REAL-LIFE 7/7 DETECTIVE WRITES KILLER THRILLER ON LONDON BOMBINGS WITH EXPLOSIVE TWIST IN TALE

A former Scotland Yard Investigator with twenty years policing experience, including Counter Terrorist Operations and Organised Crime, David Videcette has worked in the Metropolitan Police on a wealth of infamous cases.

As a Detective in the Anti-Terrorist Branch, David investigated the London 7/7 and 21/7 bombings for five years and is a highly-regarded specialist in the field of home-grown extremism.

David has spent years working undercover, putting bugs on cars, breaking into houses and chasing suspects down train tracks and today uses that experience in his writing as the author of a series of detective novels.

He currently consults on security operations for high-net-worth individuals across London and is an expert media commentator on crime and terrorism.

David's media experience:

ITV's 'The Bill'

A storyline adviser on organised and gang crime, David also consulted on car theft and on operations within The Metropolitan Police's Stolen Vehicle Unit.

BBC's 'Crimewatch'

David worked as an advisor to the Crimewatch team on cold cases and was involved in creating dramatic reconstructions of gang robberies.

BBC Documentary series, 'Burgled'

A BBC film crew followed David every day for a year as the lead protagonist in BBC documentary 'Burgled'. The show gave the BBC film crew unprecedented access to the best-performing Burglary Squad in the Metropolitan Police.

The critics said:

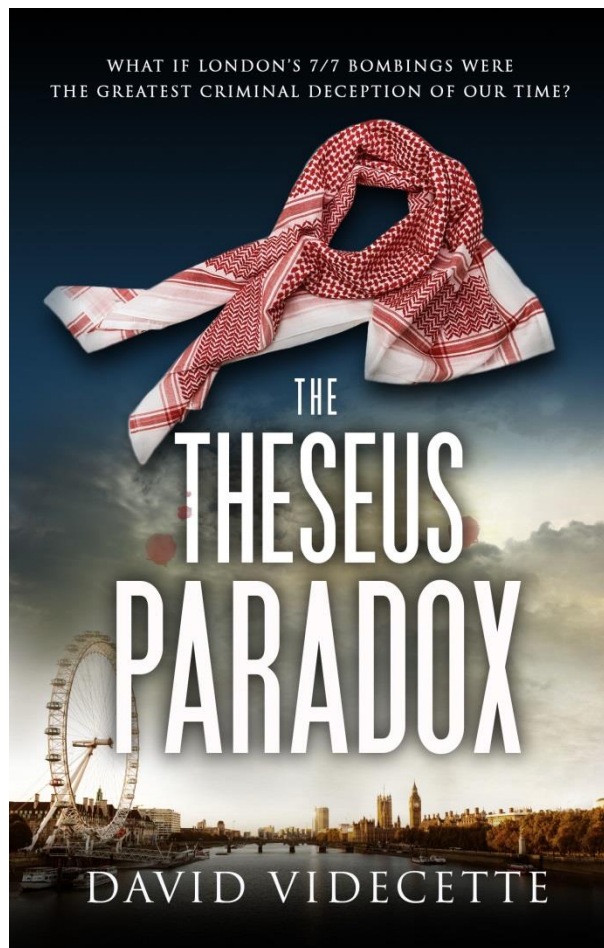

'Essential viewing' – The Independent;

'Engrossing and pacey' – The Evening Standard;

'Remarkable' – The Times

Author of 'The Theseus Paradox':

Set against the backdrop of the July 2005 London bombings and based on real events, the electrifying tale of Detective Inspector Jake Flannagan of the Anti-Terrorist Branch, details the disappearance of the detective's girlfriend during the Met's investigations into home-grown, religious extremism – looking at the links between terror and organised crime, with a twist that will leave you reeling.

As David Videcette says,

'I can't tell you the truth, but I can tell you a story...This is what happened during London's summer of terror...'
