are still on point with the trends.

Shop discount retailers

Another option is to frequent discount retailers that offer name-brand merchandise at significant savings. Stores such as TJ Maxx, Marshalls and Saks Off 5th may get the overstock of other stores that they then sell for less. Many of these items may be a season or two late, but can still yield very fashionable pieces. If someone favors a certain designer or name brand, it may be sold in these shops at a fraction of the cost of other stores.

Stick to classic styles

Fill a wardrobe with staples that will never go out of style, such as dark jeans, little black dresses, peacoats, classically cut blazers, a

Mexican cheese is hot right now: A Queso primer

By BRANDPOINT

Queso, anyone? With tortillas outselling hamburger and hot dog buns while salsa dethrones ketchup, Mexican food is more popular than ever in the United States — and cheeses are a key component of America's favorite Mexican dishes. But are all cheeses created equally? Queso is not just that ubiquitous, neon cheese sauce you might sometimes see in the grocery store. In Spanish, the word simply means cheese, and Hispanic cheeses rival anything else you might see in the supermarket aisles, with a wide range of flavor profiles to tempt any palate.

Cacique, the number one brand of Hispanic cheeses, chorizos and cremas, wants to give quesos like Queso Fresco, Panela, Oaxaca and Cotija their day in the sun. Just like Mexican cuisine, Hispanic cheeses have great crossover appeal. James Beard-winning restaurateur, MasterChef judge and proud Mexican-American Chef Aarón Sánchez agrees.

"American cooks may not be as familiar with Hispanic cheeses as they are with others at the grocery store," Sánchez says. "The names might come across as intimidating, and they may not be sure of how to incorporate these cheeses into their cooking routine. But there's really no mystery. Hispanic cheeses can be used for a wide range of dishes in your everyday routine, and not just Mexican classics."

Here's a primer in Queso 101.

Queso Fresco, one of the most widely used cheeses in Mexican cooking, is a soft, fresh cheese similar in flavor and texture to ricotta, but with more savory, milky notes. Mexican cooks use it to top or stuff dishes like tacos, empanadas and enchiladas. But you don't need to limit it to Mexican cuisine. Crumble it on hot dogs, sprinkle it on soups and chowders, or make a Mexi-grilled cheese with queso fresco and green chiles.

Panela has a mild and creamy flavor, and is a crumbly, curd-style basket cheese — similar to a cross between paneer and halloumi, but less salty. This cheese is great for baking, grilling or frying. Fry a slice of panela cheese in a pan to achieve a perfectly seared snack with a gooey, delicious inside. Or, make a baked dip! Cover the cheese with roasted salsa, then bake it in a 375-degree oven for 20 minutes. Enjoy with chips or bread.

Cotija, named after the town where it originated, is like Parmesan and dry feta but creamier, with a savory flavor and crumbly texture. Use it just like you'd use Parmesan. Crumble it on salads, top pasta dishes with it, or even substitute Cotija for Parm in Fettuccine Alfredo, adding a dash of chili powder or chipotle for a little Mexican-inspired zing.

Oaxaca has a mellow, earthy flavor and buttery texture, similar to mozzarella, with a superior melt. Use it just like you'd use its Italian cousin, including pizza, lasagna, melting on sandwiches or snacking.

Manchego has a nutty, earthy flavor and creamy texture. Similar to Colby in tanginess and cheddar in aroma, Manchego will be the star of your cheese board. Or bake it into a frittata, shred it for mac and cheese, or use it anywhere you'd use cheddar.

Eager to try some of these cheeses? Cacique's website has a store locator. Type in your zip code and you'll find a store near you that carries them. And then you'll be on your way to adding the flavors of Mexico to tonight's dinner. And if you're looking for a place to start, check out this delicious Cotija Crusted Quesadilla recipe.

A cotija-crusted quesadilla.

Ingredients:
 · Non-stick spray
 · ½ cup Cacique® Cotija, crumbled
 · 1 cup Cacique® Queso Quesadilla, shredded
 · 4 flour tortillas
Directions:
 1. First spray a skillet with non-stick spray, then sprinkle 1 tablespoon of crumbled Cotija evenly around the skillet and cover with a tortilla.

 2. Next, sprinkle 1/2 cup of shredded Cacique® Queso Quesadilla over the top of the tortilla and cover with a second tortilla. Press down and let this brown for 1 minute.

3. With a spatula, lift up the entire quesadilla and sprinkle remaining Cotija evenly around the skillet. Then flip and let the other side brown for 30 seconds. Cut quesadilla into four wedges, plate it and add whatever garnish you'd like.

Pickled onions add healthy kick to any dish

By BRANDPOINT

You may have noticed more appetizers and entrees draped with pickled onions in the last couple of years. You may even have been adventurous enough to try them, learning how their tartness and onion flavor kick every dish up a notch.

Pickling has been around some 4,000 years to preserve vegetables. It became popular in 18th century England to preserve food, according to savoringthepast.net. Pickled onions are traditionally served with fish and chips or with what is called a ploughman's lunch, a dish of bread, cheese and onions — part of the English diet for centuries.

Today, pickled onions are used all over the world in a variety of dishes.

As with fashion, food trends come and go, and the pickled onion has made a resurgence in the U.S. in recent years. According to a Datassential survey on menu trends, the use of pickled onions has grown 191 percent in restaurants and diners in the U.S. in the last four years. From 2016-17, their use grew 8 percent. Chefs have learned the pickled onion adds an interesting twist when paired with burgers, dogs, salads and sandwiches.

Adding pickled onions to your dishes doesn't have to be the work of a 5-star restaurant chef. Pickling onions is easier than expected, and it adds a delicious kick to any dish you're working on for dinner, lunch or even your tailgating dogs. Pickled onions are great make-ahead options for garnishing meats, adding to salads or sandwiches. While healthier for you, you'll not be giving up the flavor.

You do not need to go overboard to have a festive living room this holiday season.

Tips for creating a festive space while leasing your home

By FAMILY FEATURES

Seasons change, and so do rental contracts and housing arrangements. If you're leasing, you can still make your rental feel like home for the holidays with seasonal decor.

There are plenty of ways to create a festive holiday setting that makes your temporary space feel like a cozy, inviting home for the holidays, according to Meghan Giddens, design expert for Invitation Homes, a leading owner and operator of more than 80,000 single-family homes for lease.

"When it comes to decorating, renters often feel limited by the temporary nature of their living arrangements," Giddens said. "We believe people should be able to make their house a home, one they're proud to share with loved ones in-person or on their social feeds, no matter how long or short the stay." These seasonal decorating tips can help you create a space worthy of your newsfeed that won't break the bank or your lease guidelines.

A festive entryway
When friends and family come to visit in celebration of the season, their first impressions often start when they walk up to the entryway. While festive touches are important to lead into the rest of the home, be careful not to overwhelm. Think of your holiday home decor as a series of unique moments, each designed to give your guests a positive experience or create an opportunity for a share-worthy photo.

A holiday staple is a creatively decorated wreath hanging on the front door. Start with a plain wreath and add some holiday flair by wrapping it with thin red ribbon and tucking pine cones into areas they will hold firmly. For added detail, weave in artificial cranberry twigs that won't lose their eye-catching pops of red color in the winter weather. Then affix your wreath to the door with a removable hook, of course.

A small tree trimmed with white lights and miniature ornaments just inside the door is a welcoming touch for guests as they step inside — just make sure it's clear of the door and there's still ample room for removing wet shoes and coats.

Magical holiday mantels

Nothing says "holiday" quite like a mantel

FAMILY FEATURES

adorned with festive decorations. In many homes, the mantel is already a focal point and the backdrop to many family photos, so it's an opportunity to make a big impact in a relatively small space. Think of your mantel as a blank canvas to create your own holiday scene. You can remove your everyday decor and add seasonal accent pieces or stash what you normally display and introduce something completely new.

Greenery in swags or a garland laid across the mantel is a classic way to dress it up for the holidays. You can add seasonal blooms like poinsettia and items like pinecones, faux antlers and berries for a nature-inspired look that can positively stand out. Or opt for oversized wire-edged ribbon to run across the mantle with gentle ripples and waves to add dimension. An easy DIY project like weighted boxes wrapped like gifts can lend extra visual appeal and festive color — simply wrap unused shoe boxes or other cardboard boxes with holiday wrapping paper, tie a bow with ribbon and stack like gifts.

Remember, the mantel is also an excellent place to display a holiday collection, such as nutcrackers or treasured figurines.

Talk of the neighborhood

There's no reason to limit your seasonal celebrating to the indoors when you can create yard decor that's the envy of the neighborhood. Holiday lights add instant holiday flair, and there are a nearly endless number of low-profile, affordable clips available that allow you to hang lights without permanently fixing or stapling anything to a home's exterior. Keep colors and patterns in mind, whether you're planning to go all-out on different colored strings or simple white all around. Other options like illuminated figures, inflatables or projection lights let you get extra creative and show a little personality, too.

Although the impact on your lease is probably less of a concern outdoors, there are some important safety precautions you should take to protect the property. Be sure you're aware of the home's electric capacity and don't overload the system. Use power cords and plug-ins designed for outdoor use and follow all the manufacturers' safety guidelines to prevent fire risks.

Also remember the details are what will make your outdoor design truly exceptional, so don't overlook everyday features like the mailbox, which you can dress up for the season with a pretty bow.

Decorating your home in a temporary yet festive manner can be accomplished with these ideas and more. Find additional tips to make your house a home any season of the year at invitation-homes.com.

Decorating Do's and Don'ts

When it comes to decorating, a DIY approach can be intimidating. Get started with these pro tips from Invitation Homes:

Do: mix textures

The holiday season is the perfect opportunity to add more texture to your home's decor. Mixing and matching textures can add depth and diversify the space. Fuzzy, festive throw pillows, colorful knit blankets or a vibrant seasonal rug all bring a temporary sense of holiday spirit.

Don't: be afraid to use color

For a season that is built around bright reds and greens, the holidays are the perfect time to play with bold colors. For optimal color balance, a common rule of thumb is to use three colors: one anchor and two accents. The anchor will be more neutral as it takes up most of the space. The two accents can be bright and contrasting, helping give the room character.

Do: layer lighting

Especially if you'll be entertaining, don't overlook the importance of lighting when planning your holiday decor. Many rooms are lit by a single overhead light. Although this ambient light typically gets the job done, the area is often left with a flat feel. Give the space dimension with varying, angled light from floor or table lamps to lend a warm glow that makes the room inviting while highlighting your favorite holiday decorations.

Don't: sacrifice function

It's easy to get carried away with filling your home with decorative pieces that really have no purpose except to look pretty. Too many showy items can lead to an overly cluttered area that looks more garish than great (and may prevent guests from fully enjoying all your hard work). Avoid holiday decorations that take up too much room or minimize seating.

Highlands County was recognized by Visit Florida with the Flagler Award in 2017 for the Visit Sebring campaign and in 2018 for the Citrus Golf Trail campaign.

follow statutorily-defined guidelines. "Local people do not pay this tax," Hartt reminded. With a focus on increasing tourism during the lowest months in the calendar year, she points out the Heartland Triathlon in June, Caladium Festival in July and Tour of Sebring in September. "The Soda Festival in April was great for our region and brought in a large number of tourists." "You never know who's here visiting," added Hartt. Brazilian bloggers came in search of gastronomic destinations highlighting unique local delicacies and the duo also hosted a group of Chinese golf tour operators recently. Hartt had met a representative of the International Golf Trail Association who invited her to an international tour operator event in Oregon. While there, she met a golf tour operator who later brought a group of 16 tour operators from China to see all the area has to offer. "The great thing about tourism is people visit and spend their money, then go home and tell everyone about how great it was," said Knight.

In order to stay relevant to emerging tourists, there is also a focus on generational marketing with specific efforts to reach Millennials. As the new fiscal year starts, Hartt and Knight are working on strategic planning for overall TDC functions. "We will be focusing on awareness and perceptions survey of potential tourists within the two to three hour radius," said Hartt. "Baselines are being developed so we can create benchmarks to allow us to set measurable goals for the next couple of years. We are also excited about our Faces Behind Local Tourism launching in May 2019."

From a mobile-friendly website to additional stock photography, drone videography and new visitor guides, Hartt is busy working to ensure Highlands County is recognized for all it has to offer related to tourism.

Consider consignment shops

Many deals can be found inside consignment shops. Such shops stock many different pieces, often at very low prices. These stores are great for people who appreciate vintage styles and/or those who want to add an accessory, say a high-priced purse, to an outfit without breaking stored until the holidays. Shop your strengths. Those who get a thrill from tackling their entire shopping list in one haul can still do that. Shopping in this manner can help shoppers focus on the task at hand and reduce the likelihood of wasting time. But keep in mind that, according to a survey conducted by Business Wire, 65 percent of holiday shoppers scramble to complete their purchases in the last two weeks before Christmas, so shoppers who delay may be stuck in long lines at the mall. Embrace in-store pickup. Many retailers are merging their online and brick-and-mortar operations.

Shoppers have the convenience of price-comparison and online shopping, with the physical enjoyment of going out to the store to complete their purchases. In-store pickup often enables shoppers to avoid hefty shipping fees, as in-store pickup is free. Plus, scoping out items online and ensuring they're in stock saves the hassle of making a trip in vain.

Shoppers can look beyond the conventional holiday season to get the best prices and deals that fit their shopping needs.

Fancy Mac

Prep time: 20 minutes

Cook time: 20 minutes

Serves: 4

- Nonstick cooking spray
- 1 package Bob Evans Macaroni and Cheese
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- 1 1/4 cups shredded Gouda cheese, divided
- 1 package Bob Evans Thick Sliced Hardwood Smoked Bacon, cooked and broken into pieces
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten

Heat oven to 400 F. Spray four ramekins with cooking spray.

Heat macaroni and cheese according to package directions. Once cooked, stir in spinach, 1 cup cheese, bacon, salt and pepper.

Let mixture stand 10-15 minutes to cool. Add eggs. Spoon evenly into ramekins. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake 20 minutes, or until centers are set.

Sweet Potato Cookies

Prep time: 28-33 minutes

Cook time: 10-12 minutes

Serves: 36

- 3/4 cup vegetable shortening
- 3/4 cup brown sugar
- 1 large egg
- 1 cup Bob Evans Mashed Sweet Potatoes
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
- 1 cup butter, unsalted
- 3 cups powdered sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon maple extract
- chopped honey roasted pecans (optional)
- mini marshmallows (optional)

Heat oven to 350 F.

In large bowl, using hand mixer or paddle attachment, cream shortening and brown sugar. Add egg and sweet potatoes; mix until combined.

In small bowl, combine flour, baking soda, salt and pumpkin pie spice. With mixer on low speed, slowly add flour mixture to egg mixture until well mixed. Using small cookie scoop, drop rounds onto greased baking sheets.

Bake 10-12 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool completely before frosting.

In separate bowl, beat together butter, powdered sugar and maple extract until frosting is light and fluffy. Frost each cooled cookie with maple butter cream frosting.

Sprinkle with pecans and mini marshmallows, if desired. Carefully toast marshmallows with culinary torch, if desired, while avoiding melting frosting.

Mini Hash Brown Casseroles

Prep time: 10 minutes

Cook time: 30 minutes

Serves: 24

- 1 pound Bob Evans Original Roll Sausage
- 4 large eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 package (20 ounces) Simply Potatoes Shredded Hash Browns
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1 cup ham, cubed
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper

1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

In skillet, cook sausage according to package directions.

Heat oven to 350 F. Lightly grease two 12-cup muffin tins.

In bowl, whisk eggs and milk. Add hash browns, butter, ham, black pepper and cheese; mix thoroughly. Fill muffin tins two-thirds full. Bake 27-30 minutes, or until toothpick or knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Substitution: For healthier alternative, substitute 1 cup AllWhites liquid egg whites instead of eggs.

Bacon-Wrapped Jalapeno Poppers

Prep time: 30 minutes

Cook time: 30 minutes

Serves: 40

- 2 packages Bob Evans Thick Sliced Hardwood Smoked Bacon, slices cut in half
- 1 package Bob Evans White Cheddar Mashed Potatoes
- 1 package garlic herb cheese spread
- 20 jalapeno peppers, halved, seeded with membranes removed
- 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cayenne pepper

Heat oven to 400 F. Set bacon out to thaw to room temperature so it is pliable.

In mixing bowl, use rubber spatula to combine mashed potatoes and garlic herb cheese. Stir until incorporated. Spread 1 teaspoon mashed potato mixture in each jalapeno half; level each with butter knife or spatula.

Wrap each jalapeno with bacon; use three half slices for large jalapenos or two halves for smaller sizes. Be sure bacon is wrapped sealing in mashed potato mixture tightly.

In small mixing bowl, combine brown sugar and cayenne pepper. Generously sprinkle over bacon and pat gently to make it stick.

Line cookie sheet with piece of parchment paper so sugar does not burn to pan. Bake until bacon reaches desired crispiness, around 25-35 minutes.

Let peppers cool slightly before serving, about 5 minutes.

Perfect Holiday Potatoes

Mashed potatoes are a staple on many holiday menus, but all that peeling and mashing can take hours. This year, save time by using refrigerated, ready-to-eat mashed potatoes, such as Bob Evans Original Mashed Potatoes, which taste just like homemade.

- Add your family's special ingredient, like sage butter, and no one will know they aren't homemade.
- Microwave the mashed potatoes just before dinner or throw them in a crockpot on low and pitch the packaging so no one knows you didn't make them ahead of time.
- Buy a couple extra and store them in the fridge in case you have unexpected holiday guests.

Report: Ivanka Trump used personal email for government work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ivanka Trump, the president's daughter and a top White House adviser, sent hundreds of emails about government business from a personal email account last year, The Washington Post reported Monday.

The emails were sent to White House aides, Cabinet members and Ivanka Trump's assistants, many in violation of public records rules, the paper said. President Donald Trump mercilessly criticized his 2016 Democratic rival, Hillary Clinton, for using a private email server during her time as secretary of state, labeling her

Gunman opens fire at Chicago hospital, killing at least 3

By AMANDA SEITZ and DON BABWIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — A gunman opened fire Monday at a Chicago hospital, killing a police officer and two hospital employees in an attack that began with a domestic dispute and exploded into a firefight with law enforcement inside the medical center. The suspect was also dead, authorities said.

It was not immediately clear if the attacker took his own life or was killed by police at Mercy Hospital on the city's South Side, police said.

"The city of Chicago lost a doctor, pharmaceutical assistant and a police officer, all going about their day, all doing what they loved," Mayor Rahm Emanuel said, fighting back tears. "This just tears at the soul of our city. It is the face and a consequence of evil."

The chain of events that led to the shooting began with an argument in the hospital parking lot involving the gunman and a woman with whom he was in a domestic relationship, police said.

When a friend of the woman's tried to intervene, "the offender lifted up his shirt and displayed a handgun," Chicago Police Superintendent Eddie Johnson said.

The woman's friend ran into the hospital to call for help, and the gunfire began seconds later, with the attacker killing the woman he was arguing with, whom Johnson described only as a hospital employee.

When officers arrived, the suspect fired at their squad car and then ran inside the hospital. The officers gave chase.

Inside the hospital, the gunman exchanged fire with officers and "shot

Trump sets off storm by criticizing retired Navy admiral

By ROBERT BURNS
AP NATIONAL SECURITY WRITER

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump has ignited a firestorm of criticism and charges that he is politicizing the military by faulting a war hero for not capturing al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden sooner.

Trump took shots at retired Adm. William McRaven in a Fox News interview Sunday in which he also asserted that the former Navy SEAL and former commander of U.S. Special Operations Command was a "backer" of Trump's 2016 rival, Hillary Clinton, and supporter of President Barack Obama.

Big question for newly elected House Dems: Will you vote for Pelosi?

By LISA MASCARO and ALAN FRAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — It's the thorny first question confronting newly elected House Democrats: Will you vote for Nancy Pelosi?

Even before they've taken office, the freshmen swept in by the midterm elections are caught at the center of an escalating power struggle over Pelosi's future.

The clash intensified Monday as Pelosi's critics unveiled a letter signed by 16 Democrats, including five freshmen, vowing to oppose her. If that holds, it could be enough to derail her bid. If not, she could reclaim the gavel she once held.

"It's the question that we got most often," said Rep.-elect Joe Neguse of Colorado, on CBS. He intends to support Pelosi. "You know I think that it's important that we have steady leadership right now."

The vote on a new speaker will be among the first cast in the new Congress, a dramatic roll call that often becomes fodder for campaign ads. For many of the Democratic freshmen, it's a moment of truth after a number of them promised on the campaign trail to oppose Pelosi and demand new leadership.

Study predicts monkey population boom in Florida park

By TAMARA LUSH
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG — A troop of roaming primates in north-central Florida will nearly double in size if state wildlife managers don't step in and stop the monkey business, according to new research released Monday.

In a study published in The Journal of Wildlife Management, researchers found that the number of rhesus macaques at Silver Springs State Park will grow to 350 animals or more by 2022. When the study was conducted in 2015, there were about 175 monkeys in the park, which is about 70 miles northwest of Orlando.

The study will help the state decide what to do with the animals. In January, wildlife officials expressed a desire to curb or even eliminate the monkey population because of research that showed some of the animals in the park carry the herpes B virus, which could potentially spread to humans. There have been 50 documented human cases worldwide, but no known transmissions to people from the Florida macaques.

Still, the state wants to reduce the potential of human-monkey interaction, which is difficult since people sometimes try to feed the animals or take selfies with them. Aggressive monkeys have forced

While this kind of monkey is

Saudi king's speech makes no mention of slain journalist

By ABDULLAH AL-SHIHRI and AYA BATRAWY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — Saudi Arabia's King Salman on Monday gave his first major speech since the killing of journalist Jamal Khashoggi by Saudi agents, expressing support for his son, the crown prince, and making no mention of allegations that the young royal ordered the killing.

The annual policy speech by the king instead highlighted Saudi Arabia's priorities for the coming year, focusing on issues such as the war in Yemen, security for Palestinians, stability in the oil market, countering rival Iran and job creation for Saudis.

The king voiced support for his favored son, Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, saying that the 32-year-old heir to the throne is focused on developing the capabilities of Saudi youth. The prince oversees all major levers of power in the kingdom, ranging from security to the economy.

"The country is working tirelessly to create more jobs and training for Saudi youth," Salman said. "The crown prince, chairman of the Council of Economic Affairs and Development, has focused on developing human capabilities and preparing the new generation for future jobs."

Saudi media reported Monday that the crown prince will attend the Group of 20 summit in Buenos Aires later this month. It would be the first trip abroad for the crown prince after the Oct. 2 slaying of Khashoggi, and would bring him face to face with world leaders from the U.S., Turkey, Canada and European countries that have strongly criticized the kingdom for the brutal killing.

King Salman delivered his remarks in the ornate hall of the consultative Shura Council before the country's ministers, senior officials, military officers and clerics. Prince Mohammed was in attendance and seated next to the country's top cleric.

In the wake of Khashoggi's killing inside the Saudi consulate in Istanbul, the 82-year-old monarch put Prince Mohammed in charge of overseeing the reorganization of intelligence services. The king's speech made no reference to that, but he did commend Saudi Arabia's judiciary and public prosecution for their work in seeking justice in accordance with Islamic law.

On Thursday, Saudi prosecutors said they are seeking the death penalty against five men suspected of killing Khashoggi, who had written critically of the crown prince in columns for The Washington Post. The prosecutor's announcement sought to quiet the global outcry over Khashoggi's death and distance the killers and their operation from the crown prince.

U.S. intelligence officials, however, have concluded that the crown prince ordered the killing, according to a U.S. official familiar with the assessment. Others familiar with the case caution that while it's likely that the crown prince was involved in the death, there continue to be questions about what role he played.

Saudi investigators say a high-ranking adviser to the crown prince, Saud al-Qahtani, and a senior intelligence official, Ahmed al-Assiri, concocted a plan to force Khashoggi to return to Saudi Arabia, deeming his presence abroad as a threat to national security.

Saudi prosecutors say the 15-man team sent to Istanbul exceeded their authority when the lead negotiator in the team decided to kill Khashoggi for refusing orders to return. The Saudis say the agents killed Khashoggi with tranquilizers and then dismembered his body, which has not been found.

1 killed, 3 wounded in Haiti amid violent protests

By EVENS SANON

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — One police officer was killed and three people were wounded in Haiti on Monday amid a second day of countrywide protests over allegations of government corruption.

Two of the wounded were foreigners who were hurt by gunfire.

One of those was a 29-year-old French woman who was riding with her boyfriend and a Haitian-American tourist from the Port-au-Prince airport to a popular beach club about two hours away.

Her name is Marion Bobin, 29, said her boyfriend, Francis Eugene, who explained the incident to The Associated Press.

Eugene, 27, said the Haitian-American tourist and the driver were also wounded.

He said a group of armed men tried to stop an airport shuttle operated by the club about a half-hour before it arrived at its destination and opened fire when it refused to stop.

It wasn't immediately clear how seriously the tourists and driver were hurt.

Haitian police said earlier in the day that one of their officers had been killed by a street gang in the capital.

Police spokesman Gary Derosier told the AP that the officer was riding in a motorcycle taxi that was stopped at a roadblock run by a street gang, who fatally shot him and burned his body in an alley.

Schools were closed and most other activities around the country were stopped Monday, a day after six died in clashes between protesters and police.

Demonstrators were calling for the president to resign for not investigating allegations of corruption in the previous government over a Venezuelan subsidized energy program, Petrocaribe.

AP cameraman shot during Gaza protest

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Witnesses and medical officials say an Associated Press cameraman has been shot and wounded while covering a demonstration in the Gaza Strip.

Rashed Rashid, 47, was hit in the leg Monday during a weekly protest next to the Israeli border. Doctors said he suffered multiple bone fractures above the ankle and would need surgery.

Witnesses said he was about 1,969 feet from the fence, far from the protesters. He was operating a live camera on an elevated area overlooking the protest and wearing a blue helmet and brown protective vest with the word "PRESS" written in white.

Co-workers said the fire appeared to come from the Israeli side of the border. The Israeli military said it was investigating the incident.

Rashid has worked for the AP since 2002.

US cuts in Palestinian refugee aid mitigated by new pledges

DEAD SEA, Jordan (AP) — The U.N. agency for Palestinian refugees says it has nearly closed its funding gap after securing new donor pledges to make up for U.S. aid cuts.

Pierre Kraehenbuehl, the head of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency, said Monday that the shortfall was reduced from $446 million to $21 million, singling out donors from Europe and the Gulf.

He says the agency no longer faces the "critical situation" created by a U.S. decision earlier this year to cut nearly $300 million of aid.

The agency provides health care, education and social services to 5.4 million Palestinian refugees and their descendants in the West Bank, Gaza Strip, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon. The agency was created after the mass displacement of Palestinians during the 1948 war over Israel's creation.

3 men charged with planning mass killing in Australian city

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Police say three men inspired by the Islamic State group have been charged with planning a mass-casualty attack in Melbourne, the nation's second-largest city.

Victoria Police Chief Commissioner Graham Ashton says the Australian citizens of Turkish descent were arrested Tuesday in their Melbourne homes in police raids before dawn.

They had had their passports cancelled this year because of security concerns.

The men — 21, 26 and 30 — will appear in a Melbourne court later Tuesday, charged with acting in preparation of a terrorist event. They each could face a life prison sentence if convicted.

In what police described as an Islamic State-inspired terrorist attack in Melbourne on Nov. 9, a man who had his passport cancelled in 2015 was shot dead by police after he fatally stabbed a 74-year-old man and injured two other people.

6 arrested on sex charges at Toronto all-boys school

TORONTO (AP) — Police arrested six students from a prestigious private all-boys Catholic school in Toronto on Monday and charged them with sexual assault related to a video that was posted on the internet.

Toronto Police Inspector Dominic Sinopoli said the teens, who are all 14 and 15, are from St. Michael's College and were charged with assault, gang sexual assault and sexual assault with a weapon.

The high school is known for its sports programs and has produced many National Hockey League players over the years.

Sinopoli said the school failed to notify police immediately and police became aware of the sexual assault through the media. Police are investigating at least three other hazing incidents, including another alleged sexual assault.

Those arrested are young offenders and cannot be named. They appeared in court Monday and received bail.

St. Michael's has expelled eight students and suspended another in connection with at least two other incidents that allegedly took place on campus and were captured on video.

"The incidents of sexualized assault that happened to our students and on our school grounds are simply horrific," the school said in a statement.

26 students hospitalized after exposure to unknown substance

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) — Officials say 26 students and one adult staff member from a South Florida high school have been hospitalized, including some who had seizures, after possible exposure to an unknown substance.

Fort Lauderdale Fire Rescue officials say students began feeling ill Monday after being in the gym at Cardinal Gibbons High School, a private Roman Catholic school. Some students experienced seizures, others had nosebleeds or shortness of breath and some passed out.

The South Florida Sun Sentinel reports that paramedics and a hazardous materials crew responded to determine if the illnesses were the result of an exposure to some type of substance.

The Fort Lauderdale Police tweeted that the area of concern was isolated, and there was no need for parents to pick up their children.

Pit bull fatally attacks 5-day-old girl

DUNNELLO (AP) — Authorities in Florida say a pit bull climbed into a crib and fatally attacked a 5-day-old girl.

Investigators with the Citrus County Sheriff's Office say they are investigating the girl's death as an accident and no criminal charges are expected to be filed.

The Citrus County Chronicle reports the attack took place early last week.

Arriving deputies found a family member performing CPR on the infant, who was still somewhat responsive. The girl was taken to a hospital, where she was pronounced dead.

A relative told deputies that the dog had jumped on a bed which was next to the bassinet and started attacking the baby girl.

Animal control officers took the pit bull to an animal shelter where the dog was euthanized.

Teacher charged with videotaping undressing student

HUDSON (AP) — Investigators say a Florida teacher confessed to secretly videotaping a high school student as she changed her shirt.

Pasco County sheriff's officials say Fivay High School English teacher Thomas John Kovack was arrested Friday on a charge of video voyeurism.

Investigators say a 17-year-old girl went into a closet to change her shirt for a class photo when she noticed a cellphone was videotaping her.

She looked at the phone and found video of Kovack placing the phone in the closet and her undressing. She deleted the video and reported Kovack.

Investigators say the 38-year-old teacher admitted placing the phone in the closet, knowing the girl would be undressing there.

He was released on $5,000 bond. Jail records do not show if he has an attorney.

Uber partners with Florida taxi company

ORLANDO (AP) — Uber is joining forces with a Florida transportation company in what is expected to be the first-of-its-kind partnership between the ridesharing company and a traditional taxi enterprise.

Uber and Mears Transportation said Monday they are launching their partnership in central Florida.

The Orlando Sentinel reports that under the arrangement users on the Uber app will get a luxury option, UberBlack, that summons either a Mears vehicle or an Uber vehicle for the same price.

Officials say the partnership allows Uber to grow its fleet in metro Orlando with an established transportation network in the region.

Officials say Mears gets Uber's customer base and technology.

Previously, Mears had battled Uber at City Hall and the Florida Legislature over its inroads into the local transportation industry.

Deputies fatally shoot suspected drug dealer

FORT PIERCE (AP)

— Florida sheriff's deputies fatally shot a drug trafficking suspect they say tried to run them over with his car.

St. Lucie County Sheriff Ken Mascara told reporters that 27-year-old Rio Antwan Thomas was a major heroin dealer whom deputies tried to arrest Saturday.

He said that when Thomas parked outside a fast-food restaurant, a deputy parked his car to block him as others moved in to arrest him.

Mascara said Thomas put the car into reverse and smashed into the patrol car, then put it into drive and accelerated, striking a deputy. That deputy was not seriously hurt.

Mascara said Thomas then drove at other deputies, who opened fire, killing him. Court records show Thomas was charged last year with cocaine and heroin trafficking and released on $76,000 bond.

Man who strangled wife, killed his 2 girls sentenced to life

By KATHLEEN FOODY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREELEY, Colo. — A man who strangled his pregnant wife and suffocated their two young daughters wanted to escape his marriage and growing family, prosecutors said Monday as a judge imposed a sentence of life without parole after a plea deal kept the killer from facing the death penalty.

Christopher Watts, who pleaded guilty two weeks ago, did not speak during the hearing. One of his attorneys said Watts was "sincerely sorry."

As Watts listened with his head down, Shanann Watts' parents detailed their ongoing struggle to understand how he could murder the three people who considered him a hero — Shanann, 34, Bella, 4, and Celeste, 3. Frank Rzucek said he was disgusted by the way his son-in-law took his wife and two daughters "out like the trash" and dubbed him an "evil monster."

"Prison is too good for you," Rzucek said. "This is hard to say, but may God have mercy on your soul."

Prosecutors have said Shanann Watts' relatives, who live in North Carolina, asked them not to seek the death penalty when defense attorneys made the proposal.

Watts, 33, was formally sentenced to three consecutive life sentences for the murders. He also received a 48-year sentence for unlawful termination of a pregnancy and 12 years each for tampering with a corpse, totaling 84 years.

The girls' bodies were found submerged in separate oil tanks on property owned by the company Watts worked for. His wife's body was found in a shallow grave nearby.

As a prosecutor detailed the injuries found on the bodies, Rzucek leaned forward, gasping. District Attorney Michael Rourke said Shanann Watts was strangled, but her lack of significant injuries suggested her death came slowly.

The girls were smothered, and Rourke said there were signs Bella "fought for her life." Celeste had no visible injuries, he said.

Christopher Watts' parents, Cindy and Ronnie Watts, were permitted to speak as the girls' grandparents. "We love you," Cindy

Watts said into a microphone before turning to look directly at her son. "And we forgive you, son."

Watts wiped away a tear with his shirt after his parents left the podium. He kept his head down for much of the hearing, speaking only once to confirm that he did not want to make a statement before Judge Marcelo Kopcow imposed his sentence.

Friends of Shanann Watts lined up inside the courthouse Monday morning. More people filed into an overflow room to watch a video stream.

The killings became the focus of true crime blogs and online video channels, which showed dozens of family photos and videos that Shanann Watts shared on social media showing the smiling family.

Prosecutors said the images belied a hidden truth, that Christopher Watts was having an affair with a co-worker. A friend asked police to check on Shanann Watts on Aug. 13 after not being able to reach her and growing concerned that the expectant mother had missed a doctor's appointment.

Rourke said police later found that Watts spoke to a real estate agent about selling the family's home and called the girls' school to report that they could not be present when fall classes began.

Investigators quickly became suspicious of him. Meanwhile, Watts spoke to television reporters from the front porch of the family's home in Frederick, a small town on the plains north of Denver where drilling rigs and oil wells surround booming subdivisions.

He pleaded for his family's safe return, telling reporters their house felt empty without Bella and Celeste watching cartoons or running to greet him at the door.

Within days he was in custody, charged with killing his family.

Rourke said Watts has never discussed a motive for the killings with police, and investigators could find no explanation other than his ongoing affair.

"I can't speak as to why anyone would take the steps that he did ... we couldn't find anything else that was a significant enough motive to annihilate your family," he said.

Man sought after sexual assault, shooting in Catholic store

By JIM SALTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALLWIN, Mo. — Police in suburban St. Louis on Monday were searching for a gunman who went into a religious supply store, sexually assaulted at least one woman and shot a woman in the head. St. Louis County police say the victim was pronounced dead at a local hospital.

The shooting happened about 3:15 p.m. at a Catholic Supply of St. Louis store in western St. Louis County, near the town of Ballwin. Police were looking for a man about 5-foot-7 with a heavy build, and said he should be considered armed and dangerous.

The gunman walked into the store and sexually assaulted at least one woman — police spokesman Shaun McGuire said he couldn't confirm media reports that more than one woman was assaulted.

It wasn't clear why the store was targeted and McGuire didn't know if its religious affiliation was a factor.

He said that the woman who was shot did not know the suspect.

"Obviously, that adds to the intensity of our search," McGuire said.

The shooting happened at a strip mall in an affluent area of suburban St. Louis along Manchester Road, one of the most congested roadways in the region. McGuire said the heavy volume of traffic only made finding the suspect more difficult.

Catholic Supply of St. Louis Inc. operates three stores specializing in church supplies for parishes as well as Catholics. The company's website says it also publishes national supply catalogs.

Police: Texas girl, 6, strangles baby brother as dad shopped

HOUSTON (AP) — Police have charged a Houston man with child abandonment after concluding that his 6-year-old daughter strangled her 1-year-old brother with a seatbelt in the family car parked outside a thrift store while their father shopped.

Adrian Dreshuan Middleton was charged Friday in the May 20 incident on the eastern edge of Houston. A criminal complaint says the 26-year-old father told investigators that he parked outside the thrift store, left the air conditioner on, gave the children water and a snack and played a movie while he went into the store to shop for clothes.

Surveillance video showed Middleton was in the store for almost 1½ hours before returning and noticing his daughter crying in the back seat.

The child told investigators that she was playing with her brother and got angry when he wouldn't stop crying. She said she wrapped the seatbelt around her brother and thought he had fallen asleep.

Studies say stem cell treatment for MS is not yet ready

DEAR DR. ROACH: My 45-year-old daughter was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis about a year ago following alarming bladder problems and numbness. She received steroids that effectively treated the bladder problem. She subsequently had a relapse with more widespread numbness and a feeling of being off balance. Within a short time, she started on Ocrevus. She continues to have symptoms.

Dr. Roach

She is considering going out of the country for stem cell treatment. Her neurologist does not support this step. He would like her to wait until the research data supports the treatment and/or new and better treatments become available. My daughter is considering the stem cell treatment because she believes it gives her the best chance of impeding the progression of the disease. Where do you stand regarding stem cell treatment for MS? — A.M.

ANSWER: Stem cells are cells that have the ability to differentiate into many different types of cells, under the right conditions. Multiple sclerosis is thought to be an autoimmune disease directed at the myelin, the protective layer around nerve cells that make up much of the white matter of the brain.

Cells that have been used for treatment of MS include the patient's own stem cells (usually obtained from the patient's blood after giving medication to release it from the bone marrow) or umbilical cord blood. There are some results of studies about these therapies.

One type of study collected stem cells from the patient, then used chemotherapy to largely but not completely destroy the person's existing immune system, then replaced the immune cells in the bone marrow with the person's own stem cells. (This is referred to as "rebooting" the immune system.) Participants in the study showed improvement in their rates of relapses, but also improvements in the activity of MS as seen by MRI scan.

However, this should still be considered preliminary, and the regimen has significant toxicity (3 percent to 8 percent of people died from complications).

Umbilical cord blood also has been used without the chemotherapy that damages the person's immune system. A study of 20 subjects was published in 2018 showing improvements in symptoms and an apparent slowing of disease seen by MRI.

Neither of these types of treatments have been subjected to the most rigorous type of trial, a controlled study. I suspect that's why your daughter's neurologist would like to wait and see whether ongoing trials can better define the risks and benefits of stem cell treatments.

On the other hand, there is clearly potential for benefit, and I understand why your daughter would wish to try an unproven therapy. Since you asked for my personal opinion, as a conservative physician by nature, I would recommend against going out of the country to use these treatments, and agree with her neurologist. However, I would understand if she disagreed.

I found at least eight studies currently enrolling subjects with multiple sclerosis for stem cells at clinicaltrials.gov. If she were to consider enrolling in a trial, she could help advance the state of the science as well as potentially get a promising new treatment.

Family to reject spending holidays with sex offender

DEAR ABBY: I have a nephew who is a Level III sex offender. My mom wants him at her house for the holidays, but none of the other family members plan to attend with their kids if he's there.

Dear Abby

Mom insists we should forgive him and can't understand how people can't forgive him for molesting children in his family. I don't understand how my mom thinks it should be easy for us to forgive, but I feel bad for what she's going through. How can I help her understand that I see both sides of it? — Torn Apart

DEAR TORN: Go online and print out the definition of a Level III or Tier III sex offender so your mother can read it.

These individuals are considered the most dangerous and most likely to reoffend. While at some point your relatives may be able to forgive your nephew for what he did, to ignore it could be dangerous for their children. Although you didn't mention the conditions under which he is out of prison, he may no longer be allowed to be in the presence of minors, because if he's caught, he might have to go back in.

DEAR ABBY: My friend just died. I receive only Social Security disability, and I'm poor. I don't have a suit or dark dress pants, just blue jeans and T-shirts. However, I can afford a dark-colored dress shirt to wear to my friend's funeral. Is this acceptable attire for saying goodbye to my friend, or would it be better to say goodbye on my own after the funeral? I don't know his relatives, and learned of his death only today when a family member showed up to collect something I held for him. — Saying Goodbye

DEAR SAYING GOODBYE: I'm sorry you lost your friend. If you would like to attend the funeral, by all means do. Funerals aren't supposed to be fashion runways, so wear whatever you feel is respectful and stop worrying about offending anyone's sensibilities.

* The presence of residual mud/water staining on the carpet or upholstery points to water damage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Like most people, you unconsciously seek out what you believe might heal the wounds of the past. Unlike most people, you wake up midreached to question your own motives. TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your areas of deep sensitivity and feeling needn't be quite so protected in light of your choice to be in environments that support you fully. So you can let your guard down a bit. GEMINI (May 21-June 21). What if you knew that your belief in someone was the essential ingredient that would allow that person to grow into who he or she wanted to be? Act as if this is so, and you'll bring magic to your world. CANCER (June 22-July 22). To need security is only natural. Those who've had it don't think about this as much as those who've been without it. When things shake up a little, it's good, but no one wants to live like every day is an earthquake. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Communicating well starts with a feeling that you can — that no one is going to leave or get too upset if you bring up an uncomfortable truth. Your success in relationships will be due in part to the emotional maturity of all involved. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A touch of fantasy can be excellent for relationships, but when fantasy becomes the preferred mode, the relationship never gets a chance to thrive. Avoid the dynamic of needing to save or be saved. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Extreme independence is an illusion. People need interaction to survive. Don't be fooled by someone who seems fine as a solo act. Even introverts benefit from fellowship, however awkward it may be. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Believe your heart. Listen to what it tells you. It's OK to feel that you're somehow lacking, even though the picture looks about right. This could definitely be about people being there for you, but not in the way that you need. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It's safe to move forward. It still could turn out to be a prickly arrangement, but you can handle it, and besides, there is opportunity in that, too. Such challenges will build emotional muscle tone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Turbulence isn't passion, but it might look like it to someone who doesn't know better. The excitement of conflict produces similar symptoms, so it's a fair mistake, but one you don't have time for today. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Though you may not say that you approve of yourself, it shows in your every action today. You've a comfort level, a confidence, and all you do will be congruent with your inner drive. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'll rely on machines, and your life will be better for it as long as you remember that machines can't think. Rather, they make deductions based on data. Bring your intuition and emotional insight to the equation. TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 20). You enjoy making people happy, but it's really not your job to please the world. Drop that idea, and suddenly a healthier set of priorities and boundaries begins to shuffle up your life. At first it seems that it's your turn to be happy, and then you realize you don't have to take turns. You get your needs met on a daily basis. Leo and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 4, 44, 48 and 16.

Keith Hanson, of Boca Raton, Florida, has long been one of the top bridge teachers in the USA. He is based out of Jourdan's Bridge Club, in Delray Beach, Florida — one of North America's top bridge clubs. He has run the teaching program at Jourdan's for decades, and he also teaches in many other venues.

Hanson, also an expert player, was South in today's deal.

North must have had a glow in his eye when he jumped to six hearts, trusting Hanson to find a way to bring it home. Many would have settled for less than slam. Hanson won the opening club lead in hand with the ace, carefully shedding a diamond from dummy. Even looking at all four hands, it is hard to see how Hanson took 12 tricks.

A diamond to the nine at trick two lost to the king, and Hanson won the spade shift with his ace. He crossed to dummy with the ace of hearts and led the queen of diamonds, covered with the ace, and ruffed by declarer. A heart back to dummy's king drew the last outstanding trump and Hanson discarded his remaining spade on dummy's jack of diamonds.

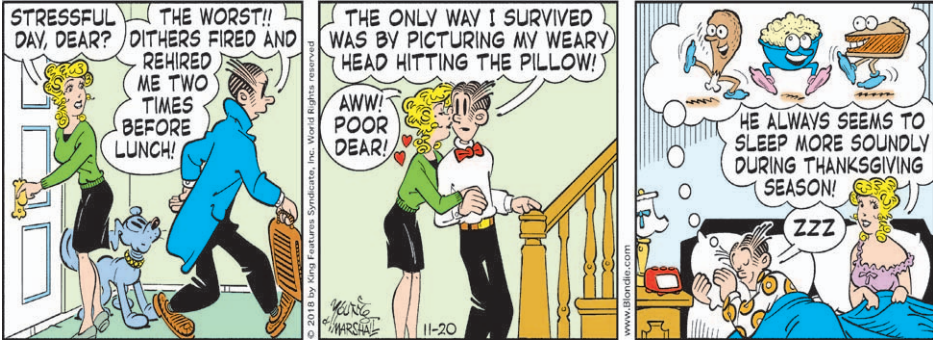

A spade ruff in his hand, a club ruff in dummy, and another spade ruff established dummy's spades. Another club ruff was the entry to enjoy them. Well played!

White House permanently restores CNN's Jim Acosta's press pass

By CHRIS SOMMERFELDT
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

The White House backed down Monday from a contentious legal fight over Jim Acosta's press pass, informing the CNN correspondent that his credentials have been fully restored.

Press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders and communications director Bill Shine made the announcement in a letter to Acosta, but warned him his credentials could be in jeopardy again if he violates a fresh set of "rules."

"Should you refuse to follow these rules in the future, we will take action," the two senior Trump administration officials said. "The President is aware of this decision and concurs."

The rules state that journalists at White House news conferences will, if called upon, "ask a single question" and then yield the floor to other reporters, unless President Donald Trump or other administration officials specifically permit a follow-up question.

Contrary to what Monday's letter states, the rules aren't new. What is new, however, is the threat that press passes can be revoked as a consequence of violating them.

The restoration of Acosta's press pass caps off a bitter battle between CNN and the White House that erupted after Acosta asked Trump multiple follow-up questions during a news conference in the East Room on Nov. 7.

The White House initially claimed it pulled Acosta's pass because he had "laid hands" on an intern who tried to yank a microphone from his hands during the news conference. The administration circulated a doctored video that appeared to have been created by far-right conspiracy theory site Infowars to back up the dubious claim.

Amid widespread pushback, the administration abandoned that argument and instead accused Acosta of "grandstanding" at the press conference while still refusing to restore his credentials.

That resulted in CNN filing a federal lawsuit against the White House, contending that the administration had violated Acosta's Fifth Amendment rights by revoking his credentials.

U.S. District Court Judge Timothy Kelly — who was appointed by Trump — sided with CNN and ordered the White House last week to immediately restore Acosta's credentials on a temporary basis.

Defiant White House officials did so but fired off a letter to Acosta after the ruling informing him that they intended to suspend his pass again once Kelly's 14-day restraining order expired.

The White House evidently backpedaled on that threat Monday.

"President Trump believes strongly in the First Amendment and interacts with the press in just such a way," Sanders and Shine wrote in their letter.

2017 and had just recently completed his probationary period, Johnson said.

The identities of the other victims, and the gunman, were not immediately released.

Television footage of the aftermath showed several people, including some wearing white coats, walking through a parking lot with their arms up.

Jennifer Eldridge was working in a hospital pharmacy when she heard three or four shots that seemed to come from outside. Within seconds, she barricaded the door, as called for in the building's active shooter drills. Then there were six or seven more shots, now much closer, just outside the door.

"I could tell he was now inside the lobby. There was screaming," she recalled.

The door jiggled, which Eldridge believed was the shooter trying to get in. Some 15 minutes later, she estimated, a SWAT team officer knocked at the door, came in and led her away. She looked down and saw blood on the floor but no bodies.

Police in Chicago say a suspected gunman is dead and an officer and three others are have also died in the shooting at a hospital in the city.

"It may have been 15 minutes, but it seemed like an eternity," she told a reporter.

Maria Correa hid under a desk, clutching her 4-month-old son, Angel, while the violence unfolded. Correa was in the waiting area of the hospital for her mother-in-law's doctor appointment when a hospital employee told them to lock themselves in offices.

She lost track of how many shots she heard while she waited under the desk, "trying to protect her son," for 10 to 15 minutes.

"They were the worst minutes of our lives," Correa, a Chicago resident, said.

Dennis Burke, who lives across the street from the hospital, was getting off the bus when he heard six gunshots and saw officers nearby with their guns drawn.

"I dropped my groceries," Burke said. He ducked behind the bus for cover and watched as 50 to 100 people poured out of the hospital, including a victim on a stretcher.

People "were helping each other over the fence, trying to get away," Burke said. "People were running across the street, right past me — everybody from doctors to what looked like patients, people of all ages."

A message left for hospital officials was not immediately returned.

saying she belonged in jail.

The White House did not immediately respond to questions about the email use, but a spokesman for Ivanka Trump's lawyer, Abbe Lowell, didn't dispute the report.

"While transitioning into government ... Ms. Trump sometimes used her private account, almost always for logistics and scheduling concerning her family," said the spokesman, Peter Mirjanian.

Mirjanian stressed that no classified information was transmitted in the messages, that no emails were deleted and that the emails have since been "retained" in conformity with records laws.

"When concerns were raised in the press 14 months ago, Ms. Trump reviewed and verified her email use with White House Counsel and explained the issue to congressional leaders," he said.

The discovery was prompted by public records requests from the liberal watchdog group American Oversight. The group's executive director, Austin Evers, said in a statement that "The president's family is not above the law," and he called on Congress to investigate.

"For more than two years, President Trump and senior leaders in Congress have made it very clear that they view the use of personal email servers for government business to be a serious offense that demands investigation and even prosecution, and we expect the same standard will be applied in this case," he said.

The emails the group uncovered include correspondence between Ivanka Trump and Small Business Administrator Linda McMahon and Education Secretary Betsy DeVos.

freshmen have signed onto the letter opposing Pelosi. Two of them, Anthony Brindisi in New York and Ben McAdams in Utah, are in races that have not yet been called by The Associated Press.

Other freshmen who have said they would oppose Pelosi did not sign the letter, and the fight for their allegiance is raging behind the scenes.

The showdown is splitting Democrats after they took control of the House in the midterm elections, overshadowing what would be the historic return of the first woman to ever hold the speaker's office.

On the one hand, Pelosi's supporters say now more than ever the party needs the California Democrat's leadership as a skilled strategist and tireless fundraiser to confront President Donald Trump and Senate Republicans in Congress.

On the other, Pelosi's critics say she has become such a weight on the party, starring as the chief villain in Republican attack ads against Democrats, that she needs to step aside and make way for a new generation of leadership.

Among those leading the effort against her, Rep. Seth Moulton of Massachusetts has said his group is trying to protect the freshmen so they can survive their re-elections without having Pelosi's image hanging over their campaigns. The Pelosi opponents' theory is, once it's clear she doesn't have the votes, a new leader will emerge.

"Our majority came on the backs of a majority that said they would support new leadership," the group wrote in the letter. "We promised to change the status quo and we intend to deliver on that promise."

All of the freshman opponents so far are men, and Pelosi's critics have been criticized, especially on social media, as being led mostly by men. Just two of those signing the letter are women.

With the Democrats holding 232 seats, Pelosi can't afford to lose many votes and still hold the 218 needed to become speaker, presuming all Republicans oppose her. That margin could shift, though, if lawmakers are absent or simply vote "present," which reduces the threshold.

was CIA director during the bin Laden raid and later served as secretary of defense, said Trump owed an apology to McRaven and to all of those in the military and intelligence agencies who played a role in tracking down bin Laden and carrying out the risky raid in Pakistan. He called Trump's remark "patently ridiculous."

"It demonstrates a profound lack of understanding of how our military and intelligence agencies operate and undermines the president's own standing as commander-in-chief," Panetta said in a statement.

The controversy follows a pattern of concerns raised by former senior military officers about Trump's grasp of the military's role, including those who assert that his decision to send thousands of active-duty troops to the U.S.-Mexico border shortly before the Nov. 6 midterm elections was a political stunt.

McRaven told CNN he is a fan both of George W. Bush and Barack Obama, having served under them. "I admire all presidents, regardless of their political party, who uphold the dignity of the office and who use that office to bring the nation together in challenging times," he said pointedly.

McRaven previously had drawn widespread attention for lambasting Trump for repeatedly calling the news media the "enemy of the people." McRaven had said the president's words were "the greatest threat to democracy" in his lifetime. When this was raised in the Fox News interview, Trump lashed out at McRaven, who organized and executed the bin Laden raid in Pakistan in May 2011 as head of the secretive Joint Special Operation Command.

"Wouldn't it have been nice if we got Osama bin Laden a lot sooner than that, wouldn't it have been nice?" Trump said.

Asked whether military leaders were not due credit for having killed the al-Qaida leader, Trump said, "They took him down but — look, look, there's news right there, he lived in Pakistan, we're supporting Pakistan, we're giving them $1.3 billion a year, which we don't give them anymore, by the way, I ended it because they don't do anything for us, they don't do a damn thing for us."

If officials want to eliminate the monkeys entirely, they'll have to remove at least half of them every other year, the study said. That would involve trapping and relocating, or trapping and euthanizing. The other option would involve sterilizing at least half the adult females every two years. That could cut the population to one-third its current size, the study showed.

All options, including doing nothing, are fraught with pitfalls.

"The monkeys invoke a lot of human emotion," said Johnson, adding that it's far less controversial to propose culling a non-native species like a python from Florida's Everglades. "Some people, their opinion is that these animals have a right to be there."

Monkeys are not native to Florida. While local legend says the monkeys in the park were released when the 1939 movie "Tarzan Finds a Son" was filmed in the area, experts say the primates are descended from monkeys intentionally released in the 1930s to increase tourism.

In hindsight, that was a bad idea, the researchers say.

C. Jane Anderson, a professor at Texas A&M University Kingsville and another co-author of the study, said it's not just the potential monkey-human danger that needs to be considered when managing the animals.

"We do know there's a very good chance that the Macaques are having a negative impact on native species," she said. In other parts of the world, invasive macaques ate eggs of native birds and decimated bird populations. In the Florida Keys, macaques destroyed 30 acres of mangroves, said Anderson. Additionally, 3,000 free-ranging rhesus macaques are maintained on Morgan Island, South Carolina, for biomedical research, and experts blame the monkeys for elevated levels of E. coli and fecal coliform bacteria in the waterways around the island.

The macaques are just one of Florida's many nonnative wildlife species, and they're also a tourist attraction. Companies offer kayak tours to see the monkeys, with tourists giving the experience five-star reviews on sites like TripAdvisor. "The monkeys were calm and accommodating," wrote one visitor, who said the troop sat on the bank of the river while people in kayaks took photos.

There might have been a reason for that: Johnson said that the monkeys are so smart that they knew that weekends drew more people to the river, and thus more opportunities for food.

"That's what makes management of them difficult," Johnson says. "They're intelligent, thinking animals."

Miami's Tannehill on schedule for possible return this week

By STEVEN WINE
AP SPORTS WRITER

DAVIE, Fla. — Ryan Tannehill is throwing the ball 50 yards in side sessions, and the Miami Dolphins would love to see those passes in a game. Maybe this week.

Tannehill made progress during the team's bye week in his rehabilitation from a throwing shoulder injury, and remains on schedule to meet his goal of returning Sunday at Indianapolis.

There are significant hurdles yet to be cleared. Coach Adam Gase said Monday he didn't even know whether Tannehill will participate fully in practice this week, but sounded upbeat about his quarterback's recent progress.

"I feel like it is forever since I've seen him throw," Gase said. "To me he looks like what he once looked like."

Brock Osweiler has gone 2-3 starting for Tannehill. The injury-plagued Dolphins are 5-5 and tied for sixth place in the AFC with the Colts and three other teams.

The Dolphins' eagerness to get Tannehill back in the lineup is magnified because their offense has gone nine quarters without a touchdown. Osweiler's most recent scoring pass came four games ago.

Tannehill has said he's resigned to throwing with pain the rest of the year because of an injury to his shoulder capsule in Week 5. He's now targeting receivers on the move, but his shoulder stamina remains a concern and needs to be tested by the intensity of practice, Gase said.

"He can throw it down the field now," Gase said. "It looks good. It's just all about how many times."

Gase is wary of a setback and said he wants to decide soon on a starter for Sunday.

"I'm running out of time," he said. "We can't be wrong and start the week one way, and then flip when we get to Friday."

Miami's first practice of the week — and first since Nov. 9 — will be Tuesday.

While Tannehill's progress was encouraging, the Dolphins took another hit on the health front when they decided to place receiver-returned

Pirates make quick work of Cougars in Preseason Classic

By JACOB HOAG
STAFF WRITER

ENGLEWOOD — The handful of fans that came to watch the Port Charlotte High boys basketball preseason opener got a glimpse of the up-tempo pace that the Pirates intend to play with this year.

Using it to their advantage, the Pirates opened the Lemon Bay Preseason Classic up with a 53-25 win over Cardinal Mooney.

"A little rusty, but their giving effort," Port Charlotte coach Kip Rhoten said. "A little nervous some of them, first time they've been out here. But overall we sit back and watch the tape now and learn from it. That's the good thing about the tip-off tournament, everyone gets to play."

What they lack in size they certainly make up for in speed and athleticism as displayed on a forceful fast-break dunk in the opening quarter by senior Tyler Perry.

Port Charlotte shook off the offseason rust with ease, jumping out to a 17-0 lead in the first quarter. It took until 1:28 in the first for the Pirates to give up their first point, which came on a free throw.

At the half, Port Charlotte held a commanding 27-11 lead and extended that to 20 by the midway point of the final quarter.

But it's only the first game of many and Rhoten takes what he sees — good or bad — with a bit of skepticism. It's early and things can and will change.

"We need to work on everything, it's the first game of the year," Rhoten said. "We'll watch film and there are a lot of things you can pick apart. Some things that were good, a lot of things that were bad, but I thought the effort was there."

Senior Alex Romero led with 18 points, followed by Perry with 11.

The Pirates also got a good look at their second unit, which was led by Sophomore Gerald Robinson, who had nine points off the bench.

"They're doing well, they played hard," Rhoten said. "I ask, 'Do you wanna play?' Because if you wanna play you have to get out there and do something and I was pleased with their efforts. You look out there in the second unit and you have four sophomores and a Geisendorfer, a junior, led the team with 12 points and 11 rebounds, but still has a little way to go to find his groove with Lemon Bay.

"He's a very dynamic player," Lemon Bay coach Sean Huber said. "He showed what he can do inside, but he can step outside and play in the perimeter too. We don't get a lot of move-in players, so the challenge is to get him to fit in with these guys that have played together for a while. He's gonna be a good player for some time."

Bucs-Giants: Running back Peyton Barber has career day in Tampa Bay's loss

By EDUARDO ENCINA
TAMPA BAY TIMES

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Bucs believe that the more carries Peyton Barber receives, the more his talent will begin to show, and that was the case in Tampa Bay's 38-35 loss to the Giants Sunday at MetLife Stadium.

Barber ran for a career-high 106 yards and a touchdown on 18 carries in the loss, logging the second career 100-yard game for the third-year back.

"When Peyton has gotten his touches, his running style has showed up. His yards after contact, pushing the pile, I think Peyton has had a real solid season for the amount of touches he's gotten," head coach Dirk Koetter said.

Barber entered the game having just two games of more than 16 carries, and his 3.7 yard-per-carry average entering the day had been pedestrian. But he averaged 5.9 yards per carry on Sunday, often driving for extra yards after drawing contact.

While the Bucs looked to establish the run early, Barber ran for 62 of his 106 yards in the second half, even though the Bucs fell behind by 17 points. Barber's game-high 28-yard gain in the third quarter fueled the first of four straight touchdowns drives after the Bucs changed quarterbacks to Jameis Winston.

Despite their top-tier passing attack, the Bucs have been looking to gain more balance by establishing the run. They went into the game with two running backs out — rookie Ronald Jones sidelined for the third straight game with a hamstring injury and rookie Shaun Wilson on IR with a shoulder injury.

But thanks to Barber's output, the Bucs recorded their best rushing day of the season, posting 151 yards on the ground. The previous season high was 121 rushing yards in Week 4 at Atlanta.

Michigan's Higdon stokes hype, predicts win over Ohio State

By MITCH STACY
AP SPORTS WRITER

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Michigan running back Karan Higdon pondered the question for a moment, smirked and glanced up at tight end Zach Gentry next to him. Then Higdon leaned forward to the microphone and predicted a Michigan victory over Ohio State.

It was the shot heard across the Midwest on Monday as the hype machine chugged to life for the 115th edition of The Game. The annual clash between the rivals is being played Saturday at Ohio Stadium, where Higdon just assured himself an even frostier welcome than usual.

There is a precedent for such prognostication, of course, albeit a generation ago.

Higdon's coach, Jim Harbaugh, famously predicted a win over Ohio State as a player in 1986 and then backed it up, leading the Wolverines to a 26-24 win in Columbus.

Harbaugh, who hasn't been able to beat Ohio State in his first three tries as Michigan coach, insists he doesn't remember much about that prediction now. He had nothing but positive stuff to say about Ohio State on Monday. His counterpart, Urban Meyer, likewise kept talking about "respect" for Michigan and the rivalry, and said he would never engage in trash talk.

If the two coaches were trying to keep the lid on the hype and bad blood, Higdon pried it off.

The question went like this: "Would you go as far as Jim Harbaugh did and guarantee that Michigan will beat Ohio State?"

Higdon thought about for it a couple seconds.

"Yeah, I do," said the senior from Sarasota, Florida. "That's how I feel. I believe firmly in my brothers, my team, this coaching staff. And as a captain, I'll take a stand. Why not?"

Maybe Higdon watched video of Ohio State's game on Saturday.

The Buckeyes allowed Maryland, behind a backup quarterback, to roll for 535 total yards and 51 points. Ohio State eked out a win only because Terrapins quarterback Tyrrelle Pigrome misfired on a 2-point conversion try in overtime. Final score: 52-51.

Meyer said there have been some "uncomfortable and direct" conversations with coaches about the sorry state of the defense, but there isn't time this week for a bunch of finger-pointing.

"We watched (the video) with the defense," he said. "It was just not good."

Fortunately for Meyer, Ohio State quarterback Dwayne Haskins Jr. is directing the second-most prolific offense in the country. On Saturday, Haskins and Co. will run into the nation's best defense, though Wolverines defensive end Chase Winovich is injured and may or may not be available. Don't ask Harbaugh to be clear about it, either. He's not going to help.

As usual in this game, the stakes are high. The Big Ten East and a chance to play in the conference championship game hang in the balance. If Michigan wins out, it will be in

Lightning can't find enough comeback magic against Predators

By DIANA NEARHOS
TAMPA BAY TIMES

NASHVILLE — The Lightning once again put itself in the position of having to come from behind, but couldn't pull off the magic on Monday.

Tampa Bay fell to Nashville for the second time this season, 3-2. The Lightning scored first, but then gave up three goals to find itself in a hole.

Nikita Kucherov made it a one-goal game early in the third period. He and Brayden Point had two-on-one, with a step on two other Predators, and Point slid the puck over to Kucherov, who wristed it past Pekka Rinne to make it 3-2 at 3:25.

After that, the game became much more evenly matched. The Lightning applied pressure consistently in the final few minutes, but couldn't get a goal out of it. Kucherov had a couple of chances, Tyler Johnson was just wide on a nice look and Hedman's shot bounced over Rinne and was cleared.

The Lightning started the game on a good note, scoring the first goal for only the third time in the last 12 games. Point carried the puck up the ice and fed it to Victor Hedman, who was outnumbered one-to-two. Hedman took a shot of the rush and landed it top shelf, 5:10 into the game.

Louis Domingue made a couple of nice saves to preserve the lead, but it didn't last. The Predators tied it up with a power-play goal with about five minutes to go in the first period.

Nashville got a five-on-three power play after Hedman was called for slashing and then Ryan McDonagh for holding (read: tackling Nick Bonino from behind). The Lightning killed the two-player advantage without allowing a shot. Then Kyle Turris rocketed off a shot; Domingue got part of it, but the puck got through inside the post and the Predators had tied it up.

The second period, typically the Lightning's best this season, unraveled. Like the latter half of the first period, much of the second was played in front of Domingue.

The Lightning survived an almost-goal. Mikka Salomaki's shot dribbled past Domingue, curved and came to a stop just short of the goal line. Dan Girardi reached around Domingue to keep it out as the goalie fell back on the puck and the whistle blew.

Shortly after, however, the Predators took the lead. Filip Forsberg wristed a shot top shelf on the rush and there wasn't much Domingue could do about it. Nashville led 2-1 at 6:43 of the second.

The Predators took a two-goal lead a couple of minutes later. Ryan Johansen got his stick on Craig Smith's shot with an impressive tip at 10:16. Nashville followed that up immediately with a couple more grade-A chances but couldn't get another goal.

The Lightning seemed to have a good opportunity only 88 seconds after giving up the second goal, when Anthony Betetto was called for interference. But it could not even get set up in the zone, never mind put a shot on net.

Alex Killorn thought he had gotten one back for the Lightning with less than two minutes left in the second. Tyler Johnson fed him the puck at the back door, and Killorn flipped it in. The official ruled that Killorn had tripped Ryan Ellis before scoring and instead he ended up in the penalty box.

The Lightning had a scary moment in the first period when Domingue took a shot up high. He lay flat on the ice and was slow to get up. But eventually, Domingue skated over to the bench. A trainer appeared to check out his collarbone/neck, while an equipment manager adjusted his mask. Then Domingue skated back to the crease and played the rest of the game.

Lady Mantas shutout Sarasota

By BRUCE ROBINS
SUN CORRESPONDENT

ENGLEWOOD — The hot start for the Lemon Bay girls soccer team continued as the Manta Rays rolled to a 7-0 victory over Sarasota High in a non-district game Monday night at Veterans Stadium.

Lemon Bay dominated play throughout, getting off 30 shots while the Sailors could manage just seven.

Zoe Melo and Lauren Ragazzone led the way with two goals apiece while Melo also added three assists.

The Mantas dominated Sarasota in an early season contest last year, but couldn't put the ball in the net and lost 1-0.

Things were a lot different this time.

"We have a different group of girls. They just are really jelling together," Lemon Bay coach Katie Cooke said. "They're able to find each other's feet, they're unselfish and they're willing to give the ball up to the best scoring opportunities. Also the girls who were on the team last year have matured another year, so that also helps, having a year of varsity play under their belt. So it's exciting to see them."

It took until the 12th minute for the Mantas to get on the scoreboard as Trinity Johnson sent a long pass ahead to Melo, who got behind the Sailor defense and beat goalkeeper Johnna Bowden for a 1-0 lead.

Five minutes later, Melo assisted on Ragazzone's first goal and the Mantas had a 2-0 lead that carried into halftime.

"Tonight was a little bit worrisome in the beginning because they weren't connecting like they had against Charlotte, so that was a little bit concerning," Cooke said. "But after halftime, they really got it back together and were able to find each other."

In the 45th minute, Hannah Cislo found Ragazzone in front of the Sailor net and the sophomore banged it home for her second tally of the evening. Three minutes later, Melo fed Cislo to make it 4-0.

Lemon Bay poured it on from there. After a shot from the side by Melo went off the crossbar, Selena Beaulieu collected the rebound and scored to make it 5-0 in the 58th minute. Two minutes later, Melo tucked a shot inside the left goalpost for an unassisted goal. And Sophia Cherniak finished the scoring in the 70th minute with an assist from Ragazzone.

Bowden made 14 saves for Sarasota while Manta goalie Taylor Mason was hardly tested all night and had to make only 3 saves.

Lemon Bay is now 3-0 on the season and has outscored its opponents 20-1.

"We just take every game as it comes and try not to think too far into the future," Cooke said. "We just look at each opponent as they come up. Like we told the girls tonight, take your ten to fifteen minutes to celebrate and then start focusing on tomorrow's opponent."

That opponent will be Cardinal Mooney. The Mantas will travel to Sarasota to take on the Cougars in their final tuneup before district play begins next week.

Osuigwe, 16, clinches Australian Open wild card from USTA

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Whitney Osuigwe, a 16-year-old from Florida, has earned an Australian Open wild-card berth from the U.S. Tennis Association.

Osuigwe clinched a spot in the field at next year's first Grand Slam tournament by faring the best in recent lower-level tournaments, including a title at a USTA Pro Circuit event in Tyler, Texas.

She played in the main draw at a major championship for the first time at the 2018 U.S. Open, gaining entrance by winning the USTA 18s national title.

Jack Sock earned the USTA's wild card for men at the Australian Open, although he could get into the field via direct entry because he is currently ranked 106th. With the next two men in the USTA standings, 98th-ranked Reilly

Opelka and 77th-ranked Bradley Klahn, expected to automatically qualify to play in Melbourne, the USTA said Monday that its men's wild card could wind up with Tommy Paul, who is ranked 205th.

The Australian Open starts on Jan. 14.

Dad's trips bring him and son, Lightning's Coburn, closer

By DIANA NEARHOS
TAMPA BAY TIMES

NASHVILLE—Gradon Coburn only sees his son, Braydon, about three times a year. Of those three, the Lightning's annual Dads trip is the only occasion they get one-on-one time together.

This weekend, when the Lightning players, coaches and staffers brought their fathers along for their time in Philadelphia and Nashville, was no exception.

When the Lightning got to Nashville on Saturday evening, the Coburns went out with a few other players and their dads. After a little while, Braydon turned to his dad and suggested they go talk, just the two of them.

"Every year, it's been a good bonding trip,"

Braydon said. "Every year I find out something new about his childhood or my Grandpa Gordon or my Grandma Martha. It's just neat to have that time and be able to pick his brain."

He said the trips have brought him and his dad closer over his 15 years in the NHL. Saturday, they talked about Braydon's childhood playing hockey in Shaunavon, Saskatchewan. Gradon was surprised by some of the things Braydon remembers from such a young age.

Braydon moved away at 14, when his parents sent him to a private school. Then he played junior hockey in Portland (1,900 miles from home), was drafted by Atlanta and spent the bulk of his career in Philadelphia before being traded to Tampa Bay.

"I maybe see him three times a year," Gradon said. "He's always been far away, so it's nice to come down here for a couple of days."

The only downside is Gradon is a "terrible roommate" and "incredibly loud snorer," according to Braydon. So Braydon made sure to pack earplugs.

Over the years, Gradon has gotten to know the other dads, as well. The Lightning haven't had a lot of turnover, so most of the dads have been coming back year after year. Two years ago, on the same Philadelphia-Nashville trip, Andrei Vasilevskiy asked Gradon to look after his father, who doesn't speak any English. By the end of the trip, they were able to understand each other pretty well without knowing each other's languages.

Neither Vasilevskiy's father nor Mikhail Sergachev's father, who Gradon also got to know, were able to make the trip this year. Sergachev made sure to pass his father's greetings along to Gradon, though.

For Rocco Cirelli, making his first dads trip with his son Anthony, it's been nice to get a better feel for what his son's life is like.

"You get to see the people that they're with and the family they've built there," he said. "Seeing it for yourself reinforces that they're in a good place. This helps relieve some of that worry and stress."

Now, Cirelli's and Victor Hedman's mom are both lobbying for a moms trip.

Lady Tarpons poised and prepared for coming season

By BEN BAUGH
STAFF WRITER

A roster with experienced varsity starters, with one exception, will make for an intriguing fall of basketball for the Lady Tarpons.

Charlotte has six returning seniors, but their starting point guard is a freshman.

"We're senior loaded," said Matt Stephenson, Charlotte girls basketball coach. "We have a really good group of seniors that have been with the program from JV until now. It's going to be an exciting year."

The Lady Tarpons are poised to go farther than being district runner-up, with their sights set on a district crown and beyond.

The team is led by senior small forward Matisyn Moses, senior center Lauren Jackson, sophomore shooting guard Bella Desjardins and freshman point guard Aryana Hicks. The Lady Tarpons opened the preseason with a pair of wins in the Tip-off Classic. Seniors Claire Reece, Azuree Pascal, Victoria Simeone, Vanessa Vincente, junior Yanniss Rodriguez and sophomores Dylan Anthony and McKenzie Carter compose the rest of the roster.

"We know we still have a lot to work on off the two wins that we got," said Stephenson. "We definitely have to improve upon and make our defense more of a focal point. We'll work on our offensive sets with our girls getting more comfortable on the floor."

Hicks, although a freshman, show a maturity that belies her age, said Stephenson.

"With us having a freshman point guard out there, she really hasn't had a connection with the girls," said Stephenson. "She's fitting in and doing an excellent job."

The Lady Tarpons understand the importance of being mentally strong, and have prepared for a demanding schedule associated with the upcoming season.

"We mix it up a lot between the practices and film study, just preaching to keep their head in basketball mode," said Stephenson. "Everybody on this team takes this seriously. I'm fortunate this year to have one sport athletes. They love the game. They're interested in playing it. They know when it's basketball season, they'll be running hard, going out there and doing what they're supposed to do."

Tarpons open with a victory in classic

By STEPHEN MCKAY
SUN CORRESPONDENT

While the 2018-19 boys' basketball season is not yet officially underway, the Charlotte Tarpons had their first chance of seeing how they would fare against another school Monday night.

The first reviews were nearly all positive as the Tarpons defeated the Riverdale Raiders 83-52 in their opening game of the Tarpon Pre-Season Basketball Classic.

Charlotte will have its second date on the court tonight against Mariner at 7 p.m.

"Tonight, I just wanted to get out and play somebody besides ourselves and get it on tape so we could see the things we did right and the things we did wrong," said Tarpons' head coach Tom Massolio. "We did a pretty good job in our man-to-man defense which we haven't played much of the last few years. And we moved the ball around pretty well and we were getting some open shots. But there's always a lot to improve at this stage of the season."

The strong offensive performance was led by a pair of seniors including Ahmad Johnson and Makai Reaves, who dropped in 24 and 18 points respectively. From the younger set, sophomore Tre Carroll reached double figures with 14 points while junior Tyrik Gainer added nine.

Riverdale had a pair of players score in double figures with Roy Alexander collecting 14 and Trevon Dickerson scoring 13.

The Tarpons jumped on the Raiders right from the opening tip. Charlotte opened the night with a 14-point run started by Carroll and largely powered by Reaves. Reaves scored half of the points during the opening run, including a 3-pointer from the left side.

The closest Riverdale could come in the opening quarter was eight points. A put-back layup by Carroll and a pair of free throws from Rasheen Shackelford gave the home squad a 20-8 lead after eight minutes.

"It's exciting just to get out here and play somebody," said Reaves. "We played pretty well for a first game, but we can play a lot better. We came out with a lot of energy, but I know we have so much more. I expect us to be even better tomorrow night."

After scoring just two points in the first quarter, Johnson introduced himself to Riverdale with an emphatic jam to open the second stanza. He later nailed a 3-pointer and scooped in a runner through the lane for a personal five-point run. But the Raiders played their best quarter and fought Charlotte to a draw over the second quarter. Charlotte led 35-23 at the half.

The game really started to get out of hand in the third quarter when the Tarpons put up a 15-2 run started by a Johnson three. Johnson and Gainer each finished off a three-point play during the run. By the time the third quarter ended, the Tarps held a 59-33 lead.

"This is just a chance to see how good we are against other competition," Johnson said. "We didn't play as well as we thought we could have in the first half, but we got better. We need to do better with our communication, but I'm sure that will get better as we get into the season."

The Tarpons outscored the Raiders 48-29 during the second half with a pair of 24-point quarters.

The opening game of tonight's Preseason Classic will be a battle between Riverdale (Fort Myers) and Canterbury (St. Petersburg). The game is scheduled for a 5:15 tip-off.

the opening tip, forcing five turnovers in the 1st quarter and jumping out to a 16-1 lead.

Lemon Bay showed its versatility in the varying play styles against the Eagles.

Some possessions saw very few dribbles and a dozen passes. Other times the Mantas pushed the ball up the floor and finished in transition.

"I was very happy," Huber said. "It's not where we are in November, it's where we are in mid-January. We're gonna go through some growing pains, but overall we shared the ball, we scrapped, we forced turnovers, rebounded, made foul shots. We're gonna do what we need to do to improve on that."

Behind Geisendorfer in points was senior Leon Fleming with eight and seniors Tyler Kreissler and Martell Yale with six.

The Mantas return to action tonight at 8:30 p.m. against Cardinal Mooney.

Other area scores

Riverview Sarasota 64, North Port 45

The Bobcats came out strong, but faded in their first game of the preseason against the Rams.

North Port was within range, trailing 34-31 with 3:30 left in the third quarter, but the Rams quickly went on a run and pulled away. Riverview-Sarasota outscored North Port 30-14 from that point with quick transition offense and efficient 3-point shooting.

One of the bright spots in the loss was the scoring of senior Eric Baker, who scored a team-high 21 points.

"He can shoot the ball and we know it," North Port coach Ryan Power said. "The best part of him is that he knows he can score, but he's willing to be unselfish. I think he's gonna have a huge year this year and I'm looking forward to the big things he's gonna do."

North Port plays Oasis at 7:30 p.m.

Elevation Academy 78, Venice 73

The Indians had a chance in the final minute, but fell to Elevation Academy.

Venice had three free throws ahead of them, down three with 30 seconds remaining in the game, but the Indians went 2 for 3 from the line and weren't able to play the foul game to make up for it.

The Indians look to bounce back against Community Christian today at 4 p.m.

DeSoto 70, Community Christian 47

Senior Arnold Mele scored 13 as the high-powered Bulldog offense cruised to a win in its preseason opener.

DeSoto plays Elevation Academy at 6 p.m. tonight.

the College Football Playoff. Another win over Michigan and a possible conference championship would help make everything sunnier for Ohio State after a season of inconsistency, underachieving and off-the-field problems.

Other Michigan players might not be predicting victory but there is confidence in Ann Arbor.

"It's not just our coach, we're also winless, too, against this opponent," said Tyree Kinnel, a sophomore safety from Huber Heights, Ohio. "We know that. Now we're here for this week, and it's a game we have all been waiting for. Now, we have the opportunity in our hands to go change it, and we feel very confident about that."

Ohio State finds itself in an unfamiliar position of coming into a game as the underdog amid talk that it just might not have the firepower this time to take down Michigan.

"We don't talk about those things," Meyer insisted. "It's really about the game. We have a saying around here that the most prepared team will win the game. It's not who's favored and who's not. I didn't know that, and I don't imagine our team really does, I guess. If they (do), they're looking at the wrong stuff."

Venice blanks Manatee

The Venice Lady Indians shutout the Manatee Hurricanes Monday, posting a decisive 7-0 win at home.

The Lady Indians raised their record to 4-0, winning by forfeit as the Lady Hurricanes, who fell to 0-3, decided not to continue with the contest, forfeiting the game with seven minutes remaining after a power outage at Wellfield Park.

Mason Schilling and Kiki Slattery recorded hat tricks for the winner, and Rachel Dalton scored the other Lady Indians goal.

Lady Bobcats and Lady Tritons play to 1-1 tie.

The Lady Bobcats (1-0-1) placed an emphasis on defense Monday night, controlling the midfield, said Hans Duque, North Port girls soccer coach.

"Our defense demonstrated great efficacy at shutting down the Mariner attack," said Duque. "After halftime, we had a breakthrough and Aleena Purvis got taken down in the penalty area."

The Lady Bobcats scored on a penalty kick from Cameron McKinley. However, the lead would be short-lived as Mariner would tie the game with eight minutes remaining.

"We're happy with the improvement from beginning of the season, and we expect to keep growing," said Duque.

Bobcats shutout Bishop Verot

The Bobcats boys soccer raised their record to 3-1 Monday evening, by posting a 4-0 shutout against Bishop Verot.

Camilo Arango scored twice, and Chris Lamela and Jeremiah Bohdanets each added a goal in the win.

Jakeem Grant on injured reserve with a lower leg injury that required surgery. Grant ranks second in the NFL in both kickoff returns and punt returns.

He was hurt in the loss at Green Bay a week ago, and initially the team hoped he might return this year. Miami lost another dynamic receiver, Albert Wilson, to a season-ending hip injury in Week 7.

Receiver DeVante Parker might return this week from a shoulder injury, Gase said. He said the status this week of starting offensive tackles Laremy Tunsil (knee) and Ja'Wuan James (knee) was uncertain. Cornerback Bobby McCain remained in the concussion protocol.

The AFC race tightened Sunday with the Dolphins idle. They have a chance to make the playoffs for only the third time in the past 17 seasons even though they've been outgained by 787 yards and outscored by 57 points.

"It's who can have the best six-game season," Gase said. "To give ourselves a chance in December to create our own destiny — that's what we wanted when we started this thing."

Series MVP Pearce says it's 'no-brainer' to stay in Boston

By JIMMY GOLEN
AP SPORTS WRITER

BOSTON — World Series MVP Steve Pearce says it was a “no-brainer” to return to the Red Sox for another year.

“This was the place that I wanted to be,” he said on a conference call Monday, three days after agreeing to a $6.5 million, one-year deal with the defending champions. “The chemistry we had on and off the field, wanting to defend a title, that’s a big deal.”

A 35-year-old journeyman who has played for seven teams — including the entire AL East — in a 12-year career, Pearce arrived in Boston at the end of June and spent most of this time with the Red Sox platooning at first base with Mitch Moreland.

Pearce batted .279 in 50 games for Boston in the regular season, hitting seven homers — five of them against the New York Yankees, including three on Aug. 2. In five World Series games against the Los Angeles Dodgers, he batted .333 with three homers, two of them in the Game 5 clincher, to earn MVP honors.

“The team I was on, everything that was done there, bringing everybody back, it was a no-brainer for me,” Pearce said. “We just played different. It was great chemistry on this team, it’s where I wanted to play.”

Red Sox president of baseball operations Dave Dombrowski said he is glad to have Pearce and Moreland back for another year. Moreland is also scheduled to make $6.5 million next season, when he will turn 34.

“We like where we are with Mitch and Steve at first base,” Dombrowski said when asked if the team considered a multiyear deal for Pearce. “We really felt for us, where we are as an organization, where they are in their careers, we really did want to hold it to one year.”

Also Monday, Dombrowski said that second baseman Dustin Pedroia, who missed all but three games last season with knee injury, is not expected to need surgery. The 2008 AL MVP will rehab through the middle of December and start running in January.

“We’re hopeful he’ll be ready for the season,” Dombrowski said, adding that the plan meant the team probably would not have room for Ian Kinsler to return. “With that prognosis, we’re really as far as positional players pretty well set.”

Griffin Conine, Jeff's son, banned 50 games for drug test

NEW YORK (AP) — Toronto outfielder Griffin Conine, a son of former major league outfielder Jeff Conine, has been suspended for the first 50 games of next season under the minor league drug program for a positive test for the banned stimulant ritalinic acid.

New York Yankees pitcher Daniel Marten was suspended for the first 25 games for a violation of the drug program; 25-game suspensions are assessed for use or possession of a syringe of an injectable substance, the commissioner's office said Monday.

Griffin Conine, 21, was selected by the Blue Jays in the second round of last June's amateur draft with the 52nd overall pick and signed for a bonus of $1.35 million.

After playing for

Duke for three seasons, Conine went 3 for 8 with three RBIs in two games for the Gulf Coast League Blue Jays, then hit .238 with seven homers, 14 doubles and 30 RBIs for Vancouver of the Class A Northwest League.

His father was a two-time All-Star and two-time World Series champion with Florida, earning the nickname Mr. Marlin. He played 17 seasons in a big league career that ended in 2007.

Marten, a 21-year-old right-hander, made one relief appearance last year in the Dominican Summer League and two for the Gulf Coast League Yankees East.

There have been 67 suspensions this year under the minor league drug program and 10 under the big league drug program.

Quite the contrast: Senator Manny vs. Adrien Broner

By BARRY WILNER
AP SPORTS WRITER

NEW YORK — Dressed in a sharp gray suit and tie, Manny Pacquiao looked every bit the senator he is.

It was his other job, though, that he was working Monday when the eight-time champion announced a Jan. 19 defense of his WBA welterweight belt against Adrien Broner.

“He’s one of the top boxers out there,” Pacquiao said of Broner, who attended the news conference in slightly different garb: torn jeans adorned with spangles, a T-shirt and black jacket. “Adrien Broner is a high-caliber fighter.

“I have no problem to fight at 140 (pounds), it’s my natural weight. I can’t say I am avoiding (opponents), that is not my style. I am willing to find other fighters to fight, too, I am available to fight at 140, 147. It is 147 for this fight.”

Pacquiao will be 40 when he enters the ring at the MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas to take on the 29-year-old Broner. It will be the Filipino’s 70th fight in a career that began in 1995 and has included titles in weight classes from flyweight to welterweight. He hasn’t fought in the United States in two years.

Referred to by his followers as Senator Manny, Pacquiao won and then lost the WBO welterweight crown following his lopsided loss to Floyd Mayweather in a May 2015 megafight. In July, he knocked out Lucas Matthysse for the WBA title, Pacquiao’s first KO victory since 2009 when he stopped Miguel Cotto in the final round.

His government role will be placed aside, Pacquiao claims, while he prepares for Broner.

“My opponent is fast, good, and I have to work hard and train hard so the people will be happy on Jan. 19 when we give them a good fight,” said Pacquiao, who flashed a mischievous smile when asked if another encounter with the currently retired Mayweather might be in the future.

“I am fighting Adrien Broner,” Pacquiao said, adding he was with Mayweather in Japan and mentioned that he, not Mayweather, owned a belt, so “you come challenge me.”

Broner views this as his chance to “become a legend.” As he strutted around the stage, his words at first were respectful toward Pacquiao, whom Broner “dreamed of fighting when I was a kid.”

Soon, though, Broner was back to being Broner, the boastful, say-anything-character who likes talking trash as much as throwing leather.

“He ain’t fighting Floyd, he’s fighting me,” Broner said. “He’s gotta get past me first.

“Of course, things he’s done in the game are unbelievable. I know Jan. 19 I gotta be at the top of my game. I’m gonna (mess) him up.”

Broner, from Cincinnati, is 33-3-1 with 24 knockouts. But he didn’t win either of his most recent fights, losing a unanimous decision to Mikey Garcia, who won his 36th straight, in July last year, and then drawing with Jessie Vargas.

Which means recent results indicate neither he nor Pacquiao is in his prime or close to it. Still, they are big enough names for Showtime to put the fight on pay-per-view television.

Both men were asked if they are elite boxers now. Neither flinched in answering.

“Yes, of course,” Pacquiao insisted. “I want to fight the greatest opponents in the world and one of them is Adrien Broner. I can fight anybody.”

Broner shook his head and smirked when queried on his skill level these days.

“I’m gonna do me; he’s gotta worry about what I do,” Broner said. “I know what he can do.

“I got three losses, he’s got (seven). He’s been knocked out; we know he can go to sleep. I got the stuff to do it. I’ll hit the jackpot overnight.”

Logano journeys from bullied teen to NASCAR champion

By JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

HOMESTEAD, Fla. — Joey Logano’s team headed to South Beach long before NASCAR’s newest champion wrapped up his obligations at Homestead-Miami Speedway. He was emotional, exhausted and still trying to comprehend how he’d chased down The Big Three to snatch his first career NASCAR title.

“I don’t even know how to party,” Logano said. “I guess I’m just going to follow whatever they do.”

Team Penske was indeed waiting for the newly minted champion to arrive and show him how to celebrate — just another life lesson learned on the job for Logano.

Logano has literally grown up on NASCAR’s national stage, transitioning from over-hyped teenager to seasoned veteran during a decade-long journey in which many of his experiences played out publicly and made him an easy target for his peers to push around.

Few knew what to make out of the gangly kid from Connecticut when Hall of Fame driver Mark Martin declared him NASCAR’s next superstar. Logano got the nickname “Sliced Bread” even before his first NASCAR event, and after being held in development by Joe Gibbs Racing the team celebrated his 18th birthday with a sheet cake at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Gibbs was ready to see Logano’s promised talent and had him in a race one week after he was legally old enough to compete in NASCAR. Old enough but maybe not ready.

“I expected to go out there and win and just got my butt handed to me on a platter,” Logano said.

Logano came to NASCAR as a raw talent unafraid of aggressive racing. His rivals thought he should know his place, and he struggled to live by the so-called driver code. It nearly ended his career as Gibbs let Logano go after five seasons that produced two wins but was marred by disputes with Kevin Harvick and Tony Stewart, among others.

Everything could have ended for Logano after that 2012 season.

“As a kid growing up, I was an aggressive racer and I was able to win a lot of races,” Logano said. “I got humbled pretty quick. I got beat up. I got pushed around a lot. I wasn’t fast. I didn’t have no respect. I think that beats up on your confidence pretty quickly. There’s a lot of times that I felt really weak, and I’d break down. You know, when you’re confused, you don’t know how to be better. You’re 18 years old or 19 or 20, and this is some pretty big stuff for a teenager to be able to go through.”

It was Roger Penske who rescued Logano from unemployment. Team Penske had an open seat alongside 2012 champion Brad Keselowski, who wanted Logano as his teammate.

The lifeline saved his career.

“I was losing my job at Gibbs, that was a pretty low point for me, and I don’t think I thought as clearly as I do now,” Logano said. “I was thinking, ‘Oh my gosh, I’m not going to be a race car driver anymore,’ and ‘What am I going to do with my life? This is awful.’ Next thing you know, there’s the 22 car and Roger Penske.”

The transition wasn’t exactly smooth.

Penske has backed Logano from the very first day and doesn’t want his driver to change. It meant more incidents with other drivers, including a feud with Matt Kenseth that cost Logano a shot at the 2015 championship. Logano was the favorite but hard racing with Kenseth had created a fracture Logano was ill-prepared to fix. He thought by not backing down or pacifying Kenseth it would go away, but it only made things worse. Kenseth deliberately wrecked Logano in a race Logano was going to win and it cost Logano a slot in NASCAR’s season-ending championship race.

That was the most difficult bump to date in Logano’s climb.

It is also the one that likely helped him win the championship. It toughened him up and taught him a valuable lesson in handling adversity.

Logano found another gear at the start of the playoffs and outperformed Harvick, Kyle Busch and Martin Truex Jr., the so-called Big Three that dominated the regular season. Logano won twice in the postseason, including Sunday night’s finale at Homestead-Miami Speedway, never thinking he couldn’t win this title — even as the underdog in a heavyweight field and even in those frantic final moments after a late caution and restart when he had to mash the gas on the No. 22 Ford and go for broke.

In previous seasons, Logano had been a target for championship contenders in the lead up to the finale. They used NASCAR’s mandatory promotional appearances to try to psyche Logano out of the title. He was likely susceptible to it, too. On the eve of the 2014 championship, when Logano was set to race against tough-as-nails Harvick, Logano admitted he binge-watched “Boy Meets World” with his wife to relax.

He’s 28 now, the father of an infant son he and his wife struggled to conceive, and has a decade of experience navigating NASCAR. When NASCAR sent the title contenders out to promote the finale last week, Logano held his own, didn’t let anyone get in his head and told everyone he was the favorite.

Now he’s a NASCAR champion.

“You can’t just be confident and say (things) because then it’s just kind of BS, right?” Logano said. “You have to believe it inside. You honestly need to preach to yourself sometimes, and I do that as much as I can and to our race team, because we didn’t have a reason to not feel confident. We’ve executed under high pressure situations before, and we’ve been here before. I just had to go do my job.”

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Clemson Tigers

No. 2 Clemson seeking fifth straight win vs South Carolina

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP SPORTS WRITER

CLEMSON, S.C. — Clemson center Justin Falcinelli was getting ready for college five years ago when he heard from family, friends and other schools about the Tigers' five straight losses to rival South Carolina.

Now, the second-ranked Tigers (11-0) have a chance to hang their own five-game win streak on the Gamecocks (6-4), something that brings a smile to Falcinelli's face.

"It's kind of nice to flip the script," he said.

Tigers coach Dabo Swinney understands that too well. There are scores of photographs with a smiling Swinney, his arm around a fan who has their hand fanned out to display five fingers — the South Carolina "five bomb" commemorating in vibrant color those five defeats from 2009 through 2013.

Clemson co-offensive coordinator Jeff Scott chuckles when reminded of the photos. It was frustrating to see when the Tigers were on the bad end of the rivalry. He would rather go through the disappointment, though, understanding that college football is front and center in the Palmetto State.

"Obviously, you don't like seeing those things," said Scott, a former Clemson player whose father, Brad, was head coach for five years at South Carolina. "But at the end of the day, you like being able to coach at a place where football matters and you have passionate fans on both sides that bring a lot of energy."

Swinney states simply that the rivalry game "is a goal of its own, a season of its own."

It's a season the Tigers have owned the past few years. Clemson has outscored the Gamecocks 162-66 and laid one of the worst beatings on rivalry history on South Carolina, 56-7, the last time it visited Death Valley in 2016.

"We understand we need to do a better job on our side," Gamecocks coach Will Muschamp said.

Scott remembers too well getting caught up in the rivalry passions. He was a teenager when his dad was leading South Carolina from 1994-98 when he went out to get the paper and saw three Clemson Tiger paws painted on his family's driveway.

Scott grew up in Tallahassee, Florida where his father was a longtime assistant to Florida State coach Bobby Bowden, but had not felt the personal, one-on-one level of the rival's other side before that moment.

"At least it was water-based paint," Scott joked about his brother, John, having to clean it up.

Clemson defensive coordinator Brent Venables, who coached in bitter rivalries with Texas and Oklahoma State when he led Oklahoma's defense, believes there's true "deep-seeded hate" in this one.

He's witnessed young people at youth basketball and baseball games happily go up to Swinney and say things against Clemson or yell "Roll Tide" in a jab against the team's two College Football Playoff losses the past three years.

"If my child was disrespectful to anyone like that, we'd have some serious problems," Venables said. "But I think it's allowed in this rivalry."

Scott said he hoped to have receiver Hunter Renfrow available for the game. Renfrow left last week's 35-6 win over Duke in the first half. Scott would not say Renfrow is going through the concussion protocol, but is being monitored and his availability for Saturday's game will be evaluated as the week progresses.

Falcinelli, a Clemson redshirt senior, shook off most of the talk he heard downgrading the Tigers during his high school days. He just resolved himself to helping end South Carolina's winning streak when he arrived.

So far, so good. Another win in the series — which would also be Falcinelli's fifth — would be Clemson's longest streak of success since winning seven in row over the Gamecocks from 1934-40.

"It'd just be incredible if we could add that to the list of all the things we've done this season," Falcinelli said.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

No. 1 Duke routs San Diego State 90-64 in Maui

LAHAINA, Hawaii — Top-ranked Duke didn't use the brute force of highlight-worthy dunks to easily advance in the Maui Invitational on Monday.

The Blue Devils instead relied on steady half-court defense and dead-eye 3-point shooting to post another lopsided win.

Duke made nine of its 10 3-pointers in the first half to open a 17-point lead and roll to a 90-64 win over San Diego State at Lahaina Civic Center.

The Blue Devils (4-0) advance to play No. 8-ranked Auburn (4-0) in the Maui Invitational semifinals at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The Tigers beat Xavier, 88-79, in overtime on Monday.

San Diego State (2-1) did manage to score the game's first basket and led for five seconds. That brought the total time the Blue Devils have trailed this season to 35 seconds over four games.

R.J. Barrett erased that deficit with a 3-pointer, setting the tone for the first half as Duke shot its way to a 49-32 halftime lead.

The Blue Devils made 9 of their 17 3-point attempts in the first half. They didn't record their first dunk of the game until fabulous freshman Zion Williamson's crowd-pleasing, windmill slam on a breakaway with 13:28 to play in the game. By then, the Blue Devils had built a 71-44 lead.

Barrett paced Duke with 20 points, hitting three of six 3-pointers, and had a team-best five assists despite playing only 23 minutes due to his four fouls.

Fellow freshman Cam Reddish scored 16 points, while freshman guard Tre Jones had 14 and Williamson 13 for the Blue Devils.

Junior forward Jack White contributed 12 points and eight rebounds off the bench.

Duke shot 51 percent and made 40 percent (10 of 25) of its 3-point shots. San Diego State shot just 36 percent, including 6 of 21 3-pointers (29 percent) while committing 13 turnovers.

San Diego State's switching man-to-man defense limited Duke's ability to find open driving lanes to the basket. The Blue Devils dominated the first half anyway.

Duke shot 50 percent overall, making 52.9 percent of its 3-pointers.

Barrett scored 16 points in the first half but was the only player in double figures for the balanced Blue Devils. Eight of the 10 players who saw action for Duke scored.

Duke made five of its first six 3-point shots, making 6 of 10 shots overall, to open a 19-6 lead with 12:41 left in the half. Barrett and Jack White each contributed two 3-pointers to the early Duke barrage, which included an 11-0 run.

San Diego State slowly chipped away at the lead as Duke naturally failed to keep up that shooting pace. The Blue Devils missed six consecutive shots during one stretch and the Aztecs cut the Duke lead to 29-21.

But Duke found its groove on offense again, producing points on nine of its final 11 possessions of the half. Jones, Barrett and Reddish all sank 3-pointers during the stretch. Reddish's 3-pointer with three seconds left in the half gave Duke a 17-point lead, its largest of the first half.

San Diego State made 9 of 22 shots (40.9 percent) in the first half while committing seven turnovers.

Little, Johnson lead No. 7 UNC past Saint Francis 101-76

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Cameron Johnson scored 20 points, freshman Nassir Little added 19 and No. 7 North Carolina beat Saint Francis of Pennsylvania 101-76 on Monday night in the on-campus round of the Las Vegas Invitational.

Luke Maye had 11 points and 10 rebounds, Kenny Williams had a career-high nine assists and freshman Coby White finished with 16 points for the Tar Heels (5-0), who shot 52 percent and never trailed.

North Carolina fought through some early turnover trouble and finally pulled away from the pesky Red Flash (1-3) before reaching triple figures for the third time in four games.

Jamaal King had 21 points, Andre Wolford scored 18 and Keith Braxton added 14 to lead the Red Flash, who shot 34 percent yet early in the second half were within striking distance of their first Top 25 victory since 1959. They pulled to 58-52 with less than 15 minutes left on Braxton's pretty layup between two defenders.

Kabengele scores 18 points as Florida State routs Canisius

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Mfiondu Kabengele scored a career-high 18 points and Terance Mann added 12 as No. 14 Florida State warmed up after a seven-day layoff to beat Canisius 93-61 on Monday night.

Kabengele, the nephew of former NBA All-Star center Dikembe Mutombo, came off the bench to shoot 6 of 12 from the floor and had six rebounds for the Seminoles. Florida State is 3-0 for a third straight season.

Malik Johnson scored 20 points for Canisius (1-1), which had 13 first-half turnovers and finished the night with 18.

Canisius trailed most of the way but cut the deficit to 47-41 with 14:12 left. Kabengele then scored seven points in less than two minutes to put the Seminoles back up 58-41 with 12 minutes to go.

Takal Molson and Isaiah Reese added 15 points apiece for Canisius, which shot 22 of 52 (42.3 percent).

Florida State showed off its depth, scoring 51 points off the bench. True freshman Devin Vassell scored 10 points for the Seminoles, who shot 31 of 59 (52.5 percent).

Scott Hitchon was ejected for a flagrant foul after pushing Florida State's Terance Mann to the floor with 13:10 left in the game. Hitchon started but didn't have a point or a rebound.

Cumberland leads Cincinnati over Western Michigan 78-52

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jarron Cumberland broke his habit of slow starts, scoring half of Cincinnati's points during an opening 22-4 run, and he matched his career high with 27 points on Monday night while leading the Bearcats to a 78-52 victory over Western Michigan.

Cincinnati (3-1) concluded a four-game stretch that opened its rebuilt on-campus arena, winning the last three after a loss to Ohio State.

Following a 76-64 win over Milwaukee, coach Mick Cronin pushed Cumberland — the Bearcats' top returning scorer — to be more assertive at the start of games. The junior guard made 5 of his first 6 shots as the Bearcats quickly took control.

He had 19 points in the first half. Cumberland finished 11 of 19 from the field and had a team-high six assists. Nysier Brooks added 15 points and 10 rebounds, his second straight double-double.

Michael Flowers scored 23 points — 18 in the first half — and had a team-high seven rebounds for Western Michigan (3-2). The Broncos had more turnovers (8) than shots attempted (7) during Cincinnati's opening spurt, managing only one field goal.

Western Michigan never got closer than 11 points the rest of the way, with Cincinnati leading by as many as 26.

Ponds scores 32 as St. John's beats Cal in Legends Classic

NEW YORK (AP) — Shamorie Ponds had 16 of his season-high 32 points in the final seven minutes to help St. John's beat California 82-79 on Monday night in the Legends Classic at the Barclays Center.

Ponds made 11 of 15 from the field, including three 3-pointers, and 7 of 7 from the free-throw line — including six in the final 2½ minutes. It's the 6-foot-1 junior's seventh career game scoring at least 30 points.

Ponds scored the first seven points during an 11-3 run that gave St. John's a 69-68 lead with 3:52 left. LJ Figueroa made two free throws and then, after a steal by Ponds, chased down two offensive rebounds before his putback capped the stretch. Juhwan Harris-Dyson's layup trimmed Cal's deficit to 75-74 with 1:28 left but Ponds answered with a 3 and, after Suede hit a jumper, Ponds made two foul shots to make it 80-76 with 19 seconds left.

Darius McNeill tied his career high with five 3-pointers and finished with 21 points for Cal (1-2).

Pacers hit all right notes in 121-94 blowout over Jazz

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bojan Bogdanovic scored 21 points, Domantas Sabonis nearly had a triple-double and the Indiana Pacers beat the Utah Jazz 121-94 on Monday night.

Sabonis had 19 points, nine rebounds and nine assists as Indiana won its third straight — this one without All-Star guard Victor Oladipo, who sat out with a sore right knee.

Ricky Rubio matched his season high with 28 points to lead Utah, which has lost three of four and looked weary on the final night of a five-game trip. Rudy Gobert had 12 points and 11 rebounds in a game that wasn't close after the first quarter.

Utah coach Quin Snyder pulled his starters midway through the fourth.

Indiana used an 11-2 spurt to take a 19-12 lead and scored the first seven points of the second quarter to make it 39-19.

When Rubio warmed up, the Jazz came back. The Spaniard scored 14 straight points for his team during one stretch, and Joe Ingles' 3-pointer that cut the deficit to 47-41.

Indiana answered with four straight points, closed the half with a 57-47 lead and started the second half on a 9-0 run to make it 71-53.

Rubio responded again by scoring 10 of Utah's 12 points during a four-minute stretch in the third quarter. That made it a 12-point game, but Utah never got closer.

Myles Turner had 12 points, six rebounds, and three blocks for the Pacers.

Walker stays hot, scores 43 as Hornets upend Celtics 117-112

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Kemba Walker scored 43 points, giving him 103 in his last two games, and the Charlotte Hornets battled back to beat the Boston Celtics 117-112 on Monday night.

Walker followed up his NBA season-best, 60-point effort in an overtime loss to the 76ers on Saturday night with another spectacular performance, scoring 21 in the fourth quarter and making 14 of 25 shots, including seven more 3-pointers.

Walker outdueled Boston's Kyrie Irving, who finished with 27 points and 11 assists.

Jeremy Lamb had 18 points and Willy Hernangomez added 14 as the Hornets beat the Celtics for the first time in eight tries.

The Celtics entered the fourth quarter leading 87-84 and quickly stretched the lead to double digits behind Irving, who scored and was fouled on a drive.

But Walker refused to lose this time.

The two-time All-Star simply took over, scoring on drives, midrange jumpers and from long distance. He scored 11 straight points in one stretch, including a 3-pointer from the right wing. Walker was 7 of 10 from the field in the fourth quarter, including 4 of 6 from beyond the 3-point arc.

Tony Parker also had two key jumpers down the stretch and finished with seven points.

After Jayson Tatum knocked down a 3-pointer to cut the lead in half, Walker delivered the dagger with another clutch 3 from 27 feet away with 32 seconds left, bringing fans to their feet. Irving missed two open 3s down the stretch and the Hornets escaped with the win to pull even at .500.

Drummond, Pistons cruise past Cavaliers 113-102

DETROIT (AP) — Andre Drummond had 23 points and 16 rebounds, and the Detroit Pistons cruised to a 113-102 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers on Monday night.

Blake Griffin added 21 points and 12 rebounds for Detroit, and Reggie Bullock scored 21 points. The Pistons led 66-46 at halftime, and the game was never close after that. The Cavaliers are now an NBA-worst 2-13 heading into their reunion with LeBron James. The Los Angeles Lakers play at Cleveland on Wednesday night.

Drummond scored 13 points in the first quarter. The Pistons shot 74 percent from the field in that period and led 38-27. Detroit scored the first 11 points of the second, and Bullock's 3-pointer in the final seconds made it a 20-point advantage at the half.

The lead reached 30 in the third quarter before the Cavaliers went on an 18-2 run that lasted well into the fourth, making the final score a little more respectable.

Collin Sexton led the Cavs with 18 points, and Jordan Clarkson contributed 16.

76ers beat Suns 119-114

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joel Embiid scored 19 of his 33 points after halftime and added 17 rebounds to help the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Phoenix Suns 119-114 on Monday night.

Ben Simmons added 19 points, 11 rebounds and nine assists for Philadelphia, which won its third straight while improving to 9-0 at home, remaining the only team in the league unbeaten at home. The 76ers play five of their next six in Philadelphia.

Devin Booker had 37 points and eight assists for the Suns, who started a four-game road trip with their sixth loss in seven games. Phoenix, which fell to 3-13 overall and 0-7 on the road, has the worst record in the West and is one of three winless road teams in the NBA.

Strong first-half shooting helped Phoenix to a surprising 62-57 halftime lead. The 76ers took control in the third, going up for good on Embiid's three-point play 3:45 into the quarter. They ended the period ahead 92-86 and led by as many as 12 early in the fourth on J.J. Redick's runner.

The Suns hung around and T.J. Warren's 3-pointer with 3:06 remaining cut it to 109-104. But Embiid's follow layup with 58 seconds left made it 114-106 and was the clincher.

Rookie Deandre Ayton had 17 points and nine rebounds in his first matchup against fellow 7-footer Embiid.

Embiid scoffed at analysts' comparisons of Ayton to him made on draft day, saying on Twitter: "Don't compare Ayton to me either. I play DEFENSE." The boisterous 76ers center then told ESPN in a pre-season interview that Ayton was "about to get his (butt) kicked."

To his credit, the Suns rookie responded to questions about Embiid by saying he would let his game do his talking.

And the 7-footer did just that in the first possession on Monday night, finishing Booker's pass with an alley-oop dunk for an emphatic start to the game. Then, he forced Embiid into a turnover in the 76ers star's first touch on offense.

But Embiid got the better from that point.

Four-time All-Star Jimmy Butler, in his fourth game with the 76ers after last week's trade with Minnesota, had 16 points after hitting a 3-pointer as time expired in overtime to lead Philadelphia to a 122-119 win at Charlotte on Saturday.

Philadelphia native and Villanova product Mikal Bridges had 13 points in 23 minutes for Phoenix. The rookie was drafted 10th by the 76ers before being shipped to the Suns for the No. 16 pick, Zhaire Smith, and a 2021 first-round pick. Smith has yet to play due to a left foot injury and an allergic food reaction that will sideline him at least until January.

Chytil scores again, Rangers beat Stars 2-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Filip Chytil scored the tiebreaking goal 4:32 into the third period to rally the New York Rangers to a 2-1 win over the Dallas Stars on Monday night.

Jimmy Vesey also scored and Henrik Lundqvist stopped 16 shots to help the Rangers win their sixth straight at home. New York has also won eight of its last 10 overall (8-1-1). Chytil, the 21st overall pick in the 2017 NHL draft, scored for the fourth straight game to become the first teenager in franchise history to score accomplish that feat.

Tyler Seguin scored early in the second period to give Dallas the lead. Ben Bishop made 12 saves before leaving after two periods due to a lower body injury. Anton Khudobin stopped nine of the 10 shots he faced in the third.

The Stars snapped a two-game win streak and fell to 3-3-2 in their last eight.

Chytil put the Rangers ahead with a snap shot from the top of the left circle. Before shooting, he cut behind Stars defenseman Joel Hanley, in effect using him as a screen.

The teams went into the second intermission tied 1-1 after 40 minutes in which New York held a slight 13-12 advantage in shots.

Dallas took a 1-0 lead on Seguin's power play goal 2:17 into the second. The Stars' center ripped a laser from the left faceoff dot to open the scoring. It was Seguin's seventh goal of the season, including the second on the power play, and came 44 seconds after Bishop's right pad save on Brett Howden's short-handed attempt.

Vesey tied it with his seventh 7:21 later as he twisted his body around Stars defenseman Roman Polak before backhanding a loose puck past Bishop while falling to the ice.

Lundqvist kept the game even, and equaled Bishop's flashy pad stop on Howden by making a spectacular glove save on Stars rookie defenseman Miro Heiskanen's shot from the slot with 1:05 left in the second.

Dallas finished the game 1 for 4 on the power play, while holding New York to 0 for 2.

Hyman scores twice, Maple Leafs top Blue Jackets 4-2

TORONTO (AP) — Zach Hyman scored two goals in a four-minute span late in third period and the Toronto Maple Leafs extended their winning streak to four games with a 4-2 victory over the Columbus Blue Jackets on Monday night.

Hyman's second goal of the season came with 4:22 left in regulation when he redirected a shot from the point by Morgan Rielly. Hyman added an empty-netter with 61 seconds left.

John Tavares had a goal and an assist, and Tyler Ennis also scored for Toronto. Frederik Andersen made 37 saves. Mitch Marner and Ron Hainsey each had two assists.

The Leafs were coming off a three-game California sweep. Toronto has a league-best 9-1-0 record on the road. The Leafs improved to 6-5-0 at home.

Cam Atkinson and Pierre-Luc Dubois each had a goal and an assist for Columbus. Sergei Bobrovsky made 22 stops.

The Blue Jackets lost in regulation for the first time in eight games (5-1-2).

Toronto came in with the league's third-best record, while Columbus was one spot back in fourth.

Tied 2-2 through 40 minutes, Marner had a backhand chance for the Leafs from the slot with just over eight minutes to go after Tavares hit the side of the net.

Andersen made a big save at the other end moments later on a scramble in the crease before Hyman redirected Rielly's shot past Bobrovsky.

Columbus pulled Bobrovsky with 1:45 remaining.

Down 2-0 after the first, Toronto got on the board with 6:59 left in the second when Ennis used a couple of spin moves and slid the puck through Bobrovsky's legs from a tough angle.

Andersen then stopped Josh Anderson's move to the backhand on a breakaway to keep the Leafs down by one before Marner tied the game.

Marner stepped past Columbus defenseman Scott Harrington before tapping his own rebound back in front of Bobrovsky's net, where Tavares scored his 13th.

Marner now has one goal and seven assists during a five-game point streak.

Despite coming out flat following victories over the Los Angeles Kings (5-1), San Jose Sharks (5-3) and Anaheim Ducks (2-1 in overtime) last week, Toronto could have easily found themselves up 2-0 early on Monday.

Ennis hit the post on a 2-on-1 break under three minutes in before Connor Brown somehow chipped a puck off the iron from the lip of the crease.

Columbus carried much of the play and took the lead with 5:21 remaining in the first after some sloppy play from Rielly and Hainsey.

Dubois knocked down Hainsey's clearing attempt and fed Atkinson, who beat Andersen between the pads for his 13th goal and seventh in the last five outings.

Columbus went up 2-0 with 47.5 seconds left in the first on another Leafs defensive miscue as Dubois cleaned up in front after Atkinson lost the puck on an attempted move between the legs for his 10th.

With the victory, Leafs head coach Mike Babcock passed Red Kelly and Pat Burns for fifth place in franchise history with 133 regular-season coaching wins. Punch Imlach leads with 370, followed by Pat Quinn (300), Hap Day (259) and Dick Irvin (215).

Eichel's overtime goal sends Sabres past Penguins 5-4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jake Eichel's shot squirted past Casey DeSmith 45 seconds into overtime as the surging Buffalo Sabres rallied to beat the struggling Pittsburgh Penguins 5-4 on Monday night.

The Sabres won their sixth straight by overcoming a three-goal deficit. Casey Mittelstadt tied it with just over 9 minutes to go in regulation and Eichel won it with a shot from the right circle that found its way by DeSmith.

Tage Thompson, Zach Bogosian and Casey Nelson also scored for Buffalo, which has won six straight for the first time since the 2009-10 season. Carter Hutton withstood an early flurry from Pittsburgh and finished with 36 saves.

Tanner Pearson had a goal and an assist for the Penguins, his first points with Pittsburgh since being acquired in a trade with Los Angeles last week. Phil Kessel picked up his 10th for the Penguins and Jake Guentzel and Derick Brassard also scored.

DeSmith made 35 stops but spent most of the final 30 minutes under heavy duress from the Sabres. Pittsburgh has won just once in its last 10 games.

The Penguins woke up Monday tied with Florida for last place in the Eastern Conference thanks to the franchise's longest extended funk since Sidney Crosby's rookie season in 2005-06. Crosby missed his third straight game with an undisclosed upper-body injury but cautioned that it was far too early for Pittsburgh to panic.

And for the first 30 minutes, the Penguins did what they've done to Buffalo so regularly during Crosby's tenure: they dominated.

Brassard gave Pittsburgh the lead 8:46 into the first when he beat Hutton to the stick side on a 2-on-1 for his second goal of the season. The Sabres tied it less than three minutes later on a sequence that seemed to sum up Pittsburgh's bumpy start. Dominik Simon tripped while attempting to clear the puck near the blue line, allowing Buffalo to keep it in. Sam Reinhart whipped a cross-ice pass to Thompson, who fired a one-timer that beat DeSmith cleanly.

Pittsburgh responded when Kessel tapped in a pretty feed from Pearson with 3:45 left in the first. Guentzel put in his own rebound 1:24 into the second and Pearson followed with his first goal in 32 games as the Penguins pushed their lead to 4-1.

Yet little has come easy for Pittsburgh during the opening quarter of the season and the improved Sabres kept chipping away.

Eichel forced a turnover behind the Pittsburgh net that started a sequence that ended with Bogosian ripping a one-timer by DeSmith from the right circle. Nelson drew Buffalo within a goal with 84 seconds left in the second when Nelson's shot from the point smacked off Pittsburgh defenseman Jack Johnson and into the net.

The Sabres continued to push, and when Mittelstadt beat DeSmith to draw even just past the midway point of the third, Buffalo had all the momentum it would need.

Brian Bowen sues Adidas, associates over corruption scandal

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP SPORTS WRITER

Former Louisville and South Carolina player Brian Bowen II has sued Adidas and several associates caught up in the college basketball corruption scandal alleging federal racketeering violations that cost him the chance to develop his game.

Bowen's lawsuit was filed Monday in U.S. District Court in South Carolina. It has asked for unspecified damages and says Bowen and other players targeted by Adidas' "criminal racketing enterprise" were denied the chance to grow their talents in college on the way to becoming professionals.

"Adidas has thus far infiltrated college basketball with complete impunity. It is now time for them to answer for what they have done and to suffer the consequences of their corporate misconduct," attorney Mullin McLeod said.

Adidas did not immediately respond to a message from The Associated Press seeking comment.

The suit also names Adidas associates James Gatto, Merl Code, Christian Dawkins, Munish Sood, Thomas Gassnola and Christopher Rivers. Gatto, Code and Dawkins were found guilty last month in a federal trial.

Sood and Gassnola were witnesses at the trial after pleading guilty.

Bowen's attorney Mullin McLeod said Adidas should answer for their misconduct.

The company "has thus far infiltrated college basketball with complete impunity," he said.

It was alleged the scheme involved giving Bowen's father $100,000 to have his son play for Louisville.

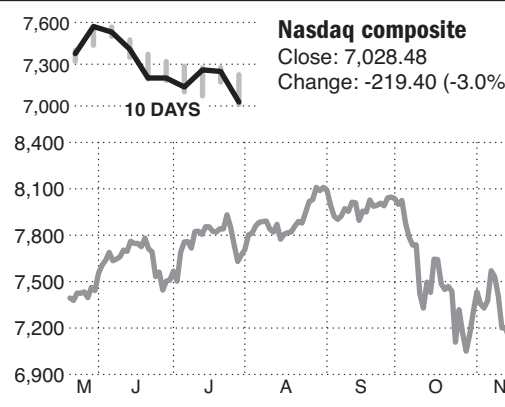

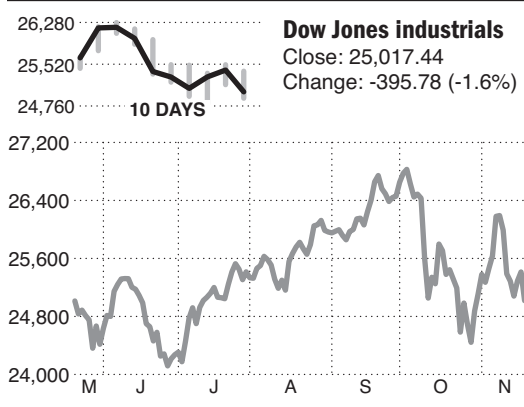

The younger Bowen enrolled at Louisville in the fall of 2017, but never played a game. He transferred to South Carolina for the spring semester and left in May when it became apparent the NCAA would keep him from
