

The People of Chisago County (19th Century)

Book One

A Through D

Compiled by
Earl W. Leaf

Introduction

This is the first in a series of five or six books in a series about the earlier settlers in Chisago County. The books will be published as they are completed. There is a tremendous amount of information in each book, and the entire work will not be completed for many months—or even years. Since I am 85 years old and may see the day when I can no longer do the research or put it down in written form, I will make it available for what it is worth as I complete each section.

I have researched a good share of the early migrants and immigrants of all ethnic backgrounds in Chisago County. They will be found in alphabetical order. This first book, for example, will cover the individuals and families whose last names begin with “A-D.” As I write this I am almost through the second book, which will cover surnames beginning with “E-H.”

I have published in the past several books of a somewhat similar nature. I have now updated almost every family with information from sources that were not easily accessible at an earlier time.

Census records, cemetery records, church records, newspaper articles, books, family histories, and descendants of pioneers have all been used extensively. Two areas which have interested me personally have been the veterans of three wars and the residents of the two poor farms in Chisago County. All references to military service have been done in bold face. Poor farm residents are listed according to their last names.

There is a chronological index in each book of the newspaper articles connected to the various individuals, with page numbers, and also a listing of all servicemen mentioned in each book, with the war in which they served and the page numbers on which the service information can be found.

One index in this book is a select list of domestics, hired men, boarders, etc., who according to the census records were living outside of their homes with presumably unrelated families. I have also updated the listing of burials in county cemeteries with the help of Robert Chudek of Chisago City.

Obviously, I could not cover every person who lived in the county in the 19th Century. I am sure there are important people that I have missed; but I am quite sure the listing is more comprehensive than any other such project. I realize, as you must, that hardly any source of information can be completely accurate. But the information on these families can be a help in jump-starting or supplementing your own family history research or that of your descendants somewhere down the line.

Selected List of Domestic, Hired Men, Boarders, Etc.

Often young men and women worked and lived outside of the home and therefore were not included with their own families in the census records. Some get lost in the shuffle because they were living in a completely unrelated household. I have taken note of some of them, and they are listed below with information on where they were found. If I could tell that they were related to the head of the household, I did not include them in this list. Birth years can be determined by subtracting the age from the census year in which they were found.

The People of Chisago County (19th Century)

Book Two

E through H

Compiled by
Earl W. Leaf

Introduction

This is the second of a series of biographical sketches of the people who lived in Chisago County in the 19th Century (alphabetically E through H). It was not possible to cover every family, and the information is not meant to be complete for any one person. But it may help someone with a clue or two that might help shorten the research process.

In the back of the book the following index lists can be found (alphabetically E through H).

Index of Married Couples

Newspaper References

Military Personnel

References to Chisago County Poor Farm Residents

Selected List of Domestic, Hired Men, Boarders, Etc.

Chisago County Cemeteries Alphabetical Listing (E through H)

Some burials since 2000 will not be included in these listings, particularly from the dozen or so largest cemeteries in the county which are still being used extensively. Thanks to Bob Chudek, many of the cemeteries are now included on the "Find A Grave" Internet site. Eventually all cemeteries will be listed there.

Introduction

This is the third in a series of biographical sketches of the people who lived in Chisago County in the 19th Century (alphabetically I through L). It was not possible to cover every family, and the information is not meant to be complete for any one person. But it may help someone with a clue or two that might help shorten the research process.

In the back of the book the following index lists can be found (alphabetically I through L).

Chisago County Cemeteries Alphabetical Listing (I through L)

Some burials since 2000 will not be included in these listings, particularly from the dozen or so largest cemeteries in the county which are still being used extensively. Thanks to Bob Chudek, many of the cemeteries are now included on the "Find A Grave" Internet site. Eventually all cemeteries will be listed there.

The People of Chisago County (19th Century)

Book Four

M through O

Compiled by
Earl W. Leaf

Introduction to Book 4 The People of Chisago County (M,N,O)

The numbering of the pages in this book is a little weird. That is because I added the "O" people as an afterthought, after I had finished numbering and indexing the M-N entries. So there are two sets of numbers beginning with "1". Numbers 1-158 have all of the M-N entries, and the second set of numbers 1-42 include all of the "O" entries.

At the end of each section (MNO) are three sets of indexes—couples, newspaper references and military personnel—covering all persons mentioned in those sections of the alphabet.

This is the fourth book in the series of five or six that will cover the persons who lived in Chisago County during the 19th Century. Many residents of the county are not found in these books. It is not meant to be all-inclusive. But it does include a large majority of immigrants who arrived before 1900, plus just about all of the veterans of World War I.

In addition to the veterans of World War I, special attention has been given to Civil War and Spanish-American War veterans, as well as residents of the two County Poor Farms in Sunrise and Branch.

Only a few copies of the book will be printed—none for sale to the general public. Copies will be available for reference at the Chisago County Historical Society in Lindstrom, MN.

The People of Chisago County (19th Century)

Book Five

P through R

Introduction

This is the fifth book in the series "The People of Chisago County (19th Century). The books so far, including this one, are as follows:

Book 1	A through D	Aadlund – Dykman
Book 2	E through H	Easley – Hynes
Book 3	I through L	Ide - Lyons
Book 4	M through O	MacLean - Owens
Book 5	P through R	Page - Rystrom

Index listing for Couples, Military Personnel and Newspaper References for the letters P-Q are found after the Q biographical sketches. Those for the letter R are found at the end of the book.

Following a computer crash, resulting in a new computer and switching from Word Perfect to Word, there may be some inconsistencies because of my not being familiar with the changeover.

The final book in the series (S-Z) could be ready some time in 2011, assuming good health beyond age 87.

Domestics, Hired Men, Boarders, Etc. (P-R)

This listing includes mostly people who are found in census records in households other than those of their own families. Mostly, they are not related. In most cases they are harder to find because it is difficult to trace them to their families. The listings below give at the very least their location at a specific time. If they appeared to be related to the head of the household, I did not include them in this list. Their approximate birth years can be determined by subtracting the age from the census year in which they were found.

The People of Chisago County (Book 6, S, T)

This is the next to last book of biographical sketches involving 19th Century people in Chisago County. The 7th book will include names beginning with U and ending with Z.

Remember that biographical sketches in bold face indicate military service. There may be a few listings at the end of the book that are out of alphabetical order because the information was not received in time to print in the regular order.

Because of a computer crash I could not retrieve Pages 1-67 of the 'S' listings to make a bunch of corrections—mostly typos. I hope that will not cause serious problems.

This series is obviously not all-inclusive, but it is a good sampling of people from all of the ethnic groups which settled in the county, mainly before about 1885. The two largest groups were the English-Scottish-Irish lumbermen and railroaders, and the Swedish farmers. There were smaller pockets of French, German, Canadian, Danish and Norwegian settlers, the largest being the Germans.

The largest sources of information used were census records, cemetery stones and newspaper items, followed by military records, family histories and Swedish birth and emigration records. All of these records are subject to errors in recording, transcribing, interpreting or copying. But they are clues which can be a starting point in the hunt for ancestors.

Domestics, Hired Men, Boarders, Etc. (S)

This listing includes mostly people who are found in census records in households other than those of their own families. Mostly, they are not related. In most cases they are harder to find in a search because it is difficult to trace them to their families. The listing which follows at least gives their location at a specific time which is usually a census year. Their approximate birth years can be determined by subtracting the age from the census year in which they were found.

The People of Chisago County (19th Century)

Book 7

(U - Z)

Compiled By
Earl W. Leaf

Introduction

Book 7, this book, is the last in the 7-volume set of books which tell a little of the stories of people who settled in Chisago County in the last half of the 19th Century. It includes people of all of the ethnic groups who found their way into the county before the turn of the century (1900).

While many individuals and families are mentioned, they still represent only a small part of the immigrants who made their New World homes in Chisago County. Originally I had concentrated on Swedes who came to Chisago County. I later added a book of Non-Swedes. However, this series represents all groups of Europeans, as well as “Yankees” who had settled first in New England and the Mid-Atlantic colonies decades earlier.

The purpose of these books is to help beginners get jump-started in the family history process. While not every family is mentioned, there are some areas that are fairly complete. They include sketches of just about all of the military men and women who served in three wars (through World War I), as well as most of the known residents of the two county Poor Farms at Sunrise and Branch.

Since new material keeps becoming available, the work is never complete. Some of the persons about whom there is added or new information are added at the end of this book. Some information is that of persons not previously listed; and some is additional information about persons previously listed. Much of the information in the supplement has to do with people from areas not covered as well in the earlier books—particularly from the North Branch, Sunrise and Rush City communities. Max Malmquist, in his 4-volume North Branch Regional History, has much more information on individuals and families from these communities.

I apologize for the number of “typos” in the texts. Arthritis and other hand and finger problems have made it more difficult to type as accurately as in the past; and making more mistakes means I miss more of them when proofreading.

Finally, this is an accumulation of information from census records, cemetery records, newspaper accounts, family traditions, etc. None of these sources are completely accurate alone, but I could not do the detective work on that many biographical sketches. Though these material cannot be treated as gospel, they can hopefully be clues to further verification and research.

The People of Chisago County – Supplement

It would be nice if a writing project like this could have an ending—that I could say it is complete. But it will never end as new sources pop up, and older records like the census, land records, family histories, cemetery records, church and town histories, etc. have far more information than one could possibly transfer to this kind of project.

If you cannot find what you are looking for in these seven volumes, you can find much more at the Chisago County Historical Society, the libraries within the county, the 4-volume set of books by Max Malmquist featuring North Branch and the surrounding area, the user-friendly “Find A Grave” site on the Internet, 70 years of newspaper articles, among many other sources on the Internet and in published books by families, churches and communities.

The information on the following pages includes additional information to add to sketches already done, as well as sketches of persons not previously covered. A few corrections are also included.

I realize that many important people who lived in the county in the last half of the 19th Century may not be included. I accumulated information as it became available one way or another. There is no logical reason why a family was or was not included, nor is there any guarantee of accuracy of information on any given family.
