Houston died from drowning, coroner says

LOS ANGELES — Coroner's officials have ruled Whitney Houston died by drowning, but heart disease and cocaine use were contributing factors.

Houston was found submerged in the bathtub of her room at the Beverly Hilton Hotel on Feb. 11, the eve of the Grammy Awards.

Several bottles of prescription medications were found in her hotel room, but coroner's officials said they weren't in excessive quantities.

Coroner's spokesman Craig Harvey said cocaine metabolites were found in Houston's system, and it was listed as a contributing factor in her death. He said the results indicated Houston was a chronic cocaine user.

Judge rejects challenge to nuke charges

A federal judge has tossed out a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of Florida Power & Light and Progress Energy Florida collecting money from customers for nuclear-power projects.

The case, filed last year in federal court in Ocala by utility customers, centered on a controversial 2006 state law that allows the companies to pass along hundreds of millions of dollars in costs for plants that will not start operating for at least another decade — and might never operate.

The potential class-action lawsuit contended the practice violated parts of the U.S. Constitution. But U.S. District Judge Roy B. Dalton Jr., ruled against the customers last month, saying that a law, known as the "Johnson Act," limits the power of federal courts to take up challenges to state-approved utility rates.

State's top business leaders meet county

Plantation plays host to CEOs at bimonthly meeting of Tampa Bay Partnership

SHEMIR WILES Staff Writer

CRYSTAL RIVER — In a room filled with local officials and business leaders, the Tampa Bay Partnership board of directors received a hearty welcome to Citrus County during their bimonthly meeting Thursday morning at the Plantation on Crystal River.

"It's a real watershed event for Citrus County," said John Siefert, executive director of the Citrus County Economic Development Council.

More than 50 of Florida's top CEOs and business leaders attended the meeting, which took place for the first time in Citrus County since it became an economic development partner with the Tampa Bay Partnership in 2010.

Vincent Dolan, president and CEO of Progress Energy, as well as the current chairman of the partnership, marveled at the amount of people that packed the upstairs Palm Room at the Plantation.

"I want to thank all the folks from Citrus County that have welcomed us with open arms," Dolan said.

Siefert expressed gratitude for the partnership allowing Citrus County to highlight what they have been doing to fuel economic development in the area. About two years ago, Siefert explained, the unemployment rate in the county had reached a staggering 14 percent and there was very little being done in the way of creating jobs and bringing business into the county.

Ken Cheek recently took over the reins as director of water resources for the county. Above, Cheek explains the process of wastewater treatment at the Meadowcrest water treatment facility.

County commission given update on status of Citrus' water systems

CHRIS VAN ORMER Staff Writer

How's the water? Five years ago, the Citrus County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) raised $53 million through the largest bond issue of its kind in county history to buy water and sewer utilities in 11 communities from the Florida Governmental Utility Authority (FGUA), an agency formed in 1999 through an interlocal agreement between four other Florida counties to provide water services.

In buying the utilities, the BOCC ended three years of controversy associated with FGUA's takeover of the former Florida Water Services' systems in Citrus County.

Commissioners last week were presented an update about the former FGUA systems, as the county's water resources department changed directors from Robert Knight, who served for 11 years and 11 months and retired, to Ken Cheek, director of engineering.

"The board asked us to do a status report on the FGUA systems acquired by Citrus County," County Administrator Brad Thorpe said at the BOCC's March 13 meeting. "This report was put together by retired Robert Knight."

The systems include Citrus Springs, Pine Ridge, Sugar-mill Woods, Apache Shores, Lakeside, Gospel Island, Point O' Woods, Spring Gardens, Golden Terrace Estates, Oak Forest and Rosemont/Rolling Green. The system has about 414 miles of water transmission lines.

Making the presentation, Cheek said two systems for water treatment had been decommissioned: Apache Shores and Lakeside. Also decommissioned were wastewater treatment plants at Apache Shores and Spring Gardens.

Minimal modifications were necessary at four systems.

For Cheek, tying in the systems all in a life's work

CHRIS VAN ORMER Staff Writer

Ken Cheek became familiar with county water systems before the county even offered water services.

Cheek, who recently replaced Robert Knight as director of water resources, worked privately on systems the county later bought.

A 1991 graduate of the University of South Florida, Cheek got his first job in Crystal River with the firm Henigar & Ray. "We had the contract with Southern States Utilities and Florida Water Services to do all the plants in Citrus County," Cheek said. "And so I've worked on the ones that we acquired from FGUA; the large majority of them I've done quite a bit of work on."

Cheek has followed water utilities through different ownerships. Southern State Utilities became Florida Water Services. Then Florida Governmental

Prosecutor, police chief step down in probe of teen's death

Associated Press

SANFORD — The police chief and prosecutor who have been bitterly criticized for not arresting a neighborhood watch volunteer in the shooting death of an unarmed black teenager both left the case Thursday, with the chief saying that he is temporarily leaving his job to let passions cool.

Sanford Police Chief Bill Lee's decision came less than a day after city commissioners gave him a "no confidence" vote, and after a couple of weeks of protests and uproar on social media websites. Lee has said evidence in the case supported George Zimmerman's claim that the Feb. 26 shooting of 17-year-old Trayvon Martin was self-defense.

"I do this in the hopes of restoring some semblance of calm to a city which has been in turmoil for several weeks," Lee said.

About three hours later, Gov. Rick Scott announced that the local state attorney, Norman Wolfinger, had recused himself from the case. In a letter to Scott, Wolfinger said that while he thought he could fairly oversee any prosecution that develops in the case, his recusal was aimed at "toning down the rhetoric and preserving the integrity of the investigation." Scott appointed Angela B. Corey, the state attorney for the Jacksonville area, to take over the case.

Scott also appointed a task force led by Lt. Gov. Jennifer Carroll to conduct hearings on the case and to make recommendations for any changes to state law or procedures. Carroll is African-American.

Martin was returning from a trip to a convenience store when Zimmerman started following him, telling police dispatchers he looked suspicious. At some point, the two got into a fight and Zimmerman pulled out his gun.

Zimmerman told police Martin attacked him after he had given up on chasing the teenager and was returning to his sport utility vehicle.

Boy, 10, gives proceeds from sale of pig to cancer patient

CHIEFLAND — Contestants for the Suwannee River Fair are told not to get too attached to their animals, make them pets or name them. It makes parting with them after the sale emotionally hard.

Chandler Beach, 10, of Buckaroo 4-H in Trenton, did something different with his 255-pound pig.

"I told him he was going for a good cause," Beach said, after No. 132 on the sales list went for $59 a pound at Wednesday's youth livestock sale. And the bids are still coming in.

Wednesday's record bid came after fair volunteer David Allen overheard Beach tell another entrant he would be giving the money from the sale of his pig to Corbin Wiggins, an 18-year-old Trenton athlete who is battling cancer for the second time in a year.

"The glory goes to God and the money goes to Corbin," Chandler said.

Allen told volunteer

Michelle Crawford, who told Fair President Loran Brookins. Crawford, at Brookins' direction, told auctioneer Carrol Cannon of Ty, Ga., who announced it to the jam-packed arena where Wiggins' mom, Angie, sat with Chandler's grandmother, Jennifer Beach. Corbin, who is in his third week of chemotherapy, missed the sale because he had a fever the night before.

"I didn't know that he was going to announce that,"

However, things have changed, he said. With the EDC and the Citrus County Chamber joining forces and sharing resources, Siefert said they now have more than 1,000 people who actively support economic development in Citrus County. Coupled with joining the Tampa Bay Partnership and offering a host of incentives and programs to entice businesses to expand and relocate to the area, Siefert said the EDC and chamber are offering a way for businesses to grow.

Josh Wooten, president and CEO of the chamber, introduced a number of local businesspeople to speak before the partnership's board of directors.

Bo Rooks, a self-employed cattle rancher in Floral City who recently joined the EDC as a board member, spoke about how 55,000 acres of land in Citrus County is dedicated to agriculture and how it is a significant part of the local economy. With hopes to expand his business in the future, he said he was proud and excited to be a member of the EDC and have the opportunity to attend the partnership meeting.

A number of top businesspeople from around the state visited Citrus County on Thursday to attend a meeting of the Tampa Bay Partnership board of directors.

Both Dudley Calfee, general manager of Ferris Farms in Floral City, and Hamilton Rice, president of Technology Conservation Group in Lecanto, shared their stories of success and promising plans for growth thanks to the support of the EDC and the county commission.

EDC President and County Commissioner Joe Meek gave a brief speech on the many endeavors under way aimed at increasing business in Citrus County.

The first step, Meek said, was changing the way the county does business and eliminating a hostile environment by having new leadership in place that has "an attitude of 'How can we help you?'"

Meek spoke at length about the quality of life in Citrus County and the work being done to diversify the marketplace. From the medical industry to light manufacturing to ecotourism, he said the EDC is looking at specific, targeted industries that can help sustain the local economy in the future.

Meek also spoke about Port

Citrus and how the county feels it has an underutilized waterway with the potential to create jobs and diminish dependency on construction as a driving economic force in the county.

In addition, Meek asked for the partnership's support on extending the Suncoast Parkway before presenting a short video highlighting several aspects of the county including aviation expansion, both hospitals, Three Sisters Springs and the planned extension of the parkway.

Applications for unemployment aid hit four-year low

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The number of people seeking U.S. unemployment aid fell to a four-year low last week, bolstering the view that the job market is strengthening.

The Labor Department said Thursday that weekly applications dropped 5,000 to a seasonally adjusted 348,000. That's the lowest level since March 2008, just months into the Great Recession. The four-week average of applications, a less volatile measure, dipped to 355,000, matching a four-year low.

Applications have steadily declined since last fall. The drop has coincided with the best three months of hiring in two years. From December through February, employers added an average of 245,000 jobs per month. That's pushed down the unemployment rate to 8.3 percent, the lowest in three years.

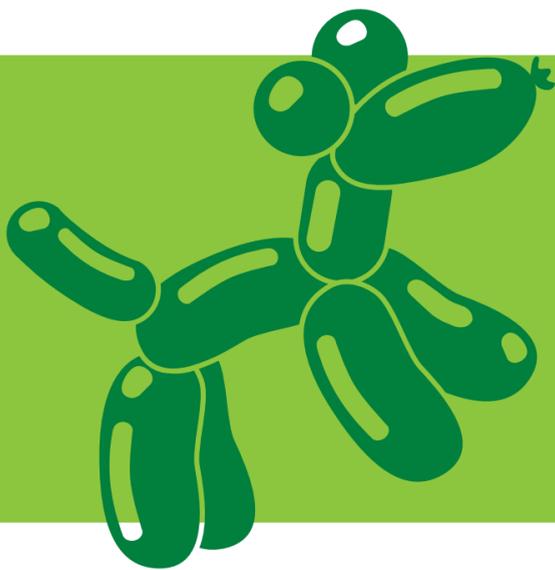

The report suggests employers added a similar level of jobs this month. This week's figures cover the same week that the Labor Department surveys companies about hiring in March. Applications are slightly lower this week than in February's survey week, which points to more job growth.

"U.S. employment growth looks to have continued in March at a respectable pace," Jennifer Lee, an economist at BMO Capital Markets.

Separately, a measure of future U.S. economic activity rose for the fifth straight month.

The Conference Board said its index of leading economic indicators rose 0.7 percent in February, after a 0.2 percent rise the previous month. The index is designed to anticipate economic conditions in the next three to six months.

Charity tournament this Saturday

Local Kiwanis and Key clubs will be hosting a Flag Football Tournament from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 24, at Lecanto High School to benefit the Eliminate Project.

The Eliminate Project is a partnership between Kiwanis International and UNICEF to eliminate Maternal and Neonatal tetanus. Also known as MNT, this disease kills one child every nine minutes. The disease is brutal and causes a newborn baby to be extremely sensitive to light and touch, seizures, and eventually die in about three days. About a third of the time the mother will die as well, leaving a family devastated. It is caused by an infection of the umbilical cord during birth, and is completely preventable.

A tetanus vaccine to the mother before birth can protect her and her baby. This vaccine costs about $2.

The event will also have a family carnival, silent auction, live music, and food. All ages are welcome to come, and admission is free. For more information, contact Angela McHugh at 352-201-1623.

Bear euthanized after biting Florida woman

State wildlife officials said they captured and euthanized a black bear that bit a woman at a Central Florida apartment complex last week.

Officials said they found the bear near the trash bin of the same Longwood apartment complex Thursday morning. A Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission spokeswoman said the 300-pound animal had lost all fear of humans and would continue to attack people if left in the wild.

Officials also captured the bear's 14-month-old cub. The Orlando Sentinel reported that the cub will go to a captive situation.

Officials said 57-year-old Terri Gurley was walking her dog at the Camden Club apartments last Friday when she ran into the bear. Gurley sustained four puncture wounds. Neighbors who heard her scream called 911.

Authorities used a reverse 911 system Thursday to warn residents of a Central Florida neighborhood that they're looking for two suspects who are possibly armed and considered dangerous.

The Osceola County Sheriff's Office said deputies responded to a St. Cloud home, where they found the victims.

The reverse 911 call asked residents to report any suspicious activity in the area.

Oak Hill Hospital expanding

BROOKSVILLE — Hernando County's largest hospital, which also attracts patients from southwest Citrus County, is undergoing a $50 million expansion.

Oak Hill Hospital, owned by HCA Corp. of Nashville, Tenn., began construction in February. Completion is expected in fall 2013.

The expansion project includes:

■ A two-story inpatient bed tower with 36 private rooms. The tower is being constructed for future potential expansion of up to five stories.

■ New construction of eight additional operating room suites.

■ Renovation of endoscopy suites.

■ Replacement/expansion of the post-anesthesia care unit area to 18 beds.

■ New parking lot for patients, guests and families.

The expansion and renovation will add about 70,000 square feet and an additional 30,000 square feet will be renovated, hospital officials said.

Oak Hill, which opened in 1984, is already the largest medical facility in Hernando and Citrus counties with 214 acute-care beds. Citrus Memorial hospital in Inverness has 198 beds and Seven Rivers Regional Medical Center in Crystal River has 128 beds.

The expansion will give Oak Hill 262 acute-care beds.

Hospital officials said the expansion was needed to meet growing demands for beds and surgical volumes.

Collectors invited to Naber Kids convention in Homosassa

CHRIS VAN ORMER
Staff Writer

Collectors of ugly dolls will home in on Homosassa on Saturday, when Harald Naber hosts his 20th Naber Kids convention.

Naber made his first Naber Kid, Molli, in 1982 in Homer, Alaska. Then he built the Naber Kids Doll Factory in 1984 in Homosassa at 8915 S. Suncoast Blvd., where it is still seen today.

For the next two decades, Naber, who is German, kept collectors busy buying his many character dolls. Naber Kids are no longer produced but can be found on eBay, sometimes selling in the hundreds of dollars.

“This year will be a little different,” Naber said about his convention. “I have some surprises.”

He recently published a book called “Ugly Dolls,” written by Pat Gaudette of Lecanto, about his life and finding himself as a maker of dolls considered ugly, but each with a personality and a sense of humor.

A second book is in the works, but it is fiction and will introduce new character dolls, the Silikens, Oops and Grin, denizens of the glaciers of Alaska who teach children about environmental issues.

“It’s like a fairy tale for children and older children,” Naber said. “The characters are not yet for sale and won’t be until the book is finished.”

The event, which has no cover charge, will have plenty to offer: Collectors can bring their dolls to have them signed. Raffle tickets will be sold.

“Every ticket will win something,” Naber said. “They will get as much value as the ticket costs.”

Not knowing how many people will attend may pose a problem. Although Naber has a long roll of tickets, he hopes to honor at least 100 with equal-value prizes.

“People know I keep my word,” Naber said.

Bill Ray will entertain at the keyboards.

Another character Naber will introduce is James the Butler, which keeps champagne cold.

Naber also has an inventory of Mini Kids, small dolls he carves from maple.

“I will continue making them one at a time,” Naber said. “Times have changed. I am one of the last doll makers doing this.”

Naber's dolls reflect his own philosophy: “Don’t take yourself too seriously. Make someone laugh. That’s what my dolls are about.”

Company plans train between Miami and Orlando

Associated Press

CORAL GABLES — A private company said Thursday that it plans to develop a passenger train line connecting Orlando and South Florida by 2014.

Florida East Coast Industries said in a news release that the $1 billion project will utilize the 200-mile rail corridor owned by the company between Miami and Cocoa, and include construction of 40 miles of new track to link it to Orlando.

The project has been dubbed All Aboard Florida. Developers envision the service eventually expanded to link Tampa and Jacksonville. The trip between Miami and Orlando is expected to take about three hours. According to Google maps, the average driving trip going the speed limit takes about four hours, not factoring in traffic.

FECI spokeswoman Christine Barney said passenger rail has been an issue in Florida for decades, but residents have always seemed reluctant to use public funds to support the various projects that have been proposed.

“All Aboard Florida offers a different approach,” Barney said. “It will be privately owned, privately operated and privately maintained. There will be no risk to taxpayers.”

Man handed probation, civil commitment

Charge reduced, Ryce Act invoked

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff Writer

INVERNESS — A Dunnellon man was sentenced to five years of probation on a reduced charge of felony battery Thursday.

David E. Kingery, 21, was originally charged with lewd and lascivious battery in January 2010 for allegedly having sex with a 12-year-old girl.

Kingery pleaded no contest to the reduced charge this week in a deal with prosecutors.

Standing next to Assistant Public Defender Edward Spaight, Kingery, who exhibits signs of disability, haltingly responded to questions from Circuit Judge Ric Howard.

Howard deliberately and slowly explained his rights to him before sentencing him and also committing him to the care of the Agency of Persons with Disabilities' Area 13 office in Lake County, which serves Citrus County residents under the Jimmy Ryce Act.

As a condition of his sentence, Howard also advised Kingery that he is forbidden to be around children under 18 years old without supervision.

A Jimmy Ryce commitment is an involuntary civil incarceration in a treatment facility until the person (sexual offender) is declared fit to re-enter society by authorities.

According to Kingery's Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest report, the girl and Kingery were both spending the night at a home on Christmas Eve 2009.

Kingery and the girl reportedly knew each other and it was the first instance of any sexual abuse between the two.

Kingery reportedly admitted to having sex with the girl to investigators and said he knew his actions were wrong. He also admitted knowing how old the girl was.

Howard has scheduled a status conference about Kingery's commitment in April to ascertain whether beds are available at the treatment facility. Meanwhile, Kingery will remain at the county jail.

State BRIEF

Three men rescued from capsized vessel in Crystal River

CRYSTAL RIVER — A Yankeetown Coast Guard boat crew safely rescued three men off their vessel that capsized in the Florida Power Corporation Channel in Crystal River Thursday.

Coast Guard Sector St. Petersburg received notification that three men were sitting on the hull of their capsized 21-foot vessel and quickly ordered Coast Guard Station Yankeetown to launch a rescue crew.

Station Yankeetown launched a 27-foot Response Boat-Medium boat crew who, upon arrival, safely took the three stranded men off their capsized vessel and aboard the RB-M.

No injuries were reported.

The owner of the vessel has been advised of his responsibility to salvage and mark the vessel.

“Golden Terrace — actually I did the work years ago to connect them into the city of Inverness,” Cheek said.

Minor work was done at Rosemont/Rolling Green.

“One thing you’ll see throughout this (presentation) is the painting of the hydro-tanks and piping,” Cheek said.

He explained it was a matter of pride.

“That’s a reflection of how well they do maintain them,” Cheek said.

Citrus Springs has had substantial modifications.

“On the water system side, we’ve installed a little over $6 million worth of water lines, new ground storage tank and high service pumps,” Cheek said.

It has helped low-pressure problems. But nothing has been done with the wastewater plant.

“We re-permitted that a couple of years ago, but we are in the process of designing to take that system out of service and connect it to Meadowcrest,” Cheek said.

In Pine Ridge, another tank has been added and some of the wells have been refurbished.

Along with Pine Ridge, Sugarmill Woods has had substantial improvements.

“I did quite a bit of work on it years ago on both the water and wastewater system,” Cheek said. “On the water side, we recently put those two ground storage tanks into service. I toured that plant last week. From what I remembered it being to what it is now is a totally different system.”

Sugarmill Woods system had many problems when purchased.

“Our guys have changed the operations protocol and we’ve been staying in compliance (with the Florida Department of Environmental Protection),” Cheek said. “That plant is on the edge of compliance and it’s going to stay that way until we do something with it. But the fact that our guys have been able to operate it and keep it within compliance is a credit for them. We’ve got some really top-notch operators.”

Sugarmill Woods had a permitting issue with the Southwest Florida Water Management District (Swiftmud) because of residential overuse and water leaks.

“We partnered with Swiftmud to try to track down some of the leaks,” Cheek said. “Obviously, we’re not done with this process yet.”

According to the presentation, the 2011 leak detection program reduced unaccounted water loss from 12 percent to 6 percent by repairing a range of leak sizes: three at 3 million to 6 million gallons a day being the largest.

“There’s still a lot of work to do,” Cheek said.

A current problem for continuing the leak detection program is staffing. Maintenance staff has to be taken off their regular duties to work the program. Also, the water management district has changed, too, and can’t partner as it once did.

The Gospel Island system was substantially improved as the entire plant was replaced.

“The FGUA plant was connected to Inverness,” Cheek said. “We were able to replace the plant for less than what that would have cost.”

Point O’ Woods got substantial improvements, too. Cheek said it always had been a problem. Filters were refurbished and resins put in tanks. The operations building was remodeled.

Regarding wastewater, the system was upgraded to class-one reliability for less than half the budget planned by the FGUA.

“That plant produces reclaimed water,” Cheek said. “It should have been class-one reliability years ago. DEP has made exceptions all along. Now that has been accomplished.”

Other improvements included upgrades to lift stations, aeration tanks and filters, the control room and the plant equipment.

Throughout the system, more than $1 million-worth of telemetry has been added, which Cheek said would lead to better system control and faster response time.

“We’ve added 240 fire hydrants throughout the system,” Cheek said. “According to our guys, more than $2 million worth of equipment has been replaced since 2005.”

In conclusion, Cheek said, “Everything that FGUA had in the hopper to do has been done, with the exception of ones we consciously decided not to do. Citrus Springs, you know, we decided to connect that to Meadowcrest, so we’re not going to do any upgrades there.”

For Sugarmill Woods wastewater upgrades, Cheek said the department would put together a master plan before it started building.

“The low-pressure problems in Pine Ridge, Citrus Springs and Sugarmill Woods are no longer an issue,” Cheek said. “Our guys have done a good job of addressing those.”

The BOCC unanimously appointed Cheek to the position of county water resources director effective April 28. Jeffrey Rogers was appointed interim county engineer, department of planning and development.

Knight was recognized for his service.

“Robert was hired on March 6, 2000, as the utilities regulatory director in administration,” Thorpe said. “He was promoted to director of the water resources department on Oct. 23, 2006, where he continued in that capacity until Feb. 24, 2012. Because of him, our utilities department has gotten to the level it is as Mr. Cheek just described. I think we will be seeing Robert in the near future. We have great plans for him and so thank you Rob for all those years of service and we appreciate it.”

Knight acknowledged Cheek.

“You’ve got a good man. He’s going to do a tremendous job for this county,” Knight said.

CHARITY

Angie Wiggins said afterwards. “It was crazy. Anderson-Columbia bought it for $8 (a pound) and then everybody started bidding on it. We were holding each other and we couldn’t breathe. I was overwhelmed and pleased.”

Chandler had already relinquished the pig to the market buyer and went to meet his mother, Misty Beach.

At the same time other companies, buying groups and individuals started bidding up a dollar or two per pound for Beach’s pig. “I had no idea what was happening,” Misty Beach said. “We had left and they came and told us to come back, that the bidding was going on.”

When they returned to the arena, bidding was at $37 a pound and it did not stop until it hit $50 a pound.

“We had to stop the sale to get caught up (on the buyers’ paperwork) we were getting so many bids,” Brookins said, adding that the response from the community had everyone on the auction podium in tears. He was in the sales arena and he said it made him teary.

However, it didn’t end there. Bids continued to come in. By 3 p.m. the pig had raised $59 per pound. By 6 p.m. the pig was at $69 a pound. Thursday morning, a Facebook posting had it at $75 a pound. Thursday afternoon, Brookins said bidding was over $80 a pound and the Fair would keep bidding on the pig open until Friday, March 30, “for people who want to put in a bid.”

Brookins said he is taking the bids and buyer’s information at 352-221-5935. “It’s just pretty amazing,” Brookins said. “We’ve never had this happen before.”

Because Corbin Wiggins turned 18 just as his cancer returned, he missed out on receiving a trip to Disney World from the Make-A-Wish Foundation. His mother said he will be able to take the trip with the auction proceeds.

“I told him I want him to have fun with it,” Beach said. “I think he’s going to have a good time.”

Beach said it was not his decision to donate the money to Wiggins, whose case he had read about in the newspaper.

“God put this on my heart,” Beach said. “It just came to me.”

Misty Beach said her son told her of the plan three weeks ago. “When he woke up, he was extremely excited and said he had something to tell me.” When she finally heard his announcement, she could hardly believe it.

“We told him he would walk away with a loss, and he said ‘No ma’am, I walk away with a gain,’” she said. “I just can’t thank the buyers enough.”

As for Chandler, he said once God gave him this mission, “It made me feel happy and calm.”

That is, until he reached the ring.

“Then I was nervous. I wanted there to be enough for Corbin.”

What did Chandler get from all this?

“I learned that I did something right.”

Max was born on April 4, 1956, in Joliet, IL, moving to Inverness, FL in 1974. He was a familiar face in many of the grocery and convenience stores in the surrounding counties, delivering supplies for Frito-Lay, Merita, Wonder Bread and Bon Appetit for the past 30 years.

Max was an avid race car enthusiast, starting in his early years attending the Indy 500 time trials with his father, and went on to competitive go-cart racing. He loved fishing, and spent many enjoyable hours trying to catch the "big one."

He is survived by three sons, Max (Jamie), Edward, and Taylor of Inverness and stepson, Jeremiah (Candance) Russell, of Ocala; four adored grandchildren, Brooke and Bradley Pfeifer, Alisha Pfeifer and Jessica Russell; a brother, George Pfeifer of Plant City; three sisters, Diane (Leonard) Zapadinsky of San Antonio, TX; Barbara (Byron) Henbest of Bowling Green, KY; and Susan (David) Jordan of Hernando, FL. Other survivors include Lynne Pfeifer, numerous nieces and nephews and a host of racing and fishing buddies.

Max will be remembered as a man with a huge heart, always willing to help anyone, a wicked sense of humor and a hard worker. If you asked him what his greatest love was, he would answer without hesitation, with a huge smile, his grandchildren.

A private family burial will be held at a later date. Max had requested that family and friends celebrate his life, not mourn his death. The family would like to suggest expressions of sympathy be given in honor of Max to Hospice of Citrus County, P.O. Box 641270, Beverly Hills, FL, 34464. Chas. E. Davis Funeral Home with Crematory is assisting the family.

Bagel guru Murray Lender dies at age 81 in Florida

Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. — Murray Lender, who helped turn his father's small Connecticut bakery into a national company credited for introducing bagels to many Americans, has died in Florida. He was 81.

Lender, perhaps best known for promoting Lender's Bagels in TV commercials, died Wednesday at a hospital in Miami from complications from a fall he suffered at his home 10 weeks ago, his wife, Gillie Lender, told The Associated Press on Thursday. The couple, who were married more than nine years, lived in Aventura, Fla., and also kept a home in Connecticut.

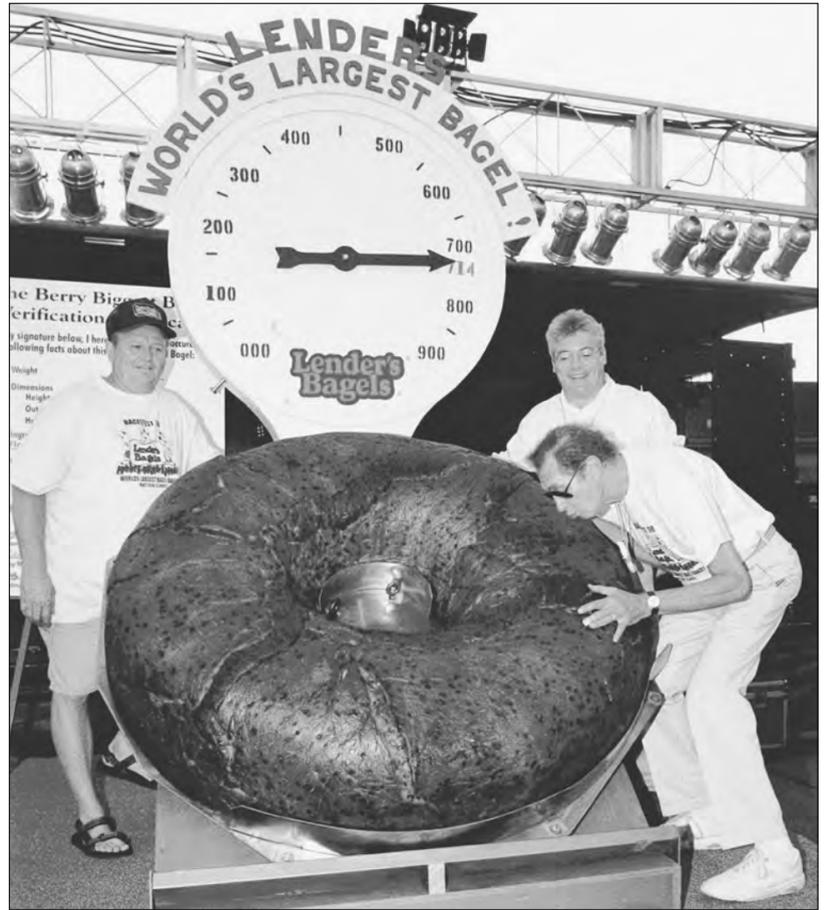

"He was courageous, strong and an example to everyone to show how one should go through life with a vision, ambition, a goal and with success," Gillie Lender said.

Lender's father, Harry Lender, immigrated to the United States from Lublin, Poland, in 1927 and opened what would become Lender's Bagels that year in an 800-square-foot bakery in New Haven. Two years later, he had his wife and two sons, Hymen and Samuel, brought over from Poland to join him, according to a history of Lender's Bagels on the company's website.

At the time, bagels in America were sold mostly to Jewish families who enjoyed them with lox and cream cheese.

Murray Lender was born in 1930, and four years later Harry Lender bought a 1,200-square-foot bakery in New Haven as the business prospered. Hymen, Samuel, Harry and a younger brother, Marvin, all went on to work for the family business. Murray would serve as the company's chief executive and Marvin as president.

The Lenders say they were the first to begin selling bagels in packages to supermarkets in 1955. In 1960, two years after Harry Lender died, the Lenders say they started freezing their bagels so they could ship them outside of New Haven without worrying about them becoming stale — the first company to do so. The frozen bagel would make its way to households across the country that had never had them.

The Lenders sold the family business to Kraft Foods in 1984. Pinnacle Foods Group LLC has owned Lender's Bagels since 2003.

Murray Lender remained the company spokesman after the sale to Kraft, making commercials and appearing on talk shows.

"The frozen bagel is convenient, which is important to today's on-the-go consumers," Murray Lender told the AP in 1986.

Lender shrugged off criticism by some bagel connoisseurs that Lender's Bagels didn't taste so great. "Taste is a very subjective matter," he told the AP. "It's clear and simple: We make

2 3/4 million bagels a day. Obviously an awful lot of people are happy with it."

A stroke 13 years ago left Murray Lender unable to talk, but that didn't dim his enthusiasm for life, his wife said.

"Although he lost his speech, he was able to make you understand him with his gestures and his whole body and his expressions," Gillie Lender said. "It was remarkable. He could bring joy into a room."

His funeral is set for Saturday in Woodbridge, Conn.

Insider trading ban sent to White House

WASHINGTON — The Senate has given final congressional approval to a scaled-down bill to explicitly ban members of Congress, the president and thousands of other federal workers from profiting from nonpublic information learned on the job.

President Barack Obama has said he would sign the bill.

In an unusual move, the legislation passed unanimously Thursday without a vote on the measure itself. Passage was automatically triggered by a procedural motion that was approved on a 96-3 vote.

The bill:

- Explicitly declares that members of Congress and their employees, the president, vice president, thousands of executive branch workers and the judiciary are not exempt from federal insider trading laws.

- Requires those covered under the bill to file frequent reports of new transactions exceeding $1,000, in addition to the annual statements now filed. Public reports are to be posted online either 30 days after the individual is notified of a transaction in his or her account, or 45 days after the transaction.

- Establishes online posting of all financial disclosure reports of covered persons. Financial disclosure forms of executive branch officers and employees would be publicly available.

- Directs the Government Accountability Office to report within one year on the role of people who try to obtain information from Congress and then sell what they learn, mainly to investors and financial firms.

- Exempts from the reporting requirement widely-held investment funds that are publicly traded, have widely diversified assets and are not controlled by those covered under the bill.

- Denies federal retirement benefits to the president, vice president or an elected official of a state or local government if convicted of certain felonies.

- Prohibits senior executives of mortgage giants Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac from receiving bonuses while the companies are under government control.

Soldiers overthrow government in Mali

BAMAKO, Mali — Mutinying soldiers in Mali took over the state television and announced they had seized control of the government, saying the action was necessary because of the mishandling of an insurgency in the north.

The spokesman for the soldiers, Lt. Amadou Konare, said in a communique that they had taken the country's security in their own hands "due to the inability of the government to give the armed forces the necessary means to defend the integrity of our national territory."

A soldier at the presidential palace who asked not to be named because he feared reprisal said that the presidential guard had failed to defend the palace against the renegade soldiers. They seized control of the seat of government, but could not find democratically elected leader President Amadou Toumani Toure, who is in hiding.

Several executives leave Komen

DALLAS — At least five high-ranking executives with the Susan G. Komen for the Cure breast cancer charity have resigned in the aftermath of the organization's decision to eliminate its funding for Planned Parenthood.

The departures include three officials from Komen's Dallas headquarters, as well as CEOs of affiliate groups in Oregon and New York City. Although some of the executives cited personal reasons, the resignations suggest Komen is still in turmoil, even after reversing course and restoring the money to Planned Parenthood.

Komen spokeswoman Leslie Aun said she could not speak to individuals' reasons for leaving, but acknowledged the effects of the controversy among supporters.

The resignations began about a month ago. Chris McDonald, executive director and chief executive of the organization's Oregon and southwest Washington affiliate, announced that she'll leave at the end of April. She said her decision wasn't "predicated by any one event," but that actions by national headquarters affected her thinking.

News emerged in late January that Komen had decided to stop giving money to Planned Parenthood for breast-screening services because Planned Parenthood was the focus of a congressional investigation. After a three-day firestorm of criticism, Komen decided to restore the money.

Marine still outspoken despite dismissal

SAN DIEGO — A Marine facing dismissal for running a Facebook page called Armed Forces Tea Party and criticizing the Obama administration is still speaking out. But he has been getting little support from leading military law experts and free speech advocates who say he may have crossed the line.

Sgt. Gary Stein was notified Wednesday by the Marine Corps that he is being accused of violating the Pentagon's policy barring troops from engaging in political activities and that it is moving to dismiss him.

The military has had a policy since the Civil War limiting the free speech of service members, including criticizing the commander in chief.

CHEEK

Utility Authority (FGUA) bought the assets of Florida Water Services within Citrus County and operated them until the county took them over five years ago.

Born and raised in St. Petersburg, Cheek visited Chassahowitzka since he was around 8 years old. He has always worked in the county, with Henigar & Ray and Burrell Engineering, and was hired by the county in 1998 to work on water-quality projects.

"In that capacity, I was doing all the major roadway projects for the county," Cheek said. "When I started doing the water quality projects, the big emphasis was for the Homosassa sewer projects. The first three or four phases of the sewer projects down there basically were under my authority at that time — putting together those grant programs and the assessments of the property owners. I was doing the town hall meetings down there with the commissioners to talk to the residents and let them know what we were doing."

In 2003, Cheek became the county engineer — the first time. He left in 2005, but came back in 2010 to be county engineer again.

Cheek will work on the continuing plan to consolidate all the county's water systems. About 30 years ago, the county began taking over water utilities, starting with Meadowcrest and Brentwood, then Canterbury Lakes. The need has arisen because of the way Citrus County has developed.

If a developer was going to build a subdivision not on septic tanks, it had to have its own water and sewer plants since the county did not have utilities available.

"They only built what they needed for where they were and that leads to a very fragmented system throughout the county," Cheek said. "One of the successes my predecessor had for sure was to start acquiring those systems and start tying them into the county system."

Developers have been known to build utilities and promptly hand them over to the county government.

"Most developers don't like to operate utilities," Cheek said. "If there is a public utility around, they will cooperate with them." After taking over the first couple of plants, the county did have a system, which meant it had to continue.

"The goal is basically to consolidate those utilities in the long term," Cheek said. "It's better for the operation of this system. It's certainly less expensive to operate a small number of larger plants than a large number of smaller plants." Beyond consolidating water systems, Cheek said he would focus on two other improvements to his department.

"The billing and customer service are definitely part of our operations that we need to improve," Cheek said. "We need to get a little more attuned with our customers and find out what we are doing right and what we are doing wrong and see what we can do about correcting that."

The second focus concerns agency relationships with the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, the Southwest Florida Water Management District, the two cities and other utilities within the county.

"Part of my goal is to get down, meet with them, see if we can improve our relationships with agencies," Cheek said.

Redistricting fix passed by full Florida Senate

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Senate on Thursday easily passed a revised redistricting map for the Republican-dominated chamber that's designed to fix constitutional flaws. Some Democrats said it still violates new anti-gerrymandering standards.

The new map changes the boundaries of 24 districts due to the ripple effect of revising eight districts that were invalidated by the Florida Supreme Court.

It also has new numbers for all 40 districts that were selected at random, using a pair of Bingo machines loaded with white and green balls, to determine which senators elected in November would serve terms of four years and which would serve two years, to keep the terms staggered.

The justices ruled the Senate's original numbering scheme appeared designed to make sure most incumbents could serve longer than the usual eight years before being term-limited out of office. The Bingo drawing, though, still would allow term limits of nine to 11 years for 19 of 29 incumbents not being term-limited this year.

"Our districts are more compact than they were before," said Senate Reapportionment Committee Chairman Don Gaetz. "The Senate map preserves, protects and expands minority voting rights in an incumbent-neutral fashion."

Gaetz predicted the Senate likely would have more minority members and Democrats after the November election, when the Niceville Republican is in line to become the chamber's president.

The map, though, is expected to keep the GOP, which now has a 28-12 advantage, with a strong majority although Democrats have a slight edge in voter registration statewide.

Senate Democratic Leader Nan Rich of Weston said the new map continues to violate the Fair Districts standards that voters adopted in 2010. They include a ban on intentionally favoring incumbents and political parties.

ON THE NET
■ Florida Senate's revised redistricting map:
<http://www.flsenate.gov/Session/Redistricting/Plan/s016s9030>

2012 SESSION

"Incumbent protection is written all over the map," Rich said. "We have been willing to place self-interest and partisanship gain over the intent of the voters."

The original map avoided pitting any incumbents against each other. The new plan would double up two pairs of senators although Sen. David Simmons, R-Maitland, says he'd move to an adjacent open district to avoid facing off with Majority Leader Andy Gardiner, R-Orlando. Also paired are Sens. Ellyn Bogdanoff, R-Fort Lauderdale, and Maria Sachs, D-Boca Raton, in a district expected to lean Democratic.

A functional analysis ordered by the Supreme Court shows Democrat Alex Sink would have carried 15 districts in the 2010 gubernatorial race compared to 14 under the plan stricken by the justices. Democrat Barack Obama would have taken 16 districts under either plan in the 2008 presidential election.

The vote was 31-6 with five Democrats joining all Republicans in favor of the plan. It will be taken up by the House next week to close a 15-day special session. House leaders, though, say they plan to show deference to the Senate.

The Supreme Court unanimously upheld the 120-district House map while rejecting the Senate plan 5-2. The revised Senate map will go back to the justices for another review. If they still find problems they can redraw it themselves.

Florida Democratic Chairman Rod Smith said the party will again "turn to the courts to enforce the people's will." Democrats and three nonpartisan groups that backed the Fair Districts standards challenged the original House and Senate maps during the first Supreme Court review.

They also have challenges pending against the Legislature's redistricting map for Florida's 27 congressional seats in Circuit Court. A judge has set trial for April 16 in Tallahassee.

Other Fair Districts criteria include protecting minority voting rights, making districts compact and following political and geographic boundaries when feasible.

The revised plan splits heavily black Daytona Beach into two districts. The Senate voted down a proposal by Democrats to keep the city whole, which would have increased their chances of carrying one of those districts.

Sen. Miguel Diaz de la Portilla, R-Miami, withdrew a proposal that would have created a fourth Hispanic district in South Florida. He said he expects that issue to be pursued in court as well.

Lakeland also objected to the original Senate map because it divided the Polk County city between two districts. The justices asked lawmakers to look at that issue.

A proposal that cleared the Reapportionment Committee on Wednesday would have kept Lakeland in a Polk-dominated single district with Plant City, which is in neighboring Hillsborough County. It also would have put two prominent Republican candidates seeking an open Senate seat, state Rep. Denise Grimsley of Sebring, and former Rep. Bill Galvano of Bradenton, in the same district.

Plant City officials objected, and the Senate agreed to put it back in a Hillsborough district while still keeping all of Lakeland in the Polk district by adopting an amendment offered by Sen. Jack Latvala, R-Clearwater. Latvala's map also once again put Grimsley and Galvano in separate districts.

Shawn Tyson appears Wednesday during the final stage of jury selection for his murder trial in Sarasota County Court in Sarasota.

Prosecutors: Teen planned to rob British tourists

Associated Press

SARASOTA — Jurors in the trial of a Florida teen accused of killing two British tourists watched the teen mumble his way through an interview with police detectives and insist that he hadn't left his home the evening of the April 2011 murders.

Shawn Tyson, 17, is charged with two counts of first-degree murder. Defense attorneys have said there was no evidence tying him to the crime and that witnesses testifying against him were not credible.

Authorities say Tyson shot and killed British tourists James Kouzaris, 24, and James Cooper, 25, last April.

Attorneys selected a jury of nine women and five men Wednesday, and opening statements began Thursday morning. By mid-afternoon, prosecutors had already called eight witnesses, including several crime scene technicians who recounted taking photos of the young men's bodies and finding .22 caliber shells buried in the dirt near the crime scene.

Jurors sat grim-faced as the photos — which depicted the men splayed on the grass of a housing project — were shown.

Late Thursday afternoon, the jurors watched Tyson's videotaped interview from April 2011 with Sarasota Detective John Todd. Tyson repeatedly told Todd that he hadn't left his home the night of the slayings, but Todd and another detective didn't believe the teen. Todd urged Tyson to talk about who he was with that night and said that Todd's friends were all going to testify against him.

"You'd better harden up. You're in the big leagues now," said Todd. "Are you going to take the rap for this all by yourself?"

Todd explained to the jury that all of the witnesses in the case were close friends with Tyson. He added that three witnesses, including two neighbors, picked Tyson out of a lineup — and said that the teen's lip quivered and tears came to his eyes when the detective explained that he could perform ballistics tests on a bullet found in Tyson's room and the bullets used in the killings.

Tyson is being held at the Sarasota County Jail without bail. If convicted, he faces life in prison — because he is 17, he cannot face the death penalty.

Prosecutor Ed Brodsky said Tyson told a friend that the men were lost and that he then tried to rob them. The tourists told Tyson they didn't have any money and pleaded for their lives. Both men were found with their pants down around their thighs; Det. Todd said he had once worked on a robbery-homicide where the victim's pants were partially pulled down.

The tourists' bodies were found shirtless on the street. Both men still had their wallets and did in fact have money; Cooper also had a cellphone and camera in his pants pocket. Authorities later found that Kouzaris' blood alcohol level was 0.243 and Cooper's was 0.214 — well past Florida's legal limit for intoxication.

Home brewers seek changes to alcohol laws

Explosion of homemade suds forces lawmakers to review rules

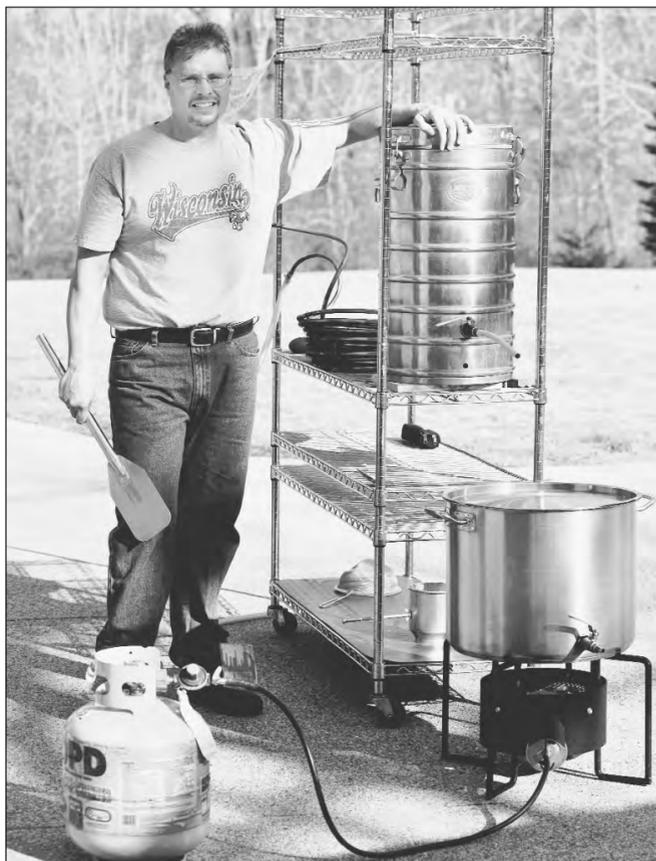

Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — About the only thing Kevin Flynn enjoys more than drinking his home-brewed beer is sharing it with fellow beer club members at festivals and tasting competitions. So Flynn and his buddies were shocked to discover that Wisconsin law prohibits sharing homemade suds anywhere outside the brewer's home.

The law could "pretty much be the end of competitions in Wisconsin," he lamented. "At least legal ones."

An explosion of interest in home brewing is forcing lawmakers across the country to review long-forgotten alcohol laws, some of which date back to Prohibition. Although the old rules have rarely been enforced, beer enthusiasts fear they could criminalize the rapidly growing hobby and kill scores of annual tasting events that bring tourists to small towns and cities.

In Wisconsin, Flynn and other home brewers may soon be off the hook. The state Legislature last week passed a bill to allow them to transport homemade beer and wine and to share it with other adults. Brewers will still not be permitted to sell anything they make, and they will remain exempt from permit requirements and taxes.

The proposal now heads to Gov. Scott Walker, who plans to sign it into law.

At least 17 states have ambiguous laws on whether home brewers can transport beer or wine outside the home, according to the American Homebrewers Association in Boulder, Colo.

The patchwork of rules can be frustrating for hobbyists who would prefer to spend their time exchanging recipes for pale ale or rhapsodizing about different varieties of hops, barley and yeast.

Some states — including Georgia and South Carolina — have restrictions similar to Wisconsin's. In Kansas and Minnesota, home brewers can only make beverages for themselves or family members. Other states permit homemade beer and wine to be consumed by guests, too, as in Arizona, Hawaii, Idaho and Illinois.

A few states have been slow to accommodate the trend. Utah just legalized home brewing in 2009, and Oklahoma followed in 2010. Mississippi and Alabama are the only states that still forbid it.

Dan Grady of the Wisconsin Homebrewers Alliance, who led the legislative effort to revise Wisconsin's law, said beer-makers need to be watchful in case states try to use the issue to generate money for their tight budgets.

"States are under enormous pressure. It's a revenue issue," he said. "Everything is on the table these days."

Gary Glass, director of the home brewers association, said it's a balancing act when considering whether to pursue a change in the law.

"The question becomes, at what point does a home brewing community want to take on having the law changed if it's not really having an impact to what they're doing?"

Glass, who organizes the group's popular national conference, said he's had trouble securing a venue in states with vague home brewing laws. The conference, which changes its location annually, brings in $500,000 to local economies.

A grassroots reform effort succeeded last year in Oregon, where the law had been similar to Wisconsin's. Glass, who helped draft Wisconsin's bill, said the legislation's demise would have set a bad precedent for home brewing.

"In this economy, you're stifling an industry that's growing," he said. "It sounds like a bad move."

More than ever, people with little or no experience brewing beer or other fermented beverages are investing in kits and ingredients to make their own. The hobby has expanded into a vibrant beer culture, with brewers freely sharing their concoctions among neighbors and friends and in clubs and competitions.

Last year, there were 411 beer competitions sanctioned by the home brewers association and the Beer Judge Certification Program. That's up from fewer than 100 in the early 1990s.

"Back in the day, everybody thought home brewing would just be what your grandfather would do," said Jason Heindel, president of the Beer Barons of Milwaukee Cooperative.

Home brewing has also helped invigorate the booming craft brewing industry. And it's generated a cottage industry of its own.

Trim hair not paychecks, say barbers

Associated Press

DENVER — Eight barbers at an Air Force base outside Denver say their private employer wants to trim their paychecks, so they're on strike.

The barbers and other members of United Food and Commercial Workers union picketed Thursday at an entrance to Buckley Air Force Base.

They said their employer, Gino Morena Enterprises, wants to shave their commissions by 5 percent for the second time in two years, even though the company is profitable.

The San Francisco-based company didn't immediately return a phone call. Its website said it employs more than 1,700 barbers and stylists at shops and salons on military installations across the U.S. and in Guam.

Military personnel can still get their buzz cuts at Buckley. One barber remained on the job and managers were also giving haircuts, union spokesman Mark Belkin said.

Belkin said the Buckley barbers work solely on commission and earn $12,000 to $32,000 a year.

"I can't afford not to (go on strike)," said Greta McIntire, a single mother of two who said she earns about $26,000 annually working four days a week as a Buckley barber. "I need to do this for my kids so I can make enough money to support them."

Buckley has only one barber shop. Workers at a separate beauty salon weren't involved in the strike, Belkin said.

State finds antidote to pill mills

We welcome the news out of Tallahassee that the efforts Gov. Rick Scott, the state Legislature and attorney general have taken to curtail illegal pill mills are working.

In 2010, before a task force began its investigative work and a statewide database was launched to track certain controlled pain medications, Florida had the dubious distinction of having 93 of its doctors among the top 100 illegal pill dispensers nationwide.

Now statistics show recent efforts are having a major impact on the pill mill industry in Florida. In three months the task force shut down more than 200 illegal pill mills, made 34 arrests of doctors, and confiscated 450,000 pills, 589 vehicles and $4.7 million in cash.

An unfortunate side effect of cracking down on the illegal dispensing of pain pills is that it is now more difficult for patients to fill their legitimate prescriptions.

The process is now much more bureaucratic than in the past, but that is the added cost we must now pay because of drug abuse and profiteering. Florida had become the pill mill king of the nation and drastic measures needed to be taken.

Law-abiding citizens now have to follow stricter rules to legally obtain their medications, but can be comforted by the fact that the illegal dispensing of pain medication has been drastically reduced.

We applaud the efforts of state law enforcement, the governor and his leadership team in reducing this threat to our safety.

THE ISSUE:

State shutting down illegal pill mills.

OUR OPINION:

Database, task force making a difference.

Hot Corner: WEIDER LETTER

Take her up

Sen. Charlie Dean, please take Christine Weider's offer and spend a day seeing how good the CCSO really is in regard to Child Protective Services. Have you never read about how inefficient DCF is and how many times children die or are missing? Their record is not No. 1. Ms. Weider has valid questions; do you have valid answers?

Congrats, Christine

I just want to say congratulations to Christine Weider on her open letter to Charlie Dean in this Sunday's paper, March 18, on Page C3. Ms. Weider's letter says it all and I and a lot of other citizens of Citrus County agree with her.

You don't know Dean

I would like to comment on a letter to Sen. Charles Dean that some woman (Christine Weider), who has lived here since 2005, wrote. I've lived here for over 40 years. Sheriff Dean has always been a friend of this county. This woman doesn't know him or his wife and how they worked in our school system for 40 years — well, 30 years before he went to Tallahassee. This is absurd and cruel of her to do this to him and his family and I want her to know that she couldn't be further from the truth.

Well said

I just finished reading the article — actually, the letter — written by Christine Weider on Charlie Dean and the Child Protective Services. I applaud the letter that she wrote in the paper on Sunday (March 18). It's a very good letter. And I would like to know, what is Charlie Dean's problem with Citrus County and taking away the Child Protective Services? I'd really like to know. Everything she said is so true.

My sentiments exactly

In reference to the letter by Christine Weider, March 18, on Sunday: I'm not a person that can put my thoughts into words, but you expressed my sentiments exactly.

Trees will block view

Why are trees being planted on the bank between (State Road) 44 and Lake Henderson? When they grow taller, we won't be able to see the beautiful lake and it's also a tourist attraction.

Tips not automatic

Interesting, the person who wrote in about if you can't tip somebody properly, stay home; if you can't afford to tip, stay home and eat. Obviously, this was sent in by a waiter or a waitress. One thing they forgot to mention: If the service you get isn't worth a nickel, then I think you tip proportionately. Just because they're a waiter and they can do whatever they want, does not mean it's an automatic 15 to 20 percent. Like most everything else, it's something you have to earn. It's not a given.

Test senior drivers

This is in response to "Tag trouble." If that's the only thing he has to complain about, then he's very lucky. First of all, he is 80 years old and disabled driving on (U.S.) 19. What they should do with senior citizens is have them give a test of their abilities as far as (being) able to stop, because a lot of these senior citizens are packing the road and getting in accidents and running into restaurants.

The glory of messy chaos

'In retreat, Sears set to unload stores'
The Wall Street Journal, Feb. 24

***

WASHINGTON — Retreat need not mean surrender. Still ...

In 1886, a shipment of $25 watches from a Chicago jeweler was rejected by the addressee in Redwood Falls, Minn. The jeweler offered to sell the undeliverable goods for $12 apiece to a railroad station agent, who could then sell them to other agents, of whom there were more than 20,000. Which is what the agent, 23-year-old Richard Warren Sears, did.

Soon his watch business was booming, so he quit working on the railroad, moved to Minneapolis, then quickly to the nation's railroad hub, Chicago, where in 1887 he met Alvah Curtis Roebuck, a watchmaker and printer. Rural life and retailing were about to change.

As the late Daniel Boorstin explained in "The Americans: The Democratic Experience," Sears and Roebuck were on a trail blazed by Aaron Montgomery Ward. After a few years as a dry goods salesman in the rural West, in 1872, the year after the Chicago fire, Ward, then 29, rented a 12-by-14-foot loft over a livery stable there and began a mail-order business. In two years his single price sheet became an eight-page booklet, then a 72-page catalog, with woodcuts illustrating most items. The 240-page catalog for 1884 listed almost 10,000 items.

Hitherto, the goods most Americans bought — things they could not make for themselves — were items they could handle and examine, sold by people they knew. Now they were enticed to buy unseen goods from distant strangers.

The name Sears, Roebuck and

George Will

Company appeared in 1893 and the catalog was the company's shop window, store counter and salesman. The Big Book — by 1894 the catalog had more than 500 pages — became second only to the Good Book in American life. By 1903, Sears had its own printing plant. There were 1 million copies of the 1904 spring catalog, 2 million the next year and more than 3 million of the 1907 fall catalog. All this depended on government in the form of the post office's RFD — rural free delivery.

By the middle of the 20th century, Sears Roebuck had come to town as the nation's largest retailer, with stores that defined many towns' downtowns. But in Bentonville, Ark., Sam Walton had an idea for bigger stores on the outskirts of towns. Sears has become a casualty of Wal-Mart's retailing revolution.

Today new mothers sign up at Amazon Mom for regular deliveries of diapers. This is a 21st-century permutation of an innovation in long-distance commerce that began in 19th-century Chicago.

Creative destruction continues in the digital age. After 244 years — it began publication five years before the 1773 Boston Tea Party — the Encyclopedia Britannica will henceforth be available only in digital form as it tries to catch up to reference websites such as Google and Wikipedia. Another digital casualty forgot it was selling the preservation of memories, aka "Kodak moments," not film.

America now is divided between those who find this social churning unnerving and those who find it exhilarating. What Virginia Postrel postulated in 1998 in "The Future and Its Enemies: The Growing Conflict Over Creativity, Enterprise and Progress" — the best book for rescuing the country from a ruinous itch for tidiness — is even more true now. Today's primary political and cultural conflict is, Postrel says, between people, mislabeled "progressives," who crave social stasis, and those, paradoxically called conservatives, who welcome the perpetual churning of society by dynamism.

Stasists see Borders succumb to e-books (and Amazon) and lament the passing of familiar things. Dynamists say: Relax, reading is thriving. In 2001, the iPod appeared and soon stores such as Tower Records disappeared. Who misses them?

Theodore Roosevelt, America's first progressive president, thought it was government's duty to "look ahead and plan out the right kind of civilization." TR looked ahead and saw a "timber famine" caused by railroads' ravenous appetites for cross-ties that rotted. He did not foresee creosote, which preserves cross-ties. Imagine all the things government planners cannot anticipate when, in their defining hubris, they try to impose their static dream of the "right kind" of future.

As long as America is itself, it will welcome the messy chaos that is not really disorder but rather what Postrel calls "an order that is unpredictable, spontaneous, and ever shifting, a pattern created by millions of uncoordinated, independent decisions." Professional coordinators, aka bureaucracies, are dismayed. Good.

Whose morals?

When someone asks whose morals we should follow, they are by definition rejecting traditional moral values that have been cast in stone since the beginning of civilized society.

The term "whose" is intended to completely reject traditional moral values that have served society for thousands of years and is the academic's and liberal's way of saying we believe we are in a new age and we are smart enough to define our own morals. The purpose is everyone will tolerate any kind of behavior because to challenge some behavior would mean you acknowledge traditional moral values as a foundational definition of right and wrong behavior.

This is why liberals and academics support free speech for pornography, cohabitation, homosexual behavior and marriage. These are clearly sexually immoral behaviors according to traditional moral value definitions.

This is also why liberals and academics are the major supporters of any activity that challenges the church and religion. Since church and religion are the teachers and defenders of traditional moral values, liberals and academics must dilute the influence of the church anyway they can.

Since history demonstrates traditional moral values are the fiber that held families and societies together, the academics and liberals invest large resources into cleansing history to play down the impact of traditional moral values. They claim the Declaration of Independence, Constitution and Bill of Rights are no longer relevant in our progressive times. They try to hide the traditional moral value component in Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The foundational issues that have served our country for centuries are too restrictive to the liberals, academics and progressives, because they think they have a better way. Their way has no foundation or historical standard; it simply rejects traditional moral values.

As we can see with our modern society, when traditional moral values are ignored or rejected, chaos rules.

Letters to THE EDITOR

Thoughts on war

Here are some past war chants that led to the loss of uncountable treasure, hundreds of thousands killed on both sides, and millions maimed:

"The yellow peril," Korea; "The domino effect," Vietnam; "Grenada cannot go communist;" "Noriega has to go. He is bringing drugs into the USA;" "We cannot permit Genocide in Bosnia;" "Weapons of mass destruction," Iraq; "There will be a democracy in Afghanistan;" "The war on drugs;" "The war on terror;"

I am sure I'm missing some.

I exclude World War I and World War II as I believe they were existential. All Americans except the politicians suffered. (Funny, huh?)

We got what in return?

The above were justified for "security's sake" and to protect us from whatever threat was handy at the time.

The former Soviet Union is recent testimony that uncontrolled use of war is a sure way to disappear as a nation.

Reagan just goaded them to spend their way into oblivion.

Nineteen suicidal zealots for a few hundred thousand bucks not only killed 3,000 Americans, but put us on a path that mimics the one Reagan helped put the Soviet Union on.

Now the Chinese own us, and haven't fired a shot, and we have elected a government whose philosophy is arguably closer to Marx and Engel than to any of our Founding Fathers'.

I was taught that we had limited resources that could be used for "guns" or "butter," and that it is mathematically not possible to spend on one without reducing the amount available for the other.

Most of us personally have moral, economic, emotional and existential investments in participating in one of the above. It is almost impossible to admit to ourselves, that we might have been led by a system that manipulated us to its benefit.

I actively participated in and agreed with many of the above so I cannot claim any moral, intellectual or ethical superiority, just 20/20 hindsight and the experience of 70 years, 50 or so of the most recent, watching us slowly eat our future.

Things to think about.

Standards needed

Regarding the article by Jim Mullen Sunday, Feb. 26:

The basis of this article is the cost of private schools in New York City. It only deals with how much the wealthy have to spend. Their expenditure covers the cost of educating their children from kindergarten through 12th grade.

The article is biased, and once again it separates into groups, the wealthy versus the non-wealthy. What this article avoids is the establishment of educational standards.

Mullen also said, "The need for elite private schools is growing, regardless of the cost."

One of the needs is to provide for the overflow of students who do not pass the entrance exam to New York City special high schools.

Within the framework of their organizational chart, the administration of the NYC public school system provides for these special high schools. Every student about to enter high school may take the examination to enter one of these schools.

I have been told more than 20,000 take the entrance examinations. (About) 1,200 are taken for the start of a freshman class for each school. The remaining 19,000 more or less either remain in regular public high school or pay the tuition for private schools.

Money has nothing to do with these high schools. Students graduating from these schools have met the high standards set for entrance.

The rise and need for private schools from kindergarten through the 12th grade is not surprising. Yes, they are costly, but for parents who want the best for their children they will pay it. I only have personal knowledge with one such school. The prime subject matter that they are dealing with is education at the first level. Starting with the pedagogical aspects of teaching and then advance to the borderline teaching of adults in the 11th and 12th grades.

I remember reading in the paper when President Clinton's daughter went to, I believe it was California, she was enrolled in a private school known as the FRIENDS. They are well-known throughout the country.

MILWAUKEE — An official for an eastern Wisconsin city plagued this week by a series of unexplained booming sounds said the mystery can be attributed to a small early-morning earthquake.

Clintonville City Administrator Lisa Kuss told the community Thursday "the mystery is solved." She said the rumbling can be explained by a 1.5 magnitude earthquake that struck Tuesday and was confirmed by federal geologists Thursday.

She said representatives from the U.S. Geological Survey describe the cause as a swarm of several small earthquakes in a very short time.

While USGS geophysicist Paul Caruso told The Associated Press that loud booming noises have been known to accompany earthquakes, he said he's skeptical that such a small earthquake would produce the loud booms that shook many residents awake.

MEXICO CITY — The hacker group Anonymous in Mexico crashed at least two of the websites for Pope Benedict XVI's upcoming visit to Mexico on Thursday, claiming the papal visit is a political move to support the conservative National Action party.

Samuel Najera, spokesman for the Mexican Episcopal Conference, said its web page on the papal visit was blocked by "a cyber attack." "We have been aware of the threat that has been making the rounds on social networks, that was brought to fruition today," Najera said. "This is part of a dynamic these days of a lack of safety and acts of intolerance toward certain groups."

"For the moment, this does damage to the logistics" of the papal visit, Najera said.

The site contained information on the pope's planned activities starting Friday in the north-central state of Guanajuato, which is governed by President Felipe Calderon's National Action Party, or PAN.

Suspect killed after standoff in France

Seven slayings shock country

Associated Press

TOULOUSE, France — In a dramatic end to a 32-hour standoff, a masked French SWAT team slipped into the apartment of an Islamist extremist Thursday, sparking a firefight that ended with the suspect jumping out the window and being fatally shot in the head.

Mohamed Merah, 23, was wanted in the deaths of three French paratroopers, three Jewish schoolchildren and a rabbi — all killed since March 11 in what Merah reportedly told police was an attempt to "bring France to its knees."

Police had been trying to capture him alive since a predawn raid Wednesday to arrest him at his apartment in the southwestern city of Toulouse. The killings he was accused of — and boasted about to police — have shocked France, ignited fear in moderate Muslims about stoking discrimination and might even affect the country's upcoming presidential election.

The seven slayings, carried out in three motorcycle shooting attacks, are believed to be the first killings inspired by Islamic radical motives in France since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

French President Nicolas Sarkozy, speaking in Paris, said an investigation was under way to see if Merah, a French citizen of Algerian descent who claimed links to al-Qaida, had any accomplices.

His mother and a brother were detained Wednesday by police after the mother's computer became a critical link in tracking Merah down. The brother, Abdelkader had already been linked to Iraqi Islamist networks.

The SITE Intelligence Group, which monitors Internet messages, reported Thursday that a lesser-known jihadist group was claiming responsibility for the attacks in France. SITE said Jund al-Khilafah is-

Unhappy public not sure who to blame for high gas prices

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Families canceling vacations. Fishermen watching their profits burn up along with their boats' gasoline. Drivers buying only a few gallons of gas at a time because they can't afford to fill the tank.

From all corners of the country, Americans are irritated these days by record-high fuel prices that have soared above $4 a gallon in some states and could top $5 by summer. And the cost is becoming a political issue just as the presidential campaign kicks into high gear.

Some blame President Barack Obama. Some just cite "the government," while others believe it's the work of big, greedy oil companies. No matter who is responsible, almost everyone seems to want the government to do something, even if people aren't sure what, exactly, it should or can do.

A Gallup poll this month found 85 percent of U.S. adults believe the president and Congress "should take immediate actions to try to control the rising price of gas." An Associated Press-GfK poll last month showed 71 percent believe gas prices are a "very" or "extremely" important matter.

Chris Kaufman, who spends $120 a week on gas to travel the 60 miles between his two jobs, at the University of South Dakota in Sioux Falls and at a hotel in Vermillion, S.D., blames the price spike on threats from Iran to cut off oil shipments through the Strait of Hormuz.

GAS PRICES Q AND A

Q: What determines the price of gasoline?
A: Mainly, it's the price of crude oil, which is used to make gasoline. Oil is a global commodity, traded on exchanges around the world. The main U.S. oil benchmark has averaged $103 per barrel this year. The oil used to make gasoline at many U.S. coastal refineries has averaged $117 per barrel.

Q: How are gasoline prices set?
A: When an oil producer sells to a refiner, they generally agree to a price set on an exchange such as the New York Mercantile Exchange. After the oil is refined into gasoline, it is sold by the refiner to a distributor, again pegged to the price of wholesale gasoline on an exchange.

Finally, gas station owners set their own prices based on how much they paid for their last shipment, how much they will have to pay for their next shipment, and, perhaps most importantly, how much their competitor is charging. Gas stations make very little profit on the sale of gasoline.

Q: Are politicians to blame for high prices?
A: Politicians can't do much to affect gasoline prices because the market for oil is global. Allowing increased drilling in the U.S. would contribute only small amounts of oil to world supply, not nearly enough to affect prices.

Q: Are prices high because the world is running out of oil?
A: Not yet. Prices are high because there's not a lot of oil that can be quickly and easily brought to market to meet demand or potential supply disruptions from natural disasters or political turmoil.

—From wire reports

"I think the candidates running for president need to take a good hard look at that and determine what their foreign policy is going to be for countries that threaten to do that," he said. "It's going to affect every single citizen in the United States."

Still, he believes the president has little control over gas prices, adding that it is commodities traders who really dictate prices.

Trucker Cory Nissen of Ruther Glen, Va., agrees.

"The president is nothing but a fall guy," Nissen said as he took a break from his rig at a stop in Wilton, N.Y., earlier this week.

Nissen, who is paid by the mile, said he has seen his paychecks shrink because his employer has cut back delivery runs in reaction to the rising cost of fuel. "It needs to change and change quick," he said. "I got bills I got to pay, and half the time I can't pay them."

On the presidential campaign trail, Mitt

Romney called on Obama last weekend to fire his energy secretary, interior secretary and Environmental Protection Agency administrator, dubbing them "the gas-hike trio." Fellow Republican Newt Gingrich promised to roll the price of gas back to $2.50 a gallon if he is elected.

Obama mocked Gingrich's promise, saying, "They start acting like they've got a magic wand and will give you cheap gas forever if you elect us."

Amy Lis of Buffalo, N.Y., and her boyfriend canceled their vacation to Florida this spring in favor of a three-hour drive to Cleveland for an overnight stay and a visit to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Even that trip will cost more than $100 in gas.

"It's more than our hotel," she said as she filled up her boyfriend's Ford Ranger pickup.

In truth, there is not a lot the president and Congress can do in the short term to push down gasoline prices. They are tied to oil prices, which have climbed in recent months, pushed by increased consumption from developing nations in Asia, Latin America and the Middle East and by concerns about supply disruptions in Iran and elsewhere.

Mike Siroub, who has operated a Union Oil station in the Los Angeles suburb of Arcadia for 25 years, said customers who used to fill up their tanks now put in just $10 or $20 at a time, telling him that that's all they can afford and that they are driving less or using more fuel-efficient cars.

Politics places Etch A Sketch back in picture

Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio — Pushed to the bottom of the toy box by video games and other high-tech gadgets, Etch A Sketch is suddenly drawing lots of attention, thanks to a gaffe that has shaken up the race for the White House.

Ohio Art Co., maker of the classic baby boomer toy, is sending a big box of Etch A Sketches to the presidential campaigns to say thanks for the publicity and a boost in sales.

It all started when Mitt Romney strategist Eric Fehrstrom was asked Wednesday about the candidate's politics now versus next fall, and he likened the campaign to an Etch A Sketch: "You can kind of shake it up and we start all over again."

Democrats and Republicans alike seized on the remark as evidence that Romney is a flip-flopper willing to alter his positions for political gain.

GOP rival Newt Gingrich told voters in Louisiana that "having an Etch A Sketch as your campaign model raises every doubt about where we're going." Rick Santorum brandished an Etch A Sketch and told voters he is a candidate who stands "firmly on the rocks of freedom, not on the sands of an Etch A Sketch toy." Santorum's staff also handed out miniature Etch A Sketches to reporters.

While Romney's opponents are hoping the remark will erase his momentum and reframe the debate, the biggest winner might be Ohio Art.

Its stock, which trades over the counter, nearly tripled Thursday, closing at $9.65, and major stores reported a jump in sales, said chairman Bill Killgallon.

"We're proud that one of our products is shaking up the debate," he said.

Ohio Art has sold more than 100 million Etch A Sketches worldwide since its introduction in 1960. The toy, with its familiar gray screen and bright-red frame, allows youngsters to draw things by twisting two white knobs. A quick shake erases the image and lets you start over.

Etch A Sketches were made in Ohio until 2000, when the company moved production to China because of increasing costs.

Braves' Jones retiring after season

Third baseman regarded as one of best switch-hitters

ATLANTA — Flanked by his family, his former manager and a group of teammates he hates to leave behind, Chipper Jones choked up a bit and delivered the news that's been looming

Atlanta third baseman Chipper Jones said he is retiring after the upcoming season, in part to spend more time with his three kids.

Associated Press

for years:

It's time to call it a career. This time, he means it.

With his 40th birthday approaching and a long string of injuries slowing him down, Jones announced Thursday he will retire after one more season as the Atlanta Braves' third baseman.

"I have fulfilled everything," Jones said during a news conference at the team's spring training stadium in Kissimmee, Fla. "There's nothing left for me to do."

Jones, who has spent his entire 18-year career with Atlanta, actually planned to retire after the 2010 season, only to change his mind. As he battled leg issues this spring, he openly wondered if he'd be able to make it through the season.

So, he'll give it one more year with the Braves, then become a full-time dad to his three children.

"I just want to make it final," Jones said.

He praised the Braves organization, calling Bobby Cox "the greatest manager any of us will ever know," thanked team executives John Schuerholz and Frank Wren for building a perennial winner and fought back tears as he turned to his teammates.

"I've been thinking about this and the reason I stayed around is you guys," Jones said. "I played on teams where clubhouse cohesion wasn't there. That never happened with you guys."

SEAN ARNOLD

CRYSTAL RIVER — The Crystal River baseball team got six hits and drew three walks in the first two innings to jump out to a 6-1 early lead on the way to capturing a 10-2 victory over Citrus on Thursday.

Sophomore catcher Mason Pateracki had three hits, including an RBI double, and senior shortstop Weston Pope added two hits and two walks for Crystal River (11-3). Pirates junior Michael Kidd also reached base four times — with four walks — and scored three runs.

Pirates coach Bobby Stack was proud of his club's hitting success against off-speed pitching following its recent struggles in that department.

"Over spring break we had a couple games where we didn't hit very well against off-speed guys," Stack said, "but tonight I think we adjusted well and I was happy to see the way we handled it."

Pirates starting pitcher Tyler Humphreys — a senior who collected the win — and senior Donnie Dewees combined to strike out five 'Canes and allow four hits as each tossed a pair of innings. Crystal River senior Weston Pope yielded two hits and one earned run in the final three innings.

Citrus senior center fielder John Smith (2 for 2, a walk) did lift Citrus spirits some with a sixth-inning solo home run over the 360-foot sign in straight-away center.

Citrus girls tennis downs Lecanto

 Correspondent

LECANTO — Missing its No. 3, 4 and 5 singles players, the Lecanto High School girls tennis team promoted its No. 6, 7 and 8 girls up to take on visiting Citrus in the teams' second matchup of the season. Despite a strong showing from the promoted Panthers, Citrus still found a way to eke out a 4-3 victory and sweep its county rivals on the season.

Two of Lecanto's three wins came from their

No. 1 and No. 3 singles, Amber Gamble and Adrienne Burnett respectively. Gamble defeated Citrus' Sarah Labrador in a pro-set, taking the match 8-4. Burnett, who has been a solid fixture in Lecanto's No. 2 doubles pairing, found herself in the No. 3 spot taking on Citrus' Jaelyn Ear. It was hard fought, but Burnett walked away with an 8-1 victory.

Citrus' Lena Martone and Taylor Jordan brought home wins for their squads, as they took on Lecanto's Kim Hafner and Megan Jervis respectively. Martone scored a tough win over Hafner, taking the set 8-5, while Jordan took her pro-set against Jervis 8-1.

Both Hafner and Jervis, along with Burnett, stepped up in place of Chynna Liu, Polak Gosai and Simi Shah.

INVERNESS — The Lecanto Panthers boys tennis team looked poised and in control Thursday night as they plowed through the Citrus Hurricanes 7-0 for a shutout win.

"We're coming along," Lecanto head coach Jack Hall said. "We seem to be peaking at the right time of the season, which is a good confidence builder for the (team) with the districts tournament in about three weeks."

Lecanto's Zach Alford and Rishi Gurnani took the No. 1 doubles match 8-7, 6-2 over Citrus' Kyle Everett and Grey Pospiech. Sam Alford and INVERNESS — When Derek Nelson runs the hurdles, it's easy to pick out the Citrus High senior. He is 6-foot-5, very tall for a hurdler.

His height doesn't bother him, though.

"It helps," he said. "Getting over the hurdles is a lot easier. My height gives me a little bit of an advantage. I don't usually trip over the hurdles."

"I started hurdles in seventh grade at Inverness Middle."

Behind Nelson's leadership, the Citrus High boys won the team title with 115.5 points. Crystal River was second with 79.5 points. Lecanto was third with 66 points and Seven Rivers Christian had two points.

"They all did real well today," Citrus boys coach James Martone said.

The Lecanto High girls won the title with 109 points. Crystal River was second with 73 points and Citrus was third with 58 points. Seven Rivers had 18 points.

The meet was the Doug Patton Memorial Track and Field Meet held at the Citrus Bowl. The meet was named in honor of the beloved late Citrus High track coach. Proceeds from the meet were to go to local scholarships.

Nelson is hoping to take a trip to the FHSAA state meet in April.

"I enjoy it," he said of his reasoning for doing hurdles. "I am good at it so that's a reason to run it. I have experience at it."

"It has been a goal of mine since I was a freshman," he said. "As a senior, you should be attending state. It would be a great

Field Day showcases abilities

Special to the Chronicle

More than 350 Citrus County developmentally disabled children and adults will compete in a variety of athletic events on Wednesday, March 28, at Crystal River High School. The event begins at 10:15 a.m. and admission is free.

The public is invited to attend as spectators or volunteers. Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Homosassa Springs, with the assistance from many other volunteer groups and area businesses, the 26th Annual Citrus County Field Day provides athletic experiences for students at CREST School and adults at the Key Training Center.

"Citrus County Field Day is a wonderful experience. The joy shown on the faces of the participants as they cross the finish line, whether they are first or last, is the same — a priceless expression of total excitement which is true for the volunteers and spectators as well," said Mike Stokley, past president of Kiwanis.

Cherished medals are awarded and T-shirts are given to each of the athletes by the Kiwanis Club. Overall, the day provides a fun, competitive experience that creates treasured memories.

Track events include: 25-yard walk, 25-yard run, 25-yard wheelchair race, 50-yard walk, 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 440-yard relay race, and three-wheel bicycle race.

Field events include: Frisbee throw, soccer kick, softball throw and a putting challenge. Most events occur on the Crystal River High School track and football field. The athletes all compete in one track and one field event. For athletes unable to compete outdoors, there is bowling and a basketball throw indoors.

Citrus County Field Day kicks off with the Parade of Athletes. The athletes are led around the track by Crystal River High School's marching band, and an honor guard composed of the high school's Navy Junior ROTC color guard. Track and field events begin at 10:30 a.m.

In case of rain, Citrus County Field Day will be held March 29 at the same time and location. Crystal River High School is located north of State Road 44 on Northeast Eighth Avenue in Crystal River. For more information about Citrus County Field Day, please contact Jim Harris at (352) 382-1470.

YOUTH BRIEF

Local Little League receives defibrillator

The Central Citrus Little League took time at its opening ceremonies March 3 to say thank you to a local business.

Citrus Cardiology Consultants was the recipient of a plaque and the thanks of the baseball community for its donation of an automated external defibrillator, or AED, for the fields at Central Ridge Park in Lecanto. Central Citrus Little League is one of only a handful of leagues in Florida to own an AED.

An AED is a portable electronic device that, when properly applied, can diagnose and treat potentially life-threatening cardiac arrhythmias and make life-saving treatments from an automated, self-contained unit.

Very little training is necessary to effectively assist a patient in cardiac arrest, and when used in conjunction with 911, a patient's chances of survival are greatly improved.

Inverness swim team resurrected

Special to the Chronicle

The City of Inverness Parks and Recreation Department and Aquatics Coordinator John Hodgdon are proud to announce the opening of Whispering Pines Pool at Whispering Pines Park on Monday, April 2. The pool will be open until Sept. 30.

This year will be an exciting and fun-filled year for the Whispering Pines Pool. The city is proud to announce that the Inverness Swim Team Stingrays will be swimming again this year under the coaching of Kurt Lynn, who was coach from 2002-2009.

Lynn is happy to announce that all children interested in swimming as a competitive sport are encouraged to come down for try-outs and meet him on several days (April 9, 16, 23 and 30) from 5:15 p.m. until 6 p.m. The team will be looking to provide swim experience, skills and fun throughout the summer season, with an emphasis on having fun.

The team will also compete in several meets against other teams in the Kingdom of the Sun League. This league promotes swimmers learning to swim to build their skills, learn about competitive swimming and still have fun.

Lynn likes to promote a different type of swimming fun with a smile on everyone's face, including the parents. Lynn has a vast experience of swimming knowledge and experience including swimming Alcatraz in San Francisco, New York Harbor and several other open-water swims and triathlons.

The team will begin practicing from 5 to 6 p.m. Wednesday, May 2, and will continue on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays until the end of July. In addition to the IST Youth League, the Whispering Pines Pool is happy to announce that the Adult Lap Swim is returning as well with more hours.

The Adult Lap Swim team is made up of adults who are interested in swimming to promote physical fitness, training, swim skills or are looking to improve their swimming for triathlons, races or open-water swims. Again, the emphasis is on having fun while accomplishing the goals of each swimmer.

Lynn will be on hand during the Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening practices to assist each swimmer with his or her stroke, endurance and the ability to accomplish that swimmers individual needs. The adult lap swimmers will also share the excitement and participation of doing extra events such as swimming the Rainbow River and swimming in other open waters for fun.

The hours for that will be from 6 to 7 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Additional lap swim hours will be available as well with paid fees.

In the spring, the additional time is from 2 to 3 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. In the summer, it will be from 2-3 p.m. Monday to Friday and from 3 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. In the fall, it will revert back to the spring schedule.

There will be a special meeting for the AAA swimmers with Lynn and Hodgdon on March 28 at 5:30 p.m. at the Whispering Pines Pool to discuss any questions related to workouts, meet the staff or see the pool center.

The city of Inverness will also be holding three one-week junior lifeguard camps this summer. The cost is $50 and space is limited.

Swim lesson registration will begin in April and registration is now being accepted for Water Safety Instructor classes. The cost is $200 to learn how to teach swimming and water safety.

The water fitness classes start April 2 and will cost $35 per month.

Louisville ends Spartans' run; Syracuse hangs on

Associated Press

PHOENIX — Gorgui Dieng swatted away the West Region's top seed to send Rick Pitino into another regional final.

Chane Behanan scored 15 points and Dieng anchored Louisville's stifling defense with seven blocked shots, helping the Cardinals knock off top-seeded Michigan State 57-44 Thursday night in the West Regional semifinals.

Louisville (29-9) smothered the NCAA tournament's best-shooting team with its matchup zone, getting good pressure from its guards up top and some big swats by Dieng, one of the nation's top shot-blockers.

The Cardinals relied on 3-point shooting in the first half and went inside the second to befuddle the Spartans, earning a trip to the West final against Marquette or Florida on Saturday.

Michigan State (29-8) started slow and never got going against Louisville's amoebic defense, shooting 28 percent while being outscored 20-14 inside by the leaner Cardinals.

Dieng finished with five points, nine rebounds and had three steals. Peyton Siva overcame a rough shooting night — four points on 2-of-9 shooting — with nine assists.

Draymond Green had 13 points and 16 rebounds in his final game for Michigan State and Brandon Wood added 14 points.

This sweet matchup of top programs featured two of college basketball's best short-preparation coaches.

Pitino has used his speed-the-opponent-up system to reach the Final Four five times, becoming the first coach to lead three different

No. 1 Syracuse 64, No. 4 Wisconsin 63

BOSTON — C.J. Fair broke out of a scoring slump with 15 points and top-seeded Syracuse held on for a 64-63 victory over fourth-seeded Wisconsin in the East Regional semifinals.

The Badgers had two shots at the win after Kris Joseph, a 75 percent free-throw shooter, missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with 18.9 seconds left and the Orange leading by a point. Jordan Taylor came down and missed a 3-pointer with 3 seconds left and Josh Gasser's desperation shot from the corner was off, at the buzzer.

Scoop Jardine added 14 points for the Orange (34-2), who advance to play Ohio State or Cincinnati in the regional final Saturday.

Taylor and Jared Berggren both had 17 points for the Badgers (26-10). Wisconsin, which made 14 3-pointers in the game, missed its last five from beyond the arc after hitting six straight during one stretch of the second half.

TAMPA — Teddy Purcell scored in the sixth round of a shootout, and Tom Pyatt had two goals in regulation in Tampa Bay's 3-2 victory over Edmonton on Thursday night.

Steven Stamkos and Martin St. Louis also scored in the extra session.

Ladislav Smid pulled Edmonton even at 2 with 3:47 left in regulation with his first goal in 38 games.

Penguins 5, Predators 1

PITTSBURGH — Evgeni Malkin scored twice, James Neal had four assists and the Pittsburgh Penguins clinched a playoff spot with a 5-1 victory over the Nashville Predators.

Chris Kunitz, Matt Cooke and Pascal Dupuis also scored to help Pittsburgh pull within a point of the New York Rangers for the top spot in the Eastern Conference with nine games remaining. Marc-Andre Fleury made 29 saves for his NHL-leading 40th victory.

Pittsburgh captain Sidney Crosby was held without a goal for the 12th straight game and failed to score a point, but it hardly stopped the Penguins from winning their ninth straight home game.

Flyers 2, Capitals 1, SO

PHILADELPHIA — Matt Read and Wayne Simmonds scored shootout goals to lift Philadelphia past Washington.

Claude Giroux scored his 27th goal for the Flyers, and Alex Ovechkin had his 33rd for the Caps.

Read scored on the first shot of the shootout against Braden Holtby, and Matt Hendricks beat Ilya Bryzgalov on Washington's first attempt. Giroux and Ovechkin were both denied and another round came up empty for both teams.

Wi, Dufner co-lead at PGA Tour's Bay Hill

Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. — Charlie Wi felt a lot better walking off the golf course compared with his last round.

So did Tiger Woods. Coming off a final round at Immisbrook in which he made a 13 on one hole, Wi hit an 8-iron over the water to 6 feet for birdie on the 18th for a 6-under 66, giving him a share of the lead with Jason Dufner on Thursday in the Arnold Palmer Invitational.

It's the fourth time Dufner has been atop the leaderboard after a round during the Florida swing — except that none of those rounds has been Sunday.

The last time Woods was seen on the PGA Tour, he was being driven away in a golf cart after withdrawing in the middle of the final round at Doral with soreness and swelling in his left Achilles tendon.

Woods, a six-time champion at Bay Hill, shot a 69 without breaking a sweat, much less breaking any body parts. There was nothing particularly special about this round, except for a 30-foot birdie putt that swirled around the cup at the 15th, and a couple of three-putt bogeys that kept his score from being lower.

Phil Mickelson was all over the place, going from a bunker to a magnolia tree on his way to an unlikely par; hitting a tee shot out of bounds for double bogey; hitting into the water for another double bogey; and somehow escaping with a 73.

LPGA Tour

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Top-ranked Yani Tseng shot a 5-under 67 on Thursday for a share of the first-round lead with Ji Young Oh and Caroline Hedwall in the Kia Classic.

Tseng finished with a birdie on the par-4 ninth after dropping a stroke on the par-3 eighth.

The 23-year-old Taiwanese star won the LPGA Founders Cup on Sunday in Phoenix for her 14th LPGA Tour title and second in four events this year. She led the tour last season with seven victories — including major victories in the LPGA Championship and Women's British Open — and finished the year with 12 worldwide titles.

Oh, a two-time LPGA Tour winner who fought a hip injury the last two seasons, also had six birdies and a bogey on La Costa's Legends Course. Hedwall had seven birdies and two bogeys.

Suzann Pettersen, Jiyai Shin, Brittany Lincicome and Jennifer Johnson were a stroke back.

Michelle Wie opened with a 77.

European Tour

AGADIR, Morocco — Ireland's Damien McGrane shot

a 7-under 65 to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the European Tour's Hassan II Trophy.

Spain's Alejandro Canizares was second at Golf du Palais Royal, the Robert Trent Jones Sr.-designed course that sits inside the walls of the Royal Palace of Agadir. Other than the tournament, the course is used only by King Mohammed VI and his guests.

England's Robert Rock, needing to finish first or second in to make the top 50 in the world and assure a spot in the Masters, had a 77. He had an 11 on the par-4 fourth hole.

John Daly also opened with a 77.

Warriors rout Cougars

DAVE PIEKLIK

HOMOSASSA — Seven Rivers Christian School's baseball team bounced back from back-to-back shutout losses with a total team effort Thursday night during an 11-4 win against Cornerstone Academy of Gainesville.

The Warriors (2-3) got plenty of run support for starting pitcher Adam Gage and reserve Cory Weiland, who combined for 12 strikeouts and a four-hitter over the Cougars (4-7). Gage registered five strikeouts against three walks, while hitting a home run and double in a 2-for-4 night at the plate.

Weiland came into the game in the fifth inning, striking out seven Cougars and giving up an earned run while helping snuff a bases-loaded, sixth-inning rally attempt by Cornerstone. The inning exemplified the defense Seven Rivers saw almost all game.

"That's probably the best our defense has ever looked," Gage said. "We played excellent."

Gage was in control virtually all game, targeting both sides of the plate with a deceptive curveball and a fast-ball carrying a lot of velocity. Though the Cougars' Adam Dagen struggled at times with control, he still kept his team close and finished with one strikeout and three walks. Teammate Nick Barkley went 2-for-4 from the plate, stealing second base and scoring a run early in the game.

Seven Rivers' Sam Jones and John Iwaniec each knocked in two runs; Iwaniec also had two steals. Coach Ben Crofchick said the team needed the win after two demoralizing losses, and added that while pitching has always been strong, defense has not.

"The biggest difference tonight is the pitchers had more support. They had better defense behind them," he said.

CRYSTAL RIVER — A pair of winless softball teams took to the field Thursday night at Bicentennial Park looking for their first victory of the 2012 campaign. It was the Seven Rivers Christian Warriors that came out on top as they crushed the Cornerstone Cougars of Gainesville by a 21-1 score.

"I'm proud of the girls, and they played well," Warriors coach Gary Dreyer said. "We're just hoping to carry the momentum to tomorrow night's game."

The Warriors (1-8) scored 13 runs in the bottom of the first inning as they batted through the lineup twice with their lead-off hitter Alexis King coming to the plate three times. Seven Rivers scored on three wild pitches and three errors.

Tessa Kacer had a two-run triple, and Alexis King had a two-run double. Katie Dreyer added an RBI walk and Katie Fenton and Allison Green added RBI infield singles.

Substitutions were made in the bottom of the second inning by Seven Rivers. Kim Strong and Bryar Kreger had RBI walks. Jasmine Fisher and Sofia Leon added fielder's choice RBIs for a 17-1 advantage.

King added an RBI infield single to make it 18-1, and Kim Strong had an RBI walk for a 19-1 lead.

Kacer had six strikeouts in the game.

"It was good to finally win and see everybody play," Kacer said. "It was my first win as a pitcher."

NBA BRIEFS

Celtics 100, Bucks 91

MILWAUKEE — Paul Pierce scored 25 points to help the Boston Celtics snap the Milwaukee Bucks' six-game winning streak 100-91.

Kevin Garnett had 16 points and 10 rebounds and Mickael Pietrus scored 13 points for the Celtics, who were playing their seventh game on an eight-game road trip.

Pacers 85, Wizards 83

WASHINGTON — David West grabbed three offensive rebounds in the final 70 seconds, Darren Collison made a key steal of an inbounds pass, and Paul George's 3-pointer with 1:01 to play gave the Indiana Pacers their first lead of the game, completing a 22-point comeback for an 85-83 win over the Washington Wizards.

The Pacers effectively kept the ball away from the Wizards in the game's final minute until Washington got one final possession with 9.5 seconds to play. John Wall, trying to find room for an open shot, essentially dribbled out the clock, making a would-be-tying 12-footer after the horn had sounded.

LECANTO

Lloyd Justo of Lecanto also won at No. 2 doubles 7-5, 6-1 over Citrus' Guy Harris and Tyler McIntosh.

The No. 1 singles match was hard fought between Citrus' Everett and Lecanto's Gurnani but ultimately went Gurnani's way with the 6-2, 6-3 win.

Zach Alford's No. 2 singles match went much the same for Lecanto as Alford defeated Harris 6-2, 6-2.

The Panthers' Sam Alford came very close to shutting out the Hurricanes' Pospiech in the No. 3 singles before claiming a 6-1, 6-0 decision.

Lecanto's Justo won his No. 4 singles match 6-4, 6-1 over Tyler McIntosh in straight sets.

Dale Eastmond of Lecanto claimed victory in the No. 5 singles match over Michael Hetland, 6-4, 6-2 to clinch a perfect Panthers shutout.

"It's been about two weeks since we (last played)," Citrus head coach David Assumpeao said of the loss. "We came unprepared (and it was) physically challenging and mentally challenging at the same time. Lecanto did their job (and) they played very well."

'CANES

evening came by way of their No. 2 doubles pairing of Jaclyn Ear and Melanie Dodd. The two took on first-time team Burnett and Hafner, with Citrus taking the set 8-2. Dodd also won her singles match earlier against Lecanto's Madison Gamble, taking the set 8-1.

She was happy with her performance, as well as her doubles partner, Jaclyn Ear, for being able to pull out the victory.

"I just played my hardest out there, and did what I needed to to win," Dodd said. "The match came down to mine and Jackie's match, and I'm proud of her and how we were able to pull it off. She played really well."

The final match played on the evening was the No. 1 doubles pairing of Lecanto's Amber and Madison Gamble and Citrus' Labrador and Martone. After Citrus took the early lead, Lecanto battled back to take a two-game lead that eventually led to an 8-6 victory.

AFFAIR

"Maybe John can jump-start us a little bit," Citrus baseball coach Brady Bogart said. "He's swung the bat well the last three games. When he wants to go to left-center and slow down the lower-half of his body with his fast hands, he's going to be fine."

Senior pitcher Eric Nelson started for the 'Canes (8-

5) before Brooks Brasher took over in the second inning, when the Pirate lineup batted around for four runs. Junior Trevor Cypret relieved Brasher in the fifth after Crystal River added two more runs off three walks and a two-run single to right by Dewees.

Pateracki was elated over the performance against the cross-county rival. "It was a big game and we were pumped up and excited," he said. Bogart discussed his club's troubles at the plate, afterward.

"Eric wasn't on, so we knew he'd have to battle, and right now we're not hitting well enough to win (this) type of ballgame," he said. "We were attacking earlier in the season, but we're not being aggressive enough at the plate."

We need to learn from Crystal River and their aggressiveness," Bogart continued. "Pateracki went 3-for-4 and maybe saw six total pitches."

Playing for keeps

Associated Press

Martin Truex Jr. (56) drives next to Brian Vickers (55) last Sunday during the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series Food City 500 in Bristol, Tenn. Truex, Clint Bowyer, and Vickers — all with Michael Waltrip Racing — made a three-four-five finish to round out the top five. Not bad for a team that had only four top-five finishes during all of last season.

Early optimism at MWR as team makes push for the big time

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Michael Waltrip Racing made a commitment last season to become a player in NASCAR's top series — an effort that would require more money, more people and a change in philosophy for the entire organization.

The team isn't ready to declare mission accomplished, but its strong showing last weekend at Bristol Motor Speedway proved MWR is headed in the right direction. Martin Truex Jr. finished third on Sunday, Clint Bowyer was fourth and Brian Vickers, in his first start of the year, finished fifth.

Three cars in the top five, for a team that had four top-fives all of last year. And, through the first month of the season, MWR has seven top-10 finishes. Last year's total? 15.

Truex credited team owners Waltrip and Rob Kauffman for pushing the organization to be better and enlisting manufacturer Toyota for help.

"Michael and Rob really took a step back as an organization ... kind of restructuring how we did things," Truex said. "We started building some new cars. ... Toyota had a lot of influence on the direction we headed. Really kind of started from scratch almost."

Among the wholesale changes made to the organization was the addition of Scott Miller, who left his job as competition director for Richard Childress Racing.

The organization expanded to three cars by signing Clint Bowyer, whom Miller had worked with at RCR, and crew chief Brian Pattie. And, in a move that was somewhat controversial at the time, the owners told David Reutimann with less than a month to go in the season that he was being let go at the end of the year.

Mark Martin, one of the most respected drivers in NASCAR history, signed on to run 26 races in Reutimann's car.

Although the upgrades have helped tremendously, Miller doesn't believe the team had all that far to go.

"I was very, very pleasantly surprised with what I found when I came in the door," he said. "Obviously, there are still things we are working on, but MWR was not in bad shape at all when I got here. They had started working on new cars and new chassis in the summer. We just needed to clean up and get a little more efficient at what we do."

It's still a long way from the beginning, when MWR launched amid much fanfare in 2007 only for Waltrip to fall flat on his face. He was embroiled in a cheating scandal at season-opening Daytona 500, struggled to get any of MWR's cars into races and quickly ran out of money.

Kauffman, an investment fund manager and racing enthusiast, saved the team later that year when he bought into the organization and pumped in the cash Waltrip needed to stay afloat.

Although the team stayed in business, it struggled to compete with the NASCAR elites.

MWR has yet to put a driver in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship, and Reutimann's two victories — the rain-shortened Coca-Cola 600 in 2009 and at Chicago in 2010 — are the only wins for the organization.

So the decision to be better was made, and it began in earnest last summer when MWR began building new cars. Once they hit the track, Truex's results picked up and he closed the year with a third-place finish — behind champion Tony Stewart and runner-up Carl Edwards — in the season finale at Homestead.

"He was definitely a factor at Homestead. We beat everybody except the two who were going for the championship," Miller said. "Martin started showing up in the results column, and if not, he showed up in the competitive column."

Bowyer, who called Sunday a "heck of a day for MWR," said the way Truex closed out last season has carried into this year for the organization.

"These MWR cars have been good ever since Truex was running good at the end of last year," he said.

The addition of Martin, who has 40 career Cup wins and is a five-time championship runner-up, can't be overlooked. He provides valuable input in weekly competition meetings and is a sounding board for anyone who needs an ear.

"Probably one of the things that he's brought is confidence in the team," Truex said. "When he comes in there and says, 'Man, I really like these race cars, I like what you guys are doing,' I think that makes a pretty big impact. He hasn't been there very long. When he says you've got good race cars, he gives you team good direction."

Miller finds value in what Martin can offer beyond setups and strategy.

"It's just nice to have somebody with that many years in the sport and that much wisdom," Miller said. "I will talk to him more about the philosophy of what to do with the company more than the car or the setup. He's able to relay all the things he's seen from different teams over the years, and that's the things I talk to Mark about."

Stella McCartney shows off her designs for UK's 2012 team

Associated Press

LONDON — How many ways can you stretch Britain's red, white and blue Union Jack over finely toned Olympic athletes?

Ask Stella McCartney. The famed designer unveiled her ideas for Britain's Olympians on Thursday with uniforms that made imaginative use of the familiar flag. The designs, a closely guarded secret for months, were shown at the Tower of London in a gala event that combined fashion's razzle-dazzle with the star quality of top Olympic competitors.

Out with rail-thin fashion models, in with real Olympic stars.

McCartney, who is serving as Adidas' creative director for the Summer Games, said she hoped both competitors and the British public like the uniforms and are proud of the athletes who will wear them at the Olympics and the Paralympics.

"The basic message is to unify the team," McCartney told The Associated Press backstage after the show. "The athletes all want to feel like one team. The other big starting point for me was the Union flag, an iconic flag, I think every Briton is so proud of it, but I wanted to look at it in a different way."

McCartney said instead of simply using the flag in its traditional form she broke it up and used various elements in an original way.

"I wanted to make it slightly more delicate and feminine, while still keeping the masculinity in some ways," she said.

Britain isn't the only team that has pressed a top designer into duty — Ralph Lauren is working on some outfits for the U.S. team, and Giorgio Armani is lending his skills to the Italian Olympians.

One challenge for McCartney was to incorporate the latest technological improvements and fabric developments into the designs without sacrificing her aesthetic goals.

"My first question for the athletes was, 'What can I do for you?'" she said. "This isn't about me; it's about Team Great Britain. They all said 'we need the technology.'"

That mean some of the artistic imagery had to be toned down.

"There are seams you can't mess up, there's tons of things, home and away kits, in gymnastics you have to have symmetry or you're marked down," McCartney said. "But it's been an incredible journey."

Triple jumper Phillips Idowu said it felt great to don the new uniform.

"All eyes will be watching London 2012 so every little detail matters," he said. "I love what Stella has done with the design."

He said the handsome designs and modern technology will provide a competitive boost.

"Looking good is psychologically important but my sprint suit is also technically advanced, so not only do I look good but I also have confidence in the technology."

The clothing included competition uniforms, training wear, a presentation suit, footwear and accessories.

British athletes who modeled the new gear included heptathlete Jessica Ennis, rowing champion Pete Reed and double Paralympic swimming gold medalist Ellie Simmonds.

Meet North Korea accordionists behind A-ha moment

Associated Press

PYONGYANG, North Korea — Five teenagers in school uniforms hold accordions. On the wall is a giant painting of the secret mountain hideout of their nation's founder, Kim Il Sung. Small red stickers on their instruments mark them as gifts from Kim Jong Il.

Yes, this is North Korea. But as they grind their accordions into song, what comes out is no somber ode to either of the late leaders. Instead, as more than 1.5 million YouTube viewers already know, it's one of the poppiest of 1980s pop songs, A-ha's "Take on Me."

The three young men and two women perform with gusto, swaying to the music, tapping their accordions and clapping their hands overhead. Their catchy cover, recorded in December, became a sensation as it challenged the world's preconceptions about North Koreans.

After taking their arrangement to Norway to perform at an Arctic arts festival, lead player Choe Hyang Hwa and fellow band members gave The Associated Press a peek into their lives at the Kumsong school in Pyongyang.

Students rehearse with accordions Feb. 25 in a practice room at the Kumsong school in Pyongyang, North Korea. A group from the school became an Internet sensation with their accordion version of 1980s pop group A-ha's "Take on Me."

Outside, a gaggle of students marched across the school yard in twos, arms thrown around one another and lunch pails swinging from their hands. They walked past a huge mosaic depicting North Korea's founder, Kim Il Sung, and his son and successor, Kim Jong Il, with students working at computer terminals.

Elsewhere, students in a classroom with portraits of the two late leaders above the blackboard sat hunched over scores, tapping fingers and pencils as they practiced singing classical European songs.

And then there was the "Take on Me" quintet, who happily took up their seats on white stools to re-enact their famous performance. Most North Koreans don't have access to YouTube because of tight government restrictions.

Lead accordionist Choe, a 17-year-old army officer's daughter from the border city of Kaesong, said the students study in the morning, and then practice the accordion in the afternoon. In one classroom, they gathered around a laptop computer with scores and notebooks. Later, one student chatted on a cell phone as the rest passed around plates of food: tofu, sausages, boiled eggs and oranges.

Norwegian artist Morten Traavik, who recorded the video during a trip to the school, said the performance hints at how much outsiders don't know about North Koreans.

"For many it is a revelation that North Koreans open up and play Western pop music with such great joy," he said last month.

"My idea is to challenge our perceptions of North Koreans, which is extremely negative and stigmatized," he said. "Like other people, they are proud of their country and nature."

Today in HISTORY

Today is Friday, March 23, the 83rd day of 2012. There are 283 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On March 23, 2011, Academy Award-winning actress Elizabeth Taylor, the violet-eyed film goddess whose sultry screen persona, stormy personal life and enduring fame and glamour made her one of the last of the classic movie stars, died in Los Angeles of congestive heart failure at age 79.

On this date:

In 1775, Patrick Henry delivered an address to the Virginia Provincial Convention in which he is said to have declared, "Give me liberty, or give me death!"

In 1806, explorers Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, having reached the Pacific coast, began their journey back east.

In 1942, the first Japanese-Americans evacuated by the U.S. Army during World War II arrived at the internment camp in Manzanar, Calif.

In 1965, America's first two-person space flight began as Gemini 3 blasted off with astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young aboard for a nearly five-hour flight.

In 2010, President Barack Obama signed a $938 billion health care overhaul, declaring "a new season in America."

Ten years ago: Girls in Afghanistan celebrated their return to school for the first time in years.

Five years ago: The House voted for the first time to clamp a cutoff deadline on the Iraq war, agreeing by a thin margin to pull combat troops out by late 2008.

One year ago: NATO ships began patrolling off Libya's coast as airstrikes, missiles and energized rebels forced Moammar Gadhafi's tanks to roll back from two key western cities.

Today's Birthdays: Comedian Marty Allen is 90. Sir Roger Bannister, the runner who broke the 4-minute mile in 1954, is 83. Movie director Mark Rydell is 78. Singer-producer Ric Ocasek is 63. Singer Chaka Khan is 59. Actress Amanda Plummer is 55. Actress Catherine Keener is 53. Actress Hope Davis is 48. Comedian John Pinette is 48.

Thought for Today:

"When people say, 'She's got everything,' I've got one answer — I haven't had tomorrow." — Elizabeth Taylor (1932-2011).

Today's HOROSCOPE

Birthday — Partly due to the influences of two entrepreneurs who are likely to be entering your life in the year ahead, you'll be far more enterprising and resourceful than you've been in the past. You'll thrive on doing things their way.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Strong determination and fierce boldness make you a force to be reckoned with. Apply this strength to a specific objective and there will be no doubt about achieving success.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — In your own unpretentious but bold way, you'll get far more done than those who strut and boast about their big intentions. Tenacity is your secret strength.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — One of your best means for achieving success is your ability to see positive elements in all situations, regardless of the negatives involved. You're likely to put this quality to good use.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — In order to accomplish your aims, you'll need to be far more assertive than usual. Fortunately, you'll instinctively know how much pressure to apply without looking pushy.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — You're likely to have exceptionally strong opinions, and you won't be bashful about expressing them either. Woe betide those who try to stand up and oppose your views.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Although you're in an excellent cycle as regards earning capacity, it won't be so when it comes to handling your funds. Take care not to spend everything all at once.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Your strong inner resolve could make you more overpowering than you intend when dealing with others. Guard against inclinations to dominate everything and everybody.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Unless you use your time industriously and productively, your feelings of self-worth will be greatly diminished. Make sure that whatever you engage in has purpose and value.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — If your social life has been exceptionally boring lately, it may be time to look for new playgrounds as well as new playmates. A change would do you good, as the song says.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — When you're unhappy, you tend to take it out on your loved ones, who accept your rude behavior with little consequence to you. However, think about what you're doing to them.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — If you find your usual activities to be a bit boring, seek some close pals who are stimulating thinkers.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Temporarily shelve mundane activities and make this a profitable day by seeking out objectives that are of a financial or material nature.

Youthful bands take stage at Teenstock

Proceeds from 'Kids Helping kids' event benefit Big Brothers Big Sisters

SAMANTHA KENNEDY
Special to the Chronicle

Seven teenage acts are ready to kick off the weekend on a good note.

The annual TeenStock concert is all about the theme of "Kids Helping Kids" as the musical event benefits Big Brothers Big Sisters.

The band that started it all, Virtual Volume, is returning with its metal-punk sound. Except for Lecanto High School student and guitarist Zac Phillips, the band consists of Crystal High School alumni. They are guitarist and vocalist Kieffer Ihlefeld, 19; drummer Charles Macriri, 19; bassist Robbie Dehn, 19; and guitarist Phillips, 17. As Virtual Volume, the band members have rocked out at Crystal River and Citrus High School battle of the bands, Cooterfest and other countywide festivals.

The best part is "when people come up the stage and start head-banging or moshing," said 17-year-old Phillips, who developed TeenStock in 2010 with his dad.

The energy, however, doesn't stop here. Six other bands comprise the event's lineup, with genres to please any music fan.

Tri Phi offers a taste of original instrumental, upbeat rock. The trio consists of David Phillipson and his two daughters. Phillipson, 49, plays guitar while Jasmine, 12, shows her skills on drums, and Jocelyn, 14, jams on the bass.

Other teen acts include soloist Alexandria Hand; soloist Haley Schroeder; Zero Gravity, which specializes in classic rock and pop; and Grounded 4 Life.

Gates open at 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the Museum Café. The music begins at noon. Tickets cost $7 for adults, $3 for teens, and free for children 12 and younger.

Spectators may bring chairs, and the café will serve food and drinks.

Before TeenStock, participants may watch the Shrimpapalooza parade at 10:30 a.m., which will bring a Mardi Gras-style festival to Homosassa. TeenStock bands will be in the parade.

Doctor dilemma

Conflict arises between young, old physicians in Art Center Theatre's production of 'Dr. Cook's Garden'

Special to the Chronicle

A thrilling, serious drama with a moral issue at its heart takes the stage in the production of "Dr. Cook's Garden," at the Art Center Theatre in Hernando.

Set in the small Vermont village of Greenfield Center, this one-doctor town is home to good, honest folks. And the beloved Dr. Cook makes house calls day and night to care for sick and injured residents.

All that changes when Dr. Jimmy Tennyson, a young doctor from Chicago who was mentored by the good Dr. Cook, returns to his hometown and becomes suspicious something is amiss with the great doctor.

"Everybody loves and respects the doctor when a major conflict, strong conflict" surfaces, the play's director, Jeffrey Collom, said.

Collom, a retired college theater professor and seasoned theater professional from New York, said he selected the production because it explores an ethical issue. It was written by Ira Levin, who is best known for his long-running Broadway play, "Deathtrap," novels and screenplays of "Rosemary's Baby," "The Stepford Wives" and "The Boys from Brazil."

Opening March 30 and running through April 15, show times are 7:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 2 p.m. Sundays with a special matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 7.

The five-character cast includes the two doctors and the elderly doctor's staff, comprised of a nurse receptionist, a housekeeper and a gardener who doubles as the town magistrate.

The doctors are played by two newcomers to the Art Cen-

Ron Swick, an experienced actor with more than 600 plays under his belt, portrays Dr. Leonard Cook.

"I finally decided after all this time that when I got down here, I was going to act just for the fun of it," said the retired high school music director, who spends his winters in Homosassa. "Once you get the (acting) bug, it's pretty hard to get rid of it. I went over and got the part."

Swick likes the show and people.

"It is a very interesting show and an interesting question, ethical question, about a doctor having the right to decide on the fate of a patient," he said.

For the audience, the show is thought-provoking, Swick said.

"We can promise not only entertainment, but (the audience) will go away thinking about and questioning the values they have had all along," he said.

ENTERTAINING NOTIONS

The Olive Tree

The menu at The Olive Tree is all one might expect at a Hellenic restaurant, with plenty of Greek dishes such as the sumptuous Tour of Greece Platter featuring moussaka, spinach pie in flaky phyllo, pastitsio, homemade dolmades, spit-roasted gyro meat, and pork and chicken souvlaki.

Owner Pavlos Parnos, better known as Paul to his regular customers, emerged on the restaurant scene in his homeland at the tender age of 6, working in the family cafe and opening his own 800-seat restaurant at just 17 in the village of Pelion.

"Everything was fresh there. In Greece, all food came from our own farm — the vegetables, the meat, the milk, homemade cheese — everything!" he said. Parnos said he makes every effort to offer patrons at The Olive Tree the same quality.

"We serve real ethnic dishes," Parnos pointed out, referring to his Greek salad that is a colorful array of fresh tomatoes, onions, green peppers, kalamata olives and a liberal sprinkling of feta cheese with a house dressing.

Daily specials, starting at $6.25, include lamb chops, half roasted chicken, full rack of ribs, Greek salad with choice of spanakopita, moussaka or pastitsio, seafood Alfredo with crabmeat, shrimp and scallops, and 12-ounce ribeye or Prime Rib. And that's just some of the items.

All sorts of sandwiches, souvlakis, gyros and hot open face sandwiches such as turkey, beef, ham and meat loaf can be ordered for lunch. Breakfast features all traditional items and portions are as petite or as large as desired. Breakfast is served all day.

The beverage list includes a variety of wine and beer, the New York favorite, egg cream, and a dessert tray of baklava, tiramisu, homemade rice pudding, carrot cake, chocolate cake, pie and cheesecakes.

The Olive Tree, at 963 N. Suncoast Blvd. (U.S. 19) in Airport Plaza, is open seven days a week from 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. For information about reservations and entertainment, call 563-0075. For special offers and events visit olivetree.com.

ENTERTAINING NOTIONS

The LOUNGE at YAI YAI

A Fusion of International Flavor - Tapas originated in Spain as great Kings valued wine and covered their wine glass with a slice of ham to prevent flies or bugs from contaminating their wine. The wine was very precious and this is how they protected it - Tapas held a meaning of "top". It evolved into small portion of foods that were intended to be a group involvement and a social event. Smaller portions of food shared with a group became a form of entertainment.

YAI YAI wishes to bring this spirit of friendship and fellowship to our Lounge by offering Tapas items that you can enjoy over beautiful conversation and good times. YAI YAI has created an International Tapas Experience that is intended to bring you much pleasure!

The urban atmosphere with a lounge feel has been described by customers as "chic". Plan to relax as your menu items are made fresh to order. Everything is made on site with 5-star quality meats and only the finest, organic ingredients - with no MSG or excessive sodium. This menu and its preparation are ideal for those with restrictive diets due to medical conditions. Vegan selections are also available.

The Lounge Sampler for 2 includes Tapas Fusion Starter, 2 Hearty Tapas Meals, and a bottle of wine or beer. Other entrees range from $7.75 to $18.00.

A variety of Sushi, flat breads, wraps, Romaine boats and other favorites round out the menu.

To complete your dining experience, enjoy a selection from their international cocktails, wines, specialty coffees, teas, and smoothies.

The Lounge at YAI YAI is located at 530 N. Suncoast Blvd. in Crystal River - across from Crystal River Airport. Reservations are suggested for the best seating. For more information, please call 795-7625. www.YAIYAI.biz

Will Ferrell, portraying Armando Alvarez, is shown in a scene from "Casa De Mi Padre." Associated Press

Ferrell film so bad, it's good

Gringo-fied as your next TexMex food chain, Will Ferrell's "Casa de mi Padre" may pile on the cheese, but the spoof's re-fried gags cook up a liberating neuron fajita.

Heather Foster
FOSTER ON FILM

he fits in. Bernal could not have been better as La Onza. Bernal strutting about in elfin cowboy boots and smoking two Canadian Slims, while making death threats, is priceless. All in all, "Casa de mi Padre" lacks substance, but has heart-stopping flavor. I give it a B+.

With a running time of 84 minutes, "Casa de mi Padre" is rated R for bloody violence, language, some sexual content and drug use.

Heather Foster is a junior at the University of Florida.

"Saturday Night Live" director Matt Piedmont owns "Casa's" chintz. His humor is so marvelously starchy, I just had to laugh.

On the flipside, wit spatters out of the cast naturally as grease from a taco. The grimy hat tricks and camerawork, nostalgic for non-existent western home videos, touch warm Mexico impressions left by EPCOT and tequila ads. "Casa de mi Padre" is tasteless fun.

Armando Ernesto (Will Ferrell) and his buds Manuel (Adrian Martinez) and Esteban (Efren Ramirez) enjoy their days galloping over Senor Ernesto's land (Pedro Armendariz Jr.). When Armando's pill-peddling brother, Raul (Diego Luna), comes home and irks drug lord La Onza (Gael Garcia Bernal) the idyllic expanse erupts into war. Raul's beautiful fiancée, Sonia (Genesis Rodriguez) is the only person who can sway the dough-headed, cowardly Armando to defend his family's land.

"Casa de mi Padre's" intentional badness hits comedic gold. The un-fun-ness of stilted jokes, awkwardly prolonged giggles, wooden dialogue and overdone insults drew a nervous laughter that bubbled into hilarity. The filmmaking itself, clinking with Halloween prosthetics, painted soundstages, Flintstone-esque driving loops, squeaky model cities, hand-puppet tigers, continuity errors and the director's apologetic interventions is delectable. Amazingly, these hairy, middle-aged men are charming as grade-school moviemakers. Plus, the not-so-seamless aesthetic showcases "Casa de mi Padre's" handmade sets and props.

Conversely, the actors dish out natural wit. As always, Will Ferrell touts his amazing expressions and alien physique. Though "Casa de mi Padre" is over-saturated with Mexico lore, dorky old Ferrell takes on Spanish nicely (Spanish is "Casa de mi Padre's" sole language; thankfully, there are English subtitles). Keeping an accent at bay, acted in a play. Cannon originally intended to help out behind the scenes. But after Art Center Theatre president Mac Harris met him, Cannon auditioning for a part.

"He brought me a copy of the script, called the director," Cannon said. "I had an audition and I was chosen for Dr. Tennyson."

For the 48-year-old Cannon, being on stage isn't difficult. He's played in a band and took introduction to acting and theater classes in college. He added Collom has been very patient in directing him.

As with most serious dramas, it's more arduous for actors, Collom said, but he feels the cast is ideal.

"I think it will be one of the best-acted plays they've seen in a long time," he said.

Curt Herrin, past president, pictured above with both winners, presided over the CMUG drawing for an iPad 2 and iPod touch. Meg Atkins, pictured above left, won the iPad 2 and Natalie Armitage, above right, won the iPod touch. A stained-glass panel surprise prize donated by Vice President Education Carolyn Herrin, at right, was won by Harold Seckinger, center. # Time to hunger for games

'Hunger Games' should satisfy fans of books

CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP Movie Critic

Fans of Katniss Everdeen, the 16-year-old heroine of "The Hunger Games," should be thoroughly satisfied with the faithfulness of Gary Ross' film, with its propulsive nature and vivid imagery: a mix of decadent costumes and architecture and harsh, unforgetting exteriors.

At its center is Jennifer Lawrence, an ideal choice to play this strong, independent young woman. She has a natural beauty, instincts and maturity beyond her years. And yet there's a youthful energy and even a vulnerability that make her relatable to the core, target audience of female fans. Lawrence is endlessly watchable.

And speaking of Ross, he may seem an unlikely choice to direct a movie about a futuristic, fascist world in which teenagers must fight each other to the death in an exploitative display of national loyalty and pride. He is, after all, the man behind such clever, charming and uplifting films as "Dave," "Pleasantville" and "Seabiscuit."

Jennifer Lawrence portrays Katniss Everdeen, left, and Liam Hemsworth portrays Gale Hawthorne in a scene from "The Hunger Games." The movie, based on Suzanne Collins' best-selling novel, opens this weekend in theaters.

Associated Press

But those movies, while based on high-concept premises, ultimately had pointed things to say about politics and society. The methodology of "The Hunger Games" may be more complicated, but its darkly satirical message is unmistakable.

The script adheres rather closely to Suzanne Collins' best-selling novel — no surprise there since she co-wrote it with Ross and Billy Ray — although it does truncate some of the subplots that give the book its greatest emotional heft as well as soften the brutal violence of the games themselves, ostensibly in the name of securing a PG-13 rating. Still, the makers of "The Hunger Games" have managed the difficult feat of crafting a film that feels epic and intimate at once.

A post-apocalyptic version of North America has been divided into 12 districts. Every year, a teenage boy and girl from each are selected randomly at the "Reaping" and sent to the opulent, art deco Capitol, where they're made over, trained and primed to fight each other until one is left standing in the sprawling arena. Gamesmakers manipulate their surroundings, "Truman Show"-style; Wes Bentley, sporting fiendish facial hair, functions as a sadistic version of Christof in a control room on high.

Every minute of competition is breathlessly broadcast to the nation, with viewers rooting for and betting on their favorites; having a sympathetic back story is crucial, and similarities to reality shows like "Survivor" or even "American Idol" are clearly intended.

Even the program's host (Stanley Tucci in an up-swept blue 'do) has a huge personality but isn't so outlandish that you couldn't imagine him as the face of some top-rated primetime game show.

Katniss lives with her widowed mother and beloved younger sister, Prim, in the distant District 12, known for its poverty and mining — a place visually reminiscent of the Ozarks of "Winter's Bone." An expert hunter with a bow and arrow, she spends her days seeking food for her family in the forest with her best friend, the hunky Gale (Liam Hemsworth). Some of the strongest moments in "The Hunger Games" are not the big action sequences, where the effects tend to look a bit cheesy, but rather the quieter exchanges like the ones Lawrence and Hemsworth effortlessly share.

But when Prim's name is called at the Reaping, Katniss springs into action to volunteer instead. This is one of those scenes in which you don't need to have read the book to feel emotionally engaged; the drama and the tears feel real, and they're not overplayed. Katniss' male counterpart is Peeta Mellark (Josh Hutcherson), the baker's sweet but bland son. Together they're to receive mentoring from the frequently inebriated Haymitch (Woody Harrelson), the last winner from District 12; the character's rough edges have been buffed significantly and it's not an improvement. Elizabeth Banks is nearly unrecognizable as Effie, their garish, perky escort. They also undergo mandated makeovers from their stylist, Cinna (Lenny Kravitz in an inspired bit of casting — he and Lawrence have a lovely rapport together).

There's never any question as to whether Katniss will win — there are two more books waiting to be made into movies after this one — so the challenge comes from maintaining a sense of tension and immersion in this dystopian world as competitors drop off one by one, which Ross and Co. achieve. "The Hunger Games" runs nearly 2 1/2 hours in length but is the rare film that never drags and doesn't overstay its welcome. It could keep running as long as Katniss does, and we'd want to be right there every heart-pounding step of the way.

"The Hunger Games," a Lionsgate release, is rated PG-13 for intense violent thematic material and disturbing images — all involving teens. Running time: 142 minutes. Three stars out of four.

The 2012 Honda Crosstour approaches the crossover SUV formula from a distinctively sleek, sporty and fuel-efficient perspective while also maximizing the interior's cargo capacity, versatility and premium feel. The Crosstour's exterior design emphasizes a bold, aerodynamic look that also conceals an accommodating rear cargo area with a large, lift-over tailgate.

The Clever Crossover Utility Vehicle — Honda's Crosstour

The Honda Crosstour is designed to function as a practical crossover vehicle. The Crosstour just may represent the epitome of crossover vehicles, delivering a modernized form of versatility in subtle fashion. For the 2012 model year, Crosstour becomes the official vehicle name, as Honda has decided to drop "Accord" Crosstour from the title.

The 2012 Crosstour's styling is sleekly aerodynamic, displaying a gracefully sculpted and contoured body that belies its highly functional and versatile interior. The Crosstour is instantly recognizable as a Honda from the front, with a steeply raked windshield, while the profile displays a low, curved roofline ending with a sharply angled rear hatch.

The interior design complements the exterior styling with contemporary, flowing shapes, with switchgear and gauges that are ergonomically placed for easy operation in intuitive, purposeful groupings.

NEW ON WHEELS

BY ARV VOSS, Motor Matters

Power for Honda's Crosstour comes from a 3.5-liter i-VTEC V-6 with variable cylinder management. The engine generates 271 horsepower at 6,200 rpm, while also making 254 lb.-ft. of torque at 5,000 rpm. The transmission is an electronically controlled five-speed automatic unit. The Crosstour also provides 6.0 inches of ground clearance.

Crosstour is available in the EX trim starting at $30,340 and more highly refined, feature-rich EX-L trim in either 2WD (front) or Real Time 4WD. My test 2012 Honda Crosstour was in EX-L with Navigation in the 4WD configuration with the base price set at $36,540.

Elevated levels of utility and innovative features include accommodating under-floor storage and reversible cargo area floor panels for soiled objects, along with the large-opening tailgate that provides a low lift-over height for ease in loading and unloading.

There's also an 8.4-inch deep under-floor Hidden Removable Utility Box that provides 1.9 cu.-ft. of storage space while including a durable removable tray that can be used for temporary storage of wet or dirty items. Two side trays provide additional space for smaller items, and the carpeted lid of the cargo box may be flipped over to the plastic side protecting the carpet from dirty items.

The 2012 Crosstour's large greenhouse allows for excellent outward visibility, while deeply tinted privacy glass is used in the rear side doors, wedge-shaped rear quarter windows and rear tailgate.

The power output of the V-6 with variable cylinder management, not only delivers a more than satisfying level of acceleration when needed, but also alternately maximizes fuel economy when full power isn't required.

The Crosstour's 5-speed automatic transmission provides several features engineered specifically to match performance requirements, including: extra-wide gear ratios for good low-end response and comfortable highway cruising; a computer-controlled lock-up torque converter with Honda Grade Logic Control technology aids in holding the vehicle in a lower gear when climbing or descending a steep grade for improved performance. Lower gears may be conveniently selected manually to achieve engine braking on downhill runs while saving the brakes, or for added pulling power.

Crosstour's rack-and-pinion steering with its speed-sensitive, variable power assisted system, and the handling package, delivers a sporty, fun-to-drive quality across a very broad range. The Honda Crosstour is a desirable crossover that delivers a unique and individualistic approach to sensible and pleasant transportation.

2012 DODGE CALIBER

The Dodge Caliber is a versatile five-door compact vehicle with a distinctive coupe-like profile that projects the strength, stance and functionality of a sport-utility vehicle but at the price of a compact sedan. A simplified model lineup for 2012 includes Caliber SE, SXT and SXT Plus models. Calibration improvements to the available continuously variable transmission II (CVT2) provide drivers with better launch acceleration, smoother deceleration, improved pedal responsiveness and reduced engine noise. Ford's Inflation Seat Belt functions like a standard seat belt in normal use. When the inflatable belt deploys during a crash, its tubular airbag rapidly inflates around the body with cold compressed gas. The fully inflated belt helps reduce risk of injury.

Inflatable Belts on Ford Explorer are Big Safety Sellers

Some 40 percent of new Ford Explorer buyers are ponying up an extra $200 for inflatable rear seat belts. That has encouraged Ford to expand availability of inflatable seat belts to the 2012 Flex. Later Ford will introduce inflatable belts to its luxury portfolio when two new Lincoln models will also offer this innovative safety feature.

Nearly 122,000 Explorers have been sold through November 30th. That would indicate close to 49,000 buyers have purchased the optional inflatable seat belts.

"The inflatable belts are proving to be very successful and take rates are increasing as people become more aware of them after being introduced in the spring," says Ford spokesman Wes Sherwood.

"We do not yet have early quality data for them, but can say our research indicates that people not only like the innovative safety advancement but think the belts are more comfortable because they're padded and have rounded edges," he says.

"We think this could help encourage higher belt usage in rear seats, where the rates are much lower than the front," Sherwood says.

Inflatable belts have been experimented with by automobile makers for at least three decades. But they have been confined to the laboratory for all that time. Perhaps Ford decided to offer them in the new generation Explorer because the preceding model had serious safety issues related to faulty tires.

The contribution inflatable belts make to occupant safety is the ability to spread crash forces over five times more area of the body than conventional seat belts. This reduces pressure on the chest and helps control head and neck motion for rear seat passengers. That means less pressure on internal organs and results in a higher survival rate.

Anything that encourages belt usage adds to passenger survivability in vehicle crashes. Rear seat occupants are frequently children and older adults whose bodies may be more fragile and could use extra cushioning that inflatable restraints offer. Front seat belt usage is 82 percent, while rear seat belt usage is 61 percent according to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The inflatable belts deploy in 40 milliseconds in the event of a crash. In a crash, the accordion-folded inflatable belt fills with air and expands sideways in about the time it takes a car to drive one yard at highway speed. Cold compressed gas is used to fill the inflating belts. Inflation occurs at a lower pressure than airbags because there's no gap between the passenger and the seat belt, as there is with airbags. And unlike an airbag, which deflates almost instantly once it is fully inflated, the inflatable seat belts remain inflated for a few seconds.

During ordinary car travel the inflatable belts are no more noticeable than conventional belts. Ford researchers say that more than 90 percent of people who tested the inflatable belts said they were similar, or more comfortable than conventional belts. Ford also plans to start offering inflatable seat belts in other markets in the near future.

CAR REPAIR ADVICE

I replaced the spark plugs, plug wires and have added several bottles of injector cleaner to my 2000 Ford Ranger, but it still starts to buck until I get up to 60 mph. What would you suggest? Answer: The problem likely is the camshaft position synchronizer. Check all the basics and conduct full engine performance and computer tests. There could be a trouble code pending that does not set the "check engine" light.

1935 LaSalle is a Beautifully Restored Convertible Coupe

In the late 1920s and early 1930s General Motors built slightly less expensive companion cars to its bigger brands. By 1933, the Viking, companion car to Oldsmobile, was dropped, as was Buick's companion car, Marquette. Oakland succumbed to its companion, Pontiac, and the next — and last in line to oblivion — was Cadillac's companion car, the LaSalle.

From its inception in 1927, LaSalle had been identified with high style and luxury. But the powerbrokers at General Motors decided the 1933 LaSalle was to be the last one. A clay mockup, however, had already been constructed of the next year's radically stylish LaSalle and when design and styling director Harley Earl unveiled it to the powers-that-be he reportedly exclaimed, "This is the LaSalle we will not be building!"

Minds and decisions were changed and the gorgeous new LaSalle was put into production and they continued to be built through the 1940 model year.

For 11 of the 14 years that LaSalle were manufactured Cadillac-built V-8 engines powered them. Because of styling restrictions of the 1934, 1935 and 1936 models with their long, slender engine hoods, Cadillac V-8 engines would not fit into the engine compartment. Cadillac had to build inline, eight-cylinder 248-cubic-inch engines that would fit in the allotted space. The straight eight-cylinder engines developed 105 horsepower.

"The low, 9-inch high windshields of the mid-1930s have always appealed to me," Randy Denchfield says. When he saw a beautifully restored 1935 LaSalle convertible coupe for sale he leapt at the opportunity, bought the car and took it to his Chevy Chase, Md., home.

LaSalle was always known for their expansive offering of colors. If the color a buyer wanted was not in the LaSalle palette, then the desired color could be provided for a small additional charge.

The previous owner of this particular LaSalle had done a spectacular restoration of the car and when the time came to apply the finish coat on the meticulously detailed car, an Argentine Orange was the choice.

Although the 1935 LaSalle were quite similar to the 1934 models there were minor differences, such as more substantial one-piece bumpers. On each side of the engine hood are five round ventilators that allow for engine-generated heat to escape.

A cowl ventilator in front of the two-piece, V-shaped windshield can draw fresh air into the cabin. Denchfield's LaSalle is officially designated as a four-passenger vehicle because there is an accommodation for two passengers in the rumble seat.

There are two step plates on the right rear fender to provide easy access to the tan leather upholstered rumble seat. The two taillights have stylish art deco red lenses and are mounted on stanchions that are sculptured to receive a small red reflector below the light.

A two-barrel, downdraft Stromberg carburetor draws fuel from the 18-gallon fuel tank. Denchfield says that when he got the car the outward appearance of the gasoline tank was perfect. Unfortunately, he says, the inside of the tank was rusted. That problem is history and the gasoline gauge now works.

The engine is virtually free of vibration because it rests on three rubber motor mounts. Additionally, the 120-inch wheelbase and what General Motors labeled "knee action" contributes to a luxurious ride.

The three-speed manual transmission is shifted by the lever on the floor. While seated behind the three-spoke deluxe banjo steering wheel the driver has a clear view of the 100-mph speedometer. Denchfield says the convertible top can be operated single handedly, but it is easier with some help.

A total of 8,653 LaSalle were manufactured in 1935. A car like Denchfield's had a base price of $1,175. LaSalle were style and trend setters then and they still are today with an undiminished air of elegance.
