Merry and bright

Christmas traditions around the world

By MELISSA MAIN
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Although Christianity is not practiced by all people groups of the world, many cultures embrace the celebration of Jesus' birth, also known as Christmas. Jesus' birthday party takes some surprisingly different twists in countries around the world.

With only 1 or 2 percent of Japan's population professing Christianity, the Japanese were open to holiday ideas. KFC, or Kentucky Fried Chicken, suggested that fried chicken was the perfect way to celebrate Christmas, and the tradition became wildly popular. People order their buckets of chicken weeks in advance to avoid long lines on Christmas Day.

In Spain, people decorate a hollow log and paint a face on one end. In the weeks before Christmas the children and adults lovingly feed the log and wrap it in a blanket. On Christmas Eve the log is beaten with sticks as people sing a traditional song. After the beating, the log "poops" chocolates and presents. When the presents have been removed, the log is tossed into a fire to warm friends and family.

In England caroling is a major part of the Christmas holiday season. People also eat Christmas pudding and mince pies, which are made of dried fruit and shredded meat. The goal is to eat 12 pies to bring good luck every month of the year.

Scandinavian countries, including Sweden, Norway and Finland, also celebrate St. Lucia Day as part of the Christmas festivities. The oldest female in a family often represents St. Lucia, an early Christian martyr. Carolers, dressed in white robes and carrying candles, visit with others and often distribute St. Lucia saffron buns.

In Australia, people don't need the heat of a fire to warm them. After all, it's summer time and the beach is a popular place to be on Christmas Day. The night before, people in the Land Down Under gather to sing carols by candlelight, and the tradition is spreading around the world. Nativity plays re-enact the birth of Christ at schools and churches beginning in November.

In the Ukraine, people decorate their Christmas trees with ornaments shaped like spiders and spider webs. This tradition comes from a story about a widow who was too poor to decorate her Christmas tree. However, when she woke on Christmas morning, the tree was covered with

County to close offices New Year's Eve

STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Anyone with business to conduct on New Year's Eve with departments of the Highlands County Board of County Commission will have to wait until Jan. 2.

County commissioners voted on Tuesday to give their employees an extra holiday day by closing on Monday, Dec. 31, the same as county offices are closed on Dec. 24 for Christmas Eve; Dec. 25 for Christmas Day and Jan. 1, 2019, for New Year's Day. The Clerk of the Courts Office, however, gets its schedule from Florida Judicial District 10 Chief Judge Donald G. Jacobsen, and will stay open on the last day of the year.

"We'll be open on both sides," said Highlands County Clerk of the Courts Bob Germaine, referring to both the Highlands County Courthouse at 430 S. Commerce Ave. and the Clerk's business and recording office at 590 S. Commerce Ave., inside the Highlands County Government Center adjacent to County Commission offices.

"On the board (of county commission) side, a lot of contracts will need to get recorded,"

Germaine said. "We'll be here all day."

Those hours will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Germaine said, although he may give half his employees that day off and let the other half take a day in the first week of January.

Of course, his office will be closed Dec. 24, Christmas Eve; Dec. 25, Christmas Day, and Jan.

County signs off on grant for Avon Park

Still working CDBG for Lake Blue project

STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — County commissioners have approved an interlocal agreement with the City of Avon Park for a state grant the city received to improve housing conditions for city residents.

Avon Park also asked for $50,000 of the county's State Housing Improvement Program funds — of which the county received $350,000 at the Dec. 18 meeting — to use as matching funds for a community development block grant (CDBG). Commissioners also approved that allocation at that same meeting as an action item pulled from the consent agenda for discussion.

Commission Chair Jim Brooks said the county had done that in the past, such as when the city got a grant to build The Palms at Lake Tulane, a housing project at the corner of South Lake Boulevard and West Hal McRae Boulevard.

Corbett Alday III of Guardian Community Resource Management Inc. told commissioners the city had requested a community development block grant from the state of Florida and received that award on or before the week of Dec. 9.

It's a block grant for a housing program, providing housing rehabilitation over scattered sites throughout the city, Alday said. All city residents would be eligible to apply.

People would have to qualify by income, with priority to those with lowest income, Alday said. Elderly, veterans and disabled would rank high.

Priority would also go to people who need to correct code violations as well as safety and health concerns, he said, including electrical, plumbing and roof repairs.

Brooks' main concern was that the county can only have one CDBG project open at one time, and as of right now, the county is still completing a project to extend water lines to residents around Lake Blue just outside the town of Lake Placid.

Alday said no one entity can have two open at once, but the county can have one open while each of the municipalities in the county can have one open at that same time.

So, Brooks said, once the county completes the Lake Blue project, it can apply for a new CDBG for another project. Alday said that's true.

Commissioner Arlene Tuck asked Development Services Director Benjamin Dunn if the county has enough extra SHIP funds for the request, and he said it did in the special needs account.

"This [housing] was one of the first projects we did in Lake Placid, and it really worked out well," said Tuck, a former Lake Placid town council member.

Bill aims for 50K minimum for teachers

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — A State Senator files a bill again for a minimum salary of $50,000 for every public school teacher in the state.

Sen. Kevin Rader, D-Boca Raton, has filed the minimum teacher salary bill six times before without being passed by the Republican-controlled legislature.

The Democrat filed it for the seventh time on Dec. 13 with the 2019 legislative session starting March 5.

Highlands School Board Member Donna Howerton said she has heard about the bill.

"Our teachers are underpaid for what they do and would welcome the state in assisting us in giving them raises," she said. "But, I need to see where these dollars are coming from. Sometimes they [state] give you dollars and they take it from somewhere else and it is not really helpful.

"I would be very open for teachers being paid for what they do."

The district has a hard time recruiting teachers because of the pay and some of the state requirements, Howerton said. Also, some colleges are dropping their educator programs because fewer people are going into that field.

Senate President Bill Galvano, R-Bradenton, has not ruled out considering Rader's bill, according to a report in the Broward Palm Beach New Times.

The bill's description states it would create the "Florida Teacher Fair Pay Act" requiring the Legislature to fund the Florida Education Finance Program at a level that ensures that certain schedules guarantee a minimum annual starting salary for instructional personnel.

In summary the bill states, for the 2019-2020 fiscal year, the statewide minimum salary for all instructional personnel is $50,000. By Nov. 1 of each fiscal year thereafter, the Department of Education shall calculate an adjusted statewide minimum annual starting salary for the upcoming fiscal year by increasing the minimum annual starting salary then in force by the rate of inflation for the 12-month period ending on Sept. 1.

For the nearly 200,000 instructional staff in Florida public schools during the 2017-2018 school year, the average annual salary was $45,666, according to the Florida Department of Education.

5 THINGS That Will Make You SMARTER

1. The original story-book Grinch was black and white with pink eyes. However, the live-action Grinch we know and love is green. This decision was made by animator and director Chuck Jones when he created the original, animated film.

2. The lyrics to the song "Fahoo Foraze" were made to imitate classical Latin.

3. The movie, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," included a lot of Cirque du Soleil performers for the acrobatic stunts.

4. Anthony Hopkins, the narrator of the film, recorded all of the narration in one day.

5. Starting today, the Grinch will pose with participants for pictures at the Circle in downtown Sebring.

Child-like wonder of special day

A very Merry Christmas to all today — especially to all the children filled with the spirit of joy and wonder on this special day in our calendar.

For many of us, this is the day that celebrates the birth of Jesus, who post-arrival was laid to rest in a feed-trough in a barn located in a small Middle Eastern town some two millennia back.

In the Christian tradition, this Jewish son of Mary and Joseph of Nazareth is the savior of humanity. His parents are present at the birth, naturally. Shepherds working on a hillside nearby see a bright star alerting them that something special is up, and they stop by to pay their respects.

Later, three well-respected gentlemen ride from the east for a visit and leave gifts fit for a king: a piece of gold; a bit of aromatic sap from the Boswellia sacra tree, called frankincense; and myrrh, also a type of incense.

That is the Biblical origin story of what grew to become the global Christian church. At its center is a child — the child, if you will. It is a story that still resonates with children today.

Other Western traditions also inform the season.

The eight days of Hanukkah — which concluded last Wednesday — is the Festival of Lights in the Jewish faith. Again, it is an ancient story with particular appeal to youngsters. The miracle of the lamp oil in the temple that lasted far beyond its due date. Small gifts, special foods, the solidarity of family.

Secular traditions of this dark season of the Winter Solstice also have ancient roots. But, beginning in Europe in the 19th Century, our traditions began to evolve into the modern.

Bands of merry Englishmen and women roamed the countryside singing carols to the rich, and receiving vittles, wassail or gifts in return for their songs. Printed Christmas “cards” originated in England in the 1830s, and by mid-century were all the rage in Great Britain and the United States, thanks to efficient postal services.

Charles Dickens created a sensation with his small classic, “A Christmas Carol,” which flew off the store shelves when first printed in December 1843, then went through 13 more printings by the following Christmas. Considered by some a Christian allegory, this ghost story is the tale of the re-awakening and redemption of Ebenezer Scrooge. Again, it is the child — Tiny Tim — who unlocks the miser’s frozen heart and brings him to new life as a generous, decent human.

The central secular figure throughout Western traditions was, and still is, the wondrous Santa Claus, or St. Nicholas, Christkindl, Father Christmas, Pere or Papa Noel. He is the magic man who travels about leaving goodies for youngsters who have been good. Ho!

Happy Christmas to all today. May you approach your day — and this season of darkness and light — in the love and company of family and friends, and with the wonder and personal joy of a child, no matter your age.

It's Christmas time in the city

I absolutely love this time of year! I love Christmas from its significance to its traditions to how it seems to make us all nicer. One of the things I look most forward to is reading Christmas books aloud to the students. I know what you're thinking: What in the world is a high school teacher doing reading a Christmas story aloud to high school kids? Well, it may surprise you, but they absolutely love it!

One of the books I read this year was called “Alabaster’s Song.” It was centered around a traditional family and their Christmas traditions. As in most classes in public high schools, many of our students do not have what is thought of as traditional family, neither did I. Prior to, I always take a few minutes to remind them of my own less-than-traditional upbringing and, more importantly, of one of Coach Lee’s Truths of Life: Just because something has always been, it doesn’t mean it always has to be. One day soon, they will have the chance to start their own family and establish the traditions they want.

NEVER A DULL MOMENT

Another of my favorite traditions with my students is to ask them what Christmas means to them. What follows is some of their responses. Remember, these are mostly high school juniors, with a few sophomores thrown in. Some of their responses might surprise you because, for some reason, many seem to forget that while they may appear to be grown up, I can tell you with all certainty that they are not.

We’ll start on the unconventional side of the ledger. One of my 11th-graders said, “Christmas is a time when people stress to get presents for their spoiled little children and paint a fake picture of their perfect family and perfect day. As you can see, I don’t care too much for this part of Christmas.” (No, I guess you don’t. Yikes!)

Then, there’s this perspective, “I also think though that for young kids it’s a way to make sure they behave so they get rewarded.” And, one more, “To me, Christmas is simply a cultural occurrence of America.” Several shared this sentiment, “It is a much needed break from school!” (For teachers, too.)

One of my students reminded me that Christmas isn’t a time filled with joy and happiness for all. In fact, for some it is very difficult. Sharing her regret, she said, “Christmas is seeing other people happy, which I love. It is also, sadly, a time of year I dread, though. I seem to have some kind of seasonal depression or something. The holidays are always really hard for me.” Gosh, I wish I had a magic wand or something to make all of that disappear.

Overwhelmingly, there were two responses that were common to almost all. One was the significance of spending time with family. They spoke of giving gifts to their loved ones (and receiving gifts from them, too), watching movies, sharing meals, laughing a lot, and making new memories.

The other most common response was celebrating the true meaning of Christmas, the birth of the Savior, Jesus Christ. They spoke of the three wise men from the East and the shepherds watching their flocks by night. They spoke of Him coming to save the people from their sins and to give His life a ransom for many — the true meaning of Christmas.

Merry, merry Christmas to you and those whom you love.

Joy, wonder, laughter children’s Christmas gifts to adults

I love Christmas.

I love it because my mother has worked hard to make the day magical and eventful for her family for more years than she will permit me to share!

My mother has six children, 17 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren — and counting. Every Christmas, we, along with a mix of cousins, aunts and uncles, gather in my parents’ home.

After we enjoy a Christmas feast — our dining room table abuts two folding tables borrowed from a local church — we enjoy coffee and desert as we talk about everything and nothing at all and marvel that another year has passed so quickly.

And then it’s time for the best part of our annual gathering: the gift exchange.

We retire to the family room in the basement, the only room big enough to hold everyone. My siblings and I helped my father remodel it into a family room years ago, and my mother’s elaborate Christmas decorations fill it with a warm glow.

GUEST COLUMN

Tom Purcell

My mother plays the very Christmas albums, scratches and all, that we listened to as children 40-plus years ago. These include “Holiday Sing-Along with Mitch Miller,” “Snoopy vs. the Red Baron” and Bing Crosby’s “White Christmas.” We adults usually do a modest grab-bag swap, but the gift ritual isn’t for us. It’s for the youngest family members in the room.

Our large, extended family has suffered its share of loss over the years. We are filled with grief as our older family members pass on to the next life, leaving a huge hole in our hearts.

But our grief is eased by the energetic young souls who are born into our family — souls filled with boundless joy and wonder as they bask in the love of their extended family on Christmas.

There are few things more rewarding than to see the excitement and happiness in a young child’s eyes when she opens a gift you got just for her — there are few words more satisfying than “I love it, Uncle Tom!”

We must learn from our children — we must remember the truths we knew so well when we were their age.

Children are curious. “Why?” is the question they ask over and over. Their minds are wide open, trying to understand the world — not closed and judgmental, certain that their positions are correct and their opponents are fools.

Children are filled with love. Much of the evil in our world is caused by hatred. Hatred is a learned behavior that some adults pass down to their children. Love is innate. Adults must remember how to embrace love.

Children know how to laugh. Laughter is a cure for multiple ills, in particular stress. Laughter helps us escape the narrowness of our limited points of view — helps us escape self-importance. Remember how easily laughter came as a child? Adults must remember to laugh.

I hope the eventfulness of my parents’ family room on Christmas will be a memory our youngest family members will cherish for the rest of their lives.

They have no idea how much their presence and excitement fills us adults with boundless joy.

How much better the world would be if we adults became more curious and loving and laughed more as we navigate the complexity of the adult world.

That’s why I love Christmas — and wish you, dear readers, and your families an uplifting holiday season!

cobwebs. As the light streamed in the window, the cobwebs transformed into silver and gold. In Latin America, the celebration often begins nine days prior to Christmas with posadas. Posadas are re-enactments of the pilgrimage Joseph and Mary made to Bethlehem just prior to Jesus' birth. In the biblical story, the couple were looking for a room in an inn; during posadas, people re-enact the roles of the inn keeper and the holy family. On Christmas Eve, families eat a feast, shoot fireworks, strike pinatas and finally open presents from Papa Noel at midnight. Many families celebrate with a midnight mass, or misa de gallo, which means "rooster's mass." In Africa, it seems as though the people have heard Charlie Brown's lament, "Isn't there anyone who knows what Christmas is all about?" Although commercialism and gift giving rank as high priorities in Europe and North America, the focus of Christmas celebrations is the birth of Jesus in Africa. Gifts that are given take on a more practical bent — church clothes, school books and soap. People gather in churches and reenact nativity scenes in this sunny climate with very few white Christmases. After a Christmas Eve service, young children often go door to door singing Christmas carols and dancing. Carolers are often given money in return. From the snow-capped mountains of Europe to the savannas of Africa, Christmas is celebrated around the world. In some countries, the religious meaning of the holiday plays a small role in festivities while in other countries, such as Africa, it is the predominant focus.

County Emergency Medical Services, but the injuries were not life threatening." According to George Benton, a neighbor and friend, David and Holly Gates were asleep in the mobile home when the fire started. David Gates was in the back bedroom where the fire originated, and Holly Gates was in the living room. They both exited the home, but David Gates was taken by ambulance for treatment of his burns. Holly Gates was not injured.

The City of Sebring Fire Department, Sebring Police Department and Highlands County Emergency Medical Services responded to the fire. "The firefighters did a good job of keeping it [the fire] in the structure," Border said. With the trailers so close together in the mobile home park, the fire could have easily spread. However, the fire was contained and nearby homes were not damaged. Although only one home was lost to the structure fire, the couple also lost their red Ford F-150. From the passenger's side, the damage is not apparent, but the driver's side shows severe heat and fire damage. The Gates have lost their home and vehicle, and they do not have family members nearby, Benton said. The couple need help in recovering from this disaster, and help from the community would be greatly appreciated, he said. A GoFundMe account was set up by Benton's daughter, Stephanie Mitchell-Agidius. To contribute to the fundraiser, visit Stephanie Renee Mitchell-Agidius' Facebook page.

1, 2019, New Year's Day. County Administrator Randy Vosburg said the move to let county employees take off New Year's Eve would have costs associated with it. The county would not be closing down the landfill that day or shutting down Highlands County Fire Rescue or Emergency Medical Services. "I like it because it's an opportunity to show employees how much we appreciate them," County Commissioner Greg Harris said Tuesday. Commissioner Arlene Tuck made the motion to take that day off, joking "that way they'll like me." Commission Vice Chair Ron Handley recommended, "going forward," that administration look at the calendar closer and set up holidays like this one in advance. Vosburg said the county typically adopts the court schedule, but it made sense to differ with that schedule on this one day. Beth Degnan of Highlands Park Estates asked from the audience why there would be a fiscal impact for employees who would have been working anyway. Commission Chair Jim Brooks said once the county declares a day a holiday, all those workers get overtime for working on a holiday. "Next time this happens, we'll try to get it approved with the calendar," Brooks said. Other constitutional officers — Property Appraiser, Supervisor of Elections and Tax Collector — will also follow County Commission departments' lead by being off Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. The only exception there would be the Highlands County Sheriff's Office. Although the front desk will be closed Christmas Eve and Day and on New Year's Eve and Day, Central Dispatch will take calls and deputies will patrol the community, as always. As for the municipalities, both Avon Park and Lake Placid will close their offices on the same days as the county: Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. Sebring city offices, however, will have the same schedule as the Clerk's Office: Off on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and New Year's Day, but working a full day, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., on New Year's Eve.

Guidelines for handling emergency, urgent medical care

Should you go to the ER or urgent care center?

STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Medical emergencies often occur during the holidays and after hours. How can residents get the emergency or urgent care they need when most doctors' offices are closed? When should people go to the emergency room, and when is it OK to just visit an urgent care center?

Call 911

If a person or unborn baby could die, it is an emergency and 911 should be called. This list does not include all possible scenarios of when it is best to call 911, but a few examples, according to medlineplus.gov, include:

- choking
- stopped breathing
- head injury with passing out, fainting, or confusion

CareNow is even open on Christmas and New Year's Day from 9 a.m. until noon.

- injury to neck or spine, particularly if there is loss of feeling or inability to move
- electric shock or lightning strike
- severe burn
- severe chest pain or pressure
- seizure that lasted 3 to 5 minutes

Call 911 or have someone drive you to the emergency room

Medlineplus.gov lists several other times when people may either be driven to the emergency room by family or call 911. These include:

- trouble breathing
- passing out, fainting
- pain in the arm or jaw
- unusual or bad

headache, particularly if it started suddenly

- suddenly not able to speak, see, walk, or move
- suddenly weak or drooping on one side of the body
- dizziness or weakness that does not go away
- inhaled smoke or poisonous fumes
- sudden confusion
- heavy bleeding
- possible broken bone, loss of movement, particularly if the bone is pushing through the skin
- deep wound
- serious burn
- coughing or throwing up blood
- severe pain anywhere on the body
- severe allergic reaction with trouble breathing, swelling, hives

- high fever with headache and stiff neck
- high fever that does not get better with medicine
- throwing up or loose stools that does not stop
- poisoning or overdose of drug or alcohol
- suicidal thoughts
- seizures

"Calling 911 can save your life," said Cathy Albritton, director of Community Relations at AdventHealth. "Florida Hospital communicates directly with Highlands County Emergency Medical Services for real-time patient care for those suffering from strokes, heart attacks and trauma through Twiige.

"While the ambulance is en route to the hospital, EMS personnel are instantly relaying important data like EKG, medications and video to hospital ER staff through this highly secure smartphone application," Albritton said. "This allows the hospital to anticipate and accelerate patient care the instant the patient arrives, greatly reducing door-to-clinical care times when needed most."

Urgent care

Sometimes a visit to the emergency room is not required, but medical help is still necessary. For minor illnesses or injuries — such as colds, flus, earaches, migraines, sprains, back pain, stomach pain, stitches, urinary tract infections and low-grade fevers — an urgent care center can provide relief with a lower price tag.

CareNow is available 365 days a year and is at 1421 Sun 'n Lake Blvd., Suite B, in Sebring.

CareNow is even open on Christmas and New Year's Day from 9 a.m. until noon. Normal business hours are 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Friday the clinic closes at 5 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday, CareNow is open from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

"It is important to be prepared at all times for an emergency," Albritton said. "To expedite treatment in the event one occurs, it's advised that you keep an information card on you with the following information, along with your insurance card and photo identification:

- name and telephone number of your primary care physician,
- a list of your medications and any drug allergies, and
- advanced directives, living wills, do not resuscitate orders and power of attorney."

OBITUARIES

Carl Franklin Sircy, Jr.

Carl Franklin Sircy Jr., 83, went to be with his Lord on Sunday, Dec. 23, 2018 in Tampa, Florida. He was born on Feb. 17, 1935 in Madison, Florida to the late Carl Franklin Sircy Sr. and Julia (Cooper) Sircy. Carl moved to Sebring in 1940 from Madison, Florida.

Carl retired from Progress Energy, served with the rescue department of the Highlands County Sheriff's Office, and was a member of First Baptist Church of Sebring where he served as a Deacon. He was also a member of the FFA, Highlands County Firemen's Inc., Little League, and the Highlands County Gun Club. He worked with the Sebring Police Department, Sebring Utilities, and with Stephenson-Nelson Funeral Home.

Survivors include his children, Carl F. Sircy III (Ceciley) of Moultrie, Georgia, Dwanda Sircy Green (Steve) of Hiawassee, Georgia, Karie Baucom French (Bob) of Land O' Lakes, Florida and Lloyd Glenn Baucom of Plant City, Florida; sister, Janice Sircy Snyder of Sarasota, Florida; eight grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. He is preceded in death by his wife, Shirley D. Sircy, and grandson, Josh.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 27, 2018 at First Baptist Church of Sebring with family receiving friends beginning at 10 a.m. Interment will follow at Bougainvillea Cemetery in Avon Park, Florida.

Memorial contributions can be made in Carl's name to the First Baptist Church of Sebring.

Arrangements entrusted to Stephenson-Nelson Funeral Home, 4001 Sebring Parkway, Sebring, FL 33870. Online condolences may be left at stephensonnelsonfh.

FIRES

crews responded to three home fires in the Sebring area.

Those fires were a prelude to a fourth fire on Monday morning, the day of Christmas Eve, in Sebring Resort Mobile Home Community on State Road 17, where a resident received burns and had to be treated at a hospital.

Monday's fire was the third fire in as many days where Sebring Fire Department was the lead agency, and the fourth fire in three days in and around Sebring.

Lambeau Avenue

At approximately 7:30 a.m. Saturday, units from West Sebring Stations 9 and 10, along with DeSoto City Station 19, rolled to a house fire in the 1500 block of Lambeau Ave.

Sebring Fire Department, Station 15, also got a call to assist with mutual aid, said Sebring Fire Capt. Austin Maddox.

Highlands County Public Safety Director/Fire Chief Marc Bashoor said he asked for the mutual aid, since Lambeau Avenue is very close to Sebring Fire Station 15.

West Sebring volunteers and city paid firefighters found the fire in the confined plenum space of the attic. They had to tear out the ceiling and use hose lines to get at it, according to county reports.

Bashoor said it was some kind of electric failure that burned through one of the roof joists.

"The homeowner had been smelling smoke for a while and finally decided to call the fire department," Bashoor said. "It's a good thing, because that fire was about ready to get out (of the attic)."

Bashoor said although the residents were displaced, the American Red Cross was not called since the residents have family living in the immediate area, who could put them up until repairs could be made on the house.

Highlands County Emergency Medical Services treated firefighters, providing a cardiovascular check for all volunteer and paid firefighters working in the unusually cool 45 degree F weather.

Along with Bashoor, EMS Chief Dustin Fitch and other county staff were on the scene.

Lemon Avenue

Sebring's second fire Saturday was at 11:30 p.m. in a single-story home in the 800 block of Lemon Avenue.

Maddox said Sebring fire crews were on their way back from a medical call when then got the call for the fire. They arrived two minutes and two seconds later.

Flames were showing, Maddox said, but fire crews had the fire out in just less than four minutes.

Because of a suspicious source, Maddox said the fire department called in agents of the Division of State Fire Marshal to investigate.

That case is still open. Rose Avenue

Sebring's third fire in less than 24 hours was 5:37 a.m. Sunday in a two-story home on the corner of Rose Avenue and Orange Street.

That was a five-and-a-half-minute response, Maddox said. It took another two minutes to get water on the fire, and approximately 47 minutes to get the fire out.

That house was condemned, Maddox said, but had heavy smoke and flames coming out of it.

It was believed that squatters were in the house, but fire crews did not find anyone when they did an initial search.

Fire crews put out a fire in a back bedroom, then attacked a fire in a room just above it, which had caught as a result of the flames in the first-floor room.

Sebring Police Cmdr. Curtis Hart said police officers did see someone escape out the back door when they arrived, possibly a squatter.

However, he wandered off during the incident. Hart said officers are looking for that person with questions in regard to the fire.

Maddox said the State Fire Marshal is also investigating that fire.

AP generator issue continues

AVON PARK — After selecting its next city manager Thursday evening, the City Council discussed the electrical generator that was ordered for City Hall, but now possibly being cancelled.

Though there was discussion earlier in the year by council about getting a permanent generator to operate City Hall in the event of a power outage there was no formal approval by council to purchase a specific unit.

A purchase order was approved by a previous city manager for nearly $51,000 for a 125-kilowatt generator for a piggybacked purchase through a Highlands County Sheriff's Office bid.

At a previous City Council meeting, when the council was considering a quote for the generator installation, Councilman Stanley Spurlock said the city should cancel the generator and bid it out and include the installation in the bid.

Council seemed in general agreement to cancel the generator, which was from Tradewinds, whether or not the city would be responsible for a 15 percent restocking fee.

At the special City Council meeting Thursday, Michael Waldron, the area sales representative for Tradewinds, said his company got a purchase order to build a generator in accordance with the power requirements for City Hall. His company has never had anyone cancel a generator order.

Though the engineer report showed the power requirement for City Hall was 104 KW that is customarily increased by 10 to 15 percent as a safety factor so the generator does not have to operate at the top of its capacity. Waldron noted that the City of Sebring has about 80 Tradewinds generators, which all use marine grade aluminum that minimizes deterioration.

Spurlock questioned that the generator, which is now complete and ready for delivery, was built specifically for the Avon Park City Hall.

He said they need a "stand by" unit, not something to run the entire City Hall.

Waldron said 12 months of power bills were reviewed and the different power requirements such as one-phase, two-phase, etc. were considered when building the generator.

In trying to cancel the generator order, the City

SPURLOCK

Council is trying to sweep under the rug what the previous council did, he said.

Councilwoman Maria Sutherland blamed the staff for not following the city's process in ordering the generator.

City Council Interim City Attorney Gerald Buhr said case law could support the council's decision to cancel the generator order because it was void from the beginning.

Waldron said he received a purchase order from the city and it was not his responsibility to follow or know all the City Council's proceedings in the matter.

The City Council agreed to wait until the new city manager, David Flowers, is on the job to address it at the next City Council meeting on Jan. 14, 2019. Flowers is set to begin Jan. 7, 2019.

Clemson's Swinney keeps mood light Tigers preparing for Notre Dame in college playoffs

By PETE IACOBELLI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEMSON, S.C. — Dabo Swinney likes to keep the mood around Clemson's football program light, with lots of revelry.

It's the Dabo Way. And it seems to be working. Top recruits keep arriving each year, assistants don't want to leave and the Tigers keep winning.

Swinney, in his 10th year at Clemson, like most coaches is a stickler for hard work. But he also is keen on celebrating success. There are memorable locker room dance parties after victories. There was a stadium pizza party for fans following Clemson's first trip to the College Football Playoff in 2015, and even a trip to an area amusement park this week amid preparations for its latest playoff run, which starts for the second ranked Tigers (13-0, CFP No. 2) against No. 3 Notre Dame (12-0, CFP No. 3).

"Coach Swinney calls it joy," receiver Amari Rodgers said.

There's been plenty of joy for the Tigers in the decade since Swinney, a little known receivers coach, earned the fulltime job after the 2008 season without any experience as coach or coordinator.

Clemson has won five Atlantic Coast Conference titles (the last four in a row) under Swinney and the 2016 national championship.

Last month, he angrily chided fans critical of a closer-than-expected 56-35 win over rival South Carolina.

"We've got people complaining," Swinney said. "Give me a break. If 12-0 ain't good enough, then it's time to seek other places."

It's an atmosphere in which players and assistants feel welcome, and seek to stay.

Three Clemson All-Americans, defensive end Clelin Ferrell, defensive tackle Christian Wilkins and left tackle Mitch Hyatt — all considered high-round NFL prospects a year ago — returned last January for another season in college.

Highly regarded head coaching candidates in defensive coordinator Brent Venables and co-offensive coordinators Tony Elliott and Jeff Scott have, so far, resisted queries from other programs.

Houston Texans quarterback Deshaun Watson, who led the Tigers to that national title two years ago, said Swinney's style creates loyalty, appreciation and respect. "He let us be us," Watson said. "He didn't try to control us in any way. He had a great culture there that everyone bought into. We (were) all on the same page and everyone loved it. That was the reason why we were winning and very successful."

Half Marathon, 5K

The Friends of Highlands Hammock State Park will present the 11th Annual Highlands Hammock Half Marathon & 5K at the park on Saturday, January 19 with a 7:30 a.m. start for both distances.

The Central Florida Striders running club under the direction of Chet Brojek will manage race timing and scoring. All proceeds from the event will benefit park projects.

Entry fee for the 5K is $20 and Half Marathon fee is $40 thru January 10, 2019. Late fees are $25 for the 5K and $50 for the Half Marathon thru race day registration. Participants will get a custom designed sport tech tee, awards in both races, food, fun and a great chance to test their skills in the New Year.

Checks payable to Central Florida Striders along with entry form may be snail mailed to race director Brojek at: 3310 Par Road, Sebring, FL 33872 or you may register online at: <http://endurancesportstiming.com/race-calendar/>

The Half Marathon may be run by an individual or by a team relay for the 13.1 mile distance. Those desiring to form a relay team should contact the coach at: cbrojek@comcast.net to discuss details and special relay pricing. The Half Marathon includes almost nine miles of the beautiful trails throughout the park. "Our Hammock Half is a challenging course, but it allows participants to see parts of the park seldom viewed by visitors."

Anyone needing an entry form may email Brojek at: cbrojek@comcast.net and he will get one out to you right away.

Sebring's DJ Williams selected All-Highlands Offensive Player of the Year

By MARK PINSON
SPORTS EDITOR

Sebring's DJ Williams made things happen when he had the ball in his hands. The Blue Streak senior quarterback completed 85 of 132 passes for 1,113 yards with 13 touchdowns and five interceptions.

The 5-foot, 10-inch, 205-pound Williams also rushed 121 times for 1,221 yards and scored 21 touchdowns while leading the Blue Streaks to the Class 6A state playoffs this season.

"DJ is a dynamic player and a big play threat every play," said Sebring head football coach LaVaar Scott. "He's the best back in the county."

For his ability and accomplishments, Williams has been selected as the Highlands News-Sun 2018 All-Highlands Offensive Football Player of the Year.

"It means everything to win this award," said Williams. "It's something I've looked forward to winning my entire high school career."

Williams signed a football scholarship on Dec. 19 with Auburn University.

"I know I'm going to have to work hard and get in the weight room to get stronger," Williams said. "I just want to get in the Auburn program, do what I'm told and do everything I can to become a better player."

The Team

Earl Collins, senior, Avon Park — The versatile Collins carried the ball 76 times for 553 yards and 8 touchdowns and had 34 catches for 500 yards and 4 touchdowns for the Red Devils. "Earl was our go-to man on offense," said Avon Park head football coach Jerry Hudnell.

Shamar Mitchell, junior, Lake Placid — Mitchell passed for 528 yards, 7 touchdowns and rushed for 541 yards with 6 scores for the Green Dragons. "We moved Shamar to quarterback in Week 5 and he led us to a 5-1 finish to get us in the playoffs,"

Phillies are best option for Machado

Would be a key addition for Philadelphia

By BOB BROOKOVER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — Manny Machado and his agent, Dan Lozano, have laid their cards on the table. Even if there is a mystery team — isn't there always a mystery team? — it is clear that the primary suitors are the Phillies, New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox.

Of that trio, the Phillies have the greatest need and desire for Machado. The White Sox lost 100 games last year, and signing Machado is not going to push them into the playoffs.

Free agent infielder Manny Machado is being courted by several teams including the Philadelphia Phillies.

I'm sure he'd love to play with his brother-in-law Yonder Alonso, whom Chicago acquired from Cleveland earlier this month. But if you go play for the White Sox, you will forever be playing for the No. 2 team in your own city.

Consider this: The last time the White Sox drew more fans than the Cubs was 1992, the year Machado was born. That's a streak of 26 seasons, and it is not changing anytime soon. The White Sox could not even withdraw the Cubs the year they won the World Series, in 2005, and they could not withdraw them the following year, either.

The Cubs play in a quaint antique of a ballpark that draws fans from around the world. The White Sox moved into the first of the tsunamis of late-20th- and early-21st-century new ballparks in 1991, and it is already outdated. If Machado enjoyed playing in front of empty seats in Baltimore, he's going to love the South Side of Chicago in the summertime.

The Yankees, of course, have no problem drawing fans in New York and from all over the world. They are the Manchester United said former Lake Placid head football coach Andy Judah.

Norris Taylor, senior, Sebring — Taylor was a threat at wide receiver and had 37 receptions for 555 yards with 10 touchdowns to help the Blue Streaks make the state playoffs. “Norris is a big time receiver,” said coach Scott.

Tyrek Dunlap, junior, Avon Park — Dunlap was 94 of 203 passing for 1,442 yards with 12 touchdowns and 12 interceptions. He also ran the ball 129 times for 496 yards and 10 touchdowns. “This was Tyrek’s first time playing quarterback and really proved his worth to the Red Devil football team,” said coach Hudnell.

Javari White, sophomore, Lake Placid — White rushed for 822 yards and 10 touchdowns and had 171 receiving yards on 10 catches. He added a kick return touchdown and returned a fumble for a TD. with 1,127 all-purpose yards and 72 total tackles on defense. “You want Javari on your sideline,” coach Judah said. “He would run through a brick wall to help his team be successful. When you add that to his ability to run through or around opponents, you have something very special.”

EJ Lockett, sophomore, Sebring — Lockett rushed 72 times for 547 yards with 6 touchdowns. “EJ has a great work ethic and is a young running back that is going to be special,” coach Scott said.

Xavier Holdman, senior, Avon Park — Holdman started as a wide receiver and at safety and was the Red Devils backup quarterback. He caught 30 passes for 339 yards with 4 touchdowns. As a quarterback, he was 13 of 25 for 138 with 2 touchdowns and 4 interceptions.

Katwan Ward, junior, Lake Placid — Ward rushed for 603 yards and 4 touchdowns while averaging over 7 yards per carry. Added 3 receiving scores on 8 catches. “Katwan is a special athlete with a bright future,” Judah said.

Jacob Pasley, sophomore, Sebring — The tight end had 7 receptions for 148 yards. “Jacob is a big tight end that is going to be a real threat next year,” Scott said.

Jose Hernandez, senior, Avon Park — Hernandez was a 3-year starter on the offensive line where he helped 3 different backs gain 1000 + yards each.

Will Taylor, junior, Lake Placid — Taylor was a key part of the offensive line. “Will is a strong, talented lineman that played guard, tackle and center,” Judah said. “Midway through the season, we finally committed to running behind him and our run game took off. He also wreaked havoc on opposing centers playing nose guard for us. He is certainly a young man that I will miss coaching.”

Malaikiah Ray, sophomore, Sebring — Ray had 35 pancakes and an 88 percent grade out rate as an offensive lineman. “Massive first-year player that is going to get better and better,” said Scott.

Garrett Swindle, Avon Park — Swindle was also key to helping 3 different backs gain 1000 yards and was a two-year starter on the offensive line for the Red Devils. Sidoro Oliveras, senior, Sebring — Oliveras had 30 pancakes and a 90 percent grade out on the offensive line for the Blue Streaks. “Sidoro was a four-year starter that has been the best linemen throughout his career,” coach Scott said.

Javarious Smith, senior, Avon Park — Smith had 33 catches for 693 yards and 6 touchdowns for the Red Devils. This was his first full season since his freshman year.

Hunter Ritenour, junior, Sebring — Ritenour played offensive line and had 12 pancakes and an 87 percent grade out. “Hunter is a small package but plays big,” coach Scott said.

Zach Love, sophomore, Avon Park — Love was a solid competitor for the Red Devils. “Zach was tenacious on the field and off in his preparation for the season and each game,” coach Hudnell said.

Beau Riley, freshman, Sebring — Riley had 20 pancakes and an 85 percent grade out. “Beau was the first freshman lineman to play varsity,” said Scott. “He started every game and will be special.”

David Martin, senior, Avon Park — Martin carried the ball 89 times for 469 yards and 3 touchdowns for the Red Devils.

Honorable Mention Wil Brantley III, senior, Lake Placid — Brantley was a force on the offensive line for the Green Dragons. “Wil improved more than any other lineman we had and found a home at left tackle where he changed our ability to run between the tackles,” coach Judah said.

Nacarris Nance, senior, Avon Park — Nance caught 4 passes this season for 66 yards and 1 touchdown and each one of those catches came at crucial times in the games.

Quwesmeal Sholtz, junior, Lake Placid — The versatile Sholtz had 733 all-purpose yards. He had 16 receptions for 360 yards with 5 touchdowns and he also had a 65-yard kickoff return. “The sky is the limit for Quwesmeal of the baseball world. But Machado will never be loved in the Bronx the way he could be in Philadelphia. He will never be Derek Jeter, Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio, or Mickey Mantle.

That was evident from the two disparate scenes that took place outside Yankee Stadium and Citizens Bank Park. Up in New York, Machado’s visit was barely an event. The visit with the Yankees lasted 90 minutes, and a handful of cameramen filmed him as he left the ballpark in a black SUV with darkened windows.

Contrast that with his arrival in Philadelphia, where a South Jersey union worker asked Machado to stop for a photo before advising him that the “Super Bowl champs” play across the street and that he could lead the Phillies to a World Series at Citizens Bank Park.

The belief here remains that Phillies managing partner John Middleton is prepared to spend more money than the White Sox or Yankees to get Machado. I also believe that Philly would be the best fit for Machado.

Fresh ideas for 30-minute Mediterranean meals

By BRANDPOINT
With few having the time to devote to cooking an elaborate meal, a collection of delicious and dependable 30-minute recipes for a quick but satisfying meal can be handy. What else keeps things simple? Having fresh staples such as California table grapes on hand helps brighten up any recipe and fuel up after activities. Mediterranean ingredients and flavors create dishes that are refreshing, colorful and filled with fruits and vegetables. Quinoa Tabbouleh Salad with Grapes offers a fresh twist on the Middle Eastern classic, replacing the traditional bulgur with quinoa, and using grapes in place of tomatoes. The result? An approachable and modern salad that works as well for a quick dinner as it does for a brown bag lunch the next day. Pair with grilled chicken or fish, or simply add chickpeas or kidney beans for a heartier meatless entree.

With Mediterranean Pizza, there is no need to fuss with dough because whole-wheat naan, an Indian flatbread, makes the perfect crust. Simply top with cumin and paprika-seasoned ground lamb, bake it, and then finish with a lightly dressed grape and red onion combination that perfectly complements the flavors in the meat. Pita or flatbread can take the place of naan, and lamb can be replaced by ground beef or turkey as desired.

Finally, when it's time to decorate the table, create a simple but stunning centerpiece with gorgeous black, red and green California grapes. For more ideas, visit grapesfromcalifornia.com.

Mrs. Claus

She reminds us of the magic of Christmas

CORRESPONDENT

Editor's note: Dear readers, don't spill the beans to the little ones, but the Santa and Mrs. Claus being interviewed for this story are Steve and Gini Shevick of Lake Placid. Enjoy this fun history lesson on the jolly Claus family and Merry Christmas!

LAKE PLACID
— Today's Woman is someone quite popular and well known throughout not just Highlands County, but the entire globe. Jessica, now often simply referred to as Mrs. Claus or Mother Christmas, had her entire life changed once she married her husband Kris Kringle.

Both Mrs. Claus and her toymaker husband have enjoyed many monikers over the eons they have provided Christmas cheer to all. Whether you refer to them as Santa and Mrs. Claus or Father and Mother Christmas, this is one dynamic duo.

A gifted baker, Mrs. Claus has had centuries to perfect her cookie recipes and multitudes of elves to provide feedback on which ones Santa might prefer. "The elves are like our children and I love them as dearly as I do all the children of the world," she shared while preparing for yet another Christmas parade. When asked how do they do it, year after year and still look as young as ever? "It's Christmas magic, of course," she explained.

One would think life at the North Pole would be brutal on her complexion, especially with all those reindeer to care for, but Mrs. Claus' cheeks are as rosy as apples even after all these years. In addition to caring for the livestock, she also assists in the toy making and holiday preparations. When asked for an estimation of just how many public appearances the couple makes each year, she answered only with jolly laughter.

I also tried to get a little more insight on her sparkly personality hinted at in

Despite a steady diet of Christmas goodies, Santa and Mrs. Claus maintain good health with a little boost of Christmas magic. Dear readers, don't spill the beans to the little ones, but the Santa and Mrs. Claus you see here are Steve and Gini Shevick of Lake Placid.

Goody Santa Claus on a Sleigh Ride

Santa, must I tease in vain, Deer? Let me go and hold the reindeer, While you clamber down the chimneys. Don't look savage as a Turk!
Why should you have all the glory of the joyous Christmas story,
And poor little Goody Santa Claus have nothing but the work?
It would be so very cozy, you and I, all round and rosy,
Looking like two loving snowballs in our fuzzy Arctic furs,
Tucked in warm and snug together, whisking through the winter weather
Where the tinkle of the sleigh-bells is the only sound that stirs.
You just sit here and grow chubby off the goodies in my cubby
From December to December, till your white beard sweeps your knees;
For you must allow, my Goodman, that you're but a lazy woodman
And rely on me to foster all our fruitful Christmas trees.

Annsley Bohlman

There's a bit of Santa in all of us

Christmas Day is here at last, and with it also comes children's wonder and amazement in questioning just who Santa Claus really is. For many of us the secret of Santa was kept for years, only to be revealed when our parents (or others) decided that it was time we learned the true.

Part of the magic of Santa is in the mystery. How does this notably large man land on your roof with his team of reindeer without making a sound? And then how does he fit down the chimney to (again, silently) leave just what you were hoping to get? But, it is the thrill of thinking that there is a magical man who is somehow aware of your Christmas wishes that is particularly appealing.

Around the world Santa Claus goes by various names. From Pere Noel in France, to Julenissen, translated to "Christmas Gnome," in Norway. While the name may change the idea of Santa Claus remains the same. This is of course the idea that it is better to give than receive, and that all deserve to be treated with kindness and compassion.

As we were all taught, when our parents broke the hard truth about the real Santa to us, Santa Claus is not a person but an idea. It is a way of behaving and carrying yourself that differentiates Santa from the rest of the holiday characters. This means that the idea of Santa Claus is something that can reach beyond cultural barriers.

Something my own mother said to me when she came clean about Santa Claus is that Santa is a real person, but not in the sense that you would initially think. No, you cannot call him or invite him for Christmas dinner, but he is real in the sense that the spirit of Santa exists inside each of us. Wanting to give to others, helping those who have less than you, and being kind are all Santa-oriented traits that we are all capable of possessing.

Doing things like giving gifts or reaching out to your family and friends during this time are things that happen around the world during Christmas, in the spirit of Jolly Old Saint Nick himself. The idea that this want to put out positivity during this time transcends languages, religions and cultural influences is something that I find remarkably beautiful. It really shows how human we all are, and how a holiday and the spirit of Santa Claus can bring individuals together.

During this time of year it is easy to become stressed and upset and maybe even feel like you would rather not participate in the holidays at all. During these times however we must all reach for that little piece of Santa that is inside of us. We must remember that it is one of the greatest things to give to others, and that these times are all temporary, so we must enjoy them while we can.

A tip for choosing safer video game for kids

BRANDPOINT

While many parents and others shopping for young people know to look out for violence and sexual content in video games, they may not be aware of something else found in many popular games that is raising serious public health concerns.

Research shows that exposure to images of tobacco — its use still the leading cause of preventable death and disease in the U.S. — can influence young people to start smoking. In fact, 44 percent of adolescents who start smoking do so because of smoking images they see in movies. Tobacco use in video games is likely to promote youth smoking in similar ways and may even pose additional concerns since video games are more active and intense experiences. Some games even include storylines or elements where tobacco use benefits a player.

Despite the risk, tobacco content in video games is not a well-known issue. Here are some important things to be aware of so you can avoid games with tobacco content.

Many youth- and teen-rated games include tobacco

Just because a game is rated appropriate for youth and teens does not mean it is free of tobacco imagery. While a methodical review of games on the U.S. market has yet to be conducted, it is clear from past research that tobacco use is frequently depicted in video games geared toward young people.

For example, between 1994 and 2011, 60 out of 78 large video game publishers included tobacco imagery in at least one,

Mediterranean Pizza

Prep time: 15 minutes; cook time: 15 minutes

Yield: Serves 4

Ingredients

- 1 1/2 cups halved red California grapes
- 2 tablespoons lightly chopped Italian parsley leaves
- 1/4 cup slivered red onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil (divided) plus additional for drizzling
- Pinch of salt
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1/2 pound ground lamb, beef, or dark meat turkey
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon ground paprika
- Pinch cayenne
- 2 whole-wheat naans (about 4.4 ounces each)

Directions

Heat oven to 475 F. In a large bowl combine the grapes, parsley leaves, red onion, lemon juice and 1 tablespoon olive oil. Season with salt and pepper and set aside.

In a large skillet heat 1 tablespoon oil. Add the garlic and meat, and cook until browned, 2-3 minutes. Stir in the tomato paste, cumin, paprika and cayenne.

Place naans on parchment-lined baking sheets, brush with the remaining

1 tablespoon olive oil and spread the meat mixture on the naans. Bake until each naan is browned and lightly crisp, 8-10 minutes. Top with grape mixture and drizzle with additional olive oil if desired. Cut in pieces and serve.

Quinoa Tabbouleh Salad with Grapes

Prep time: 15 minutes; cook time: 15 minutes

Yield: Serves 6

Ingredients

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 3/4 cup quinoa, rinsed
- 3/4 cup halved red California grapes
- 3/4 cup halved green California grapes
- 2 cups diced English cucumber
- 2/3 cup chopped flat leaf parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped dill
- 1/4 cup chopped mint
- 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon lemon zest
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground pepper to taste

Directions

In a medium-sized saucepan, bring the water to a boil and add the quinoa; reduce the heat and simmer until quinoa is tender, about 10 to 12 minutes. Drain any excess water, then fluff the quinoa and transfer it onto a baking sheet to cool for 10 minutes. In a medium bowl, combine the grapes, cucumber, parsley, dill, mint, olive oil, lemon juice and zest, salt and pepper. Gently fold the cooled quinoa into the grape mixture and serve.

METROCREATIVE PHOTO

The percentage of working women in the United States is down from 1999.

Women declining in workforce

METROCREATIVE SERVICES

At its peak in 1999, the American workforce was dominated by female workers. At that time, 76 percent of women, including those who had children at home, worked outside of the home, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. The tides have since shifted, and rates of female employment in the United States now fall well behind many European countries.

Economic woes, a short supply of middle-class jobs and minimal family leave may have prompted the changes. According to a study from researchers at Johns Hopkins University, single women without children have actually driven the turnaround. Technology and international outsourcing have removed many low-skill, well-paying jobs from the workforce. Wages for work in healthcare services, laundry and social assistance — jobs dominated by women — have remained relatively stagnant for years.

Despite this, the cost of living has steadily crept up. Other households tout the high cost of childcare and the relatively small amount of maternity leave allowed in the United States as reasons why they haven't returned to the workforce after having children. The economic analysis resource The Upshot, powered by The New York Times, reports that many American companies give 12 weeks of maternity leave (largely unpaid), while most European countries give a year of paid leave and offer protections for part-time workers who want to return to the workforce.

According to data from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, Canada, Japan, Switzerland, Australia, Germany, and France now outrank the U.S. in prime-age women's labor force participation. The role women play as caregivers, not only for their own children or spouses, but for aging parents, also may be contributing to females dropping out of the labor force.

A chronic-needs family member, such as a parent with dementia, can take away focus from employment.

This can quickly result in a loss of a job. Employers interested in keeping talented women in the workforce can change corporate policies to reflect changes in modern society, including higher divorce rates, college debt and the higher cost of living. Flexibility in schedules, modernized work environments that focus on mobile connectivity from home and lack of negative repercussions for needing family time can help keep talented female employees working.

the famous Katharine Lee Bate's 1889 poem, "Goody Santa Claus on a Sleigh Ride." Goody or Mrs. Claus deferred any specific comment, suggesting readers decide for themselves once they read through the famous piece.

When queried on her secret for keeping her marriage thriving after all these centuries, she again reminds us of the magic of Christmas. That they share a common mission to provide Christmas cheer also gives them opportunity to stay connected even during the busiest seasons.

That same magic of the holidays must keep their biometrics in check because this chubby couple shrugs off the gym, enjoys holiday goodies all year long and still run around the world in one night on Christmas Eve every year.

"Those big winter coats help to hide the extra pounds," she admitted.

Kind and loving, she hails from an undisclosed background that clearly provided her with the skills and talents she would need for her life of service. She asks that everyone help keep the magic of the holidays alive and wishes all a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

COURTESY PHOTO

Santa and Mrs. Claus, seen here with two of their elves, share that they are all one big happy family at the North Pole. Dear readers, don't spill the beans to the little ones, but the Santa and Mrs. Claus you see here are Steve and Gini Shevick of Lake Placid.

While your Saintship waxes holy, year by year, and roly-poly, Blessed by all the lads and lassies in the limits of the land, While your toes at home you're toasting, then poor Goody must go posting

Out to plant and prune and garner, where our fir-tree forests stand.

Oh! but when the toil is sorest how I love our fir-tree forest,

Heart of light and heart of beauty in the Northland cold and dim, All with gifts and candles laden to delight a boy or maiden,

And its dark-green branches ever murmuring the Christmas hymn!

Yet ask young Jack Frost, our neighbor, who but Goody has the labor, Feeding roots with milk and honey that the bonbons may be sweet!

Who but Goody knows the reason why the play-things bloom in season

And the ripened toys and trinkets rattle gaily to her feet!

From the time the dollies budded, wiry-boned and saw-dust blooded, With their waxen eyelids winking when the wind the tree-tops plied, Have I rested for a minute, until now your pack has in it

All the bright, abundant harvest of the merry Christmastide?

Santa, wouldn't it be pleasant to surprise me with a present?

And this ride behind the reindeer is the boon your Goody begs;

Think how hard my extra work is, tending the Thanksgiving turkeys

And our flocks of rainbow chickens — those that lay the Easter eggs.

Home to womankind is suited? Nonsense, Goodman! Let our fruited Orchards answer for the value of a woman out-of-doors.

Why then bid me chase the thunder, while the roof you're safely under, All to fashion fire-crackers with the lighting in their cores?

See! I've fetched my snow-flake bonnet, with the sunrise ribbons on it; I've not worn it since we fled from Fairyland our wedding day; How we sped through iceberg porches with the Northern Lights for torches!

You were young and slender, Santa, and we had this very sleigh.

Jump in quick then? That's my bonny. Hey down derry! Nonny nonny!

While I tie your fur cap closer, I will kiss your ruddy chin.

I'm so pleased I fall to singing, just as sleigh-bells take to ringing!

Are the cloud-spun lap-ropes ready? Tirra-llirra! Tuck me in.

Off across the starlight Norland, where no plant adorns the moorland

Save the ruby-berried holly and the frolic mistletoe!

Oh, but this is Christmas revel! Off across the frosted level

Where the reindeers' hoofs strike sparkles from the crispy, crackling snow!

There's the Man i' the Moon before us, bound to lead the Christmas chorus

With the music of the sky-waves rippling round his silver shell —

Glimmering boat that leans and tarries with the weight of dreams she carries

To the cots of happy children. Gentle sailor, steer her well!

Now we pass through dusky portals to the drowsy land of mortals; Snow-enfolded, silent cities stretch about us dim and far.

Oh! how sound the world is sleeping, mid-night watch no shepherd keeping,

Though an angel-face shines gladly down from every golden star.

Here's a roof. I'll hold the reindeer. I suppose this weather-vane, Dear, Some one set here just on purpose for our teams to fasten to.

There's its gilded cock, — the gaby! — wants to crow and tell the baby

We are come. Be careful, Santa! Don't get smothered in the flue.

Back so soon? No chimney-swallow dives but where his mate can follow.

Bend your cold ear, Sweetheart Santa, down to catch my whisper faint:

Would it be so very shocking if your Goody filled a stocking

Just for once? Oh, dear! Forgive me. Frowns do not become a Saint.

I will peep in at the sky-lights, where the moon sheds tender twilights

Equally down silken chambers and down attics bare and bleak.

Let me show with hailstone candies these two dreaming boys — the dandies

In their frilled and fluted nighties, rosy cheek to rosy cheek!

What! No gift for this poor garret? Take a sunset sash and wear it

O'er the rags, my pale-faced lassie, till thy father smiles again.

He's a poet, but — oh,

cruel! he has neither light nor fuel.

Here's a fallen star to write by, and a music-box of rain.

So our sprightly reindeer clamber, with their fairy sleigh of amber,

On from roof to roof, the woven shades of night about us drawn.

On from roof to roof we twinkle, all the silver bells a-tinkle,

Till blooms in yonder blessed East the rose of Christmas dawn.

Now the pack is fairly rifled, and poor Santa's well-nigh stifled;

Yet you would not let your Goody fill a single baby-sock;

Yes, I know the task takes brain, Dear. I can only hold the reindeer, And so see me climb down chimney — it would give your nerves a shock.

Wait! There's yet a tiny fellow, smiling lips and curls so yellow

You would think a truant sunbeam played in them all night. He spins Giant tops, a flies kites higher than the gold cathedral spire

In his creams — the orphan bairnie, trustful little Tatterkins.

Santa, don't pass by the urchin! Shake the pack, and deeply search in All your pockets. There is always one toy more. I told you so.

Up again? Why, what's the trouble? On your eyelash winks the bubble Mortals call a tear, I fancy. Holes in stocking, heel and toe?

Goodman, though your speech is crusty now and then there's nothing rusty in your heart. A child's least sorrow makes your wet eyes glisten, too;

But I'll mend that sock so nearly it shall hold your gifts completely.

Take the reins and let me show you what a woman's wit can do.

Puff! I'm up again, my Deary, flushed a bit and somewhat weary,

With my wedding snow-flake bonnet worse for many a sooty knock;

But be glad you let me wheedle, since, an icicle for needle,

Threaded with the last pale moonbeam, I have darned the laddie's sock.

Then I tucked a paint-box in it ('twas no easy task to win it From the Artist of the Autumn Leaves) and frost-fruits white and sweet,

With the toys your pocket misses — oh! and kisses upon kisses

To cherish safe from evil paths the motherless small feet.

Chirrup! chirrup! There's a patter of soft footsteps and a clatter Of child voices. Speed it, reindeer, up the sparkling Arctic Hill!

Merry Christmas, little people! Joy-bells ring in every steeple, and often more, of their games rated appropriate for youth. A 2012 paper on the prevalence of tobacco in games found a significant increase in tobacco content in games rated for young adolescents since 2005.

More recently, Truth Initiative, the national public health organization behind the tobacco public education campaign truth, conducted a partial review of 2016 releases from top publishers and found more than a dozen video games with tobacco imagery, including at least five rated "Teen."

Warnings and content descriptors are not always reliable

Video game content descriptors often fail to mention tobacco use, making it difficult for parents to use them to monitor for tobacco imagery.

A 2015 survey by the University of California,

San Francisco, confirmed tobacco content in 42 percent of the video games that participants reported playing; however, only 8 percent of these games had tobacco warnings from the Entertainment Software Rating Board, the gaming industry's self-regulatory organization that rates video games and apps.

In its report, "Played: Smoking and Video Games," Truth Initiative called on the ESRB to consistently identify and disclose if any game contains tobacco use or tobacco references. The organization is also urging game developers and publishers to stop including tobacco use and tobacco images in their games, particularly those marketed to or played by youth, regardless of their ESRB rating. Research suggests that pressure on movie producers has succeeded in decreasing tobacco imagery in youth-rated movies, and the same efforts should be used to influence game developers and publishers.

Even as national smoking rates have declined to record lows, smoking continues to be portrayed positively on screens. Glamorizing and re-normalizing smoking, and making it appear "cool," could threaten the progress the U.S. has made in decreasing tobacco use, which kills 1,300 Americans every day.

For more on the topic of tobacco in video games, visit truthinitiative.org.

4 ways to boost your immune system

BRANDPOINT

The winter months bring cold and flu season, which can take a toll on your health. While flu shots and rest are common advice for prevention, a strong immune system is critical to keeping you healthy all year long. According to Margaret Martin, RD, MS, LDN, CDE, a Registered Dietitian at The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society, "Your body's ability to fight infection and disease depends on your immune system."

Margaret provides one-on-one nutrition consultations for people with cancer who have a weakened immune system due to the effects of treatment, but she says keeping a healthy immune system is important for everyone. "Boosting your immune system during and after cancer treatment can help you feel better, maintain your strength, avoid treatment delays and speed your recovery. This goes for anyone fighting an illness, or preventing one."

Margaret offers these important tips to help boost your immune system and keep it running smoothly throughout the year.

heart-healthy menu

Choose foods first as your source of vitamins and nutrients. Unless your healthcare team directs you to take a vitamin or supplement, you likely do not need one. The best way to include these nutrients is by eating whole foods. Make sure your meals incorporate a variety of vegetables and fruits, whole grains, legumes, beans, lean protein and healthy fats.

Eat small, frequent meals throughout the day to stay energized and to ensure your body is getting enough calories, proteins and nutrients. Protein acts as a "builder" and the body uses it to build and repair tissues. Protein is also vital for making hormones and enzymes that promote the body's daily functions and supports a healthy immune system. In addition, drinking eight to 10 glasses of fluids every day is one of the most effective ways to flush waste from your body and support the health of your immune system.

Power up with phytochemicals

Fruits, vegetables and other plants contain naturally occurring substances known as phytochemicals. Phytochemicals give fruits and vegetables their color and flavor. Phytochemicals act as soldiers in the immune system to protect the body from damage. Studies show that phytochemicals help support the:

- Immune system
- Creation of healthy cells
- Death of damaged cells (such as cancer cells)

Decrease your risk of malnutrition

It can be harder for a malnourished body to fight off an illness or infection. Malnutrition results when the body does not receive enough calories and/or nutrients to promote good health and sustain healthy functioning of your body's systems. When you're "in the slumps," it can be easy to avoid eating altogether. Follow these tips to reduce your risk of malnutrition during cancer treatment:

- Choose a variety of foods each week from all the food groups. Talk with your healthcare team before changing your diet. Eat regularly throughout the day, every four to six hours. Even if you do not feel hungry, try to have a snack or mini meal. If you forget to eat, try setting a timer.

- Include a protein source with every meal and most snacks.

Make changes to your lifestyle. And stick to them

In addition to using nutrition to boost your immune system, you can also make changes to your lifestyle to help support health and immunity. These include:

- Decrease your exposure to bacteria, viruses and germs.

- Aim for seven hours or more of sleep every night. If your sleep is interrupted, try a 30-minute nap during the day.

- Reduce stress by taking time to do things you enjoy such as spending time with family, spending time outdoors or reading. If your feelings of anxiety or depression make it difficult for you to complete daily tasks, talk to your healthcare team.

The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society offers PearlPoint Nutrition Services to all cancer patients and caregivers, providing free nutrition education and consultations. Visit www.LLS.org/nutrition for more information.

Trump: Federal Reserve is the 'only problem our economy has'

By JOSH BOAK
AP ECONOMICS WRITER

President Donald Trump lashed out at the Federal Reserve on Monday after administration officials spent the weekend trying to assure the public and financial markets that Jerome

Powell's job as Fed chairman was safe.

"The only problem our economy has is the Fed," the president tweeted Monday. "They don't have a feel for the Market, they don't understand necessary Trade Wars or Strong Dollars or even Democrat Shutdowns over Borders. The Fed is like a powerful golfer who can't score because he has no touch — he can't putt!"

On Wall Street, stocks had already been down but intensified their fall after Trump's tweet. Markets are facing their worst month in a decade over fears about a U.S. trade war with China, a slowing global economy and chaos in the Trump White House. By the close of a holiday-shortened trading session Monday, the Dow Jones Industrial Average had sunk 653 points for the day — 2.9 percent. Trump's latest tweet attacking the Fed was met with concern that any effort to diminish Powell or remove him as chairman could destabilize the economy.

"He is seeking open warfare on Christmas Eve," said Peter Conti-Brown, a financial historian at

Did 2018 usher in a creeping tech dystopia?

AP TECHNOLOGY WRITER

We may remember 2018 as the year when technology's dystopian potential became clear, from Facebook's role enabling the harvesting of our personal data for election interference to a seemingly unending series of revelations about the dark side of Silicon Valley's connect-everything ethos.

The list is long: High-tech tools for immigration crackdowns. Fears of smartphone addiction. YouTube algorithms that steer youths into extremism. An experiment in gene-edited babies.

Doorbells and concert venues that can pinpoint individual faces and alert police. Repurposing genealogy websites to hunt for crime suspects based on a relative's DNA. Automated systems that keep tabs of workers' movements and habits. Electric cars in Shanghai transmitting their every movement to the government.

It's been enough to exhaust even the most imaginative sci-fi visionaries.

"It doesn't so much feel like we're living in the future now, as that we're living in a retro-future," novelist William Gibson wrote this month on Twitter. "A dark, goofy '90s retro-future."

More awaits us in 2019, as surveillance and data-collection efforts ramp up and artificial intelligence systems start sounding more human, reading facial expressions and generating fake video images so realistic that it will be harder to detect malicious distortions of the truth.

BETHLEHEM, West Bank — Pilgrims from around the world flocked to Bethlehem on Monday for what was believed to be the biblical West Bank city's largest Christmas celebrations in years.

Hundreds of locals and foreign visitors milled in Manger Square as bagpipe-playing Palestinian Scouts paraded past a giant Christmas tree. Crowds flooded the Church of the Nativity, venerated as the traditional site of Jesus's birth, and waited to descend into the ancient grotto.

Palestinian Tourism Minister Rula Maaya said all Bethlehem hotels were fully booked, and the city was preparing to host an "astounding" 10,000 tourists overnight.

"We haven't seen numbers like this in years," she said, adding that the 3 million visitors to Bethlehem this year exceeded last year's count by hundreds of thousands.

Solemn-faced nuns and enthused tourists crossed themselves and bowed over their rosaries as they entered the church, the air

ALBANY, N.Y. — Philip Sasser had a familiar, sinking feeling when he saw the yellow envelope in his mailbox. He figured it was another past-due medical bill, but it turned out to be quite the opposite.

"I opened it up and it said these bills had been paid off," said Sasser, of Milton, Florida. "I didn't understand. It was out of the blue."

Sasser is among the lucky recipients of a letter from RIP Medical Debt, a Rye, New York-based nonprofit that uses money from donors to eliminate crushing medical debt that threatens the financial well-being of hundreds of thousands of American families. The charity says it has erased $475 million in debt for more than 250,000 people since it was founded four years ago.

Turkey-backed Syrian fighters prepare to replace US forces

By SARAH EL DEEB
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT — Turkish-backed Syrian fighters said Monday they are preparing to move into eastern Syria once American forces withdraw alongside Turkish troops already massing on the front line of a town held by Kurdish-led forces.

The U.S. pullout will leave the oil-rich eastern third of Syria, currently controlled by Kurdish-led forces that the Americans have backed over the past four years, up for grabs with multiple parties seeking to move in.

A Syrian Kurdish official said the Kurdish militia is now reaching out for potential new allies following the U.S. withdrawal, underscoring the dire situation the group now finds itself in.

"We will deal with whoever can protect the ... stability of this country," said Ilham Ahmed.

The Kurdish militia partnered with the U.S.-led coalition since 2014 to fight Islamic State militants. Now, they are left to face a triple threat from Turkey, the Syrian government and IS. Turkey views the Kurdish fighters as terrorists because of their links to a Kurdish insurgent group inside Turkey.

Ahmed said her group is talking with the Russians and the Syrian government — both rivals of the United States — as well as European countries about ways to deal with the U.S. withdrawal. She didn't elaborate.

Abandoned by the U.S., the Kurds now face the dilemma of whether to try to hold on to the 30 percent of Syria they wrested from IS. The territory includes some of the richest oil fields in north and east Syria but also is home to large Arab populations.

The Kurds could pull back to the Kurdish-majority region in the far northeast but that would leave resources and Kurdish-majority pockets in the east isolated and vulnerable.

The militia could also negotiate with Damascus, allowing a return of government forces back into the east in hopes of gaining a level of self-rule for Kurds. The government has so far rejected the notion of such autonomy.

Syrian government forces have reportedly been massing troops in Deir el-Zour province, across the Euphrates River from Kurdish-held territory.

On Monday, Iraq said it could consider deploying troops inside Syria to protect Iraq from threats across its borders. Iraq's Prime Minister Adel Abdul-Mahdi said his government is "considering all the options."

U.S. President Donald Trump has said the withdrawal from Syria will be slow and coordinated with Turkey, without providing a timetable. Turkey said the two countries will ensure there is no "authority vacuum" once the U.S. troops leave.

A Pentagon spokesman, Navy Cmdr. Sean Robertson, said the executive order for withdrawal has been signed but provided no further details.

Turkish Presidential spokesman Ibrahim Kalin said a U.S. military delegation is expected in Turkey this week.

Turkey says it and its Syrian Arab allies can replace the U.S. in preventing a resurgence of the Islamic State group.

Kalin said there will be no "step back, weakness, halting or a slowing down" of the fight against the IS. But Turkey has made clear it will not tolerate a contiguous Kurdish-held enclave along its border with Syria.

Turkey-backed Syria opposition groups said they have up to 15,000 trained fighters ready to deploy, alongside Turkish forces, in eastern Syria to replace U.S. troops.

Youssef Hammoud, spokesman for the Turkey-backed Syrian opposition forces, said their fighters and weapons have been deploying on the front line with Manbij, a Kurdish-administered town in northern Syria where U.S. troops are based. They are preparing to first take Manbij, he said.

Manbij was at the center of an agreement the U.S. and Turkey reached in June under which Kurdish forces were to withdraw. In recent weeks Turkey said the U.S. was dragging its feet in implementing the deal and vowed to launch a new offensive against the Kurds.

Those threats and a phone call with Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan last week appear to have triggered Trump's decision to withdraw all 2,000 U.S. forces based in Syria.

Hammoud said there is "no alternative" to Turkish forces and their allies replacing U.S. troops.

Turkey's armed forces have led two offensives into Syria since 2016 to push Islamic State militants and Kurdish forces back from the border.

Stealth Indonesia tsunami turns perfect night into nightmare

Tsunami killed more than 370 people and injured over 1,000

By NINIEK KARMINI and MARGIE MASON

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TANJUNG LESUNG, Indonesia — As the white strobe lights flashed hypnotically, the band's lead singer screamed into the crowd: "We are! We are Seventeen! Seventeen!" He then let loose with a long note as the guitarist wailed behind him.

Some in the audience clapped as they sat at beachside tables covered in crisp white linens. Others walked casually across the grass. A small boy wandered among the tables, and a woman in a headscarf moved closer to the stage, her cellphone out and ready to capture the memory of this perfect night, a year-end concert at a popular resort on Java island's west coast.

Then, in a heartbeat, it was all gone.

A torrent of water emerged from the darkness like a monster, swallowing the stage and tossing band members, their instruments and all of their equipment into the audience. It was the last moment, caught on video, that most of them would ever know.

The tsunami that roared ashore from the Sunda Strait on Saturday night, killing more than 370 people and injuring over 1,400 on Java and Sumatra islands, was particularly cruel. It hit on a busy holiday weekend when many people were enjoying the warm night breeze on the beach under a full moon.

And unlike most big waves, which are typically portended by an earthquake's violent shaking, this was a stealth attack. There were no major ground convulsions, no sirens, no text messages.

Instead, a volcanic island with an ominous name — Anak Krakatau, or "Child of Krakatoa" — rumbled as it has been doing for months before a giant chunk of it apparently broke loose like a rock falling into a tub, silently unleashing disaster.

"The perfect atmosphere suddenly changed dramatically in just seconds!" recalled Mamad Setiadi, who had helped set up at the Tanjung Lesung Beach Club for the pop band Seventeen, which performed for employees of a state-owned electric company while a comedian simultaneously had audience members laughing in another area of the lawn.

"I saw the seawater suddenly rising and pushing everything on the stage, and I instinctively climbed a tree," Setiadi said. "From the top of that tree, I witnessed a horror that is difficult for me to describe in words. The seawater drowned everything ... trees, cars, buses, benches — mixed with men, women and children! The sound of music turned into a hysterical scream!"

An estimated 500 guests and workers were milling about the resort's grounds when the wall of water surged forward, then sucked back to the sea with such force that survivors had to use most of their strength just to hold on. Seventeen's bass player, guitarist, drummer, road manager and technician were all killed. The lead singer, Riefian Fajarsyah, survived, but his wife, a backup singer, remains missing. The comedian and his wife were also killed.

"Be peaceful there, guys," Fajarsyah wrote in a series of posts on social media, apologizing to his dead friends for missing their funerals as he desperately searched for his wife. "We will not forget you, and we will keep sending our prayers. See you. Until next time."

On Monday morning, rescuers found eight more bodies near the hotel, including a boy around 8 years old. Six soldiers in green fatigues carried a body bag through the pool area, the once-gleaming blue water now replaced with mud and debris.

Nearby, only a skeleton of the band's stage remained beside a heap of twisted metal, overturned chairs and splintered sticks of wood. Soggy white tablecloths covered in dirt were strewn across the lawn. Grass and sod were jammed up against a keyboard resting beside broken speakers on the ground.

Fajarsyah vowed not to leave without his wife.

"I'm still here. I'm not going anywhere," he posted online. "I will pick you up. We will go home together, darling. Wait for me, Dylan Sahara."

Thousands of soldiers, police and volunteers fanned out across beaches on both affected islands Monday, searching for anyone trapped alive under the debris.

The Indonesian Medical Association from the hardest-hit Banten region on Java said teams of doctors were treating patients in need of orthopedic and neurological surgery, including many Indonesian tourists who had been visiting the area for the long weekend ahead of Christmas.

The tsunami did not rise very high or surge far inland, unlike the one that hit Indonesia's Sulawesi island in September, killing more than 2,100 people and burying thousands more. But it was still powerful and destructive, with hotels and hundreds of homes heavily damaged or ripped apart.

Dwikorita Karnawati, the head of Indonesia's Meteorology, Climatology and Geophysics Agency, said the tsunami was probably caused by a landslide on Anak Krakatau's steep slope. The 305-meter-high (1,000-foot-high) volcano lies on an island linking the Indian Ocean and the Java Sea. It has been erupting since June and did so again 24 minutes before the tsunami, the agency said.

Satellite imagery showed a 64-hectare (158-acre) deformation on the volcano's southwest side, suggesting the eruption caused a section to break loose, Karnawati said.

The volcanic island formed after the 1883 eruption of the Krakatoa volcano, a disaster that killed more than 30,000 people. Most of the island sank into a volcanic crater under the sea, and the area remained calm until the 1920s, when Anak Krakatau began to rise from the site. It continues to grow each year and erupts periodically.

Indonesia lies along the Ring of Fire, an arc of volcanoes and fault lines in the Pacific Basin. A magnitude-9.1 earthquake off Sumatra island unleashed a devastating tsunami on Dec. 26, 2004, that killed more than 230,000 people in a dozen countries, with most of the victims in Indonesia.

But even in a disaster-prone country where mass casualties are commonly reported, survivors of Saturday's tsunami said it seemed extra menacing because everything seemed perfect until the second it hit.

"That night was a nightmare," said Setiadi, the stage crew member who climbed down from the tree after the water receded. He ran home in the darkness, tripping and falling several times over bodies in the street. "I cannot forget it for the rest of my life."

Miami Beach balcony collapses on car, injuring 4

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Four people were sent to hospitals after a Miami Beach condominium balcony collapsed and fell on a car.

The Miami Herald reports the second story balcony collapsed Sunday and the fall was cushioned by a Chevrolet compact car.

Two men and two women were injured.

Eaglet hatches from egg on live Florida web cam

NORTH FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A live web cam showed a bald eaglet in Florida pecking its way out of its egg to the delight of thousands of viewers.

The eaglet worked its way out of the shell Sunday while its mother looked on in the nest. Southwest Florida Eagle Cam captured the moment. A second egg is also in the nest.

Within hours, the eaglet's father arrived at the nest with fresh food and the pair fed the newborn its first bite as several thousand people looked on.

More than 226,000 people follow the eagles on Facebook.

Active shooter policy changes for Broward County deputies

PARKLAND, Fla. (AP) — Deputies in one South Florida county will have to try to confront active shooters in the future.

It's a change to the Broward County's Sheriff's written policy that drew controversy following the Feb. 14 mass shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School.

The new policy says deputies "shall" immediately intervene instead of "may" in the case of an active shooter scenario.

Earlier this month, members of a public safety commission criticized the "may" policy, saying it is "inconsistent" with standard law enforcement procedures.

Sheriff's deputies, including a school resource officer, chose not to go into a building as the gunman shot 34 people, killing 17 students and staff.

A beloved Florida teacher receives colorful gift from kids

SEMINOLE, Fla. (AP) — A high school history teacher in Florida received the gift of color from his students this holiday season.

The students in his Advanced Placement U.S. History course last year, all seniors, wondered why all the markers beneath the teacher's dry erase board are labeled by color.

Brian Yarbrough, a 38-year-old father and teacher in Pinellas County on the state's Gulf Coast, was born color blind.

The Tampa Bay Times reports that this Christmas, Yarbrough's students pooled their money and bought him a $350 gift: glasses from EnChroma, a brand that promises to "unlock a new world of color for people with colorblindness."

Now Yarbrough can better see his son's bright blue eyes, an American flag hanging on his classroom wall and the bright red house next to his.

"Everything pops," Yarbrough said. "It's been wonderful."

Yarbrough and his wife had thought about purchasing the glasses many times before but held off because of the cost and family expenses. The couple has two small children.

To the students, though, splitting the cost was a small price to pay for a teacher like him.

For Ryan Addy, 18, Yarbrough's character came through strongest on Feb. 15, the day after the shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Broward County that shook students and communities around the state.

Usually, the teacher came into class with a plan, ready to get to work. But not that day.

"We need to sit and talk and comfort each other in this time of hurt," Addy remembers Yarbrough saying.

He plans to wear the glasses to the Magic Kingdom at Walt Disney World, and to watch the sunset with his wife on the Gulf of Mexico.

"The most amazing part about all of this is the students," said Yarbrough. "I feel very grateful."

ECONOMY

the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. "We've never seen anything like this full-blown and full-frontal assault. This is a disaster for the Fed, a disaster for the president and a disaster for the economy."

The president has expressed frustration over the Fed's decision to raise its key short-term rate four times this year. Those moves are intended to prevent the economy from overheating at a time of brisk growth and an unemployment rate near a half-century low.

At a news conference last week, Powell explained that the rate hikes were evidence of the economy's strength. But Trump sees the increases — which lead to higher borrowing costs for consumers and businesses — as an economic and political threat.

The president's attacks are widely seen as an intrusion on the political independence of the Fed, which exists to determine the flow of money based off economic data on employment and inflation.

Fed independence has long been among the bedrocks of the U.S. financial markets. It ensures that central bankers can make politically unpopular decisions, such as fighting high inflation in the 1980s or rescuing banks after the 2008 financial crisis.

Sen. Richard Shelby of Alabama, a senior Republican on the Banking Committee, has cautioned against removing Powell. "I'd be very careful doing that," Shelby told reporters Saturday at the Capitol. "The Federal Reserve is set up to be independent."

Stocks did decline after Powell announced this year's fourth rate hike on Wednesday. But the sell-off appeared to reflect concerns that the Fed might be moving too fast in its plans to raise rates and to shrink its vast portfolio of bonds given an economic slowdown that is expected in 2019.

Fed officials voted unanimously to increase rates last week. Among those voting with Powell were three other board members who were chosen by Trump: Richard Clarida, Randal Quarles and Michelle Bowman.

The president expressed his displeasure Monday with the Fed after Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin had tweeted on Saturday that Powell's job was safe. Mnuchin also tweeted on Sunday that he had checked with the heads of the six largest U.S. banks to ensure that they had enough liquidity to operate in a stock market that has tumbled sharply since October.

Not very merry: US stocks plunge night before Christmas

Trump's attack on the Federal Reserve spooked financial markets on Christmas Eve

By ALEX VEIGA
AP BUSINESS WRITER

President Donald Trump's attack on the Federal Reserve spooked financial markets on Christmas Eve, raising fears about an uncertain future should the White House try to undermine or remove the head of the U.S. central bank.

Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin calls to the top executives at six major banks Sunday in an attempt to stabilize jittery markets had the opposite effect.

The major indexes on Wall Street fell another 2 percent Monday, making it very possible that the market will end this month as the worst December for stocks since 1931.

The market has been roiling for most of the month over concerns about a slowing global economy, an escalating trade dispute with China and recent interest rate hike by the Federal Reserve.

The past two trading days, however, have been dominated by something else: major losses immediately following tweets from the president criticizing Fed Chairman Jerome Powell and the central bank, which sets monetary policy for the nation.

Trump's morning tweet blasting the Fed generated fears about the economy being destabilized by any efforts to undermine Powell or strip him of office.

Fed board members are nominated by the president, but they've historically made decisions independent of the White House in order to shield decisions about employment and inflation from political maneuvering. Trump has voiced his anger over the Fed's decision to raise its key short-term rate four times this year. Those measures are intended to prevent the economy from overheating at a time of brisk growth and an unemployment rate near a half-century low.

Trump's latest remarks, which came after administration officials spent the weekend trying to reassure financial markets that Powell's job as Fed chairman is safe, created more uncertainty for already unnerved investors that have seen all of the stock market gains from this year evaporate.

The S&P 500 index slid 65.52 points, or 2.7 percent, to 2,351.10. The Dow Jones Industrial Average sank 653.17 points, or 2.9 percent, to 21,792.20. The Nasdaq skidded 140.08 points, or 2.2 percent, to 6,192.92. The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks gave up 25.16 points, or 2 percent, to 1,266.92.

Monday's sell-off extends the market's losses after its worst week in more than seven years. The major indexes are down 16 to 26 percent from their autumn highs.

during a shortened trading session ahead of the Christmas holiday Tuesday. U.S. markets are due to reopen for trading on Wednesday.

Technology stocks, health care companies and banks took some of the heaviest losses in the sell-off, which began following news that the Mnuchin called CEOs of six major banks Sunday in an apparent attempt to stabilize jittery markets.

Mnuchin said the heads of Bank of America, Citigroup, Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan Chase, Morgan Stanley and Wells Fargo all assured him they have ample money to finance their normal operations, even though there haven't been any serious liquidity concerns rattling the market. But the calls added to the underlying worries that have gripped markets of late.

Bank stocks declined Monday. Wells Fargo slid 1.9 percent to $44.26.

The market briefly bounced back from the steep opening slide, then veered lower again around midmorning after Trump tweeted his latest volley of criticism at the Fed, which included: "The Fed is like a powerful golfer who can't score because he has no touch — he can't putt!"

Health care and technology stocks accounted for a big share of the selling Monday. Microsoft fell 2.2 percent to $96.05. Johnson & Johnson lost 4 percent to $122.99.

Oil prices, which have sunk on concerns about the state of the global economy and also oversupply in the market, continued to slide. Benchmark U.S. crude fell 3.1 percent to $44.18 a barrel in New York. Brent crude, used to price international oils, declined 2.6 percent to $52.43 a barrel in London.

The decline in oil prices weighed on energy stocks. Hess slumped 8.1 percent to $38.11.

Bond prices rose. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to 2.77 percent from 2.79 percent late Friday.

Omega-3 supplements are safe, not a cure for dry eyes

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 65-year-old female who does not take any medication. During my latest exam, the eye doctor said I may have a dry-eye issue and recommended using some lubricating eyedrops. I have no problem with that, but he also suggested taking a 1,000-mg omega-3 (fish oil) capsule twice a day. I would appreciate your opinion if there is really any proven benefit to taking fish oil capsules for dry eyes. — D.F.

ANSWER: Fish oil supplements have been used for many purposes, including to help with dry eyes, for years. However, a well-done study from April 2018 showed pretty clearly that the effect of fish oil supplementation for dry eyes was no better than an identical capsule containing olive oil as a placebo. Interestingly, over half of the placebo group reported improvement in their dry eyes.

Omega-3 supplements generally are safe and have few side effects, but they do not seem to help dry eyes, according to the largest and most comprehensive study. Unfortunately, a paper just printed showed that they have no significant benefit in preventing heart disease or cancer.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 91-year-old woman. The doctors tell me I am in really good health — no problems with my heart, lung or any other. I have a bit of osteoarthritis. My concern is a lack of balance.

At my age, am I likely to regain my balance? — E.F.

ANSWER: Although medical conditions can be a barrier to improving function, people of any age are able to increase balance, as well as strength and stamina, with practice. There are many ways of doing so.

People at risk for falls, such as those with a history of falling, may benefit from a supervised program with a physical or occupational therapist. However, most older people can make great improvements in their physical function through programs such as yoga or tai chi. The evidence is strong that these exercises improve balance, reduce falls and can make a big difference in someone's quality of life.

There's no age limit, but the sooner you start, the faster you can get better and the more likely you are to avoid a fall.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have been taking losartan for over a year now, and I have had to do breathing treatments since I started taking it. My primary care doctor will not switch to another blood pressure medication.

What can I do? Should I find another primary care doctor who cares? — M.V.M.

ANSWER: Less than 2 percent of people on losartan note breathing troubles on this medication, but that doesn't mean that the sensation is not real for you. If it has been going on for over a year, it isn't going to get better, and there is no need for you to take a medication that is making you feel unwell.

Even if your doctor feels as if it's unlikely that the losartan could cause your symptom, it would be wise to try a different medication. There are other medicines in the same class.

As a primary care doctor, I find that there are only so many things I can insist upon.

Desire to have own child is husband's lifelong dream

DEAR ABBY: I am a man in my 40s. All my life I wanted nothing more than to get married and have a beautiful child.

I suppose it's unusual for a man to long for a child. My baby days are about over, yet I still long for one. I have adult stepchildren and grandchildren. I love them all, yet I still feel so empty. On top of it, my mother constantly says, "I wish you would make me a grandmother." I am not able to, and I have explained it to her.

How can I forget about these desires and move on with life? — Daddy Issues in Indiana

DEAR DADDY ISSUES: Some sessions with a mental health professional may not be able to make you forget your lifelong wish to be a biological father, but therapy could help you to move on with your life and past the pain you are feeling. With the help of your therapist, perhaps you can help your mother understand that venting her frustration over your inability to produce the grandchild of her dreams has been excruciating, and you need her to stop once and for all.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm concerned about a friend of mine. When she was a child, her parents tried to raise her to be neat, but her bedroom, closets and bathroom were always a mess. Now that she has a home of her own and is married with kids, she's still the same.

Her teenage daughter is now modeling the same behavior.

Is this some kind of disorder? To me, it would be just as easy to dump things into a hamper, on a shelf or in a drawer. Am I the one with a disorder? — Orderly in Arkansas

DEAR ORDERLY: It's not surprising the daughter is imitating her mother, which may come back to haunt her.

Quit obsessing about your friend's sloppy household and parenting because there is nothing you can do about it.

Have a merry Christmas

Dear Readers: Today is CHRISTMAS DAY, and I hope it finds you well. Whether surrounded by friends and family who have traveled near and far, or if you're content to be with your furry family snuggled on the couch, let's count our blessings and be grateful for everything we have, and everything we have to look forward to. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). There's fun in the role shift that happens today. It's like you suddenly got a permission slip to behave in a way you've always wanted to but never thought you could.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It will be energizing to go shoulder to shoulder with loved ones, even if the task at hand technically qualifies as work. Touch is the highest form of communication. Also, when in doubt, go in for the hug.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The cosmic gift won't come wrapped. You've an extra special sense for knowing the right thing to say and when to say it. You'll help many with this talent, and more folks will come to you for wisdom in the days that follow.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The opportunity to connect fully, with all of your senses, to what's going on around you today will be ever-present, as though all you have to do is plug in, and outlets are everywhere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). We are all more impressionable than we think, with personalities that can change with the company we keep. This is much to your advantage today as the cheer keeps ramping up and your heart keeps following it to new heights.

VRIGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). As it turns out, you're a supernatural being. There's more to you than your past, your present or your future. The day's events will strike a chord in you and you'll feel the truth of your everlasting soul.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The complexities of the personalities around you will emerge like holly berries, red and dangerous, to be enjoyed and admired at a distance. If they are dangled before you, don't bite!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The attention you get will be your favorite kind — specific to you, an acknowledgment of what you've worked very hard to achieve, well-deserved and the right portion size, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Because you don't miss a beat when it comes to hooking into laughter, beauty and music, it will be easy to get completely engaged in the action. Life seems to be happening through you, not to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Words can't really adequately describe the big feelings, but try anyway. It means so much when you do, and you're certainly better at this than anyone around today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Because you're one of two people who want the same thing — to get from point A to point B as smoothly and safely as possible — there'll be comfort and companionship in today's unfolding.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're upbeat and full of energy, making things happen and resonating a cheerful tone while positive influences are all around you. It's about as smooth a day as you've had in months.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 25). You'll gain skill, grow in confidence and enhance your health and vitality. You'll even become a snappier dresser. None of these things contributes more to your life than a single quality you already possess. That quality is warmth. Warmth starts relationships and adventures. Warmth draws loved ones back to you. Libra and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 40, 1, 22 and 48.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣ Modern American bidding is dramatically different from the bidding proposed by Charles Goren many years ago. The roots are the same, however, and Goren players can at least recognize what modern players are doing. That's not necessarily so in the rest of the world, where some radically different ideas have developed. Many modern American players, with low standards, would open the East hand in today's deal. However, it would not show 8-11 points as it did in a team tournament in Turkey earlier this year.

The opening club lead went to the queen and king, South had to win this to protect his nine of clubs, and then find a way to keep East off lead until he had nine tricks. At trick two, South led the jack of diamonds to dummy's ace and led a low spade to his jack. He knew from the auction that West held five spades, so assuming West hadn't ducked, the king had to be doubleton. Declarer cashed the ace of spades, felling the king, followed by the ace and king of hearts.

South had to find the queen of diamonds, so he crossed to dummy with the queen of spades and led a low diamond to his nine. Success! The king of diamonds gave him his ninth trick, for a small loss on the deal. North-South at the other table had played in four hearts, taking 11 tricks despite the bad trump break. The spades were just as friendly, and declarer also guessed the queen of diamonds, so the unusual opening bid scored a small victory.

Linda Selbmann, 24, of Chemnitz, Germany, said she had long dreamed of celebrating Christmas in Bethlehem.

"It's wild to be in the place it all began," she said, sipping Turkish coffee in front of a statue of the Virgin Mary cradling the infant Jesus.

The Christmas festivities traditionally bring a boost of holiday cheer to Christians in the Holy Land, whose numbers have shrunk over the decades and make up just a small percentage of the local population.

As the sun set on Manger Square, the enormous Christmas tree lit up and the city's ancient passageways shone with colored string lights and flashing crosses. Choirs sang classic carols and hymns, their voices echoing throughout the plaza.

Palestinian youths peddled Santa hats to tourists and shop windows bearing signs reading "Jesus Is Here" displayed olive-wood Nativity scenes and other souvenirs.

Earlier in the day, Archbishop Pierbattista Pizzaballa, the top Roman Catholic cleric in the Holy Land, entered Bethlehem after crossing an Israeli military checkpoint from Jerusalem.

Palestinian security personnel and vehicles stationed around the square reminded visitors that amid the merriment, they couldn't quite escape the city's political reality. Bethlehem is located in the Palestinian-controlled area of the West Bank, and much of the city lies behind Israel's separation barrier.

"Last year things were worse because the injustice was so obvious," said Maaya, the tourism minister, referring to U.S. President Donald Trump's decision to recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, incensing the Palestinians and igniting clashes. "But this year doesn't feel so different. We are still occupied, and we always have problems," she said.

Monjed Jadou, a Bethlehem resident, said that although he noticed an impressive amount of foreigners in the square, the crowds of Palestinian visitors appeared thinner than usual.

"Security is tighter around here than it's been in a while, and the streets feel less safe. I think people are afraid," he said, adding that his friends from the West Bank city of Ramallah decided not to come because the Israeli army had been blocking roads around the city.

The West Bank has seen a spike in violence in recent weeks, set off by a pair of deadly shootings targeting Israeli soldiers and settlers claimed by the Islamic militant group Hamas. Israel has ratcheted up security at checkpoints as it presses on with its manhunt for suspected Palestinian assailants.

Other visitors seemed unconcerned by recent violence in the area.

"This has been No. 1 on my bucket list," said Yohannes Denu, 42, of Los Angeles. "There's no better place to be as a Christian, it takes me back to all the rich stories I heard growing up. To be at the center of my faith, it's joyous, it's unbelievable."

In anticipation of the midnight Mass at the Church of the Nativity, the climax of Christmas Eve celebrations, Palestinians and pilgrims huddled in groups, some singing "Silent Night" and carrying candles.

"This is a day of celebration," Maaya said. "And we have hope that one day we'll be able to celebrate like everyone else."

But there are also countermeasures afoot in Congress and state government — and even among tech-firm employees who are more active about ensuring their work is put to positive ends.

"Something that was heartening this year was that accompanying this parade of scandals was a growing public awareness that there's an accountability crisis in tech," said Meredith Whittaker, a co-founder of New York University's AI Now Institute for studying the social implications of artificial intelligence.

The group has compiled a long list of what made 2018 so ominous, though many are examples of the public simply becoming newly aware of problems that have built up for years. Among the most troubling cases was the revelation in March that political data-mining firm Cambridge Analytica swept up personal information of millions of Facebook users for the purpose of manipulating national elections.

"It really helped wake up people to the fact that these systems are actually touching the core of our lives and shaping our social institutions," Whittaker said.

That was on top of other Facebook disasters, including its role in fomenting violence in Myanmar, major data breaches and ongoing concerns about its hosting of fake accounts for Russian propaganda.

It wasn't just Facebook. Google attracted concern about its continuous surveillance of users after The Associated Press reported that it was tracking people's movements whether they like it or not.

It also faced internal dissent over its collaboration with the U.S. military to create drones with "computer vision" to help find battlefield targets and a secret proposal to launch a censored search engine in China. And it unveiled a remarkably human-like voice assistant that sounds so real that people on the other end of the phone didn't know they were talking to a computer.

Those and other concerns bubbled up in December as lawmakers grilled Google CEO Sundar Pichai at a congressional hearing — a sequel to similar public reckonings this year with Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg and other tech executives.

Internet pioneer Vint Cerf said he and other engineers never imagined their vision of a worldwide network of connected computers would morph 45 years later into a surveillance system that collects personal information or a propaganda machine that could sway elections.

"We were just trying to get it to work," recalled Cerf, who is now Google's chief internet evangelist. "But now that it's in the hands of the general public, there are people who ... want it to work in a way that obviously does harm, or benefits themselves, or disrupts the political system. So we are going to have to deal with that."

Contrary to futuristic fears of "super-intelligent" robots taking control, the real dangers of our tech era have crept in more prosaically — often in the form of tech innovations we welcomed for making life more convenient.

Part of experts' concern about the leap into connecting every home device to the internet and letting computers do our work is that the technology is still buggy and influenced by human errors and prejudices. Uber and Tesla were investigated for fatal self-driving car crashes in March, IBM came under scrutiny for working with New York City police to build a facial recognition system that can detect ethnicity, and Amazon took heat for supplying its own flawed facial recognition service to law enforcement agencies.

In some cases, opposition to the tech industry's rush to apply its newest innovations to questionable commercial uses has come from its own employees. Google workers helped scuttle the company's Pentagon drone contract, and workers at Amazon, Microsoft and Salesforce sought to cancel their companies' contracts to supply tech services to immigration authorities.

"It became obvious to a lot of people that the rhetoric of doing good and benefiting society and 'Don't be evil' was not what these companies were actually living up to," said Whittaker, who is also a research scientist at Google who founded its Open Research group.

At the same time, even some titans of technology have been sounding alarms. Prominent engineers and designers have increasingly spoken out about shielding children from the habit-forming tech products they helped create.

And then there's Microsoft President Brad Smith, who in December called for regulating facial recognition technology so that the "year 2024 doesn't look like a page" from George Orwell's "1984."

In a blog post and a Washington speech, Smith painted a bleak vision of all-seeing government surveillance systems forcing dissidents to hide in darkened rooms "to tap in code with hand signals on each other's arms."

To avoid such an Orwellian scenario, Smith advocates regulating technology so that anyone about to subject themselves to surveillance is properly notified. But privacy advocates argue that's not enough.

Such debates are already happening in states like Illinois, where a strict facial recognition law has faced tech industry challenges, and California, which in 2018 passed the nation's most far-reaching law to give consumers more control over their personal data. It takes effect in 2020.

The issue could find new attention in Congress next year as more Republicans warm up to the idea of basic online privacy regulations and the incoming Democratic House majority takes a more skeptical approach to tech firms that many liberal politicians once viewed as allies — and prolific campaign donors.

CHARITY

"It's a random act of kindness, a no-strings-attached gift," said Craig Antico, RIP's co-founder and CEO.

Antico and RIP co-founder Jerry Ashton spent decades as executives in the debt resolution business. Now they do the same thing debt collectors do — buy portfolios of past-due bills for pennies on the dollar. But instead of hounding people for payment, they send letters announcing their debt is now zero. Forgiven debts have ranged from $100 to over $250,000, Antico said.

A $10 donation can buy — and eliminate — $1,000 in long-delinquent debt.

"You get a lot of bang for your charity buck," said Judith Jones of Ithaca, New York. She and Carolyn Kenyon, members of a group advocating universal health coverage, raised $12,500 that RIP Medical Debt used to purchase a portfolio of $1.5 million in debts owed by 1,284 people.

More than 43 million Americans have about $75 billion in past-due medical debt on their credit reports, according to Antico, Ashton and co-author Robert Goff's book, "End Medical Debt." They estimate a total of $1 trillion in reported and unreported unpaid medical debt, and say debt forgiveness is their best interim solution until a better financial structure is worked out for the U.S. health care system.

"We're not the solution," Ashton said. "We're just dealing with the symptoms."

Now they're trying to raise $50,000 for RIP to buy $50 million in medical debts owed by veterans.

For Sasser, 45, the debt relieved was $1,200 not covered by his high-deductible insurance for his wife's debilitating medical condition she's been grappling with for six years. Sasser had to cut way back on his advertising and graphic design business to care for her and their two teenage boys.

"To have these large bills looming and no way to pay was a source of constant stress," Sasser said. "When I opened that letter, it lifted a huge weight off."

Reagen Adair, a fifth-grade teacher in Murchison, Texas, had $3,100 in debt erased by RIP. She was inspired to pay it forward by making a donation to the charity to help others struggling with medical bills.

"The system is broken," Adair said. "We have a problem with our health care system. What we have now is not working."

RIP Medical Debt has its origins in Occupy Wall Street. Ashton's office overlooked the park where social activists camped out in 2011 to protest income inequality and seek solutions.

When people associated with the Occupy movement launched a project to buy debt and erase it, Ashton and Antico offered their expertise. They turned that project into RIP Medical Debt in 2014.

It limped along until 2016, when HBO's "Last Week Tonight with John Oliver" did a segment where they gave the nonprofit $60,000 to purchase $15 million in medical debt and wipe it out.

Publicity from Oliver's segment was a game-changer. Donations went from less than $12,000 in 2015 to more than $2.4 million in 2017.

In addition to individual donations, fundraising campaigns for RIP have been held across the country by health care groups, television stations and other organizations.

In November, an anonymous couple donated $2 million to RIP to eliminate $250 million in medical debt.

Because the nonprofit's model revolves around buying portfolios of bulk debt from hospitals or investors, it is unable, at this point, to abolish bills for specific individuals.

"When we get these emails from people begging us for help, it would melt the heart of a stone statue," Ashton said. RIP's website has a registry where people can sign up in case the charity one day is able to help individual people. Ashton said there are more than 10,000 names.

"My goal in life is to be able to help people who come to us," Antico said.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 25, the 359th day of 2018. There are six days left in the year. This is Christmas Day.

Today in history

On Dec. 25, 1991, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev went on television to announce his resignation as the eighth and final leader of a communist superpower that had already gone out of existence.

On this date

In A.D. 336, the first known commemoration of Christmas on Dec. 25 took place in Rome.

In 1066, William the Conqueror was crowned King of England.

In 1776, Gen. George Washington and his troops crossed the Delaware River for a surprise attack against Hessian forces at Trenton, New Jersey, during the American Revolutionary War.

In 1926, Hirohito became emperor of Japan, succeeding his father, Emperor Yoshihito.

In 1931, New York's Metropolitan Opera broadcast an entire live opera over radio for the first time: "Hansel and Gretel" by Engelbert Humperdinck.

In 1961, Pope John XXIII formally announced the upcoming convocation of the Second Vatican Council, which opened in Oct. 1962.

In 1977, comedian Sir Charles Chaplin died in Switzerland at age 88.

In 1989, ousted Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, were executed following a popular uprising. Former baseball manager Billy Martin, 61, died in a traffic accident near Binghamton, New York.

In 1990, the World Wide Web, the system providing quick access to websites over the Internet, was born in Geneva, Switzerland, as computer scientists Tim Berners-Lee and Robert Cailliau (KAH'-yoh) created the world's first hyperlinked webpage.

In 2006, James Brown, the "Godfather of Soul," died in Atlanta at age 73.

Five years ago: Pope Francis offered Christmas wishes for a better world, praying for protection for Christians under attack, battered women and trafficked children, peace in the Middle East and Africa, and dignity for refugees fleeing misery and conflict around the globe.

One year ago: Harsh winter weather gripped much of the country on Christmas, with bitter cold in the Midwest and a blizzard moving into New England. Russian election officials formally barred opposition leader Alexei Navalny from running for president, prompting him to call for a boycott of the March, 2018 vote.

Becoming a Tarpon

QB Muse battled to earn a spot in Tarpon lore

By JACOB HOAG
STAFF WRITER

Editor's Note: Charlotte's Alex Muse and Venice's Brandon Gregory were selected as Co-Players of the Year. Gregory's story appears on yoursun.com.

It was his first game as a Tarpon and it couldn't have gone worse.

Then-junior Alex Muse, a new kid in a new system with teammates that didn't know much about him or respect his place at the helm just yet, was yearning for his first chance to prove to his team that he belonged as Charlotte High's starting quarterback.

A lot of uncertainty followed his transfer from Port Charlotte High to the rival Tarpons. The questions circled, but he stood by his decision to leave after not receiving the starting nod with the Pirates.

In his first regular season game, a 33-14 loss to Dunbar, Muse went 0 for 8, threw two interceptions and averaged just .7 yards on nine carries.

"After that, I had to regain the trust of the team," Muse said. "I played terribly, the team played terribly. I don't think I said anything the whole night. With a team full of seniors that I didn't grow up with, it took most of my junior season to gain the trust of my team."

But he couldn't sulk. He couldn't let his new teammates see his head drop.

From that point, he knew if he was going to match the expectations of the Tarpon faithful and lead the team to the playoffs and beyond, it started right there as the team walked off the field.

A year and a half later, Muse, nursing a nagging shoulder injury, willed the battered and bruised Tarpons to the second round of the 6A state playoffs, and earned the selection of the Sun Preps Football Player of the Year.

His senior season, one that saw him throw for 1,054 yards, rush for another 496 and total 23 touchdowns, began with redemption of that first start — a 37-10 win over Dunbar — and ended with reflection of what

Bucs-Cowboys: After DeSean Jackson injures Achilles, is his time with Bucs over?

By EDUARDO ENCINA
TAMPA BAY TIMES

ARLINGTON, Texas — Inside an empty Bucs locker room Sunday, WR DeSean Jackson limped around in visible pain, struggling to put weight on his right foot.

The limp was so heavy that he didn't look like a player who had been able to return to the game against the Cowboys from a second-quarter Achilles injury. He also didn't look like a player who'd be ready for next weekend's finale against the Falcons.

Jackson hobbled off the field shortly after he caught his first pass in the 27-20 loss.

"I got cleated in my Achilles," he said. "Hopefully not (serious).

Everything's attached and still good. Shouldn't be too bad."

The game was Jackson's first after missing the previous three with a thumb injury. That injury isn't resolved, but Jackson felt good enough, in his mind, to catch and hold on to passes.

Thus is the star-crossed season for Jackson, who is literally limping to the finish line.

Jackson's first catch Sunday was his only one. He caught a 24-yard pass from QB Jameis Winston late in the second quarter, a play that helped set up the Bucs' first touchdown, then quickly went to the sideline and fell to the ground holding his right foot.

The Bucs said Jackson was questionable to return, but he was back late in the third quarter, receiving one more target on a deep-ball completion.

"Obviously, suffering an Achilles sprain or bruise or whatever it is, I was still able to get out there and fight and play through it," Jackson said. "It was a tough loss, obviously."

"It felt good, though, because everybody was fighting and just playing their hearts out, so that's what you take away from this game. Obviously, you like to win, but (there were) a lot of penalties, a lot of ups and downs throughout the game. You just credit everybody for still fighting."

What the Lightning does for Christmas

By DIANA NEARHOS
TAMPA BAY TIMES

TAMPA — Christmas is all about family, food, gifts and hockey. Or at least it was for some of the Lightning players, growing up.

Yanni Gourde spent every day of Christmas break at the outdoor rink in Saint-Narcisse, Quebec with his brothers and father. They did not miss a day, certainly not Christmas.

Now, Gourde and the rest of the Lightning, take a break from hockey for the holiday. Or at least from professional hockey, the outdoor rinks might still be calling. The NHL enforces a Christmas break from Dec. 24 to 26 and the Lightning didn't have a game scheduled for Dec. 23 either, so its break was a little bit longer.

Players dispersed after Saturday's game in Edmonton, 11 of them flying out immediately after the 8 p.m. game. It's a chance to catch their breaths, as the Lightning has mostly played every other day for the past two months. More importantly, it's a chance to spend time with their families.

"Being away from home now, getting together with family is the best thing," center Steven Stamkos said. "Since I was 16, I've been away from my family. We make a point to all get together for at least Christmas Eve."

J.T. Miller's family has gathered at his grandparents' home outside Youngstown, Ohio, for as long as he can remember. The whole family, and some friends are there, enjoying Grandma Barb's awesome cooking.

Ryan McDonagh's traditions have changed over his life, especially since having his own children. He remembers having 35 or 40 family members at his grandparents' house in Minnesota. He and his cousins jostling with each other to dive into the huge pile of gifts.

Coach Jon Cooper still wears the hockey jersey he's worn since high school at Notre Dame, because it's red. He and his wife have also adopted a tradition his mother started of fondue at midnight on Christmas Eve. The fondue and drinks can go for hours.

he accomplished in his two years at Charlotte High. What he accomplished was exactly what Charlotte coach Binky Waldrop expected when he gave him the opportunity to be a Tarpon.

"He played hurt a lot," Waldrop said. "I held him out of games he wanted to play in. He's a competitor. We're proud of him with how far he's come. He's turned into a great football player." At 6-foot-3, 195 pounds, Muse had good size for a quarterback. He could throw downfield with ease and use his athleticism to evade rushers and add another threat to an already dangerous option attack.

Completing a trio of bruiser Jayden Grant up the middle and speedster Jeremiah Harvey on the outside, Muse gave opposing defenses a third problem to worry about. As the Tarpons pounded the ball to Grant, Charlotte quarterback Alex Muse drops back to pass against Palmetto Ridge.

Muse provided Waldrop with a counter attack as the defenses began to flow toward the tailback. So much that the Tarpons implemented an offensive scheme better suited to Muse's abilities. And it worked as the Tarpons won eight of their first nine games and averaged 200 rushing yards a game.

"He was just tough and he could handle people giving him a hard time and I liked that about him," Grant said. "We just had everything together and planned because teams would try to take me out of the game and he would come and find holes in the defense. We didn't care who got the ball. We honestly tried to do what we had to do to win."

For a while, Muse was on cruise control in a sense. Things were just clicking offensively. But a series of injuries would quickly make for a rough road for the senior quarterback.

In a lopsided loss to 7A powerhouse Venice with the game out of hand, Muse's competitive nature overtook reason for one play. As he rushed late in the game, he instinctively made the decision to fight for the first down, which at that point in the game, was unnecessary.

"On the last play of the game, when I shouldn't have even been playing, I was being lazy running because we were getting the crap beat out of us," Muse said. "I got the first down, but it was stupid because it didn't matter. He tackled me and slung me down."

The tackle caused Muse to land awkwardly on his elbow, pushing a bone in his shoulder to be pushed upward and loosened his labrum, causing a fair amount of discomfort.

Muse didn't miss any time. In fact, his next game, a 44-6 win over Ida Baker, he had one of his best games of the year, throwing for 124 yards with four total touchdowns. But that shoulder injury was re-aggravated against North Fort Myers and would linger for the remainder of the season.

"One of the first times I ran the football in the game, I was running down the sideline and their linebacker came up behind me and slung me down the same way," Muse said. "At the time I just got up and said alright whatever."

With the game again already in the bag, Muse admitted that he should've got taped up and called it a game. But that's not his style.

"I should've said something to coach, but I didn't," Muse added. "I ran the ball up the middle and No. 9 gigantor dude — I should've just went down — he picked me up and rolled over me. Right then I was like, 'This is bad.'" This time Muse would miss time. As his team wrapped up the district title in a 35-0 win over Cape Coral, Muse watched backup John Busha take the reins.

After being sidelined for six quarters, an anxious, competitive kid had his defining moment. And it just so happened it came against his former team. Muse sat the first half against the Pirates after throwing in warmups and feeling good. Waldrop was being cautious with Muse and didn't want to play him unless it was absolutely necessary.

Down 14-0 at the half with the offense out of sync, Muse looked around the locker room at halftime and saw players with their heads down, seemingly defeated already.

Muse immediately ran over to his dad in the stands and pleaded with him to give Waldrop the Ok to let him play in the second half. A plea that was granted and changed the course of the game.

Two plays into the second half, junior Ashar Thomas took a jet sweep 64-yards for the Tarpons' first score. Two drives later, Muse hit junior Jeremiah Harvey in tight coverage for a 64-yard touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, Muse put the dagger in the Pirates season when he stepped up in the pocket to scramble before seeing a wide open Freddie Fletcher running down the sideline on 3rd-and-11. Muse dropped it in and finished the game 8 of 10 passing for 205 yards and two touchdowns in the half.

It was what he had done all year. Come up big when his team needed him. He still had the desire to prove himself to his team even to the very end.

In the final game of his career, a 36-20 loss to North Fort Myers, Muse kept fighting even when the game was already out of hand.

Just like in his first game as a Tarpon, he couldn't let his head drop. He couldn't let his team feel defeated. The team that he once felt like an outsider to had embraced him and enabled him to thrive.

After the game, a teary Muse gave thanks to the Charlotte High football program for giving him the chance to play quarterback and become a Tarpon. Muse rewarded the Tarpon community with grit, determination and a no-quit attitude.

"I wouldn't have wanted to lose with anyone else," a passionate Muse said following the loss. "I love my team, I love my coaches. Coach Binky gave me a chance to come here and play football and play quarterback and do what I wanted to do ... I just want to thank Charlotte (High) for giving me that chance."

Offense

Hayden Wolff, QB, Venice: Following one of the best players in school history in Bryce Carpenter, Wolff lived up to the hype in 2018. The 6-foot-5, 210-pound senior led Venice to a 12-2 record and was named team Offensive MVP for his statistical season of 2,684 passing yards on 63.2 percent completion rate with 24 touchdowns to nine interceptions. Wolff will soon be off to Old Dominion University after signing his National Letter of Intent last week.

HAYDEN WOLFF

“He was a great leader,” Venice coach John Peacock said. “He has a very strong arm and makes good decisions. He’s a student of the game who ran our offense to perfection.”

Logan Rogers, QB, Port Charlotte: Only a sophomore fresh out of Pop Warner, Rogers stepped in admirably for the Pirates and kept the offense churning. Rogers threw for 1,152 yards with 21 total touchdowns (14 rush, 7 pass).

ROGERS

“Development-wise I thought he did a phenomenal job given the circumstances,” Port Charlotte coach Jordan Ingman said. “Coming from Pop Warner as a freshman to starting as a sophomore is something I’ve never seen at the quarterback position. He’s as tough as it comes.”

Jayden Grant, RB, Charlotte: Grant was the bruiser of the rushing trio for Charlotte. He consistently carried for tough yards up the middle and averaged 4.8 yards per carry. Grant finished the year with 604 yards and 10 touchdowns. Grant was also selected to the FACA all-star game.

GRANT

“Jayden is our best football player,” Charlotte coach Binky Waldrop said. “He played both sides of the ball and didn’t get a lot of breaks, but tough as they come. What a great football player.”

Keegan Marinola, RB, Lemon Bay: A bruising back who also saw time playing defense at defensive end and linebacker, Marinola was the heart and soul of the Manta Rays offense in the second half of 2018. Marinola, a senior, rushed for 776 of his 1,036 yards over the final five games for Lemon Bay.

MARINOLA

“Keegan is built for that inside, tough running,” Lemon Bay coach Don Southwell said. “He’s a big strong kid who can handle the carries. He’s deceptively quick with his size and he finished every run. He never got knocked back on a run that I can recall.”

Weston Wolff, WR, Venice: A player who Peacock and the rest of the Indians coaching staff initially had pegged for JV, Wolff not only made varsity, but became the go-to weapon in the passing game for Venice. Just a sophomore, the 6-foot-5

WESTON WOLFF

Wolff brought in an eye-popping 70 catches for 796 yards and 3 touchdowns. In the final game of Venice’s season against St. Thomas Aquinas, Wolff brought in eight catches for 115 yards.

“He was someone that we could count on, and it didn’t matter who was covering him,” Peacock said. “In the St. Thomas game, he was making catches and plays against the top corners in the country.”

Tyler Perry, WR, Port Charlotte: Though Perry made his name at receiver, garnering an offer to play at the University of South Dakota, the 6-foot-3 athlete did more than just catch.

PERRY

Along with his 437 yards and four touchdowns on offense, he recorded eight sacks at defense end as well.

“He played five positions by the end,” Ingman said. “His willingness to learn every one of them was something we really appreciated as a coaching staff. He’s a great talent that will do very well at the next level.”

Devante Roberson, WR, Lemon Bay: A do-it-all player for Lemon Bay, Roberson served as a starting receiver, defensive back and the backup quarterback in 2018.

ROBERSON

Known for his big-play ability, Roberson scored three touchdowns of over 60 yards and caused some turnovers on the defensive end as well.

“He’s got really good ball skills and he has great hands,” Southwell said. “He can run. He’s a legit high 4.5, 4.6 (40-yard dash) guy. He’s got a little bit of shake to him as well. He’s just an overall athlete. He played a little bit of safety, he was our backup quarterback. He was a jack-of-all-trades for us.”

Dustyn Hall, OL, Charlotte: The Tarpon offensive line was stacked when healthy, which helped them produce a potent rushing attack that averaged 200 yards per game. A 320-pound, USF-bound tackle, Hall helped lead the line until injury sidelined him late in the season.

“Just a dominating player,” Waldrop said. “Not very often do you get a kid on the line that’s a difference maker and he was for us. It really hurt us the last four games not having him.”

Caden Marcum, OL, Port Charlotte: The heart and soul of the offensive line, Marcum moved around when needed. He started at tackle and ended at center. Standing 6-foot-3 and 300-plus pounds, Marcum led the Pirate line with 28 pancake blocks.

MARCUM

“Caden was a guy that was very unselfish,” Ingman said. “He could play every position on the line and was a true leader down there for us with a bunch of young guys. He really guided a young group and did a great job in the leadership department.”

Thomas Shrader, OL, Venice: Another player who the Indians coaching staff wasn’t counting on in 2018, Shrader proved his worth on the offensive line, helping block the way for Brandon Gregory’s 1,489 rushing yards and Co-Player of the Year season. With an offer to USF already in hand, the potential for Shrader is wide open when he returns for his senior season in 2019.

SHRADER

“Thomas was a huge surprise,” Peacock said. “You’re talking about a kid who was a JV player for us last year and he came up and did a great job. He was probably the best center we’ve had in a long time. We were shocked by him. He brought the whole offensive line together and really made it what it is.”

Brock Lavallee, OL, Lemon Bay: A three-year starter for Lemon Bay, Lavallee was one of the Mantas’ most important leaders in 2018. Providing stability to an offensive line sorely in need of it, Lavallee helped block the way for Marinola’s 1,000+ yard season.

LAVALLEE

“What a great kid he is,” Southwell said. “He’s doing great things right now in wrestling. He’ll probably be in the top three in his weight class. I think with all the things he learned through wrestling over the years that he brought that to the football field. He was solid for us. He provided great leadership for our guys.”

Brett Brown, OL, North Port: Brown was a two-year starter at guard for the Bobcats and was selected to the all-area team as a sophomore as well. He opened up holes for teammates Jalen Whye, who rushed for over 600 yards.

BROWN

“He’s an old school offensive lineman,” North Port coach Brian Hatler said. “He enjoys the physicality of the position, seeks out contact. He’s just a dominant run blocker.”

Kenny Scribner, P, Charlotte: Another FACA all-star selection, Scribner kicked and punted for the tarpons and played a large role in pinning teams deep. Scribner, a USF signee, averaged 43 yards per punt as a senior, consistently flipping the field.

SCRIBNER

“Kenny obviously is a great kicker,” Waldrop said. “He puts the ball in the end zone on kickoffs. He averaged 43 yards a punt this year and that’s what makes you a Division I football player.”

Zack Sessa, K, Venice: One of the most talented kickers to play football in Southwest Florida, Sessa still had a nearly perfect season despite fighting through a hamstring injury for a few weeks. Sessa was 26-for-27 on extra points and 7-for-8 on field goals, with over 70 percent of his kickoffs going for touchbacks. The senior also played some receiver, hauling in a 74-yard touchdown in the 7A-3 regional semifinals against Braden River.

SESSA

“Zack is meticulous about his kicking,” Peacock said. “He’s a perfectionist, and that’s why he’s one of the best kickers in the country. He had an unbelievable year and an unbelievable career for us.”

Marc Jean-Louis, ATH, Port Charlotte: Jean-Louis was the do-it-all player for the Pirates. He played running back, caught passes, threw passes and played defensive back at times. He rushed for 641 yards (9.6 yards per rush) with 403 receiving yards (16.9 yards per catch) and 15 total touchdowns.

JEAN-LOUIS

“Marc has been a four-year mainstay for us,” Ingman said. “He unfortunately had a bunch of injuries he was able to battle through in his career and put together a great senior year. He’s dynamic. He can catch the ball deep, he can catch the pitch, run inside. He’s a great football player.”

Brandon Leacock, DL, Port Charlotte: One of the more disruptive defensive linemen in the area, Leacock made a home in opponents’ backfields. He was second on the team with seven sacks.

LEACOCK

“Brandon was a versatile athlete that we think will do good things at the next level,” Ingman said. “He can rush the passer very well and a natural knack for that. I think that will really pay dividends for him as he moves on with his career.”

Wyatt Soucy, DL, Lemon Bay: A three-year starter who played both defensive and offensive line for the Mantas this year, Soucy made his impact felt in the trenches every Friday.

SOUCY

The senior had a knack for causing turnovers and havoc in the backfield, giving a spark to a tough Lemon Bay defense.

“It’s one thing to play wideout and let’s say DB,” Southwell said. “But to be an offensive lineman and a defensive lineman and to play almost every snap of every game, there’s not a lot of people out there who can do that and do it well. And he did that. He’s super strong, super competitive and he just loves to play football. He was a force to be reckoned with on both sides of the ball.”

Carson Sullivan, DL, Venice: Called “undersized” by some, Sullivan put any doubts to rest in 2018 as he broke the school sack record with 14.5 sacks through 11 games. The senior also finished third on the Indians with 111 total tackles, and first on the team with 22.5 tackles for a loss.

“Carson is unbelievable,” Peacock said. “He has an unbelievable motor, he’s an unbelievable kid. He’s one of those kids who we want to build our program off of — kids like him. He’s tough as nails and that motor and his heart are things you can’t measure.”

Marlem Louis, DL, Venice: The Defensive MVP of the Indians, Louis was a leader on the field who wasn’t afraid to fire his teammates up. With 100 total tackles and 8 sacks, Louis was a consistent threat to disrupt the opposing offense on Friday nights.

LOUIS

“Marlem did great,” Peacock said. “He was one of the reasons it was so tough for teams to run on us. He did a great job of shutting down the edge. He lined up on the strength of their formation and he also did a great job of getting to the quarterback. He’s a guy the other team had to account for on every snap.”

Cutter Rebol, LB, Charlotte: The Tarpon defense kept teams to an average of 17.7 points per game this year and senior Rebol had a hand in it. He was all over the field in the Tarpons’ playoff push.

REBOL

“Cutter was our rock all year,” Waldrop said. “He called our defensive, led our team in points. He’s just a workaholic, that’s what made him so good. He just outworks everybody.”

Nick Giacolone, LB, Venice: Though Giacolone was an Indian for just one season, he made it count. The senior made sure few ball carriers made it past him, leading the team and the area with 168 total tackles through 14 games. In the 7A semifinals, Giacolone kept Venice’s hopes alive by grabbing a first-half interception.

GIACOLONE

“He’s one that’s going to be very, very hard to replace,” Peacock said. “Just his speed and how physical he was and how emotional he is. He’s a highly emotional kid on the field and that’s something we’re gonna have to replace next year.”

Jake Monzeglio, LB, Port Charlotte: An instinctive linebacker, Monzeglio had a knack for sniffing out plays. He lead the team with 119 tackles on the year and scored on a pick-6 against Ida Baker after he jumped a slant route.

MONZEGLIO

“Jake was an old school kid,” Ingman said. “A guy that just loved the physicality of the game. He played sideline to sideline because he combined his athleticism with a toughness that’s an incredible combination as a linebacker.”

Shevon Pearce, DB, Port Charlotte: Pearce helped lead the back end of the Pirate defense as a junior. He tied for the team lead with three interceptions with a pick-6 and a special teams touchdown. “Shevy is a guy that we’re excited about,” Ingman said. “He works extremely hard on and off the field. He’s a dynamic playmaker. He returned kicks for us in addition to playing in the secondary and he’ll see more time on the offensive side of the ball next year because he’s that good of a player.”

Tai’Viahn Kelly, DB, Charlotte: Kelly was a dynamic player defensively. He helped keep the back end solid and helped seal a win vs. Fort Myers with a late interception. He also had a hand in kick returns as well. He had 226 return yards as well as a rushing touchdown.

KELLY

“You’ll be reading a lot about this kid in the next two years,” Waldrop said. “He’s fast, he’s strong and he’s gonna be a great player. He already is great, but he’s gonna be even better.”

Jeremiah Harvey, DB, Charlotte: Harvey was the Swiss Army knife for the Tarpons. He rushed for 409 yards and caught 21 passes for 409 yards with 12 total touchdowns, but was also one of their top defenders. Against Fort Myers, Harvey caught a deep touchdown to close out the first half and then intercepted a pass in the end zone late in the 28-20 win.

HARVEY

“Jeremiah’s another one that plays both sides,” Waldrop said. “He’s one of our best DBs, running back he runs, we put him out he catches. He can do anything on a football field.”

Noah Carr, DB, Venice: It would have been nearly impossible for Carr to contribute more than he did in 2018. Along with leading a young defensive secondary, the senior also served as a receiver and kick returner, giving his team a spark in every facet of the game. Carr led the team with 4 INTs, including an 85-yard pick six against Braden River in the 7A-3 regional semifinals.

CARR

“Oh, man Noah meant everything to us,” Peacock said. “We asked him to do an awful lot — more than anyone else on the team. Catch punts, make checks as far as coverages on defense. And we put him in big situations for us in the passing game, and he stepped up.”

AP top sports story of '18: Nassar abuse, gymnastics turmoil

AP NATIONAL WRITER

The depths of Larry Nassar's depravity began to emerge some 15 months before the calendar flipped to 2018 — when reports of his sexual abuse first appeared in newspaper stories that would eventually lead to a trial and, ultimately, to the doctor's imprisonment.

But it was January 2018, the month when more than 150 female athletes testified at Nassar's sentencing hearing for convictions on child-porn and sex-abuse charges, that marked a turning point in a crisis that has inflicted untold damage.

The testimony brought the true nature and number of Nassar's crimes to the fore, triggering spasms of anger, soul-searching and attempts at reform, while also giving women in sports — and society in general — a more powerful voice when it comes to exposing abuse that had been swept out of the public's conscience for decades.

Nassar's crimes and the chaos they provoked — the massive turnover at Michigan State, the U.S. Olympic Committee and USA Gymnastics, to say nothing of the trauma wrought on the victims themselves — was the Story of the Year in balloting by AP members and editors. The Nassar saga earned more than double the number of votes as the second- and third-place finishers: the Eagles first Super Bowl championship and the Supreme Court's decision to strike down a law that prohibited sports gambling outside of Nevada.

The year 2018 was also notable for a string of stirring comebacks and surprises: Maryland-Baltimore County pulled the first 16 vs. 1 upset in an NCAA Tournament that was also highlighted by Loyola-Chicago's run to the Final Four, spurred on by a 98-year-old superfan, Sister Jean Dolores-Schmidt. Tiger Woods returned to form, nearly winning the PGA before capturing the season-ending Tour Championship. The expansion Las Vegas Knights made it all the way to the Stanley Cup Final before falling to the Washington Capitals.

There was a steady trickle of news about the still-emerging evidence and response to the doping scandal in Russia that has sullied the last three Olympics, with potential for more.

But the steadiest flow of cringe-inducing headlines came out of the Nassar scandal — not only detailing his depravity, but also the slow, often-ham-handed way in which some of the most powerful people in sports dealt with the aftermath.

Those who failed paid dearly, and it's no exaggeration to say the entire Olympic movement inside the United States could be reconfigured because of it.

USOC chairman Larry Probst, CEO Scott Blackmun and sport performance director Alan Ashley all left or were forced out under a cloud. In his going-away speech, Probst said despite the USOC's success under his watch, "it is our collective failure to keep you safe that that will forever cause me deep and profound regret." Brought on to repair USA Gymnastics, president Kerry Perry got forced out after a series of embarrassing and out-of-touch missteps. Her predecessor, Steve Penny, was arrested on charges he ordered files pertaining to Nassar removed from the team's training center at the Karolyi Ranch in Texas.

Former gymnast Rachael Denhollander, left, is hugged by Kaylee Lorincz after giving her victim impact statement during the seventh day of Larry Nassar's sentencing hearing in Lansing, Michigan. More than 150 female athletes testified at Nassar's sentencing hearing in January 2018 for convictions on child-porn and sex-abuse charges. It marked a turning point in a crisis that has inflicted untold damage.

Blackmun's successor, Sarah Hirshland, eventually called for decertification of USA Gymnastics — an unwieldy process that could be hastened by Congress, which held a number of hearings and called for changes in the law that governs the entire, dysfunctional U.S. Olympic charter.

Ironically, one of the biggest drivers of change turned out to be the world's best gymnast. A Nassar victim herself, Olympic and world champion Simone Biles was unabashed in calling it like she saw it when change wasn't coming quickly enough — or didn't make any sense. Though hers may have been the best-known voice, it wasn't the only one.

Survivors are cautiously optimistic.

"There is a broader cultural impact in terms of survivors speaking up," said Rachel Denhollander, whose story of abuse at the hands of Nassar triggered the entire meltdown. "Prosecutors are saying they're seeing a significant increase. A lot of them are tying them back to the sentencing hearing with Larry."

Though he worked with high-profile gymnasts in a volunteer capacity, Nassar did most of his damage at his full-time job at Michigan State.

The school has settled lawsuits totaling $500 million. Its university president, athletic director, gymnastics coach, vice president of legal affairs, a dean and a school doctor have all left under the cloud of how the university failed, time and again, when presented with evidence that Nassar was a serial abuser. Some of those who have left are awaiting trials for enabling Nassar in some way.

Hundreds of gymnasts' lawsuits against the USOC and USA Gymnastics are still pending. More Congressional hearings will be scheduled. More failures are certain to be detailed, and possibly some positive solutions — few and far between as the recriminations have piled up — can be found, as well.

The one sure thing is that even though 2018 is coming to an end, the pain, lessons and impact felt from the Nassar saga will resonate in 2019 and beyond.

"I think we have opened this door and revealed a lot of bad truths about our sport and sports in general," said one of Nassar's many victims, Olympic champion Jordyn Wieber. "Not only in sports in general, but a big child-abuse problem. People are opening their eyes a little bit more."

NHL primes pump for future talent with transfer fees

How the NHL helps 'prime the pump' for future talent with millions of dollars in transfer fees sent to European countries each year

By STEPHEN WHYNO

AP HOCKEY WRITER

When Rasmus Dahlin put pen to paper on his first NHL contract, the reverberations carried to Gothenburg and Lidköping in his native Sweden.

The No. 1 overall pick signing with the Buffalo Sabres earned Sweden more than $250,000 to put back into development.

"It's unreal," Dahlin said. "We need all the money we can get."

Last year alone, the NHL paid more than $35 million in transfer fees as teams signed European players. There are agreements in place with all the major hockey-producing countries except Russia and Switzerland that allow the free flow of players to the best league in the world.

"The purpose I suppose is to help prime the pump for hockey development," deputy NHL Commissioner Bill Daly said. "The pool of players who can play in the National Hockey League continues to increase on a regular basis. ... There's more better players than ever before."

When the world junior championship begins Wednesday in Canada, it will be a showcase of that emerging talent spurred along in Europe and North America by this money. The NHL also sends junior leagues in Canada and the United States over $12 million annually and provides financial support for USA Hockey.

That feeder system is partially responsible for the game's explosion of young talent in recent years. Nowhere is that more evident than Sweden, which received roughly $8 million last year for Dahlin and more than 30 other players signing NHL contracts.

"That money is obviously huge," said Detroit Red Wings defenseman Niklas Kronwall, who is Swedish. "It doesn't just go to the pro teams. I think it funnels down to your first team and the teams that are developing you and have been taking you on this ride. And that money is doing the same for the next generation of players: setting up with the right facilities and the right coaches and just try to surround them with the best circumstances that they can so they can succeed. That's one of the reasons why Sweden's been able to keep producing players."

The investment makes sense for the NHL, which currently has players from 16 different countries. The 31 — soon to be 32 — teams split the costs equally each year.

It's beneficial for national federations and European leagues and teams, too, even if Swedish Hockey Association vice president Peter Forsberg had to convince those in charge it was better to make a deal with the NHL than lose players for nothing.

"I told them that I think it's better you have an agreement because then we have impact in the kind of discussions," said Forsberg, who shares the same name with the retired NHL star. "All the players who sign a contract with Swedish club or European club or whatever, they have always an out clause that they can go to the NHL. We can't ever keep them in our league if you want to keep them in our league. We cannot sign the long contract that they do in soccer in Europe. We don't have that kind of possibilities."

AP PHOTO

When first overall pick Dahlin put pen to paper on his first NHL contract, the reverberations carried to Gothenburg and Lidköping in his native Sweden. Dahlin signing with the Buffalo Sabres earned Sweden more than $250,000 to put back into development.

The trick is making sure the money goes to what it's designed for. Daly, who has been in charge of transfer fees since the end of the 2004-05 lockout, said federations are responsible for reporting where the funds go because the goal is to keep churning out players who one day could make it to the NHL.

The federations distribute the money to various levels as they see fit. Forsberg said 95 percent of fees go back into programs that grow the sport in Sweden.

"We ensure that the money goes back to the development," Forsberg said. "You can see that on the result that we have around 10 percent of Swedish players are today in NHL (and) that 10 percent of players in NHL are Swedes. We can see that we have a high production line."

That's also the case in Finland, which has the league's leading scorer in Colorado's Mikko Rantanen and produced Winnipeg's 43-goal scorer Patrik Laine, young Dallas defenseman Miro Heiskanen and a whole generation of emerging star players.

"They take care of the players, they help players to develop them to get ready to come over," Buffalo defenseman Rasmus Ristolainen said. "Like you've seen the last few years, Finnish players are really stepping up, so it's a credit to every team back home."

Government contributions and smart leadership have also helped hockey blossom across Europe. Kronwall credited longtime coach-turned-general manager Tommy Boustedt for setting up position-specific camps in Sweden that specifically allowed for the development of Dahlin and more modern defensemen.

The NHL money paved the way for that.

"We're a hard-working country," Dahlin said. "We're humble. We don't have a lot of players, but some of the guys come to the NHL and for me, a younger guy, I know that a Swedish guy can make it, too."

■ COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Alabama Crimson Tide

Jerry Jeudy follows in steps of past Alabama star receivers

By JOHN ZENOR

AP SPORTS WRITER

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Jerry Jeudy's ambitions grew with every college camp he attended and every highly rated defensive back he beat head to head.

His recruiting stock rose, and so did his goals.

Now Alabama's latest All-America wide receiver, Jeudy ratcheted up his workout routine, started eating healthier and buckled down in the classroom for his senior year at Deerfield Beach High School in Florida.

"When he got out there and started feeling like, 'I'm going against guys that were supposed to be five-stars and I'm taking it to them. I can do it,'" Deerfield coach Jevon Glenn said. "Then he put himself in that class and after that, it was a wrap."

It's not a wrap quite yet, with at least one more season at Alabama awaiting, plus the College Football Playoffs. Alabama faces Oklahoma in an Orange Bowl semifinal matchup in Miami — an hour from Jeudy's hometown — on Dec. 29.

The 6-foot-1, 192-pound Jeudy has followed his fellow south Florida products Amari Cooper and Calvin Ridley to receiving stardom with the Crimson Tide. He became a five-star recruit, like them. And the go-to receiver for a national title contender, also like them.

Like Cooper in 2014, the sophomore also won the Biletnikoff Award as the nation's top receiver.

Jeudy has put up big numbers like his predecessors, including Atlanta Falcons star Julio Jones. The other three all became first-round NFL draft picks.

He has the benefit of catching passes from an elite quarterback in Heisman Trophy runner-up Tua Tagovailoa in a more pass-oriented offense. But Jeudy also shares the ball with a deeper pool of talented receivers than any of them.

Jeudy has already put up bigger numbers than Ridley did in either of his final two seasons in a much more run-first offense. He has 59 catches for 1,103 yards — an 18.7-yard average — and 12 touchdowns.

Jeudy worked out every other day with Ridley as a 10th-grader and they still keep in touch.

"Great player, works really hard and deserves everything coming his way," Ridley said. "We played high school together and grew up together a little bit. Just seeing him grow and becoming the player he is — that's the most exciting thing."

All that time working with or watching Ridley and Cooper helped give the ambitious Jeudy specific targets. Their success, he said, "just made me go harder."

"They taught me a lot," Jeudy said. "Hard work beats talent, so if you've got talent and you work hard, you can turn into something serious."

That's why his success at all-star games and camps served as such a motivator. You can be good with a good work ethic, and with a better one you could really be "something serious."

He used to hunker down in Deerfield's football lounge studying receivers like Jones, Ridley and Antonio Brown and hoping to join that elite company someday.

Glenn also offers an anecdote showing that Jeudy's increased focus transferred into the classroom, too. He said the receiver called him before the Under Armour All-American game, insisting that a B-plus he received in his final semester had to be a mistake. The teacher agreed that it was a calculating error and Jeudy wound up with straight A's, the coach said.

He said Jeudy also started hanging out more with other friends who nursed similar aspirations.

"He's got plans, he's got reservations in his mind to be one of the best when it's all said and done," Glenn said. "That explains why he works so hard and why he's so focused."

Jeudy didn't just catch the attention of college coaches — and himself — at those all-star games and camps. Current teammates saw the highlights, too, and were anticipating his arrival on campus.

"You just saw him making all these plays," Alabama tailback Damien Harris said. "We knew he was committed here, so seeing him on those videos, 'Hey, this kid is pretty good.' He came in here and continued to work hard and he's turned into the player he is now."

■ COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Clemson Tigers

The Dabo Way: Swinney keeps mood light at surging Clemson

By PETE IACOBELLI

AP SPORTS WRITER

CLEMSON, S.C. — Dabo Swinney likes to keep the mood around Clemson's football program light, with lots of revelry.

It's the Dabo Way. And it seems to be working. Top recruits keep arriving each year, assistants don't want to leave and the Tigers keep winning.

Swinney, in his 10th year at Clemson, like most coaches is a stickler for hard work. But he also is keen on celebrating success. There are memorable locker room dance parties after victories. There was a stadium pizza party for fans following Clemson's first trip to the College Football Playoff in 2015, and even a trip to an area amusement park this week amid preparations for its latest playoff run, which starts for the second ranked Tigers (13-0, CFP No. 2) against No. 3 Notre Dame (12-0, CFP No. 3).

"Coach Swinney calls it joy," receiver Amari Rodgers said.

There's been plenty of joy for the Tigers in the decade since Swinney, a little known receivers coach, earned the fulltime job after the 2008 season without any experience as coach or coordinator.

Clemson has won five Atlantic Coast Conference titles (the last four in

And Swinney is ardent defender of his team's right to happiness.

Last month, he angrily chided fans critical of a closer-than-expected 56-35 win over rival South Carolina.

"We've got people complaining," Swinney said. "Give me a break. If 12-0 ain't good enough, then it's time to seek other places."

Three Clemson All-Americans, defensive end Clelin Ferrell, defensive tackle Christian Wilkins and left tackle Mitch Hyatt — all considered high-round NFL prospects a year ago — returned last January for another season in college.

Highly regarded head coaching candidates in defensive coordinator Brent Venables and co-offensive coordinators Tony Elliott and Jeff Scott have, so far, resisted queries from other programs.

Houston Texans quarterback Deshaun Watson, who led the Tigers to that national title two years ago, said Swinney's style creates loyalty, appreciation and respect.

"He let us be us," Watson said. "He didn't try to control us in any way. He had a great culture there that everyone bought into. We (were) all on the same page and everyone loved it. That was the reason why we were winning and very successful."

And things don't look like they're changing anytime soon.

Clemson's current quarterback, Trevor Lawrence, is a freshman who's already popped up on several early Heisman Trophy lists for 2019. The Tigers signed 27 players last Wednesday, including 13 considered four- or five-star players per 247sports.com.

Wilkins is a player that seems born for Swinney's system; he's hard-working and fun-loving. He's a Power Rangers fanatic who has had linemates dress up as the fictional superheroes and visit coaches' houses on Halloween. His athletic pirouette, leg extension and split on the confetti-filled field was the highlight of the Tigers' national title celebration two years ago. He took criticism during that playoff run, too, for grabbing Ohio State runner Curtis Samuel near his private parts after one play.

The defensive lineman embraced Swinney's approach and made it his mission to step things up.

"I almost try to take it to new levels, new heights," Wilkins said. "I try to have as much fun as anybody when I'm playing the game, doing my job. But I also try and work harder than anybody."

It's a blend that's kept Clemson's staff stable, too. Nine of Swinney's 10 assistants have been with the program four years or more, including Venables, the highly regarded defensive leader whose name regularly surfaces in coaching searches. There were two openings this past month that seemed tailor-made for him: At Texas Tech where Venables' former teammate and friend Kirby Hocutt is the athletic director and Kansas State, Venables' alma mater.

But Venables, who acknowledged speaking to Hocutt, remains at Clemson. Now, he is well compensated with a salary package of $2.2 million this year, but credits Swinney's style as a big reason for staying put.

"He's relentless about demanding that we enjoy it and our players enjoy it and have a great experience," Venables said. "So I love that."

Swinney's keeping fun in mind this bowl season, as well. The team followed a community service outing Monday with a trip to Frankie's Fun Park. Swinney said they'll have an enjoyable gathering to celebrate Christmas in Dallas because they can't be home.

The coach fully understands big-time college football can be a head-down, grinding experience with long hours and stressful moments. Keeping perspective is essential, he said.

Swinney regularly hears "Thank You's" from former players for how he does things after learning of other programs from pro teammates where winning was more of a chore. That'll never be for Swinney's Tigers.

"If we lose," Swinney quips, "no one lost a leg."

So count on more dance-offs and fun times at Clemson.

"I don't want them to be miserable if we win," Swinney said. "At the end of the day, man, we celebrate the journey."

LIGHTNING FROM PAGE 1

"We see how good of a time we had the next morning," he said, "according to how well the gifts are wrapped."

Like Gourde, memories of hockey stand out to Matheiu Joseph and Stamkos from their childhood Christmases. For Joseph, it was playing on the rink his father built in the back yard with his friends. Stamkos' best mini-stick game of the year was in the basement on Christmas Eve.

"We put a few holes in the wall, for sure," he said. "All the adults would be eating dinner and we'd scarf down food to run downstairs and play."

The Lightning's European players had some different traditions, ones specific to their countries.

Erik Cernak will be celebrating a Slovakian Christmas this year as his parents and those of a Slovakian friend in Tampa fly to Florida for the holiday. They'll make traditional dishes of meat, fish and potato salad.

In the Czech Republic, Ondrej Palat celebrated Christmas Eve with Svatý Mikuláš, or St. Nicholas, instead of Christmas day with Santa Claus. They had a big dinner, always fish and potato salad,

grandparents.

Victor Hedman also celebrates a Swedish Christmas on Dec. 24. His wife Sanna Grundberg's family is visiting Tampa this year. The food is his favorite, so they brought supplies for a traditional Swedish ham with beet salad (think potato salad with beets instead).

"There are so many dishes I don't know the English words for," he said. "It's a lot different, but that's my favorite thing about our holiday."

In Russian Orthodox, Christmas is celebrated on Jan. 7, which corresponds to Dec. 25 in the Gregorian calendar, but New Year's Eve is the bigger celebration.

Andrei Vasilevskiy, Nikita Kucherov and Mikhail Sergachev all spoke of a traditional dinner on New Year's Eve with a lot of food, especially Russian salads (again more like potato salad than a green salad). They had a tree and gifts, similar to other Christian religion's Christmas.

"Our president gives a speech on New Year's Eve at 11:55," Sergachev said. "The whole family is there. Everyone gets a champagne."

Kucherov remembers setting off firecrackers in the street to celebrate. Since he will be in Anaheim for New Year's Eve, not Russia, and he doesn't celebrate Christmas, Kucherov is just enjoying some time to relax this holiday.

incompletion deep to Jackson before connecting with him for the big gain on the next play.

Jackson also had a 4-yard run on an end-around.

When Jackson is healthy, his mere presence is an asset to an offense because of his ability to stretch the field vertically, especially against a team that plays a majority of man coverage, like the Cowboys. Opponents have to account for him.

"Honestly, the past couple weeks have been tough, not being able to be out there with my teammates, but I used the time to try to get my thumb back to as close to 100 (percent) as I can," Jackson said.

"I ... still felt it a little bit, but it was good enough for me to catch and squeeze the ball, and I felt confident going out there. So, it just felt good to get out there."

Between the injury and his contract status, Jackson's future with the Bucs is unclear. His $10 million contract for next season is not guaranteed.

■ NFL: Baltimore Ravens

Ravens have been here before: Win, and they're in playoffs

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP SPORTS WRITER

OWINGS MILLS, Md. — After missing the post-season for three straight years, the Baltimore Ravens probably wouldn't complain at all about squeezing into this year's playoffs as a wild card.

Entering as AFC North champions is so much better — a scenario that stands as a distinct possibility entering the final weekend of the regular season.

Thanks to a Lamar Jackson-infused surge of five wins in six games, the Ravens are on the cusp of winning the division and hosting a first-round game. All it will take for that to happen is a victory Sunday at home against the Cleveland Browns (7-7-1).

"That's definitely the first goal, to be division champions," coach John Harbaugh said Monday. "And we're playing a championship game on Sunday. That's what you work for."

Baltimore was 4-6 on Nov. 4 before entering its bye week. An injury to Joe Flacco paved the way for Jackson to take over at quarterback, and the Ravens promptly turned their season around by combining a sound running game with the top-ranked defense in the NFL.

Now, after Baltimore (9-6) upset the Los Angeles Chargers on the road Saturday night and Pittsburgh lost in New Orleans on Sunday, the Ravens are poised to win their first AFC North title since 2012.

"That's what we put in all that time for," Harbaugh said. "In order to do that, we've had to weather some storms and overcome some challenges and win some games. Guys have done a great job. We appreciate where we're at. This is the opportunity that we wanted, and now it's ours to go get."

The Ravens have been here before, with lamentable results. Two years ago, they lost in Pittsburgh on Christmas night in a matchup for the division crown. Last year, Baltimore had its playoff hopes crushed by the Cincinnati Bengals in the season finale when Tyler Boyd caught a 49-yard, fourth-down touchdown pass with 44 seconds left.

Harbaugh doesn't intend to remind the team about that game because, well, those who experienced it won't soon forget it.

"We all know where we've been. We don't need to talk about anything," he said. "When you have a gut-wrenching experience, a tough one like we've had the last two years, you take those with you. It makes you stronger. It forges you as a person, as a competitor."

This isn't the same team as last year, the year before, or even the 2012 version that rode Flacco's arm to a world championship. A year ago, Jackson was preparing to lead Louisville against Mississippi State in the TaxSlayer Bowl, and Don Martindale was working with the

Now, Jackson is in charge of a flourishing offense that counts heavily on ball control and Martindale oversees a blitzing, gambling defense that has allowed fewer yards and fewer points than any unit in the league.

"The whole idea is to impose your will on your opponent however you can do it, based on your personnel and how you want to play, and what your fundamental beliefs are," Harbaugh said. "It's pretty clear what we're trying to do. We'll just try to roll with that and see what happens."

On Friday night, just over 24 hours before the Ravens faced the Chargers, the team announced that Harbaugh would return for the 2019 season and both sides are working on an extension to his contract.

If the gesture was meaningful to the coach, he opted to keep it to himself on Monday.

"That stuff is just really not something that you dwell on or think about," he said.

After Saturday's victory, however, Jackson appeared delighted with the news.

"That's pretty cool," the rookie said. "He was the coach that was here when I got drafted and he's going to be here while I keep excelling and keep improving, so yes, I love it."

■ NFL: Seattle Seahawks

Seahawks back in playoffs, Carroll gets contract extension

By TIM BOOTH
AP SPORTS WRITER

RENTON, Wash. — Doug Baldwin is one of the few still on the Seattle Seahawks roster who has hung around long enough to give an accurate and comprehensive read on coach Pete Carroll — who received a three-year contract extension Monday.

After being with Carroll for eight of his nine seasons in Seattle, Baldwin said the coaching job done this season may be Carroll's best, taking a team few expected to be contender and leading them to the postseason for the seventh time in his Seahawks tenure.

"I would put this up there as one of his best years coaching, without a doubt. All the new faces, all the new coaches, the new guys, really just figuring out how best to utilize them so that we can be successful on the football field and perform at a high level, it's incredible," Baldwin said. "Now he's not going to get all the credit, because we do have an offensive coordinator and a defensive coordinator and all the position coaches who work their tails off, too. It's a full team effort, for sure, but I will say that I think Pete has done a fantastic job this year."

Seattle clinched its spot in the postseason with Sunday's 38-31 win over Kansas City, the Seahawks' fifth win in the past six games, completing a turnaround from a 0-2 start and sitting at 4-5 at midseason. The Seahawks (9-6) are likely headed for a wild-card round matchup against Dallas, although there are a handful of scenarios in which Seattle could fall to the No. 6 seed and face Chicago in the opening round.

The Seahawks rewarded him with a multiyear extension.

"I am excited to announce that we have extended head coach Pete Carroll through the 2021 season," said Jody Allen, Seahawks chair and trustee of the Paul G. Allen Trust. "This will continue the championship culture that we have created in Seattle."

Carroll's not one to rank or dissect his performance, past, but when considering the number of changes Seattle made after missing the postseason a year ago, it is an impressive job from the 67-year-old. In August the question was how bad will the Seahawks be as they undertook a significant rebuild? In December and with the playoffs on the horizon, it's become how far can they go?

AP PHOTO

"It was a smack in the face. It was a smack in the face to say we would be that bad because that's really, really bad to win four games," Seattle linebacker K.J. Wright said. "This team is much better than that. I appreciate it. I appreciate them saying that. I've been in the business of proving people wrong."

Carroll's role in advancing Seattle's rebuild to the point of being in the playoffs started in the offseason. The roster was remodeled and his staff underwent its most massive overhaul of his tenure. Within all those changes, Carroll stayed true to the style he wanted Seattle to play. It was getting those new coaches and players to buy into that belief and style, then translating it into victories on the field where Carroll has succeeded.

As Carroll said Monday in referencing John Wooden, "You don't change your philosophy year to year, your players change."

"You either believe in something or you don't," Carroll said. "I think just staying the course and knowing we're on to something. Believing in the history. We know what we're capable of doing. We've shown it over a lot of years. You're always adapting, but it's staying what you're true to. I think that's what is happening. We look like a team that we have seen before, and that's powerful."

Sticking with a philosophy means Carroll doesn't intend to sit any of his regulars for Week 17 unless injury dictates they could use a break, or the game gets out of hand and Seattle is given an opportunity to rest some players. A win over Arizona in the finale would give Seattle its sixth 10-win season under Carroll and ensure a meeting with the Cowboys, who the Seahawks beat in Week 3 for Seattle's first win.

"We have to keep doing what we're doing to keep the momentum going and the precision that it takes to keep sharp and all that," Carroll said.

NOTES: Carroll clarified that G.J.R. Sweezy suffered a sprained foot and not an ankle injury in Sunday's victory. He did not have a prognosis whether Sweezy would play in Week 17. ... RB Rashaad Penny (knee) and RT Germain Ifedi (groin) both intend to play in Week 17 after missing the win over Kansas City. Carroll said both were close to being able to play against the Chiefs. ... Seattle has a better idea what is going on with S Tedric Thompson after he missed Sunday's game with a chest injury. Carroll said Thompson has an issue with air in his lungs that must go away before he can be cleared to play. Thompson did some running on Monday and is scheduled to have tests done on Wednesday.

■ NFL: Miami Dolphins

Dolphins' Gase says he doesn't need to lobby to keep job

By STEVEN WINE
AP SPORTS WRITER

DAVIE, Fla. — With the playoffs now out of reach, Miami Dolphins coach Adam Gase says injuries sabotaged the season, and quarterback Ryan Tannehill never had a chance to be fairly evaluated.

And does the head coach deserve to return in 2019?

"I don't need to lobby for my job," Gase said Monday. "I'm not worried about that."

Gase said he hasn't had any discussions regarding his future with team owner Stephen Ross, who faces decisions regarding possible offseason organizational changes in the wake of the Dolphins' elimination from playoff contention. A dismal 17-7 loss at home Sunday to lowly Jacksonville ensured the team will again sit out the postseason.

Ross has declined to say Gase will be back for a fourth season. Gase is 23-25 at Miami, including 7-8 this year after a 3-0 start.

His biggest regret about 2018?

"I wish everybody hadn't gotten hurt," Gase said. "That would have been nice."

The Dolphins lost 12 key players to season-ending injuries, including two top offensive linemen, their best run stopper and dynamic receivers Albert Wilson and Jakeem Grant.

"We lost good players," Gase said. "There's a reason we started 3-0 — because all those guys were there."

Tannehill missed five games with an injury to his throwing shoulder. And when he played, the offense was wildly inconsistent, fueling speculation Sunday's season finale at Buffalo will be his last game with the Dolphins.

Tannehill has never taken a snap in the postseason, but Gase continues to argue the seven-year veteran can be an elite quarterback with a better supporting cast.

Jacksonville Jaguars defensive end Yannick Ngakoue (91) sacks Miami Dolphins quarterback Ryan Tannehill (17), during the second half at an NFL football game, Sunday, Dec. 23, 2018, in Miami Gardens, Fla.

"Everybody is always going to blame the quarterback," Gase said. "We just need everybody doing their job, and then you can really evaluate the quarterback. We haven't had the consistency we need on offense to look at what Ryan is, really. Nobody helps him, and then he starts to try to do more than he should, and then that hurts him."

Such was the case Sunday, when Tannehill's ill-advised pass under pressure was intercepted and returned for a touchdown that sealed the defeat.

Tannehill said every position has contributed to the offensive inconsistencies.

"Start with me and just go right down the line," Tannehill said. "When you have that, it all stacks up and you're not moving the ball. We have to be cleaner, every position, starting with me."

Tannehill and the other starters will assume their usual roles at Buffalo, Gase said. That's a change from last year, when the coach gave younger, inexperienced players tryouts in the meaningless finale.

"I'm never going to do that again," Gase said. "I'd rather go 8-8. We're going to try to win the game."

Even with a victory, the Dolphins are assured of sitting out the playoffs for the 15th time in the past 17 seasons. They'll finish at .500 or worse for the ninth time in the past 10 seasons.

Statistics say that by winning seven games, the Dolphins have actually overachieved. They're on the verge of several franchise records, none good.

They're allowing 392 yards per game. The team record is 383 two years ago.

They've allowed 3,717 net yards passing. The team record is 4,000 in 2015.

On offense, total yardage will likely be the Dolphins' lowest total since 2007. Net yards passing could be the lowest since 2003.

The Dolphins rank 30th in the 32-team NFL on both offense and defense. They've never finished worse than 30th on offense or 29th on defense.

But they're 7-1 in one-score games. They're 0-7 in games decided by 10 points or more, and have been outscored in those games 228-104.

Those are the statistics of January spectators.

"We share failures, we share successes," veteran defensive end Cameron Wake said. "It's on everybody."

SAILING
American boat Privateer a top prospect in Sydney-Hobart

SYDNEY (AP) — One of the top prospects among 11 international entries in this year's Sydney to Hobart race is the New York Yacht Club's Privateer, which finished second in the Fastnet race in 2017.

The Cookson 50, built in New Zealand and racing for 12 years, is owned by Ron O'Hanley. "This is a race that Americans love to come to," O'Hanley said. "I personally think this is the greatest sailboat race on the planet in terms of, if you think about the conditions and just its storied history, so it's something that we Americans aspire to do."

Another American yacht, Joyride, also has good recent form, taking overall honors in the 2017 Van Isle 360 and 2018 Vic Maui races, both of which had taken more than 10 days to complete.

Rather than returning home after the latter race concluded in July, it sailed to Australia via a stop in Fiji, as owner John Murkowski decided to do the Sydney to Hobart race. "It just seemed like we should keep going west and come down here and see what all the commotion was about," Murkowski said.

The race, which begins Wednesday in Sydney Harbour, will also feature its first all-female crew, skippered by Australian Stacey Jackson but with sailors from Britain, New Zealand, the U.S. and the Netherlands. The tactician on Wild Oats X is Australian Katie Spithill, sister of America's Cup racer Jimmy Spithill.

The 630-nautical-mile race (1,170 kilometers) takes the fleet, expected to be 86 yachts, down the southeastern Australian coast, across Bass Strait and into Hobart, the capital of the island state of Tasmania.

James sorry for posting rapper's 'Jewish money' lyric

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LeBron James is sorry for posting a lyric that referenced "Jewish money." The Los Angeles Lakers star says he simply got caught up in the music, thought the lyric was a "compliment" and offers "apologies, for sure."

The lyric comes from the song "ASMR" by rapper 21 Savage. James shared it over the weekend on his Instagram account, which has nearly 46 million followers.

The lyric says, "We been getting that Jewish money, Everything is Kosher."

James apologized on ESPN — "if I offended anyone." He says he regularly posts lyrics and listens to "great music" in his car. He adds: "That was the byproduct of it. So I actually thought it was a compliment, and obviously it wasn't through the lens of a lot of people."

The posting was highlighted by Darren Rovell of The Action Network, a media company.

- Name of stock.
- Ticker Symbol company trades under.
- Dividend: A distribution of the company's earnings to shareholders, usually consisting of stock dividends, interest on bonds, or short-term capital gains on the sale of securities usually paid quarterly in the form of cash or stock.
- Div. Yield: The dividend divided by the stock price. It helps gauge how well the stock is paying, compared to other investments such as CDs, bonds or savings accounts.
- Price to earnings ratio: The price of a stock divided by its earnings per share. PEs are used to gauge the relative worth of a company's stock. When compared to other companies in the same industry, the companies with the lowest PEs are generally earning higher profits.
- Range of closing prices in last year.
- Sales in thousands (10 = 10,000 shares), and closing price.
- Last trading price of the day.
- Percent change for the year.
