Arnold A. Bethune, Avonmore Ordained Presbyterian Minister

In the presence of a large congregation from all parts of the Presbytery, Arnold Alexander Bethune, B.A., B.D., was ordained to the holy ministry by members of the Presbytery of Glengarry meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Avonmore, last Thursday night.

Mr. Bethune, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Bethune of Avonmore, graduated last month from Knox College, Toronto. At the convocation exercises the degree of Bachelor of Divinity was conferred upon him.

Presiding at the impressive service was Rev. Douglas J. Fox, B.A., Vankleek Hill, Moderator of the Presbytery of Glengarry. Assisting in the opening service of worship was Dr. Robertson Millar, Martintown, Presbytery Clerk.

The sermon was preached by Rev. W. A. Douglas, B.A., Avonmore, who based his remarks on the words of the Apostle Paul, "For our gospel came not unto you in words only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost and in much assurance".

The choir of St. Andrew's Church, with Mrs. Neil M. Bush presiding at the organ console, sang the anthem "Cleanse Me". The solo part was sung by Mrs. E. M. Miller.

Dr. W. L. MacLellan, B.A., minister of St. John's Church, Cornwall, presented Mr. Bethune to the Moderator.

Mr. Fox then proceeded to the solemn act of ordination in which members of the Presbytery and visiting clergymen from neighboring presbyteries participated.

The charge to the newly-ordained minister was given by Rev. Iver D. MacIver, Maxville.

As the service ended, Mr. Bethune pronounced the benediction.

Later, Rev. and Mrs. Bethune were greeted by the large assemblage of friends and relatives. Members of Rev. and Mrs. Bethune's families were present, including Mr. Bethune's brother, Ross Bethune of Hampton, N.B., who had driven to Avonmore for the service.

Members of the Ladies' Aid Society served lunch and a social hour was spent.

Mr. Bethune is under appointment by the General Board of Missions and will spend the next year in Melfort, Sask. Mr. Bethune is a graduate of the Avonmore High School. He attended Ottawa Teachers' College and for a number of years taught school locally. He attended Waterloo College and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Western Ontario in 1957. His theological training has been taken at Knox College, Toronto, where he has had an impressive scholastic record. This year he was the recipient of several major awards.

McCrimmon Opens With Win Over Lochiel; Two Postponed

Two games were postponed in the Glengarry Soccer League opens early this week but Lochiel played at McCrimmon Monday evening when three goals were scored in the second half. McCrimmon emerged with a 2-1 win over the perennial league champs.

1—All fields must be marked, not once a year, but often. Dimensions of goal posts shall be 8 ft. x 8 ft., in line with the corner flags; all rotten goal posts to be renewed; no boulders may be placed around posts on the surface.

Three changes have been announced in the first-half schedule published last week. Greenfield will go to Cornwall May 31st instead of on May 28th. Greenfield plays in Cornwall June 14th, instead of the reverse. McCrimmon will play in Cornwall June 28th, rather than on June 24th.

12—Fouls & Misconducts — All players read this rule. —The home club will inform League Secretary the results of games not later than noon of the following day.

League President Gerald Simpson wishes published these laws which must not be infringed or action will be taken. —Players must be registered and fees paid to the league secretary not later than May 30th.

LOCAL TAXES
Tax dollars spent at the municipal level seem to buy more of the usual things of life than dollars spent at the provincial and federal levels. They provide, in a tangible way at least, the mechanics for satisfactory living. They are not to be begrudged. —Altona (Man.) Red River Valley Echo.

CANDY by Tom Dorr

SUGAR AND SPICE by BILL SMILEY

Some people think we Canadians are lacking in tradition. They are quite wrong. We have traditions we haven't even told anyone. This legend, reprinted by request, tells of the origin of one of them.

Once upon a time, two or three million years ago, a Canadian couple lived in a cave with their three small children. When the winter had begun, they'd had eight small children, but they'd had to keep the wolf away from the door somehow, and the wolf was very partial to small children.

Now, it was spring and things were tough. The mammoth they'd put in the deep freeze at the back of the cave was gnawed to tusks and tail. The Mother had begun to eye the three small children, gaunt as they were, in a rather chilling manner. And every time the Father looked at the Mother, saliva leaked out the corners of his mouth. She had a little more meat on her than the three small children.

As for the three small children, they took a snap at the calves of their parents every time they crawled past them. And the wolf had long since forsaken the front door. He knew well that if he whined once, he'd be hauled in, clubbed and end up as guest of honor at a wolf dinner.

It was a tense situation, and just to make it unbearable, the Mother started agitating about the condition of the cave. She wanted all the bones picked up and dumped outside, the skins on the floor shaken out, and the mammoth's skeleton dragged outside, so she could get into the corners and clean them.

Maintaining an iron self-control, the Father went to work. He knew that if he hit her, as he should, and she went down, he'd pounce on her and gobble her up. He didn't want to do that, as she was a good woman. She always chewed the tougher pieces of meat before handing them to him. And she made the best sabre-tooth tiger soup in the neighborhood.

But she made a mistake when she told him to go out and get some clean sand for the floor. He rolled back the stone at the mouth of the cave. It was a golden morning, blue sky, world turning green. He took a deep breath, a quick look over his shoulder, and off, in that order, and didn't stop until he had reached The Place Where the Big Ones Are.

When her mate failed to return, the Mother snarled: "That lousy bum. He never has time to do anything around the house, but he always has time to go to The Place Where the Big Ones Are." The three small children, knowing they were living on borrowed time anyway, nodded their three small heads agreeably, though they didn't have a clue about what was bothering her, as she stormed around, cleaning up.

By noon, the cave was tidy and the Mother was fit to be tied. She sat in the cave entrance, chewing her nails in a combination of rage and raven-ousness. The three small children sat in the sun on their three small bottoms, looking worried.

Suddenly the Mother realized she had chewed three of her fingers right down to the second joint. This would never do. Sadly but remorselessly, she fastened her gaze on the three small children. When they saw their Mother pick up her club and advance on them, the three small children uttered three small squeaks of despair, and forgetting that they hadn't learned to walk, got up and began to run like hell.

Just then, who should come strolling up, whistling, but Father? The Mother scarcely had time to hide her club behind her back. "Bet you don't know what I've got for you", beamed the daddy coyly, hiding something behind his back. "And I'll bet you don't know what I've got for YOU", she countered, grinning whitey, and clutching her club tighter.

But he knew her of old. Just as she swung, he leaped like a deer and she missed. Grinning hugely, he whipped from behind his back a knotted piece of hide, on which were strung the three biggest rainbow trout you ever saw.

After the tears of remorse, and her assurance that it was just her nerves, he gave her a 12-pound trout. She was well into it before she remembered, with shame, and said: "Go and find the three small children and give them a fish." She could have saved her breath, as the three small children were already crawling out from behind three small rocks, their three small noses quivering and their three small teeth glittering. Soon their three small bellies were dragging on the ground.

And so they all lived happily ever after. Until next winter. And that's the story of Opening Day of the trout season, and how it acquired its significance in our Canadian way of life, even though it interferes with the house-cleaning.

GLEN ROY

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald spent three weeks with Belle and Annie MacDonald, returning to Edmonton last week. Mr. and Mrs. Alex J. MacDonald, Montreal, visited with the MacDonalds last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose MacDonald and family, Belleville; Miss Audrey MacDonald, Cornwall; Marita MacDonald, Yvonne Aucoin, Duncan and Charlie MacDonald, Montreal, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. J. S. MacDonald.

John Munro attended Convocation exercises at Queen's University, Kingston, on Saturday.

Mrs. J. A. Shago spent Sunday in Lancaster attending the First Communion service at St. Joseph's Church, when her grandson, Brian, received his first Holy Communion. In the afternoon she attended the christening of her granddaughter, Mary Margaret MacDonald.

Beulah WMS Met

The regular monthly meeting of Beulah WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Masson.

Mrs. Wesley Johnson, in charge of the worship service, took as her theme, "The Family As A Christian Community". Mrs. Carl Telschaw read the scripture, Deut. 6, verses 4-7. The worship service was closed with a prayer.

Excellent reports were given by members attending the Presbyterial in Martintown. All the ladies were asked to keep in mind the meeting to be held in Williamstown concerning the joining of the Women's Association and the Women's Missionary Society.

Lunch was served by the hostess, and a social time enjoyed.

St. Raphael CWL

Mrs. Colborne Macdonell and Mrs. Conrad Levert were hostesses last Saturday afternoon in St. Raphael at the CWL annual Spring Tea. Lilacs and apple blossoms decorated the parish hall and a large representation of neighborhood ladies and young misses from Iona Academy rendered the afternoon a huge success.

Mrs. John Shago and Mrs. Duncan A. Macdonell were presented with farewell gifts prior to their departure from the Unit. They received statues of St. Anthony. Miss Florence Kennedy was also presented with a gift, a statue of St. Jude, in recognition of her outstanding contribution to the work of the parish.

A raffish afghan, hand made by Miss Hattie Shago, was won by Mrs. Lionel Quesnel.

At a monthly meeting of the organization held previously, it was decided to institute an annual parish scholarship and a minor donation would also be given towards a diocesan scholarship if necessary.
