The Beverly Hills Education Foundation is busily preparing for the upcoming April 27 Apple Ball. This year's auction and dinner gala is themed, "Why Wait for Superman?"

By Courier Staff

Despite again being unprepared to answer council questions on agenda items, City Manager Jeff Kolin was awarded a raise of $5,610 to his $280,500 annual salary (plus benefits) on a 4-1 vote by the City Council Tuesday. The raise was characterized as a "cost of living" increase. Councilmember John Mirisch refused to rubber-stamp the salary bump which was on

The "consent calendar" contains unopposed items and are approved in one vote without debate. Mirisch said while he did not object to Kolin's performance, but did not believe he should receive above a 1.8 percent cost of living increase. No council member discussed the multiplier effect the raise would have on Kolin's benefit package,

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Council of the City of Beverly Hills, at its adjourned regular meeting to be held on Thursday, April 21, 2011, at 7:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, California, will hold a public hearing to consider adoption of:

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF BEVERLY HILLS AMENDING THE COMPREHENSIVE SCHEDULE OF TAXES, FEES & SERVICE CHARGES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 2011/2012.

The proposed resolution will increase the taxes, fees, and service charges that are charged to the public for the various activities and services as set forth in the schedule for fiscal year 2011/2012. The majority of the fees and charges would be increased by 0.7% based on the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for November 2010 to reflect the increase in the City's costs. In some cases, the fees were adjusted to reflect a change in service level, more equitable distribution of costs, or to obtain full-cost recovery, rather than by the CPI. The fees would become effective on July 1, 2011.

Copies of the proposed Resolution and the Fee Study Report are available for review or purchase in the Office of the City Clerk, Room 290, 455 N. Rexford Drive, and in the Finance Department, 3rd Floor, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, California. Any interested person may attend the meeting and be heard. Written comments may also be submitted and should be addressed to the City Council, c/o City Clerk, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, California, 90210. The comments should be received prior to the hearing date. If you need more information, please contact Carolyn Johnson at (310) 285-2459.

Please note that if you challenge the Council's action in regard to this matter in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered to the City, either at or prior to the public hearing.

BYRON POPE, CMC, City Clerk

Three City Employee Furlough Days Officially Canceled

The Beverly Hills Firemen's Association's offer to delay a 3.04 percent salary increase for nearly a year to pay for three City furlough days was officially accepted at Tuesday's City Council meeting.

This means the City's 400-500 affected employees were able to work last Friday and will also work on the two other scheduled furlough days on May 6 and June 3 this year.

The association's deal to pay for the furlough days will save the City about $280,000.

Noah Furie Reinstated As Interim City Planning Commissioner

City Councilmembers on Tuesday decided to reinstate former Planning Commissioner Noah Furie on a temporary basis back into the position.

However, it may take longer for people to become familiar with the current Planning Commission projects prior to applying.

The items that were to be auctioned off included Jackson's large collection of antiques, decorative arts, music awards and other items.

LaPointe, of Quebec,

Canada, filed suit against the auction house and founder Darren Julien in Oct. 2009, claiming ownership of items he bid for online ahead of the auction. They included a replica classic automobile used by Jackson. LaPointe sought $306,600 in damages. His attorney, Nicholas Hornberger, said the jury was unable to find a contract existed between his client and Julien's. He also said current contract law has not kept up with the advent of the Internet and online bidding.

Hornberger said he is considering an appeal.

"We're disappointed, but this may not be the end of it," Hornberger said.

Julien's attorney, Miles Feldman, said the lawsuit should never have been brought and that the verdict was "a complete vindication of my clients."

Hornberger maintains the auction was "no reserve" in nature, meaning the highest bidder could claim each item.

KOLIN

"I think a lot of our employees do great jobs and it would be great to be able to award all of them," Mirisch said. "But we're faced with the unique situation where we wouldn't be able to afford that." He voted "no.

Earlier that day, in response to a question from Mirisch about city finances, Kolin was unable to tell the council the increase in the city's Transient Occupancy Tax over last year, claiming the amounts were "uncertain." He did not provide an estimate.

Kolin, who at a study session just weeks earlier stated it had increased 5.5 percent over last year, said he did not know the number Tuesday.

This was another instance in which Kolin and his staff failed to be prepared at city council meetings to discuss agenda items.

In the recent election at which Measure O, the oil severance tax, was presented to the voters, city staff had failed to learn on whom the tax would fall, did not disclose that residents who received royalties already paid taxes on the oil and gas reserves under their properties, that they would be taxed more, and that staff had not reviewed terms of any oil and gas leases.

On Measures 2P and 3P,

Kolin's staff never prepared a plan to implement the citysponsored measure, Measure 3P, and could not advise the council of the costs of implementing 3P.

This contrasts with the performance of his predecessor as city manager, Roderick Wood, who invariably was prepared to discuss city revenues and expenses or had appropriate city staff present to provide the information should the council request it.

More recently, Kolin admitted that city staff had not reviewed materials submitted to the council by promoter Jeffrey Best trying to convince Beverly Hills to subsidize his new agreement with the Los Angeles Times to use the City as one venue of many for a food show event. The council was blindsided and staff could not comment because they had not even looked at the materials.

Independently, The Courier confirmed that TOT taxes are reported monthly and that sales tax amounts are reported quarterly, two quarters in arrears.

Thus, TOT through January 31 of the current fiscal year and sales tax through at least the first quarter of the current fiscal year (September 30, 2010) would be available for comparison to the previous year.

Kolin provided neither amount and said they were not "final" although specific numbers were available.

Rivers ultimately dropped his knife once surrounded and taken into custody without further incident.

He was charged with Drawing/Exhibiting Weapon at a peace officer and an outstanding warrant for resisting/obstructing a peace officer.

BHPD Lt. Tony Lee said this type of scenario could easily have ended tragically, but professionalism led to a safe surrender.

"Considering the volatile circumstances where deadly force can sometimes be a split second decision, our officers used tremendous restraint in getting Mr. Rivers to peacefully surrender," Lee said.

Deutsch, Jodi Galen, Michelle Kaye and Sandra Walder, this year's Apple Ball will honor district teachers and administrators, The City of Beverly Hills with the Metropolis award and Candace and Clif Smith with the Clark Kent and Lois Lane award.

This award for the Spirit of Philanthropy is given to the Smiths for their tremendous support of not only the Education Foundation, with whom they are an Education Partner, but also for the work they do in this community and in Los Angeles. Previous recipients include Lili and Jon Bosse, Judie and Frank Fenton, Lillian and Stuart Raffel and Shawn and Larry King.

The honorees, Founding Families and sponsors are acknowledged at a VIP reception next week generously hosted by Robert Zarnegin at The

The BHPD's second arrest was last Sunday at 3 a.m. when officers were dispatched to Olympic and Robertson regarding the burglary at the Shell gas station.

The suspect was last seen running northbound on Robertson wearing a grey hood.

Additional units were called to the area and 30 minutes later, an officer located a parked, occupied vehicle in the Robertson/Clark alley just north of the gas station.

Through investigation the officer identified the man as 40-year-old William Bird, on parole for narcotics violation, who was in possession or pry bars and other burglary tools in the car, as well as stolen cigarettes from the gas station.

Bird was taken into custody on burglary, receiving stolen property, possession of burglary tools and violation of parole.

Lee said Bird's arrest was an excellent investigation especially because of the 30 minute lapse from the initial call ry City the bulk of retail and office space are clustered along Santa Monica Boulevard. Second is by Metro's own figures, a station at Constellation would cost an additional $60 million.

"No one has contradicted us, no one has said Metro's numbers are flawed or wrong," Curtiss said. "When you look at the numbers (Metro has) put out, it's a pretty compelling case."

Curtiss said based on the information presented by Metro, a station at Santa Monica Boulevard would get more riders for less cost.

"We really want to try to make a site that's as straight forward as possible," Curtiss said. "There's a lot of misinformation and we really want to have the conversation be based in fact."

One piece of information that is frequently repeated, Goldberg said, is the claim there are only a few noisy Beverly Hills "NIMBY's" (Not In My Backyard) who are disrupting the station selection for everyone.

"This is a unified City against tunneling under our district and high school property," Goldberg said. "The facts are there for everyone to see. This community has been overwhelmingly supportive of (the subway) and will continue to be if it doesn't tunnel under our high school and district."

Philanthropist Nancy Davis Still Leading The Campaign To Fight MS

By Julie Russ

The Courier sat down to speak with philanthropist Nancy Davis to find out what the color orange means to her. Davis was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis 20 years ago, and since then, has sought to raise awareness and funding for research through the Nancy Davis Foundation. The "Orange You Happy to Erase MS" is her annual campaign in the month of May. It started a few years back and has been growing steadily. To her, orange is a color of vibrancy and good health.

Davis has various products available on her Web site that support the Nancy Davis Foundation. She also has sponsors who donate a percentage of their proceeds in May that will go towards finding a cure. Items on Shop to Erase MS include earrings, rings and necklaces from Davis' Peace and Love Jewelry line, Laura Gellar Cosmetics, Judith Ripka, Don Francisco Coffee, Harry and David, and special items sold at Kitson Boutique. Tiger J also created the gift bag for the Race to Erase MS Event. For more information go to www.erasems.org and click on 'Shop to Erase MS'

On April 29, Davis will also be hosting the 18th annual Race to Erase MS. This year's gala coincides with the royal wedding, thus will be boasting a Rock and Royalty theme. Tommy Hilfiger along with brother Andrew, will host a fashion show entitled Andrew Charles. The line is debuting with a twist this year, and was inspired by rock stars such as Mick Jagger.

There is a misconception among locals that stores in Beverly Hills are more expensive than those in the Los Angeles area. A Gap spokesperson has confirmed with The Courier that prices are consistent across all locations. If a consumer is looking for value, the recent sales tax hike in Santa Monica may persuade shoppers to think twice before shopping outside of Beverly Hills.

Effective April 1, voters in Santa Monica approved Measure Y, which established a 1/2 cent transactions and use tax.

St. John's, JWCI celebrate 30 Years Of Cancer Research

For more than three decades, the St. John's Health Center Foundation Board of Trustees has held an annual "Chautauqua" retreat to bring together top physicians, scientists and supporters to discuss the latest advances in medical care and translational research that impact the healthcare community.

Last weekend, the retreat highlighted the 30th Anniversary of the John Wayne Cancer Institute (JWCI) at St. John's by featuring an array of presentations that provided details about the latest advances in cancer detection, diagnosis and treatment.

"The John Wayne Cancer Institute plays a vital role in bringing the best options for our cancer patients, and we are committed to staying at the forefront of research," said Lou Lazatin, St. John's and JWCI president/CEO. "The groundbreaking discoveries led by Donald L. Morton, MD, and our talented team of physicians and scientists have fundamentally changed the way cancer is treated across the world."

A multidisciplinary team of physicians, scientists and pathologists each provided updates about innovative approaches and new technology used in cancer care, which included a special panel of experts who described how their close collaboration provides the basis for the translational science and medicine.

"This synergy among the team enables us to provide personalized patient care through a multi-modality approach," said Dr. Morton, chief of melanoma program and director of JWCI surgical oncology fellowship program. "In fact, this partnership often sparks new ideas the lead to advances in clinical and basic science research."

Presentations included an update about the latest research in melanoma and the international impact of the sentinel node procedure from Dr. Morton and a report on how advances in the institute's molecular oncology department led by Dave S.B. Hoon, PhD, are leading to blood tests that can provide earlier cancer detection and more effective treatment.

Other topics covered included the immune system and cancer, experimental therapeutics, vitamin D and breast cancer, lung cancer, and metastatic brain tumors.

Thirty years since JWCl's inception, and 20 years in association with St. John's, the Institute is focused on advanced technologies, newer, more effective treatments and new hope for cancer patients everywhere.

Research Roundup

New 'Nanodrug' Breaks Down Barriers To Attack Breast Cancer Cells From The Inside Out

Throwing stones at castle walls is one way to attack an enemy, but sneaking inside makes the target much more vulnerable.

Researchers at Cedars-Sinai's Maxine Dunitz Neuro-surgical Institute have employed a similar strategy using a mouse model to target important mechanisms inside the most challenging breast cancer cells. Earlier studies at Cedars-Sinai found a similar approach effective in attacking malignant brain tumor targets.

Unlike other drugs that target cancer cells from outside and often injure normal cells as a side effect, this therapy consists of multiple drugs chemically bonded to a "transport vehicle." The drugs bypass healthy cells, accumulate inside tumor cells and attack molecular targets that enable cancer cells to grow and spread. Studies using a mouse model show this highly targeted approach, using combinations of drugs, to be more effective than standard treatment methods.

This research targeted HER2-positive breast cancer – a type that, due to a genetic mutation, makes excessive amounts of a protein that promotes the growth of cancer cells. HER2-positive breast cancers tend to be more aggressive and less responsive to treatment than other breast cancers

One commonly used antitumor drug, trastuzumab (Herceptin®), is sometimes beneficial, but with advantages and disadvantages. It is an antibody to the HER2 antigen, which means it naturally seeks out this protein in cancers. But its effectiveness as a treatment usually is limited because in 66 to 88 percent of patients, the tumors become resistant within the first year of treatment. Herceptin also can injure normal organs it contacts.

The researchers reported in their recent studies, published in a recent issue of Cancer Research, that the new drug carried multiple molecular components, each with a distinct role. These key components included: Herceptin to target the existing HER2 protein; another molecule to attack a genetic mechanism responsible for the production of new protein; and a molecule to open tumor blood vessels and deliver the drugs into the cancer cells for release.

CHLA Launches Interactive Online Game Featuring Stars From The Lakers, Dodgers, Kings And Galaxy

Children's Hospital Los Angeles (CHLA) has unveiled "Where's Pau Now?," the first in a four-part online interactive game series featuring four prominent L.A. sports figures: L.A. Lakers forward and NBA All Star Pau Gasol; former L.A. Kings left wing and hockey Hall of Famer Luc Robitaille; L.A. Galaxy and U.S. National Team forward Landon Donovan; and L.A. Dodgers first baseman lames Loney.

Each series of the game features a player "hiding" in various areas throughout the new and existing hospital. Participants are given multiple choice options to guess the player's location for the chance to accumulate points—those with the highest point score at the end of the individual game series will be put into a drawing for prizes, such as autographed gear and game tickets.

Visit www.CHLA.org/Pau to find the game and information on rules and prizes.

"The game was created as a fun and unique way to engage and introduce the community to our pediatric hospital building that will open in July," said DeAnn Marshall, CHLA vice president and chief marketing officer. "Participants will get sneak peeks into the new hospital building, learn about its cutting-edge technology, amenities and services and see how the new hospital specifically caters to children, adolescents and their families."

"Children's Hospital Los Angeles has become a big part of my life recently and I have a great respect for the incredible work they do," said Gasol. As reported by The Courier, this "fund" does not really exist but is an accounting device used by the City to allocate income and expense from parking operations.

The City Council tried unsuccessfully to ban the measure from the March ballot by the unanimous decision of the Planning Commission to approve it.

The appeal was filed by Todd Elliot, an attorney who stated he represented Ron and Sharon Gart and an organization that called itself "Neighbors Organized to Protect the Environment in Beverly Hills" or "N.O.P.E. Beverly Hills".

Equinox Fitness Center applied for a conditional use permit, beginning in Oct. 2010. The fitness club will be located at 9465 Wilshire Boulevard, in the 37,000 ft, three story former Bank of America Building. hearing by which a judge can make a finding of probable cause.

Ciulla argued to Judge Marcus the statue of limitations, which is four years from the discovery of the crime, had run up. In District Attorney Juliet Schmidt's criminal complaint, she alleges it was current Superintendent of Business Services Alex Cherniss who discovered the memorandum's authorizing Christiansen to receive the stipends in September of 2009. These memos would not have been discovered had Christiansen not sued the BHUSD for $16 million in the fall of 2009.

Judge Marcus said he thought Hubbard's case was an "obscure situation" and he did not expect "people who work in payroll to know the superintendent cannot offer raises." He ruled that neither former Assistant Superintendent of Ser-Business vices Cheryl Plotkin nor former Senior Payroll and Benefits Specialist Melody Voyles, who were aware of the stipends, could have known it was a crime.

Judge Marcus also alleged Hubbard put the suing in Superior Court.

The Superior Court struck the measure from the ballot but was in turn blocked by the Court of Appeal and the measure went to the voters. Last Wednesday, the Court of Appeal returned the lawsuit to Superior Court.

The council must decide whether or not to continue its ligitation to stop implementation of the measure.

and spa open to the public.

The conditional use permit allows for four things. One, to allow an exercise club to be located on the ground floor of a building within the business triangle; two, to allow portions of the exercise areas to be visible from the street; three, to allow approximately 90 ft of street frontage along N Beverly Drive and 33 ft along Wilshire (while the standard is 25 ft); and four, to allow the use of shared parking facilities to satisfy parking requirements.

Elliot alleged the Planning Commission could not make positive findings to allow shared parking and the environmental review process was flawed. The Bank of America building controls 474 spaces, with another 212 specifically dedicated to patrons of the memos in Christinasen's personnel file so the board would not realize he gave her stipends.

Chodos argued to Judge Marcus Christiansen cannot be held responsible for any conflict of interest charges because a 1090 violation can only apply to board members, officers or employees. Judge Marcus ruled 1090 charges apply to Christiansen because she was performing all the same duties as a consultant as when she was employed at the district. She also kept the same office and continued to use an e-mail signature claiming she was the director of planning and facilities.

Judge Marcus said the key issue over a 1090 violation is whether or not an individual is wearing "two hats."

"Is she urging the BHUSD

No date has been set by the Superior Court to resume consideration of the matter.

building, and has access to an additional 485 spaces in the MGM garage.

Elliot claimed the building is subject California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) evaluations, because the building will be converted from office buildings to an exercise club. However, City Staff states the changes are minimal, in line with building codes and are not considered a change in use of the space and are therefore exempt.

Neither Ron or Sharon Gart nor members of N.O.P.E. attended any of the public or appeal hearings. While Elliot said his clients chose to allow their lawyer to represent them, Mayor Barry Brucker said he found it to be unusual the appellants never appeared.

"The organization N.O.P.E. to place a bond on the ballot because they need it or because she stands to make money," Judge Marcus asked the court.

Performances, Direction Help Hanna Rise Above Its Genre

Taught the skills of survival and ruthless defense by her mysterious and reclusive father, Hanna (Saoirse Ronan), a beautiful, fearless teenager is a threat to anyone who has the courage to stand in her way. She and her father Erik (Eric Bana), live in a dilapidated cabin. I have no idea how they managed to survive within the accepted parameters of a hygienic day-to-day existence.

Her training is rigorous and she must use her cunning and ruthlessness to survive and eventually combat her nemesis, CIA agent, Marissa (Cate Blanchett) who wants to kill Erik and Hanna.

The question as to "why" is a bit unclear. It has something to do with a security breech and Erik's wife who, we come to learn, was permanently eliminated by Marissa.

Like other movies of this genre, our sense of believability must be suspended with no questions asked. However, what takes this presentation above the rest is Ronan's performance and Joe Wright's direction.

Having directed Ronan in Atonement which earned her a supporting actress nomination, Wright knows very well the wide range of the young beauty and uses it brilliantly.

Writers Seth Lochhead and David Farr keep the seamless action going.

This weekend, Hanna opens against the carefree and fun-loving Arthur. My money is on prepare themselves as well. The community needs to store enough food, water and supplies without assistance anywhere from three to seven days. The City, as a whole, needs to be prepared to be on its own anywhere from seven to 14 days in case of a large disaster. Water is the most important resource, Mottice Muller said.

The City is holding the third annual "Rock and Roll Pledge Drive." This pledge drive provides residents with ways to prepare for an earthquake. This year's focus is on financial planning. In order to enter the pledge drive raffle, participants must pledge to complete a variety of basic emergency financial preparations including installing smoke detectors, conducting a household inventory, having cash on hand and storing documents in a safe place such as an evacuation box or safe deposit box. To be eligible for the raffle, residents will need to submit their pledges by May 31. Prizes include a flashlight and car backpack.

Last year's "Rock and Roll Pledge

Drive" encouraged residents to create an emergency car kit. Car kits are important, Mottice Muller said, if someone is stuck on the freeway and can't get home or if someone has to leave their car and walk home. Included in a car kit should be flashlights with extra batteries, a portable radio with extra batteries, nonperishable food, water, a first aid kit and comfortable shoes.

The first year of the "Rock and Roll Pledge Drive" was a way for residents to create a home preparedness kit. If residents keep enough food and water in their home and don't require help from the City, they are allowing the government to help those who are truly in need, Mottie Muller said. Included in a home kit should be enough non-perishable food for at least 72 hours, enough water for each person and pet to have a gallon of water for 72 hours, a first aid kid, fire extinguisher flashlight with extra batteries and a portable radio with extra batteries.

People will be able to buy earthquake kits and get more information at the Beverly Hills Farmers Market on Earth Day, Sunday April 10.

TASTE

THE FLAVORS OF BEVERLY HILLS -

The first thing to know about Scarpetta in Montage Beverly Hills is that it is NOT an Italian restaurant. Though advertised as an Italian restaurant, but it's really not at all Italian. It's a high-end hotel restaurant, with contemporary food at high prices. Yes, you can get a small plate of spaghetti with tomato sauce (for $24), or ravioli stuffed with foie gras, but that doesn't make it an Italian restaurant.

The somewhat unusual setting includes high ceilings and an overhanging balcony, and all diners sit within view of the hotel's adjacent green space. One looks out toward Bouchon, sometimes with longing. While the tables are large and well spaced apart (that's the good news) the chairs are hard and need cushions.

The restaurant was pretty busy on a Saturday night. The sound level while moderately loud, is about average for Beverly Hills, but the music was quite offensive—I heard a woman screaming about lost love. With that voice it was clear to me why her man left her

On our last visit we arrived at 7:35 for our 7:30 reservation for four. "Is your entire party here?" asked the greeter. "No, but I would like to be seated and order a glass of wine" I replied. "Your table will be ready in a few moments" she replied, while I stared at a table for four nearby that was set up and ready to be occupied. I continued to stare at the table until the captain got the message, at which time he seated us at the empty table. A few minutes later our friends arrived.

Scarpetta

Within seconds the waitress appeared and asked "sparkling or flat?" My wife said sparkling and I said "plain water with no ice please." Thirty seconds later she appeared with a bottle of San Pellegrino and poured some into all four glasses and disappeared before I could object. When she reappeared I mentioned to her that I preferred flat water. She grabbed my full glass (with $2 worth of water in it), and reappeared a few moments later with a glass of tap water, no ice, and a fresh bottle of Pellegrino. So there went $18 ($15 plus tip). And that put me on notice as to what kind of restaurant it is.

I began to look around for the wine steward, since I needed a drink. Instead, the bread arrived. This was the best part of the meal—in fact, maybe it's the best bread in Beverly Hills. One piece with sausage flavor prompted me to look for a second piece and so we ordered a second basket that once again arrived along with small dishes of butter with mascarpone cheese, caponata and the traditional olive oil.

To start I had the creamy polenta with mushrooms. This was delicious, but in a true Italian restaurant they would have used porcini mushrooms and reduced the sauce so that it was thick enough not to penetrate the polenta. My wife had the tuna Susci, served as a roll but instead of the usual rice it came with raw vegetables – she declared it fresh but bland.

By now I was pretty desperate for a glass of wine, so I asked the captain to send over the wine steward. Sean Jemai appeared, and upon hearing that we were speaking French at the table, joined in the conversation and introduced himself. I mentioned that his name wasn't very Italian—more Irish—and he explained that one parent was Italian but he was raised in Marseilles and studied wine in Bordeaux. He seemed likeable, so I asked him to recommend a light red wine—maybe something from the Loire Valley, or Alsace. He was sorry, but nothing like that was on the list. Apparently thinking that my desired choice was based on price, he pointed out the Spanish wines on the list, which of course are not light. At the suggestion of our dining companion, we ended up with a bottle of New Zealand Sauvignon Blanc, as I so often do, at $44. The wholesale price should be about $10.

Three of us each ordered one of the three fish dishes on the menu, and each was excellent. Although we noticed that each of the three fish entrees arrived with a different accompaniment than is listed on the menu. My branzino was cooked with crisp skin, and tasted fresh. It came with caramelized fennel, which I loved, instead of the vinaigrette advertised on the menu. I might have put a touch of fish stock in it, to make it a bit more moist, but I have no complaints about any of the three plates. I saw lots of meat going by to other tables, and those dishes also looked good. I would say that the main courses are grade A. As well they should be for about $30 each.

To finish the meal, three of us shared a chocolate cake with burnt orange ice cream, not very Italian but very tasty. My wife's pecorino fresco cheese plate contained such a small piece of cheese that we got a chuckle out of it, and it too was bland. In a failed attempt to counter the tasteless cheese, a very hot spicy apple moutarde sat alongside the cheese. A better offering would be aged pecorino served with honey as is so readily available in Italy.

And so it went for about $65 a person. It's not an Italian restaurant, and it's not well managed, and the staff needs a lot of training. But the food is really quite good, and the space very pleasant. For those staying at the hotel it's a pretty place to eat, especially if it's raining out. For those driving into Beverly Hills in search of a great dinner there are lots of places that serve authentic Italian food, at the same or lesser prices.

Page Parents Get Involved, Contribute To Classroom Learning With Flower Science Project

By Dupé Aleru

How can parental involvement in schools make a difference in the academic success of its students?

Quite frankly, it can make a huge difference. Last month a couple of Page School parents decided to be a contributing force to academic achievement and the learning experience by bringing in hands-on educational activities to one of its Pre-K classrooms.

volunteered to come to teacher Alexandra Morris' prekindergarten classroom for a hands-on engaging flower science project for its students.

To add a creative twist to the educational science project, each student was given a cardboard flower box to decorate, and also given three test tubes, three white daisy flowers, a choice of food coloring for two test tubes, squishy gel orbeez balls (which grow in water), and water.

The purpose was to inform and teach children about a to water and how the color in water could affect the color of the flower petals. The test tube with the orbeez balls allowed students to observe science on a different level due to how the orbeez balls absorb water and expand 100 times its original volume in just a few hours. This quick process is a demonstration for children on how a flower would normally grow in days, weeks and months.

This goes to show that parental involvement is a huge driving force for student success and the learning experi-

Charlene Liebau Talks: 'College Admissions'

By Charlene Liebau College Admissions Editor

College admission decisions are out. Given the reports of the record breaking number of applications received by colleges this year, the admission decisions cannot be all that good for many, many well-qualified students. Consider Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Stanford reporting admit-rates in the single digits: 6.2, 7.4, 8.4, and 7.1 percentages, respectively. True, not all colleges are reporting such statistics but enough are which only serves to underscore the ever increasing anxiety surrounding the college admission process.

What to do? Let's begin with current seniors. What does one do if "deny" is the word from first choice college? To share the news that this year, for a variety of reasons, was the most competitive ever is of little comfort. The numbers are staggering: UCLA received 61,000 applications for a freshman class of 5,250; Stanford received 34,348 applications for an incoming class of 1,725; and Harvard received 34,950 for a class of 2,158. Columbia University announced it received 32 percent more applications this year than it did last year. Colleges and universities across the country, public and private, are

Shalhevet's Theater Department Offers Student-Directed Plays Lost And Found

By Dupé Aleru

Shalhevet School's Theater Department started the showing of its original one-act plays written and directed by its students. The evening, which began yesterday, was called "Lost And Found."

Under the guidance of Shalhevet's drama teacher Emily Chase and awardwinning playwright Laurel Ollstein, this year's spring production explores the meaning of life, space pirates and everything in between.

The show opens with Hold Your Horses by senior Rebecca Asch. This is about a high-powered businesswoman who gets stranded on a ranch, coaxed onto a horse...and goes on the ride of

The second play, Divine Case, written by tenth grader Rose Bern, is about a lawyer who sues God for allowing humans to suffer—but is he actually prepared for God to show up in court?

The third play written by junior Leona Fallas is called The Tale Of The Magical Wallet. The story depicts a girl who writes a storybook romance in which the prince and princess come to life and the fairy tale is turned upside down.

Jenny Newman wrote the fourth play, Blindness about what a teenager with his head in a book and a cellphone addicted CFO have in common? They have to figure it out when they're plunged into the fourth dimension.

The fifth and final one-act is called Tomorrow's Opportunity. Written by senior Rachel Lesel, this takes place 50 vears in the future, where a space pirate's son tries to live an honest life and find true love, but he can only evade the pirate life for so long.

Future performances are Apr. 11 and Apr. 13 at 7 p.m., Apr. 10 at 2 and 7 p.m. Ticket prices are $10 for students, $15 for adults and $25 for patron front row seats.

Tickets for "Lost And Found" can be purchased by emailing Emily Chase at e.chase@shalhevet.org. All funds raised will benefit Shalhevet's Drama Department.

reporting increases in application numbers-all of which adds to the competitive, anxiety producing nature of the admission process.

For the high school senior who did not receive a "fat envelope" from first choice college there are several things to do. First, recognize what really matters, is what you do-wherever you go. Keeping that thought in mind, what are your options? You applied to several other colleges and you applied to them for a reason.

If, however, you find you are on the Wait List of a favored college-now is the time to be proactive. Inform that college you not only choose to accept a position on the Wait List but also make a full-court press: bring the admission office up to date on your achievements and activities since you submitted your application.

Now, my message for high school freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and their families: All the reports on admission rates and the increasing competitive nature of the process serve as a call to do your homework. The college planning process first requires thoughtful consideration in determining one's priorities in a college-what are you "looking for"?

My advice is to broaden your horizons as you develop your college list. Come to think of it, broadening one's horizons is what a college education is all about.

St. Timothy Teacher Nicole Adkins Wins A National Playwriting Workshop Award

By Dupé Aleru

St. Timothy Catholic School's librarian, Nicole Adkins, was named one of four winners of the 2011 National Waldo M. and Grace C. Bonder-man Playwriting Workshop award.

Her play, The Lost Princess, will be featured in a rehearsed reading at the Repertory Theatre Indianapolis. The work is geared towards students in grades fifth through eighth.

The story takes place in the Vienna of 1888, tells about an orphan, who after being sent to live at the Schoenbrunn Palace with her aunt and her Royal Guard uncle, finds herself entangled in palace politics.

It is loosely based on the true story of Adkins great-great-grandmother. The playwright was flown to Indianapolis last Friday to embark in a week's worth of development, with a team consisting of a director, dramaturge, graduate assistant, and student respondents—all the age of her target audience.

St. Timothy Librarian, Nicole Adkins

At the end of her six days of concentrated work and rehearsal, there was a public reading at the 4-day bi-annual Bonderman Symposium, which many children's theater professionals from around the country attended.

Wolpert writes that Britain's last viceroy Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten rushed the timetable allotted to him by Prime Minister Clement Attlee's cabinet to try and resolve the conflicts and to get the opposing leaders to orm a single federal dominion of independent India, which along with Pakistan, was born by the partition of British India in August 1947. Gandhi and Nehru supported the position of one federal India. Mohammed Ali Jinnah and his Muslim League demanded an independent Pakistan where the Muslims would have their own government and not be subordinate to India's Hindu majority.

In less than 10 weeks, a British lawyer, Cyril Radcliffe, who had never set foot in India, presided over the partition of British India's two largest multicultural provinces. In rushing the division through, Mountbatten set up a cataclysmic confrontation of Hindus, Muslims, Sikhs - who had wanted their own state-Parsis, Christians and Jews. It is interesting to keep in mind that Prof. Wolpert told me as the Muslim religion expanded it appealed to the lower cast Hindus who were the Untouchables. They were happy to convert and lose that identification.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Apr. 8). Your intuitive inklings, especially about people, will be correct. This month presents the opportunity to bet on a hunch and win. May brings change and travel. In June, a person in need brings out divine levels of compassion in you. There's a professional gain in July that allows you to assist your family. Aquarius and Pisces people adore you.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19). Someone will copy what you do. This should be flattering to you–imitation is the most sincere kind of compliment. Still, it is important that you take control of what is yours, especially in regard to intellectual property.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20). You want a person to want you. You can't force it to happen, but will make it happen through the art of persuasion. It starts with believing in yourself and feeling whole and complete on your own.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Contribute the best of your talent, and another person will do the same. You will fast become partners, and an easy collaboration ensues. Both parties will feel heard, understood and valued.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You keep your promises to people. This comes easily to you because it's the right thing to do. Because others know what they can consistently expect from you, they keep coming back.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll get what you desire for one reason only: someone else wants to help you and sees great reward in doing so. Your enthusiasm makes it a pleasure for others to assist you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There's a right way to do things and a wrong way. Playing by the rules, you'll rise through the professional or social ranks quickly enough. Therefore, don't even bother looking for shortcuts today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Find a quiet place where you can concentrate. You will take your work and studies to a new level in this environment. As an added bonus, a relationship improves because of what you learn today.

Katie wanted to be an actress and Gary notes that she actually did get a part on Broadway.

A Look At The Sacramento Scene FRANKLY SPEAKING

By Stephen Frank

Great news for California families and businesses. Bad news for government and government unions, for now...

The Republicans in Sacramento held together and Gov. Jerry Brown has almost given up on a June special election to transfer $70 billion from families and businesses to the government over a five year period.

The "back up" plan seems to be the unions creating three initiatives for a November special election. These would increase sales and income tax and about double the vehicle registration fee. This campaign is being organized and paid for by the unions.

At the same time there will be an almost one billion tax increase on the ballot on tobacco. There might also be a $10-11 billion bond measure to water. Of course we passed a similar bond in 2006, and have yet to get a single drop of NEW water. We did get motel rooms at Lake Tahoe and an aquarium in Fresno,

The governor does have a back up budget plan. He has a June 15 deadline to announce it, but the outline has already been dis-

Brown will cut the number of days mandated by the state for k-12 government education from 185 days to 170—a cut of three weeks. Note that this saves almost no dollars. Teachers will still get paid, based on union contracts. The facilities will still use energy, landscapers, etc.

According to former Assemblyman Chuck Devore, Jerry will start the early release of 40,000 criminals from prison. It should be noted that Arnold had planned to do this, so Jerry is just following up on the original plan. But, the governor is going to release the prisoners to county sheriffs, and pay them 40 cents on the dollar for the cost of these new prisoners. That means the bankrupt counties, unable to absorb the costs, will release the criminals to the street.

Jack Scott, chancellor of the State Community College system, announced that because of the budget, he expects community colleges to cut enrollment in September by up to 400,000 stu-

Brown has major cutbacks planned for health care and reimbursements for hospitals and doctors under Medi-Cal. This will accelerate doctors and hospitals leaving that program

You get the point, Brown wants you to feel the state is collapsing, schools are closing, that every day is Oct. 31, with only tricks and no treats.

Already school districts like Simi Valley in Ventura County have passed resolutions demanding the voters pass $70 billion in

Of course this money will come from the parents of the students in the district. That means the parents, at a minimum, will be poorer, some will lose their homes and jobs and all will pay more for food, gas, water and energy.

While the private sector has cut back, government wants to continue to live high on the hog.

Brown has not requested changes in the union created pension crisis. In New York, Democrat Gov. Andrew Cuomo is firing 11,500 government employees, while Brown fires zero.

The Brown/union game plan is to scare Californians into believing the state will close down. It will always be about the state, not the family or business.

But billions in sales of state assets are not on the table, from stadiums, to parking lots to fair grounds. Ending sweetheart deals with unions can not even be discussed. Pension reform is off the table because the Unions told Jerry they are off the table.

Wait for the beginning of June and you will see the Brown machine giving you tissues to cry into for the state, begging for just $70 billion to keep the mismanagement and corruption of Sacramento running as always.

Stephen Frank, a political and public policy activist since 1960, is the publisher of the California Political News and Views (www.capoliticalnews.com).

YOUR CALL IS IMPORTANT TO US

cation is..."What we have here is a failure to com- tant to us." There then begins a musical concert not municate!" Never before have we had so many of your choosing. After a few minutes the voice is advanced ways to make a call. We have the telephone on our desk at home or away. We have a are 11 people waiting for your party and they will cell phone in our pocket, or concealed somewhere be answered in the order in which they were in our automobile, yacht or plane. We have phones in our computers. Phones everywhere. What we don't always have is the party to whom we wish to speak, especially at some corporate body.

I am telling you nothing new when I say that placing such a call is usually maddening. You tap or activate by voice the number you are trying to reach. After an encouraging ring a disembodied voice answers: "Hello. Thank you for calling the X Company. Your call is important to us. All our lines to your party are now busy, so stay on the line and our Dr., Mr., Mrs., or Ms. will be with you shortly," and a popular symphony begins and ends. Your arm aches. Your hand is stiff, but you have too much time invested in this call to give up. The voice returns with: "There are still some calls ahead of yours. You might try our web site: xxxx@yyy.com. Otherwise, please stay on the line. Your call is important to us."

Perhaps you wait; or perhaps you scream invectives into the impersonal phone; or perhaps you heave the phone out the window. Besides, by now you may have forgotten what made you make the call in the first place. You doze off for a moment the Cathay Cruise Lines. All our lines are busy at and dream. And what do you hear in your busy brain? "Please stay on the line. (Mr., Mrs., Ms.) will

The newest advance in the realm of communible with you shortly. Please know your call is imporback with: "All our lines are still busy," or "There received. Do not hang up. Your call is important to us." or, "There is still a 10-minute wait for your party. You might try our Web site at 111-222-3456 where I am certain you can be helped, or else stay on the line. Your call is important to us"

Time passes. You abruptly wake up. The symphony ends and a commercial for something comes on for a while only to be interrupted by that voice: "Thank you for waiting. We are so sorry for your having to wait. Your party's line is still tied up, but please stay on the line, your call...." In a fit of frustration and exasperation you have flung the phone across the room. When you cool down, you realize you still need the service you were seeking. You find another company doing the same work. You dial that number hopefully. A cheerful voice answers: "Thank you for calling the XXY company. All our lines are occupied at this time, but please don't hang up. Your call is important to us." You hang up half out of your mind and decide to leave town and take a slow boat to China. You dial and call the company, and a musical foreign voice answers "Thank you for calling the moment, but if you stay....'

LETTERS

I am writing to personally acknowledge and commend Beverly Hills Department's generous and kind consideration for the substantial gesture of temporarily passing on its scheduled wage increase in difficult budget times and instead allowing the city manager and City Council to use the funds to cancel three planned City furlough days for all City employees. The spirit of this gesture on the part of our BHFD is both heroic and compassionate.

We already know our safety professionals for their hard work and concern for the wellbeing of the inhabitants of Beverly Hills day and night, so such a further contribution should not come as a surprise and more so should not go unnoticed. I understand that our fire safety professionals were actually not going to be directly impacted by the planned (now cancelled) furloughs, and thus, doubly so, through their membership's unanimous actions helped lessen the blow that the troubled economy has brought to our community by supporting other employees in other departments within the City. In this selfless way, many will be better able to make ends meet while residents and businesses can avail themselves and benefit from the services kept intact. This certainly is indeed the finest small City in America, no question about it.

Jake Manaster

Metro's meetings have become increasingly frustrating for all of us . Each prior meeting saw 300-400 residents (an unbelievable turnout) show up. They came prepared to ask questions and offer alternatives, had done their research and came to protest tunneling under Beverly High.

Not once have we gotten even the most cursory response from Metro. We've pointed out at least four major subway construction accidents in the last few years throughout the world (Germany, Brazil, Korea), each resulting in property damage and death. Recently, I also found this: "And at the end of Feb. 2003, a school building collapsed in the 13th arrondissement as a result of work on the extension of line 14 of the Paris Metro. Fortunately, the incident happened during the school holidays."

Which is more important to Metro? Safety for 2,500 students and teachers or the influence of big-time Century City landowners and developers who contribute untold thousands to political campaigns? No one can prevent accidents and construction defects. Put the station on Santa Monica and have a moving sidewalk to Constellation like we find in every major airport and subway station throughout the world. And Metro would save $50-60 million. Metro has known this win-win alternative and others for over eight months and never ever responded. Ken Goldman

*****

After reading the article about the subway tunnel under BHHS, I asked myself why we allow bureaucrats in our society to run our lives. This ludicrous idea has taken on a life of its own complete with "talking heads" doing a "fast shuffle."

I was a no show at the meeting at the meeting. Our residents have witnessed this song and dance by Metro staff and fellow travelers for far too

I believe the recent tragedy in Japan emphasized that the best minds and good intentions cannot stop the fury of Mother Nature and that mitigations -from the simplest to the most complex-are not failsafe, but only as worthy as their weakest link. A subway under BHHS defies all rational thinking.

These are our children-just Gloria Seiff

Instead of the red light traffic cameras (supposedly great income producing gimmicks for the City), why not have flashing red light signs throughout the City which say: "Hang up your phone while driving.
