Man's remains laid to rest

SHEMIR WILES
Chronicle

Huddled together in a little spot of shade at Stage Stand Cemetery in Homosassa, family members paid tribute to the man who made people laugh with his incredible stories and lived life to the fullest on his terms.

Twenty years ago, James Nelson embarked on a journey from Florida to Texas to visit his sister. But on July 23, 1990, he went missing in Mississippi without a trace, leaving behind a family who never stopped looking for him.

His niece, Janice Carroll, searched relentlessly until she finally found his remains through a missing persons website maintained by Louisiana State University. It was only fitting to have him home in time for the 20th anniversary of his disappearance, his family said. It was finally time to put him to rest.

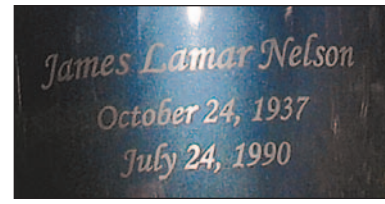

"I don't believe in life and death," Alice Langley, James' older sister, said at Friday's memorial service. "I want to believe in life eternally."

With a small green book nestled in her palm, Alice read, "There is No Death" by John Luckey McCreery, a poem she felt reflected what she believed.

*There is no death!
The stars go down,
To rise upon some other shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown,
They shine forevermore.*
"He was the cutest kid," Alice said. "He had a button nose."

Centennial celebration honors retired Army colonel

NANCY KENNEDY
Chronicle

At 100, retired U.S. Army Col. Robert Greene uses a computer to play solitaire and occasionally surfs the Internet. In his lifetime, he's gone from traveling by horse and buggy to flying to Hawaii on a jet, from using gaslight lanterns to electricity, from mail taking weeks to be delivered to instantaneous e-mail.

And he still remembers his years of service to his country.

During the annual summertime blues luncheon of the Military Officers Association of America Citrus chapter, Greene, of Inverness, was recognized and remembered.

"He's a remarkable individual with a distinguished service record," said Curt Ebitz, retired Army colonel and MOAA member.

"What impressed me — he's so dedicated to our country and to ensuring that the next generations understand how great our country is and understanding the sacrifices necessary to keep it great," Ebitz said.

Greene's birthday celebration, which has been going on all month leading up to today, included a lunch with his "lady friends" and a party with his wife, two sons and daughter and their spouses.

In all, Greene has 10 grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Last week, Greene received a letter from President Obama congratulating him on his centennial celebration, which was "splendid, even though I'm a Republican," he said. In his lifetime, he's liked most of the presidents, especially Franklin Roosevelt and Harry S.

Also, Congresswoman Ginny Brown-Waite put his name in the Congressional record.

Greene lost his wife, Betty, in 1994. He had met Lori, his current wife of 15 years, 32 years his junior, decades ago.

Greene was a friend of her parents and they would often eat at the former Country Oaks Inn in Lecanto, a restaurant owned by Mrs. Greene's brother.

Even into his 80s, Greene was active in the Veterans in the Classroom program, sharing his stories of military service, first serving in Burma during World War II.

"I was in intelligence," Greene said. He reported to senior officers such as British Admiral Lord Louis Mount-

City lays out financial plan

At the city of Inverness's first budget workshop Thursday, council members got the not-so-surprising news that revenues are down this year and that things aren't expected to improve soon. Property values in the city of Inverness dropped a total of $28.6 million since last year, City Manager Frank DiGiovanni told the Council. He also told them to expect revenues to continue to drop for at least a few more years.

"Maybe by the fourth year we'll stop bleeding," he said.

DiGiovanni is recommending a property tax rate of 5.98 mills, which is less than the tentative millage rate of 6.62 but higher than the current property tax rate (5.39) and the rollback rate of 5.81. One mill equals $1 for every $1,000 of taxable property value.

Even though the property tax rate is going up, many homeowners won't see much of an increase, if any. For a $150,000

As the years went by and they both grew older, Alice said her brother always told her she was beautiful. He was funny, a natural storyteller and a success in his own right.

"He said most people wouldn't consider his life a success, but he thought it was," she said.

He never married, but that's because Alice said he told her, "I never met a woman I loved as much as I love you."

The Rev. Laurie Gist from United Church in Beverly Hills led the service, letting James' family know it was a time to release their loved one and celebrate his life.

"I will not dwell on death," Alice said after the service. "I believe when he died, immediately his spirit was freed," she said.

As the older sister who used to fasten and unfasten her brother's overalls, Alice said she chooses to only remember the laughter, the fun and the good memories. She will not shed any tears because she said she has had 20 years to grieve.

The American and British troops were in Burma to take control of the old Burma Road, rebuild it and open it as a supply route to China.

"We wanted to keep China in the war against the Japanese until we got things under control in Europe," Greene said.

In 2002, Greene told the Chronicle about the time he came across a bloodied Japanese soldier on the ground and presumed dead.

When the man opened his eyes, the Chinese soldier traveling with Greene unsheathed his bayonet as Greene asked the man if he spoke English.

The man nodded and Greene told him to get up.

"Are you armed?" Greene asked.

The man replied, "No, sir," Greene said, "If you're lying, I'll shoot you."

Later during his interrogation of the Japanese soldier he learned that the bomb they just dropped on the Mitsubishi plant that manufactured aircraft engines hadn't hit the area where the power came into the plant. The soldier, who had studied at the University of Washington and had once been an engineer for Mitsubishi, told him where the power came in and the Americans destroyed it.

Today, in 2010, Greene's memory of details such as that is getting a bit hazy. However, he remembers being a pilot and running for public office when he was younger.

He remembers growing up in Keene, N.H., with a furniture salesman father and a "busy, bright" mother. He was one of six children, four girls and two boys.

tory written by his son, Robert, Greene had been the youngest town selectman in the town of Meredith, N.H., where he lived with his late wife, Betty.

At the time, he made friends with a local businessman who taught him to fly.

During his wartime service, Greene flew an L-5, used for spotting the enemy, flying materials and personnel in and out of India.

Greene remembers being a young college student at the University of New Hampshire, going through Army ROTC and being commissioned an Army Reserve Infantry Second Lieutenant at Fort Devens, Mass.

He was called to duty in April 1941 as a First Lieutenant with orders to attend Basic Officers' Course at Fort Benning, Ga. After that, he was sent to Camp Croft, S.C., and later he was assigned to a team in New York City, which expedited the delivery of critical items for the assault on Sicily.

As a captain, Green departed from Miami for an overseas assignment in August 1943, not knowing his destination until mid-flight: Headquarters, Northern Combat Area Command (NCAC), Assam, India in the China, Burma, India (CBI) Theater.

"That was interesting duty," Greene said. "I was a very young officer."

After serving in Burma, Greene went on to serve in Panama and Korea. His last duty prior to retiring in 1961 was in Paris with Command Headquarters.

After retiring as a colonel, Greene worked as a comptroller for the federal civil service for 12 years, then traveled for two years around the United States in a recreational vehicle before moving to Florida.

DiGiovanni said staff started from the ground up to create the new budget.

"We totally dismantled the government. We totally dismantled everything," he said.

DiGiovanni labeled services, programs and projects as top priorities and said he plans to continue with improvement projects and keep city events going.

He proposed eliminating the 6.5 full-time jobs that are currently vacant as well as two maintenance jobs that are filled. He also proposed adding a project manager position he said would save the city money.

"The major (changes) are going to be how we align staff and eliminating all vacant positions."

Over the next few years, DiGiovanni said he plans to look at ways to contract more services.

City staff will present the formal budget to the council at the second budget workshop on Thursday.

About 38 members of various Sheriff's Office organizations, including the SWAT Team shared the load on the extra-long portion of the run.

The run will conclude today at the Key Center's Lecanto campus when the runners will be welcomed by Key supporters, con-

Key Training Center's Run for the Money 2010 unfunded clients

Note: These people are among the unfunded clients who the Key Training Center supports from proceeds raised during Run for the Money week.

Vicky Delfin, 24, loves going to the Key Center. She just finished taking a class offered through the Key at the College of Central Florida. In that class, Vicky learned to be more aware of how to handle herself safely in the community.

Derek Drennan is very new to the Key Training Center. He has an artistic bent, enjoys a wide variety of music, paints and sculpts. Derek speaks both English and Spanish. He works with the grounds maintenance crew, where he has proven to be very helpful to everyone on the crew.

Teresa Emmons, 24, keeps a beautiful smile while she keeps busy and helps all around the Key Training Center. She strips wire, prepares food, creates crafts, does dishes, cleans up, and sorts and tags clothes. When she isn't working, Teresa volunteers at Citrus Memorial Health System. Lunch time finds her talking amiably with her friends.

Marion Maggiore, 52, is a very social and friendly lady. She is hard-working and enjoys the tasks in the Key Training Center's new bookstore at the Inverness Thrift Store. She is learning all aspects of the business, including making coffee, sorting the donated books and keeping the shelves straight. Stop in anytime, she'd love to tell you all about it.

Craig Norton's day is full of diverse activities. He enjoys computer games, word search puzzles and music. At the Key Training Center, he works in the workshop and at the Thrift Store. Craig, 39, helps care for the vegetable garden and enjoys watching plants grow. Most of all, he is looking forward to eating fresh veggies.

Jason Sergeant, 22, is one of the Key Center's great volunteers, packaging pet food, delivering "Home Delivered Meals" and working on the "Adopt a Highway" project. Jason's other Key Training Center activities include learning basic computer skills and learning sign language.

Sheena Trott is a young, vibrant, carefree young woman who is also a conscientious hard worker. Sheena loves fashion and exploring all the options. That ties in well with her job at the Key Training Center Super Store, where she sorts the donated clothing. Sheena enjoys laughing, talking and going out with her friends and family.

"I run for the Key Training Center because, as a volunteer for Key Center, I've come to love and admire these wonderful clients who work so hard to become their personal best."

RSVP is looking for volunteers who want to become part of a team to conduct training sessions to educate other community members. Thursday's session will run from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The class will be in the Training Room at the Citrus County Resource Center, which is at 2804 W. Marc Knighton Court, off County Road 491 just south of Beverly Hills. A meal and refreshments will be provided.

The goal is to educate 500 Citrus County residents with disaster preparedness and response information. Citizens will learn the importance of having a survival kit and a family communications plan. Volunteer opportunities include: course training facilitation, citizen recruitment, administrative support activities, and session coordination. Volunteers receive a recognition certificate for completing the training and free Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) course materials.

Mosquito Control Board gets new member

Albert Jordan of Inverness has been appointed by Florida's commissioner of agriculture to replace a member of Citrus County's Mosquito Control Board who resigned to take a county job.

Commissioner Charles Bronson appointed Jordan to replace Ken Frink after he resigned, according Terence McElroy, Bronson's spokesman.

McElroy said mosquito control district boards are elected positions, but the law provides that if someone leaves before the end of the term it is up to the commissioner to appoint a replacement until the next election.

Frink resigned to become the public works director for Citrus County.

Jordan said he has served on the board before.

"I'm glad I got the appointment and I've been on the board for 26 years," he said, "and I feel like I can get back on the board and do some good maybe for the people of Citrus County."

Crist extends jobless benefits

DAVID ROYSE
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Not content to wait for lawmakers to act later this year, Gov. Charlie Crist issued an executive order on Friday that will make nearly a quarter million Floridians who have been out of work for a long time eligible for additional benefits.

Congress passed and President Obama signed legislation this week that extends federal jobless benefits for the long-term unemployed for another six months.

Florida's extended benefit program, which pays up to 20 weeks of additional jobless benefits to people who have used up their regular benefits, which typically last up to 79 weeks. But that program expired in June in Florida when lawmakers declined to extend it during the regular session, leaving the state unable to take advantage of the new federal dollars being made available to the long-term unemployed.

Florida had an unemployment rate of 11.4 percent last month. In addition to about 250,000 people who will now be eligible for extended benefits between now and December because of Crist's executive order, about 900,000 other unemployed Floridians already were set to get additional help because of the new law approved in Washington this week.

The cost of the supplemental benefits is paid by the federal government.

Democrats in Florida had urged Crist to either call the Legislature into another special session — lawmakers were in session one day this week but didn't address the issue — or to issue an executive order to change the law to make the extra benefits available.

"Unemployed Floridians are struggling in this challenging economic climate, trying to figure out how to pay their bills and support their families," said Crist, an independent. "We simply cannot desert the 250,000 Floridians who qualify for the extended federal assistance signed into law yesterday."

Crist had been unsure earlier in the week whether he could unilaterally make the change or whether the Legislature's approval was needed. House Speaker Larry Creteil, R-Ocala, said Thursday that lawmakers would probably try to address the issue when they return for a special session next month or in September.

But Crist, who is running for U.S. Senate, said Friday he had determined he had a "constitutional duty" to authorize the use of available federal funds.

Advocates for the unemployed said they were pleased the governor acted, rather than waiting for lawmakers to return. People who have been out of work for months, and without unemployment benefits since June, will not only benefit, said Karen Woodall, an advocate for the unemployed. "It's businesses, too — because that money gets spent and put into the economy," Woodall said.

Crist's executive order made the benefits retroactive to June 5 when the state law expired. They'll continue through Dec. 4.

given an undisclosed amount of money and then fled on foot from the restaurant in a southeasterly direction.

Deputies immediately responded to the scene, according to sheriff's officials, and two K-9 teams tried to locate the suspect, but could not. The CCSO air unit also searched the area and crime scene technicians processed the scene for any physical evidence, the news release stated.

The suspect is described as a white male, wearing blue jeans, a black shirt, black knitted cap, black gloves and sunglasses.

Gas stations robbed

Later around 3:15 a.m. Friday, deputies were dispatched to a Kangaroo gas station at 2275 S. Suncoast Blvd. in Homosassa for an armed robbery.

According to a police report, a man entered the store, walked up to the counter and demanded cash. He was reportedly holding a knife.

After the clerk gave him an undisclosed amount of money, the subject fled from the store on foot, officials stated.

While deputies were still on scene at the first gas station, a call came in around 4:40 a.m. that a second robbery had occurred at another Kangaroo gas station at 6241 W. Cardinal St. Again, the sheriff's office stated the suspect demanded all the money from the register while holding the clerk at knifepoint. The clerk handed over an undisclosed amount of cash and the man fled the store, according to the report.

The suspect's physical description matched the one provided at the earlier gas station robbery, meaning the same subject appears to have committed both of the gas station robberies, officials said.

The suspect is said to be a white male in his 30s, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, bald and wearing glasses.

Gail Tierney, spokeswoman for the sheriff's office, said the two gas station robberies and the restaurant robbery do not appear to be related.

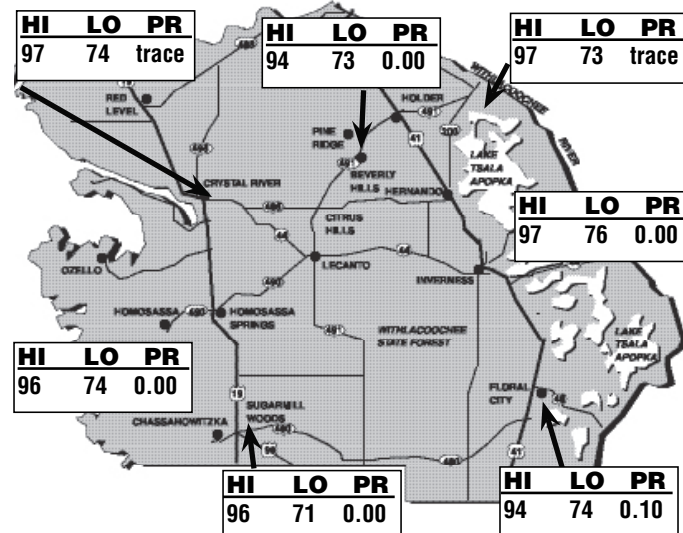

No one was injured in any of the robberies, Tierney added.

Longtime journalist Daniel Schorr dies at 93

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Veteran reporter and commentator Daniel Schorr, whose hard-hitting reporting for CBS got him on President Richard Nixon's notorious "enemies list" in the 1970s, has died. He was 93.

Schorr died Friday at Washington's Georgetown University Hospital after a brief illness, said his son, Jonathan Schorr.

Daniel Schorr's career of more than six decades spanned the spectrum of journalism — beginning in print, then moving to television where he spent 23 years with CBS News and ending with National Public Radio, where he worked until he died. He also wrote several books, including his memoir, "Staying Tuned: A Life in Journalism."

The famed political reporter nearly became a music reviewer instead. Beyond the dogged reporting, though, Jonathan Schorr, 42, said his father was warm, caring and someone who taught by example.

"We're incredibly sad, but at the same time, my dad had 93 amazing years," he said. "I think all he could have wished for is a terrific, long life, where he accomplished amazing things and died peacefully in the arms of his entire family."

Schorr reported from Moscow; Havana; Bonn, Germany; and many other cities as a foreign correspondent. While at CBS, he brought Americans the first-ever exclusive television interview with a Soviet leader, Nikita Khrushchev, in 1957.

Well into his 90s, he was still giving commentaries on NPR. Pondering the November 2009 shootings at Fort Hood, Texas, he cited the online contacts between the suspect, Maj. Nidal Hasan, and a radical cleric. He asked, "does the Internet merit some of the responsibility for helping the violence-prone to fester there in communion with the machine?"

He was last heard on the air waves July 10, on NPR's "Weekend Edition" with Scott Simon in a discussion of the U.S.-Russia spy swap, the Justice Department's lawsuit against Arizona and other news of the week.

Simon called working with Schorr "one of the great blessings of my life."

"He had no boss but the First Amendment," Simon said. "He felt his duty was to the news."

Born in New York City to Russian-Jewish immigrant parents, Schorr began his career in journalism while he was still in high school. When he wasn't working on the student newspaper, he spent his free time as a stringer for the Bronx Home News and the Jewish Daily Bulletin. During college, Schorr also worked part-time for several metropolitan dailies.

Schorr first caught the eye of famed CBS newsman Edward R. Murrow during his vivid reports on devastating flooding in the Netherlands in 1953. Murrow persuaded him to join the network, where he started out covering Capitol Hill and the State Department.

After CBS, Schorr taught journalism at the University of California at Berkeley, and then in 1979 he joined Ted Turner's newly created CNN as its senior correspondent in Washington.

Soon after leaving the cable station in 1985 over differences with Turner, Schorr found a home at National Public Radio as a senior news analyst. He contributed regularly to "All Things Considered," and other NPR programs.

He received three Emmy Awards, among other honors that include a Peabody in 1992 for "a lifetime of uncompromising reporting of the highest integrity." He was inducted into the Hall of Fame of the Society of Professional Journalists in 1991.

Schorr is survived by his wife, Lisbeth, his son, Jonathan Schorr, daughter, Lisa Kaplan, and one grandchild. Memorial plans have not been set.

Underwater photographer Wesley Skiles dies at age 52

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — Wesley Skiles, a well-known underwater photographer, cinematographer and explorer, has died.

The Palm Beach Sheriff's Office on Thursday said Skiles died the day before while on a dive. He was 52.

Authorities say Skiles motioned to one of his divers that he was ascending because he was out of film. Several minutes later the rest decided to ascend and they saw Skiles' body lying motionless on the ocean floor.

They rushed him to the surface and administered CPR. He was transported to a hospital and pronounced deceased.

National Geographic said Skiles worked with them frequently. Authorities say Skiles was diving for the magazine when he died.

National Geographic said it was after the conclusion of a "scientific research expedition related to marine life."

Stocks rise after Euro bank tests, earnings

NEW YORK — Investors bought stocks again on the latest reassuring news about the economy. This time, it was about European banks.

European regulators, who issued the results of what are called "stress tests" on the banks, said Friday that only a handful would struggle if the continent's economy weakens.

The latest second-quarter earnings reports also convinced investors that the economic recovery is proceeding. So did announcements that General Electric Co. is raising its dividend and reports that French drug maker Sanofi-Aventis is interested in buying Genzyme Corp.

Investors were initially cautious about the stress tests, which measure how well banks would fare if government debt problems and the region's economy worsened. Europe's debt issues have sent stocks falling worldwide since April amid seven of 91 European banks tested would fail. The European Union said the results should put to rest questions about the health of the continent's financial sector.

Financial stocks, which had struggled early in the day, started to climb after the results were released at midday.

Investors who have shuttled between buying and selling for weeks on uneven economic and earnings numbers have now had two straight days of upbeat news. On Thursday, stocks surged after Caterpillar Inc., UPS Inc. and other companies released results and forecasts that reassured investors.

The Dow closed up 102.32, or 1 percent, at 10,424.62 after rising 201 on Thursday. The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 8.99, or 0.8 percent, to 1,102.66, while the Nasdaq composite index rose 23.58, or 1.1 percent, to 2,694.47.

Florida home sales up

The News Service of Florida reported that June's statewide existing-home median price of $141,000 was $600 higher than May, but 5 percent lower than May, according to data released Thursday by Florida Realtors.

Sales of existing homes posted the 22nd consecutive month of year-to-year improvement as the state continues to claw its way out of a housing bust that sent the market into a tailspin in 2007. Of 19 metropolitan areas tracked by the group, in-year-to-year comparisons.

Median prices improved slightly in June from the month before but still lagged behind June 2009 as the market continues to adjust from historically high prices, tight credit and a glut of housing remaining in particular markets.

THANKS FOR NOTHING

Special session shenanigans shameful

A special legislative session ended Tuesday without a vote from lawmakers in the Florida House on Gov. Charlie Crist's proposed constitutional amendment that would ban offshore drilling in state waters.

Although the Republican position is that the amendment isn't needed because state law already bans drilling and the issue can wait until 2012, Crist wanted voters to decide, which is why he called the special session.

The drilling ban would have been on the ballot in the November election, but a vote to adjourn, mostly along party lines, came before a vote on the governor's proposal.

This maneuver seems more like a political "gotcha" aimed at Crist for quitting the Republican Party to run for U.S. Senate as an independent than a meaningful philosophical disagreement with elected lawmakers who have the best interest of Florida voters in mind, particularly in light of the BP oil spill that has poured between 94 million and 184 million gallons of oil in the gulf.

Perhaps if resort owners and others in the tourism industry work together, they can remind the Legislature that tourism is this state's economic base — to the tune of about $61 billion — and that white, tar ball-free beaches are essential.

Shenanigans like this give politics a bad name for good reason.

THE ISSUE:

Thwarted special session.

OUR OPINION:

Move seems to target messenger, ignore message.

Hot Corner: POLITICS

Wrong priorities

Regardless of party, this is an example of the decision-making process that current politicians use: 1. Will I benefit? 2. Will my party benefit? 3. Will the other party not benefit? If the answer is yes, then they vote for it; otherwise, no vote. Notice they don't question whether it is good for the people or the country.

No mistake

Cal Thomas' column in Wednesday's paper ("Okay, we made a mistake," July 21) is once again totally wrong. None of the Democrats I know, myself included, feel like we made a mistake in voting for Obama. He's trying to do a good job but is constantly fighting the Republicans, like Cal Thomas, who do everything in their power to try and make him look bad. All you Republicans want is to make Obama look bad. You don't care if it hurts America, just so you can slam Obama. That's all you care about. Grow up. Let's work together for America.

GOP disrespect

How can the Republican Party in this state be so disrespectful for the people who take care of them financially and let them have all of those goodies aside from their salaries, plus the thing that the big corporations are lining their pockets hand over fist?

Lax legislature

I just was reading in the mail today where our legislators were called for a special session and didn't do a thing. I don't think we should pay them. It's immaterial whether (they are) for or against, they should have done something.

Flea-market puppies

This is a question for Sheriff Dawsy, who took over Animal Control: I want to know why he isn't doing something about the puppies being sold at the flea markets. Question the people. If they're reputable dealers, they won't have a problem with it. And if they're running a puppy mill, they need to be shut down. Please, please do something to help these animals.

Back to basics

I really, really loved Kathryn Lopez's article (July 20) because it so put voice to exactly the way that I feel. I am a working mom; I worked my way through school. I used to be a liberal and involved in the women's movement, but then they moved so far to the left that I got out of organizations like Planned Parenthood and NOW and I went more conservative as I got older and realized. And now I believe I am an original feminist. I was working in a field traditionally for men. But I think everything she said is voicing exactly what I feel. We need to get back to basics, lower government, smaller government, and women are going to make the difference because we are not afraid.

Great experience

I recently was a patient at Citrus Memorial hospital and despite all the bad publicity, they are certainly doing something right. They were wonderful to me from the moment the ambulance came to the moment I left the hospital, and the food was great. But I must tell you that the care I received was very fine, wonderful. I have been in hospitals at least 50 times and this was one of the very best experiences I ever had, from everyone, from the nurses, the food staff, the LPNs, the aides.

Foreign funds

Can someone please tell us why we have money for all the wars, we have money now to send to Pakistan? Couldn't it be put into our Social Security instead of wasting all that money on everybody else but us in the United States? Get rid of Hillary Clinton and the whole bunch of them. Amen.

Hire just one

If Citrus County would like to help the economy, if every single business would hire at least one person, even if part time, the economy in Citrus County may improve. Otherwise, let's get some of the old ones out and put new ones in office.

The pig has died

White House spokesman Robert Gibbs is in deep trouble for committing one of Washington's most unforgivable sins. He spread a vicious truth.

Speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press," Gibbs said out loud what every analyst in the capital knows: "There's no doubt" that Republicans could regain control of the House in November. But his frankness caused such dismay in the party ranks that the White House dispatched Joe Biden to say on ABC's "This Week" that he was "absolutely confident" the Democrats were in "great shape" with the voting public.

Gibbs' remark was so noteworthy because it was so rare. The fastest-growing industry in Washington, D.C., today goes by different names: spin control, message discipline, crisis management, image branding. These are not exactly euphemisms for lying, but they are certainly not formulas for truth-telling, either. Here's a good rule to follow for the next 100 days until the fall elections: Anyone with a vested interest in the outcome can't be trusted. The honest brokers are out of power and want to stay there.

Two of the most valuable candor merchants out there today are Erskine Bowles and Alan Simpson, the co-chairs of a commission established by President Obama to recommend a solution for the nation's exploding budget deficits. Simpson, a Republican from Wyoming, retired from the Senate after 18 years; Bowles, a Democrat from North Carolina, was Bill Clinton's chief of staff and an unsuccessful Senate candidate.

Both are liberated from the burden of ambition to speak their minds freely. "There are many who hope we fail," Simpson said recently, and if anything, he was understating the problem. Liberals say no solution should cut social programs, and conservatives say tax increases should be off the table. Neither side is willing to face reality, but they are both wrong, and Bowles said as much in a recent talk to the nation's governors. "This debt is like a cancer," he warned, "that will destroy the country from within."

Cokie and Steven Roberts
OTHER VOICES

"We can't grow our way out of this," insisted Bowles. "We could have decades of double-digit growth and not grow our way out of this enormous debt problem. We can't tax our way out. ... The reality is we've got to do exactly what you all do every day as governors. We've got to cut spending or increase revenues or do some combination of that."

Simpson, who works hard at being folksy, put the problem a bit differently: "I was in the Senate for 18 years, and the cry to me was always, 'Al, go bring home the bacon.' Well, the pig has died."

Yes, it has. And it's refreshing when someone says so. Take Rep. Bob Inglis, an obscure backbencher from South Carolina who lost the Republican primary this past spring and is firing some parting shots at his old party.

Sarah Palin, complained Inglis, exercised "the lowest form of political leadership" by accusing the Democrats of advocating "death panels" in their health-care bill. It was not true, and she knew it, he said, but she was deliberately deceiving the voters by "preying on their fears" and few, if any, Republicans were willing to challenge her.

The "birthers" who question the president's legitimacy are also trading in fear, he said: "Why do we do that? We do it because we want to vilify the other side. We want to make them into the big bad guys." And racism, Inglis insisted, helps fuel that invidious campaign: "I love the South. I'm a Southerner. But I can feel it."

Obama himself could use some honest advice on the subject of Afghanistan, and a particularly piercing critique comes from Richard Haass, president of the Council on Foreign Relations. A former adviser to Republican presidents, Haass is now outside the partisan system and free to write in the latest Newsweek: "The war the United States is now fighting in Afghanistan is not succeeding and is not worth waging in this way. The time has come to scale back U.S. objectives and sharply reduce U.S. involvement on the ground. Afghanistan is claiming too many American lives, requiring too much attention, and absorbing too many resources."

Any politician running for office who made that point could and would be accused of "cutting and running," of "abandoning the troops" and "undermining morale." Only an independent voice like Haass can afford to take the heat.

So here's to the truth-tellers: Bowles and Simpson, Inglis and Haass and, yes, Robert Gibbs. When the pig dies, someone has to find the courage to say so.

LETTERS to the Editor

PSC petition

The time has arrived where the voters of the state should elect Public Service Commissioners.

The decision of the PSC nominating committee not to even consider our former State Senator, Nancy Arganziano, and another commissioner because they voted against extravagant raises that the utilities wanted appears to be a corruption of the democratic process. This on top of the firing of two other PSC commissioners duly appointed by the governor adds to the appearance that the nominating committee and certain members of the State Legislature are in the pockets of the utilities.

Certain lobbyists and the utility companies have apparently corrupted the process so that the ratepayers are at their mercy. In times of economic downturns such as we are in now, the utilities should be required to substantiate rate increases. The profit guaranteed for utilities is far above the rate of return for most small businesses and individuals' investments.

Many of our seniors living on a fixed income with no increase in Social Security benefits should not be forced to choose between utilities and food or medicines.

PSC plea

The honorable Gov. Charlie Crist: It appears that you have the opportunity to do the citizens of Florida a tremendous service for which you would be fondly remembered, or you can yield to the power companies and other service groups and their hired politicians to create a corrupt political machine controlled by special interest groups.

I'm speaking of the Public Service Commission. How do you wish to be remembered?

I truly hope that you will use your authority as governor of the citizens of Florida to intervene in the dismantling of this commission.

The changes being proposed, sponsored by our legislative leaders and supported by special interest groups, can only hurt the residents of this fine state.

Governor, this could be the most important thing you could do for the people in Florida while in office. We really need the check-and-balance system provided by this commission. It is unfortunate that some of the recent members abused their positions, but that seems to have been corrected.

Please, governor, act for the citizens of Florida.

Hot Corner: DUMB MISTAKEThere are options

I'm calling about the person who called in their Sound Off about "Dumb mistake." I'm just calling to let you know that if your daughter can get a lawyer, she can try to have her record expunged, which means that they wipe off everything that's on her record so that that felony will go away and she wouldn't have the file that she ever got a felony on any application or anything like that because it would no longer be in her record. Just thought that I'd call and let you know that there are other options that you can do. So, again, try to get a lawyer and try to get her record expunged. All she has to do is explain to the judge what happened and I'm sure that the lawyer will be able to get her record expunged. So good luck and I hope you get it expunged because I understand the feeling and what happened.

Old chestnut

This is July 23 and this is in regards to "Dumb mistake." If she can't do the time, don't do the crime. Been there and have done that.

Pardon program

I'm calling in response to the father whose daughter made a dumb mistake and committed a felony. Up in Connecticut they have a Connecticut pardon team for people like that. And if he would like information, he can go on the Web at connecticutpardonteam.com. Their phone number is (860) 823-1571. They have this program that's been going on for over 10 years and it's just for people like your daughter, who has one felony and she'll have it on there for the rest of her life. But they can have it expunged with the right paperwork and so forth.

$1.47 trillion deficit predicted

WASHINGTON — New estimates from the White House on Friday predict the budget deficit will reach a record $1.47 trillion this year. The government is borrowing 41 cents of every dollar it spends.

That's actually a little better than the administration predicted in February.

The new estimates paint a grim unemployment picture as the economy experiences a relatively jobless recovery. The unemployment rate, presently averaging 9.5 percent, would average 9 percent next year under the new estimates.

Earthquake hits Philippines

MANILA, Philippines — An undersea 6.9-magnitude earthquake hit the southern Philippines this morning but it was too deep to cause any damage, officials said.

No tsunami alert was issued, said the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center, based in Hawaii.

The quake hit the Moro Gulf off Mindanao Island at 7:15 a.m., the U.S. Geological Survey said. It said the quake had a preliminary magnitude of 7.4 but the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology later reported a 6.9 magnitude.

"The origin of the quake was (375 miles) underground, so it was barely felt," the institute's Director Renato Solidum Jr. said in an interview on DZBB radio.

The tremor was centered about 75 miles southwest of Cotabato city and about 566 miles southeast of the capital, Manila.

Korea tensions spike

Threats made over U.S. naval maneuvers this weekend

Associated Press

HANOI, Vietnam — North Korea inflamed tensions over the deadly sinking of a South Korean warship by threatening the United States and South Korea on Friday with a "physical response" if they carry out naval maneuvers this weekend. The U.S. refused to back down.

North Korea's official news agency followed up this morning, releasing a North Korean Defense Commission statement that said: "All these war maneuvers are nothing but outright provocations aimed to stifle the DPRK by force of arms to all intents and purposes."

It referred to North Korea's formal name, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK).

"The army and people of the DPRK will legitimately counter with their powerful nuclear deterrence the largest-ever nuclear war exercises to be staged by the U.S. and the south Korean puppet forces," said the statement carried by the Korean Central News Agency.

The latest threat came four months after the sinking of a South Korean warship that killed 46 sailors.

The North has been blamed, but vehemently denies any involvement.

In Vietnam for a Southeast Asian regional security forum, U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton and a North Korean official traded barbs over the sinking, the four-day military drills beginning Sunday and the imposition of new U.S. sanctions against the North.

Pedro Carrillo, left, interim city manager of Bell, Calif., announces the resignations of three of Bell's top administrators Thursday during a special city council meeting.

Outrage leads to resignations

Associated Press

BELL, Calif. — Residents in this modest blue-collar Los Angeles suburb where one in six lives in poverty were angry: Their city manager was getting paid more than President Barack Obama and the police chief more than the commander of the nearly 13,000-member LAPD.

They demanded and got the manager, the chief and another high-salaried official to resign.

They looked for the culprits and found them in the very people they entrusted to lead their city of 40,000 people. Now, they're campaigning to boot them out of office.

Their mayor and three of their four council members, people they see every day at the grocery store or church, approved the contracts, and put an obscure measure on the ballot that allowed council members to pay themselves any amount of money.

And they did: collecting between $90,000 and $100,000 a year as part-time officials.

"This is America and everything should be transparent," plumber and long-time Bell resident Ralph Macias said.

In Bell, however, not many people really paid attention. The city of mostly small homes is like many American cities and towns: No newspaper covers them regularly, and the citizens spend what little free time they have with family and recreation.

A few who kept tabs on City Hall said they were suspicious because the officials were secretive, brusque and quick to act without explaining themselves.

The salaries exploded into public view last week after a Los Angeles Times investigation, based on California Public Records Act requests, showed that the city payroll was bloated with all sorts of six-figure salaries:

■ Chief Administrative Officer Robert Rizzo made $787,637 a year. President Obama makes $400,000.

■ Assistant City Manager Angela Spaccia made $376,288 a year.

■ Police Chief Randy Adams earned $457,000. Hired just last year to oversee a force of fewer than 50 people, he was making 50 percent more than Los Angeles Police Chief Charlie Beck's $307,000.

All three Bell officials resigned after a late-night meeting Thursday.

Storm could take away sights and sounds of BP well

Associated Press

ON THE GULF OF MEXICO — Ships relaying the sights and sounds from BP's broken oil well stood fast Friday as the leftovers of Tropical Storm Bonnie blew straight for the spill site, threatening to force a full evacuation that would leave engineers clueless about whether a makeshift cap on the gusher was holding.

Vessels connected to deep-sea robots equipped with cameras and seismic devices would be among the last to flee and would ride out the rough weather if possible, retired Coast Guard Adm. Thad Allen said.

"If conditions allow, they will remain through the passage of the storm," Allen said in New Orleans.

Bonnie made landfall south of Miami early Friday as a feeble tropical storm with top sustained winds of 40 mph. It broke apart as it crossed Florida and was a tropical depression as it moved into the Gulf, but forecasters expected it to strengthen slightly and roll over the spill site around midday Saturday.

Some of the dozens of vessels working at the well site were leaving Friday evening. By daybreak, all but a handful, including those providing video images, were expected to remain. Allen said individual captains would decide when to leave, based on weather conditions.

Alarm system partly disabled before blast

Associated Press

KENNER, La. — An alarm system was partially shut down the day the ill-fated oil rig Deepwater Horizon exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, killing 11 workers and setting off the massive spill, an electronics technician who was aboard told an investigative panel on Friday.

Technician Mike Williams told the panel that the alarm system was turned on to monitor for fire, explosive gas and toxic gas but that its sound and light alarms had been disabled.

Williams testified that he had asked before about the settings and was told the company didn't want a false alarm waking people at night.

The ships holding the robots would be among the first to return if forecasts force them to leave, but they could be gone for up to two days, said Allen, the federal government's spill chief.

The mechanical plug that has mostly contained the oil for eight days will be left closed, Allen said. But if the robots are reeled in, the only way officials will know whether the cap has failed will be if oil pooling on the surface appears in satellite and aerial views — provided the clouds aren't too thick.

Audio surveillance gear left behind could tell BP whether the well is still stable, but scientists won't be able to listen to the recordings until the ships return to the area.

Allen expressed increasing confidence in the experimental cap despite a few leaks that initially worried government experts. Scientists say even a severe storm shouldn't affect the plug, nearly a mile beneath the ocean surface 40 miles from the Louisiana coast.

"There's almost no chance it'll have any impact on the well head or the cap because it's right around 5,000 feet deep and even the largest waves won't get down that far," said Don Van Nieuwenhuise, director of professional geoscience programs at the University of Houston.

Crews of other vessels, including one boring the tunnel meant to kill the flow of crude for good, spent Friday hauling in their gear and getting out of the storm's way. Workers were pulling up a mile of pipe in 40-to-60-foot sections and laying it on deck of the drilling rig so they could move to safer water, probably to the southwest flank of the storm.

"Preservation of life and preservation of equipment are our highest priorities," said Allen, a veteran of the Coast Guard's rescue mission after Hurricane Katrina.

Ford reaping solid profits after turnaround

Associated Press

Associated Press
Group leaders work on a pre-production 2012 Ford Focus Thursday at the Michigan Assembly Plant in Wayne, Mich. Ford Motor Co. said Friday it posted net income of $2.6 billion in the second quarter.

DEARBORN, Mich. — Four years ago, Ford mortgaged everything down to the blue oval logo to save itself. Now, even as Americans remain skittish about the economy, it's reaping big rewards and stealing business from stumbling rivals.

Ford said Friday that it made $2.6 billion from April through June, its fifth straight quarterly profit. The company, which reported record losses in 2008, now predicts it will end 2011 with more cash than debt.

With its two longtime Detroit rivals still finding their way after spending time in bankruptcy last year, Ford, which never took government bailout money, extended its success story.

President and CEO Alan Mulally said the company is ahead of where he thought it would be in its turnaround. It now sells the most popular pickup truck in the U.S., the F-Series, and the most popular crossover SUV, the Escape.

"Our performance this year gives us great confidence going forward," he said.

In the past year, Ford has gained a bigger share of the American market, the equivalent of about 154,000 cars and trucks. Rivals Toyota, General Motors and Chrysler have all lost ground.

Toyota stumbled this year because of safety-related recalls. GM and Chrysler's precarious financial positions had some people shying away from their cars.

Brit wins 18th stage; Spaniard overall leader

Cavendish captures fourth-stage victory by sprinting to finish

BORDEAUX, France — Even without his most important teammate, Mark Cavendish showed yet again that few can touch him when it comes to sprinting.

The British rider captured the 18th stage of the Tour de France on Friday while Alberto Contador of Spain drew closer to victory. The defending champion leads Luxembourg's Andy Schleck by eight seconds entering today's decisive time trial, a day before the three-week race ends in Paris.

Cavendish won a stage for the fourth time in this Tour and the 14th time in just three years of competing in cycling's premier event.

He surged to the front in the final couple of hundred yards. He gave himself such a lead that he was able to look behind him a couple of times and then cross the line with his fist in the air.

Some Hollywood star power was there to greet him.

Cameron Diaz and Tom Cruise, on hand to promote their latest film in France, joined Contador on the podium to receive his yellow jersey. Cruise raised the Spaniard's hand and patted him on the back.

Cavendish won without his usual leadout man and roommate. Mark Renshaw was expelled from the race after the 11th stage for head-butting an opponent, and Cavendish dedicated his latest victory to Renshaw. He Central Citrus base runner Anthony O'Bday slides safely into home in the third inning of his team's 6-5 victory over Palm Harbor in the Major All-Stars Section 7 tournament in Seminole on Friday night. The Central Citrus team plays Seminole at 10 a.m. today.

Central Citrus All-Stars construct comeback with long-ball style for 6-5 victory

JOHN COSCIA
Chronicle

SEMINOLE — It's not the size of the dog in the fight, it's the size of the fight in the dog. Mark Twain may have penned those words, but it was Joel Lawrence that gave them true meaning on Friday night.

Central Citrus trailed 5-4 in the bottom of the fifth inning when the youngest and smallest player on the team's roster stepped to the plate. But in the dramatic fashion that this remarkable young team of cardiac kids has played all season long, the little engine that could... did, as Lawrence crushed a solo home run over the center-field fence to tie the game.

"I thought it was going to hit the bottom of the fence and then I saw it rising," Lawrence said. "Then I heard my teammates start screaming. I didn't know it was gone. I've never hit a home run before in my life, so I didn't know what it felt like. But now I do."

"And it couldn't have come at a better time," Zac Pattison interjected.

The home run tied the game, but it would be Pattison who would score the game-winner. He drew a one-out walk, moved to third on back-to-back singles by Kyler Speagle and Jay Neeld. He then plated the game's final run, giving Central Citrus a 6-5 victory over Palm Harbor in the opening game for both teams of the Little League Majors Section 7 Tournament on Friday night in Seminole.

Coming from behind is nothing new for this group of 11 players who refuses to lose. In fact, it's become such a part of who they are that in preparation for the sectional tournament they had Soulja Boy's song title, "Gritty Boy Swag" embossed on their uniforms.

They certainly lived up to their new self-imposed name on this particular night.

Central Citrus jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning when Neeld delivered a towering three-run home run over the center-field fence scoring Anthony O'Bday and Pattison.

But when Palm Harbor answered with a run in the second and a pair of runs in the third and fourth innings, Central Citrus suddenly saw itself behind 5-4, for the first time in the game. Central Citrus plated its fourth run of the game in the third inning when O'Bday reached on a bunt, moved to second on a walk by Pattison and scored on a wild pitch.

That set the fifth inning heroics which Lawrence and Pattison delivered on in a big way.

But Pattison's contribution to the win didn't end with his speedy wheels that allowed him to race home with the winning run. As the catcher, he would play an even bigger role in the bottom of the sixth.

Pitcher Travis McGee had mowed down the first two Palm Harbor batters and Central Citrus was one out from victory when David Morrin laced a triple into the right field corner. An alert infield took the cutoff throw from

MLB testing for HGH

Minor leaguers only to submit to blood tests

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Major League Baseball implemented random blood testing for human growth hormone in the minor leagues Thursday, the first professional sports league in the United States to take the aggressive step against doping.

The blood testing becomes part of the Minor League Drug Prevention and Treatment Program, which commissioner Bud Selig introduced in 2001 to test for performance-enhancing drugs.

"The implementation of blood testing in the minor leagues represents a significant step in the detection of the illegal use of human growth hormone," Selig said in a statement. "HGH testing provides an example for all of our drug policies in the future."

Testing will be limited to players with minor-league contracts because they are not members of the players' association, which means blood testing is not subject to collective bargaining.

"Obviously, we make a separate decision with regard to the minor-league program, but the Major League Baseball Players Association has been proactively engaged in conversations with us on the scientific and logistical issues associated with blood testing at the major league level," said Rob Manfred, executive vice president labor relations for Major League Baseball.

The players association has long been against blood testing.

"The union's position on HGH testing remains unchanged," union executive

Pavin, Langer share lead at Senior British Open

Associated Press

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland — American Ryder Cup captain Corey Pavin shot a second straight 2-under 69 Friday to share the second-round lead with Bernhard Langer of Germany at the Senior British Open.

Pavin and Langer (71) have 4-under totals of 138 and are one shot ahead of a quartet that includes Ian Woosnam (67) and Jay Haas (69).

Pavin was among the early starters and looked set to take a commanding lead before finishing with a double bogey 6 at the 18th after hitting his second shot out of bounds.

Langer had to deal with a biting cold wind later in the day but also got to 6 under before bogeys on two of the par-3 holes. At the short 13th, his tee shot landed in a deep pot bunker, and he then missed the green at the 16th with a 5-iron and was unable to get up and down.

Langer has 10 wins in three years on the Champions Tour, but is still looking for his first victory in a senior major.

"I could have puttied a bit better,"

Langer said. "The ball did not drop for me like it did in the first round."

Americans Dan Forsman (71) and Larry Mize (70) were also tied for second.

Tom Watson, who missed the cut in his last British Open appearance at St. Andrews last week, had no problem making sure he will be around for the weekend this time. He sank a 15-foot birdie putt on the last green for a par 71 to remain 3 over.

However, Bob Charles of New Zealand — the first left-hander to win the British Open in 1963 — bid farewell from the tournament after he shot a 78 to miss the cut.

At the age of 74 and after a career that brought him 64 tournament victories, he announced that it was his last round of competitive golf. Unfortunately for him, he signed off with a double bogey at the 18th.

Chicago Cubs starter Randy Wells delivers a pitch against the St. Louis Cardinals during the second inning of Friday's game in Chicago. The Cubs won 5-0.

Cubs 5, Cardinals 0

CHICAGO — When scouting St. Louis hitters, Randy Wells didn't bother watching videotape of his previous outing against the Cardinals.

"There was no reason to dwell on me getting my butt kicked," the Cubs right-hander said. "I finally got my confidence back, and I wasn't going to risk it by reliving that."

About two months after failing to retire a single St. Louis batter in the worst game of his career, Wells pitched seven shutout innings Friday and led Chicago to a 5-0 victory over the suddenly punchless Cardinals.

St. Louis followed with only five against Wells and Sean Marshall.

And so the Cardinals, who had outscored opponents 46-17 during an eight-game winning streak that ended Thursday, snapped a major league record stretch of 2,370 games without consecutive shutouts.

Meanwhile, the Cubs took advantage of the wind — and of some pitches Jeff Suppan left up in the strike zone.

Alfonso Soriano hit a two-run homer and Tyler Colvin and Geovany Soto added solo shots for the Cubs, who still trail first-place St. Louis by 10 games in the NL Central.

"We can make up a lot of ground," Soriano said. "If we sweep them, we get three games. I hope we can play the last two like we played today."

Wells (5-7) allowed five hits — one single in each of the second through sixth innings — and struck out seven. It was the polar opposite of his performance against the Cardinals on May 28, when he gave up hits to the first six batters and left trailing 5-0.

Phillies 6, Rockies 0

PHILADELPHIA — Roy Halladay cruised through eight innings, Raul Ibanez drove in three runs with three hits and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Colorado Rockies 6-0 on Friday night for their second consecutive shutout.

Halladay (11-8) allowed five hits and a walk while striking out nine on a 92-degree evening at Citizens Bank Park. The right-hander threw 116 pitches in his first win since July 5 against Atlanta.

Philadelphia pitchers have tossed 20 straight scoreless innings the past two days. Cole Hamels and the Phillies allowed one hit Thursday, beating St. Louis 2-0 in 11 innings.

One day after the Phillies fired hitting coach Milt Thompson and replaced him with Greg Gross, manager Charlie Manuel tinkered with his struggling offense against Rockies starter Aaron Cook (4-6). Manuel benched Shane Victorino, moved Jayson Werth to center field and inserted Ross Gload in right.

Gload had two hits, including a two-run homer that made the score 5-0. He is 7 for 9 in his career against Cook, who fell to 1-6 against Philadelphia.

The Phillies, who returned from a 2-6 road trip, had 12 hits for the second straight day.

Padres 5, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH — Aaron Cunningham's triple started San Diego on a four-run second inning and the first-place Padres again took advantage of an early lead and their strong bullpen to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3.

Kevin Correia (7-6) gave up three runs, two earned, over six innings to win his second in a row after going winless in seven starts. Correia also contributed a run-scoring single as the Padres jumped out to their 4-0 lead against Paul Maholm (6-8), ending the left-hander's streak of 16 consecutive scoreless innings.

Getting ahead early is a trademark of these surprising Padres, whose 56-39 record is the NL's best. They are 42-15 when scoring first, but 14-24 when they don't.

With Adrian Gonzalez, Jerry Hairston Jr. and Will Venable hitting sacrifice flies, the Padres also improved their NL-best road record to 26-20.

Cunningham's leadoff triple in the second was followed by a walk, two singles including Correia's sharply hit RBI single into left field, Chris Denorfia's run-scoring double and the Hairston and Gonzalez sacrifice flies.

Hornaday wins truck race again at O'Reilly Raceway

Driver sports 4 major victories at Indiana track

Associated Press

CLERMONT, Ind. — Ron Hornaday won the NASCAR Trucks Series race at O'Reilly Raceway Park for the third time in four years on Friday.
 Hornaday, who qualified fifth, became the first driver to win four major NASCAR races at O'Reilly. He also won the trucks race in 1997, 2007 and 2009. He led 129 of the 200 laps to snap a 22-race winless streak.
 Kyle Busch was second and Matt Crafton third. Pole-sitter Timothy Peters finished 10th.

 Points leader Todd Bodine was seventh after qualifying sixth on the short 0.686-mile track. Bodine has nine top-five finishes in 12 starts, but his worst three finishes — seventh at ORP, 30th at Martinsville and 17th at Iowa — have come on short tracks.
 Hornaday's win last year set a record for consecutive Truck Series wins with four. He then won the next race, at Nashville, to push the record to five, but hadn't won since.
 Hornaday moved past Busch for second place in lap 59, then pushed past Peters for the lead in lap 62.
 Hornaday built a significant advantage, but a yellow flag during lap 85 to remove debris from the track drew the leaders together. Hornaday had a good pit stop to re-main in front.

 A three-car crash put Aric Almirola out of the race near the midway point. Almirola, who entered the race second in points, finished 31st out of 36 drivers.
 There was contact between Hornaday and Busch during lap 101 shortly after a caution, but both drivers maintained control, and Hornaday quickly re-asserted himself as the leader. Johnny Sauter then moved past Busch into second.
 Peters gained the lead after a caution, Busch moved into second and Hornaday dropped to third three-fourths of the way through, but Hornaday pushed his way back to the front in lap 152, and he finished strong.

right fielder Ryan Grow to prevent the tying run from scoring.
 "It was a great hit. I threw the pitch right where I wanted it," McGee said. "I totally trust my defense though and they came up with the big plays."
 But when McGee walked the next batter and threw two straight balls to Palm Harbor's cleanup hitter, Pattison walked out to the mound.
 "He put his arm around me and said, 'just breathe,'" McGee said.
 He answered by throwing a perfect strike right down the middle of the plate. Shane Mullen, however, connected and lifted a high fly ball to right field. At that moment, no one on the Central Citrus baseline could breathe, except for Grow, who calmly camped under the play and registered the game's final out.

 "On the triple the wind took it so I figured it was going to do the same thing on this one," Grow said. "I just kept telling myself, 'two hands, use two hands to catch it,' and that's what I did."
 The Central Citrus gang will see if even more magic is in their bats when they take to the field against Seminole at 10 a.m. today.
Crystal River 12, Clearwater 0
 In the senior division, Crystal River jumped on Clearwater early thanks to the long ball.

That coupled with a brilliant pitching performance by Donnie Dewees gave Crystal River an easy 12-0 victory in the two teams' opener Friday night.
 Before Dewees ever took the mound, he helped himself out with a two-run home run in the top of the first inning, scoring Josh Howell ahead of him, after he reached on a leadoff single.
 In the third inning, Crystal River would put the game away for good as they plated seven runs, sparked by back-to-back home run blasts by Dewees and Tyler Humphreys.
 Others scoring in the inning were Ross Obsfeld, Gary Levengood, Skyler Hastings, Westen Pope and Aaron Bertine.

director Michael Weiner said. "When a test is available that is scientifically validated and can be administered safely and without interfering with the players' ability to compete, it will be considered."
 "We have been engaged with the Commissioners' Office on this subject for several months, though they have not shared with us the specifics behind their decision to begin blood testing of minor leaguers," Weiner said. "We look forward to further discussions."
 Outside experts have long questioned the union's logic against blood testing. Told of baseball's announcement, Gary Wadler, who chairs the committee that determines the World Anti-Doping Agency's banned-substances list, said it was "a significant step forward."
 "One important thing is, as young players evolve through the minor leagues, the concept of a blood test will no longer be alien to them," Wadler said. "It will be easier to implement it in the major leagues as more players in the minor leagues recognize it makes sense."

 Travis Tygart, the CEO of the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, also welcomed the news.
 "This is another important step in the fight to return all of the playing fields in the U.S. to clean athletes," he said. "We applaud MLB's efforts in this regard."
 Tigers president and GM Dave Dombrowski said in an e-mail to The Associated Press: "Seems like a positive step for the game."
 Dodgers manager Joe Torre said: "Whatever has to be done to gain the full trust of the fans, we have to do what we can."
 Blood samples will be collected after games by the National Center for Drug Free Sport, the organization that currently collects urine samples in the minor leagues. The blood samples will be taken from the non-dominant arm of players who are not members of a major league team's 40-man roster, and sent to a testing laboratory in Salt Lake City for analysis.
 Dr. Gary Green, the medical director for Major League Baseball, called the testing "a major development in the detection of a substance that has previously been undetectable."

 "The combination of widespread availability and the lack of detection have led to reports of use of this drug amongst athletes," Green said. "This is the first generation of HGH testing and Major League Baseball will continue to fund the Partnership for Clean Competition for ongoing research to refine testing procedures in this area."
 The Partnership for Clean Competition is a coalition of MLB, the NFL, USADA and the U.S. Olympic Committee that funds research for drug testing.
 The NFL doesn't currently conduct blood tests for performance-enhancing drugs. But the league has recently said it would like to begin such tests, while the union has long been against them. With the current collective-bargaining contract due to expire in March, the issue is expected to be a key point in upcoming negotiations.
AP Sports Writer Eddie Pells, Dave Skretta and Ronald Blum contributed to this report.

says the Australian rider made life easy, bringing him to the front.
 "I've missed Mark," Cavendish said. "I missed him in the Pyrenees, I missed somebody suffering more than me. I missed somebody to laugh about, about how hard it is."
 Second place went to Julian Dean of New Zealand and third to Alessandro Petacchi of Italy. Petacchi took the green jersey given to the leading sprinter from Thor Hushovd of Norway.
 Hushovd acknowledged his fight to retain the sprint title he won last year was over.
 "It's a big disappointment, but I realized step by step during the sprints that I'm suffering," said Hushovd, speaking after ducking into his team bus to take off the green jersey he had been wearing. "I don't have the same level as Cavendish and Petacchi, and today was just another sprint that didn't work out."

Although Contador hold what appears a slender lead, he is expected to easily outpace Schleck in the 32-mile time trial from Bordeaux to Pauillac. Last year, he won the time trial held late in the Tour and took 1 minute, 45 seconds off Schleck.
 Contador, as the leader, also has the advantage of riding last, allowing him to know how all his rivals have done.
 Saturday is the last stage in which the positions at the top can change. Sunday's final stage into Paris is traditionally a sprinters' stage and a daylong victory procession for the overall winner.
 Still, Contador insists his victory is not certain until the time trial is over.
 "This is a hard stage that comes after 20 days in the Tour, and this isn't a race for specialists. I think tomorrow I will really have to fight a lot to win the stage and to defeat (Schleck)."
 Schleck, for his part, has not given up hope.
 "I feel good. I have nothing to lose," he said. "He's better but I'm not bad, too."

We're going to see a battle tomorrow."

In the race for third place, Olympic road race champion Samuel Sanchez of Spain holds a 21-second lead over Denis Menchov of Russia, the winner of the 2009 Giro d'Italia.
 Among those hoping to win Saturday is world time-trial champion Fabian Cancellara of Switzerland, Schleck's teammate at Saxo Bank. Cancellara took the race's prologue time trial and held the yellow jersey for six days early in the race.

Steelers sign Tomlin through 2012

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Steelers have signed coach Mike Tomlin to a two-year contract extension through the 2012 season, with an option year in 2013.

The extension was expected because the Steelers' policy has been to sign a coach before he begins the final season of a contract. Tomlin is only the Steelers' third coach since 1969, following Chuck Noll (1969-91) and Bill Cowher (1992-2006).

Tomlin is 31-17 in three seasons. During the 2008 season, he became the youngest coach — he was 36 — to win the Super Bowl when the Steelers beat Arizona 27-23.

The Steelers were 9-7 and missed the playoffs last season. They open training camp July 30 at Saint Vincent College in Latrobe, Pa.

Cleveland Browns sign rookie QB Colt McCoy

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Browns have signed rookie quarterback Colt McCoy to a multiyear contract, but have not yet reached an agreement with first-round pick Joe Haden.

Terms of McCoy's deal were not immediately known.

McCoy was selected in the third round in April's draft. The former Texas star reported with the team's other signed first-year players Friday. The Browns' veterans are not required to arrive until next week. Cleveland opens training camp July 31.

The Browns say they have also signed offensive lineman Shawn Lauvao, who was taken seven picks — No. 92 overall — behind McCoy.

The team is continuing talks with the agents for Haden, the No. 7 overall pick. Second-round picks, safety T.J. Ward and running back Montario Hardesty, are also unsigned.

Broncos, Dumervil reach agreement on extension

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — NFL sacks leader Elvis Dumervil has agreed to a long-term extension with the Denver Broncos.

Dumervil had a team record 17 sacks last season, started in the Pro Bowl and was selected All-Pro. He ranks third in the NFL with 43 sacks since his rookie season in 2006, when the Broncos selected him in the fourth round out of Louisville.

The Broncos didn't reveal the length or value of the extension in an e-mail late Thursday night announcing the long-awaited deal.

NFL, NFLPA release results of helmet study

NEW YORK — The results of an independent study commissioned by the NFL and the players' union show modern helmets perform better than those from a decade ago, though it stressed that no helmet can prevent concussions.

Results were forwarded to teams along with a memo from Commissioner Roger Goodell on Friday. The NFL wants teams to provide the information to players at the start of training camp.

The documents were obtained by The Associated Press.

Engineers at two independent labs tested each of 16 commercially available helmets for impacts similar to the open-field impacts felt by NFL players. Each of the helmets tested met or surpassed national standards for protection against traumatic head injuries.

Childress says he knows Favre better now

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Minnesota Vikings coach Brad Childress says the time he spent getting to know Brett Favre better in Mississippi will help grow their relationship this year if he decides to return.

Childress also says off-season visits to Favre's home have given him more clarity about the quarterback's thought process about continuing his career.

Childress said the Favre situation was "all quiet" in an interview with The Associated Press on Friday afternoon, a week before training camp starts. Favre has not declared his intention yet for 2010.

Childress also says there's no rift between him and running back Adrian Peterson, who missed the mandatory minicamp last month for a hometown festival in his honor in Texas. Childress says the absence "wasn't the end of the world."

Ready to race again

2009 Horse of Year back on track today

Associated Press

Sure looks and sounds like Rachel Alexandra is back in top form.

All the reigning Horse of the Year has to do now is prove it today with a big victory against six seemingly overmatched rivals in the $400,000 Lady's Secret Stakes at Monmouth Park.

"She's really doing well. She was full of energy," assistant trainer Scott Blasi said after the 4-year-old filly galloped around the track Wednesday. After a Friday morning gallop, Blasi simply said "she's a dream."

Rachel Alexandra has been training at Saratoga Race Course, but arrived at the Jersey Shore track Tuesday nearly a year after her win against males in the Haskell Invitational en route to an 8-0 record in 2009.

Trainer Steve Asmussen is following the "same routine" used last summer leading up to Rachel's six-length Haskell victory over Belmont Stakes winner Summer Bird.

On Monday, Rachel worked four furlongs in 49.60 seconds, and Asmussen said after three workouts at the Spa "things have gone as smoothly as we were hoping for."

"She looked great on the track, just appeared to be nice, loose and happy, and I thought she moved very well. She had a lot of energy and looked confident."

While the Lady's Secret is far from a glamour race, it nonetheless is a huge test for Rachel Alexandra, and will dictate the filly's future schedule.

Associated Press

2009 Horse Of The Year Rachel Alexandra gallops on the track Friday morning at Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N.J., with exercise rider Joel Dominguez. Winner of last year's Haskell Invitational at Monmouth Park, Rachel Alexandra will run in today's $400,000 Lady's Secret Stakes at Monmouth Park.

After two disappointing second-place finishes to open the year, Rachel returned to the winner's circle with a 10½-length romp in the Fleur de Lis at Churchill Downs last month.

An impressive win in the ungraded Lady's Secret could set her up for either the 1¼-mile Personal Ensign against fillies and mares Aug. 29 or the Woodward Stakes against leading older male Quality Road on Sept. 4, both at Saratoga. Rachel became the first filly to win the Woodward last year.

A loss, and it's anybody's guess what the future holds for the daughter of Medaglia d'Oro co-owned by Jess Jackson.

"We have enough to worry about this week to not get too far ahead of ourselves," Asmussen said.

Rachel should be the overwhelming favorite, perhaps 1-10, with only two of her rivals coming off stake races — Stage Trick and Ask the Moon.

Stage Trick finished third in the Grade 3 Obeah at Delaware Park and Ask the Moon was sixth in the ungraded Lighthouse at Monmouth.

Also entered are Fabulous Babe, Hark, Queen Martha and Yes She's A Lady.

"I think we are running for second," said trainer Patrick Biancone, who trains Queen Martha. "But second would be good."

Rachel's regular rider Calvin Borel will be aboard the filly, who will leave from the No. 5 post.

"After her last race, I think she's back on the top of her game," Borel said.

Monmouth Park general manager Bob Kulina had hoped to match Rachel Alexandra against unbeaten Zenyatta for the first time, but he was unable to pull off the race the industry would love to see.

To get Rachel Alexandra, the track changed the date (from Aug. 1) and distance (from 1 1/16 miles to Rachel's best distance of 1 1/8 miles) and boosted the purse by $250,000.

Kulina is hoping for a crowd of about 15,000. The race comes a week before the $1 million Haskell, which will feature Kentucky Derby winner Super Save and Preakness winner Lookin At Lucky.

"I'm really not sure what to expect, especially with this being the first weekend of Saratoga," Kulina said of Saturday's race, "but we are hoping for a huge day."

Coaches: Athletes know right from wrong
2 SEC officials say students must adhere to rules too

Associated Press

HOOVER, Ala. — Tennessee coach Derek Dooley and Auburn's Gene Chizik both say the onus isn't just on agents to follow the rules, college athletes know the difference between right and wrong.

"A lot of this has got to go back to the young guy," Chizik said Friday. "He's got to have an allegiance to his school. He's got to have an allegiance to his teammates. He's got to have an allegiance to his coaches and to his university. The bottom line is, I think everybody probably does a really good job of trying to educate their kids."

"If they know right from wrong and they choose to do wrong, then they don't really have an allegiance to the people that I just mentioned. They know right from wrong."

It was a slightly different message from the first two days of the Southeastern Conference media days, when coaches were on the attack against unscrupulous sports agents.

Investigations are ongoing at Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida for alleged improper contact, along with North Carolina. The rash of issues led Crimson Tide coach Nick Saban to liken the actions of those rogue agents to the behavior of a pimp.

Palin fiance to film music video

LOS ANGELES — Levi Johnston will make his music video debut as a lover whose romance is thwarted by his girlfriend's disappointing mother, according to a Universal Music Group record label and Johnston's attorney. Johnston, 20, who is Bristol Palin's fiance, has agreed to appear in the video with singer-songwriter Britanni Senser next month in Los Angeles. The project is based on the song "After Love" by Senser, 26, a sultry-looking R&B and pop performer from Minneapolis. Johnston recently became re-engaged to Palin, 19, the daughter of former Republican vice presidential candidate and Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin. Bristol Palin, who has a toddler son with Johnston, has said her mother doesn't support the couple's marriage.

Lohan faces harassment charge

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — Actress Lindsay Lohan's father faces a harassment charge in New York after his former fiancee says he kicked and threatened to kill her.

Michael Lohan is due in a Southampton courtroom on Aug. 18.

His fiancee, 27-year-old Kathryn Major, told police that she and the 50-year-old Lohan argued on Monday over a missed cell phone call at the home they shared in Water Mill on Long Island. Major said Lohan kicked and threatened her.

Lohan's attorney, Lisa Bloom, said her client denies all the charges.

Workers: Batali cheated us

NEW YORK — Two former employees have accused celebrity chef Mario Batali and his famous New York City restaurant of cheating them out of tips.

The workers, a waitress and a kitchen runner, filed a lawsuit in Manhattan federal court on Thursday against the former "Iron Chef America" celebrity and Babbo Ristorante Enoteca in Greenwich Village. They claim Batali forced them to illegally share tips with other workers who weren't entitled to them. The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages and class-action status.

Al Jarreau hospitalized in France

Singer cancels four concerts

Associated Press

PARIS — Grammy-award winning singer Al Jarreau was in intensive care in a French hospital Friday after suffering breathing problems in the Alps, forcing him to cancel four concerts.

Jarreau's manager, Joe Gordon, said the 70-year-old singer "is awake and he's concerned" about missing concerts. When he said he wanted to eat, the doctors did a little dance, Gordon said.

"He's only canceled one concert (due) to his health

Al Jarreau, seven-time Grammy Award winner, performs July 21 during a concert at Festival Jazz des Cinq Continents in Marseille, southern France.

in his entire career," Gordon, who was at Jarreau's side, told The Associated Press in New York. But he also said, "It was life threatening" and "he's doing well, considering."

Gordon said the Thursday concert at a jazz festival in the French mountain town of Barcelonnette, in the southern Alps, was canceled in the middle of his warm-up routine.

"We canceled the concert as a precaution because he wasn't feeling good," the manager said.

The director of the jazz festival, Xavier Fribourg, told The AP that Jarreau was evacuated by helicopter just before the start of the concert.

A note on Jarreau's official Web site said the world-acclaimed singer was in "good spirits" and "looking forward to getting back out on the road." The note said he would perform in Nuremberg, Germany, next Thursday as scheduled.

"We hope to be able to do that," the manager said.

Jarreau "decided to take precautionary measures and admit himself into the hospital after his body did not adjust normally to mountain altitude," the Web site note said.

He was taken to the intensive care unit in the city of Gap, the hospital said Friday.

"Upon medical advice, (he) was advised not to perform to allow him time to recover," Marshall Arts Ltd., his British agent, said in a statement.

Faux media mogul

John Perry poses July 9 at Warner Studios, in Burbank, Calif. Khan Manka Jr., the make-believe media baron and son of Bulgarian immigrants, is the creation of Perry, a real business development executive at Warner Bros.

Manka Bros take media by storm, online that is

Ryan Nakashima
 Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — While Disney CEO Bob Iger was chatting with Facebook's Mark Zuckerberg at a major media summit in Idaho this month, Khan Manka Jr. was squiring around the lodge bar looking for a drink.

Bumping into Iger, Manka had to "gently" remind him that he wasn't interested in buying broadcast network ABC, because he already owned one of his own, MBS. "I must apologize to Bob. I didn't mean to dress him down so cruelly in front of the other moguls," Manka writes on his blog.

If now you're thinking "Who's Manka?" you're not alone — real coverage of the event never mentions his name. He exists only as the prolific blogger and the fictional chairman of the world's largest media company, Manka Bros. Studios.

This week, Manka blogged that he gave the keynote address to the "geeks, freaks and dorks" at the annual Comic-Con convention in San Diego, dodging a question from a man dressed as Batman about whether a movie will be made of the "Captain Stoppo" comic strip.

Manka is a make-believe media baron, son of Bulgarian immigrants, and the creation of John Perry, a real business development executive at Warner Bros.

Perry, 42, started the website in 1999 with then-co-worker Chris Stengel with a simple but outrageous goal: "Can you start something that's not real, and actually turn it into the world's largest media company?"

Through Manka and his purported employee Jill Kennedy, Perry and his partners skewer media moguls and Hollywood, poking fun at the bad decisions made around the industry with a precision that comes from witnessing them first-hand.

It's reminiscent of a more prominent parody blog, Fake Steve Jobs. Written anonymously until then-Forbes editor Daniel Lyons was outed by the media, the first-person caricature of Apple Inc.'s CEO painted him as caustic and arrogant.

The blog became a Silicon Valley sensation in part because it filled a vacuum, as Jobs generally avoids unscripted conversations with the press.

Perry doesn't advertise his position as the site's mastermind, but he didn't shy away from a reporter's questions. He only jokingly keeps up the charade that he moonlights as a Manka Bros. employee.

Through Kennedy, he regularly posts comments about his "boss" on real-world websites belonging to The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, The Wall Street Journal and The Huffington Post.

Given the replies he's gotten from some living, breathing respondents, Perry is getting closer to realizing his goal of making Manka real.

"I get letters saying, 'I had no idea, why haven't people heard of the Manka Bros.?' " he says. Online at least, Manka Bros. is slightly bigger than Time Warner Inc., NBC Universal, The Walt Disney Co. and its other media peers. The company has detailed origins back to the early days of Hollywood to boot. "On the Internet, we're all equal," Perry says. "Revenue outside the Internet is a little challenged right now."

The site has real ads that bring in real revenue, at least enough to cover the $75-a-month hosting fee. It gets a steady stream of a few thousand visitors a month, albeit mostly Hollywood insiders.

It details the operations of a company that hews humorously close to how major media companies are structured, with divisions for movies, TV, publishing, music, theater, religion, theme parks and children.

The one big difference is that all Manka Bros. projects seem destined for horrible failure, such as "Rampage of the Stegosaur: The Broadway Musical."

"You'd see all sorts of bad decisions being made" around the industry, says Stengel, 41, recalling his days at Warner Bros. in strategic planning. "This was our way to exorcise our demons with whatever was going on during the day."

In real life, Perry helps prepare investor-day presentations for studio parent Time Warner, which is why his version of Manka Bros. is almost believable.

Today's HOROSCOPE

Birthdays: A new friendship might be developed in the year ahead that could end up lasting a lifetime. It will become one of your closer relationships and bring much happiness.
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Just because something you've learned from past experiences doesn't work out well today, don't think the premise is wrong. It may be the circumstance surrounding it that is the culprit.
Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Although you are likely to be paid today for a job you've done, the commission might be a bit disappointing. Next time, check out whether or not the payoff is worth the work you'll put in.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Someone you know could be somewhat helpful to you, but disappointment is likely if you expect more from this person than what s/he is capable of putting out. Don't expect too much.
Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Although you would have no trouble achieving a certain objective, but today there is a good chance you will get bogged down in irrelevant details or side issues that will derail you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Something on which you've been working that has good reward potential could be pilfered by a non-contributor who cuts him/herself in for a piece of the action. Be on guard.
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Try not to make too much of an infraction committed by a friend today, regardless of how disappointing it is to you. This person will realize it in time and make amends down the line.
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You might not take a commitment to feeling as seriously as you should. You might end up feeling terrible when you realize your neglect. Sadly, you may not be able to completely mend that fence.
Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — When it comes to selling today, you shouldn't have any trouble getting your price. However, buying might be another story, with you paying far more than the item is worth.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — You're apt to be far weaker than you will today, especially in situations where you're looking for instant gratification, yet you're not likely to be satisfied with anything that comes too easily. Go figure.
Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Usually you're quite self-reliant, but today you are apt to depend on others to do things for you or pick up behind you, and then blame them if they don't do things the way you like.
Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Something you thought had been resolved satisfactorily might continue to produce some undesirable side effects today and need more attention. Give it that one more try and see what happens.
Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Personal achievement is possible today, provided you keep your nose to the grindstone. You may have to put all pleasurable involvements behind you, however, until you get what you want.

Who's got the best story?

When my youngest daughter was in middle school, she told me she got gyped out of a testimony. She went on to explain that whenever she went to church camp or a retreat, a guest speaker would give his or her faith testimony.

The details would differ from speaker to speaker, but not the format: "I used to do really, really bad things" or "my life was really, really bad because other people did really, really bad things to me and then I met Jesus and now my life is really, really good."

As only a middle school girl can do, she moaned and said, "If I have to tell my testimony, what am I going to say? That I've been to church every Sunday and believed in Jesus practically since I was born?"

I told her that's a good testimony to have, but she

The history of a church is the story of God working in the lives of his people.

However, often the official church archives are dry as toast, reduced to records of property sales and church attendance numbers. Missing are the stories of the people who were baptized, married and buried. People who baked the most delicious Easter cakes and the kids who used to sneak in the church and ring the bell.

As the historical committee of First Presbyterian Church of Inverness began preparing for the church's 100-year anniversary in 2011, they started looking through their archives and found the information lacking.

"We came to the conclusion that we had a lot of information, but there were pieces missing," said Jack Gundrum, a member of the historical committee. "We said this church is so much more than brick and mortar. It's people and their love for God and God's love for them."

The bracelet is both simple and a bit strange, since it consists of six or seven fishing lures connected end to end.

Some people look at this piece of silver or gold jewelry in the James Avery line and they see fishing lures — period.

But other shoppers see the same item and they think of these words of Jesus: "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men." This is especially true if they have completed a United Methodist Walk to Emmaus weekend, or some other renewal program inspired by the Catholic Cursillo movement.

"Most of our customers purchase and wear that for the religious symbolism," said Paul Avery, executive vice president of the company that his father started in a garage. "But there is a group that has no clue what it means. ... They just happen to like it. They like to fish or whatever."

So one man's ring of fishing lures is another man's symbol of faith.

Special events

■ Crusades for Christ, a tent ministry based in Old Town, will host tent revival services at 7 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday, Sept. 12-15, next to the entrance of Crystal Oaks subdivision, adjacent to State Road 44 in Lecanto. Pastors, supporters and event organizers from various Citrus County churches began meeting several weeks ago to initiate plans for the revival. Organizing the effort with the churches is Pastor Tim Lantzy from First Baptist in Crystal River, who says, "It is a privilege to work with other great pastors and church members across Citrus County to bring an event like this together. We are very excited about the revival, and anticipate not only a great turnout, but also a move of God that will be ultimately reflected in our area churches and in our Citrus community." Evangelist Bill Bozeman of Savannah, Ga., will minister each evening following a time of worship through special music. Bozeman, a native of Alabama, has early experiences and perspective on what it truly means to live a life without Christ. His desire to share the love of Jesus comes through in a genuine manner with repentance and the gift of eternal life at the forefront.

Bozeman, and the Crusades for Christ organization, believes that it is time for America to turn back to God. With many events in our nation spiraling out of control from financial disasters, drug abuse, and families being torn apart, it is a crisis point for many Americans. "We will never solve these problems by ourselves," says Bozeman. "We must return to God, in confession and repentance of sin, seeking His forgiveness and mercy and be willing to surrender ourselves to Him, and His will for our lives." Citrus County churches and businesses that would like to support the revival may contact Pastor Tim at First Baptist by calling the church office at 795-3367 for more information, or they may log on to the new site at www.pray4citrus.info. To learn more about Crusades for Christ, visit their website at www.Crusades4Christ.org.

■ Dr. Bob Blackburn will give a sacred concert at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at the House of Love, which meets at the House of Power in Hernando, 7233 N. Lecanto Highway, Hernando. Blackburn will sing "Try Again," the most asked for song on his CD. BJ, his wife, will also sing and assist him on the piano. Blackburn and BJ will also sing and assist in the 11 a.m. service at the House of Power. The public is invited.

■ Join us for a group prayer at sunrise at 6:45 a.m. today at the Fort Island Trail Park Beach on State Road 44 West in Crystal River. We are not making a political statement but simply holding up the issues of the Deepwater Horizon explosion and spill to God. We plan to pray for those in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida who have been directly impacted by the oil spill. We will pray for the families who lost relatives in the explosion, those who were injured and those whose lives are adversely altered because of the spill. Families in Citrus County who earn a living by utilizing the Gulf waters for commercial fishing, shrimping and scalloping will be lifted up. We will pray for business owners who depend on tourism for income. We will pray for our leaders who are in charge of restoring the land, water and animals. We pray that God will help them perform their tasks with the knowledge and strength to find a timely resolution. We will pray for healing especially those families who are faced with financial hardships, stress and worry because of the oil spill. All are welcome.

■ The Homosassa United Methodist Church will continue its "Christmas in July" bag sale from 9 a.m. to noon today at the church, 8831 W. Bradshaw St., Homosassa. Come fill a large bag for $5.

■ Children of First Presbyterian Church of Crystal River are hunting for secret treasure as they become Treasure Seekers Sunday mornings as part of the expanding GROW Children's Ministry. Children ages 3 to 12 years (pre-K through fifth grade) depart from the Wiggle Room at 9 a.m. and depart on a journey to the Holy Land as they visit the places where Jesus walked. The Wiggle Room is near the front entrance to the sanctuary. Nursery available for children ages birth through 3 years in the same room. Sunday morning schedule: 9 a.m. — Children meet for games, activities, snacks and crafts; 10 a.m. — Children join adults for song portion of worship service; 10:30 a.m. — Children exit to Wiggle Room for age-appropriate Bible lesson. For more information, call Kelly Lapp at 795-2259. The church is at 1501 S.E. U.S. 19, north of Sweetbay.

■ The Nature Coast Unitarian Universalists invite the public to their weekly service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at 7633 N. Florida Ave. (U.S. 41), Citrus Springs. The Chronicle's religion editor, Nancy Kennedy, is the speaker. She will expand on a topic she wrote about earlier this year: "Get Thou Over It." Refreshments and a discussion follow the service. For information, call 465-4225.

■ Gospel sing featuring the Marksmen Quartet at 6 p.m. Sunday at New Hope Baptist Church of Homosassa, 8635 W. Goodman Lane, Homosassa. Free admission. Everyone welcome. For information, call 795-5391.

■ Geron Davis and his group Kindred Souls will perform a concert as a part of the anniversary services at 6 p.m. Sunday at Crystal River Church of God, 2180 N.W. 12th Ave., Crystal River. Davis, most known for his song, "Holy Ground," has been in the Christian music industry for more than 25 years, and is well known as a singer, songwriter, musician and producer. His music has been used in worship services by churches everywhere, across the country and internationally. Geron and his wife Becky Davis have become names synonymous with church music everywhere and have written many songs together.

Although "Holy Ground" remains one of the most well known, a few others include "In the Presence of Jehovah," "Mercy Saw Me," "Holy Of Holies," and "Peace Speaker." Co-partners in life and ministry, Geron and Becky have dedicated themselves to a passion that is the culmination of talent and ingenuity, but most importantly a calling. Not only have they grown to be leaders in the music industry as songwriters and vocalists, they are an integral part of the current upward trend the praise and worship genre is experiencing around the world today. Crystal River Church of God is celebrating two years in the new sanctuary, and will host Ministers Randall and Annette Watson of Ocala as a part of their morning worship services at 8:30 and 11 a.m. The event is free, and open to the public. All are invited to attend. If church groups of more than 15 are interested in attending the event, contact the church office to inquire about reserved seating in advance.

■ Inverness Church of God will have a healing service at 6 p.m. Sunday. Prayers will focus on those with cancer, fibromyalgia, sleeping disorders and arthritis. The service will close with a prayer for all others in attendance. Public invited. Church is at 416 U.S. 41 South, Inverness. For information, call 726-4524.

■ Christmas in July from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday at Citrus United Basket, 103 Mill Ave., Inverness. Weather permitting — yard sale, furniture, household items.

■ Movie night at Beverly Hills Skate Park at 6 p.m. Friday. Reflections Church and the Boys and Girls Club will show the movie "To Save A Life." Admission is free and so are the snacks. Come see a

HISTORY

with the idea of a series of "sip and chats." They would invite old-timers of the community and the church to spend an afternoon sitting around Paschall's table, sharing glasses of sweet tea and sweeter memories.

They would turn on a tape recorder and record the oral history of the church that began with 25 charter members and was served by visiting ministers two Sundays a month.

The information they gather over the next few months will eventually be transcribed and bound into a centennial celebration book for church members.

At a recent sip and chat, the fourth one so far, in addition to Gundrum and Paschall, guests included Margaret "Monkey" Brannen Hagar, Ruth Anne Rackley, and committee members Linda Caward, Carolyn Smith and Del Lange.

As the tape rolled, Paschall brought out a little green wooden bench and Hagar reminisced about "Aunt Lolly," Ada Savary, who was the children's Sunday school teacher in the old 1911 church on Main Street that was torn down in 1969.

"My aunt, we called her Lolly, had these stools made by Mr. Charles Young — he lived in a house where the Episcopal church is now — for our little Sunday school class.

"When the church was being torn down, I went by — I really wanted one of the old pews but they were already gone. Lolly said, 'Margaret Agnes, do you want to take your little bench that you sat on?' I've had it all this time," Hagar said.

The original church was next to where the historic Women's Club building is now. In 1963, the congregation moved into the church on Grace Street, now the auditorium of Citrus Memorial Health System. They moved to the current church on Washington Avenue in 1994.

Hagar said seeing the 1911 church demolished was heart-breaking.

"When they tore it down I asked my dad, 'Daddy, please buy me that church so I could put an antique store in it,' and he said, 'You are not going to put an antique store in that church.' I loved that church," she said.

As they passed around a photo of Elizabeth Graham and Gundrum read an account of stories told to Graham by her family, Paschall's eyes filled with tears.

"Elizabeth Graham was the first baby baptized in the 1911 church," Paschall said. "You have to realize, this is bringing up some sad memories."

Elizabeth Graham had been a pillar in the church.

She wrote of how the members of the Women's Missionary Society cleaned and trimmed the oil lamps inside the church, swept the floors, stacked wood for the heat stove in the winter, polished the chimneys and took turns entertaining the visiting ministers who traveled to Citrus County by train on Saturday and left on Monday afternoon.

Gundrum brought up the subject of the bell. Originally in the 1911 church and now in the Washington Street church, at one time it was kept inside Paschall's garage at the manse (parsonage) on Tompkins Street, in the building now occupied by the Pregnancy and Family Life Center.

Somewhere in between Paschall's garage and its current location it got lost, Gundrum said. One of the puzzle pieces on his list had been to find out where the bell went.

"The other day we found it — we found a picture of people in Sunday school, and there was the bell in the background," he said. It had been mounted on the ground at the Grace Street church.

"I rang it when I was a little girl in the original church," Hagar recalled. "If we were good, Lolly let us take turns ringing it, and it would lift us up off the ground.

"We would sometimes skate around the block and sneak in the church — they never used to lock the church doors — and ring that bell," she said. "There was an old pump organ in the old church that never worked, but we all pumped it."

Hagar said every Saturday afternoon she and her mother would make the rounds to all the women of the church who had beautiful gardens and gather flowers.

"Mother was wonderful at arranging flowers," she said. "She'd take two zinc buckets, put water in them and arrange the flowers, then we'd take them to the church."

Rackley, who joined the church at the age of 10, said one of her favorite stories came from her grandmother, her father's mother, Maria Smith.

"My grandmother had five boys, and when they first came to Inverness they used to have church in people's houses," she said. "One Sunday the boys had eaten all the chicken that was cooked for the people to eat afterwards. They always had a meal after church.

"So, my grandmother came home and made the boys go out and kill chickens, and she cooked them and told them, 'You're going to eat chicken until you can't stand to eat it any more — and you will never embarrass me again.' My father never ate chicken," she said.

As the sip and chat wound down, Paschall said these times of remembering have been precious to everyone.

"We hope when people read this that it'll alert others to bring us their memories," she said.

symbols of this kind, said another veteran of this family-driven firm based in Kerrville, an arts-friendly community in the Texas Hill Country.

"It's interesting that you would never find this in traditional church history, this symbol, but you would find the scriptural reference to being fishers of men," said Howell Ridout, the company's vice president of marketing and development.

This particular bracelet started out as a "grassroots thing that just happened," he explained. Emmaus Walk veterans "actually started using fishing tackle from the hardware store" to remind themselves of the importance of this biblical passage. Now, this modern bracelet is one of the company's most popular items.

Then again, the current catalogue also contains the very first cross that founder James Avery designed in 1954, a variation on a classic Latin design. Some of the Christian and Jewish symbolism used in this jewelry is truly ancient, while other pieces offer modern variations on biblical themes — such as a bare cross made of nails.

In recent years, Ridout explained, religious items have made up 25 percent of the company's line and about 25 percent of its sales.

However, nearly 80 percent of all James Avery customers at one time or another purchase at least one item of religious jewelry. Clearly, these items are central to the company's identity, he said.

For centuries, religious symbolism has been at the heart of some forms of faith. What is unusual about the James Avery story is that almost all of the company's stores — there will be 59 by the year's end — are in the Bible Belt and 49 are in Texas.

While its customer base includes a wide range of believers, the chain could not succeed in the region in which it is succeeding without appealing to Baptists and other conservative Protestants who for generations have viewed religious symbolism as too "high church," if not too Catholic.

Then again, the Hill Country location is crucial. Its culture blends art elements from the American Midwest, from German settlers, from rustic ranches across the Southwestern and, of course, from Spanish influences. The result is an aesthetic expressed in stone, leather, wood and pounded silver.

"Texas is, geographically, a very unique area," said Paul Avery. "You have the deep Hispanic culture that is so rooted in that Catholic base. Then you have more of the Protestant side of that, the non-Catholic. And there's a blend of those two cultures that probably allows a lot of... natural evolution."

These hills also are full of church youth camps, a network that exposed James Avery's work to young seekers as the 1960s veered into the "Jesus Movement" of the 1970s, which led into an era of charismatic renewal in mainline churches and waves of changes in how many Americans worship.

These days, art and even elements of liturgy can be found in a wide variety of Protestant sanctuaries, Ridout said. Churches of all kinds are moving in a more visual, experiential direction.

It has become common to see Texans wearing crosses — or perhaps symbolic fishing lures — as they go to work, to school, to the grocery store or to church.

"I think there are some clues there, both as to what is acceptable and to what's sought after and comfortable," Ridout said. These changes symbolize "what's meaningful to people, what truly motivates them."

GRACE

gave me one of those middle-school girl eye rolls.

The truth is, telling one's testimony, the story of how Jesus entered your life, can be tricky in church culture.

It may well be unintentional, but we church people tend to place greater value on the "before I met Jesus" stories that contain the most sinfulness. We like to be shocked and titillated and appalled. We love our stories sensational and super-sized.

It gives more validity, or so we think, to the moment the person comes to faith. We love the drug addict-turned-preacher and the prostitute-now-missionary stories.

Recently it was announced that Ergun Caner, president of Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary, wouldn't have his contract renewed as seminary dean. It seems he's been padding his testimony, sort of like padding a resume.

He had been traveling around telling audiences that he grew up as a militant Muslim. In November 2001 he told a Florida congregation, "Until I came to America, until I found Jesus Christ as Lord, I was trained to do that which was done on 11 September."

He implied he grew up in an Islamic country, but records show he was born in Sweden, came to the United States at age 4 and was raised by a non-Muslim mother.

Caner did have some sort of Muslim faith or background, Christianity Today reports, and he now lives as a Christian. That much is true.

One blogger remarked, "Caner has a great story. I wish he'd tell that story and stop where the facts end."

In his book, "The Evangelical Conversion Narrative," Bruce Hindmarsh said our testimonies describe and shape our core identity, they tell how Jesus rescued us and that since the 18th century most evangelical churches have required some kind of testimony for membership. "No narrative, no admittance," he said.

We love stories. However, the simple stories ("I've been to church every Sunday since I was born and can't remember a time when I didn't believe in Jesus") won't get you a featured spot on the couch of a Christian TV talk show, a book contract or maybe not even three minutes at the pulpit of the local Baptist church on Sunday morning.

A Christianity Today editorial on the subject said we suffer from "testimony envy," saying, "It's no wonder so many of us are tempted to embellish our testimonies, to describe the time before making a decision for Christ worse than it was and the afterward as too blissful. We evangelicals seem to have a particular bent toward narrative one-upmanship."

The eighth commandment says, "Never lie when you testify" (Exodus 20:16, God's Word translation). It refers to giving a testimony in court, "not bearing false witness," but we'd do well to apply that to our testimonies in church as well.

As the Christianity Today editorial pointed out, focusing on a person's story and how his or her life has changed actually shifts the focus away from God.

"It's not about how blind we were or how well we now see," the editorial writer said. "It's not about how lost we were or how great it is to be found. It's about who God is and how his grace is so amazing that he would even save us."

Every Christian has a great story, even if it's not a particularly interesting or sensational one. What makes it great is that Jesus came and entered. That he came at all makes it great. That should be testimony enough.

Self-defense training on tap for women

Special to the Chronicle

Women all across the U.S. are arming themselves with Rape Aggression Defense Training.

Rape can happen to anyone, anytime and it can happen in the blink of an eye, when it is least expected. The Rape Aggression Defense (RAD) system prepares women and teenage girls for the specific types of attacks that might be used against them during a rape, abduction or other such violent attack. RAD class empowers women and gives confidence needed to escape violence or danger.

RAD is a personal safety education and empowerment self-defense course for women and girls 13 years and older. The program focuses on awareness, risk reduction and practical physical defense techniques. The philosophy and techniques were designed specifically for women and with the types of assaults against women in mind. For that reason, the program places an emphasis on the woman's surroundings, with recognizing and avoiding risks as a chief concern. The RAD physical defense techniques take advantage of the natural strengths of women's bodies and are specifically intended to identify the attacker's weaknesses. Each physical technique is taught defensively with the primary goal of escape.

Teenage girls and mothers of teenage girls with concerns about date rape and rape in social environments (parties, night clubs, school events, etc.) — including the use of date-rape drugs, physical force and abduction — are encouraged to take a RAD class together so they can both be empowered.

The RAD basic physical defense class includes 12 hours of instruction. Classes are taught one night per week, three hours per night, for four weeks.

The curriculum includes:

- In-depth discussion and exploration of risk reduction and awareness strategies.
- Opportunities to explore and discuss.
- More than 36 defense techniques.

- Debriefing and group discussion.
- Participant/student manual.
- Supervised dynamic-impact training.

- Realization of personal power.
- Empowerment for women and girls.

- Supervised realistic simulation exercises.
- Free lifetime return and practice.

Classes are limited to 10 students and will be from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. every Thursday through Aug. 19, at the Beverly Hills Community Building, 1 Civic Circle, Beverly Hills.

Participants should wear comfortable clothing and sneakers. Tuition is $55 for the entire 12-hour course, which includes the free lifetime return and practice.

Tuition concessions are available when participants attend class with a friend or family member.

Classes are taught by nationally certified instructor Debbie Brown. Contact Citrus County Parks & Recreation at (352) 465-7007 or register online at www.citruscountyfl.org. Click on Parks & Recreation to register. For questions, call (352) 445-1171.
