

Faith And Courage of Pioneers Recalled in 75th Anniversary Celebration at St. Elmo

Many Visitors Join Pastor and Congregation of Gordon Church in Memorable Observance of Opening

(Maxville Correspondent)

On Thursday evening, July 20th, the pastor and congregation of Gordon Free Church, St. Elmo, celebrated the 75th anniversary of the opening of the church which was built under the direction of the inspiring personality of Rev. Daniel Gordon, father of Rev. Chas. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor).

At the opening service on July 20th, 1864 the special preachers were the revered Rev. Dr. MacVicar, who, for years, was the Principal of the Presbyterian College in Montreal.

The programme on Thursday evening was in charge of Rev. H. K. Gilmour, who took charge of the congregation a few weeks ago, and has not yet been inducted. It was presented in the main auditorium of the church, which has been altered but very little since the time that Mr. Gordon thundered forth his anathemas against unrighteousness to his Highland listeners.

The building was very tastefully decorated with cut flowers and summer blossoms, while a large "75" in golden figures held a prominent place on the pulpit background. The old communion service was displayed in front of the choir platform.

It had been arranged that the devotional period would be conducted by Rev. N. M. MacDonald of Avonmore, in the Gaelic language, which was the mother tongue of those heroic pioneers, whose faith, loyalty and self-sacrifice, made Gordon Church possible.

Unfortunately Mr. MacDonald was not present. A brief devotional exercise was led by Rev. Walter Ross of Moose Creek, in English.

Of the hundreds who attended the opening service, three quarters of a century ago, there were two present on Thursday, Mrs. John P. McKercher, whose father, the late Donald Ferguson, was for years an elder of the Church, and her husband, Mr. McKercher.

Following is a list of the pastors who ministered to the Gordon Church congregation. Rev. Daniel Gordon, Rev. Kenneth MacDonald, Rev. John Fraser, Rev. Malcolm McLennan, Rev. Neil MacKay, Rev. H. D. Leitch; Rev. Archibald Lee, Rev. John Lennox, Rev. Dr. G. Watt Smith; Rev. W. B. MacCallum.

Of these, only two are living, Rev. (now Dr.) John Lennox who lives in retirement at Allandale, Ont., and Rev. Dr. Smith, who though convalescing from a very serious illness, is doing some ministerial work at Hearst, Ont., where his daughter, Dr. Margaret Arkinstall and his son-in-law, Dr. Wm. Arkinstall are engaged in hospital and private practise. As intimated, Rev. Mr. Gilmour has just entered upon his ministry.

During the evening, a cablegram, expressing congratulations and best wishes, was read from Rev. R. W. Ellis of St. Andrews, Presbyterian Church, Maxville, who is holidaying in his native city of Belfast, Ireland.

Greetings were received from Glengarry Presbytery by Rev. Dr. D. N. MacMillan of Dunvegan and from the United Church by Rev. J. H. Hamilton of Maxville.

Congratulatory addresses were also delivered by John D. MacRae, M.P., Ed. A. MacGillivray, M.P.P., Dr. Wm. B. MacDiarmid and Dr. J. H. Munro, Reeve of Maxville.

It was news to the large majority present when Mr. MacRae and Dr. MacDiarmid announced that they had been baptised by the Rev. Kenneth MacDonald, during his pastorate of Gordon Church.

A very pleasing feature of the programme was the presentation of a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. John P. McKercher, who with Mr. McKercher, were celebrating that day their 53rd wedding anniversary. The presentation was made by little Miss Eileen MacLennan, 10 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rod. MacLennan, Mr. and Mrs. McKercher, were married by Rev. John Fraser.

The historical sketch of the church, prepared by Mrs. Allan MacDonald, was read, by John MacLennan.

A well bound visitors' register, prefaced with a brief historical sketch of the Church, was presented to the congregation by T. D'Arcy Finn, executive editor, on behalf of the Citizen Publishing Co. of Ottawa. He was introduced by Mr. R. A. Jeffrey, district correspondent. Both of those gentlemen delivered addresses.

A gold pen was also received from a pen company. This was presented by Mrs. D. D. MacIntyre of the Women's Guild. Both gifts were received on behalf of the church, by Mr. Allan MacDonald, ruling Elder who expressed his own personal appreciation as well as the thanks of the congregation, for the gifts.

The address of the evening was delivered by Very Rev. Malcolm A. Campbell, D.D. of Montreal, ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, who in reminiscent vein referred to the large part that Gordon Church had played in the life of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The influence that it has exerted, and continues to exert through the lives of those who called it their spiritual home, cannot be measured.

He termed the Christian Church, the greatest institution in the world.

Miss Catherine MacRae, had charge of the music, and had associated with her as organist, Prof. John D. MacMillan, M.A. of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburg, P.A., who is holidaying with his sisters, the Misses MacMillan, Maxville. Prof. MacMillan's father, the late John J. MacMillan, was, for years an Elder of Gordon Church.

Cornerstone Laid 90 Years Ago at Kirk Hill

To those whose hearts are grounded in the old traditions, Sunday, July 23rd, was a red letter day in the congregation of the United Church of Canada, Kirk Hill. On that day the congregation remembered that it was the ninetieth Anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the church. The services for the day were in keeping with these memories.

At the morning service the historical sketch of the congregation and the list of Ministers were read by the newly inducted Minister Rev. Norman J. Thomas. The choir rendered a very beautiful anthem. One of the outstanding parts of the Worship Service was the singing of the 23rd Psalm in Gaelic led by Mr. Duncan McSweeney. The scripture lessons were the same chapters that were used at the service on the same date, ninety years ago.

In his sermon the Minister issued a challenge to the congregation pointing out that the past was glorious but there were accomplishments yet in the future that would test the spiritual qualities of this congregation.

May the congregation indeed continue its march into the future. The evening service was a challenge to youth to assume its responsibilities.

Alexandria Dollar Days To Be Held Aug. 30-Sept. 2

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS WILL BE OFFERED BY MERCHANTS OVER 4-DAY PERIOD

No time is being lost in preparing for the Dollar Day week which is to be sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with Alexandria businessmen. On Tuesday of this week members of the executive of the Chamber of Commerce met with the businessmen to discuss details and institute preliminary preparations.

It was decided to stage a Dollar Day week from Wednesday, August 30th to Saturday, September 2nd, when individual merchants will offer worthwhile reductions and special prizes, and all local businessmen will cooperate in offering attractive grand prizes. The Dollar Day week will be patterned along that held in 1937 and which proved most successful.

Tuesday's meeting heard a review of the 1937 event by Procule Poirier who was chairman of the Dollar Day Committee and this was followed by discussion on many angles. Contributions will be sought from the business and professional men to cover running expenses and it was decided that all other preparations would be left in the hands of the Chamber of Commerce executive who will be the official sponsors of the event.

CHEESE RECORDS RISE

Cheese recorded a rise of 7-16 cents on the Alexandria Board last night when 2846 boxes of white were bought at a price of 11 5-16 cents by Olive & Dorion.

WILLIAMSTOWN MEN INJURED AS AUTO OVERTURNED

Two Williamstown men, Rene Sauve and Lucien Delorme, were seriously injured Sunday afternoon when their automobile turned over on King's Highway No. 2, five miles east of Lancaster. Rushed to Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall, Sauve is reported to be improving but Delorme is still in critical condition. Sauve suffered lacerations about the face while Delorme was more seriously injured with shoulder and head injuries.

The pair were travelling west at the time and in some manner the car got out of control. Marks on the road indicated that it swerved to the shoulder, then back onto the highway before turning over three times. Both men were thrown clear of the car which was completely wrecked.

Z. S. PHIMISTER GOES TO WELLD EAST AS I.P.S.

Z. S. Phimister who succeeded Mr. G.N. Edwards as Inspector of Public Schools for Glengarry in 1937, and who has been on leave of absence abroad for the past year, goes to Welland East to fill the vacancy created by the death of Inspector J. W. Marshall in December 1938. The appointment is one of several which were announced late last week by Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education.

Alexandria Diocese Sends Couples to Mass Marriage

CORNWALLITES AMONG 106 PAIRS UNITED IN UNIQUE MONTREAL CEREMONY

The diocese of Alexandria was represented in the unique Mass Marriage ceremony on Sunday in Montreal by three couples from Cornwall who were married with 103 other young French-Canadian couples at a ceremony staged in the Montreal Baseball Stadium, under auspices of the Jeunesse Ouvriere Catholique organization.

Gaston Bouchard and Miss Lucienne Morin, one of the Cornwall bridal couples, were accompanied by Joseph Bouchard and Henri Morin and attended by Rev. Elzear Danis, chaplain of Nativity Church section of the J.O.C. Hector Blais and Miss Florence Patenaude, had as their witnesses Adolphe Blais and Narcisse Patenaude and as their priest Rev. Paul Archambault, St. Francis D'Assise, Que. Sylvio Marinier, of Hawkesbury, and Miss Nora Lalonde, Cornwall were accompanied by Ernest Marinier and Donat Lalonde, and attended by Rev. Francis Bricault, Hawkesbury, Ont.

Among others present at the J.O.C. convention were Rev. Rolland Rouleau, chaplain of St. Felix de Valois section of the J.O.C., and Rev. J. H. Oulmet, of Nativity Parish.

Accompanying the couples from Cornwall, were some 500 members of the J.O.C. Society, many of whom made the trip by special train.

At the ceremony in Montreal, the brides were attired in ground length lace gowns over white satin, three-quarter veils and carrying bouquets of lilies and white roses. The grooms wore navy blue suits, with white hats and grey gloves, and each couple was attended by two witnesses and a priest. Rev. Henri Roy, O.M.L., founder and chaplain of the J.O.C. Society, celebrated Mass. Around him were grouped the 106 couples and their attendants, while in the huge stands of the park were 25,000 delegates to the second annual J.O.C. congress and specially invited guests.

Do We Want Lacrosse?

The fans of Glengarry will have the opportunity of answering that question on Saturday evening when Montreal Canadiens and Cornwall Island Indians meet on Chisholm Park. On the attendance will depend the question of future games here.

Canada's National game has fallen on evil days in the past few years and Chisholm Park—one of the finest boxes in the country—has been unused for several seasons. Without sufficient material here for a local entry. Mr. J. J. McDonald attempted this year to revive the game by having Montreal and Cornwall teams play here. His premise was good—they had the teams, we had none; they lacked support, Glengarry fans were keen to see the game make a comeback.

Promoters had not counted upon adverse weather and a succession of cold Saturday evenings has seen attendance restricted to around the 400 mark. That attendance has been good in view of weather conditions and the fans have been treated to a fine brand of lacrosse, Montreal Canadiens fielding an especially strong team. The small gates proved unprofitable for the teams and last week a change was made games being played in Montreal and Cornwall to cut travelling expenses.

As it turned out, last Saturday night was ideal for a match here and it was felt that the stands would have been packed. To demonstrate to league officials, Mr. McDonald has arranged for a headline match this week and is guaranteeing a record crowd given good weather.

If you want to keep lacrosse alive, here, attend Saturdays game and bring your friends.

SEEKS RELATIVES HERE

Mr. Richard A. MacRae of Detroit, Mich, his wife and daughter Norma, spent some days in Glengarry this week where Mr. MacRae was seeking to trace family connections. Mr. MacRae is a son of the late Donald Ban MacRae who was born in Ross-shire, Scotland, and came to Canada in 1849 with his parents and brothers, Murdoch and John.

They located in Glengarry where Donald Ban learned the carriage trade between 1860-68 in the employ of the late Duncan MacMillan of Alexandria. He later went to Detroit and afterwards settled in Glenora, Ont.

Alex J. Campbell Pioneer Glengarrian Reaches 100

MAXVILLE'S OLDEST CITIZEN IS ENJOYING VERY GOOD HEALTH

(Ottawa Citizen)

On Friday last, July 21st, Alexander J. Campbell, Maxville's oldest resident, celebrated his 100 birthday. Surrounded by members of his family and friends, he passed the day quietly at his home where he received the congratulations of many of his town's folk.

This veteran enjoys remarkable health for a man of his years, his sight and hearing being quite keen. Though he confessed to The Citizen that he was somewhat negligent of his "chores" this summer, he still goes about, with the use of a cane. Last fall he cut some hay on his lot, with a scythe and this spring planted his potatoes.

He admitted that since then he has let up on the work, observing that "I don't just feel as young as I used to."

When The Citizen representative called, Mr. Campbell escorted him to a sofa on the verandah, and entertained him with the recounting of incidents that happened in his life, particularly those relating to the hardships and simple joys experienced by the early pioneers. He does not live in the past however, but is keenly interested in the happenings of the day.

One thing that is particularly dear to his heart, is his first language—the Gaelic. And one of his regrets is, that this tongue, which he describes as the one spoken in the Garden of Eden, is so rapidly disappearing.

Mr. Campbell, who was a son of John Campbell and his wife, Christina Nicholson, was born on the Isle of Skye, on July 21, 1839. In his youth, he followed the sea, assisting on his father's fishing boat and on sailing freighters from the port of Glasgow.

When 19 years of age, he came to Canada and settled with the family at De Salaberry, in the county of Argenteuil, where he was employed for years by the Hamilton Lumber Co. Later, he moved to Glengarry where he took up farming, settling at Baitie's Corners. At that time, there were few horses in the district, and oxen were in general use.

Nearly twenty years ago he sold his farm and moved to Maxville where he has since lived.

He was married twice. His first wife, Catherine Dewar, died in 1899. His second wife, Jane Urquhart, passed away in 1924.

Of his father's family of nine, he is the only surviving Member. A sister, Mrs. William MacRae of Scotland, was 102 years of age when she died. A son and daughter died some years ago, but three daughters and four sons are living. They are: Mrs. A. Calder Hamilton; Mrs. John J. Urquhart, Maxville; Mrs. Wm. Hamel in Vermont; Alexander, Maxville; Philip A. Vancouver; John, Fort William, and William, Fassifern, Ont.

Mr. Campbell is a Presbyterian and in politics a Conservative, the late "John A." being his ideal as a statesman.

Catechism and Oatmeal. Asked as to what he attributed his longevity, he replied, "The liberal diet of the Shorter Catechism and oatmeal which formed the main part of our food, formed a pretty solid foundation. And," he added, "steady, hard work helped in later years."

AWARDED PRIZE FOR BEST LINES IN CAMP

Two hundred and forty strong, the S.D. & G. Highlanders are enjoying their annual camp at Barriefield this week with approximately half of their ten-day stay already over. The regiment made an auspicious start on Monday when it was awarded the prize for the best lines in camp. Clear warm weather made prospects good for a fine training period.

The regimental pipe band, some 30 strong, under Pipe Major George D. Montgomey, has already established itself as the best band in camp. A total of 23 officers and 217 other ranks make up the strength.

FINDS OLD COIN

Identified as an American 3-cent piece, long out of circulation, an old silver coin was turned up by a spade on the farm of Graham Wightman, east of the station, Alexandria, some days ago. Badly worn, the coin is slightly smaller than the old nickel and bears on one side a star and on the reverse a big C with the Roman numerals III. They are supposed to have been coined from 1851 to 1873.

WELL KNOWN RAILWAYMAN DIES

LATE GEO. W. SHEPHERD

Passing of G. W. Shepherd Mourned Over Wide Area

STATION AGENT HERE OVER LONG PERIOD OF YEARS—MANY AT LAST RITES

Probably the best known and most respected railway man in Eastern Ontario, prior to his retirement in 1935, Mr. George W. Shepherd, a leading citizen of Alexandria, died suddenly early Tuesday morning, at the Western Division of the General Hospital, Montreal. The late Mr. Shepherd who was in his 73rd year had been ill only a few days and was removed to the hospital, but the evening previous to his death.

Station agent here from 1900 to 1935, when he retired, secretary of the Alexandria Public School Board over a period of thirty-three years and an elder of Alexandria United Church, the late Mr. Shepherd gave unstinting of his time and energy to the Alexandria community and to the general public and the regret at his untimely passing is deep and widespread. Known all along the Ottawa-Montreal Division in his 47 years' connection with the railways, Mr. Shepherd had been agent at Casselman, St. Justine, Moos Creek and Maxville, prior to coming to Alexandria.

The late Mr. Shepherd was born in Ottawa, on September 22nd, 1866, a son of the late Captain Martin Shepherd and his wife Hannah Delmar. He spent his early years in Riceville, entering the service of the then Canada Atlantic Railway in March, 1888. After serving as agent at the above mentioned points, he was promoted to the Alexandria office, where he served until his retirement in October of 1935, with the exception of a few months in Parry Sound.

The travelling public knew Mr. Shepherd as an outstanding and efficient railway man. Diligent, conscientious and above all obliging, he never lost an opportunity to be of real service, while keeping in mind the best interests of the Company.

Active in fraternal circles, the deceased was pastmaster and a life member of Alexandria Lodge A.F. & A.M. and pastmaster and life member of Maxville Lodge A.F. & A.M. He was a member of Rameses Temple Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Toronto and also member of the Order of the Railway Telegraphers.

In 1899, Mr. Shepherd married Emily Mary Lemieux of Casselman, who died in 1907. Five children were born of this marriage, the Misses Helena, Pearl and Dora Shepherd of Toronto, a son Stanley, who died in 1915, and another son Major M. L. Shepherd who was killed at Courcellette, on September 15th, 1916. In 1915, he married Miss Rosabette Smith, of Alexandria, who survives him as do two sons of this marriage, Louis and George, both at home.

He is also survived by three brothers, John C., M. Ward and Capt. E. Percy Shepherd, all of Riceville, Ont.

Fellow members of the railway associations and Masonic brethren, in large delegations were present at the last sad rites held Thursday afternoon, while every section of the county joined with Alexandrians in an impressive tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Shepherd.

Preceding the cortege, which left his residence, Bishop St., at two o'clock, for the United Church, was a body of railway men and prominent Alexandrians. They included W. G. Dougherty, representing J. A. Rogers, Superintendent's office, Ottawa; Geo. Wright, representing division freight office, Ottawa J. S. McAdam, W. H. Taylor, and Jos Corbett, representing the Canada Atlantic Old Boys' Association and the C.N.R. Veterans' Association, Geo. Ryan, Riceville; Duncan A. McDonald, A. Proulx, A. H. Johnston, J. A. Logan, R. Lauber, O. Dufréne, Wm. F. Macdonell, Mayor J. A. Laurin, Col. A. G. F. Macdonald, E. A. MacGillivray, M.P.P., Myles Campbell and John D. McDonell.

Lining the approach to the Church were some forty members of four district lodges of the A.F. & A.M., from Vankleek Hill, Maxville, Martintown and Alexandria.

Rev. Dr. D.M. Macleod, Minister, Alexandria United Church, was the officiating clergyman and chose as his text, verse 10, chapter two, St. John, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

Dr. Macleod dwelt upon the greatest need in this modern world, being faithful men—men whose fidelity, integrity and devotion to duty could be

The Ottawa Spotlight

BY SPECTATOR

Ottawa, July 25th—Talk of elections continues to stir the air at Ottawa, with observers indulging in the interesting but uncertain occupation of trying to decide how political winds are blowing, what chances this or that party has of increasing its membership, and what will be the approximate lineup in the next house of commons. However uncertain prophecies may be, discussions on elections are nevertheless a relief from the anxieties ever affairs abroad, because whatever the severity and sometimes bitterness that may attend an election, it is one of the great bulwarks of our democratic institutions. It is a reminder as it comes around in regular course of the liberties we enjoy as a democracy.

From Toronto word came a short time ago that Premier Hepburn of Ontario will take no part in the next federal election. He is not going to make any election speeches at all. "I have stated" he said, "that Ontario Legislature members are perfectly free to take whatever action they pleased." Despatches from Quebec seem to show that in that province the National Union members will follow their own individual inclinations in the federal election campaign. Premier Duplessis has frequently stated that he is in the provincial not the federal field of politics. The idea current some months ago that the premiers of Ontario and Quebec might form a bloc in the federal field is no longer credited by political observers.

DEFENCE PURCHASING BOARD
The defence purchasing board, the personnel of which was recently named, is getting rapidly down to business. Under the chairmanship of R. C. Vaughan, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, the board has taken up offices in the parliament buildings and is getting about gathering its office staff and studying the present position of defence equipment contracts. It is quite clear that there will be no delay in getting the machinery of the board in working order. The board will make defence contracts where more than five thousand dollars is involved, and will also look over the operation of the other contracts which have already been let. In the estimates last session, 63 million dollars were appropriated for national defence purposes.

CENTRAL MORTGAGE BANK

On a floor of the new Bank of Canada building, the new central mortgage bank is also getting down to work. The board of this bank was appointed at the same time as the defence purchasing board. While, however, the defence board can get into full swing without much difficulty as in its main functions it carries on and expands work already being done by the national defence department, the bank has a more complicated body to organize. It has to deal with the whole mortgage structure in both town and country throughout the Dominion. An important forward step was taken a few days ago by the appointment of D. B. Mansur as general superintendent of the new bank's operations. He has been inspector of mortgages for the Sunlife Assurance Company. The general policy of the bank will be in the hands of the directorate, of which the governor and deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, and the deputy minister of finance are members with three other members recently appointed. An important duty of the new bank, now being carried out, is securing the lending companies, insurance and trust companies as members of the bank. In cooperation with the bank, these companies will make their agreements with the mortgage debtors under contracts approved by the bank directorate. A task that may take a little while is getting the appraisal machinery in working order, that is the machinery which will help in one of the major aims of the bank, to get the whole mortgage structure of the country down to a position where mortgages will not be over eighty per cent of the appraised value of property and where farm mortgages will not bear interest higher than five per cent and urban mortgages over five and a half per cent. Many regulations will have to be issued defining clearly terms used in the provisions of the central mortgage bank act. Getting the whole new mortgage system under full sail will take a little time, but it is expected that great strides will be more before the 1st of September. The object before the board, however, is to get everything in working order before the autumn payments on mortgages become due and then thereafter the provisions of the new act will apply.

NEW TRADE TREATIES

Government officials are now engaged in preliminary steps for the renewal with whatever changes experience has shown to be needed, of our trade agreements with New Zealand and the West Indies. In the case of New Zealand there are new import regulations in that Dominion which will be discussed. The balance of trade is quite heavily in Canada's favour. With British West Indies, ex-

Sing and Dance Honoring Dead Is Celebes Custom

Typical of such dances in Celebes is the so-called ma'badong meaning literally to sing mourning songs for the dead. In this dance writes Claire Holt in Asia Magazine, men form a circle and, while chanting in solemn chorus words of lament or praise for the deceased, slowly stretch and bend the knees, occasionally making a step sideways. One hand is laid on the shoulder of the next dancer and the other arm, bent at the elbow, is slowly brought forward and then extended sideways to the rhythm of the song. This dance is usually executed in front of the house where the corpse is lying and, later, also at the place where the sacrificial bulls are being slaughtered—for slaughtering of bulls is one of the most important features of all big Toradja celebrations. The higher the rank of the person who died, the greater the number of slaughtered bulls.

Death festivities offer to the younger people many opportunities for developing their art of dancing and singing, since guests coming to the house of mourning have to be welcomed and entertained. Little troupes of dancers specialize in such dance forms. For example, there is the ma-marakka, sung and danced by boys and girls, in two rows, to the accompaniment of two long flutes, for the consolation of the relatives of the departed one and the entertainment of the guests gathered at his house.

Bread Has Been Food of Man for Many Centuries

Have you ever wondered why we all eat bread—why we never seem to get tired of it?

Bread has been the food of man for thousands of years. Eating it has become almost an instinct. Why, the word "bread" is used for "food" and has been for centuries. When famine has been recorded, it usually meant a shortage of wheat, and, therefore, a shortage of bread. Wheat and bread could be considered the foundation of our life today as well as its support. They have caused both riots and reforms.

The earliest bread must have been pretty horrible stuff as judged by Twentieth century standards. But by the end of the Eighteenth century the people of England would no longer think of eating black bread made of rye, or "horse bread" made from beans, for which they had been only too thankful during the Middle ages, declares a writer in London Answers Magazine.

In the Fourteenth century the Turks hanged bakers for selling bad bread, and nailed them by their ears to doorposts if they sold loaves under weight. In England, at the same time, the crime of selling under weight was punished by pillory or by the offender being dragged around the streets on a hurdle drawn by a horse. In both cases the wretched petty swindler was pelted by the crowd.

Legend of the Sunflower

A Greek legend tells of the origin of the sunflower and why it is the symbol of constancy and adoration. "Clytie was a beautiful water nymph of Hellas. One day she left her home among the waves and went to Olympus, where she saw Apollo, the sun god, and fell in love with him. Apollo, however, was enamored of Calliope, the muse of epic poetry, and paid no attention to Clytie. So she sat on the ground gazing at the sun from the minute it appeared until it dropped beyond the horizon. For nine days Clytie sat and pined away, refusing to return home. Finally her limbs sank into the earth and became roots, her body a slender stem, and her beautiful face became a flower resembling the sun and following its course all day long."

Early Use of Submarines

Contrary to general belief, the World War did not see the first submarine attack. In 1776 a Continental one-man submersible attempted to plant a bomb in the hull of a British ship in New York harbor. The bomb however, exploded harmlessly, says the National Geographic society. Undersea craft were tried out in the War of 1812 and again when the Danish blockaded the German coast in 1850. It remained for the American Civil War to finish the lesson. Although the price paid in life and lost ships was heavy, the Confederate "Davids" (so-called because of comparison in size with Federal "Goliaths") finally proved to the world that undersea vessels could effectively damage and sink enemy craft.

Bread and Other Words

Amongst other things, bread is responsible for the words "lord" and "lady." "Lord" is derived from Saxon words meaning "the owner or winner of the loaf," while "lady" comes from one meaning "the distributor or giver of the loaf," says London Answers Magazine. Bread is now baked in all kinds of flavors from orange to cheese, and in all kinds of different shapes. These shapes, though presumably traditional, seem to have no practical explanation. Why do they bake their bread so rigidly square in Wales, and round in some parts of northern England? No one knows! It is just old custom.

Specimen of Famous Dodo Is Field Museum Exhibit

The long extinct dodo—in many ways the most famous bird that ever lived, although no complete specimen even of its skeleton remains in existence—is the subject of an exhibit at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. The bird, whose name has become in the modern world almost universally a symbol of obsolescence and grotesqueness, is restored in a life-size sculptured model. This model represents the most nearly complete, accurate and up-to-date restoration of a dodo ever attempted in the belief of museum authorities. In addition to the model, the museum displays a series of drawings and paintings which furnish supplementary data on the dodo.

Despite the fame of its name, few people realize that the dodo is anything but fictitious, and fewer still know that there were two species of dodos; and a third bird—the solitaire—which was much like the dodo and flourished in a limited way in the Seventeenth century. Although all that remains in the world today of the dodos consists of one or two incomplete skeletons, a few miscellaneous bones, a couple of heads and a couple of feet in European museums, there are authentic records that at least two dodos were brought to Europe alive and one of them was shown in London in 1638.

The birds became completely extinct about 1631. They were all large birds, about the size of turkeys, and lived only on three of the Mascarene islands, southeast of Madagascar. A gray species of dodo lived on Mauritius, a white dodo on Reunion, and the solitaire on Rodriguez island. All three were flightless, but no doubt their ancestors used their wings for flight. The family of birds to which the dodos belonged is closely related to the pigeons, constituting with them the order Columbiformes.

Cicada Falsely Accused As Destroyer of Crops

For centuries the cicada has been falsely accused of destroying field crops. It was once considered poisonous in some mysterious way, a forerunner of war, and a bad omen generally. Some confuse the periodical cicada with the locusts that ate up Pharaoh's crops. Cicadas are not locusts. The term locust applies to grasshoppers, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

Cicadas do not cause any damage by feeding on crops, but they injure trees by puncturing the twigs and laying masses of eggs inside, states an entomologist. These punctures often cause the tips of the branches to die. Twigs from six inches to two feet long will break off and fall to the ground.

The sudden appearance of the cicada often excites the gravest fear for the safety of trees and shrubs. There is some ground for this, especially if they appear in large numbers.

There are two races of cicadas—the 17 year and the 13 year. When broods of both races appear in the same year the insects are especially numerous. The biggest broods of the two races—No. 10 of the 17 year race and No. 19 of the 13 year race—appeared simultaneously in 1883. But scientists have figured it out that they will not appear together again until 221 years from that date, or to be specific, in 2089 A. D.

In describing the life history of the cicada, entomologists say that antlike larvae come from the eggs a few weeks after they are laid within twigs of trees. The larvae fall to the ground and quickly burrow out of sight.

Meaning of Filter in Photography

A filter is a transparent colored medium interposed between the object and the film in the path of the light rays reflected by the object. It may be a colored gelatin wafer mounted in the barrel of the lens, or it may be a colored gelatin sheet cemented between glass and mounted over the front or over the rear element of the lens. A filter may be of almost any color. Its function is either to screen completely from the film one or more colored light rays or to weaken the intensity of certain colored rays or to do both.

Decorated Queen Anne

Early Georgian—not to be confused with the late Georgian furniture designs which included Chippendale, Sheraton, Heppelwhite, and Adam—was a style development of Queen Anne and has been called Decorated Queen Anne. This period in furniture designs ended for a time the distinctly period designs in English furniture; that is, the name of furniture from a definite time in history as represented by the ruling power. Subsequent furniture became more familiarly known as "styles" and was named for individuals who inspired them.

Royalty Entombed in Cathedral

Roskilde cathedral is the West-minster abbey of Denmark. In it more than 100 kings and royal persons are entombed in elaborately carved sarcophagi, resting in memorial chapels. Here are lord high admirals, statesmen, bishops, burgomasters and their families; kings, queens, princes and princesses, chancellors, councillors, artists, writers, astronomers, and sacred has been the spot to the Danes for nearly 1,000 years.

Education of Bicyclists In Traffic Safety Needed

(Toronto Globe-Mail)

Although bike riders are liable to the same traffic penalties as motorists, the fact so many of them are of juvenile age makes effective disciplining difficult, Inspector Dunn declared.

W. G. Robertson of the Ontario Motor League pointed to recent experiments undertaken in Cleveland as a possible remedy to the cyclist hazard. "Just as dangerous car drivers are made to do, cyclists guilty of negligent or reckless riding are compelled to attend traffic school under the supervision of Cleveland police," he observed.

This is a great improvement on the loose system whereby they are reprimanded by a magistrate and allowed to go without any real awareness of their inefficiency or its solution."

Harry G. Fester, director of the Ontario Safety League, said many individual bicycle clubs emphasized the safety feature, but no large-scale education work had been attempted locally to his knowledge.

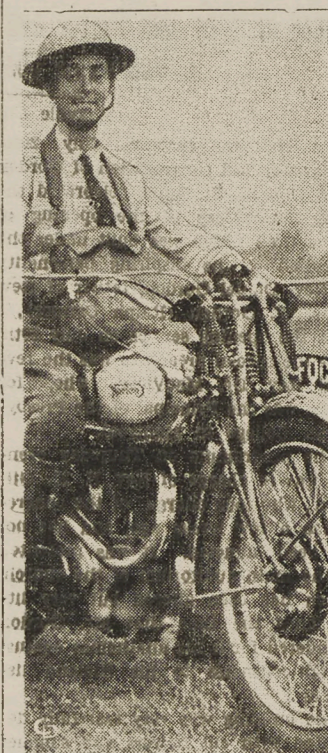

Ninety instructors direct lectures, demonstrations and assembly exercises in the New York safety campaign.

Education work recently undertaken in New York City to raise the safe-riding quotient of bicyclists was lauded enthusiastically yesterday by Toronto traffic authorities, who thought some such scheme was long overdue in Ontario.

Calling attention to Toronto cyclists' record of 389 accidents in which four were killed and 249 injured during the first six months of 1939, Traffic Inspector Edward Dunn expressed the belief that bike-riders err far more on the side of irresponsibility than of inefficiency. "Most of them knew how to handle themselves in traffic," Inspector Dunn said, "but they have no conception of their duties to others. Many, through carelessness or recklessness, become the indirect cause of accidents in which they themselves are not involved. The mere teaching of the mechanics of safety is not the biggest problem. Cyclists know they shouldn't ride on the wrong side of the road and beat traffic lights, but they do it just the same because they are not educated to acknowledge their responsibilities."

Woman Dispatch Rider

Theresa Wallach, wearing her tin helmet and mounted on her machine, is the only woman who has been appointed a dispatch rider by British army authorities. The slightly-built young woman is a well known motorcycle racer and triel rider.

Imports in this case, however are higher than exports, the figure or twelve months ending April of this year being about nineteen and three quarter million dollars, while exports aggregated about 14 and a quarter million. These figures include not only the islands but British Honduras and British Guiana. The largest item of import is sugar other commodities imported include fruits, bananas and grapefruit, some fresh vegetable, rice, ginger and spices, cocoa, beans, and coffee.

Summer Safely For The Children

Teach your children to swim. You owe this to them, not only for the sport they may derive from it, but for their own safety. Instruct them also in the prone pressure method of resuscitation, that they may if the opportunity offers, save the life of another. If you are not familiar with this method of resuscitating a person apparently drowned or dead from electrocution, gas poisoning, etc., send for a copy of the instructions to the Ontario Safety League, Toronto. Children who are too small to swim should not be allowed to play near or in the water without the protection of an adult. All children should bathe only in protected areas and always with a companion who can swim. Warn your children not to go into deep water.

Teach children to identify poisonous weeds that grow in the woods, and warn them against tasting wild berries, roots or leaves of any kind with which they are not familiar.

Teach your boy to be watchful for unsafe conditions around the home and to report them. The upturned nail, broken glass, tin cans, etc. left lying around present unnecessary hazards, and many painful and fatal injuries result therefrom. Teach your boy the proper use of a jackknife; always to cut away from the body and never to run or play with open knife blades in the hands or pocket.—Select-

Household Hints

By Mrs. Mary Morton

Who wants some piquant sauce recipes? Here are some sauces that should pep up and step up vegetable, meat and fish dishes. Great aids to harassed housewives.

Tempting Start

Dutch Vegetable Sauce is made with one cup minced onion, two tablespoons bacon fat, two teaspoons flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, cup of hot milk, six slices cooked bacon (crumbled) and one-half cup chopped dill pickles. Slowly saute onions in fat until slightly yellow. Stir in salt, flour, pepper. Add milk and cook until sauce is thickened, stirring constantly. Add bacon and pickles before serving. Serve with any vegetable. Yield: one and one-half cups.

Good As It Sounds

Pickle-Mustard Sauce is as tangy as its name! It is made with three tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one and one-fourth cups top milk, one-third cup snappy cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, one and one-half teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, one-half cup chopped dill or sweet pickles and one large pimento (chopped). Melt butter in saucepan. Add flour and stir until smooth. Add milk and cheese and cook until thickened and smooth, stirring constantly. Add salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce, pickles and pimento. It's especially good with asparagus but nice with almost any vegetable. Yield: one and three-fourths cups.

Last But Not Least

Spicy Tomato Sauce is also excellent with fish. It is made with two cups canned tomatoes, one slice onion, (minced), one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons sugar, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, three tablespoons flour, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon prepared mustard. Cook onion with tomatoes. Strain. Add butter, flour, sugar and seasonings, then let come to a boil. Cook slowly for 10 minutes.

Short-Tailed Shrew Is Active but Rarely Seen

Over the eastern half of the United States and some of southeastern Canada the short-tailed shrews are abundant and important small mammals, although they are rarely seen, writes Vernon Bailey in Nature Magazine. We call them small, but among the shrews they are one of the largest, being about mouse size and of sturdy build and bloodthirsty disposition.

They are burrowers and ground dwellers, keeping much under cover and out of sight. Almost mole-like in structure and habits, they have functional, although small eyes, scarcely visible ears, short legs, short tail, and velvet fur that always keeps clean and glossy. A pointed flexible nose serves the place of eyes in dark tunnels where much of their food is gathered by sense of smell and feeling, but the pinhead eyes may be seen in the dark at short range. Their beautiful brown-tipped teeth are effective weapons for holding, cutting and crushing their prey, most of which are insects and other small animals up to their own size or even larger.

While true insectivores and equipped with hooked incisors intended mainly for catching and holding insects and their relatives, while crushing them with their heavy molars, they are able also to kill and eat vertebrates as large as themselves.

With a simple but rapid digestive system, they are hearty feeders and full of dynamic energy, strength and activity. In a few hours one will eat its own weight in earthworms, insects or meat, and be ready for another hearty meal a little later. They sleep or rest by short intervals of an hour or so during the night and day, and eat or search for food between these short naps. They never become fat and are active throughout the year, generally working under the snow in the coldest weather, making long lines of unmistakable tracks over the surface, and then tunneling back to the earth to their regular runways, tunnels and burrows.

Word Rhapsody in Music Was Used by Franz Liszt

The use of the word Rhapsody as applied to music, was one of Franz Liszt's many happy hits in musical terms, relates a writer in the Detroit News.

The ancient Greeks used the word to refer to recitations selected from epic poetry—the type which recalls great events and tells about them in lofty style, full of feeling, piecing together bits of this and that like a rich quilt.

As a result of his Hungarian childhood, and his deep love of gypsy music, Liszt wrote 19 Hungarian Rhapsodies. They are collections of Magyar melodies with gypsy-like ornaments. Trills and scales hang over the melodies like colored strands of sparkling beads.

One of the most popular old Hungarian dances is the Czardas, with its very slow spots full of desolation and its "friska" which increases to furious gayety.

The Czardas has cast its shadow over all Liszt's Rhapsodies for they all have these extreme contrasts of mood.

Liszt wrote his Rhapsodies for his own instrument, the piano, and many of them, particularly the favored second Rhapsody, have been arranged for orchestra and other instruments.

May Not Unlucky Month

May is not an unlucky birth month, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. The May-born should be happy in married life, especially if they wear the right birth stone—an emerald. But May has been regarded as unlucky for weddings ever since Roman times. "Marry in May and you'll rue the day" is our proverb. Hot weather in May is supposed to pre-empt a poor harvest; a cold windy May brings later compensations. No other month appears to have special lore, except that "October's child is born for woe and life's vicissitudes must know." This however, can be remedied by wearing an opal birth stone.

Oxhide Used as Canoe

The drea, an inflated oxhide, is used as a canoe on the waters of the river Sutlej, India. The ease with which this curious craft can be carried is a great advantage; on the other hand, it is so easily overturned when afloat that great care and skill are required in its manipulation. The native lies across the drea, which he propels with his hands or with a short paddle, and steers with his feet. If a passenger is carried, he sits astride of the "crew," which must make the balancing of the vessel still more difficult.

Use of Contact Poison

Contact poison is a poison which is used against insects that suck their foods. In other words, the poison comes in contact with the body surface and kills the creature which cannot be poisoned by a stomach poison which is the opposite of contact poison. Nicotine, pyrethrum, rotenone, sulphur, and oils are the usual contact poisons. Corrosive sublimate is a chemical compound commonly used as a disinfectant for plant diseases, especially soil-borne diseases. In other words, it disinfects the soil or the roots of plants such as iris.

Shorter, Fuller Skirts Predicted For Fall Wear

Shorter, fuller skirts—by at least two inches—are forecast for women next fall.

Other predictions at a semi-annual clinic for store executives: Waist lines will be smaller; shoulders will be broader; skirts will be fuller; clothing will be richer in tone, but not so brazenly bright.

There will be a "tremendous vogue" for casual clothes, versatile enough to be worn in the city and in the country.

To Can Butter Beans

Use young tender beans. Cut in inch lengths. Put beans in bag. Scald in boiling water 5 minutes. Drain and pack in sterilized jars to within 1-2 inch of top. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart jar. Fill up with boiling water. Remove all bubbles. Put on rubbers and tops and only partly seal. This is very important. Place jars in broiler and sterilize for three hours. Remove jars, seal at once, cool and store in cool place.

AFTER UNVEILING

The Duchess of Kent unveiled this statue of Queen Mary at the entrance to the Mersey tunnel in Liverpool. At the same time her husband, the Duke of Kent, was unveiling a statue of his father, King George. The two statues stand on either side of the tunnel.

Science Tells Why Lemonade Is Cooling

BY BETTY BARCLAY

Frosty glasses of lemonade, garnished with lemon slices and mint! What simpler or better refreshments are available for a summer afternoon or evening? A tray of crisp crackers and an assortment of vegetable snacks completes a garden-fresh menu that's both cool and cooling.

Science now explains that the popularity of lemonade on warm summer days has an excellent basis in the fact that vitamin C, of which it is a generous source actually mitigates the effects of heat. Only recently scientists at the University of Milan discovered that exposure to high temperature caused a 50% loss of vitamin C from the body tissues — and lowered vitamin C reserves go hand-in-hand with the tired feeling we get when the weather is hot.

That's why lemonade is so refreshing. In fact if you would keep cool in warm weather it's a pretty good rule to have one or more drinks every day of lemonade or orange juice, which is another rich source of vitamin C. These citrus fruit beverages are healthful in other ways, too.

To Make Lemonade

For each person served, extract the juice from 1 lemon. Sweeten to taste with 1 to 3 tablespoons sugar or honey.

Stir until this is dissolved. Add 1 cup cold water and ice to chill. Garnish with mint sprigs and slices of lemon, placing a slice of lemon on rim of each glass.

LEMON FIZZ: Make lemonade with carbonated water.

LEMON ICE BERGS: Top glasses of lemonade with generous spoonfuls of Lemon Sherbet.

LEMON SHERBET

Another delicious form in which lemons bring coolness to a warm day is Lemon Sherbet. Boil 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water together for 5 minutes. Fold this syrup slowly into 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Add 1 cup lemon juice and 1 cup water. Beat well. Pour into freezing tray and set cold control at fast freezing. Freeze stiff and beat or stir thoroughly. Return to freezing compartment and finish freezing; or freeze in crank-type freezer. (Makes about 1 quart. Serves 6-8.)

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

CHOOSING THE NEW CAMERA

For sharp pictures of fast-moving vacation-time games, you'll need a camera with high shutter speeds. A fast lens is helpful, too, when light conditions are adverse.

ABOUT this time of year—and especially with vacations in the offing—many of us feel the need of a finer camera, with greater picture-taking ability.

A fine camera is about as easy to operate as any other, once you are familiar with it. But there is a difference in usefulness between the finer camera and the inexpensive model. Under adverse conditions, especially on dull days or with moving subjects, the inexpensive camera is handicapped. It may fail to get the very picture you want most. But under the same conditions, the fine camera performs capably—insuring good pictures within much wider limits.

In choosing your finer camera, consider these points carefully, so that you can select a model which exactly fits your picture-taking needs:

If you want to be able to take pictures outdoors under all daylight conditions, bright or dull, early morning or late afternoon, choose a camera with a fast lens—an f.3, f.4.5 or faster. For night snapshots by ordinary electric light, without "flood" lamps, get a camera with f.2 lens. If "flood" lamps are used, a slower lens will do.

If you want to take pictures of moving subjects—or those likely to move—choose a camera which has a precision shutter with high speeds. A shutter speed of 1/400 or 1/500 second is needed for sports and fast action shots; 1/200 for moderate action; and 1/100 for snaps of slow action or subjects such as babies or pets which may move suddenly and unexpectedly.

Some camera shutters now have built-in self-timer devices, which enable you to appear in pictures taken by yourself. Naturally, the self-timer is an advantage in a vacation or family camera.

Now for picture size. If you expect to have your pictures finished as contact prints for album use, don't choose a camera that takes too small a picture. If, however, you plan to make enlargements, it's safe to pick a camera in the "miniature" group. And, if you want to take full-color transparency pictures, for large-size projection on a home screen, a miniature camera is just what you need.

It's wise to obtain your finer camera well in advance of your vacation, and practice using it. Since these fine cameras are precision instruments, see that yours receives proper care. If treated well, such a camera will give long and meritorious service—service that far outweighs its cost. Just ask the camera hobbyist who owns one!

During his sojourn here, he took an active part in public affairs without ever neglecting his duty as an employee of the Old Canada Atlantic Railway. In a business way or fraternally, he never forgot Maxville, and Maxville has not forgotten him. May his rest be in peace and may the Divine Comforter be the consolation of those who mourn. SAM COLEMAN The news of the death in Montreal, on Monday of Sam Coleman, came as a great surprise to Maxville relatives and friends. Sam had the distinction of being the first man to enlist from Maxville for service overseas during the Great War. Owing to physical disability he spent months in the hospital in England and underwent several operations since his return to Canada. For years he was a resident of Ottawa. Hamilton read the scripture portion, Psalm 34. The reading, "Miss Willard's Love of Flowers" was given and the clip sheet was in charge of Mrs. D. MacEwen. Its topic was "Our Enemy the Traffic." It was decided to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert MacKay, when Miss Bell MacRae will be in charge. VOCATIONAL SCHOOL CLOSING With the parents and friends attending, the closing exercises of the vocational school, which was conducted for two weeks in the United Church hall, were held on Friday afternoon. This school, which had an enrolment of 35, was in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. H. Hamilton, who had the boys' division, and Miss Elizabeth MacKay who was leader in the girls' group. Apart from religious education, singing and supervised play, the children were taught the art of craftsmanship, and the display they had on exhibition was a credit both to the wise discretion of their leaders and to the individual skill of the pupils. We understand that more ambitious plans are being made for next season's school this year being largely experimental. The exercises, song features and scriptural tests, as presented by the students on Friday, showed something of the value of the training and were in charge of Rev. Mr. Hamilton and Elizabeth MacKay, with Lillian MacEwen as accompanist. ROLLAND—CURRIER St. James Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday morning, when Rev. C. A. Bishop, P.P. officiated at the marriage of Edna Currier, daughter of Mrs. Currier and of the late Fred Currier, and Wilfrid Rolland, son of Richard Rolland and the late Mrs. Rolland, both of Maxville. Her bouquet was of Countess Van Allen roses and delphinium. The bride and groom were unattended the witnesses being Joseph Currier, brother of the bride and Richard Rolland, father of the groom. Owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's family, the wedding breakfast, which was served at her mother's home was just attended by both families and close personal friends. The bride and groom left by motor on their honeymoon, which will be spent in Central Ontario. Going away the bride wore lilac crepe, with white polo coat, white hat and white accessories. The groom's gift to the bride was a yellow gold wrist watch. Mr. and Mrs. Rolland will reside in Maxville. On Friday evening, the bride elect was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Stella Currier, Marlborough Street, where she was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. The anniversary proceedings concluded on Sunday with special services when the preacher was Rev. John McAfee of Arnprior moderator of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa. At the morning service, he spoke on "The Church," his evening theme being "Consecration." Large congregations were in attendance at both services especially in the evening, when Dunvegan, tMoose Creek and Martintown Churches, and Maxville United Church withdrew their services. The congregations included many visitors from different points in Canada and the United States, who registered in the newly installed visitors' register. Sunday's music, which was under the direction of Miss Catherine MacRae, A. T. C. M., with Prof. John D. Mac Millan, M.A. of Pittsburg, Pa., as organist was particularly inspiring. Dunvegan after eliminating Greenfield did likewise to Lochiel by the score of 2-1 on the round. Although they lost the first on their own grounds by the score of 1-0, they came back to turn the tables on Lochiel by 2-0, and how go into the finals with Pine Grove for the Glengarry Cup.

The first game ended as a surprise to many. Many people thought that Dunvegan having just disposed of Greenfield would certainly triumph over Lochiel on their own grounds, but the Lochiel team had other ideas. They went out on the field in Dunvegan determined to put up a battle royal. Although minus one of their better forwards Hugh A. McKinnon, and having only one substitute, Cecil Vogan who was playing his first regular game, they went onto the field full of pep and the old fighting mexie, and from the opening whistle to the very last they put up a whole of game. Clifford Morris who took MacKinnon's place at inside right put on a fine display while Cecil Vogan, alternating with Leo Robinson on outside left added fight and attacking strength to the forward line, and was instrumental in bringing the ball into position to allow Lucien Ranger to score the only goal of the game. All the other Lochiel players were individually great, and played fine ball throughout. It would be unfair to single out any for special mention for there was no weakness apparent anywhere. There wasn't a miss made all evening.

Although they only scored one, they did well to do that, for they were up against a fighting opposition, who were out to win, and played accordingly. They kicked, checked and attacked, but they just couldn't beat the strong Lochiel defense. It was a great game, and Lochiel on the night's play deserved to win, and maybe by a greater margin.

If the odds were on Dunvegan in the first, Lochiel had them before the second, but again the majority were wrong. This time it was Dunvegan that had all the pep and fight, while Lochiel played away below form, so much so that for the first forty minutes one could hardly believe it was the same team. Dunvegan forwards are not noted for their scoring ability, but in the first period got two, and with more luck and direction might have had several more. This writer finds it hard to understand how a team could play such a strong game one evening and follow it up with such a weak one a few evenings after. True Dunvegan played two of their home brew spares in place of their two imported regular players and strange to say, that strengthened them some, but what made all the other difference, as the play did, and the score would indicate. Search us. It may have been the extreme heat of the evening, the unusual large home audience, or something, but whatever it was it was just too bad. For the last ten or fifteen minutes they were coming back to their old form, and had Dunvegan hanging on for dear life, but it was too late, the damage had been done, and so Lochiel passes from the picture. We would still bet on them to win playing again or again against any team in the League if we saw them coming on the field with the right look in their eye. They did well to go as far as they did. Last year, starting out with many young players they finished a poor last. This year they were potential champions, but with a tendency to have poor nights. The team is composed of local boys—no imports—all from one concession in a very small radius. They played clean—never worried about the referee, linesmen or their decisions, had a good time, and are well thought of throughout the League, and that's something. We can't all win, but we can be good sports, win or lose.

Dunvegan players all played well—The wings, Jimmie Campbell and D. R. Campbell were particularly so—each scoring a goal. Don Stewart was tricky at centre, and Lloyd MacPhee and Bud MacKinnon were fast and active on attack. The defence was solid. "Little Willie" held them fighting together. One goal against in three play-off games is not bad.

The Lochiel halfline of Arnold, Joe and Leo were effective and after a few misses played well thereafter. Lucien Ranger, Lawrence Cameron and Hugh A. MacKinnon were the best of the forwards.

It was a good game—the best team on the evening's play won—and by winning 2-0 win the round and so enter the Glengarry Cup finals with Pine Grove, billed for Friday, July 28, in Dunvegan and Tuesday, August 1st in Pine Grove. So congratulations and good luck Dunvegan. You deserve a lot of the first, and will need plenty of the second from here on. Bring everything you have against Pine Grove for they are a great team, and have the happy faculty of always playing a sure, steady and heady game. If they ever had an offnight, we haven't been there to see them. It will pay you all to see one of these final games.

Lochiel Lineup—Keith McMillan goal, Peter and Alfred Davidson, full-backs, Arnold Vogan, Joseph MacDonell, Leo Davidson half-back Lawrence Cameron, Lucien Ranger, Pat. Sage Hugh A. MacKinnon, Leo Robinson forwards spares Clifford Morris and Cecil Vogan.

Dunvegan, Roger Hartwick goal, Murdie MacRae, Donald Fleming full-backs, Gordon MacDonald, Willie MacLeod, and B. MacPhee half-backs. Jimmie Campbell, Bud McKinnon, Don Stewart, Lloyd MacPhee and Donald R. Campbell forwards. Spares Kenzie Fraser.

- First Modern Hotel
The American Hotel association says the modern American hotel dates back only to 1794. That year marked the opening of the City hotel in New York. Even in the palatial Parker house, Boston, 1854, there was no water above the kitchen floor. The only baths were in the basement. Guest rooms were unheated. Straw was used in mattresses in summer, feathers in winter. A bowl, a pitcher, one towel and a cake of yellow soap completed the furnishings. One of the strict rules was that none of the guests should wear their boots in bed.
- Indian University Failed
George Berkeley, the famous English philosopher, came to Newport, R. I., in the year 1729, with a royal charter in his hand and a plan to convert the Indians by making a university for them. It took him two years to find his scheme impracticable and he returned home, giving the mansion he had built at Newport and a fine library to Harvard and Yale.
- Benjamin Franklin Had Interest in Home Town
Benjamin Franklin's interest in architecture and pride in the beauty of his home city we find in a paragraph from a London newspaper in 1779, says the North American Review:
"Doctor Franklin has recommended to congress, to beautify Philadelphia, all the improvements adopted in London within these 20 years, in respect to lighting, watching and paving. Likewise to modernize the roofs of the houses, to slate them and new sash them in the present English manner. He has also sent them the ingredients of Leardet's newly invented stucco, advising them to face all their brickwork with it. As Philadelphia has the most regular plan and the finest streets of any city in the world accompanied with the noblest rivers in the universe, trade and the curiosity of rich Europeans will render it the wealthiest town that ever existed, for which purpose great encouragement will be given to a school of architecture, that their buildings may be beautiful and not, like London, ill placed. Their first attempts will be a church, equal, if not superior to St. Peter's at Rome, with walls so thick as to admit of the dome being all stone, which St. Paul's in London should have been. No sculpture or paintings are to be introduced but what shall be adapted to the architecture, and as fine as those in St. Peter's in Rome. It is the hope that the philosopher's zeal will stimulate England to improvements of equal consequence."

CANADIAN PERCHERON "ONE OF THE BEST"

A Miss America of the draft horse world, Monet, owned by Carl Roberts, St. Adolphe, Man., was named winner of fourth prize in a continent-wide Percheron "beauty contest." Competing with 55 other entries, Monet was declared one of the best Percheron mares on the continent by livestock judges.

"WORKING LIKE A HORSE"

In this case a man really "worked like a horse." Oliver Fairbrass, a farmer near Omaha, Neb., had the misfortune to have four of his horses die just at haying time. He just hitched himself up with his 16-year-old mare, Queen, and "pulled 'til my eyes stuck out." Mrs. Fairbrass drove the "team" and haying went on as usual. Fairbrass explained that it took five hours to accomplish what should have been done in one.

TRIPLETS BORN TO MISSOURI COW

This nine-year-old cow, owned by Frank Morris of Holt Summit, Missouri, is the proud mother of triplet calves, all heifers, and all thriving after six weeks. Even rarer than such a triple birth is the survival of all three.

Weekly Garden-Graph

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY for Central Press Canadian

Transplanting ferns successfully

Ferns may be transplanted at any time of year, even during midsummer. This is perhaps the most suitable time, as they have reached maturity and the gardener can see their height and form.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, those ferns which have a short, thick rootstock should be transplanted with at least two inches of the old rootstock attached to the crown so that the plant is not starved by lack of rootlets. Also leave the dead last-year's stalks attached. In this group are the wood-ferns, Christmas fern and ostrich fern.

Do not move fern from a moist shady situation to a sunny one. Ferns are not adaptable and even nursery stock must be maintained in its natural habitat.

Believe White Animals Should Be Held Sacred

Among many primitive peoples white animals of various sorts, albinos and otherwise, have been endowed with supernatural virtues. The animal selected for this reverence is usually one closely associated with the life of the people, like the elephant in Buddhist countries. The ordinary bison was the plains Indians' source of livelihood. It provided him with food, clothing and utensils and with the hides for making tents, recalls a writer in the Chicago Daily News.

Long before the Indians had guns and horses, they killed the bison by driving them into pens, or over the brink of high embankments. According to a story collected from among the Atsina Indians of Fort Belknap, the meat and hides of a herd thus taken was not touched if a white bison were found in the herd unless there was great scarcity of meat in the Indian camp.

Among the Atsina a white bison which was killed in a buffalo drive was skinned and the hide turned over to the keeper of the Turtle Pipe, a pipe which was said to possess great supernatural power.

Among the Teton Sioux the white bison was believed to have taken the form, according to their legends, of a beautiful woman, who has a benevolent and powerful spirit.

References by early explorers to the white bison are few and widely scattered. It is believed that Juan Onate, who explored east Texas in 1601, is the first white man to make mention of the white bison. Onate, in mentioning the herds of bison he saw in the country, says that "all these cattle are of one color—namely, brown—and it was a great marvel to see a white bull in such a multitude."

The Glengarry News

"Once there was a business man,
And he was wondrous wise;
Said he:
"We'll save the money it takes to advertise
We've got the business going,
We'll sit and take the kale.
Why squander cash for printing?
Our income cannot fail!
Things prospered for a season,
And prospects rosy grew;
Then sales began to dwindle;
The why?—Nobody knew.
The boss was fretful, worried,
His face grew pale and drawn,
The business 'kept on going'
—Going—now it's gone.—"

CHAPTER V PRISONER'S PROGRESS

Perhaps it was the hope that her appeal might succeed which kept Christabel alive and sensitive when she would otherwise have fallen into an apathy of misery during the first months of her sentence.

Grey passages, rows of locked cells, low or wretch faces about one; always the fear that one might do something contrary to the regulations that one had been told nothing about. Such as when they first put her into her cell, and she took down the furniture piled in the middle of it and placed it about as conveniently as she could.

Two days later the wardress said roughly:

"Wot's all this stuff doing put around like this?"

"Why?" Christabel was puzzled and frightened.

"Don't 'why' me!"

The woman went away, leaving Christabel to wonder what was going to happen. The wardress came back with a piece of chalk; and with an occasional order: "Get that out of the way!" and "Shift that!" she chalked on the floor the regulation pattern for the arrangement of cell furniture.

Christabel put it all in order. Such incidents seemed enormous to her tortured mind. How was she to have known? Why couldn't they tell her what the regulations were?

Later the wardress adopted a more kindly manner. There was nothing very dreadful about the prison an extreme, unrelieved dreariness of time passing in an ugly, unhappy place.

It was a shock, but not a very terrible one when the Court of Appeal found her sentence in accordance with the evidence, and her appeal was dismissed. She had come to believe in her own ill-luck.

As she settled down the heavy work in the laundry became an antidote to depression and her sense of injustice, and she sorted out the facts of the disaster.

Keith was dead, and it was no use blaming him. He had not taken it lightly; the last scene on the ship still gave her dreams from which she wakened at night in a sweat of horror. Craigie was a mere, miserable, terrified little crook Henry Goring had behaved according to his ideas of right, and the promptings of his sister, a jealous, embittered old woman.

But Hewitson — what excuse was there for Hewitson? She would not have fixed any of her bitterness on him however relentless he had conducted the case against her, if there had been the suggestion that he had hoped for personal gain in doing so. But that was intolerable!

Intolerable to think that he had butchered her to get the better of Ross Barnes, and had walked out of court a more successful man than ever. Whereas Christabel became not even an individual, but part of an institution; not a name but a number; to pay and pay for his success with days and nights of mental anguish; with hour after hour of privation, monotony and shame, when every instant of self-consciousness was an instant of despair.

In a way it was good for her to have that concrete grudge against one man. All the bitterness that might otherwise have wrecked her character was concentrated on Hewitson.

"Hard labour" consisted of work in the laundry. In the steamy, heated atmosphere she became very thin, and the work was heavy. But she did not break down, except once, during her first three months, at a time when she was most deeply depressed and could not sleep at night.

The nights were worst. At five every evening she was locked in her cell, with nothing to do but to tell and retell the story of disasters; to cry with longing for a single friend the understanding of one human companion. Or to lie in a dull aching apathy, because the ache was better than the pangs of active thought.

Once in that intolerable silence broken only by the dripping of water in a cistern, and a snore from the next cell, she was haunted by an impulse to scream. She grew hot all over as she lay there, thinking: "I might scream. What if I were to scream?" And then she did scream, scream after scream, shattering the silence into a worse horror.

Like an answer, somebody far away, some soul shut into some other cell, nerves snapped by the sound, screamed too.

Then after that silence. Nothing but her now sobbing agonized breaths. Nobody came. Darkness. Terror.

Next day in the laundry she fell down in a state of collapse. She was allowed to lie in bed for three days. After which the prison doctor told her: "There's nothing wrong with you. This won't do you any good. Back to work you go."

So she was sent back to the laundry; and she realized vaguely that it was for her own good. It was no use thinking.

Her hands became red and thick from handling the hot, newly wrung cloths; and sometimes she would cool her stew at the cell window, which she could reach by standing on a chair, and skim the fat to rub her par-boiled fingers.

There were no mirrors in the cells. But there was one, carefully covered with wire netting in case anyone should try to break it in the bathroom.

Three weeks after she went into prison Christabel noticed it; she looked at herself, saw a frightened face peering back at her through the netting; and for as much as six months never looked into it again. When she did—it was April by then, and there was a windy blue sky over the exercise yard—she hardly recognized herself. Her face was so thin and so pale, her hair so straight and lank. She looked older, older; that was her first thought. She saw all her wrecked and wasted life gazing out of her own dark eyes, and turned away in despair. . . .

CHAPTER VI BEAUTY BEHIND BARS

But those were the early days. There comes an end of the ability to suffer. After some time there came a change. What saved her was a sense of her own innocence; the realization of her own strength to endure. It was a gradual change, becoming conscious, perhaps, from the moment when she scattered some crumbs to the sparrows through the cell window, and saw a cross glittering on a distant church spire, and it seemed like a sign; when, with a sort of coincidence, the wardress who was sometimes so brutal, smuggled a bar of chocolate in to her with her evening cocoa. . . .

The same wardress went about one day with a red and swollen face. Her son had died in Canada.

"I was 'ard on 'im!" said the wardress to Christabel, sniffing wretchedly and not caring who saw her. Perhaps she suddenly felt equal in guilt with the prisoners. "I was 'ard on that boy!"

As Christabel grew more aware of the grey half-muted life inside the prison, and learned the stories of the unfortunate, abnormal, or merely feeble-minded women about her, her sense of her own comparative integrity gave her strength. The havoc of her life was all without; there was no real ruin within; perhaps only a greater strength from suffering and experience.

She glimpsed her face in the mirror in passing one cold morning, when she was thinking of these things—surprised herself with a glimpse of beauty. After that she could look into the mirror with detached interest.

She saw there a face no longer tortured-looking with nervous strain. A pale face with dark eyes alight under mild lids, and subtle shadows under the cheek bones. Someone who was quite different from the girl Christabel. A woman. A woman who, as she knew, knew everything and yet wast still herself—because she was fundamentally innocent.

At that time even the hatred of Hewitson which was to return so forcefully later fell away from her; but it was the only thing in her which was never wholly transformed.

She singled him out as an object for contempt even when she felt compassion for the whole of the rest of the world. . . .

She was a reliable worker, and during her last six months she was put to work in the prison hospital.

The chaplain suggested to her that she should take up nursing again when she went out.

The thought of going out troubled her more and more. She had assumed that she must sink, that she would find an occupation scrubbing work-house floors, perhaps; she could not believe that she would ever take her place again in the world as an ordinary middle-class woman.

"You must make the effort," said the chaplain.

"But how shall I be able to conceal where I've been? How can I go back?"

"Prisoners go back every day," said the chaplain. "To their old homes, and their old occupations!"

She was glad that at least there was no old home to face.

Her mother had written to her regularly; but as Christabel "would understand," it was too difficult for her to visit the prison.

The Haye's pitied Christabel, but were sorrier for themselves. There was the disgrace to be lived down.

"Poor Christabel!" Mrs. Haye would say, half tearfully.

Mr. Haye would tighten his lips, so that she was afraid to say more; it seemed indecent to have mentioned the matter.

The problem of what to do with Christabel when she came out had to be faced. His dignity would not allow Mr. Haye to leave her to the care of the prisoners' Aid Society. It was usual for prisoners to be sent into the country to some women's rest camp or convalescent home after their discharge. But Christabel wrote to her mother.

"They want me to go to a home for three weeks, but I feel I can't face it. Any more institutional life after coming out would drive me mad. If I may borrow the twenty-five pounds you offer to give me, I will look round for a job as soon as I come out."

A respectable boarding house was found for her to go to for three weeks in Richmond; and Mr. Haye arranged for her mother to take her from the prison to Richmond in a hired car; after a fortnight's rest she was to go to an employment agency recommended by the prison chaplain, and try to get a job.

RELEASE!

She had earned her thirty weeks remission of sentence with thirty months unrequiting labour and obedience. Her prison surroundings were so graven into her nerves that they were strung almost to hysteria by the thought of seeing anything new.

And yet on the twenty-third of March, when she walked out to the waiting car with her mother, the strangeness of coming out was beyond all expectation. She wanted to weep.

"How are you, mother?"

"How banal it sounded!"

"I'm very well, dear!"

Mrs. Haye's voice trembled with nervousness.

When they drove away in the car the movement of the traffic, the people going freely about in the streets, the rain coming down out of the open sky it all dazed Christabel in a physical way. It was her mother being there that helped her to keep conscious control.

It was painfully moving to Christabel to see a familiar face, particularly one which had been the centre of all her childish instincts. But Mrs. Haye failed to hide her furtive shame in the situation for Christabel to hope for any real help from her mother was no more use than trying to lean on a straw. Mrs. Haye was cut off from her always by her blind anxiety about the opinion of Mr. Haye.

"You look terribly ill, dear. You must rest and try to eat well after—You must try to get better. I hope you'll find it comfortable at Richmond."

Mrs. Haye couldn't mention the prison directly.

She did her best, but Christabel was glad to be left alone in the private hotel. She was used to being alone; but now she could open and shut the door, lie on a silk covered bed, sit at a dressing-table in front of a mirror.

But she was sunk in a more profound despair than she had felt since her first twelve months in prison.

This was the world. She was free again. But she was alone in it; utterly alone. And how, with her record, whether she concealed it or not, could she ever again hope to be anything but alone?

She was physically upset. The sort of food one never got in prison, which she had longed for so painfully at times, made her feel ill when it was put before her and she couldn't eat it. But after two days lying on her bed feeling ill and stupefied, she went out and walked about and began to taste the real sweetness of freedom.

Automatically, wanting to conceal any signs of the prison, she began to think about her appearance. She unpacked the make-up she had not used for two and a half years, and put a little lipstick on her lips to make herself look like other women. She was nervous about her workworn hands, and wore gloves as much as possible. She wore to notice that passers-by seemed to stare at her, and was more afraid than ever that she looked strange.

But it was impossible for her to go about for long without coming to know the real reason. What she began to see in the mirror was reflected in the face of every man who looked at her. She was better looking, or more interesting looking than she had been before she went to prison. Men had never looked at her like that before.

One day when her mother came over to see her, Mr. Haye drove out himself to pick up Mrs. Haye, so that the chauffeur should not know where she had been.

Christabel happened to be in the doorway of the hotel, and he walked past her without recognizing her.

When he did realize that it was she he said in embarrassment:

"By Jove—how stupid! I didn't know you!"

And he stared, because even his disapproving eye could see that she was beautiful. It was as though everything that was average had been refined out of her, as though everything she had suffered had been consumed and transmuted into beauty by some inner fire. It was as though one could see the inner fire glowing through the prison pallor of her face.

Mr. Haye could not have described the radiance; but he saw it, and it made him uneasy. She did not look the weak and contemptible creature he wanted to think her.

Strength Saves Lives

"I just had to lift that car because the father and three children were in it," was the simple explanation given by Dan Smith, ABOVE, 45-year-old Kilbride, Ontario farmer, after he had lifted, single-handed, a wrecked automobile to an upright position after it had turned over, imprisoning four people, all injured, after a highway crash involving the car occupied by the trapped four and Smith's truck. The heroic rescuer performed his herculean feat despite the fact that he was himself suffering two broken ribs, a twisted knee and a gashed arm.

Turkey May Have Named Itself by Call Sound

Perhaps the most widespread error concerning the bird is the vague idea shared by thousands of people that the turkey came originally from Turkey. This is an utterly false notion. Just why the bird should have been called "turkey" in the English language no one seems to know. The realm of His Sultanic Majesty has no more to do with the introduction of the bird to polite society than Greenland or Kamchatka, asserts a writer in the Rural New-Yorker. The turkey was introduced into Europe by Columbus, taking it to Spain. It is possible that an ill-advised public concluded that, like many other unusual things, it came from Turkey or the Far East. Again the bird may have named itself since the call of the hen to her chicks sounds very much like "tur-r-r-k, tur-r-r-k, tur-r-r-k. At any rate, there is no actual connection between the bird and the country of the same name.

Another common error is the notion that the tame turkey is the descendant of the wild turkey. It is quite natural to assume that some person or persons in the early days caught some wild turkeys and tamed them and that from these our domestic turkeys were derived. Like many other plausible and wide spread assumptions, however, this idea is incorrect. Our domestic turkey and our wild turkey, though members of the same species, are different and distinct races. Though in the early days the forests were full of wild turkeys, our domestic fowl did not come to us out of our own forests. It came from southern Mexico and it is derived from the southern Mexican wild turkey and not from the North American wild turkey.

Site in Ontario Scene Of Many Bitter Battles

Standing on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river at the eastern end of the town of Prescott, Ontario, Fort Wellington is a contemporary reminder of the struggles of the British and French and later of the British and United States troops for the possession of Canada.

Fort Wellington was first built during the War of 1812-14, when the British authorities decided to fortify Prescott as one of the most vulnerable points of attack and as the main base for the defense of communication between Kingston and Montreal. During this period of hostilities two attacks were made by the garrison at Ogdensburg on the opposite bank of the St. Lawrence, the first of which was unsuccessful, while the famous second attack, under Lieutenant Colonel Macdonell, resulted in the capture of Ogdensburg and the command of the river.

The fort also saw action during General Wilkinson's projected attack on Montreal in 1813, but after peace was declared in 1815 it was practically abandoned.

During the rebellion of 1838 the fort was restored when Col. Plomer Young himself assembled his forces to repel the invasion at Windmill Point. At the time of the Fenian raids from the United States in 1866 a local garrison artillery occupied the fort, and again during the Red river rebellion of 1870 it was garrisoned by a company of the Fifty-Sixth battalion under Captain Hunter. It was also occupied by a garrison in 1886 during the Northwest rebellion, after which it was finally abandoned as a military stronghold.

Color of Horses

Few people seem able to describe the color of a horse unless their occupation concerns horses. A bay horse, notes a writer in London Answers Magazine, is a reddish-brown with black mane, tail, and points; sometimes with a white blaze or stocking. Chestnuts have the mane, tail, and points of the same hue as the rest, or lighter. Brown horses frequently have dark points. A clipped light brown may be mistaken for a chestnut. A roan is a horse whose body color (brown, bay, or chestnut) is flecked with bluish-gray. A strawberry roan, has bluish-gray spots on a bright bay skin. A piebald has patches of black on a white ground. A skewbald is splashed with brown on a white ground. In speaking of a horse's height, a "hand" is four inches.

CHEMICAL STYLES?

Will the chemist or the couturiere design the clothes of tomorrow? Violet Chatterton is one of the arguments on the affirmative side in the new "Chemical World of Tomorrow" which will be featured at the Canadian National Exhibition. She wears a water repellent bathing suit which enables her to swim without becoming wet. She is shown looking at a six-foot chemical test tube.
