0194.1# 北方中杜鹃 Horsfield's Cuckoo Cuculus horsfieldi

年报接受 King (2005) 在 Bull B.O.C. 125: 48-55 上发表文章的观点, 将原先中杜鹃的亚种 horsfieldi 和 saturatus 提升为独立的种, 两个种在形态特征上极为相似, 野外辨别主要依靠鸣声,

有兴趣的读者可参考原文。对于在迁徙期间，在中国华南地区的中杜鹃，因无法根据叫声辨别种类，只能记成未识别中杜鹃。

未识别中杜鹃 Horsfield's/Oriental Cuckoo Cuculus horsfieldi/saturatus

四川: 9月18-19日，彭山仙女山，2只[SY];

广东: 8月9日，广州良田镇沙田村，1棕色性雌[GGW];

Sichuan: two at Xiannvshan, Pengshan on 18-19 September.

Guangdong: A brown female at Shatiancun, Liangtianzhen, Guangzhou (Guangdong) on 9 August[RLW].

[Taxonomic note: The “Oriental Cuckoo” Cuculus saturatus complex has been split (King 2005, Bull B.O.C. 125: 48-55) into three separate species C. horsfieldi (breeding from northeast Europe across northern Eurasia to northeast China and Japan), C. saturatus (breeding across the Himalayas, southern China, Taiwan and northern parts of SE Asia) and C. lepidus (resident in southern parts of SE Asia). The plumages of horsfieldi and saturatus, including brown (‘hepatic’) females, are described as identical, and no diagnostic features are known which can differentiate birds by plumage alone, either in the field or in the hand. However, the two taxa can be separated in the field on the basis of song and in the hand on the basis of wing length. The song of horsfieldi consists of two (sometimes three or four) deep booming notes hoop hoop, c 0.14 seconds apart. The song of saturatus consists of three (sometimes four) similar notes introduced by a short, higher-pitched note – huk hoop hoop hoop. The flattened wing length of horsfieldi (males 194-212 mm, females 186-212 mm) is longer than that of saturatus (males 174-192 mm, females 172-185 mm).

Clearly, all birds in Northeast China can be accepted as horsfieldi on range, and all singing birds in South China (including Sichuan) can be accepted as saturatus. Migrants in South China, however, cannot be referred to taxon unless the wing length is measured. For this reason, records from Guangdong and Sichuan are listed as unidentified cuckoos.

0252.1# 北方鹰鸮 Northern Boobook Ninox japonica

年报接受 King(2002)在 Bull B.O.C. 122: 250-257 上发表的观点, 将原先鹰鸮的三个亚种提升为种, 其中北方鹰鸮 Northern Boobook Ninox japonica 和南方鹰鸮 Brown Boobook Ninox scutulata. 两种在野外形态较难辨别, 而是依靠叫声的不同。有兴趣的读者请阅读原文。

河南: 5月22-23日, 罗山董寨保护区, 听见1只[BA];

Hebei: One at Happy Island, Leting on 14 May [JH].

Henan: One heard at Dongzhai NR, Luoshan during 22-23 May [BA].

△△△ Editor. The “Brown Hawk Owl” Ninox scutulata complex has recently been split (King 2002, Bull B.O.C. 122: 250-257) into three separate species N. burmanica (range includes South China), N. japonica (range includes North China and Emei Shan, Sichuan) and N. randi (extra-limital). According to King, the two taxa occurring in China are indistinguishable in the field, except when vocalising. The song of burmanica is described as a continuous series of mellow double notes whoo-wup ... whoo-wup ... whoo-wup etc, with rising inflection, the first note longer than the second and with no audible gap between the two notes. Each double note lasts c 0.4-0.5 seconds and is uttered in a continuous series at intervals of 0.6-0.9 seconds. The song of japonica is said to consist of a two-note phrase (sometimes three) whoop whoop ... whoop whoop ... whoop whoop ... etc, each note lasting c 0.1-0.25 seconds and each phrase of two notes uttered in a continuous series at intervals of c 0.4-0.9 seconds, but with a clearly audible gap of 0.25-0.5 seconds between the two notes. Thus, the songs of both taxa consist of a two-note phrase repeated continuously at short intervals, but whereas there is no gap between the whoo-wup of burmanica, there is a short but clear gap between the whoop whoop of japonica. With regard to bio-metrics, the tail of japonica is shorter (107.5-122.6 mm) than that of burmanica (117.0-136.0 mm); there are no significant differences in wing length. King recommended Northern Boobook and Brown Boobook as English names. If they are adopted, Hawk Owl can be restored as the English name of Surnia ulula. The text and map in Cheng (1987) indicate that burmanica is resident in Yunnan, Hainan, Guangxi, Guangdong and southern Hunan, whilst japonica (ussuriensis) breeds in coastal provinces from Shanghai north to Liaoning and also inland in parts of Heilongjiang, Shaanxi, Gansu and Sichuan. The southern extent of the breeding range of japonica and the northern extent of that of burmanica are unknown.]

(AAA Editor). The taxonomic status of giganteus warrants review. Originally described as a separate species Lanius giganteus (Przewalski 1887), it was later treated as a subspecies of Lanius sphenocercus. In “Birds of Tibet”, Vaurie again raised the question of the taxonomic status of the two forms.

Giganteus differs from sphenocercus in its very much larger size (the wing and tail being at least 20 mm longer), distinctly darker upperparts, lack of white above the eye and on the forehead, and smaller white wing spots.

0773# 红胁蓝尾鸲 Red-flanked Bluetail Tarsiger cyanurus

所有来自东部地区的记录都应该是指名亚种 cyanurus，而所有西部地区夏天的记录则应是 rufilata 亚种。但是西部地区其它季节的记录，两个亚种都有可能，在记录者未指明的情况下很难确定是哪个亚种。

All records in East China are thought referable to nominate cyanurus, and all summer records in West

China to the taxon rufilata (for which the English name “Orange-flanked Bush Robin” is appropriate). However, records in West China at other seasons, when both taxa occur, cannot be assigned to taxon on the basis of range alone.

Red-flanked Bluetail is a long-established English name. Suggest use this name to cover both forms for now.

关于冠纹柳莺和白斑尾柳莺, 本年报接受 Olsson et al. (2005) 的观点, 将其种下的一些亚种提升为种, 其中:

冠纹柳莺类:

- P. reguloides (包括亚种 reguloides, assamensis 和 ticehursti),
- P. claudiae (单型种),
- P. goodsoni (包括亚种 goodsoni 和 fokiensis);

白斑尾柳莺类:

- P. ogilviegranti (包括亚种 ogilviegranti, disturbans 和 klossi),
- P. davisoni (单型种)

这些种在中国的分布大体如下: P. r. ticehursti 分布于云南西部, P. claudiae 分布四川和河北, P. g. goodsoni 分布于广西东部和广东北部 (非繁殖期见于香港), P. g. fokiensis 分布于福建西北部, P. o. ogilviegranti 亦见于福建西北部, P. o. disturbans 见于四川中部。作者认为

P. davisoni 不在中国分布，但是 Cheng (1987)认为其可能在云南西部有分布。由于年报篇幅限制，感兴趣的读者可参照原文。

对于这种分类上的变化，中文名和英文名做相应得调整。由于这几种柳莺的形态特征相似，学名种加词和英文名均为发现者或命名者的姓名，无法直接跟据其形态和种加词拟定中文名，如果以“某氏”开头命名一鸟种，则不能携带更为有效的信息。因此编者倾向于以这些种的分布地命名。仍保留其中分布广泛的中文名，而在分布范围小的种前加其分布地区的名称作修饰。这样命名，即保留了大家熟知的名称，又能反映这些由亚种提升种的亲缘关系。

Blyth's Leaf / White-tailed Leaf Warblers

Taxonomic note: Based on molecular studies of blood, feather or tissue samples from live individuals, Olsson et al. (2005) proposed that Blyth's Leaf Warbler Phylloscopus reguloides (in the sense of Watson et al. 1986) be split into three species:

- P. reguloides (with subspecies reguloides, assamensis and ticehursti),
- P. claudiae (monotypic),
- P. goodsoni (with subspecies goodsoni and fokiensis);

and that White-tailed Leaf Warbler Phylloscopus davisoni (in the sense of Watson et al. 1986) be split into two species:

- P. ogilviegranti (with subspecies ogilviegranti, disturbans and klossi),
- P. davisoni (monotypic).

Olsson et al. (2005) indicate that four of the newly-recognised species, comprising six taxa, breed in China: P. r. ticehursti in western Yunnan, P. claudiae in central Sichuan and Hebei, P. g. goodsoni in eastern Guangxi and and northern Guangdong (and also Hong Kong, Guangdong outside of the breeding season), P. g. fokiensis in northwest Fujian, P. o. ogilviegranti in northwest Fujian and P. o. disturbans in central Sichuan. These authors treated ticehursti, rather than assamensis, as the taxon of P. reguloides occurring in Yunnan and did not list P. davisoni as occurring in China. However, given that Cheng (1987) mapped nominate davisoni (in the sense of Watson et al. 1986) in parts of Yunnan, this taxon may occur in China.
