Himmel: E-mails 'unacceptable'

Correspondence between CHS principal, coach reveals pattern of unprofessional behavior, superintendent says

CHERI HARRIS

Read the e-mails.

Citrus County School Superintendent Sandra "Sam" Himmel said a number of e-mails between former Citrus High School principal Leigh Ann Bradshaw and the school's former head football coach, Randall Roland, included derogatory comments about other district employees.

One e-mail that was part of the investigative report into a formal complaint filed March 23 included a comment from Bradshaw about Ron Allan, the head football coach at Lecanto High School.

According to e-mail records that are included in the report, Roland at 7:59 a.m. Sept. 15 wrote: "Am I in trouble with Ron Allen (sic). I can't Stand (sic) that guy he is big timing me, I already had all of his films."

Bradshaw replied at 11:22 that day: "?? He is a jerk."

Records show Bradshaw sent at 11:46 a.m. that day an e-mail containing this statement: "What is the deal with Ron Allan. He is a cry baby because they always lose. I will come tell you some past stories when I get back."

Himmel said, "When I have an administrator who responds about another person in the district, 'He is a jerk,' that is unacceptable."

In another e-mail that Rick Darby, a CHS assistant principal, sent Oct. 19 to Roland and some other staff members, he wrote, "Please be sure we have the JV side of the field house empty and ready for the Nature Coast team to use this Friday night. The District has instructed us to make this available to all visiting varsity football teams."

In a response Roland sent to Bradshaw later that day, he Workers from PAW Demolition drop a span last Friday afternoon during demolition of the old bridge over the Cross Florida Barge Canal. After the demolition, which should take two to three months, a second new span will be constructed over the canal.

Cross Florida Barge Canal bridge being repurposed as artificial reef

MIKE WRIGHT
Chronicle

From 65 feet above the water to 30 feet below, the old U.S. 19 Cross Florida Barge Canal bridge lives on.

The bridge span, dismantled last week as contractors continue work on two new spans across the barge canal, will be used to add to an artificial reef about 24 miles off Crystal River in the Gulf of Mexico.

The county is seeking a grant of up to $60,000 from the Florida Wildlife Commission to install the reef.

Material collected from the bridge actually is far less than what county officials had hoped for.

Aquatics Services Director Mark Edwards said the county had expected up to 3,000 tons of concrete but ended up with 785 tons of slab and railing.

Edwards said he doesn't think that will hurt the grant. He also said that makes transfer and installation of the material more manageable.

The bridge contractor, Cone & Graham Inc. of Tampa, donated the materials. Workers used a crane to lift large sections of pavement to a staging area on property owned by Dixie Hollins.

Edwards said the available concrete was less than expected because the contractor crushed much of the concrete, allowing it to fall to the ground.

Keith Mille, an environmental specialist with the FWC artificial reef program, said contractors are donating less used concrete from dismantled bridges than in years past because the material can be recycled.

Mille said Citrus County has a long and successful history with the artificial reef program. He said the county has received 16 grants since 1981 totaling $423,075.

"I think they're really doing a fantastic job," he said.

Citrus first installed an artificial reef in the Gulf in 1985 in about 32 acres of water bottom, Edwards said.

Along with concrete from the barge canal bridge, materials for the reef addition include 144.5 tons of concrete railroad ties donated by the Crystal River Lions Club, Edwards said.

The county in the past has used concrete from replaced bridges on U.S. 41 and State Road 44 for the artificial reef program.

Mille said his agency would decide by mid to late June on the county's grant application. Edwards said the bidding process to award a contract would take about six months after the grant is approved.

This is it: Atlantis' final flight on schedule for 2:20 p.m.

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — With good weather expected, NASA was optimistic as it headed toward today's launch of space shuttle Atlantis on its final voyage.

Atlantis is set to blast off at 2:20 p.m. Forecasters said there is a 70 percent chance of good weather, with low clouds the lone concern.

The shuttle and its six astronauts will deliver a Russian compartment to the International Space Station. The chamber is filled with more than 3,000 pounds of U.S. supplies, including food and laptop computers. It will be the first — and last — time a shuttle carries a Russian module to the orbiting lab. Only two other shuttle flights remain.

Once the shuttles are retired, NASA will leave station deliveries to commercial companies and other countries, and focus on eventual trips to asteroids and Mars.

Dozens of Russians were on hand for the launch, as were about 150 Twittering guests. It's the second time NASA has staged a tweet-up at the launch site; the first was late last year.

The tweeters gathered with their laptops, cameras and other gadgets Thursday under a large tent at the press site, just three miles from the launch pad. They threw out questions to astronauts and shuttle managers not involved with Friday's liftoff, and even got autographs.

NASA expects bigger crowds than usual for the remaining flights.

Sticker shock: Teen campaigns against alcohol abuse

Courtney Vacca listens to other students tell stories about parties where parents or other adults provide the alcohol.

She hears about the binge drinking and drunken driving. She sees the teens who show up to school Monday with hangovers.

Courtney Vacca shows a sticker she designed to help discourage high school students from drinking and adults from enabling minors to consume alcohol.

DAVE SIGLER/Chronicle

"I see it happen every week-end," she said.

Vacca, a 16-year-old Citrus High School student, said she's concerned about her generation and the affect alcohol may have on it. So when her art teacher, Karol Kusmal, passed out the assignment to come up with a design for this year's "Sticker Shock" contest, Vacca set out to best illustrate this year's theme — "Don't Drown Our Generation."

Vacca's drawing, which shows a little kid drowning in a martini glass, was one of many designs voted on at this year's Citrus County Fair. Renna Jablonskis, executive director of Partners for a Substance-Free Citrus Inc., said Vacca's design received the most votes and will be featured during this year's Sticker Shock campaign.

Jablonskis said Sticker Shock is conducted around the county and is a youth-driven campaign that sends the message to adults that buying alcohol for minors is illegal. Starting today, stickers with Vacca's drawing will be placed on the front of the Citrus County Chronicle to raise awareness. During the

Filing deadline for tax-exempt nonprofits is Monday

Special to the Chronicle

The crucial filing deadline of Monday is looming for many tax-exempt organizations that are required by law to file their Form 990 (or 990-EZ or 990-N) with the Internal Revenue Service or risk having their federal tax-exempt status revoked.

Organizations that fail to file for three consecutive years automatically lose their federal tax-exempt status. Currently, the Urban Institute shows 61 nonprofits in Citrus County that have not renewed.

2006 mandates that all nonprofit organizations, other than churches and church-related organizations, must file an information form with the IRS.

This requirement has been in effect since the beginning of 2007, which made 2009 the third consecutive year under the new law. Any organization that fails to file for three consecutive years automatically loses its federal tax-exempt status.

The National Center for Charitable Statistics at the Urban Institute has created a tool where you can search for those groups in your area that may potentially lose their tax-exemption.

Here's the link: <http://nccs-dataweb.urban.org/PubApps/statePicker.php?progepostcard&displaystate>.

State BRIEFS

State gets OK to begin high-speed rail

TALLAHASSEE — The federal Railroad Administration has given Florida approval to begin designing, obtaining land and building the nation's first major high-speed rail line.

State transportation officials Thursday said they had received the agency's consent for the Orlando-Tampa route.

Surveying already has begun, but now the state can do additional work that's needed to seek bids for constructing and operating the train.

President Barack Obama in January announced Florida would get $1.25 billion in stimulus money for high-speed rail, about half of what's needed for the Orlando-Tampa segment. Plans call for eventually adding a Miami-Orlando leg.

Haleigh Cummings' father wants deal

PALATKA — The father of a missing Florida girl is negotiating a plea deal for a 15-year sentence on drug-trafficking charges in exchange for testimony against his ex-wife and her brother.

Attorney Terry Shoemaker said Thursday at a pretrial hearing that his client Ronald Cummings hopes to have the deal before trial begins July 19.

Shoemaker said surveillance evidence of five undercover drug deals with Cummings was a significant factor in his seeking a deal.

Cummings, his ex-wife Misty Croslin and her brother were caught in a drug-trafficking sting that ended in January.

Eighteen-year-old Croslin was at home with Haleigh Cummings the night the 5-year-old disappeared in February 2009.

Putnam County Sheriff Jeff Hardy now considers the case a homicide investigation.

Prescription drugs bust nets 135 arrests

TAMPA — More than 135 arrest warrants have been issued in Hillsborough County in an undercover prescription drugs bust.

The sheriff's office released a statement Thursday saying more than 5,000 pills of prescription drugs were seized during "Operation Side Effects."

Authorities say prescription drug-related overdose deaths are on the rise in Florida.

Detectives conducted undercover drug deals in parking lots and in streets. Some deals occurred near pain clinics, where patients arrive to obtain a prescription for a narcotic. In some cases, buyers traveled from out of state to take part in the drug trade. Most buyers were intent on returning home to sell the pills for profit.

A pharmacy might sell a single dose of oxycodone at $1 per pill, while on the streets it's up to $30 a pill.

Ex-radio host released from jail

ORLANDO — A central Florida radio host accused of shooting his wife while aiming at her dog has completed his time in jail for a probation-violation charge.

Shannon Burke was greeted by his wife after his release Thursday from the Orange County Jail. He said he plans to ride his motorcycle a lot.

Burke had been transferred there in April from another jail where he served about four months for shooting his wife and their dog in 2009. At the time, Burke had been on probation for an earlier alcohol-related reckless-driving incident.

In January, a judge ordered him to serve 60 days in jail on the probation-violation charge.

Authorities said Burke was at his Altamonte Springs home last year when he fired a shot that went through the dog's leg and then grazed his wife. She has since recovered.

Prison company turns over records

BOCA RATON — A nonprofit criminal-justice publication said a private prison company has agreed to turn over records that were the subject of a lawsuit in Florida.

According to a news release from Prison Legal News, the Geo Group agreed to produce a spreadsheet that detailed successful litigation against the Boca Raton-based company, as well as copies of the complaints and settlements from ten lawsuits.

Prison Legal News editor Paul Wright said in a statement that the publication was disappointed that the case stretched on for years, but pleased with the eventual result.

Gregory Allen Kummerlen, an attorney who represented the Geo Group in the case, declined to comment. An e-mail sent to a Geo Group spokesman was not immediately returned.

Teens charged in theft of gold coins

FORT MYERS — Three teens have been arrested and charged with stealing $100,000 in gold coins from a Fort Myers home.

Arrested Thursday morning were 18-year-old Holly Stewart and two teenage boys. Their ages were not immediately released.

Authorities said the teens also stole four guns from the home. They each face felony charges of grand theft between $20,000 and $100,000 and theft of a firearm.

The coins were kept in a safe in the home.

Crist signs bill legalizing red-light cameras

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Red light cameras will be fully legal in Florida on July 1.

Gov. Charlie Crist on Thursday signed a new law authorizing the cameras as enforcement devices despite opposition from AAA.

At least 30 Florida cities already have installed them under questionable legal authority. State law neither permitted nor prohibited them until now.

AAA, formerly the American Automobile Association, had urged a veto, arguing the bill (HB 325) was more about raising money for state and local government coffers than it was about safety.

The new law has been dubbed the Mark Wandall Traffic Safety Act after a Bradenton man killed by a red-light runner in 2003.

His wife, Melissa, led lobbying efforts to get the law passed.

Crist said he signed the bill because it would save lives.

"The legislation provides law enforcement with another effective tool to enforce safe and responsible driving on our roads," Crist said in a statement.

He also commended Melissa Wandall, the sponsors, Rep. Ron Reagan, R-Bradenton, and Sen. Thad Altman, R-Viera, and law enforcement officials who had supported its passage.

Lawmakers for several years had rejected the legislation. Opponents argued the cameras would violate privacy rights and individual liberties as well as being a "revenue grab."

During floor debate in the House, Rep. Clay Ford,

R-Gulf Breeze, responded to the critics.

"You know, we have a lot of liberties in this country," Ford said. "Running red lights and killing school children isn't one of them."

The bill includes a $158 fine that would be assessed against owners of vehicles caught on camera running red lights.

Of that amount, $75 would go to local governments. The rest would go to the state, which must use $10 for health care and give $3 to the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis for brain and spinal cord research.

AAA contended that too little of the money will go to health care and too much to general government spending.

The state is expected to receive $29 million in the first year, jumping to nearly $95 million in 2013-14. Local governments would net $10 million the first year and nearly $66 million in 2013-14, according to state economists.

Vehicle owners are responsible for paying the fines unless they can prove someone else was driving, a law enforcement officer had directed them to go through the intersection while the light was red, they were part of a funeral procession or that they had yielded right of way to an emergency vehicle.

The law prohibits a camera manufacturer or vendor from being paid according to now many infractions are detected.

Insurance companies cannot use camera-enforced violations to raise owners' rates and points cannot be assessed against their driver licenses.

Event to honor fallen officers

A group of retired and current law enforcement officers will gather at Cooter Pond Park in Inverness this Saturday to honor those who lost their lives in the line of duty.

Saturday is National Peace Officers Memorial Day and this event, which is put on by the National Association of Retired Law Enforcement Officers (NARLEO), serves to keep fallen officers' memories alive, said NARLEO president Andrew Tarpey of Hernando.

■ WHAT: National Peace Officers Memorial Day event.

■ WHEN: Saturday at 10 a.m.

■ WHERE: Cooter Pond Park in Inverness.

"There's always a (need) for someone to remember a friend, a partner, a family member. We would always honor them, keep them fresh in our memories. We should never forget," he said.

NARLEO, a group of about 100 members from Citrus and Hernando counties, has been hosting the event for over 10 years, said Tarpey, a former police officer with the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

"It started really small and it just grew larger and larger" with representatives of numerous law enforcement agencies including Florida Highway Patrol, sheriff's offices, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission and the Florida Department of Transportation coming aboard.

Each year they pay special tribute to a particular officer killed in the line of duty. This year the program honors Capt. Chad Reed, a Dixie County deputy sheriff who was killed in a shootout with a murder suspect in January. Reed's widow is scheduled to accept a plaque during the ceremony.

Several others will be honored, including victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. There will be a hearse-led motorcade from the Old Courthouse, a 21-gun salute, wreaths of remembrance and music including a performance of "Taps."

The program starts at 10 a.m. Former and current law enforcement officers and members of the public are invited and encouraged to attend.

EDC hears pitch from planning group

CHRIS VAN ORMER
Chronicle

Citrus County businesses can get help in planning ahead, business leaders heard Thursday at a meeting.

"We work on comprehensive planning, site certification, energy planning and coordination," said David Connelly, senior planner in Economic Development & Community Redevelopment, Withlacoochee Regional Planning Council.

Connelly described the planning council at the board of directors' meeting of the Citrus County Economic Development Council.

The WRPC is one of 11 planning councils in the state. These councils are associations of local governments. They each employ a professional planning staff to perform state-mandated duties and assist local governments.

The planning council works with a federal entity, the U.S. Economic Development Administration, or EDA, which is an agency within the U.S. Department of Commerce. The EDA partners with distressed communities throughout the U.S. to foster job creation and develop businesses.

"The EDA is the only government agency that focuses on economic development solely," Connelly said.

The WRPC, he said, works to encourage entrepreneurship, foster innovation and bring together partnerships.

"The WRPC adds value to the visionary process," Connelly said.

Current Citrus County projects are the business incubator and the industrial park, Connelly said.

"We do an annual update tied to EDA funding," Connelly said. "We support you in the business stories you like to see."

Teresa Bell, chairman of the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce, said she has been heading a group that has been working on a feasibility study for a business incubator.

"The EDA sees a lot of business incubator applications," Connolly said. "It likes business incubator projects. The applicants need to show a support system for it."

Connolly said the EDA is the only government agency that focuses on economic development solely. He said it received $150 million in stimulus funds. Its funding amounts vary.

"If you get turned down, reapply at the end of the year," Connelly said. He explained that some projects don't take off and don't use their funding.

"Sometimes money is left over at the end of the year."

In other business, directors were unanimous in their confirmation of John Siefert as executive director of the EDC.

Siefert said, "I appreciate your confidence. We're accomplishing more than in the past and it's an enjoyable experience."

Members discussed small business incentives. Currently, the EDC offers a tax abatement program and a jobs creation program, and would like to offer other programs, such as the business incubator.

Members also discussed ways to market the work of the EDC so that businesses would take an interest in it and use its resources.

Randy Clark, who represents the construction industry, said the reviews of the land development code and the impact fees were taking too long.

"The impact fees have taken one and a half years to get where they are and it's not very far," Clark said. "Things have to happen quickly. You don't say you're going to sell something four years from now."

Josh Wooten, president and chief executive officer of the chamber, gave a report about the recent economic summit meeting. About 75 people completed survey results from the meeting. Wooten said the alliance of organizations that sponsored the summit would draw up an action plan based on results.

Chamber of Commerce presents annual awards

The Citrus County Chamber of Commerce hosted its annual awards ceremony recently at Citrus Hills Golf & Country Club in Hernando.

Award recipients are: David Arthurs, Charles B. Fitzpatrick Award; Rick Snell, Rick Quinn Distinguished Citizen Award; Hal Porter, Dr. O.J. Humphries Community Service Award; Holly Eckstein, Outstand-

Business Women's Alliance Award. Josh Wooten, chamber president, said, "These people are pillars of the community that have rendered exceptional service to the chamber and to the community as a whole over an extended period of time either as businesses or individuals."

The following organizations and/or individuals were recognized with a certificate of appreciation for going "above and beyond the call of duty" with the chamber during the past year: New Concepts International Hair Salon, owners Dale and Sharon Malm; The Grove Downtown, owners Mike and Laura Kovach; Neon Leon's Zydeco Steakhouse, owner Mitch Simmons; Citrus County Chronicle; Century Link; Vic Clemente; Citrus County Economic Development Council; and Life Directors.

Wooten said he asked his staff to come up with the names of members who had gone above and beyond in their support of the chamber, making the name of the award "kind of self-explanatory."

The chamber recognized the following board members for decades of service to the organization's board of directors: Chet White Jr., Janice Warren, Janet Yant and Rocky Hensley.

Teens arrested on burglary, drug charges

SHEMIR WILES
Chronicle

Citrus County deputies arrested two Homosassa teens early Wednesday morning after they reportedly burglarized a residence.

According to an arrest report, a deputy was traveling on West Van Buren Drive in Homosassa when he noticed a man riding a bicycle toward his vehicle. The deputy wrote in his report that the rider was wearing a camouflaged shirt, gloves and black T-shirt around his neck.

After activating his lights, the deputy reportedly stepped out of his car and told the man to stop, which he did. The man approached the deputy and the deputy immediately handcuffed him, the report stated. The rider later identified himself as Tyler James Tyree, 18, of 6348 W. Heritage Drive, and reportedly told the deputy he needed some money so he was "out robbing houses."

According to the report, Tyree said he went to the home of his friend, Seth

Ricky Kirk, 19, of 6566 W. Beaumont Lane, and told him he needed money. Tyree told the deputy he and Kirk decided they would burglarize a home to make money, the report said. The men reportedly decided to break into a home on South Corona Way because they both knew the homeowner wasn't home.

The report stated Tyree and Kirk waited until 2 a.m. before they got dressed in camouflaged clothing and gloves. They also allegedly used T-shirts as masks and covered the bottom of their shoes with duct tape. After getting dressed, Tyree told the deputy they both rode their bicycles to the home on South Corona Way, entered the front door and took a television and an Xbox 360 video game console. According to the report, Tyree said they dropped off the items at Kirk's house and then Kirk rode on his handlebars back to the home. While back at the home, Kirk and Tyree reportedly filled their backpacks with DVDs and removed another television.

Tyree told the deputy that as they were walking back to Kirk's home, Kirk jumped off his handlebars and began walking with the television and backpack. At that time, the deputy saw Tyree and Kirk took off, according to authorities.

Deputies went to Kirk's home and he reportedly admitted his involvement in the burglary and corroborated Tyree's story. Kirk's girlfriend, who was also at Kirk's home, also corroborated Tyree's story, but stated she had stayed at home.

Law enforcement recovered the stolen items, according to the report, and found several pieces of drug paraphernalia in Kirk's home. A pipe containing marijuana residue was also reportedly located in Tyree's pocket.

Authorities arrested Kirk and Tyree on felony and misdemeanor charges of burglary of an unoccupied residence, grand theft, criminal conspiracy and possession of drug paraphernalia. Their bonds were set at $18,500.

It is unclear based on the copied e-mails in the investigative report whether or not Roland sent his comments to Bingham. Himmel said it would not matter whether or not Roland did. She said her expectation of a supervisor who reads an e-mail from a subordinate ridiculing a colleague would be to say, "That's unacceptable and unprofessional. We need to meet."

Himmel said, "When we read all these e-mails, we just see a pattern, and I do not believe that she can be in a position of leadership with this type of attitude."

In Bradshaw's 23-page written response to the investigative report, she wrote, in part, "In response to the District's statement that I 'made derogatory statements about some of my staff members and staff within the district were made to other teachers,' the District has not provided any information to me as to what derogatory, unprofessional, or inappropriate statement that I allegedly made so I may refute address this directly." Later in that portion of her response, she wrote, "Although I may have made a few derogatory comments, none of my comments were malicious or intentionally false. If the district has information on specific instances, I would welcome the opportunity to specifically respond, however this is simply another allegation without specific facts."

In a written response by Himmel to Bradshaw's response to the investigative report, Himmel wrote, "Mrs. Bradshaw was given a copy of all of the e-mails in the investigative report. She admits in her statement that 'she may have made a few derogatory comments'; this is unacceptable to me and not what I expect of our administrators."

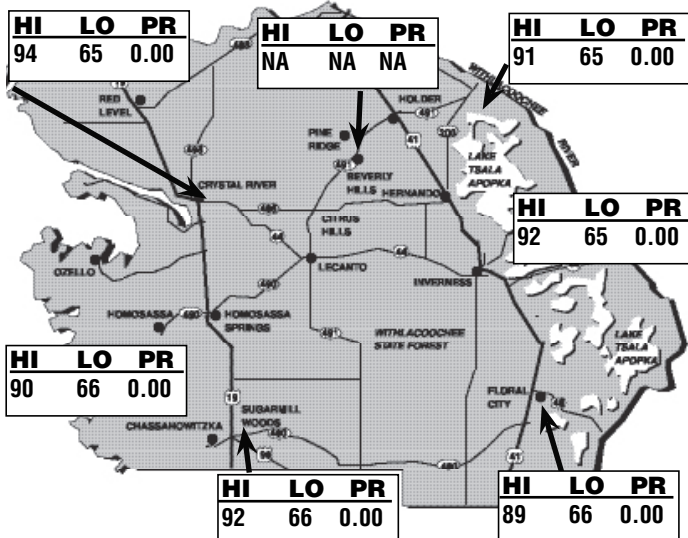

At this time, Bradshaw is on paid leave and has been removed as principal. Himmel said Bradshaw will not take the position in the district's Curriculum and Instruction Department she was slated to begin July 1. As to Bradshaw's future employment with the school district, Himmel said, "That will be a conversation between Mrs. Bradshaw and I."

Himmel said, reading from a prepared statement, that the entire situation has been difficult for everyone involved. "I responded to this situation in a manner that I felt best served the district. Leigh Ann has served our district well. Her previous evaluations indicate she had a positive impact on both students and staff. Unfortunately, she made some decisions and choices this year that were not typical of her past performance."

"My issues with her involve her leadership, my expectation for leaders and nothing else. I have responded to questions. I feel I have dealt with the issue appropriately and it's time for us to move forward."

$18M settlement in Vermont priest sex abuse cases

Associated Press

MONTPELIER, Vt. — Dozens of former altar boys who sued Vermont's Catholic church over allegations of sexual abuse by priests 30 years ago will share in a nearly $18 million settlement of their cases.

The attorney for the 26 plaintiffs and the bishop of the statewide Diocese of Burlington said Thursday they were pleased by the settlement, but both acknowledged that the cases had been difficult for the victims.

"Our clients are very happy to have the opportunity to close this chapter in their lives," said plaintiff attorney Jerome O'Neill. "All of them know that nothing goes away, nothing changes the pain. They will live with this the rest of their lives, but at least now they can put this piece behind them and move forward."

An arbitrator will divide the settlement among the plaintiffs, depending on the nature of their injuries, their recoveries and other factors, O'Neill said. Payments are expected by the end of June, he said.

Bishop Salvatore Matano asked for prayers to help the victims heal from the abuse.

"This has been a very painful process for the victims and for all the members of our diocesan family," Matano said. "I once again apologize most sincerely for the pain the victims have suffered. I ask that you join me in praying always for these wounded and hurt brothers and sisters."

The lawsuits accused the diocese of negligent hiring, and many of the cases centered on the defrocked Rev. Edward Paquette, who was the target of allegations before he transferred to Vermont in the mid-1970s. Paquette had worked in parishes in Rutland and Montpelier and in Christ the King Church in Burlington, and he was accused of molesting dozens of altar boys.

The diocese didn't dispute that the molestations occurred. The 80-year-old priest recently told the Burlington Free Press newspaper he was sorry for his actions and prays daily for the families of the people he harmed.

The head of the Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests, or SNAP, called the settlement purely a business deal by the diocese.

"Anyone who assumes this somehow suggests reform in the diocese is naive," David Clohessy said. "The credit for this settlement lies squarely with the brave victims who had the strength to come forward, the wisdom to seek justice in the courts and determination to persist despite years of expensive, futile and self-serving legal maneuvers by Vermont's bishop."

Last month, a judge set a Sept. 20 trial date for the cases unless they could be settled out of court.

Besides the 26 pending cases that were settled for $17.65 million, the two sides agreed to settle three cases that had already been decided in court with multimillion-dollar awards and were on appeal, bringing the total the diocese has paid to more than $20 million, O'Neill said. The diocese said the settlements were much more modest than the jury awards but would remain confidential.

Senate vote forbids banks from hand-picking ratings agencies

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Shaking up how Wall Street assesses risks, the Senate on Thursday voted to end the ability of financial institutions to choose the credit rating agencies that rate their investment products.

The Senate also voted to end the government's reliance on ratings agencies as a standard for determining credit worthiness, an even more drastic measure that could force financial institutions to vouch for their own offerings.

The success of the back to back votes appeared to catch Senate Banking committee chairman Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., by surprise. The two measures were attached as amendments to a broader package of financial rules the Senate is considering as a response to the 2008 financial crisis.

One amendment, offered by Sen. Al Franken, D-Minn., would require an independent board to assign ratings firms to assess the risks of new financial products, replacing a long-standing practice where banks select and pay ratings agencies to rate their new offerings.

Critics argue that relationship created conflicts of interest and that the agencies overrated risky investments that fueled the financial crisis.

The Senate also voted to end the government's reliance on ratings agencies as a standard for determining credit worthiness.

"This conflict of interest has cost American investors and pensioners billions and billions of dollars because supposedly risk-free investments have failed or been downgraded to junk status," Franken said.

But his proposal raises new questions about how the board would assign ratings agencies to new offerings. The most prominent agencies are Standard & Poor's, Moody's Corp. and Fitch Ratings, but other ratings firms would also be in a queue awaiting assignment.

"Having a sort of wheel of fortune made me uneasy about how this could work," Dodd said after the vote.

The amendment ending government reliance on credit ratings would require a wholesale re-evaluation on how government agencies assess risk. The amendment, offered by Sen. George LeMieux, R-Fla., would give the government two years to adjust to the change and find means to determine the credit worthiness of a broad range of securities and debt.

Ultimately, federal agencies could decide to use ratings agencies to help determine credit worthiness, LeMieux said in an interview. "But it won't be the only way," he said.

"They'll have to prove themselves now," he said. "It doesn't put these credit agencies out of business, they'll still be used, but they're not going to be the sole determiner of credit worthiness as provided for in federal law."

Still, credit rating agencies are relied upon by a host of investment authorities and used to gauge risk by municipal and state governments.

"Unfortunately, the concerns that have been raised don't lend themselves to easy solutions," said Annette Nazareth, a former member of the Securities and Exchange Commission and now a partner with the law firm of Davis Polk. "Many of them could result in unintended consequences."

months of June and July, posters with Vacca's drawing will be inside stores that sell alcohol to drive the point home. Other follow-up events, including another contest, will happen in August. In the past, the stickers were put on containers, but Jablonskis said this new approach will increase visibility.

Jablonskis believes Sticker Shock is important because it involves youths frankly telling adults they will not tolerate them contributing to the delinquency of minors.

"The number one concern of substance abuse in this county is underage drinking," she said.

Vacca said that even if her drawing only deters one adult, she would be happy if it somehow stops someone from doing something bad and potentially deadly.

Vacca said she stays away from partying by having various outlets like photography and hanging out with friends who have the same mindset as her. With everything in place, Vacca said she feels proud of what she has accomplished.

"It feels good to see the final product," she said.

Dave Fisher, 69
FOLK SINGER

NEW YORK — Dave Fisher of the popular 1960s folk group the Highwaymen has died.

His wife, Dr. Elaine K. Haagen, said Thursday that Fisher died of a bone marrow disease last week at their home in Rye, N.Y. He was 69.

The group was formed in 1958 while its five members were freshmen at Wesleyan University. Fisher was the lead singer. By 1961, the Highwaymen had a No. 1 hit with the spiritual "Michael, Row the Boat Ashore." It was released under the title "Michael."

Haagen says a memorial service is planned for June 13 at the Clear View School in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. Fisher had been on the board of directors there.

Edward Uhl, 92
BAZOOKA INVENTOR

OXFORD, Md. — Edward Uhl, who helped invent the bazooka during World War II and later led the aerospace company Fairchild Industries Inc., has died. He was 92.

Stepson George Hatcher said Thursday that Uhl died Sunday in Oxford of complications from a stroke he suffered three years earlier.

In 1942, as an Army first lieutenant with an engineering degree, Uhl helped develop a shoulder-fired rocket launcher nicknamed the bazooka because it resembled a tube-shaped musical instrument.

Uhl joined Fairchild as president in 1961. He oversaw its transformation from a military aircraft manufacturer to an aerospace giant before retiring as chairman in 1985.

LAST LIVING ZIEGFELD FOLLIES GIRL

NEW YORK — The last Ziegfeld Follies Girl has died.

Doris Eaton Travis, one of the legendary Ziegfeld Follies chorus girls, who wore elaborate costumes for the series of lavish Broadway theatrical productions in the early 1900s, died Tuesday at age 106, public relations firm Boneau/Bryan-Brown said.

Travis, who was from West Bloomfield, Mich., also was a supporter of the Broadway Cares/Equity Fights AIDS fundraising organization and appeared often in its Easter Bonnet Competition.

She continued to work long after her Follies days ended, with annual appearances on Broadway, a small role in a Jim Carrey movie and a memoir, "The Days We Danced: The Story of My Theatrical Family From Florenz Ziegfeld to Arthur Murray and Beyond."

Interest in the 5-foot-2 centenarian piqued after a 1997 reunion with four other Ziegfeld Follies Girls for the reopening of the New Amsterdam Theatre, where she danced about 80 years earlier.

"I was the only one who could still dance," she said then.

Small business lobby joins challenge to health law

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's most influential small business lobby is joining a court challenge to President Barack Obama's health care overhaul, arguing that Americans cannot be required under the Constitution to obtain insurance coverage.

The National Federation of Independent Business will announce Friday it is joining a federal lawsuit filed in Florida by 20 state attorneys general and governors, NFIB President Dan Danner said in an interview. All but one of the state officials are Republicans, and the case coincides with an election year.

NFIB's involvement ensures that constitutional arguments for overturning the health care law — even if they fail to sway federal judges — will be extensively aired in the fall campaigns. With 350,000 members, the group boasts a far-reaching network of local activists.

Florida Attorney General Bill McCollum, a leader of the legal challenge and a GOP candidate for governor, said he has "received a lot of strong response and reaction in support when I have spoken of this subject. I think voters as a whole are concerned."

A groundswell of opposition to the law from small business owners prompted NFIB's decision to join the court challenge, said Karen Harned, a senior lawyer for the group. "The second the law was signed, NFIB was hearing from its members: 'What are you all going to do about this?'" said Harned. "So we hunkered down. We looked around. This state attorneys general lawsuit made the most sense for us. It's the only one that has a national presence."

The health care law, passed by a Congress divided on partisan lines, puts the nation on a path to coverage for all. One of its pillars is the requirement that most Americans carry health insurance — through an employer, a government program, or by buying their own policy.

The mandate is effective in 2014, when new competitive insurance markets open for business. Insurers will then be required to take all applicants and no longer be allowed to turn away those in poor health. The government will offer tax credits to help middle-class households pay premiums. And Medicaid will be expanded to cover millions more low-income people.

Individuals who refuse to get health insurance will be hit with a tax penalty, although exceptions are allowed for financial hardship and religious reasons. Businesses will also be required to contribute to the cost of their workers' health insurance, but companies with fewer than 50 employees are exempt.

The Obama administration argues that the coverage requirements rest on a solid constitutional foundation: the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce.

Legal scholars are divided over prospects for the case. Many — but not all — expect the administration to prevail.

Timothy Jost, a professor at Washington and Lee University law school in Virginia, said:

"These are not really legal cases — they are political statements."

Stepped-up Medicare fraud enforcement nets $2.5B

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government says it recovered $2.5 billion in overpayments for the Medicare trust fund last year as the Obama administration focused attention on fraud enforcement efforts in the health care industry.

Investigators have new tools this year to help crack down on health care fraud, with the Justice Department and the Health and Human Services Department working cooperatively to police companies. The newly enacted Affordable Care Act is designed to lengthen prison sentences in criminal cases and the new law provides an additional $300 million over the next 10 years for stronger enforcement. It also gives the government new authority to step up oversight of companies participating in Medicare and Medicaid.

"We're going to attack fraud at every stage of the process," Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius said Thursday at a news conference.

Attorney General Eric Holder said "as long as health care fraud pays and goes unpunished, our health care system will remain under siege."

Under the Affordable Care Act, providers could be subject to fingerprinting, site visits and criminal background checks before they begin billing Medicare and Medicaid.

To combat fraud, the act allows Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius to bar providers from joining the programs and allows her to withhold payment to Medicare or Medicaid providers if an investigation is pending.

In a report released Thursday, the Justice Department and HHS say they are putting investigative resources in areas where fraud is especially widespread, including south Florida; Los Angeles; Houston; Detroit; New York City's Brooklyn borough; Baton Rouge, La.; and Tampa, Fla.

The result is a rising number of criminal prosecutions and the return of more stolen money to the government. At the same time, federal investigators are blocking unscrupulous companies from getting into government health care programs in the first place.

For the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, the federal government won or negotiated $1.63 billion in judgments and settlements, and investigators opened 1,014 new criminal health care fraud investigations involving 1,786 defendants.

Most of those figures are up from 2008, when the government won or negotiated $1 billion in judgments and settlements, and investigators opened 957 new criminal health care fraud investigations involving 1,641 potential defendants.

In 2008, the recoveries for the Medicare Trust Fund totaled $1.9 billion.

COUNTY HEALTH

Medical corridor an economic opportunity

Citrus County could use a shot in the arm, and a medical corridor along County Road 491 may be the right medicine.

County Commissioner Dennis Damato recently proposed the county create a medical community along C.R. 491, expanding upon the medical services already provided between State Road 44 and County Road 486.

The county lacks certain medical specialties, which causes residents to leave the county for treatment and evaluation elsewhere. Keeping these folks in county would help them, as well as local health care providers. There is plenty of undeveloped land along this road that — when combined with lower impact fees, better zoning and tax incentives — could spur an improved medical economy for the county.

Central Florida Community College is just down the road, and offers four-year degrees. We have an aging population that requires advanced treatments. We already have a strong foothold on medical services in the area, plus two hospitals and world-class medical centers just a little more than an hour away. The ingredients are in place for sensible expansion.

Through public support and intelligent government planning, we can attract the key elements necessary for building a robust medical economy that not only includes services, but the production and distribution of medical supplies and equipment as well.

As Florida counties compete for retirees and residents of all ages, having the reputation of being a "medical mecca" can help residents not only with better medical care but increased property values, by living in the type of community new retirees seek.

Health care will always be a huge part of our economy. The combination of a forward-thinking four-year college in our back yard, along with internships in an expanded medical community may provide new opportunities for our children.

Citizens need to realize that high impact fees reduce the buildup of re-occurring tax revenues. Counties need stable and yearly income streams from businesses that are an integral part of the community. Excessive impact fees can kill the flower before it roots and thereby never bloom.

The best way to limit the impact of new development is to plan for it ahead of time, such that needed public services are incorporated responsibly and with the proper vision. Taxation policy can be either an incentive or disincentive; providing incentive for a robust medical zone helps all of us.

Our public policy must provide the necessary incentives to attract first-rate development. It is important that our newly constituted EDC thoroughly investigate and determine how best to pursue these goals.

Even with public support, this goal is challenging; therefore, it is incumbent upon us as a community to make sure our leaders take the necessary steps to attract the construction of a world-class medical community in the heart of Citrus County.

Economic activity creates jobs, improves livelihoods and increases property values, which puts a lesser burden on tax millage rates. A robust medical economy provides improved services for our aged population, attracts affluent retirees and creates a positive image for Citrus County.

A better image for Citrus County would attract further economic activity and help us diminish the burden of foreclosures, unemployment and fewer public and private services. The days of worrying about too much development are long gone. Instead, let us worry about how we achieve a great medical corridor along C.R. 491.

Commissioner Damato has started the ball rolling. Let us hope the EDC and community keep it on track.

THE ISSUE:

Expanding the Medical Corridor along C.R. 491.

OUR OPINION:

Good for the community.

Pretty, but pricey

I'd like to thank the crew that completed the construction job on Tompkins Street in Inverness. It turned out beautiful. I would like to make a comment, however, about the maintenance that's going to be involved in the strip down the center where they planted grass. That's going to require not only watering, but mowing and trimming. Why not put something that wouldn't require that, which would help conserve not only our water, but also the time and money involved in the maintenance? It looks beautiful, but it's going to be high-maintenance.

We need more police

DOUGLAS COHN AND ELEANOR CLIFT

The odds are that one of these days the kind of bombing that alert street vendors interrupted in Times Square will eventually succeed. The Pakistani-born American citizen who loaded the car with bombs and the underwear bomber who tried to bring down an airliner on Christmas Day are just two of several recent attempts by Islamic extremists to break through the defenses that have been put in place since Sept. 11.

If the bombs in the Nissan parked in Times Square with the engine running had detonated, there would have been mass casualties, and one of the most popular destinations in New York would forever have been changed. Just try to get your head around the prospect of New York becoming like Baghdad or Beirut where bombings are a regular occurrence. It's a terrifying prospect.

If Faisal Shahzad hadn't been so inept, buying the wrong grade of fertilizer so it couldn't explode, we'd be having a very different conversation today. As it is, administration officials are taking credit for degrading al-Qaida's ability to assemble the resources and the people to stage spectacular events like Sept. 11. Extremist groups centered in Afghanistan and Pakistan are settling for what counter-terrorism experts call "one-offs," people with minimal training who lack sophistication in the dark arts of bomb making and terrorism, low-level operatives who aren't the A team.

The challenge of keeping Manhattan free of terrorism is daunting, but there is a solution, and it's the British solution. In London, there is a police officer on almost every street corner. These British "bobbies" as they're called were once unarmed, but as violent crime has become more prevalent, more are equipped with guns. Even so, it's their presence that acts as a deterrent more than the weapons.

Doubling the number of police in hot spots like New York would go a long way to making people feel safe. And it's preferable to the other way that governments fight terrorism, which is by eroding constitutional rights with check points and ID checks. If that bomb had gone off in New York, there would have been calls to shut down the area to all vehicular traffic, and to make entry into Times Square dependent on showing identification.

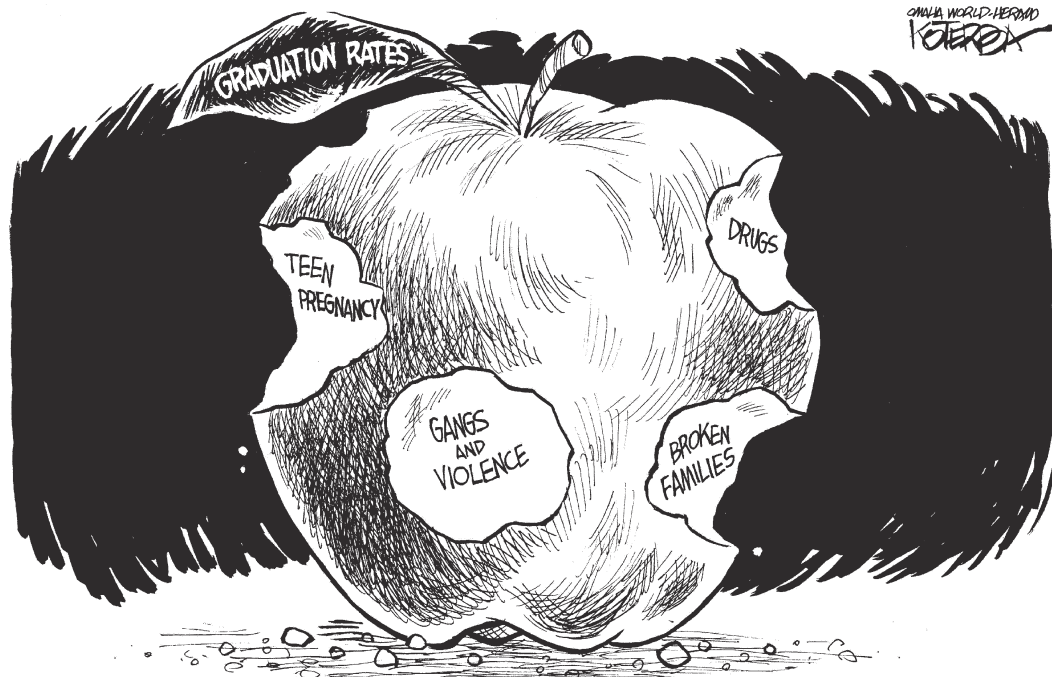

For a country that prides itself on openness and access to tourist destinations, we don't want to seal off major areas into security zones. But that's what will happen if we don't get ahead of the looming threat of low-level car bombs.

The first responsibility of government is to provide for the public safety, and beefing up police forces throughout the country would have positive ripple effects, especially in urban areas. With more cops on the street, people feel safer, which means there's more commerce and businesses benefit. Right now, we're in a period of economic stress, and teachers and policemen and firemen are getting laid off. That's exactly the wrong response. We should be adding cops, and after we take care of public safety, what could be more important than the education of the next generation, not only in cities but in neglected rural areas too.

One of the most popular initiatives during the Clinton years was the president's proposal to put 100,000 cops on the street, and to boost community policing in troubled neighborhoods where cops would be there as role models in addition to enforcing the law. Admittedly, a heavy police presence can be intimidating, especially if they're brandishing Uzis, as they do in Israel. But more police watching over obvious targets is preferable to clamping down on the free movement of the American people, whose vigilance is a key component in the network of defenses against extremism.

Immigration debate

There has been a lot of news about Arizona passing a law against illegal immigrants. I applaud Arizona's governor for doing it even though there's been a lot of controversy.

The ACLU is griping that it shouldn't happen. Doesn't the ACLU stand for American Civil Liberties Union? It doesn't say World Civil Liberties Union — so why are they sticking their noses into this? Maybe each one of the people working for the American Civil Liberties Union should take a few of these illegal aliens home with them and pay out of their own pockets for their health care, schooling and anything else the American people are paying for.

Apparently our elected officials and our federal government don't get it. America is paying so much to take care of these illegal immigrants that many states are going broke. These people should not be here and eating up resources intended for our citizens. If they want health care and other resources, let them go back to the country they came from.

Our prisons and jails contain a lot of illegal immigrants that each state has to pay thousands and thousands of dollars a year to keep locked up.

I dare any person of this country to walk across the Mexican border and tell the Mexican government that they want to live there but still be Americans and that they want free housing, free welfare, schooling for their children — but that it must be taught in English — and see what the Mexican Government says. I just wonder how many of our

Rights and wrongs

"Your papers, please."
Is this a line used by the Gestapo in a 1940s WWII movie or an Arizona law enforcement officer?

The Arizona governor stated that this law does not sanction racial profiling. How then, do they plan to find these illegal aliens? What do they look like? Will everyone who speaks with an accent of any kind be asked to prove their citizenship? Of course, if in fact the law is sanctioning racial profiling, it is easy to spot an illegal alien — he or she will be brown-skinned and speak Spanish.

Granted, we cannot possibly monitor every square inch of our southern or northern borders, but surely we can find better ways of dealing with this problem without trampling on the rights of every citizen. Why not make it mandatory to show citizenship status when seeking employment, licenses, medical care, education or social services? If you can't prove you are entitled to these benefits under existing laws, then the organizations involved have an obligation to notify the authorities. Failure to do so would result in steps taken against the organization as well as deportation of the illegal immigrants. Foreign students should be required to return to their home countries for a period of three years after graduation before they can apply for positions in the United States. Exceptions should be allowed only if a company can prove that no American is qualified for the position in question. When a non-citizen has a child born in the United States, the child should be recognized as a citizen of the mother's country and not automatically given U.S. citizenship.

Or, of course, we can just pass laws making it mandatory to wear various emblems on our clothes signifying our religion, nationality, sexual preference, race and whatever other categories the good people of Arizona think we need to identify.

Warrior Games bring injured vets together

Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — An Afghan insurgent's homemade bomb shattered Marc Esposito's lower legs, broke his back and knocked him cold for four days. But the Air Force staff sergeant says the worst part was being torn from his Special Operations teammates who stayed in the field after he was evacuated.

A year later, Esposito says, he's found a new team fighting a different kind of battle — the U.S. military's first Warrior Games for wounded servicemen and women at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs.

"Just like you would in a wartime scenario or a battlefield, you want to get back into play," Esposito said Wednesday before winning his preliminary heat in the 50-meter freestyle swimming competition. "This is a new battlefield, really."

Esposito, 26, from Cameron, N.C., is among nearly 190 servicemen and women competing in the Warrior Games this week. Some use wheelchairs or artificial legs and others have scars from shrapnel or burns. Some, like Esposito, have suffered traumatic brain injuries. Some have left the military but others are still active-duty.

Coached by trainers from the military and the U.S. Olympic Committee's Paralympics division, they're competing in cycling, volleyball, shooting, archery, track and field and basketball, as well as swimming.

They say the competition renews their sense of brotherhood, gives them goals and motivation and keeps them healthy. For many, it's an inwith mild traumatic brain injury and post-traumatic stress disorder from a mine in Iraq in 2006.

"Every one of us, I believe, goes through that where we're (mad) because we can't be with our boys, we can't be with our brothers. We're angry because we can't take the fight back to the enemy who got us," Blair said.

With the anger comes emotional strain, partly because of the constant medication for pain and infections.

Blair, 35, from Dallas, said things began to turn around for him about two years ago when he took up kayaking and again felt the physical exhilaration that exercise can bring, along with an emotional release.

"That's really what turned all that emotional stuff around for me," said Blair, who's competing in hand cycling and basketball at the Warrior Games.

For Bradley Walker, a 29-year-old ex-Marine from White Pine, Tenn., the Warrior Games are a chance to fold into the Marine Corps' tight-knit brotherhood again.

"As soon as you meet another Marine, it's like you have that instant connection," said Walker, who lost his lower legs to an improvised explosive device in Iraq in 2006. "I'm enjoying it immensely."

"You had some sort of a plan for your life at some point, and now it's like somebody threw a big wrench in the cog, and now you've got to figure out how to pull that wrench out and how to straighten that cog up so that you can move on with your life and do something different," said Marine Sgt. Bomb plot

Associated Press

Three Pakistani men suspected of providing money to Times Square car bomb suspect Faisal Shahzad were arrested by the FBI in a series of Thursday morning raids across the Northeast, law enforcement officials said. The searches in Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey were the product of evidence gathered in the investigation into the Times Square bomb attempt two weeks ago. In the photo above, an FBI investigator searches a car at a service station in Brookline, Mass.

8 banks investigated over securities

NEW YORK — New York's attorney general has launched an investigation into eight banks to determine whether they misled ratings agencies about mortgage securities, according to a person familiar with the inquiry.

Attorney General Andrew Cuomo is trying to figure out if banks provided the agencies with false information in order to get better ratings on the risky securities, said the person, who asked not to be identified because the investigation has not been made public.

Cuomo's office is investigating Goldman Sachs Group Inc., Morgan Stanley, UBS AG, Citigroup Inc., Credit Suisse, Deutsche Bank, Credit Agricole and Merrill Lynch, which is now part of Bank of America Corp.

Gas platform sinks off Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela — A natural-gas platform sank off Venezuela on Thursday after workers escaped in lifeboats and the last few leaped into the Caribbean Sea. The oil minister said there was no threat to the environment and all 95 workers were safely evacuated.

Oil Minister Rafael Ramirez told state television that workers disconnected a tube leading from the gas fields to the Aban Pearl platform, preventing any leak or harm to marine life. He said alarms went off three hours before the sinking, giving the crew time to evacuate.

BP's next fix: Smaller tube

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — BP officials said Thursday they would thread a small tube into a jagged pipe on the seafloor to suck oil to the surface before it can spew into the Gulf and add to a disaster apparently set in motion by a long list of equipment failures.

Engineers will have to make sure the 6-inch-wide tube is inserted deep enough into the 21-inch-wide pipe so gas and seawater don't mix, which can form crystals that could clog the tube. They'll also have to thread the tube into the pipe without hitting debris around the riser.

The smaller tube will be surrounded by a stopper to keep oil from leaking into the sea. The tube will then siphon the crude to a tanker at the surface, though BP declined to estimate how much oil the tube will be able to collect.

Company spokesman Bill Salvin said engineers hope to start moving the tube into place Thursday night, but it will take 12 hours to get the tube fully hooked up. Another option is a small containment box called a "top hat," which is already on the seafloor and also would siphon oil to a tanker on the surface.

Officials are waiting to use the box until they know if the tube works, and how well it's working, Salvin said. Engineers still might consider trying to fill the leak with golf balls and other debris — the "junk shot," though that won't be until at least next week. And a relief well is being drilled, but that is at least two months away.

BP's updates came a day

Associated Press

The Development Driller III is seen Wednesday as it drills a relief well at the site of the Deepwater Horizon oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico. That relief well is at least two months away.

after hearings in Washington and Louisiana uncovered a checklist of unseen unregulated aspects of well safety that apparently contributed to the April 20 blowout aboard the Deep-water Horizon: a leaky cement job, a loose hydraulic fitting, a dead battery. Company officials insist what caused the accident is not yet clear.

The trail of problems highlights the reality that, even as the U.S. does more deepwater offshore drilling in a quest for domestic oil, some key safety components are left almost entirely to the discretion of the companies doing the work.

It remains unclear what, if anything, Congress or the Obama administration may do to address these regulatory deficiencies.

So far, Interior Secretary Ken Salazar has proposed splitting his department's Minerals Management Service in two to make safety enforcement independent of the agency's other main function — collecting billions in royalties from the drilling industry.

But the events that unfolded in the hours before the blowout on the Deepwater Horizon suggest much more will need to be done on the regulatory front.

College for all?

Some experts say 4-year degree is not for everyone, and may even hurt the economy

Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — In a town dominated by the University of Missouri's flagship campus and two smaller colleges, higher education is practically a birthright for high school seniors like Kate Hodges.

She has a 3.5 grade-point-average, a college savings account and a family tree teeming with advanced degrees. But in June, Hodges is headed to the Tulsa Welding School in Oklahoma, where she hopes to earn an associate's degree in welding technology in seven months.

"They fought me so hard," she said, referring to disappointed family members. "They still think I'm going to college."

The notion that a four-year degree is essential for real success is being challenged by a growing number of economists, policy analysts and academics. They say more Americans should consider other options such as technical training or two-year schools, which have been embraced in Europe for decades.

As evidence, experts cite rising student debt, stagnant graduation rates and a struggling job market flooded with overqualified degree-holders. They pose a fundamental question: Do too many students go to college?

"College is what every parent wants for their child," said Martin Scaglione, president and chief operating officer of work force development for ACT, the Iowa-based not-for-profit best known for its college entrance exam. "The reality is, they may not be ready for college."

Travis Wainscott, 17, practices his arc welding techniques Thursday at the Columbia Area Career Center certified welding program in Columbia, Mo. About 2,000 students from central Missouri take classes at the center, supplementing their core high school courses with specialized training in automotive technology, robotics, design, electrical wiring and more. With the high cost of a four-year bachelor's degree, many students are considering technical training instead of a traditional college experience. The notion that a four-year degree is essential for real success is being challenged by a growing number of economists, policy analysts and academics. They say more Americans should consider other options such as technical training or two-year schools, which have been embraced in Europe for decades.

of citizens with college degrees. The U.S. now ranks 10th among industrial nations, behind Canada, Japan, Korea and several European countries.

But federal statistics show that just 36 percent of full-time students starting college in 2001 earned a four-year degree within that allotted time. Even with an extra two years to finish, that group's graduation rate increased only to 57 percent.

Spending more time in school also means greater overall student debt. The average student debt load in 2008 was $23,200 — a nearly $5,000 increase over five years. Two-thirds of students graduating from four-year schools owe money on student loans.

Ohio University economics professor Richard Vedder blames the cultural notion of "credential inflation" for the stream of unqualified students into four-year colleges. His research has found that the number of new jobs requiring college degrees is less than number of college graduates.

Vedder's work also yielded something surprising: The more money states spend on higher education, the less the economy grows — the reverse of long-held assumptions.

Safari ends in tragedy for lone crash survivor

Nine-year-old Ruben van Assouw is seen in his hospital bed Thursday in Tripoli, Libya.

TRIPOLI, Libya — The Dutch family — mom, dad and two young sons — were headed home from a dream safari in South Africa when their plane plunged to Earth in Libya. Rescuers found a single passenger alive: 9-year-old Ruben, still strapped in his seat.

The sole survivor slept peacefully Thursday, a stuffed orange Tigger tucked under his arm in a hospital room filled with bouquets of flowers. His left eye, forehead and slim torso were marked with bruises and scrapes; his left leg was immobilized in a blue and white cast. Ruben smiled and spoke briefly to an aunt and uncle who rushed to his bedside from Holland, but has yet to be told his parents and 11-year-old brother are dead.

"He's awake. He's talking. He is listening," a Dutch Foreign Ministry official, Ed Kronenburg, told The Associated Press after visiting the boy. "Of course he also sleeps quite a lot because he got an anesthesia yesterday and is still a bit dizzy."

The child was recovering well after 4 1/2 hours of surgery to repair multiple fractures to his legs, Kronenburg said.

Ruben, his brother Enzo and their parents Trudy and Patrick van Assouw had gone to South Africa during the boys' spring school vacation to celebrate the couple's 12 1/2-year wedding anniversary, a Dutch tradition.

In his travel blog, Patrick Van Assouw wrote about the camping trip that took them through some of the world's most spectacular natural wonders — South Africa's Mac Mac Falls, the Kruger National Park game reserve and across the border into Swaziland and on to Lesotho.

Pictures he posted included one showing Ruben and Enzo posing in front of the waterfalls.

Their Libyan-owned jetliner was minutes from landing in Tripoli on Wednesday when it crashed into a sandy field at the edge of the runway, killing 103 people.

Chronicle Female Athlete of the Year NOMINEE

Panther on the Prowl

Carleigh Williams

Lecanto's Carleigh Williams has proven herself as one of this year's most dominant athletes in Citrus County. As such she is one of the seven Chronicle Female Athlete of the Year nominees.

Lecanto junior's talented prowess proves ideal on soccer pitch, volleyball court, softball diamond

JOHN COSCIA
Chronicle

There may be no place in the world that Carleigh Williams is more in her zone than on the soccer pitch.

The Lecanto Panther has been a part of the sport for almost as long as she could walk. Thanks to her persistence, determination, physical strength and all-around spunk, Williams has grown into one of the most dynamic players of which Citrus County has ever given birth.

On her soccer talents alone, Williams is an obvious choice as one of this year's Chronicle Female Athletes of the Year nominees. But when it comes to this Lecanto junior, her athletic abilities aren't limited to just soccer – which to her is as much her passion as it is her favorite sport. For the past three years, she has been an integral part of the Panthers volleyball team and last year she ran track as well as competed in the high jump.

That was last year. This year, she developed a new itch and what happened next may be the greatest testament of all to this young lady's athleticism.

Having had her fill of track the last two years, as she prepared for this year's season she found that her heart was no longer in it. So one day, while running the track, she allowed her eyes to wander over to the softball diamond.

"I just wanted to try something new. So, I went up to Coach (Robert) Dupler and asked him if I could try out," Williams said. "He told me I would need to talk with my track coaches, Coach B (Freddie Bullock) and Coach (Dan) Epstein, because he didn't want to interfere with taking me away from a sport that I had already committed to."

Privately, Dupler's eyes had grown as big as saucers as he pondered the possibilities of having one of the school's best all-around athletes running his base paths. The only question now was how would she adjust?

"I literally had never wore a glove or ever even picked up a softball in a real game," Williams said. "I had no idea if I could even play, and hitting, that just had me scared to death."

Despite being well out of her comfort zone, she would soon take to softball like a duck to water. Her coach was impressed from day one. He, however, had no intentions of tipping his hand.

Williams might have been one of the leaders of the pack on the volleyball court and the soccer pitch, but here she was a newbie to softball. She was going to have to earn her stripes. No longer was she the top dog and as one of the newer pups Williams was going to have to play her way onto the team like anyone else.

"I made it clear to her early on that she was going to have to play JV first. And she was fine with that," Dupler said.

As each practice fell into the next, Williams' athleticism took over. She quickly adapted to her position in center field. With the start of the regular season upon him, Dupler faced the difficult choice of deciding who would make varsity and who would be relegated to the back up roles on the junior varsity squad.

Aussie sinks 6 birdies for lead

Matt Jones atop leaderboard after first round

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Matt Jones eagled the par-5 14th hole and finished with a 6-under 66 to take a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the Texas Open.

Jones, the 30-year-old Australian who played at Arizona State, also birdied four holes in a back-nine 30 on the Greg Norman-designed Oaks Course at TPC San Antonio, the tournament's new site after 15 years at La Cantera.

Paul Stankowski opened with a 67, and J.B. Holmes, Matt Weibring, Charley Hoffman and Steve Lowery had 68s.

Ernie Els, a two-time winner this year, had a 72. He was 3 under on the final five holes, making a tap-in eagle on 14 after a 293-yard second shot.

"Obviously, this golf course is a little bit different than we play week in and week out, and I think to some of the players it's a little bit of a shock," Els said. "Back to even par, but I feel like, you know, it could have been a low score out there. The wind dropped for us."

Els' playing partner, Vijay Singh, left several putts just short, but finished with a birdie for a 73. Zach Johnson, the two-time defending champion, made a 7 on the par-3 13th and ended up with an 8-over 80.

Jones rebounded after making a double bogey on the first hole.

Trainer looking for hope in Preakness

Baffert changes rider, horse for Saturday race

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Bob Baffert is looking for good omens anywhere he can.

So it wasn't lost on the Hall of Fame trainer that he won two races at Hollywood Park the other day from the No. 7 hole. That's the same spot in the starting gate Lookin At Lucky drew for Saturday's Preakness.

Baffert hopes things may be looking up for the colt who's had anything but luck in his last three races, including a sixth-place finish as the beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby.

Nearly two weeks ago, Lookin At Lucky drew the No. 1 post and got shuffled back coming out of the gate in the 20-horse field. An improved post position isn't the only thing different for Lookin At Lucky in the Preakness, where he's the second choice behind Derby winner Super Saver in the 12-horse field. He's getting a new rider, too, in Martin Garcia.

Jeff Burton pits during Saturday's NASCAR Sprint Cup Series Showtime Southern 500 race at Darlington Raceway in Darlington, S.C. Burton was penalized for running over his air hose during a late pit stop, costing him time on the track.

Another near-miss

Penalties plague Burton on racetrack

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jeff Burton couldn't have known in February, when he came up short at California on his chance to put eventual winner Jimmie Johnson a lap down, about all the missed opportunities there would be this season.

A brake failure at Atlanta, then a cut tire at Martinsville. There were pit road violations at Phoenix and Texas, and one of those unavoidable racing incidents at Talladega. Then came Saturday night at Darlington Raceway, where Burton had a car capable of battling Denny Hamlin for the victory.

Instead, miscommunication on the final pit stop caused Burton to run over his air hose — a gaffe that drew an immediate NASCAR penalty and instantly took him out of contention.

"Mistakes like tonight's don't win championships," he said after the race. "We had a fast car, one that was capable of winning, and a pit road mistake cost us a chance at a win."

That's been the recurring theme to Burton's season. He's led laps in eight of 11 races this year, but has just four top-10 finishes to show for it. He could have celebrated multiple wins already this season, but is instead riding a 52-race winless streak dating to October 2008.

So there's no way Saturday night was anything short of heartbreaking for Burton, who was long gone by the time Hamlin began his third victory celebration of the season. That so easily could have been Burton, whose hard luck and near-misses have been overshadowed by the similar struggles of four-time champion Jeff Gordon.

But for all the talk about how close

Jeff Burton had a car capable of battling Denny Hamlin for the win Saturday night at Darlington until a pit road penalty took him out of contention.

Gordon has been this season, there's been little mention of how the door often was opened by Burton's own bad luck. At Martinsville, for example, Burton led 140 laps and seemed to have the race in the bag until he ran over something on the track and cut his tire.

Burton faded to 20th and it was Gordon who moved into the lead on the final restart, only to lose to Hamlin in a wild two-lap sprint to the finish.

Burton was flagged for pitting outside the box at Phoenix — another race that Gordon lost late — and he was penalized at Texas for a commitment violation. Still, Burton was leading there late until a nine-car accident brought out a lengthy red flag. The handling on his Chevrolet went away after the break, and Burton faded from first to 12th in another Hamlin victory.

Asked about all those annoying issues before Darlington, Burton seemed to foreshadow what was still to come.

"We are doing the things we need to do. We are leading laps, running in the front. We're putting ourselves in position to win," he said. "We've put ourselves in position to lose, too. By having a good race car, our weaknesses have come out a little bit. We've got to get better. We've made some mistakes that have put us in positions that we didn't need to be in."

Burton had just traded the lead with Hamlin in the Southern 500 when caution came out and they pitted for the final time. Burton was the third car back on the track, but NASCAR called him back to the pits to serve a stop-and-go penalty for running over his air hose.

It dropped him to 13th on the restart with 20 laps left, and he had to charge hard to salvage an eighth-place finish.

"We are capable of winning races and we will win races," Burton said. "We'll get it together and we'll go race next week."

Adding to Burton's frustrations is that winning just one of those races this year would have gotten him into the May 22 All-Star race. He'll have two more chances to race his way in, this weekend at Dover and then in a qualifying event prior to the All-Star race.

"I will just be honest about it, I'm embarrassed that we are not in it," said Burton, who isn't qualified because he didn't win a race in 2009.

He has nothing to be embarrassed about this season, though, which is shaping up to be a resurgence for Richard Childress Racing. Kevin Harvick ended his own 115-race winless streak with a victory at Talladega and is the current Sprint Cup Series points leader, Burton is ninth in the standings and Clint Bowyer was inside the top 12 but dropped three spots to 15th after a broken brake line spoiled Saturday night.

"I am extremely optimistic about what we can do," Burton said. "I am disappointed in the results we have had, but I feel really good about what we can do."

Detroit Tigers' Miguel Cabrera, left, is congratulated by Brennan Boesch after hitting a solo home run off of New York Yankees starter CC Sabathia in the fourth inning of Thursday's game in Detroit. The Tigers won 6-0.

Tigers 6, Yankees 0

DETROIT — Justin Verlander pitched shutout ball into the seventh inning, Miguel Cabrera tagged CC Sabathia and the Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees 6-0 Thursday.

The Tigers took three of four from New York, handing the Yankees just their second series loss of the season.

Verlander (4-2) won his third straight start, giving up four hits and four walks in 6 2-3 innings.

CC Sabathia (4-2) lost for just the third time in his last 13 road games, allowing six runs on nine hits in six innings.

Cabrera and Brennan Boesch gave the Tigers a 3-0 lead with back-to-back homers down the right-field line in the fourth. Cabrera added a two-run double in the sixth.

Left fielder Don Kelly preserved the shutout with an outstanding catch to end the eighth. The Yankees put two on against Joel Zumaya, but Kelly grabbed Randy Winn's long fly just before running into the wall.

Detroit took the lead in the second on Gerald Laird's check-swing, RBI single. It was his sixth hit in 13 career at-bats against Sabathia.

Cabrera and Boesch extended the lead. Jorge Posada gave the Yankees a scoring chance with a two-out double off Verlander in the sixth, but newly recalled Juan Miranda popped out to end the threat.

The Tigers then put the game away in the bottom half. Johnny Damon and Magglio Ordonez led off with singles and Cabrera doubled to hit a two-run double over deep center field. Laird made it 6-0 with a two-out, RBI double.

Royals 6, Indians 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Reigning AL Cy Young Award winner Zack Greinke received rare run support for his first win in eight starts and the Kansas City Royals ended a seven-game losing streak with a victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Alberto Callaspo hit a three-run homer and the Royals roughed up Cleveland starter David Huff (1-5) to give Greinke (1-4) his most run support of the season. The hard-luck right-hander made the most of it, winning for the first time since September by giving up three runs in six innings.

Robinson Tejeda allowed a run in the eighth inning on Asdrubal Cabrera's third hit, a run-scoring single, but Joakim Soria closed out the ninth for his eighth save in 10 chances.

Cleveland stranded 11 runners. Greinke opened the season with no wins over his first seven starts, some of it his fault, some his teammates'.

The attention-shy right-hander has gotten the fourth-lowest run support in the AL at 2.4 runs per game, and the bullpen has blown leads in three games after he left the mound. But he's also had his share of rough moments, allowing three or more earned runs twice, including a loss to Texas on Friday in his last start.

Orioles 6, Mariners 5

BALTIMORE — Down by four runs in the eighth inning, the Baltimore Orioles could hardly have imagined an afternoon featuring a celebration at the plate, a shaving cream pie to the face of new-comer Corey Patterson and the sounds of Jay-Z blaring in the clubhouse.

Luke Scott hit a grand slam to cap a five-run eighth against reliever Brandon League, and the Orioles rallied to beat the Seattle Mariners.

"Moments like this, this is why we play the game," Scott said in the jubilant clubhouse.

The victory wasn't assured until Patterson unleashed a throw from left field that nailed Josh Wilson at the plate for the final out. Wilson tried to score from second on Ichiro Suzuki's single.

Patterson, who also homered, was in the midst of a postgame television interview when he received a shaving cream pie to the face from teammate Will Ohman. Summoned from Triple-A Norfolk on Wednesday, Patterson has already contributed to two victories.

"It's been a little bit whirlwind, but it's all worth it," he said. "I'm glad to come in and help these guys win some games."

Held to five hits over seven innings by Seattle starter Felix Hernandez, the Orioles promptly broke loose against League (3-3).

we wanted, but the first hole is not an easy starting tee shot there at all," Jones said. "It's very narrow."
"After that, it was just a battle to get back to even par on the front nine, and then I made about a 30-footer for par on 11, which kind of kept me going. And from there on, we had six birdies and an eagle."
Jones hit a 3-wood approach from 276 yards to 8 feet on No. 14.
He birdied three of the four par 3s.
"With these greens, if you miss a tee shot you're working hard to par or birdie," Jones said. "If you miss a second shot, it's tough out of the bunkers and runoffs they have on the greens. These par 3s aren't easy. To have three birdies on par-3s is quite good."
Jones, whose best finish this season is a tie for seventh two weeks ago at Quail Hollow, teed off among the morning groups before the temperature on a humid, windy day climbed into the mid-80s.

Woods suffering from neck pain

ORLANDO — Tiger Woods said tests Wednesday showed an inflamed neck joint that causes pain and makes it hard to turn his head, an injury that will require little more than medicine, massages and rest.
Woods had an MRI that revealed inflammation in a facet joint of his neck. He said on his website that when facet joints are inflamed, it causes pain in the area along with headaches and difficulty rotating the head.
He withdrew from the final round of The Players Championship on Sunday after a week in which he was seen stretching and rolling his neck.
Woods said his neck had been bothering him before he returned from a five-month layoff at the Masters, and that it was not related to the Nov. 27 car accident when he ran into a tree.
"I now need to take care of this condition and will return to playing golf when I'm physically able," Woods said.

Sports BRIEFS

Vickers hospitalized with medical condition
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — NASCAR driver Brian Vickers was being treated Thursday for an undisclosed medical condition that will prevent him from racing this weekend at Dover International Speedway.
Red Bull Racing said Vickers was hospitalized Wednesday night and being held for further testing. The team did not reveal where he was hospitalized, although Vickers was scheduled to visit Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., on Thursday and tour the Capitol with U.S. Rep. Doc Hastings.

Red Bull said Casey Mears will replace Vickers this weekend in the No. 83 Toyota.
"It is unfortunate that I will not be able to participate in the Dover race," Vickers said in a statement. "Casey is a good friend of mine, and I know he will do his best for the No. 83 team this weekend."
James Kingston leads by 2 at Mallorca Open
SON SERVERA, Spain — James Kingston of South Africa shot a 5-under 65 to take the lead after the first round of the Mallorca Open on Thursday.
Kingston carded six birdies against one bogey at the 6,915-yard Pula Golf Club and is two shots ahead of Spain's Alvaro Velasco.

"It was actually an easy round," said Kingston, a two-time winner on the European Tour.
Velasco, who had five birdies, was also pleased with his round.
"It was a good round," the Barcelona resident said. "I played very well, particularly the back nine."
Denmark's Thorbjorn Olesen, Raphael Jacquelin of France, Irishman Gary Murphy and Spain's Alejandro Canizares each shot 68.

Gomez in favor of Garcia, a 25-year-old from Mexico who has been riding since 2005. He's only exercised the colt in the morning and will ride him in a race for the first time.
"Everywhere I send him, he wins for me," Baffert said Thursday. "He's a kid who's progressed quickly. He's got raw talent."
The idea of changing riders came up in a conversation between Baffert and Mike Pegram, his longtime buddy who co-owns Lookin At Lucky, last year's 2-year-old champion.

"He was like, 'We need to change our luck,'" Baffert said, leaning back on a white fence outside the stakes barn at Pimlico. "Our mojo wasn't working."
Gomez has ridden Lookin At Lucky in all nine of his starts, and Baffert said the parting was amicable.
On Saturday, Gomez will be aboard 10-1 shot

Dublin, trying to win a sixth Preakness for trainer D. Wayne Lukas. Dublin was seventh under Terry Thompson in the Derby.
"I talked to Garrett and said, 'You guys find another horse. If I do decide to run, I may make a switch to change my luck,'" said Baffert, who waited a week after the Derby to announce Lookin At Lucky would try the Preakness. "Sometimes a horse and rider just aren't in sync. If I'm going to come here, I want to do something different."

PANTHER

"I called Carleigh over and told her to go grab a yellow jersey," Dupler said.
"She just turned to me and said, 'Yes, coach. I know I have to start on JV first.'"
She started to walk away.
"I was like, 'Carleigh, wait! Come here. Look out on the field. What color are the varsity girls out there wearing?'"
"Yellow."
"And the JV girls?"
"Green."
"And what color jersey did I tell you to grab?"
"Yellow ! Oh my gosh, I made varsity! Thank you, coach."
"Don't thank me, you earned it! Now get out there and get ready for practice."
As the season progressed so did Williams. Before long she had grown into a contributing member of the team. That's not to say she didn't have her full share of growing pains — she did. In fact, she still remembers her first at bat as if it were yesterday.
"I was scared to death when I stepped up to the plate," Williams said recalling the event.
In that first at bat, the Panthers' center fielder flied out in foul territory.
"All the girls were great and so encouraging when I got back to the dugout," said Williams with a laugh as she recalled the incident. "They were all like, 'Carleigh that's great. Mostly everybody strikes out their first time up. At least you hit the ball.'"
Williams remembered her reaction when she actually delivered her first base hit.
"Oh my gosh, it was such a rush!" she said. "I was so excited. I couldn't stop jumping up and down."

It wouldn't be her last. Over the course of the season, Williams would only strike out twice, finishing the season with a .304 batting average, scoring seven runs scored and stealing four bases.
Not bad for a player who just started playing organized softball for the first time this season.
"She totally blew by my wildest expectations," Dupler said. "It was amazing to watch her grow from a neophyte into a diamond. It was neat to see. She brought levity to practice and that was something we really needed this year. She led by her actions. If she made a mistake she just made the adjustment and then moved on."
"She's got pure speed and knows how to work the outfield. She was just a natural out there," he continued. "I remember the best heads up play I saw her make. Citrus hit a Texas-leaguer over second. Carleigh fielded the ball on the ground and then ran through the base for the force. Not bad coming from center."
Not bad at all.
And to think that wasn't even her given sport. That place — the one where she is most at home — is swarming the pitch, where Williams' defensive prowess turns her into a migraine for opposing offenses. No one had a better front row seat to the junior defender's talents than her head coach Roselle Seda, who took over the Panthers girls program this fall.
"I'm not sure what you can say about Carleigh that hasn't already been said. She's very athletic and she's good at every sport she tries," Seda said. "What makes her so good is her competitive nature. She expects more of herself than her peers. She strives to be the best every day. That competitive personality is what pushes her to be the best.

"I think the thing I noticed when I first started as coach was how hard Carleigh worked," she continued. "The way she practices is the way she plays. She works just as hard in practice as she does in games. Carleigh was one of our captains. As such she exemplified leadership qualities when it came to work ethic. No one outworked Carleigh."
Track, volleyball, soccer and let's not forget softball. No matter the sport — if there's a game to be played this Panther is always on the prowl — and you want her on your team.
"Her hand-eye coordination is unbelievable. Without a doubt she is an excellent, gifted athlete," Dupler said. "Carleigh is just a remarkable athlete. There's no other way to describe it."
Thanks in large part to the generosity of four silver sponsors — the Inverness Golf & Country Club, Just Sports in Inverness, Homosassa's Aaron's Rent-A-Center and Village Scion of Crystal River — the Chronicle is pleased to announce Carleigh Williams, along with all of the other athletic nominees, will be invited guests of honor at the Citrus County Chronicle's third annual Sports Banquet, which will once again be at the Inverness Golf & Country Club on Monday, May 24.

Okla. boy becomes an Internet hit

EDMOND, Okla. — A 12-year-old Oklahoma boy has become an Internet sensation with a video of his performance of the Lady Gaga song "Paparazzi." Sixth-grader Greyson Chance was recorded singing the song, self-accompanied on the piano, at an April 12 school talent show in Edmond, a suburb of Oklahoma City.

The video posted on his YouTube site had more than 8 million hits by Thursday morning. The performance also caught the attention of producers of "The Ellen DeGeneres Show." He was flown to Los Angeles to perform on Thursday's show, and spoke by telephone with Lady Gaga. She told Chance he is sweet and talented and said he should follow his dreams.

Comedy Central axes Silverman

NEW YORK — On her Comedy Central show, Sarah Silverman got drunk on cough syrup, mocked the abortion rights debate and seduced none other than God.

Sarah Silverman

That's all over now. The network says "The Sarah Silverman Program," which recently ended its third outrageous season, won't be back for a fourth. Inspired by Silverman's persona as a standup comic, the scripted show featured her as a flighty, self-consumed slacker living in the fictional town of Valley Village. Audience erosion was the main reason for canceling the show.

Ricci debuts on Broadway

NEW YORK — Christina Ricci will make her Broadway debut in Donald Margulies' "Time Stands Still" when the

Christina Ricci

Tony-nominated play resumes performances in September. The 30-year-old actress will join previously announced original cast members Laura Linney, Brian d'Arcy James and Eric Bogosian. Producers made the announcement Thursday. "Time Stands Still" has two Tony nominations: best play and best actress for Linney. Ricci's screen credits include "The Addams Family," "The Ice Storm" and "The Opposite of Sex."

Introducing: Charice

Associated Press

Philippines-born Charice has made a name for herself with big songs in the genre of Celine Dion and Whitney Houston. Now she has come out with an album aimed at the teen crowd. "I don't know if Americans are going to love me because I'm from other country," she said.

A hit with Winfrey and moms, singer tries to win over teens

NEW YORK — Charice has already won over the mom market. The teen wunderkind from the Philippines has been wowing audiences with her big voice and Celine Dion covers on "The Ellen DeGeneres Show," "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and other shows for the last two years. This week, she appeared on Winfrey's show for the fourth time.

But as she releases her self-titled debut album this week, Charice finds herself with a serious challenge as she tries to translate her success with an adult audience to her peers.

"I've been singing big songs, and this is actually the first time they are going to hear me sing Justin Bieber-type of songs, Miley Cyrus-type of songs," the 18-year-old said recently in her heavily accented English. "I'm just excited for all the teenagers to hear my album."

Had Charice come along around the era of Dion or Whitney Houston, two of her idols, it would have been easier to make that move. Back then, big-ballad singers with towering voices dominated pop radio.

These days, it's the grooves behind the big voice that matter.

David Foster, the Grammy-winning mentor behind Charice, probably knows that better than anyone. A legendary producer who has made hits for Houston, Dion, Barbra Streisand, Toni Braxton and dozens of other top names, Foster understands his sound isn't what makes hits on pop radio anymore (though he still makes hits — he's the producer behind multiplatinum stars Josh Groban and Michael Buble).

Though Foster and his sister Jaymes are the album's executive producers, they left most of the music-making to younger writers and producers like Ryan Tedder of OneRepublic, whose hits include Beyonce's "Halo" and Leona Lewis' "Bleeding Love."

The album's first single is "Pyramid," featuring singer Iyaz.

"I just thought like, teenagers are falling in love ... they love this very catchy and very romantic words from all these young artists," Charice said. "That's why I thought that this album ... they are gonna love it, all the lyrics, all the melody and all the music."

So far, "Pyramid" is No. 2 on the dance charts, but it hasn't yet translated to pop radio. Foster is aware of the challenge it takes to make a hit, but he thinks Charice has a lot to add to the scene.

"There is a lack of organic music right now, and it's fine — it's just the phase that we're in," he explains. "I think there is room for some more musicality."

There's no denying Charice has that. During a recent interview, the diminutive singer belted out "Pyramid" on request, performed a stirring rendition of Houston's "I Will Always Love You" for an audience of four, then continued to sing — even on her way out the door.

Singing has consumed Charice — born Charmaine Clarice Relucio Pempengco — since she was a child growing up in the Philippines. Raised with her brother by a single mother, she sang in local contests and appeared on TV talent shows in the Philippines and in South Korea.

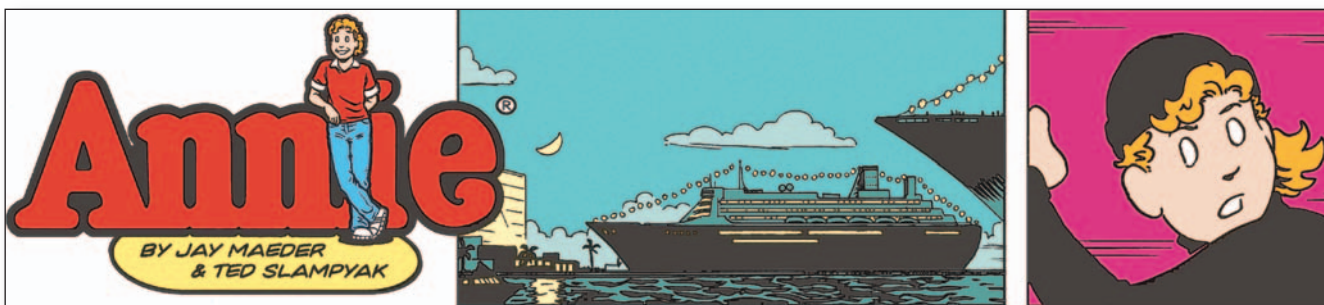

Fans posted clips of her on YouTube, and she became a sensation. Soon, she was invited to sing on "Ellen," then on "Oprah Winfrey," and linked up with Foster.

So far, her rise has unfolded like a fairy tale. But Charice knows there are hurdles, like trying to capture U.S. audiences.

"It's really, really hard ... there's a lot of great pop stars here. ... They're all talented," she said. "I don't know if Americans are going to love me because I'm from other country."

But Foster said it's only a matter of time before there's an Asian superstar in the U.S., and he believes Charice might be the one.

"Being a great singer is not enough, and she has the entire package," he said.

'Annie' leaving comics pages

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The iconic redheaded orphan Annie is ending her time on newspaper comics pages after 85 years.

Tribune Media Services announced Thursday that it will cease syndication of the "Annie" strip on June 13.

The company said in a news release it is taking Annie into the Internet age by pursuing new audiences for her in digital media.

The comic strip "Little Orphan Annie" made its newspaper debut on August 5, 1924, first written and illustrated by creator Harold Gray. The strip later was renamed simply "Annie." The spunky orphan was adopted by Daddy Warbucks and later joined by her lovable dog Sandy.

Annie is known for wearing a red dress with white collar and cuffs. Over decades she has become the center of a radio program, Broadway musical and movies.

Today's HOROSCOPE

Birthdays Today: Conditions that pertain to your finances and material security may begin to show improvement in the year ahead. Once you get on a roll, you could start to accumulate a surplus and be able to acquire some big-ticket items.
Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Although you might be a bit of a daydreamer today, something you come up with could actually be a winner. If it seems good to you, turn your fanciful idea into concrete fact.
Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Usually it doesn't matter, but today recognition for doing something good could be extremely important to you. All you have to do is put forth the extra effort that an also-ran wouldn't make.
Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Others might fall prey to not being able to identify a falsehood when they hear one, but you are not likely to be so easily deceived. Trust both your common sense and your intuition when weighing evidence.
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Progress can be made today concerning an ambitious endeavor you've been pursuing, but you might have to get a bit creative to move forward. Just wait until completion before claiming any bragging rights.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Using a bit of smarts and lots of diplomacy can serve you better than being bossy and demanding. The secret to getting others to help you without generating any resentment is to make them feel important.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Don't discard any strong feelings or hunches you get today, especially regarding your work. Your intuitive perceptions could be the best tool you'll find for accomplishing a difficult job.
Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — One of your greatest assets is your ability to recognize the talents of others. When organizing an event, assign people to the jobs they do best, and each will walk away feeling successful.
Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Although it might take you a bit longer than others to do a certain job today, the big difference will be in the fact that what you do is likely to be done to perfection.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — What you say isn't likely to be ignored today, and others will know you mean business. Even when your demands are couched in friendly phrases, the point gets across.
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — If large returns are necessary for you to be successful today, you might have to work a bit harder than usual. However, once you prime the pump, personal gains should freely flow.
Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Members of the opposite gender usually find you an extremely charismatic person at first. Today, however, your allure could be far stronger than usual.
Aries (March 21-April 19) — Although it might seem like a little thing for another to do, it could be quite meaningful to you, the recipient. Being appreciated for a past good deed will mean a lot.

ROBIN HOOD

Review: Crowe's version visually rich, too serious

CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP movie critic

Darth Vader. Batman. Captain James T. Kirk. Now another legendary figure gets the origin-story treatment in Ridley Scott's "Robin Hood."

The world probably didn't need another version of this famous tale, even though it arrives with outstanding production values and an impeccable pedigree. Besides Scott, the script comes from Oscar-winning "L.A. Confidential" writer Brian Koppelman, and the heavy-weight cast is anchored by Russell Crowe as the title character and Cate Blanchett as Marian. (Solid supporting work comes from Mark Strong, William Hurt, Eileen Atkins, Matthew Macfadyen and the excellent Max von Sydow.)

This Robin Hood is not a man in tights — he's not even robbing from the rich and giving to the poor just yet — but rather an expert archer in the crusading army of King Richard the Lionheart (Danny Huston) at the turn of the 13th century. Working with "Gladiator" director Scott for the fifth time, Crowe is hulking and overly serious, and the same can be said of "Robin Hood" itself. With its sweeping scope and tangible grittiness, it does look great: an old-fashioned epic jazzed up with new technology. Several moments stand out for their imagery, including

'OCEANS' AMAZING, BUT LACKS DEPTH, CLARITY

Heather Foster
TEEN MOVIE REVIEW

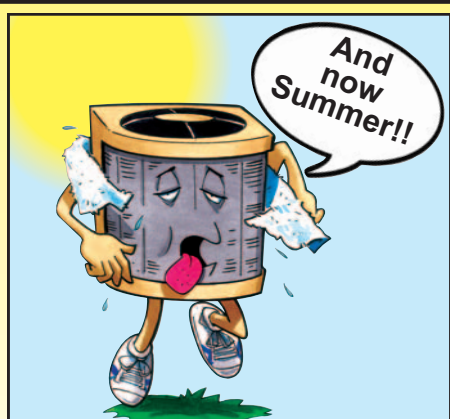

For a documentary, Disney's "Oceans" is hardly informative. Given the genre, you can only itch for interesting facts, but the most insightful remark delivered was "blue whales eat krill, a small crustacean."

Aside from stating the obvious, Pierce Brosnan's sighing narration paled in comparison to Morgan Freeman's more-seasoned regality. Sad attempts to enhance already astounding phenomena with pseudo poetic metaphors faltered all the more. Nonetheless, unique and downright stunning footage mesmerized the audience singlehandedly. With a cinema inundated with CGI critters and other digital enhancements, it is a joy to watch our real majestic, elegant and odd beasts romp about their idyllic oceanic home. Filmmakers follow an array of species all around the globe, at all depths. We follow seals, otters and aquatic iguanas at the shoreline, clams and crabs at vast aerial shots and the sight of hundreds of arrows zipping through the air and landing in a thunderous shower.

But then the brawny battle scenes, which set this incarnation apart from its lilted and swash-buckling predecessors, are shot so and edited in such a chaotic, choppy way, it's nearly impossible to tell what's happening. They're all frenzied, kinetic energy. And the climactic showdown is chock full of cliches, including Robin yelling "Noooo!" in slow motion; meanwhile, other members of his posse magically hit their targets at just the right opportune moment.

Long before that — and do mean long before that — the convoluted plot finds Crowe's Robin Longstride serving in the king's army against the French. Once the king dies, Robin returns to England and assumes the identity of one his noblemen (also dead) in order to bring back the crown, which then goes to his cocky, tax-happy brother, John (Oscar Isaac). The new king's right-hand man, Godfrey (Strong, always a convincing villain), encourages him but is also in cahoots with the French. "Robin Hood" is not a documentary.

But Robin also visits the dead man's home in Nottingham to return his sword to his blind and aging father, Sir Walter Loxley, played by von Sydow with exquisite humor and dignity. There he meets Lady Marian, who was married to Loxley's son for all of a cup of coffee before he went off to battle. This is no delicate damsel but rather a thick-skinned pragmatist who knows her way around a sword; to borrow Tyra Banks' favorite word, Blanchett is fierce.

Robin also assumes the identity of Marian's husband to keep up appearances and allow the family to retain its 5,000 acres, and so it's no surprise when they end up falling for each other for real. Crowe and Blanchett's scenes are compelling primarily because they allow us to watch two bona fide movie stars — ones who can really act — sharing the screen, as well as some snappy banter. But when the movie feels the need to spell out their emotional connection, it turns mundane.

Eventually, Robin assembles a band of men — some of whom are kind of merry — to take on the French invasion Godfrey has helped orchestrate. As they storm the beaches of England, it's all very "Saving Private Ryan." But bringing to mind the superior epics "Robin Hood" resembles doesn't exactly help its cause.

"Robin Hood," a Universal Pictures release, is rated PG-13 for violence including intense sequences of warfare, and some sexual content. Running time: 140 minutes. Released in 2-D only. Two and a half stars out of four.

wading waters, and a plethora of fish, dolphin and whales at the open seas. The freezing arctic, balmy tropics, bustling reefs and isolated expanses attest nature's broad emotional spectrum. Entrancing little comedies, dramas and adventures are tucked into each environment. Rather than following a handful of animals or locations in a linear fashion, we are presented with multitudes of ever-varying, randomly occurring storylines. While fast-paced and exciting, lacking information makes "Oceans" something of a tailspin.

In a knockout introduction, "Oceans" first few minutes boasted astonishing cinematography and editing. Amazingly long, smooth shots trail an aquatic iguana's casual swim through perilous wave-bashed crags off Galapagos. We later see the dinosaur-esque creatures stare at a shuttle launch; one beautifully detailed shot captures the iguana's eyes reflecting the cosmic blaze. From there, we see the rocket diminish to a speck to transition to an otherworldly scene where microscopic anemone larvae speckle black waters like stars. Sadly, such juxtapositions gradually lost their poetic quality. Nonetheless, cinematography held strong.

"Oceans" is packed with jaw-dropping shots. First, we are presented with some new, bizarre animals such as the rock fish, ribbon eel, ancient sheep-head fish, scarf octopus, giant jellyfish and garden eel. Rarer creatures, such as the narwhale, dugong, sunfish, leafy sea dragon, mantis shrimp and spider crab are given considerable screen time. Even better we get to see these beautiful animals partake in amazing behaviors. We see a mantis shrimp brawl with a crab, humpback whales sleeping upside down, a mother walrus cuddle her baby, cuttlefish strobe like nightclubs, sardines swirling into shimmering globes - the works!

My only complaint is the narration, wavering between spouting general knowledge and trying to emphasize the beauty of the event, it proved mediocre. Brosnan did a decent job of breathing emotion into what lackluster lines he was given, but ultimately proved unnecessary. In face of stunning phenomena words lose their value. Nothing against books, which are unassisted by imagery — but what use is it to state the sea is gorgeous when you can see it for yourself? I wish director Jacques Perrin discarded narration and stuck to a musical score as he did in "Winged Migration."

Nonetheless, "Oceans" is a something worth seeing. B.

"Oceans" is rated G for general audiences.

'Iron' clad sequel

In 2008, director Jon Favreau introduced us to a new kind of superhero film.

He showed us a comic book movie with comedy, action, drama, and most of all, a movie with a larger sense of reality. With the help of Robert Downey Jr.'s superb acting, "Iron Man" was born. The same people who brought us the iron masterpiece have returned with an action-packed sequel, "Iron Man 2."

We are first introduced to Ivan Vanko (Mickey Rourke), whose father is on his deathbed. Ivan and his father believe that Tony Stark's father stole his idea for the technology that eventually led to the creation of the Iron Man suit. Shortly after the death of his father, Ivan begins to construct a weapon/suit much like Iron Man's suit and starts his quest for revenge.

Meanwhile, in the U.S., billionaire-icon-super-hero Tony Stark (Downey) is having the time of his life. Now known as Iron Man by all, Tony uses his heroic side to promote his company, which results in the return of the Stark Expo, a convention where state-of-the-art inventions are exhibited. During this upturn in the company's popularity, Tony appoints his longtime assistant, Pepper Potts (Gwyneth Paltrow), as the new CEO; a new assistant named Natalie Rushman (Scarlett Johansson) is appointed (which sparks an interest in Stark's personal side), and the billionaire also develops a rather large ego.

Ivan soon attacks Tony at a racetrack in Moscow and gains the attention of a rival of Tony Stark, Justin Hammer (Sam Rockwell). These two men form a plot to take down Stark's enterprise and finally get a spot on top. However, Ivan has some plans of his own.

In the new Marvel comic films, the goal is to start to connect the characters in each film to each other. For example, at the end of the credits of the first "Iron Man," we see Samuel L. Jackson portray the famous Nick Fury who heads an organization known as SHIELD (for the non-comic book readers, SHIELD is like the superhero C.I.A. and police). The purpose of these tie-ins? Well, in 2012, Marvel plans to release "The Avengers," which is a superhero team made up of Iron Man, The Hulk, Thor, and Captain America. So if you thought the movie wasted actors like Samuel L. Jackson and Scarlett Johansson, relax; they are serving a bigger purpose.

"Iron Man 2" boasts an extraordinary cast who all give great performances. When it comes to Robert Downey Jr., it seems like he was born to play Tony Stark. His facial expressions, the way he delivers his lines, and everything else come together to form the best Stark that simply cannot be recreated by any other actor.

The film's antagonist, Ivan, is played by Mickey Rourke, who did a great job as well. Rourke didn't have many lines, but his performance came out in his body language. While watching him, I could feel the emotions (mostly anger) that his character was feeling, making him all the more menacing. All the other actors and actresses show that the film has an A-list cast which not only refers to their recent popularity, but their excellent acting.

"Iron Man 2" was loaded with high-octane, explosive action. What could be better than Iron Man jumping out of a plane, flying through the firework-lit sky to AC/DC's "Shoot to Thrill?"

Whether it was Iron Man fighting Ivan, Iron Man fighting War Machine, or Natalie fighting Ivan's henchman (which had probably the best fighting choreography in the entire movie), many of the characters get their action time on screen and it's fun. I won't give details but one of the action scenes in this film is so insane that the entire theater I was in started to cheer, yell, and applaud. Another good thing about the action is that even though there was tons of it, it doesn't push away the plot line and character development, which is what most sequels do.

In "Iron Man 2" we continue to see into Tony Stark's character and the many issues, both good and bad, he has to deal with. This particular element is what makes these films so good.

These films don't have the perfect super-hero who never gets drunk, or never does anything wrong. Tony Stark faces problems that many people face like drinking and social pressure, thus it is easier to relate to him and enjoy his character. The films show that super-heroes can't be perfect.

"Iron Man 2" can take its place among my favorite films of the genre. By the way, especially if you are a comic book fan, stay after the credits for an overwhelmingly suspenseful cliffhanger: I give the film three stars out of four.

"Iron Man 2" has a running time of two hours and five minutes and is rated PG-13 for sequences of intense sci-fi action and violence, and some language.

Local theater groups offer entertainment

Encore Ensemble Theater's Jacki Doxy just returned from a visit to welcome adorable new granddaughter Anna Claire, her youngest son's first child.

Encore Ensemble Theater company is contemplating a repeat performance of the successful interactive comedy/mystery "Appointment for Murder." Because Encore Ensemble's Mike Shier Sr. and Mike Shier II took part in the "Music in the Park" fundraiser for Crystal River last Sunday at Curtis Peterson Auditorium, it has been suggested (by public opinion) that these two appear together again in a similar type of concert. Encore Ensemble Theater Inc. is considering an event of this kind sometime in the near future.

Now playing at the Art Center Theatre is "Murder by Misadventure," directed by David Easter, an experienced local actor who has segued into directing. Speaking to him about the shift into directing, he claimed that he often interrupted and disagreed with directors, so he decided he had better become a director himself. Though he will continue to direct, he still loves acting and will be back on stage when the opportunity arises.

Although the play "Murder by Misadventure" was written in 1992, the playwright's name is not a familiar one, possibly because the play has never been performed locally and because it's not the usual mystery or comedy. Some murder mysteries, suspenseful as they may be, often contain a small element of comedy or project a comedic situation. Most small community theaters offer mysteries and rarely perform the heavier dramas.

Not that there is anything wrong with drama, but the audience members of small community theaters seem to prefer attending plays that create a feeling of well-being. Some authors write outstanding plays that are not suitable for small community theaters, but adapt better to sophisticated audiences in major cities. Most will agree that many community theater audiences just want to be entertained, not confronted or confused by social issues.

Our Nature Coast Performers Inc. found audience approval with "The Belle of Amherst," a day in the life of poet Emily Dickinson. Their next show, "Love Letters," was a comedic drama, a show that is very popular with community theaters all around the country. The last show was a romantic farce that had the audience reeling with laughter. What's next?

Our local community theaters offer a diverse selection of shows. So, instead of traveling to Ocala, Spring Hill or Hudson to see a show, save your money and your gasoline, stay in our community and support our hard-working, talented theater actors and volunteers.

Jeri Augustine is a producer/director for Encore Ensemble Theater Inc., a member of Art Center Theatre and Nature Coast Performers Inc.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Grieving in Kentucky," who could not understand why her late husband's brother has vanished from their lives. My husband's best friend passed away in his early 50s. We wanted to help his wife with the adjustment, but unfortunately, she began to use us as handy-men. PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE: The Southwest Florida Water Management District is proposing to amend the following rules: 40D-9.170, F.A.C.

The proposed revisions clarify that the extent to which hunting is allowed on District lands that are not within a designated Type 1 Wildlife Management Area will be determined by the conservation management goals and objectives contained within the specific management plan for the property. The revisions will also provide greater flexibility in the issuance of hunting permits for authorized hunts on District lands not within a Type 1 Wildlife Management Area. Currently the rule only allows for issuance per a lottery system. The proposed language will broaden the District's options to allow issuance via lottery or on a first come/first serve basis. The Notice of Proposed Rulemaking appeared in the Florida Administrative Weekly, Vol. 36, No. 19, 40D-9.170, F.A.C., on May 14, 2010. A copy of the proposed rules can be viewed on the District's web site at <http://www.swfwmd.state.fl.us/rules/proposed/details/18/>

The District does not discriminate on the basis of disability. Anyone requiring reasonable accommodation should contact Dianne Lee, (352) 796-7211, ext. 4658; TDD only: 1-800-231-6103.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (33 USC S/5 2714(c)) ("OPA"), please be advised of the following information:

A well, which is located in Mississippi Canyon Block 252 in the Gulf of Mexico and had been drilled by the mobile offshore drilling unit DEEPWATER HORIZON, has been named as the source of an oil discharge that commenced around 10:00 pm CDT on or about April 20, 2010. This spill impacted the Mississippi Canyon area, and continues to potentially affect the Gulf Coast of the United States. As the spill is ongoing, the quantity of oil involved is undetermined.

BP Exploration & Production Inc. ("BP Exploration") is accepting claims for certain uncompensated damages and removal costs caused by the spill. Costs and damages that may be compensated pursuant to OPA include removal costs; damage to or loss to real or personal property; loss of subsistence use of natural resources; loss of government revenues; loss of profits and earnings capacity; and damages for net costs of providing increased public services.

BP Exploration has established a toll-free, hotline number for claims: 1-800-440-0858. This hotline is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

The claims procedure is as follows: Personnel at the call center will provide each caller with information on how to submit a claim. Each claim will be assigned to an adjuster, and the claim will be promptly investigated and evaluated. Claims for lost income or lost profits will be evaluated promptly. The adjuster will require some substantiation of income impacted by the spill, but will make reasonable effort to keep the documentation requirements to a minimum. Reasonable effort will also be made to act on lost income claims within 48 hours of receipt. Larger and more complex claims may require additional investigation and documentation prior to evaluation and resolution. Resolved claims will be paid promptly.

Claims may be presented for interim, short-term damages representing less than the full amount to which the claimant ultimately may be entitled. Please note that payment of such claims shall not preclude recovery for damages not reflected in the paid or settled partial claims.

Any claims that are denied or that are not resolved within 90 days after the date of submission to the BP Exploration claims representative may be submitted to the US COAST GUARD STOP 7100 (ca), 4200 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 1000, Arlington, Virginia 20598-7100 for consideration.
