MEMORIAL-INTRODUCTION.

I.—BIOGRAPHICAL.

JOSHUAH SYLVESTER in the 'Sacrum Memoriae Ornatissimi Pientissimique ipsius Amici Josuae Sylvester' of JOHN VICARS¹—who knew him well and loved and mourned him—is recorded as 'aged 55' on his death in 1618. This takes us back to 1563. So that his lifetime only slightly overlaps, in beginning and close, that of SHAKESPEARE (born 1564: died 1616), or the supremest of the Elizabethan-Jacobean period—an allowable recollection without thought of either 'odious' or grotesque 'comparisons.'

He himself informs us that he was a native of Kent, as thus:—

'Our silver MEDWAY (which doth deep indent
The Flowrie Meadows of My native KENT,
Still sadly weeping (under Pensherst Walls)
Th' Arcadian Cygnet's bleeding Funerals.'²

This is rather indefinite; but read in the light of other ascertained data, guides us to either Hadley (now spelled 'Hadlow') or Eltham. The latter has been thought of because 'the first kinde fosterer of' his 'tender muses,' his 'never-sufficiently-Honoured dear Uncle, W. Plumb, Esq.,'³ was born and seated there, and maternal relatives (it is believed). But the marriage of Plumb's sister with the Poet's father, while it explains his coming and going to Eltham, does not seem to warrant the assignation of it as his birthplace. 'Hadley' the late REV. JOHN MITFORD suggested by placing it within brackets thus, 'a native of Kent (Hadley?)'¹ There is this to be said for 'Hadley' which cannot be of Eltham, that the 'silver Medway' does 'indent the Flowrie Meadows' in its neighbourhood on its way to classic 'Penshurst.' I fear the exact locality must remain indeterminate until some 'find' in Parish Register or elsewhere reveals it, albeit its place in the enumeration of loved spots (vol. I. p. 50, ll. 1160-1169, l. 1164) makes 'Hadley' the most probable.²

In 'The Wood-man's Bear'—'Wood-man' being a transparent anonym for 'Sylvester' from 'Sylva'—youthful visits to Eltham or Fulham are pleasantly recalled, e.g. :

'I was wont (for my disport)
Often in the Summer season,
To a Village to resort,
Famous for the rathe ripe Peason ;
Where, beneath a Plum-tree shade,
Many pleasant walks I made :'³

the 'Plum-tree' being manifestly a play on his uncle's name of 'Plumb' or 'Plumbe.' Onward I shall have occasion to recur to the Plumbees, and the love-story of this brilliant poem. Meanwhile, it is satisfying to know that as a boy Master Joshua had the range of his uncle and aunt's 'orchard'-surrounded house. So far as I can make out from the somewhat confused genealogical materials available, the father of our Joshua was a ROBERT SYLVESTER, a clothier, who took the lead in an opposition of the clothiers to the payment of alnage (or ulnage), in the city of London.¹ He is complained of in a letter from the Lord Mayor and three of the aldermen to Lord Burghley, dated 23d April 1588. JOSEPH HUNTER in his Chorus Vatum states this positively; but unfortunately he gives no authority for it, while other accompanying statements are contradictory.² Of course this Robert Sylvester's being in London in 1588, is not in discord with his origination and earlier residence away down in Kent. Still, one should have liked the connecting links. His mother must have been sister to William Plumbe of Eltham and Fulham. From the circumstance that neither parent is so much as alluded to in the entire (abundant) writings of our Worthy, while he is continually turning aside to celebrate his kin and friends, I am disposed to think, (1.) That by the fact that [the 'clothier' Robert Sylvester was living in 1588, he was not his father, and (2.) That the silence on both betokens that he lost both when a mere child. The whole strain of his reminiscences and celebration of his uncle William Plumbe leaves the impression that it was to him he was indebted for his education. Again—as with his birthplace—all this must remain uncertain until further light shall arise.

The first bit of actual fact after his birth-year that we get, is that in his 9th year he was entered at a renowned school, to wit, that of Southampton, at whose head was the once-famous Dr. HADRIANUS SARAVIA. This we learn from his 'Funeral Elegie to my reverend friend, M. D. Hill: In pious memory of that Worthy Matrone, his right vertuous and religious Wife, Margarite Wyts (late widow of the reverend Dr. Hadrianus Saravia) Deceased.' He thus gratefully recalls his obligations:—

'My Saravia; to whose reverend Name
Mine owes the honour of du-BARTAS' fame.
For as our London (else for drought undon)
Sucks from the Paps (the Pipes) of Middleton . . .
Suckt I (my Succour) my short shallow Rill:
The little All I can (and all I could,
In three poor years, at three times three years old.)"¹

Fortunately a schoolfellow—no less than ROBERT ASHLEY, later celebrated as a translator and author—in his (MS.) Memoirs, has left certain records of this school that are of special interest. Thus he informs us that Dr. Saravia limited his school to 'sixteen or twenty youths of good family, who lived with him.' Of whom was Sir Thomas Lake, Secretary of State to James I. (Fuller's Worthies, s.n.). Still more interestingly, he tells us that 'It was a rule all should speak French; he who spoke English, though only a sentence, was obliged to wear a fool's cap at meals, and continue to wear it till he caught another in the same fault.' Further—the 'three poor years at three times three years old' is confirmed as Master Sylvester's 9th (entering 10th) year, by the date of Saravia's closing his school and leaving England, for

² Joseph Hunter in his Chorus Vatum (24,487, 24,493) has brought together a mass of heterogeneous and chaotic scraps from all manner of sources; but as above, the authorities are rarely given, and when given vaguely or inaccurately, e.g., he mentions an early Italian Sylvester as having been recommended for a tutorship to the son of Lord Cobham, a 'Kentish nobleman,' in 1547; but the Harleian MS., 284, f. 18, given as authority, has no such recommendation, nor could I find it in the volume. He also notices a Daniel Sylvester as having been sent to the Emperor of Russia in 1575; but neither are his alleged 'instructions' found in the volume. Mr. Hunter claimed to descend from Sylvester of Mansfield; but he goes on to make out this 'my own ancestor' a Robert Sylvester, son of Peter Sylvester, to be brother to Julian Sylvester, and to Joshua the Poet, thus muddling the whole thing. I note that he also gives the following document about another Robert Sylvester—'M.d. that I Robart Sylvester dothe axse a lowance [=allowance] for rydinge to sent tanthynes [=St. Anthony's] at Canterbury at Master Moyle's comandment to p'use and to make a boke of: the needful refreshens ther for vii. dayes by me Robart Sylvester mason.' Ordered to be paid ss. a day 3d July 1551. It is much to be deplored that spite of his laborious industry every statement of Mr. Hunter's immense Chorus Vatum and other MSS. must be sifted and tested.

Leyden. This was in 1576. So that his time of attendance at Southampton was 1573-1576.¹ The rigid rule as to speaking French explains the opening lines of our quotation from the 'Elegie':—

'To whose reverend Name
Mine owes the honour of du-Bartas' fame.'

This in plain prose means, that his acquisition of French at Saravia's School had enabled him to 'translate' Du-Bartas. In the 'Elegie' he thus continues:—

'His love and labour apted so my wit,
That when Urania after rapted it,
Through Heav'n's strong working, weaknesse did produce
Leaves of delight, and fruits of sacred use:
Which, had my Muse t' our either Athens flowne,
Or follow'd him, had been much more mine owne,
Then was the fault that so it fell not out.'²

By 'had my Muse t' our either Athens flowne' doubtless was intended—had he proceeded to either of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge. By 'Or follow'd him,' similarly we may understand—had he accompanied Saravia to Leyden, and completed his education there under him.

It thus appears that in his thirteenth year Master Sylvester was taken from school. Through life he deplored this: e.g. addressing Abbot, Archbishop of Canterbury, in his sonnet prefixed to his 'Hymne of Almes,' he thus laments his untoward circumstances, and quenching of hopes of higher poetic achievement:—

'My Wit, weak Orphan, weaned too-too-young
From Pallas' Brest, and too-too-Truant-bred
(Not, as too-wanton, but too-wanting) led From Arts, to Marts (and Miseries among)
Had else perhaps (besides du BARTAS) sung
Some native Strains the gravest might have read;
And to your Grace now gratefully tendered
Some fitter Sound than This rude Bell hath rung.'³

³ Vol. II. p. 208.

'From Arts to Marts' must have been a trying exchange; but he seems to have faced the trial with humble submissiveness. On a retrospect he thus turns all to profit, in the same 'Elegie':—

'But prais'd be God, who pleased to bring about
His better will, to better mine; lest I,
Too-puft with knowledge, should be huft too-hie.'¹

If—as seems likely from his after-occupations—his relatives were engaged in home-manufactures, as 'clothiers' and as exporters of their 'cloths,' perhaps we shall not err in concluding that the 'Marts' to which he was passed 'from Arts' were in some way or other connected with the 'Company of Merchant Adventurers,' so preparing him for that Secretaryship which he ultimately attained. On his first title-page, viz., of his 'Canticle of the Victorie obtained by the French King, Henrie the Fourth, at Yvry,' he describes himself as 'Josuah Sylvester Marchant-adventurer.' This was in 1590-1. Again in 1592 in his 'Triumph of Fame' he is similarly described. So that by 1590-1 he was in business as a 'Marchant-adventurer.' He also intercalates in the Fourth Day of the First Week (ll. 360-369) an incident of what he calls his 'lost Merchant-years.'² The Will of his Uncle PLUMBE—which will be found in extenso in Appendix to this Memoir³—names various cousins who were apparently 'Merchant-adventurers,' and one Captain William Smyth at Ostend. This may or may not have led Sylvester to join in the trade, and later, to proceed to the Low Countries. The GRESHAMS—illustrious pioneers of the great commerce of England—were likewise related, i.e. the Will of Plumbe shows that his wife was the widow

² With reference to this incident, Lee is said, in the Index of Hardest Words, to be 'a neat little town in Essex, in the mouth of the Thames.' He means, that walking on the deck in the direction opposite to that of the ship's motion, he was at the same time going towards two places, being at the same time between both.

³ See Appendix A—the Will is here first printed.

of a Gresham. It also names JAMES PARKINSON and WILLIAM LAMBERT—both commemorated by Sylvester. Be all this as it may, the fact is unquestionable that he was a 'Merchant-adventurer' himself, prior to going to Middleburgh and elsewhere.

There must have been intervals of retirement, as John Davies of Hereford recalls in his characteristic verse-address to Sylvester, c.g. :—

'This pain [of translating Du Bartas] so pleas'd thy labouring thoughts, that thou
Forsook'st the Sea, and took'st thee to the Soile,
Where (from thy royall Trade) thou fell'st to plow
Art's furrows with thy Pen, that yeeld but toyl.
This stole thee from thy selfe, thy selfe to finde
In sacred Raptures on the Muse's Hill.'¹

All, however, was not mere business in these years. I have already quoted from the 'Wood-man's Bear.' I go back upon it; for by it we learn that in his twenty-first year, i.e. 1584-5, he was involved in the 'old, old story' of captivity to a 'fair lady.' He thus puts it :—

'Thrice-sev'n Summers I had seen
Deckt in Flora's rich array ;
And as many Winters keen
Wrapt in suits of silver gray :
Yer the Cyprian Queen's blinde Boy
Grudged at my grief-less joy.

But when on my maiden chin
Mother Nature 'gan ingender
Smooth, soft, golden Doun, and thin
Blades of Bever, silk-like slender ;
Then hee, finding fuell fit,
Sought for coales to kindle it.'²

By st. 35, 36, and 37 of the poem, one naturally infers, from the playing on the words 'Bear' and 'Croft,' that the beloved's name was 'Bear-croft.' Whether or not, I must regard it as a mistake that he herein described the courtship of his wife. He paints the light and shadow of a passionate love; but the sum of the whole is that it was an unsuccess. She must have less or more reciprocated the affection (st. 88); but some one or some thing intervned to hinder marriage. And so he was given 'an herbe which could Love's power expell' (st. 89), with this result :—

'unto the sense apply'd,
As the juyce thereof hee tasted,
Hee might feele even in that tide
How his old remembrance wasted.
By the med'cine thus revealed,
Was the Wofull Wood-man healed.'¹

His attachment to the Muses in the throng of the uncongenial employment of his 'lost merchant days' is avowed with touching iteration. We have seen that his 'Yvry' appeared in 1591, and the Stationers' Register enters part of Du Bartas in same year. His 'Triumph of Faith' appeared in 1592. These were succeeded by 'The Profit of Imprisonment, a Paradox,' in 1593-4; by 'Monodia' or 'An Elegie in commemoration of . . . Dame Hellen Branch' in 1594, and by Du Bartas' 'Second Week, or Childhood of the World' in 1598.² The Stationers' Registers (ut infra)

In the 1605 edition (4to) Lownes' part of Du Bartas' 'Weekes and Workes,' i.e. the Seven days of the first week and 1st and 2^d days of the 2^d week, there were added 'Fragments and other small Workes of Du Bartas, with other Translations of J. S. comprising "Jonas, a Fragment; Urania: Triumph of Faith; Miracle of Peace; a Dialogue: Ode to Astrea: Epigrams and Epitaphs; the Profit of Imprisonment: Quadrains of Pybrack."' It has an engraved title-page, but neither the Corona Dedicatoria nor the portrait of Du Bartas. Subjoined to 1605 vol., in some copies, is 'Posthumous Bartas,' dated 1606, containing 'The Vocation—the Fathers—the Lawe—the Captaines—the Trophis and the Magnificence.' In 1608 (4to) a new impression of the preceding pieces was published, differently arranged, and 'The History of Judith, Englished by Thomas Hudson,' added. The next edition is that of 1611, 'now thirdly corrected and augmented.' The additions consist of the Corona Dedicatoria, the laureated head of Du Bartas, The Schisme, The Decaye and falling, the 'Paradox,' lines 'of the Worke, Author, and Translator.' In the 1613 edition (4to) 'Lachryma Lachrymarum, or the Spirit of Tears distilled,' etc., is marked '3^d edition' and the 'Du Bartas his divine Weekes and Workes' are said to be 'now fourthly corrected and augmented.' The 1621 folio has a title-page as follows:—'Du Bartas his divine Weekes and Workes, with a complete Collection of all the other most delightful Workes translated and written by that famous Philomusus, Josuah Sylvester Gent.' The additional poems in this volume consist of 'Vicars' Sacrum Memorize—Little Bartas or brief Meditations on the Power, Providence, Greatness and Goodness of God in the Creation of the World for Man; of Man for himself—the Map of Man—the Maiden's Blush or Joseph—Panaretus—Job Triumphant—Bethuliah's Rescue—Hymne of Almes—Memorials of Mortality—St. Louis the King—Trophies of Henry the Great—Battle of Yury—All is not gold that glisters—New Jerusalem—Selfe Civil War—Cup of Consolation—Tobacco—Lacrymas Lacry.—Elegy on Sir Wm Sidney—Honour's Farewell—Elegie on Dr. Hill's wife—Briefe Casechisme—Spectacles—Mottoes—Woodman's Beare—Preparations of the Resurrection—Table of the Mysterie of Mysteries.' In 1633 came another folio, greatly enlarged, and intituled 'A compleat Collection of all the other most delightful Workes translated and written by that famous Philomusus, Joshua Sylvester Gent. Then finally the folio of 1641 'with additions'—these being the 'Posthumi.'

in behalf of our Joshua Sylvester. These have hitherto been simply notified. I am glad to have it in my power to print them for the first time. They belong to 1597, and thus run :—

It does not clearly appear whether the office sought was obtained or not. Powerful as was the advocacy, I suspect that another was appointed. For from 1590 onward to 1603, at least, he comes before us in sorrowful poverty and struggle. From his dateless title-pages and 'parcel' or fragmentary issues of his Du Bartas until 1605, it is impossible to determine the chronology of publication; but these among many personal references move our sympathy for his 'troubles' and straits :—

'If now no more my sacred rimes distill
With Art-lesse ease from my dis-custom'd quill :
If now the Laurell, that but lately shaded
My beating Temples, be dis-leav'd and vaded :
And if now banisht from the learned Fount,
And cast down head-long from the lofty Mount
Where sweet Urania sitteth to endite,
Mine humbled Muse flag in a lowly flight ;
Blame these sad Times' Ingratefull cruelty,
My household cares, my health's infirmity,
My drooping sorrows for (late) grievous losses,
My busie suits, and other bitter crosses.

Lo, they're the clogs that weigh down heavily
My best endeavours, whilom soaring high :
My harvest's hail : the pricking thorns and weeds
That in my soule choak those diuiner seeds.
O gracious God ! remove my great incumbers,
Kindle again my falsh's ne'er-dying embers :
Asswage thine anger (for thine own Son's merit)
And from me (Lord) take not thy Holy Spirit.' ¹

His 'health's infirmity' is enlarged upon earlier :—

'Deer Muse, my guide ; clear truth that nought dis-
sembles,
Name me that Champion that wth fury trembles,
Who arm'd wth blazing fire-brands, fiercely flings

The Ague with her train, her kinds, and cruel

At th' Armies' heart, not at our feeble wings :
Having for Aids, Cough, Head-ache, Horror, Heat,
Pulse-beating, Burning, Cold-distilling-Sweat,
Thirst, Yawning, Yolking, Casting, Shivering, Shak-
ing,

Fantastick Raving, and continuall Aking,
With many moe : O ! is not this the Fury
We call the Fever ? whose inconstant fury
Transforms her oftner then Vertumnus can,
To Tertian, Quartan, and Quotidian :
And Second too ; now posting, sometimes pawing,
Even as the matter, all these changes causing,
Is rommidgéd with motions slowe or quick
In feeble bodies of the Ague-sick.

Ah trecherous beast ! needs must I know thee best :
For foure whole years thou wert my poor heart's guest,
And to this day in body and in minde
I bear the marks of thy dislight unkinde :
For yet (besides my veins and bones bereft
Of bloud and marrow) through thy secret theft
I feel the vertue of my spirit decayd,
Th' Enthousiasmos of my Muse allaid :
My memory (which hath been meetly good)
Is now (alas !) much like the fleeting flood ;
Whereon no sooner have we drawn a line
But it is canceld, leaving there no signe :
For, the deere fruit of all my care and cost,
My former study (almost all) is lost,
And oft in secret have I blushéd at Mine ignorance : like Corvine, who forgat
His proper name ; or like George Trapeunce
(Learnéd in youth, and in his age a Dunce).
And thence it growes, that mangre my endeavour
My number still by habite have the Fever ;
One-while with heate of heavenly fire ensoul'd ;
Shivering anon, through faint un-learned oold.'¹

Again, his 'suits and grievous losses' are concentrated on one man named Bowyer in a 'Table of the Acts' addressed 'To the Right Honourable Lords Spirituall and Temporall ; the Knights and Burgesses of the Lower House,' wherein he signs himself :—

'Your Under-Clarke
Unworthily Undon
(By over trusting to a starting Bow-
Yer-while too strong, to my poor Wrong and Woe).'²

A Robert Bowyer, son of William Bowyer by Anne, daughter of John Harcourt of Stanton, was Clerk of the Parliament, having previously had a grant of the office of door-keeper of the Exchequer and Keeper of the Council Chamber of the Star Chamber, June 25, 1604. It would thus appear that Sylvester then holding the office of 'Under-Clarke' was aspiring to that of 'Upper' or 'Clerk' proper, and that some fraud or trick had falsified his hopes.¹ Apparently also the matter was carried to the Law-Courts, and dragged its slow length lingeringly along, to the 'Under Clarke's' ruin, spite of the intercession of the Earl of Dorset. That 'intercession' is remembered in the dedicatory-sonnet of 'Yvry' which displaced the original one to 'Maister James Parkinson and Maister John Caplin Esquires, his well-beloved friends,' of 1590-1 :—

'As th' awefull Child, that long hath truanted,
Dares not returne unto the Schoole, alone ;
For Shame and Feare to be there disciplined
With many stripes for many Faults in One :
So fares (my Lord) My long Omission
Of th' humble Thanks I ought have tendered
For kinde Endeavours You bestow'd upon
My Right, my Wrong to have recovered.
And, (as in fine) Hee brings his Mother forth
To beg Forgiveness, or his Fault to 'scuse
So bring I here my dear Du BARTAS' Worth,
To mediate for my too-faulty Muse ;
Whom daign to pardon : and in gentle Part
Accept This last of His, not least in Art.'³

The same 'cares and need' give pathos to the 'Monodia' of 1594, e.g. :—

'You my private cares (although the cause
Of your dispaire doe never, never pause),
Pause you a little, and give leave a-while,
'Mid publike griefs my private to beguile ;
Give leave I pray you ; for a private case
Unto a publike ever must give place.'³

Again, his Epistle to 'My Right Worthy deare affected, most respected Friend, Master Robert Nicolson, Gentleman,' thus plainly opens :—

'Though providence all-prudent have decreed,
To hold mee still under the Tyrant Need,
So hard and scant, that, scarce a breathing while,
My carefull life hath had just cause to smile,

Of all the wants I feele, of all the woes,
 (Witness hearts'-searcher which all secrets knows)
 None woundeth deeper my distrestfull breast,
 Then want of power to parallel the least
 Of thousand favours, of a thousand kindes,
 Vouchsafed mee from many noble mindes.¹

The 'thousand favours of a thousand kindes' must be read cum grano salis. They were magnified by the swift and exuberant gratitude of the lowly-hearted Poet. Nevertheless, there can be no question that 'noble mindes' of the period held him in high regard if they had less thought of his pecuniary needs than they might and ought to have had. ANTHONY BACON, brother of the Bacon, was evidently an 'inward' friend. In the dedication of 'The Furies,' it is expressly and unmistakably declared that he had rescued the translation from those flames to which the despondent translator was about to assign it, while other contemporaries whose names occur and recur were of mark and means. I confess that I am at a loss to account for so worthy a man having been left to fight against such difficulties as a very little help would have spared him. The problem is complicated by the well-to-do position of many of his relatives. His uncle, William Plumbe, had died in 1593, but while remembering cousins, he somehow overlooked his 'nephew,'—perchance accounting that he had already done his part toward him in his education. Yet to his own sister's son, one opines, he might have left a little of that 'welthe' of which he so gratefully speaks. Our light is dim.

With the coming of King James to the throne of England, there shot a gleam of hope. Besides the many dedicatory-sonnets and other verse-tributes to 'the wisest fool in Christendom' that the works contain, I have discovered among the royal mss. in the British Museum, a daintily written (holograph) ms. (17 a xli.) thus entitled:—

'The (in gold)
 Devine Weekes, and workes, of
 The noble, learned, and religious,
 Lord of Bartas (in gold) translated out of French,
 by Joshuah Sylvester,
 1603.
 _____' (in gold)

This is followed by this dedication:—

'To the Royal Patrone of Learning & Religion,
 The High & mightie Prince JAMES,
 By the grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Dfeender
 of the Faith : &c.
 My most dread Sovereigne Lorde.'

Then comes a Letter which I have furnished in careful facsimile (to face title-page of Vol. II.) as a specimen of his handwriting and autograph, as follows:—

'Beeing inforced (through the grievous visitacion of Gods heavie hand, vpon your Highnes poore Cittle of London) thus long (& yet longer like) to defer the Impression of my slender Labours (long since meant vnto your Ma^{ties}) I thought it more then tyme, by some other meane, to tender my humble Homage to Your Highnes. But wanting both leasure, in my self, & (heere in the Countrey) such helps, as I could haue wished, To copie the entire Worke (worthie your Ma^{ties} reading) I was faine thus soudainlie to scribble over this small Parte : That (in the mean time) by a Parte, I might (as it wear) giue your Highnes Possession of the Whole ; vntill it shall please the Almighty, in his end-les Mercie to giue an end to this lamentable affliction, w^{ch} for his dear Sonns sake I most earnestlie beseech him : & euer to protect your sacred Ma^{ties} & all your Royal familie, vnder the wings of his gracious fliaour.

Your Maiesties
 most humble Subiect & devoted Servant,
 JOSHUAH SYLVESTER.'

Besides these, are most of the sonnets of the 'Coronia Dedicatoria,' with a few various readings.¹ Whether James himself personally patronised Sylvester, is unknown. He had tried his own hand upon the 'Furies' and 'Urania' and others, in his 'Poetical Exercises,' printed at Edinburgh (1591), and he had given Du Bartas a right royal welcome when he had visited his court as ambassador from France—as the Histories narrate—and he had encouraged Thomas Hudson to translate 'Judith.' So that one might almost assume that His Majesty took some notice of his humble 'Beadsman.' This we know, certainly, that the king's gifted eldest son, Prince Henry, was 'drawn' to Joshua Sylvester, and appointed him as a kind of Poet-Laureate, and had intended making him his Groom of the Privy Chamber. He had received graciously the poet's translation of the ΤΕΤΡΑΣΤΙΚΑ of Pibrac, and thus he was encouraged to 'offer' the young Prince 'Du Bartas, his Second Weeke,' in this manner:—

*'The gracious Welcome You Vouchsafst yer-while
To my grave PIBRAC (though but meanly clad)
Makes BARTAS (now, no Stranger in this Isle)
More bold to come (though suited even as bad)
To kiss your HIGHNES' Hand; and, with Your Smile,
To Crown His Haps, and our faint Hopes to glad (Whose weary longings languish in our Stile:
For in our Wants, our very Songs be sad)
He brings for Present to so great a PRINCE,
A Princely GLASSE, made first for SALOMON:
The fitter therefore for your EXCELLENCE
As oft to look in, as you look upon.
Some Glasses flatter: other-some deforme:
This, ay, presents You a true PRINCE'S FORM.'*²

¹ Vol. I. pp. 5-7. Joseph Hunter (Chorus Vaticanum, as before, 24, 493) has copied all these sonnets, not observing that they were all already printed. I note these various readings: Sonnet, Mnemosyne, col. 1, l. 2 from bottom, has 'Thy sacred worth so much (o King) presume-wee-on.' ib., col. 2. Clio, l. 2 (from top), 'Though still two Kingdoms in thy Regal stile:' ib. Thalia, col. 2, l. 4, 'by thine' for 'at thine:' p. 6, col. 1, Melpomene, l. 3, 'Though through my rudeness heere mis-tunde in parte Divinely warbled:' ib. Calliope, col. 1, l. 12, 'my Founder' for 'Author;' and closes:—

'and make mee ever blesse your Princely Line,
Praising that God who thus our Light renewes.
Our Sunne is sett, and yet no Night ensues.'

A Sermon by Sylvester's friend, Dr. William Loe, is bound up with the ms.—'The King's Sword,' on Romans xiii. 4.

² Vol. I. p. 93.

The Privy Books of the Prince's expenditure show that Sylvester received a 'pension,' and was a habitual visitor at Court,¹—as JOHN VICARS reminds us in his 'Elegy,'—but all his bright hopes and 'Pleasures of Imagination' suddenly paled on the death of Henry, —than which no death since Sidney's had so moved the heart of the nation as none evoked such splendid sorrow from England's foremost names—with one prodigious exception—in 'melodious teares.' This took place on November 5, 1612. I do not envy the man who can even at this late day read Sylvester's inconsolable laments for his patron, with untroubled eyes. I do not refer merely or mainly to his 'Lacrymæ Lacrymarum,' which partakes of the inevitable hardness of an official performance, but to the many scattered after-allusions that come suddenly in with a tenderness that is priceless,—testimony alike to Henry and the Poet. In the 'Lacrymæ Lacrymarum' he exclaims of the universal loss:—

'More then most to Mee that had no Prop
But Henry's Hand, and but in Him, no Hope.'²

It is thus subscribed in fine modesty, and even so entered in the Stationers' Register:—

'By His (late) Highnes's

First Worst

and

Poet Pension^r. Joshua Sylvester.'³

But it is in after-poems that the permanence and depth of the grief of the stricken Poet are revealed. Thus, in turning to Charles, Prince of Wales (afterwards Charles I.), in the dedication of 'The Maiden's Blush,' one line lies in the second sonnet like a great tear. We shall do well to read the whole of this extremely affecting appeal:—

*'Like sad Arion on his Dolphin's back,
Amid the Ocean of my Carefull Fears,*

² As before. ³ See p. xiii. of the Mem.-Intro., No. 9.

*Nigh stript of all, Now stept in hoary haire :
 Sit I (poore Relique, of Your Brother's wrack.)
 My Harp-strings quaver, while my Heart-strings crack :
 My hand grows weary, and my health it wears ;
 To stir Compassion in some Powerfull eares,
 At last to land mee, and supply my lack.
 You, You alone (Great PRINCE) with Pittie's grace
 Have held my Chin above the Water's brinke :
 Hold still, alas ! hold stronger or I sinke.
 Or haile mee up into some safer place,
 Some, Privie-Groom, some Room within your Doores :
 That, as my Heart, my Harpe may all be Yours.'¹*

Again, in two Sonnets to the same Prince introductory to 'The Second Session of the Parliament,' the same 'burden' thrills us:—

*' Here (like LEANDER in the Hellespont)
 Tost in a Tempest in the darkest Night.
 Distract with fears, divorced from the sight
 Of my High Pharus which to guide mee wont :
 Spying Botes in your HIGHNESSE Front,
 For life I labour towards your hopefull Light
 (May never Care beclowd that Beam so bright, Come never Point of least Eclipse upon't) ;
 Yet, though (alas !) your gracious Rayes have show'n
 My wracked limbes a likely way to land :
 Unlesse (by Others' Help, or by your Own)
 The tender Pity of your Princely hand
 Quick hale mee out, I perish instantly,
 Hal'd in againe by Six that hang on Mee.*

*Six-times already, ready even to faint,
 With grievous Waight of guiltlesse Want opprest,
 BARTAS and I have bow'd and vow'd our best
 Before the Altar of our Sovereign Saint :
 And yet, the Eare that heareth every Plaint,
 The Heart that pities every poore Distrest :
 Alone (alas !) seems deafe to my Request ;
 And onely, is not mov'd with my Complaint.
 Yet must I needs (NEED still importunes so)
 Importune still, till some mild Soule relent :
 But (under Heav'n) no Help, no Hope, I know,
 Save You alone my Ruine to prevent :
 You onely may, Now onely, if at all :
 Past Help, past Hope, If Now You faile, I fall.
 Your Highnesse's
most humbly-devoted and observant Servant,
 JOSUAH SYLVESTER.'²*

There are others of kin with these,³ but I leave the Reader to 'search' them out for himself. I must, however, add a hitherto unpublished holograph verse-address to

Charles when he was only in his fifth year (1605), which I have fortunately found in its hiding-place in the British Museum, in a copy of 'Tetrastika' (1605, 4to : Press-mark C. 28 g. 22 : pp. 669-715). It is as follows, and the penultimate and last line will arrest attention to-day:—

' TO THE SWEET AND HOPEFULL PRINCE CHARLES, DUKE OF YORK, ETC.'

*' Charles, though thy Brother, yo^r King-Fathers Heire,
 By double Right must all his Crownes inherit ;
 Yet in his Vertues hast Thou such a share,
 As to a Crowne shall mount Thee too, by Merit
 And that the rather, if Their Lessons rare
 Be right applied (to guide thy hopefull spirit)
 Poland or Rome shall, by their Choise, be Thine ;
 Or, by Thy Sword, the Seat of Constantine.*

Your Graces in all humblenes devoted IOSUAH SYLVESTER.

En passant, this presentation-copy of 'Tetrastika' has the additional interest of having on a fly-leaf several lines scribbled in (meo judicio) Charles's boyish handwriting:—

*' Si vis omnia Subjicere subje te rationi.
 Sola Virtus Nobilitat.*

*The Cinike sought a man in Athens Streete,
 To that of Sunneshyne adding Candell light.
 But wonder not for it was stranger far
 Three wyser men sought Sunneshyne by a Star.'*

The same urgent entreaties as we have accentuated occur in his manifold dedicatory and intercalated Sonnets. Let that to LADY HONORIA HAY stand as type of the rest:—

 HONOURABLE*

HONORIA,

Wife of JAMES Lord HAY, Sole Daughter and Heire of EDWARD Lord DENNY.

*Equally bound, in humble Gratitude,
 To two dear Equals (to You equall Dear) ;
 Unable (yet) with Both at once to cleer,
 Unwilling yet, with Either to be rude ;*

*Faine would I crave to have my Bond renew'd,
 For a more Happy, or more Hopefull Year,
 When gracious Heav'n shall deign to set me freeer
 From old cold Cares, which keep my Muse unnew'd.
 Would You be pleas'd (Madame) to interpose
 Your gentle breath, I would not doubt to speed :
 Such vertue hath Your Vertue still with Those.
 Therefore in Hope of Your kinde Help (at need)
 This simple Pledge I Offer at Your Feet ;
 Altar of Love, Where both Their Vowes do meet.
 Your Honourable Vertues humble Votary
 JOSUAH SYLVESTER.¹*

Nothing but the extremity of need could have so enforced and multiplied appeals of this sort. It saddens one to-day to realise how fruitless these dedicatory Sonnets and carefully ornamented royal and noble ms. copies must have been. Light is let in on all this by gallant HENRY PEACHAM in his 'Truth of our Times: Revealed out of one Man's Experience, by way of Essay,' 1638 (18mo); and as our Worthy is selected as an example, I glean bits from the quaint and loveable little book:—

'Let us looke a little backe to the Authors and Poets of late times, and consider how they have thrived by their workes and Dedications. The famous Spencer did neuer get any preferment in his life, save toward his latter end hee became a Clerk of the Councill in Ireland; and dying in England, hee dyed but poore. When he lay sick, the Noble, and patterne of true Honour, Robert, Earle of Essex, sent him twenty pound, either to relieve or bury him. Josuah Sylvester, admired for his Translation of Bartas, dyed at Middleburgh, a Factor for our English Merchants, having had very little or no reward at all, either for his paines or Dedications: And honest Mr. Michael Drayton had about some five pound lying by him at his death, which was Satis viatici ad celum' (pp. 37-39).

Again:—

'You may say, the Dedication will bee worth a great matter, either in present reward of money, or preferment by your Patrone's Letter, or other meanes. And for this purpose you prefixe a learned and as Panegyricall Epistle as you can, and bestow great cost of the binding of your booke, gilding and stringing of it in the best and finest manner: Let me tell thee, whosoever thou art, if now adsaies (such are these times) thou gettest but as much as will pay for the binding and strings, thou art well enough, the rest thou shalt have in promises of great matters; perhaps you shall be willed to come another time, but one occasion or other will so fall out, that come neuer so often, you loose but your labour: your great Patrone is not stirring, he is abroad at Dinner, he is busie with such a Lord: and to be short, you and your labour are forgotten: some of his Pages in the meane time having made himselfe [owner] of your Booke' (pp. 33-4).

I have made the first quotation in full, i.e. including Spenser and Drayton, for two reasons; (a.) Because the grouping of Sylvester along with them is declarative of the estimate of him even so late as 1638; and (b.) Because per se the statement about Spenser is biographically valuable, seeing that it is from one who knew 'the Poet of Poets;' for it will be remembered that EDMUND SPENSER furnished a laudatory sonnet for Peacham's 'Minerva'—though that book does not appear to have been published until 1612—and so must have been a personal friend. This authenticates the story.

The poverty and 'care' of Sylvester were aggravated by his being married. In his 'cry' to the King he proclaims that he was 'weighed down of six,' by which I assume he intended his wife and five children. Who his wife was, and when he was married, remains somewhat uncertain. But in the Parish-Register of St. Bartholomew the Less, Mr. J. Payne Collier found these entries:—

'1612. July 26. Ursula, daughter of Joshua Sylvester bap.
 1614. No. 4 still-born son of Joshua Sylvester buried.'¹

Another entry will fall to be noted onward. That there was a purple light of romance in our Poet's wooing and wedding seems indubitable from his 'Astrea,' with its enigmatic dedication,¹—all the more suggestive of a 'Taming of a Shrew' in a small way, by that enigmatic element,—as thus:—

'TO THE MOST MATCHLESSE
Faire and Vertuous
M. M. H.

Tetrastichon.

*Thou, for whose sake my freedom I forsake ;
Who, murdering mee dost yet maintain my life :
Here, under PEACE, thy beautie's Type I make,
Faire, war-like Nymph, that keepst mee still in strife.'*

In the poem itself (st. 5), among other daintily-wrought descriptions of her beauty, is this:—

'Tis not (Sweet) thine yvorie neck
Makes me worship at thy beck ;
Nor that prettlesse double HILL
Of thy bosome panting still :
Though no fairest Leda's Swan
Nor no sleekest Marble can
Be so smooth or white in showe,
As thy Lillies, and thy Snowe.'²

In relation to the M. M. H. of the dedication (ut supra) I ask if the 'Hill' printed in capitals in this stanza does not suggest that these initials stood for M[rs.] M[ary] H[ill]?—her maiden initials concealing that she was Mrs. Sylvester. I further ask if she were not sister to DR. ROBERT HILL, to whom and of whom Sylvester speaks goldenly in his 'Elegie' for his widow, also the widow of Dr. Saravia?³ The poem of 'Astrea' and its two appended Sonnets I take to have been part of the 'wooing' and 'romance:' the dedication and tetrastichon I fear were of the 'wedded life' and the disillusioned 'reality,' notwithstanding the abiding 'beauty.' Your 'Shrew' who needs 'Taming' is often enough 'a paragon of beauty.' It is pitiful to think of the harsh commonplace of the 'household cares' of our Worthy. I hope I do not wrong Mrs. Sylvester in suspecting that she was too much of a 'fine lady' for so necessarily humble a home and circumstances.

But after all, I willingly persuade myself that the cloud lifted or was illumined by a 'silver lining' ultimately. For he did receive the appointment of Secretary to the Company of Merchant-Adventurers. He is thus enrolled among the subscribers for Minshew's 'Guide to Tongues'—'Joshua Sylvester, Secretary to the English Company of Merchants at Middleburgh.' This book was not published until 1617, but the 'approbation' is dated 22d November 1610, and thus the subscription may have been given in any year between 1610 and 1617. Then, he had slowly but surely won his way to notice, had caught the public ear. Exclusive of the fragmentary or piecemeal issues of his Du Bartas, it is important to keep in mind that there were large collective editions in 1605, 1608, 1611, 1613, 1614, and probably others. His Du Bartas won for him the 'laud' of Ben Jonson, Drayton, Davies of Hereford, and others of note. His name was sought for as likely to advance the sale of a book—as witness his Sonnet to 'MASTER CLEMENT EDMONDS,' in his 'Observations vpon Cæsars Commentaries' (1609), and to JOHN VICARS 'November the 5, 1605: The Quintessence of Cruelty,' etc. (1605: 1641), and Blaxton's 'Usurer' (1634).¹ Further—There are glimpses of him—confirmed by Ashmole and Plot's notices—as tutor in the family of the Essexes of Lambourn, and charming attestations of kindly relations with that eminent 'household,'—as witness his vivid celebration of the 'dogs' there, and intimation that there he had worked upon his Du Bartas:—

*'So have I seen on LAMBORN'S pleasant Downes
When yelping Begles or some deeper Hounds
Have start a Hare, how milk-white Minks and Lun
(Gray-bitches both, the best that ever run)
Held in one leash, have leapt, and strain'd, and whin'd
To be restrain'd, till (to their Master's minde)
They might be sligt, to purpose; that (for sport)
Watt might have law neither too-long nor short.'*

'And little LAMBE'S-BOURN, though thou match not Lera,
Nor had'st the Honour of DUBARTAS' Verse ;
If mine have any, Thou must needs partake
Both for thine Owne, and for thine Owner's sake ;
Whose kind Excesses Thee so neerly touch,
That Yeerely for them thou doost weepe so much,
All Summer-long (while all thy Sisters shrinke)
That of thy teares a million daily drinke ;
Besides thy waste, which then in haste doth run
To wash the feet of CHAUCER'S Donnington :
But (while the rest are full unto the top)
All Winter-long, Thou never show'st a drop,
Nor send'st a doitt of need-less Subsidie,
To Cramm the Kennet's Want-less Treasurie,
Before her Store be spent, and springs be staid :
Then, then alone Thou lend'st a liberall Aid ;
Teaching thy wealthy Neighbour (Mine of late)
How, When, and Where to right-participate
Their streams of Comfort, to the poore that pine,
And not to greas still the too-greasy Swine :
Neither for fame, nor forme (when others doo)
To give a Morsel, or a mite or two ;
But severally, and of a selfy motion,
When others miss, to give the most devotion.'¹

'Urania' is dedicated to the Essexes.²
Yet again—It must have been extremely gratifying to our Poet to know that Orlando Gibbons in his 'Cantvs : The First Set of Madrigals and Mottets of 5 Parts : apt for Viols and Voyces' (1612), took the words for four of these 'Madrigals' from his poem of 'a Contented Minde.'³ The music is very fine, and the whole has recently been splendidly reproduced under the editorship of the late DR. RIMBAULT.

Probably SYLVESTER proceeded permanently to MIDDLEBURGH shortly after the death of Prince Henry, in 1612-13. The 'Company' of which he became Secretary was a powerful one. It was of great anti-quity. The original charter was granted by Henry IV., and bears date 5th Feb. 1406-7. King Henry VII., in the year 1505, confirmed by charter 'to the merchants trading in woolen clothes of all kinds to the Netherlands, their former privileges.' In this new charter of confirmation they were now first properly styled 'The fellowship of merchant adventurers of England.' The 'Company' holds a prominent place in the history of English Commerce.¹

Our Worthy did not fill his 'post' of Secretary very long ; for he died 28th September 1618, at Middleburgh. He had touchingly deprecated this death in exile in a vivid interpolation into the 'Colonies,' which may fitly be read at this point :—

'But shall I still be Boreas' Tennis-ball ?
Shall I be still stern Neptune's toss'd Thrall ?
Shall I no more behold thy native smooch,
Dear Ithaca ? Alas ! my Bark is broach,
And leaks so fast, that I can row no more :
Help, help (my Mates) make haste unto the shore.
O ! we are lost ; unlesse some friendly banks
Quickly receive our Tempest-beaten planks.
Ah, courteous ENGLAND, thy kinde arms I see
Wide-stretched out to save and welcome me.
Thou (tender Mother) wilt not suffer Age
To snow my locks in Forrein Pilgrimage ;
That fell Brasile my breath-lesse Corps should shrowd,
Or golden Peru of my praise be proud,
Or rich Cathay to glory in my Verse :
Thou gav'st me Cradle ; thou wilt give me Herse.'²

Even the stern ultra-Puritan JOHN VICARS melts into tenderness, and almost into poetry, as he 'laments' his death, and portrays his 'character.' We may be none the worse of pausing over this 'Elegie :—

'In Verse to personate what Art hath painted,
Craves not Apelles, but Apollo's skill ;
The veine and straine of Maro's learned Quill,
Or some, with sweet Vrania best-acquainted.
Yet, sith ev'n all, whose brows are deckt with bays,
Seem to neglect Thee ; Pan hath ta'n the paines
(With Oaten-pipe, in homely rustick Strains)
To sound, not Arts, but Hearts plain warbled layes.
Is't not a Wonder, worthy admiration,
In this so Sin-full, Sin-foule Age, to see

All real Vertues in one Man to be?
All, met in one, to have cohabitation?

Thou wast no Lordly great Cosmopolite;
Yet, much renown'd by thy virtuous Fame :
A Saint on Earth (No need of greater Name.)
A true Nathanael, Christian-Israelite.

Thy Wisadome, in thy Sparing-Speech was shown.
'Tis strange his Words should drop, whose works did stream :

Yet words & works shone, all, with grace's beam :
Thy Piety, sobriety, well known.

Religious, valiant, like good Josua.
Religious, in Thy Selfe and Famille :
Courageous, to withstand Adversitie
And worldly Cares ; which most men, most dismay.

No Temporiser ; yet, the Court frequenting :
Scorning to sooth, or smooth this Age's crimes :
At War with Vice, in all thy holy Rymes :
Thine Israel's-Sins (with Jeremie) lamenting.

No Crasus-rich, nor yet an Irus-poore :
The Golden-Mean, was thy Chiefe Love's delight.
Thy Portion pleas'd thee well ; and well it might :
Then Piety, what Riches better? more?

Adorn'd with the Gift of God's good Spirit :
I mean the Gift of Tongues ; French, Spanish, Dutch,
Italian, Latin. As thy Selfe, few such :
But, for thy Native-English, of most Merit.

Wherein, like former fluent Cicero
(With Figures, Tropes ; Words, Phrases, sweetly rare)
Of Eloquence thou mad'st so little spare,
That Nile (in Thee) may seem to overflow.

Witnesse Du Bartas (that rare Master-piece
Of Poetry) to past and future Times :
By whose mellifluous, sugred, sacred Rimes,
Thou got'st more fame, then Jason by his Fleece.

Of which thy Work (I justly may averre)
The radiant Sun-shine is so fair, so trim,
As other Poets Moon-light much doth dim ;
Admir'd Silver-Tongued Sylvester.

Yea, All thy full-ear'd Harvest-Swathes are such,
As (almost) all thy Brethrens high-topt Sheaves
Bend, bow to thine, like Autumn-scattered leaves,
So white thy Wheat is, and the Weight so much.

Nor wrong I them, by this harsh appellation.
Their pleasing Veine was oft too vaine : but, Thine,
Still-pleasant-grave : Here, Morall ; There, Divine.
Right Poet Laureat Thou wert of our Nation.

This then, say I (maugre the Spleen infernall
Of Elvish-Envie) shall promote thy Prayse,
And trim thy Temples with ne'er-fading Bayes.
Such heav'nly Off-springs needs must live eternall.

What should I say? much more then I can say.
A Man thou wert ; and yet, then man much more.

Thy Soule resembled, right, an House of Store ;
Wherein all Vertues, in Thee, treasur'd lay.

A bless'd Death a holy Life ensues,
Thy pious End this Truth hath well exprest :
Such as thy Life, such was thy Death ; all-blest :
Thy Heav'n-born Soule, her Native-home did chuse.

And hadst thou dy'd at Home it had been better ;
It would (at least) have given thee much Content :
But, herein, England's worthy to be shent,
Which to thy Worth did prove so bad a Debter.

Nor minde I this, but then I blush for shame
To think, that though a Cradle, Thee, it gave,
Yet (O unkinde) deny'd thy Corps a Grave ;
Much more a Status, rear'd to thy Name.

But, Thou wert wise ; who to thy Selfe built'st One
(Such, such an One) as is of endless Date :
A reall, royall-one ; which (spite of Hate)
To Time's last time shall make thy Glory known.

Now, though thy step-Dame Countrey cast thee off ;
(Ah! too ungratefull, most unkinde, to Thee.)
Yet here accept a Mite of Love from Mee,
(Thy meanest Brother) This Mean Epitaph :

JOHN VICARS. ¹

He left a widow and a number of children. On August 31st, 1625, Bonaventura, daughter of Mary Silvester, widow, is entered in the Register of St. Bartholomew the Less as buried. One son—named Henry—then in the Charter House (like young ANDREW MARVELL), fell into the snares of the Jesuits. This crops up in Gee's 'Foot out of the Snare' (1624 edn. 4to.) :—'Some of the Priests' agents dealt in the same sort with a very pretty modern youth, one Henry Sylvester (son to the no less worthy than famous poet Joshua Sylvester, the translator of Du Bartas), who being a scholar at Sutton Hospital near London, was drawn to such places as the priests often frequent, and there had books bestowed on him. They inveigled and wrought so far with him, he consented to be sent beyond the seas, and away they [had] packed him, but that their plot was in time discovered.'

The Will of—it is believed—a son of JOSHUA SYLVESTER named Peter, seems to warrant us in assuming that he and his brothers were more prosperous in the world than their father. As this Will has never before been printed, and furnishes various family-names and details, I gladly give it a place here:—

JOSEPH HUNTER, in his Chorus Vatum, has brought together a singular collection of documents and correspondence relative to lineal descendants of our Worthy in Barbadoes (West Indies), and in New England, United States of America. One letter (dated October 7th, 1858) from a Nicoll H. Dering, Esq., of Utica (U. S. A.), gives a most interesting account of a visit to 'the old Brinley Sylvester House,' with the old monuments of the Sylvesters and Derings. The combination of Brinley and Sylvester originated in the marriage of Grisell, daughter of Thomas Brinley, Auditor of Charles I. and II., to a Nathanael Sylvester. Thus the name of our Translator is perpetuated across the Atlantic. It is also still quick in England, though I know not if of his blood. And so with much more fulness than hitherto—for hitherto hardly anything has been known or written of him—I have told the life-story of JOSHUA SYLVESTER. I ask the student-Reader now to turn with me to his Works in

II.—CRITICAL.

IDEAL circumstance is the Paradise of Fools. And yet the case of JOSHUA SYLVESTER—as also sorrowfully too many others—gives poignancy to our heart-ache, that outward circumstances were not more propitious to the nurture and expression of the poetic faculty that indisputably was possessed by him. I am told that your bird-fanciers put out with hot wire the eyes of their captured and captive singing-birds (nightingale, lark, thrush), in order that they may continue to sing at late night-hours, and amid the glare and clamour of drinking saloon, or other place of congregation. But our Poet had his eyes—full-opened and penetrative—and it was hard to 'sing' with his mean and care-full surroundings, and ever-ness of entanglement in sordid needs. We have the testimony of JOHN VICARS ('Sacrum Memorizæ' Elegy) that he bore himself bravely and unrepinningly in his well-nigh life-long miserable fight for bare existence and subsistence:—

'A Saint on Earth (No need of greater Name).
A true Nathanael, Christian-Israelite.'

'Religious, in Thy Selfe and Familie :
Courageous, to withstand Adversitie
And worldly cares ; which most men, most dismay.'¹

ANTHONY-A-WOOD forgets his spleen against the Puritans, and transmutes the verse-praise of Vicars for once into tender and sympathetic eulogy. Still, there are again and again recurring in his Poetry—often in most unlooked-for places—revelations of how deeply the iron of poverty had driven into his soul. The marvel to me is how, from within such a framework of antagonistic circumstance, he was able to hold his own and to continue 'singing' as he did to the close. I—for one—am satisfied that if only his uncle, WILLIAM PLUMBE, had created for JOSHUA SYLVESTER some post of leisureliness, our England had received in him a Maker worthy to mate with (at least) the second rank of the great Elizabethans (the highest necessarily excluded, and the Dramatists). It will be remembered that our Worthy has himself lamented that he was in a manner enforced to be a Translator rather than a 'native Poet.' He was conscious of an afflatus that might and ought to utter itself in poetry of his own. Perhaps the Reader will return upon the pathetic pleading.¹ And there is more. Young ABRAHAM COWLEY might have caught inspiration for his 'What shall I do to be for ever known?' from the opening of 'Urania or the Heavenly Muse,' which, if it be based on Du Bartas, also interprets the yearning of the paraphrast, as witness:—

'Scarce had the Aprill of mine Age begun,
When brave desire t' immortalize my Name,
Did make mee (oft) Rest and Repast to shun,
In curious project of some learned Frame.

But, as a Pilgrim, that full late doth light
Upon a crosse-way, stops in sudden doubt ;
And, 'mid the sundry Lanes to finde the right,
More with his Wit than with his Feet doth scout :

Among the many flowry paths that lead
Up to the Mount, where (with green Bayes) Apollo
Crowns happy Numbers with immortall meed,
I stood confus'd, and doubtfull which to follow.

One while I sought, the Greekish-Scene to dress
In French disguise : in loftier stle anon
T' imbrew our Stage, with Tyrants' bloody Gests,
Of Thebes, Mycena, and proud Iliou.

Anon, I sacred to th' Aonian Band
My Countrie's Storie ; and, condemning much
The common error, rather took in hand
To make the Alein French, then the Sein be Dutch.

Anon, I meant with fawning Pen to praise
Th' un-worthy Prince ; and so, with gold and glorie,
T' enrich my Fortunes, and my Fate to raise,
Basely to make my Muse a Mercenarie.

Then (gladly) thought I, the Wag-Son to sing
Of wanton Venus ; and the bitter-sweet,

That Too-much Love to the best Wits doth bring ;
Theam, for my Nature and mine age, too-meet.¹

Nor was this merely aspiration. His own actual achievements as a Poet—apart from his Translations—vindicate for JOSHUA SYLVESTER, if not a lofty, yet a distinct place among the sweet-singers of the 16th century. The quantum of his translations has obscured in popular knowledge—even among otherwise well-read men—his own work and workmanship as an original Poet. Hence, in the outset, I wish to accentuate these by demonstrating how actual and genuine were his own gifts and impulses. 'I haue carefully fetcht together,' says the Printer to the Reader,² 'all the dispersed Issue of that divine Wit ; as those which are well worthe to live (like Brethren) together under one faire rooffe, that may both challenge time, and out-wear it. I durst not conceale the harmlesse fancies of his inoffensive youth, which himselve had devoted to Silence and Forgetfulness ; it is so much the more glory to that worthy Spirit, that hee who was so happy in those youthful strains (some whereof, lately come to hand, and not formerly extant, are in this Edition inserted) would yet turne and confine his pen to none but holy and religious Dities.' It is among these 'harmlesse fancies' and 'youthful strains' that I find the insignia of his 'native' genius ; and I do not hesitate a moment, in my full knowledge of all he has written, to claim 'genius' for him—under inevitable limitations. These, from the fact that he had 'devoted' them to 'Silence and Forgetfulness,' have been mainly relegated to the 'Posthumi' as not having been published until after his death. I say mainly ; for 'The Wood-man's Bear'—as probably others (e.g. 'Astræa,' and the Sonnet first to be quoted), unembraced by the 'Posthumi'—was not (apparently) entered in the Stationers' Register until 1629. And now, it is a small thing to begin with, nevertheless as evidence that JOSHUA SYLVESTER was of the breed of SIR PHILIP SIDNEY and BARNABY BARNES, let this love-sonnet from DAVISON'S 'Poetical Rapsody' (1602) be read and re-read :¹—

SONNET I.

'Were I as base as is the lowly playne,
And you (my Loue) as high as heau'n aboue,
Yet should the thoughts of me your humble swaine,
Ascend to Heauen in honour of my Loue.
Were I as high as Heau'n about the playne,
And you (my Loue) as humble and as low
As are the deepest bottoms of the Mayne,
Whereso'ere you were, with you my Loue should go.
Were you the Earth (deere Loue) and I the skies,
My loue should shine on you like to the Sun,
And looke vpon you with ten thousand Eyes,
Till heau'n wax't, and till the world were dun.
Whereso'ere I am, below, or els about you,
Whereso'ere you are, my hart shal truly loue you.'²

I. S.

¹ The initials 'I. S.' appended to these Sonnets were long since—in the well-known ms. that first gave the key to the anonymous and semi-anonymous contributors to the Rhapsody—assigned authoritatively to Joshua Sylvester, and their absence from the folio, earlier and later, is sufficiently explained by the fact that the Rhapsody was a separate property, and that even in 1641 Young could not have bought two pieces out of so considerable a book—any more than could the publisher of Cowley's folio add the youthful Poems (see Printer to the Reader, 4th ed., 1681). Mr. David M. Main in his notes on the first Sonnet thus corrects a mistake of Sir Egerton Brydges relative to these Sonnets.—'Sir Egerton Brydges, in his edition of the Rhapsody (1814-17), followed by Sir Harris Nicholas in his (1826), makes the misleading statement that the signature was withdrawn in the fourth edition of 1621. The explanation is not far to seek. In the first three editions this Sonnet and another, beginning "The Poets fayne that when the world beganne," each bearing the signature I. S., are separated by a couple of anonymous madrigals (one of them the well-known "My Love in her Attyre doth show her witt"), while in the fourth edition, in which the contents underwent an entire re-arrangement and classification, the two Sonnets are simply brought together, and the initials in question placed at the end of the second Sonnet, so as to serve for both.—(A Treasury of English Sonnets, p. 275.) Here is the second sonnet :—

SONNET II.

'The Poets fayne that when the world beganne,
Both sexes in one body did remaine:
Till Ioue (offended with this double man)
Caused Vulcan to diuide him into twaine.
In this diuision, he the hart did seuer,
But cunningly he did indent the hart,
That if there were a reuniting euer,
Each part might know which was his counterpart.
See then (deere loue) th' Indenture of my hart,
And reade the Cou'nants writ with holy fire:
See (if your hart be not the counterpart,
Of my true harts indented chaste desire.)
And, if it bee, so may it euer bee,
Twoo harts in one, twixt you my Loue and mee.' I. S.

² From J. P. Collier's 'Seven English Poetical Miscellanies,' vol. vii. (Davison's Poetical Rapsody, 1602.) I have corrected 'hight' (l. 5).

² Vol. I. p. 12.

Beside this, I place a pair of (meo iudicio)
co-equal Sonnets :—

'Sweet mouth, that sendst a muskie-rosed breath ;
Fountain of Nectar, and delightfull Balm ;
Eyes cloudy-clear, smile-frowning, stormy-calm ;
Whose every glance darts mee a living-death ;
Brows, bending quaintly your round Ebene Arks :
Smile, that then Venus sooner Mars besots ;
Locks more then golden, curl'd in curious knots,
Where, in close ambush, wanton Cupid lurks ;
Grace Angel-like ; fair fore-head, smooth, and high ;
Pure white, that dimm'st the Lillies of the Vale ;
Vermilion Rose, that mak'st Aurora pale,
Rare spirit, to rule this beautie's Emperie :
If in your force, Divine effects I view,
Ah, who can blame me, if I worship you ?

Thou, whose sweet eloquence doth make me mute ;
Whose sight doth blind me, & whose nimbleness
Of feet in dance, and fingers on the Lute,
In deep amazes makes mee motion-lesse :
Whose only presence from my selfe absents mee ;
Whose pleasant humors makes mee passionate ;
Whose sober moods my follies represent mee :
Whose grave-milde graces make mee emulate ;
My heart, through whom my heart is none of mine :
My All, through whom, I nothing doe possess,
Save thine Idaea, glorious and divine :
O thou my Peace-like War, and War-like PEACE,
So much the wounds that thou hast given mee please,
That 'tis my best ease never to have ease.'¹

Of another strain, but declarative again of that poetic 'faculty' I am urging as the dower of Sylvester, take these other three Sonnets :—

'They say that shadowes of deceased ghosts
Doe haunt the houses and the graves about,
Of such whose lives'-lamp went untimely out,
Delighting still in their forsaken hostes :

So, in the place where cruell love doth shoote
The fatall shaft that slue my love's delight,
I stalke and walke and wander day and night,
Even like a ghost with unperceived foote.

But those light ghosts are happier far then I,
For, at their pleasure, they can come and goe
Unto the place that hides their treasure, so,
And see the same with their fantastick eye.

Where I (alas) dare not approach the cruell
Proud Monument, that doth inclose my Jewell.'

'Thrice tosse these oaken ashes in the aire,
And thrice three times tie-up this true Love's knot ;
Thrice sit thee downe in this enchanted chaire,
And murmure soft, shee will or shee will not.
Goe burn these poys'ned weeds in that blew fire,
This Cipresse gath' red at a dead man's grave ;
These Screech-owles' feathers, and this pricking bryer,
That all thy thorny Cares an end may have.

Then come you Fairies, dance with mee a round :
Dance in this circle, let my love be center,
Melodiously breath out a charming sound ;
Melt her hard heart, that some remorse may enter :
In vain are all the charmes I can devise,
Shee hath an Art to breake them with her eyes.'¹

Returning upon his 'lighter vein' here is another dainty-wrought Sonnet :—

'Thou art not faire for all thy red and white,
For all those rosie temp'ratures in thee ;
Thou art not sweet, though made of meer delight ;
Nor faire, nor sweet, unlesse thou pity mee :
Thine eyes are black, and yet their glistring brightnesse
Can night illumine in her darkest denne :
Thy hands are bloody, yet compact of whitenesse,
Both black and bloody, if they murder men ;
Thy brow whereon my fortune doth depend,
Fairer then snow, or the most lilly thing ;
Thy tongue which saves at every sweet word's end,
That hard as marble, This a mortall sting.
I will not sooth thy follies : thou shalt prove,
That beauty is no beauty without love.'²

More passionate still is this :—

'Looke crueller, you lovely eyes, yee kill mee
With pleasing poyson of your sweet aspects :
Yet doe not so, for cruelty dejects
My mounting hopes, and with despaire doth fill-mee.

¹ Vol. II. p. 324, Sonnet 16 ; p. 325, Sonnet 20. It is only right that I should here state, with reference to these Sonnets, 'Thou art not faire,' etc., and 'Thrice tosse,' etc., that Sir Egerton Brydges in his Excerpta Tudoriana (l. 1814) assigns them to Dr. Thomas Campion, on the authority of an (anonymous) ms. in the British Museum. In respect of the former, it is to be explained by the occurrence of half-a-dozen lines of it, along with an additional stanza not in Sylvester, in Campion's and Rosseter's 'Book of Airs' (1601). In respect of the latter, it certainly is found in Campion's 'Two Books of Airs' (1613) with only slight verbal changes and difference of ordering of the lines, and absence of this couplet :—

Melt her hard heart, that some remorse may enter.'

I can scarcely think that Sylvester would have manipulated 'Thou art not faire,' etc., as he has done, had not the earlier fragment (st. 1) been his own. Over 'Thrice tosse,' etc., there must lie a shadow of uncertainty ; for it is just possible that Sylvester contributed it to Campion as he did the four to Orlando Gibbons' 'Madrigals.' I agree with Mr. Main in his 'Treasury' (p. 276), that 'The difficulty is to believe that two productions of so strongly-marked a physiognomy as "They say that shadowes," etc., and "Thrice tosse," etc., are not from one and the same pen.' It must also be remembered that no one has assigned the former ('They say,' etc.) to Campion ; nor is it found in any of his numerous books. With regard to Sir Walter's Raleigh's 'Soule's Errand' inserted in Sylvester's 'Posthumi,' the explanation doubtless is that a copy from memory had been found in Sylvester's handwriting, and because of this was hastily assumed to be his own.

² Vol. II. p. 325, Sonnet 22.

Doe but a little vaille your beames divine,
Whose over-brightnesse dimmes my tender sight ;
Yet, vaille them not, for then eternall night
In ever darknesse drowns this soule of mine.

Alas, faire eyes, how will yee stint this strife?
Favour or frowne, love ever makes mee languish
In living deaths and in delightfull anguish,
How ere you looke, I looke to lose my life :
Ah looke no more (then) if you doe, ye spill mee,
Yes, looke (alas) unlesse yee looke yee kill mee.'¹

Other of his Sonnets in Posthumi and dedicatory, will richly reward meditative reading. I pass from them to other love-inspired 'fancies;' and I must be no judge at all if I am mistaken in affirming that, interpenetrating all these and kindred, is a presence of authentic inspiration combined with a musical utterance that will compare with anything contemporary on the same plane. His friends DANIEL and DRAYTON would smile graciously on 'A Maske Sonnet to Queen Anne :—

'Hye wee,
Hye wee, Sisters, Fairies,
Dead our comfort, deep our Care-is While wee misse our Mistresse' grace :
In the mirrour of whose Face,
Majesty and mildnesse meet
Stately shining, smiling sweet ;
In whose bosome
Aye repose-em
All the Honours of Diana ;
Say, who saw our Glorie-Anna ?
This way,
This way Grace did guide-her,
Could so rich a Jewell hide her ?
So unseene that none can say,
Whither Shee is gone this way.
Or doth envie make you mum ?
Or hath Wonder strook you dumb ?
Iô Sisters,
Here 's our mistresse.
Iô, Fairies have wee found her ?
Daunce wee rapt with joy and wonder.
After the Daunce.
Haile,
All haile ; O Queen of Graces,
Whose aspect, auspicious, chaces
All our cares and feares away,
Cleering all with cheerfull ray :
Whom, who-ever never saw,
Knowes not Vertue's Love nor Law ;

Bountie's presence,
Beautie's pleasance ;
Modell and divine Idea,
Both of Pallas and Astrea.

Welcome,
Welcome Phœnix royall,
Wils and Wals her eccho loyall ;
In all Fairie is not found
A more happy piece of ground,
Then your presence maketh here,
Where, together with your Pheere,
All I wish-you
And your Issue,
With all joyes of grace internall,
Outward glory and eternall.'¹

Fit companion for the Masque-sonnet (so called) is this quaint-fancied love-lilt :—

'Even as the timely sweet heat-temp'ring showers
Feed the faint Earth and fill it all with flowers green ; Green, grain, and grasse, and plants, and fruits, and flowers

Whereby the beauty of the world is scene :
Even so my tears temp'ring mine inward fire,
Doe feed my Love and foster my Desire.
And as a sudden and a stormy raine,
Makes Flora's children hang their painted heads,
And beateth downe the pride of Ceres' plaine,
Drowning the Pastures and the flow'ry Meades :
Even so my teares that overflow my fire
Drowne my Delight but not my Love's desire.
And as a little Water, cast upon
A Forge, doth force the flame to mount the more ;
Which being by the panting bellows blowne,
It glowes, and growes much hotter, then before :
Even so my teares cast on mine inward fire,
Blown by my sighs augment my high desire.
And as a Brooke that Meadows undermines,
Doth make them seem more green, more fresh more fair :

And as the dew before bright Phœbus shines,
Gives the sweet Rose a more delightfull aire ;
Even so my teares wat'ring mine inward fire,
Adorn my love, and garnish my desire.
Thus, then, though weeping waste my life away
And drench my Soule in ever-floods of care,
Yet by my teares I doe my faith display,
Whereby my merits (still) recorded are :
So that my teares refresh mine inward fire,
And yet my tears quench not my high desire.'²

I would ask now that 'Astræa,' which is a transfiguration rather than translation of Du-Bartas, be STUDIED after a first listening to its 'dulcet music' and vivid imagery not without soupçon of sarcasm. I reproduce

² Ibid. p. 323, No. 13.

it here that it may be at once read undisturbed by turning back :—

'Sacred PEACE, if I approve thee,
If more then my life I love thee,
Tis not for thy beauteous eyes :
Though the brightest Lamp in skies
In his highest Summer-shine,
Seems a sparke compar'd with thine,
With thy paire of selfe-like-Sunnes,
Past all else-comparisons.

'Tis not (deare) the dewes Ambrosiall
Of those prettie lips so Rosiall,
Make me humble at thy feet :
Though the purest honey sweet
That the Muse's birds do bring,
To Mount Hybla every spring,
Nothing neere so pleasant is,
As thy lively loving kisse.

'Tis not (Beautie's Emperesse)
Th' Amber circlets of thy tresse,
Curled by the wanton windes,
That so fast my freedome bindes :
Though the precious glittering sand
Richly strow'd on Tagus' Strand,
Nor the graines Pactolus roll'd,
Never were so fine a gold.

'Tis not for the polisht rowes
Of those Rocks whence Prudence flowes,
That I still my sute pursue :
Though that in those Countries new
In the Orient lately found (Which in precious Gemmes abound)
'Mong all baits of Avarice
Be no pearles of such a price.

'Tis not (Sweet) thine yvorie neck
Makes me worship at thy beck ;
Nor that prettie double HILL
Of thy bosome panting still :
Though no fairest Lada's Swan
Nor no sleekest Marble can
Be so smooth or white in showe,
As thy Lillies, and thy Snowe.

'Tis not (O my Paradise)
Thy front (evener than the yce)
That my yeelding heart doth tye
With his milde-sweet Majestie :
Though the silver Moone be faire
Still by night to mount her waine,
Fearing to sustain disgrace,
If by day shee meet thy face.

'Tis not that soft Sattin limme,
With blew trayles enameld trimme,
Thy hand, handle of perfection,
Keeps my thoughts in thy subjection :
Though it have such curious cunning,
Gentle touch, and nimble running,

That on Lute to heare it warble,
Would move rocks, and ravish Marble.

'Tis not all the rest beside,
Which thy modest vaile doth hide
From mine eyes (ah too injurious !)
Makes mee of thy love so curious ;
Though Diana being bare,
Nor Leucothoe passing rare,
In the Crystall-flowing springs
Never bath'd so beauteous things.

What then (O divinest Dame)
Fires my Soule with burning flame,
If thine eyes be not the matches
Whence my kindling Taper catches?
And what Nectar from above
Feeds and feasts my joyes (my Love)
If they taste not of the dainties
Of thy sweet lips' sugred plenties?

What fell heat of covetize
In my feeble bosome fires ;
If my heart no reckoning hold
Of thy tresses' purest gold?
What inestimable treasure
Can procure me greater pleasure
Then those Orient Pearles I see
When thou daign'st to smile on me?

What? what fruit of life delights
My delicious appetites
If I over-passe the nests
Of those apples of thy breasts?
What fresh Buds of scarlet Rose
Are more fragrant sweet then those,
Then those Twins thy Straw-berry teats,
Curled-purled Cherrylets?

What (to finish) fairer linne,
Or what member yet more trimme,
Or what other rather Subject
Makes me make thee all mine object?
If it be not all the rest
By thy modest vaile suppress ;
(Rather) which an envious cloud
From my sight doth closely shroud.

Ah 'tis a thing more divine,
'Tis that peere-lesse Soule of thine,
Master-peece of Heav'n's best Art,
Made to maze each mortall heart.
'Tis thine all admired wit,
Thy sweet grace and gesture fit,
Thy milde pleasing courtesie
Makes thee triumph over mee.

But, for thy fair Soule's respect,
I love Twin-flames that reflect
From thy bright tra-lucent eyes :
And thy yellow locks likewise :
And those Orient-Pearly Rocks :
Which thy lightning smile un-locks :

And the Nectar-passing blisses
Of thy honey-sweeter kisses.

I love thy fresh rosie cheek,
Blushing most Aurora-like :
And the white-exceeding skin
Of thy neck and dimpled chin,
And those Ivorie-marble mounts
Either, neither, both at once :
For, I dare not touch to know
If they be of flesh or no.

I love thy pure Lilly hand
Soft and smooth, and slender : and Those five nimble brethren small
Arm'd with Pearl-shell helmets all.
I love also all the rest
By thy modest vaille suppress ;
(Rather) which an envious cloud
From my longing sight doth shroud.¹

In another direction, and as marked by perfect artistic workmanship and thorough command of resource, is 'The Woodman's Bear.' Independent of its autobiographical interest, I must regard this poem as infinitely superior to much contemporary love-verse that has received traditionary recognition, e.g. the meagre inanities of THOMAS WATSON. Will the reader give half-an-hour to it? (Vol. II. pp. 307-313.) In still another direction, and placing him—though their considerable precursor—alongside of GEORGE HERBERT, HENRY VAUGHAN the Silurist, and Dr. HENRY MORE, are his Religious Poems. I will limit myself to six of these :²—

¹ Vol. II. pp. 49-50.

² Ibid. p. 340, 'A Contented Minde : ' p. 340/1, 'Fruits of a clear Conscience : ' p. 344, 'The Induction,' and I. Wish, and p. 346, Nos. IV. and V., 'Wish or Meditation.' It must be recorded here that as mentioned in I. Biographical (p. xxi. col. 1) Orlando Gibbons set 'A Contented Minde' to his charming and genuine English music. Probably Sylvester's consent was sought ; for a preliminary stanza not in the poem itself forms No. 1., thus :—

'O that the learned Poets of this time,
Who in a Loue-sicke line so well can speake,
Would not consume good wit, in hateful rime
But, with deep care some better subiect finde.
For if their Musicke please in earthly things,
How would it sound if strung with heavenly strings?'

See Rimbault's Bibliotheca Madrigaliana : Introduction, p. xi. (1847). 'It has been asserted,' says Dr. Rimbault, 'that the poetry of this collection was written by Sir Christopher Hatton, the nephew of the Lord Chancellor of England. This, however, could not have been the case, as Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5 are certainly the productions of Joshua Sylvester, and No. 15 is part of a longer poem by Dr. Donne. The passage then in the dedication

A contented Minde.

I waigh not Fortune's frowne or smile,
I joy not much in earthly Joyes,
I seeke not state, I reake not stile,
I am not fond of fancie's Toyes :
I rest so pleas'd with what I have,
I wish no more, no more I crave.
I quake not at the Thunder's crack,
I tremble not at noise of warre,
I swound not at the newes of wrack,
I shrink not at a Blazing-Starre ;
I fear not losse, I hope not gaine,
I envie none, I none disdaine.
I see Ambition never pleas'd,
I see some Tantals starv'd in store,
I see gold's dropse seldom eas'd,
I see even Midas gape for more ;
I neither want, nor yet abound,
Enough 's a Feast, content is crown'd.
I faine not friendship where I hate,
I fawne not on the great (in show),
I prize, I praise, a meane estate,
Neither too lofty nor too low :
This, this is all my choice, my cheere,
A minde content, a conscience cleere.

Vol. II. p. 340.

The Fruits of a clear Conscience.

To shine in silke, and glister all in gold,
To flow in wealth, and feed on dainty fare,
To have thy houses stately to behold,
Thy Prince's favour, and the people's care :
The groaning, Gout, the Collick or the Stone,
Will marre thy mirth, and turne it all to moane.
But, be it, that thy body subject be
To no such sicknesse, or the like annoy :
Yet, if thy Conscience be not firme and free,
Riches are Trash, and Honours but a Toy.
This peace of Conscience is the perfect joy,
Wherewith God's Children in the world be blest ;
Wanting the which, as good want all the rest.
The want thereof made Adam hide his head ;
The want of this made Cain to waille and weep :
This want (alas) makes many goe to bed,
When they (God wot) have little list to sleep.
Strive, O then strive to entertaine and keepe
So rich a Jewell, and so rare a Guest,
Which being had, a rush for all the rest.'

Vol. II. p. 340-1.

to Sir Christopher Hatton,—'the language they speak you provided them,' merely intimates that Sir Christopher selected the poetry.' I question if Dr. Rimbault be not himself mistaken, as the context runs :—'They were most of them composed in your own house, and doe therefore properly belong unto you, as Lord of the Soile : the language they speake you provided them. I onely furnished them with Tongues to utter the same.' It is a courtly way of saying that Sir Christopher had inspired the music, and has no reference at all to the words.

The Induction.

*What should I wish for on the Earth ?
Goodness is grown to such a dearth ;
While want of Grace doth make abuse
Of that which might be for good Use ;
That who observes what most men wish,
Shall finde how fond and vaine it is.*

*Some wish for Wealth, to pamper Pride :
The Med'cin's good, but ill appli'd.*

*Some wish for Honour, in high thought ;
Honour is good, Ambition nought.*

*Some wish for Health, to live at ease ;
Health may be good, Ease breeds Disease.*

*Some wish for Power, to wrong at will ;
Power oft is good, Oppression ill.*

*Some wish for Youth, to nourish Folly ;
Youth may be good, the Wish unholy.*

*Some wish for Love, to answer Lust ;
Love may be good, the Wish unjust.*

*Some wish for Strength, to crush and kill ;
Strength may be good, but Murther ill.*

*Thus still th' Abuse which Will brings forth
Doth make the Wishes nothing worth.*

*Yet since that Wishes may be good,
When Worth is truly understood,*

*Let mee set downe my Heart's desire,
And what hath set my soule on fire.*

*It is not Earth, nor earthly Treasure,
Nor worldly Honour, fleshly Pleasure,
Nor Power, nor Place, nor Youth, nor Strength,
Nor drawing out this Life at length,
Nor idle pleasing Nature's Eye
With fond Affection's Vanity.*

*Not one of these comes near the White
Of my Heart's Wish and Soule's Delight,
The Course of my true Care's content
Extends above the Firmament.*

*The levell of my Soule's chiefe Love
Is onely in the Heav'ns above ;
Where I shall see my Saviour sweet,
And how his Saints and Angels meet
With such an Harmony of Voyces,
As shewes how every Soule rejoyces
In the beholding his sweet Face,
That is the glory of all Grace.*

*This, this, my Wish shall onely be,
To live where I may ever see
My Saviour sweet, and in his right
Have all my Heart's and Soule's Delight.*

*Daigne then (my God) this Boone to give Whiles here upon this Earth I live,
That neither Wealth, nor Poverty,
Nor Comfort, nor Calamity,
Nor Health, nor Sicknesse, Ease, nor Paine,
Nor Hope, nor Feare, nor Losse, nor Gain,
May ever take such hold on mee,
But still my Joy in CHRIST may be.*

Vol. H. p. 344.

I. Wish or Meditation.

Oh I had I of his Love but part,
That chosen was by God's owne heart,
That Princely Prophet, David, hee,
Whom in the Word of Truth I see
The King of Heav'n so dearely lov'd,
As mercy beyond measure prov'd :
Then should I neither Gyant feare,
Nor Lion, that my soule would teare ;
Nor the Philistims, nor such Fiends,
As never were true Christians' Friends :
No Passions should my spirit vex,
Nor Sorrow so my minde perplex,
But I should still all glory give Unto my God by whom I live.
Then Health nor Sicknesse, Griefe nor Ease,
Should so my minde disease or please ;
But Want, or Woe, what-ere I prove,
The Lord of Life should be my Love.
To him I should my minde impart,
And to him onely give my heart,
And to his mercy onely pray,
To put my secret sinnes away :
To heale my sinfull wounded Soule,
And put my Name in Mercie's Roll :
In all my Cares and Crosses still
To comfort mee with his good Will :
And when I cry and roar in Griefe,
In deepe despaire of Hope's Reliefe,
My Faith should yet in Mercy find
The Comfort of a constant Minde ;
And I should ever joy to see
How Mercie's Eye did looke on mee :
Then should my Heart tune every string,
That to his glory I might sing
A Song of ever-lasting Praise,
To end in never-ending daies.
Then should I play, and sing, and dance,
And to the Heav'ns mine Eyes advance,
With joy to see in Triumph so
The Arke of God in Glory goe :
And whatsoever I possesse
In Power or Honour, more or lesse,
Nor Earth nor Heaven should mee move,
But still my Lord should be my love.
If I were sick, Hee were my Health ;
If I were poore, Hee were my Wealth ;
If I were weake, Hee were my Strength ;
If dead, Hee were my Life at length ;
If scorn'd, Hee onely were my Grace ;
If banisht, Hee my Resting place ;
If wrong'd, Hee onely were my Right ;
If sad, Hee were my Soule's Delight ;
In Summe, and all, All-onely Hee
Should be All, above All, to mee.
His Hand shall wipe away my Teares,
His Favour free mee from all Feares,
His Mercy pardon all my Sinne,
His Grace my life anew begin,

His Love my Light to Heav'n should be,
His Glory, thus to comfort mee.

Thus was the Kingly Prophet blest,
To live in Love's eternall Rest.
And since I see his Grace so great,
To all that Mercy doe intreat :
And how the faithfull Soule doth prove
An heavenly blessing in his Love ;
Let me but onely This request,
To be but thus with David blest,
That Joy, or Griefe, what-ere I prove
The Lord of Life may be my Love.

Vol. II. p. 344.

IV. Wish or Meditation.

Oh ! that I had that Gracious Call
That from the Heav'ns had Blessed Paul ;
That chosen Saint of sacred Blisse,
Where onely Saints' true blessing is :
Who from the way of wicked Thought,
Unto the gates of Grace was brought ;
And when his Eyes were stricken blinde,
Had such an insight of the Minde,
As made him see through Mercie's light,
(That is the Soule's eternall sight)
How blinde is Reason's ruthfull Eye,
Where Errour leads the Heart awry ;
Whil'st Conscience thinking to doe well,
Doth carry Misconceit to Hell ;
Till Mercy meeting on the way,
Brings home the Sheepe that went astray :
Then should no Office, Power, nor Place
Make mee to seek my Soule's Disgrace.
To take a Tyrant's powerfull Rod,
To persecute the Saints of God.
But I should more in soule rejoyce
In Mercie's Gracious-Glorious Choice,
All Persecutions to abide,
Where Patience, Faith, and Love is try'd
Of the sweet Lord of Heaven's Blisse,
Then persecute one Saint of his :
But all my Love, and Love's Delight,
My Meditation day and night,
Should onely, all, and ever be
Of Mercy that so called mee.
No Griefe, no Paine, no Want, nor Woe,
That I should ever live to know,
But I should thinke too little all,
In Love to answer Mercie's Call :
For all the World I would not care,
Nor K[ing] nor Kesar would I feare ;
No threats, nor thraldome, scourge nor death ;
To speake his Praise, should stop my breath ;
But I should plainly speake and write
My knowledge of the Lord of Light :
And to the Glory of his Name,
Throughout the World divulge the same.
My Walke should be but in his Waies ;
My Talke but onely in his Praise ;

My Life a Death, but in his Love ;
My Death a Life, for him to prove :
My Care to keepe a Conscience cleane :
My Will from wicked thoughts to weane ;
My Prayers for the Good of all,
That Mercy unto Grace doth call :
My Labour for the Love of Truth
To leade the Life of Age and Youth :
My Comfort truely to convert
The Soules which Sathan did pervert :
My Health, to labour for their Love,
That seeke their blessing from above :
My greatest Ease, to worke for those Whom Mercy to Salvation chose :
My Paine, and pleasure, Travell, Ease,
My God thus in his Saints to please.
Then should I this base World despise,
With all Earth's idle Vanities ;
And governe mine Affections so
That Sin should never overthrow
This wounded woefull Soule of mine,
But still in Mercie's love divine,
My Soule should finde that life of Grace,
As should all Earthly love deface :
And I should onely wish to live,
All Glory to my God to give ;
And all in all my Joy to be
His servant that so called mee.

Vol. II. p. 346.

V. Wish or Meditation.

Oh that my Soule might live to prove
Some part of that sweet blessed Love,
Which John th' Evangelist possest,
When hee lean'd on our Saviour's brest :
When Wisedome, Vertue, Grace and Truth,
Embrac'd the blessed dayes of Youth!
Then should I fly with Eagles' wings
Unto the Glorious King of Kings ;
And see that Heav'nly Court of his
The Beauty of the Angels' Blisse ;
Where Goodnesse, Grace, and Glory dwels,
And Love, and Life, and nothing else
But Holinesse and Heav'nly Light,
All, onely in my Saviour's sight :
Then should I loath this World of Woe,
That doth bewitch the Worldling so ;
And seeke (but at my Saviour's feet)
To finde my Soule's eternall Sweet ;
Till Mercy will vouchsafe mee grace
To have a glimpse of his Sweet Face,
In whose least sweetest Looke of Love,
A Sea of Joy the Heart doth prove ;
And swimming in the Soule's Delight,
Is ravish'd with that Glorious Sight.
But though I cannot be so blest,
To leane upon my Saviour's Brest ;
As all unworthy of such Grace,
To looke on his Coslestiall Face :

Yet let mee beg at Merci's Feet,
That I may but receive this Sweet
That when his Saints and Angels sing
Their Halleluiah's to their King,
My Soule in Joy all-sounding then,
May have but leave to sing AMEN.

Vol. II. p. 346.

I can only name the good, sound, and solid work of the 'Letanies on the Lord's Prayer' at close of the works.

Keeping in mind that all, or nearly all of these Poems belong to the closing years of the 16th century (1583-1600), and how relatively empty is the same type of poetry within these years,—again excluding supreme names,—I shall be disappointed if, for themselves, these examples of JOSHUA SYLVESTER's own gifts as a Poet, do not win for him higher recognition than hitherto, and the admission that he had a right to promise 'native strains' to the good Archbishop of Canterbury if only he had not passed 'from arts to marts and miseries.' I am not at all seeking for my worthy 'great things.' What I claim for him is that he has given sanctions for recognition of his personal 'faculty' distinct and distinctive from his most noticeable achievements as a Translator. It is of ignorance not knowledge; of hasty assumption not judicial impartiality as not of insight, that any one sneers at our 'brave old English gentleman' and Poet.

Advancing now, I have to look at JOSHUA SYLVESTER as a Translator. His 'Du Bartas' has overshadowed all his other Works ('Sylvester's Workes' long before Ben Jonson's folio, is the recurring entry in the Stationers' Register), and I am glad to be enabled to preface what I have myself to say with a little paper on DU BARTAS, most pleasantly sent me by a living and variously-qualified master in this special department of criticism—GEORGE SAINTSBURY, Esq. His 'wine' needs no 'bush' as he himself needs no introduction to any cultured reader of to-day; and so here is his right-welcome communication just as it reached me:—

'Independently of the influence which he exercised throughout Europe, and which Sylvester's translation with all its shortcomings helped to extend, Du Bartas has from two very different points of view an important place in the story of French literature. He represents in the first place the extreme development of the Ronsardising innovation; in the second place the highest literary culture attained by the French Calvinists. This sect, which was in the next age to deserve to the full the reproach often unjustly brought against the literary sterility of the more thorough-going Protestant bodies, was during the last three quarters of the Sixteenth Century, and even a little later, extraordinarily fertile in men of letters. In its early days the names of Marot, of Marguerite, and others may perhaps be disputed by the general impulse of the Renaissance as having no specially Protestant tendency. But the Calvinism militant of those who opposed the league, produced many remarkable literary figures of whom the most remarkable are perhaps Du Bartas himself, Agrippa D'Aubigné, and the Tragedian Monchrestien. Inferior to D'Aubigné in knowledge of the world, in the choice of subjects perennially interesting, and in terse vigour of expression, Du Bartas was the superior of the great Protestant Satirist in picturesqueness, in imagination, and in facility of descriptive power. The stately and gorgeous abundance of the vocabulary with which the Hellenizing and Latinizing innovations of the pléiade enriched the French language supplied him with colours and material to work with, and his own genius did the rest. There is indeed no doubt that he went too far. His attempt to naturalise Greek compounds such as 'Aime-Lyre' 'Donne-Ame' and all the rest, has done him more harm than anything else, and was doomed to failure by the genius of the language. But it must be remembered that experiments were the order of the day, and that certain great contemporary names in England indulged in classicisms which were hardly less hopeless and absurd. Ronsard's denunciations of his

"Vers ampoullez dont le rude tonnerre S'envole outre les airs," may sometimes be justified, but it is as well to remember that Ronsard had spoken in very different language before his jealousy was excited by the setting up of the Gascon Calvinist as a rival to himself. As a matter of fact Du Bartas' combination of classical learning with the varied colour and vivid imagination of the middle age and the Renaissance, often results in extraordinarily striking expressions. "L'eschine Azurée," for instance, is a singularly picturesque if also somewhat barbaric reminiscence of εὐρέα κόρα θαλάσσης. Nor is it in single passages only, that the beauties of the Seigneur Du Bartas consist. Such a passage as the following in its enforcement of the idea 'hora novissima, tempora pessima' is worthy of D'Aubigné himself:

" Nos exécrables moeurs dedans gomorrhé aprises,
Les troublées saisons, les civils fureurs,
Les menaces du ciel sont les avant-coureurs
De Christ, qui vient tenir ses dernières assises."

A rather longer quotation will illustrate the style of the author still better, and will certainly remind all readers of modern French poetry of the greatest of the living (shall we say of the living and dead?) Poets of France:

" Un jour, de comble en fond, les rochers crouleront,
Les monts plus sourcilieux, de peur de dissoudront ;
Le ciel se crevera : Les plus basses campagnes,
Boursoufflées, croîtront en superbes montagnes ;
Les fleuves tariront, et si dans quelque estang
Reste encor quelque flot, ce ne sera que sang ;
La mer deviendra flamme, et les sèches balenes,
Horribles, mugleront sur les cuites arenas,
En son midy plus clair le jour s'épaissira
Le ciel d'un fer rouillé sa face voilera ;
Sur les astres plus clairs courra le bleu neptune,
Phœbus s'emparera du noir char de la lune,
Les étoiles cherront. Le désordre, la nuit,
La frayeur, le trespas, la tempeste, le bruit,
Entretront en quartier, et l'ire vengeresse
Du juge criminel, qui jà desjà nous presse,
Ne fera de ce tout qu'un bucher flamboyant,
Comme il n'en fit jadis qu'un marest ondoyant."

There are accents here which were, save now and then in the work of Regnier Rotrou and Corneille, not to be heard in France till the author of the Contemplations and the Châtiments began to sing. Nor are the sources of Du Bartas' inspiration hard to discover. A diligent perusal of the Scriptures, and of the splendid if sombre vernacular prose which Calvin had drawn from the study of those Scriptures and of the Latin Fathers, must rank first of all; next to it must be placed a familiarity with the profane classics, and last a knowledge of the brilliant literature which the Poet's own country had produced in earlier times. All that was wanting to make Du Bartas a poet of the first rank was some portion of the faculty of self-criticism; for of natural verve and imagination he certainly had no lack. But in such critical faculty he seems to have been totally deficient, and his memory has paid the inevitable penalty. His beauties, rare in kind and not small in amount, are alloyed with vast quantities of dull absurdity, and the alloy, as has so often happened, has attracted more attention than the true metal. Had he, like the lighter singers of our time, written short pieces, he would almost certainly have produced some whose unalloyed beauty would have saved him as Belleau and Du Bellay have been saved. But vast Scriptural epics need a Milton to maintain them at a safe distance above the waters of oblivion; and Du Bartas, though undoubtedly Milton's creditor, was scarcely Milton's equal.¹

I do not know that it is needful to enlarge on my accomplished friend's verdict on Du Bartas. I would wish, however, to emphasize that much of the 'alloy' in Sylvester's Du Bartas must be credited to Du Bartas himself. I do not gainsay that his Translator has his own faults and blame. There is much too frequently a fantastique of bathos—as 'glorious John' waggishly recalled²—or a perverse mingling of sorriest lath and plaster with noblest marble. But as a rule the intermixture is only a too-faithful and un-sifted rendering of his original. This I will avouch for JOSHUAH SYLVESTER, that wherever Du Bartas chances to be great, he is co-equally great. No 'purple patch' loses its depth of colour in his hands, as no true note is robbed of its melodious richness. We shall find anon that the compound epithets of Du Bartas are not merely 'translated,' but that, with rare skill and seeingness, the Translator fashions new with a fine audacity that only occasionally overleaps itself. These are not French but English, with felicitous reminiscences of Greek.

As a Translator JOSHUAH SYLVESTER 'grew' marvellously. I have taken pains to study and collate the original and early 'parcel' issues of his Du Bartas; and nothing has struck me more than the advance in the after-editions. This has never, that I am aware, been noticed. Had it been, we should have been spared the nonsense of Mr. J. PAYNE COLLIER'S criticism and general treatment of our Worthy.³

² In his Bibl. Cat., &c., Mr. Collier criticises Sylvester on the strength, i.e. weakness, of the two early tracts, in utter ignorance of the 'sea-change' subsequently wrought, and the universally conceded after-triumph.

The first known translation by our Sylvester was 'A Canticle of the Victorie obtained by the French King, Henrie the Fourth at Yvry' (1591). It thus opens:—

'A Canticle of the Victorie obtained by the French King, Henrie the fourth at Yvry.

O God! what glorious sun, beams bright about our bounds?
 What high triumphall hymnes, so sweetly shrill re-sounds;
 In our arch temples faire? what noise runs longest our streets?
 What ruddy flakes of fire with clouds high climbing meets?
 Then is the victory ours: and heauen's most righteous wrath
 Vpon the cruell campe of Leaguers showered hath.
 My browes beslick your-selues, and you my throbbing thoughts
 (Deepe sunke in sigh-full cels of sorrowes sable vaughts)
 Soar vp to heauen againe: you sisters three-fold three,
 Which of your sweets some yeeres haue now bin niggardlie,
 And left my lips a-drie: insucket now my tong
 In your best syrups; now poure downe vpon this song.
 A lake of learned gold, a rich May-wreath of flowers,
 Let not my blubbered eyes disturbe with sorrowes showers,
 The common publike ioy: nor mee dumbe-thanklesse hide,
 Among so many Orphes, these braue Trophe's tride.—
 (P. 1.)

Cf. this with our text in Vol. II. p. 247, l. 1-16.

His second book was his 'Triumph of Faith.' 'The Sacrifice of Isaac.' 'The Shipwracke of Ionas,' etc. (1592). Take these bits from the 'Triumph of Faith,' which is different throughout:—

'The Triumph of Faith.

'I hate the pens that practise to backbite;
 I hate the pens that shamelesse sooth vp sin:
 For enulous th' one, the other claw-backs bin:
 But he is wise can chuse the meane aright.
 Nor oft to pinch, nor oft to praise I vse,
 Yet must I praise, the praise-deseruing still,
 For (free) I cannot hold my forward quill,
 From those who heauen with speciall beams indues.
 Now all that God giues by retaile (I see)
 To perfect'st men, to thee in grosse he giues,
 That's 'cause my muse thy praise so often driues,
 For duties sake, but not to flatter thee,' etc., etc.

'The first song of the Triumph of faith.

The God of dreames came in through's hornie gate
 (When Erycine Aurora cal'd in Ynde,
 And she the Sunne) and shewed my musing minde,
 A sacred Virgin's triumph full of state.

Then Faith (for that's hir name) commands with speed,
 That pen and paper I prepare to write,
 What friendly heauen would offer to my sight,
 To be recorded to our after-seed,' etc., etc.

Cf. this again with our text in Vol. II. p. 11, onward.

The other pieces of the title-page are 'fragments' taken from Du Bartas' great poem; and more than even those thus far quoted, illustrate the after labor limæ. Thus—

'The Sacrifice of Isaac.

The babe is blest that godly parents breed;
 And sharp-sweet Tutors traine in louing-dreed:
 But cheefie that (in tender cradle-bed),
 With sincere milke of pietie is fed.

So blest is Isaac. But his inclination
 Excels his birth and carefull education,
 His faith, his knowledge, wit, and iudgement sage,
 (Preuenting times), anticipates his age.

Being but a babe, he feares the liuing Lord,
 And (wise) depends vpon his father's word;
 Whose steady steps the child obserueth so
 That by his gesture he his mind dooth know,
 So far, that euery word, each glance and nod,
 Serues for a certaine warning, lesson, rod:
 And thus this child by diligence out-reacht.
 The holy precepts that his father preacht.

Now though that Abram were a man discreet,
 Graue, wise, and modest, knowing what was meet:
 Though his sweet son sometime he seeme to chide,
 Yet can he not his kind affection hide,
 Nor shrowd his loue, but still his eyes are pight
 And fixed still on Isaac his delight.
 Sweet Isaac's face serues for his looking-glasse,
 No name but Isaac through his mouth doth passe.

But God who sees how perfect is this loue,
 Takes thence occasion Abram's faith to proue
 And tempteth him; but not as dooth the diuell
 His vassals tempt, or man his mate to euill:
 When Sathan tempts he seeks our faith to foile,
 But God dooth seale it neuer to recoil:
 Sathan suggesteth it, God moues to grace:
 The diuel seeks our baptisme to deface,
 But God to make our burning zeale to shine
 Amongst the candles of his church deuine.—(P. 1-2.)

'Now giue to me a voice (O voice deuine)
 With heauenly fire inflame this brest of mine:

Ah rauish me, and make all kind of men,
Admire thine Abram, picturd with my pen.

*And let that voice (of kings the only kinge)
Lead mine vnlearned eie and art-lesse finger,
To imitate in English dies vn-darke,
This faire French patterne of that Patriarke,
So that (excepting change of tere alone)
The French and English Abram may be one.—(P. 3.)*

Abram, mine Abram (quoth the God of power)
I am thy God, thy king, thy strength, thy tower,
Go straight to Salem, and in any wise
Thy sweet sonne Isaac see thou sacrifice :
There slay the child, and in consuming fire
Offr' vp his lims t' appease my iealous ire.—(P. 4.)

Yet on he goes and mounts the hill apace.
And strenghtd by faith he dooth seréne his face,
Like siluer Cynthia when in Thetis waues
Her amber tresses wantonlie she laues,
He builds his aultar, laies his wood thereon,
And tenderly he binds his sonne anon.—(P. 11.)

*Isaac my sonne, my sweet (too sweet indeed)
Alas, thy sweetnesse makes me more to bleed,
Makes my losse greater, and like red-hot tongs
Gripes hard my heart, torments my lights and longs,
I take deere sonne (not mine but God's I wis)
My last fare-wel, seal'd with my latest kisse.—(P. 13.)*

Christ dies (indeed) but Isaac is repru'd
Because the Lord had otherwise contriu'd ;
The blood of Isaac was too base a price
To free our soules and purge our filthy vice ;
Our soules defilde with such foule faults of ours
Had need be washed with more plentifull showres.—
(P. 17.)

Cf. this once more with our text in Vol. I.
p. 178, ll. 12-49, and p. 179, line 86 onward, and line 90 onward.

Again there is—

'The Ship-wrache of Ionas.

As after th' end of long and wearie raine
The hunny-birds hast from their hiues again,
Sucke here and there, and beare unto their bower,
The sweetest sap of euery fragrant shower :
So of the towne beseegd each burges hies
Straight to the tents of feare-fed enemies,
And there such store of corne and wine they pill,
That in one day their hungrie towne they fill :
And th' issuing presse treads downe amid the throng
Th' incredule courtiar nice the dust among :
So that (at once) euen both effects agree
Iust with Elisha's holy prophesie.

From this schoole parts the prophet Amethyke
The wise-borne preacher, doctor Nimite,
Go (saith the Lord) go hast thee hence with speed,
To high-wald Niniu' and cry out (sans dreed)
Both day and night, yet forty daies to come
And Ninise shall perish all and some.—(P. 18.)

Then God reacht out his hand, vnfolde his frowns,
Dis-arms his arme of thunder-bruising-crownes,
Bowes downe his holy hed that flames like fire
And milde he grants these harrolds last desire.
Now readers, if your gentle doome shall daigne
With good aspect to grace my lowly muse :
If you vouchsafe a friendly entertaime,
To these first frutes shée offers to your veiwes :
If you accept these patterns of her paine,
And help her faultes with fauour to excuse :
If this first messe doe not your mouthes misleeke,
Your second course shal be the Second Weeke.—(P. 24.)

YOUR IOsvAH SILVESTER.

Cf. Vol. I. p. 248, l. 896 onward.

These may suffice. Everywhere it will be observed pleaurably, that the after-work has not worn away the original substance, but contrariwise replaced tin with gold or gold-leaf with bullion.

Another way of marking the power and plenitude of Sylvester is to put him in comparison with contemporary Translators of Du Bartas. King James I. tried his 'prentise hand' on portions. To-day, though be-praised at the time, the royal 'paraphrases,' rather than translations, are beneath criticism.
Equally poor are those of THOMAS HUDSON (whose 'Judith' was bound up with all the folios of Sylvester, and earlier). There remain THOMAS WINTER and WILLIAM L'ISLE OF WILLBURGHAM—for alas! Sir
Philip Sidney's has perished.

The former—Thomas Winter—is thus entered in the Stationers' Register (Arber's Transcript) :—

'(a.) 18 Novembris 1602 : James Shawe. Entred for his Copie vnder the handes of master Doctor Mountford and the Wardens, A booke called *the Second Daye of the first weeke of the most excellent Learned and Devine poet William Lord Bartas Donne into English by Thomas
Winter vj^d* (vol. iii. p. 221, bottom paging).

(b.) 13 Septembris [1604]: Thomas Clerke. Entred for his Copie vnder the handes of the wardens A booke called the Third Dayes Creation, donne by William Lord Bartas, and translated out of Frenche by Thomas Winter, Master of Artes.

Provided that yf any other partie hath Right therevnto or that the firste and seconde bookes of the said Lord Bartas be not alreadie printed: then this entrance to be void, vj^d (ibid. p. 271).'

It so chanches that I have the latter now before me. Its title-page is as follows:—
‘The Third Dayes Creation. By that most excellent, learned, and diuine Poet, William Lord Bartas. Done verse for verse out of the original French by Thomas Winter, Master of Arts’ (1604). It is dedicated to Henry Prince of Wales, who had ‘accepted’ the former part. This is the opening:—

‘The Third Dayes Creation. By that most excellent, learned, and diuine Poet, William Lord Bartas. Done verse for verse out of the original French by Thomas Winter, Master of Arts. London 1604.’

‘My Muse that whilome ouer-topt each spheare
Whose course life-giuing influence doth beare;
That in so braue a stile discours’d of Winds
And ayrie meteors frightening silly minds:
And did of sulphur’d-lightning stormes intreate,
And made her verse so graue a path to beate:
Creeping to-day in the base elements,
Must cloath her speech with base habiliments:
Where if by chance she sing a loftie straine,
She’s lifted higher by the swelling Maine.

Great King of earth, and of the liquide plaine,
Whose very heate doth dreadfully constraîne
The sturdiest hills to quake, and oft exaults
The stormie waues vp to the starrie vaults,
Grant that my reasoning skill may well suruay
The fleeting and firme element this Day.
Grant that my learned verse may well discouer,
The nature of the sea, and of our Mother:
That with a flowring stile I may pourtray
The flowers, that cloath the earth with rich array.

All those high hills, whose forked tops do border
Vpon the clouds, that wander in disorder,
Did hide their bossed backs vnder the fload,
While on the earth a pudled marish stood,’ etc.

(P. 1.)

Cf. Sylvester, Vol. I. p. 40, onward.

This is near the close:—

‘In clymbe-fall court he spends no wretched yeares,
His will depends not on the greatest peares:
He changeth not religion with his Lord,
His mercenarie stile doth not accord
With lies to make an Ant an Elephant,
Or stille a coward hard and valliant;
Or make an Adon of some foule Thersite,
Or wrong leud Flora with Alcestes right:
But liues within himselfe, serues God in feare,
And sings the verie thought his heart doth beare.
Pale feare doth neuer feede vpon his heart;
Nor doth he practise conicatching art,’ etc.

Cf. Sylvester, Vol. I. 49-50.

William L’isle’s volume is also under my eye. It was not published until 1625; but from an appended Epistle to the Lord Admirall dated 1596, it seems to have been done before or in 1596. The following is its title-page:—

‘Part of DV BARTAS
English and French, and in his owne kinde of Verse, so neare the French Englished, as may teach an English-man French, or a French-man English.

By William L’isle of Willburgham,
Esquier for the King’s Body.
London 1625, 4^o. (9 leaues and pp. 188).’

This is the commencement:—

‘The end of Adam and beginning of Nöe.

Then thus he gan foretel | the wauy territorie
Of people skalle-backt, | all this high vaulted story,
Wherein the thundring God | by his e’rbasting might
Hath placed sentinel | Sunne for day, Mone for night.
The highest Aire, the Mean | wherein the clouds do play,
And this below, the field | appointed for the fray
Of sturdie counterwinds | that with a roaring sound
Throw many a wood that stands | betwixt them, to the ground:
The flower-decked Inne | that lodgeth crazie Man,
Were all by this anfull word, | in six daies made, and than
Was hallowed theseuenth. | In like sort Earth, See, Aire,
And th’ Azure-guilt that foldes | the world in curtane
faire,
Shall last six other daies, | but long and faire vnlke
The daies that Heauens bright eye | meates out with golden stroke,’ etc. (P. 1.)

Cf. Sylvester, Vol. I. p. 132, onward.

This will I daresay be reckoned enough ; but I must add the explanatory Epistle with its serene condemnation of Spenser :—

‘ TO THE READER.

‘ Thus much onely may suffice (I presume) to helpe an Englishman vnderstand the whole French of Bartas, or a Frenchman the whole English of Siluester. If you aske me why I keepe this kind of Hexameter verse, I need say no more but that it is the same, which the Author kept in the originall, etc.

‘ The Bartasian verse, (not vnlike herein to the Latin Pentameter) hath euer this propertie, to part in the mids betwixt two wordes ; so much doe some French prints signifie, with a stroke interposed, as here in the first two pages you may see for example. The neglect of this hath caused many a braue stanza in the Faerie Queene to end but harshly, which might haue bene preuented at the first ; but now the fault may be sooner foud than amended.’

Robert Ashley—school-fellow at Saravia’s with our Poet as we have seen¹—in 1589 published ‘L’Vranie or myse celeste de G. de Saluste Seigneur du Bartas. Vrania sive Mvsa coelestis Roberti Ashelei de Gallica G. Sal. Bartasij delibata, 1589. Comparison here is scarcely possible ; yet the opening stanza may be acceptable :—

‘ Nondum florentem, viridemque ætatis Aprilem
Contigeram, sacro cum mens, mea rapta furore,
Tentandum docet esse viam, qua me quoque possim
Tollere humo, & post fata virum volitare per ora.

I thought once of similarly presenting the various readings so as to exhibit VERBAL CHANGES in the successive editions of Sylvester’s translations of Du Bartas. I have decided to withhold these (a), Because the Works have already considerably exceeded the extent estimated, and (b), Because neither Du Bartas nor the Translator so belong to our highest literature as to call for either the toil, or the cost, of tabulated variations. Enough to state, that in almost every edition the revising hand is seen, and that love of labour that transmutes even task-work into a labour of love.

But though I do not care to inflict upon myself or readers elaborate variations of texts, it were to wrong our Worthy not to show his power as a Translator. I can only at most offer merest specimens of noteworthy things ; and what have struck me may be held by others as excelled by him elsewhere. So be it as it must ever be.

Here is a noble outburst (Vol. I. p. 20, ll. 152-159) :—

‘ It glads me much, to view this Frame ; wherein
(As in a Glasse) God’s glorious face is seen :
I love to look on God ; but, in this Robe
Of his great Works, this Universall Globe.
For, if the Sun’s bright beams do bear the sight
Of such as fix’dly gaze against his light ;
Who can behold above th’ Emperiall Skies,
The lightning splendor of God’s glorious Eyes ?’

There is the calm of night itself in this of ‘The comoditie that the night bringeth us’ (Vol. I. p. 24, ll. 546-99) :—

‘ But yet, because all Pleasures wax unpleasant,
If without pause we still possesse them, present ;
And none can right discerne the sweets of Peace,
That have not felt War’s irkesom bitterness ;
And Swans seem whiter if swart Crows be by
(For, Contraries each other best descry.)
Th’ All’s Architect, alternately decreed
That night the day, the day should night succeed.
The Night, to temper daie’s exceeding drought,
Moistens our Aire, and makes our Earth to sprout.
The Night is she that all our travailles easeth,
Buries our cares, and all our griefes appeaseth.
The Night is she, that (with her sable wing,
In gloomy Darkness hushing every thing)
Through all the World dumb silence doth distill,
And wearied bones with quiet sleep doth fill.

Sweet Night, without Thee, without Thee (alas !)
Our life were loathsome ; even a Hell to passe :
For, outward paines and inward passion still,
With thousand Deaths, would soule and body thrill.
O Night, thou pullest the proud Mask away
Wherewith vaine Actors in this World’s great Play,
By Day disguise-them. For, no difference
Night makes between the Peasant and the Prince,
The poore and rich, the Prisoner and the Judge,
The foule and faire, the Master and the Drudge,
The foole and wise, Barbarian and the Greek :
For, Night’s black Mantle covers all alike.

He that, condemn’d for some notorious vice,
Seeks in the Mines the baits of Avarice ;

Or, sweating at the Furnace, fineth bright
 Our soule's dire sulphur ; resteth yet at night.
 He that, still stooping, toges against the tide
 His laden barge alongst a River's side,
 And filling shores with shouts, doth melt him quite ;
 Upon his pallet resteth yet at Night.
 He, that in Sommer, in extremest heat
 Scorched all day in his owne scalding sweat,
 Shaves with keen Sythe, the glory and delight
 Of motly Medowes ; resteth yet at night,
 And in the arms of his deere Pheer forgoes
 All former troubles and all former woes.
 Onely the learned Sisters' sacred Minions,
 While silent Night under her sable pinions
 Folds all the world, with pain-lesse paine they tread
 A sacred path that to the Heav'ns doth lead ;
 And higher than the Heav'ns their Readers raise
 Upon the wings of their immortal Layes.

EVEN NOW I listned for the Clook to chime
 Dayes latest bower ; that for a little time,
 The Night might ease My Labours : but I see
 As yet Avors hath scarce smild on me ;
 My Work still growes : for, now before mine eyes
 Heav'n's glorious boast in nimble squadrons flies.'

In our first quotation from 'The First Day' the description of the 'eyes' of God arrests. Equally notable is another (Vol. I. p. 34, ll. 803-8) :—

' Me thinks I hear, when I doe hear it thunder,
 The voice that brings Swains up, and Casars under :
 By that Towr-tearing stroak I understand
 Th' undaunted strength of the Diuine right-hand :
 When I behold the Lightning in the Skies,
 Me thinks I see th' Almighty's glorious Eyes.'

One of the most signal interpolations into the text of Du Bartas—printed carefully like all the others in italics—by the translator, is a striking and wistful and patriotic address to England 'to rouse her from her present security' (Vol. I. p. 35, ll. 899-958) :—

' And wanton ENGLAND, why hast Thou forgot
 Thy visitation, as thou hadst it not ?
 Thou hast seen Signes, and thou hast felt the rod
 Of the revenging wrathfull hand of God.
 The frowning Heav'ns in fearfull Sights fore-spoke
 Thy Roman, Saxon, Dane, and Norman Yoke :
 And since (alas !) unkinde wounds them those,
 The Civill rents of thy divided ROSE ;
 And, last of all, the raging Wolves of Rome,
 Tearing thy Limbs (Christ's Lambs) in Martyrdome.
 Besides Great Plagues, and grievous Dearthes, which erst
 Have oft the sinewes of thy strength reverst.

*But Thou, more faulty, more forgetfull art
 Then Boyes that fear but while they feel the smart :
 All this is past, and Thou, past fear of it,
 In Peace and Plenty, as a Queen, dost sit ;
 Of Rods forgetfull, and for Rest ingratefull,
 (That, sottish dulnesse ; this, a sin most hatefull :)
 Ingratefull to thy God, who all hath sent ;
 And thy late Queen, his sacred Instrument,
 By whose pure hand he hath more blessed Thine,
 Then erst his own Choice-planted Hebrew Vine :
 From whence hee look'd for Grapes (as now from thee) :
 That bore him Crabs : Thou worse (if worse may be) :
 That wast destroy'd, the wild Boar entred in.
 ENGLAND, beware : Like punishment, like sin.*

*But, O ! what boots, or what avails my song
 To this deaf Adder, that hath slept so long,
 Snorting so loud on pillows of Security,
 Dread-lesse of danger, drowned in Impurity :
 Whose senses all, all over-grown with fat,
 Have left no doore for fear to enter at ?
 Yet once again (deere Countrey) must I call :
 ENGLAND, prevent ; Fall, to repent thy Fall.
 Though thou be blinde, thy wakefull Watchmen see
 Heav'n's irefull vengeance hanging over thee
 In fearfull Signes, threatening a thousand Woes
 To thy Sins' Deluge, which all over-flows.*

*Thine uncontrol'd, bold, open Atheism :
 Close Idol-service : cloaked Hypocritism :
 Common Blaspheming of God's Name in Oaths :
 Usual profaning of his Sabbathoaths :
 Thy blind, dumb Idol-shepherds, chook'd with steeples,
 That fleece thy Flocks, and do not feed thy Peoples :
 Strife-full Ambition, Florentinizing States :
 Bribes and Affection swaying Magistrates :
 Wealth's mercy-lesse Wrong, Usury, Extortion :
 Poore's Idleness, repining at their portion :
 Thy Drunken Surfeits ; and Excesse in Diet :
 Thy Sensuall wallowing in Lascivious Riot :
 Thy huff'd, puff'd, painted, curl'd, purld, wanton Pride,
 (The Baud to Lust, and to all sins beside)
 These are thy sins : These are the Signes of Ruin,
 To ev'ry State that doth the same pursue-in :
 Such, cost the Jewes and Asians Desolation,
 Now turned Turks, that were the holy Nation.
 Happy who take by others' dangers warning :
 All that is writ, is written for our learning ;
 So preach thy Prophets : But, who heeds their cry ?
 Or who beleeveth ? then much lesse hope have I.'*

John Vicars in his 'Elegie' commemorates our Poet's dauntless 'courage of his convictions' :—

' No Temporizer ; yet, the Court frequenting :
 Scorning to sooth, or smooth this Age's crimes :
 At War with Vice, in all thy holy Rymes :
 Thine Israel's Sins (with Jeremie) lamenting.'

(Vol. I. p. 10, st. 7.)

Here is another proof of this fearlessness and seer-like fidelity in rebuke of the highest-seated (Vol. I. p. 44, ll. 508-39) :—

'O Princes (subjects unto pride and pleasure)
Who (to enlarge, but a hair's-breadth, the measure
Of your Dominions) breaking Oaths of Peace,
Cover the Fields with bloody Carcases !
O Magistrates, who (to content the Great)
Make sale of Justice, on your sacred Seat !
And, breaking Laws for Bribes, profane your Place,
To leave a Leek to your unthankfull Race !
You strict Extorters, that the poor oppress,
And wrong the Widdow and the Father-less,
To leave your Off-spring rich (of others' good)
In Houses built of Rapine and of Blood)
You City-Vipers, that (incestuous) joyn
Use upon use, begetting Coyn of Coyn !
You Marchant Mercers, and Monopolites,
Gain-greedy Chap-men, perjurd Hypocrites,
Dissembling Broakers, made of all deceits,
Who falsifie your Measures and your Weights
T' enrich your selves, and your unthrifty Sons
To Gentilizæ with proud possessions !
You that for guine betray your gracious Prince,
Your native Country, or your dearest Friends !
You that to get you but an inch of ground,
With cursèd hands, remove your neighbour's bound,
(The ancient bounds your Ancestors have set)
What gaine you all ? alas ! what do you get ?
Yea, though a King by wile or war had won
All the round Earth to his subjection ;
Lo here the Guerdon of his glorious pains,
A needle's point, a Mote, a Mite he gains,
A Nit, a Nothing (did he All possess) ;
Or if then Nothing any thing be less.'

But none the less was he proud of the great Queen. The poorest contemporary rhymester somehow becomes ennobled, and is given larger utterance when his theme is 'sacred Elizabeth.' It certainly again and again inspires Sylvester, as in this quaintly imaged tribute to her (Vol. I. pp. 45-6, ll. 620-57) :—

'Here (dear S. BARTAS) give thy Servant leave
In thy rich Garland one rare Flower to weave,
Whose wondrous nature had more worthy been
Of thy divine immortalizing Pen :
But, from thy sight, when SIXIN did swell with blood,
It sunk (perhaps) under the Crimson Flood
(When Beldam Medices, Valois, and Gulse, Stain'd Hymen's Robe with Heathen cruelties)
Because the Sun, to shun so vile a view,
His Chamber kept, and wept with Bartholmew.
For so, so soon as in the Western Seas
Apollo sinks, in silver Euphrates

The Lotos dives, deeper and deeper ay
Till Mid-night : then, remounteth toward Day :
But not above the Water, till the Sun
Doth re-ascend above the Horizon.

So ever true to Titan's radiant Flame,
That (Rise he, Fall he) it is Still the same.

A Reall Emblem of her Royall Honour
That worthily did take that Word upon her :
Sacred ELIZA, that enm'd no less
Th' eternall Sun of Peace and Righteousness ;
Whose lively lamp (what ever did beside-her)
In either Fortune was her onely Guide.
For in her Father's and her Brother's Dayes,
Fair rose this Rose with truth's neo-springing rales :
And when again the Gospel's glorious Light
Set in her Sister's superstitious Night,
She sunk withall under affliction's streams
(As sinks my Lotos with Sol's setting beams) ;
But, after Night, when Light again appear'd,
There-with, again her Royall Crown she rear'd ;
And in an Ile amid the Ocean set (Maugre the Deluge that Rome's Dragon spet,
With spightfull storms striving to over-flowe her,
And Spain conspiring jointly t' over-throwe-her)
Her Maiden Flawr flourish'd above the Water ;
For, still Heav'n's Sun cherisht his loving Daughter.'

We have seen how he used to steal away in earlier years to Eltham and Fulham, and in later to Stafford and Berkshire. He was a lover of the country. He breathed freer among the green fields and lanes. The bird within him 'sang' under the shine and shadow of the green-wood. His life-weariness and wornness fell away from him as he left the roar of the great city behind him. He renewed his youth in contact with mother-earth. Its fragrances, its dewiness, its sparkle, its inviolate skies, brought tranquillity. The homely simplicities, the unrestrained intercourse with 'gentle and simple,' the bright laughter of children, the breath of kine, the smell and refreshment of milk, and butter, and honey, the sweetness and brightness of the daisied meadow, the butter-cupped fallows, the pollard trees, the bird-voices from 'red-stomachèd Robin' to the cawing rooks, set themselves to spontaneous music in his soul. Accordingly, if the Reader is vigilant, he will observe nicety of epithet wherever rural memories are worked in, or tree-beauty, flower-beauty, grass-beauty, brook-beauty, country-beauty in ever-varying aspects, are recalled. I select one complete passage, which, if it have weaknesses, has also strength and cunningness of word-painting (Vol. I. p. 49, ll. 1016-91):—

'All-hail fair Earth, bearer of Towns and Towns,
Of Men, Gold, Grain, Physick, and Fruits and Flowers;
Fair, firm, and fruitfull, various, patient, sweet,
Sumptuously clothed in a Mantle meet
Of mingled-colour; lac't about with Floods,
And all imbrod'ed with fresh blooming buds,
With rarest Gemmes richly about embost,
Excelling cunning, and exceeding cost.
All-hail great Heart, round Base, and stedfast Root,
Of all the World, the World's strong fixed Foot,
Heav'n's chastest Spouse, supporter of this All,
This glorious Building's goodly Pedestall.
All-hail deer Mother, Sister, Hostess, Nurse
Of the World's Sovrain: of thy liberall purse,
W' are all maintained: match-less Emperess,
To doe thee service, with all readiness,
The Sphears before thee bear ten thousand torches;
The Fire, to warm thee, foulds his heatfull Arches
In purest flames above the floating Cloud:
Th' Aire, to refresh thee, willingly is bow'd
About the Waves, and well content to suffer
Milde Zephyr's blasts, and Boreas bellowing rougher:
Water, to quench thy thirst, about thy Mountains
Wraps her moist arms, seas, rivers, lakes, and fountains.
O how I grieve, deer Earth, that (given to gays)
Most of best Wits contemn thee now a-dayes:
And noblest hearts proudly abandon quite
Study of Hearbs, and Country-life's delight,
To brutest men, to men of no regard,
Whose wits are Lead, whose bodies Iron-hard.
Such were not yerst the reverend Patriarks,
Whose praise is penned by the sacred Clarks.
Noah the just, meek Moses, Abraham
(Who Father of the Faithfull Race became)
Where Shepherds all, or Husbandmen (at least)
And in the Fields passed their Dayes the best.
Such were not yerst Attalus, Philemetor,
Archelaus, Hiero, and many a Pretor;
Great Kings and Consuls, who have oft for blades
And glistening Scepters, handled hooks and spades.
Such were not yerst, Cincinnatius Fabricius,
Serranus, Curius, who un-self-delicious,
With Crowned Coulters, with Imperiall hands,
With Ploughs triumphant plough'd the Roman lands.
Great Scipio, sated with fain'd curtsy-capping,
With Court-Eclipses, and the tedious gaping
Of golden beggars: and that Emperour
Of Slave turn'd King; of King turn'd Labourer;
In country Granges did their age confine:
And ordered there, with as good Discipline,
The Fields of Corn, as Fields of Combat first;
And Ranks of Trees, as Ranks of Souldiers yerst.

O thrice, thrice happy He, who shuns the cares
Of City-troubles, and of State-affairs;
And, serving Ceres, tills with his owne Teem
His own Free-land, left by his Friends to him!
Never pale Envie's poysonie heads do hiss
To gnaw his heart; nor Vultur Avarice:
His Fields' bounds, bound his thoughts: he never
For Nectar, poyson mixt in silver Cups;
Neither in golden Platters doth he lick
For sweet Ambrosia, deadly Arsenick:
His hand's his boall (better then Plate or Glass):
The silver Brook his sweetest Hippocrass:
Milk, Cheese, and Fruit (fruits of his own endeavour)
Drest without dressing, hath he ready ever.
False Counsaillers (Concealers of the Law)
Turn-coat Attorneys, that with both hands draw;
Sly Peti-Foggers, Wranglers at the Bar,
Proud Purse-Leaches, Harpies of Westminster,
With fained chiding, and foul jarring noyse,
Break not his brain, nor interrupt his joyes:
But cheerfull Birds, chirping him sweet Good-morrow's,
With Nature's Musick to beguile his sorrows;
Teaching the fragrant Forrests, day by day,
The Diapason of their Heav'nly Lay.'

Again, with a fine yearning and consciousness of possibilities of 'higher strains' (Vol. I. p. 50, ll. 1160-71):—

'Let me, good Lord, among the Great un-kend,
My rest of dayes in the Calm Country end.
Let me deserve of my deer EAGLE-BROOD
For Windsor-Forrest, walks in Almes-wood:
Bee Hadley Pond, my Sea; Lambs-bourn, my Thames;
Lambourn, my London; Kennet's silver streams,
My fruitfull Nile; my Singers and Musicians,
The pleasant Birds with warbling repetitions;
My company, pure thoughts, to work thy will;
My Court, a Cottage on a lovely Hill;
Where, without let, I may so sing thy Name,
That times to-come may wonder at the same.'

There are memorable things of the birds; and what of jar there is through artificial and technical terms, belongs, be it remembered, to Du Bartas, while what of vividness belongs to them is of the Translator. Take the Lark and Nightingale (Vol. I. p. 67, ll. 672-709):—

'The pretty Lark, climbing the Welkin clear,
Chaunts with a cheer, Heer peer-I neer my Dear;
Then stooping thence (soeming her fall to rew)
Adieu (she saith) adieu deer Deer adieu.
The Spink, the Lisnot, and the Gold Finch fill
All the fresh Aire with their sweet warbles shrill.
But, These are nothing to the Nightingale,
Breathing so sweetly from a brest so small,

So many Tunes ; whose Harmony excels
 Our Voyce, our Violls, and all Musick els.
 Good Lord ! how oft in a green Oaken Grove,
 In the cool shadow have I stood and strove
 To marry mine immortal Layes to theirs,
 Kapt with delight of their delicious Aiers !
 And (yet) me thinks, in a thick thorn I hear
 A Nightingale to warble sweetly, cleer.
 One while she bears the Base, anon the Tenor,
 Anon the Treble, then the Counter-Tenor :
 Then all at once ; (as it were) chalenging
 The rarest voices with herself to sing.
 Thence thirty steps, amid the leafie Sprayes,
 Another Nightingale repeats her Layes,
 Just Note for Note, and adds some strain at last,
 That she hath conned all the Winter past :
 The first replies, and descants there-upon ;
 With divine warbles of Division,
 Redoubling Quavers ; And so (turn by turn)
 Alternately they sing away the Morn :
 So that the conquest in this curious strife
 Doth often cost the one her voyce and life :
 Then, the glad Victor all the rest admire,
 And after count her Mistress of the Quire.
 At break of Day, in a delicious song
 She sets the Gam-ut to a hundred yong :
 And, when as fit for higher Tunes she sees them,
 Then learnedly she harder Lessons gives-them ;
 Which, strain by strain, they studiously recite,
 And follow all their Mistress' Rules aright.'

There is power as well as vehemence in his 'Detestation of Avarice' (Vol. I. p. 67, ll. 738-61) :—

'O I ever may'st thou fight so (valiant Fowl)
 For this dire bane of our seduced soule :
 And (with thee) may the Dardan Ants so ward
 The Gold committed to their carefull Guard,
 That hence-forth hopeless, man's frail mind may rest her
 From seeking that, which doth it's Masters master.
 O odious payson ! for the which we dive
 To Pluto's dark Den : for the which we rive
 Our Mother Earth ; and, not contented with
 Th' abundant gifts she outward offereth,
 With sacrilegious Tools we rudely rend-her,
 And ransack deeply in her bosom tender,
 While under ground we live in hourly fear
 When the frail Mines shall over-whelm us there :
 For which, beyond rich Taproban, we roule
 Through thousand Seas to seek another Pole ;
 And maugre Winde's and Water's enmity,
 We every Day new vnknow'n Worlds descry :
 For which (alas !) the Brother sels his Brother,
 The Sire his Son, the Son his Sire and Mother,
 The Man his Wife, the Wife her wedded Pheer,
 The Friend his Friend : O ! what not sell we here ?
 Sithence, to satiate our Gold-thirsty gail,
 We sell ourselves, our very soules, and all.'

Very considerable dexterity and ingenuity is shown alike by Du Bartas and Sylvester, in the physical-metaphysical descriptions of man's creation and nature in the 'Sixth Day of the First Week.' Thus (Vol. I.
 p. 78, ll. 744-65) :—

'T sufficoeth me in some sort to express,
 By this Essay, the sacred mightiness,
 Not of Japhetus' witty-fained Son,
 But of the true Prometheus, that begun
 And finisht (with inimitable Art)
 The famous Image, I have sung in part.
 Now, this more peer-less learned Imager,
 Life to his lovely Picture to confer,
 Did not extract out of the Elements
 A certain secret Chymick Quint-essence
 But, breathing, sent as from the lively Spring
 Of his Divineness, some small Riverling,
 Itself dispersing into every Pipe
 Of the frail Engin of this Earthen Type.
 Not, that his own Self's-Essence blest he brake,
 Or did his Triple-Unity partake
 Unto his work ; but, without Selfe's expence,
 Inspir'd it richly with rare excellence :
 And by his powr so spred his Rayes thereon,
 That, even as yet, appears a portion
 Of that pure lustre of Coelestial Light
 Wherewith at first it was adorn'd and dight.'

Compare Vol. I. p. 81, ll. 1002-13. The image of the spider was later utilised by Sir John Davies and Pope. One is startled to come upon this anticipation of chloroform or anæsthetics ; and surely the Eve is a vision that could not fail to be greeted with rapture by young John Milton (of whose familiarity with Sylvester's Du Bartas onward)—Vol. I.
 p. 81, ll. 1030-65 :—

' Even as a Surgeon, minding-off-to-cut
 Some-cureless Limb ; before in ure he put
 His violent Engins on the vicious member,
 Bringeth his patient in a sense-less slumber,
 And grieffe-less then (guided by Use and Art)
 To save the whole, sawes off th' infested part :
 So, God empal'd our Grandsires' lively look,
 Through all his bones a deadly chillness strook,
 Siel'd-up his sparkling eyes with Iron bands,
 Led down his feet (almost) to Lethé Sands ;
 In brief, so numm'd his Soule's and Bodie's sense,
 That (without pain) opening his side, from thence
 He took a rib, which rarely He refin'd,
 And thereof made the Mother of Mankinde :
 Graving so lively on the living bone
 All Adam's beauties ; that, but hardly, one

Could have the Lover from his Love descry'd,
Or known the Bridegroom from his gentle Bride :
Saving that she had a more smiling Eye,
A smother Chin, a Cheek of purer Dye,
A fainter Voyce, a more enticing Face,
A deeper Tress, a more delighting Grace,
And in her Bosom (more then Lillie-white)
Two swelling Mounts of Ivory, panting light.

Now, after this profound and pleasing Transe,
No sooner Adam's raviisht eyes did glance
On the rare beauties of his new-come Half,
But in his heart he 'gan to leap and laugh,
Kissing her kindly, calling her his Life,
His Loue, his Stay, his Rest, his Weal, his Wife,
His other-Selfe, his Help (him to refresh)
Bone of his Bone, Flesh of his very Flesh.

Source of all joyes ! sweet Hee-Shee-Coupled-One !
Thy sacred Birth I never think upon,
But (ravisht) I admire how God did then
Make Two of One, and One of Two again.'

Puritan born and bred, he 'commends' the public services of the Church, and his was a bright not a gloomy Sunday (Vol. I.
p. 87, ll. 422—77):—

'God would, that men should in a certain place
This-Day assemble as before his face,
Lending an humble and attentive ear
To learn his great Name's dear-drad Loving-Fear :
He would, that there the faithfull Pastor should
The Scripture's marrow from the bones unfould,
That we might touch with fingers (as it were)
The sacred secrets that are hidden there.
For, though the reading of those holy lines
In private Houses som-what move our minds ;
Doubtless, the Doctrin preacht doth deeper pierce,
Proves more effectuall, and more weight it bears.
He would, that there in holy Psalmes, we sing
Shrill praise and thanks to our Immortall King,
For all the liberrall bounties he bestow' th
On us and ours, in soule and body both :
He would, that there we should confess his Christ
Our onely Saviour, Prophet, Prince, and Priest :
Solemnizing (with sober preparation)
His blessed Seals of Reconciliation :
And, in his Name, beg boldly what we need
(After his will) and bee assur'd to speed ;
Sith in th' Exchequer of his Clemency
All goods of Fortune, Soule, and Body ly.

He would, this Sabbath should a figure be
Of the blest Sabbath of Eternity,
But th' one (as Legall) heeds but outward things ;
Th' other to Rest both Soule and Body brings :
Th' one but a Day endures ; th' other's Date
Eternity shall not Exterminate :
Shadows the one, th' other doth truth include :
This stands in freedome, that in servitude :

With cloudy cares th' one's muffed up som-whiles ;
The other's face is full of pleasing smiles :
For never grief, nor fear of any Fit
Of the least care, shall dare come nere to it.

'Tis the grand Jubile, Feast of all Feasts,
Sabbath of Sabbaths, end-less Rest of Rests ;
Which, with the Prophets, and Apostles zealous,
The constant Martyrs, and our Christian Fellows,
God's faithfull Servants : and his chosen Sheep,
In Heav'n wee hope (within short time) to keep.

He would this Day, our Soule (sequestered
From busie thoughts of worldly cares) should read
In Heav'n's bow'd Arches, and the Elements,
His bound-less Bounty, Power, and Providence ;
That every part may (as a Master) teach
Th' illiterate, Rules past a vulgar reach.

Come (Reader) sit, come sit thee downe by mee ;
Think with my thoughts, and see what I doe see :
Hear this dumb Doctor : study in this Book,
Where day and night thou maist at pleasure look,
And thereby learne uprightly how to live :
For every part doth speciall Lessons give,
Even from the gilt Studs of the Firmament,
To the base Centre of our Element.'

Very admirable is this 'turning aside' to laud Samuel Daniel (Vol. I. p. 99, ll. 30-69):—

'And gracions Guide, which dost all grace infuse,
Since it hath pleas'd thee task my tardy Muse
With these high Theames, that through mine Art-less
Pen

This holy Lamp may light my Country-men :
Ah, teach my hand, touch mine unlearned lips :
Last, as the Earth's grosse body doth Eclipse
Bright Cynthia's beams when it is interpos'd
'Twixt her and Phoebus : so mine ill-dispos'd,
Dark gloomy Ignorance, obscure the rayes
Of this divine Sun of these learned dayes.
O ! furnish me with an un-vulgar stile,
That I by this may wain our wanton ILE
From Ovid's heires, and their un-hallowed spell
Here charming senses, chaining soules in Hell.
Let this provoke our modern Wits to sacre
Their wondrous gifts to honour thee their Maker :
That our mysterious ELPHINE Oracle :
Deep, morall, grave, Invention's miracle :
My deer sweet DANIEL, sharp conceived, brief,
Civill, sententious, for pure accents chief :
And our new NASO, that so passionates
The Heroick sighs of love-sick Potentates :
May change their subject, and advance their wings
Up to these higher and more holy things.
And if (sufficient rich in selfe-invention)
They scorn (as I) to live of Stranger's Pension,
Let them devise new Weeks, new Works, new Waies
To celebrate the supreme Prince of praise.
And let not me (good Lord) be like the Lead
Which to some City from some Conduit-head

*Brings wholesome Water ; yet (self-wasting sense)
Itself receives no drop of comfort thence :
But rather, as the thorough-seasoned But Wherein the tears of death-press Grapes are put,
Retains (long after all the Wine is spent)
Within it selfe the Liquor's lively sent :
Let me still savour of these sacred sweets
Till Death fold-up mine earth in earthen sheets ;
Lest my young layes, now prone to preach thy glory
To BRUTUS' heirs, blush at my elder Story.'*

So too of Dowland (Vol. I. p. 109, ll. 214-225) :—

' But this stands sure, how-ever else it went,
Th' old Serpent serv'd as Satan's instrument
To charme in Eden, with a strong illusion,
Our silly Grandam to her self's confusion.
For, as an old, rude, rotten, tune-lesse Kit,
If famous Dowland deign to fanger it,
Makes sweeter Musick then the choicest Lute
In the grosse handling of a clownish Brute :
So, whiles a learned Fiend with skilfull hand
Doth the dull motions of his mouth command,
This self-dumb Creature's glosing Rhetorike
With bashfull shame great Orators would strike.'

Still again—of ESSEX (Vol. I. p. 112, ll. 622-641) :—

' *Those that (in quarrell of the Strong of strongs,
And just revenge of Queen, and Countrie's wrongs),
Were witnesses to all the wofull plaints,
The sighes, and tears, and pitifull complaints,
Of braving Spaniards (chiefly brave in word)
When by the valiant Heav'n-assisted sword
Of Mars-like ESSEX, England's Marshall-Earle
(Then Albion's Patron, and Eliza's Pearle)
They were expulsit from Cad'z, their dearest pleasure,
Losing their Town, their Honour, and their Treasure :
Wo worth (said they) wo worth our King's ambition ;
Wo worth our Clergie, and their Inquisition :
He seeks new Kingdoms, and doth lose his old ;
They burne for Conscience, but their thirst is Gold :
Wo, and alas, wo to the vain bravados
Of Typhon-like invincible ARMADOS ;
Which, like the vaunting Monster man of Gath,
Have stirr'd against us little David's wrath :
Wo worth our sins : wo worth our selves, and all
Accursed causes of our sudden fall.'*

There is more than quaintness or strangeness in this metaphor (Vol. I. p. 87, ll. 522-531) :—

' Nay, there is nought in our dear Mother found,
But pithily some Vertue doth propound.

O ! let the Noble, Wise, Rich, Valiant,
Be as the base, poor, faint, and ignorant :
And, looking on the fields when Autumn shears,
There let them learn among the bearded ears ;
Which still, the fuller of the flow'ry grain,
Bow downe the more their humble heads again ;
And ay the lighter and the less their store,
They lift aloft their chaffie Crests the more.'

One gives swift shrive to such an interpolation as the description of old London with its house-bearing bridge, whereof the Translator apologises in a margin-note :—
' In this Comparison my Author setteth downe the famous city of Paris : but I have presumed to apply it to our owne City of London, that it might be more familiar to my meer English and un-travell'd Readers' (Vol. I. p. 102, ll. 348-75) :—

' But when he once had entred Paradise,
The remnant World he justly did disprize :
[Much like a Boor far in the Countrey born,
Who, never having seen but Kine and Corn,
Oxen, and Sheep, and homely Hamlets thatcht
(Wch, fond, he counts as Kingdoms ; hardly matcht)
*When afterward he happens to behold
The wealthy London's wonders manifold,
The silly peasant thinks himselfe to be
In a new world ; and gazing greedily,
One while he, Art-lesse, all the Arts admires,
Then the fair Temples, and their top-lesse spires,
Their firm foundations, and the massie pride
Of all their sacred ornaments beside :
Anon he wonders at the differing graces,
Tongues, gests, attires, the fashions and the faces,
Of busie-buzzing swarmes, which still he meets
Ebbing and flowing over all the streets ;
Then at the signes, the shops, the weights, the measures,
The handy-crafts, the rumours, trades, and treasures.
But, of all sights, none seemes him yet more strange
Then the rare, beauteous, stately rich Exchange.
Another while he marvels at the Thames,
Which seems to beare huge Mountaines on her streams :
Then at the fair-built Bridge ; which he doth judge
More like a tradefull City then a Bridge ;
And glancing thence along the Northrene shore,
That Princely Prospect doth amaze him more.]*

I can picture the mighty poet of 'Paradise Lost,' while he was feeling his way towards its ultimate form, pencil-marking this Rembrandt-etching in words, of Satan (Vol. I. p. 107, ll. 46-75) :—

'WHILE Adam bathes in these felicities,
 Hell's Prince (sly parent of revolt and lies)
 Feels a pestiferous busie-swarming nest
 Of never-dying Dragons in his breast,
 Sucking his blood, tiring upon his lungs,
 Pinching his entrails with ten thousand tongues,
 His cursed Soule still most extremly racking,
 Too frank in giving torments, and in taking :
 But above all, Hate, Pride, and Envious spight,
 His hellish life do torture day and night,
 For th' hate he bears to God, who hath him driv'n
 Justly for ever from the glittering Heav'n,
 To dwell in darknesse of a sulph'ry cloud
 (Though still his brethren's service be allow'd) :
 The Proud desire to have in his subjection
 Mankind inchain'd in gyves of Sin's infection :
 And th' Envious heart-break to see (yet) to shine
 In Adam's face God's image all divine,
 Which he had lost ; and that Man might atchieve
 The glorious blisse, his Pride did him deprive ;
 Grown barbarous Tyrant of his treacherous will,
 Spurs-on his course, his rage redoubling still.

Or rather (as the prudent Hebrew notes)
 'Tis that old Python which through hundred throats
 Doth proudly hisse, and (past his wont) doth fire
 A hell of Furies in his fell desire :
 His envious heart, self-swoln with sullen spight,
 Brooks neither greater, like, nor lesser wight :
 Dreads th' one as Lord ; as equal, hates another ;
 And (jealous) doubts the rising of the other.'

JOHN DAVIES OF HEREFORD'S 'Humours
 Heauen on Earth' has weird and unforgettable portraitures of London during the plague and famine. They do not, however, surpass those of Sylvester (Vol. I. pp. 116-117, ll. 280-341) :—

'Having attain'd to our calm Hav'n of light,
 With swifter course then Boreas' nimble flight,
 All fly at Man, all at intestine strife,
 Who most may torture his detested life.

Here first comes DEARTH, the lively form of Death,
 Still yawning wide, with loathsom stinking breath,
 With hollow eys, with meager cheeks and chin,
 With sharp lean bones piercing her sable skin :
 Her empty bowels may be plainly spy'd
 Clean through the wrinkles of her withered hide :
 She hath no belly, but the bellie's seat,
 Her knees and knuckles swelling hugely great :
 Insatiate Orque, that even at one repast,
 Almost all creatures in the World would waste ;
 Whose greedy gorge, dish after dish doth draw,
 Seeks meat in meat : For, still her monstrous maw
 Voyds in devouring, and sometimes she eates
 Her own dear Babes for lack of other meats :
 Nay more, sometimes (O strangest gluttony !)
 She eates her selfe, her selfe to satisfie ;

Lessening her selfe, her self so to enlarge :
 And, cruell, thus she doth our Grand-sire charge,
 And brings besides from Limbo to assist-her,
Rage, Feeblnesse, and Thirst, her ruth-less sister.

Next marcheth WAR, the mistris of enormity,
 Mother of mischief, monster of deformity :
 Laws, manners, arts, she breaks, she mars, she chaces :
 Bloud, tears, bows, towrs ; she spils, swils, burns, and raises :

Her brazen feet shake all the Earth asunder,
 Her mouth's a fire-brand, and her voice a thunder,
 Her looks are lightnings, every glance a flash :
 Her fingers guns, that all to powder pash.
Fears and Despaire, Flight and Disorder, coast
 With hasty march, before her murderous hoast :
 As, Burning, Waste, Rape, Wrong, Impiastic,
Rage, Ruine, Discord, Horror, Cruelty,
Sack, Sacrilidge, Impunitie, and Pride,
 Are still stern consorts by her barbarous side :
 And Povertie, Sorrow, and Desolation,
 Follow her Armies' bloody transmigration.

Heer's th' other FURIE (or my judgement falls)
 Which furiously man's wofull life assails
 With thousand Canons, sooner felt then seen,
 Where weakest strongest ; fraught with deadly teen :
 Blinde, crooked, cripple, maymed, deaf, and mad,
 Cold-burning, blistered, melancholike, sad,
 Many-nam'd poyson, minister of Death,
 Which from us creeps, but to us gallopeth :
 Foule, trouble-rest, fantastick, greedy-gut,
 Bloud-sweating, heart's-theef, wretched, filthy Slut,
 The Childe of Surfeit, and Ayr's-temper vicious,
 Perillous know'n, but unknowne most pernicious.

Th' inammeld meads, in Summer cannot above
 More Graahoppers above, nor Frogs belowe,
 Then hellish murmurs heer about doe ring :
 Nor never did the pretty little King
 Of Hony-people, in a Sun-shine day
 Lead to the field, in orderly array,
 More busie buzzers, when he casteth (witty)
 The first foundations of his waxen Citie ;
 Then this fierce Monster musters in her train
 Fell Souldiers, charging poor mankind amain.'

Again (Vol. I. p. 120, ll. 654-717) :—

'But, lo ! foure Captains far more fierce and eager,
 That on all sides the Spirit it selfe beleaguer,
 Whose Constancy they shake, and soon by treason
 Draw the blinde Judgement from the rule of Reason :
Opinions issue ; which (though selfe unseen)
 Make through the Body their fell motions seen.

Sorrow's first Leader of this furious Crowd,
 Muffled all-over in a sable cloud ;
 Old before Age, afflicted night and day,
 Her face with wrinkles warped every-way ;
 Creeping in corners, where she sits and vies
 Sighs from her heart, tears from her blubber'd eyes ;
 Accompan'd with selfe-consuming Care,
 With weeping Pity, Thought, and mad Despaire,

That bears, about her, burning Coales and Cords,
Asps, Poysons, Pistols, Halters, Knives, and Swords :
Foule-squinting Envie, that self-eating Elfe,
Through others' leanness fattening up her selfe,
Joying in mischief, feeding but with languor
And bitter tears her Toad-like-swelling anger :
And Jelousie that never sleeps, for fear
(Suspicious Flea still nibbling in her eare)
That leaves repast and rest, neer pin'd and blinde
With seeking what she would be loth to finde.

The second Captain is excessive Joy ;
Who leaps and tickles, finding th' Apian-way
Too-streight for her : whose senses all possesse
All wished pleasures in all plenteousnesse.
She hath in Conduct, false vain-glorious Vaunting,
Bold, soothing, shameless, loud, injurious, taunting ;
The winged Gyant lofty-staring Pride,
That in the clouds her braving Crest doth hide :
And many other, like the empty bubbles
That rise when rain the liquid Crystall troubles.

The third, is bloud-less, heart-less, witless Fear,
That like an Asp-tree trembles every-where :
She leads black Terror, and base clownish Shame,
And drowsie Sloth, that counterfeiteth lame,
With Snail-like motion measuring the ground,
Having her arms in willing fetters bound,
Foule, sluggish Drone, barren (but, sin to breed)
Diseased, beggar, starv'd with wilfull need.

And thou Desire, whom nor the Firmament,
Nor Aire, nor Earth, nor Ocean can content :
Whose-lookes are hooks, whose belly's bottomlesse,
Whose hands are gripes to scrape with greedinesse,
Thou art the Fourth ; and under thy Command,
Thou bring'st to field a rough unruly Band :
First, secret-burning, mighty swoln Ambition
Pent in no limits, pleas'd with no Condition ;
Whom Epicurus many Worlds suffice not,
Whose furious thirst of proud aspiring dyes not
Whose hands (transported with fantastick passion)
Bear painted Scepters in imagination :
Then Avarice all-arm'd in hooking Tenters
And clad in Bird-lime ; without bridge she ventures
Through fell Charybdis, and false Sertes Nesse ;
The more her wealth the more her wretchednesse ;
Cruell, respect-lesse, friend-lesse, faith-lesse, Elf,
That hurts her neighbour, but much more her self :
Whose foule base fingers in each dunghill poar
(Like Tantalus) starv'd in the midst of store :
Not what she hath, but what she wants she counts :
A wel-wing'd Bird that never lofty mounts.'

Patriotism and homage to Elizabeth are once more united (Vol. I. p. 122-3, ll. 50-73) :—

*' Much more, let us (dear, World-divided land)
Extoll the mercies of Heav'n's mighty hand,
That (while the World, War's bloody rage hath vent)
To us so long, so happy Peace hath lent*

*(Maugre the malice of th' Italian Priest,
And Indian Pluto (prop of Antichrist)
Whose Hoast like Pharaoh's threatning Israel,
Our gaping Seas have swallowed quick to hell)
Making our Ile a holy safe retreat
For Saints exil'd in persecution's heat.*

*Much more let us with true-heart-tuned breath,
Record the praises of ELIZABETH
(Of martiall Pallas and our milde Astraea,
Of grace and wisdom the divine Idea)
Whose prudent Rule, with rich religious rest,
Wel-neer nine Lustres hath this kingdome blest.
O! pray we him that from home-plotted dangers,
And bloody threats of proud ambitious strangers,
So many years hath so securely kept her,
In just possession of this flowering Scepter ;
That (to his glory, and his dear Son's honour)
All hoppy length of life may wait upon her :
That we her Subjects, whom he blesseth by her,
Psalming his praise, may sound the same the higher.'*

I must draw a halt at this point in respect of larger examples ; but the reader will scarcely turn over a page from first to last without being struck with something. 'Commonplace' applies to little in the vast translation. With every concession as to the 'wood, hay, stubble' built into it, the structure of the translated Du Bartas is a noble four-square pile. The man must be a mere goose who fails to be interested, or to be led on in faith to read and re-read.

Memorabilia, or short proverb-like and inevitably-noted things abound. I have gleaned a number that may, perchance, send the reader to 'search' for himself.

1. Contrasts.

'Swans seem whiter if swart Crows be by.'
(Vol. I. p. 24, l. 550.)

2. Ingratitude.

'On thanklesse furrowes of a fruitlesse sand
Their seed and labour lose, with heedlesse hand.'
(Ibid. p. 27, ll. 20/1.)

3. Labour lost.

'Resemble Spiders that with curious pain
Weave idle Webs, and labour still in vain.'
(Ibid. p. 27, ll. 23/4.)

4. Sleep.

'When the honey of cure-charming sleep
Sweetly begins through all their veines to creep.'
(Ibid. p. 69, ll. 882/3.)

5. Lips.

'Two moving Leaves of Corall, soft and sweet.'
(Vol. I. p. 77, l. 601.)

6. A Landscape.

'Anon, upon the flowry Plains he looks,
Lacted about with snaking silver brooks.'

7. Jealousy.

'Jelousie that never sleeps, for fear
(Suspicious Flea still nibbling in her care).'
(Ibid. p. 120, ll. 674/5.)

8. Snow.

'And perriwig with wool the balde-pate Woods.'
(Ibid. p. 124, l. 187.)

9. Noah as a Preacher.

'So the care-charming hony that distils
From his wise lips, his house with comfort fills,
Flatters despair, dryes tears, calms inward smarts,
And re-advanceth sorrow-daunted hearts.'
(Ibid. p. 133, ll. 68-71.)

10. Written-memory.

'And there-with-all, my Dream had flown (I think)
But that I lim'd his limber wings with ink.'
(Ibid. p. 144, ll. 710/11.)

11. New World.

'Wth Spain (like Delos floating on the Seas)
Late digg'd from darknesse of Oblivion's Grave.'
(Ibid. p. 148, ll. 397/8.)

12. Good deeds.

'For Alms (like leaven) make our goods to rise
And God his own with blessings plentifulies.'

13. Recognition.

... 'a fire so great
Could not live flameless long: nor would God let
So noble a spirit's nimble edge to rust
In Shepheard's idle and ignoble dust.'
(Ibid. p. 213, ll. 54-7.)

14. Braggarts.

'Big-looking Minions, brave in vaunts and vows,
Lions in Court, now in the Camp be Cows.'
(Ibid. p. 214, ll. 168/9.)

15. Bad use of Holy Scripture.

'That, in the Sugar (even) of sacred Writ.
He may em-pill us with some bane-full bit.'

16. Beauty's Splendor.

'Bright Beautie's eye, like to a glorious Sun,
Hurts the sore eye that looks to-much there-on.'
(Ibid. p. 223, ll. 1186/7.)

17. Law-Favour.

'Let not thy Lawes be like the Spider's Caul,
Where little Flies are caught and kil'd; but great
Passe at their Pleasure, and pull down their Net.'
(Vol. I. p. 228, ll. 219-21.)

18. Divine Art.

'Some sacred Picture admirably drawn
With Heav'nly pencill, by an Angel's hand.'
(Ibid. p. 229, ll. 376/7.)

19. Time servers.

'Loose with the Lewd; among the gracious, grave:
With Saints, a Saint: and among Knaves, a Knave.'

20. Vain Expectations.

'Alas! poor People, I lament your hap,
This lewd Impostor, doth but puff you up
With addle hope, and idle confidence.'

21. Vaunter.

'A jolly Prater, but a Jade to doe;
Braver in Counsail then in Combat, far.'
(Ibid. p. 259, ll. 893/4.)

22. Many rather than much.

'Who readeth much and never meditates
Is like a greedy Eater of much Food
Who so surcloyes his stomach with his Cates,
That commonly they doe him little good.'
(Vol. II. p. 28, st. 6a.)

23. Subtlety.

'The Mind's before the Work; and works within,
Upon th' Idea yer the deed begin.'
(Ibid. p. 90, ll. 573/4.)

24. Evill turned to good.

'As from a Bramble springs the sweetest Rose.'

25. Permanence.

'Straw kindles quickly, and is quickly past:
Iron heats slowly, and its heat doth last.'

26. Ghost.

'I stalke and walke and wander day and night,
Even like a ghost with unperceived foote.'
(Ibid. p. 324, Son. 16.)

27. Love-passion.

'Weepe wayward eyes, then let my soule complain
For it hath tasted Love's immortal paine.'
(Ibid. p. 326, Son. 24.)

These further notabilia the reader will not regret turning to—

28. Language, words. (Vol. I. p. 142, l. 482): 'worm gnawn words of yore' (l. 491).

29. Antiquity of Nations (Vol. I. p. 147, l. 230).
30. 'Peopled a village of a hundred fires' (Ibid. p. 150, l. 536).
31. National characteristics (Ibid. p. 151, l. 640).
32. London (Ibid. p. 151, l. 666).
33. 'All hail, dear Albion'—noble description (Ibid. p. 152, l. 766).
34. Pestilence (Ibid. p. 152, l. 845).
35. Sleep (Ibid. p. 169, l. 596).
36. Hare-coursing (Ibid. p. 201, l. 384).
37. Right Common-weal (Ibid. p. 207, l. 1012).
38. Democracy (Ibid. p. 207, l. 1076).
39. Powder Plot (Ibid. p. 209, l. 1230).
40. David's Poesie (Ibid. p. 221, l. 942).
41. Bersabe (Ibid. p. 222, l. 1100).

43. Love's Grove (Ibid. p. 232, l. 655).
44. Superstition, etc. (Ibid. p. 243, l. 328).
45. Drought (very vivid) (Ibid. p. 243, l. 400).
46. Fear (Ibid. p. 247, l. 862).
47. 'People less settled than the sliding sand' (Vol. II. p. 40, Son. 24).
48. 'Supernall Lord, Eternall King of Kings' (Ibid. p. 85, l. 65).
49. 'Prayers were her stairs' (Ibid. p. 189, l. 417).
50. 'Gain-greedy Fathers' (Ibid. p. 191, l. 77).
51. London's poverty, vanity, etc. (Ibid. p. 210, l. 189).
52. 'That Kings were made for subjects; and not they, Not they for kings' (Ibid. p. 235, l. 607).
53. Combat between Lion and Bull (Ibid. p. 248, l. 115, seq.).
54. 'Alas! to see a goodly field of wheat' (Ibid. p. 291, l. 41).

56. Lists of Diseases (Vol. I. pp. 117/18).
57. Great Authors (Ibid. p. 143).
58. Places (Ibid. p. 148).
59. Miltonic mixture of heathen and Christian names (Ibid. p. 85, l. 297, et frequenter).
60. Milton's 'comet,' with fear of change perplexing (Ibid. p. 33, l. 681).
61. Wyatt (Ibid. p. 46, l. 660).
62. Flavio (Ibid. p. 49, l. 983).
63. Hunt is up (Ibid. p. 50, l. 1114).
64. George Goodwin (Vol. II. p. 264.) See Index of Names, p. 432.
65. 'Pearl-shell helmets' = finger nails (Ibid. p. 50, col. 2, l. 20). Dr. George Mac Donald quotes this couplet in (if I err not) his Scottish story of 'Malcom.'
66. Pipes of Middleton = supply of water to London by the famous knight, who was inter-related to Sylvester through the Plumbers and Greshams (Ibid. 292/120).
67. Mores, Vol. I. 46/676—apparently = quality, nature, properties (Latin), as in Plautus (18, 24, 56, sect. 265). See the Dictionaries, s.v.

In reading Sylvester's Du Bartas and other Works, the open-eyed and open-eared Reader will constantly be reminded of after-parallel passages. I do not affirm that in each separate instance the parallel is other than fortuitous; but in not a few there is evidence of knowledge of Sylvester. I deem it only right to adduce some representative examples from my own note-book, with additions from my always-helpful and thoughtful reading friend and fellow book-lover, GEORGE H. WHITE, Esq. of Glenthorne, Torquay. Turning back again to the beginning, these successively suggest themselves:—

1. . . . 'Chaos
Where hot and cold were jarring with each other.'
(Vol. I. p. 21, l. 258).

Cf. Milton, Par. Lost, Bk. II. l. 898.

- 'For hot, cold, moist, and dry, four Champions fierce Strive here for Maistrie.'

2. . . . 'round-round-round it rumbles.'

Is this an inspiration caught from Phæar's Virgil?

3. 'Poudred with Stars streaming with glorious light.'
(Ibid. p. 54, l. 209.)
'With glistering Stars imboast and poudred rich.'
(Ibid. p. 156, l. 273.)

Cf. Milton, Par. Lost, Bk. VII. l. 579—

- 'That milkie way
Which nightly as a circling Zone thou sees't
Poudred with starrs.'

4. 'To the bright Lamp that serves for Cynosure
To all that sail upon the Sea obscure.'

(Ibid. p. 88, l. 584.)

Cf. Milton, L'Allegro—

- 'The Cynosure of neighbouring eyes.'

5. (Turtle-Dove) 'On dry boughs doth her dead Spouse deplere.'
(Ibid. p. 88, l. 619, and II. p. 194, l. 318.)

Cf. Spenser, Son.—

- 'Like as the Culver on the bared bough,' etc.

6. 'As the wise Wilde-geese, when they over-soar
Cicilian Mounts, within their bills do bear
A pebble-stone both day and night,' etc.
(Vol. I. p. 88, l. 623.)

See Glossarial Index to Davies of Hereford, s.v. Geese.

7. 'Whose hair doth stare, like bristled Porcupine.'

Cf. Sh. Hamlet, I. sc. 5—

- 'Like quills upon the fretful Porcupine.'

8. ' . . . round about the Desert Op, where oft
By strange Phantasma's, Passengers are scoft.'
(Ibid. p. 148, l. 338.)

- Cf. Milton, Comus, l. 206—
 'Of calling shapes, and beckning shadows dire,
 And airy tongues that syllable men's name.'
9. 'Planting the Trophies of thy glorious Arms
 By Sea and Land, where ever Titan warms.'
 (Vol. I. p. 152, l. 771.)
- Cf. Milton, Sonnet 8—
 'And he can spread thy name o're Lands and Seas,
 Whatever clime the Sun's bright circle warms.'
10. 'The supream Voyce placed in every Sphear
 A Syren sweet; that from Heav'n's Harmony
 Inferiour things might learn best melody.'
 (Ibid. p. 160, l. 723.)
- Cf. Sh. Merchant of Venice, v. sc. 1.
11. 'While milde-ey'd Mercy stealeth from his hand
 Th' sulph'ry Plagues prepar'd for sinfull Man.'
 (Ibid. p. 161, l. 682.)
- Cf. Giles Fletcher, p. 129, st. 84 (my ed.).
12. . . . 'on the sea of richest Histories
 Hulling at large.'
 (Ibid. p. 164, l. 28.)
- Cf. Milton, Par. Lost, Bk. II. l. 836—
 'He look'd, and saw the Ark hull on the froud.'
13. 'With staffe in hand, and wallet at our back,
 From Town to Town to beg for all we lack.'
 (Ibid. p. 166, l. 190.)
- Cf. Sh. Troilus and Cressida, III. sc. 3—
 'Time hath my Lord a Wallet at his back.'
14. . . . 'and now began
 Aurora's Usher with his windy Fan
 Gently to shake the Woods on every side.'
- Cf. Milton, Par. Lost, Bk. V. l. 5—
 'Th' only sound
 Of leaves and fuming rills, Aurora's fan.'
15. ' . . . as a Curre, that cannot hurt the flinger,
 Flies at the stone and biteth that for anger.'
 (Ibid. p. 216, l. 380.)
- A commonplace. So S. Nicholson in 'Acolastus,' p. 226 :

 this question at large.
23. 'Wasps break the Web, Flies are held fast and hurt.'
 (Ibid. p. 226, st. 55.)
- A frequent commonplace.
24. 'Nature hath broke the Mould shee made him in.'
 (Ibid. p. 243, l. 459.)
- A commonplace, and recently :—
 'And broke the mould in forming Washington.'
25. 'Sorrow, with us doth both lye down and rise.'

- Possibly an echo of Sh. King John, Act III. sc. 4—
 'Grief fills the room up of my absent child
 Lies in his bed, walks up and down with me.'

It will be noticed that in these 'parallel passages' Milton is most frequently recalled. This demands fuller statement and illustration than I can conveniently find space for here. But it is the less to be regretted, in that the subject has been treated exhaustively and with rare scholarliness and urbanity, in a volume which no one who cares for either Milton or JOSHUA SYLVESTER will go without, and which is readily to be picked up in London. The following is the title-page of this now classic book :—'Considerations on Milton's early Reading and the Prima Stamina of his Paradise Lost; together with extracts from a poet of the Sixteenth Century. In a letter to William Falconer, M.D., from Charles Dunster, M.A., London, 1800 (12° pp. 249). Very different from the malignant and fraudulent dealing with the problem of our illustrious Poet's 'Early Reading,' by WILLIAM LAUDER (cheu! Samuel Johnson's protégé), is that of CHARLES DUNSTER. The former first tracked Milton in the footsteps of Sylvester, and thus triumphed in his discovery:—'Du Bartas's divine Weeks and Works, Milton has made use of as a hidden mine. Besides the numberless fine thoughts Milton is indebted to this author for, he has contracted from him his low trick of playing upon words, and his frequent use of technical terms; for which he has been often censured. For though this last may properly enough challenge a place in such a poem as Du Bartas's, which purposely treats of the creation, nature and property of things; yet in Milton it appears only as an unnecessary ostentation of learning, finely calculated to amuse the illiterate part of his readers, and raise their wonder at the profundity of his erudition; but without giving the least addition to the real dignity or worth of his poem. Milton has borrowed from this author the long conference between Adam and Michael, which constitutes the greater part of the two last books of Paradise Lost; and has done little more than refined Sylvester's language, the translator of Du Bartas, with a few additions and variations, according to his usual custom. From this author Milton has borrowed many elegant phrases and single words, which were thought to be peculiar to him; such as palpable darkness, and a thousand others. In short, as I showed before, Milton has used this work of Du Bartas as a mine producing gold, silver, and precious stones, and sometimes pebbles and trash.'¹ Dunster, on the other hand, in limine thus judicially writes:—'Nothing can be further from my intention than to insinuate that Milton was a plagiarist, or servile imitator; but I conceive, that, having read these sacred poems of very high merit, at the immediate age when his own mind was just beginning to teem with poetry, he retained numberless thoughts, passages, and expressions therein, so deeply in his mind, that they hung inherently on his imagination, and became, as it were, naturalized there. Hence many of them were afterwards insensibly transfused into his own compositions. In common conversation we imperceptibly to ourselves adopt the particular phraseology or tone of voice of those persons whom we perhaps admire; and we frequently catch their characteristic manners, without meaning in any respect to copy them, nor being at all aware of any observable resemblance between us. From Milton's frequent adoption of Sylvester's language, I similarly infer his having been much conversant with it, and his earnest admiration of his poetry' (pp. 11-12). Again:—'Upon the whole, from the internal evidence of the book itself, combined with all the additional circumstances which I have been enabled to lay before you, I think you will admit "Milton's early acquaintance with Sylvester's Du Bartas, and his predilection for it:"—let me add, "his obligations to it."—By obligations, as I have already intimated, I certainly do not mean such as in any respect detract from his genius and talents; but such as render them more conspicuous, by marking the fineness of his penetration and the accuracy of his judgment. Neither do I merely point to its immediately suggesting (which I have no doubt it did) the "argumentum ingens" of his sublime poem; but I look to obligations of a higher and more general kind. I cannot but consider Sylvester's Du Bartas as having primarily taught Milton (what he was exquisitely framed to learn, and what was, at that time, very little understood) that "SACRED POETRY" was capable of assuming the most elevated tone; and that, while neither Calliope, nor

Clio, could aspire to the divine sublimity of Urania, the Heavenly Muse in reality united with her own native dignity the sweetness of the ONE, and the power of the OTHER' (pp. 232-3).

In my judgment, while substantially CHARLES DUNSTER vindicates his thesis, he does so rather as broadly regarded than in detail. Many of his resemblances are purely fanciful or trivial, not a few are common to others, and some have the parallelism put into them—much as 'holy preachers' with their Old Testament texts. But with every deduction, the book was a real addition to our critical literature, and an effective contribution to our understanding of Milton's early training and discipline at the most impressionable and plastic period of his age. Extrinsicly, the early quartos and duodecimos and folios of Sylvester's Du Bartas were printed and published in Milton's own street of 'Bread Street,' and while he was still resident there. The elder Milton, as himself a bookish man, was unquestionably on familiar terms with the successive occupants of the 'Bread Street Hill' press establishment, to wit, of Peter Short, Humphrey Lownes, and Robert Young. There is the imprint of 1613: 'printed by Humphrey Lownes, dwelling in Bread-street-hill at the sign of the Star,' which had been Short's.¹ The first folio was published there in 1621, when Milton was just turned thirteen; and everybody knows that Milton has told us in his Defensio Secunda, how from his 12th year he was so passionately fond of reading, as hardly ever to retire from his books to bed before midnight—Pater me puerulum humaniorum literarum studiis destinavit; quas ita avidè arripui, ut ab anno ætatis duodecimo, vox unquam ante mediam noctem a lucubrationibus discederem; quæ prima oculorum perniciës fuit, etc.

I must now content myself with a summary view of the indebtedness to Sylvester of Milton; and this is laid to my hand in an interesting paper in the Gentleman's Magazine (New Series, vol. xxvi. pp. 339-47) by the late Rev. JOHN MITFORD:—

'We will give a small specimen of these imitations from the large number produced by Mr. Dunster; but sufficient, we think, to prove with what attention Milton, in his youthful days, had studied the language of the older poet, so that he appeared to have composed his early poems with Sylvester's volume opened before him.¹

Psalm cxxvi. v. 45—

Milton. The ruddy waves he cleft in twain,
Of the Erythræan main.

Sylvester. His dreadful voice to save his ancient sheep
Did cleave the bottom of th' Erythræan deep,
Where the Erythræan ruddy billows roar.

Psalm cxxxvi. v. 53—

M. 'But full soon they did devour
The tawny king with all his power.

¹ Cf. Dunster, as before, pp. 5, 7, 8, 219-231. In the elaborate closing reference (pp. 219-231) it is conclusively shown that the Printers and Publishers of the 'Bread Street Hill' press were Puritan as distinguished from mere Church of England. So that the elder Milton and his family-tutor (Dr. Young) would the more readily introduce Master John Milton to Sylvester's Du Bartas. Sylvester himself was pronouncedly Puritan, while the Sylvesters of Mansfield—from whom Joseph Hunter boasted he descended—held their mansion as a kind of asylum for the persecuted Nonconformists. All this being so, Dunster over-refines when he sets about to prove that Milton's home was on the 'Hill of Bread Street.' The street was only a short one altogether, and it may safely be assumed that young Milton needed no such immediate neighbourhood to draw him to the book-shop of Lownes and Robert Young.

It is somewhat noticeable that to-day the 'Bread Street Hill' press has lost none of its ancient quality. The name of CLAY is found in many of the foremost books of our generation.

En passant, Mr. Mitford in a foot-note to our quotation (ut supra) hastily notes:—'On Sylvester's thefts from Spenser, see Todd's edition of Spenser, vol. iv. p. 2.' This is simple nonsense. Todd refers to a solitary epithet, which he assigns to Spenser as Milton's source rather than Sylvester. This is all. Sylvester certainly read Spenser, and revered him, but was very slightly indebted to him. Mr. Mitford also notes as follows:—'There is a curious piece mentioned in the British Bibliographer, iv. 220, "The Miracle of the Peace in France, by the Ghost of Du Bartas, translated by J. Sylvester;" and we may mention that a poem called "The Trophies of the Life and Tragedy of the Death of that Virtuous and Victorious Prince, Henry the Great, translated by J. Sylvester," consisting of twenty-nine pages, is appended to Matthieu's "Heroic Life and Deplorable Death of the most Christian King Henry IV., translated by Grimestone," 4to, 1612.'

Or likest hovering dreams, etc.

- S. Fantastic swarms of dreams there hovered,
Green, red and yellow, tawny, black and blue;
They make no noise, but right resemble may
Th' unnumbered moats that in the sun-

Mr. Dunster says, 'I do not recollect to have met with "use," precisely in this sense, anywhere but in Sylvester; where Urania is represented as exciting Du Bartas to the study of Heaven-born poesy.'

- S. Isaac, in years young, but in wisdom grown.

Sonnet on his Blindness—

- M. —Thousands at his bidding stand,
And post o'er land and ocean without rest.

- S. The ministry of angels shall be here,
But these quick posts with ready expedition
Try to accomplish their divine commission.

We extract as the last specimen a longer passage from the Vacation Exercise, written when Milton was only nineteen years of age; and it might be reasonably asked if these were the original ideas of so young a mind:—

- M. Yet I had rather, if I were to choose,
Thy service in some graver subject use,
Such where the deep transported mind may soar,
Above the wheeling poles, and at Heaven's door
Look in, and see the blissful deity,
How he, before the thundrous throne, doth lie,
List'ning to what unshorn Apollo sings
To th' touch of golden wires, while Hebe brings
Immortal nectar to her kingly sire,
Then, passing through the spheres of watchful fire,
And misty regions of rude air next under,
And hills of snow and lofts of piled thunder,
May tell at length how green-eyed Neptune raves
In the air defiance, mustering all his waves;
Then sing of secret things that came to pass
When beldam Nature in her cradle was.

Let the following mental excursion into the elementary and celestial regions of the sacred poet be compared with the above:—

- S. And though our soul live as imprisoned here
In our frail flesh, and buried, as it were,
In a dark tomb, yet at one flight she flies
From Calpe to Imaus, from th' earth to skies,
Much swifter than the chariot of the sun,
Which in a day about the world doth run;
For sometimes, leaving these base slimy heaps,
With cheerful spring above the clouds she leaps,
Glides through the air, and there she learns to know
The original of wind, and air, and snow,
Of lightning, thunder, blazing stars, and storms,
Of rain, and ice, and strange exhaled forms.
By the air's steep steps she boldly climbs aloft
To the world's chambers. Heaven she visits oft,
Stage after stage; she marketh all the spheres,
And all th' harmonious various course of theirs.
With sure ascent, and certain compasses,
She counts the stars, and metes their distances

And different paces ; and, as if she found
 No object fair enough in all this round,
 She mounts above the world's extremest wall,
 Far, far beyond all things corporeal,
 Where she beholds her Maker, face to face,
 His frowns of justice and his smiles of grace ;
 The faithful God, the chaste and sober port,
 And sacred pomp of the celestial court.

P. 133.

Milton, as has been observed, has in fact compressed Du Bartas's description, only reversing the order of it, and heathenising, with some fine classical touches, the Ολυμπια δαμαρα of his predecessor.

It must be acknowledged that Sylvester was a poet whose work, in many parts and passages, was well worthy of Milton's attention and respect. Poets of his age are at all times making strange deviations from the rules of taste, and offending the judgment and feeling ; but they must be judged by their best passages, their highest achievements, and then there will be found much to praise and to approve. We take the following lines from the Creation of Eve as a proof of our assertion :—

And thereof made the mother of mankind.
 Graving so lively on the living bone
 All Adam's beauties, that but hardly one
 Could have the lover from his love descried,
 Or known the bridegroom from his gentle bride,
 Saving that she had a more smiling eye,
 A smoother chin, a cheek of purer dye,
 A fainter voice, a more enticing face,
 A deeper tress, a more delighting grace.

THE SITE OF PARADISE.

Yet, over-curious, question not the site
 Where God did plant this garden of delight ;
 Whether beneath the equinoctial line,
 Or on a mountain near Latona's shrine,
 Nigh Babylon, or in the radiant East :
 Humbly content thee, that thou know'st, at least,
 That that rare, plenteous, pleasant, happy thing,
 Whereof the Almighty made our grandsire king,
 Was a choice soil, through which did roaring glide
 Swift Gihon, Pishon, and rich Tigris' tide,
 With that fair stream whose silver waves do kiss
 The monarch towns of proud Semiramis.

THE DECAY.

Ye honey-dropping hills we erst frequented,
 Ye milk-full vales with hundred brooks indented,—
 Delicious gardens of dear Israel !
 Hills ! gardens ! vales ! we bid you all farewell.
 Turn, therefore, turn your bloody blades on me,
 But let these harmless little ones go free.
 O ! stain not with the blood of innocents
 Th' immortal trophies of your great attempts.

So ever may the Riphean mountains quake
 Under your feet ; so ever may you make
 South, east, and west your own ; on every coast
 So may victorious march your glorious host !¹

The GLOSSARIAL INDEX—so matterful and noticeable—will guide the student-Reader to many a curious word and thing and allusion. Your 'Word-Hunter' in these our days of special word-hunting, will never consult it in vain.

My appointed task—though 'task' is not the right word for what has been a joy—is completed. Now I feel somewhat confident that a 'fit audience' if 'few' because of the elect, may be afresh counted on for my 'silver-tongued' Worthy and Poet. John Vicars notes wonderingly that he was chary of speech :—

'Thy Wisedome, in thy Spring-Speech was shown.
 'Tis strange his Words should drop, whose works did
 stream :

Yet words and works shone, all, with grace's beam :
 Thy Piety, sobriety, well known.' (Vol. I. p. 10, st. 5.)

The same good friend had engraved under Cornelius Van Dalen's portrait of him—reproduced for us—these lines :—

'Honestissimi Poetæ et Gallici Du Bartæ translatoris inclytissimi

M'ri Joshuo Sylvestri vera Effigies.

Behold the man whose words and workes were one ;
 Whose life and labours have few equals knowne ;
 Whose sacred layes his browes with bayes have bound,
 And him his age's poet-laureat crowned ;
 Whom Envy scarce could hate, whom all admir'd,
 Who liv'd beloved, and a saint expir'd.

John Vicars.'

MICHAEL DRAYTON dedicated his 'Miracles of Moses' to Du Bartas and Sylvester :—

'Sallust, to thee and Sylvester thy friend,
 Comes my high poem, peaceably and chaste,
 Your hallowed labours humbly to attend,
 That wreckful time shall not have power to waste.'

¹ I would invite attention to Dunster's remarks on Milton's lines in 'The Passion' :—

'The leaves should all be black whereon I write
 And letters where my tears have wash'd a wannish white,' as illustrated by Sylvester's 'Lachrymæ Lachrymarum' as originally published. I have seen contemporary Elegies with 'wannish white' tears on a jet-black ground.

Du Bartas is constantly quoted in Swan's Speculum Mundi, 1643 (4to), where he is called 'that Nightingale of France;' and the same bird-name is applied to his Translator. So in Nicoll's Vertue's Encomium.—

'Beneath the shadow of your favour's wing
A sweet Silvester Nightingale doth sing.'

In a copy of the folio on a fly-leaf were written certain old verses on Du Bartas and Sylvester signed W. H.; which initials I am willing to believe represent WILLIAM HERBERT. They are thus given by the bookseller who owned the exemplar:—

'Silvester signifies a woode that's green, that's goode;
That like a Spring doth bloome and budd,
And like to Autumne, fruit doth beare
that's ripe, that's rare,
Not once alone but all the yeare.'¹

EDWARD PHILLIPS—nephew of Milton, and writing under his supervision—observes of the Du Bartas that it 'has ever had many great admirers among us' (Theatrum Poet. s.n.). Among the 'commendatory poems' (Vol. I. pp. 13, 14, 15) 'rare Ben,' well-linguaged Daniel, and Bishop Hall² may be singled out; and I gladly add to them an unpublished celebration of him from a MS. in the British Museum, 'The Newe Metamorphosis or a Feast of Fancie' (Addl. MS. 14824/5, 1600):—

¹ See my dedicatory Sonnet to Mr. David M. Main of this edition of Sylvester.

² Dunster remarks—'Ben Jonson, indeed, in a general censure [judgment] of the poets of his time (recorded from his conversation by Drummond of Hawthornden), says:—"Sylvester's translation of Du Bartas was not well done; but he [Jonson] wrote his verses before he understood to confer." By which we may understand Jonson censuring the exactness of the translation, which he must have done on the report of others, as his verses confess that he did not understand the original. The poetry of Sylvester (which is my object) stands unimpeached' (pp. 10-11). In these famous Conversations Drummond praises Sylvester's 'Judith,' momentarily forgetting it was by Hudson; but he further speaks of 'his happy translations in sundry places equalling the original.' Drummond knew French well.

It is to be noted that besides his verse-praise of Sylvester, Bishop Hall mentions him very pleasingly in one of his Letters, e.g. writing to Mr. Hugh Cholmley (Epist. Decade II. Ep. v. v. Works by Wynter, vol. vi. p. 173) concerning his 'metaphrase of the Psalms' he thus introduces him:—'Many great wits have

'Monday, Lilly, Britton, Danyell, Draiton,
Chapman, and Jonson, Withers, auncient Tusser,
With the divine Soule-pleasing Sylvester,
And noble Spencer.'

Finally, there is his own assurance of after-remembrance in the 'Toomb of Words' before his 'Triumph of Faith':—

'Which (though it cost lease) shall out-last
The proud cloud-threat'ning Battlements,
Th' aspiring Spires by Nilus plac't,
And Hell-deepe-founded Monuments.'

(Vol. II. p. 9.)

And so adopting and (slightly) adapting JAMES SHIRLEY'S verses to 'Master Philip Massinger in his Renegado,' I leave JOSHUA SYLVESTER as recalled to memory at this later day, to win new admirers:—

'Dabblers in poetry, that only can Court this weak lady, or that gentleman,
With some lowe wit in rhyme;
Others that fright the time
Into belief with mighty words, that tear
A passage through the ear;
Or nicer men
That through a perspective will see a play,
And use it the wrong way,
(Not worth thy pen),
Though all their pride exalt them; cannot be Competent judges of thy lines, or thee.
I must confess, I have no glorious name
To rescue judgment; no poetic flame
To dress thy muse with praise,
And Phoebus his own bays;
Yet I commend these POEMS, and dare tell
The world, I like them well.'¹ undertaken this task, which yet have either not effected it, or have smothered it in their private desks and denied it the common light. Amongst the rest were those two rare spirits of the Sidneys, to whom poesy was as natural as it is affected of others: and our worthy friend Mr. Sylvester hath showed me how happily he hath sometimes turned from his Bartas to the sweet singer of Israel.'

I may as well give here another allusion while Sylvester was living, viz., Robert Fletcher in his 'Nine English Worthies' (1606, 40):—

'The worthy Poet Daniel by name,
Sylvester, Drayton can build sumptuous bowers,
And many more bedewed with heavenly showers.'

John Dunbar, in his 'Epigrammaton' (1616), also flatteringly remembers him in association with Daniel and Davies of Hereford: 'Nay Sylvester leaves doubtful the wreath on Daniel's brow'—significant by its surplussage of praise of his position then.

I have only to add that I am under no common obligations to my friend GEORGE H. WHITE, Esq. of Glenthorne, in the preparation of the Glossarial Index and otherwise, and also to my friend the REV. T. L. O. DAVIES, M.A., Woolston, Southampton, whose 'Bible English' deserves higher recognition than it has yet met with.

* * * These biographical data may be here added:—William Plumbe was son of John Plumbe of Eltham, co. Cant. He married (1.) Margaret, daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Nevil of the Privy Council to Henry VIII., and one of the Secretaries. She had previously been married to Sir Robert Southwell of Moreworth in Kent, Master of the Rolls, to whom she bore a son Thomas (of Woodlising in Norfolk), and he a son, Sir Robert Southwell, who in turn married Elizabeth, d. of Charles Gent of Notting-ham. '1561, Nov. 13. Mr. Wm. Plombe and the Lady Margaret Southwell married . . . of Moreworth.' The first Mrs. Plumbe died 25th December, aged 55, and was buried at Widdial in Herts, where is a monument to her memory by her second husband. Her mother was Lady Fitzhugh, d. of Lord Dacre of the North. Cf. Salmon's Herts, p. 307. It was intended that Margaret (supra) should marry Gregory Cromwell, Gent. See will of Guy the Lord Abergavenny, her uncle. His second wife was Elizabeth, d. of Edward Dormer of Fulham, Gent., and his only heir: she too had been a widow, viz., of John Gresham of Mayfield, co. Sussex, cousin-german of Sir Thomas Gresham, and second cousin of Sir John Gresham, Lord Mayor of London. It will be noticed that two of her sons are named and remembered in the will. William Plumbe died 9th February 1593, æt. 60: M. I. at Chelsea in Munday's Stowe, p. 787. I have gleaned most of above from Hunter's Collections in Chorus Vatum, as before. It is pleasant to find that as Plumbe's wife was a Nevil, so Sylvester dedicated certain of his Poems to Nevils (see Index of Names, s.n.); and so with others. It must be added that Elizabeth Plumbe, widow, was living at Fulham 31 Elizabeth.

The

QVINTESSENCE OF CRVELTY, or

MASTER-PEICE OF TREACHERY,

The Popish Powder-Plot,

Invented by Hellish-Malice

Prevented by Heavenly-mercy.

Truly related, and from the Latine of the Learned Religious and Reverend Dr. Herring, translated and very much dilated
By John Vicars.

London, 1641 (8vo).

To my good friend M. John Vicars.

Thy love to Truth, I love, thy hate of errors,
Thine honesty, thine industry, thy zeale,

For God, the king, the Church and common-weal,
 Against the rage of Rome's intended terrors.
 I like thy loathing of those Treason-stirrers,
 That for Apollyon, in these plots do deale
 With ghastly, ghostly fathers, that conceale,
 Or rather counsaill, so inhumane horrors.
 I praise thine Authour's and thine owne desire,
 To haue recorded unto all posterity,
 Th' Ignatian-furies ignominious fire,
 Flaming from hell against Christ's heavenly verity :
 In Fauks, Grants, Garnets, Winters, Caterbias,
Percies,
 Let others praise thy Vowes, I praise thy Verses.

JOSHUA SYLVESTER.

II. From 'Observations vpon Cæsars Commentaries.
 By Clement Edmwndes, Remembrancer of the cittie of London. 1609' (folio).

To his worthy friend, Maister Clement Edmonds.

'Obsaeruing well what Thou hast well Observ'd
 In Cæsar's Workes, his Warres, and Disciplines ;
 Whether His Pen hath earn'd more Praise, or Thine,
 My shallow Censure doubtfully hath seru'd.
 If strange it were, if wonder it deserv'd,
 That what He wrought so faire, Hee wrote so fine ;
 Me thinks it's stranger, that Thy learned Line
 Should our best Leaders lead, not hauing seru'd.
 But hereby (Clement) hast Thou made thee knowne
 Able to counsaile, aptest to recorde
 The Conquests of a CÆSAR of our owne ;
 HENRY, thy Patron, and my Princely Lord,

Whom (O!) Heav'n prosper, and protect from harmes,
 In glorious Peace, and in victorious Armes.

JOSVAH SYLVESTER.

It may be noted that Samuel Daniel (spelled Danyell) and Ben Jonson, also prefix commendations, and Camden one in Latin. For the 'commendation' of Blaxton, see Vol. II. p. 362. In Thomas Tuke's 'Painting of Women' (1616), a quotation is made from Sylvester's Du Bartas on 'Dress.'

I have unfortunately mislaid a short French poem contributed by Sylvester to a Dutch Volume. It was kindly sent me by my friend E. W. Gosse, Esq., some time since, and must have been too carefully put past. However, we have already, in good sooth, more than enough of Sylvester's attempts in French, Italian, etc. His French he was well-grounded in, but I suspect it was cultivated mainly by his practice as a Merchant-adventurer. So with the others. Vicars lauds his knowledge of languages. We must understand spoken rather than critically read. This Appendix is marked C at page xx., by oversight ; and accordingly is here so headed.

NOTE.

OUR text is the fine and most careful folio of '1641.' In the Memorial-Introduction will be found Various Readings from the original and early editions of the separately issued portions, together with a critical examination of Du Bartas himself. At the close of each division Notes and Illustrations are given. On the odd architectural enclosures of certain of the opening and later poems, see the Memorial-Introduction. A facsimile of the portrait of du-Bartas and of the Sidney symbol, and other woodcuts, appear in their several places. Throughout, the text and notes are furnished in integrity.—G.

FOr A just Master have I labour'd long ;
To A just Master have I vow'd my best ;
By A just Master should I take no wrong ;
With A just Master would my life be blest.
In A just Master are all Vertues met :
From A just Master flows abundant grace ;
But, A just Master is so hard to get,
That A just Master seems of Phanix race ;
Yet, A just Master have I found in fine.
Of A just Master, if you question This,
Whom A just Master I so just define ;
My Liege JAMES STUART A just Master is.
And A just Master could my Worke deserve,
Such A just Master would I justly serve.

The DAPHNEAN Crown
To Crowne Him (Laureat)
Whole and sole Sovereigne
Of the THESPIAN Spring :
Prince of PARNASSUS, and Pierian State :
And with their crown, their kingdoms Arms they yeeld :
Thrice three Peasns Sunne-like in a Cynthian field.
Sign'd by TIMES-SELVES, and their high Treasurer
BARTAS, the Great : Ingross'd by SYLVESTER.*

Our SUN did Set, and yet no NIGHT ensew'd ;
Our WOE-full losse so JOY-full gaine did bring,
*In teares wee smile, amid our sighes wee sing :
So suddenly our dying LIGHT renew'd.
As when th' ARABIAN (only) Bird doth burne
Her aged body in sweet FLAMES to death,
Out of Her CINDARS
A new Bird hath breath,*

*In whom the BEAUTIES
Of the FIRST returne ;
From Spicie Ashes of the sacred URNE
Of Our dead PHOENIX (dear ELIZABETH)
A new true PHOENIX lively flourisheth,
Whom greater glories then the First adorne.
So much (O KING) thy sacred Worth presume-I-on,
JAMES, thou just Heire of Englands joyfull UNION.*

JAMES, Thou just Heir of Englands joyfull UNION,
UNITING now too This long sever'd ILE
(Sever'd for strangers, from it selfe the whole)
Under one Scepter, in One Faith's Communion :
That in our Loves may never bee dis-union,
Throughout-all Kingdoms in thy Regall Stile,
*Make CHRIST thy Guide
(In whom was never guile)*

CLIO.

*To RULE thy Subjects
In his GOSPELS Union.*

So, on thy Seat thy Seede shall ever Flourish
To SION's Comfort, and th' eternall Terror
Of GOG and MAGOG, Athisme and Error :
So shall one TRUTH thy people train and nourish
In meeke Obedience of Th' Almighty's Pleasure,
And to give CAESAR what belongs to CAESAR.

And (to give CAESAR what belongs to CAESAR)
To sacred Thee (drad Sovereigne) dearest JAMES,
*While sad-glad ENGLAND yeelds Her Diadems,
To bee dispos'd at Thine Imperiall Pleasure :*
While Peers & states expose their pomp & treasure
To entertain thee from thy Tweed to THAMES,
*With ROYALL Presents,
And rare-precious Gemmes ;*

THALIA.

As Mindes and Meanes Concurre in happy measure.

Here (gracious Lord) low prostrate I present you
The richest Jewell my poore FATE affords,
(A sacrifice, that long-long since I meant you)
Your Minion BARTAS, masked in my words :
With him, my Selfe, my Service, Wit and Art,
With all the SINNEWES of a Loyall Heart.

With all the SINNEWES of a Loyall Heart,
 Unto Your ROYALL Hands I humbly Sacre
These Weeks (the works of the worlds glorious Maker)
Divinely warbled by LORD BARTAS Art
 (Though through my rudeness heremis-tun'd in part).
 For, to whom meeter should this Muse betake her,

Than to YOUR Highnesse, Whom (as chiefe Partaker)

MELPOMENE.

*All MUSES Crowne
 For Principall Deser?*

To whom should sacred Art and learned Pietie
 In Highest Notes of Heav'nly Musicke Sing
*The Royall Deedes of the redoubted Deitie,
 But to a Learned and Religious KING?*

To whom but You should Holy Faith commend-her,
 Great King of England, Christian Faith's Defender?

Great King of England, Christian Faith's Defender ;
 No Selfe—presuming of my Witt's perfection
(In what is mine of this Divine Confection)
Boldens mee thus to You the Same to tender :

But with the rest the best I have to render
 For Loyall Witnessse of my glad affection,

*My MITE I offer
 To your High Protection ;*

CALLIOPE.

*Which MORE it needs,
 The more it selfe is slender.*

But, for mine AUTHOR, in his sacred-furie,
 I know your Highnes knows him Prince of Singers,
And his rare Workes worthy Your Royall Angers
(Though here His lustre too-too-much obscure-I):
 For His sake therefore, and Your Selves Benignitie,
 Accept my ZEALE, and pardon mine Indignitie.

Accept my ZEALE, and pardon mine Indignitie
 (Smoothing with smiles sterne Majesties Severitie)
*Sith from this Errour of my bold Temeritie,
 Great good may grow, through heav'ns & your benignity:*

For, farre more equall to your BARTAS Dignitie,
 This may provoke (with more divine Dexteritie)

*Some NOBLER Wit,
 To SING to our Posterity*

TERPSICHORE.

*This NOBLEST Worke,
 After it Self's Condignitie:*

Or else the sweet Rayes of your Royall Favour
 May shine so warm on these wilde fruits of mine,
*As much may mend their vertue, taste, & savour,
 And Ripen faire the Rest that are behinde:*

The rather, if some Clowde of COMFORT drop
 Amid the Branches of my blasted Hope.

Amid the Branches of my blasted Hope,
 Three Noble peaches had my Muse of late,
Where (Turtle-like) groaning sad tunes she sate :
But (O!) curst ENVIE did untimely lop
 The First: the Next, bruiz'd with his fall, did drop:
 The Third remains, grow'n a great arm of State:
*Most WORTHIE So,
 But so pra—occupate*

EUTERPE.

*With others MUSES,
 That OURS hath no scope.*

Wherefore for succour in her wearie flight
 Hardly pursu'd by that sharp Vulture, WANT,
She's fain my Liege (with your good leave) to light
Amid the Top-leaves of Your CEDAR Plant:
 Where, if you daign Her Rest from Fortune's wrong,
 Shee shall more sweetely End her solemne Song.

Shee shall more sweetely End Her solemne Song
(If Heav'n grant Life, and You give leave to doe-it)

*By adding fitly All those Parts unto it
Which more precisely to your Prayse belong (Wherein expressly, with a Thankfull Tongue,
To your great Self, APOLLO's self applies-him,*

*Yields YOU His Lawrels,
And doth all agnize-him*

*Rapt with the Wonder
Of Your Vertues, Young).*

All the Posthumiall race of that rare Spirit
(His Swan tunes, sweetest near his latest breath)

Which, of his glorie their Childes-part inherit (Though born, alas! after their Father's death)

As Epilogue, shall PAY our gratefull Vowes
Under the shadow of Your Sacred Boughes.

Under the shadow of Your Sacred Boughes,
Great, Royall CEDAR of Mount LIBANON

(Greater then that great Tree of BABYLON)

No marvaile if our TURTLE seek to House;

Sith CESAR's Eagles that so strongly Rouze:

Th' old Haggard FALCON, hatcht by Pampelon:

Th' IBERIAN GRIPHIN

(And not THESE alone,

*But every Bird and Beast)
With HUMBLE vowes,*

Seeks roost or rest under your mighty Bowers:

So mighty hath the Almighty made you now:

O Honour Him who thus hath Honour'd you,

And build His house who thus hath blessed Yours.

So STUARTS ay shall stand (propt with His Power)

To Foes a Terrour, and to Friends a Tower.

To Foes a Terrour, and to Friends a Tower:
ERROR's Defyer, and True FAITH's Defence:

A Sword to Wrong, a Shield to Innocence:

Cheering the milde; checking the wilde with power:

The Starre of other States, and Sterne of Our:

The Rod of Vice, and VERTUE's Recompence:

Long Live King JAMES

In all MAGNIFICENCE:

And (full of DAYES)

When (in his Bliss-full Bower)

Heav'ns King shal crown thee with th'immortal flowr,

Fall all These Blessings on that forward Prince

HENRY (our Hope) to crowne His Excellence

A KING at home, abroade a CONQUEROR;

So Happily, that wee may still Conclude,

Our Sunne did set, and yet no Night ensew'd.

HIS LIFE, &c.

IN Versè to personate what Art hath painted,
Craves not Apelles, but Apollo's skill;
The veins and strains of Mars's learn'd Quill,
Or soms, with sweet Vrania best-acquainted.

Yet, sith ev'n all, whose brows are deckt with bayes,
Seem to neglect Thee; Pan hath ta'n the paines
(With Oaten-pipe, in homely rustick Strains)
To sound, not Arts, but Hearts plain warbled layes.

Is't not a Wonder, worthy admiration,
In this so Sin-full, Sin-fole Age, to see
All reall Vertues in one Man to be?
All, met in one, to have cohabitation?

Thou wast no Lordly great Cosmopolite;
Yet, much renown'd by thy vertuous Fame.
A Saint on Earth (No need of greater Name.)
A true Nathanael, Christian-Israelite.

Thy Wisdoms, in thy Sparing-Speech was shown.
'Tis strange his Words should drop, whose works did
stream:

Yet words & works shone, all, with graces beam:
Thy Piety, sobriety, well known.

Religious, valiant, like good Josua.
Religious, in Thy Selfe and Familie:
Courageous, to withstand Adversitie
And worldly Cares; which most men, most dismay.

No Temporizer; yet, the Court frequenting:
Scorning to sooth, or smooth this Ages crimes:
At War with Vice, in all thy holy Rymes:
Thine Israels-Sins (with Jeremie) lamenting.

No Crasus-rich, nor yet an Irus-poore:
The Golden-Mean, was thy Chiefe Loves delight.
Thy Portion pleas'd thee well; and well it might:
Then Piety, what Riches better? more?

Adorn'd with the Gift of Gods good Spirit:
I mean the Gift of Tongues; French, Spanish, Dutch,

His languages.

Italian, Latin. As thy Selfe, few such:
But, for thy Native-English, of most Merit.

Wherein, like former fluent Cicero
(With Figures, Tropes; Words, Phrases, sweetly rare)
Of Eloquence thou mad'st so little spare,
That Nile (in Thee) may seem to overflow.

Witness Du Bartas (that rare Master-peace
Of Poetry) to past and future Times:
By whose mellifluous, sugred, sacred Rimes,
Thou got'st more fame, then Jason by his Fleece.

His Works.

Of which thy Work (I justly may averre)
The radiant Sun-shine is so fair, so trim,
As other Poets Moon-light much doth dim;
Admired Silver-Tongued Sylvester.

Yea, All thy full-ear'd Harvest-Swathes are such,
As (almost) all thy Brethren high-topt Sheaves
Bend, bow to thine, like Autumn-scattered leaves,
So white thy Wheat is, and the Weight so much.

Nor wrong I them, by this harsh appellation.
Their pleasing Veine was oft too vaine: but, Thine,
Still-pleasant-grave: Here, Morall; There, Divine.
Right Poet Laureat Thou wert of our Nation.

This then, say I (maugre the Spleen infernall
Of Elvish-Swvie) shall promote thy Praise,
And trim thy Temples with ne'er-fading Bayes.
Such heav'nly *Off-spring*s needs must live Eternall.

What should I say? much more then I can say.
A Man thou wert; and yet, then man much more.
Thy Soule resembled, right, an House of Store;
Wherein all Vertues, in Thee, treasur'd lay.

A blest Death a holy Life ensues,
Thy pious End this Truth hath well exprest:
Such as thy Life, such was thy Death; all-blest:
Thy Heav'n-born Soule, her Native-home did chuse.

His Death.

And hadst thou dy'd at Home it had been better ;
It would (at least) have given thee much Content :
But, herein, England's worthy to be shent,
Which to thy Worth did prove so bad a Debter.

Nor minde I this, but then I blush for shame
To think, that though a Cradle, Thee, it gave,
Yet (O unkinde) deny'd thy Corps a Graves ;
Much more a Statue, rear'd to thy Name.

But, Thou wert wise ; who to thy Selfe built'st One
(Such, such an One) as is of endless Date :
A reall, royall-one ; which (spite of Hate)
To Times last time shall make thy Glory known.

Now, though thy step-Dame Country cast thee off ;
(Ah! too ungratefull, most unkinde, to Thee.)
Yet here accept a Mite of Love from Mee,
(Thy meanest Brother) This Mean Epitaph :

HIS EPITAPH.

Here lyes (Death's too-rich Prize) the Corps enterr'd
Of JOSHUA SYLVESTER, DU BARTAS Poet ;
A Man of Arts best Parts, to God, Man, Ceare
In formost Rank of Poets best, prefer'd.

JOHN VIGARS.

The Printer to the Reader.

THe Name of Josuah Sylvester is garland enough to hang before This doore ; a name worthily deare to the present Age, to Posteritie. I doe not therefore goe about to apologise for this Workes, or to commend it ; it shall speake for it selfe, louder then either others friendship, or envie. I onely advertise my Reader, that since the death of the Author (if at least it be safe to say those men are dead, who ever survive in their living monuments)
I have carefully fetcht together all the dispersed Issue of that divine Wit ; as those which are well worthie to live (like Brethren) together under one faire rooffe, that may both challenge time, and out-weare it. I durst not conceale the harmlesse fancies of his inoffensive youth, which himselfe had devoted to Silence and Forgetful-nesse ; it is so much the more glory to that worthy Spirit, that hee who was so happy in those youthfull strains, (some whereof, lately come to hand, and not formerly extant, are in this Edition inserted) would yet turne and confine his pen to none but holy and religious Ditties. Let the present and future times enjoy so profitable and pleasing a work ; and at once honour the Author, and thank the Editor.

ENGLAND'S Apelles (rather OUR APOLLO)
WORLD'S wonder
S Y D N E Y,

That rare more-than-man,
This LOVELY VENUS
First to LIMNE beganne,
With Such a PENCIL
As no PENNE dares follow :
How then should I, in wit & art so shallow,
Attempt the task which yet none other can ?
Far bee the thought, that mine unlearn'd hand
His heav'nly Labour should so much unhallow :
Yet, lest (that Holy-RELIQUE being shrin'd)
In some high-Place, close lockt from common light)
My Countrey-men should bee debarr'd the sight
Of these DIVINE pure Beauties of the Minde ;
Not daring meddle with APOLLES TABLE,
THIS have I muddled, as my MUSE was able.

INDIGNIS.

Hence profane Hands, Factors for Hearts profane :
Hence hissing Atheists, Hellish Misse-Creants :
Hence Buzzard Kites, dashed with Beauties glance :
Hence itching Eares, with Toyes and Tales up-tane :

Hence Green-sick Wits, that relish nought but bane :
Hence dead-live Idiots, drown'd in Ignorance :
Hence wanton Michols, that deride my Dance :
Hence Mimike Apes, vaine Follies Counter-pane :

Hence prying Critiks, carping past your Skill :
Hence dull Concepts, that have no true Discerning :
Hence envious Momes, converting Good to Ill :
Hence all at-once, that lack (or love not) LEARNING :

Hence All un-holy, from the Worlds Birth Feast :
URANIA'S Grace brooks no unworthy Guest.

OPTIMIS.

But (my best Guest) welcom great King of FABRIE :
Welcom fair QUEEN (his vertue's vertuous Love) :
Welcom right ÆGLETS of the ROYAL Eyrie :
Welcom sound Eares, that sacred Tunes approve :

Welcom pure Hands, whose hearts are fixt above :
Welcom dear Soules, that of Art's choice are charie :
Welcom chaste Matrons, whom true zeal doth move :
Welcom good Wits, that gracefull mirth can varie :

Welcom milde Censors, that meane slips can cover :
Welcom quick Spirits, that sound the depth of Art :
Welcom MECÆNAS, and each LEARNING-lover :
Welcom All good : Welcom, with all my Heart :

Sit—downe (I pray) and taste of every Dish :
If ought mis-like You, better Cooke I wish.

Epigram
 JOSUA SYLVESTER.

IF to admire were to commend, my praise
 Might then both Thee, thy Work and Merit raise :
 But, as it is (the Child of Ignorance,
 And utter stranger to all ayre of France,)
 How can I speak of thy great paines, but erre,
 Since they can only judge, that can confer ?
 Behold ! the reverend shade of BARTAS stands
 Before my thought, and (in thy right) commands
 That to the World I publish, for him, This ;
BARTAS doth wish thy English now were His.
 So well in that are his inventions wrought,
 As His will now be the Translation thought,
Thine the Originall ; and France shall boast,
 No more, those mayden glories shee hath lost.

BEN. JOHNSON.

In praise of the Translator.

IF divine BARTAS (from whose blessed Braines
 Such Works of grace, or gracefull workes did stream)
 Were so admir'd for Wit's celestiall Strains
 As made their Vertues Seat, the high'st Extream ;
 Then JOSUAH, the Sun of thy bright praise
 Shall fixed stand in Arts faire Firmament
 Till Dissolution date Times Nights, and Dayes, Sith right thy Lines are made to BARTAS Bent,
 Whose Compass circumscribes (in spacious words)
 The Universall in particulars ;
 And thine the same, in other tearms, affords :
 So, both your Tearms agree in friendly Wars :
 If Thine be onely His, and His be Thine,
 They are (like God) eternall, sith Divine.

JOHN DAVIES, OF HEREFORD.

To Master
 JOSUAH SYLVESTER,
 OF HIS BARTAS
 Metaphrased.

I Dare confesse, Of Muses more then Nine,
 Nor list, nor can I envie none, but thine.
 Shee, drencht alone in Sion's sacred Spring,
 Her Mahers praise hath sweetly chose to sing,
 And reacheth neerest th' Angels notes above ;
 Nor lists to sing or Tales, or Wars, or Love.
 One while I finde her, in her nimble flight,
 Cutting the brassen speares of Heaven bright :
 Thence, straight shee glides, before I be aware,
 Through the three Regions of the liquid Ayre :
 Thence, rushing downe, through Nature's Closet-dore,
 Shee ransacks all her Grandams secret store ;
 And, diving to the darknesses of the Deepe,
 Sees there what Wealth the Waves in Prison keepe :
 And, what shee sees above, below, between,
 Shee shoves and sings to others eares and eyme.
 'Tis true ; thy Muse anothers steps doth presse :
 The more's her paine ; nor is her praise the lesse.
Freedome gives scope, unto the raving thought,
 Which, by restraint, is curb'd. Who wonders ought,
 That feete vnfetterd, walken far, or fast ;
 Which pent with chaines, mote want their wonted haste ?
 Thou follow'st Bartasses diviner streine ;
 And sing'st his numbers in his native veine.
BARTAS was some French Angel, girt with Bayes :
 And thou a BARTAS art, in English Layes.
 Whether is more ? Mee seems (the sooth to say'n)
 One BARTAS speaks in Tongues, in Nations, twain.

JOS. HALL.

TO MY GOOD FRIEND,
M. SYLVESTER,
In honour of this sacred
WORKE.

THus to adventure forth, and re-convoy
The best of treasures from a forrain Coast,
And take that wealth wherein they gloried most,
And make it ours by such a gallant prey,
And that without injustice; doth bewray
The glory of the Worke, that wee may boast
Much to have wonne, and others nothing lost
By taking such a famous prise away,
As thou industrious SYLVESTER hast wrought,
And here enricht vs with th' immortall store
Of others sacred lines; which from them brought,
Comes by thy taking greater then before:
So hast thou lighted from a flame devout,
As great a flame, that never shall goe out.

SAMUEL DANIEL.

A SONNET.

THe glorious Salust, morall, true-divine;
Who (all inspired with a Holy rage)
Makes Heav'n his subject, and the Earth his stage,
The Arts his Actors, and the Triple-Trine:
Who his rich language gilds, and graceth fine:
His Countries honour, wonder of our age;
Whose Worlds blest Birth, and blessed Pupillage,
Gain him a world of fame for every line:
Hath here obtain'd a true Interpreter.
Whom fame, nor gains, but love to Heav'n and us,
Mou'd to un-French his learn'd Labours thus.
Thus loves, thus lives all-lov'd SYLVESTER:
Forward, sweet friend: Heav'n, Nature, Arts, and Men,
All to this taste prefer thine onely Pen.

Encomiasticon.

Oft have I seen sweete fancie-pleasing faces
Consort themselves with swart mis-shapen features,
To grace the more their soule-subduing graces,
By the defect of such deformed creatures;
As Painters garnish with their shadowes sable
The brighter colours in a curious Table:
So, English Bartas, though thy beauties, here
Excell so far the glory of the rest,
That France and England both must hold the[e] deare,
Sith both their glories thou hast here exprest (Shewing the French tongues plenty to be such,
And yet that ours can offer full as much)
Let not thy fairest Heav'n-aspiring Muse
Disdain these humble notes of my affection:
My faulty lines let faithfull love excuse,
Sith my defects shall adde to thy perfection:
For, these rude rimes, thus ragged, base, and poore,
Shall (by their want) evall thy worth the more.

IN COMMENDATION OF

Du Bartas, and his Translator,

Mr. JOSUAH SYLVESTER,

A SONNET.

While nights black wings the dayes bright beauties hide,

And while faire Phoebus dives in western deepe ;

Men (gazing on the heav'nly stages steep)

Commend the Moon, and many Stars beside :

But, when Aurora's windroves open wide,

That Sol's clear rayes those sable clouds may banish

Then suddenly those petty lights doe vanish,

Vailing the glories of their glistring pride :

So, while du Bartas and our Sylvester

(The glorious lights of England, and of France)

Have hid their beames, each gloue-worme durst prefer

His feeble glimpse of glimmering radiance :

But, now these Suns begin to gild the day,

Those twinkling sparks are soon disperst away.

R. H.

IN COMMENDATION

OF THIS

WORTHY WORKE

Foole that I was, I thought in younger times,

That all the Muses their graces sow'n

In Chaucers, Spencers, and sweet Daniels Rimes

(So, good seems best, where better is unknown).

While thus I dream'd, my busie phantasie

Bade mee awake, open mine eyes, and see

How SALUST's English Sun (our SYLVESTER)

Makes Moon and Stars to vail : and how the Scaevus

Of all his Brethren, bowing, doe prefer

His Fruits before their Winter-shaken Leaves :

So much for Matter, and for Manner too,

Hath hee out-gone those that the rest out-goe.

Let Gryll be Gryll : let Envie's vip'rous seed

Gnaw forth the breast which bred and fed the same ;

Rest safe (Sound truth from feare is ever freed,)

Malice may bark, but shall not bite thy Name :

JOSUA, thy Name with BARTAS name shall live.

For, double life you each to other give.

But, Mother Envie, if this Arras, spunne

Of Golden threads, be seen of English eyes,

Why then (alas !) our Cob-webs are undone.

But Shee, more subtle, then religious-wise,

Hatefull, and hated, proud, and ignorant,

Pale, swoln as Toad (though custom'd to vaunt)

Now holds her Peace : but (O !) what Peace hath Shee

With Vertue ? None : Therefore defie her frown.

Gainst greater force growes greater victorie,

As Camomile, the more you tread it down,

The more it springs ; Vertue, despihtfully

Used, doth use the more to fructifie :

And so doe Thou, untill thy Mausole rare

Doe fill this World with wonderment ; and, that

In Venus Form no clumsie fist may dare

To meddle with thy Pencil and thy Plat.

I feare thy life more, till thy goale be run,

Then Wife her Spouse, or Father feares his Son.

R. R.

Malum patienti Lucrum.

AN ACROSTICK

SONNET,

TO HIS FRIEND

MASTER

JOS. SYLVESTER.

J If profit, mist with pleasure, merit praise,
O Or works divine be 'fore profane prefer'd :
S Shall not this heav'nly Work the Workers raise,
U Unto the Clouds on Columns selfy-rear'd ?
A And (though his Earth be low in Earth interr'd)
S Shall not DU BARTAS (Poets Pride and glorie)
I In after Ages bee with wonder heard,
L Lively recording th' UNIVERSALL Storie ?
V Undoubtedly Hee shall : and so shall Thou,
E Ears-charming Echo of his sacred Voyce :
S Sweete SYLVESTER, how happy was thy choyce,
T To taske Thee thus, and thus to quit thee now ?
E End as thou hast begunne ; and then by right
R Rare Muses NON-SUCH, shall thy Worke beight.

R. N. Gent.

TO THE SAME.

H Ad golden Homer, and great Maro kept
In envious silence their admir'd measures,
A thousand Worthies worthy deeds had slept :
They, rest of praise ; and we of learned Pleasures.
But (O !) what rich incomparable Treasures
Had the world wanted, had this modern glory,
Divine DU BARTAS, hid his heavenly ceasures,
Singing the mighty World's immortal storie ?
O then how deeply is our Ile beholding
To Chapman, and to Phaer ! but, yet much more
To thee (deare SYLVESTER) for thus unfolding
These holy wonders, hid from us before.
Those works profound, are yet profane ; but thine,
Grave, learned, deep, delightfull, and divine.

THE FIRST DAY OF THE FIRST WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*GOD'S Aide implor'd: the summe of all propos'd:
World not eternall, nor by Chance compos'd:
But of meeere Nothing God it essence gave:
It had Beginning: and an End shall have:
Curst Atheist quipt: the Heathen Clerkes control'd:
Doom's glorious day: Star-Doctors blaw'd, for bold.
The Matter form'd: Creation of the Light:
Alternate changes of the Day and Night:
The birth of Angels; some for Pride dejected: 10
The rest persist in Grace, and guard th' Elected.*

The Poet imploreth the gracious assistance of the true God of Heaven, Earth,
Aire, and Sea,
that he may happily finish the worke hee takes in hand.

THou glorious Guide of Heav'n's star-glistening motion,
Thou, thou (true Neptune) Tamer of the Ocean,
Thou Earth's dread Shaker (at whose only Word,
Th' Eolian Scouts are quickly still'd and stirr'd)
Lift up my Soule, my drowsie Spirits refine:
With learned Art enrich this Work of mine.
O Father, grant I sweetly warble forth
Unto our seed the WORLD'S renowned BIRTH:
Grant (gratious God) that I record in Verse 20
The rarest Beauties of this UNIVERSE:
And grant, therein Thy power I may discern:
That, teaching others, I my selfe may learne.
*And also grant (great Architect of wonders,
Whose mighty voyce speaks in the midst of Thunders,
Causing the Rocks to rock, and Hills to teare;
Calling the things that Are not, as they Were;
Confounding Mighty things by meanes of Weak;
Teaching dumb Infants thy dread Praise to speak;
Inspiring Wisdome into those that want,* 30
And giving Knowledge to the Ignorant,)
*Grant me, good Lord (as thou hast giv'n me Heart
To undertake so excellent a Part)
Grant me such Judgement, Grace, and Eloquence,
So correspondent to that Excellence,*

The Translator
knowing and acknowledging his own insufficiency for so excellent a labour, craveth
also the aid of the
All-sufficient God.

That in some measure, I may seem t'inherit (Elisha-like) my deare Elias spirit.

CLEAR FIRE for ever hath not Aire imbrac'd,
Nor Aire for aye environ'd Waters vaste,
Nor Waters alwaies wrap'd the Earth therein;
But all this All did once of nought begin.
Once All was made; not by the hand of Fortune
(As fond Democritus did yerst importune)
With jarring Concords making Motes to meet,
Invisible, immortall, infinite.

The World was not from everlasting: 40

Th' immutable divine Decree, which shall Cause the World's End, caus'd his Original:
Neither in Time, nor yet before the same,
But in the instant when Time first became.
I mean a Time confus'd: for, the course
Of yeeres, of months, of weeks, of dayes, of hours,
Of Ages, Times, and Seasons is confin'd
By th' ordred Dance unto the Stars assign'd.

Neither made by chance; But created together with Time by the almighty wisdome
of God. 50

Before all Time, all Matter, Form, and Place,
God all in all, and all in God it was:
Immutable, immortall, infinite,
Incomprehensible, all spirit, all light,
All Majestie, all-self-Omnipotent,
Invisible, impassive, excellent,
Pure, wise, just, good, God reign'd alone (at rest) 60
Himselfe alone, self's Palace, Host, and Guest.

God was before
the world was.

Thou scoffing Atheist, that inquirest what
Th' Almighty did before he fram'd that:
What weighty work his minde was busied on Eternally before this World begun,
(Sith so deep Wisdome and Omnipotence,
Nought worse beseems, then sloth and negligence).
Know (bold Blaspbemer) that, before, he built
A Hell to punish the presumptuous guilt
Of those ungodly, whose proud sense dares cite 70
And censure too his Wisdome infinite.

He confuteth the Atheists, questioning what God did before he created the World.

Can Carpenters, Weavers and Potters passe,
And live without their severall works a space?

And could not then th' Almighty All-Creator,
Th' All-prudent, BEE, without this frail Theater?
Shall valiant Scipio Thus himselfe esteem,
Never less sole then when he sole doth seem?
And could not GOD (O Heav'n's! what frantick folly!)
Subsist alone, but sink in Melancholy?

Shall the Pryénian Princely Sage averr, 80
That all his goods he doth about him bear?
And should the LORD, whose Wealth exceeds all measure,

Should he be poor without this worldly Treasure?
God never seeks out of himself for ought;
He begs of none, he buyes or borrows nought;
But aye, from th' Ocean of his liberall Bounty,
He powreth out a thousand Seas of Plenty.

Ere Eurus blew, ere Moon did wax or wane,
Ere Sea had fish, ere Earth had grasse or grain,
God was not void of sacred exercise;
He did admire his Glorie's Mysteries: 90
His Power, his Justice, and his Providence,
His bounteous Grace, and great Beneficence
Were th' holy Object of his heav'nly thought,
Upon the which, eternally it wrought.
It may be also, that he meditated

The World's Idea, ere it was created:
Alone he liv'd not; for his Son and Spirit
Were with him aye, equall in Might and Merit.
For, sans Beginning, Seed, and Mother tender, 100
This great World's Father he did first ingender
(To wit) His Son, Wisdome, and Word eternall, Equall in Essence to th' All-One Paternall.

Out of these Two, their common Power proceeded,
Their Spirit, their Love: in Essence undivided;
Only distinct in Persons, whose Divinitie,
All Three in One, makes One eternall Trinitie.

Soft, soft, my Muse, lanch not into the Deep,
Sound not this Sea: see that aloof thou keep
From this Charybdis and Capharean Rock, 110
Where many a Ship hath suff' red wofull wrack,
While they have fondly vent' red forth too-far,
Following frail Reason for their only Star.

Who on this Gulf would safely venture fain,
Must not too-boldly hale into the Main,
But 'longst the shore with sails of Faith must coast,
Their Star the Bible, Steer-man th' holy Ghost.

How many fine Wits have the World abus'd,
Because this Ghost they for their Guide refus'd;
And scorning of the loyall Virgin's Thred, 120
Have them and others in this Maze mis-led?

In sacred sheets of either Testament
'Tis hard to find an higher Argument,
More deep to sound, more busie to discusse,
More usefull, known; unknown, more dangerous.
So bright a Sun dazels my tender sight,
So deep discourse my Sense confoundeth quite:
My Reason's edge is dull'd in this Dispute,
And in my Mouth my fainting words be mute.

This TRINITIE (which rather I adore 130
In humblenesse, then busily explore)

In th' infinite of Nothing, builded all
This artificiall, great, rich, glorious Ball;
Wherein appears ingrav'n on ev'ry part,
The Bullder's beauty, greatnesse, wealth and art;
Art, beauty, wealth, and greatnesse, that confounds
The hellish barking of blaspheming Hounds.

Climb they that list the battlements of Heav'n;
And, with the Whirl-wind of Ambition driv'n
Beyond the World's wals, let those Eagles flie, 140
And gaze upon the Sun of Majestie:
Let other-some (whose fainting Spirits do droop)
Down to the ground their meditations stoop,
And so contemplate on these Workmanships,
That th' Author's praise they in Themselves eclipse.

My heedfull Muse, trained in true Religion,
Divinely-humane, keeps the middle Region:
Lest, if she should too-high a pitch presume,
Heav'n's glowing flame should melt her waxen plume;
Or, if too-low (near Earth or Sea) she flag, 150
Loaden with Mists her moistned wing should lag.
It glads me much, to view this Frame; wherein
(As in a Glasse) God's glorious face is seen:
I love to look on God; but, in this Robe
Of his great Works, this Universall Globe.
For, if the Sun's bright beams do blear the sight
Of such as fix'dly gaze against his light;
Who can behold above th' Emperiall Skies,
The lightning splendor of God's glorious Eyes?
O, who (alas) can finde the Lord, without 160
His Works, which bear his Image round about!

God, of himself, incapable to sense,
In's Works, reveals him t' our intelligence:
Therein, our fingers feel, our nostrils smell,
Our palates taste his vertues that excell:
He shews him to our eyes, talks to our ears,
In th' ord' red motions of the spangled Spheres.

The World's a School, where (in a general story)
God alwaies reads dumb Lectures of his Glory:
A paire of Staires, whereby our mounting Soule 170
Ascends by steps above the arch'd Pole:
A sumptuous Hall, where God (on every side)
His wealthy Shop of wonders opens wide:
A Bridge, whereby we may passe-o're (at ease),
Of sacred Secrets the broad boundlesse Seas.

The World's a Cloud, through which there shineth
clear,

Not fair Latona's quiv' red Darling deer;
But the true Phaebus, whose bright countenance
Through thickest vall of darkest night doth glance.

The World's a Stage, where God's Omnipotence, 180
His Justice, Knowledge, Love, and Providence
Do act their Parts; contending (in their kindes)
Above the Heav'ns, to ravish dullest minds.

The World's a Book in Folio, printed all
With God's great Works in letters Capitall:
Each Creature is a Page; and each Effect
A fair Character, void of all defect.

But, as young Trewants, toying in the Schools,
In stead of learning, learn to play the fools:

nothing the World's goodly

Leaving curious

how to contem-

God the Father,

Ghost created of

We gaze but on the Babies, and the cover, 190
 The gawdy Flowrs, and Edges gilded-over ;
 And never farther for our Lesson look
 Within the Volume of this various Book ;
 Where learn'd Nature rudest ones instructs,
 That, by His wisdom, God the World conducts.

Although the world discover sufficiently even to the most rude the Eternity and power of God : Yet onely the true Christians doe rightly conceive it.

To read This Book, we need not understand
 Each stranger's gibbrish ; neither take in hand
Turk's Characters, nor Hebrew points to seek,
Nyle's Hieroglyphikes, nor the Notes of Greek.

The wandring Tartars, the Antarticks wilde, 200
 Th' Alarbies fierce, the Scythians fell ; the Childe
 Scarce sev'n years old, the bearded aged eye,
 Though voyd of Art, read here indifferently.

But he that wears the spectacles of Faith,
 Sees through the Sphears, above the highest height :
 He comprehends th' Arch-mover of all Motions,
 And reads (though running) all these needfull notions.

Therefore by Faith's pure rayes illumin'd,
 These sacred Pandects I desire to read,
 And (God the better to behold) behold 210
 Th' Orb from his Birth, in 's Ages manifold.

God needing no Idea, nor premeditation, nor patterne of his worke, of nothing made all the World.

Th' admir'd Author's Fancie fix'd not
 On some fantastick fore-conceited Plot :
 Much less did he an elder World erect,
 By form whereof, he might his Frame erect :

As th' Architect that buildeth for a Prince
 Some stately Palace, yer he doe commence
 His Royall Work, makes choise of such a Court
 Where cost and cunning equally consort :

And if he finde not in one Edifice 220
 All answerable to his quaint device ;
 From this faire Palace then he takes his Front,
 From that his Finials ; here he learns to mount
 His curious Stairs, there finds he Frise and Cornish,

And other Places other Peeeces furnish ;
 And so, selecting every where the best,
 Doth thirty Models in one House digest.

Nothing, but Nothing had the Lord Almighty,
 Whereof, wherewith, whereby, to build this City :
 Yet, when he, Heav'ns, Aire, Earth, and Sea, did 230 frame,

A fit Simile to that purpose.

He sought not far, he sweat not for the same :
 As Sol, without descending from the Sky,
 Crowns the fair Spring in painted bravery ;
 Withouten travaile causeth th' Earth to bear,
 And (far off) makes the World young every year.

The Power and Will, th' affection and effect,
 The Work and Project of this Architect,
 March all at once : all to his pleasure ranges,
 Who Alwasies One, his purpose never changes.

Of nothing, God created the matter, whereunto afterward he gave the forme and figure which now we behold in the creatures.

Yet did this Nothing not at once receive 240
 Matter and Forme : For, as we may perceive
 That He, who means to build a warlike Fleet,
 Makes first provision of all matter meet,

(As Timber, Iron, Canvase, Cord, and Pitch)
 And when all 's ready ; then appointeth, which
 Which peece for planks, which plank shall line the waste,
 The Poup and Prow, which Fir shall make a Mast ;

As Art and Use directeth, heedfully,
 His hand, his tool, his judgement, and his eye :
 So God, before This Frame he fashion'd, 250
 I wote not what great Word he utter'd

From 's sacred mouth ; which summon'd in a Masse
 Whats'ever now the Heav'ns wide arms embrace.
 But, where the Ship-wright, for his gainefull trade,
 Findes all his stuff to 's hand already made ;
 Th' Almighty makes his, all and every part,
 Without the help of others' Wit or Art.

That first World (yet) was a most formless Form,
 A confus'd heap, a Chaos most deform, 260
 A Gulf of Gulfs, a body ill compact,

What that new created Chaos was, before God gave it form, figure, place, and situation.

An ugly medley, where all difference lackt :
 Where th' Elements lay jumbled all together,
 Where hot and cold were jarring each with either ;
 The blunt with sharp, the dank against the drie ;

The hard with soft, the base against the high ;
 Bitter with sweet : and while this brawl did last,
 The Earth in Heav'n, the Heav'n in Earth was plac't :
 Earth, Aire, and Fire, were with the Water mixt ;

Water, Earth, Aire, within the Fire were fixt ;
 Fire, Water, Earth, did in the Aire abide ; 270
 Aire, Fire, and Water in the Earth did hide.

For yet th' immortal, mighty Thunder-darter,
 The Lord high-Marshal, unto each his quarter
 Had not assign'd : the Celestiall Arks
 Were not yet spangled with their fiery sparks :

As yet no flowrs with odours Earth reviv'd,
 No scaly shoals yet in the Waters divid :
 Nor any Birds, with warbling harmony,
 Were born as yet through the transparent Sky.

All, All was void of beauty, rule, and light ; 280
 All without fashion, soule, and motion, quite.
 Fire was no fire, the Water was no water,
 Aire was no aire, the Earth no earthly matter.

Genes. 1. 2.

Or if one could, in such a World, spy forth
 The Fire, the Aire, the Water, and the Earth ;
 Th' Earth was not firme, the Fier was not hot,
 Th' Aire was not light, the Water cool'd not.

Briefly, suppose an Earth, poor, naked, vaine,
 All void of verdure, without Hill or Plaine,
 A Heav'n un-handg, un-turning, un-transparent, 290
 Un-garnish'd, un-gilt with Stars apparent ;
 So maiest thou gness what Heav'n and Earth was that,

Where, in confusion, reign'd such debate :
 A Heav'n and Earth for my base stile most fit,
 Not as they were, but as they were not, yet.

This was not then the World : 'twas but the Matter,
 The Nurcery whence it should issue after ;
 Or rather, the Embryon, that within a Week
 Was to be born : for that huge lump was like 300
 The shape-less burthen in the Mother's womb,

The Chaos how to be considered.

A Simile.

Which yet in time doth into fashion come :
 Eyes, cares, and nose, mouth, fingers, hands, and feet,
 And every member in proportion meet ;
 Round, large, and long, there of it selfe it thrives,
 And (Little-World) into the World arrives.

Of the secret power of God in quickning the matter whereof the World was made.

But that becomes (by Nature's set direction)
From foul and dead, to beauty, life, perfection.
But this dull heap of undigested stuff
Had doubtless never come to shape or proof,
Had not th' Almighty with his quickning breath 310
Blow'n life and spirit into this Lump of death.

The dreadful Darknesse of the Memphytists,
The sad black horror of Cimmerian Mists,
The sable fumes of Hell's infernall vault
(Or if ought darker in the World be thought)
Muffled the face of that profound Abyss,
Full of Disorder and fell Mutinies :
So that (in fine) this furious debate,
Even in the birth, this Ball had ruinate, 320
Save that the Lord into the Pile did pour
Some secret Mastick of his sacred Power,
To glew together, and to govern faire
The Heav'n, and Earth, the Ocean, and the Aire ;
Who joyntly justling, in their rude Disorder,
The new-borne Nature went about to murder.

The Spirit of God, by an inconceivable meane, maintained, and (as it were brooding) warmed the shape-lesse Masse. Gen. 1.

As a good wit, that, on th' immortal Shrine
Of Memory, ingraves a Work Divine ;
Abroad, a-bed, at boord, for ever uses
To minde his Theam, and on his Book still muses :
So did God's Spirit delight itself a space 330
To move itself upon the floating Masse :
No other care th' Almighty's mind possest
(If care can enter in his sacred brest.)
Or, as a Hen that fain would hatch a Brood
(Some of her own, some of adoptive bloud)
Sits close thereon, and with her lively heat,
Of yellow-white bals, doth live birds beget :
Even in such sort soe med the Spirit Eternal
To brood upon this Gulf ; with care paternall
Quickning the parts, inspiring power in each, 340
From so foule Lees, so faire a World to fetch.
For 't's nought but all, in 't selfe including All ;
An un-beginning, midlesse, endlessse Ball.
'Tis nothing but a world, whose superfluous
Leaves nothing out, but what meer nothing is.

That there is but one World : confuting the Error of Leucippus and his Disciples, by two reasons.

Now, though the great Duke, that (in dreadful aw)
Upon Mount Horeb learn'd th' eternall Law,
Had not assur'd us that God's sacred Power
In six Daies built this Universall Bower ;
Reason it selfe doth over-throw the grounds 350
Of those new Worlds that fond Leucippus founds :
Sith, if kinde Nature many Worlds could () clip, Still th' upper World's water and earth would slip

() Embrace.

Into the lower ; and so in conclusion,
All would returne into the Old Confusion.
Besides, we must imagine empty distance
Between these Worlds, wherein, without resistance
Their wheels may whirl, not hindred in their courses,
By th' inter-justling of each other's forces :
But, all things are so fast together fixt 360
With so firme bonds, that there's no void betwixt.
Thence comes it, that a Cask peirc't to be spent,
Though full, yet runs not till we give it vent.

Thence is 't that Bellowes, while the snout is stopt,
So hardly heave, and hardly can be op't.
Thence is 't that water doth not freeze in Winter,
Stopt close in vessels where no aire may enter.
Thence is 't that Garden-pots, the mouth kept close,
Let fall no liquor at their sive-like nose.
And thence it is, that the pure silver source, 370
In leaden Pipes running a captive course,
Contrary to it's nature, spouteth high :
To all, so odious is Vacuitie.

God then, not only fram'd Nature one,
But also set it limitation
Of Forme and Time : exempting ever solely
From quantitie his own self's Essence holy.
How can we call the Heavn's unmeasur'd,
Sith measur'd Time their Course hath measur'd ?
How can we count this Universe immortall, 380
Sith many-wayes the parts prove hourelly mortall ?
Sith his Commencement proves his Consummation,
And all things aye decline to alteration ?
Let bold Greek Sages faine the Firmament
To be compos'd of a fift Element :
Let them deny, in their profane profoundnesse,
End and beginning to th' Heavn's rowling roundnesse :
And let them argue, that Death's lawes alone
Reach but the Bodies unto Cynthia's Throne :
The sandy grounds of their Sophistick brawling 390
Are all too-weak to keep the World from falling.

Confutation of another Error of such as make Nature and the Heavens infinite.

One day the Rocks from top to toe shall quiver,
The Mountaines melt and all in sunder shiver :
The Heavn's shall rent for feare ; the lowly Fields,
Puft up, shall swell to huge and mightie Hills :
Rivers shall dry : or if in any Flood
Rest any liquor, it shall all be bloud :
The Sea shall all be fire, and on the shoar
The thirsty Whales with horrid noyse shall roar :
The Sun shall seize the black Coach of the Moon, 400
And make it midnight when it should be noon :
With rusty Mask the Heavn's shall hide their face,
The Stars shall fall, and all away shall passe :
Disorder, Dread, Horror, and Death shall come,
Noise, Storms, and Darknesse shall usurp the roome.
And then the Chief-Justice, venging Wrath
(Which here already often threatned hath)
Shall make a Bon-fire of this mighty Ball,
As once he made it a vast Ocean all.

A lively description of the World.

Alas ! how faithlesse and how modest-lesse 410
Are you, that (in your Ephemerides)
Mark th' yeer, the month, and day, which evermore
'Gainst years, months, daies, shall dæ-up Saturn's dore !

Against judicial Astrologers, that presume to point the very time thereof.

(At thought whereof, even now, my heart doth ake,
My flesh doth faint, my very soule doth shake)
You have mis-cast in your Arithmetick,
Mis-laid your Counters, gropingly ye seek
In night's black darknesse for the secret things
Seal'd in the Casket of the King of kings.
'Tis he, that keeps th' eternall Clock of Time, 420
And holds the weights of that appointed Chime :

He in his hand the sacred book doth bear
 Of that close-clasped final Calendar ;
 Where, in Red letters (now with us frequented)
 The certain Date of that Great Day is printed ;
 That dreadful Day, which doth so swiftly post,
 That 't will be seen, before foreseen of most.
 Then, then (good Lord) shall thy dear Son descend
 (Though yet he seem in feeble flesh ypend)
 In complete Glory, from the glistening Skie : 430
 Millions of Angels shall about him file :
Mercie and Justice, marching cheek by joule,
 Shall his Divine Triumphans Chariot roule ;
 Whose wheels shall shine with Lightning round about,
 And beames of Glory each-where blazing out.
 Those that were loaden with proud marble tombs,
 Those that were swallow'd in wild Monsters' wombs,
 Those that the Sea hath swill'd, those that the flashes
 Of ruddy Flames have burn'd all to ashes,
 Awak'd all, shall rise, and all rewest 440
 The flesh and bones that they at first possess.
 All shall appear, and heare before the Throne
 Of God (the Judge without exception)
 The final Sentence (sounding Joy and terror)
 Of ever-lasting Happines or horror.
 Some shall his Justice, some his Mercy taste ;
 Some call'd to joy, some into torment cast,
 When from the Goats he shall his Sheepe discever ;
 These Blest in Heav'n, those Curs'd in Hell for ever.
 O thou that once (scorn'd as the vilest drudge) 450
 Didst bear the doom of an Italian Judge,
 Daign (decrest Lord) when the last Trump shall summon,
 To this Grand Sessions, all the world in common ;
 Daign in that Day to undertake my matter :
 And, as my Judge, so be my Mediator.

Th' eternal Spring of Power and Providence,
 In Forming of this All-circumference,
 Did not unlike the Bear, which bringeth-forth
 In th' end of thirty dayes a shapelesse birth ;
 But after, licking, it in shape she drawes, 460
 And by degrees she fashions out the pawes,
 The head, and neck, and finally doth bring
 To a perfect Beast that first deform'd thing.
 For when his Word in the vast Voyd had brought
 A confus'd heap of Wet-dry-cold-and-hot,
 In time the high World from the low bee parted,
 And by itselfe, hot unto hot he sorted ;
 Hard unto hard, cold unto cold he sent ;
 Moist unto moist, as was expedient.
 And so in Six dayes form'd, ingeniously, 470
 All things contain'd in th' UNIVERSITIE.

Not but he could have, in a moment, made
 This flowry Mansion where Mankind doth trade ;
Spred heav'n's blue curtens and those lamps have burnisht ;
 Earth, aire, and sea ; with beasts, birds, fish, have furnisht ;
 But, working with such Art so many dayes,
 A sumptuous Palace for Mankinde to raise,
 Yer man was made yet ; he declares to us,
 How kinde, how careful, and how gracious,

He would be to us being made, to whom 480
 By thousand promises of things to-come
 (Under the Broad Seal of his deere Soa's blood)
 He hath assur'd all Riches, Grace, and Good.
 By his Example he doth also shew-us,
 We should not heedless-hastily bestow us
 In any Work, but patiently proceed
 With oft re-vises, Making sober speed
 In dearest business, and observe by proof,
 That, What is well done, is done soon enough.

O Father of the Light ! of Wisdom fountain ; 490
 Out of the Bulk of that confus'd Mountain
 What should (what could) issue, before the Light ?
 Without which, Beauty were no beauty hight.
 In vain Timanthes had his Cyclop drawn,
 In vain Parrhasius counterfeit'd Lawn,
 In vain Apelles Venus had begun,
Zeusis Penelope ; if that the Sun,
 To make them seen, had never shewn his splendor :
 In vain, in vain, had been (those Works of Wonder)
 Th' Ephesian Temple, and high Pharian Tower, 500
 And Carian Tomb (Trophies of wealth and power)
 In vain had they been builded every one,
 By Scopas, Sostrates, and Cheriphon ;
 Had all been wrapt-up from all humane sight,
 In th' obscure Mantle of eternall Night.

What one thing more doth the good Architect
 In Princely Works (more specially) respect,
 Then lightsommes ? to th' end the World's bright Eye,
 Careering dally once about the Sky,
 May shine therein ; and that in every part 510
 It may seem pompous both for Cost and Art.

Whether God's spirit moving upon the Ball
 Of bubbling Waters (which yet covered All)
 Thence fore'd the Fire (as when amid the Sky
Auster and Boreas justing furiously
 Under hot Cancer, make two clouds to clash), Whence th' aire at midnight flames with lightning flash :

Whether, when God the mingled Lump dispackt,
 From Fiery Element did Light extract :
 Whether about the vast confus'd Crowd 520
 For twice six-houres he spread a shining Cloud,
 Which after he re-darkned, that in time
 The Night as long might wrap-up either Clime :
 Whether that God made, then, those goodly beams
 Which gild the World, but not as now it seems :
 Or whether else some other Lamp he kindled
 Upon the Heap (yet all with Waters blinded)
 Which flying round about, gave light in order
 To th' unplac'd Climates of that deep disorder ;
 As now the Sun, circling about the Ball 530
 (The Light's bright Chariot) doth inlighten All.
 No sooner said he, Be there light, but lo
 The form-less Lump to perfect Form 'gan grow,
 And, all illustred with Light's radiant shine,
 Doft mourning weeds, and deckt it passing fine.

All-hail pure Lamp, bright, sacred and excellling ;
 Sorrow and Care, Darknes, and Dread repelling :

How men should imitate God in his works.

The first creature, extracted from the Chaos, was Light.

Sundry opinions concerning the matter, and creation of Light.

Gen. 1. 3.

Of the excellent use and commoditie of Light.

Having spoken of the Creation of the Matter, he sheweth how and what Forme God gave unto it, creating in six Dayes his admirable works.

Wherefore God employed six Dayes in creating the World.

Thou World's great Taper, Wicked men's just Terror,
 Mother of Truth, true Beautie's only Mirror,
 God's eldest Daughter : O ! how thou art full 540
 Of grace and goodnes ! O ! how beautifull !
 Sith thy great Parent's all-discerning Eye
 Doth judge thee so : and sith his Majestie
 (Thy glorious Maker) in his sacred layes
 Can doe noe lesse than sing thy modest praise.

Why God ordain'd the Night and day alternately to succeed each other.

But yet, because all Pleasures wax unpleasant,
 If without pause we still possess them, present ;
 And none can right discern the sweets of Peace,
 That have not felt War's irkesom bitterness ;
 And Swans seem whiter if swart Crows be by 550
 (For, Contraries each other best descry.)
 Th' All's Architect, alternately decreed
 That night the day, the day should night succeed.

The comoditie that the Night
 bringeth us.

The Night, to temper daie's exceeding drought,
 Moistens our Aire, and makes our Earth to sprout.
 The Night is she that all our travailes easeth,
 Buries our cares, and all our griefes appeaseth.
 The Night is she, that (with her sable wing,
 In gloomy Darkness hushing every thing) 560
 Through all the World dumb silence doth distill,
 And wearied bones with quiet sleep doth fill.

Sweet Night, without Thee, without Thee (alas !)
 Our life were loathsome ; even a Hell to passe :
 For, outward paines and inward passion still,
 With thousand Deaths, would soule and body thrill.
 O Night, thou pullest the proud Mask away
 Wherewith vaine Actors in this World's great Play,
 By Day disguise-them. For, no difference
 Night makes between the Peasant and the Prince,
 The poore and rich, the Prisoner and the Judge, 570
 The foule and faire, the Master and the Drudge,
 The foole and wise, Barbarians and the Greek :
 For, Night's black Mantle covers all alike.

He that, condemn'd for some notorious vice,
 Seeks in the Mines the baits of Avarice ;
 Or, swelting at the Furnace, fineth bright
 Our soule's dire sulphur ; resteth yet at night.
 He that, still stooping, toghes against the tide
 His laden barge alongst a River's side,
 And filling shoares with shouts, doth melt him 580 quite ;

Upon his pallet resteth yet at Night.
 He, that in Sommer, in extreemest heat
 Scorched all day in his owne scalding sweat,
 Shaves with keen Sythe, the glory and delight
 Of motly Medowes ; resteth yet at Night,
 And in the arms of his deere Pheer forgoes
 All former troubles and all former woes.
 Onely the learned Sisters' sacred Minions,
 While silent Night under her sable pinions
 Folds all the world, with pain-lesse paine they tread 590
 A sacred path that to the Heav'ns doth lead ;
 And higher than the Heav'ns their Readers raise
 Upon the wings of their immortal Layes.

EVEN NOW I listned for the Clock to chime
 Dayes latest hower ; that for a little time,

Before he conclude the first Day, he treateth of Angels.

The Night might ease My Labours : but I see
 As yet Aurora hath scarce smil'd on me ;
 My Work still growes : for, now before mine eyes
 Heav'n's glorious hoast in nimble squadrons flies.
 Whether, This-Day, God made you, Angels bright,

The time of their Creation not certainly resolved.

Under the name of Heav'n, or of the light :
 Whether you were, after, in th' instant borne
 With those bright spangles that the heav'ns adorn :
 Or, whether you derive your high Descent
 Long time before the World and Firmament
 (For, I will stilly argue to and fro
 In nice Opinions, whether so, or so ;
 Especially, where curious search, perchance,
 Is not so safe as humble ignorance ;)
 I am resolv'd that once th' Omnipotent 610
 Created you immortal, innocent,
 Good, faire, and free ; in briefe, of Essence, such
 As from his owne differ'd not very much.

But even as those, whom Princes' favours oft
 Above the rest have rais'd and set-aloft,
 Are oft the first that (without right or reason)
 Attempt Rebellion, and doe practise Treason ;
 And so, at length, are justly tumbled down
 Beneath the foot, that raught above the Crown :
 Even so some Legions of those lofty Spirits
 (Envyng the glory of their Maker's merits) 620
 Conspir'd together, strove against the streame,
 T' usurpe his Scepter and his Diademe.
 But He, whose hands doe never Lightnings lack Proud sacrilegious Mutiners to wrack,
 Hurl'd them in th' Aire, or in some lower Cell :

Some of them are fallen, revolting from God : and are cast into Hell, therefore called Evil
 Angels, Wicked
 Spirits and Devils.

For, where God is not, every where is Hell.
 This curs'd Crew, with Pride and Fury fraught,
 Of us, at least, have this advantage got,
 That by experience they can truly tell 630
 How far it is from highest Heav'n to Hell :
 For, by a proud leap they have ta'en the measure,
 When head-long thence they tumbled in displeasure.

These fiends are so far-off from bettring them
 By this hard Judgement, that still more extreme,
 The more their plague, the more their pride increases,
 The more their rage : as Lizards cut in peeces,
 Threat with more malice, tho' with lesser might,
 And even in dying shew their living spight.
 For, ever since, against the King of Heav'n
 Th' Apostate Prince of Darkeness still hath striv'n,
 Striv'n to deprave his Deeds, t' interr their story,
 T' undo his Church, to under-mine his Glory ;
 To reave this world's great Body, Ship, and State,
 Of Head, of Master, and of Magistrate.

630

The insolent and audacious attempts of Satan and his Fellowes against God and his Church.

But finding still the Majestie divine
 Too strongly fenc'd for him to under-mine ;
 His Ladders, Canons, and his Engines, all
 Force-less to batter the Celestiall wall ;
 Too weak to hurt the head, he hacks the members : 650
 The Tree too hard, the branches he dismembers.

The Fowlers, Fishers, and the Forresters,
 Set not so many toyls, and baits, and snares,

To take the Fowle, the Fish, the savage Beasts,
In Woods, and Floods, and fearfull Wilderness :
As this false Spirit sets Engines to beguile
The cunningest, that practise nought but wile.

The divers baits of the Divell to entrap mankinde.

With wanton glance of Beautie's burning eye
He snares hot Youth in sensuality.
With Gold's bright lustre doth he Age iustice 660
To Idolize detested Avarice.

With grace of Princes, with their pomp, and State,
Ambitious Spirits he doth intoxicate.
With curious Skill-pride, and vaine dreames, hee witches

Those that contemn Pleasure, and State, and Riches.
Yea Faith itselfe, and Zeale, be sometimes Angles,
Wherewith this juggler heav'n-bent souls intangles :
Much like the Greene Worm, that in spring devours
The buds and leaves of choicest Fruits and Flowers :
Turning their sweetest sap and fragrant verdure 670
To deadly poyson, and detested ordure.

Their Oracles.

Who but (alas !) would have bin gull'd yer-whiles
With night's black Monark's most malicious wiles?
To hear stones speak, to see strange wooden Miracles,
And golden gods to utter wondrous Oracles?
To see him play the Prophet, and inspire
So many Sybils with a sacred fire?

1 Sam. 28. 14, 17

To raise dead Samsuel from his silent Tombe,
To tell his King Calamities to-come?
T' inflame the Flamme of Iove Ammon so 680
With Heathen-holy fury-fits to know
Future events, and sometimes truely tell
The blinded World what afterwards befell?

To counterfeit the wondrous Works of God ;
His Rod turne Serpent, and his Serpent Rod?
To change the pure streams of th' Egyptian Flood
From clearest water into crimson blood?

To rain-down frogs, and Grass-hoppers to bring
In the bed-chambers of the stubborne King?
For, as he is a spirit, unseen he sees 690

The plots of Princes, and their policies ;
Unfelt, he feels the depth of their desires ;
Who harbours vengeance, and whose heart aspires :
And, as us'd daily unto such effects,
Such feats and fashions, judges of th' effects.

Besides, to circumvent the quickest sighted,
To blind the eyes even of the clearest sighted ;
And to enwrap the wisest in his snares,
He oft foretels what he himselfe prepares.

For, if a Wise-man (though Man's dayes be don 700
As soon almost as they be here begun ;
And his dull Flesh be of too slow a kinde
T' ensue the nimble Motions of his minde)

By th' onely power of Plants and Minerals
Can work a thousand super-naturals :

Who but will think, much more these Spirits can Work strange effects, exceeding sense of Man?
Sith, being immortal, long experience brings
Them certain knowledge of th' effects of things ;
And, free from bodie's clog, with less impeach, 710
And lighter speed, their bold Designs they reach.

Their false
Miracles.
Exod. 7. 11. 22.
and 8. 7.

Their wiles.

Wherefore their effects are so strange and wonderfull.

Not that they have the bridle on their neck,
To run at random without curb or check,
T' abuse the Earth, and all the World to blinde,
And tyrannize o're body and o're minde.

God restraines them at his pleasure.

God holds them chain'd in Fetters of his Power ;
That, without leave, one minute of an houre
They cannot range. It was by his permission,
The Lying Spirit train'd Achab to perdition ;

1 Kin. 22. 35.

Making him march against that Foe with force, 720
Which should his body from his soule divorce.
Arm'd with God's sacred Pass-port, he did try
Just humble Iob's renowned Constance :

Job 1. 25, &c.

He reaves him all his Cattell, many wayes,
By Fire and Foes : his faithfull Servants slayes :
To loss of goods he adds his Children's loss,
And heaps upon him bitter cross on cross.

For th' onely Lord, sometimes to make a tryall
Of firmest Faith ; sometimes with Error's viol
To drench the Soules that Errors sole delight,
Let loose these Furies : who with fell despite Drive still the same Nail, and pursue (incensed)
Their damn'd drifts, in Adam first commenced.

Why the Lord
sometimes lets loose those wicked Spirits.

730

But as these Rebels (maugre all that will)
T' assist the Good, be forc'd t' assault the Ill :
Th' unspotted Spirits that never did intend
To mount too high, nor yet too low descend,
With willing speed they every moment go

Of the good
Angels serving to the glory of God,
and good of his Church, both in generall and particular.

Whither the breath of divine grace doth blow :
Their aimes had never other limitation 740

Then God's owne glory, and his Saints' salvation.
Law-less Desire ne'er enters in their breast,
Th' Almighty's Face is their Ambrosiall Feast :

Repentant tears of strayed Lambs returning,
Their Nectar sweet : their Murick, Sinners Mourning.
Ambitious Man's greedy Desire doth gape
Scepter on Scepter, Crown on Crown to clap :

These never thirst for greater Dignities ;
Travail's their ease, their bliss in service lies.
For, God no sooner hath his pleasure spoken, 750
Or bow'd his head, or given some other token,
Or (almost) thought on an Exploit, wherein
The Ministry of Angels shall be seen,
But these quick Postes, with ready expedition,
Fly to accomplish their divine Commission.

One followes Agar in her pilgrimage,
And with sweet comforts doth her cares asswage.

Gen. 21. 17. 18.

Another guideth Isaac's mighty Hoasts ;
Another, Iacob on th' Idumean Coasts.
Another (skill'd in Physick) to the Light
Restores old faithfull Tobie's falling sight.

Exod. 23. 23.
and 33. 2.

760

In Nasareth, another rapt with joy,
Tels that a Virgin shall bring-forth a Boy ;
That Mary shall at-once be Maid-and-Mother,
And bear at-once her Son, Sire, Spouse, and Brother :

Yes, that Her happy fruitfull womb shall hold
Him, that in him doth all the World infold.
Some in the Desert tander consolations,
While JESUS strove with Sathan's strong Temptations. Mat. 4. 11.

Luko 22. 43.	One, in the Garden, in his Agonies, Cheers-up his feares in that great enterprise, To take that bloody Cup, that bitter Chalice, And drink it off, to purge our sinfull Malice.	770	For, while their Watch within their Corps de Garde About the fire securely snorted hard, From Heav'n th' Almighty looking sternly down	810
Mat. 28. 5.	Another certifies his Resurrection Unto the Women, whose faith's imperfection Suppos'd his cold limbs in the Grave were bound, Untill th' Archangel's lofty Trump should sound. Another, past all hope, doth pre-avert		(Glancing his Friends a smile, his Foes a frown) A sacred Fencer 'gainst th' Assyrians sent, Whose two-hand Sword, at every venny, slent, Not through a single Souldier's feeble bones, But keenly slyces through whole Troops at once ; And hews broad Lanes before it and behinde, As swiftly whirling as the whisking winde.

2 Kin. 19. 35.	Another mowes-down in a moment's space, Before Ierusalem (God's chosen place) Senacherib's proud over-daring Hoast ; That threatned heav'n, and 'gainst the earth did boast ; In his blasphemous Braves, comparing ev'n His Idol-gods, unto the God of Heav'n.	790	Blushing Aurora , had yet scarce dimist Mount Lidanus from the Night's gloomy Mist, When th' Hebrew Sentinels, discov'ring plain An hundred foure score and five thousand slain, Exceeding joyfull, 'gan to ponder stricter, To see such conquest and not know the Victor.
	His troups, victorious in the East before, Besieg'd the City, which did sole adore The only God ; so that, without their leave, A Sparrow scarce the sacred Wals could leave. Then Besechias , as a prudent Prince, Poysing the danger of these sad events, (His Subjects' thrall, his Citie's wofull Flames, His Children's death, the rape of noble Dames, The Massacre of Infants and of Eld, And's Royall Selve with thousand weapons queld ; The Temple ras'd, th' Altar and Censer void Of sacred use, God's Servants all destroid) Humbled in Sack-cloth and in Ashes, cries For ayd to God, the God of Victories ; Who hears his suit, and thunders down his Fury On those proud Pagan Enemies of Iury .	800	O sacred Tutors of the Saints ! you Guard Of God's Elect, you Pursuivants prepar'd To execute the Counsels of the Highest ; You Heav'nly Courtiers, to your King the nighest ; God's glorious Heralds, Heav'n's swift Harbengers, 'Twixt Heav'n and Earth you true interpreters ; I could be well content, and take delight To follow farther your celestiaall Flight ; But that I feare (here having ta'en in hand So long a journey both by Sea and Land) I feare to faint, if at the first too fast	830
			I cut away, and make too-hasty haste : For, Travailers, that burn in brave desire To see strange Countries, manners and attire, Make haste enough, if only the First Day From their owne Sill they set but on their way.	840

*So Morne and Evening the First Day conclude,
And God perceiv'd that All his Works were good.*

THE SECOND DAY
OF THE FIRST WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Lewd Poets check : Our Poet's chaste Intents :
Heav'n's Curtain spread : th' all forming Elements ;
Their number, nature, use, and Domination,
Content, excess, continuance, situation :
Aire's triple Regions ; and their Temper's change :
Windes, Exhalations, and all Meteors strange ;
Th' effects, the use (apply'd to Conscience :)
Man's Reason non-plust in some Accidents :
Of Prodiges : of th' Elementall Flame : 10
Heav'n's ten fold Orbs : Waters above the same.*

A just reproofe of wanton and lascivious Poets of our Time.

Those learned Spirits, whose wits applied wrong,
With wanton Charms of their enchanting song,
Make of an old, foule, frantick Hecuba,
A wondrous fresh, faire, wittle Helena :
Of lewd Faustina (that loose Emperesse)
A chaste Lucretia, loathing wantonnesse :
Of a blinde Bow-Boy, of a Dwarf, a Bastard,
No petty Godling, but the Gods' great Master ;
On thanklesse furrowes of a fruitlesse sand 20
Their seed and labour lose, with heedlesse hand ;
And (pitching Nets, to catch I little wott
What fume of Fame that seems them to besott)
Resemble Spiders that with curious pain
Weave idle Webs, and labour still in vain.
But (though, than time, we have no deerer Treasure)
Lesse should I wall their misse-exence of leasure,
If their sweet Muse, with too-well spoken Spell
Drew not their Readers with themselves to Hell
For, under th' honoy of their learnèd Works 30
A hatefull draught of d-eadly poyson lurks :

Whereof (alas) Young spirits quaffe so deep,
That, drunk with Love, their Reason fals asleep ;
And such a habit their fond Fancie gets,
That their ill stomach still loves evill meats.
Th' enchanting force of their sweet Eloquence
Hurls headlong down their tender Audience,
Aye (child-like) sliding, in a foolish strife,
On th' Icie down-Hills of this slippery Life.
The songs their Phabus doth so sweet inspire, 40
Are even the Bellowes whence they blow the fire
Of raging Lust (before) whose wanton flashes
A tender brest rak't-up in shamefac't ashes.
Therefore, for my part, I have vow'd to Heav'n
Such wit and learning as my God hath giv'n ;
To write, to the' honour of my Maker dread,
Verse that a Virgin without blush may read.
Cleare Source of Learning, soule of th' Universe, (Sith thou art pleas'd to chuse mine humble Verse
To sing thy Praises) make my Pen distill 50
Celestiall Nectar, and this Volume fill
With th' Amalthean Horn ; that it may have
Some correspondence to a Theam so grave :
Rid thou my passage, and make cleare my way
From all incumbers ; shine upon This Day ;
That guided safely by thy sacred Light,
My Rendes-vous I may attain yer night.
THAT HUGE broad-length, that long-broad height profound,
Th' infinite finite, that great moundlesse Mound,
I meane that Chaos, that self-jarring Mass,
Which in a moment made of Nothing was ; 60
Was the rich Matter and the Matrix, whence
The Heav'ns should issue, and the Elements.
Now th' Elements, twin-twins (two sons, two daughters)
To wit, the Fire, the Aire ; the Earth, and Waters

The danger of their seduced
Readers.

Our Poet's modest purpose.

Again he calls upon God, for assistance in the description of the second daie's
Work.

Which is, the Firmament
mentioned by Moses in the 1. Cha. of
Gen. ver. 6, 7, 8.
Comprehending
the Heavens, and all the Elementary

Regions. Of the four Elements, simple in themselves : whereof
all things subject to our sense, are composed.

Divers Similes.

A vicissitude of the Elements' predominance.

Excellent Similes showing the commodity or discom-
modity of the proportion or excess of every of the Elements.

Are not compounded : but, of them is all
Compounded first, that in our sense can fall :
Whether their qualities in every portion
Of every thing, infuse them with proportion :
Whether in all, their substance they confound, 70
And so but one thing of their four compound :
As in a Venice Glass before our eyne,
We see the Wine intermix with Wine :
Or, in our Stomack, as our drink and food
Doe mingle, after to convert to bloud.
This in a Fire-brand may we see, whose Fire
Doth in his Flame toward's native Heav'n aspire,
His Aire in smoak ; in ashes falls his Earth,
And at his knots his Water wheezes forth.
Even such a War our bodie's peace maintains : 80
For, in our flesh our Bodie's Earth remains ;
Our vital spirits, our Fire and Aire possess ;
And, last, our Water in our humours rests.
Nay, there's no Part in all this Bulk of ours,
Where each of these not intermix their powers ;
Though 't be apparent (and I needs must grant)
That aye some one is most predominant.
The pure red part, amid the Maas of Blood,
The Sanguine Aire commands ; the clotted mud,
Sunk down in Lees, Earth's Adelancholy shows, 90
The pale thin humour, that on th' out-side flows,
Is watery Phlegm : and the light froathy scum,
Bubbling above, hath Fiery Choler's room.
Not, that at all times, one same Element
In one same Body hath the Regiment :
But, by turns reigning, each his Subjects draws
After his Lore ; for, still New Lords New Lawes ;
As sans respect how Rich or Noble-born,
Each Citizen rules and obeys, by turn,
In chart'ed Towns ; which seem, in little space, 100
Changing their Ruler, even to change their face ;
(For, as Chameleons vary with their object,
So Princes' manners do transform the Subject) :
So th' Element in Wine predomining,
It hot, and cold, and moist, and dry doth bring ;
By 's perfect or imperfect force (at length)
Inforcing it to change the taste and strength :
So that it doth Grapes' sharp-green juice transfer
To Must, Must ' Wine, and Wine to Vineger.
As while a Monarch to teach others aw, 110
Subjects his owne self's-Greatness to his Law,
He ruleth fearless : and his Kingdoms flourish
In happy Peace (and Peace doth Plenty nourish) ;
But if (fell Tyrant) his keen sword be ever Unjustly drawn, if he be sated never
With Subjects' blood ; needs must his Rage (at last)
Destroy his State, and lay his Country waste :
So (or much like) the while one Element
Over the rest hath modest Government ;
While, in proportion (though unequal yet) 120
With Sovereign Humours Subject Humours fit,
The Bodie's found ; and in the very face
Retains the Form of beauty and of grace :

But if (like that inhumane Emperour
Who wish't, all People underneath his Power
Had but one head, that he might butcher so
All th' Empire's Subjects at one onely blow)
It, tyrannizing, seek to wrack the rest,
It ruins soon the Province it possess ;
Where soon appears, through his proud usurpation, 130
Both outward change, and inward alteration.

So, too-much Moist, which (unconcoct within) Excess of
The Liver spreads betwixt the flesh and skin, Moisture.
Puffs up the Patient, stops the pipes and pores
Of excrements : yea, double bars the doores
Of his short breath ; and slowly-swiftly curst,
In midd't of Water makes him ever thirst :
Nor gives Man Rest, nor Respite, till his bones
Be raked up in a cold heap of stones. 80

So, too-much Drought a lingring Ague draws, 140 Of Drought.
Which seeming pain-less, yet much pain doth cause,
Robbing the nerves of might, of joy the heart,
Of mirth the face, of moisture every part (Much like a Candle fed with its own humour,
By little and little its own self's consumer)
Nor gives man Rest, nor Respite, till his bones
Be raked up in a cold heap of stones.

So, too-much Heat doth bring a burning Fever, Of Heat.
Which spurs our Pulse, and furs our Palate ever ;
And on the tables of our troubled brain, 150
Fantastically with various pencil vain
Doth counterfeit as many Forms, or moe
Then ever Nature, Art, or Chance could show :
Nor gives man Rest, nor Respite, till his bones
Be raked up in a cold heap of stones.

So, too-much Cold covers with hoary Fleece Of Cold.
The Head of Age, his flesh diminishes,
Withers his face, hollows his rheumy eyes,
And makes himselfe even his own selfe despise ;
While through his marrow every-where it enters, 160
Quenching his native heat with endless Winters :
Nor gives man Rest, nor Respite, till his bones
Be raked up in a cold heap of stones.

Yet think not that this Too-too-Much remises
Ought into nought : it but the Form disguises
In hundred fashions, and the Substances
Inly, or outly, neither win nor loses.
For, all that's made, is made of the First Matter
Which in th' old Nothing made the All-Creator :
All that dissolves, resolves into the same. 170
Since first the Lord of nothing made This Frame,
Nought's made of Nought ; and nothing turns to nothing :
Things birth, or death, change but their formal clothing :
Their forms do vanish, but their bodies bide ;
Now thick, now thin, now round, now short, now side.

For, if of Nothing any thing could spring,
Th' earth without seed should wheat and barley bring :
Pure Maiden-wombs desired Bebes should bear ;
All things, at all times, should grow every where ;
The Hart in Water should it selfe ingender ; 180
The Whale on Land : in Aire the Lambling tender :

Th' Ocean should yeeld the Pine and Cornell Tree ;
 On Hazels Acornes, Nuts on Oaks should be :
 And breaking Nature's set and sacred use,
 The Doves would Eagles, Eagles Doves, produce.

If of themselves things took their thriving, then
 Slow-growing Babes should instantly be Men :
 Then in the Forrest should huge boughes be seen
 Borne with the bodies of unplanted Treen ;
 Then should the sucking Elephant support
 Upon his shoulders a well-mann'd Fort ; 190
 And the new-foald Colt, couragious,
 Should neigh for Battell, like Bucephalus.

Contrariwise, if ought to nought did fall ;
 All, that is felt or seen within this All,
 Still losing somewhat of itself, at length
 Would come to Nothing : If Death's fatal strength
 Could altogether Substances destroy,
 Things then should vanish ev'n as soon as dy.
 In time the mighty Mountains' tops be 'bated ;
 But, with their fall, the neighbour Vales are fatted ; 200
 And what, when Trent or Avon over-flow,
 They reave one field, they on the next bestow :
 Love-burning Heav'n many sweet Dewes doth drop
 In his deer Spouse's faire and fruitfull lap ;
 Which after she restores, straining those shows
 Through the hid pores of pleassant plants and flowrs.

Whoso hath seen, how one warm lump of Wax (Without increasing or decreasing) takes
 A hundred figures ; well may judge of all
 Th' incessant Changes of this neather Ball. 210
 The World's owne Matter is the waxen Lump,
 Which, un-self-changing, takes all kind of stamp :
 The Form's the Seal ; Heav'n's gracious Emperour
 (The living God) 's the great Lord Chancellor ;
 Who, at his pleasure, setting day and night
 His great Broad Seals, and Privie Signets right
 Upon the Masse so vast and variable,
 Makes the same Lump, now base, now honourable.

Here's nothing constant : nothing still doth stay ;
 For, Birth and Death have still successive sway. 220
 Here one thing springs not till another die :
 Onely the Matter lives immortally,
 (Th' Almighty's Table, body of this All,
 Of change-full Chances common Arcenal,
 All like itselfe, all in itselfe contained,
 Which by Time's Flight hath neither lost nor gained)
 Change-lesse in Essence ; changeable in face,
 Much more then Proteus, or the subtil race
 Of roving Polypes, who (to rob more)

Transform them hourly on the waving shore : 230
 Much like the French (or like our selves, their Apes)
 Who with strange habit do disguise their shapes :
 Who loving novels, full of affectation,
 Receive the Manners of each other Nation ;
 And scarcely shift they shirts so oft, as change
 Fantastick Fashions of their garments strange ;
 Or like a Lais, whose inconstant Love
 Doth every day a thousand times remove ;

By an apt similitude, he sheweth the continual Change of the World, in the matter and form thereof, according to God's pleasure : in such sort, yet, that the matter remains, though it receive infinite Forms.

Sundry Similes to that purpose.

Who's scarce unfolded from one Youth's embraces,
 Yer in her thought another shee embraces ; 240
 And the new pleasure of her wanton Fire
 Stirs in her still another new Desire :
 Because the Matter, wounded deep in Heart
 With various Love (yet, on the selfe-same part,
 Incapable, in the same time, at once
 To take all figures) by successions,
 Form after Form receives : so that one face
 Another's face's features doth deface.

Now the chiefe Motive of these Accidents
 Is the dire discord of our Elements ; 250
 Truce-hating Twins, where Brother eateth Brother
 By turns, and turn them one into-another,
 Like Ice and Water that beget each other ;
 And still the Daughter bringeth-forth the Mother.
 Enigma.

But each of these having two qualities,
 (One bearing Rule, another that Obeyes)
 Those, whose effects doe wholly contradict,
 Longer and stronger strive in their Conflict,
 The hot-dry Fire to cold-moist Water turns not, 260
 The cold-dry Earth to hot-moist Aire returns not,
 Returns not eas'ly : for (still opposite)
 With tooth and nail as deadly foes they fight.
 But Aire turne Water, Earth may Fierize,
 Because in one part they do symbolize ;
 And so in combat they have lesse to doo ;
 For, 't's easier far to conquer one then two.

Sith then the knot of sacred Marriage,
 Which joyns the Elements, from age to age,
 Brings forth the World's Babes : sith their Enmities,
 With fell divorce, kill whatsoever dies : 270
 And sith, but changing their degree and place,
 They frame the various Forms, wherewith the face
 Of this faire World is so imbellish'd,
 [As six sweet Notes, curiously vari'd
 In skilfull Musick, make an hundred kindes
 Of Heav'nly sounds, that ravish hardest mindes ;
 And with Division (of a choice device)
 The Hearers' soules out at their ears intice :
 Or, as of twice-twelve Letters, thus transpos'd,
 This world of Words is variously compos'd ; 280
 And of these Words, in divers order sow'n,
 This sacred Volume that you read, is grow'n
 (Through gracious succour of th' Eternall Deity)
 Rich in Discourse, with infinite Variety]
 It was not cause-lesse, that so carefully
 God did divide their common Seign'ory ;
 Assigning each a fit confin'd Sitting,
 Their quantity and quality befitting.

Whoso (sometime) hath seen rich Ingots tride,
 When forc'd by fire, their treasures they divide, 290
 (How fair and softly Gold to Gold doth passe,
 Silver seeks Silver, Brasse consorts with Brasse ;
 And the whole Lump, of parts unequall, severs
 Itselfe apart, in white, red, yellow Rivers)
 May understand, how, when the Mouth Divine
 Op'ned (to each his proper place t' assigne)

The chiefe motive of this Change of Forms in the matter.

Enigma.

Of the Situation of the Elements, and of the effects thereof, compared to the Notes of Musick, and to the Letters of the Alphabet.

A Simile lively representing the separation of the Elements.

	Fire flew to Fire, Water to Water slid, Aire clung to Aire, and Earth with Earth abid.
Situation of the Earth and Fire.	Earth, as the Lees, and heavie dross of All (After his kinde) did to the bottome fall :	300	Of wrackfull Neptune , and the wrathfull blasts Of parching South , and pinching Boreas . 'T was meet, her sad slow body to digest Farther from Heav'n then any of the rest :	the other three Elements, where- of it is the center.
	Contrariwise, the light and nimble Fire Did through the crannies of th' old Heap aspire Unto the top ; and by his nature, light No lesse then hot, mounted in sparks upright :		Lest, of Heav'n's Course th' Eternal swift Careers, Rushing against her with their whirling Spheers, Should her transport as swift and violent, As ay they do their neighbour Element.	360
	As, when we see Aurora passing gay, With Opals paint the Cieling of Cathay , Sad Flouds do fume ; and the celestial Tapors, Through Earth's thin pores, in th' Aire exhale their vapors.		And sith on th' other side th' harmonious Course Of Heav'n's bright Torch'es is th' immortal source Of earthly life : and sith all alterations (Almost) are caus'd by their quick agitations In all the World, God could not place so fit Our Mother Earth, as in the midst of it.
	But, lest the Fire (which all the rest embraces) Being too neer, should burn the Earth to ashes ;	310	For, all the Stars reflect their lively rayes On Fire, and Aire, and Water, divers wayes ; Dispersing, so, their powerfull influence On, in, and through these various Elements :	370
Of Air and Water placed between the Earth and Fire.	As chosen Empires, the great All-Creator Between these Foes plac'd the Aire and Water :		But, on the Earth, they all in one concurr, And all unite their severall force in her ; As in a Wheel, which with a long deep rut His turning passage in the durt doth cut,	Simile.
	For, one suffiz'd not their stern strife to end. Water, as Cousin, did the Earth befriend :		The distant Spokes neerer and neerer gather, And in the Nave unite their points together.
	Aire, for his Kinsman Fire, as firmly deals :		As the bright Sun shines through the smoothest Glasse,
	But both, uniting their divided zeals, Took up the matter, and appeas'd the brall ; Which doubtlesse else had discreated All.		The turning Planet's influence doth passe Without impeachment through the glistering Tent Of the tralucing Fiery Element,	380
	Th' Aire lodg'd aloft, the Water under it, Not casually, but so dispos'd sit	320	Th' Air's triple Regions, the transparent Water ; But not the firm Base of this faire Theater. And therefore rightly may we call those Trines (Fire, Aire and Water) but Heav'n's Concubines :
	By him, who (Nature in her kinde to keep) Kept due proportion in his Workmanship ; And, in this Store-house of his Wonders' treasure, Observ'd in all things number, weight and measure.		For, never Sun, nor Moon, nor Stars injoy The love of these, but only by the way, As passing by : whereas incessantly The lusty Heav'n with Earth doth company ; And with a fruitfull seed, which lends All life, With-childes, each moment, his own lawfull wife ;	390
Why the Aire was lodged next the Element of Fire.	For, had the Water next the Fire been plac'd, Fire, seeming then more wrong'd and more disgrac'd, Would suddenly have left his Adversary, And set upon the Umpire (more contrary).		And with her lovely Babes, in form and nature So divers, decks this beautifull Theater.
	But all the Links of th' holy Chain, which tethers The many members of the World together,	330	The Water, lighter then the Earthy Masse, Heavier then Aire, betwixt them both hath place ; The better so, with a moist cold, to temper Th' one's over-drinesse, th' other's hot distemper.
	Are such, as none but only He can break them, Who at the first did (of meer nothing) make them.		But, my sweet Muse, whither so fast away ? Soft, soft, my Darling : draw not dry To-day Castalian Springs ; defer the Cirque and Seat, The power and praise of Sea and Earth as yet :
	Water, as arm'd with moisture and with cold, The cold-dry Earth, with her one hand doth hold ; With th' other th' Aire : The Aire as moist and warm,		Do not anticipate the World's Beginning ; But, till To-morrow , leave the enter-blinning Of rocky Mounts, and rowling Waves so wide. For, even To-morrow will the Lord divide, With the right hand of his Omnipotence, These yet confus'd and mingled Elements ; And liberally the shaggy Earth adorn With Woods, and Buds of fruits, of flowers and corn.
The disposing and combining of the Elements. A Similitude.	Holds Fire with th' one, Water with th' other arm :		Leaving the Earth and Sea till the next Book, he comes to treat of the Aire.	400
	As Country-Maidens, in the Month of May , Merrily sporting on a Holy-day, And lusty dancing of a lively Round About the May-pole, by the Bag-pipe's sound ;	340
	Hold hand in hand, so that the first is fast (By means of those between) unto the last.
	For, sith 't is so, that the dry Element Not only yeelds her own Babes nourishment, But with the milk of her abundant breasts Doth also feed th' Air's nimble-wing'd guests, And also all th' innumerable Legions Of greedy mouths that haunt the Briny Regions, (So that th' Earth's Mother, or else Nurse of all That run, or flee, or swim, or slide, or crawl)	350
Why the Earth is the lowest, and environed with	'T was meet, it should be itself's Counterpoize, To stand still firm against the roaring noise

'T is time, my Love, 't is time, mine only Care,
 To hie us hence, and mount us in the Aire : 410
 'T is time (or never) now, my dearest Minion,
 To imp strong farceels in thy sacred pinion ;
 That lightly born upon thy Virgin back,
 Safe through the Welkin I my course may take :
 Come, come, my Joy, lend mee thy Lilly shoulder ;
 That thereon raised, I may reach the bolder
 (*Before the rest of my deere Country-men,
 Of better wit, but worse-applied pen*)
 At that green Laurel, which the niggard Skies
 So long have hidden from my longing eyes. 420

The Aire distinguished into 3 Regions.

Th' Aire (hoste of Mists, the bounding Tennis-ball,
 That stormy Tempests tosse and play withall,
 Of winged Clouds the wide inconstant House,
 Th' unsettlèd Kingdome of swift Bolus,
 Great Ware-house of the Windes, whose trafficke gives Motion of life to ev'ry thing that lives)
 Is not throughout all one : our Elder Sages
 Have fitly parted it into three Stages.
 Whereof, because the highest still is driv'n
 With violence of the First-moving Heav'n, 430
 From East to West, and from the West returning,
 To th' honor'd Cradle of the rosiall Morning,
 And also seated next the Fiery vault ;
 It, by the Learnèd, very hot is thought.

The High.

The Low.

That which we touch, with times doth variate,
 Now hot, now cold, and sometimes temperate ;
 Warm-temp'red show'rs it sendeth in the Spring :
 In Autums likewise, but more varying :
 In Winter time, continuall cold and chill :
 In Summer season, hot and souly still : 440
 For then the fields scorched with flames, reflect
 The sparkling rayes of thousand Stars' aspect ;
 And chiefly Phabus, to whose arrows bright
 Our Globy Grandame serves for But and White.

The Middle
 Region of the Aire.

But now, because the Middle Region's set
 Far from the Fiery sieling's flagrant heat,
 And also from the warm reverberation
 Which aye the Earth reflects in divers fashion ;
 That Circle shivers with eternal colde.
 For, into Hall how should the Water molde, 450
 Even when the Summer hath gilt Ceres Gowne,
 Except those Climes with Ycesickles were sowne ?

Of the causes of Haile.

So soon as Sol, leaving the gentle Twins,
 With Cancer, or thirst-panting Leo inns,
 The mid-most Aire redoubleth all his Frosts ;
 Being besieged by two mighty Hoasts
 Of Heat, more fierce 'gainst his cold force than ever,
 Cals from all quarters his chill troops together,
 T' incounter them with his united Power,
 Which then dispersèd, hath far greater power : 460
 As Christian Armies, from the Frontiers far,
 And out of fear of Turke's outrageous war,
 March in disorder, and become (disperst)
 As many Squadrons as were Souldiers yerst ;
 So that somtimes th' untrained Multitude
 With bats and bows hath beat them and subdu'd :

But, if they once perceive, or understand
 The Moony Standards of proud Ottoman
 To be approaching, and the Sulph'ry thunder
 Wherewith he brought both Rhodes and Belgrade under ;
 They soon unite, and in a narrow place 471
 Intrench themselves ; their courage growes apace ;
 Their heart's on fire ; and circumcised Pow'rs,
 By their approach, double the strength of ours.

The effects thereof in the middle Region of the Aire.

'T is (doubt-less) this ¹*Antiperistasis*
 (Bear with the word, I hold it not amiss
 T' adopt sometimes such strangers for our use,
 When Reason and Necessity induce ;
 As namely, where our native Phrase doth want
 A Word so force-full and significant) 480
 Which makes the Fire seem to our sense and reason
 Hotter in Winter then in Summer season :
 'T is it which causeth the cold frozen Scythia,
 Too-often kist by th' husband of Orithya,
 To bring forth people, whose still hungry brest
 (Winter or Summer) can more meat digest,
 Then those lean starvelings which the Sun doth broil
 Upon the hotsands of the Libyan soil :
 And that ourselves, happily seated faire,
 Whose spungy lungs draw sweet and wholesom Aire, 490
 Hide in our stomachs a more lively heat,
 While bi-front Janus' frosty frowns do threat,
 Then when bright Phabus, leaving swarthy Chus,
 Mounts on our Zenith, to reflect on us.

Why the Aire was thus distinguished in the 3 Regions.

Th' Almighty's hand did this partition form ;
 To th' end that Mist, Comets, and Wind, and Storm,
 Dew, drizzling Show'rs, Hail, slippery Yce, and Snow,
 In the three Regions of the Aire may grow :
 Whereof some, 'pointed th' Earth to fertilize,
 Others to punish our impieties, 500
 Might daily grave in hardest hearts the love
 And fear of him, who reigns in Heav'n above.

Of exhalations,
 and wherunto
 they are appropriate, by the Sun and the Regions of the Aire.

For, as a little end of burning wax,
 By th' emptiness, or of itselfe, attracts
 In Cupping-glasses, through the scorched skin
 Behinde the Poll, superfluous humours thin,
 Which fuming from the braine did thence descend
 Upon the sight, and much the same offend :
 So the swift Coach-man, whose bright flaming hair
 Doth every day gild either Hemispher, 510
 Two sorts of Vapors by his heat exhales
 From floating Deeps, and from the flow'ry Dales :
 Th' one somewhat hot, but heavie, moist, and thick ;
 Th' other, light, dry, burning, pure, and quick ;
 Which, through the Welkin roaming all the yeare,
 Make the world divers to itselfe appear.

Of Mist.

Now, if a Vapour be so thin, that it
 Cannot to water be transformed fit,
 And that with cold-lym'd wings it hover neer
 The flow'ry mantle of our Mother deer ; 520
 Our Aire growes dusky ; and moist drowsie Mist
 Upon the Fields doth for a time persist.

Of Dew and Yce.

And if this Vapour fair and softly fly,
Not to the cold Stage of the middle Sky,
But 'bove the Clouds, it turneth (In a trice)
In April, Dew ; in January, Yce.

But, if the Vapour bravely can adventure
Up to th' eternall seat of shivering Winter,
The small thin humor by the Cold is prest
Into a Cloud ; which wanders East and West 530
Upon the Winde's wings, till in drops of Rain
It fall into his Grandame's lap again :
Whether some boistrous winde, with stormy puff
Joustling the Clouds with mutuall counter-buff,
Doe break their brittle sides, and make them shatter
In drizzling show'rs their swift distilling water :

Divers Similes,
shewing how the Rain is caused through the encounter of the Clouds, which are the matter of it.

As when a wanton heedless Page (perhaps)
Rashly together two full glasses claps ;
Both being broken, suddenly they pour
Both their brew'd liquors on the dusty flour. 540
Whether some milder gale, with sighing breath
Shaking their Tent, their tears dissevereth :
As after rain another rain doth drop
In shady Forests from their shaggy top,
When through their green boughs, whiffing winds do whirl

With wanton puffs their waving locks to curl :
Or, whether th' upper Cloud's moist heaviness
Doth, with his weight, an under Cloud oppress,
And so one humour doth another crush,
Till to the ground their liquid pearles doe gush : 550
As the more clusters of ripe grapes we pack
In Vintage-time upon the hurdle's back ;
At's pierc'd bottom the more fuming liquor
Runs in the scummy Fat, and fals the thicker.

Whence it proceedeth, that sometimes it raineth Frogs.

Then, many Heav'n-floods in our Floods do lose 'em ;
Nought's seen but Show'rs ; the heav'n's sad sable bosom

Seems all in tears to melt ; and Earth's green bed
With stinking Frogs is sometimes covered :
Either because the floating Cloud doth fold
Within itself both moist, dry, hot, and cold, 560
Whence all things here are made : or else for that
The active Windes, sweeping this dusty Flat,
Sometimes in th' aire some fruitfull dust do heap :
Whence these new-form'd ugly creatures leap :
As on the edges of some standing Lake
Which neighbour Mountains with their gutters make,
The foamy slime, itself transformeth oft
To green half-Tadpoles, playing there aloft,
Half-made, half-unmade ; round about the Flood,
Half-dead, half-living ; half a frog, half-mud. 570

Of Snow.

Sometimes it happens, that the force of Cold
Freezes the whole Cloud : then we may behold,
In silver Flakes, a heav'nly Wool to fall ;
Then, Fields seem grass-less, Forests leaf-less all,
The world's all white ; and, through the heaps of Snow,
The highest Stag can scarce his armor show.

Of Hail.

Sometimes befalls, that when by secret pow'r,
The Cloud's new-chang'd into a dropping show'r,

Th' excessive cold of the mid-Aire (anon)
Candies-it all in bals of Ycy-stone : 580
Whose violent storms sometimes (alas !) do proin,
Without a knife, our Orchard and our Vine ;
Reap without sickle, beat down Birds and Cattle,
Disgrace our Woods, and make our Roofs to rattle.

If heav'n's bright torches, from earth's kidneys, sup
Som somewhat dry and heatfull Vapours up,
Th' ambitious lightning of their nimble Fire
Would suddenly near th' Azure Cirques aspire :
But scarce so soon their fuming crest hath raught,
Or toucht the coldness of the middle Vault, 590
And felt what force their mortall enemy
In Garrison keeps there continually ;
When down again towards their Dam they bear,
Holp by the weight which they have drawn from her ;
But in the instant, to their aid arrives
Another new heat, which their heart revives,
Re-arms their hand, and, having staled their flight,
Better resolv'd, brings them again to fight.

Of some vapours,
or exhalations
whirling in the Low and Middle Regions of the Aire, and whereof the winds are ingendred.

Well fortifi'd then by these fresh supplies,
More bravely they renew their enterprize : 600
And one-while th' upper hand (with honor) getting,
Another-while disgracefully retreating,
Our lower Aire they toss in sundry sort,
As weak or strong their matter doth comport.
This lasts not long ; because the heat and cold,
Equal in force and fortune, equal bold

In these assaults ; to end this sudden brall,
Th' one stops their mounting, th' other stayes their fall ;
So that this vapour, never resting stound,
Stands never still, but makes his motion round, 610
Posteth from Pole to Pole, and flies amain
From Spain to India, and from Inde to Spain.
But though these blustering spirits seem alwaies blow'n
By the same spirit, and of like vapor grow'n ;
Yet, from their birth-place, take they, diversly,
A divers name and divers quality.

Feeling the foure Windes, that with divers blast,
From the foure corners of the World doe haste ;
In their effects I finde foure Temp'raments,
Foure Times, foure Ages, and foure Elements. 620
Th' East-winde, in working, follows properly
Fire, Cholera, Summer, and soft Infancy :

That, which dries-up wilde Affrick with his wing,
Resembles Aire, Blood, Youth, and lively Spring :
That, which blows moistly from the Western stage,
Like Water, Phlegme, Winter, and heavie Age :
That, which coms shiv'ring from cold Climats solely,
Earth, wither'd Eld, Autumn, and Melancholy
Not, but that Men have long ere this found-out
More than these foure winds, East, West, North, and South : 630

Of the Winds, whereof there are foure principall, compared to the foure Seasons, the foure Complexions, the foure
Elements, and the foure Ages of man ;
and assigned to the foure corners of the World: And called East, West,
North and South.

Those that (at Sea) to see both Poles are wont,
Upon their Compass two and thirty count,
Though they be infinite, as are the places
Whence the Heav'n-fanning Exhalation passes :

Divers effects of the Winds.	But wheresoever their quick course they bend, As on their Chiefs, all on these Four depend. One while, with whisking broom they brush and sweep The Cloudy Curtains of Heav'n's stages steep : Anon, with hotter sighes they dry the Ground, Late, by Electra and her Sisters, drown'd : 640 Anon, refresh they, with a temp'rate blowing, The souly Aire, under the Dog-starr glowing : On Trees anon they ripe the Plum and Pear, In Cods the Poulse, the Corn within the Ear : Anon, from North to South, from East to West, With ceas-less wings, they drive a ship address : And somtimes, whirling on an open Hill, The round-flat Runner in a roaring Mill, In flowy motes they grind the purest grain, Which late they ripened on the fruitfull Plain. 650	'Tis held, I know, that when a Vapour moist As well from fresh as from salt water's hoist In the same instant with hot Exhalations, In th' Airy Region's secondary stations ; The fiery Fume, besieged with the Croud And keen-cold thicknes of that dampish Cloud, Strengthens his strength ; and with redoubled Vollies Of joynd Heat, on the Cold Leaguer sallies. 700	How they are ingendred.
Divers effects of hot exhalations.	If th' Exhalation hot and oily prove ; And yet (as feeble) giveth place above To th' Airie Regions ever-lasting Frost, Incessantly th' apt tinding fume is tost Till it inflame ; then like a Squib it falls, Or fire-wing'd shaft, or sulph'ry Powder balls. 650	Like as a Lion, very late exil'd From's native Forrests, spet-at, and revil'd, Mock'd, mov'd, and troubled with a thousand toys, By wanton children, idle girles and boyes ; With hideous roaring doth his Prison fill, In 's narrow Cloister ramping wildly, still, Runs to and fro ; and furious, lesse doth long For liberty, then to revenge his wrong : Thus Fire, desirous to break forth again From's cloudy Ward, cannot itself refrain ; 710 But, without resting, loud it grones and grumbles, It rous, and roars, and round-round-roun it rumbles, Till (having rent the lower side in sunder) With sulph'ry flash, it have shot-down his thunder : Though willing to unite, in these alarms, To 's Brother's forces, his own fainting arms ; And th' hottest Circle of the World to gain, To issue up-ward, oft it strives in vaine : But 't is there fronted with a Trench so large, And such an Hoast, that though it often charge, 720 On this and that side, the Cold Camp about With his hot skirmish ; yet still, still the stout Victorious Foe repelleth ev'ry push ; So that (despairing) with a furious rush (Forgetting honour) it is fain to fly By the back-door, with blushing infamy.	A Simile.
Of comets.	But if this kinde of Exhalation towr Above the Walls of Winter's ycy bowr, 'T inflameth also ; and anon becoms A new strange Star, presaging wofull doms : 660 And for this Fier hath more fewell in 't Then had the first, 'tis not so quickly spent : Whether the Heav'ns' incessant agitation, Into a Star transforming th' Exhalation, Kindle the same : like as a coal, that winkt On a stick's end (and seem'd quite extinct) Tost in the dark with an industrious hand, To light the night, becoms a fier-brand : Or whether th' upper Fire do fire the same ; As lighted Candles doe th' unlight, inflame. 670	Then th' Ocean boyls for fear : the Fish do deem The Sea too shallow to safe-shelter them : The Earth doth shake : The Shepheard in the field In hollow Rocks himself can hardly shield : 730 Th' affrighted Heav'ns open ; and, in the vale Of Acheron, grim Pluto's self looks pale : Th' Aire flames with Fire : for, the loud-roaring Thunder (Renting the Cloud, that it includes, asunder) Sends forth those flashes which so blear our sight : As wakefull Students, in the Winter's night Against the steel, glancing with stony knocks, Strike sudden sparks into their Tinder-box.	Their effects.
Of other fiery impressions in the Regions of the Aire.	According as the Vapour's thick or rare, Ev'n or unev'n, long or large, round or square, Such are the Forms it in the Aire resembles : At sight whereof, th' amazed Vulgar trembles. Here, in the night appears a flaming Spire ; There a fierce Dragon folded all in fire ; Here, a bright Comet ; there, a burning Beam ; Here, flying Launces ; there, a fiery Stream : Here seems a horn'd Goat, environ'd round With fiery flakes, about the Aire to bound ; 680 There, with long bloody haire, a blazing Star Threatens the World with Famin, Plague, and War : To Princes, death : to Kingdoms, many crosses : To all Estates, inevitable losses : To Heard-men, Rot : to Plow-men, hap-less Seasons : To Sailors, Stormes : to Cites, civill Treasons.	Moreover, Lightning of a fume is fram'd ; Through 'ts self's hot drinesse, evermore inflam'd : 740 Whose powr (past credit) without razing skin, Can bruise to powder all our bones within ; Can melt the Gold that greedy Misers hoord In barr'd Cofers, and not burn the boord : Can breake the blade, and never singe the sheath : Can scorch an Infant in the womb to death, And never blemish, in one sort or other, Flesh, bone, or sinew of th' amaz'd Mother : Consume the shooes, and never hurt the feet : Empty a Cask, and yet not perish it. 750	Admirable effects of Lightning.
A lively description of thunder and lightning.	But hark : what hear I in the Heav'ns ? me thinks The World's wall shakes, and his foundation shrinks : It seems even now that horrid Persephone, Loosing Mager, Alect, and Tysiphone, 690 Weary of raining in black Erebus, Transports her Hell between the Heav'n and us.

	My younger eyes have often seen a Dame, To whom the flash of Heav'n's fantastick flame Did else no harm, save (in a moment's space) With windy Raser shave a secret place. Shall I omit an hundred Prodigies, Oft seen in fore-head of the frowning Skies? Somtimes a fiery Circle doth appear, Proceeding from the beauteous beams and clear Of Sun, and Moon, and other Stars' aspect, Down-looking on a thick-round Cloud direct ; When, not of force to thrust their raies through-out it, In a round Crown they cast them round about it :
Of Crowns and Circles about the Sun, Moon, and other Planets.		760
Of the Rain-bow, and how it is made.	Like as (almost) a burning candle, put Into a Closet, with the door close shut ; Not able through the boords to send his light, Out at the edges round about shines bright. But in 's declining, when Sol's countenance Direct upon a wat'rish Cloud doth glance (A wat'rish Cloud, which cannot easily Hold any longer her moist Tympany) On the moist Cloud he limns his lightsome front ; And with a gawdy Pencil paints upon 't A blew-green-gilt Bow, bended over us : For, th' adverse Cloud, which first receiveth thus Apollo's rayes, the same direct repells On the next Cloud, and with his gold it mells Her various colours : Like as when the Sun At a bay-window peepeth in upon A bole of water, his bright beams' aspect With trembling lustre it doth far reflect 'Gainst the high sieling of the lightsome Hall, With stately Fret-work over-crusted all.
Of the Rain-bow, and how it is made.		770
How it comes to passe, that some- times appeare divers Suns and Moons at once.	On th' other side, if the Cloud side-long sit, And not beneath, or justly opposite To Sun and Moon ; then either of them forms, With strong aspect, double or treble Forms Upon the same. The Vulgar's then affright To see at once three Chariots of the light ; And, in the Welkin, on Night's gloomy Throne, To see at once more shining Moons then one.
A check to man's pride, in striving to yeeld a reason in Nature of all these accidents.	But, O fond Mortals ! Wherefore do ye strive With reach of Sense, God's wonders to retrieve ? What proud desire (rather what Furie's drift ?) Boldens you god-lesse, all God's works to sift ? I'le not deny, but that a learned man May yeeld some Reason (if he list to scan) Of all that moves under Heav'n's hollow Cope ; But, not so sound as can all scruple stop ; And though he could, yet should we evermore, Praising these tools, extoll his fingers more Who works with them, and many waies doth give To deadest things (instantly) soules, to live.
True Philosophy for Christians, to apply all to their conscience for amendment of life.	Me thinks I hear, when I doe hear it thunder, The voice that brings Swains up, and Cæsars under : By that Towr-tearing stroak I understand Th' undaunted strength of the Divine right-hand : When I behold the Lightning in the Skies, Me thinks I see th' Almightie's glorious Eies :
	When I perceive it rain-down timely shows, Me thinks the Lord his horn of plenty pours : When from the Clouds excessive Water spins, Me thinks God weeps for our unwept-for sins : And when in Heav'n I see the Rain-bow bent, I hold it for a pledge and argument, That never more shall Universall Floods Presume to mount over the tops of Woods, Which hoary Atlas in the Clouds doth hide, Or on the Crowns of Caucasus do ride : But, above all, my piercèd soule inclines, When th' angry Heav'ns threat with prodigious Signes ; When Nature's order doth reverse and change, Prepost'rously into disorder strange. Let all the Wits that ever suck'd the breast Of sacred Pallas , in one Wit be prest, And let him tell me (if at least he can By rule of Nature, or meer reach of man) A sound and certain reason of the Cream, The Wooll and Flesh that from the Clouds did stream : Let him declare what cause could erst beget, Amid the Aire, those drizzling shows of Wheat, Which in Carinthia twice were seen to shed ; Whereof that people made them store of Bread. God, the great God of Heav'n, sometimes delights From top to toe to alter Nature's Rites ; That his strange Works, to Nature contrary, May be fore-runners of some misery. The drops of fire which weeping Heav'n did show'r Upon Lucania , when Rome sent the Flow'r Of Italy into the wealthy Clime Which Euphrates fats with his fruitfull slime ; Presag'd, that Parthians should the next yeer tame The proud Lucanians , and nigh quench their Name. The clash of Arms, and clang of Trumpets heard High in the Aire, when valiant Romans warr'd Victoriously, on the (now-Canton'd) Swisses Almans , and Cymbrians , hewing all in peeces ; 'Gainst Epicures' profane assertions, show That 'tis not Fortune guides this World below. Thou that beheld'st from heav'n, with triple flashes, Cursèd Olympius smitten all to ashes, For blasphemies 'gainst th' ONE-Eternall-THREE ; Dar'st thou yet belch against the TRINITY ? Dar'st thou profane, spet in the face of God, Who for Blasphemers hath so sharp a rod ? Jewes (no more Jewes , no more of Abraham Sons ; But Turks , Tartarians , Scythians , Lestrigons) Say what you thought ; What thought you when so long A flaming sword over your Temple hung ; But that the Lord would, with a mighty arme, The righteous vengeance of his wrath performe On you and yours ? that what the Plague did leave, Th' insatiate gorge of Famine should bereave ? And what the Plague and Famine both did spare, Should be clean gleaned by the hand of War ? That sucking Infants, crying for the teat, Self-cruell Mothers should unkindly eat ?	810	All the learned in the world cannot out of the Schoole of Nature give reason for many things that are created in the High and Middle Regions of the Aire. The true cause of these Prodigies. Examples drawne out of the History of the Romans, Jewes , Turks , and French , both Ecclesiasticall and profane.

And that (ere long) the share and coulter should
 Rub off their rust upon your Roofs of gold?
 And all because you (cursèd) crucifi'd
 The Lord of life, who for our ransom dy'd. 870

The ruddy Fountain that with blood did flow :
 Th' huge fiery Rock the thundring Heav'ns did throw
 Into Lyguria ; and the bloody Crosses
 Seen on men's garments, seem'd with open voices
 To cry aloud, that the Turks' swarming hoast
 Should pitch his proud Moons on the Genoan coast.

O Frantick France / why dost not Thou make use
 Of strangefull Signes, whereby the Heav'ns induce Thee to repentance? Canst thou tear-lesse gaze
 (Ev'n night by night) on that prodigious blaze, 880

That hairy Comet, that long-streaming Star,
 Which threatens earth with Famine, Plague and War
 (Th' Almighty's Trident, and three-forkèd fire Wherewith he strikes us in his greatest ire)?
 But what (alas!) can Heav'n's bare threatnings urge?
 Sith all the sharp Rods which so hourly scourge
 Thy sense-lesse back, cannot so much as wrest
 One single sigh from thy obdurate brest?
 Thou drink'st thine own blood, thine own flesh thou eatest,

In what most harms thee, thy delight is greatest. 890
 O sense-lesse Folk, sick of a Lethargy,
 Who to the death despise your Remedy!
 Like froward Jades, that for no striking stur,
 But wax more restif still the more we spur :
 The more your woulds, more your secureness grows,
 Eat with afflictions, as an Asse with blows :
 And as the sledge hardens which stroaks the steel ;
 So, the more beaten, still the lesse ye feel.

And wanton ENGLAND, why hast Thou forgot
 Thy visitation, as thou hadst it not? 900
 Thou hast seen Signes, and thou hast felt the rod
 Of the revenging wrathfull hand of God.

The frowning Heav'ns in fearfull Sights fore-spoke
 Thy Roman, Saxon, Dane, and Norman Yoke :
 And since (alas!) unkinde wounds them those,
 The Civill rents of thy divided ROSE :
 And, last of all, the raging Wolves of Rome,
 Tearing thy Limbs (Christ's Lambs) in Martyrdome.
 Besides Great Plagues, and grievous Dearths, which erst

Have oft the sinews of thy strength reverst. 910

But Thou, more faultily, more forgetfull art
 Then Boyes that fear but while they feel the smart :
 All this is past, and Thou, past fear of it,
 In Peace and Plenty, as a Queen, dost sit ;
 Of Rods forgetfull, and for Rest ingratefull,
 (That, sottish dulnesse ; this, a sin most hatefull :)
 Ingratefull to thy God, who all hath sent ;
 And thy late Queen, his sacred Instrument,
 By whose pure hand he hath more blessed Thine,
 Then erst his own Choice-planted Hebrew Vine : 920
 From whence hee look'd for Grapes (as now from thee) ;
 That bore him Crabs : Thou worse (if worse may be) :

That was destroy'd, the wild Boar entred in.
 ENGLAND, beware : Like punishment, like sin.

But, O! what boots, or what avails my song
 To this deaf Adder, that hath slept so long,
 Snorting so loud on pillows of Security,
 Dread-lesse of danger, drowned in Impurity ;
 Whose senses all, all over-grown with fat,
 Have left no doore for fear to enter at? 930

Yet once again (dear Countrey) must I call :
 ENGLAND, prevent : Fall, to repent thy Fall.

Though thou be blinde, thy wakefull Watchmen see
 Heav'n's irefull vengeance hanging over thee
 In fearfull Signes, threatening a thousand Woes
 To thy Sins' Deluge, which all over-flows.

Thine uncontrol'd, bold, open Atheism :
 Close Idol-service : cloaked Hypocrism :
 Common Blaspheming of God's Name in Oaths :
 Usual profaning of his Sabbaths : 940

Thy blind, dumb, Idol-shepherds, choak'd with steeples,
 That fesse thy Flocks, and do not feed thy Peoples :
 Strife-full Ambition, Florentizing States :
 Bribes and Affection swaying Magistrates :

Wealth's mercy-lesse Wrong, Usury, Extortion :
 Poore's Idleness, repining at their portion :
 Thy Drunken Surfets ; and Excesse in Diet :
 Thy Sensuall wallowing in Lascivious Riot :

Thy huff'd, puff'd, painted, cur'd, pur'd, wanton Pride,
 (The Band to Lust, and to all sins beside) 950
 These are thy sins : These are the Signes of Ruin.

To ev'ry State that doth the same pursue-in :
 Such, cost the Jewes and Asians Desolation,
 Now turn'd Turks, that were the holy Nation.
 Happy who take by others' dangers warning :

All that is writ, is written for our learning ;
 So preach thy Prophets : But, Who heeds their cry?
 Or who beleeves? then much lesse hope have I.
 Wherefore (dear Bertas) having warn'd them ;
 From this Digression, turn we to our Theam. 960

As our All-welcome SOVERAIGN (England's solace, Heav'n's care, Earth's comfort) in his stately Palace,
 Hath next his Person, Princes of his Realms
 Next him in Blood, extract from Royall Stems ;

Next those, the Nobles ; next, the Magistrates
 That serve him truly in their severall States ;
 As more or lesse their divers Dignities
 Comes near the greatnesse of his Majestie :

So, next the Heav'ns, God marshall'd th' Element,
 Which seconds them in swift bright Ornament : 970
 And then the rest, according as of kin,
 To th' Azure Sphears, or th' Erring Fires they bin.

Yet some (more crediting their eyes, then reason)
 From 's proper place this Essence doe disseysin ;
 And vainly strive (after their Fancie's sway)
 To cut the World's best Element away,

The nimble, light, bright-flaming, heatfull Fire,
 Fountain of life, Smith, Founder, Purifier,
 Cook, Surgeon, Souldier, Gunner, Alchymist,
 The source of Motion ; briefly, what not is 't? 980

Essay, ch. 5. 1, 2,
 3, etc.

Having sufficiently discoursed of the Aire, he begins to handle the Element of Fire.

Against such as deny the Fire to bee an Element.

Their reasons.	Apt for all, acting all ; whose arms embrace, Under Heav'n's arms, this Universall Masse. For, if (say they) the Fire were lodg'd between The Heav'ns and us, it would by night be seen ; Sith then, so far-off (as in Meads we passe) We see least Glow-worms glisten in the grasse : Besides, how should we through the Fiery Tent Perceive the bright eyes of the Firmament ? Sith here the soundest and the sharpest eye Can nothing through our Candle-flames descrie.	But the Heav'ns feel not Fate's impartiall rigour : Yeers add not to their stature nor their vigour : Use wears them not ; but their green-ever Age Is all in all still like their Pupillage.	1040
Answers.	O hard beleving Wits ! If Zephirus And Auster's sighes were never felt of us, You would suppose the space between Earth's Ball And Heav'n's bright Arches, void and empty all : And then no more you would the Aire allow For Element, then th' hot bright Flamer now.	Then suddenly, turn'd studious Platonist, I hold, the Heav'ns of Elements consist : Tis Earth, whose firm parts make their Lamps apparent, Their bodies fast ; Aire makes them all transparent ; Fire makes their restless circles pure and cleer, Hot, lightsome, light, and quick in their career : And Water, 'nointing with cold-moist the brims Of th' enter-kissing turning Globe's extreams, Tempers the heat (caus'd by their rapid turning) Which else would set all th' Elements a-burning.	What use of Elements in the Heavens. 1050
Difference between the Elementary Fire and ours.	Now, ev'n as far as Phabus' light excels The light of Lamps, and ev'ry Taper els Wherewith we use to lengthen th' After-noon Which Capricorn ducks in the Sea too soon ; So far in purenesse th' Elementall Flame Excels the Fire that for our use wee frame. For, ours is nothing but a dusky light, Grosse, thick, and smoaky, enemy to sight : But, that above (for, being neither blent With fume mixture of grosse nourishment, Nor toss'd with winds, but far from us) comes neer It's neighbour Heav'n, in nature pure and cleer.	Not, that I do compare or match the Matter Whence I compose th' All-compassing Theater, To those grosse Elements which here below Our hand and eye doth touch, and see, and know : 'T's all fair, all pure ; a sacred harmony Those bodies bindes in end-lesse Unity : That Air's not fitting, nor that Water floating, Nor Fire inflaming, nor Earth dully doating ; Nor one to other ought offensive neither : But (to conclude) Celestiall altogether.	Difference between the Elements, whereof the Heavens are composed, and these inferiour Elements. 1060
Here, for conclusion of this second booke, he commeth to discourse of the Heavens, and first intreateth of their Matter and Essence.	But, of what substance shall I, after-thee (O matchlesse Master) make Heav'n's Canopie ? Uncertain, here my resolutions rock And waver, like th' inconstant Weather-Cock ; Which, on a Tow'r turning with ev'ry blast, Changeth his Master, and his place as fast. Learned Lycæum, now a-while, I walk-in : Then th' Academian sacred Shades I stalk-in.	See, see the rage of humane Ignorance : See how far dares man's erring Ignorance, That with unbridled tongue (as if it oft Had try'd the mettle of that upper Loft) Dares, without prooffe, or without reason yeelded, Tell of what Timber God his Palace builded. But, in these doubts much rather rest had I, Then with mine error draw my Reader wry ; Till a Saint Paul do re-descend from Heav'n, Or till my selfe (this sinfull robe bereav'n, This rebell Flesh, whose counterpoize oppresses My pilgrim Soule, and ever it depresses) Shall see the Beauties of that Blessed Place : If (then) I ought shall see, save God's bright Face.	Detesting the presumption of those curious Wits searching these secrets, hee limits himself within the bounds of Christian Sobriety. 1070
According to the opinion of the Philosopher.	Treading the way that Aristotle went, I doe deprive the Heav'ns of Element, And mixture too ; and think, th' Omnipotence Of God did make them of a Quint-Essence : Sith of the Elements, two still erect Their motion up ; two ever down direct :	But ev'n as many (or more) quarrels cumber Th' old Heathen Schools about the Heavens' number. One holds but one ; making the World's Eyes shine Through the thin-thickness of that Chrystall line, (As through the Ocean's cleer and liquid Flood The slippery Fishes up and down do scud). Another, judging certain by his eye, And, seeing Sev'n bright Lamps mov'd diversly, Turn this and that way : and, on th' other side, That all the rest of the Heav'ns' twinkling pride Keep all one course ; ingeniously, he varies The Heav'ns' rich building into eight round Stories. Others, amid the Starriest Orbe, perceiving A triple cadence, and withall conceiving	Divers opinions of the number of the Heavens. 1080
Their course.	But the Heav'ns' course, not wandring up nor down, Continually turns only roundly round. The Elements have no eternall race, But settle aye in their assigned place : But th' azure Circle, without taking breath, His certain course for ever gallopeth ; It keeps one pace, and mov'd with weight-lesse weights, It never takes fresh horse, nor never baits.	Things that consist of th' Elements uniting, Are ever toss'd with an intestine fighting ; Whence springs, in time, their life and their deceasing, Their divers change, their waxing and decreasing : So that, of all that is, or may be seen With mortall eyes, under Night's horned Queen, Nothing retaineth the same form and face, Hardly the half of half an hour's space.	1090
Heaven not subject to alteration, as are the Elements.

Where life still lives, where God his ¹Sises holds Environ'd round with Seraphins and Souls
 Bought with his precious blood, whose glorious Flight
 Erst mounted Earth above the Heavens bright. 1100
 Nor shall my faint and humble Muse presume
 So high a Song and Subject to assume.

O fair, five-double Round, Sloth's Foe apparent,
 Life of the World, Daies', Months', and Yeers' own Parent ;

Thine own self's modell, never shifting place,
 And yet thy pure wings with so swift a pace
 Fly over us, that but our Thought alone
 Can (as thy babe) pursue thy motion :
 Infinite-finite : free from growth and grief,
 Discord and death ; dance-lover ; to be brief, 1110
 Still like thy self, all thine own in thee all,
 Transparent, cleer, light ; law of this low Ball :
 Which in thy wide bout, bound-lesse all dost bound,
 And claspest all, under, or in thy Round ;
 Throne of th' Almighty, I would faine rehearse
 Thy various Dances, in this very Verse,
 If it were time, and but my bounded Song
 Doubteth to make this Second-Day too-long.
 For, notwithstanding yet another Day
 I feare some Critick will not stick to say, 1120
 My babbling Muse did saile with ev'ry gale,
 And mingled yarn to length her web withall.

But know, what e'r thou be, that here I gather
 Justly so many of God's Works together,
 Because by th' Orbe of th' ample Firmament,
 (Which round This Day th' Eternal Finger pent Between the lower Waters and the higher)
 I mean, the Heav'ns, the Aire, and th' upper Fire,
 Which separate the Ocean's waters salt,
 From those which God pour'd o'r th' Ethereal vault. 1130

Yet have I not so little seen and sought
 The Volumes, which our Age hath chiefest thought,
 But that I know how subtly greatest Clerks
 Presume to argue in their learned Works,
 T' o'rwhelme these Floods, this Crystall to deface,
 And try this Ocean, which doth all imbrace.

But, as the beauty of a modest Dame,
 Who, well-content with Nature's comly Frame,
 And native Fair (as it is freely giv'n,
 In fit proportion by the hand of Heav'n) 1140
 Doth not, with painting, prank, nor set-it out
 With helps of Art, sufficient Fair without ;
 Is more praise-worthy then the wanton glance,
 Th' affected gate, th' alluring countenance,
 The Mart of Pride, the Periwigs and Painting,
 Whence Courtizans refresh their beauties fainting :
 So do I more the sacred Tongue esteem
 (Though plaine and rurall it doth rather seem,
 Then school'd Athenian ; and Divinity,
 For only varnish, have but Verity) 1150
 Then all the golden Wit-pride of Humanity,
 Wherewith men burnish their erroneous vanity.

¹ Assises.

I'll rather give a thousand times the lie
 To mine owne Reason, then but once defie
 The sacred voice of th' everlasting Spirit,
 Which doth so often and so loud averr-it,
 That God, above the shining Firmament,
 I wot not, I, what kind of Waters pent :
 Whether that pure, super-celestiall Water,
 With our inferiour have no likely nature : 1160
 Whether, turn'd Vapour, it hath round enbow'd
 Heav'n's highest Stage in a transparent Cloud :
 Or, whether (as they say) a Crystall Case
 Do round about the Heav'nly Orb embrace.

But, with conjectures, wherefore strive I thus ?
 Can doubtfull proofs the certainty discusse ?
 I see not why Man's reason should withstand,
 Or not beleeve, that He, whose pow'rfull hand
 Bay'd-up the Red-sea with a double Wall,
 That Israel's Hoast might scape Egyptian thrall, 1170
 Could prop as sure so many waves on high
 Above the Heav'ns' Star-spangled Canopy.

See we not hanging in the Clouds each hour
 So many Seas, still threatening down to pour,
 Supported only by th' Aire's agitation
 (Selfly too weak for the least weight's foundation) ?
 See wee not also, that this Sea below,
 Which round about our Earthly Globe doth flow,
 Remains still round ; and maugre all the surly
Eolian Slaves, and Water's hurly burly, 1180
 Dares not (to levell her proud liquid Heap)
 Never so little past her limits leap ?
 Why then beleeve we not, that upper Spear
 May (without falling) such an Ocean bear ?

Uncircumcised ! O hard hearts ! At least
 Let's think that God those Waters doth digest
 In that steep place : for, if that Nature here
 Can form firm Pearl and Crystall shining cleer
 Of liquid Substance ; let's beleeve it rather Much more in God (the Heav'ns' and Natur's Father) :
 Let us much more, much more let's poiz and ponder
 Th' Almighty's Works, and at his Wisdom wonder :
 Let us observe, and boldly-weigh it well,
 That this proud Palace where we rule and dwell
 (Though built with matchlesse Art) had fall'n long since,
 Had 't not been siel'd-round with moist Elements.
 For, like as (in Man's Little-world) the Brain
 Doth highest place of all our Frame retain,
 And tempers with its moistfull coldnesse so
 Th' excessive heat of other parts below : 1200
 Th' eternall Builder of this beauteous Frame
 To inter-mingle meetly Frost with Flame,
 And cool the great heat of the great-world's torches,
This-Day spread Water over heav'n's bright Arches.

These Seas (say they) leagu'd with the Seas below,
 Hiding the highest of the Mountains tho ;
 Had drown'd the whole World ; had not Noah builded
 A holy Vessell, where his House was shielded :
 Where, by direction of the King of kings,
 He sav'd a seed-pair of all living things. 1210

2. God's Word mentioneth waters before the Firmament.

Gen. 1. 7.
 Psal. 104. 3.
 Psal. 148. 4.

3. The Power of God ought to be of greater authority then man's reason.

4. The consideration of the Waters which hang in the Aire, and of the Sea which compasseth the Earth.

5. Divers effects continuall and admirable in Nature.

Taking occasion by his former discourse, hee treateth of the

He stoppeth at the contemplation and praise of the Heavens : Which hee considereth as distinguished into ten stages or Heavens.

The summe of what hath beene handled in this booke, and what is to be understood by the Firmament which Moses describeth in Gen. 1. 6.

Against those that think there are no Waters above the Firmament : Whom he confuteth by divers Reasons.

Simile.

1. The word of God to be preferred before the voice of man.

incounter of the upper Waters with the lower, whence followed the generall flood in the dayes of Noah : Which here he lively representeth.

No sooner shipp'd, but instantly the Lord
Down to th' Eolian dungeon him bestirr'd ;
There muzzled close Cloud-chasing Boreas,
And let loose Auster, and his lowering race,
Who soon set forward with a dropping wing ;
Upon their beard for ev'ry hair a Spring,
A night of Clouds muffed their brows about,
Their wattled locks gush'd all in Rivers out ;
And both their hands, wringing thick Clouds asunder,
Send forth fierce lightning, tempest, rain and thunder.
Brooks, lakes, and floods, rivers and foaming Torrents
Suddenly swell ; and their confus'd Currents,
Losing their old bounds, break a neerer way
To run at random with their spoils to Sea.
Th' earth shakes for fear, and sweating doth consume her,
And in her veins leaves not a drop of humor.
And thou thy selfe, O Heav'n, didst set wide ope
(Through all the Marches in thy spacious cope)
All thy large Sluces, thy vast Seas to shed
In sudden spouts on thy proud Sister's head ; 1230
Whose aw-lesse, law-lesse, shame-lesse life abhor'd,
Only delighted to despight the Lord.

Th' Earth shrinks and sinks ; now th' Ocean hath no shore :

Now Rivers run to serve the Sea no more ;
Themselves are Sea : the many sundry Streams,
Of sundry names (deriv'd from sundry Realms)
Make now but one great Sea : the World itself
Is nothing now but a great standing Gulf,
Whose swelling surges strive to mix their Water
With th' other Waves about this round Theater. 1240
The Sturgeon, coasting over Castles, muses
(Under the Sea) to see so many houses.
The Indian Manat, and the Mullet float
O'r Mountain tops, where erst the bearded Goat
Did bound and brouz : the crookèd Dolphin scuds
O'r th' highest branches of the hugest Woods.
Nought boots the Tigre, or the Hart, or Horse,
Or Hare, or Gray-hound, their swift speedy course ;
For, seeking land, the more they strain and breath thē,
The more (alas) it shrinks and sinks beneath them. 1250
The Otter, Tortoise, and fell Crocodile,
Which did enjoy a double house ere-while,
Must be content with only Water now.
The Wolf and Lamb, Lions and Bucks do row
Upon the Waters, side by side, suspectlesse.
The Glead and Swallow, labouring long (effect-less)
'Gainst certain death, with wearied wings fall down
(For want of Peach) and with the rest do drown.

And, for mankinde, imagine some get up
To some high Mountain's over-hanging top ; 1260
Some to a Towr, some to a Cedar-tree,
Whence round about a World of deaths they see :
But wheresoever their pale fears aspire
For hope of safety, Th' Ocean surgeth higher ;
And still-still mounting as they still do mount,
When they cease mounting, doth them soon surmount.
One therefore ventures on a Plank to row,
One in a Chest, another in a Trough :
Another, yet half-sleeping, scarce perceives
How's bed and breath, the Flood at once bereaves ; 1270
Another, lab'ring with his feet and hands,
A-while the fury of the Flood withstands,
(Which by his side hath newly drown'd his Mother,
His Wife, his Son, his Sister, Sire, and Brother) :
But tyr'd and spent, weary and wanting strength,
He needs must yeeld (too) to the Seas at length :
All, all must dye then. But ¹ th' imperiall Maids,
Who wont to use so sundry tools for aids,
In execution of their fatall slaughters,
Had only now the furious foaming Waters. 1280

Safely, the while, the sacred Ship did float
On the proud shoulders of that boundlesse-Moat,
Though Mast-less, Oar-less, and from Harbour far ;
For, God was both her Steers-man and her Star.
Thrice fifty dayes that Universall Flood
Wasted the World ; which then the Lord thought good
To re-erect, in his Compassion great,
No sooner sounds he to the Seas retreat,
But instantly wave into wave did sink
With sudden speed, all Rivers 'gan to shrink ; 1290
T' Ocean retires him to his wonted prison :
The Woods are seen ; the Mountain tops are risen
Out of their slimy bed : the Fields increase
And spread apace ; so fast the Waters cease.
And, briefly th' only thundering hand of God
Now earth to heav'n, heav'n unto earth re-show'd ;
That he again Panchoian Fumes might see
Sacred on Altars to his Majesty.

Lord, sith't hath pleas'd thee likewise, in our Age,
To save thy Ship from Tyrants' stormy rage, 1300
Increase in Number (Lord) thy little Flock ;
But more in Faith, to build on Thee, the Rock.

He concludeth with a most godly prayer, accommodated to the state of the Church in our time.

¹ Parca à non parcendo : The none-sparing Fates, that is to say, Death.

*So Morne and Even the Second Day conclude,
And God perceiv'd that All his Works were good.*

THE THIRD DAY OF THE FIRST WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The Sea, and Earth: their various Equipage:
Sever'd apart: Bounds of the Ocean's rage:
'T imbraceth Earth: it doth all Waters owe:
Why it is salt: How it doth Ebb and Flow:
Rare Streams and Fountaines of strange operation:
Earth's firmnesse, greatnesse, goodnesse: sharpe taxation
Of Bribes, Ambition, Treason, Avarice:
Trees, Shrubs, and Plants: Mines, Metals, Gemms of price:
Right use of Gold: the Load-stone's rare effects: 10
The Countrey-life preferr'd in all respects.*

From the Heaven and Regions of the Air, the Poet
descendeth to the Earth and Sea.

MY sacred Muse, that lately soared high,
Among the glistering Circles of the Sky,
(Whose various dance, which the first
Mover drives

Harmoniously, this Universe revives)
Commanding all the Winds and sulph'ry Storms,
The lightning Flashes, and the hideous Forms
Seen in the Aire; with language meetly brave
Whilom discours'd upon a Theme so grave:
But, This-Day, flagging lowly by the Ground, 20
Shee seems constrain'd to keep a lowly sound;
Or if, sometimes, she somewhat raise her voice,
The sound is drown'd with the rough Ocean's noyse.

He calleth upon the true God to be assisted in the description of these two Elements, and the things therein.

O King of grassie, and of glassie Plains,
Whose pow'ful breath (at thy dread will) constrains
The deep Foundations of the Hills to shake,
And Seas' salt billows 'gainst Heav'n's vaults to rake:
Grant me, To-Day, with skillfull Instruments
To bound aright these two rich Elements:
In learn'd Numbers teach me sing the Natures 30
Of the firm Earth, and of the floating Waters;
And with a flowing stile the Flowrs to limn,
Whose colours now shall paint the Fields so trim.

All those steep Mountains, whose high horned tops
The misty cloak of wandring Clouds enwraps,
Under first Waters their crump shoulders hid,
And all the Earth as a dull Pond abid,
Untill th' All-Monarch's bounteous Majesty
(Willing t' enfeof man this World's Empery)
Commanding Neptune straight to marshal forth 40
His Floods a-part, and to unfold the Earth;
And, in his Waters, now contented rest,
T' have all the World, for one whole day, possess.

God in this third Day gathers together the Waters, and separates them from the Earth.

As when the muffled Heav'ns have wept amain,
And foaming streams assembling on the Plain,
Turn'd Fields to Floods; soon as the shows do cease,
With unseen speed the Deluge doth decrease,
Sups up itselfe, in hollow sponges sinks,
And 's ample arms in straiter Channell shrinks: 50
Ev'n so the Sea, to 'tself itself betook,

By an apt comparison hee shew-
eth how the Water withdrew from off
the Earth.

Mount after Mount, Field after Field forsook;
And suddenly, in smaller Cask did tun
Her Waters, that from every side did run:
Whether th' imperfect Light did first exhale
Much of that primer humor, wherewithall
God, on the Second-Day, might frame and found
The Chrystal Spheres that he hath spread so round:
Whether th' Almighty did new place provide
To lodge the Waters: whether op'ning wide 60
Th' Earth's hollow pores it pleas'd him to convey Deep under ground some Arms of such a Sea:
Or whether, pressing water's gloomy Globe,
That cov'red all (as with a cloudy Robe)
He them impris'ned in those bounds of brasse,
Which (to this day) the Ocean dares not passe
Without his licence. For, th' Eternall, knowing
The Sea's commotive and inconstant flowing,
Thus curb'd her; and 'gainst her envious rage,
For-ever fenc'd our Flowry-mantled Stage:

50

Of the lodging and bed of the Sea.

The Sea kept within her bound.

by the Almighty power of God.

So that we often see those rowling Hills, 70
With roaring noyse threatning the neighbour Fields,
Through their own spite to split upon the shore,
Foaming for fury that they dare no more.

For, what could not that great, high Admirall
Work in the Waves, sith, at his Servant's call,
His dreadfull voice (to save his ancient Sheep)
Did cleave the bottom of th' Erythraan Deep?
And toward the Crystall of his double source
Compell'd Jordan to retreat his course?
Drown'd with a Deluge the rebellious World? 80
And from dry Rocks abundant Rivers purld?

Exod. 14. 11.
Josh. 3. 16.
Gen. 7. 21.
Exod. 17. 6.

A fit Simile shewing the winding turns of the Sea about the Earth.

Lo, thus the weighty Water did ere-while
With winding turns make all this World an Ile.
For, like as moulten Lead being poured forth
Upon a levell plat of sand or earth,
In many fashions mazeth to and fro ;
Runs here direct, there crookedly doth go,
Here doth divide itselfe, there meets again ;
And the hot Riv'let of the liquid vaine,
On the smooth table crawling like a Worm, 90
Almost (in th' instant) ev'ry form doth form :
God pour'd the Waters on the fruitfull Ground
In sundry figures ; some in fashion round,
Som square, som cross, som long, som losenge-wise,
Some triangles, som large, som lesser size
Amid the Floods (by this fair difference)
To give the World more wealth and excellence.
Such is the German Sea, such Persian Sine,
Such th' Indian Gulf, and such th' Arabian Brine,
And such Our Sea : whose divers-branch'd¹ retortions,
Divide the World in three unequal portions.

The arms of the Sea distinguished into smaller members, with commodities and use thereof.

And, though each of these Arms (how large soever)
To the great Ocean seems a little River :
Each makes an hundred sundry Seas besides
(Not sundry 'n Waters, but in Names and Tides)
To moisten kindly, by their secret Veins,
The thirsty thicknesse of the neighbour Plains :
To bulwark Nations, and to serve for fences
Against th' invasion of Ambitious Prinoes :
To bound large Kingdomes with eternall limits : 110
To further traffick through all Earthly Climates :
T' abridge long Journies ; and with aide of Winde
Within a Month to visit either Inde.

A Catalogue of most of the most famous Rivers in the World.

But, th' Earth not only th' Ocean's debter is
For these large Seas ; but owes him Tandis,
Nile (Agypt's treasure) and his neighbour stream
That in the Desart (through his haste extrem)
Loseth himselfe so oft ; swift Euphrates ;
And th' other proud Son of cold Niphates :
Fair spacious Ganges, and his famous Brother, 120
That lends his name unto their noble Mother :
Gold-sanded Tagus, Rhyna, Rhona, Volga, Tiber,
Danubius, Albis, Po, Sein, Arne, and Iber ;
The Darian Plate, and Amazonian River

¹ Windings.

Our silver Medway (which doth deep indent
The Flouvie Meadows of My native KENT ;
Still sadly weeping (under Pensherst Walls)
Th' Arcadian Cygnet's bleeding Funeralls)
Our Thames and Tweed, our Severn, Trent and Humber, 130

And many moe, too infinite to number.
Of him she also holds her silver Springs,
And all her hidden Crystall Riverlings :
And after (greatly) in two sorts repayes
Th' humour she borrows by two sundry wayes.
For, like as in a Limbeck, th' heat of Fire
Raiseth a Vapour, which still mounting higher
To the Still's top ; when th' odoriferous sweat Above that Miter can no further get,
It softly thickning, falleth drop by drop, 140
And, cleer as Crystall, in the glasse doth hop ;
The purest humour in the Sea, the Sun
Exhales in th' Aire : which there resolv'd, anon,
Returns to Water ; and descends again,
By sundry wayes, unto his Mother Main.

Fountaines, Springs and Rivers welling out of the Earth

A Simile shewing how the waters of the Earth are exhaled by the Sun, and then poured into the Sea. 140

For, the dry Earth, having these waters (first)
Through the wide sieve of her void entrails sierst ;
Giving more room, at length from rocky mountains
She, night and day pours forth a thousand fountaines :
These fountaines make fresh brooks, with murm'ring currents ; 150

How the Fountaines come to break forth of the earth.

These murm'ring Brooks, the swift and violent Torrents ;
These violent torrents, mighty Rivers ; these,
These Rivers, make the vast, deep, dreadfull Seas.

And all the highest Heav'n-approaching Rocks
Contribute hither with their snowie locks :
For, soon as Titan,—having run his Ring,
To th' ycie Climates—bringeth back the Spring ;
On their rough backs he melts the hoary heaps,
Their tops grow green ; and down the water leaps
On every side ; it foams, it roares, it rushes, 160
And through the steep and stony hills it gushes,
Making a thousand brooks ; whereof, when one
Perceives his fellow striving to be gone,
Hasting his course, he him accompanies ;
After, another and another hies,
All in one race ; joint-losing all of them
Their Names and Waters in a greater Stream :
And he that robs them, shortly doth deliver
Himselfe and his into a larger River ;

The increasing of Brooks and Rivers, and of their falling into the Sea.

And that, at length, however great and large, 170
(Lord of the Plain) doth in some Gulf discharge
His parent-Tribute to Oceanus,
According to th' Eternall Rendes-vous.
Yet, notwithstanding, all these Streams that enter
In the Main Sea, do nought at all augment her :

Why the Sea receiveth no increase of all the Waters that fall therein.

For that, besides that all these Floods in one,
Match'd with great Neptune, seem as much as none ;
The Sun (as erst I said) and Windes withall,
Sweeping the sur-face of the Brinie-Ball,
Extract as much still of her humours thin, 180
As weeping Aire, and welling Earth pours in.

But, as the sweltring heat, and shiv'ring cold,
Gnashing and sweat, that th' Ague-sick do hold,
Come not at hazzard, but in time and order
Afflict the body with their fell disorder :
The Sea hath fits,¹ alternate course she keeps,
From Deep to Shore, and from the Shore to Deep.
Whether it were, that at the first, the Ocean
From God's owne hand receiv'd this double motion,
By means whereof, it never resteth stound, 190
But (as a turning Whirl-gig goes round)
Whirls of itselfe, and good-while after takes Strength of the strength which the first motion makes :
Whether the Sea, which we Atlantick call,
Be but a piece of the Grand Sea of all ;
And that his Floods, entering the ample Bed
Of the deep Main (with fury hurried Against the Rocks) repulsed with disdain,
Be thence compell'd to turn back again :
Or whether Cynthia, that with changefull laws 200
Commands moist bodies, doth this motion cause :
As on our Shore, we see the Sea to rise
Soon as the Moon begins to mount our Skies.
And when, through Heav'n's Vault vailing toward Spain,
The Moone descendeth, then it Ebbs again.
Again, so soon as her inconstant Crown
Begins to shine on th' other Horison,
It flows again : and then again it falls
When she doth light th' other Meridionals.
We see moreover, that th' Atlantick Seas 210
Doe Flow far farther than the Genoese,
Or both the Bosphor's ; and that Lakes, which growe
Out of the Sea, do neither Ebb nor Flowe :
Because (they say) the silver-fronted Star,
That swells and shrinks the Seas (as pleaseth her)
Pours with less pow'r her plenteous influence
Upon these straight and narrow-stream'd Fennes,
And In-land Seas, which many a Mount immounds,
Then on an Ocean vast and void of bounds :
Even as in Summer, her great brother's Eye, 220
When Winds be silent, doth more eas'ly dry
Wide-spreading Plains, open and spacious Fields,
Then narrow Vales vaulted about with Hills.
If we perceive not in the Deep, so well
As by the Shore, when it doth shrinke and swell ;
Our sprightfull Pulse the Tide doth well resemble,
Whose out-side seems more then the midst to tremble.
Nor is the glorious Prince of Stars less mighty
Then his pale Sister, on vast Amphitrité.
For, Phabus, boyling with his lightsom Heat 230
The Fish-full Waves of Neptune's Royall Seat,
And supping up still (with his thirsty Rayes)
All the fresh humour in the floating Seas,
In Thetis's large Cels leaveth nought behind,
Save liquid Salt, and a thick bitter Brine.
But see (the while) see how the Sea (I pray)
Through thousand Seas hath carried me away,

¹ Of the Ebbing and Flowing of the Sea : and sundry causes thereof.

In feare t' have drown'd my selfe and Readers so,
The Floods so made my words to over-flowe.
Therefore a-shore ; and on the tender Lee 240
Of Lakes, and Pools, Rivers, and Springs, let 's see
The Sovrain vertues of their severall Waters,
Their strange effects, and admirable natures,
That with incredible rare force of theirs,
Confound our wits, ravish our eyes and ears.
Th' Hammonian Fount, while Phabus' Torch is light, 240
Is cold as Yce ; and (opposite) all night
(Though the cold Crescent shine thereon) is hot,
And boiles and bubbles like a seething pot.
They say (forsooth) the River Silarnus, 250
And such another, call'd Eurimemus,
Convert the boughs, the barke, the leaves, and all,
To very stone that in their Waters fall.
O ! Should I blanch the Yewes' religious River,
Which every Sabbath dries his Channell over ;
Keeping his Waves from working on that Day
Which God ordain'd a sacred Rest for ay ?
If neere unto the Eleusinian Spring,
Som sport-full Jig som wanton Shepheard sing,
The Ravisht Fountaine falls to daunce and bound, 260
Keeping true Cadence to his rustick sound.
Cerona, Xanth, and Cephisus, doe make
The thirsty-Flocks that of their Waters take,
Black, red, and white : And, neer the crimson Deep,
Th' Arabian Fountain maketh crimson Sheep :
Salonian Fountain, and thou Andrian Spring,
Out of what Cellers do you daily bring
The Oyle and Wine that you abound with, so ?
O Earth ! Do these within thine entrals grow ?
What ? be there Vines and Orchards under ground ? 270
Is Bacchus' Trade, and Pallas' Art there found ?
What should I of th' Illirian Fountain tell ?
What shall I say of the Dodonian Well ?
Whereof, the first sets any clothes on-fire ;
Th' other doth quench (Who but will this admire ?)
A burning Torch ; and when the same is quenched,
Lights it again, if it again be drenched.
Sure, in the Legend of absurdest Fables
I should enroll most of these admirables ;
Save for the reverence of th' unstain'd credit 280
Of many a Witnes where I yerst have read it :
And saving that our gain-spurr'd Pilots finde,
In our dayes, Waters of more wondrous kinde.
Of all the Sources infinite to count,
Which to an ample Volume would amount,
Far hence on Forein unfrequented Coast,
I'le onely chuse som five or six at most,
Strange to report, perhaps believ'd of few ;
And yet no more incredible then true.
In th' Ile of Iron (one of those same Seav'n 290 Whereto our Elders¹ Happy name had giv'n)
The Savage people never drinke the streams
Of Wells and Rivers (as in other Realms)
Their drink is in the Aire ; their gushing spring
A weeping Tree out of itselfe doth wring :

A Tree, whose tender-bearded Root being spread
In dryest sand, his sweating Leafe doth shed
A most sweet liquor ; and (like as the Vine
Untimely cut, weeps (at her wound) her Wine,
In pearled tears) incessantly distills 300
A Crystall stream, which all their Cisterns fills,
Through all the Iland : for, all hither by ;
And all their vessels cannot draw it dry.
In frosty Islands are two Fountains strange :
Th' one flowes with Wax ; the other stream doth

change
All into Iron ; yet with scalding steam
In thousand bubbles belcheth up her stream.

In golden Peru, neere Saint Helen's Mount,
A stream of Pitch coms from a springing Fount.

What more remains? That New-found World, besides,
Toward the West many a fair River guides ;
Whose floating Waters (knowing th' use aright
Of Work-fit Day, and Rest-ordained Night,
Better then men) run, swiftly, all the Day ;
But rest all Night, and stir not any way.

Great Engineer, Almighty Architect,
I fear, of Envie I should be suspect,
Envie of thy renoun and sacred glory,

If my ungratefull Rimes should blanch the Story
Of Streams, distilling through the Sulphur-Mines, 320
Through Bitumen, Allom, and Nitre veins ;
Which (perfect Leaches) with their vertues cure
A thousand Grievs we mortals here endure ;
Old in the April of our age therewith,
Whose rigour strives to ante-date our death.

Now, as my happy Gascony excels,
In Corne, Wine, Warriours, every Country els ;
So doth she also in free Bathes abound ;
Where strangers flock from every part around.

The barren womb, the Palsie-shaken wight, 330
Th' ulcerous, gowtie, deaf, and decrepit,
From East and West arriving, fetch from hence
Their ready help with small or no expence.

Witness Ancassa, Cand rets, Aiguescald,
Barege, Baigners ; Baigners, the pride of all,
The pride, the praise, the only Paradise
Of all those Mountaines mounting to the Skies,

Where yerst the Gaulian Hercules begot
(Wanton Alcmena's Bastard, meane I not) 340
On faire Pirene (as the fame doth go)
The famous Father of the Gascons ; who
By noble deeds do worthily averr
Their true descent from such an Ancestor.

On th' one side, Hills hoar'd with eternall Snowes,
And craggy Rocks Baigneres doe inclose :

The other side is sweetly compast-in
With fragrant skirts of an immortall Green,
Whose smiling beauties far excell, in all,
The famous praise of the Penetian Vale :

There's not a House, but seemeth to be new ; 350
Th' even-slated Roofs reflect with glistening blew.
To keep the pavement ever cleane and sweet,
A Crystall River runs through every Street,

Whose Silver stream, as cold as Yce, doth slide
But little off the Physick Water's side ;
Yet keeps his nature, and disdaines, a jot
To intermix his cold with th' other's hot.

But all these wonders, that adorn my Verse,
Yet come not neer unto the wondrous Lers.

If it be true, that the Stagyrian Sage, 360
(With shame confus'd, and driv'n with desperate rage)

Because his reason could not reach the knowing
Of Euripus his seav'n-fold Ebbing-flowing,
Leapt in the same, and there his life did end,

Compriz'd in that he could not comprehend :
What had he done, had he beheld the Fountain,

Which springs at Belestat, neere the famous Mountain
Of Foix ? whose floods, bathing Maserian Plains, 370
Furnish with wood the wealthy Tholousains.

As oft as Phabus (in a complete Race) 370
On both th' Horizons shewes his radiant Face,

This wondrous Brook (for four whole months) doth Flow,
Four-times-six-times, and Ebbs as oft as low :

For halfe an houre may dry-shod passe that list ;
The next halfe houre, may none his course resist :

Whose foaming stream strives proudly to compare (Even in the birth) with Fame-fullst Floods that are.

O learned (Nature-taught) Arithmetician !
Clock-less, so just to measure Time's partition.

And little LAMBE'S-BOURN, though thou match not Lers, 380

Nor had'st the Honour of DUBARTAS' Verse ;
If mine have any, Thou must needs partake

Both for thine Owne, and for thine Owner's sake ;
Whose kind Excesses Thee so neerly touch,

That Yeerely for them thou doost weepe so much,
All Summer-long (while all thy Sisters shrinke)

That of thy teares a million daily drinke ;
Besides thy waste, which then in haste doth run

To wash the feet of CHAUCER'S Donnington :
But (while the rest are full unto the top) 390

All Winter-long, Thou never show'st a drop,
Nor send'st a doit of need-less Subsidie,

To Cramm the Kennet's Want-less Treasurie,
Before her Store be spent, and springs be staid :

Then, then alone Thou lend'st a liberrall Aid ;
Teaching thy wealthy Neighbours (Mine of late)

How, When, and Where to right-participate
Their streams of Comfort, to the poore that pine,

And not to greas still the too-greasy Swine :
Neither for fame, nor forme (when others doo) 400

To give a Morsel, or a mite or two ;
But severally, and of a selfy motion,

When others miss, to give the most devotion.

Most wisely did th' eternall All-Creator
Dispose these Elements of Earth and Water :

For, sith th' one could not without drink subsist,
Nor th' other without stay, bottom and list ;

God intermixt them so, that th' Earth her brest
Op'ning to the Ocean, th' Ocean winding prest

About the Earth, a-thwart, and under it : 410

For, the World's Center, both together fit.

Of the most wondrous of Belestat.

Of Baths and Medicinable
Waters.

Of the excellent
Bathes in Gascony.

The intermeddling of the Earth and Sea, and of the commodities thence arising,
and contrariwise
of the confusion
that would follow,
if they were separated.

For, if their mixt Globe held not certainly
Just the just midd'st of the World's Axle-tree,
All Climats then should not be serv'd aright
With equall Counterpois of day and night :
The Horizon's li-levell'd circle wide,
Would fag too-much on th' one, or th' other side :
Th' Antipodes, or wee, at once should take
View of more Signes then halfe the Zodiack :
The Moon's Eclipses would not then be certain, 420
And settled Seasons would be then uncertain.

This also serveth for probation sound,
That th' Earth and Water's mingled Mass is Round,
Round as a Ball ; seeing on every side
The Day and Night successively to slide.
Yea, though Vespusio (famous Florentine)
Marke Pole, and Columb, brave Italian Trine,
Ours (Spain's Dread) Drake, Candish, and Cumberland,
Most valiant Earle, most worthy High Command,
And thousand gallant modern Typhes else, 430
Had never brought the North-Pole's Parallels
Under the South ; and, sayling still about,
So many New-worlds under us found out.
Nay, never could they th' Articks Pole have lost,
Nor found th' Antarctick, if in every coast
Seas' liquid Glass round-bow'd not every where,
With sister Earth, to make a perfect Sphear.

But, perfect Artist, with what Arches strong,
Props, Stales, and Pillars, hast thou stay'd so long
This hanging, thin, sad, slippery Water-Ball 440
From falling out, and over-whelming all ?
May it not be (good Lord) because the Water
To the World's Center tendeth still by nature ;
And toward the bottom of this bottom bound,
Willing to fall, doth yet remain still round ?
Or may 't not be, because the surly Banks
Keep Waters captive in their hollow flanks ?
Or that our Seas be buttreat (as it were)
With thousand Rocks dispers'd here and there ?
Or rather, Lord, is 't not Thine onely Powr 450
That bows it round about Earth's branchy Bowr ?

Doubtless (great God) 'tis doubtless thine owne hand
Wheron this Mansion of Mankind doth stand ;
For, though it hang in th' Aire, swim in the Water,
Though every way it be a round Theater,
Though All turn round about it, though for ay
Itself's Foundations with swift motions play,
It rests un-moveable, that th' Holy Race
Of Adam there may find fit dwelling place.

The Earth receives man when he first is born : 460
Th' Earth nurses him ; and when he is forlorn
Of th' other Elements, and Nature loaths-him,
Th' Earth in her bosom with kind burial cloaths-him.
Of hath the Aire with Tempest set-upon-us,
Of hath the Water with her Floods undon-us,
Of hath the Fire (th' upper as well as ours)
With wofull flames consum'd our Towns and Towns :
Onely the Earth, of all the Elements,
Unto Mankind is kind without offence :

Onely the Earth did never jot displace 470
From the first seat assign'd it by thy grace.

Yet true it is (good Lord) that mov'd somtimes
With wicked peoples execrable crimes,
The wrathfull power of thy right hand doth make,
Not all the Earth, but part of it to quake,
With ayd of Windes : which (as imprisoned deep)
In her vast entrails, furious murmurs keep.
Fear chills our hearts (what heart can feare dissemble ?)
When steeples stagger, and huge mountains tremble
With wind-less wind, and yawning Hell devours 480
Somtimes whole Cities with their shining Towns.

Sith then, the Earth's and Water's blended Ball
Is center, heart, and navell of this All ;
And sith (in reason) that which is included,
Must needs be less then that which doth include it ;
'Tis questionless, the Orb of Earth and Water
Is the least Orb in all the All-Theater.

Let any judge, whether this lower Ball
(Whose endless greatness we admire so, all)
Seem not a point compar'd with th' upper Sphear 490
Whose turning turns the rest in their Career ;
Sith the least Star that we perceive to shine,
Above disperst in th' Arches crystalline
(If, at the least, Star-Clarks be credit worth)
Is eightene times bigger then all the Earth :
Whence, if we but subtract what is possest
(From North to South, and from the East to West)

Under the Empire of the Ocean
Atlantick, Indian, and American ;
And thousand huge Arms issuing out of these, 500
With infinites of other Lakes and Seas :
And also what the two intemperate Zones
Doe make unfit for habitations ;
What will remaine ? Ah ! nothing (in respect) :
Lo here, O men ! Lo wherefore you neglect
Heav'n's glorious Kingdom : Lo the largest scope
Glory can give to your ambitious hope !

O Princes (subjects unto pride and pleasure)
Who (to enlarge, but a hair's-breadth, the measure
Of your Dominions) breaking Oaths of Peace, 510
Cover the Fields with bloudy Carcases !
O Magistrates, who (to content the Great)
Make sale of Justice, on your sacred Seat !
And, breaking Laws for Bribes, profane your Place,
To leave a Leek to your unthankfull Race !
You strict Extorters, that the poor oppress,
And wrong the Widdow and the Father-less,
To leave your Off-spring rich (of others' good)
In Houses built of Rapine and of Blood)
You City-Vipers, that (incestuous) joyn 520
Use upon use, begetting Coyn of Coyn !
You Marchant Mercers, and Monopolites,
Gain-greedy Chap-men, perjur'd Hypocrites,
Dissembling Broakers, made of all deceits,
Who falsifie your Measures and your Weights
'T inrich your selves, and your unthrifty Sons
To Gentilize with proud possessions !

The Masse of the Earth and Water together make a perfect Globe.

How it cometh
to passe that the Sea is not flat nor levell ; but rising round and bow'd about the Earth.

The second part of this third Book
intreating of the Element of Earth, and first of the firmness thereof.

Earth is the Mother, Nurse, and Hostesse of Mankind.

Of Earthquakes,
and of the opening of the Earth.

The Globe of the Earth and Sea, is but as a little point in comparison of the great circumference of Heaven.

Sith by the Doctrines of Astronomers, the least Starre in the firmament is 18 times bigger then all the Earth.

By consideration
whereof, the Poet taketh occasion to censure sharply
the Ambition,
Bribery, Usury,
Extortion,
Deceit, and generall Cove-tousness of Mankind.

You that for gaine betray your gracious Prince,
Your native Country, or your deereſt Friends !
You that to get you but an inch of ground, 530
With curſed hands, remove your neighbour's bound,
(The ancient bounds your Anceſtors have ſet)
What gaine you all ? alas ! what do you get ?
Yea, though a King by wile or war had won
All the round Earth to his ſubjection ;
Lo here the Guerdon of his glorious pains,
A needle's point, a Mote, a Mite he gains,
A Nit, a Nothing (did he All poſſeſs) ;
Or if then Nothing any thing be leſs.

When God, whoſe words more in a moment can, 540
Then in an Age the proudeſt ſtrength of Man,
Had ſever'd the Floods, levell'd the Fields,
Embaſ't the Valleys, and Emboſt the Hills ;
Change, change (quoth he) O fair and firmeſt Globe,
Thy mourning weed, to a green gallant Robe ;
Cheer thy ſad brows, and ſtately garniſh them
With a rich, fragrant, flowry Diadem ;
Lay forth thy locks and paint thee (Lady-like)
With freſheſt colours on thy ſallow cheek.
And let from henceforth thy abundant breſts 550
Not onely Nurse thy own Womb's native gueſts,
But frankly furniſh with fit nourishments
The future folk of th' other Elements ;
That Aire, and Water, and the Angels' Court,
May all ſeem jealous of thy praiſe and port.

No ſooner ſpoken, but the lofty Pine
Diſtilling-pitch, the Larch yeeld-Turpentine,
Th' ever-green Box, and gummy Cedar, ſprout,
And th' Airy Mountains mantle round about :
The Maſt-full Oke, the uſe-full Aſh, the Holm, 560
Coat-changing Cork, white Maple, ſhady Elm,
Through Hill and Plain rang'd their plum'd Ranks.
The winding Rivers bordered all their banks
With ſlice-Sea Alders, and green Oſiars ſmall,
With trembling Poplars, and with Willows pale,
And many trees beſide, fit to be made
Fewell, or Timber, or to ſerve for Shade.

The dainty Apricock (of Plums the Prince)
The velvet Peach, gilt Orange, downy Quince,
All-ready beare grav'n in their tender barks, 570
God's powerfull providence in open marks.
The ſent-sweet Apple, and aſtringent Pear,
The Cherry, Filberd, Wal-nut, Meddeler,
The milky Fig, the Damſon black and white,
The Date, and Olive, ayding appetite,
Spread every-where a moſt delightfull ſpring,
And every-where a very Eden bring.

Here, the fine Pepper, as in cluſters hung :
There Cinamon, and other Spices, ſprung.
Here, dangled Nutmegs, that for thrifty pains 580
Yearly repay the Bandans wondrous gains ;
There grows (th' Hesperian Plant) the precious
Reed
Whence Sugar ſirrops in abundance bleed ;
There weeps the Balm, and famous Trees from whence
Th' Arabians fetch perfuming Frankinſence.

There, th' amorous Vine calls in a thouſand ſorts
(With winding arms) her Spouſe that her ſupports :
The Vine, as far inferiour to the reſt
In beauty, as in bounty paſt the beſt :
Whoſe ſacred liquor, temperately ta'en, 590
Revives the ſpirits, and purifies the brain ;
Cheers the ſad heart, increaſeth kindly heat,
Purgeſh groſs bloud, and doth the pure beget ;
Strengthens the ſtomack, and the colour mends,
Sharpenſ the Wit and doth the bladder cleanſe ;
Opens obſtructions, excrements expels,
And eaſeth us of many Languors elſ.

And though through Sin (wherby from Heav'nly ſtate
Our Parents barr'd us) th' Earth degenerate
From her firſt beauty, bearing ſtill upon her 600
Eternall Scarrs of her fond Lord's diſhonour :
Though, with the World's age, her weak age decay,
Though ſhe becom leſs fruitfull every day
(Much like a Woman with oft-teeming worn ;
Who, with the Babes of her own body born,
Having almoſt ſtor'd a whole Towne with people,
At length becomes barren, and faint, and feeble)
Yet doth ſhee yeeld matter enough to ſing
And praiſe the Maker of ſo rich a Thing.

Never mine eyes in pleaſant Springs behold 610
The Azure Flax, the gilden Marigold,
The Violet's purple, the ſweet Rose's ſtammell,
The Lillie's ſnowe, and Panſey's various ammel ;
But that (in them) the Painter I admire,
Who in more Colours doth the Fields attire,
Then freſh Aurora's roſie cheeks diſplay,
When in the Eaſt ſhe Uſhers a fair day :
Or Iris Bowe, which, bended in the Sky,
Boades fruitfull dews when as the Fields be dry.

Here (ſaith S. BARTAS) give thy Servant leave 620
In thy rich Garland one rare Flower to weave,
Whoſe wondrous nature had more worthy beſt
Of thy divine immortalizing Pen :
But, from thy ſight, when SEIN did ſwell with bloud,
It ſunk (perhaps) under the Crimſin Flood
(When Beldam Medices, Valois, and Guize, Stain'd Hymen's Robe with Heathen cruelties)
Beaſe the Sun, to ſhun ſo vile a view,
His Chamber kept, and wept with Bartholmew.

For ſo, ſo ſoon as in the Western Seas 630
Apollo ſinks, in ſilver Euphrates
The Lotos dives, deeper and deeper ay
Till mid-night : then, remounteth toward Day :
But not above the Water, till the Sun
Doth re-aſcend above the Horizon.
So ever true to Titan's radiant Flame,
That (Riſe he, Fall he) it is Still the ſame.
A Reall Emblem of her Royall Honour
That worthily did take that Word upon her ;
Sacred ELIZA, that enſu'd no leſs 640
Th' eternall Sun of Peace and Righteouſneſs ;
Whoſe lively lamp (what ever did beſide-her)
In either Fortune was her onely Guider.

Of the Vines, and the excellent uſe of Wine temperately taken.

He preventeth an objection, and ſheweth that notwithstanding man's fall, the Earth yeeldeth us matter enough to praiſe and magnifie her Maker. Simile.

Of Flowers.

An addition by the Tranſlator, of the rare Sun-loving Lotos.

Semper eadem :

God having diſcovered the Earth, commands it to bring forth every green thing, herbs, trees, flowers, and fruits.

Of trees growing in Mountains and in Valleys.

Of Fruit-trees.

Of Shrubs.

Tamarice. The Swine, that feed in Troughs of Tamarice, Consume their spleen. The like effect there is Finger-ferne. In Finger-Ferne; which, being given to Swine,
 It makes their Milt to melt away in fine,
 With ragged tooth choosing the same so right 760
 Of all their Tripes to serve it's appetite.
 And Horse, that, feeding on the grassie Hills,
 Tread upon *Moon-wort*¹ with their hollow heels;
 Though lately shod, at night goe bare-foot home.
 Their Master musing where their shoes become.
 O Moon-wort! tell us where thou hid'st the Smith,
 Hammer, and Pincers, thou unshoo'st them with?
 Alas! what Lock or Iron Engine is 't
 That can thy subtle secret strength resist,
 Sith the best Farrier cannot set a shoe 770
 So sure, but thou (so shortly) canst unshoe?
 But, I suppose not that the earth doth yeeld
 In Hill or Dale, in Forrest or in Field,
 A rarer Plant then *Candian*² Dittanie;
 Which wounded Dear eating, immediately
 Not onely cures their wounds exceeding well,
 But 'gainst the Shooter doth the shaft repell.
 Moreover (Lord) is 't not a Work of thine
 That every where, in every Turfe we find 780
 Such multitude of other Plants to spring,
 In form, effect, and colour differing?
 And each of them in their due Seasons ta'en,
 To one is Physick, to another baen:
 Now gentle, sharp anon: now good, then ill:
 What cureth now, the same anon doth kill.
 Th' Hearb *Sagapen*³ serves the slowe Asse for meat;
 But, kills the Ox, if of the same he eat.
 So branched *Hemlock*⁴ for the Stares is fit;
 But, death to man, if he but taste of it.
 And *Oleander*⁵ unto beasts is poyson;
 But, unto man a speciall counter-poyson.
 What ranker poyson, what more deadly baen
 Then *Aconite*⁶, can there be toucht or ta'en?
 And yet his juice best cures the burning bit
 Of stinging Serpents, if apply'd to it.
 O valiant Venome! O courageous Plant!
 Disdainfull poyson! noble combatant!
 That scorneth ayd, and loves alone to fight,
 That none partake the glory of his might!
 For, if he finde our bodies fore-possesst 800
 With other poyson, then he lets us rest;
 And with his Rivall enters secret Duell,
 One to one, strong to strong, cruell to cruell;
 Still fighting fierce, and never over-give
 Till they both dying, give Man leave to live.
 And, to conclude, whether I walke the Fields,
 Rush through the Woods, or clamber up the Hills,
 I finde God every-where: Thence all depend,
 He giveth frankly what we thanfully spend.
 Here for our food, Millions of flow'ry grains, 810
 With long Mustachoes, wave upon the Plains;

Great variety in colour and form of Plants, and strange contrariety of effects, according to the bodies that they work upon.

Here thousand fleeces, fit for Prince's Robes:
 In Serean Forrests hang in silken Globes:
 Here shrubs of Malta (for my meaner use)
 The fine white bals of Bombace do produce:
 Here th' azure-flower'd Flax is finely spun
 For finest Linnen, by the Belgian Nun:
 Here fatall Hemp, which Denmark doth afford,
 Doth furnish us with Canvass, and with Cord,
 Cables and Sayles; that, Winds assisting either, 820
 We may acquaint the East and West together,
 And dry-foot dance on Neptune's Watry Front,
 And, in adventure, lead whole Town's upon 't.
 Here of one grain of Mais,¹ a Reed doth spring,
 That thrice a year, five hundred grains doth bring;
 Which (after) th' Indian's parch, and pun, and knead,
 And thereof make them a most wholesome bread.

Of Grain, Silke Cotton-Wool (or Bombace) Flax and Hemp, which the Earth produceth.

Th' Almighty Voyce, which built this mighty Ball,
 Still, still rebounds and echoes over all:
 That, that alone, yearly the World revives;
 Through that alone, all springs, all lives, all thrives:
 And that alone makes, that our mealy grain
 Our skilfull Seed-man scatters not in vain;
 But being covered by the tooth-full Harrow,
 Or hid awhile under the folded Furrow,
 Rots to revive; and, warmly-wet, puts forth
 His root beneath, his bud above the Earth;
 Enriching shortly with his springing Crop,
 The ground with green, the Husbandman with hope:
 The bud becomes a blade, the blade a reed,
 The reed an eare, the eare another seed: 840
 The seed, to shut the wastefull Sparrows out
 (In Harvest) hath a stand of Pikes about,
 And chaffie Huskes in hollow Cods inclose-it;
 Lest heat, wet, wind, should roste, or rot, or lose-it;
 And lest the straw should not sustaine the eare,
 With knotty joynts 'tis sheathed here and there.

An exact description of the growing of wheat and other like kinds of graine.

Pardon me (Reader) if thy ravisht Eyes
 Have seen To-Day too great varieties
 Of Trees, of Flowrs, of Fruits, of Hearbs, of Grains, 850
 In these my Groves, Meads, Orchards, Gardens, Plains;
 Sith th' Ile of Zebul's admirable Tree
 Beareth a fruit (call'd Cocos commonly)
 The which alone, far richer Wonders yeelds
 Then all our groves, meads, orchards, gardens, fields.
 What? wouldst thou drink? the wounded leaves drop wine.

Of the Indian Cocos a most admirable fruit,

Lack'st thou fine linnen? dress the tender rine,
 Dress it like Flax, spin it, and weave it well,
 It shall thy Cambrick and thy Lawn excell.
 Long'st thou for Butter? bite the poulpy part, 860
 And never better came to any Mart.
 Needest thou Oyle? then bolt it to and fro,
 And passing oyle it soon becometh so.
 Or Vineger, to whet thine appetite?
 Then sun it well, and it will sharply bite.
 Or want'st thou Sugar? steep the same a stound,
 And sweeter Sugar is not to be found.

'Tis what you will : or will be what you would :
Should Mydas touch't (I think) it would be Gold. 870
And God (I think) to crown our life with joyes,
The Earth with plenty, and his name with praise,
Had done enough, if he had made no more
But this one Plant so full of wondrous store :
Save that, the World (where one thing breeds satiety)
Could not be fair, without so great variety.

But, th' Earth not onely on her back doth bear Abundant treasures glistring every where (As glorious unthrifts, crost with Parent's Curse,
Wear golden Garments, but an empty Purse :
Or Venus Darlings, fair without ; within 880
Full of Disease, full of Deceit and Sin :
Or stately Tombs, externally gilt and garnisht ;
With dust and bones inwardly fill'd and furnisht)
But inwardly shee's no less fraught with riches,
Nay rather more (which more our soules bewitches).
Within the deep folds of her fruitful lap,
So bound-less Mines of treasure doth she wrap,
That th' hungry hands of humane avarice
Cannot exhaust with labour or device.

For, they be more then there be Stars in Heav'n, 890
Or stormy billowes in the Ocean driv'n,
Or ears of Corn in Autumn in the Fields,
Or Savage Beasts upon a thousand Hills,
Or Fishes diving in the silver Floods,
Or scattered Leaves in Winter in the Woods.
Slat, Jet, and Marble shall escape my pen,
I over-pass the Salt-mount Oromene,
I blanch the Brine-Quar Hill in Aragon,
Whence (there) they powder their provision.
I'll onely now emboss my Book with Brass, 900
Dye't with Vermillion, deck't with Coperass,
With Gold and Silver, Lead, and Mercury,
Tin, Iron, Orpine, Stibium, Lethargy :
And on my Gold-work I will onely place
The Crystall pure, which doth reflect each face ;
The precious Ruby, of a Sanguin hew,
The Seal-fit Onyx, and the Sapphire blew,
The Cassidonie, full of circles round,
The tender Topaz, and rich Diamond,
The various Opall, and green Emerald, 910
The Agate by a thousand titles call'd,
The sky-like Turques, purple Amethysts,
And fiery Carbuncle, which flames resists.

I know, to Man the Earth seems (altogether)
No more a Mother but a Step-dame rather :
Because (alas !) unto our loss she bears
Blood-shedding Steel, and Gold, the ground of cares :

As if these Metalls, and not Man's amiss,
Had made Sin mount unto the height it is. 920
But, as the sweet bait of abundant Riches,
Bodies and Soules of greedy men bewitches :
Gold gilds the Vertuous, and it lends them wings
To raise their thoughts unto the rarest things.
The wise, not onely Iron well apply
For household turns, and Tools of Husbandry ;

But to defend their Countrey (when it calls)
From forrain dangers, and intestine brals :
But, with the same the wicked never mell,
But to do service to the Hagg's of Hell ;
To pick a Lock, to take his neighbour's Purse, 930
To break a House, or to doe something worse ;
To cut his Parent's throat, to kill his Prince,
To spoile his Countrey, murder Innocents.
Even so, profaning of a gift divine,
The Drunkard drowns his Reason in the Wine :
So sale-tongu'd Lawyers, wresting Eloquence,
Excuse rich Wrong, and cast poore Innocence :
So Antichrists, their poysou to infuse,
Miss-cite the Scriptures, and God's name abuse.
For, as a Cask, through want of use grow'n fusty, 940
Makes with his stink the best Greek Malmsey musty :
So God's best gifts usurpt by wicked Ones,
To poysou turn through their contagions.

But, shall I baulk th' admir'd Adamant ?
Whose dead-live power, my Reason's power doth dant.

Renowned Load-stone, which on Iron acts, 950
And by the touch the same aloose attracts ;
Attracts it strangely with unclasping crooks,
With unknow'n cords, with unconceiv'd hooks,
With unseen hands, with undiscern'd arms, 960
With hidden force, with sacred secret charms,
Wherewith he woos his Iron Mistress,
And never leaves her till he get a kiss ;
Nay, till he fold her in his faithfull bosome,
Never to part (except we, love-less, loose-em)
With so firme zeale and fast affection
The Stone doth love the Steel, the Steel the Stone
And though sometime some Make-bate come betwixt,
Still burns their first flame ; 'tis so surely fixt :
And, while they cannot meet to break their minds, 960
With mutuall skips, they shew their love by signes.

(As bashfull Suters, seeing Strangers by, Parley in silence with their hand or eye).
Who can conceive, or censure in what sort
One Loadstone-touch'd Ann'let doth transport
Another Iron-Ring, and that another,
Till foure or five hang dangling one in other ?
Greatest Apollo might he be (me thinks)
Could tell the Reason of these hanging links :
Sith Reason-scanners have resolv'd all, 970
That heavie things, hang'd in the Aire must fall.

I am not ignorant, that He, who seeks
In Roman Robes to sute the Sagest Greeks,
Whose jealous Wife, weening to home-revoake-him
With a love-potion, did with poysou choak-him ;
Hath sought to shoue, with arguing subtilty,
The secret cause of this rare Sympathy.
But say (Lucretius) what's the hidden cause
That toward the North-Star still the Needle draws,
Whose point is toucht with Load-stone ? loose this knot,
And still-green Laurel shall be still thy Lot : 981
Yea, Thee more learn'd will I then confess,
Then Epicurus, or Empedocles.

Of the riches under or within the Earth.

Of Minerals.

Of precious stones.

The use, or abuse of things, makes them good or evill : helpfull or hurtfull to Mankind.

Of the rare
vertue of the Load-stone.

Of the excellent use of the Mariner's Compass.

W' are not to Ceres so much bound for Bread,
 Neither to Bacchus, for his Clusters red,
 As (Signior Flavio) to thy witty tryall,
 For first inventing of the Sea-man's Diall
 (Th' use of the Needle, turning in the same).
 Divine device ! O admirable Frame !
 Whereby, through th' Ocean, in the darkest night, 990
 Our highest Caragues are conducted right :
 Whereby w' are stor'd with Truch-man, Guide, and Lamp

To search all corners of the watery Camp :
 Whereby a Ship, that stormy Heav'ns have whurld Neer in one Night into another World,
 Knowes where she is : and in the Card descries
 What degrees thence the Equinoctiall lies.
Clear-sighted sprits, that cheer with sweet aspect
My sober Rimes, though subject to defect :
If in this Volume, as you over-read it 1000
You meet some things seeming exceeding credit,
Because (perhaps, here proved yet by no man)
Their strange effects be not in knowledge common :
Think, yet, to some the Load-stone's use is new ;
And seems as strange, as we have try'd it true :
Let therefore that which Iron draws, draw such
To credit more than what they see or touch.

Of medicinal Earths.

Nor is th' Earth onely worthy praise eternall,
 For the rare riches on her back externall,
 Or in her bosome : but her own self's worth 1010
 Solicits me to sound her glory forth.
 I call to witness all those weak diseased,
 Whose bodies oft have by th' effects been eased
 Of Lemnos seal'd earth, or Bretrian soil,
 Or that of Chios, or of Melos Ile.

The Earth's Escomion.

All-hall fair Earth, bearer of Towns and Towns,
 Of Men, Gold, Grain, Physick, and Fruits and Flowrs ;
 Fair, firm, and fruitfull, various, patient, sweet,
 Sumptuously cloathéd in a Mantle meet
 Of mingled-colour ; lac't about with Floods, 1020
 And all imbrod' red with fresh blooming buds,
 With rarest Gemmes richly about embost,
 Excelling cunning, and exceeding cost.
 All-hall great Heart, round Base, and stedfast Root,
 Of all the World, the World's strong fixed Foot,
 Heav'n's chastest Spouse, supporter of this All,
 This glorious Building's goodly Pedestall.
 All-hall deer Mother, Sister, Hostess, Nurse
 Of the World's Soverain : of thy liberrall purse,
 W' are all maintained : match-less Emperess, 1030
 To doe thee service, with all readiness,
 The Sphears before thee bear ten thousand torches :
 The Fire, to warm thee, foulds his heatfull Arches
 In purest flames above the floating Cloud :
 Th' Aire, to refresh thee, willingly is bow'd
 About the Waves, and well content to suffer
 Milde Zephyr's blasts, and Boreas bellowing rougher :
 Water, to quench thy thirst, about thy Mountains
 Wraps her moist arms, seas, rivers, lakes, and fountains.

Commendations of the Country-life.

O how I grieve, deer Earth, that (given to gays) 1040
 Most of best Wits condemn thee now a-dayes :

And noblest hearts proudly abandon quite
 Study of Hearbs, and Country-life's delight,
 To brutest men, to men of no regard,
 Whose wits are Lead, whose bodies Iron-hard.
 Such were not yerst the reverend Patriarks,
 Whose praise is pennéd by the sacred Clarks.
Noah the just, meek Moses, Abraham
 (Who Father of the Faithfull Race became)
 Where Shepheards all, or Husbandmen (at least) 1050
 And in the Fields passéd their Dayes the best.
 Such were not yerst Attalus, Philemetor,
Archelaus, Hiero, and many a Pretor ;
 Great Kings and Consuls, who have oft for blades
 And glistring Scepters, handled hooks and spades.
 Such were not yerst, Cincinnatus Fabricius,
Serranus, Curius, who un-self-delicious,
 With Crownéd Coulters, with Imperiall hands,
 With Ploughs triumphant plough'd the Roman lands.

Great Scipio, sated with fain'd curtsy-capping, 1060
 With Court-Eclipses, and the tedious gaping
 Of golden beggars : and that Emperour
 Of Slave turn'd King ; of King turn'd Labourer ;
 In country Granges did their age confine :
 And ordered there, with as good Discipline,
 The Fields of Corn, as Fields of Combat first ;
 And Ranks of Trees, as Ranks of Souldiers yerst.
 O thrice, thrice happy He, who shuns the cares
 Of City-troubles, and of State-affairs ;
 And, serving Ceres, tis with his owne Toem 1070
 His own Free-land, left by his Friends to him !

Never pale Envie's poysonie heads do hiss
 To gnaw his heart ; nor Vultur Avarice :
 His Fields' bounds, bound his thoughts : he never
 For Nectar, poysou mixt in silver Cups ;
 Neither in golden Platters doth he lick
 For sweet Ambrosia, deadly Arsenick :
 His hand's his boaul (better then Plate or Glass) :
 The silver Brook his sweetest Hippocrass :
 Milk, Cheese, and Fruit (fruits of his own endeavour)
 Drest without dressing, hath he ready ever.

Free from envie, ambition, and avarice : and consequently from the divellish practines of Machiavillian Politicks.

False Counsallors (Concealers of the Law)
 Turn-coat Attorneys, that with both hands draw ;
 Sly Peu-Foggers, Wranglers at the Bar,
 Proud Purse-Leaches, Harpies of Wutminster,
 With fainéd chiding, and foul jarring joyce,
 Break not his brain, nor interrupt his joyce :
 But cheerfull Birds, chirping him sweet Good-morrowes,
 With Nature's Musick do beguile his sorrows ;
 Teaching the fragrant Forrests, day by day, 1090
 The Diapason of their Heav'nly Lay.

Not vexed with counterfeit wranglings of wrangling Lawyers.

His wandering Vessell, reeling to and fro,
 On th' irefull Ocean (as the Winds do blow)
 With sudden Tempest is not over-whurld,
 To seek his sad death in another World :
 But, leading all his life at home in Peace,
 Always in sight of his own smoak ; no Seas,
 No other Seas he knowes, nor other Torrent,
 Then that which waters, with his silver Current,

Not dreading shipwrack, nor in danger of Pirates.

	His Native Medowes : and that very Earth Shall give him Buriall, which first gave him Birth. 1100 To summon timely sleep, he doth not need Ethiop's cold Rush, nor drowsie Poppie-seed ; Nor keep in consort (as Mecenas did) Luxurious Villains (Viols I should have said) ; But on green Carpets thrumd with mossie Bever, Frenging the round Skirts of his winding River, The stream's milde murmur, as it gentle gushes, His healthy limbs in quiet slumber hushes.
Not diseased in body through delicious Idleness.	Drum, Fife, and Trumpet, with their loud a-larms, Make him not start out of his sleep, to Arms ; Nor deer respect of some great Generall, Him from his bed unto the block doth call. The Crested Cock sings Hunt is up to him, Limits his rest, and makes him stir betime, To walk the Mountains, or the flowry Meads, Impearl'd with tears, the sweet Aurora sheads.
Not drawn by factions to an un- timely Death.	Never gross Aire, poyson'd in stinking Streets, To choak his spirit, his tender nostrill meets ; But th' open Sky, where at full breath he lives, 1120 Still keeps him sound, and still new stomach gives : And Death, dread Serjant of th' eternall Judge, Comes very late to his sole-seated Lodge.
Not choaked with contagion of a corrupted Aire.	His wretched years in Princes' Courts he spends not : His thrall'd will on Great men's wills depends not : He, changing Master, doth not change at once His Faith ; Religion, and his God renounce ; With mercenary lies he doth not chant, Praising an Emmet for an Elephant ; Sardanapalus (drown'd in soft excess) 1130 For a triumphant vertuous Hercules ; Thersites foul, for Venus' lovely Love ; And every Changeling for a Turtle-Dove ; Nor lavishes in his lascivious layes, On wanton Flora, chaste Alceste's praise : But all self-private, serving God, he writes Fear-less, and sings but what his heart indites.
Nor (Chameleon- like) changing with every object, the colour of his conscience.	No sallow Fear doth day or night afflict-him : Unto no Fraud doth night or day addict-him ; Or if he muse on guile, 'tis but to get 1140 Beast, Bird, or Fish, in toil, or snare, or net.
Nor soothing Sin : nor licking the Tayl of Greatness.		What though his Wardrobe be not stately stuf With sumptuous silks (pink'd, and pounc'd, and puf) With gold-ground Velvets, and with silver Tissue, And all the glory of old Eve's proud Issue ? What though his feeble Cofers be not cram'd With Miser's Idols, golden Ingots ram'd ? He is warm wrapped in his owne-grow'n Wool ; Of unbought Wines his Cellar 's ever full ; His Garner's stor'd with grain, his Ground with flocks, His Barns with fodder, with sweet streams his Rocks. For, here I sing the happy Rustick's weal, Whose handsome house seems as a Common-weal : And not the needy, hard-rack-rented Hinde, Or Copy-holder, whom hard Lords do grinde ; The pin'd Fisher, or poor-Dalery Renter, That lives of Whay, for forfeiting Indenture ; Who scarce have bread within their homely Cotes (Except by fits) to feed their hungry throats. Let me, good Lord, among the Great un-kend, 1160 My rest of dayes in the Calm Country end. Let me deserve of my deer EAGLE-Brood For Windsor-Forrest, walks in Almea-wood : Bea Hadley Pond, my Sea ; Lambs-bourn, my Thames , Lambourn, my London ; Kennet's silver streams, My fruitfull Nile ; my Singers and Musicians, The pleasant Birds with warbling repetitions ; My company, pure thoughts, to work thy will ; My Court, a Cottage on a lowely Hill ; Where, without let, I may so sing thy Name, 1170 That times to-come may wonder at the same. Or, if the new North-Star, my Sovereign JAMES, (The secret vertue of whose sacred beams Attracts th' attentive service of all such Whose mindes did ever Vertue's Load-stone touch) Shall ever daign t' invite mine humble Fate T' approach the Presence of his Royall State : Or, if my Duty, or the Grace of Nobles, Shall drive or draw me neer their pleasing-Troubles, Let not their Favours make me drunk with folly ; 1180 In their Commands, still keep my Conscience holy : Let me true-Honour, not the false delight : And play the Preacher, not the Parasite.
Neither prest with Fear, nor plotting Fraud.

*So Morne and Evening the third Day conclude,
 And God perceiv'd that All his Works were good.*

THE FOURTH DAY
OF THE FIRST
WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The twinkling Spangles of the Firmament :
The wandering Seav'n (Each in a severall Tent) ;
Their Course, their Force, their Essence is disputed ;
That they (as Beasts) do eat and drink, refuted.
Heav'n's (not the Earth) with rapid motion roule :
The famous Stars observ'd in either Pole :
Heav'n's slooping Belt : the Twelve celestiaall Signes
Where Sol the Seasons of the Year confines :
Daye's glorious Prince : Night's gloomy Patroness : 10
His Light and Might : Her constant Change-fulness.*

In the beginning of the fourth booke, calling upon the God of Heaven, our Poet prayeth to be lift up in the Heavens that he may discourse (as he ought) of the stars, fixed and wandering.

Pure Spirit that rapt'st above the firmest Sphear,
In fiery Coach, thy faithfull Messenger,
Who, smiting Jordan with his plighted Cloak,
Did yerst divide the Waters with the stroke :
O! take me up ; that, far from Earth, I may
From Sphear to Sphear, see th' azure Heav'ns To-day.
Be thou my Coach-man, and now Cheek by Joule
With Phabus' Chariot let my Chariot roule ; 20
Drive on my Coach by Mars his flaming Coach ;
Saturn and Luna let my wheels approach :
That, having learn'd of their Fire-breathing Horses,
Their course, their light, their labor, and their forces ;
My Muse may sing in sacred Eloquence,
To Virtue's Friends, their vertuous Excellence :
And, with the Load-stone of my conquering Verse,
Above the Poles attract the most perverse.
And you fair learned Soules, you Spirits divine,
To whom the Heav'ns so nimble quills assigne,
As well to Mount, as skillfully to limn 30
The various motion of their Tapers trim ;
Lend me your hand ; lift me above Parnassus ;
With your loud Trebles help my lowly Bassus.
For sure, besides that your Wit-gracing Skill
Bears in itselfe, itself's rich guerdon still :

Our Nephews, free from sacrilegious brauls,
Where Horrour swims in bloud about our wals,
Shall one day sing that your deer song did merit
Better Heav'n, hap, and better time to hear-it. 40
And though (alas !) my now new-rising Name
Can hope here-after none, or little Fame :
The time that most part of our better Wits
Mis-spent in Flattery, or in Fancy-Fits,
In courting Ladies, or in clawing Lords,
Without affection, in affected words ;
I meane to spend in publishing the Story
Of God's great Works, to his immortal glory.
My rimes begot in pain and born in pleasure, Thirst not for Fame (the Heathens' hope's chief treasure) :
'T shall me suffice, that our deer France do breed 50
(In happy season) some more learned seed,
That may record, with more divine dexterity
Then I have done, these wonders to Posterity.
*Much less may these abortive Brats of Mine
Expect respect (but in respect of Thine) :
Yet sith the Heav'ns have thus entaskt my layes
(As darkly Cynthia darts her borrow'd rayes)
To shadow Thine ; and to my Country render
Some small reflection of thy radiant splendor ;
It is enough, if here-by I incite 60
Some happier sp'rit to doe thy Muse more right ;
And with more life give thee thy proper grace,
And better follow great Du BARTAS trace.*
GOD'S NONE of these faint idle Artizans,
Who at the best abandon their designes,
Working by halves ; as rather a great deal,
To do much quickly, then to do it well :
But rather, as a work-man never weary,
And all-sufficient, He his works doth carry
To happy end ; and to perfection, 70
With sober speed, brings what he hath begun.

Here resuming his course, he prosecutes the worke of the Creation.

In the fourth day God created the fixed Stars, the two great Lights, (vid.) the Sun and the Moone, together with the other five Planets.

Having therefore the World's wide Curten spread
About the circuit of the fruitfull bed ;
Where (to fill all with her unnumberd Kin)
Kind Nature's seife each moment lyeth-in :
To make the same for ever admirable,
More stately-pleasant, and more profitable ;
He th' Azure Tester trimm'd with golden marks,
And richly spangled with bright glistening-sparks.
I know, those Tapers, twinkling in the Sky, 80
Do turn so swiftly from our hand and eye,
That man can never (rightly) reach, to seeing Their course and force, and much-much less their being.

Of their course, Force, Essence, and Substance.

But, if conjecture may extend above
To that great Orb, whose moving All doth move,
Th' imperfect Light of the first Day was it,
Which for Heav'n's Eyes did shining matter fit :
For, God, selecting lightest of that Light,
Garnisht Heav'n's steling with those torches bright :
Or else divided it, and pressing close 90
The parts, did make the Sun and Stars of those.

Opinion of the Greeks touching the matter of the Stars.

But, if thy wits thirst, rather seek these things,
In Greekish Cisterns then in Hebrew Springs ;
I then conclude, that as of moistfull matter,
God made the people that frequent the Water ;
And of an Earthy stuff the stubborn droves
That haunt the Hills and Dales, and Downs and Groves :
So, did he make, by his Almighty might,
The Heav'ns and Stars, of one same substance bright ;
To th' end these Lamps dispers'd in the Skies, 100
Might, with their Orb, it with them sympathise.

Simile.

And as (with us) under the oak'd bark
The knurry knot with branching veines, we marke
To be of substance all one with the Tree,
Although far thicker and more rough it bee :
So those gilt studs in th' upper story driv'n,
Are nothing but the thickest part of Heav'n.

Their Substance is of Fire.

When I observe their Light and Heat yblent,
(Meer accidents of th' upper Element)
I think them Fire : but not such Fire as lasts 110
No longer then the fuell that it wastes :

For then, I think all the Elements too-little
To furnish them onely with one daye's vict'all.

Refutation of such as have thought that the Stars were living creatures that did eat and drinke.

And therefore smile I at those Fable-Forges,
Whose busie-idle stile so stify urges,
The Heav'ns' bright Cressets to be living Creatures,
Ranging for food, and hungry Fodder-eaters ;
Still sucking-up (in their eternall motion)
The Earth for meat, and for their drink, the Ocean.
Sure, I perceive no motion in a Star, 120
But naturall, certain, and regular :

Whereas, Beasts' motions infinitely vary,
Confus'd, uncertain, divers, voluntary.
I see not how so many golden Posts
Should scud so swift about Heav'n's Azure coasts,
But that the Heav'ns must ope and shut som-times :
Subject to passions, which our earthly climes
Alter ; and toss the Sea, and th' Aire estrange
From itself's temper, with exceeding change.

I see not how, in those round-blazing beams, 130
One should imagin any food-fit limbs :
Nor can I see how th' Earth and Sea should feed
So many Stars, whose greatness doth exceed
So many times (if Star-Divines say troth)
The greatness of the Earth and Ocean both :
Sith here our Cattle, in a month will eat
Seav'n-times the bulk of their own bulk in meat.

These Torchcs then range not at randome, o're
The lightsome thickness of an unfirm Floor :
As here belowe, diversly moving them, 140
The painted Birds between two Aires do swim ;
But, rather fixéd unto turning Sphears,
Ay, will-they, nill-they, follow their careers :
As Car-nails fastned in a wheele (without Self's-motion) turn with others' turns about.

As the Ague-sick, upon his shivering pallet,
Delays his health oft to delight his palat ;
When wilfully his taste-less Taste delights
In things unsavory to sound appetites :
Even so, some brain-sicks live there now-adayes, 150
That lose themselves still in contrary wayes ;
Prepostrous Wits that cannot row at ease,
On the Smooth Channell of our common Seas.
And such are those (in my conceit at least)
Those Clarks that think (think how absurd a jest)
That neither Heav'ns nor Stars do turne at all,
Nor dance about this great round Earthly Ball ;
But th' Earth itself, this Massie Globe of ours,
Turns round-about once every twice-twelve hours :
And we resemble Land-bred Novices 160
New brought aboard to venture on the Seas ;
Who, at first lanching from the shore, suppose
The ship stands still, and that the ground it goes.

So, twinkling Tapers, that Heav'n's Arches fill,
Equally distant should continue still.
So, never should an arrow, shot upright,
In the same place upon the shooter light ;
But would doe (rather) as (at Sea) a stone
Aboard a Ship upward uprightly thrown ;
Which not within-board falls, but in the Flood 170
A-stern the Ship, if so the Winde be good.

So should the Fowls that take their nimble flight
From Western Marches towards Morning's light ;
And Zephyrus, that in the Summer time
Delights to visit Enryus in his clime ;
And bullets thundred from the canon's throat
(Whose roaring drowns the Heav'nly thunder's note)
Should seem recoil : sithens the quick career,
That our round Earth should dayly gallop here,
Must needs exceed a hundred-fold (for swift) 180
Birds, Bullets, Windes ; their wings, their force, their drift.

Arm'd with these Reasons, 't were superfluous
T' assaile the Reasons of Copernicus ;
Who, to saive better of the Stars th' appearance,
Unto the Earth a three-fold motion warrants :
Making the Sun the Center of this All,
Moon, Earth, and Water, in one onely Ball.

Leaving to dispute farther upon the former Paradox, he proceedeth in his discourse, and by a lively comparison representeth the beautifull ornament of the Heavens about the Earth.	But sithence here, nor time, nor place doth sute, His Paradox at length to prosecute ; I will proceed, grounding my next discourse 190 On the Heav'n's motions, and their constant course. I oft admire greatness of mighty Hills, And pleasant beauty of the flowry Fields, And countless number of the Ocean sand, And secret force of sacred Adamant : But much-much more (the more I marke their course) Stars' glistring greatness, beauty, number, force.	The Twins, whose heads, arms, shoulders, knees and feet, God fill'd with Stars to shine in season sweet, Contend in course, who first the Bull shall catch, That neither will nor may attend their match. Then, Summer's-guide, the Crab comes rowing soft, 250 With his eight Owres through the Heav'n's azure loft ; To bring us yearly in his starry shell, Many long dayes the shaggie Earth to swele. Almost with like pace leaps the Lion out, All clad with flames, bristled with beams about ;	Gemini in mid-May. Cancer in mid-June begins the Summer. Leo in mid-July.

Simile.	Even as a Peacock, prickt with love's desire, To woo his Mistress, strouting stately by her, Spreads round the rich pride of his pompous vail, 200 His azure wings, and Starry-golden tail ; With rattling pinions wheeling still about, The more to set his beauteous beauty out : The Firmament (as feeling like above) Displays his pomp ; pranceth about his Love, Spreads his blew curtain, mixt with golden marks Set with gilt Spangles, sow'n with glistring sparks, Sprinkled with eyes, specked with Tapers bright, Poudred with Stars streaming with glorious light ; T' inflame the Earth the more, with Lovers' grace, 210 To take the sweet fruit of this kind embrace.	Who, with contagion of his burning breath, Both grass and grain to cinders withereth. The Virgin next, sweeping Heav'n's azure Globe With stately train of her bright Golden robe, Milde-proudly marching, in her left hand brings 260 A sheaf of Corn, and in her right hand, wings. After the Maiden, shines the Balance bright, Equal divider of the Day and Night : In whose Gold Beam, with three gold rings there fastens With six gold strings, a pair of golden Basens. The spitefull Scorpion, next the Scale address, With two bright Lamps covers his loathsom brest ; And fain, from both ends, with his double sting, Would spet his venom over every thing ; But that the brave Half-horse Phylarian Scout, 270 Galloping swift the Heav'nly Belt about, Ay fiercely threatens, with his flame-feath' red arrow, To shoot the sparkling starry Viper thorough. And th' hoary Centaure, during all his Race, Is so attentive to his onely chase,	Virgo in mid-August. Libra in mid-September begins Autumn. Scorpio in mid-October. Sagittarius in mid-November.
The number of the Stars under both the Poles innumerable.	He that to number all the Stars would seek, Had need invent some new Arithmetick ; And who, to cast that reck'ning takes in hand, Had need for Counters take the Ocean's sand ; Yet have our wise and learned Elders found Four-douzen Figures in the Heav'nly Round, For aid of memory ; and to our eyes In certain Houses to divide the Skies. 220	That, dread-less of his dart, Heav'n's shining Kid Comes jumping light, just at his heels unspid. Mean-while the Skinker, from his starry spout, After the Goat, a silver stream pours out ; Distilling still out of his radiant Fire Rivers of Water (who but will admire ?) In whose cleer Channell mought at pleasure swim Those two bright Fishes that do follow him ; But that the Torrent slides so swift away, That it out-runs them ever, even as they Out-run the Ram, who ever them pursues ; And by renewing yearly, all renues.	Capricornus in mid-December beginneth Winter. Aquarius in mid-January.
And why the ancient Astronomers observed 48.	Of those are Twelve in that rich Girdle greft 220 Which God gave Nature for her New-year's-gift (When making All, his voyce Almighty most, Gave so fair Lawes unto Heav'n's shining Hoast) To wear it bias, buckled over-thwart-her ; Not round about her swelling Waste, to girt-her.	Besides these Twelve, toward the Artick side, A flaming Dragon doth Two-Bears divide ; After the Wainman comes, the Crown, the Spear ; 290 The Kneeling Youth, the Harp, the Hamperer Of th' hatefull Snake (whether we call the same By Esculapius' or Alcides' name) Swift Pegasus, the Dolphin, loving man ; Jove's stately Eagle, and the silver Swan : Andromeda, with Cassiopea neer-ber, Her father Cepheus, and her Perseus deerer : The shining Triangle, Medusa's Truss, And the bright Coach-man of Tindarides.	Pisces in mid-February.
Of the signs in the Zodiacke.	This glorious Baldrick of a golden tinge, Imboast with Rubies, edg'd with Silver Frindge, Buckled with Gold, with a Bend glistring bright ; Heav'n's, bias-wise, environs day and night. For, from the Period, where the Ram doth bring 230 The day and night to equall balancing, Ninety degrees towards the North it wends, Thence just as much toward Mid-Heav'n it bends, As many thence toward the South ; and thence Towards th' Year's Portall, the like difference. Nephtalian crook-horn, with brass cornets crown'd, Thou butttest bravely 'gainst the New-year's bound ; And richly clad in thy fair golden Fleece ; Doest hold the First house of Heav'n's spacious Meese.	Toward th' other Pole, Orion, Eridanus, The Whale, the Whelp, and hot-breath'd Sirius, The Hare, the Hulk, the Hydra, and the Bowle, The Centaure Wolf, the Censer and the Fowle,	The names of the principall Stars of the North Pole.
The Zodiacke.	Thou spy'st anon the Bull behinde thy back : 240 Who, lest that fodder by the way he lack, Seeing the World so naked ; to renew't, Coats th' infant Earth in a green gallant sute ; And, without Plough or Yoak, doth freely fling Through fragrant Pastures of the flowry Spring.	300 The names of the Stars of the South Pole.
Aries in Mid-March begins the Spring.
Taurus in Mid-April.

The fixed Stars are in the eighth Heaven.

(The twice-foul Raves) the Southern Ash and Crown,
Through heav'n's bright arches brandish up and down.

Thus on This-Day working th' eighth asure tent,
With Art-less Art, divinely excellent ;
Th' Almighty's finger fixed many a million
Of golden Scutchions in that rich Pavillion :
But in the rest (under that glorious Heav'n)
But one a-peece, unto the severall ¹ Seav'n ;
Lest, of those Lamps the number-passing number
Should mortal eyes with such confusion cumber,
That we should never, in the clearest night,
Stars' divers course see or discern aright.

310

Why the Planets twinkle not, and the fixed stars doe twinkle.

And therefore also, all the fixed Tapers
He made to twinkle with such trembling capers :
But, the Seavens Lights that wander under them,
Through various passage, never shake a beam.
Or, he (perhaps) made them not different ;
But, th' hoast of Sparks spred in the firmament
Far from our sense, through distance infinite,
Seems but to twinkle, to our twinkling sight :

320

The firmament much further from the Earth than the Sphears of the Planets.

Whereas the rest, neerer a thousand fold
To th' Earth and Sea, we do more brim behold.
For, the Heav'ns are not mixtly enteraled ;
But th' undermost by th' upper be embraced,
And more or less their roundels wider are,
As from the Center they be neer or far :
As in an Egge, the shell includes the skin,
The skin the white, the white the yolk with-in.

330

Simile.

Two similes representing the motion of the eight inferiour heavens, through the swift turning of the ninth, which is the Primum Mobile.

Now, as the Winde, puffing upon a Hill
With roaring breath against a ready Mill,
Whirls with a whiff the sails of swelling clout,
The sails do swing the winged shaft about,
The shaft the wheel, the wheel the trendle turns,
And that the stone which grinds the flowry corns :
Or like as also in a Clock well-tended,
Just counter-poize, justly thereon suspended,
Makes the great wheel go round, and that anon
Turns with his turning many a meaner one,
The trembling watch, and th' Iron Maule that chimes
The intire Day in twice twelve equal times :
So the grand Heav'n, in foure and twenty hours,
Surveying all this various house of ours,
With his quick motion all the Sphears doth move ;
Whose radiant glances gild the World above,
And drives them every day (which swiftnes strange is)
From Gange to Tagus ; and from Tay to Ganges.

340

Each of the eight Heavens so transported by the Primum Mobile, hath also his proper oblique and distinct course each from other.

But, th' under-Orbs, as grudging to be still
So straightly subject to another's will,
Still without change, still at another's pleasure
After one pipe to dance one onely measure ;
They from-ward turn, and traversing aside,
Each by himselfe an oblique course doth slide :
So that they all (although it seem not so)
Forward and Backward in one instant go,
Both up and down, and with contrary paces,
At once they poste to two contrary places :

350

¹ And the seven Planets under them each in his proper Sphear.

Like as myselfe, in my lost Merchant-years
(A lass, alas, that in these lines appears)
Wafting to Brabant, England's golden Fleece
(A richer prize then Jason brought to Greece)
While tow'rd the Sea, our (then Swan-poorer) Thames,
Bare down my Bark upon her ebbing streams,
Upon the halches, from the Prow to Poup
Walking in compass of that narrow Coop,
Managre the most that Winde and Tide could doe,
Have gone at once tow'ards LEE and LONDON too.

360 The same explained by a proper Simile.

But now, the neerer any of these Eight,
Approach th' Empyreall Palace-walls in height,
The more their circuit, and more dayes they spend,
Yer they return unto their Journey's end.

370 Why some of these heavens have a slower course and shorter compasse then other some.

It's therefore thought, That sumptuous Canapy,
The which th' un-niggard hand of Majesty,
Pouddred so thick with Shields so shining cleer,
Spends in his Voyage nigh seaven thousand year.

The terme of the revolution of the firmament.

Ingenious Saturn, Spouse of Memory,
Father of th' Age of Gold ; though coldly dry,
Silent and sad, bald, hoary, wrinkle-faced,
Yet art thou first among the Planets placed :
And thirty years thy Leaden Coach doth run
Yer it arrive where thy Career begun.

Of the seventh, which is the Sphear of Saturnus.

Thou, rich, benign, ill-chasing Jupiter,
Art (worthy) next thy Father sickle-bear :
And while thou dost with thy more milde aspect,
His froward beams' disastrous frownes correct,
Thy tinnè chariot, shod with burning bosses,
Through twice-six Signes in twice-six twelve months' crosses.

Of the sixth which is the Sphear of Jupiter.

Brave-minded Mars (yet Master of mis-order, Delighting nought but Battails, blood, and murder)
His furious Coursers lasheth night and day,
That he may swiftly passe his course away ;
But in the road of his eternal race,
So many rubs hinder his hasty pace,
That thrice, the while, the lively Liquor-God
With dabbled heels hath swelling clusters trod ;
And thrice hath Ceres shav'n her amber tress,
Yer his steel wheels have done their business.

390 Of the fifth which is the Sphear of Mars.

Pure goldy-locks, Sol, States'-friend, Honor-giver,
Light-bringer, Laureat, Leach-man, all-Reviver,
Thou in three hundred threescore daies and five,
Dost to the Period of thy Race arrive.
For, with thy proper course thou measur'st th' year,
And measur'st Dayes with thy constrain'd career.

Of the fourth which is the Sphear of Sol.

Fair dainty Venus, whose free vertues milde
With happy fruit get all the World with-childe (Whom wanton dalliance, dancing, and delight,
Smiles, witty wiles, youth, love, and beauty bright,
With soft blind Cupid's evermore consort)
Of lightsome Day opens and shuts the port ;
For, hardly dare her silver Doves go far
From bright Apollo's glory-beaming Car.

Of the third which is the Sphear of Venus.

Not much unlike, so, Mercury the witty,
For ship, for shop, book, bar, or Court, or City :
Smooth Orator, swift Pen-man, sweet Musician,
Rare Artizan, deep-reaching Politician,

Of the second which is the Sphear of Mercury.

Of the first which is the Sphear of Luna . The lowest Planet nearest the Earth.	Fortunate Merchant, fine Prince-humour-pleaser ; To end his course takes near a twelve-month's leisure : For all the while, his nimble wingéd heels 490 Dare little bouge from Phabus' golden wheels. And lastly Luna, thou cold Queen of Night, Regent of humors, parting Months aright, Chaste Emperess, to one Endymion constant ; Constant in Love, though in thy looks inconstant ; (Unlike our Loves, whose hearts dissemble soonest) Twelve times a year through all the Zodiack runnest.	And that the more she Fills her forkéd Round, The more the Marrow doth in bones abound ; The blood in Veines, the sap in Plants, the moisture The lushious meat in Crevisch, Crab and Oyster : That Oak, and Elm, and Firr, and Alder, cut 480 Before the Crescent have her Corners shut, Are never lasting, for the Builder's turn, In Ship or House, but rather fit to burn : And also, that the Sick, while She is filling, Feele sharper Fits through all their members thrilling.	Fourthly, The increase and decrease of marrow, blood and humours in divers creatures. Fifthly, The apparent alterations in the bodies of sick persons.
Of the necessity of divers motions of the Heavens.	Now, if these Lamps, so infinite in number, Should still stand-still, as in a sloathfull slumber, Then should some places (alwayes in one plight) 490 Have alwayes Day, and some have alwayes Night : Then should the Summer's Fire, and Winter's Frost, Rest opposite still on the selfe same Coast : Then nought could spring, and nothing prosper would In all the World, for want of Heat or Cold. Or, without change of distance or of dance, If all these Lights still in one path should prance, Th' inconstant parts of this low World's contents Should neuer feel so sundry accidents, As the conjunction of celestiall Features 440 Incessantly pours upon mortall Creatures.	So that, this Lamp alone approves what pow'rs, Heav'n's Tapers have ev'n on these soules of ours : Temp'ring, or troubling (as they be inclin'd) Our mind and humours, humours and our minde, Through Sympathy ; which while this flesh we carry, 490 Our Soules and Bodies doth together marry. I 'l onely say, that sith the hot aspect Of th' Heav'nly Dog-Star, kindles with effect A thousand unseene Fires, and dries the Fields, Scorches the Vallies, parches-up the Hills, And often-times into our panting hearts, The bitter Fits of burning Fevers darts : And (opposite) the Cusp, the dropping Pleiades, Bright glistring Orion, and the weeping Hyades, Never (almost) look down on our aboard, 500 But that they stretch the Water's bounds abroad ; With cloudy horror of their wrathfull frown, Threatning again the guilty World to drown : And (to be brief) sith the gilt Azure Front Of firmest Sphear hath scarce a spark upon 't But poureth down-ward some apparent change, Towards to Storing of the World's great Grange ; We may conjecture what hid pow'r is given T' infuse among us from the other Seaven, From each of those which, for their vertue rare, 510 Th' Almighty placéd in a proper Sphear.	A particular prooffe by the effects of certain notable stars, ordinarily noted in some Month of the year.
Of the force and influence of the celestiall bodies upon the terrestriall.	I 'l ne'r believe that the Arch-Architect, With all these Fires the Heav'nly Arches deckt Onely for Shew, and with these glistring shields T' amaze poor Shepherds watching in the fields. I 'l ne'r believe that the least Flow'r that pranks Our Garden borders, or the Common banks, And the least stone that in her warming Lap Our kind Nurse Earth doth covetously wrap, 450 Hath some peculiar vertue of its own ; And that the glorious Stars of Heav'n have none : But shine in vain, and have no charge precise, But to be walking in Heav'n's Galleries, And through that Palace up and down to clamber, As golden Guls about a PRINCE'S CHAMBER.	Not that (as Stoicks) I intend to tye, With Iron Chains of strong Necessity, Th' Eternal's hands, and his free feet enstock In Destinie's hard Diamantine Rock : I hold, that God (as The first Cause) hath giv'n Light, Course, and Force to all the Lamps of Heav'n : That still he guides them, and his Providence Disposeth free, their Fatall influence : And that therefore (the rather) we below 520 Should study all, their Course and Force to know : To th' end that, seeing (through our Parents' Fall) T' how many Tyrants we are wexen thrall, Ever since first fond Woman's blind ambition, Breaking, made Adam break Heav'n's High Commission : We might unpuff our Heart, and bend our knee, T' appease with sighs God's wrathfull Majestic ; Beseeching him to turn away the storms Of Hail, and Heat, Plague, Dearth and dreadfull Arms, 530 Which oft the angry Stars, with bad aspects, Threat to be falling on our stubborn necks : To give us Curbs to bridle th' ill proclivity We are inclin'd-to, by a hard Nativity :	Rejecting the Stoicks, he sheweth that God, as the first Cause, doth order all things, and what use we should make of the Force, Course, and Light of the Celestiall bodies.
Sundry prooffs of the same : First, The divers seasons : Secondly, The fearfull accidents that commonly succeed Eclipses.	Sens-less is he, who (without blush) denies What to sound senses most apparent lies : And 'gainst experience he that spets Fallacians, Is to be hist from learned Disputations ; And such is he, that doth affirm the Stars 460 To have no force on these inferiours ; Though Heav'n's effects we must apparent see In number more then Heav'nly Torches bee. I nill alledge the Seasons' alteration, Caus'd by the Sun in shifting Habitation : I will not urge, that never at noon-dayes His envious Sister intercepts his Rayes But some great State eclipseth, and from Hell Alecto looses all these Furies Fell : Grim, lean-fac't Famine, foule infectious Plague ; 470 Blood-thirsty War, and Treason hatefull Hag : Here pouring down Woe's universall Flood, To drown the World in Seas of Tears and Blood.	Which oft the angry Stars, with bad aspects, Threat to be falling on our stubborn necks : To give us Curbs to bridle th' ill proclivity We are inclin'd-to, by a hard Nativity :	530
Thirdly, The ebbing and flowing of the Sea.	I 'l over-pass how Sea doth Ebb and Flowe, As th' Hornéd Queen doth either shrink or grow ;

To pour some Water of his Grace, to quench
Our boyling Fleashe's fell Concupiscence ;
To calm our many passions (spirituall tumours)
Sprung from corruption of our vicious humours.

Here proceeding to the second part of this book, he treateth at large of the Sun and Moon.

Latonian Twins, Parents of Years and Months,
Alas ! why hide you so your shining Fronts ?
What ? will you shew the splendor of your ray,
But through a Vail of mourning Clouds I pray ?
I pray pull-off your mufflers and your mourning,
And let me see you in your native burning :
And my dear Muse by her eternall flight,
Shall spread as far the glory of your Light
As you your selves run, in alternate Ring ;
Day after Night, Night after Day to bring.

540

Thou radiant Coach-man, running endless course,
Fountain of Heat, of Light the lively source,
Life of the World, Lamp of this Universe,
Heav'n's richest Gemm : O teach me where my Verse
May but begin thy Praise. Alas ! I fare
Much like to one that in the Clouds doth stare
To count the Quails, that with their shadow cover
Th' Italian Sea, when soaring higher over,
Fain of a Milder and more fruitfull Clime,
They come with us to pass the Summer time :
No sooner he begins one shoal to summ,
But more and more, still greater shoals do come,
Swarm upon Swarm, that with their count-less number
Break of his purpose, and his sense incurber.

550

561

Daye's glorious Eye ! Even as a mighty King,
About his Countrey stately Progressing,
Is compast round with Dukes, Earles, Lords, and Knights,

(Orderly marshall'd in their noble Rites)
Esquires and Gentlemen, in courtly kinde,
And then his Guard before him and behinde ;
And there is nought in all his Royall Muster,
But to his Greatness addeth grace and lustre :
So, while about the World thou ridest ay,
Which onely lives by vertue of thy Ray,
Six Heav'nly Princes, mounted evermore,
Wait on thy Coach, three behinde, three before,
Besides the Hoasts of th' upper Twinklers bright,
To whom, for pay, thou givest onely Light
And, ev'n as Man (the little-World of Cares)
Within the Middle of the body, beares
His heart (the Spring of life) which with proportion
Supplyeth spirits to all, and every portion :
Even so (O Sun) thy golden Chariot marches
Amid the six Lamps of the six lowe Arches
Which siel the World, that equally it might Richly impart them Beautie, Force, and Light.

570

580

Praising thy Heat, which subtly doth pierce
The solid thickness of our Universe,
Which in th' Earth's kidnyes Mercury doth burn,
And pallid Sulphur to bright Metall turn ;
I do digress, to praise that light of thine,
Which if it should but one day cease to shine,
Th' unpurg'd Aire to Water would resolve,
And Water would the mountain tops involve.

590

Of the Sun : en-tring into the description whereof he confesseth that he knows not well where to begin.

The Sun, as Prince of the Celestiall lights marcheth in the midst of the other six Planets which environ him.

The Sun is in Heaven as the heart in man's body.

His notable effects
upon the Earth.

Scarce I begin to measure thy bright Face,
Whose greatness doth so oft Earth's greatness pass,
And with still running the Celestiall Ring,
Is seen and felt of every living thing ;
But that fantastickly I change my Theam
To sing the swiftness of thy tyer-less Teem ;
To sing, how, Rising from the Indian Wave
Thou seem'st (O Titan) like a Bride-groom brave,
Who from his Chamber early issuing out
In rich array, with rarest Gems about ;
With pleasant Countenance, and lovely Face,
With golden tresses, and attractive grace,
Cheers (at his comming) all the youthfull throng
That for his presence earnestly did long ;
Blessing the day, and with delightfull glee,
Singing aloud his Epithalamie.

Excellent comparisons borrowed out of the 19.
Psalme.

600

Then, as a Prince that feelles his noble heart,
Wounded with Love's pure Honor-winged dart :
(As HARDY LÆLIUS, that great GARTER-KNIGHT, 610
Tilting in Triumph of ELIZA'S Right
(Yearly that Day that her deer raign began)
Most bravely mounted on proud RABICAN,
All in gilt armour, on his glistring Mazor
A stately plume, of Orange mixt with Azur,
In gallant Course, before ten thousand eyes,
From all Defendants bore the Princely Prize)
Thou glorious Champion, in thy Heav'nly Race,
Runnest so swift we scarce conceive thy Pace.

The same exemplified in an honorable personage of our time now very aged : but in his young years, the glory of Arms and Chivalrie.

When I record how fitly thou dost guide
Through the fourth Heav'n, thy flaming Coursers' pride,

620

That as they pass, their fiery breaths may temper
Saturn's and Cynthia's cold and moist distemper :
(For, if thou gallopt'st in the neather Room
Like Phaeton, thou would'st the World consume :
Or, if thy Throne were set in Saturn's Sky,
For want of heat then every thing would dy)
In the same instant I am prest to sing,

Of God's wonder-full providence in placing the Sun in the midst of the other Planets, and of the commodities, that come
thereof.

How thy return reviveth every thing ;
How, in thy Presence, Fear, Sloth, Sleep, and Night,
Snowes, Fogs, and Fancies, take their sudden Flight.
Th' art (to be briefe) an Ocean wanting bound,
Where (as full vessels have the lesser sound)
Plenty of matter makes the speaker Mute ;
As wanting words thy worth to prosecute.

629

Yet glorious Monarch, 'mong so many rare
And match-less Flours as in thy Garland are,
Some one or two shall my chaste sober Muse
For thine Immortall sacred Sisters chuse.

Of the Sun's continuall and daily
course.

I 'll boldly sing (bright Soverain) thou art none
Of those weak Princes' Flatt'ry works upon ;
(No second EDWARD, nor no RICHARD Second,
Un-kingd both, as Rule-unworthy reckon'd)
Who, to enrich their Minions' past proportion,
Pill all their Subjects with extream extortion :
And charm'd with Pleasures (O exceeding pity !)
Lie alwaies wallowing in one wanton City ;
And, loving onely that, to mean Lieutenants
Farm out their Kingdom's care, as unto Tenants :

640

	For, once a day, each Country under Heav'n 650 Thou bidst Good-Morrow , and thou bidst Good-Ev'n . And thy far-seeing Eye, as Censor , views The rites and fashions, Fish and Foule do use, And our behaviours, worthy (every one) Th' Abderian Laughter, and Ephesian Mone.
Of his Oblique or By-course, cause of the four seasons : and of the commodities of all Climats in the World.	But true it is, to th' end a fruitfull lew May every Climat in his time renew, And that all men may nearer in all Realms Feel the alternat vertue of thy beams ; Thy sumptuous Chariot, with the Light returning, 660 From the same Portall mounts not every morning : But, to make known each-where thy daily drift, Doo't every day, thy Coursers' Stable shift : That while the Spring, prankt in her greenest pride, Raigns here, else-where Autumn as long may bide ; And while fair Summer's heat our fruits doth ripe, Cold Winter's Yce may other Countries gripe.
A pleasant and lively description of the four seasons of the year.	No sooner doth thy shining Chariot Roule From highest Zenith toward Northern Pole , To sport thee for three Months in pleasant Inns 670 Of Aries , Taurus , and the gentle Twinus , But that the meale Mountains (late unseen) Change their white garments into lustly green ; The Gardens prank them with their Flowry buds, The Meads with grass, with leaves the naked Woods ; Sweet Zephyrus begins to buss his Flora , Swift-winged Singers to salute Aurora ; And wanton Cupid , through this Universe, With pleasing wounds, all Creatures' hearts to pierce.
The Spring.	When, backward bent, Phlegon , thy fiery Steed, 680 With Cancer , Leo , and the Maid doth feed ; Th' Earth cracks with heat, and Summer crowns his Ceres With gilded Ears, as yellow as her hair-is : The Reaper, panting both for heat and pain, With crook'd Razor shaves the tufted Plain ; And the good Husband, that due season takes, Within a month his year's Provision makes.
Summer.	When from the mid-Heav'n thy bright flame doth fly Toward the Cross-Stars in th' Antarctik Sky, To bee three months, up-rising and down-lying 690 With Scorpio , Libra , and the Archer flying ; Th' Earth, by degrees, her lovely beauty 'bates, Pomona loads her lap with delicates, Her Apron and her Osiar basket (both) With dainty fruits for her deer Autumn's tooth, (Her health-less spouse) who bare-foot hops about To tread the juice of Bacchus' clusters out.
Harvest.	And last of all, when thy proud-trampling Teem For three Months more, to sojourne still doth seem With Capricorn , Aquarius , and the Fishes 700 (While we in vaine revoke thee with our wishes) In stead of Flowrs, chill-shivering Winter dresses With Ycesickles her (self-bald) borrow'd tresses : About her brows a Periwig of Snow, Her White-Freeze Mantle fring'd with Yce below, A payr of Lamb-lyn'd buskins on her feet, So doth she march Orythia's love to meet ;
Winter.
		Who, with his bristled, hoary, beaugle-beard, Comming to kisse her, makes her lips afear'd ; Where-at, he sighes a breath so cold and keen, 710 That all the Waters Crystalliz'd been ; While in a fury with his boystrous wings Against the Scythian snowie Rocks he flings, All lusk in slouth : and till these Months do end, Bacchus and Vulcass must us both befriend.
	O second honour of the lamps supernall, Sure Calendar of Festivals eternall, Sea's Soveraintess, Sleep-bringer, Pilgrim's guide, Peace-loving Queen : What shall I say beside? What shall I say of thy inconstant brow, 720 Which makes my brain waver, I wot not how ? But, if by th' eye, a man's intelligence May ghes of things distant so far from hence, I think thy body round as any Ball, Whose superface (nigh equall over all) As a pure Glass, now up, and down anon, Reflects the bright beams of thy spouse, the Sun. For, as a Husband's Nobl'ness doth lustre A mean-born Wife : so doth the glorious lustre Of radiant Titan , with his beams, embright 730 Thy gloomy Front, that selfy bath no light.			Of the Moon and her alterations.
	Yet 'tis not alwayes after one self sort : For, far thy Cart doth swifter thee transport, Then doth thy Brothers ; diversly thou shin'st, As more or lesse thou from his light declin'st. Therefore each Month, when Hymen (blest) above In both your bodies kindles ardent love, And that the Stars-king all inamoured on thee, Full of desire, shines down direct upon thee : Thy neather half-Globe toward th' Earthly Ball 740 (After it's Nature) is observ'd all. But, him aside thou hast no sooner got, But on thy side a silver file we note, A half-bent Bowe ; which swels the lesse thy Coach Doth the bright Chariot of thy spouse approach, And filis his Circle. When th' Imperfall Star Beholds thee just in one Diameter, Then by degrees thy Full face falls away And (by degrees) Westward thy Horns display ; Till fall'n again betwix thy Lover's arms, 750 Thou wink'st again, vanquish't with pleasure's charms.			Of her roundnesse and brightnesse borrowed of the Sun. Simile. Of her waxing and waning when she is in her last quarter, and when she renues and cometh to her full.
	Thus dost thou Wex and Wane , thee oft renning ; Delighting change : and mortall things, ensuing (As subject to thee) thy self's transmutation, Feel th' unfelt force of secret alteration. Not, but that Phabus awakes with his shine, Cleers half (at least) of thine aspect divine ; But 't seems not so ; because we see but here Of thy round Globe the lower Hemisphear : Tho waxing us-ward, heav'n-ward thou dost wane ; 760 And waning us-ward, Heav'n-ward growst again. Yet, it befalls, even when thy face is Full , When at the highest thy pale Coursers pull, When no thick mask of Clouds can hide away, From living eyes, thy broad, round glistring Ray,			Of the cause of the divers aspect of the Moon.

Thy light is darkned, and thine eyes are siel'd,
Covered with shadow of a rusty shield.
For, thy Full face in his oblique designe
Confronting Phabus in th' Ecliptick line,
And th' Earth between; thou locest, for a space, 770
Thy splendor borrow'd of thy Brother's grace:

Of the cause of the Eclips of the Sun.

But, to revenge thee on the Earth for this Fore-stalling thee of thy kind Lover's kiss,
Sometimes thy thick Orb thou dost inter-blend
Twixt Sol and us, toward the later end;
And then (because his splendor cannot pass
Or pierce the thickness of thy gloomy mass)
The Sun, as subject to Death's pangs, us sees-not,
But seems all Light-less, though indeed he is not.

Difference betweene the Eclipses of the Sun, and of the Moone.

Therefore, far differing your Eclipses are; 780
For, thine is often, and thy Brother's rare;
Thine doth indeed deface thy beauty bright;
His doth not him, but us, bereave of Light:
It is the Earth, that thy defect procures;
It is thy shadow, that the Sun obscures:
East-ward, thy front beginneth first to lack;
West-ward, his brows begin there frowning black:
Thine, at thy Full, when thy most glory shines;
His, in thy Wane, when beauty most declines:
Thine's generall, tow'rd Heav'n and Earth together; 790
His but to Earth, nor to all places neither.

Of the admirable
and extraordinary
Eclipse of the Sun
on the day that our Saviour suffered on the Crosse, for our redemption.
Mat. 27. 45.
Mar. 15. 33.
Luk. 23. 44.

For, th' hideous Cloud, that cover'd so long since
With night's black vail th' eyes of the Starry-Prince
(When as he saw, for our foul sinfull slips,
The match-less Maker of the Light, eclipse)
Was far, far other: For, the swarty Moorus,
That sweating toyl on Guinne's wealthy shores:
Those whom the Nile's continuall Cataract
With roaring noyse for ever deaf doth make:
Those that surveying mighty ¹ Cassagale, 800
Within the circuit of her spacious Wall,
Do dry-foot dance on th' Orientall Seas;
And pass, in all her goodly crossing wayes
And stately streets, fronted with sumptuous Bows,
Twelve thousand Bridges, and twelve thousand

Towrs:
Those, that, in Norway and in Finland, chase
The soft-skind Martens, for their precious Cace;
Those that in Ivory Sleads on Ireland Seas
(Congeal'd to Crystall) slide about at ease;
Were witness all of his strange grief; and ghest, 810
That God, or Nature was then deep distrest.

¹ Quinsay.

Moreover Cynthia in that fearfull stound,
Full-ild the Compass of her Circle round;
And being so far off, she could not make
(By Nature's course) the Sun to be so black;
Nor, issuing from the Eastern part of Heav'n,
Darken that beauty, which her own had giv'n.
In brief, mine eye, confounded with such spectacles,
In that one wonder sees a Sea of Miracles. 819

What could'st thou doe less, then thyself dishonour
(O chief of Planets!) thy great Lord to honour?
Then for thy Father's death, a-while to wear
A mourning Robe on th' hatefull Hemi-sphere?
Then at high noon shut thy fair eye, to shun
A sight, whose sight did Hell with horror stun?
And (pierc't with sorrow for such injuries)
To please thy Maker, Nature to displease?

So, from the South to North, to make apparent
That God revok't his Serjeant Death's sad warrant
'Gainst Ezechias; and that he would give 830
The godly King fifteen years more to live:
Transgressing Heav'n's eternall ordinance;
Thrice in one Day, thou through one path did'st prance:
And, as desirous of another nap
In thy Vermillion sweet Aurora's Lap,
Thy Coach turn'd back, and thy swift sweating Horse
Full ten degrees lengthned their wonted Course:
Dials went false, and Forrests (gloomy black)
Wondred to see their mighty shades go back.

Of the going backe of the Sun
in the time of Ezechias.
2. King. 20. 11.
Essay 38. 8.

So, when th' incens'd Heav'ns did fight so fell, 840
Under the Standard of deer Israell,
Against the Hoast of odious Ammorites;
Among a million of swift Flashing Lights,
Rayning down Bullets from a stormy Cloud,
As thick as Hail, upon their Armies proud:
(That such as scaped from Heav'n's wrathfull thunder, Victorious swords might after hew in-sunder)
Conjur'd by Joruah, thy brave steeds stood still,
In full Career stopping thy whirling wheel;
And, one whole Day, in one degree they stayd 850
In mid'st of Heav'n, for sacred Armies' ayd:
Lest th' Infidels in their disordred Flight,
Should save themselves under the wings of Night.

Of the Sun's standing still in the time of Iosuah.
Ios. 12. 13.

Those, that then liv'd under the other Pole,
Seeing the Lamp which doth enlight the Whole,
To hide so long his lovely face away,
Thought never-more to have re-seen the Day;
The wealthy Indians, and the men of Spain,
Never to see Sun Rise or Set again.
In the same place Shadows stood still, as stone; 860
And in twelve Hours the Dials shew'd but one.

So Morne and Evening the Fourth Day conclude,
And God perceiv'd that All his Works were good.

THE FIFTH DAY OF THE FIRST WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Fish in the Sea, Fowls in the Aire abound
The Forms of all things in the Waters found :
The various Manners of Sea-Citizens,
Whose constant Friendship far exceedeth Men's :
Arion's strange escape : The Fowls attend
On th' onely Phoenix, to her end-less end :
Their kinds, their customes, and their Plumes' variety ;
Some presidents of Prudence, som of Piety :
The grateful Eagle, burning in the Flame* 10
With her dead Mistress, the fair Sestian Dame.

After a poetical manner he craveth time and opportunity to discourse in this day of the creation of Fishes and of Fowles.

L *Atonian Lamps, conducting divers wayes,
About the World, successive Nights and Dayes ;
Parents of wingéd Time, haste, haste your Cars :
And passing swiftly both th' opposéd Bars
Of East, and West, by your returning Ray,
Th' imperfect World make elder, by a Day.
Ye Fish, that brightly in Heav'n's Baldrick shine,
If you would see the Waters' waving brine
Abound with Fishes, pray Hyperion* 20
*T' abandon soon his liquid Mansion,
If he expect in his prefix Career,
To hoast with you a Month in every year.
And thou eternall Father, at whose wink
The wrathfull Ocean's swelling pride doth sink,
And stubborn storms of bellowing Winds be dumb,
Their wide mouths stop, and their wilde pinions num ;
Great Sovrain of the Seas, whose hooks can draw
A man alive from the Whale's monstrous maw ;
Provide me (Lord) of Steers-man, Star and Boat,* 30
*That through the vast Seas I may safely float :
Or rather teach me dive, that I may view
Deep under water all the Scaly crew ;
And dropping wet, when I returne to land
Laden with spoyls, extoll thy mighty hand.*

To which purpose especially he calleth on the true God.

IN VAIN had God stor'd Heav'n with glistening studs,
The plain with grain, the mountain tops with woods,
Sever'd the Ayre from Fire, the Earth from Water,
Had he not soon peopléd this large Theatre
With living Creatures : Therefore he began
(This-Day) to quicken in the Ocean,
In standing Pools, and in the straggling Rivers
(Whose folding Chanell fertill Champain severs)
So many Fishes of so many features,
That in the Waters one may see all Creatures,
And all that in this All is to be found ;
As if the World within the Deeps were drown'd.

The first part of this Book : where in he handlieth how by the Commandement of the Lord, the Fishes began to move in the Waters.

Seas have (as well as Skies) Sun, Moon, and Stars :
(As well as Ayre) Swallows, and Rooks, and Stares :
(As well as Earth) Vines, Roses, Nettles, Millions
Pinks, Gilliflowers, Mushrooms, and many millions
Of other Plants (more rare and strange than these)
As very Fishes living in the Seas :
And also Rams, Calfs, Horses, Hares, and Hogs,
Wolves, Lions, Urchins, Elephants, and Dogs,
Yea Men and Mayds : and (which I more admire)
The Mytred Bishop, and the Cowled Fryer :
Whereof, examples (but a few years since)
Were shew'n the Norways, and Polonian prince.

The Seas no lesse stored with priviledges and presidents of God's glorious power, than heaven and earth : and of the strange Fishes that live therein.

You divine wits of elder Dayes, from whom
The deep Invention of rare Works hath com,
Took you not pattern of your chiefest Tools
Out of the Lap of Thetis, Lakes, and Pools ?
Which partly in the Waves, part on the edges
Of craggy rocks, among the ragged sedges,
Bring-forth abundance of Pins, Pincers, Spoaks,
Pikes, percers, needles, mallets, Pipes and yoaks,
Ow'rs, sails, and swords, saws, wedges, razors, rammers, Plumes, cornets, knives, wheels, vices, horns, and hammers.

60

And, as if Neptune, and fair Panopé,
Palamon, Triton, and Lucothod,

70

Why God created so many sorts of strange Fishes.	Kept publicke Roules, there is the Calamary ; Who, ready Pen-knife, Pen and Ink doth carry. As a rare Painter draws (for pleasure) here A sweet Adonis , a foul Satyre there : Here a huge Cyclop , there a Pigme Elf : Sometimes, no less busying his skilfull self, Upon some ugly Monster (seldom seen) Than on the Picture of faire Beautie's Queen : Even so the Lord, that, in his Work's varietle, We might the more admire his powerfull Deitie ; And that we might discern by different features The various kinds of the vast Ocean's creatures ; Forming this mighty Frame, he every kind With divers and peculiar Signet sign'd.	Some love fresh Waters, some the salt desire, Some from the Sea use yearly to retire To the next Rivers, at their own contenting, So both the Waters with free Trade frequenting ; Having (like Lords) two Houses of receipt : For Winter th' one, the other for Summer's heat.	130	Simile. Describing the custome of Cer- taine Sea-Fishes, frequating the fresh waters in some seasons of the yeare.
Examples. The Four-Cuttle. Cuttle. Crab. Sea-Hare. Oyster.	Som have their heads groveling betwixt their feet (As th' inky Cuttles , and the Many-feet) : Som in their breast (as Crabs) : some head-less are, Foot-less, and finn-less (as the banefull Hare , And heat-full Oyster) in a heap confus'd, Their parts unperted, in themselves diffus'd.	As Citizens, in some intestine braul, Long coop'd up within their Castle wall ; So soon as Peace is made, and Siege remov'd, Forsake a while their Town so strong approv'd ; And tir'd with toyl, by leashes and by payrs, Crown'd with Garlands, go to take the ayrs : So, dainty Salmons , Chevins thunder-scar'd, Feast-famous Sturgeons , Lampreys speckle-starr'd ; In the Spring season the rough Seas forsake, And in the Rivers thousand pleasures take ; And yet the plenty of delicious foods, Their pleasant lodging in the crystall floods, The fragrant sents of flowry banks about, Cannot their Countrey's tender love wipe out Of their remembrance ; but they needs will home,	80	140
The Tortoise.	The Tyrian Merchant, or the Portuguse Can hardly build one Ship of many Trees : But of one Tortoise , when he list to float, Th' Arabian Fisher-man can make a Boat : And one such Shell him in the stead doth stand Of Hulk at Sea, and of an House on land.	In th' irefull Ocean to go seek their Tomb : Like English Gallants, that in Youth do go To visit Rhine, Sein, Ister, Arn, and Po ; Where though their Sense be dandled, dayes and nights, In sweetest choice of changeable Delights, They never can forget their Mother-Soyl, But hourly home their hearts and eyes receyl, Long languishing with an extreme Desire To see the smook of their dear Native Fire.	150	Comparison.
The Tunny.	Shall I omit the monstrous Whirl-about , Which in the Sea another Sea doth spout, Wherewith huge Vessels (if they happen nigh) Are over-whelm'd and sunken suddenly?	One (like a Pirat) only lives of prizes, That in the Deep he desperately surprizes : Another haunts the shoar, to feed on foam : Another round about the Rocks doth roam, Nibbling on Weeds : another, hating theeving, Eats nought at all, of liquor only living ; For, the salt humor of his Element Serves him, alone, for perfect nourishment.	100	160 The Fishes feed- ing.
Divers kinds of Whales.	Shall I omit the Tunnies , that durst meet Th' Eoan Monarch's never danted Fleet, And beard more bravely his victorious powrs Than the Defendants of the Tyrian Towers ; Or Porus , conquered on the Indian Coast ; Or great Darius , that three Battels lost ? When on the Surges I perceive, from far, Th' Ork , Whirl-pool , Whale , or huffing Physeter , Me thinks I see the wandring Ile again (Ortygian Delos) floating on the Main. And when in Combat these fell Monsters cross, Me seems some Tempest all the Seas doth toss. Our fear-less Saylor, in far Voyages	Some love the clear streams of swift tumbling torrents, Which through the rocks straining their struggling currents Break banks and Bridges ; and do never stop. Till thirsty Summer come to drink them up : Some almost alwaies pudder in the mud Of sleepy Pools, and never brook the flood Of Chrystall streams, that in continuall motion Bend toward the bosom of their Mother Ocean : As the most part of the World's Peers prefer Broyls before Rest, and place their Peace in War : And some againe (of a far differing humour) Hold Rest so deer, that but the only rumour Of War far off, affrights them at the first ; And wanting Peace , they count their States accurst.	110	170
Of their monstrous shape, and huge greatnesse.	(More led by Gain's hope than their Compasses) On th' Indian shore, have sometime noted som Whose bodies covered two broad Acres' room : And in the South-Seas they have also seen Some like high-topp'd and huge arm'd Treen ; And other-som whose monstrous backs did bear Two mighty wheels with whirling spokes, that were Much like the wing'd and wide-spreading sayls Of any Winde-mill turn'd with merry gales.	O watry Citizens, what Umpeer bounded Your liquid Livings? O! what Monarch mounded With walls your City? what severest Law Keeps your huge armies in so certain aw, That you encroch not on the neighbouring Borders Of your swim-brethren? as (against all Orders)	120	180
Of the divers qualities of Fishes.	But God (who Nature in her nature holds) Not only cast them in so sundry moldes : But gave them manners much more differing, As well our wits as our weak eyes to bring Int' admiration ; that men evermore, Praising his Works, might praise their Maker more.	Of the providence of God in their divers and notable manner of living : affording many lessons to man- kinde.

	Men daily practise, joining Land to Land, House unto House, Sea to Sea, Strand to Strand, Mountain to Mountain, and (most-most insatiable) 190 World unto World, if they could work it possible. And you (wise Fishes) that for recreation, Or for your seed's securer propagation, Doe sometimes shift your ordinary Dwelling ; What learned Chalde (skil'd in fortune-telling) What cunning Prophet your fit time doth show ? What Herald's Trumpet summons you to go ? What Guide conducteth, Day and Night, your Legions Through path-less paths in unacquainted Regions ? What Captain stout ? what Loadston, Steel, and Star, Measures your course in your adventures farre ? Surely the same that made you first of Nought, Who in your Nature some Idlas wrought Of Good and Evil ; to the end that we, Following the Good, might from the Evil flee. Th' adulterous Sargus doth not onely change Wives every day, in the deep streams ; but (strange) As if the honey of Sea-loves delights Could not suffice his ranging appetites, Courtuing the Shee-Goats on the grassie shore, 210 Would horn their Husbands that had horns before ; Contrary to the constant Cantharus , Who, ever faithfull to his dearest Spouse In Nuptiall Duties spending all his life, Love's never other then his onely wife. But, for her Love, the Mullet hath no Peer ; For, if the Fisher have surpriz'd her Pheer, As mad with wo to shore she followeth, Prest to consort him both in life and death. As yerst those famous, loving Thracian Dames 220 That leapt alive into the funerall flames Of their dead Husbands ; who decest and gone, Those loyall Wives hated to live alone. O ! who can here sufficiently admire That Gaping-Fish whose glistening eyes aspire Still toward Heav'n ; as if beneath the skies He found no object worthy of his eyes. As the Wood-pecker, his long tongue doth lill Out of the clov'n pipe of his horny bill, To catch the Emets ; when, beguil'd with-all, 230 The busie swarms about it creep and crawl : Th' Urano-scope , so, hid in mud, doth put Out of his gullet a long limber gut, Most like unto a little Worm (at sight) Where-at, eft-soons, many small Fishes bite : Which there-withall this Angler swallows straight, Alwaies self-armed with hook, line, and bait. The subtle ¹ Smell-strong . Many-foot , that fain A dainty feast of Oyster-flesh would gain, Swims softly down, and to him silly slips, 240 Wedging with stones his yet wide-yawning lips, Lest else (before that he have had his prey) The Oyster closing, clip his limbs away, And (where he thought t' have joy'd his victories) Himselfe become unto his prize a prize. The Crampe-Fish , knowing that she harboureth 250 A plague-full humour, a fell banefull breath, A secret Poppie , and a senseless Winter, Be-numming all that dare too-neer her venter : Pours forth her poyson, and her chilling Yee On the next Fishes ; charm'd so in a trice, That she not onely staves them in the Deep, But stuns their sense, and huls them fast asleep ; And then (at fill) she with their flesh is fed, Whose frozen limbe (still living) seem but dead. 'Tis this Torpedo , that, when she hath took Into her throat the sharp deceitfull hook, Doth not as other Fish, that wrench and wriggle When they be prick't, and plunge and strive, and struggle ; And by their stir, thinking to scape the Angle, 260 Faster and faster on the hook doe rangle : But, wily clasping close the Fishing Line, Suddenly spews into the Silver brine Her secret-spreading, sudden-speeding bane ; Which, up the Line, and all along the Cane, Creeps to the hand of th' Angler ; who, with-all Benumm'd and senseless, suddenly lets fall His hurtfull pole, and his more hatefull prize : Become like one that (as in bed he lies) Seems in his sleep to see some gastly Ghost ; 270 In a cold sweat, shaking, and swelt almost, He cals his Wife for ayd, his friends his folks ; But his stuf't stomack his weak clamour choaks : Then would he strike at that he doth behold, But sleep and feare his feeble hands do hold : Then would he run away ; but as he strives, He feels his feet fetter'd with heavie Gyves, But, if the Scolopendra have suckt-in 280 The sow-sweet morsell with the barded Pin, She hath as rare a trick to rid her from it : For, instantly, she all her guts doth vomit ; And having clear'd them from the danger, then She fair and softly sups them in again, So that not one of them within her womb Changeth his office, or his wonted room. The thriving Amia (neer Abidos breeding) And subtle Sea-Fox (in Steeds-love exceeding) Without so vent'ring their dear life and lynning, Can from the Worm-clasp compass their untwining ; For, sucking-in more of the twisted hair, 290 Above the hook they it in sunder shear ; So that their foe, who for a Fish did look Lifts up a bare line robb'd of bait and hook. But timorous Barbles will not taste the bit, Till with their tails they have unbooked it : And all the baits the Fisher can devise Cannot beguile their wary jealousies. Even so, almost, the many spotted Cuttle Well-neer insnared yet escapeth suttle ; For, when she sees her selfe within the Net, 300 And no way left, but one from thence to get,

	She suddenly a certaine Ink doth spew, Which dyes the Waters of a sable hew ; That, dazing so the Fisher's greedy sight, She through the clouds of the black Water's night Might scape with honour the black streams of Styx , Whereof already, almost lost, she licks.
Simile.	And, as a Prisoner (of some great transgression, Convict by witness and his own confession) Kept in dark Durance full of noysom breath,	310
The Golden-eye or Guilt-head.	Expecting nothing but the Day of Death ; Spies every corner, and pries round about To finde some weak place where he may get out : The delicate, cud-chewing Golden-eye , Kept in a Weyre, the widest space doth spy, And thrusting in his tail, makes th' Osiares gape With his oft flapping, and doth so escape : But, if his fellow finde him thus bested, He lends his tail to the imprisoned ; That thereby holding fast with gentle jaw, Him from his durance, he may friendly draw.	320
Sundry instruc- tions that Fishes give to men.	Or, (if before that he were captivate) He see him hookéd on the biting bait, Hasting to help, he leapeth at the line, And with his teeth snaps-off the hairy twine.
The Sparlings.	You stony hearts, within whose stubborn Center Could never touch of sacred friendship enter, Look on these Seas my Songs have calmd thus : Here's many a Damon , many a Theseus . The gilden Sparlings , when cold Winter's blast Begins to threaten, themselves together cast In heaps like bals, and heating mutually, Live ; that alone, of the keen cold would dye. Those small white Fish to Venus consecrated, Though without Venus ' ayd they be created Of th' Ocean scum ; seeing themselves a prey Expos'd in every Water-Rover's way, Swarming by thousands, with so many a fold Combine themselves, that their joynt strength doth hold	330
Simile.	Against the greediest of the Sea-theeves' sallies ; Yea, and to stay the course of swiftest Gallies.	340
Another.	As a great Carrak, cumb'rd and opprest With her self's-burthen, wends not East and West, Star-boord and Lar-boord, with so quick Careers As a small Fregat, or swift Pinnass steers : And as a large and mighty limbed Steed, Either of Friseland , or of German breed, Can never manage half so readily, As Spanisk Jennet, or light Barbarie :
Of the Whale and his friend Mus- culus .	So the huge Whale hath not so nimble motion, As smaller Fishes that frequent the Ocean ; But sometimes rudely 'gainst a Rock he brushes, Or in some roaring straight he blindly rushes, And scarce could live a Twelve-month to an end, But for the little Musculus (his friend) ; A little Fish, that swimming still before, Directs him safe from Rock, from Shelf and Shore :	350
Simile.	Much like a Childe that loving leads about His agéd Father when his eyes be out :
	Still wafting him through every way so right, That reft of eyes he seems not reft of sight. Waves-mother Thetis , though thine arms embrace The World about, within thine ample space, A firmer League of friendship is not seen Then is the Pearl-Fish and the Prawn between ; Both have but one repast, both but one Palace, But one delight, death, sorrow, and one solace : That lodgeth this, and this remunerates His Land-lord's kindness, with all needfull Cates. For, while the Pearl-Fish gaping wide doth glisten, 370 Much Fry (allur'd with the bright silver lustre Of her rich Casket) flocks into the Nacre ; Then with a prick the Prawn a signe doth make- her That instantly her shining shell she'll close (Because the prey worthy the pain he knowes) : Which gladly done, she ev'nly shareth-out The prey betwixt her, and her faithfull scout. And so the Sponge-Spy , warily awakes The Sponge's dull sense, when repast it takes. But O ! what stile can worthily declare 380 (O ! Galley-Fish , and thou Fish-Mariner , Thou Boat-Crab , and Sea-Urchin) your dexterity In Sailer's Art, for safeness and celerity ! If Jaffa Merchants, now Comburgers seem With Portugals , and Portugals with them : If Worlds of Wealth, born under other Sky, Seem born in ours : if without wings we fly From North to South, and from the East to West, Through hundred sundry way-less wayes address : If (to be brief) this World's rich compass round, 390 Seem as a Common, without hedge or mound, Where (at his choyce) each may him freely store With rarest fruits ; You may we thank therefore. For, whether Typhis , or that pride of Greece That say'd to Colchas for the Golden-Apple , Or Belus ' Son, first builded floating bowrs, To mate the Winde's storms, and the Water's stowrs ; What ee'r he were, he surely learn'd of you The Art of Rowing and of Sailing too. Here would I cease save that this hum'rous song 400 The Hermit-Fish compels me to prolong. A man of might that builds him a defence 'Gainst Weather's rigour and Warr's insolence, First dearly buyes (for, What good is good-cheap ?) Both the rich Matter and rare Workmanship : But, without buying Timber, Lime, and Stone, Or hiring men to build his Mansion, Or borrowing House, or paying Rent therefore, He lodgeth safe : for, finding on the shore Some handsome shell, whose Native Lord, of late 410 Was dispossessed by the Doom of Fate ; Therein he enters, and he takes possession Of th' empty Harbour by the free concession Of nature's Law ; who Goods that owner want Alwaies allots to the first Occupant , In this new Case, or in this Cradle (rather) He spends his Youth : then, growing both together	360	Strange League betweene the Pearl-Fish and the Prawn . Also betweene the Sponge and his spy. The Galley-Fish . The sayle-Fish . Boat-Crab . Sea-Urchin .
			The Sea-Hermit.

In age and wit, he gets a wider Cell,
 Wherein at Sea his later dayes to dwell.
 But Clío, wherefore art thou tedious 420
 In numbring Neptune's busie Burgers thus?
 If in his works thou wilt admire the worth
 Of the Sea's Sovereigne, bring but onely forth
 One little Fisk; whose admirable Story
 Sufficeth sole to shew his might and glory.
 Let all the Winds in one Winde gather them,
 And (seconded with Neptune's strongest stream)
 Let all at once blow all their stiffest gales
 A-stern a Galley under all her sails;
 Let her be holpen with a hundred Owers, 430
 Each lively handled by five lusty Rowers:
 The Remora, fixing her feeble horn
 Into the tempest-beaten Vessel's stern,
 Stayes her stone-still, while all her stout Consorts
 Saile thence at pleasure to their wishéd Ports.
 Then loose they all the sheets, but to no boot:
 For, the charm'd Vessel bougeth not a foot:
 No more then if three fadome under ground,
 A score of Anchors held her fastly bound:
 No more then doth an Oak that in the Wood 440
 Hath thousand tempests (thousand times) withstood;
 Spreading as many massie roots belowe,
 As mighty Arms above the ground do growe.
 O Stop-Ship say, say how thou canst oppose
 Thy selfe alone against so many foes?
 O I tell us where thou doo'st thine Anchors hide?
 Whence thou resisteth Sayls, Ow's, Wind, and Tide?
 How on the sodain canst thou curb so short
 A Ship, whom all the Elements transport?
 Whence is thine Engin, and thy secret force 450
 That frustrates Engins, and all force doth force?
 I had (in Harbour) heav'd mine Anchor o're,
 And ev'n already set one foot a-shore;
 When lo, the Dolphin, beating 'gainst the bank,
 'Gan mine oblivion moodily mis-thank.
 Peace, Princely Swimmer, sacred Fisk content thee;
 For, for thy praise, th' end of this Song I meant thee.
 Brave Admirall of the broad briny Regions,
 Triumphant Tamer of the scaly Legions,
 Who living, ever liv'st (for, never sleep, 460
 Death's lively Image, in thy eyes doth creep)
 Lover of Ships, of Men, of Melody, Thou up and down through the moyst World dost ply
 Swift as a shaft; whose Salt thou lovest so,
 That lacking that, thy life thou dost forgoe:
 Thou (gentle Fish) wert th' happy Boat, of yore,
 Which safely brought th' Amiclean Harp a-shore.
Arion, matchless for his Musick's skill,
 Among the Latines having gain'd his fill
 Of gold and glory, and exceeding fain 470
 To re-salute his learned Greece again;
 Unwares, imbarcs him in a Pyrate's ship,
 Who, loath to let so good a booty slip,
 Soon weighes his Anchors, packs on all his sail;
 And Winds conspiring with a prosperous gale,

His wingéd Fregat made so speedy flight,
Tarentum Towers were quickly out of sight;
 And all, save Skies, and Seas, on every side;
 Where th' onely Compass is the Pylot's guide.
 The Saylor's then (whom many times we finde 480 Falser then Seas, and fiercer then the Winde)
 Fall straight to strip him, rifling (at their Pleasure)
 In every corner to find out his Treasure;
 And, having found it, all with one accord
 Hoist th' Owner up, to heave him over-board.
 Who, weeping, said, O Nereus' noble issue,
 Not, to restore my little gold, I wish you:
 For, my chiefe Treasure in my Musick lyes
 (And all Apollo's sacred Pupils, prize
 The holy Virgins of Parnassus so, 490
 That under-foot all worldly wealth they throw.)
 No (brave Triumphers over Winde and Wave,
 Who in both Worlds your habitation have,
 Who both Heav'n's Hooks in your adventures view)
 'Tis not for That, with broken sighes I sue:
 I but beseech you, offer no impieties
 Unto a person deer unto the Deities.
 So may Messenian Sirens, for your sake,
 Be ever mute when you your voyage make,
 And Triton's Trumpet th' angry Surges swage, 500
 When (justly) Neptune shall against you rage.
 But if (alas!) I cannot this obtaine
 (As my faint eye reads in your frowns too plaine)
 Suffer, at least, to my sad dying voyce,
 My dolefull fingers to consort their noise:
 That so the Sea-Nymphs (rapt in admiration
 Of my divine, sweet, sacred lamentation)
 Dragging my corps to shore, with weeping shows
 May dew the same, and it entoomb in flows.
 Then play (said they) and give us both together 510
 Treasure and pleasure by thy comming hither.
 His sweetest strokes then sad Arion lent
 Th' enchanting sinnewes of his Instrument:
 Wherewith he charm'd the raging Ocean so,
 That crook-tooth'd Lampreys, and the Congers row
 Friendly together, and their native hate
 The Pike and Mullet (for the time) forgate,
 And Lobstars floated fear-less all the while
 Among the Polyps, prone to theft and guile.
 But among all the Fishes that did throng 520
 To dance the measures of his mournfull song,
 There was a Dolphin did the best accord
 His nimble Motions to the trembling Chord:
 Who, gently sliding neer the Pinnass' side,
 Seem'd to invite him on his back to ride.
 By this time, twice the Saylor's had assayd
 To heave him o're; yet twice himselfe he staid:
 And now the third time strove they him to cast;
 Yet by the shrowds the third time held he fast.
 But lastly, seeing Pyrats past remorse, 530
 And him too-feeble to withstand their force,
 The trembling Dolphin's shoulders he bestrid;
 Who on the Ocean's azure Surges slid;

The strange and secret property of the Remora or Stop-ship.

Dolphin.

The strange adventure of Arion, saved by a Dolphin.

So, that far-off (his charge so cheer'd him)
 One would have thought him rather fly, then swim :
 Yet fears he every Shelfe and every Surge
 (Not for himselfe, but for his tender charge)
 And, sloping swiftly overthwart those Seas
 (Not for his owne but for his Rider's ease)
 Makes double haste to finde some happy strand, 540
 Where his sweet Phabus he may safely land.
 Mean-while, Arion, with his Musick rare,
 Payes his deer Pylot his delightfull Fare.
 And heaving eyes to Heav'n (the Hav'n of Pity)
 To his sweet Harp he tunes this sacred Ditty :
 O thou Almighty ! who mankind to wrack,
 Of thousand Seas, didst whilom one Sea make,
 And yet didst save from th' universall Doom,
 One sacred Houshold, that in time to come
 (From Age to Age) should sing thy glorious praise ! 550
 Looke down (O Lord) from thy supernall rayes ;
 Look, look (alas !) upon a wretched man,
 Halfe-Toomb'd already in the Ocean,
 O ! be my Steers-man, and vouchsafe to guide
 The stern-less Boat, and bit-less Horse I ride ;
 So that, escaping Wind's and Water's wrath,
 I once again may tread my native path :
 And hence-forth, here with solemn vowes I sacre
 Unto thy glory (O my God and Maker)
 For this great favour's high Memoriall, 560
 My Heart and Art, my Voyce, Hand, Harp, and all.
 Here-with, the Seas their roaring rage refrain,
 The cloudy Welkin waxed clear again,
 And all the Windes did sodainly convert
 Their mouthes to ears, to heare his wondrous Art.
 The Dolphin then, discrying Land (at last)
 Stormes with himselfe, for having made such haste,
 And wisht Laconia thousand Leagues from thence,
 T' have joy'd the while his Musick's excellence.
 But, 'fore his owne delight, preferring far 570
 Th' unhop'd safety of the Minstrell rare, Sets him ashore, and (which most strange may seem)

Where life he took, there life restoreth him.
 But now (deere Muse) with Jonas let us hie
 From the Whale's belly ; and from jeopardy
 Of stormfull Seas, of wrackfull Rocks and Sand,
 Come, come (my Darling) let us haste to Land.
 While busie, poaring downward in the Deep,
 I sing of Fishes (that their Quarter keep)
 See how the Fowles are from my fancie fled, 580
 And their high prayes quite out of my head :
 Their flight out-flies me ; and my Muse almost
 The better halfe of this bright Day hath lost.
 But, cheer ye, Birds : your shadows (as ye pass)
 Seeming to flutter on the Water's face,
 Make me remember, by their nimble turns,
 Both what my duty and your due concerns.
 But first I pray (for meed of all my toyl
 In bringing you into this HAPPY ILE)
 Vouchsafe to waken with your various Notes 590
 The sense-less senses of those drowsie Sots,

Whose eye-lids laden with a weight of Lead
 Shall fall a-sleep the while these Rimes are read.
 But, if they could not close their wakefull eyes
 Among the Water's silent Colonies ;
 How can they sleep among the Birds, whose sound
 Through Heav'n, and Earth, and Ocean doth redound ?

The Heav'nly Phoenix first began to frame
 The Earthly Phanix, and adorn'd the same
 With such a plume, that Phabus circuiting 600
 From Fes to Cairo, sees no fairer thing :
 Such form, such feathers, and such Fate he gave-her,
 That fruitfull Nature breedeth nothing braver :
 Two sparkling eyes ; upon her crown a crest
 Of starrie Sprigs (more splendent then the rest),
 A golden doun about her dainty neck,
 Her brest deep purple, and a scarlet back,
 Her wings and train of feathers (mix'd fine)
 Of orient Azure and incarnadine.
 He did appoint her Fate to be her Pheer,
 And Death's cold kisses to restore her here
 Her life again ; which never shall expire 610
 Untill (as she) the World consume in fire.
 For, having pass'd under divers Climes,
 A thousand Winters, and a thousand Primes ;
 Worn-out with years ; wishing her endless end,
 To shining flames she doth her life commend,
 Dies to revive, and goes into her Grave
 To rise again more beautifull and brave.
 Perch'd, therefore, upon a branch of palm,
 With Incense, Cassia, Spiknard, Myrrh, and Balm ; 620
 By break of Day she builds (in narrow room)
 Her Urn, her Nest, her Cradle, and her Toomb :
 Where, while she sits all gladly-sad expecting
 Some flame (against her fragrant heap reflecting)
 To burn her sacred bones to seedfull cinders
 (Wherein, her age, but not her life, she renders) 630
 The Phrygian Skinker with his lavish Ewer,
 Drowns not the Fields with shower after shower ;
 The shivering Coach-man, with his Ycy Snowe
 Dares not the Forrests of Phanicia strowe :
Auster presumes not Libyan shores to pass
 With his moist wings : and gray-beard Boreas
 (As the most boistrous and rebellious slave)
 Is prisoned close in th' Hyper-Borean Cave :
 For, Nature now propitious to her End,
 T' her living Death a helping hand doth lend :
 And, stopping all those Mouths, doth mildly sted
 Her Funerals, her fruitfull birth, and bed : 640
 And Sol himself, glancing his golden eyes
 On th' odoriferous Couch wherein she lies :
 Kindles the spice, and by degrees consumes
 Th' immortal Phanix, both her flesh and plumes.
 But instantly out of her ashes springs
 A Worm, an Egg then, then a Bird with wings,
 Just like the first (rather the same indeed)
 Which (re-ingendred of it's selfy seed)
 By nobly dying a new Date begins,
 And where she loseth, there her life she wins :

Of the admirable and onely
 Phoenix.

Her description.

Her life.

Her death.

Her re-generation.

The second part of this Book, treating of Fowles.

- End-less by 'r End, eternall by her Tomb ; 650
While, by a prosperous Death, she doth becom
(Among the cinders of her sacred Fire)
Her ownself's Heir, Nurse, Nurseling, Dam, and Sire :
- The best application.
Birds that follow
the Phoenix, and their natures.
The Swallow.
- Teaching us all, in Adam here to dy,
That we in Christ may live eternally.
The Phoenix, cutting th' unfrequented Aire,
Forth-with is followed by a thousand pair
Of wings, in th' instant by th' Almighty wrought,
With divers Size, Colour, and Motion fraught.
- The sent-strong Swallow sweepeth to and fro, 660
As swift as shafts fly from a Turkish Bow,
When (Use, and Art, and Strength confederéd)
The skilfull Archer draws them to the head :
Flying she sings, and singing seeketh where
She more with cunning, then with cost, may rear
Her round-Front Palace in a place secure,
Whose plot may serve in rarest Arch'tecture :
Her little beak she loads with brittle straws,
Her wings with Water, and with Earth her claws ;
Whereof she Morter makes and there-with-all 670
Aptly she builds her semi-circle Wall.
- The Lark.
- The pretty Lark, climbing the Welkin clear,
Chaunts with a cheer, Heer peer-I neer my Dear ;
Then stooping thence (seeming her fall to rew)
Adieu (she saith) adieu, deer Deer adieu.
- The Linot.
The Finch.
- The Spink, the Linot, and the Gold Finch fill
All the fresh Aire with their sweet warbles shrill.
- The Nightingale.
- But, These are nothing to the Nightingale,
Breathing so sweetly from a breast so small,
So many Tunes ; whose Harmony excels 680
Our Voyce, our Violls, and all Musick els.
Good Lord ! how oft in a green Oaken Grove,
In the cool shadow have I stood and strove
To marry mine immortall Layes to theirs,
Rapt with delight of their delicious Aiers !
And (yet) me thinks, in a thick thorn I hear
A Nightingale to warble sweetly, clear.
One while she bears the Base, anon the Tenor,
Anon the Treble, then the Counter-Tenor :
Then all at once ; (as it were) chalenging 690
The rarest voices with herself to sing.
Thence thirty steps, amid the leafe Sprayes,
Another Nightingale repeats her Layes,
Just Note for Note, and adds some strain at last,
That she hath connéd all the Winter past :
The first replies, and descants there-upon ;
With divine warbles of Division,
Redoubling Quavers ; And so (turn by turn)
Alternately they sing away the Morn :
So that the conquest in this curious strife 700
Doth often cost the one her voyce and life :
Then, the glad Victor all the rest admire,
And after count her Mistress of the Quire.
At break of Day, in a delicious song
She sets the Gam-ut to a hundred yong :
And, when as fit for higher Tunes she sees them,
Then learnedly she harder Lessons gives-them ;
- Which, strain by strain, they studiously recite,
And follow all their Mistress' Rules aright.
The Colchian Pheasant, and the Partridge rare, 710
The lustfull Sparrow, and the fruitfull Stars,
The chattering Pye, the chastest Turtle-Dove,
The grizel Quoist, the Thrush (that Grapes doth love.)
The little Gnat-snap (worthy Princes' Boords)
And the greene Parrat, fairer of our Words ;
Wait on the Phoenix, and admire her tunes,
And gaze themselves in her blew golden plumes.
The ravening Kite, whose train doth well supply 720
A Rudder's place, the Falcon mounting high,
The Marlin, Lanar, and the gentle Tercell,
Th' Opray, and Saker, with a nimble sarcell,
Follow the Phoenix, from the Clouds (almost)
At once discovering many an unknow'n Coast.
In the swift Rank of these fell Rovers, flies
The Indian Griffin with the glistring eyes,
Beak Eagle-like, back sable, sanguin breast,
White (Swan-like) wings, fierce talons alwayes prest
For bloody battails ; for, with these he tears
Boars, Lions, Horses, Tigres, Bulls, and Bears :
With these, our Grandam's fruitfull panch he pulls, 730
Whence many an Ingot of pure Gold he culls,
To floor his proud nest, builded strong and steep
On a high Rock, better his thefts to keep :
With these, he guards against an Army bold
The hollow Mines where first he findeth Gold ;
As wroth, that men upon his right should rove,
Or theevish hands usurp his Treasure-trove.
O ! ever may'st thou fight so (valiant Fowl)
For this dire bane of our seduced soule :
And (with thee) may the Dardan Ants so ward 740
The Gold committed to their careful Guard,
That hence-forth hopeless, man's frail mind may rest
her
From seeking that, which doth it's Masters master.
O odious poyson ! for the which we dive
To Pluto's dark Den : for the which we rive
Our Mother Earth ; and, not contented with
Th' abundant gifts she outward offereth,
With sacrilegious Tools we rudely rend-her,
And ransack deeply in her bosom tender,
While under ground we live in hourly fear 750
When the frail Mines shall over-whelm us there :
For which, beyond rich Taproban, we roule
Through thousand Seas to seek another Pole ;
And maugre Winde's and Water's enmity,
We every Day new unknow'n Worlds descry :
For which (alas !) the Brother sels his Brother,
The Sire his Son, the Son his Sire and Mother,
The Man his Wife, the Wife her wedded Pheer,
The Friend his Friend : O ! what not sell we here ?
Sithence, to satiate our Gold-thirsty gall, 760
We sell ourselves, our very soules, and all.
Neer these, the Crow his greedy wings displays,
The long-liv'd Rav'n, th' infamous Bird that layes
His Bastard Egges within the nests of other,
To have them hatcht by an unkindly Mother :
- Divers other delicate and gentle Birds.
Ravenous Birds.
720
730
740
750
760 Night-Fowles and solitary Birds.

The Shrick-Owle, us'd in falling Towres to lodge,
Th' unlucky Night-Rav'n; and thou lasie Madge
That, fearing light, still seekest where to hide
The hate and scorn of all the Birds beside.

Water Fowls. But (gentle Muse) tell me what Fowls are those 770
That but even-now from flaggy Fenns arose?
'Tis th' hungry Hern, the greedy Cormorant,
The Coot and Curlew, which the moors doe haunt,
The nimble Teal, the Mallard strong in flight,
The Di-dapper, the Plover and the Snight:
The silver Swan, that dying singeth best,
And the Kings-Fisher; which so bullds her nest,
By the Sea-side in midst of Winter Season,
That man (in whom shines the bright Lamp of Reason)
Cannot devise, with all the wit he has, 780
Her little building how to raise or raze:
So long as there her quiet Couch she keeps,
Sicilian Sea exceeding calmly sleeps;
For Aeolus, fearing to drown her brood,
Keeps home the while, and troubles not the Flood.
The Pirat (dwelling always in his Bark)
In 's Calendar her building-Days doth mark:
And the rich Merchant resolutely ventures,
So soon as th' Halcyon in her brood-bed enters.
Mean-while, the Langa, skimming (as it were) 790
The Ocean's surface, seeketh every where
The huyg Whale; where slipping in (by Art)
In his vast mouth, she feeds upon his heart.

Strange admirable Birds. NEW-SPAIN'S Cucnio, in his forehead brings
Two burning Lamps, two underneath his wings;
Whose shining Rayes serve oft, in darkest night,
Th' imbroiderer's hand in royall Works to light:
Th' ingenious Turner, with a wakfull eye,
To polish fair his purest Ivory:
The Usurer to count his glistring treasures: 900
The learned Scribe to limn his golden measures.

Those passing strange and wondrous (birds) Mamaguet,¹ (Wondrous indeed, if Sea, or Earth, or Sky, Saw ever wonder swim, or go, or fly)
None knowes their nest, none knowes the dam that breeds them:
Food-less they live; for, th' Aire lonely feeds them:
Wing-less they fly; and yet their flight extends,
Till, with their flight, their unknow'n lives'-date ends.

Charitable Birds. The Stork, still eying her deer Thessalie, 810
The Pelican consorteth cheerfully:
Praise-worthy Payre: with pure examples yeeld
Of faithfull Father, and officious Childe:
Th' one quites (in time) her Parents' love exceeding,
From whom she had her birth and tender breeding,
Not onely brooding under her warm brest
Their ago-chill'd bodies bed-rid in the nest;
Nor onely bearing them upon her back
Through th' empty Aire when their owne wings they lack;

But also sparing (This let Children note) 820
Her daintiest food from her own hungry throat,
To feed at home her feeble Parents, held
From forraging, with heavie Gyves of Eld.
The other, kindly, for her tender Brood
Tears her own bowells, trilleth-out her blood
To heal her young, and in a wondrous sort
Unto her Children doth her life transport:
For, finding them by some fell Serpent slain,
She rents her brest, and doth upon them rain
Her vitall humour; whence recovering heat, 830
They by her death, another life do get:
A Type of Christ, who, sin-thrall'd man to free,
Became a captive; and on shamefull Tree
(Self-guiltless) shed his blood, by 's wounds to save-us,
And salve the wounds th' old Serpent firstly gave-us:
And so became of meer immortal, mortal;
Thereby to make frail mortal Man, immortal.

Thus do'st thou print (O Parent of this All)
In every brest of brutest Animall
A kind instinct, which makes them dread no less 840
Their Children's danger then their owne decease;
That so each Kinde may last immortally,
Though th' Individuum pass successively.
So fights a Lion not for glory (then)
But for his Deer Whelps taken from his Den
By Hunters fell: He fiercely roareth out,
He wounds, he kills; amid the thickest rout,
He rushes-in, dread-less of spears, and darts,
Swords, shafts, and staves, though hurt in thousand parts;
And brave-resolvéd, till his last breath lack, 850
Never gives-over, nor an inch gives-back:
Wrath salves his wounds: and lastly (to conclude)
When, over-layd with might and Multitude,
He needs must die; dying, he more bemoanes,
Then his own death, his Captive little-Ones.
So for their young our Masty Currs will fight,
Eagerly bark, bristle their backs and bite.
So, in the Deep, the Dog-Fish for her Fry
Lucina's throws, a thousand times doth try:
For, seeing when the subtle Fisher follows them, 860
Again alive into her womb she swallows them;
And when the perill's past, she brings them thence,
As from the Cabins of a safe defence;
And (thousand lives to their deer Parent owing)
As sound as ever in the Seas are rowing.
So doth a Hen make of her wings a Targe
To shield her Chickens that she hath in charge:
And so, the Sparrow with her angry bill
Defends her brood from such as would them ill.

I hear the Crane (if I mistake not) cry:
Who in the Clouds forming the forkéd Y,
By the brave orders practis'd under her,
Instructeth Souldiers in the Art of War.
For when her Troops of wandring Cranes forsake
Frost-firméd Strymon, and (in Autumn) take Truce with the Northren Dwarfs, to seek adventure
In Southren Climates for a milder Winter; 840 The Crane.

Lessons for mankinde, out of the consideration of the natures of divers creatures.

- A front each Band a forward Captain flies,
Whose pointed Bill cuts passage through the Skies ;
- Two skilfull Sergeants keep the Ranks aright, 880
And with their voyce hasten their tardy Flight ;
And when the honey of care-charming sleep
Sweetly begins through all their veines to creep,
One keeps the Watch, and ever carefull-most,
Walks many a Round about the sleeping Hoast,
Still holding in his claw a stony clod,
Whose fall may wake him if he hap to nod ;
Another doth as much, a third, a fourth,
Untill, by turns the night be turned forth.
- The Peacock. There, the fair Peacock beautifully brave, 890
Proud, portly-strouting, stalking, stately-grave,
Wheeling his starry Trayn, in pomp displayes
His glorious eyes to Phabus' golden rayes.
- The Cock. Close by his side stands the courageous Cock,
Crest-people's King, the Peasant's trusty Clock,
True Morning Watch, Aurora's Trumpeter,
The Lyon's terror, true Astronomer,
Who dally riseth when the Sun doth rise ;
And when Sol setteth then to roost he hies.
- The Estridge. There, I perceive amid the flowry Plain 900
The mighty Estridge, striving oft in vain
To mount among the flying multitude,
(Although with feathers, not with flight indu'd),
Whose greedy stomach steely gads digests ;
Whose crisped train adorns triumphant crests.
- Thou happy Witness of my happy Watches,
Blush not (my book) nor think it thee mismatches,
To bear about upon thy paper-Tables,
Flies, Butterflies, Gnats, Bees, and all the rabbles
- Of Insects, in the Creation whereof the wisdom of their Maker
shineth admirably. Of other Insects (endless to rehearse) 910
Limn'd with the pencil of my various Verse :
Sith these are also his wise Workmanships
Whose fame did never obscure Work eclipse :
And sith in These he shows us every howr
More wondrous proofs of his Almighty powr
Then in huge Whales, or hideous Elephants,
Or whatsoever other Monster haunts
In Storm-less Seas, raising a storm about,
While in the Sea another Sea they spout.
For, if old times admire Callicrates 920
For Ivory Emmats ; and Mermicides
For framing of a rigged Ship, so small
That with her wings a Bee can hide it all,
(Though th' Artfull fruits of all their curious pain, Fit for no use, were but inventions vain)
Admire we then th' all-wise Omnipotence,
Which doth within so narrow space dispence
So stiff a sting, so stout and valiant heart,
So loud a voyce, so prudent Wit and Art.
- Of Flies. For, where's the State beneath the Firmament, 930
That doth excell the Bees for Government ?
No, no : bright Phabus, whose eternal Race
Once every Day about the World doth pace,
Sees here no Citie, that in Rites and Laws
(For Equitie) neer to their Justice draws :
- Not¹ That which flying from the furious Hun,
In th' Adrian Sea another World begun.
Their well-rul'd State my soule so much admires,
That, durst I loose the Reins of my desires,
I gladly could digress from my designe, 940
To sing a while their sacred Discipline :
But if, of all, whose skilfull Pencils dare
To counterfeit th' Almighty's Models rare,
None yet durst finish that fair Piece, wherein Learn'd Apelles drew Love's wanton Queen ;
Shall I presume Hymetus' Mount to climbe,
And sing the Bees' praise in mine humble rime ?
Which Latian Bards' inimitable Prince
Hath warbled twice about the banks of Mince ?
Yet may I not that little *Worm*³ pass-by, 950
Of Fly turn'd Worm, and of a Worm a Fly :
Two births, two deaths, here Nature hath assign'd-her,
Leaving a Post-hume (dead-alive) seed behind her ;
Which soon transforms the fresh and tender leaves
Of Thisbe's pale Tree, to those slender sleeves
(On oval clews) of soft, smooth, Silken flakes ;
Which more for us, then for herself, she makes.
O precious fleece ! which onely did adorn
The sacred loyns of Princes heretofore :
But our proud Age, with prodigall abuse, 960
Hath so profan'd the old honourable use,
That Shifters now, who scarce have bread to eat,
Disdain plain Silk, unless it be beset
With one of those deer Metals ; whose desire
Burns greedy soules with an immortall Fire.
- Though last, not least ; brave Eagle no contempt
Made me so long thy story hence exempt ;
(Nor LESS-EX told shall thy true vertues be,
For th' Eyrie's sake that owes my Muse and me :
Where Jov's and Juno's stately Birds be billing, 970
Their Azure Field with fairest Eaglets filling (Azure they bear three Eaglets Argentines, A Cheuron Ermin grail'd Or between).
With CHieftie RICHess, to THEM all I wish
In Earth ; in Heav'n th' immortall Crown of Bliss.)
For, well I know, thou holdest (worthily)
That place among the Aëry flocks that fly,
As doth the Dragon, or the Cockatrice
Among the banefull Creeping Companies :
The noble Lion among savage beasts ; 980
And gentle Dolphin 'mong the Dying guests.
I know thy course ; I know, thy constant sight
Can fixly gaze against Heav'n's greatest Light.
But, as the Phœnix on my Front doth glister,
Thou shalt the Final of my Frame illustre.
- On Thracian shore, of the same stormy stream
Which did inherit both the bones and name
Of Phryxus' Sister (and not far from thence
Where love-blind Hero's hap-less diligence,
Instead of Love's lamp, lighted Death's cold brand, 990
To waft Leander's naked limbs to land)

A strange and notable story of the love and death of an Eagle.

There dwelt a Maid, as noble, and as rich,
As fair as Hero, but more chaste by much :
For, her steel brest still blunted all the Darts
Of Paphos' Archer, and eschew'd his Arts.

One day, this Damsell through a Forrest thick
Hunting among her Friends (that sport did seek)
Unto a steep Rock's thorny-thrumméd top
(Where, one (almost) would fear to clamber up)
Two tender Eaglets in a nest espies, 1000
Which 'gainst the Sun sate trying of their eyes ;
Whose callow backs and bodies round about
With soft short quils began to bristle out ;
Who yawning wide, with empty gorge did gape
For wanted fees out of their Parents' rape.
Of these two Fowls the fairest up she takes Into her bosome, and great haste she makes Down from the Rock, and shivering yet for fear
Trips home as fast as her light feet can bear :
Even as a wolf, that hunting for a prey, 1010
And having stoin (at last) some Lamb away ;
Flies with down-hanging head, and leareth back
Whether the Mastife doo pursue his track.

In time, this Eagle was so thoroughly mann'd,
That from the Quarry to his Mistress' hand
At the first call 't would come ; and fawn upon-her,
And bill and bow, in signe of love and honour :
On th' other side, the Maiden makes as much
Of her deer Bird ; stroaking with gentle touch
Her wings and train, and with a wanton voyce 1020
It wantonly doth cherish and rejoyce :
And (pretty fondling) she doth prize it higher
Then her owne beauties ; which all else admire.

But (as fell Fates mingle our single joyes,
With bitter gall of infinite annoyes)
An extream Fever vext the Virgin's bones
(By one disease to cause two deaths at once)
Consum'd her flesh, and wanly did displace
The Rose-mixt-Lillies in her lovely face.
Then far'd the Fowl and Fairest both alike ; 1030
Both like tormented, both like shivering sick ;
So that, to note their passions, one would gather
That Lachesis spun both their lives together.
But oft the Eagle, striving with her Fit,
Would fly abroad to seek some dainty bit
For her deer Mistress : and with nimble wing,
Some Rail, or Quail, or Partridge would she bring ;
Paying with food, the food receiv'd so oft,
From those fair Ivory, Virgin-fingers soft,
During her nonage, yer she durst assay 1040
To cleave the sky, and for her selfe to prey.

The Fever now with spitefull fits had spent
The blood and marrow of this Innocent,
And Life resign'd to cruell death her right ;
Who three dayes after doth the Eagle cite.

The fearfull Hare durst now frequent the Down ;
And round about the Wals of Hero's Town,
The Tereel-gentle, and swift Falcon flew,
Dread-less of th' Eagle that so well they knew :
For she (alas !) lies on her Ladies' bed, 1050
Still-sadly mourning ; though a-live, yet dead :
For, O ! how should she live sith Fatall knife
Hath cut the thread of her live's dearest life ?

O're the deer Corps somtimes her wings she hovers,
Somtimes the dead brest with her brest she covers,
Somtimes her neck doth the pale neck embrace,
Somtimes she kisses the cold lips and face ;
And with sad murmurs she lamenteth so,
That her strange moan augments the parents' wo.

Thrice had bright Phadus' daily Chariot run 1060
Past the proud Pillars of Alcmanas' son,
Since the fair Virgin past the fatall Ferrey
Where (lastly) Mortals leave their burthens weary ;
And yet this dolefull Bird, drown'd in her tears,
All comfort-less, Rest and Repast forbears :
So much (alas !) she seemeth to contend
Her life and sorrows both at once to end.

But lastly, finding all these means too-weak,
The quick dispatch, that she did wish, to wreak ;
With ire and anguish both at once enraged, 1070
Unnaturally her proper brest she gaged,
And tears her bowels, stroaking bitterly
That all these deaths could yet not make her dy.

But, loe the while, about the lightsome door
Of th' hap-less house, a mournfull troop that bore
Black on their back and Tapers in their fists,
Tears on their cheeks, and sorrow in their breasts ;
Who, taking up the sacred Load (at last)
Whose happy soule already Heav'n embrac't ;
With shrill, sad cries, march toward the fatall
Pile 1080

With solemn pace : The silly Bird, the while,
Following far-off, her bloody entrails trails ;
Honouring, with convoy, two sad Funerals.
No sooner had the Ceremonie's Flame
Embrac't the body of her tender Dame,
But suddenly, distilling all with blood,
Down soust the Eagle on the blazing wood :
Nor boots the Flamine, with his sacred wand,
A hundred times to beat her from her stand :
For, to the midst still of the Pile she plies ; 1090
And, singing sweet her Ladie's Obsequies,
There burns herself, and blendeth, happily,
Her bones with hers she lov'd so tenderly.

O happy Pair ! upon your sable Toomb,
May Mel and Manna ever showing come ;
May sweetest Myrtles ever shade your Herse,
And evermore live you within my Verse.

*So Morne and Evening the Fifth Day conclude,
And God perceiv'd that All his Works were good.*

THE SIXTH DAY OF THE FIRST WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Inviting all, which through this World, aspire
Unto the next, God's glorious Works & admire ;
Here, on the Stage, our noble Poet brings
Beasts of the Earth, Cattell, and creeping things ;
Their hurt and help to us : The strange events
Between Androdes, and the Forrest Prince.
The little-world (Commander of the greater)
Why form'd last : his admirable feature : 10
His Heav'n-born Soule ; her wond'rous operation :
His dearest Rib ; All Creatures' generation.*

An exhortation to all which through the Pilgrimage of this life, tend toward the everlasting City, to consider well the excellent works of God, here represented by our Poet.

YOU Pilgrims, which (through this world's City) wend
Toward th' happy City, where withouten end
True joyes abound ; to anchor in the Port
Where Death's pale horrors never do resort :
If you will see the fair Amphitheaters,
Th' Arke, Arcenels, Towrs, Temples, and Theaters,
Colosses, Cirque, Pyles, Ports, and Palaces
Proudly dispers'd in your passages ;
Come, come with me : for, there's not any part 20
In this great Frame where shineth any Art,
But I will show 't you. Are you weary, since ?
What ! tyr'd so soon ? Why will you not (my friends)
Having already ventur'd forth so far
On Neptun's back (through Winde's and Water's war)
Rowe yet a stroak, the Harbour to recover,
Whose shores already my glad eyes discover ?
Almighty Father guide, their guide along,
And pour upon my faint influent tongue
The sweetest hony of th' Hyanthian Fount, 30
Which freshly purlerth from the Muses' Mount,
With the sweet charm of my victorious Verse ;
Tame furious Lions, Bears, and Tigers fierce ;
Make (all the while) Beasts, laying fury by,
To come with Homage to my Harmony.

OF ALL THE Beasts which thou This-Day didst The Elephant build,

To haunt the Hills, the Forrest, and the Field,
I see (as Vice-Roy of their Brutish Band)
The Elephant, the Vant-guard doth command :
Worthy that Office ; whether we regard 40
His Towr'd back, where many Souldiers ward ;
Or else his Prudence, wherewithall he seems
T' obscure the wits of human-kinde somtimes :
As studious Scholar, he self-rumineth
His lessons giv'n, his King he honoureth,
Adores the Moon : mov'd with strange desire
He feels the sweet flames of the Idalian fire,
And (pierc't with glance of a kinde-cruell eye)
For humane beauty, seems to sigh and dye. 50
Yea (if the Gracians doe not mis-recite)
With 's crook'd trumpet he doth somtimes write.
But, his huge strength, or subtile Wit, cannot Defend him from the sly Rhinocerot :
Who (never with blinde fury led) doth venter
Upon his Foe, but (yer the lists he enter)
Against a Rock he whetteth round about
The dangerous pike upon his arm'd snout :
Then buckling close, doth not (at randon) hack
On the hard Cuirass on his Enemy's back ;
But under's belly (cunning) findes a skin, 60
Where (and but there) his sharpened blade will in.
The scaly Dragon, being else too lowe
For th' Elephant, up a thick Tree doth goe ;
So, closely ambusht almost every Day,
To watch the Carry-Castle in his way :
Who, once approaching straight his stand he leaves,
And round about him he so closely cleaves
With 's wrything body ; that his Enemy
(His stinging knots unable to un-tie)
Hastes to some Tree, or to some Rock, whereon 70
To rush and rub-off his detested zone ;

His combat with the Rhinocerot.

His combat with the Dragon.

The true Image of civil War.	The fell imbraces of whose dismall clasp Have almost brought him to his latest gasp. Then suddenly, the Dragon slips his hold From th' Elephant, and sliding down, doth fold About his fore-legs, fetter'd in such order, That stockéd there he now can stir no further ; While th' Elephant (but to no purpose) strives With 's winding Trunk t' undoe his wounding gyves, His furious foe thrusts in his nose, his nose, 80 Then head and all ; and there-withall doth close His breathing passage : but, his victory He joyes not long ; for his huge Enemy Falling down dead, doth with his weighty Fall Crush him to death, that caus'd his death withall :	On that, another ; and so all do ride Each after other : and still, when their guide Growes to be weary, and can leade no more, He that was hindmost comes and swims before : Like as in Cities, still one Magistrate 130 Bears not the Burthen of the common state ; But having past his Yeer, he doth discharge On others' shoulders his sweet-bitter charge. But, of all Beasts, none steadeth Man so much Dog. As doth the Dog ; his diligence is such : A faithfull Guard, a watchfull Sentinell, A painfull Purveyor, that, with perfect smell, Provides great Princes many a dainty mess ; A friend till death, a helper in distress, Dread of the Wolf, Fear of the fearfull Thief, 140 Fierce Combatant, and of all Hunters chief.
Simile.	Like factious French-men, whose fell hands pursue In their own brests their furious blades t' embrew, While pittie-less, hurried with blinded zeal, In their own blood they bath their Common-weal ; When as at Dreux, S. Denis, and Mountcounter, 90 Their parricidiall bloody swords encounter ; Making their Countrey (as a Tragick Tomb) T' enter th' Earth's terror in their hap-less womb. Or, like our own (late) YORK and LANCASTER, Ambitious broachers of that Viper-War ; Which did the womb of their own Dam devour, And spoil'd the freshest of fair ENGLAND'S Flower ; When (WHITE and RED) ROSE against ROSE, they stood, Brother 'gainst Brother, to the knees in blood : While Wakefield, Barnet, and S. Alban's streets 100 Were drunk with deer blood of PLANTAGENETS : Where, either Conquer'd, and yet neither won : Sith, by them both, was but their own undone.	There skips the Squirrill, seeming Weather-wise, Squirrill. Without beholding of Heav'n's twinkling eyes : For, knowing well which way the Winde will change, He shifts the portall of his little Grange. There's th' wanton Weasell, and the wily Fox, Weasell. The witty Monkey, that man's action mocks : Fox. The sweat-sweet Civit, dearly fetcht from far Monkey. For Courtiers nice, past Indian Tarnassar, Civit Cat. There, the wise Bever, who, pursu'd by foes, 150 Tears-off his codlings, and among them throwes, Knowing that Hunters on the Pontick Heath Doe more desire that ransom, then his death. There the rough Hedg-hog ; who, to shun his thrall, Hedg-hog. Shrinks up himselfe as round as any Ball ; And fasting his slowe feet under his chin, On's thistly bristles rowles him quickly in. But th' eye of Heav'n beholdeth nought more strange Chameleon.
Simile.	Neer th' Elephant, comes th' hornéd Hirable,¹ Stream-troubling Camell, and strong-neckéd Bull, The lary-pacéd (yet laborious) Asse, The quick, proud Courser, which the rest doth passe For apt address ; Mars and his Master loving, After his hand with ready lightness moving : 110 This, out of hand, will self advance, and bound, Corvet, pase, manage, turn, and trot the Round ; That, followes loose behind the Groom that keeps-him ; This, kneeleth down the while his Master leaps-him ; This runs on Corn-Ears, and ne'r bends their quils ; That on the Water, and ne'r wets his heels.	There skips the Squirrill, seeming Weather-wise, Squirrill. Without beholding of Heav'n's twinkling eyes : For, knowing well which way the Winde will change, He shifts the portall of his little Grange. There's th' wanton Weasell, and the wily Fox, Weasell. The witty Monkey, that man's action mocks : Fox. The sweat-sweet Civit, dearly fetcht from far Monkey. For Courtiers nice, past Indian Tarnassar, Civit Cat. There, the wise Bever, who, pursu'd by foes, 150 Tears-off his codlings, and among them throwes, Knowing that Hunters on the Pontick Heath Doe more desire that ransom, then his death. There the rough Hedg-hog ; who, to shun his thrall, Hedg-hog. Shrinks up himselfe as round as any Ball ; And fasting his slowe feet under his chin, On's thistly bristles rowles him quickly in. But th' eye of Heav'n beholdeth nought more strange Chameleon.
The Hirable. Camell. Bull. Asse. Horse.	In a fresh Troup, the fearfull Hare I note, 'Th' oblivious Conney, and the brouzing Goat, The sloathfull Swine, the golden-fleeced Sheep, The light-foot Hart, which every yeer doth weep (As a sad Recluse) for his branchéd head, 120 That in the Spring-time he before hath shed. O ! what a sport, to see a Heard of them Take soyl in Summer in some spacious stream ! One swims before, another on his chine, Nigh half-upright, doth with his brest incline ;	But th' eye of Heav'n beholdeth nought more strange Chameleon. Then the Chameleon, who with various change Receives the colour that each object gives, And (food-less else) of th' Aire alone lives. My blood congeales, my sudden swelling brest Can hardly breath, with chill cold cakes opprest ; My haire doth stare, my bones for fear do quake, My colour changes, my sad heart doth shake : And, round about 'Death's Image (gastly-grim) Before mine eyes all-ready seems to swim. O ! who is he that would not be astound, To be (as I am) heer environ'd round With cruell'st Creatures, which for Mastery, 170 Have vow'd against us end-less Enmity ? Phabus would faint, Alcides selfe would dread, Although the first drad Python conqueréd, And th' other vanquisht th' Erymanthian Boar, The Nemean Lion and a many more. What strength of arm, or Art-full stratagem, From Nile's fell Rover could deliver them, Who runs, and rowes, warring by Land and Water 'Gainst men and Fishes subject to his slaughter ? Or from the furious Dragon, which alone 180 Set-on a Roman Army ; whereupon Stout Regulus as many Engines spent, As to the ground would Carthage wals have rent ?
The Hare. The conney. Goat. Swine. Sheep. Deere.	¹ Alias Cyrraffa, alias Anabula : an Indian Sheep, or a wilde Sheep.	Creatures Vene- mous, and offen- sive to man. The Crocodile. Dragon.

Aspick.	What shot-free Corslet, or what counsell crafty, 'Gainst th' angry Aspick could assure them safety? Who (faithfull Husband) over Hill and Plain Pursues the man that his dear Pheer hath slain ; Whom he can finde amid the thickest throng, And, in an instant, 'venge him of his wrong. What shield of Ajax could avoid their death	190	" Well knowing, Conquest yeelds but little Honour, " If bloody Danger doe not wait upon her. O gracious Father ! th' hast not onely lent Prudence to Man, the Perils to prevent, Wherewith these foes threaten his feeble life : But (for his sake) hast set at mutual strife Serpents with Serpents , and hast rais'd them foes Which, uprovokéd, felly them oppose. Thou mak'st th' ingratefull Viper (at his birth)	250	God hath set them at enmity among themselves.
Basilisk.	By th' Basilisk whose pestilential breath Doth pierce firm Marble, and whose banefull eye Wounds with a glance, so that the soundest dye.		His dying Mother's belly to gnaw forth : Thou mak'st the Scorpion (greedy after food) Unnaturally devour his proper brood : Whereof, one scaping from the Parent's hunger, With 's death doth vengeance on his brethren's wronger :		The Viper and Scorpion with their young.
Why God created such noysome and dangerous crea- tures : Sin the oc- casion of the hurt they can doe us.	Lord ! if so be, thou for mankinde didst rear This rich round Mansion (glorious every where) Alas ! why didst thou on This-Day create These harmfull Beasts, which but exasperate Our thorny life ? O ! wert thou pleas'd to form Th' innammel'd Scorpion , and the Viper -worm, Th' horned Cerastes , th' Alexandrian Skink , Th' Adder , and Drynas (full of odious stink) Th' Eft , Snake , and Dipsas (causing deadly Thirst) : Why hast thou arm'd them with a rage so curst ? Pardon, good God, pardon me ; t' was our pride, Not Thou, that troubled our first happy tide, And, in the Childehood of the World, did bring Th' Amphisbema , her double banefull sting. Before that Adam did revolt from Thee, And (curious) tasted of the sacred Tree , He livéd King of Eden , and his brow Was never blancht with pallid fear, as now :	200	Dying himself, kils with his bane his Baner. Thou mak'st th' Ichneumon (whom the Memphs adore) To rid of Poysons Nile's manuréd shore ; Although (indeed) he doth not conquer them So much by strength as subtle stratagem. As he that (urg'd with deep indignity) By a proud Challenge doth his foe defie, Premeditates his posture and his play, And arms himself so compleat every way (With wary hand guided with watchfull eye, And ready foot to traverse skilfully) That the Defendant, in the heat of fight, Finds no part open for his blade to light :	261	The Weasell against the Basilisk .
	The fiercest Beasts, would at his word, or beck, Bow to his yoke their self-obedient neck ; As now the ready Horse is at command To the good Rider's spur, or word, or wand ; And doth not wildly his own will perform, But his that rules him with a steady arm. Yea, as forgetfull of so foule offence, Thou left'st him (yet) sufficient wisdome, whence He might subdue, and to his service stoop The stubborn'st heads of all the savage troop.	210	So Pharaoh's Rat, yer he begin the fray 'Gainst the blinde Aspick , with a cleaving Clay Upon his coat he wraps an earthen Cake, Which, afterward, the Sun's hot beams doe bake : Arm'd with this Plaister, th' Aspick he approacheth, And in his throat his crookéd tooth he broceth ; While th' other boot-less strives to pierce and prick Through the hard temper of his armour thick : Yet, knowing himself too-weak (for all his wile) Alone to match the scaly Crocodile ; Hee, with the Wren , his ruine doth conspire. The Wren , who seeing (prest with sleep's desire) Nile's poys'ny Pirate press the slimy shore ; Suddenly comes, and hopping him before, Into his mouth he skips, his teeth he pickles, Cleanseth his palate, and his throat so tickles, That, charm'd with pleasure, the dull Serpent gapes Wider and wider with his ugly chaps : Then, like a shaft th' Ichneumon instantly Into the Tyrant's greedy gorge doth flie, And feeds upon that Glutton, for whose Riot All Nile's fat margents scarce could furnish diet.	220	The Ichneumon against the As- pick .
	Of all the creatures through the Welking gliding, Walking on Earth, or in the Waters sliding, Th' hast arméd some with Poyson, some with Paws, Some with sharp Antlers, some with griping Claws, Some with keen Tushes, some with crookéd Beaks, Some with thick Cuirrets, some with scaly Necks ; But mad'st Man naked, and for Weapons fit Thou gav'st him nothing but a pregnant Wit ; Which rusts and duls, except it subject finde Worthy it's worth, whereon itself to grinde ; And (as it were) with envious armies great, Be round about besiegd and beset. For, what boot Milo's brawny Shoulders broad, And sinnewie Arms, if but a common load He alwaies bear ? what Bayes, or Olive boughs, Parsley, or Pine, shall crown his warlike brows, Except some other Milo , entring Lists, Couragiously his boasted strength resists ? " In deprime perils shineth Wisdome's prime :	230	Wider and wider with his ugly chaps : Then, like a shaft th' Ichneumon instantly Into the Tyrant's greedy gorge doth flie, And feeds upon that Glutton, for whose Riot All Nile's fat margents scarce could furnish diet. Nay, more, good Lord, th' hast taught Mankind a Reason To draw Life out of Death, and Health from Poyson : So that in equall Balance balancing The Good and Evill which these Creatures bring Unto man's life, we shall perceive, the first By many grains to over-weigh the worst.	280	The Ichmon and the Wren against the Crocodile .
God hath given us wisdome to avoid and vanquish them.	" Through thousand deaths true Valour seeks to clime ;	240			God hath taught us to make great use of them.

Fierce and un-
tameable beasts.

From Serpents 'scap't, yet am I scarce in saf'ty : 300
Alas ! I see a Legion fierce and lofty
Of Savages, whose fleet and furious pace,
Whose horrid roaring, and whose hideous face
Make my sense sense-less, and my speech restrain,
And cast me in my former fears again.

The Wolf.
Boar.
Bear.
Ounce.

Already howls the waste-full Wolf, the Boar
Whets foamy Fangs, the hungry Bear doth roar,
The Cat-fac'd Ounce, that doth me much dismay,
With grumbling horror threatens my decay ;

Tigre.
Leopard.

The light-foot Tigre, spotted Leopard, 310
Foaming with fury, doe besiege me hard :
Then th' Unicorn, th' Hyena tearing-tombs,
Swift Manticora, and Nubian Cephus comes :
Of which last three, each hath, (as here they stand)
Man's voice, Man's visage, Man-like foot and hand.
I fear the Beast bred in the bloody Coast
Of Cannibals, which thousand times (almost)
Re-whelps her whelps, and in her tender womb
She doth as oft her living brood re-tomb.

The Porcupine.

But O ! what Monster 's this that bids me battell, 320
On whose rough back an Hoast of Pikes doth rattle,
Who string-less shoots so many arrowes out,
Whose thorny sides are hedgd round about
With stiff steel-pointed quils, and all his parts
Bristled with Bodkins, arm'd with Auls and Darts,
Which ay fierce darting, seem still fresh to spring,
And to his aid still new supplies to bring ?
O fortunate Shaft-sever-wanting Bow-man !
Who, as thou fleest, canst hit thy following foe-man,
And never missest (or but very narrow) 330
Th' intended mark of thy self's-kindred Arrow :
Who, still self-furnisht, needest borrow never Diana's shafts, nor yet Apollo's quiver,
Nor bow-strings fetcht from Carian Ataband,
Brazell from Persu ; but hast all at hand
Of thine own growth ; for in thy Hide doe growe
Thy String, thy Shafts, thy Quiver, and thy Bow.

The Lion King of Beasts.

But (Courage now.) Here comes the valiant Beast,
The noble Lion, King of all the rest ;
Who, bravely minded, is as milde to those 340
That yeeld to him, as fierce unto his foes :
To humble suiters neither stern nor statefull,
To benefactours never found ingratefull.

A memorable
History of a Lion, acknowledging the kindness he had received of Andræus, a Roman Slave.

I call to record that same Roman Thrall,
Who (to escape from his mechanicall
And cruell Master that (for lucre) us'd him
Not, as a Man ; but, as a Beast, abus'd him)
Fled through the desert, and, with travell tir'd,
At length into a moskie cave retir'd :
But there, no sooner 'gan the drowsy wretch 350
On the soft grass his weary limbs to stretch ;
But, comming swift into the cave, he seeth
A ramping Lion gnashing of his teeth.

A thief, to shamefull execution sent
By Justice, for his fault's just punishment,
Feeling his eyes' clout, and his elbows' cord,
Waiting for nothing but the fatall Sword ;

Dies yer his death, he looks so certainly
Without delay in that drad place to Die :
Even so the Slave, seeing no means to shun 360
(By flight or fight) his fear'd destruction
(Having no way to flee, nor arms to fight,
But sighs and tears, prayers and wofull plight)
Embraceth Death ; abiding, for a stown,
Pale, cold, and sense-less, in a deadly swown.

At last, again his courage 'gan to gather,
When he perceiv'd no rage (but pity rather)
In his new Hoast ; who with milde looks and meek
Seem'd (as it were) succour of him to seek,
Shewing him oft one of his paws, wherein 370
A festring thorn for a long time had been.
Then (though still fearfull) did the Slave draw nigher,
And from his foot he lightly snatcht the bryer ;
And wringing gently with his hand the wound,
Made th' hot impostume run upon the ground.

Thenceforth the Lion seeks for Booties best
Through hill and dale, to cheer his new-come
Guest,

His new Physician ; who, for all his cost,
Soon leaves his lodging, and his dreadfull Hoast,
And once more wanders through the wilderness, 380
Whither his froward Fortune would address ;
Untill (re-ta'en) his fell Lord brought him home,
For Spectacle unto Imperiall Rome,
To be (according to their barbarous Laws)
Bloodily torn with greedy Lion's paws.
Fell Cannibal ! Flint-hearted Polyphem !
If thou would'st needs exactly torture him
(Inhumane Monster, hatefull Lestrigon)
Why from thine own hand hast thou let him gon,
To bears and Lions to be giv'n for prey, 390
Thy self more fell, a thousand-fold then they ?
African Panthers, Hyrcan Tigres fierce,
Cleonian Lions, and Pannonian Bears,
Be not so cruell, as who violates
Sacred Humanity, and cruciates
His loyall subjects ; making recreations
Of Massacres, Combats, and sharp taxations.

'Bove all the Beasts that fill'd the Martian Field
With blood and slaughter, one was most beheld ;
One valiant Lion, whose victorious fights 400
Had conquer'd hundreds of those guilty wights,
Whose feeble skirmish had but striv'n in vaine
To 'scape by combat their deserved pain.
That very Beast, with faint and fearfull feet,
This Runnagate (at last) is forc't to meet ;
And beeing entred in the bloody List,
The Lion rows'd and ruffes-up his Crest,
Shortens his body, sharpens his grim eye,
And (staring wide) he roareth hideously :
Then often swindging, with his sinnewy train, 410
Somtimes his sides, somtimes the dusty plain,
He whets his rage and strongly rampeth on Against his foe ; who, nigh already gon
To drink of Lethal, listeth to the Pole
Religious vows ; nor for his life, but soule.

	After the Beast had marcht some twenty paze, He sodain stops : and, viewing well the face Of his pale foe, remembred (rapt with joy) That this was he that eas'd his annoy : Wherefore, converting from his hateful wildness 420 From pride to pttie, and from rage to mildness, On his bleak face he both his eyes doth fix ; Fawning for homage, his lean hands he licks. The Slave, thus knowing, and thus being known, Lifts to the Heav'ns his front, now hoary growne, And (now no more fearing his tearing paws) He stroaks the Lion, and his poule he claws, And learns by proof, that A good turn at need, At first or last, shall be assur'd of need.
Nosce teipsum.	THER's under Sun (as Delphos God did show) 430 No better knowledge then Our selfe to Know : There is no Theam more plentiful to scan, Then is the glorious goodly frame of MAN : For, in man's self is Fire, Aire, Earth and Sea ; Man's (in a word) the World's Epitomis Or little Map ; which here my Muse doth try By the grand Patern to exemplifie.
The second part of the sixth book : Wherein is dis- coursed at large of the creation of Man.	A witty Mason, doth not (with rare Art) Into a Palace, Parus Rocks convert, 440 Seel it with gold, and to the Firmament Raise the proud Turrets of his Battlement, And (to be briefe) in every part of it Beauty to Use, Use unto Beauty fit, To th' end the Skrich-Owl, and Night-Raven should In those fair walls their habitations hold ; But rather, for some wise and wealthy Prince Able to judge of his art's excellence : Even so, the Lord built not this All-Theater, For the rude guests of Aire, and Woods, and Water ;
And of the won- ders of God's wis- dome, appearing both in his Body and Soule.	But, all for Him, who (whether he survey 450 The vast salt kingdoms, or th' Earth's fruitful clay, Or cast his eyes up to those twinkling Eyes That with disorderd order gild the Skies) Can every-where admire with due respect Th' admir'd Art of such an Architect.
The world made for Man.	Now of all Creatures which his Word did make, MAN was the last that living breath did take : Not that he was the least ; or that God durst Not undertake so noble a Work at first : Rather, because he should have made in vain 460 So great a Prince, without on whom to Reign.
Man was created last and why.	A wise man never brings his bidden Guest Into his Parlour, till his Room be drest, Garnisht with Lights ; and Tables, neatly spread, Be with full dishes well-nigh furnish'd : So our great God, who (bounteous) ever keeps Here open Court, and th' ever-bound-less Deepes Of sweetest Nectar on us still distills By twenty-times ten thousand sundry quills ; Would not our Grandsire to his Boord invite, 470 Yer he with Arras his fair house had dight, And, under starry State-Clothes plac't his plates Fill'd with a thousand sugred delicates.
Fit comparison.	All th' admirable Creatures made befor, Which Heav'n, and Earth, and Ocean doe adorn, Are but Essays, compar'd in every part, To this divinest Master-Piece of Art. Therefore the supreme peer-less Architect, When (of meer nothing) he did first erect Heav'n, Earth, and Aire, and Seas ; at once his 480 Thought, His Word, and Deed, all in an instant wrought : But, when he would his own self's Type create, Th' honour of Nature, th' Earth's sole Potentate ; As if he would a Councell hold, he citeth His sacred Power ; his Prudence he inviteth, Summons his Love ; his Justice he adjourns, Calleth his Goodness, and his Grace returns ; To (as it were) consult about the birth And building of a second God, of Earth ; And each (a-part) with liberall hand to bring 490 Some excellence unto so rare a thing. Or rather, he consults with 's onely Son (His own true Pourtrait) what proportion, What gifts, what grace, what soule he should bestow Upon his Vice-Roy of this Realm below. When th' other things God fashion'd in their kind, The Sea t' abound in Fishes he assign'd, The Earth in Flocks : but, having Man in hand His very self he seem'd to command. He both at-once both life and body lent 500 To other things ; but when in Man he meant In mortall limbs immortal life to place, He seem'd to pawse, as in a weighty case : And so at sundry moments finish'd The Soule and Body of Earth's glorious Head. Admir'd Artist, Architect divine, Perfect and peer-less in all Works of thine, So my rude hand on this rough Table guide To paint the prince of all thy Works beside, That grave Spectators, in his face may spie 510 Apparent marks of thy Divinity. Almighty Father, as of watery matter It pleas'd thee make the people of the Water : So, of an earthly substance mad'st thou all The slimie Burgers of this Earthly Ball ; To th' end each Creature might (by consequent) Part-sympathize with his own Element. Therefore, to form thine Earthly Emperour, Thou tookest Earth, and by thy sacred power So tempered'st it, that of the very same 520 Dead shape-less lump didst Adam's body frame : Yet, not his Face down to the Earth-ward bending (Like Beasts that but regard their belly, ending For ever all) but toward th' Azure Skyes : Bright golden Lamps lifting his lovely Eyes ; That through their nerves, his better part might look Still to that place from whence her birth she took. Also thou plantest th' intellectuall Pow'r In th' highest stage of all this stately Bow'r, That thence it might (as from a Cittadell) Command the members that too-oft rebell 530	All other creatures nothing in respect of Man, made to the Image of God, with (as it were) great preparation, not all at once, but by interims, first his Body, and then his reason- able Soule.	Gen. 1. 16.	Invocation.	Man's body created of the dust of the Earth.	His Head the seat of under- standing.

The Eyes full of infinite admiration.	Against his Rule : and that our Reason, there Keeping continuall Garrison (as 't were) Might Avarice, Envie, and Pride subdue, Lust, Gluttony, Wrath, Sloath, and all their Crew Of factious Commons, that still strive to gaine The golden Scepter from their Sovrain. Th' Eyes (Bodie's guides) are set for Sentinell In noblest place of all this Cittadell, To spie far-off, that no miss-hap befall At unawares the sacred Animall. 540 In forming these thy hand (so famous held) Seemed almost to have it self excell'd. Them not transpiercing, lest our eyes should be As theirs, that Heav'n through hollow Canes doe see, Yet see small circuit of the Welkin bright, The Cane's strict compass doth so clasp their Sight : And lest so many open holes disgrace The goodly form of th' Earthly Monarch's face, These lovely Lamps, whose sweet sparks lively turn- ing, 550	The watchfull Eye might true distinction make 590 'Twixt Herbs and Weeds, betwixt an Eel and Snake ; And then th' impartiall Tongue might (at the last) The Tongue. Censure their goodness by their savory taste. Two equal ranks of Orient Pearls impale The Teeth. The open Throat : which (Quern-like) grinding small Th' imperfect food, soon to the Stomack send it (Our Master-Cook) whose due concoctions mend-it. But lest the Teeth, naked and bare to Light, Should in the Face present a ghastly sight : With wondrous Art, over that Mill, do meet 600 Two moving Leaves of Corall, soft and sweet. O mouth ! by thee, our savage Elders, yerst Through way-less Woods, and hollow Rocks disperst, With Acorns fed, with Fels of Feathers clad (When neither Traffick, Love, nor Law they had) Themselves uniting, built them Towns, and bent Their willing necks to civill Government. O Mouth ! by thee, the rudest Wits have learn'd The Noble Arts, which but the Wise discern'd : By thee, we kindle in the coldest spirits 610 Heroik flames affecting glorious merits : By thee, we wipe the tears off wofull Eyes : By thee, we stop the stubborn mutinies Of our rebellious Flesh, whose rest-less Treason Strives to dis-throne and to dis-scepter Reason : By thee, our Soules with Heav'n have conversation : By thee, we calm th' Almighty's indignation, When faithfull sighs from our soule's Centre fly About the bright Throne of his Majesty : By thee, we warble to the King of kings ; 620 Our Tongue's the Bowe, our Teeth the trembling Strings, Our hollow Nostrils (with their double vent) The hollow Belly of the Instrument ; Our Soule's the sweet Musician, that plays So divine lessons and so Heav'nly layes, As, in deep passion of pure burning zeal, Jove's forked Lightnings from his fingers steal.
	The Browes and Eye-lids.	With sodain glance set coldest harts a-burning ; These windows of the Soule, these starry Twins, These Cupid's quivers have so tender skinn, Through which (as through a pair of shining glasses) Their radiant point of piercing splendor passes, That they would soon be quenched and put-out But that the Lord hath Bulwarkt them about, By seating so their wondrous Orb, betwix The Front, the Nose, and the vermillion Cheeks : As in two Vallies pleasantly inclosed 560 With pretty Mountains orderly disposed : And as a Pent-house doth preserve a Wall From Rain and Hail, and other Storms that fall ; The twinkling Lids with their quick-trembling hairs Defend the Eyes from thousand dang'rous fears.	Our hollow Nostrils (with their double vent) The hollow Belly of the Instrument ; Our Soule's the sweet Musician, that plays So divine lessons and so Heav'nly layes, As, in deep passion of pure burning zeal, Jove's forked Lightnings from his fingers steal. But O ! what member hath more marvails in't, Then the Ears' round-winding double labyrinth ? The bodie's Scouts, of sounds the Censurers, 630 Doors of the Soule, and faithfull Messengers Of divine treasures, when our gracious Lord Sends us th' Embassage of his sacred Word. And, sith all Sound seems alwaies to ascend, God plac't the Ears (where they might best attend) As in two turrets, on the building's top, Snailing their hollow entries so a-sloap, That, while the voyce about those windings wanders, The sound might lengthen in those bow'd Meanders ; As, from a Trumpet, Winde hath longer life, 640 Or, from a Sagbut, then from Flute or Fife : Or, as a noyse extendeth far and wide In winding Vales, or by the crooked side Of crawling Rivers ; or with broken trouble Between the teeth of hollow Rocks doth double ; And that no sodaine sound, with violence Piercing direct the Organs of this Sense,
		The Nose.	Who fain would see how much a human Face A comely Nose doth beautifie and grace ; Behold Zopyrus, who cut-off his Nose For's Prince's sake, to circumvent his foes. 570 The Nose, no less for use then beauty makes : For, as a Conduit, it both gives and takes Our living breath : it's as a Pipe put-up, Whereby the moist Brain's spongy boan doth sup Sweet-smelling fumes : It serveth as a Gutter To void the Excrements of grossest matter ; As by the Scull-seams, and the Pory Skin Evaporate those that are light and thin : As through black Chimneyes flies the bitter smoak, Which, but so vented, would the Houshold choak.	Our hollow Nostrils (with their double vent) The hollow Belly of the Instrument ; Our Soule's the sweet Musician, that plays So divine lessons and so Heav'nly layes, As, in deep passion of pure burning zeal, Jove's forked Lightnings from his fingers steal. Sundry Similes expressing the reason of the round winding Mazes of the Ears.

Another comparison to that purpose.	Should stun the Brain, but through these Masie holes Conveigh the voyce more softly to our Soules. As th' Ouse, that crooking in and out doth run 650 From Stony-Stratford towards Huntingdon, By Royall Ampill; rursketh not so swift, As our neer Kennet, whose Trout-famous Drift From Marleborow, by Hungerford doth hasten Through Newbery, and Prince-grac's Aldermaston; Her Silver Nymphs (almost) directly leading To meet her Mistress (the great Thames) at Reading.	Like Summer gales, waving with gentle puffs, The smiling Meadow's green and gaudy tufts : Light, spongy Fans, that ever take and give Th' ætheriall Aire, whereby we breath and live : Bellows, whose blasts (breathing by certain pawses) 710 A pleasant sound through our speech-organs causes ?	Of the Stomack.
The Hands.	But will my Hands in handling th' human Stature, Forget the Hands, the handmaids unto Nature, Th' Almighty's Apes, the Instruments of Arts, 660 The voluntary Champions of our Hearts, Minde's Ministers, the Clarks of quick conceites, And bodie's Victuallers to provide it meats ?	Or, shall I rip the Stomack's hollownes, That ready Cook concocting every Mess ? Which in short time it cunningly converts Into pure Liquor fit to feed the parts ; And then the same doth faithfully deliver Into the Port-vein passing to the Liver, Who turns it soon to blood ; and thence again Through branching pipes of the great Hollow-vein, Through all the members doth it duly scatter : 720	Of the Liver.
Joynts. The Knees, and Armes.	Will you the knee's and Elbowe's springs omit, Which serve th' whole body by their motions fit ? For, as a Bow, according as the String, Is stiff or slack, the Shafts doth farther sling ; Our Nerves and Gristles diversly dispence, To th' human Frame, meet Motion, Might, and Sense :	Much like a Fountain, whose divided Water It selfe dispersing into hundred Brooks, Bathes some fair Garden with her winding crooks : For, as these brooks, thus branching round about, Make here the Pink, there th' Aconite to sprout ; Here the sweet Plum-tree, the sharp Mulbery there, Here the low Vine, and there the lofty Pear ; Here the hard Almond, there the tender Fig, Here bitter Worm-wood, there sweet-smelling Spike :	An apt Similitude.
The Sinewes, Gristles and Bones.	Knitting the Bones, which be the Pillars strong, 670 The Beams and Rafters, whose firm Joynts may long (Maugre Death's malice, till our Maker calls) Support the Fabrick of these Fleshy Wals ? Can you conceal the Feet's rare-akillfull feature, The goodly Bases of this glorious Creature ?	Even so the Blood (bred of good nourishment) 730 By divers Pipes to all the body sent, Turns here to Bones, there changes into Nerves ; Here is made Marrow, there for Muscles serves, Here skin becoms, there crooking veins, here flesh, To make our Limbs more forcefull and more fresh.	Of the Bloud and Nourishment.
The Feet.	But, is 't not time now, in his Inner Parts, To see th' Almighty's admirable Arts ? First, with my Launcet shall I make incision, To see the Cells of the twin Brain's division ; The Treasurer of Arts, the Source of Sense, 680 The Seat of Reason ; and the Fountaine, whence Our Sinewes flow : whom Nature's providence, Arm'd with a helme, whose double-lynings fence The Brain's cold moisture from its boany Armor, Whose hardnesse else might hap to bruise or harm- her :	But, now me lift no neerer view to take Of th' inward parts, which God did secret make, Nor pull in pieces all the Human Frame : That work were fitter for those men of Fame, Those skillfull sons of Esculapius, 740 Hippocrates, or deep Herophilus ; Or th' eloquent and artificall Writ Of Galen, that renowned Pergamite. 'T sufficeth me in some sort to express, By this Essay, the sacred mightines, Not of Japhetus' witty-sainéd Son, But of the true Prometheus, that began And finisht (with inimitable Art) The famous Image, I have sung in part.	740
Of the Heart.	A Register, where (with a secret touch) The studious daily some rare Knowledge couch ? O ! how shall I on learned Leaf forth-set That curious Maze, that admirable Net, Through whose fine folds the spirit doth rise and fall, 690 Making its powrs of Vital, Animal ! Even as the Blood and Spirits, wandering Through the preparing vessel's crooked Ring, Are in their winding course concoct and wrought, And by degrees to fruitfull Seed are brought.	Now, this more peer-less learned Imager, Life to his lovely Picture to confer, 750 Did not extract out of the Elements A certain secret Chymick Quint-essence : But, breathing, sent as from the lively Spring Of his Divineness, some small Riverling, Itself dispersing into every Pipe Of the frail Engin of this Earthen Type. Not, that his own Self's-Essence blest he brake, Or did his Triple-Unity partake	Of the creation of the Soule.
Of the Lungs.	Shall I the Heart's un-equal sides explain, Which equal poiz doth equally sustaine ? Whereof, th' one's fill'd with blood, in th' other bides The vital Spirit which through the body slides : Whose rest-less panting, by the constant Pulse, 700 Doth witness health ; or, if that take repulse, And shift the dance and wanted pase it went, It shews that Nature's wrong'd by Accident. Or, shall I cleave the Lungs, whose motions light Our inward heat doe temper day and night ;	Unto his work ; but, without Self's expence, 760 Inspir'd it richly with rare excellence : And by his powr so spread his Rayes thereon, That, even as yet, appears a portion	Of her essence and substance.

Whence it is proceeded.	Of that pure lustre of Cœlestiall Light Wherewith at first it was adorn'd and dight.	770	In what deep vessell did th' Embassader Of Pyrrhus (whom the Dolphias Oracler Deluded by his double-meaning Measures) Into what Cisterns did he pour those Treasures Of learnéd store, which after (for his use) In time and place, he could so fit produce? The Memory is th' Eye's true Register, The Peasant's Book, Time's wealthy Treasurer, Keeping Records of Acts and Accidents Whats'ever, subject unto humane sense, Since first the Lord the World's foundations laid, Or Phœbus first his golden locks displaid, And his pale Sister from his beaming light Borrow'd her splendor to adorn the Night. So that our Reason, searching curiously Through all the Roules of a good Memory, And fast'ning closely with a Gordian knot To Past Events, what Present Times allot, Fore-sees the Future, and becoms more sage, More happily to lead our latter age.	830
Divers Similies.	This Adam's spirit did from that Spirit derive Which made the World : yet did not thence deprive Of God's Self-substance any part at all ; As in the Course of Nature doth befall, That from the Essence of an Earthly Father, An Earthly Son essentiall parts doth gather : Or as in Spring-time from one sappy twig There sprouts another consubstantiall sprig ; In brief, it's but a breath. Now, though the Breath Out of our Stomack's concave issueth ; Yet, of our substance it transporteth nought ; Onely it seemeth to be simply fraught, And to retaine the purer qualities Of th' inward place whence it derivéd is. Inspired by that Breath, this Breath desire I to describe. Whoso doth not admire	780	And though our Soule live as imprison'd here In our frall Flesh, or buried (as it were) In a dark Toomb ; yet at one flight she flies From Calpe t' Swains , from the Earth to Skies ; Much swifter then the Chariot of the Sun, Which in a Day about the World doth run. For, somtimes, leaving these base slimy heaps, With cheerfull spring above the Clouds she leaps, Glides through the Aire ; and there she learns to know	840
Of the excellence of man's Soule.	His spirit, is sprightless ; and his sense is past, Who hath no sense of that admiréd Blast. Yet wot I well, that as the Eye perceives All but it self, even so our Soule conceives All save her own self's-Essence ; but, the end Of her own greatness cannot comprehend. Yet as a sound Eye, voyd of vicious matter, Sees (in a sort) it self in Glass or Water : So, in her sacred Works (as in a Glass) Our Soule (almost) may see her glorious face.	790	The boistrous Winde, that rents with roaring The lofty Pines, and to the Welkin casts Millions of Mountains from the watry World, And proudest Turrets to the ground bath whurid : The pleasing fume that fragrant Roses yeuld, When wanton Zephyr , sighing on the field, Enamels all ; and, to delight the Sky, The Earth puts on her richest Lyvory : Th' accorded Discords, that are sweetly sent From th' Ivory ribs of some rare Instrument, Cannot be seen : but he may well be said Of Flesh, and Ears, and Nose intirely voyd, Who doth not feel, nor hear, nor smell (the powrs) The shock, sound, sent ; of storms, of strings, of flows.	850
How she may know her selfe.	The lofty Pines, and to the Welkin casts Millions of Mountains from the watry World, And proudest Turrets to the ground bath whurid : The pleasing fume that fragrant Roses yeuld, When wanton Zephyr , sighing on the field, Enamels all ; and, to delight the Sky, The Earth puts on her richest Lyvory : Th' accorded Discords, that are sweetly sent From th' Ivory ribs of some rare Instrument, Cannot be seen : but he may well be said Of Flesh, and Ears, and Nose intirely voyd, Who doth not feel, nor hear, nor smell (the powrs) The shock, sound, sent ; of storms, of strings, of flows.	800	Th' Originals of Winde, and Hail, and Snow, Of Lightning, Thunder, Blazing-Stars, and Storms, Of Rain, and Yce, and strange Exhaléd Forms. By th' Aire's steep-stairs, she boldly climbs aloft To the World's Chambers : Heaven she visits oft, Stage after Stage : she marketh all the Sphears, And all th' harmonious, various course of theirs : With sure account, and certain Compasses, She counts their Stars, she metes their distances And differing pases ; and, as if she found No Subject fair enough in all this Round, She mounts above the World's extreamest Wall, Far, far beyond all things corporeall ; Where she beholds her Maker, face to face, (His frowns of Justice , and his smiles of Grace) The faithfull zeal, the chaste and sober Port The sacred Pomp of the Celestial Court.	860
Three fit comparisons to that purpose.	Although our Soule's pure substance, to our sight Be not subjected ; yet her motion light And rich discourse, sufficient proofs do give, We have more Soule then to suffice to live ; A Soule divine, pure, sacred, admirable, Immortall, endless, simple, unpalpable.	810	What can be hard to a sioath-shunning Spirit, Spurr'd with desire of Fame's eternall merit ? Look (if thou canst) from East to Occident, From Island to the Moore's hot Continent ; And thou shalt nought perfectly fair behold, But Pen, or Pencil, Graving-tool, or Mould Hath so resembled, that scarce can our eye The Counterfeit from the True thing descry.	870
The Soule, not onely vitall, but also divine and immortall.	For, whether that the Soule (the Mint of Art) Be all in all, or all in every part : Whether the Brain or Heart do lodge the Soule, O Seneca ! where, where could'st thou enroule	820	The brazen Mare, that famous Myron cast, Which Stallions leapt, and for a Mare imbrac't : The lively picture of that ramping Vine Which whilom Zeuxis limn'd so rarely fine.	Of learned, curious, pleasant, marvellous and more then human invention of man's Wit.
The Seat of the Soule.	Those many hundred words (in Prose or Verse) Which at first hearing thou could'st back reherse ? Where could great Cyrus that great Table shut Wherein the Pictures and the names he put Of all the Souldiers, that by thousands wander'd After the fortunes of his famous Standard ?	820		Of Carving and Painting.
Notable examples of excellent Memories.

	That shoals of Birds, beguiled by the shapes, Peckt at the Table, as at very Grapes : The Marble Statue, that with strangest fire Fondly inflam'd th' Athenian Youth's desire : Apelles' Venus , which allur'd well-near As many Loves, as Venus' selfe had here ; Are proofs enow that learned Painting can, Can (Goddess-like) another Nature frame.	880	With constant windings, tho contrary wraies, Mark the true mounds of Years, and Months, and Daies?
The subtle con- clusions of the Mathematicks : Witness Architas' Dove .	But th' Art of Man, not onely can compact Features and Forms that life and motion lack ; But also fill the Aire with painted shoals Of flying Creatures (Artificial Fowls) : The Tarentine's valiant and learned Lord, Archytas , made a wooden Dove, that soar'd About the Welkin, by th' accorded sleights And counterpoise of sundry little weights.	890	Yet 't is a story that hath oft been heard, And by grave Witness hundred times averr'd, That, that profound Briaricus , who of yore (As selfy arm'd with thousand hands and more) Maintain'd so long the Syracusan Towns 'Gainst great Marcellus and his Roman Powrs : Who fir'd his foe's Fleet with a wondrous Glass : Who, hugest Vessels that did ever pass The Tirrhén Seas, turn'd with his onely hand From Shore to Sea, and from the Sea to Land : Framed a Sphæar , where every Wandering Light	940	The Engines of Archimedes, and his Sphæar.
The Eagle and the Fly, of Iohn de Monte-regio , or Rcgi-Montanus .	Why should I not that wooden Eagle mention (A learned Germane's late admir'd invention) Which mounting from his fist that framéd her, Flew far to meet an Almain Emperour ; And having met him, with her nimble train, And weary wings, turning about again, Follow'd him close unto the Castle Gate Of Noremburg ; whom all the Showes of State, Streets hang'd with Arras, Arches curious buft, Loud-thundering Canons, Columns richly gilt, Gray-headed Senate, and Youth's gallantise, Grac't not so much, as onely This Device. Once, as this Artist (more with mirth then meat) Feasted some friends that he esteeméd great, From under 's hand an Iron Fly flew out ; Which having showne a perfect Round-about, With weary wings return'd unto her Master, And (as judicious) on his arme she plac't her. O divine wit ! that in the narrow womb Of a small Fly, could finde sufficient room For all those Springs, wheels, counterpoiz, and chains, Which stood in stead of life, and spur, and rains.	900	Framed a Sphæar , where every Wandering Light Of lower Heav'ns and th' upper Tapers bright, Whose glistening flames the Firmament adorn, Did (of themselves) with ruléd motion turn. Nor may we smother, or forget (ingrately) The Heav'n of Silver, that was sent (but lately) From Ferdinando (as a famous Work) Unto Bisantium to the greatest Turk : Wherein, a spirit, still moving to and fro, Made all the Engin orderly to go : And though th' one Sphæar did alwaies slowly slide, And (opposite) the other swiftly glide : Yet still their Stars kept all their Courses ev'n With the true Courses of the Stars of Heav'n. The Sun, there shifting in the Zodiack His shining Houses, never did forsake His pointed Path : there, in a Month, his Sister Fulfill'd her course, and changing oft her lustre And form of Face (now larger, lesser soon) Follow'd the Changes of the other Moon .	950	The Heaven of Silver sent by the Emperor Ferdi- nand to Solyman the great Turke.
Astronomy.	Yea, you your selves, ye bright Celestiall Orbs, Although no stop your rest-less Dance disturbs, Nor staves your Course ; yet can ye not escape The hands of men that are but men in shape.	910	O complete Creature ! who the starry Sphæars Canst make to move, who 'bove the Heav'nly Bears Extend'st thy powr, who guidest with thy hand The Day's bright Chariot, and the nightly Brand : This curious Lust to imitate the best And fairest Works of the Almighty, By rare effects bears record of thy Linage And high descent ; and that his sacred Image Was in thy Soule engrav'n, when first his Spirit (The Spring of life) did in thy limms inspire-it. For, as his beauties are past all compare ; So is thy Soule all beautifull and fair. As hee 's immortal, and is never Idle : Thy Soule 's immortal, and can brook no bridle Of sloath, to curb her busie intellect : He ponders all ; thou poizest each effect, And thy mature and settled Sapience Hath some alliance with his Providence : He works by Reason, thou by Rule : He 's glory Of th' Heav'nly Stages, thou of th' Earthly Story : He 's great High-Priest, thou his great Vicar here : He 's Sovrain Prince and thou his Vice-Roy deer.	960	Of man's resem- blance to his first paterne, which is God.
The King of Persia his Heaven of Glasse.	A Persian Monarch, not content well-nigh With the Earth's bounds to bound his Empery : To reign in Heav'n, rais'd not with bold defiance (Like braving Nimrod , or those boistrous Gyants) Another Babel , or a heap of Hils ; But, without moving from the Earth, he builds A Heav'n of Glass, so huge, that thereupon Somtimes erecting his ambitious Throne, Beneath his proud feet (like a God) he saw The shining Lamps of th' other Heav'n, to draw Down to the Deep , and thence again advance (Like glorious Brides) their golden Radiance : Yet had the Heav'n no wondrous excellence (Save Greatnes) worthy of so great a Prince.	920	For, soon as ever he had framéd thee, Into thy hands he put this Monarchy ; Made all the Creatures know thee for their Lord, And come before thee of their own accord :	980	Other testimonies of the excellency of Man, con- stituted Lord of the World.
Admirable Dials and Clockes, namely, at this Day, that of Straesbourg.	But, who would think, that mortall hands could mould New Heav'ns, new Stars, whose whirling courses	930

And gave thee power (as Master) to impose
Fit sense-full Names unto the Hoast that rowes
In watery Regions ; and the wandering Heardes
Of Forrest people ; and the painted Birds. 1000

Wherein consisteth Man's felicity.

But sith our Soule's now-sin-obscured Light
Shines through the Lanthorn of our flesh so bright ;
What sacred splendor will this Star send forth,
When it shall shine without this veil of Earth ?
The Soule here lodg'd is like a man that dwells
In an ill Aire, annoy'd with noysom smells ;
In an old house, open to winde and weather ;
Never in health, not half an houre together ;
Or (almost) like a Spider, who confin'd 1010
In her Web's centre, shak't with every winde ;
Moves in an instant, if the buzzing Flie
Stir but a string of her Lawn Canapie.

Excellent comparisons.

You that have seen within this ample Table,
Among so many Modules admirable,
Th' admir'd beauties of the King of Creatures,
Come, come and see the Woman's raptng features :
Without whom (here) Man were but half a man,
But a wilde Wolfe, but a Barbarian.
Brute, ragefull, fierce, moody, melancholike, 1020 Hating the Light ; whom nought but naught could like ;
Born solely for himselfe, bereft of sense,
Of heart, of love, of life, of excellence.
God therefore, not to seem less liberrall
To Man, then else to every Animall ;
For perfect patern of a holy Love,
To Adam's halfe another halfe he gave,
Ta'en from his side, to binde (through every Age)
With kinder bonds the sacred Marriage.

Of the Creation of Woman, made for an aide to man, and without whom man's life were miserable.

Even as a Surgeon, minding off-to-cut 1030
Some-cureless Limb ; before in ure he put
His violent Engines on the vicious member,
Bringeth his patient in a sense-less slumber,
And grief-less then (guided by Use and Art)
To save the whole, sawes off th' infested part :
So, God empal'd our Grandsires' lively look,
Through all his bones a deadly chilness strook,
Siel'd-up his sparkling eyes with Iron bands,
Led down his feet (almost) to Lethal Sands ;
In brief, so numm'd his Soule's and Bodie's sense, 1040
That (without pain) opening his side, from thence
He took a rib, which rarely He refin'd,
And thereof made the Mother of Mankinde :
Graving so lively on the living bone
All Adam's beauties ; that, but hardly, one
Could have the Lover from his Love descry'd,
Or known the Bridegroom from his gentle Bride :
Saving that she had a more smiling Eye,
A smoother Chin, a Cheek of purer Dye,
A fainter Voyce, a more inticing Face, 1050
A deeper Tress, a more delighting Grace,
And in her Bosom (more then Lillie-white)
Two swelling Mounts of Ivory, panting light.

Of the Creation of Woman, made for an aide to man, and without whom man's life were miserable.

Simile.

Now, after this profound and pleasing Transe,
No sooner Adam's ravisht eyes did glance
On the rare beauties of his new-come Half,
But in his heart he 'gan to leap and laugh,
Kissing her kindly, calling her his Life,
His Loue, his Stay, his Rest, his Weal, his Wife,
His other-Selfe, his Help (him to refresh) 1060
Bone of his Bone, Flesh of his very Flesh.
Source of all joyes ! sweet Hes-Shes-Coupled-One !
Thy sacred Birth I never think upon,
But (ravisht) I admire how God did then
Make Two of One, and One of Two again.
O blessed Bond ! O happy Marriage !
Which dost the match 'twixt Christ and us presage !
O chastest friendship, whose pure flames impart
Two Soules in one, two Hearts into one Heart !
O holy knot in Eden instituted 1070
(Not in this Earth with blood and wrongs polluted, Profan'd with mischiefs, the Pre-Scene of Hell
To curs'd Creatures that 'gainst Heav'n rebell) !
O sacred Cov'nant, which the sin-less Son
Of a pure Virgin (when he first begun
To publish proofs of his drad pow'r Divine,
By turning Water into perfect Wine,
At lesser Cana) in a wondrous manner
Did, with his presence, sanctifie and honour !
By thy deer favour, after our Decease, 1080
We leave-behinde our living Images,
Change War to Peace, in kindred multiply,
And in our Children live eternally.
By thee, we quench the wild and wanton Fires,
That in our Soule the Paphian shot inspires :
And taught (by thee) a love more firm and fitter,
We finde the Mel more sweet, the Gall less bitter,
Which here (by turns) heap up our humane Life
Ev'n now with joyes, anon with jars and strife.
This done, the Lord commands the happy Pair 1090
With chaste embraces to replenish Fair
Th' unpeopled World ; that, while the World endures,
Here might succeed their living Portraitures.
He had impos'd the like precept before,
On th' irefull Drowes that in the Desarts roare,
The feathered Flocks, and fruitfull-spawning legions
That live within the liquid Crystall Regions.
Thence-forth therefore, Bears, Bears ingendred ;
The Dolphins, Dolphins ; Vulturs, Vulturs bred ;
Men, Men ; and Nature with a change-less Course, 1100
Still brought forth Children like their Ancestors :
Tho since indeed, as (when the fire hath mixt-them)
The yellow Gold and Silver pale betwixt them
Another Metall (like to neither) make,
Which yet of either's riches doth partake :
So, oft two Creatures of a divers kinde,
Against the common course through All assign'd
Confounding their lust-burning seeds together,
Beget an Elf, not like in all to either,
But (bastard Mongrell) bearing marks apparent 1110
Of mingled members, ta'en from either Parent.

Their marriage.

Their Epithalamy, or wedding Song.

The commodities of Marriage.

Propagation by the blessing of God.

Unnatural conjunctions produce monstrous Births.

Of things ingendered without seed or commixion of sexes.

God, not contented, to each Kinde to give
And to infuse the Vertue Generative,
Made (by his Wisdome) many Creatures breed
Of live-less bodies, without Venus' deed.

So, the cold humour breeds the Salamander,
Who (in effect) like to her birth's Commander
With child with hundred Winters, with her touch
Quencheth the Fire, though glowing ne'r so much.

So, of the Fire in burning furnace springs
The fly Pyrausta with the flaming Wings ;

1120

Without the Fire, it dyes ; within it, joyes ;
Living in that, which Each thing else destroyes.

So, slow Boltes underneath him sees,
In th' ycie Iles, those Gosalings hatch of Trees ;
Whose fruitfull leaves, falling into the Water,
Are turn'd (they say) to living Fowls soon after.
So, rotten sides of broken Ships do change
To Barnacles ; O Transformation strange !
'T was first a green Tree, then a gallant Hull,
Lately a Mushrooms, now a flying Gull.

1130

*So Morn and Evening the Sixth Day conclude,
And God perceiv'd that All his Works were good.*

NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

- Line 7, 'Androclus'—sic.: Androclus is intended. The story is fetched from Aulus Gellius (v. 14).
- .. 29, 'influent' = un-fluent or not ready. Cf. Moses' 'I am not eloquent.'
- .. 31, 'purleth.' See Glossarial Index, s.v.
- .. 41, 'ward'—noticeable use of the word.
- .. 44, 'self-rumineth' = self-ruminateth, self-introspects. In 'The Flea' of Peter Woodhouse (1605) of our Occasional Issues, the Elephant is made to tell very fully his gifts and graces, albeit not without sharp retorts by 'the Flea.'
- .. 65, 'Carry-Castle'—quaint name. The early wood-cuts make the 'Castle' very prominent.
- .. 77, 'stocked' = fixed.
- .. 95, 'broachers' = openers.
- .. 111, 'pace' = pace. So in l. 702.
- .. 137, 'painfull' = full-of-pains or painstaking.
- .. 150, 'Beaver' = beaver. The mythic expedient of the beaver is noticed even in Juvenal.
- .. 161, 'akonly'—fine word.
- .. 187, 'Pheer' = wife or mate.
- .. 222, 'Welking' = welkin, i.e. curved sky.
- .. 226, 'Tushes' = teeth—still used in our Nurseries or child-language, e.g., tushy pegs or peggles.
- .. 227, 'Cwivrets' = hard, thick skin.
- .. 249, 'felby' = fiercely, vengefully.
- .. 250, 'Viper (at his birth)'—the very old myth that the viper eats its way to birth through its parent.
- .. 269, 'traverse' = dispute or oppose?
- .. 277, 'brocketh' = openeth.
- Line 293, 'margents' = margins.
- .. 356, 'clout' = cloth—Scottic still.
- .. 359, 'drad' = dread, frequentier.
- .. 364, 'stow' = a moment or instant.
- .. 410, 'swingging' = swinging.
- .. 412, 'rampeth' = reareth up—heraldic term.
- .. 425, 'hoary' = gray—as some are said to have done in a night of suspense and terror.
- .. 427, 'poule' = poll.
- .. 474, 'beform' = before—by stress of rhyme with 'adorn.'
- .. 585, 'pension' = allowance.
- .. 594, 'impale' = surround as a 'paling.'
- .. 595, 'Quern-like' = hand-mill.
- .. 604, 'Fels' = hide or mantle.
- .. 630, 'Censurers' = judges.
- .. 660, 'Apes' = imitators or resemblances.
- .. 702, 'pace' = pace, as in l. 111.
- .. 707, 'tuffs' = tufts—by stress of rhyme with 'puffs.'
- .. 818, 'Table' = tablet or memorandum-book?
- .. 894, 'accorded' = harmonised or balanced.
- .. 899, 'Almain' = German.
- .. 917, 'rains' = reins.
- .. 957, 'greatest'—note this use of the superlative. So by Milton.
- .. 1031, 'vre' = use.
- .. 1033, 'Bringeth his patient in a sense-less slumber.' This might read as a description of chloroform administration. See Memorial-Introduction.
- .. 1087, 'Mel' = honey.
- .. 1129, 'Barnacles'—a myth that lingered long. Marvell applied it drastically to the Scotch in his Satires. See my edn., s.v.—G.

THE SEVENTH DAY
OF THE FIRST
WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*In sacred Rest, upon This sacred Day
Th' Eternall doth his glorious works survey :
His onely Powr and Providence persever
T' uphold, maintain, and rule the World for ever :
Maugre Men's malice and Hei's raging mood,
God turneth all things to his children's good :
Sabbath's right use ; From all World's-Works to cease ;
To pray (not play) and hear the Word of Peace :
Instructions drawn from dead and living things, 10
And for our selves ; for all Estates ; for Kings.*

By an excellent similitude of a Painter delighted with the sight of a curious table which he hath lately finish'd : our Poet sheweth how God rested the seventh day, and saw (as saith the Scripture) that all that he had made was Good.

THe cunning Painter, that with curious care,
Limning a Land-scape, various, rich, and rare,
Hath set a-work, in all and every part,
Invention, Judgment, Nature, Use and Art ;
And hath at length (t' immortalize his name)
With weary Pencil perfected the same ;
Forgets his pains ; and, inly fill'd with glee,
Still on his Pictures gazeth greedily. 20
First, in a Mead he marks a frisking Lamb,
Which seems, though dumb, to bleat unto the Dam ;
Then he observes a Wood, seeming to wave :
Then th' hollow bosom of some hideous Cave :
Here a high way, and there a narrow Path :
Here Plains, there Oaks torn by tempestuous wrath :
Here from a craggy Rock's steep-hanging boss
(Thrumm'd half with Ivie, half with crisp'd Moss)
A silver Brook in broken streams doth gush,
And head-long down the hornéd Cliff doth rush ;
Then, winding thence above and under ground, 30
A goodly Garden it be-moateth round :
There on his knee (behinde a Box-Tree shrinking)
A skillfull Gunner, with his left eye winking, Levels directly at an Oak hard by ;
Whereon a hundred groaning Culvers cry ;

Down falls the Cock, up from the Touch-pan flies
A ruddy flash that in a moment dyes.
Off goes the Gun, and through the Forrest rings
The thundering bullet, born on fiery wings. 40
Here, on a green, two Striplings, stripp'd light,
Run for a prize with labour'som delight ;
A dusty Cloud about their feet doth flowe
(Their feet, and head, and hands, and all doe goe)
They swelt in sweat ; and yet the following Rout
Hastens their haste with many a cheerfull about.
Here, six pyed Oxen, under painfull yোক,
Rip up the folds of Ceres' Winter Cloak.
Here in the shade, a pretty Shepherdess
Drives softly home her bleating happiness :
Still as she goes, she spins ; and as she spins, 50
A man would think some Sonnets she begins ;
Heer runs a River, there springs forth a Fountain,
Here vales a Valley, there ascends a mountain.
Here smokes a Castle, there a City fumes,
And here a Ship upon the Ocean looms.
In brief, so lively Art hath Nature shap't,
That in his Work the Work-man's selfe is rapt,
Unable to look off ; for, looking still,
The more he looks, the more he finds his skill :
So th' Architect (whose glorious Workmanships
My cloudy Muse doth but too-much eclipse)
Having with pain-less pain, and care-less care,
In these Six-Dayer finish'd the Table fair
And infinite of th' Universall Ball,
Resteth This-Day, t' admire himselfe in All :
And for a season eying nothing els,
Joyes in his Work, sith all his Work excels
(If my dull, stutting, frozen eloquence
May dare conjecture of his high intents). 60
One while, he sees how th' ample Sea doth take 70
The Liquid homage of each other Lake ;

60 God rested the seventh day, and contemplates on his workes.

A brief recapitulation and consideration of the Workes of God in the whole world, and a learned Exposition of the words of Moses. Gen. i. 31. God saw that all that he had made was perfectly good.

And how again the Heav'ns exhale, from it,
Abundant vapours (for our benefit) :
And yet it swells not for those tribute streams,
Nor yet it shrinks not for those boylng beams.
There sees he th' Ocean-peoples' plenteous broods,
And shifting Courses of the Ebbs and Floods ;
Which with inconstant glaunces night and day
The lower Planet's forked front doth sway :
Anon, upon the flowry Plains he looks, 80
Lacéd about with snaking silver brooks.
Now, he delights to see foure Brethren's strife
Cause the World's peace, and keep the World in life :
Anon, to see the whirling Sphears to roule
In rest-less Dances about either Pole ;
Whereby, their Cressets (carried divers wayes)
Now visit us, anon th' Antipods.
It glads him now to note, how th' Orb of Flame,
Which girts this Globe, doth not enfire the Frame :
How th' Air's glib-gliding firmness body bears 90 Such store of Fowls, Hail-storms, and Floods of tears :
How th' heavie Water, pronest to descend,
'Twixt Aire and Earth is able to depend :
And how the dull Earth's prop-less massie Ball
Stands stedy still, just in the midst of All.
Anon his nose is pleas'd with fragrant sentes
Of Balm and Basil, Myrrh and Frankincense,
Thyme, Spilnard, Hyssop, Savory, Cinnamon,
Pink, Violet, Rose, and Clove-Carnation.
Anon, his ear's charm'd with the melody 100
Of wingéd consorts' curious Harmony :
For, though each Bird, guided with art-less Art,
After his kinde, observe a song a-part,
Yet the sole burden of their severall Layes
Is nothing but the Heav'n-King's glorious prayse.
In briefe, th' Almighty's eye, and nose, and ear,
In all his works, doth nought see, sent, or hear
But shewes his greatness, savours of his grace,
And sounds his glory over every place.
But above all, Man's many beauteous features 110
Detaine the Lord more then all other Creatures :
Man's his own Minion ; Man's his sacred Type :
And for Man's sake, he loves his Workmanship.
Not that I mean to fain an idle God,
That lusk in Heav'n and never looks abroad,
That crowns not Vertue, and corrects not Vice ;
Blinde to our service, deaf unto our sighs :
A Pagan Idol, voyd of powr and piety,
A sleeping Dormouse (rather) a dead Delty.
For though (alas !) sometimes I cannot shun, 120
But some profane thoughts in my minde will run,
I never think on God, but I conceive
(Whence cordiall comforts Christian soules receive)
In God, Care, Counsell, Justice, Mercy, Might,
To punish wrongs, and patronize their right :
Sith Man (but Image of th' Almightyest)
Without these gifts is not a Man, but Beast.
Fond Epicure, thou rather sleep'st, thy self,
When thou did'st forge thee such a sleep-sick Elf

Of the providence
of God.

For Life's pure fount ; or vainly fraudulent 130
(Not shunning th' Atheist's sin, but punishment)
Imagined'st a God so perfect-less,
In Works defying whom thy words profess.
God is not sitting (like some Earthly State)
In proud Theatre, him to recreate
With curious Objects of his eares and eyes
(Without disposing of the Comcedies)
Content t' have made (by his great Word) to move
So many radiant Stars as shine above ;
And on each thing with his own hand to draw 140
The sacred Text of an eternall Law :
Then, bosoming his hand to let them slide,
With reins at will, whither that Law shall guide ;
Like one that having lately forc't some Lake,
Through some new Channell a new Course to take,
Takes no more care thence-forth to those effects,
But lets the stream run where his Ditch directs.
The Lord our God wants neither Diligence,
Nor Love, nor Care, nor Powr, nor Providence.
He prov'd his Powr, by Making All of nought : 150
His Diligence, by Ruling All he wrought :
His Care, by Ending it in Six Dayes' space :
His Love, in Building it for Adam's Race :
His Providence (maugre Time's wastefull rages)
Pruserving it so many Years and Ages.
For, O ! how often had this goodly Ball
By his own greatness caus'd his proper Fall ?
How often had this World deceast, except
God's mighty arms had it upheld and kept ?
God is the soule, the life, the strength, and sinew, 160
That quickens, moves, and makes this Frame continue.
God's the main spring, that maketh every way
All the small wheels of this great Engin play.
God's the strong Atlas, whose unshrinking shoulders
Have bin and are Heav'ns heavie Globe's upholders.
God makes the fountains run continually,
The Dayes and Nights succeed incessantly :
The Seasons in their Season he doth bring,
Summer and Autumn, Winter, and the Spring :
God makes th' earth fruitfull, and he makes the 170 earth's
Large loynes not yet faint for so many births.
God makes the Sun and Stars, though wondrous hot,
That yet their heat themselves inflameth not ;
And that their sparkling beams prevent not so,
With wofull flames, the Last great Day of wo :
And that (as mov'd with a contrary wrest)
They turn at-once both North, and East, and West :
Heav'n's constant course, his heat doth never break :
The floating Water waiteth at his beck :
Th' Air's at his Call, the Fire at his Command, 180
The Earth is His : and there is nothing fan'd
In all these Kingdoms, but is mov'd each howr
With secret touch of his eternall Powr.
God is the Judge, who keeps continuall Sessions,
In every place to punish all Transgressions ;
Who, void of Ignorance and Avarice,
Not won with Bribes, nor wrested with Device,

130 Epicurus and his followers, denying the same, confuted by sundry reasons.

140

Simile.

150 x. God's power, goodness, and wisdom, shine gloriously in governing the World.

160 z. In him, and through him, all things live, and move, and have their Being.

170 3. All things particularly are guided by his Ordinance and power, working continually.

170

4. God is the Iudge of the World: having all creatures visible and invisible, ready armed to execute his Ir'gements.

Sans Fear, or Favour, Hate, or partial Zeal ;
Pronounceth Judgments that are past appeal.
Himself is Judge, Jury, and Witness too, 190
Well knowing what we all think, speak, or doe :
He sounds the deepest of the doublest heart,
Searcheth the Reines, and sifteth every part :
He sees all secrets, and his Lynx-like eye
(Yer it be thought) doth every Thought descry :
His sentence given, never returns in vain ;
For, all that Heav'n, Earth, Aire, and Sea contain,
Serve him as Sergeants : and the winged Legions
That soar above the bright Star-spangled Regions,
Are ever prest, his powerful Ministers : 200
And (lastly) for his Executioners,
Sathan, assisted with th' infernall band,
Stands ready still to finish his command.

Yes, he maketh even the wicked his instruments to punish the wicked, and to prove his chosen.

God (to be briefe) is a good Artizan
That to his purpose aptly manage can
Good or bad Tools ; for, for just punishment,
He arms our sins us Sinners to torment :
And, to prevent th' ungodly's plot, sometime
He makes his foes (will-nill-they) fight for him.

Yet true it is, that humane things (seem) slide 210
Unbridledly with so uncertain tide,
That in the Ocean of Events, so many,
Sometimes God's Judgments are scarce seen of any :

Again, against Epicures, who hold that all things happen in the world by chance.

Rather it seems that giddy Fortune guideth
All that beneath the silver Moon betideth.
Yet art thou ever just (O God) though I
Cannot (alas !) thy Judgments' depth descry :
My Wit's too shallow for the least Designe
Of thy drad Counsaills, sacred, and divine :
And thy least-secret Secrets, I confess, 220
Too deep for us, without thy Spirit's address.

1. God's Judgements past our search : yet ever just in themselves.

Yet oftentimes, what seemeth (at first sight)
Unjust to us, and past our reason quite,
Thou mak'st us (Lord) acknowledge (in due season)
To have been done with equity and reason.

Gen. 45. 6, 7. and Gen. 50. 20.

So, suffering th' Hebrew Tribes to sell their brother,
Thy eternal Justice thou didst seem to smoothe.
But Joseph (when, through such rare hap, it chanced
Him of a slave to be so high advanced,
To rule the Land where Nilus' fertill flood 230
Dry Heav'n's defects endeavours to make good)
Learn'd, that his envious brethren's trecherous drift,
Him to the Stern of Memphian State had lift,
That he might there provide Reliefe and Room
For Abraham's Seed, against (then) time to come.

2. In executing his judgements on the rebellious, he sheweth mercy on his Servants.

When thy strong arm, which plagues the Repror-bate,
The World and Sodom did exterminate,
With flood and flame : because there lived then
Some small remaines of good and righteous men,
Thou seem'dst unjust : but when thou sav'dst Lot 240
From Fire ; from Water, Noah and his Boat ;
'T was plainly seen, thy Justice stands propitious
To th' Innocent, and smiteth but the vitious.

3. He sheweth his power in the

He wilfull winks against the shining Sun,
That sees not Pharaok as a mean begun

For th' Hebrews' good ; and that his hardned heart
Smoothed the passage for their soon-depart ;
To th' end the Lord, when Tyrants will not yeeld,
Might for his glory finde the larger field.

confusion of the mightiest : and in the deliverance of his Church.

Who sees not also, that th' unjust Decree 250
Of a proud Judge, and Judas trecherie,
The People's fury and the Prelate's gall,
Serv'd all as Organs to repair the Fall
Of Eden's old Prince ; whose luxurions pride
Made on his seed his sin for ever slide ?

Th' Almighty's Care, doth diversly disperse
Ore all the parts of all this Universe :
But more precisely, his wide wings protect
The race of Adam, chiefly his Elect.
For, aye he watcheth for his Children choice, 260
That lift to him their hearts, their hands, and voyce :
For them, he built th' ay-turning Heav'n's Theater ;
For them he made the Fire, Aire, Earth, and Water :
He counts their hairs, their steps he measureth,
Handles their hands, and speaketh with their breath ;
Dwels in their hearts, and plants his Regiments
Of watchfull Angels round about their Tents.

4. Hee turnes the malice of Satan and his instruments, to his owne glory, and the good of his : of whom hee hath alwaies speciall care.

But here, what heare I ? Faithless, God-less men,
I marvel not, that you impugn my pen :
But (O !) it grieves me, and I am amaz'd, 270
That those, whose faith, like glistring Stars hath blas'd,

A remedy for temptation of the godly, seeing the prosperity of the wicked, and the afflictions of God's Children.

Even in our darkest nights, should so object
Against a Doctrine of so sweet effect ;
Because (alas !) with weeping eyes they see
Th' ungodly-most in most Prosperity,
Clothéd in Purple, crown'd with Diadems,
Handling bright Scepters, hoording Gold and Gems,
Croucht-to, and courted with all kinde affection,
As priviledged by the Heav'n's protection ;
So that, their goods, their honours, their delights 280
Excell their hopes, exceed their appetites :
And (opposite) the godly (in the storms
Of this world's Sea) tost in continuall harms :
In Earth, less rest then Euripus they finde,
God's heavie Rods still hanging them behinde :
Them, shame and blame, trouble and loss pursues ;
As shadows bodies, and as night the dewe.

Peace, peace, deer friends : I hope to cancell quite
This profane thought from your unsettled Sp'rit.
Know then, that God (to th' end he be not thought 290
A powr-less Judge) here plagueth many a fault ;
And many a fault leaves here unpunished,
That men may also his last Judgment dread.

The same comforted in divers sorts with apt similitudes, confirming the reason, and declaring the right end of God's divers dealing with men.

On th' other side, note that the Crosse becomes
A ladder leading to Heav'n's glorious rooms :
A Royall Path, the Heav'nly Milken way,
Which doth the Saints to Jove's high Court convey.
O ! see you not, how that a Father grave,
Curbing his Son much shorter then his Slave,
Doth th' one but rare, the other rife reprove ; 300
Th' one but for lucre, th' other all for love ?
As skillfull Quirry, that commands the Stable
Of some great Prince, or person honourable,

Gives ofttest to that Horse the teaching Spur,
Which he finds fittest for the Use of War.
A painfull School-master, that hath in hand
To institute the flour of all a Land,
Gives longest Lessons unto those, where Heav'n
The ablest Wits and aptest Wils hath giv'n.
And a wise Chieftain never trusts the weight
Of th' execution of a brave exploit,
But unto those whom he most honoureth,
For often proof of their firm force and faith :
Such sends he first t' assault his eager foes :
Such 'gainst the Canon on a Breach bestowes :
Such he commands naked to scale a Fort,
And with small number to re-gain a Port.

310

God beats his Dear, from birth to burial,
To make them know him, and their pride appall,
To draw devout sighs from calamity,
And by the touch to try their Constancie,
T' awake their sloath, their mindes to exercise
To travell cheer'ly for th' immortall Prize.

320

A good Physician, that Art's excellence
Can help with practise and experience,
Applies discreetly all his Recipes,
Unto the nature of each fell-disease ;
Curing this Patient with a bitter Potion,
That, with strict Diet, th' other with a Lotion,
And sometime cutteth off a Leg or Arm,
So (sharply-sweet) to save the whole from harm :
Even so the Lord (according to th' ill humours
That vex his most-Saints with soul-tainting tumors)
Sends sometimes Exile, sometimes lingring Languor,
Sometimes Dishonour, sometimes pining Hunger,
Somtimes long Law-suits, somtimes loss of good,
Somtimes a Child's death, or a Widow-hood :
But ay he holdeth, for the Good of his,
In one hand Rods, in th' other Remedies.

330

The Souldier, slugging long at home in Peace,
His wonted courage quickly doth decrease :
The Rust doth fret the blade bangd up at rest :
The Moath doth eat the garment in the Chest :
The standing Water stinks with putrefaction :
And Vertue hath no vertue but in action.

340

All that is fairest in the world, we finde
Subject to travell. So, with storms and winde
Th' Aire still is tost : the Fire and Water tend,
This still to mount, that, ever to descend :
The Spirit is spright-less if it want discourse, Heav'n's no more heav'n if it once cease his Course.

350

The valiant Knight is known by many scars :
But he that steals home wound-less from the Wars,
Is held a Coward, voyd of Valour's proof,
That for Death's fear hath fled, or fought a-loof.

The Lord therefore, to give Humanity
Rare Presidents of dauntless Constancy,
And crown his deer Sons with victorious Laurels,
Won from a thousand foes in glorious quarrels ;
Pours down more evils on their hap-less head,
Then yerst Pandora's odious Box did shed ;

360

Yet strengthening stil their harts with such a plaister,
That though the Flesh stoop, still the Spirit is Master.

But, wrongly I these evils Evill call :
Sole Vice is ill, sole Vertue good : and all
Besides the same, is selfy, simply, had
And held indifferent, neither good nor bad.
Let envious Fortune all her forces wage
Against a constant Man ; her fellest rage
Can never change his godly resolution,
Though heav'n it self should threaten his confusion.

370

A constant Man is like the Sea, whose brest
Lies ever open unto every guest ;
Yet all the Waters that she drinks, can not
Make her to change her qualities a jot :
Or like a good sound stomach, not soon casting
For a light surfeit, or a small distasting ;
But, that, untroubled, can incontinent
Convert all meats to a perfect nourishment.

True constancy lively represented by two comparisons.

Though then, the Lord's deep Wisdom, to this day,

380

Work in the World's uncertain-certain sway :
Yet must we credit, that his hand compos'd
All in six Dayes, and that He then Repos'd ;
By his example, giving us behest

On the Seventh Day for evermore to Rest.
For, God remembr'd that he made not Man
Of stone, or Steel, or Brass Corinthian :
But lodg'd our Soul in a frail earthen Mass,
Thinner then Water, Brittlr then Glass ;
He knows, our life is by nought sooner spent,
Then having still our minds and bodies bent.

390

A Field, left lay for some few years, will yeeld
The richer crop when it again is till'd :
A River, stopp'd by a sluice a space,
Runs (after) rougher, and a swifter pace :
A Bow, a-while unbent, will after cast
His shafts the farther, and them fix more fast :
A Souldier, that a season still hath lain,
Coms with more fury to the Field again :
Even so this Body, when (to gather breath)
One Day in Sev'n at Rest it sojourneth ;
It recollects his Powrs, and with more cheer
Fals the next morrow to his first Career.

400

But the chief End this Precept aymes at, is
To quench in us the coals of Covetize ;
That, while we rest from all profaner Arts,
God's Spirit may work in our retir'd hearts :
That we, down-treading earthly cogitations,
May mount our thoughts to heav'nly meditations :
Following good Archers' guise, who shut one eye,
That they the better may their mark espy.

410 Simile.

For, by th' Almighty, this great Holy-day
Was not ordain'd to dance, to mask, and play,
To slug in sloath, and languish in delights,
And loose the Reines to raging appetites,
To turn God's Feasts to filthy Luxurials,
To frantick Orgies, and fond Saturnals,
To dasle eyes with Pride's vaine-glorious splendor,
To serve strange gods, or our ambition tender ;

Against profaners
of the Sabbath.

Afflictions profitable to the faithful.

They are necessary to cure the diseases of the Soule.

Without them
God's children decline.

The Crosses an honourable mark.

God will be glorified in the constant sufferings of his Servants.

As th' irreligion of loose Times hath since
 Chang'd the Prime-Churche's chaster Innocence. 420
 God would, that men should in a certain place
This-Day assemble as before his face,
 Lending a humble and attentive ear
 To learn his great Name's dear-drad Loving-Fear :
 He would, that there the faithfull Pastor should
 The Scripture's marrow from the bones unfould,
 That we might touch with fingers (as it were)
 The sacred secrets that are hidden there.
 For, though the reading of those holy lines 430
 In private Houses som-what move our minds ;
 Doubtless, the Doctrin preacht doth deeper pierce,
 Proves more effectuall, and more weight it bears.
 He would, that there in holy Psalmes, we sing
 Shrill praise and thanks to our immortal King,
 For all the liberall bounties he bestow' th
 On us and ours, in soule and body both :
 He would, that there we should confess his Christ
 Our onely Saviour, Propbet, Prince, and Priest :
 Solemnizing (with sober preparation) 440
 His blessed Seals of Reconciliation :
 And, in his Name, beg boldly what we need
 (After his will) and bee assur'd to speed ;
 Sith in th' Exchequer of his Clemency
 All goods of Fortune, Soule, and Body ly.
 He would, this Sabbath should a figure be
 Of the blest Sabbath of Eternity.
 But th' one (as Legall) heeds but outward things ;
 Th' other to Rest both Soule and Body brings :
 Th' one but a Day endures ; th' other's Date 450
 Eternity shall not Exterminate :
 Shadows the one, th' other doth truth include :
 This stands in freedom, that in servitude :
 With cloudy cares th' one's muffled up som-whiles ;
 The other's face is full of pleasing smiles :
 For never grief, nor fear of any Fit
 Of the least care, shall dare come neere to it.
 'Tis the grand Jubile, Feast of all Feasts,
 Sabbath of Sabbaths, end-less Rest of Rests ;
 Which, with the Prophets, and Apostles zealous, 460
 The constant Martyrs, and our Christian Fellows,
 God's faithfull Servants : and his chosen Sheep,
 In Heav'n wee hope (within short time) to keep.
 He would this Day, our Soule (sequestered
 From busie thoughts of worldly cares) should read
 In Heav'n's bow'd Arches, and the Elements,
 His bound-less Bounty, Power, and Providence ;
 That every part may (as a Master) teach
 Th' illiterate, Rules past a Master reach.
 Come (Reader) sit, come sit thee downe by mee ; 470
 Think with my thoughts, and see what I doe see :
 Hear this dumb Doctor : study in this Book,
 Where day and night thou maist at pleasure look,
 And thereby learne uprightly how to live :
 For every part doth special Lessons give,
 Even from the gilt Studs of the Firmament,
 To the base Centre of our Element.

We ought on the Lord's day attend his service, and meditate on the everlasting Rest, and on the works of God.

The practice of the faithfull, in all reformed Churches, on the Sabbath day.

The Corporall Rest, a figure of the Spirituall.

Meditations on the works of God, especially on the day of Rest.

Exhortations to this Meditation, with the use and profit thereof.

Seest thou those Stars we (wrongly) wandering call,
 Though divers wayes they dance about this Ball,
 Yet evermore their manifold Career 480
 Follows the Course of the First Moving Sphear ?
 This teacheth thee, that though thine owne Desires
 Be opposite to what Heav'n's will requires,
 Thou must still strive to follow (all thy Dayes)
 God (the first Mover) in his holy wayes.
 Vain puff of winde, whom vaunting pride bewitches,
 For Bodies' Beauties, or Mind's (richer) Riches ;
 The Moon, whose splendor from her brother springs,
 May, by Example, make thee veil thy wings :
 For thou, no less then the pale Queene of Nights, 490
 Borrow' at all goodness from the Prince of Lights.
 Wilt thou, from Orb to Orb, to th' Earth descend ?
 Behold the Fire which God did round extend :
 As neer to Heav'n, the same is cleer and pure,
 Ours here below, sad, smoakie, and obscure :
 So, while my Soule doth with the heav'ns converse
 It's sure and safe from every thought perverse ;
 And though thou won heer in this world of sin,
 Thou art as happy as Heav'n's Angels bin :
 But if thy mind be alwaies fix'd all 500
 On the foul dung-hill of this darksome vale,
 It will partake in the contagious smels
 Of th' unclean house wherein it droops and dwels.
 If envious Fortune be thy bitter foe,
 And day and night doe toss thee to and fro :
 Remember, th' Air corrupteth soon, except
 With sundry winds it oft be swing'd and swept.
 The Sea, which sometimes down to Hel is driv'n
 And sometimes heaves a froathy Mount to Heav'n,
 Yet never breaks the bounds of her precinct,
 Wherein the Lord her boistrous armes hath linkt ;
 510 Instructeth thee, that neither tyrant's rage,
 Ambition's winds, nor golden vassalage
 Of Avarice, nor any love, nor feare,
 From God's Command should make thee shrink a hair.
 The Earth, which never all at once doth move
 Through her rich Orb, receiv'd from above,
 No firmer base her burthen to sustent
 Then slipperry props of softest Element ;
 By her example doth propose to thee 520
 A needfull Lesson of true constancy.
 Nay, there is nought in our dear Mother found,
 But pithily som Vertue doth propound.
 O ! let the Noble, Wise, Rich, Valiant,
 Be as the base, poor, faint, and ignorant :
 And, looking on the fields when Autumnus shears,
 There let them learn among the bearded ears ;
 Which still, the fuller of the flowry grain,
 Bow downe the more their humble heads again ;
 And ay the lighter and the less their store, 530
 They lift aloft their chaffie Crests the more.
 Let her, that (bound-less in her wanton wishes)
 Dares spot the Spous-bed with unlawful kisses,
 Blush, (at the least) at Palma-Tree's loyalty,
 Which never bears unless her Male be by.

The planets teach us to follow the will of God.

The Moon teacheth that we have not any thing that we have not received.

The Elementary fire and ours, where our happiness, and where our misery consists.

The Aire, that afflictions are profitable for us.

The Sea, that wee ought for no respect to transgresse the Law of God.

The Earth, that wee should be constant.

The Ears of Corn, that we should be humble.

The Palm-tree, that we should be chaste.

Cinnamon, teacheth diligence and prudence.	Thou, thou that prancest after Honour's prize (While by the way thy strength and stomach dies) Remember, Honor is like Cinnamon, Which Nature mounds with many a million Of thorny pricks ; that none may danger-less Approach the plant, much less the fruit possess.	540
The Sun and the Marigold direct us unto Christ the Sun of righteous- ness.	Canst thou the secret Sympathy behold Betwixt the bright Sun and the Marigold ; And not consider, that wee must no less Follow in life the Sun of righteousness ? O Earth ! the Treasures of thy hollow brest Are no less fruitfull Teachers then the rest.	600	The Marlin, to the unthankfull
Lime in water, teacheth us to shew our vertue in extremity.	For, as the Lime doth break and burne in Water, And swell and smoaok, crackle, and skip, and scatter ; Waking that Fire, whose dull heat sleeping was Under the cold Crust of a Chalky Mass : He that (to march amid the Christian Hoast) Yeelds his heart's Kingdome to the Holy-Ghost ; And, for brave Service under Christ his Banner, Lookes to bee crown'd with his chief Champion's Honor,	550
The Diamond exhorts to con- stancy.	Must in affliction wake his zeal, which oft In calmer time sleeps too securely soft. And, opposite, as the rich Diamond The Fire and Steel doth stoutly both withstand : So the true Christian should, till life expire, Contemn proud Tyrant's raging Sword and Fire. Or, if fell Rigour with some ruth-less smart A little shake the sinnewes of his heart, He must be like the richest Minerall, Whose Ingots bow, but never breake at all ; Nor in the Furnace suffer any loss Of weight, but lees ; not of the Gold, but dross.	560
Gold in the fur- nace, to magnan- imity and purity.	The precious stone, that bears the rainbow's name, Receives the bright face of Sol's burnisht flame ; And by reflection, after, it displays On the next object all those pointed rayes : So, whoso hath from the Empyreall Pole, Within the center of his happy Soule, Receiv'd some splendor of the beames divine, Must to his Neighbour make the same to shine ; Not burying Talents which our God hath giv'n To be employ'd in a rich trade for Heav'n, That in his Church he may receive his Gold With thirty, sixty, and an hundred fold.	570
The stone Iris, to edification of our neighbour.	As th' Iron, toucht by th' Adamant's effect, To the North Pole doth ever point direct : So the Soule, toucht once by the secret powr Of a true lively Faith, looks every houre To the bright Lamp which serves for Cynosure To all that sail upon the Sea obscure.	580

		Fathers, if you desire your Children sage Should by their blessings blees your crooked age ; Train them betimes unto true Vertue's Lore By Aw, Instruction, and Example (more) ; So the old Eagle flutters in and out, To teach his young to follow him about. If his example cannot timely bring His backward birds to use their feeble wing, He leaves them then some Dayes unfed, whereby Sharp hunger may at length constraime them fly.	The Eagle, to parents.

		O ! Mothers, can you ? can you (O unkinde !) Deny your Babes your breasts ? and call to minde That many Fishes many times are fain Receive their seed into their wombs again ; Lucina's sad throes, for the self-same birth, Enduring oft, it often bringing forth.	Divers fishes to unnatural Mothers, that will not nurse their owne Children.
		O ! why embrace not we with Charity The living, and the dead with Piety ? Giving these succour, sepulture to those : Even as the Dolphins do themselves expose, For their live-fellows, and beneath the Waves Cover their dead-ones under sandy Graves.	Dolphins, to the cruell.
		You Children, whom (past hope) the Heav'n's benignity Hath heapt with wealth, and heaved-up to dignity, Doe not forget your Parents : but behold Th' officious Kids, who (when their Parents old, With heavie Gyves, Elds trembling Fever stops, And fetters-fast upon the mountain-tops) As carefull purveyours, bring them home to broze The tendrest tops of all the slendrest boughs ; And sip (self-thirst-less) of the River's brink, Which in their mouths they bring them home to drink.	The wilde Kid, to children.
		For house-hold Rules, read not the learned Writs Of the Stagyrian (glory of good Wits) :	The Spiders, to Man and Wife.

	Nor his, whom, for his hony-steepéd stile, They Proverbiz'd the Attick Muse yer-while : Sith th' onely Spider teacheth every one The Husband's and the Huswife's function. For, for their food the valiant Male doth roam, The cunning Female tends her work at home : Out of her bowels wool and yarn she spitteth, And all that else her learnéd labour fitteth : Her weight's the spindle that doth twist the twine, 660 Which her small fingers draw so ev'n and fine, Still at the Centre she her warp begins, Then round (at length) her little threds she pins, And equall distance to their compass leaves : Then, neat and nimbly her new web she weaves, With her fine shuttle circularly drawn Through all the circuit of her open lawn : Open, lest else th' ungentle Winds should tear Her Cipres Tent (weaker then any hair) And that the foolish Fly might easier get 670 Within the meshes of her curious Net : Which he no sooner doth begin to shake, But straight the Male doth to the Center make, That he may conquer more securely there The humming Creature haimpred in his snare. You Kings (that bear the sword of just hostility) Pursue the Proud and pardon true Humility ; Like noble Lions that do never show Their strength and stomach on a yielding Foe, But rather through the stoutest throngs do forrage, 680 'Mid thousand Deaths to shew their daunt-less courage.	But, as both Eyes do but one thing behold, Let each his Countrie's common good up-hold. You that for Others travell day and night, With much-much labour, and small benefit, 710 Behold the teeth, which Toll-free grinde the food, From whence themselves do reap more griefe then good. Even as the Heart hath not a Moment's rest, But night and day moves in our panting brest, That by his beating it may still impart The lively spirits about to every part : So those, to whom God doth his Flock betake, Ought always study, alwaies work, and wake, To breath (by Doctrine and good conversation) The quickning spirit into their Congregation. And as the Stomack from the wholesom food Divides the grosser part (which is not good) 720 They ought from false the truth to separate, Error from Faith, and Cockle from the Wheat, To make the best receiv'd for nourishment, The bad cast forth as filthy excrement. If Bat or Blade do threaten sudden harm To belly, brest, or leg, or head, or arme, With dread-less dread the Hand doth ward the blow, Taking her self her brethren's bleeding woe ; Then 'mid the shock of sacrilegious Arms That fill the world with blood and boistrous storms, Shall we not lend our helping hands to others, 730 Whom faith hath made more neer and deer then brothers ;
The Lion, to Kings.	Thou Sluggard, if thou list to learn thy part, Go learn the Emmet's and the Urchin's Art ; In Summer th' one, in Autumn th' other takes The Season's fruits, and thence provision makes, Each in his lodging laying up a hoord Against cold Winter, which doth nought afford. But reader, we resemble one that windes From Saba, Bandan, and the wealthy Indes (Through threatning Seas, and dangers manifold) 690 To seek far-off for Incense, Spice, and Gold ; Sith we, not loosing from our proper Strand, Finde all wherein a happy life doth stand : And our own Bodie's self-contained motions Give the most gross a hundred goodly Notions.	Nor can I see, where underneath the sky A man may finde a juster Policy, Or truer Image of a calme Estate Exempt from Faction, Discord, and Debate, Then in th' harmonious Order that maintains Our Bodie's life, through Members' mutuall pains : Where, one no sooner feels the least offence, But all the rest have of the same a sense. The Foot strives not to smell, the Nose to walk, 740 The Tongue to combat, nor the Hand to talk : But, without troubling of their Common-weal With mutinies, they (voluntary) deal Each in his Office and Heav'n-pointed place, Be 't vile or honest, honouréd or base.
The Emmet and Hedge-hog, to the Sloathfull.	You Princes, Pastors, and ye Chiefs of War, Do not your Laws, Sermons, and Orders mar ; Lest your examples banefull leprosies Infect your Subjects, Flocks, and Companies ; Beware, your evil make not others like ; 700 For, no Part's sound if once the Head be sick.	But, soft my Muse : what ? wilt thou re-repeat The Little-World's admiréd modulet ? If twice or thrice one and the same we bring, 'Tis tedious ; how-ever sweet we sing. Therefore a-shore : Mates, let our Anchor fall : 750 Here blowes no Winde : here are we welcom all. Besides, consider and conceive (I pray) W' have row'd sufficient for a Sabbath-day.
Man may finde in himselfe excellent instructions.	You Peers, O do not, through self-partiall zeal, With light-brain'd Counsels vex your Common-weale :	The whole body, the whole society of mankind, that every one ought to stand in his owne vocation.
The head teacheth all persons in authority.
The Eyes instruct Princes and Noble-men.

I. SONNET.

From ZEAL-Land, sayling with the Winds of Love,
 In the Bark LABOUR, steer'd by Theorems,
 Laden with Hope, and with Desire I approve,
 Bound for Cape-Comfort in the Ile of JEMMES;
 In such a Mist we fell upon the Coast,
 That suddenly upon the Rock Neglect
 (Unhappily) our Ship and Goods we lost,
 Even in a Place that we did least suspect.
 So, Cast-away (my LIEGE) and quite vndon,
 We Orphan-remnants of a woefull Wrack,
 Here cast a-shore, to Thee for succour run:
 O Pittie vs, for our dear Parent's sake,
 Who Honour'd Thee, both in his Life and Death,
 And to thy guard his POSTHUMES did bequeath.

II. SONNET.

These glorious WORKS, and gratefull Monuments
 Built by Du BARTAS, on the Pyreneis
 (Your Royall Vertues to immortalize,
 And magnifie your rich Munificence)
 Have prov'd so Chargefull to Trans-port from thence,
 That our small Art's-stock hardly could suffice
 To vnder-goe so great an Enterprize;
 But is even beggerd with th' un-cast Expense.
 So that, except our Muse's SOVERAIN
 With gracious Eye regard her spent Estate;
 And, with a hand of Princely Favour daign
 To stay her fall (before it be too-late)
 She needs must fail: as (tending light about)
 Self-spending Lamps, for lack of Oyl, go-out.

The gracious Welcome You vouchcraft yer-while
 To my grave PIBRAC (though but meanly clad)
 Makes BARTAS (now, no Stranger in this Isle)
 More bold to come (though suited even as bad)
 To kiss Your HIGNRES' Hand; and, with Your Smile,
 To Crown His Haps, and our faint Hopes to glad (Whose weary longings languish in our Stile:
 For in our Wants, our very Songs be sad)
 He brings for Present to so great a PRINCE,
 A Princely GLASSE, made first for SALOMON:
 The fitter therefore for your EXCELLENCE
 As oft to look in, as you look upon.
 Some Glasses flatter: other some deforme:
 This, ay, presents You a true PRINCE'S Form.

THE LAW.

Most humbly

Shewes to thy Great Worthiness
 (Grave MODERATOR of our Britain LAWES)
 The Muses' Abject (subject of Distress)
 How long wrong-vert, in a not-Need-less Cause,
 Not at the King's-Bench, but the Penny-less,
 By one, I Want (the son of Simpleness);
 Unable, more to greaze the scraping paws
 Of his Attorney Shift, or oyl the jaws
 Of his (dear) Counsell, Serjeant Pensiveness;
 He is compell'd in forma pauperis,
 To Plead himselfe (and shew his (little) Law)
 In the free Court of thy milde Courtesies.
 Please it thee therefore an Injunction grant,
 To stay the Suit between himself and Want.

For Thee and Thine, for ay
 So He and His shall pray.

THE CAPTAINES.

Armes yeeld to Arts: the Trumpet to the Tongue:
 Stout Ajax Prize the wise Ulysses wan:
 It will not seem then that we have mis-sung,
 To sing of CAPTAINES to a Counsail-man:
 Sith without Counsaile, Courage is but Rage:
 Rude in Resolving, rash in Acting it:
 In which respect those of the Antique Age
 Fain PALLAS Goddess both of War and Wit:
 Therefore, to Thee, whose Wit so much hath sted
 (In War and Peace) our Princes and our STATE:
 To Thee, whose Vertue hath now triumphed
 Of Cause-less Envie, and mis-grounded Hate:
 To Thee (Witt's-WORTHIE) had it not been wrong,
 Not to have sounded my War-WORTHIE'S Song?

THE SCHISME.

Not with-out Error, and apparent Wrong
 To Thee, the Muses, and my Self (the most)
 Could I omit, amid this Noble Hoast
 Of learned Friends to Learning, and our Song,
 To muster Thee; Thee, that hast lov'd so long
 The sacred Sisters, and (sad-sweetly-most)
 Thy Selfe hast sung (under a fauld Ghost)
 The tragick Falls of our Ambitious Throng.
 Therefore, in honour of Thy younger Art,
 And of the Muses, honour'd by the same,
 And to express my Thankfull thoughts (in part)
 This Tract I sacre unto SACKVIL'S Name,
 No less renown'd for Numbers of Thine Owne,
 Then for thy Love, to Other's Labours, show'n.

THE DECAY.

FAr be the Title of this tragick page
 From Thee (rare Module of Heroick minds)
 Whose noble Bountie all the Muses binds
 To honour Thee; but mine doth most engage:
 And yet, to Thee, and to Thy Patronage
 (For present lack of other gratefull signes)
 Needs must I Offer these DECAY'd lines
 (Lyndd with HORRORS of ISAACIAN rage)
 Where-in, to keep decorum with my Theam,
 And with my Fortunes (ruin'd every-way)
 My Care-clogd Muse (still carried down the stream)
 In singing Other's, sighes her Own DECAY
 In stile, in state, in hap, in hope, in all:
 For, Vines, unpropp'd, on the ground do crawl.

EDEN.

Great Strong-bowe's heir, no selfe-conceit doth cause
 Mine humble wings aspire to you, unknowne:
 But, knowing this, that your renown alone
 (As th' Adamant, and as the Amber drawes:
 That, hardest steel; this, easie-yielding strawes)
 Atterrs the stubborn, and attracts the prone:
 I have presum'd (O Honor's Paragon!)
 To grave your Name (which all Iberia owes)
 Here, on the fore-front of this little Pile;
 T' invite the vertuous to a sacred feast,
 And chase-away the vicious and the vile;
 Or stop their lothsom envious tongues, at least.
 If I have err'd, let my submission 'scuse:
 And daign to grace my yet vngracedd Muse.

THE ARK.

From th' ARK of Hope, still toss'd in distresse
 On th' angry Deluge of disastrous plight,
 My silly Dove here takes her second flight,
 To view (great Lord) thy World of worthiness:
 Vouchsafe (rare plant of perfect Nobleness)
 Some branch of safety, whereon she may light;
 Some Olive leaf, that may presage me right;
 A safe escape from this wet wilderness.
 So, when the Flood of my deep cares shall fall,
 And I be landed on sweet Comfort's Hill;
 First, my pure thoughts to Heav'n present I shall:
 Then, on thy favours meditating still,
 My Zealous Muse shall dayly strive to frame
 Some fairer Trophæis to thy glorious Name.

NOURABLE CHARLES LORD

Mount-joy, Earle of Devonshire.

THE IMPOSTURE.

Though in thy Brook (great Charles) there swim a Swan
 Whose happy, sweet, immortal tunes can raise
 The vertuous greatness of thy Noble praise
 To higher notes, then my faint Numbers can;
 Yet, while thy Lucan doth in silence scan
 Unto himselfe new meditated laies,
 To finish up his sad Pharsalian fraies,
 Lend ear to BARTAS (now our Country-man)
 For, though his English be not yet so good
 (As French-men hardly doe our tongue attain)
 He hopeth yet to be well understood;
 The rather, if you (worthy Lord) shall daign
 His bashfulness a little to advance,
 With the milde favours of your countenance.

J. S.

RIGHT HONOURABLE

THE HANDY-CRAFTS.

The Mome-free Passage, that my Muse hath found
 Under Safe-Conduct of thy Patronage,
 Through carping censures of this curious Age
 (Where high conceited happy Wits abound)
 Makes her presume (O Mount-joy, most Renownd!)
 To bear again, in her re-Pilgrimage,
 The noble Passport of thy Tutelage,
 To save her still from sullen Envie's wound.
 Let thy (true Eagle) Sun-beholding Eyes
 Glance on our Glow-worme's scarce discern'd spark:
 And while Witt's towering Falcons touch the skies,
 Observe a while our tender-imp'd Lark.
 Such sparks may flame, and such light Larks may flie
 A higher pitch, then dross-full Vanity.

J. S.

TO THE SAME RIGHT

HONOURABLE EARLE OF

DEVONSHIRE, &c.

THE COLONIES.

Renownd Scipio, though thine Ennius
 Still merit best the best of thy regard:
 Though (worthily) his trumpet be preferr'd
 To sound the Triumphs thou hast won for us;
 Yet sith one Pen, how-ever plenteous
 Were it the Mantuan or Meonian Bard)
 Sufficeth not to give Fame's full Reward
 To thy great Deeds, admir'd and glorious:
 Though Hee, thy Homer be; Thou, his Achilles;
 Both by Each other Happy: Thou (here-in)
 T'have such a Trump as his immortal Quill-is:
 He such a Theam as thy High Vertues bin:
 It shall (Great Worthy) no Dis-Honour be,
 That (English) Bartas hath Sung (thrice) to thee.

THE COLUMNS.

YOUNG, Ancient Servant of our Sovereign Lord,
Grave Master of thy Master's minor-years;
Whose Prudence and whose Pietie appears
In his Perfection, which doth thine record:
Whose loyall Truth, His Royall Trusts approve
By oft Embassage to the greatest Peers:
Whose Duty and Devotion he endears
With present favours of his princely Love:
In Honour of these Honours many-fold,
And for memoriall of Thy kinde regard
Of these poor Orphanes (syn'd in Hopeless cold)
Accept these Thanks for thy firm Love's reward;
Where-in (so Heav'n prosper what we have sung)
Through every Age thou shalt live ever YOUNG.

TO THE RIGHT VERTUOUS
(Favourer of Vertue, Furtherer of Learning) Sir

THOMAS SMITH (of London) Knight, (late)
Lord Embassadour for his Majestie, to the Emperour of RUSSIA.

JONAS.

TO thee, long tost in a fell Storm of State;
Cast out, and swallowed in a Gulfe of Death,
On false-suspect of thine unspotted Faith
And flying from thy (heav'n-given) Charge of late:
For much resemblance of thy troublous Fate
(Much like in Case to that hee suffereth, Though (in effect) thy Cause far differeth)
I send my JONAS, to congratulate
Thy (happy) Rescue, and thy holy Triall:
Where-by (as Fire doth purifie the Gold)
Thy Loyalty is more notorious Loyall,
And worthy th' Honours which thou now do'st hold.
Thus, Vertue's Palms, oppress'd, mount the more:
And Spices bruin'd, smell sweeter then before.

J. S.

TO THE
MOST HONOURABLE
LEARNED, AND RELIGIOUS
Gentleman, M^r. Anthonie Bacon.

THE FURIES.

BOUND by thy Bounty, and mine owne Desire
To tender still new Tribute of my Zeal
To Thee, whose favour did the first repeale
My proto-BARTAS from Self-doom'd Fire:
Having new-tun'd to du BARTAS Lyre,
These tragick murmurs of his FURIES fell,
Which (with the Horrors of an earthly Hell)
The Sin-curst life of wretched Mortals tire:
To whom, but Thee, should I present the same?
Sith, by the Breath of Thine encouragement
My sacred-furie thou didst first inflame
To prosecute This sacred Argument.
Such as it is, accept it, as a signe
Of thankfull Love, from Him, whose all is Thine.

J. S.

TO THE SAME MOST HONOURABLE GENTLEMAN,

Mr. Anthonie Bacon.

BABYLON.

THy friendly censure of my first ESSAY
Du BARTAS' FURIES, and his BABYLON)
My faint Endeavours hath so cheerd on,
That both His WEEKS are also Ours to-day.
Thy gracious hand, relieving from decay
My fame-lesse Name doom'd to oblivion,
Hath so stirr'd up my Soule's devotion,
That in my Songs thy Name shall live for ay.
Thy milde acceptance of my simple myte
(Pattern and Patron of all vertuous drifts)
Doth here again my gratefull Muse invite
To re-salute thee with mine humble gifts:
Indeed, no Gifts, but Debts to thy Desert:
To whom I owe my hand, my head, my heart.

Eden.

THE FIRST PART

OF THE

FIRST DAY OF

THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Our Poet, first, doth God's assistance seek :
The Scope and Subject of his Second Week.
Adam in Eden : Eden's beauties rare ;
A reall place, not now discern'd where :
The Tree of Life, and Knowledge-Tree withall :
Knowledge of Man, before and since his Fall :
His Exercise and excellent Delights,
In's Innocence : of Dreams and Ghostly Sight's :
Nice Questions cur'd : Death, Sin's effect, whereby 10
Man (else Immortall) mortall now, must Dy.*

Invocation of the true God, for assistance in description of the infancy and first estate of the World.

Great God, which hast this World's Birth made me see,
Unfold his Cradle, shew his infancy :
Walk thou, my Spirit, through all the flowing alleys
Of that sweet Garden, where, through winding valleys,
Four lively floods crauld : tell me what mis-deed
Banisht both Eden's Adam, and his seed :
Tell who (immortall) mortalizing, brought us
The balm frō heav'n w^{ch} hopéd health hath wrought us :
Grant me the story of thy Church to sing, 20
And gests of Kings : Let me this Totall bring
From thy first Sabbath to his fatall Toomb,
My stile extending to the Day of Doome.
Lord, I acknowledge and confess, before,
This Ocean hath no bottom, nor no shore ;
But (sacred Pilot) thou canst safely steer
My vent'rous Pinnasse to her wishéd Peer ;
Where once arriv'd, all dropping wet, I will Extoll thy favours, and my vows fulfill.

*And gracious Guide, which dost all grace infuse, 30
Since it hath pleas'd thee tash my tardy Muse
With these high Theames, that through mine Art-less
Pen
This holy Lamp may light my Country-men :
Ah, teach my hand, touch mine unlearn'd lips ;
Lest, as the Earth's grosse body doth Eclipse
Bright Cynthia's beams when it is interpos'd
'T'wixt her and Phoebus : so mine ill-dispos'd,
Dark gloomy Ignorance, obscure the rayes
Of this divine Sun of these learn'd dayes.
O! furnish me with an un-vulgar stile,
That I by this may wain our wanton ILE
From Ovid's heires, and their un-hallowed spell
Here charming senses, chaining soules in Hell.
Let this provoke our modern Wits to sacre
Their wondrous gifts to honour thee their Maker ;
That our mysterious ELPHINE Oracle :
Deep, morall, grave, Invention's miracle ;
My deer sweet DANIEL, sharp conceipted, brief,
Civill, sententious, for pure accents chief :
And our new NASO, that so passionates
The Heroick sighes of love-sick Potentates :
May change their subject, and advance their wings
Up to these higher and more holy things.
And if (sufficient rich in selfe-invention)
They scorn (as I) to live of Stranger's Pension,
Let them devise new Weeks, new Works, new Waies
To celebrate the supreme Prince of praise.
And let not me (good Lord) be like the Lead
Which to some City from some Conduit-head*

30 The Translator, considering his own weaknesse and insufficiency for a worke so rare and excellent, as all the world hath worthily admired : craveth also the assistance of the Highest, that (at least) his endeavour may both stir up some abler spirit to undertake this 40 Taske : and also provoke all other good wits to take in hand some holy Argument : and with-all, that himself may be for ever sincerely affected, and (as it were) thoroughly seasoned with the sweet reliash of these sacred and religious discourses.

Simile.	Brings wholesome Water ; yet (self-wanting sense) 60 Itself receives no drop of comfort thence : But rather, as the thorough-seasoned But Wherein the tears of death-press Grapes are put, Retains (long after all the Wine is spent) Within it selfe the Liguor's lively sent : Let me still savour of these sacred sweets Till Death fold-up mine earth in earthen sheets ; Let my young layes, now prone to preach thy glory To BRUTUS' heirs, blush at my elder Story.	Whose waters past, in pleasant taste, the drink That now in Candia decks Cerathus' brink : That shady Groves of noble Palm-tree sprays, 120 Of amorous Myrtles, and immortal Bays Never un-leav'd : but evermore, their new Self-arching arms in thousand Arbours grew : Where thousand sorts of Birds, both night and day, Did bill and woove, and hop about, and play : And, marrying their sweet tunes to th' Angels' layes,
Narration. God, having created and estab- lished Man Lord of the creatures, lodgeth him in the faire Garden of Eden .	God (supreme Lord) committed not alone 70 T' our Father Adam, this inferiour Throne ; Ranging beneath his rule the scaly Nation That in the Ocean have their habitation ; Those that in horror of the Desarts lurk ; And those that capering in the Welkin work : But also chose him for a happy Seat A climate temperate both for cold and heat, Which dainty Flora paveth sumptuously With flowry VEX's inameld tapistry ; Pomona pranks with fruits, whose taste excels, 80 And Zephyr fils with Musk and Amber smels ; Where God himselfe (as Gardner) treads the allies, With Trees and Corn covers the hills and valleyes ; Summons sweet sleep with noise of hundred brooks, And Sun-proof Arbours makes in sundry nooks ; He plants, he proins, he pares, he trimmeth round Th' ever green beauties of a fruitful ground ; Here-there the course of th' holy Lakes he leads, With thousand Dies he motleys all the Meades.	Sung Adam's bliss, and their great Maker's praise. For then, the Crowes, night-Rav'n's, and Howlet's noise Was like the Nightingal's sweet-tuned voice ; And Nightingals sung like divine Arion, 130 Like Thracian Orpheus, Linus, and Amphion. Th' Air's daughter Eccho, haunting woods among, A blab that will not (cannot) keep her tongue, Who never asks, but onely answers all, Who lets not any her in vain to call ; She bore her part ; and full of curious skill, They ceasing, sung ; they singing, ceased still : There Musick raig'n'd, and ever on the plain, A sweet sound rais'd the dead-live voyce again.
The Elysian fields of the Heathen Poets are but dreams.	Ye Pagan Poets that audaciously 90 Have sought to dark the ever-Memory Of God's great Works ; from henceforth still be dum Your fabled praises of Elysium ; Which by this goodly Module you have wrought, Through deaf tradition, that your Fathers taught : For, the Almighty made his blissfull bowrs Better indeed then you have fainéd yours. For, should I say that still with smiling face, Th' all-clasping Heav'ns beheld this happy place ; That honey sweet, from hollow rocks did drain ; 100 That fostring milk flow'd up and down the Plain : That sweet as Roses smelt th' ill-savory Rew ; That in all soyls, all seasons, all things grew ; That still there dangled on the self-same treen A thousand fruits, nor over-ripe, nor green ; That eagrest fruits, and bitterest hearts did mock Madera Sugars, and the Apricock ; Yeelding more wholesome food then all the messes, That now taste-curious wanton Plenty dresses, Disguising (in a thousand costly dishes) 110 The various store of dainty Fowls and Fishes, Which far and neer we seek by Land and Seas, More to provoke then hunger to appease.	If there, I say, the Sun (the Season's stinter) 140 Made no hot Summer, nor no hoary Winter, But lovely VEX kept still in lively lustre The fragrant valleys, smiling Meads, and Pasture : That boistrous Adam's body did not shrink For Northren Windes, nor for the Southren wink : But Zephyr did sweet musky sightes afford, Which breathing through the Garden of the Lord, Gave bodies vigour, verdure to the field, That verdure flowrs, those flowres sweet savour yeeld :
A large descrip- tion of the rich beauties of the Garden of Eden , or earthly Para- dise.	Or should I say, each morning on the ground Not common dew, but Manna did abound : That never gutter-gorging dirty muds Defil'd the chrystall of smooth-sliding floods,	That Day did gladly lend his Sister Night, 150 For half her Moisture, half his shining Light : That never hail did Harvest prejudice, That never frost, nor snow, nor slippery yce The Fields en-ag'd : nor any stormy stowr Dismounted Mountains : nor no violent showr Pov'risht the Land, which frankly did produce All fruitfull vapours for delight and use : I think I lye not, rather I confess My stammering Muse's poor unlearnedness. If in two words thou wilt her praise comprise, 160 Say 'twas the type of th' upper Paradise ; Where Adam had (O wondrous strange !) discourse With God himselfe, with Angels intercourse. Yet (over-curious) question not the site, Where God did plant this Garden of delight : Whether beneath the Equinoctiall line, Or on a Mountain neer Latona's shine ; Nigh Babylon, or in the radiant East : Humble content thee that thou know'st (at least) That, that rare, plenteous pleasant happy thing 170 Whereof th' Almighty made our Grand-sire King ; Was a choice soil, through which did rowling slide Swift Ghion, Pishon, and rich Tigris tide,

All discommodities far from Eden
before Sinne.

Eden's principall and most excellent beauty.

Of the place where the Garden of Eden was situate.

Excellent estate of the Earth, and especially of Eden before
Adam's fall.

It was a certaine
materiall place, howsoever now
a-dayes we can exactly observe neither the circuit, nor extent
of it.

And that fair stream whose silver waves do kiss
The Monarch Towers of proud Semiramis.

Now, if that (roaming round about the earth)
Thou find no place that answers now in worth
This beauteous place, nor Country that can shewe
Where now-adayes, those noted fouds do flowe :
Include not all within this Close confin'd, 180
That labouring Neptune's liquid Belt doth bind.
A certaine place it was (now sought in vain)
Where set by grace, for sin remov'd again,
Our Elders were : whereof the Thunder-darter
Made a bright Sword the Gate, an Angel Porter.

It was no allegoricall nor mysticall Garden.

Nor think that Moses paints fantastick-wise
A mystike tale of fain'd Paradise.

("Twas a true Garden, happy Plentie's horn,
And seat of graces) lest thou make (forlorne)
An Ideall Adam's food fantastickall, 190
His sin suppos'd, his pain Poeticall :
Such Allegories serve for shelter fit
To curious Idiots of erroneous wit :
And chiefly then when reading Histories,
Seeking the spirit, they doe the body leese.

It was defaced
by the general Flood.

But if thou list to ghesse by likelihood,
Think that the wreakfull nature-drowning Flood Spar'd not this beauteous place, which formost saw
The first foul breach of God's eternall law :

Why the Situation of the Garden of Eden is now hard to find.

Think that the most part of the plants it pull'd, 200
And of the sweetest flours the spirits dull'd,
Spoyl'd the fair Gardens, made the fat Fields lean,
And chang'd (perchance) the river's channell clean :
And think, that Time (whose slippery wheel doth play

In humane causes with inconstant sway,
Who exiles, alters, and disguises words)
Hath now transform'd the names of all these Fords.
For, as through sin we lost that place, I feare (Forgetfull) we have lost the knowledge where
'Twas situate, and of the sugred dainties 210
Wherewith God fed us in those sacred plenties.

Of the two trees serving as Sacraments to Adam.

Now of the Trees wherewith th' immortal Powr
Adorn'd the quarters of that blissfull Bowr,
All serv'd the mouth save two sustain'd the mind ;
All serv'd for food save two for seals assign'd.

Whereof the tree of life was a Sacrament.

God gave the first, for honourable stile,
The tree of life : true name ; (alas the while !)
Not for th' effect it had, but should have kept,
If man from duty never had mis-stept. 220
For, as the ayre of those fresh dales and hills
Preserv'd him from Epidemick ills,
This fruit had ever-calm'd all insurrections,
All civill quarrels of the crosse complexions ;
Had barr'd the passage of twice-childish age,
And ever-more excluded all the rage
Of painfull griefes, whose swift-slow posting pase
At first or last our dying life doth chase.

The excellency of that Tree.

Strong counter-bane ! O Sacred plant divine !
What metall, stone, stalk, fruit, flower, root, or ryme,
Shall I presume in these rude rimes to sute 230
Unto thy wondrous World-adorning Fruit ?

The rarest Simples that our fields present-us
Heale but one hurt, and healing too torment-us :
And with the torment, lingring our reliefe,
Our bags of Gold voyd, yer our bulks of griefe.
But thy rare fruits hid powr admir'd most,
Salveth all sores, sans pain, delay, or cost :
Or rather, man from yawning Death to stay,
Thou didst not cure, but keep all ills away.

O holy, peerlesse, rich preservative ! 240
Whether wert thou the strange restorative
That suddenly did age with youth repair,
And made old Aeson younger then his heir ?
Or holy Nectar that in Heav'nly bowrs,
Eternally self-pouring Hebé pours ?
Or blest Ambrosia (God's immortall fare ?)
Or else the rich fruit of the Garden rare,
Where, for three Ladies (as assur'd guard)
A fire-arm'd Dragon day and night did ward ?
Or precious Idoly, which Jove's Pursuivan 250
Wing-footed Hermes brought to th' Ithacan ?
Or else Nepenthe, enemy to sadnesse,
Repelling sorrows, and repealing gladnesse ?
Or Mummie ? or Elisir (that excels
Save men and Angels every Creature els) ?
No, none of these : these are but forgeries,
But toyes, but tales, but dreams, deceits, and lies.
But Thou art true, although our shallow sense
May honour more, then sound thine Excellence.

240 We cannot say what Tree it was.

250

The Tree of Knowledge, th' other Tree beight : 260

Not that it selfly had such speciall might,
As men's dull wits could whet and sharpen so
That in a moment they might all things know.
'T was a sure pledge, a sacred signe, and seal ;
Which, being ta'en, should to light man reveal
What ods there is between still peace, and strife ;
God's wrath, and love ; drad death, and dearest life ;
Solace, and sorrow ; gulle, and innocence ;
Rebellious pride, and humble obedience.

260 Of the Tree of Knowledge of
Good and Evil.

For, God had not depriv'd that primer season 270
The sacred lamp and light of learned Reason :
Mankinde was then a thousand fold more wise
Then now : blinde Errour had not beard his eyes
With mists ; which make th' Athenian Sage suppose That nought he knows, save this, that nought he knows.

270 Of the excellence of man's knowledge before Sin.

That even light Pirrhon's wavering fantasies
Reave him the skill his un-skill to agnize.
And th' Aderite, within a Well obscure,
As deep as dark, the Truth of things immure.

He (happy) knew the Good, by th' use of it : 280
He knew the Bad, but not by proof as yet :
But as they say of great Hippocrates,
Who (though his limbs were numm'd with no excesse, Nor stopt his throat, nor vext his fantasie)
Knew the cold Cramp, th' Angine and Lunacy,
And hundred eis-pains, whence in lusty frowr
He liv'd exempt an hundred years and foure.
Or like the pure Heav'n-promp'd Prophets rather,
Whose sight so clearly future things did gather,

280 How he knew
good and evil
before Sin.

	Because the World's Soule in their soule enseal'd	290
	The holy stamp of secrets most conceal'd.
Of man's know- ledge since his Fall.	But our now- knowledge hath, for tedious train, A drooping life, and over-rack'd brain, A face forlorn, a sad and sullen fashion, A restless toyl, and Care's self-pining passion. Knowledge was then even the soule's soul for light, The spirit's calm Port, and Lanthorn shining bright To strait-stept feet : cleer knowledge ; not confus'd : Not sower, but sweet : not gotten, but infus'd.
	Now Heav'n's eternall all-fore-seeing King,	300
Why the Lord put man in the Garden of Eden.	Who never rashly ordereth any thing, Thought good, that man (having yet spirit sound-stated) Should dwell elsewhere, then where he was created ; That he might know, he did not hold this place By Nature's right, but by meer gift and grace ; That he should never taste fruits un-permitted, But keep the sacred pledge to him committed, And dresse that Park, which, God without all tearm, On these conditions gave him as in Farm.
	God would that (voyd of painfull labour) he	310
Of his exercise there.	Should live in Eden ; but not idly : For, idleness pure Innocence subverts, Defiles our body, and our soule perverts : Yea, sobrest men it makes dillicious, To vertue dull, to vice ingenious. But that first travell had no sympathy With our since-travel's wretched cruelty, Distilling sweat, and panting, wanting winde, Which was a scourge for Adam's sin assign'd.
	For, Eden's Earth was then so fertill fat,	320
Four e com- parisons.	That he made only sweet Essayes in that, Of skillfull industry, and naked, wrought More for delight, then for the gaine he sought. In brief, it was a pleasant exercise, A labour lik't, a pain much like the guise Of cunning Dauncers ; who, although they skip, Run, caper, vault, traverse, and turn, and trip, From Morne till Even, at night again full merry, Renew their dance, of dancing never weary.
	Or else of Hunters, that with happy luck	330
	Rousing betimes some often-breathéd Buck, Or goodly Stagge, their yelping Hounds uncouple, Winde loude their horns, their whoops and halloos double,
	Spur-on and spare not, following their desire, Themselves un-weary, though their Hackneys tyre.
	But, for the end of all their jollity, There's found much stiffness, sweat, and vanity. I rather match it to the pleasing pain
	Of Angels pure, who ever sloath disdain :
	Or to the Sun's calm course, who pain-lesse ay	340
	About the Welkin posteth night and day.
	Doubtlesse when Adam saw our common aire, He did admire the Mansion rich and faire Of his Successors. For frosts keenly cold The shady locks of Forrests had not pow'd : Heav'n had not thundred on our heads as yet, Nor giv'n the Earth her sad Divorce's Writ.
Adam admires the beauties of the World in generall :
	But when he once had entred Paradise, The remnant World he justly did dispise :
	[Much like a Boor far in the Countrey born, Who, never having seen but Kine and Corn, Oxen, and Sheep, and homely Hamlets thatcht (W^{ch} , fond, he counts as Kingdoms ; hardly matcht) When afterward he happens to behold The wealthy London's wonders manifold, The silly peasant thinks himselfe to be In a new world ; and gazing greedily, One while he, Art-lesse, all the Arts admires, Then the fair Temples, and their top-lesse spires, Their firm foundations, and the massie pride Of all their sacred ornaments beside : Anon he wonders at the differing graces, Tongues, gests, attires, the fashions and the faces, Of busie-bussing swarmes, which still he meests Ebbing and flowing over all the streets ; Then at the signes, the shops, the weights, the measures, The handy-crafts, the rumonrs, trades, and treasures. But, of all sights, none seemes him yet more strange Then the rare, beauteous, stately rich Exchange. Another while he marvels at the Thames, Which seems to bear huge Mountaines on her streams :	350	But most especially of the Garden of Eden.
	Then at the fair-built Bridge ; which he doth judge More like a tradefull City then a Bridge ; And glancing thence along the Northrene shore, That Princely Prospect doth amaze him more.] For in that Garden man delighted so, That (rapt) he wist not if he wak't or no ; If he beheld a true thing or a fable ; Or Earth, or Heav'n : all more then admirable. For such excesse his extasie was small :	360
	Not having spirit enough to muse withall, He wisht him hundred-fold redoubled senses, The more to taste so rare sweet excellences, Not knowing, whether nose, or ears, or eyes, Smelt, heard, or saw, more savors, sounds, or dies. But, Adam's best and supreme delectation, Was th' often haunt and holy conversation His soule and body had so many wayes With God ; who lightned Eden with his Rayes. For spirits, by faith religiously refin'd,	370
	'Twixt God and man retein a middle kinde : And (Umpires) mortall to th' immortal joine ; And th' infinite in narrow clay confine.	380
	Sometimes by you, O you all-faining Dreams, We gain this good ; but not when Bacchus streames And glutton vapours over-flow the Brain, And drown our spirits, presenting fancies vain : Nor when pale Phlegm , or saffron-colour'd Choler , In feeble stomachs belch their divers dolor, And print upon our Understanding's Tables ; That, Water-wracks ; this other, flamefull Fables :	390
	Nor when the Spirit of lies, our spirit deceives, And gullefull visions in our fancy leaves : Nor when the pencill of Cares over-deep Our day-bred thoughts depainteth in our sleep.	400
			In this Com- parison my Author setteth downe the famous City of Paris : but I have pre- sumed to apply it to our owne City of London , that it might be more familiar to my meer English and un-travell'd Readers.
			Happiness of the first man before his fall.
			Of the visions of the Spirit.

But when no more the soule's chiefe faculties,
Are 'pers't to serve the body many wayes,
When all self-unéd, free from days disturber,
Through such sweet Transe, she finds a quiet harbor ;
Where some in riddles, some more plain exprest, 410
She sees things future in th' Almighty's brest.

Of the certainty
of the visions of the spirit, the body being at rest.

And yet far higher is this holy Fit
When (not from flesh, but from flesh cares, acquit)
The wakefull soule it selfe assembling so,
All selfly dies ; while that the body though
Lives motion-lesse : for, sanctified wholly,
It takes th' impression of God's Signet solely ;
And in his sacred Crystall Map, doth see
Heav'n's Oracles, and Angel's glorious glee :
Made more then spirit, Now, Morrow, Yesterday, 420
To it, all one, are all as present ay.
And though it seem not (when the dreams expir'd)
Like that it was ; yet is it much admir'd
Of rarest men, and shines among them bright
Like glistring stars, through gloomy shades of night.

Of divine and extraordinary visions and revelations.

But above all, that's the divinest Transe,
When the Soul's eye beholds God's countenance,
When mouth to mouth familiarly he deales,
And in our face his drad-sweet face he seales.
As when S. Paul on his deer Master's wings, 430
Was rapt alive up to th' eternall things :
And he that whilom for the chosen flock,
Made wals of waters, waters of a rock.

Of the excellency of such visions and revelations.

O sacred flight ! sweet rape ! love's sovereign bliss !
Which very love's deer lips dost make us kisse :
Hymen, of Manna and of Mel compact,
Which for a time doth Heav'n, with earth contract :
Fire, that in Limbeck of pure thoughts divine
Dost purge our thoughts, and our dull earth refine ;
And mounting us to Heav'n, un-moving hence, 440
Man (in a trice) in God doost quintessence :
O ! mad'st thou man divine in habitude,
As for a space ; O sweetest solitude,
Thy bliss were equall with that happy Rest
Which after death shall make us ever-blest.

What manner of visions the first man had in Eden.

Now, I beleve that in this later guise
Man did converse in Pleasant Paradise
With Heav'n's great Architect, and (happy) there
His body saw (or body as it were) .
Gloriously compact with the blessed Legions 450
That raig above the azure-spangled Regions.

Man is put in possession of Eden,
under a condition.

ADAM, quoth He, the beauties manifold
That in this Eden thou dost heer behold,
Are all thine ; onely enter ; (sacred Race)
Come, take possession of this wealthy place,
The Earth's sole glory : take (dear Son) to thee
This Farm's demains, leave the Chief right to me ;
And th' onely Rent that of it I reserve, is
One Tree's fair fruit, to shew thy sute and service : 460
Be thou the Liege, and I Lord Paramount,
Ile not exact hard fines (as men shall woont).
For signe of Homage, and for seal of Faith,
Of all the Profits this Possession hath,

I onely ask one Tree ; whose fruit I will
For Sacrament shall stand of Good and Ill.
Take all the rest, I bid thee ; but I vow
By th' un-nam'd Name, where-to all knees do bow,
And by the keen Darts of my kindled ire
(More fiercely burning then consuming fire)
That of the fruit of Knowledge if thou feed, 470
Death, dreadfull death, shal plague Thee and thy seed.
If then, the happy state thou holdst of me,
My holy mildnesse, nor high Majestie,
If faith nor honour curb thy bold ambition,
Yet weigh thy selfe, and thine own Seeds condition.

Most mighty Lord (quoth Adam) heer I tender
All thanks I can, not all I should thee render
For all thy liberall favours far surmounting
My heart's conceit, much more my tongue's recount-
ing.

Before Sin, Man was an humble and zealous servant of God.

At thy command, I would, with boystrous shock, 480
Go run my self against the hardest rock :
Or cast me headlong from some Mountain steep,
Down to the whirling bottom of the Deep :
Yea, at thy beck, I would not spare the life
Of my deer Phanix, sister-daughter-wife :
Obeying thee, I find the things impossible,
Cruell, and painfull ; pleasant, kinde, and possible,

But since thy first Law doth more grace afford
Unto the Subject, then the sovereign Lord :
Since (bounteous Prince) on Me and My Descent, 490
Thou dost impose no other tax, nor rent,
But one sole precept, of most just condition
(No precept neither, but a Prohibition) ;
And since (good God) of all the fruits in EDEN
There's but one Apple that I am forbidden,
Even onely that which bitter Death doth threat,
(Better, perhaps, to look on then to eat)
I honour in my soule, and humbly kisse
Thy just Edict (as Author of my blisse) :
Which, once transgrest, deserves the rigour rather 500
Of sharpest Judge, then mildnesse of a Father.

The Firmament shall retrograde his course,
Swift Euphrates goe hide him in his source,
Firm Mountains skip like Lambs ; beneath the Deep Eagles shall dive ; Whales in the Air shall keep,
Yer I presume, with fingers' ends to touch
(Much lesse with lips) the Fruit forbid so much.

Thus, yet in league, with Heav'n and Earth he lives ; Description of the Enjoying all the Goods th' Almighty gives : beauties of the
And, yet not treading Sin's false mary measures, 510 Garden of Eden.
Sails on smooth surges of a Sea of pleasures.

Heer, underneath a fragrant Hedge reposes,
Full of all kinds of sweet all-coloured Roses,
Which (one would think) the Angels daily dresse
In true love-knots, tri-angles, lozenges.

Anon he walketh in a levell lane,
On eyther side beset with shady Plane, The Orchard.
Whose archéd boughs, for Frise and Cornick bear
Thick Groves, to shield from future change of air :
Then in a path impal'd, in pleasant wise, 520
With sharp-sweet Orange, Limon, Citron trees ;

- Whose leavie twigs, that intricately tangle,
Seem painted wals whereon true fruits do dangle.
Now in a plenteous Orchard planted rare
With un-graft Trees; in checker round and square:
Whose goodly fruits so on his will do wait,
That plucking one, another's ready straight:
And having tasted all (with due satiety)
Finds all one goodness, but in taste variety.
- The Brook. Anon he stalketh with an easy stride, 530
By some cleer River's lilly-pavéd side,
Whose sand's pure gold, whose pebbles precious
Gems,
And liquid, silver all the curling streams:
Whose chiding murmur, mazing in and out,
With Crystall cisterns moats a mead about:
And th' art-less Bridges, over-thwart this Torrent,
Are rocks self-archéd by the eating Current:
Or loving Palms, whose lusty Females willing
Their marrow-boyling loves to be fulfilling,
(And reach their Husband-trees on th' other banks) 540
Bow their stiffe backs, and serve for passing-planks.
- The Alleis, Beds, and Borders. Then in a goodly Garden's alleys smooth,
Where prodig' Nature sets abroad her booth
Of richest beauties, where each bed and border
Is like pide Posies divers dyes and order.
Now, far from noyse, he creepeth covertly
Into a Cave of kindly Porphyry,
Which, rock-fal'n spowts, congeald by colder air,
Seem with smooth anticks to have seeléd fair:
There layd at ease, a cubit from the ground, 550
Upon a Jasper fring'd with yvie round,
Purified with veins, thick thrumm'd with mossie Bever,
He fals asleep fast by a silent River:
Whose captive streams, through crooked pipes still rushing,
Make sweeter musick with their gentle gushing,
Then now at Tivoli: th' Hydrantick Braul
Of rich Ferrara's stately Cardinal:
Or Cteside's rare engins, framéd there
Whereas they made of Ibis, Jupiter.
- The Maze. Musing, anon through crooked Walks he wanders, 560
Round-winding rings, and intricate Meanders,
False guiding paths, doubtfull beguiling strays,
And right-wrong errors of an end-less Maze:
Not simply hedged with a single border
Of Rosemary, cut-out with curious order,
In Satyrs, Centaurs, Whales, and half-men-horses,
And thousand other counterfaieted corses;
But with true Beasts, fast in the ground still stick-
ing,
Feeding on grass, and th' Airy moysture licking:
Such as those Bonarets, in Scythia bred 570
Of slender seeds, and with green fodder fed;
Although their bodies, noses, mouthes, and eyes,
Of new-yeand Lambs have full the form and guise:
And should be very Lambs, save that (for foot)
Within the ground they fix a living root,
Which at their navell grows and dyes that day
That they have brou'd the neighbour-grass away.
- O wondrous vertue of God onely good!
The Beast hath root, the Plant hath flesh and bloud:
The nimble Plant can turn it to and fro; 580
The numméd Beast can neither stir nor go;
The Plant is leaf-less, branch-less, void of fruit;
The Beast is lust-less, sex-less, sire-less, mute:
The Plant with Plants his hungry panch doth feed;
Th' admiréd Beast is sow'n a slender seed.
Then up and down a Forrest thick he paseth;
Which, selfy op'ning in his presence, 'baseth
Her trembling tresses never-vading spring.
For humble homage to her mighty King:
Where thousand Trees, waving with gentle puffs 590
Their plummy tops, sweep the celestiaall roofs:
Yet envying all the massie Cerbas' fame,
Sith fifty pases can but clasp the same.
There springs the Shrub three foot above the grass,
Which fears the keen edge of the Curtelace,
Whereof the rich Egyptian so endears
Root, bark, and fruit, and much-much more the tears.
There lives the Sea-Oak in a little shell;
There grows untill'd the ruddy Cocheneil:
And there the Chermes, which on each side arms, 600
With pointed prickles, all his precious arms;
Rich Trees and fruitfull in those Worms of Price,
Which presséd, yeeld a crimson-caloured juice,
Whence thousand Lambs are died so deep in grain,
That there own Mothers know them not again.
There mounts the Melt, which serves in Mexico
For weapon, wood, needle, and threed (to sowe)
Brick, hony, sugar, sucket, balm, and wine
Parchment, perfume, apparel, cord and line:
His wood for fire, his harder leaves are fit 610
For thousand uses of inventive wit.
Sometimes thereon they grave their holy things,
Laws, lauds of Idols, and the gests of Kings:
Sometimes, conjoynéd by a cunning hand,
Upon their roofs for rowes of tile they stand:
Sometimes they twine them into equall threds;
Small ends make needles; greater, arrow-heads:
His upper sap the sting of Serpents cures:
His new-sprung bud, a rare Conserve indures:
His burnéd stalks, with strong fumosities 620
Of piercing vapours, purge the French disease:
And they extract from liquor of his feet,
Sharp vinegar, pure hony, sugar sweet.
There quakes the Plant, which in Pudestan
Is call'd the Shamefac't: for, asham'd of man,
If towards it one do approach too much,
It shrinks his boughs, to shun our hatefull touch:
As if it had a soule, a sense, a sight,
Subject to shame, feare, sorrow, and despiht.
And there, that Tree from off whose trembling top 630
Both swimming shoals, and flying troops doe drop:
I mean the Tree now in Yuturna growing,
Whose leaves, disperst by Zephyr's wanton-blowing,
Are metamorphos'd both in form and matter;
On Land to Fowls, to Fishes in the Water.
- The trees of the Garden of Eden.
- The Cerbas.
- The balm.
- The Sea-Oake.
The Cochenel.
The Chermes.
- The admirable Melt.
- 610
- 620
- The Shamefaced.
- 630 A Tree whose leaves transforme to fowle and fish.

A modest correction of our Poet unwilling to wade further in curious search of hidden secrets.

Or to wander unprofitably in nice questions, concerning the Garden of Eden, and man's abode there.

But, seest thou not (dear Muse) thou tread'st the same
Too-curious path thou dost in others blame?
And striv'st in vain to paint This Work of choice,
To which no humane spirit, nor hand, nor voice,
Can once conceive, less pourtray, least express, 640
All overwhelm'd in gulfs so bottomlesse.
Who (matching Art with Nature) likeneth
Our grounds to EDEN, fondly measureth
By painted Butter-flies th' imperially Eagle;
And th' Elephant by every little Beagle.

This fear to faile, shall serve me for a bridle,
Lest (lacking wings and guide) too busie-idle,
And over-bold, God's Cabinet I clime,
To seek the place, and search the very time
When both our Parents, or but one was ta'en 650
Out of our Earth, into that fruitfull Plain:
How long they had that Garden in possession,
Before their proud and insolent Transgression:
What children there they earned, and how many,
Of whether sex: or, whether none or any:
Or how (at least) they should have propagated,
If the sly malice of the Serpent hated,
Causing their fall, had not defil'd their kin,
And unborn seed, with leprosie of sin.

If voyd of Venus: sith unlike it is, 660
Such blessed state the noble flower should miss
Of Virgin-head; or, folk so perfect chaste
Should furious feel, when they their loves imbrac't,
Such tickling flames as our fond soule surprise
(That dead a-while in Epilepsie lyes)
And slack our sinnews all, by little and little Drowning our reason in foul pleasure brittle.

Or, whether else as men ingender now,
Sith Spouse-bed spot-less laws of God allow,
If no excess command: sith else again 670
The Lord had made the double sex in vain.

Whether their Infant, should have had the power
We now perceive in fresh youth's lusty flower,
As nimble feet, limbs strong and vigorous,
Industrious hands, and hearte couragious;
Sith before Sin, Man ought not less appear
In nature's gifts, than his then servants were:
And lo the Partridge, which new-hatchéd bears
On her weak back her parent-house, and wears
(In steed of wings) a bever-supple Down, 680
Follows her Dam through furrows up and down.
Or else as now; sith in the womb of Ewe
A man of thirty years could never live:
Nor may we iudge 'gainst Nature's course apparent,
Without the sacred Scripture's speciall warrant:
Which for our good (as Heav'n's dear babe) hath right
To countermand our reason and our sight.

Whether their seed should with their birth have brought
Deep knowledge, reason, understanding-thought;
Sith now we see the new-fall'n feeble Lamb 690
Yet stain'd with blood of his distresséd Dam,
Knows well the Wolf, at whose fell sight, he shakes
And right the teat of th' unknown Ewe he takes.

And sith a dull Dunce, which no knowledge can,
Is a dead Image, and no living man.

Or the thick veil of ignorance's night
Had hooded-up their issues' inward sight;
Sith the much moysture of an infant brain
Receives so many shapes, that over-lain
New dash the old; and the trim commixation 700
Of confus'd fancies, full of alteration,
Makes th' understanding dull, which settle would;
And finds no firm ground for his Anchor's hold.

Whether old ADAM should have left the place
Unto his Sons; they, to their after-race:
Or whether all together at the last
Should gloriously from thence to Heav'n have past;

Search whoso list: who list let vaunt in pride
T' have hit the White, and let him (sage) decide
The many other doubts that vainly rise, 710
For mine own part I will not seem so wise:
I will not waste my travell and my seed
To reap an empty straw, or fruit-less reed.

Alas! we know what Orion of grief
Rain'd on the curst head of the Creatures' Chief,
After that God against him war proclaim'd,
And Satan Princedome of the earth had claim'd:
But none can know precisely, how at all
Our Elders liv'd before their odious Fall:
An unknown Cifer, and deep Pit it is, 720
Where Dircean Oedipus his marks would misse:
Sith Adam's self, if now he liv'd anew,
Could scant unwind the knotty snarléd clew
Of double doubts and questions intricate
That Schools dispute about this pristin state.

But this sole point I rest resolvéd in,
That, seeing Death 's the meer effect of sin,
Man had not dreaded Death's all-slaying might,
Had he still stood in Innocence upright.

For, as two Bellows, blowing turn by turn, 730
By little and little make cold coals to burn,
And then their fire inflames with glowing heat
An iron bar; which, on the Anvill beat,
Seems no more Iron, but flies almost all
In hissing sparks, and quick bright cinders small:
So, the World's Soule should in our soule inspire
Th' eternal force of an eternal fire,
And then our Soule (as form) breath in our corse
Her countless numbers, and Heav'n-tunéd force,
Wherewith our bodies' beauty beautifi'd, 740
Should (like our death-less Soule) have never dy'd.

Here (wot I well) some wranglers will presume
To say, Small Fire will by degrees consume
Our humour radical: and, how-be-it
The differing vertues of those fruits as yet
Had no agreement with the harmful spight
Of the fell Persian dangerous Aconite;
And notwithstanding that then ADAM's taste
Could well have uséd all, without all waste,
Yet could they not restore him every day 750
Unto his body that which did decay;

The decision of such questions is a busie idleness.

Sin makes us perceive more then sufficiently what happiness our Grand-sire lost, and what misery he got, by his shamefull fall.

But for sin, man had not beene subject to death.

730 Simile.

Objections against the estate of man, who had not been subject to death but for sin

Simile.

Because the food cannot (as being strange)
So perfectly in humane substance change:
For it resembleth Wine, wherein too rife
Water is brew'd, whereby the pleasant life
Is over-cool'd; and so there rests, in fine,
Nought of the strength, savour, or taste of Wine.
Besides, in time the naturall faculties
Are tyr'd with toyl; and th' Humour-enemies,
Our death conspiring, undermine at last,
Of our Soules' prisons the foundations fast.

760

Answer to those objections.

I, but the Tree of life the strife did stay
Which th' humours caused in this house of clay;
And stopping th' evill, changed (perfect good)
In body fed, the body of the food:

Onely the Soule's contagious malady
Had force to frustrate this high remedy.

Immortall then, and mortall, Man was made;
Mortall he liv'd, and did immortall vade:
For, 'fore th' effects of his rebellious ill,
To dy or live was in his power and will:
But since his Sin, and proud Apostasie,
Ah! dye he may, but not (alas!) not-dye;
As after his new birth, he shall attain
Onely a powr to never-dye again.

The Imposture.
THE SECOND PART
 OF THE
FIRST DAY OF
THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Justice and Mercy modul'd in their kinds :
 Satan's proud Hate, and Envie to Mankinds :
 His many engines, and malicious Wiles,
 Whereby the best he many times beguiles :
 Why he assum'd a Body, and began
 With Eve ; by Her to undermine her Man :
 Their dreadfull Fall : Their drowsie Conscience :
 God's righteous Sentence, for their foul Offence,
 On them (and theirs) : Their Exile : Eden barr'd
 With flaming Sword, and Seraphin for guard. 10

Who shall lend me light and nimble wings,
 That (passing Swallows, and the swiftest things)
 Even in a moment, boldly-daring, I
 From Heav'n to Hell, from Hell to Heav'n may fly?
 O! who shall shew the countenance and gestures
 Of Mercy and Justice? which, fair sacred sisters,
 With equall poiz, doe ever balance ev'n
 Th' unchanging Projects of the King of Heav'n.
 Th' one stern of look, the other milde-aspecting : 20
 Th' one pleas'd with tears, the other bloud affecting :
 Th' one bears the sword of vengeance un-renting,
 Th' other brings Pardon for the true-repenting.
 Th' one, from Earth's-Eden, Adam did dismiss :
 Th' other hath rais'd him to a higher Bliss.
 Who shall direct my Pen to paint the Story
 Of wretched man's forbidden-Bit-lost glory?
 What spell shall charm th' attentive Reader's sense?
 What Fount shall fill my voice with eloquence?
 So that I, rapt, may ravish all this ILE 30
With grave-sweet warbles of my sacred stile ;
 Though Adam's Doom, in every Sermon common,
 And founded on the error of a woman,

Weary the Vulgar, and be judg'd a jest
 Of the profane zeal-scoffing Atheist.

Ah! Thou my God, even Thou (my soule refining
 In holy Faith's pure Furnace, cleerly shining)
 Shalt make my hap far to surmount my hope,
 Instruct my spirit, and give my tongue smooth scope :
 Thou (bounteous) in my bold attempts shalt grace-
 me, 40

And in the rank of holiest Poets place-me ;
 And frankly grant, that (soaring neer the sky)
 Among our Authors, Eagle-like I fly :
 Or, at the least (if heav'n such hap deny)
 I may point others, Honour's beauteous way.

WHILE Adam bathes in these felicities,
 Hell's Prince (sly parent of revolt and lies)
 Feels a pestiferous busie-swarming nest
 Of never-dying Dragons in his brest,
 Sucking his bloud, tying upon his lungs, 50
 Pinching his entrails with ten thousand tongues,
 His cursed Soule still most extreemly racking,
 Too frank in giving torments, and in taking :
 But above all, Hate, Pride, and Envious spight,
 His hellish life do torture day and night,
 For th' Hate he bears to God, who hath him driv'n
 Justly for ever from the glittering Heav'n,
 To dwell in darknesse of a sulph'ry clowd
 (Though still his brethren's service be allow'd) :
 The Proud desire to have in his subjection 60
 Mankind inchain'd in gyves of Sin's infection ;
 And th' Envious heart-break to see (yet) to shine
 In Adam's face God's image all divine,
 Which he had lost ; and that Man might achieve
 The glorious blisse, his Pride did him deprive ;
 Grown barbarous Tyrant of his treacherous will,
 Spurs-on his course, his rage redoubling still.

He hath recourse to God, the onely giver of all sufficiency and dexterity in good and holy things.

The enemy of God
 envieth man, and plotteth his destruction.

	Or rather (as the prudent Hebrew notes) 'Tis that old Python which through hundred throats Doth proudly hisse, and (past his wont) doth fire 70 A hell of Furies in his fell desire : His envious heart, self-swoln with sullen spight, Brooks neither greater, like, nor lesser wight : Dreads th' one as Lord ; as equall, hates another ; And (jealous) doubts the rising of the other.
His subtilty in executing his designes.	To vent his poyson, this notorious Tempter (Meer spirit) assails not Eve , but doth attempt her In fain'd form : for else, the soule divine, Which rul'd (as Queen) that Little-World's designe, So purely kept her Vow of Chastity, 80 That he in vain should tempt her Constancy. Therefore he fleshly doth the flesh assay (Suborning that) her Mistresse to betray ; A subtle Pandar with more ticing sleights Then Sea hath Fish or Heav'n hath twinkling lights.
Why he hid him in a body.	For had he been of an ethereall matter, Of fiery substance, or aëreall nature ; The needfull help of language had he wanted, Whereby Faith's ground-work was to be supplanted : Sith such pure bodies have nor teeth, nor tongues, 90 Lips, art'ries, nose, palate, nor panting lungs, Which rightly plac't are properly created True instruments of sounds articulated.
Why he appeared not in his owne likenesse : nor transformed him into an Angel of light.	And furthermore, though from his birth h' had had Heart-charming cunning smoothly to perswade, He fear'd (malitious) if he, care-lesse, came Un-mask'd (like himselfe, in his own name) In deep distrust man entring suddenly, Would stop his ears, and his foule presence fly : As (opposite) taking the shining face 100 Of sacred Angels full of glorious grace, He then suspected, lest th' Omnipotent Should think man's fall scarce worthy punishment.
Simile.	Much like (therefore) some thief that doth con- ceive From travellers both life and goods to reave, And in the twi-light (while the Moon doth play In Thetis' Palace) neer the King's high-way Himself doth ambush in-a bushy Thorn ; Then in a Cave, then in a field of Corn, Creeps to and fro, and fisketh in and out, 110 And yet the safety of each place doth doubt ; Till, resolute at last (upon his knee Taking his levell) from a hollow Tree, He swiftly send his fire-wing'd messenger, At his false suit t' arrest the passenger : Our freedom's felon, fountain of our sorrow, Thinks now the beauty of an Horse to borrow ; Anon to creep into a Heifer's side ; Then in a Cock, or in a Dog to hide ; Then in a nimble Hart himselfe to shroud ; 120 Then in the starr'd plumes of a Peacock proud ; And lest he misse a mischief to effect, Oft changeth minde, and varies oft aspect. At last, remembering that of all the broods In Mountains, Plains, Airs, waters, wilds and woods,
He hides him under divers figures.
Why hee chose the Serpent.
	The knotty Serpent's spotty generation Are filled with infectious inflammation : And tho' they want Dogs' teeth, Boars' tuaks, Bears' paws, The Vulture's bill, Bulls' horns, and Gryphins' claws ; Yea, seem so weak, as if they had not might 130 To hurt us once, much less to kill us quite : Yet, many times they trecherously betray us, And with their breath, look, tongue, or train they slay us ; He crafty cloaks him in a Dragon skin All bright-bespect ; that, speaking so within That hollow Sagbut's supple-wreathing plies, The Mover might with Organ sympathize. For, yet the faith-lesse Serpent (as they say) With horror crawl'd not groveling on the clay, Nor to Man-kinde (as yet) was held for hatefull, 140 Sith that 's the hire of his offence ingratefull.
	But now to censure how this change befell Our wits come short, our words suffice not well To utter it : much lesse our feeble Art Can imitate this sly malitious part. Sometimes me seems (troubling Eve's spirit) the Fiend Made her this speaking fancy apprehend. For, as in liquid clouds (exhaled thickly) Water and Aire (as moyst) doe mingle quickly ; The evill Angels slide too easily, 150 As subtle Spirits int' our fantasie.
	Sometimes me seems She saw (wo-worth the hap) No very Serpent, but a Serpent's shape : Whether that Satan playd the Juggler there, Why tender eyes with charmed Tapers beare, Transforming so, by subtle vapoury gleams, Men's heads to Monsters, into Eels the beams : Or whether, Divels having bodies light, Quick, nimble, active, apt to change with sleight, In shapes or shews, the guilefull have propos'd ; 160 In brief, like th' Aire, whereof they are compos'd. For as th' Aire, with scatt'ed clouds bespred, Is here and there black, yellow, white, and red, Resembling Armies, Monsters, Mountains, Dragons, Rocks, fiery Castles, Forrests, Ships and Wagons, And such to us through glasse transparent clear From form to form varying it doth appear : So, these Seducers can grow great or small, Or round, or square, or straight, or short, or tall, As fits the passions they are mov'd by, 170 And such our soule receives them from our eye.
	Sometimes, that Satan (onely for this work) Fain'd him a Serpent's shape, wherein to lurk. For, Nature framing our soule's enemies, Of bodies light, and in experience wise, In malice crafty ; curious they assemble Small Elements, which (as of kin) resemble, Whereof a Masse is made, and thereunto They soon give growth and lively motion too. Not, that they be Creators : for, th' Almighty, 180 Who first of nothing made vaste Amphitrite ,
		Sundry opinions hereupon.

The World's dull Centre, Heav'n's ay-turning Frame,
 And whirling Aire, sole merits that high Name :
 Who (onely Being) Being gives to all,
 And of all things the seeds substantiall
 Within their first born-bodies hath inclos'd,
 To be in time by Nature's hand dispos'd :
 Not those, who (taught by curious Art or Nature)
 Have giv'n to things Heav'n-pointed form and stature,
 Hastned their growth, or wak'ned learnedly 190
 The forms that formlesse in the Lump did ly.
 4 But (to conclude) I think 'twas no conceipt,
 No feined Idoll, nor no juggling sleight,
 Nor body borrowed for this use's sake,
 But the self Serpent which the Lord did make
 In the beginning : for, his hatefull breed
 Bears yet the pain of this pernicious deed.
 5 Yet 'tis a doubt whether the Divell did
 Governe the Dragon (not there selfy hid)
 To raise his courage, and his tongue direct, 200
 Locally absent, present by effect :
 As when the sweet strings of a Lute we strike,
 Another Lute laid neer it, sounds the like ;
 Nay, the same note, through secret sympathy
 (Untoucht) receiving Life and Harmony :
 Or, as a Star, which (though far distant) pours,
 6 Upon our heads, hap-lesse or happy showrs.
 Or, whether for a time he did abide
 Within the doubling Serpent's damask hide,
 Holding a place-less place : as our soule dear, 210
 Through the dim Lanthorn of our flesh, shines
 clear ;
 And bound-lesse bounds it self in so straight space,
 As form in body, not as body in place.
 But this stands sure, how-ever else it went,
 Th' old Serpent serv'd as Satan's instrument
 To charme in Eden, with a strong illusion,
 Our silly Grandam to her self's confusion.
 For, as an old, rude, rotten, tune-lesse Kit,
If famous Dowland daigns to finger it,
 Makes sweeter Musick then the choicest Lute 220
 In the grosse handling of a clownish Brute :
 So, whiles a learned Fiend with skilfull hand
 Doth the dull motions of his mouth command,
 This self-dumb Creature's glozing Rhetorike
 With bashfull shame great Orators would strike :
 So, Fiery Trunks within Epyrus' Grove,
 Mov'd by the spirit that was inspir'd by Jove,
 With fluent voyce (to every one that seeks)
 Fore-tell the Fates of light beleeving Greeks :
 So, all incenst, the pale Engastromith 230
 (Rul'd by the furious spirit he's haunted with)
 Speaks in his womb ; So, well a workman's skill
 Supplies the want of any organ ill :
 So doth the Phantike (lifting up his thought
 On Satan's wing) tell with a tongue distraught
 Strange Oracles ; and his sick spirit doth plead
 Even of those Arts that he did never read.
 O ruth-less murd'rer of immortal Soules !
 Alas ! to pull us from the happy Poles,

Conclusion of the former opinions. A comparison.

And plunge us headlong in the yawning hell, 240
 Thy ceas-lesse frauds and fetches who can tell ?
 Thou play'st the Lion, when thou dost engage Bloud-thirsty Nero's barbarous heart with rage,
 While flesht in murders (butcher-like) he paints
 The Saint-poor world wth the dear bloud of Saints.
 Thou play'st the Dog, when by the mouth profane
 Of some false Prophet thou dost belch thy bane,
 While from the Pulpit barkingly he rings
 Bold blasphemies against the King of kings.
 Thou play'st the Swine, when plung'd in pleasures vile, 250
 Some Epicure doth sober mindes defile ;
 Transforming lowly, by his loose impiety,
 Strict Lacedaemon to a soft society.
 Thou play'st the Nightingale, or else the Swae,
 When any famous Rhetorician,
 With captious wit and curious language, draws
 Seducéd hearers ; and subverts the laws.
 Thou play'st the Fox, when thou dost fain a-right
 The face & phrase of some deep Hypocrite,
 True painted Toomb, dead-seeming coals, but quick ; 260
 A Scorpion fell, whose hidden tail doth prick.
 Yet this were little, if thy spite audacious
 Spar'd (at the least) the face of Angels gracious,
 And if thou didst not (Ape-like) imitate
 Th' Almighty's Works, the wariest Wits to mate.
 But (without numbring all thy subtle baits,
 And nimble juggling with a thousand sleights)
 Timely returning where I first digrest,
 I'll only here thy first DECRET digest.
 The Dragon then, Man's Fortress to surprise, 270
 Follows some Captain's martiall policies,
 Who, yer too neer an adverse place he pitch,
 The situation marks, and sounds the ditch,
 With his eyes levell the steep wall he metes,
 Surveyes the flanks, his Camp in order sets ;
 And then approaching, batters sore the side
 Which Art and Nature have least fortifi'd :
 So this old Souldier, having markéd rife
 The first-born payr's yet danger-dread-lesse life ;
 Mounting his Canons, subtly he assaults 280
 The part he findes in evident defaults :
 Namely, poor Woman, wavering, weak, unwise,
 Light, credulous, news-lover, giv'n to lies.
Eve, Second honour of this Universe !
 Is 't true (I pray) that jealous God, perverse,
 Forbids (quoth he) both you and all your race
 All the fair Fruits these silver Brooks embrace ;
 So oft bequeath'd you, and by you possess,
 And day and night by your own labour drest ?
 With th' air of these sweet words, the wily Snake 290
 A poysoned air inspiréd (as it spake)
 In Eve's frail brest ; who thus replies : O ! know,
 What e'er thou be (but, thy kinde care doth show
 A gentle friend) that all the fruits and flowrs
 In this earth-heav'n are in our hands and powrs,
 Except alone that goodly fruit divine,
 Which in the midst of this green ground doth shine ;

The sundry subtle and horrible endeavours of the Divell, putting on divers forms to overthrow man-kinde.

The Poet resumeth his Discourse touching the temptation of Eve.

270 Comparison.

280

Sathan's Oration.

290

Eve's answer.

	But, all-good God (alas! I wot not why) Forbad us touch that Tree, on pain to dye. She ceas't; already brooding in her heart A curious wish, that will her weal subvert.	300	And by his headlong fall, so brings his friend To an untimely, sad, and sudden end; Our Mother, falling, hales her Spouse anon Down to the gulf of pitchy Acheron .	360
A fit comparison.	As a false Lover, that thick snares hath laid T' intrap the honour of a fair young Maid, When she (though little) listning ear affords To his sweet, courting, deep-affected words, Feels some asswaging of his freezing flame, And sooths himselfe with hope to gain his game; And, rapt with joy, upon this point persists, That parley'ng Cite never long resists: Ev'n so the Serpent, that doth counterfeit All guilefull Call t' allure us to his net; Perceiving Eve his flattering gloze digest, He prosecutes, and, jocund, doth not rest, Till he have try'd foot, hand, and head, and all, Upon the breach of his new-battered wall.	310	For, to the wisht Fruit's beautifull aspect, Sweet Nectar -taste, and wonderfull effect, Cunningly adding her quaint smiling glances, Her witty speech, and pretty countenances, She so prevails, that her blind Lord, at last, A morsell of the sharp-sweet fruit doth taste. Now suddenly wide-open feel they might (Siel'd for their good) both soules' and bodies' sight; But the sad Soule hath lost the Character, And sacred Image that did honour her: The wretched Body, full of shame and sorrow To see it naked, is inforc't to borrow The Tree's broad leaves whereof they aprons frame, From Heav'n's fair eye to hide their filthy shame.	370	The effects of their dis- obedience.
The Devil's reply.	No, fair (quoth he) beleeve not, that the care God hath, Mankinde from spoyling death to spare, Makes him forbid you (on so strict condition) This purest, fairest, rarest Fruit's fruition: A double fear, an envie, and a hate, His jealous heart for ever cruciate; Sith the suspected vertue of This Tree Shall soon disperse the cloud of Idiocy, Which dims your eyes; and further, make you seem (Excelling us) even equal Gods to him. O World's rare glory! reach thy happy hand, Reach, reach, I say: why dost thou stop or stand? Begin thy Blisse, and do not fear the threat Of an uncertain God-head, onely great Through self-aw'd seal: Put on the glistring Pall Of immortality: doe not fore-stall (As envious Stepdame) thy posterity The soverain honour of Divinity .	320	Alas fond death-lings! O! behold how cleer The Knowledge is that you have bought so deer: In heav'nly things ye are more blinde then Moals, In earthly, Owls. O! thinke ye (silly soules) The sight that swiftly through th' Earth's solid centers (As globes of pure transparent crystall) enters, Cannot transpierce your leaves? or do ye ween, Covering your shame so to conceal your sin? Or that, a part thus clouded, all doth lie Safe from the search of Heav'n's all-seeing eye? Thus yet, man's troubled dull Intelligence Had of his fault but a confused sense: As in a dream, after much drink it chances, Disturbed Spirits are vext with raving fancies.	380
His audacious impudency.	This parley ended, our ambitious Grandam, Who onely yet did heart and eye abandon, Against the Lord, now farther doth proceed, And hand and mouth makes guilty of the deed. A novice Thief (that in a Closet spies A heap of Gold, that on the Table lies) Pale, fearfull shivering, twice or thrice extends, And twice or thrice retires his fingers' ends, And yet again returns; the booty takes, And faintly-bold, up in his cloak it makes, Scarce findes the door, with faultring foot he files, And still looks back for fear of Hu-on-cries : Even so doth Eve shew by like fearfull fashions The doubtfull combat of contending Passions; She would, she should not; glad, sad; coms and goes:	330	Therefore, the Lord, within the Garden fair, Moving betimes I wot not I what ayre, But supernaturall; whose breath divine Brings of his presence a most certain signe: Awakes their Lethargie and to the quick, Their self-doom'd soules doth sharply press and prick: Now more and more making their pride to fear The Frowning visage of their Judge severe: To seek new-refuge in more secret harbors Among the dark shade of those tufting arbors. Adam , quoth God, (with thundering Majesty) Where art thou (wretch!) what dost thou? answer me Thy God and Father; from whose hand the health Thou hold'st, thine honour, and all sorts of wealth.	390	The extraordinary presence of God, awakes their drowsie soules swallowed up of Sin; and begins to arraign them.
The Apostasie of Eve.	And long she marts about a Match of Woes; But (out alas!) at last she toucheth it, And (having toucht) tastes the Forbidden bit , Then as a man that from a lofty Clift, Or steepy Mountain doth descend too swift, Stumbling at somewhat, quickly clips some lim Of some dear kinsman walking next to him,	350	At this sad summons, wofull man resembles A bearded rush that in a river trembles: His rosie cheeks, are chang'd to earthen hew; His dying body, drops in ycie dew; His tear-drown'd eyes, a night of Clouds bedims; About his ears a buzzing horror swims; His fainted knees, with feebleness are humble; His faultring feet doe slide away and stumble; He hath not (now) his free, bold, stately port; But down-cast looks, in fearfull slavish sort; Now, nought of Adam , doth in Adam rest; He feels his senses pain'd, his soule oppress;	410	Description of the horrible effects of a guilty Conscience, sum- moned to the presence of God.
Another com- parison lively ex- pressing the Fall of Man, by the provocation of his wife.

A confus'd boast of violent passions jar ;
 His flesh and spirit are in continuall war :
 And now no more (through conscience of this error)
 He hears or sees th' Almighty, but with terror :
 And loth he answers (as with tongue distraught)
 Confessing (thus) his fear, but not his fault :
 Adam's answer. O Lord ! thy voyce, thy dreadfull voyce hath made 420
 Me (fearfull) hide me in this covert shade.
 For, naked as I am (O most of might !)
 I dare not come before thine awfull sight.
 God urgeth the cause of his dejection and fear.
 Naked (quoth God) ? why (faith-lesse renegade, Apostate Pagan !) who hath told thee that ?
 Whence springs thy shame ? what makes thee thus to run
 From shade to shade, my presence still to shun ?
 Hast thou not tasted of the learn'd Tree,
 Whereof (on pain of death) I warn'd thee ?
 O righteous God (quoth ¹ Adam) I am free 430
 From this offence : the wife thou gavest me,
 For my companion and my comforter,
 She made me eat the deadly meat with her.
 Examination of Eve, who excuseth her self likewise on another.
 And thou (quoth God) O ! thou frail treacherous Bride,
 Why, with thy self, hast thou seduc'd thy Guide ?
 Lord (answers Eve) the Serpent did intice
 My simple frailty to this sinful vice.
 An example for Judges and Magistrates.
 Mark here, how He, who fears not who reform
 His high Decrees, not subject unto form,
 Or stile of Court : who, all-wise, hath no need 440
 T' examine proof or witness of the deed :
 Who, for sustayning of unequal Scale,
 Dreads not the Doom of a Mercuriall ;
 Yer Sentence pass doth publicly convent,
 Confront, and hear with ear indifferent
 Th' Offenders sad : then with just indignation, Pronounceth thus their dreadfull Condemnation.
 The Sentence of the supreme Judge against the guilty Prisoners : and first of all against the Serpent.
 Ah, curs'd Serpent, which my fingers made
 To serve Mankind : th' hast made thy selfe a blade
 Wherewith vain Man and his inveigl'd Wife 450
 (Self-parricides) have reft their proper life.
 For this thy fault (true Fountain of all ill)
 Thou shalt be hatefull 'mong all Creatures still.
 Groveling in dust, on dust thou ay shalt feed :
 I'le kindle war between the Woman's seed,
 And thy fell race ; hers on the head shall ding
 Thine : thine again hers in the heel shall sting.
 Against the Woman.
 Rebell to Mee, unto thy Kindred curst,
 False to thy Husband, to thy Selfe the worst :
 Hope not, thy fruit so eas'ly to bring-forth 460
 As now thou slay'st it : henceforth every Birth
 Shall torture thee with thousand sorts of pain ;
 Each art'rie, sinew, muscle, joynt and vein,
 Shall feel his part : besides foul vomitings,
 Prodigious longings, thoughtfull languishings,
 With change of colours, swouns, and many others,
 Eternall fellows of all future Mothers :
 Under his yolk, thy Husband thee shall have,
 Tyrant, by thee made the Arch-tyrant's slave.
 Against Man.
 And thou disloyall, which hast bearkn'd more 470
 T' a wanton fondling, then my sacred lore,

Henceforth the sweat shall bubble on thy brow ;
 Thy hands shall blister, and thy back shall bow :
 Ne'er shalt thou send into thy branchie veins
 A bit, but bought with price of thousand pains.
 For, the earth feeling (even in her) th' effect
 Of the doom thundr'd 'gainst thy foul defect ;
 In stead of sweet fruits which she selfy yeelds
 Seed-less, and Art-less, over all thy fields,
 With thorns and burs shall bristle up her breast. 480
 (In short) thou shalt not taste the sweets of rest,
 Till ruth-less Death, by his extreamest pain,
 Thy dust-born body turn to dust again.
 Here I conceive, that flesh and blood will brangle,
 And murmuring Reason with th' Almighty wrangle,
 Who did our Parents with Free-will indue,
 Though he fore-saw, that that would bee the clew
 Should lead their steps into the wofull way
 Where life is death ten thousand times a-day :
 Now all that hee fore-sees, befalls : and further, 490
 He all events by his free-powr doth order.
 Man taxeth God of too-unjust severity,
 For plaguing Adam's sin in his posterity :
 So that th' old yeers' renew'd generations
 Cannot asswage his venging indignations,
 Which have no other ground to prosecute,
 But the mis-eating of a certain fruit.
 O dusty worming ! dar'st thou strive and stand
 With Heav'n's high Monarch ? wilt thou (wretch) demand 500
 Count of his deeds ? Ah ! shall the potter make His clay, such fashion as him list to take ?
 And shall not God (World's Founder, Nature's Father)
 Dispose of man (his own meer creature) rather ?
 The supreme King, who (Judge of greatest Kings)
 By Number, Weight and Measure, acts all things,
 Vice-loathing Lord, pure Justice, Patron strong,
 Law's life, Right's rule ; will he do any wrong ?
 Man, holdest thou of God thy frank Free-will,
 But free t' obey his sacred goodness still ?
 510
 Freely to follow him, and do his hest,
 Not Philtrs-charm'd, nor by Basiris prest ?
 God arms thee wth discourse : but thou (O wretch !)
 By the keen edge the wound-soule sword dost catch ;
 Killing thy selfe, and in thy loyns thy line.
 O banefull Spider (weaving wofull twine)
 All Heav'n's pure flours thou turnest into poyson :
 Thy sense reaves sense : thy reason robs thy reason.
 For, thou complainest of God's grace, whose Still Extracts from dross of thine audacious ill,
 Three unexpected goods ; praise for his Name ; 520
 Bliss for thy self ; for Satan endless shame :
 Sith, but for sin, Justice and Mercy were
 But idle names : and but that thou didst erre,
 CHRIST had not come to conquer and to quell,
 Upon the Cross, Sin, Satan, Death, and Hell ;
 Making thee bless'd more since thine offence,
 Then in thy primer happy innocoece.
 Then, might'st thou die ; now death thou dost not doubt :
 Now, in the Heav'n ; then, didst thou ride without :

Objections to excuse the Sin of Man.

Answers to the first objection.

In Earth thou liv'dst then; now in Heav'n thou beest : 530

Then, thou didst hear God's word, it now thou seest :
Then pleasant fruits ; now, Christ is thy repast :
Then might'st thou fall ; but now thou standest fast.

Now Adam's fault was not in deed so light,
As seems to Reason's sin-bleard Owlie sight :
But 't was a chain where all the greatest sins
Were one in other link'd fast, as Twins :
Ingratitude, Pride, Treason, Gluttony,
Too-curious-Skill-thirst, Envie, Felony,
Too-light, too-late Belief, were the sweet baits 540
That made him wander from Heav'n's holy straights.

What wouldst thou (Father) say unto a Son
Of perfect age, to whom for portion (Witting and willing, while thy self yet livest)
All thy possessions in the Earth thou givest :
And yet th' ungratefull, grace-less, insolent,
In thine own Land, rebellion doth invent ?
Map now an Adam in thy memory ;
By God's own hand made with great majesty,
Not poor, nor pinéd ; but at whose command 550
The rich abundance of the World doth stand ;
Not slave to sense but having freely might
To bridle it, and range it still a-right :
No idiot fool, nor drunk with vaine opinion ;
But God's Disciple and his dearest Minlon :
Who rashly grows for little, nay for nought,
His deadly foe that all his good had wrought :
So mayst thou gness, what whip, what rope, what rack,
What fire, were fit to punish Adam's lack.

Answers to the second objection.

Then, sith Man's sin by little and little runs 560
End-lesse, through every Age from Sires to Sons ;
And still the farther this foule sin-spring flowes,
It still more muddy and more filthy growes,
Thou ought'st not marvel, if (even yet) his seed
Feel the just wages of this wicked deed.
For, though the keen sting of concupiscence
Cannot, yer birth, his fell effect commence ;
The unborn Babe, hid in the Mother's womb,
Is sorrow's servant, and Sin's servile groom,
As a frall Mote from the first Mass extract, 570
Which Adam bæ'n'd by his rebellious fact.
Sound off-spring comes not of a Kinde infected :
Parts are not fair, if totall be defected :
And a defilé'd stinking sink doth yeeld
More durt then water to the neighbour field.

Simile.

While night's black muffler hoodeth up the skies,
The silly blind-man misseth not his eyes ;
But when the day summons to work again,
His night, eternall then he doth complain,
That he goes groping, and his hand (alas !)
Is fain to guide his foot, and guard his face : 580
So man, that liveth in the womb's obscurity,
Knowes not, nor maketh know'n his lust's impurity ;
Which, for 'tis sown in a too-plenteous ground,
Takes root already in the Caves profound
Of his infected Heart : with 's birth, it 'pears,
And grows in strength, as he doth grow in years ;

And want a Tree (though proin'd with thousand cares)
An execrable deadly fruit it bears.

Thou seest, no Wheat Helleborus can bring : 590
Nor Barley, from the madding Morrell spring :
The bleating Lambs brave Lions do not breed :
The leprous Parents raise a leprous seed :
Even so our Grand-sire, living Innocent,
Had stockt the whole World with a Saint-descent :
But suffering sin in EDEN him invade,
His Sons, the Sons of Sin and Wrath he made.
For, God did seem t' indow, with glory and grace,
Not the first Man so much, as all man's race ;
And after reave again those gifts divine, 600
Not him so much, as in him all his line.

For, if an odious Traitor that conspires,
Against a Prince, or to his State aspires,
Feel not alone the law's extremity ;
But his Sons' Sons (although somtimes they be Honest and vertuous) for their Father's blame,
Are hap-less scarr'd with an eternall shame :
May not th' Eternall with a righteous terror,
In Adam's issue punish Adam's error ?
May he not thrall them under Death's command, 610
And sear their brows with everlasting brand
Of infamy, who in his stock (accurst)
Have graft worse slips then Adam set at first ?

Man's seed then justly, by succession,
Bears the hard penance of his high transgression :
And Adam here, from Eden banishéd,
As first offender is first punishéd.
Hence (quoth the Lord) hence, hence (accurséd race)

Conclusion of the former disputations, and execution of God's Decree against Adam and Eve :
They are driven out of Eden.

Out of my Garden : quick, avoid the Place,
This beauteous Place, pride of this Universe, 620
A house unworthy Masters so perverse.

*Those that (in quarrell of the Strong of strongs,
And just revenge of Queen, and Countrie's wrongs)
Were witnesses to all the wofull plaints,
The sighes, and tears, and pitifull complaints,
Of braving Spaniards (chiefly brave in world)
When by the valiant Heav'n-assisted sword
Of Mars-like ESSEX, England's Marshall-Earle
(Then Albion's Patron, and Eliza's Pearle)
They were expulst from Cad'z, their dearest pleasure, 630
Losing their Town, their Honour, and their Treasure :
Wo worth (said they) wo worth our King's ambition ;
Wo worth our Clergie, and their Inquisition :
He seeks new Kingdoms, and doth lose his old ;
They burne for Conscience, but their thirst is Gold :
Wo, and alas, wo to the vain bravados
Of Typhon-like invincible ARMADOS ;
Which, like the vaunting Monster-man of Gath,
Have stirr'd against us little David's wrath :
Wo worth our sins : wo worth our selves, and all 640
Accurséd causes of our sudden fall.*

Those well may gness the bitter agonies,
And luke-warm Rivers gushing down the eyes
Of our first Parents, out of Eden driv'n
(Of Repeal hope-less) by the hand of Heav'n ;

The earthly Eden shut-up for ever from Man-
kinde.

For, the Almighty set before the doore
Of th' holy Park, a Seraphin that bore
A waving sword, whose body shined bright,
Like flaming Comet in the midst of night ;
A body meerly Metaphysicall,
Which (differing little from th' ONE unicall,

650

Th' Act-simple-pure, the onely-being BEEING)
Approacheth matter ; ne'ertheless, not being
Of matter mixt : or rather is so made
So meerly spirit, that not the murdering blade,
His joynd quantity can part in two :
For (pure) it cannot Suffer ought, but Doe.

The Furies.

THE THIRD PART OF THE FIRST DAY OF THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The World's transform'd from what it was at first :
For Adam's sin, all creatures else accurst :
Their Harmony disturb'd by His jar :
Yet all againe consent, to make him war ;
As, th' Elements, and above all, the Earth :
Three ghastly FURIES ; Sickness, War, and Dearth,
A gen'rall Muster of the Bodie's Griets :
The Soule's Diseases, vnder sundry Chiefs :
Both full of Horror, but the later most ;* 10
Where ugly Vice in Vertue's Mask doth boast.

Sin hath changed and disfigured the face of the World.

THis's not the World. O ! whither am I brought ?
This Earth I tread, this hollow-hanging Vault,
Which Dayes reducing, and renewing Nights,
Renews the grief of mine afflicted sprights ;
This Sea I sail, this troubled Aire I sip,
Are not The First-week's glorious Workmanship :
This wretched Round is not the goodly Globe
Th' Eternall trimm'd in so various Robe :
'Tis but a Dungeon and a dreadfull Cave, 20
Of that first World the Miserable Grave.

Invocation.

All-quickning Spirit, great God, that (justly-strange, Judge-turned-Father) wrought'st this wondrous-change ;
Change and new-mould me, let thy hand assist,
That in my Muse appear no earthly mist :
Make me thine organ, give my voyce dexterity
Sadly to sing this sad Change to Prosperity.
*And, Bounteous giver of each perfect gift,
So tune my voyce to his sweet-sacred Clift*

That in each strain my rude unready tongue 30
Be lively Eccho of his learn'd Song.
And henceforth, let our holy Musick ravish
All well-born Soules, from fancies lewdly-lavish
(Of charming Sin the deep inchaunting Syrens,
The snares of vertue, valour-softning Hyrens)
That toucht with terror of thine indignation,
Presented in this woofull Alteration,
Wee all may seek, by prayer and true repentance,
To shun the rigour of thy wrathfull Sentence.

 But, yer we farther passe, our slender Bark* 40
Must here strike top-sails to a Princely Ark
Which keeps these straights : He hails us threatfully,
Star-board our helm ; Come underneath his Lee.
Ho whence your Bark of Zeal-land : whither bound ?
For Vertue's Cape : What lading ? Hope. This Sound
You should not pass ; save that your voyage tends
To benefit our Neighbours and our Friends.
Thanks, Kingly Captain ; daign us then (we pray)
Some skilfull Pylot through this FURIOUS Bay ;
Or, in this Channell, sith we are to learn, 50
Vouchsafe to togh us at your Royall Stern.

YER THAT our Sire (O too too proudly-base)
Turn'd tail to God, and to the Fiend his face,
This mighty World did seem an Instrument
True-strung, well-tun'd, and handled excellent ;
Whose symphony resounded sweetly-shrill
The Almighty's praise, who play'd upon it still.
While Man serv'd God, the World serv'd him, the live
And live-lesse creatures seem'd all to strive

Happy estate of the World, before sin : set forth by a similitude.

	To nurse this league; and, loving scariouly These too dear Heads, embracéd mutually : In sweet accord, the base with high joyc't, The hot with cold, the solid with the moist ; And innocent Astræa did combine All with the mastick of a love divine.	60	But mortall Adam , Monarch here beneath, Erring, draws all into the paths of death ; And on rough Seas, as a blinde Pilot, rash, Against the rock of Heav'n's just wrath doth dash The World's great vessell, sayling yerst at ease, With gentle gales, good guide on quiet Seas.	120
The Sympathy yet appearing between certain Creatures, is but as a little shadow of the perfect union which was among all crea- tures before Man's fall.	For, th' hidden love that now a-dayes doth hold The Steel and Lead-stone, Hydrargire and Gold, Th' Amber and Straw ; that lodgeth in one shell Pearle-fish and Sharpling : and unites so well Sargons and Goats , the Sperage and the Rush , Th' Elm and the Vine , th' Olive and Myrtle-bush ; Is but a spark or shadow of that Love Which at the first in every thing did move, When as th' Earth's Muses with harmonious sound To Heav'n sweet Musick humbly did resound. But Adam , being chief of all the strings Of this large Lute, o'er-reachéd, quickly brings All out of tune : and now for melody Of warbling Charms, it yeelds so hideously, That it affright's fell Bayon , who turmoils To raise again th' old Chaos antick broils :	70	For (yer his Fall) which way so e'er he rowl'd, His wondering eyes, God every where behold ; In Heav'n, in Earth, in Ocean and in Aire, He sees, and feels, and findes him every-where. The World was like a large and sumptuous Shop Where God his goodly treasures did unwrap : Or Chrystall glasse most lively representing, His sacred goodness, every where frequenting.	130	The estate of Man before Sin.
	Heav'n, that still smiling on his Paramour, Still in her lap did Mel and Manna pour, Now with his hail, his rain, his frost and heat, Doth parch, and pinch, and over-whelm, and beat, And hoars her head with Snowes, and (jealous) dashes Against her brows his fiery lightning flashes :	80	But, since his sin, the wofull wretch findes none Herb, garden, grove, field, fountain, stream or stone, Beast, mountain, valley, sea-gate, shore or haven, But bears his Death's-doom openly ingraven : In brief, the whole scope this round Centre hath, Is a true store-house of Heav'n's righteous wrath. Rebellious Adam , from his God revoltig, Findes his yerst-subjects 'gainst himselfe insultig :	140	His estate after Sin.
Of the Discord that Sin hath brought among all things.	On th' other side, the sullen, envious Earth From blackest Cels of her foule breast sends forth A thousand foggy fumes, which every-where With cloudy mists Heav'n's crystall front besnear. Since that, the Wolf the trembling Sheep pursues, The crowing Cock the Lion stout eschews, The Pullen hide them from the Puttock's flight, The Mastiffe's mute at the Hyæna 's sight : Yea (who would think it ?) these fell emities, Rage in the sense-less trunks of plants and Trees : The Vine , the Cole ; the Cole-wort Swines-bread dreads, The Fearn abhors the hollow waving Reeds :	90	The Stars conjur'd through envious influence, By secret hang-men punish his offence : The Sun with heat, the Moon with cold doth vex- him : Th' Air was unlookt-for sudden changes checks-him, With fogs, and frosts, hails, snowes, and sulph'ry thunders, Blasting, and storms, and more predigious wonders. Fire fall'n from Heav'n, or else by Art incited, Or by mischance in some rich building lighted, Or from some Mountain's burning bowels throw'n, Repleat with Sulphur, Pitch, and Purny stone, With sparkling fury spreads, and in few hours The labour of a thousand years devours.	150	All creatures from the highest to the lowest, enemies to Man.
Sundry notable Antipathies.	The Olive and the Oake participate, Even to their earth, signes of their Ancient hate ; Which suffers not (O date-lesse discord !) th' one Live in that ground where th' other first hath grown. O strange instinct ! O deep immortal rage, Whose fiery fewd no Lark 's-floud can swage ! So, at the sound of Wolf-Drum's rattling thunder Th' affrighted Sheep-skin-Drum doth rent in sunder : So, that fell Monster's twisted entrails cuts (By secret powr) the poor Lamb's twinéd guts, Which (after death) in stead of bleating mute, Are taught to speak upon an Ivory Lute : And so the Princely Eagle's ravening plumes The feathers of all other Fowls consumes.	100	The greedy Ocean, breaking wonted bounds, Usurpes his Heards, his wealthy Iles and Towns. The grievéd Earth, to ease her (as it seems) Of such profane accuréd weight, sometimes Swallowes whole Countries, and the ayrie tops Of prince-proud towrs, in her black womb she wraps. And in desptig of him abhorrd and hateful She many wayes proves barren and ingratefull ; Mocking our hopes, turning our seed-Wheat-kernel To burn-grain Thistle, and to vaporie Darnel, Cockle, wilde Oats, rough Burs, Corn-cumbring Tares, Short Recompence for all our costly cares. Yet this were little, if she more malicious, Fell Stepdame, brought us not Plants more pernicious : As, sable Handbane , Morrell , making mad ; Cold poysoning Poppy , itching drowsie, sad ; The stifning Carpase , th' eyes-foe Hemlock stinking, Limb-numming belching, and the sinew-shrinking	160	The Heavens with all therein.
	The first-mov'd heav'n (in't self it self still stirring) Rapt with his course (quicker then windes swift whir- ling) All th' other Sphears, and to Alcides' Spires From Alexander's Altars drives their Fires :	110

Dead-laughing Apium, weeping Aconite
 (Which in our Vulgar deadly Wolf's-bane hight)
 The dropsie-breeding, sorrow-bringing Pityly
 (Here called Flea-wort) Colchis' banefull Lilly,
 (With us Wilde-Saffron) blistring byting fell :
 Hot Napell, making lips and tongue to swell :
 Bloud-boyling Yew, and costive Misseltoe : 180
 With yce-cold Mandrake, and a many moe
 Such fatal plants ; whose fruit, seed, sap, or root,
 T' untimely Grave doe bring our heed-lesse foot.
 Besides, she knowes, we (brutish) value more,
 Then Lives or Honours, her rich glittering Ore :
 That Avarice our bound-lesse thought still vexes,
 Therefore among her wreatfull baits she mixes
Quick-silver, Lethargie and Orpiment,
 Wherewith our entrails are oft gnawn and rent :
 So that sometimes for Body, and for Minde, 190
 Torture and torment, in one Mine we finde.
 What resteth more? The Masters skillfull most,
 With gentle gales driv'n to the wishéd Coast,
 Not with lesse labour gulde there wingéd wayns
 On th' asure fore-head of the liquid plains :
 Nor craftie Jugglers, can more eas'ly make
 There self-liv'd Puppits (for their lucre's sake)
 To skip, and scud, and play, and prate, and prounce,
 And fight, and fall, and trip, and turn, and daunce :
 Then happy we did rule the scaly Legions 200
 That dumbly dwell in stormy water-Regions ;
 Then feathered fingers, and the stubborn droves
 That haunt the Desarts and the shady Groves :
 At every word they trimbléd then for aw,
 And every wink then serv'd them as a law ;
 And alwayes bent all duty to observe-us,
 Without command, stood ready still to serve-us.
 But now (alas !) through our fond Parents' fall,
 They (of our slaves) are grown our tyrants all.
 Wend we by Sea? the drad Leviathan 210
 Turns upside-down the boyling Ocean,
 And on the suddain sadly doth intoomb
 Our floating Castle in deep Thetis' womb ;
 Yerst in the Welkin like an Eagle towring,
 And on the water like a Dolphin scowring.
 Walk we by land? how many loathsome swarms
 Of speckléd poysons, with pestiferous arms,
 In every corner in close Ambush lurk
 With secret bands our suddain banes to work ?
 Besides, the Lion and the Leopard, 220
 Boar, Bear, and Wolf, to death pursue us hard ;
 And, jealous vengers of the wrongs divine,
 In peeces pull their Soverain's sinful line.
 The huge thicke Forrests have nor bush nor brake
 But hides some Hang-man our loath'd life to take :
 In every hedge and ditch both day and night
 We fear our death, of every leaf affright.
 Rest we at home? the Mastie fierce in force,
 Th' untamed Bull, the hot courageous Horse,
 With teeth, wth horns, and hoofes besiege us round, 230
 As griev'd to see such tyrants tread the ground :

Poyson hidden among the Metals.

The excellency of Man's Dominion
over the Creatures before his Fall.

The Creatures
now become Tyrants and Traitors to Him, whose slaves and servants they were before Sin.

And ther's no Fly so small but now dares bring
 Her little wrath against her quondam King.
 What hideous sights? what horror-boarding shows?
 Alas, what yels? what howls? what thund'ring throws?
 O! Am I not neer roaring Phlegeton?
Alecto, sad Meger' and Thesiphon?
 What spels have charm'd ye from your dreadfull den
 Of darkest Hell? Monsters abhorr'd of men!
 O Night's black daughters, grim-fac't Furies sad, 240
 Stern Pluto's Postes what make ye here so mad?
 O! feels not man a world of wofull terrors,
 Besides your goaring wounds and ghastly horrors?
 So soon as God from Eden Adam gave,
 To live in this Earth (rather in this Grave,
 Where reign a thousand deaths) he sommon'd up
 With thund'ring call the damndé Crew, that sup
 Of Sulph'ry Styx, and fiery Phlegeton,
 Bloody Cocytus, muddy Acheron.
 Come snake-trest Sisters, come ye dismall Elves, 250
 Cease not to curse and cruciate your selves :
 Come, leave the horror of your houses pale,
 Come, partbreak here your foul, black, banefull gall :
 Let lack of work no more from hence-forth fear-you,
 Man by his sin a hundred Hels doth rear-you.
 This ecoho made whole Hel to tremble troubled,
 The drowsie Night her deep dark horrors doubled,
 And suddainly Avernus' Gulf did swim
 With Rozen, Pitch, and Brimstone to the brim,
 And th' ugly Gorgons, and the Sphinxes fell, 260
Hydras, and Harpies 'gan to yawn and yell.
 As the heat, hidden in a vapoury Cloud,
 Striving for issue with strange murmurs loud,
 Like guns astuns, wth round, round-rumbling thunder,
 Filling the Air with noyse, the Earth wth wonder :
 So the three Sisters, the three hideous Rages,
 Raise thousand storms, leaving th' infernal stages.
 Already all rowle on their steely Cars
 On th' ever-shaking nine-fold steely bars
 Of Stygian Bridge, and in that fearfull Cave 270
 They jumble, tumble, rumble, rage and rave.
 Then dreadfull Hydra, and dire Cerberus
 Which on one body, beareth (monstrous)
 The heads of Dragon, Dog, Ounse, Bear, and Bull,
 Wolfe, Lion, Horse (of strength and stomach full)
 Lifting his lungs, he hisses, barks and brayes,
 He howls, he yels, he bellows, roars, and neighs :
 Such a black Sant, such a confuséd sound
 From many-headed bodies doth rebound.
 Having attain'd to our calm Hav'n of light, 280
 With swifter course then Boreas' nimble flight,
 All fly at Man, all at intestine strife,
 Who most may torture his detested life.
 Here first comes DEARTH, the lively form of Death,
 Still yawning wide, with loathsom stinking breath,
 With hollow eys, with meager cheeks and chin,
 With sharp lean bones piercing her sable skin :
 Her empty bowels may be plainly spy'd
 Clean through the wrinkles of her withered hide :

An admirable
description of Man's miserable
punishments, nurtured by himselfe.

The FURIES
with their furniture and traine,
representing the Horror of Sinne, and the cursed estate of an evil conscience.

First, The
description of Famine with her traine.

She hath no belly, but the belle's seat,
 Her knees and knuckles swelling hugely great :
 Insatiate Orque, that even at one repast,
 Almost all creatures in the World would waste ;
 Whose greedy gorge, dish after dish doth draw,
 Seeks meat in meat : For, still her monstrous maw
 Voyds in devouring, and sometimes she eats
 Her own dear Babes for lack of other meats :
 Nay more, sometimes (O strangest gluttony !)
 She eats her selfe, her selfe to satisfie ;
 Lessening her selfe, her self so to enlarge :
 And, cruell, thus she doth our Grand-sire charge,
 And brings besides from Limbo to assist-her,
Rage, Feeblnesse, and Thirst, her ruth-less sister.

Next marcheth WAR, the mistress of enormity,
 Mother of mischief, monster of deformity :
 Laws, manners, arts, she breaks, she mars, she chaces :
 Blood, tears, bowrs, towrs ; she spills, swills, burns, and rases :
 Her brazen feet shake all the Earth asunder,
 Her mouth's a fire-brand, and her voice a thunder,
 Her looks are lightnings, every glance a flash :
 Her fingers guns, that all to powder pash.
Fears and Despairs, Flight and Disorder, coast
 With hasty march, before her murderous hoast :
As, Burning, Waste, Rape, Wrong, Impietie,
Rage, Ruins, Discord, Horror, Cruelty,
Sack, Sacriledge, Impunitie, and Pride,
 Are still stern consorts by her barbarous side :
 And Povertie, Sorrow, and Desolation,
 Follow her Armies' bloody transmigration.

Heer's th' other FURIE (or my judgement falls)
 Which furiously man's wofull life assails
 With thousand Canons, sooner felt then seen,
 Where weakest strongest ; fraught with deadly teen :
 Blinde, crooked, cripple, maymed, deaf, and mad,
 Cold-burning, blistered, melancholike, sad,
 Many-nam'd poyson, minister of Death,
 Which from us creeps, but to us gallopeth :
 Foule, trouble-rest, fantastick, greedy-gut,
 Blood-sweating, heart's-theef, wretched, filthy Slut,
 The Childe of Surfeit, and Ayr's-temper vicious,
 Perillous know'n, but unknowne most pernicious.

Th' inammeld meads, in Summer cannot showe
 More Grasshoppers above, nor Frogs belowe,
 Then bellish murmurs heer about doe ring :
 Nor never did the pretty little King
 Of Hony-people, in a Sun-shine day
 Lead to the field, in orderly array,
 More busle buzzers, when he casteth (witty)
 The first foundations of his waxen Citie ;
 Then this fierce Monster musters in her train
 Fell Souldiers, charging poor mankind amain.

Loc, first a rough and furious Regiment
 T' assault the Fort of Adam's head is sent,
Reason's best Bulwark, and the holy Cell
 Wherein the soule's most sacred powers dwell.

A King that ayms his neighbour's Crown to win,
 Before the brute of open wars begin,

Corrupts his Councell with rich recompences ;
 For, in good Councell stands the strength of Princes :
 So this fell Fury, for fore-runners, sends Manie and Phrensie to suborne her friends :
 Whereof, th' one drying, th' other over-warming
 The feeble brain (the edge of judgement harming)
 Within the Soule fantastickly they fain
 A confus'd hoast of strange Chimera's vain :
 The Karos, th' Apoplexe, and Lethargie,
 As forlorn hope, assault the enemy
 On the same side ; but yet with weapons others :
 For, they freez-up the brain and all his brothers ;
 Making a live-man like a live-less carcase,
 Save that again he scapeth from the Parcas.
 And now the Palisie, and the Crampe dispose
 Their angry darts ; this binds, and that doth lose
 Man's feeble sinews, shutting up the way
 Whereby before the vitall spirits did play.

Then as a man, that fronts in single Fight
 His suddain foe, his ground doth traverse light,
 Thrusts, wards, avoids, and best advantage spies,
 At last (to daze his Rival's sparkling eyes)
 He casts his Cloak, and then with coward knife,
 In crimson streams he makes him strain his life :
 So SICKNES, Adam to subdue the better
 (Whom thousand Gyves al-ready fastly fetter)
 Brings to the field the faith-less Ophthalmie,
 With scalding blood to blinde her enemy,
 Darting a thousand thrusts ; then she is back't
 By th' Amafrose and cloudy Cataract,
 That (gathering-up gross humors inwardly
 In th' Optike sinnew) clean puts out the eye ;
 This other caseth in an envious caul
 The Crystall humour shining in the ball.

This past : in-steps that insolent insulter,
 The cruell Quincy, leaping like a Vulture
 At Adam's throat ; his hollow weasand swelling
 Among the muscles, through thick blouds congeal-
 ing ;

Leaving him onely this Essay, for signe
 Of's might and malice to his future-line ;
 Like Hercules, that in his infant-browes
 Bore glorious marks of his undaunted prow's,
 When wth his hands (like steely tongues) he strangled
 His spitefull stepdam's Dragon spotty-spangled ;
 A proof, presaging the triumphant spoyle
 That he atchiev'd by his Twelve famous Toyle.

The second Regiment with deadly darts
 Assaulteth fiercely Adam's vitall parts :
 Al-ready th' Asthma, panting, breathing tough,
 With humors gross the lifting Lungs doth stuff :
 The pining Phthisik fils them all with pushes,
 Whence a slowe spout of cor'sie matter gushes :
 A wasting flame the Peripneumony
 Within those sponges kindles cruelly ;
 The spawling Empiem, ruth-less as the rest,
 With foule impostumes fils his hollow chest :
 The Pleurisie stabs him with desperate foyl
 Beneath the ribs, where scalding blood doth boyl :

A similitude of the effects and endeavours of sickness.

The second Regiment assaulting the vitall Parts.

Secondly, of Warre and her traine.

Thirdly, Sickness exactly described with all her partakers and dependers.

Innumerable
 kindes of diseases.

The first Regiment sent to assault the Head,
 Man's chiefest
 Fortress.
 Simile.

Then th' Incubus (by some suppos'd a spright)
With a thick phlegm doth stop his breath by night.
Deer Muse, my guide; clear truth that nought dis-
sembles,

The Ague with her train, her kinds, and cruell
effects.

Name me that Champion that wth fury trembles,
Who arm'd wth blasing fire-brands, fiercely flings 470
At th' Armies' heart, not at our feeble wings:
Having for Aids, Cough, Head-ache, Horror, Heat,
Pulse-beating, Burning, Cold-distilling-Sweat,
Thirst, Yawning, Yolking, Casting, Shivering, Shak-
ing,

Fantastick Raving, and continuall Abing,
With many moe: O! is not this the Fury
We call the Fever? whose inconstant fury
Transforms her oftner then Vertumnus can,
To Tertian, Quartan, and Quotidian:
And Second too; now posting, sometimes pawing, 480
Even as the matter, all these changes causing,
Is rommidge'd with motions slowe or quick
In feeble bodies of the Ague-sick.

Our Poet, having been himselfe for many years grievously afflicted with the Fever, complaineth bitterly of her rude violence.

Ah trecherous beast! needs must I know thee best:
For foure whole years thou wert my poor heart's guest,

And to this day in body and in minde
I bear the marks of thy dispiight unkinde:
For yet (besides my veins and bones bereft
Of blood and marrow) through thy secret theft
I feel the vertue of my spirit decayd, 430
Th' Enthousiasmos of my Muse allaid:
My memory (which hath been meely good)
Is now (alas!) much like the fleeting flovd;
Whereon no sooner have we drawn a line
But it is canceld, leaving there no signe:
For, the deere fruit of all my care and oost,
My former study (almost all) is lost,
And oft in secret have I blush'd at Mine ignorance: like Corvine, who forgot
His proper name; or like George Tropeance 440
(Learn'd in youth, and in his age a Dunce).
And thence it growes, that mangre my endeavour
My numbers still by habite have the Fever;
One-while with heate of heavenly fire ensoul'd;
Shivering anon, through faint un-learned cold.

The third Regiment warring on the naturall
Powers.

Now, the third Regiment with stormy stours
Sets-on the Squadron of our Nat'rall Powers
Which happily maintain us (duly) both
With needfull food, and with sufficient growth.
One-while the Boulime, then the Anorexia, 450
Then the Dog-hunger, or the Bradypneis,
And child-eat Pica (of prodigious dyet)
In straightest stomachs rage with monstrous ryot;
Then on the Liver doth the Jaundise fall,
Stopping the passage of the cholericall Gall;
Which then for good blood, scatters all about
Her fiery poyson, yellowing all without;
But the sad Dropsie freezeth it extreme,
Till all the blood be turned into fleam.

But see (alas!) by far more cruell foes 460
The slippery bowels thrill'd with thousand throes;

Wth prisoned winds the wringling Colick pains them,
The Iliack passion with more rigour strains-them;
Streightens their Conduits, and (detested) makes Man's mouth (alas!) even like a loathsome Jakas.
Then, the Dysentery with fretting pains
Extorteth pure blood from the stay'd veins.
On th' other side, the Stone and Strangury,
Tort'ring the Reins with deadly tyranny,
With heat-concreted sand-heaps strangely stop 470
The burning urine, strain'd drop by drop:
As opposite, the Diabete by melting
Our bodie's substance in our Urine swelting,
Distils us still, as long as any matter
Unto the spout can send supply of water.

Unto those parts, whereby we leave behind-us
Types of our selves in after-times to mind-us,
There fiercely flies defective Venerie,
And the foule, feeble, fruit-lesse Gonorrhoe
(An impotence for Generation's-deed, 480
And lust-lesse Issue of th' unconcocted seed)
Remorse-lesse tyrants, that to spoyle aspire
Babes unconceiv'd, in hatred of their Sire.

The fell fourth Regiment, is outward Tumours,
Begot of vicious indigested humours:
As Phlegmons, Oedems, Schyrrhus, Erisipilas,
King's-evils, Cankers, cruell Gouts, and Byles,
Wens, Ring-worms, Tetters: these from every part
With thousand pangs brave the besieg'd heart:
And their blinde fury, wanting force and courage 490
To hurt the Fort, the champaign Country forrage.

The fourth Regiment forrageth,
and defaceth the body outwardly.

O tyrants! sheath your feeble swords again;
For, Death al-ready thousand-times hath slain
Your Enemy; and yet your envious rigour
Doth mar his feature and his limbs disfigure.
And with a dull and ragged instrument
His joynts and skin are saw'd, and torn, and rent.
Me thinks most rightly to a coward Crew
Of Wolves and Foxes I resemble you,
Who in a Forrest (finding on the sand 500
The Lyon dead, that did alive command
The Land about, whose awfull Countenance
Melted, far off, their yoe-like arrogance)
Mangle the members of their live-lesse Prince,
With feeble signes of dastard insolence.

But, with the Grieffs that charge our outward places,

The lowzie
Disease.

Shall I account the loathsome Phthiriasis?
O shameful Plague! O foule infirmitie!
Which makes proud Kings, fouler then Beggars be (That wrapt in rags, and wrung with vermin sore, 510
Their itching backs sit shrugging evermore)
To swarm with Lice, that rubbing cannot rid,
Nor often shift of shirts, and sheets, and bed;
For, as in springs, stream stream pursueth fresh
Swarm follows swarm, and their too fruitfull flesh
Breeds her own eaters, and (till Death's arrest)
Makes of itselfe an execrable feast.

Nor may we think, that Chance confusedly
Conducts the Camp of our Third Enemy:

Diseases proper to certain Climats and Nations.

For, of her Souldiers, some (as led by reason) 520
 Can make their choyce of Country, Age, and Season.
 So Portugal hath Phthisis most of all,
Eber, King's-evils; Aral, the Suddain-fall:
Savoy, the Mumps; West-India Pox; and Nile,
The Leprosia; Plague, the Sardinian-Ile,
 After the influence of the Heav'ns all ruling,
 Or Countries' manners. So, soft Child-hood puling,
 Is wrung with Worms, begot of erudity,
 Are apt to Laake through mœch humidity:
 Through their salt phlegms, their heads are hid with shalls; 530
 Their Limbs with Red-gums and with bloudy bals
 Of Menstruall humour, which (like Must) within Their bodies boyling button'th all their Skin.
 To bloudy-Flises, Youth is apt inclining,
Continuall-Fevers, Phrensis, Phthisis-pining.
 And feeble Age is seldom-times without
 Her tedious gusta, the Palsie and the Gout, Coughes and Catarrhs. And so the Pestilence,
 The quartan-Agus with her accidents,
 The Flix, the Hip-gout, and the Watry-Tumour, 540
 Are bred with us of an Autumnall humour:
 The Itch, the Murrein, and Alcidas-griefe
 In Ver's hot-moysture doe molest us chiefe:
 The Diarrhœa and the Burning-Fever,
 In Summer-season doe their fell endeavour:
 And Pleurisies, the rotten-Coughes, and Rheums,
 Wear curld flakes of white celestiall plumes:
 Like sluggish Souldiers, keeping Garrison
 In th' ycie Bulwarks of the Year's geit Son.
 Some, seeming most in multitudes delighting, 550
 Bane one by other, not the first acquiting:
 As Measels, Mange, and filthy Leprosie,
 The Plague, the Pox, and Phthisis-maladie.
 And some (alas!) we leave as in succession,
 Unto our Children, for a sad possession:
 Such are King's-evils, Dropsie, Gout, and Stons,
 Bloud-boyling Leptry, and Consumption,
 The swelling Throat-ache, th' Epilepsie sad,
 And cruel Rupture, paining too-too bad:
 For, their hid poysons after-comming harm 560
 Is fast combin'd unto the Parents' sperm.
 But O! what arms, what shield shall we oppose,
 What stratagemas against those treacherous foes,
 Those treacherous griefs, that our frail Art detects
 Not by their cause, but by their sole effects?
 Such are the fruitfull Matrix-suffocation,
 The Falling-sickness, and pale Swooning-passion;
 The which, I wot not what strange windes long pause,
 I wot not where, I wot not how doth cause.
 Or who (alas!) can scape the cruell wile 570
 Of those fell Pangs that Physick's pains beguile?
 Which being banisht from a body, yet
 (Under new names) returne again to it;
 Or rather, taught the strange Metempsychosis
 Of the wise Sassian, one it selfe transposes
 Into some worse Grief; either through the kindred
 Of th' humour vicious, or the member hindred:

To some ages of man.

To the Seasons of the year.

Some diseases contagious.

Some hereditarie.

Some not known by their Cause, but by their Effects only.

Some by sturvy Causes increasing and waxing worse.

Or through their ignorance or avarice
 That doe professe Apollo's exercise.
 So Melancholy turned into Madnesse; 580
 Into the Palsie deep-affrighted Sadnesse:
 Th' Il-habitude into the Dropsie chill;
 And Megrin growes to the Comitial-ill.
 In briefe, poor Adam in this piteous case,
 Is like a Stag, that long pursu'd in chase,
 Flying for succour to some neighbour wood,
 Sinks on the suddain in the yeelding mud;
 And sticking fast amid the rotten grounds,
 Is over-taken by the eager Hounds;
 One bites his back, his neck another nips, 590
 One pulis his brest, at 's throat another skips,
 One tugs his flank, his haunch another tears,
 Another lugs him by the bleeding ears;
 And last of all, the Wood-man with his knife
 Cuts off his head, and so concludes his life.
 Or like a lusty Bull, whose horned Crest
 Awakes fell Hornets from their drowsie nest;
 Who buzzing forth, assaile him on each side,
 And pitch their valiant Bands about his Hide;
 With fisking train, with forked head, and foot, 600 Himselfe, th' Ayre, th' Earth, he beateth (to no boot)
 Flying (through woods, hills, dales, and roaring rivers)
 His place of grief, but not his painfull grievors:
 And in the end stitche full of stings he dies,
 Or on the ground as dead (at least) he lies.
 For, Man is loaden with ten thousand langours;
 All other Creatures onely feele the agors
 Of few Dissases: as, the gleaning Quall
 Onely the Falling-sickness doth assall:
 The Turn-about and Murrain trouble Cattel,
Madnesse and Quincie bid the Masty battell. 610
 Yet each of them can naturally find
 What Simples cure the sicknesse of their kind;
 Feeling no sooner their disease begin,
 But they as soon have ready medicine.
 The Ram for Physick takes strong-senting Rue,
 The Tortois slow, cold Hemlock doth renue:
 The Partridge, Black-bird, and rich painted Jay
 Have th' oylie liquor of the sacred Bay.
 The sickly Beare, the Mandrake cures again;
 And Mountain-Siler helpeth Goats to yeane: 620
 But we know nothing, till by poaring still
 On Books, we get us a Sophistick skill;
 A doubtfull Art, a Knowledge still unknowne;
 Which enters but the hoary heads (alone)
 Of those, that (broken with unthankfull toy)
 Seek others' Health, and lose their own the-while:
 Or rather those (such are the greatest part)
 That waxing rich at others' cost and smart,
 Grow famous Doctors, purchasing promotions, 630
 While the church-yards swel with their hurtful potions;
 Who (hang-man like) fear-less, and shame-less too,
 Are prayd and payd for murders that they doe.
 I speak not of the good, the wise, and learned,
 Within whose hearts God's fear is well discerned;

Comparison.

Another comparison.

600

An amplification of Man's miseries, compared with other Creatures seldomer sick, and sooner healed: and that by natural Remedies of their own: having also taught Men many practices of Physick.

Who to our bodies can againe unite
 Our parting soules, ready to take their flight.
 For, these I honour as Heav'n's gifts excellling,
 Pillars of Health, Death and Disease repelling :
 Th' Almighty's Agents, Nature's Counsellers, 640
 And flowring Youth's wise faithfull Governours.
 Yet if their Art can ease some kinde of dolours,
 They learn'd it first of Nature's silent Schollers ;
 For, from the Sea-Horse came Phlebotomies,
 From the wilde Goat the healing of the eyes ;
 From Stork and Hearn, our Glysters laxative,
 From Bears, and Lions, Diets we derive.
 'Gainst th' onely Body, all these Champions stout
 Strive ; some, within : and other some, without. 650
 Or, if that any th' all-fair Soule have striken,
 'Tis not directly ; but, in that they weaken
 Her Officers, and spoyl the Instruments
 Wherewith she works such wondrous presidents.
 But, lo ! foure Captains far more fierce and eager,
 That on all sides the Spirit it self beleaguer,
 Whose Constancy they shake, and soon by treason
 Draw the blinde Judgement from the rule of Reason :
Opinions issue ; which (though self unseen)
 Make through the Body their fell motions seen.
Sorrow's first Leader of this furious Crowd, 660
 Muffled all-over in a sable cloud ;
 Old before Age, afflicted night and day,
 Her face with wrinkles warped every-way ;
 Creeping in corners, where she sits and vies
 Sighs from her heart, tears from her blubbered eyes ;
 Accompani'd with self-consuming Care,
 With weeping Pity, Thought, and mad Despairs
 That bears, about her, burning Coales and Cords,
 Asps, Poysons, Pistols, Halters, Knives, and Swords : 670
 Foule-squinting Envy, that self-eating Elfe,
 Through others' leanness fattening up her selfe,
 Joying in mischief, feeding but with langour
 And bitter tears her Toad-like-swelling anger :
 And Yelousie that never sleeps, for fear
 (Suspicious Flea still nibbling in her eare)
 That leaves repast and rest, neer pin'd and blinde
 With seeking what she would be loth to finde.
 The second Captain is excessive Joy ;
 Who leaps and tickles, finding th' Apian-way
 Too-straight for her : whose senses all possess 680
 All wish'd pleasures in all plenteousnesse.
 She hath in Conduct false vain-glorious Vaunting,
 Bold, soothing, shameless, loud, injurious, taunt-
 ing :
 The winged Gyant lofty-staring Pride,
 That in the clouds her braving Crest doth hide :
 And many other, like the empty bubbles
 That rise when rain the liquid Crystall troubles.
 The third, is bloud-less, heart-less, witless Fears,
 That like an Asp-tree trembles every-where :
 She leads black Terror, and base clownish Shame, 690
 And drowsie Sloth, that counterfeiteth lame,
 With Snail-like motion measuring the ground,
 Having her arms in willing fetters bound,

Of foure Diseases of the Soule, under them comprehending all the rest.

First, Sorrow described, with her company.

Secondly, Joy
 with her Train.

Thirdly, Fear and her Followers.

Foule, sluggish Drone, barren (but, sin to breed)
 Diseased, beggar, starv'd with wilfull need.
 And thou Desire, whom nor the Firmament,
 Nor Aire, nor Earth, nor Ocean can content :
 Whose-looks are hooks, whose belly's bottomlesse,
 Whose hands are gripes to scrape with greedinesse,
 Thou art the Fourth ; and under thy Command, 700
 Thou bring'st to field a rough unruly Band :
 First, secret-burning, mighty swoln Ambition
 Pent in no limits, pleas'd with no Condition ;
 Whom Epicurus many Worlds suffice not,
 Whose furious thirst of proud aspiring dyes not
 Whose hands (transported with fantastick passion)
 Bear painted Scepters in imagination :
 Then Avarice all-arm'd in hooking Tenters
 And clad in Bird-lime ; without bridge she venters
 Through fell Charybdis, and false Sertes Nesse ; 710
 The more her wealth the more her wretchednesse ;
 Cruell, respect-lesse, friend-lesse, faith-lesse, Elf,
 That hurts her neighbour, but much more her self :
 Whose foule base fingers in each dunghill poar
 (Like Tantalus) starv'd in the midst of store :
 Not what she hath, but what she wants she counts :
 A wel-wing'd Bird that never lofty mounts.
 Then, boyling Wrath, stern, cruell, swift, and rash,
 That like a Boar her teeth doth grinde and gnash :
 Whose hair doth stare, like bristled Porcupine ; 720
 Who som-times rowles her ghastly-glowing eyn,
 And som-time fixtly on the ground doth glauce,
 Now bleak, then bloody in her Countenance ;
 Raving and rayling with a hideous sound,
 Clapping her hands, stamping against the ground ;
 Bearing Boccons, fire and sword to slay,
 And murder all that for her pittty pray ;
 Baneing her self, to bane her Enemy ;
 Disdaining Death, provided others dye :
 Like falling Towers o'turned by the winde, 730
 That break themselves on that they under-grinde.
 And then that Tyrant, all-controlling Love :
 (Whom here to paint doth little me behove,
 After so many rare Appelleses
 As in this Age our Albion nourishes)
 And to be short, thou doest to battall bring
 As many Souldiers 'gainst the Creatures King,
 (Yet not his owne) as in this life, Mankinde
 True very Goods, or seeming-Goods doth finde. 740
 Now, if (but like the Lightning in the sky)
 These sudden Passions past but swiftly by,
 The fear were lesse : but, O ! too-off they leave
 Keen stings behinde in Soules that they deceive.
 From this foule Fountain, all these poysons rise,
Rapes, Treasons, Murders, Incests, Sodomies, Blaspheming, Bibbing, Theeing, False-contracting, Church-chaffering, Cheating, Bribing, and *Exact-
 ing*.
 Alas ! how these (far-worse then death) Diseases
 Exceed each Sickness that our body sences ;
 Which makes us open war, and by his spight 750
 Gives to the Patient many a wholesome light ;

Fourthly, Desire,
 a most violent
 Passion, accompanied with others
 like : as Ambition,
 Avarice, Anger,
 and foolish Love.

730

740

The horrible effects of the Passions of the soule far more dangerous than the diseases of the body.

750

Now by the colour, or the Pulse's beating,
Or by some Fit, some sharper dolor threat'ing ;
Whereby, the Leach, neer-gheasing at our grief,
Not seldome findes sure means for our relief.
But for the Ills reign in our Intellect
(Which, onely, them both can and ought detect)
They rest unknown, or rather self-conceal'd ;
And soule-sick Patients care not to be heal'd.

Besides, we plainly call the Fever, Fever : 760

The Dropsie, dropsie : over-gliding never,
With guile-full flourish of a fainéd phrase,
The cruell Langours that our bodies craze :
Whereas, our fond self-soothing Soule, thus sick
Rubs her owne sore ; with glosing Rhetorick
Cloaking her vice : and makes the blinded Blain
Not fear the touch of Reason's Cautere vain.

And sure, if ever filthy Vice did jet
In sacred Vertue's spot-lesse mantle neat ;
'Tis in our dayes, more hatefull and unhallow'd, 770
Then when the World the Waters wholly swallow'd.
Ile spare to speak of foulest Sins, that spall
Th' infamous beds of men of mighty lot ;
Lest I the Saint's chaste tender ears offend,
And seem them more to teach, then rephend.

Who bear upon their French-sick backs about,
Farms, Castles, Fees, in golden shreads cut-out ;
Whose lavish hand, at one Primero-rest,
One Mask, one Turney, or one pampering feast,
Spend treasures, scrap't by th' Vsury and Care 780
Of miser-Parents ; Liberall counted are.

Who, with a Maiden voyce and mincing pase,
Quaint looks, curl'd locks, perfumes, and painted face ;

Base coward-heart, and wanton soft array,
Their man-hood onely by their Beard bewray ;
Are Cleanly call'd. Who like Lust-greedy Goates,
Brothell from bed to bed ; whose Syren-notes
Inchaunt chaste Susans, and, like hungry Kite,
Fly at all game, they Lovers are beहित.

Who, by false bargains, and unlawfull measures, 790
Robbing the World, have heaped kingly treasures :
Who cheat the simple ; lend for fifty fifty,
Hundred for hundred, are esteeméd Thrippy.

Who alwayes murder and revenge affect,
Who feed on bloud, who never do respect
State, Sex, or Age : but in all humane lives
In cold bloud, bath their parricidiall knives ;
Are stiled Valiant. Grant, good Lord, our Land
May want such valour whose self-cruell hand
Fights for our Foes, our proper life-bloud spils. 800
Our Cities sacks, and our owne Kindred kils.
Lord, let the Lance, the Gun, the Sword, and Shield,
Be turn'd to tools to furrow up the field ;
And let us see the Spiders busie task
Wov'n in the belly of the pluméd Cask.

But if (brave Lands-men) your war-thirst be such,
If in your brests sad Enyon boyl so much,
What holds you here ? alas ! what hope of crowns ?
Our fields are flock-lesse, treasure-lesse our Towns.

Goe then, nay run, renowned Martialists, 810
Re-found French-Greece, in now-Natolian lists ;
Hy, hy to Flanders ; free with conquering stroak
Your Belgian brethren from th' Iberian's yoaik :
To Portugall ; people Galisian-Spain,
And grave your names on Lysbon's gates again.

The Handie-Crafts.

THE FOURTH PART OF THE FIRST DAY OF THE II. WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The praise of Peace, the miserable states
Of Eden's Exiles: their vn-curious Cates:
Their simple habit, silly habitation:
They finde out Fire: their formost Propagation:
Their Children's trades, their offerings; envious Cain
His (better) Brother doth unkindly brain:
With inward horror hurried up and down,
He breaks a Horse, he builds a homely Town:
Iron's invented, and sweet Instruments:* 10
Adam foretels of After-Worlds events.

The Poet here welcomes peace, which (after long absence) seems about this time to have returned into France. The benefits shee brings with her.

H Eav'n's sacred Imp, fair Goddess that renew'st
Th' old golden age, & brightly now re-blew'st
Our cloudy sky, making our fields to smile:
Hope of the vertuous, horror of the vile:
Virgin, unseen in France this many a year,
O blessed Peace! we bid thee welcome here.
Lo, at thy presence, how who late were prest
To spur their Steeds and couch their staves in rest
For fierce encounter; cast away their spears, 20
And rapt with joy, them enter-bathe with tears.
Lo, how our Merchant-vessels to and fro
Freely about our tradefull waters go:
How the grave Senate, with just-gentle rigour,
Resumes his Robe; the Laws their ancient vigour.
Lo, how Oblivion's Seas our strifes do drown:
How wals are built that war had-thundred down.

Lo, how the Shops with busie Crafts-men swarm;
How Sheep and Cattell cover every Farm:
Behold the bon-fires waving to the skies: 30
Hark, hark the cheerfull and re-chanting cries
Of old and young; singing this joyfull Ditty,
Ið, rejoyce, rejoyce through Town and City,
Let all our Aire, re-eccho with the praises
Of th' everlasting glorious God, who raises
Our ruin'd State: who giveth us a good
We sought not for (or rather, we with-stood):
So that to hear and see these consequences
Of Wonders strange, we scarce beleve our senses.
O! let the King, let Monsieur and the Sover'n 40
That doth Navarras Spaine wrongd Scepter govern,
Be all, by all, their Countries' Fathers cleapt:
O! let the honour of their names be kept,
And on the brasse leaves ingrav'n eternally
In the bright Temple of fair Memory,
For having quencht, so soon, so many Fires,
Disarm'd our arms, appeas'd the Heav'nly ires;
Calm'd the pale horror of intestine hates,
And dammed-up the bifront Fathers' gates.
Much more, let us (dear, World-divided land) 50
Extoll the mercies of Heav'n's mighty hand,
That (while the World, War's bloody rage hath rent)
To us so long, so happy Peace hath lent
(Maugre the malice of th' Italian Priest,
And Indian Pluto (prop of Antichrist)

Thanks-giving to God for peace.

Gratefull remembrance of the meanes thereof.

*Whose Hoast like Pharaoh's threatening Israel,
Our gaping Seas have swallowed quick to hell!
Making our Ile a holy safe retreat
For Saints exil'd in persecution's heat,
Much more let us with true-heart-tuned breath,* 60
*Record the praises of ELIZABETH
(Of martiall Pallas and our milde Astraea,
Of grace and wisdom the divine Idea)
Whose prudent Rule, with rich religions rest,
Well-near nine Lustrus hath this kingdome blest.
O! pray we him that from home-plotted dangers,
And bloody threats of proud ambitious strangers,
So many years hath so securely kept her,
In just possession of this flowering Scepter ;
That (to his glory, and his dear Son's honour)* 70
*All happy length of life may wait upon her :
That we her Subjects, whom he bleaseth by her,
Psalming his praise, may sound the same the higher.
But waiting (Lord) in some more learnéd layes,
To sing thy glory, and my Sovereign's praise ;
I sing the young World's Cradle, as a Poem
Vnto so rare and so divine a Poem.*

An imitation thereof, by the Translator, in honour of our late gracious Sovereigne Elisabeth, in whose happy reign God hath given this kingdome so long peace and rich prosperity.

An Elegant comparison representing the lamentable condition of Adam and Eve driven out of Paradise.

WHO, FULL OF wealth and honour's blandishment,
Among great Lords his younger years hath spent ;
And quaffing deeply of the Court-delights, 80
Us'd nought but Tilts, Turneis, and Masks, & Sights ;
If in his age, his Prince's angry doom
With deep disgrace drive him to live at home
In homely Cottage ; where continually
The bitter smook exhales abundantly
From his before-un-sorrow-drainéd-brain
The brackish vapours of a silver rain :
Where Usher-lesse, both day and night, the North,
South, East and West windes, enter and goe forth :
Where round-about, the low-rooft broken wals 90
(In stead of Arras) hang with Spiders' cauls ;
Where all at once he reacheth, as he stands,
With brows the roof, both wals with both his hands :
He weeps and sighs, and (shunning comforts ay)
Wisheth pale Death a thousand times a day,
And, yet at length falling to work, is glad
To bite a brown crust that the Mouse hath had,
And in a dish (for want of Plate or Glasse)
Supps Oaten drink in stead of Hippocras.
So (or much like) our rebell Elders driv'n 100
For ay from Eden (earthly Type of Heav'n)
Lye languishing near Tygris' grassie side,
With numméd limbs, and spirits stupefied.
But powerfull NEED (Art's ancient Dame & Kesper,
The early watch-clock of the sloathfull sleeper)
Among the Mountains makes them seek their living,
And foaming rivers through the Champain driving :
For yet the Trees with thousand fruits yfraught
In formall Checkers were not fairly brought :
The Pear and Apple livéd Dwarf-like there, 120
With Oakes and Ashes shadowed every-where :
And yet (alas !) their meanest simple cheer
Our wretched Parents bought full hard and deer.

The first manner of life.

To get a Plum, sometimes poor Adam rushes
With thousand wounds among a thousand bushes.
If they desire a Medler for their food,
They must goe seek it through a fearfull wood ;
Or a brown Mulbery, then the ragged Bramble
With thousand scratches doth their skin bescramble.

Wherefore (as yet) more led by th' appetite 120
Of th' hungry belly then the taste's delight ;
Living from hand to mouth, soon satisfi'd,
To earn their supper th' afternoon they ply'd,
Unstor'd of dinner till the morrow-day ;
Pleas'd with an Apple, or some lesser prey.
Then, taught by Ver (richer in flours then fruit)
And hoary Winter, of both destitute ;
Nuts, Filberds, Almonds, wisely up they boord,
The best provisions that the Woods afford.

Great simplicity in their kinde of life.

Touching their garments : for the shining wooll 130
Whence the robe-spinning precious Worms are ful ;
For gold and silver wov'n in drapery,
For Cloth dipt double in the scarlet Dy ;
For Gems bright lustre, with excessive cost
On rich embroidries by rare Art embost ;
Sometimes they do the far-spread Gourd unleave,
Sometimes the Fig-tree of his branch bereave :
Sometimes the Plane, sometimes the Vine they shear,
Choosing their fairest tresses here and there :
And with their sundry locks, thorn'd each to other, 140
Their tender limbs they hide from Cynthia's brother.

Sometimes the Vivie's climbing stems they strip,
Which lovingly his lively prop doth clip :
And with green lace in artificiall order,
The wrinkled bark of th' Acorn-tree doth border,
And with his arms th' Oak's slender twigs entwining,

A many branches in one tissue joyning ;
Frames a loose Jacquet, whose light nimble quaking
Wagg'd by the winds, is like the wanton shaking
Of golden spangles, that in stately pride 150
Dance on the tresses of a Noble Bride.

But, while that Adams (waxen diligent)
Wearies his limbs for mutuall nourishment :
While craggy Mountains, Rocks, and thorny Plains,
And bristly Woods be witness of his pains ;
Eve, walking forth about the Forrests, gathers
Speights', Parrots', Peacocks', Estrich' scatt' red feathers,
And then with wax the smaller plumes she sears,
And sows the greater with long white-Horse hairs,
(For they as yet did serve her in the stead 160
Of Hemp, and Towe, and Flax, and Silk and Thread)
And thereof makes a medly coat so rare
That it resembles Nature's Mantle faire ;
When in the Sun, in Pomp all glistening,
She seems with smiles to woo the gawdy Spring.

When (by stolen moments) this she had contriv'd,
Leaping for joy, her cheerfull looks reviv'd,
Sh' admires her cunning ; and incontinent
'Saves on her selfe her manly ornament ;
And then through path-lesse paths she runs apace, 170
To meet her Husband coming from the Chase.

	Sweet-heart, quoth she (and then she kisseth him) My Love, my Life, my Blisse, my Joy, my Gem, My soule's dear Soule, take in good part (I pre-thee) This pretty Present that I gladly-give thee. Thanks my dear All (quoth Adam then) for this, And with three kisses he requites her kisse. Then on he puts his painted garment new, And Peacock-like himselfe doth often view, Looks on his shadow, and in proud amaze Admires the hand that had the Art to cause So many severall parts to meet in one, To fashion thus the quaint Mandillion. But, when the Winter's keener breath began To crystallize the Baltike Ocean, To glaze the Lakes, and bridle-up the Floods, And perriwig with wool the balde-pate Woods; Our Grand-sire, shrinking, 'gan to shake and shiver, His teeth to chatter, and his beard to quiver. Spying therefore a flock of Muttons cōming (Whose freez-clad bodies feele not Winter's num- ming)	180
Eve's industry in making a garment for her husband.	He takes the fairest, and he knocks it down : Then by good hap, finding upon the Down A sharpe great fish-bone (which long time before The roaring Floud had cast upon the shore) He cuts the throat, flayes it, and spreads the fell, Then dries it, pares it, and he scrapes it well ; Then clothes his wife therewith ; & of such Hides Slops, Hats, and Doublets for himselfe provides. A vaulted Rock, a hollow Tree, a Cave, Were the first buildings that them shelter gave ; But, finding th' one to be too-moist a hold, Th' other too-narrow, th' other over-cold ; Like Carpenters, within a Wood they choose Sixteen fair Trees that never leaves doe loose, Whose equall front in quadran form prospected, As if of purpose Nature them erected ; Their shady boughs first bow they tenderly, Then enterbraid, and binde them curiously ; That one would think that had this Arbor seen, 'T had been true seeing painted-over green. After this triall, better yet to fence Their tender flesh from th' ayrie violence, Upon the top of their fit-forked stems, They lay a-crosse bare Oaken boughs for beams (Such as disperséd in the Woods they finde, Torn-off in tempests by the stormy winde) Then these again with leavie boughs they load, So covering close their sorry cold abode ; And then they ply from th' eaves unto the ground, With mud-mixt Reed to wall their mansion round, All save a hole to th' Eastward situate, Where straight they clap a hurdle for a gate ; (Instead of hinges hangéd on a With) Which with a sleight both shuts and openeth. Yet fire they lackt : but lo, the winds, that whistle Amid the Groves, so oft the Laurvell juggle Against the Mulberry , that their angry claps Do kindle fire, that burnes the neighbour Cops.	190

The invention of fire.		220
	When Adam saw a ruddy vapour rise In glowing streame ; astund with feare he flies, It follows him, untill a naked Plain The greedy fury of the flame restraine : Then back he turns, and comming somewhat nigher The kindled shrubs, perceiving that the fire Dries his dank Cloathes, his colour doth refresh, And un-benums his sinnewes and his flesh ; By th' unburnt end, a good big brand he takes, And hying home a fire he quickly makes, And still maintaines it, till the starry Twis ' Celestiall breath another fire begins. But Winter being comn again, it griev'd him, 'T have lost so fondly what so much reliev'd him ; Trying a thousand wayes, sith now no more The justling Trees his damage would restore. While (else-where musing) one day he sate down Upon a steep Rock's craggy-forked crown, A foaming beast come toward him he spies, Within whose head stood burning coals for eyes ; Then suddenly with boysterous armes he throwes A knobby flint, that hummeth as he goes ; Hence flies the beast, th' ill-aimed flint-shaft ground- ing Against the rock, and on it oft rebounding, Shivers to cinders, whence there issued Small sparks of fire no sooner born then dead. This happy chance made Adam leap for glee ; And quickly calling his cold company, In his left hand a shining flint he locks, Which with another in his right he knocks So up and down, that from the coldest stone At every stroke small fiery sparkles shone. Then with the dry leaves of a withered Bay The which together handsomly they lay, They take the faling fire which like a Sun Shines cleer and smoak-lesse in the leaf begun. Eve , kneeling down, with hand her head sustaining, And on the low ground with her elbow leaning, Blows with her mouth : & with her gentle blowing Stirs up the heat, that from the dry leaves glowing Kindles the Reed, and then that hollow kix First fires the small, and they the greater sticks. And now, Man-kind with fruitfull Race began A little corner of the World to Man ; First Cain is born, to tillage all addicted, Then Abel , most to keeping flocks affected. Abel , desirous still at hand to keep His Milk and Cheese, unwildes the gentle Sheep To make a flock ; that when it tame became For guard and guide should have a Dog and Ram. Cain , more ambitious, gives but little ease To's boysterous limbs : and seeing that the Pease, And other Pulse, Beans, Lentils, Lupins, Rice, Burnt in the Copses as not held in price ; Some grains he gathers : and with busie toyl, A-part he sows them in a better soyl ; Which first he rids of stones, and thorns, and weeds, Then buries there his dying-living seeds.	230	240	250	260	270	280

By the next Harvest, finding that his pain
On this small plot was not ingrately vain ;
To break more ground, that bigger Crop may bring 290
Without so often weary labouring,
He tames a Heyfer, and on either side,
On either horn a three-fold twist he ty'd
Of Ofiar twigs, and for a Plough he got
The horn or tooth of some Rhinocerot.

Their Sacrifice.

Now, th' one in Cattle, th' other rich in grain,
On two steep Mountains build they Altars twain ;
Where (humbly-sacred) th' one with zealous cr
Cleaves bright Olympus' starry Canopy :
With fained lips, the other loud-resounded 300
Heart-wanting Hymns, on self-deserving founded :
Each on his Altar offereth to the Lord
The best that either flocks, or fields afford.

Rein-searching God, thought-sounding Judge, that tries

The will and heart more then the work and guise,
Accepts good Abel's gift : but hates the other
Profane oblation of his furious brother ;
Who feeling, deep th' effects of God's displeasure,
Raves, frets, and fumes, & murmurs out of measure.

God regardeth
Abel and his sacrifice, and rejecteth Cain
and his : whereat
Cain envieth, and finally kills his brother ; whose bloud God
revengeth.

What boots it, Cain, O wretch ! what boots it thee 310
T' have opened first the fruitfull womb (quoth he)
Of the first mother ; and first born the rather
T' have honour'd Adam first with name of Father ?
Unfortunate, what boots thee to be wealthy,
Wise, active, valiant, strongly-limb'd, and healthy,
If this weak Girl-boy, in man's shape disguis'd,
To Heav'n and Earth be dear, and thou despis'd ?
What boots it thee, for others night and day
In painfull toyl to wear thyselfe away :
And (more for others then thine own reliefe) 320
To have devis'd of all Arts the chiefe ;
If this dull Infant, of thy labour nurst,
Shall reap the glory of thy deeds (accurst) ?
Nay, rather quickly rid thee of the fool,
Down with his climbing hill, and timely cool
This kindling flame : and that none over-crow thee,
Re-seise the right that Birth and Vertue owe-thee.

Ay in his minde this counsaill he revolves,
And hundred times to act it he resolves,
And yet as oft relents ; stopt worthily 330
By the pain's horror, and sin's tyranny.

But, one day drawing with dissembl'd love
His harm-lease brother far into a Grove
Upon the verdure of whose Virgin-boughs
Bird had not perch't, nor never Beast did brouz ;
With both his hands he takes a stone so huge,
That in our Age three men could hardly bouge,
And just upon his tender brother's crown,
With all his might he cruell casts it down.

The murdered face lies printed in the mud,
And loud for vengeance cries the martyr'd bloud : 340
The batt' red brains fly in the murd' rer's face.
The Sun, to shun this tragick sight a pace,
Turns back his Teem : the amaz'd fratricide
Doth all the Furies' scourging whips abide :

Externall terrors, and th' internall Worm
A thousand kinds of living deaths doe form :
All day he hides him, wanders all the night,
Flies his own friends, of his own shade affright :
Scarr'd with a leaf, and starting at a Sparrow, 350
And all the World seems for his fear too-narrow.

But for his Children, born by three and three,
Produce him Nephews that still multiply
With new increase ; who yer their age be rife
Becom great-Grand-sires in their Grand-sires' life ;
Staying at length, he chose him out a dwelling,
For woods, and floods, and ayr, and soyl excelling.

By reason of the multiplying of Mankinde, the children of Adam begin to build houses for their commodity and retreat.

One fels down Firs, another of the same
With cross'd Poles a little lodge doth frame :
Another mounds it with dry wals about 360
(And leaves a breach for passage in and out)
With Turf and Furse : some others yet more gross
Their homely Stiles in stead of wals inclose :
Some (like the Swallow) mud and hay do mix,
And that about their silly Cotes they fix :
Som make their roofs with feare, or reeds, or rushes
And some with hides, with oase, with boughs, and bushes.

He that still fearfull, seeketh still defence,
Shortly this Hamlet to a Town augments.
For, with keen Coulter having bounded (witty) 370
The four-fac't Rampire of his simple City ;
With stones soon gathered on the neighbour strand
And clayie mortar ready there at hand,
Well trod and tempered, he immures his Fort,
A stately Tower erecting on the Port ;
Which awes his owne, and threatens his enemies ;
Securing som-what his pale tyrannies.

Cain thinking to find some quiet for the tempests of his conscience begins to fortifie and build a Towne.

O Tigre ! think'st thou (hellish fratricide)
Because with stone-heaps thou art fortifi'd,
Prince of some Peasants train'd in thy tillage, 380
And silly Kingling of a simple Village ;
Think'st thou to scape the storm of vengeance dread,
That hangs already o'r thy hatefull head ?
No : wert thou (wretch) incamp'd at thy will
On strongest top of any steepest Hill :
Wert thou immur'd in triple brazen Wall,
Having for ayd all Creatures in this All :
If skin and heart, of steel and yron were,
Thy pain thou couldst not, less avoid thy fear
Which chills thy bones, and runs through all thy veins, 390
Racking thy soule with twenty thousand pains.

Cain (as they say) by this deep fear disturbed ;
The first of all th' untamed Courser curbed ;
That while about on other's feet he run
With dusty speed he might his Death's-man shun.
Among a hundred brave, light, lusty Horses
(With curious eye marking their comly forces)
He chooseth one for his industrious proof,
With round, high, hollow, smooth, brown, jetty hoof. 400
With Pasterns short, upright (but yet in mean) gallant horse.
Dry sinnewy shanks ; strong, flesh-less knees, & lean :
With Hart-like legs, broad brest, & large behinde,
With body large, smooth flanks, and double-chin'd :

Supposeth to secure himselfe by the strength and swiftnesse of a horse which he begins to tame.

	A crested neck bow'd like a halfe bent Bow, Whereon a long, thin, curld mane doth flow ; A firm full tail, touching the lowly ground, With dock between two fair fat buttocks drown'd ; A prick'd ear, that rests as little space, As his light foot ; a lean, bare bonny face ; Thin joule, and head but of a middle size ; Full, lively-flaming, quickly-rowling eyes ; Great foaming mouth, hot-fuming nostrill wide ; Of Chest-nut hair, his fore-head starrif'd ; Three milky feet, a feather on his brest ; Whom seven-years-old at the next grass he ghest.	410
The manner how to back to break, and to make a good horse.	This goodly Jennet gently first he wins, And then to back him actively begins ; Steady and streight he sits, turning his sight Still to the fore-part of his Palfrey light. The chafed Horse, such thrall ill-suffering, Begins to snuff and snort, and leap, and fling ; And flying swift, his fearfull Rider makes Like some unskilfull Lad that undertakes To hold some ship's helm, while the head-long tyde Carries away the Vessell and her Guide ; Who near devour'd in the jaws of Death, Pale, fearfull, shivering, faint and out of breath, A thousand times (with Heav'n-erected eyes) Repents him of so bold an interprise.	420
Simile.	But, sitting fast, lesse hurt then fear'd ; Cain Boldens himself and his brave Beast again : Brings him to pase, from pasing to the trot, From trot to gallop : after runs him hot In full career : and at his courage smiles ; And sitting still to run so many miles.	430
The ready speed of a swift horse presented to the Reader in a pleasant & lively description.	His pase is fair and free ; his trot as light As Tigre's course ; as Swallow's nimble flight : And his brave gallop seems as swift to goe As Biscan Darts, or Shafts from Russian bowe : But, roaring Canon, from his smoking throat, Never so speedy spews the thundring shot (That in an Army mowes whole squadrons down, And batters Bulwarks of a sommon'd Town) As this light Horse scuds, if he do not feel His bridle slack, and in his side the heel : Shunning himself, his sinnewy strength he stretches ; Flying the earth, the flying ayre he catches, Born whirl-winde-like : hee makes the trampled ground Shrink under him, and shake with doubling sound : And when the sight no more pursue him may, In fieldy clouds he vanisheth it away.	440
Good horsemanship.	The wise-wext Rider, not esteeming best To take too much now of his lusty Beast, Restraines his fury : then with learn'd wand The triple Corvet makes him understand : With skilfull voyce he gently cheers his pride, And on his neck his flattering palm doth slide : He stops him steady, still new breath to take, And in the same path brings him softly back. But th' angry Steed, rising and reaning proudly, Striking the stones, stamping and neighing loudly,	450
	Cals for the Combat ; plunges, leaps and prauces, Befoams the path, with sparkling eyes he glauces ; Champs on his burnisht bit, and gloriously His nimble fetlocks lifeth belly-high ; All side-long jaunts, on eyther side he justles, And's waving Crest courageously he bristles, Making the gazers glad on every side To give more room unto his portly Pride. Cain gently stroaks him, and now sure in seat, Ambitiously seeks still some fresher feat To be more famous ; one while trots the Ring, Another while he doth him backward bring, Then of all foure he makes him lightly bound ; And to each hand to manage rightly round ; To stoop, to stop, to caper, and to swim, To dance, to leap, to hold-up any lim : And all, so done, with time-grace-ordered skill, As both had but one body and one will. Th' one for his Art no little glory gains : Th' other through practice by degrees attains Grace in his gallop, in his pase agilty, Lightnesse of head, and in his stop facility ; Strength in his leap, and stedfast managings, Aptnes in all, and in his course new wings.	470	The countenance, pride & port of a courageous horse, when he is chafed.
	The Use of horses thus discover'd, Each to his worke more cheery settel'd, Each plies his trade, and travels for his age, Following the paths of painfull Tubal sage. While through a Forrest Tubal (with his Yew And ready quiver) did a Boar pursue ; A burning Mountain from his fiery vein An yron River rowls along the Plain : The witty Huntsman, musing, thither hies, And of the wonder deeply 'gan devise, And first perceiving, that this scalding mettle, Becomming cold, in any shape would settle, And grow so hard, that with his sharpen'd side The firmest substance it would soon divide ; He casts a hundred plots, and yer he parts He moulds the ground-work of a hundred Arts : Like as a hound, that (following loose, behinde His pensive Master) a quick Hare doth finde ; Leaves whom he loves, upon the sent doth ply, Figs to and fro, and fais in cheerfull cry ; And with up-lifted head, and nostrill wide Winding his game, snuffs-up the winde, his guide : A hundred wayes he measures Vale and Hill : Ears, eyes, nor nose, nor foot, nor tail are still, Till in her hot Form he have found the prey That he so long hath sought for every way.	480	The dexterity of a skilfull Rider.
	For, now the way to thousand works reveal'd, Which long shall live mangre the rage of Eld : In two square creases of unequal sizes To turn to yron streamlings he devises ; Cold, takes them thence : then off the dross he rakes, And this a Hammer, that an Anvil makes : And, adding tongs to these two instruments, He stores his house with yron implements :	490	The invention of yron.
		500	Comparison.
		510	Casting of the first instruments of yron.

As forks, rakes, hatchets, plough-shares, coultars, staples, 520
 Bolts, hinges, hooks, nails, whittls, spaoks, & grappls ;
 And grown more cunning, hollow things he formeth,
 He hatcheth files, & winding vices wormeth ;
 He shapeth sheers, and then a Saw indents,
 Then beats a Blade, and then a Lock invents.
 Happy device ! we might as well want all
 The Elements, as this hard minerall.
 This, to the Plough-man for great uses serves :
 This, for the Builder, Wood and Marble carves :
 This arms our bodies against adverse force : 530
 This clothes our backs : this rules th' unruly horse :
 This makes us dry-shod dance in Neptune's Hall :
 This brightens gold ; this conquers self and all ;
 Fift Element, of Instruments the haft ;
 The Tool of Tools, & Hand of Handy-Craft.
 While (compart round with smoaking Cyclops rude,
 Half-naked Bronts, and Sterops swarthy-hewd,
 All well-neer weary) sweating Tubal stands,
 Hastning the hot work in their sounding hands ;
 No time lost Jubal : th' un-full Harmony 540
 Of uneven Hammers, beating diversly,
 Wakens the tunes that his sweet numbery soule
 Yer birth (some think) learn'd of the warbling Poly.
 Thereon he harps, and ponders in his minde,
 And glad and fain some Instrument would finde
 That in accord those discords might renew,
 And th' yron Anvil's rattling sound ensew
 And iterate the beating Hammer's noyse
 In milder notes, and with a sweeter voyce.
 It chanc't, that passing by a Pond, he found 550
 An open Tortoise lying on the ground,
 Within the which there nothing else remained
 Save three dry sinnews on the shell stiff-strained :
 This empty house Jubal doth gladly bear,
 Strikes on those strings, and lends attentive ear ;
 And by this mould frames the melodious Lute,
 That makes wood hearken, & the winds be mute,
 The Hills to dance, the Heav'ns to re-trograde,
 Lions be tame, and tempests quickly vade.
 His Art, still waxing, sweetly marrieth 560
 His quavering fingers to his warbling breath :
 More little tongues to's charm-care Lute he brings,
 More Instruments he makes : no Echo rings
 'Mid rocky concaves of the babbling vales,
 And bubbling Rivers rowl'd with gentle gales,
 But wietry Cymbals, Rebacks sinnews twin'd,
 Sweet Virginals, and Cornets curled winde.
 But Adam guides through paths but seldom gone,
 His other Sons to Vertue's sacred Throne :
 And chiefly Seth (set in good Abel's place) 570
 Staff of his age, and glory of his race :
 Him he instructeth in the ways of Veritie,
 To worship God in spirit and sinceritie :
 To honor Parents with a reverent aw,
 To train his children in religious law :
 To love his friends, his Country to defend,
 And helpfull hands to all mankinde to lend :

The excellent uses & commodities of yron.

Invention of Musick.

Invention of the Lute and other Instruments.

While Cain and his children are busie for the world, Adam & his other sons exercise themselves in piety and justice, and in searching the godly secrets of Nature.

To know Heav'n's course, and how their constant swaies
 Divide the year in months, the months in dayes :
 What Star brings Winter, what is Summer's guide ; 580
 What signe foul Weather, what doth fair betide ;
 What Creature's kinde, and what is curst to us ;
 What Plant is wholesome, and what venemous.
 No sooner he his lessons can commence,
 But Seth hath hit the White of his intents ;
 Draws rule from rule, and of his short collations
 In a short time a perfect Art he fashions.
 The more he knows, the more he craves ; fuell
 Kils not a fire, but kindles it more cruell.
 While on a day by a cleer Brook they travell, 590
 Whose gurgling streams frizado'd on the gravell,
 He thus bespake : If that I did not see
 The zeal (dear Father) that you bear to mee,
 How still you watch me with your careful ein,
 How still your voyce with prudent discipline
 My Prentice ear doth oft reverberate ;
 I should misdoubt to seem importunate ;
 And should content me to have learn'd, how
 The Lord the Heav'ns about this All did bow ;
 What things have hot, and what have cold effect ; 600
 And how my life and manners to direct.
 But your milde Love my studious heart advances
 To ask you further of the various chances
 Of future times : what off-spring spreading wide
 Shall fill this World : What shall the World betide ;
 How long to last : What Magistrates, what Kings
 With Justice's Mace shall govern mortall things ?
 Son (quoth the Sire) our thought's eternal eye
 Things past and present may by means descry ; 610
 But not the future, if by speciall grace
 It read it not in th' One-Trine's glorious face.
 Thou then, that (only) things to come dost know,
 Not by Heav'n's course, nor ghesse of things below,
 Nor coupled points, nor flight of fatall Birds,
 Nor trembling tripes of sacrific'd Heards ;
 But by a clear and certaine prescience,
 As Seer and Agent of all accidents :
 With whom at once the three-fold times do fly,
 And but a moment lasts Eternity ;
 O God behold me, that I may behold 620
 Thy Crystall face : O Sun, reflect thy gold
 On my pale Moon ; that now my veiled eyes,
 Earth-ward eclipst, may shine unto the skies :
 Ravish me, Lord, O (my soule's life) revive
 My spirit a-space, that I may see (alive)
 Heav'n yer I dy : and make me now (good Lord)
 The echo of thy all-celestiall Word.
 With sacred fury suddenly he glowes,
 Not like the Bedlam Bacchanatian froes,
 Who, dancing, foaming, rowling furious-wise 630
 Under their twinkling lids their torch-like eyes
 With ghastly voyce, with visage grizly grim,
 Tost by the Fiend that fiercely tortures them,
 Bleaking and blushing, panting, shrieking, swooning,
 With wrathlesse wounds their senselesse members wounding :

Seth questions his father concerning the state of the world from the Beginning to the End.

Adam's answer.

The power of God's spirit in his Prophets : and the difference between such, and the distracted frantike ministers of Satan.

But as th' Imperial airy people's Prince,
With stately pinions soaring-by from hence,
Cleaves through the clouds, & bravely-bold doth think
With his firm eye to make the Sun's eye wink :
So Adam, mounting on the burning wings 640
Of a Seraphick love, leaves earthly things,
Feeds on sweet Æther, cleaves the starry Sphæars,
And on God's face his eyes he fixtly bears :
His brows seem brandisht with a Sun-like fire,
And his purg'd body seems a cubit higher.

Then thus began he : Th' ever-trembling field
Of scaly folk, the Arches starry siel'd,
Where th' All-Creator hath disposed well
The Sun and Moon by turns for Sentinel ;
The clear cloud-bounding Air (the Camp assign'd 650
Where angry Auster, and the rough North-winde
Meeting in battell, throwe down to the soil
The woods that middling stand to part the broil) ;
The Diapry Mansions, where man-kind doth trade,
Were built in Six Dayes : & the Seav'nth was made
The sacred Sabbath. So, Sea, Earth, and Air,
And azure-gilded Heav'n's Pavilions fair,
Shall stand Six dayes ; but longer diversly
Then the dayes bounded by the World's bright eye.

The First begins with me : the Second's morn 660
Is the first Ship-wright, who doth first adorn
The Hills with Vines : that Shepheard is the Third,
That after God through strange lands leads his Heard,
And, past man's reason, crediting God's word,
His onely Son slayes with a willing sword :
The Fourth's another valiant Shephearding,
That for a Canon takes his silly sling,
And to a Scepter turns his Shepheard's staff,
Great Prince, great Prophet, Poet, Psalmograph :
The Fifth begins from that sad Prince's night 670
That sees his children mured in his sight,
And on the banks of fruitfull Euphrates,
Poor Juda led in Captive heaviness :
Hopéd Messias shineth in the Sixt ;
Who, mockt, beat, banisht, buried, cruci-fixt,
For our foule sins (still-selfly innocent)
Hath fully born the hatefull punishment :
The Last shall be the very Resting-day,
Th' Air shall be mute, the Water's works shall stay ;
The Earth her store, the Stars shall leave their measures, 680

The Sun his shine : and in eternal pleasures
We plung'd, in Heav'n shall ay solemnize, all,
Th' eternal Sabbath's end-lesse Festivall.
Alas : what may I of that race presume
Next th' ireful Flame that shall this Frame consume, Whose gut their god, whose lust their law shall be,
Who shall not hear of God, nor yet of me ?
Sith those outrageous, that began their birth
On th' holy grounsill of sweet Eden's earth,
And (yet) the sound of Heav'n's drad Sentence hear, 690
And as ey-witness of mine Exile were,
Seem to despight God. Did it not suffice
(O lustfull Soule !) first to polygamize ?

Suffr'd it not (O Lameck) to distain
Thy Nuptiall bed ? but that thou must ingrain
In thy great-Grand-sire's Grand-sires reeking gore
Thy cruell blade ? respecting nought (before)
The prohibition and the threatening vow
Of him to whom infernall Pows do bow :
Neither his Paspports seal'd Character 700
Set in the fore-head of the Murderer.

Courage, good Enos : re-advance the Standard
Of holy Faith, by humane reason slander'd,
And troden-down : Invoke th' immortal Powr ;
Upon his Altar warm bloud-offrings pour ;
His sacred nose perfume with pleasing vapour,
And teend again Truth's neer-extinguish Taper.

Thy pupil Henoch, selfly dying wholly,
(Earth's ornament) to God he liveth solely.
Lo, how he labours to endure the light 710
Which in th' Arch-essence shineth glorious-bright :
How rapt from sense, and free from fleshy lets,
Somtimes he climbs the sacred Cabinets
Of the divine Ideas everlasting,
Having for wings, Faith, fervent *Prayer & Fast-
ing* :

How at somtimes, though clad in earthly clod,
He (sacred) sees, feels, all enjoys in God :
How at somtimes mounting from form to form,
In form of God he happy doth transform.
Lo, how th' All-fair, as burning all in love 720
With his rare beauties, not content above
T' have half, but all, and ever ; sets the stairs
That lead from hence to Heav'n his chosen heirs :
Lo, how he climbeth the Supernall stories.

Adieu, dear Henoch : in eternal glories
Dwel there with God : thy body chang'd in quality
Of Spirit or Angel, puts-on immortality :
Thine eyes already (now no longer eyes :
But new bright stars) do brandish in the skyes :
Thou drinkest deep of the celestiall wine : 730
Thy Sabbath's end-lesse : without vail (in fine)
Thou seest God face to face ; and neer unite
To th' ONE-TRINE God, thou liv'st in th' Infinite.

But here the while (new Angel) thou dost leave
Fell wicked folk, whose hands are apt to reave,
Whose Scorpion tongues delight in sowing strife,
Whose guts are gulfs, incestious all their life.
O strange to be beleev'd ! the blesséd Race,
The sacred Flock, whom God by speciall grace
Adopts for his, ev'n they (alas !) most shame-lesse 740
Do follow sin, most beastly-brute and tame-lesse,
With lustfull eyes choosing for wanton Spouses
Men's wicked daughters ; mingling so the houses
Of Seth and Cain : preferring foolishly
Frail beautie's blaze to vertuous modesty.

From these profane, foul, curséd kisses sprung
A cruell brood, feeding on bloud and wrong ;
Fell Gyants strange, of haughty hand and minde,
Plagues of the World, and scourges of Mankind.
Then, righteous God (tho ever prone to pardon) 750
Seeing his mildnesse but their malice harden,

Adam declares to his sonne in how many dayes the world was created.

How many Ages
it shall endure.

1. Adam.
2. Noah.
3. Abraham.

4. David.

5. Zedechias.

6. Messias.

7. *The eternall
Sabbath*.

Considerations of Adam upon that which should befall his posterity, unto the end of the first World destroyed
by the Flood :
according to the relation of Moses in Genesis, in the 4, 5, 6, and 7
chapters.

List pleade no longer, but resolves the Fall
Of man forth-with, and (for Man's sake) of all :
Of all (at least) the living creatures gliding
Along the Aire, or on the Earth abiding.

Heav'n's chrystall windows with one hand he opes,
Whence on the World a thousand Seas he drops :
With th' other hand he gripes and wringeth forth
The spungy Globe of th' execrable Earth,
So straightly preest, that it doth straight restore 760
All liquid floods that it had drunk before :
In every Rock new Rivers doe begin,
And to his ayd the snowes come tumbling in :
The Pines and Cedars have but boughs to show,
The shores do shrink, the swelling waters grow.
Alas ! so many Nephews lose I here
Amid these deeps, that, but for Mountains neer,
Upon the rising of whose ridges lofty,
They lusty climb on every aide for safety,

I should be seed-lesse : but (alas !) the Water 770
Swallows those Hills, and all this wide Theater
Is all one Pond. O Children, whither fly-you ?
Alas ! Heav'n's wrath pursues you to destroy-you :
The stormy Waters strangely rage and roar,
Rivers and Seas have all one common shore ;
(To wit) a sable, water-loaden Sky,
Ready to rain new Oceans instantly.
O Son-lesse Father ! O too fruitfull hanches !
O wretched root ! O hurtfull, hatefull branches !
O gulfs unknown ! O dungeons deep and black ! 780
O World's decay ! O Universall wrack !
O Heav'ns ! O Seas ! O Earth (now Earth no more)
O Flesh ! O Blood ! Here, sorrow stopt the door
Of his sad voyce ; and, almost dead for wo,
The prophetizing spirit forsook him so.

The Ark.
THE FIRST PART
 OF THE
SECOND DAY OF
THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Noah prepares the Ark : and thither brings (With him) a Seed-pair of all living things :
 His exercise a-ship-board : Atheist Cham
 His holy Father's humble Zeal doth blame ;
 And diversly impugns God's Providence :
 Noah refuts his faith-lesse arguments :
 The Flood surceast : The Ark landed : Blood forbid :
 The Rain-bow bent ; what is prefigurd :
 Wine drowneth Wit : Cham scoffs the Nakednesse 10
 Of's sleeping Sire : the Map of Drunkennesse.

A Preamble, wherein by a modest complaint the Poet stirs up the Reader's attention, and makes himself way to the invocation of the Name of God.

IF now no more my sacred rimes distill
 With Art-lesse ease from my dis-custom'd quill :
 If now the Lawrell, that but lately shaded
 My beating Temples, be dis-leav'd and vaded :
 And if now banisht from the learned Fount,
 And cast down head-long from the lofty Mount
 Where sweet Urania sitteth to endite,
 Mine humbled Muse flag in a lowly flight ;
 Blame these sad Times' ingratefull cruelty, 20
 My household cares, my health's infirmity,
 My drooping sorrows for (late) grievous losses,
 My busie suits, and other bitter crosses.
 Lo, they're the clogs that weigh down heavily
 My best endeavours, whilom soaring high :
 My harvest's hail : the pricking thorns and weeds
 That in my soule choak those diviner seeds.
 O gracious God ! remove my great incumbers,
 Kindle again my faith's ne'er-dying embers :
 Asswage thine anger (for thine own Son's merit) 30
 And from me (Lord) take not thy Holy Spirit :

Comb, gild, and polish, more then ever yet,
 This latter issue of my labouring wit :
 And let not me be like the winde that proudly
 Begins at first to roar and murmur loudly
 Against the next hills, over-turns the woods,
 With furious tempests tumbles-up the floods,
 And (fiercely-fell) with stormy puffs constrains
 The sparkling flints to roul about the Plains ;
 But flying, faints ; and every league it goes, 40
 One nimble feather of his wing doth lose :
 But rather like a River poorly-breeding
 In barren Rocks, thence drop by drop proceeding :
 Which, toward the sea, the more he flees his source,
 Wth growing streams strengthens his gliding course :
 Rowls, roars, & foams, raging with rest-less motion,
 And proudly scorns the greatnesse of the Ocean.

THE DOOMS of Adam lackt not long effect :
 For th' angry Heav'ns (that can without respect
 Of persons, plague the stubborn Reprobate)
 In Waters buried th' Universall state :
 In Waters buried th' Universall state :
 And never more the nimble painted Legions
 With hardy wings had cleft the ayrie Regions :
 We all had perisht, and the Earth in vain
 Had brought such store of fruits, and grasse, & grain,
 If Lamech's Son (by new-found Art directed)
 That huge vaste Vessell had not first erected ;
 Which (sacred refuge) kept the parent-pairs
 Of all things moving in the Earth and Airs.
 Now, while the World's-re-colonizing Boat
 Doth on the waters over Mountains float,
Noe passeth not, with tales and idle play,
 The tedious length of dayes and nights away :

40

The coming of the Flood and building of the 50 Ark.

60 Noah's exercises aboard the Ark.

But as the Summer sweet-distilling drops
Upon the meadows' thirsty yawning chops,
Re-greens the Greens, & doth the Flowers re-flour,
All scorcht and burnt with Auster's parching powr :
So, the care-charming hony that distils
From his wise lips, his house with comfort fills,
Flatters despair, dryes tears, calms inward smart, 70
And re-advanceth sorrow-daunted hearts.

Cheer ye, my Children : God doth now retire
These murdering Seas, which the revenging ire
Of his strict Justice's holy indignation
Hath brought upon this wicked generation ;
Arming a season, to destroy Mankind,
The angry Heav'n, the Water and the Winds :
As, soon again his gracious Mercy will Clear cloudy Heav'n, calm Winds and Waters still.

His wrath and mercy follow turn by turn ; 80
That (like the lightning) doth not lightly burn
Long in a place, and this from age to age
Hides with her wings the faithfull heritage.

Our gracious God makes scant weight of displeasure,
And spreads his mercy without weight or measure :
Somtimes he strikes us (to especiall ends)
Upon our selves, our children, or our friends,
In soule or body, goods, or else good names,
But soon he casts his rods in burning flames :
Not with the fist, but finger he doth beat-us ; 90
Nor doth he thrill so oft as he doth threat-us ;
And (prudent Steward) gives his faithfull Bees
Wine of his wrath, to rebell Drones the Lees.
And thus the deeds of Heav'n's just-gentle King,
The Second World's good Patriarch did sing.

But, brutish Cham, that in his brest accurst
The secret roots of sinfull Atheisms nurse ;
Wishing already to dis-throne th' Eternall,
And selfe-usurp the Majesty supernall :
And to himself, by name of Jupiter, 100

On Africk sands a sumptuous Temple rear :
With bended brows, with stout and stern aspect,
In scornful tearms his Father thus be-checkt :

O ! how it grieves me, that these servile terrors
(The scourge of Cowards, and base vulgars errors)
Have ta'en such deep root in your feeble brest !
Why, Father, alwayes selfy thus deprest ?
Will you thus alwayes make your self a drudge,
Fearing the fury of a fainéd Judge ?
And will you alwayes forge your self a Censor 110
That weighs your words, and doth your silence cen-
sure ?

A sly controuler, that doth count your hairs,
That in his hand your heart's keys ever bears,
Records your sighs, and all your thoughts descries,
And all your sins present and past espies ?
A barbarous Butcher, that with bloudy knife
Threats night and day your grievous-guilty life ?

O ! see you not the superstitious heat
Of this blinde zeale doth in your minde beget
A thousand errors ? light credulity 120
Doth drive you still to each extremity,

Faining a God (with thousand storms opprest)
Fainter then Women, fiercer then a Beast.

Who (tender-hearted) weeps at others' weeping,
Wails others' woes, and at the onely peeping
Of others' bloud, in sudden swoun deceases,
In manly brest a woman's heart possesses :
And who (remorse-lesse) lets at any season,
The stormy tide of rage transport his reason,
And thunders threats of horror and mis-hap, 130
Hides a Bear's heart under a humane shape.

Yet, of your God, you one-while thus pretend ;
He melts in tears, if that your finger's end
But ake a-while : anon, he frets, he frowns,
He burns, he brains, he kills, he dams, he drowns.

The wildest Boar doth but one Wood destroy,
A cruell Tyrant but one Land annoy ;
And yet this God's outrageous tyranny
Spoyls all the World, his onely Empery.

O goodly Justice! one or two of us 140
Have sinn'd, perhaps, and mov'd his anger thus ;
All bear the pain, yea even the Innocent
Poor Birds and Beasts incur the punishment.

No, Father no : ('t is folly to infer it)
God is no varying, light, inconstant spirit,
Full of revenge, and wrath, and moody hate :
Nor savage fell, nor sudden passionate,
Nor such as will for some small fault undoo
This goodly World, and his owne nature too.

All wandring clouds, all humid exhalations, 150
All Seas (which Heav'n through many generations

Hath hoorded up) with self's-weight enter-crusht,
Now all at once upon the earth have rusht :
And th' end-lesse, thin ayre (which by secret quilts
Had lost it selfe within the winds-but hills'
Dark hollow Caves, and in that gloomy hold
To ycie Crystall turnéd by the cold)
Now swiftly surging towards Heav'n again,
Hath not alone drown'd all the lowly Plain,
But in few dayes with raging Floods o'r-flown 160
The top-lesse Cedars of Mount Lebanon.

Then, with just grief the godly Father gall'd,
A deep, sad sigh from his heart's Centre hal'd,
And thus reply'd : O false, rebellious Cham ;
Mine age's sorrow, and my house's shame ;
Through self-conceit contemning th' Holy Ghost,
Thy sense is bend, thine understanding lost :
And O I fear (Lord, falsifie my fear)
The heavie hand of the high Thunderer
Shall light on thee ; and thou (I doubt) shalt be 170
His furie's object, and shalt testifie
By thine infamous life's accursed state,
What now thy shame-lesse lips sophisticate.

I (God be prais'd) know that the perfect CIRCLE
Whose Center's every-where, of all his circle
Exceeds the circuit ; I conceive aright
Th' Almighty-most to be most infinite :
That th' onely ESSENCE feels not in his minde
The furious tempests of fell passion's winde :

Cham, full of im-
pety, is brought in, answering his Father, and diversly impugning the wisdom and irreprehensi-ble providence of God Almighty and all-mercifull : and the humble and religious zeal of Noah.

Answer of Noah
to all the blasphemies of Cham, and his fellow-
Atheists.

Answer 1.
God is infinite,
immutable, almighty and incomprehensible :

That moveless, all he moves : that with one thought 180
 He can build Heav'n, and, builded, bring to nought :
 That his high Throne's inclos'd in glorious Fire
 Past our approach : that our faint soule doth tire,
 Our spirit growes spright-lesse, when it seeks by sense

To sound his infinite Omni-potence.
 I surely know the Cherubins doe hover
 With flaming wings his starry face to cover.
 None sees the Great, th' Almighty, Holy-ONE,
 But passing by, and by the back alone.

To us, his Essence is in-explicable, 190
 Wondrous his Wayes, his Name un-utterable ;
 So that concerning his high Majesty
 Our feeble tongues speak but improperly.

For, if we call him strong, the praise is small :
 If blessed spirit, so are his Angels all :
 If Great of greats, hee's void of quantity :
 If good, faire, holy, he wants quality ;
 Sith in his Essence fully excellent,
 All is pure substance, free from accident.

Therefore our voyce, too-faint in such a subject 200
 T' ensue our soule, and our weak soule her object, Doth alwayes stammer ; so that ever when
 'T would make God's name redoubted among men
 (In humane phrase) it calms him pitifull,
 Repentant, jealous, fierce, and angerfull.

Yet is not God by this repentance, thus,
 Of ignorance and error takt, like us :
 His jealous hatred doth not make him curious,
 His pittie wretched, nor his anger furious ;
 Th' immortal Spirit is ever calmly-clear : 210
 And all the best that feeble man doth hear,
 With vehemence of some hot passion driv'n ;
 That, with ripe judgement, doth the King of heav'n.

Shall a Physician comfortably-bold,
 Fear-lesse, and tear-lesse, constantly behold
 His sickly friend vext with exceeding pain,
 And feel his pulse and give him health again ?
 And shall not th' Ever-selfe-resembling God
 Look down from Heav'n upon a wretched clod,
 Without he weep, and melt for grief and anguish ; 220
 Nor cure his creature, but himselfe must languish ?

And shall a Judge, self-anger-lesse, prefer
 To shamefull death the strange adulterer ;
 As onely looking fixtly all the time
 Not on the sinner, but the sinfull crime ?
 And shall not then th' Eternall Justicer
 Condemne the Atheist and the Murderer,
 Without self's-fury ? O ! shall Justice then
 Be blam'd in God, and magnifi'd in men ?
 Or shall his sacred Will, and sovereign Might 230
 Be chayn'd so fast to man's frail appetite,
 That filthy sin he cannot freely hate,
 But wrathfull Rage him selfly cruciate ?

God's sacred vengeance, serves not for defence
 Of his own Essence from our violence
 (For in the Heav'n's, above all reach of ours
 He dwels immur'd in diamantine Towrs) ;

But, to direct our lives, and laws maintain,
 Guard Innocence, and Injury restrain.

Th' Almighty past not mean, when he subverted 240
 Neer all the world from holy paths departed.
 For Adam's Trunk (of both-our Worlds the Tree)
 In two faire branches forking fruitfully,
 Of Cais and Seth ; the first brought forth a sate
 Of bitter, wilde, and most detested fruit :
 Th' other, first rich in goodnesse, afterward
 With those base Scions beeing graft, was marr'd :
 And so producéd execrable clusters
 Worthy so wicked and incestuous lusters :
 And then (alas !) what was there to be found 250
 Pure, just, or good, in all this Earthly Round ?

Cain's Line possess sin, as an heritage ;
Seth's as a dowry got by marlage :
 So that (alas !) among all humane-kinde
 Those Mongrell kisses marr'd the purest minde.
 And we (even we, that have escapéd here
 This cruell wrack) within our conscience bear
 A thousand Records of a thousand things
 Convincing us before the King of kings ;
 Whereof not one (for all our self-affection)
 We can defend with any just objection.

God playd no Tyrant, choaking with the floods
 The earthly bands and all the ayrie broods :
 For, sith they liv'd but for man's service sole,
 Man, ras'd for sin out of the Living Route,
 Those wondrous tools, and organs excellent,
 Their Work-man reft, remain'd impertinent.
 Man's onely head of all that draweth breath.
 Who lacks a member, yet persevereth
 To live (we see) : but, members cut away 270
 From their owne head, do by and by decay.

Nor was God cruell, when he drown'd the Earth :
 For, sithence man had from his very birth
 Rebell'd against him ; was 't not equity,
 That, for his fault, his house should utterly
 Be rent and ras'd ? that salt should there be sow'n,
 That in the ruines (for instruction)
 We for a time might read and understand
 The righteous vengeance of Heav'n's wrathfull hand,
 That wrought this Deluge : and no hoorded waves 280
 Of ayrie clouds or under-Earthly caves ?

If all blew Curtains mixt of ayre and water,
 Round over-spreading this wide All-Theater,
 To some one Climate all at once should flie,
 One Country they might drown undoubtedly :
 But our great Galley having gone so far,
 So many months, in sight of either Star,
 From Pole to Pole through sundry Climats whurl'd,
 Shows that this Flood hath drownéd all the world.

Now non-plus, if to re-inforce thy Camp, 290
 Thou fly for succour to thine Ayrie Damp :
 Show, in the concave of what Mountains steep
 We may imagine Dens sufficient deep
 For so much Air as gushing out in Fountains,
 Should hide the proud tops of the highest Mountains ;

to maintain vertue and confound vice.

Answer 5.
 The iniquitie of the World deserved extreme punishment.

Answer 6.
 When all are generally depraved, all merit
 to be destroyed.

Answer 7.
 The least imperfect passe condemnation, even then when they are most lively chastised.

Answer 8.
 God destroying the workman,
 doth no wrong to the Tools, if he break, and batter them with their Master.

Answer 9.
 A Traitor deserves to have his house razed
 to the ground.

Answer 10.
 The Flood was no naturall accident, but a most just judgement
 of God.

Answer 11.
 The waters of the Flood sprung not from a naturall motion onely, but proceeded from other then naturall
 Causes which cannot produce such effects.

So that men cannot speak of Him but improperly.

Why we cannot speake of God
 but after the manner of men.

Answer 2.
 The Repentance and the change which the Scripture attributeth to God, is far from Error and Defect.

Two comparisons explaining the same.

Answer 3.
 Justice being a vertue in Man, cannot be a vice in God.

Answer 4.
 God doth not punish Offenders for defence of his owne Estate : but

Sith a whole tun of ayre scarce yeelds (in triall)
Water enough to fill one little Viall.
And what should then betide those empty spaces?
What should succeed in the forsaken places
Of th' ayre's thin parts (in swift springs shrinking thence) 300
Sith there's no void in th' Al-circuference?

Whence (wilt thou say) then comes this raging Flood,
That over-flows the windy Ryphean Wood,
Mount Libanus, and enviously aspires
To quench the light of the celestiall fires?
Whence (shall I say) then, whence-from comes it,
Cham,

That Wolves, and Panthers waxing meek & tame,
Leaving the horror of their shady home,
Adjourn'd by Heav'n did in my presence come,
Who holding subject under my command 310
So many creatures humbled at my hand,
Am now restor'd to th' honour and estate
Whence Adam fell through sin and Satan's hate?
Whence doth it come, or by what reason is 't,
That unmann'd Haggards to mine empty fist
Come without call? Whence comes it, that so little Fresh water, fodder, meal and other victuall,
Should serve so long so many a greedy-gut
As in the dark-holds of this Ark is shut?

That here the Partridge doth not dread the Hawk? 320
Nor fearfull Hare the spotted Tiger baulk?
That all these storms our Vessell have not broak?
That all this while we doe not joyntly choak
With noysom breath, and excrementall stink
Of such a common and continuall sink?
And that our selves, 'mid all these deaths, are sav'd
From these All-Seas, where all the rest are Grav'd?

In all the compass of our floating Inns,
Are not so many planks, and boords and pins,
As wonders strange, and miracles, that ground 330
Man's wrangling Reason and his Wits confound:
And God, no lesse his mighty power display
When he restor'd, then when the World he made.
O sacred Patron! pacifie thine ire,
Bring home our Hulk: these angry floods retire;
A-live and dead, let us perceive and prove
Thy wrath on others, on our selves thy love.

Thus Noah sweetens his Captivity,
Beguiles the time, and charms his misery,
Hoping in God alone: who, in the Mountains 340
Now stopping close the veins of all the Fountains,
Shutting Heav'n's sluices, causing th' ayr (controul'd)
Close-up his Channels, and his Seas with-hold, Cals forth the windes. O Heav'n's fresh fans, quoth he,

Earth's sweeping brooms, O Forrests' enmity,
O you my Heralds and my Harbengers,
My nimble Postes and speedy Messengers,
Mine arms, my sinnews, and mine Eagles swift
That through the ayre my rowling Chariot lift,
When from my mouth in my just-kindled ire 350
Fly Sulph'ry fumes, and hot consuming fire;

When with my Lightning Scepter's dreadfull wonder
I muster horror, darknesse, clouds and thunder:
Wake, rise, and run, and drink these waters dry,
That hills and dales have hidden from the sky.

Th' Abolian Crowd obeys his mighty call,
The surly surges of the Waters fall,
The Sea retreateth: and the sacred Kest
Lands on a Hill, at whose proud feet doth kneel
A thousand Hills, his lofty horn adoring 360
That cleaves the clouds, the starry welkin goaring.
Then hope-cheer'd Noah, first of all (for scout)
Sends forth the Crow, who flutters neer-about;
And finding yet no landing place at all,
Returns a-board to his great admirall.

Some few dayes after from the window flies
The harm-lesse Dove for new discoveries:
But seeing yet no shore, she (almost tyr'd)
A-board the Carrack back again retir'd.

But yer the Sun had seav'n Heav'n-Circuits rode; 370
To view the World a-fresh she flies abroad;
And brings aboard (at evening in her bill)
An Olive branch with water pearléd still.

O happy passage! O deer pledge of love!
O wel-com news! behold the peacefull Dove
Brings in her beak the Peace-branch, boading weal
And truce with God; who by his sacred seal
Kindly confirms his holy Covenant,
That first in fight the Tiger rage shall want,
Lions be cowards, Hares courageous, 380
Yer he be false in word or deed to us.
O sacred Olive! firstling of the fruits,
Health-boading branch, be it thy tender roots
Have livéd still, while this strange Deluge lasted,
I doe rejoyce it hath not all things wasted:
Or be it, since the Ebb, thou newly sprung,
Prays'd be the bounty of th' immortal King
That quickens thus these dead, the World induing
With beauty fresh so suddenly renewing.

Thus Noah spake: And though the World 'gan lift 390
Most of his Isles above the water's drift:
Though waxen old in his long weary night,
He see a friendly Sun to brandish bright:
Though choak't with ill ayre in his stinking stall,
Hee 'l not a-shore till God be pleas'd with-all;
And till (devout) from Heav'n he understand
Some Oracle to licence him to land.

But warn'd by Heav'n, he commeth from his Cave,
(Or rather from a foule infectious Grave)
With Sem, Cham, Japheth, and their twice-two Brides, 400

And thousand pairs of living things besides,
Unclean and clean: for th' holy Patriarch
Had of all kinds incloséd in the Ark.

But, here I hear th' ungodly (that for fear
Late whispered softly in each others' ear,
With silent murmurs muttering secretly)
Now trumpet thus their filthy blasphemie;
Who will beleave (but shallow brainéd Sheep)
That such a Ship scarce thirty Cubits deep,

The Ark resteth on the Mountain Ararat in Armenia.

What Noah did before he went forth.

380

He expecteth
God's commandement to goe forth:
Whereby, at the first he was shut up in the Ark.

New objection of Atheists, concerning the capacitie of the Ark.

Answer 12.
The consideration of the power of God in subjecting the Creatures to Noah: in sustaining and feeding them so long in the Ark (which was as a sepulchre) confuteth
all the objections of Atheists.

Answer 13.
The Ark full of Miracles, which confound the wits, and stop the mouthes of profane wranglers.

God causeth the Flood to cease.

	Thrice fifty long, and but once fifty large,	410	For evermore upon, the murderer's head My roaring storms of fury shall be shed.
	So many months could bear so great a charge? Sith the proud Horse, the rough-akinn'd Elephant, The lusty Bull, the Camell water-want, And the Rhinocerot, would, with their fodder, Fill-up a Hulk far deeper, longer, broader?		From hence-forth, fear no second Flood that shall	470
Answer.	O profane mockers! if I but exclude Out of this Vessell a vast multitude Of since-born mongrels, that derive their birth From monstrous medly of Venerian mirth: Fantastick Mules, and spotted Leopards,	420	Cover the whole face of this earthly Ball: I assure ye no; no, no, I swear to you (And who hath ever found mine Oath untrue?) Again, I swear by my thrice-sacred Names : And to confirme it in the Clouds I frame This coloured Bow. When then some tempest black Shall threat againe the fearfull World to wrack, When water loaden-Heav'ns your Hills shall touch, When th' air w th midnight shal your noon be-pitch, Your cheerfull looks up to this Rain-bow cast:	480	The Rainbow given for a pledge of the promise, that there shall be no more generall Flood.
	Since, dayly sprung from strange & mingled loves, Wherein from time to time in various sort, Dedalian Nature seems her to disport: If plainer, yet I prove you space by space, And foot by foot, that all this ample place, By subtill judgement made and Symmetrie , Might lodge so many creatures handsomely, Sith every brace was Geometricall :	430	Which, bright ascending toward th' ethereall Hath a line drawn between two Orisons . For just Diameter : an even-bent bow Contriv'd of three; whereof the one doth show To be all painted of a golden hew, The second green, the third an orient blew; Yet so, that in this pure blew-golden-green Still (Opal-like) some changeable is seem.		Description of the Rain-bow.
	Nought resteth (Moments) for your reply at all; If, who dispute with God, may be content To take for current, Reason's argument.		A bow bright-shining in th' Arch-Archer's hand, Whose subtill string seems level with the Land, Half-parting Heav'n; and over us it bends, Within two Seas wetting his hornéd ends; A temporall beauty of the lampfull skies Where powerfull Nature shows her freshest Diea.	490
An un-answerable answer to all pro- fane objections.	But here t' admire th' Almighty's powerfull hand I rather love, and silence to command To Man's discourse: what he hath said, is done: For, evermore his word and deed are one. By his sole arm, the Gallion's Masters saw Themselves safe rescu'd from death's yawning jaw; And offers up to him in zealous wise,	440	And if you onely blew and red perceive, The same as signes of Sea, and Fire conceive, Of both the flowing and the flaming Dooms , The Judgement past, and Judgement yet to come.		What it significeth.
	The Peace-full sent of sweet burnt-sacrifice; And sends withall above the starry Pole These wingéd sighes from a religious soule; World-shaking Father, Winds' King, calming- Seas;		Then having call'd on God, our second Father Suffers not sloth his arms together gather, But falls to work, and wisely now renew th' The Trade he learn'd to practise in his youth. For, the proud issue of that Tyrant rude That first his hand in brother's blood imbru'd, As scorning Plougths, and hating harmlesse tillage, And (wantons) prising lesse the homely village, With fields and woods, then th' idle Cities' shades; Imbraced Laws, Scepters, and Arts, and Trades. But Seth's Sons, knowing Nature soberly Content with little, fell to Husbandry, Thereto reducing, with industrious care, The Flocks and Drowes cover'd with wool & hair; As praise-full gain, and profit void of strife,	500
	With milde aspect behold us; Lord appease Thine Anger's tempest, and to safety bring The planks escapt from this sad Perishing: And bound for ever in their ancient Caves These stormy Seas' deep World-devouring waves.		But Seth's Sons, knowing Nature soberly Content with little, fell to Husbandry, Thereto reducing, with industrious care, The Flocks and Drowes cover'd with wool & hair; As praise-full gain, and profit void of strife, Art nurse of Arts, and very life of life.	510
Commandements, prohibitions, & Promises of God to Noah and his posterity.	Increase (quoth God) and quickly multiply, And fill the World with fruitfull Progeny; Resume your Scepter, and with new becheasts Bride againe the late-revolted Beasts, Re-exercise your wonted rule again, It is your office over them to reign: Deer Children, use them all: take, kill, and eate: But yet abstain, and do not take for meat Their ruddy soule: and leave (O sacred seed!) To rav'ning Fowls, of strangled flesh to feed.	450	So the bright honour of the Heav'nly Tapers Had scarcely boxed all th' Earth's dropsic vapours, When he that sav'd the store-seed-World from wrack, Began to delve his fruitfull Mother's back,	520	Noah falls to Husbandry, & tills the Earth, as he had done before the Flood.
	I, I am holy: be you holy then, I deeply hate all cruell bloody men: Therefore defile not in your brother's blood Your guilty hands; refraine from cruell mood: Fly homicide: doe not in any case, In man, mine Image brutishly deface: The cruell man a cruell death shall taste; And blood with blood be vengéd first or last	460

He plants a Vine.	And there soon-after planteth heedfully The brittle branches of the Nectar-tree. For, 'mong the pebbles of a pretty hill To the warm Sun's eye lying open still, He sets in furrows or in shallow trenches 530 The crooked Vine's choyse scyons, shoots, and branches : In March he delves them, re-re-delves, and dresses : Cuts, props, and proins ; & God his work so blesses, That in the third September for his meed The plenteous Vintage doth his hopes exceed.	Come (brethren) come, come quickly and behold This pure controuler that so oft controuid Us without cause : see how his bed he soyls : 580 See, how the wine (his master) now recoyls By s' mouth, and eyes, and nose : and brutally so To all that come his naked shame doth show.	His speech to his Brethren, seeing his Father's nakedness.
He is overtaken with Wine.	Then Noah, willing to beguile the rage Of bitter griefs that vext his feeble age, To see with mud so many roofs o'er-grown, And him left almost in the World alone ; One-day a little from his strictnesse shrunk, And making merry, drinking, over-drunk : 540 And, silly, thinking in that hony-gall To drown his woes, he drowns his wits and all.	Ah shame-less beast (both brethren him reprov'd, Both chiding thus, both with just anger mov'd) Unnaturall villain, monster pestilent, Unworthy to behold the firmament ; Where (absent we) thou ought'st have hid before With thine owne Cloak, but with thy silence more, Thy Father's shame, whom age, strong wine, and grief, 590	Their discreet behaviour.
Description of a drunken-man.	His head growes giddy, and his foot indents, A mighty fume his troubled brain torments, His idle prattle from the purpose quite, Is abrupt, stuttering, all-confus'd, and light : His wine-stuff stomach wrung with wind he feels : His trembling Tent all topsie turvie wheels : At last, not able on his legs to stand, More like a foule Swine then a sober Man, Opprest with sleep, he wallowes on the ground His shame-lesse snorting trunk, so deeply drown'd In self-oblivion, that he did not hide Those parts that Cæsar covered when he died.	Have made to fall, but once in all his life ; Thou barkest first, and sporting at the matter Proclaim'st his fault on Infamie's Theater. And saying this (turning their sight a-side) Their hoary Father's nakednesse they hide. When wine had wrought, this good old-man awook, Agnis'd his crime, ashaméd, wonder-strook At strength of wine, & toucht with true repentance, Wh' Propbet-mouth 'gan thus his Son's fore-sentence : Curst be thou Cham, and curst be (for thy scorn) 600	Noah awak'd, cursteth Cham & his posterity : and blesseth Sem and Japheth and their issue.
Fit Comparisons to set forth the nature and prop- erty of Slan- ders, and Detractors, Imitat- ing Cham .	Ev'n as the Rav'ns with windy wings o'er-fly The weeping Woods of Happy Araby, Despise sweet Gardens and delicious Bows Perfuming Heav'n with odoriferous flowres, And greedy, light upon the loathsome quarters 560 Of some late Lopes, or such Romish Martyrs : Or as a young, unskillfull Painter raw, Doth carelesly the fairest features draw In any face, and yet too neerly marks, Th' unpleasing blemish of deformed marks ; As lips too great, or hollownesse of eyes, Or sinking nose, or such indecencies : Even so th' ungodly Sons of Leasing's Father, With black Oblivion's sponge ingrately smother Faire Vertue's draughts, and cast despitfully 570 On the least sins the venom of the eye, Frump others' faults, and trumpet in all ages The lightest trips of greatest Personages : Like scoffing Cham that impudently view'd His Father's shame, and most profanely-lew'd With scornfull laughter (grace-lesse) thus began To infamize the poor old drunken man.	Thy darling Canaan : let the pearly Morn, The radiant Noon, and rheumy Evening see Thy neck still yoked with Captivity. God be with Sem : and let his gracious speed Spread-wide my Japheth's fruitful-swarming seed. Error, no error, but a wilfull badnesse : O foule defect ! O short, O dangerous madnesse ! That in thy rage, dost harm-lesse Clytus smother By his dear friend ; Penstheus by his mother. Phrenzic, that makes the vaunter insolent ; 620 The talk-full, blab ; cruell, the violent : The fornicator, wex adulterous ; Th' adulterer, become incestuous : With thy plague's leaven swelling all our crimes ; Blinde, shame-less, sense-less, quenching oftentimes The soule within it selfe : and oft defames The holiest men with execrable blames. And as the Must, beginning to re-boyl, Makes his new vessel's wooden bands re-coyl, Lifts-up his lees, and spews with humane vent 630 From his Tub's ground his scummy excrement : So ruin'st thou thine hoast, and foolishly From his heart's bottom driv'st all secrecie. But, had'st thou never done (O filthy poyson !) More mischief here, but thus bereft of reason This Vertue's Module (rather Vertue's best) We ought thee more then Death it self detest.	An execration of Drunkenes, describ'd with its shamefull, dan- gerous, and detestable effects.

Babylon.
 THE
 SECOND PART
 OF THE
 SECOND DAY OF
 THE II. WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Th' Antithesis of Blest and curs'd States,
 Subject to Good and Evill Magistrates :
 Nimrod usurps : His grow's-full Policy,
 To gain himselfe the Goal of Sovereignty :
 BABEL begun : To stop such out-rages,
 There God confounds the builders' Languages :
 Tongues excellent : the Hebrew, First and Best :
 Then Greek and Latin : and (above the rest)
 Th' Arabian, Toscan, Spanish, French, and Dutch, 10
 And Ours, are honour'd by our Author much.*

A preface, representing the felicity and happy estate of Common-weals governed by good and prudent Princes : and the misery of those that live in subjection unto Tyrants : which the Poet very fitly proposeth as his introduction to the life and manners of Nimrod.

O Happy people, where Good Princes raigue,
 Who tender publike more then private gain !
 Who (vertu's patrons, and the plagues of vice)
 Hate Parasites, and hearken to the wise :
 Who (self-commanders) rather sin suppress
 By self-examples, then by rigorousnesse :
 Whose inward-humble, outward Majesty
 With Subjects' love is guarded loyally :
 Who Idol-not their pearly Scepters' glory, 20
 But know themselves set on a lofty story
 For all the World to see and censure too :
 So not their lust, but what is just they do.
 But, 'tis a hell, in hatefull vassallage,
 Under a Tyrant to consume one's age :
 A self-shav'n Dennis, or a Nero fell,
 Whose curs'd Courts with bloud and incest swell :
 An Owle that flies the light of Parliaments
 And State-assemblies ; jealous of the intents
 Of private tongues ; who (for a pastime) sets 30
 His Peers at oddes ; and on their fury whets :

Who neither faith, honour, nor right respects :
 Who every day new Officers erects :
 Who brooks no learned, wise, nor vallant subjects,
 But dally crops such vice-upbraiding objects,
 Who (worse then Beasts, or savage monsters been)
 Spares neither mother, brother, kiff, nor kin :
 Who, though round-fenc't with guard of arm'd Knights
 A-many moe he fears, then he affrights :
 Who taxes strange extorts ; and (Caniball) 40
 Gnawes to the bones his wretched Subjects all.

Print (O Heav'n's King!) in our King's heart seal,
 First, of thy lawes ; then of their publick weal :
 And if our Country's now-Po-poysoned phrase,
 Or now-contagion of corrupted dayes
 Leave any tract of Nimrodizing there ;
 O! cancell it, that they may every where,
 In stead of Babel, build Jerusalem ;
 That loud my Muse may eccho under them.

YER Nimrod had attain'd to twice six years,
 He tyrannis'd among his stripping-peers,
 Out-strip't his equals, and in happy houre,
 Layd the foundations of his after-pow'r ;
 And, bearing reeds for Scepters, first he reigns
 In Prentice-Princedom over Sheep-heard Swains.

Then, knowing well, that whoso aymes (illuster)
 At fancied bliss of Empire's awfull lustre ;
 In valiant acts must passe the Vulgar sort,
 Or Mask (at least) in lovely Vertue's Port :
 He spends not night on beds of down or feathers, 60
 Nor day in tents, but hardens to all weathers,
 His youthfull limbs : and takes ambitiously
 A Rock for Pillow, Heav'n for Canapey :

A Prayer fitted to the former discourse, and giving entry to that which followeth.

Nimrod's exercises and essayes to make himselfe Master of the rest.

In stead of softlings jests, and jollities,
 He joyes in Jousts, and manly exercise :
 His dainty cates, a fat Kid's trembling flesh,
 Scarce fully slain, luke-warm and bleeding fresh.

Perseverance in painfull and laborious exercises of Nimrod
 grown gracious
 with the people.

Then with one breath, he striveth to attain,
 A Mountain's top, that over-peers the Plain ;
 Against the stream to cleave the rowling ridges 70
Of Nymph-strong floods, that have born down their bridges,

Running unrein'd wth swift-rebounding sallies,
 A-crosse the rocks within the narrow vallies ;
 To overtake the dart himselfe did throwe,
 And in plain course to catch the Hinde or Roe.

But when five lustres of his age expir'd,
 Feeling his stomach and his strength aspir'd
 To worthier wars, perceiv'd he any-where,
 Boar, Leopard, Lyon, Tiger, Ounse, or Beare, 80
 Him dread-lesse combats ; and in combat foyle,
 And rears high Trophies of his bloody spoyle.

The people, seeing by his war-like deed
 From theeves and robbers every passage freed ;
 From hideous yels, the Desarts round about ;
 From fear, their flocks ; this monster-master stout,
 This Hercules, this hammer-ill, they tender,
 And call him (all) their Father and Defender.

He abandons his first petty Chase, and hunteth willier for a more precious Prey.

Then Nimrod (snatching Fortune by the tresses)
 Strikes the hot steel ; sees, sooths, importunes, presses
 Now these, then those, and (hastning his good Hap) 90
 Leaves hunting Beasts, and hunteth Men to trap.

For, like as he, in former quests did use
 Cals, pit-fals, toyls, sprenges, and baits and giews :
 And (in the end) against the wilder game,
 Clubs, darts, & shafts, & swords, their rage to tame :
 So, some he wins with promise-full intreats,
 With presents some, & some with rougher threats :
 And boldly (breaking bounds of equity)
 Usurps the Child-World's maiden Monarchy ;
 Whereas before each kindred had for guide 100
 Their proper Chief, yer that the youthfull pride
 Of upstart State, ambitious, boyling sickle,
 Did thrust (as now) in others' corn his sickle.

In-thesis'd thus, this Tyrant 'gaa devise
 To perpetrate a thousand cruelties,
 Pel-mel subverting for his appetite
 God's, Man's, and Nature's triple sacred Right.
 He braves th' Almighty, lifting to his nose
 His flowering Scepter : and for fear he lose
 The people's aw ; who (idle) in the end 110
 Might slip their yoke ; he subtle makes them spend,
 Drawes dry their wealth, and busies them to build
 A lofty Towr, or rather Atlas wilde.

Tyrannicall rule of Nimrod & his proud enterprize.

W' have liv'd (quoth he) too-long like pilgrim Grooms :
 Leave we these rowling tents, & wandring rooms :
 Let's raise a Palace, whose proud front and feet
 With Heav'n and Hell may in an instant meet ;
 A sure Asylum and a safe retreat,
 If th' irefull storm of yet-more Floods should threat :
 Let's found a City, and, united there, 120
 Under a King let's lead our lives ; for fear

Lest sever'd thus, in Princes and in Tents,
 We be disperst o'r all the Regiments,
 That in his course the daye's bright Champion eyes,
 Might-lesse our selves to succour, or advise.
 But, if the fire of some intestine war,
 Or other mischief should divide us far,
 Brethren (at least) let's leave memorials
 Of our great names on these cloud-neighbouring wals.

Now, as a spark, that Shepheards (unespi'd) 130
 Have fain by chance upon a Forrest side,
 Among dry leaves ; a-while in secret shrowds,
 Lifting a-loft small, smoaky-waving clouds,
 Till fanned by the fawning windes it blushes,
 With angry rage ; and rising through the bushes,
 Climbs fragrant Hawthorns, thence the Oak, & then
 The Pine and Firre, that bridge the Ocean :
 It still gets ground, and (running) doth augment
 And never leaves till all near Woods be brent :
 So, this sweet speech (first broacht by certain Minions) 140

A comparison,
 shewing lively the efficacy of the attempts of Tyrants, the Rods of God's righteous vengeance upon un-
 godly people.

Is soon applauded 'mong the light opinions ;
 And by degrees from hand to hand renu'd,
 To all the base confus'd multitude ;
 Who, longing now to see this Castle rear'd,
 Them night and day, in diff'ring crafts bestirr'd.
 Some fall to felling with a thousand stroaks
 Adventurous Alders, Ashes, long-liv'd Oaks ;
 Degrading Forrests, that the Sun might view
 Fields that, before, his bright rayes never knew.

Ha' ye seen a Town expos'd to spoyl & slaughter 150
 (At Victors' pleasure) where laments and laughter
 Mirtly resound ; some carry, some convey,
 Some lug, some load ; 'gainst Souldiers seeking Prey
 No place is sure, and yer a day be done,
 Out at her gate the ransack't Town doth run :
 So (in a trice) these Carpenters dis-robe
 Th' Assyrian hills of all their leafe robe,
 Strip the steep Mountains of their ghastly shades,
 And powe the broad Plains, of their branchy glades :
 Carts, Sleds, and Mules, thick justling meet abroad, 160
 And bending axles groan beneath their Load.

Lively Description of the people occupied in some great business.

Here, for hard Cement, heap they night and day
 The gummy slime of chalkie waters gray :
 There, busie Kil-men ply their occupations
 For brick and tyle : there for their firm foundations,
 They dig to Hell ; and damn'd Ghosts again
 (Past hope) behold the Sun's bright glorious wain :
 Their hammers' noyse, through Heav'n's rebounding
 brim,

Affrights the Fish that in fair Tygris swim.
 These ruddy wals in height, and compass grow ; 170
 They cast long shadows, and far-off do show ;
 All swarms with work-men, that (poor sots) surmise
 Even the first day to touch the very skies.

Which, God perceiving, bending wrathfull frowns,
 And with a noyse that roaring thunder drowns ;
 'Mid cloudy fields, hills by the roots he rakes,
 And th' unmov'd hinges of the Heav'ns he shakes.

God displeas'd with the audacious enterprize of Nimrod and his, resolveth to break their Designes by confounding their Language.

	See, see (quoth he) these dust-spawn, feeble dwarfs, See their huge Castles, Walls, and Counter-scarfs : O strength-full peece, impregnable ! and sure	180
	All my just anger's batt'ries to endure ! I swore to them, the fruitfull Earth, no more Hence-forth should fear the raging Ocean's roar ; Yet build they Towns : I will'd that scattered wide They should go mann the World ; and lo they bide Self-primed here : I meant to be their Master, My self alone, their Law, their Prince, and Pastor ; And they, for Lord a Tyrant fell have ta'en-them ; Who (to their cost) will roughly curb & rein-them ; Who scorns mine arm, & w th these braving Towns	190
	Attempts to scale this Crystall Throne of Ours. Come, come, let's dash their drift ; & sith combin'd As well in voyce, as bloud, and law, and minde, In ill they harden, and with language bold, Incourage-on themselves their worke to hold, Let's cast a let 'gainst their quick diligence ; Let's strike them straight with spirit of difference ; Let's all confound their speech : let's make the Brother, The Sire, and Son, not understand each other.
Execution of God's decree.	This said, as soon confusedly did bound Through all the worke I wot not what strange sound, A jangling noyse ; not much unlike the rumors Of Bacchus Swains amid their drunken humors ; Some speak between the teeth, some in the nose, Some in the throat their words doe all dispose, Some howl, some halloo, some do stut and strain ; Each hath his gibb'rish, and all strive in vain To finde again their know'n beloved tongue, That with their milk they suckt in cradle young.	200
A fit comparison.	Arise betimes, while th' Opal -colour'd Morn, In golden pomp doth May-daye's door adorn : And patient heare th' all-differing voyces sweet Of painted Singers that in groves do greet Their Love-Bon-jours , each in his phrase & fashion From trembling Pearch uttering his earnest passion ; And so thou mayst conceit what mingle-mangle Among this people every where did jangle. Bring me (quoth one) a trowell, quickly, quick ; One brings him up a hammer : hew this brick (Another bids) and then they cleave a Tree : Make fast this rope, and then they let it flee :	210
	One calls for planks, another mortar lacks ; They bear the first, a stone ; the last, an ax : One would have spikes, and him a spade they give : Another asks a saw, and gets a sieve : Thus crosly-crost, they prate and point in vaine ; What one hath made, another mars again : Nigh breathlesse all, with their confused yawling, In boot-lesse labour now begins appawling.	220
Another elegant comparison shew- ing that there is no counsell, no en- devour, no dili- gence, no might nor multitude that can resist God.	In brief, as those, that in some channell deep, Begin to build a Bridge with Arches steep, Perceiving once (in thousand streams extending) The course-chang'd River from the hills descending, With watry Mountains bearing down their Bay, As if it scorn'd such bondage to obey ;	230
	Abandon quickly all their work begun, And here and there for swifter safety run : These Masons so, seeing the storm arriv'd Of God's just Wrath, all weak and heart-depriv'd, Forsake their purpose, and, like frantick fools, Scatter their stuffe, and tumble down their tools.	240
	O proud revolt ! O traiterous felony ! See in what sort the Lord hath punisht thee By this Confusion : Ah ! that language sweet, Sure bond of Cities, friendship's mastick meet, Strong curb of anger yerst united, now In thousand dry Brooks strays, I wot not how : That rare-rich gold, that charm-grief fancy-mover, That calm-rage heart's-thief, quel-pride conjure-lover : That purest coyn, then current in each coast, Now mingled, hath sound, weight, and colour lost, 'Tis counterfeit : and over every shore The confus'd fall of Babel yet doth roar.	250	Discommodities proceeding from the confusion of Tongues.
	Then, Finland -folk might visit Africa , The Spaniard Inde , and ours America , Without a truch-man : now, the banks that bound Our Towns about, our tongues doe also mound : For who from home but halfe a furlong goes, As dumb (alas !) his Reason's tool doth lose : Or if we talk but with our neer confines,	260
	We borrow mouthes, or else we worke by signes. Un-toyld, un-tutord, sucking tender food, We learn'd a language all men understood ; And (seav'n-years old) in glasse-dust did commence To draw the round Earth's fair circumference ; To cipher well, and climbing Art by Art, We reacht betimes that Castle's highest part, Where th' Encyclopedie her darling crowns, In signe of conquest, with etern renowns.
	Now (ever-boys) we wex old while we seek The Hebrew tongue, the Latin, and the Greek ; We can but babble, and for knowledge whole Of Nature's secrets, and of th' Essence sole— Which Essence gives to all,—we tire our minds To vary Verbs, and finest words to finde : Our letters and our syllables to weigh : At Tutors' lips we hang with heads all gray, Who teach us yet to read, and give us (raw) An A. B. C. for great Justinian's law, Hippocrates , or that Diviner love	270
	Where God appears to whom him right adore. What shall I more say ? Then, all spake the speech Of God himself : th' old sacred Idiom rich, Rich perfect language, where's no point, nor signe, But hides some rare deep mystery divine ; But since that pride, each people hath a-part A bastard gibberish, harsh, and over-thwart ; Which dayly chang'd, and loosing light, wel-neer Nothing retains of that first language cleer.	280
	The Phrygians once, and that renown'd Nation Fed with fair Nilus' fruitfull inundation, Longing to know their Language's priority, Fondly impos'd the censuring authority	290	The Hebrew Tongue in all Mans mouthes be- fore the confusion of Languages.
			A conclusion tried whereby appear- eth that children are naturally apt to learn to speak not able of themselves to speak without example.

To silly Judges, voyd of judging sense
(Dumb stammerers to treat of Eloquence)
To wit, two Infants nurs'd by Mothers dumb,
In silent Cels, where never noyse should come
Of charming humane voyce, to echo there,
Till triple-twelve months full expired were.
Then brought before the Memphians, and the men 300
That dwell at Zant, the faint-breath'd children,
Cry often Bek; Bek, Bek is all the words
That their tongue forms, or their dumb mouth affords.
Then Phrygians, knowing, that in Phrygian
Bek meaneth bread, much to rejoyce began,
Glad that kinde Nature had now grac't them so,
To grant this Sentence on their side to go.

Fools which perceiv'd not, that the bleating flocks
W^{ch} powl'd the neighbour Mountains' motly locks
Had taught this tearm, and that no tearms of Rome, 310
Greece, Egypt, England, France, Troy, Jewry, come,
Come born with us : but every Countrie's tongue
Is learnt by much use, and frequenting long.
Ouely we have peculiar to our race,
Aptnesse to speak ; as that same other grace
Which, richly-divers, makes us differ more
From dull, dumb wretches that in desarts roar.

Answer to the objection taken from the confused voyce of Beasts.

Now, that buls bellow (if that any say)
That Lyons roar, and sloathfull Asses bray,
Now low, now loud ; and by such languages 320
Distinctly seem to shew their courages :
Those are not words, but bare expressions
Of violent fits of certain passions :
Confused signes of sorrow, or annoy,
Of hunger, thirst, of anger, love, or joy.

To another Objection, of the chirping of Birds.

And so I say of all the winged quiers,
Which mornly warble, on green trembling briers,
Ear-tickling tunes : for, though they seem to prattle
A-part by payrs, and three to three to tattle ;
To winds their voyce a hundred thousand wayes, 330
In curious descant of a thousand layes :
T' have taught Apollo, in their School, his skill ;
Their sounds want sense ; their notes are word-lesse still :

Their song, repeated thousand times a-day,
As dumb discourse, flies in the Woods away.

Advantage of Man endued with Reason above the rest of the Creatures.

But onely Man can talke of his Creator,
Of Heav'n and Earth, and Fire, and Ayr, and Water,
Of Justice, Temperance, Wisedome, Fortitude,
In choice sweet tearms, that various sense include.
And not in one sole tongue his thoughts dis-sunder ; 340

Josephus Scalliger, skillfull in thirtene Languages.

But like to Scalliger, our age's wonder,
The Learned's Sun : who eloquently can,
Speak Spanish, French, Italian, Nubian,
Dutch, Chaldee, Syriak, English, Arabik,
(Besides) the Persian, Hebrew, Latin, Greek.
O rich quick spirit ! O wit's Chameleon !
Which any Author's colour can put on :
Great Julius Son, and Sylvius worthy brother,
Th' immortal grace of Gascony, their mother.

Answer to a third objection touch-

And, as for jayes, that in their wyerie gail 350
Can ask for victuals, and unvictual'd rail ;

Who, daring us for eloquence's meed,
Can plain pronounce the holy Christian Creed,
Say the Lord's prayer, and oft repeat it all,
And name by name a good great household call :
Th' are like that voyce, which (by our voyce begot)
From hollow vale babbles it wots not what :
In vain the ayr they beat, it vainly cleaving,
And dumbly speak, their own speech not conceiving Parot-resembling Echo, and speaking without speech.

ing,
Deaf to themselves : for speech is nothing (sure) 360
But th' unseen soule's resounding portraiture :
And chiefly when 'tis short, sweet, painted-plain,
As it was all, yer that rough hunter's raigu.

Now when I note, how th' Hebrew brevity,
Even with few words expresseth happily
Deepest conceits ; and leads the hearing part
Through all the closets of the mary heart :
Better then Greek with her Synonims's
Fit Epithets, and fine Melaphors's,
Her apt Conjunctions, Tenses, Moods, and Cases, 370
And many other much esteem'd graces.

The Hebrew tongue the principall.

First reason.

When I remember how the Rabbins fet
Out of the sacred Hebrew Alphabet

Second reason.

All that our faith beleeves, or eyes behold ;
That in the Law the Arts are all inrold :
Whether (with curious pain) we doe transport
Her letters turn'd in many-various sort
Her letters turn'd in many-various sort
(For, as in ciphering, th' onely transportation
Of figures, still varies their valuation :
So th' Anagram strengthens or slacks a name, 380
Giving a secret twist unto the same :)

Simile.

Or whether we (even as in grosse) bestowing
The numbers, which, from one word's letters flowing,
Unfold a secret ; and that word again
Another of like number doth contain :
Whether one letter for a word be put ;
Or all a sentence in one word be shut :
As Egypt's silence seal'd-up (mysterious)
In one Character a long sentence serious.

When I observe, that from the Indian Dawning, 390
Even to our Irish Etna's fiery yawning ;

Third Reason.

And from hot Tambut, to the Sea Tartarian,
Thou seest (O Sun !) no Nation so barbarian :
Nor ignorant in all the Lawes divine,
But yet retains some terms of Palestine ;
Whose Elements (how-so disguis'd) draw-nigh
The sacred names of th' old Orthography.

When I consider that God's ancient Will
Was first enrowld by an Hebrew quill :
That never Vrim, Dream, or Vision sung 400
Their Oracles, but all in Isaak's tongue ;
That in the same, the Lord himselfe did draw
Upon two Tables his eternall Law :
And that (long since) in Sion's Languages,
His Heav'nly Postes brought down his messages.

Fourth reason.

And (to conclude) when I conceive, how then
They gave not idle, casual names to men,
But such as (rich in sense) before the event,
Markt in their lives some speciall accident ;

Fifth reason.

	And yet, we see that all those words of old Of Hebrew still the sound and sense do hold. For Adam (meaneth) made of clay : his wife Eva (translated) signifieth life : Cain first begot, Abel , as vain, and Seth Put in his place ; and he that, underneath The generall Deluge, saw the World distrest, In true interpretation, soundeth Rest. To th' Hebrew Tongue (how-ever Greece doe grudge) The sacred right of Eldership I judge.	410	Or whether else God's liberall hand for ever (As it were) meeting holy men's indeavour, For his owne sake, of his free grace and pleasure, To th' Hebrew race deposited this treasure ; While the proud remnant of those scattered Masons Had falsed it in hundred thousand fashions, When every one, where fate him call'd, flew, Bearing new words into his Country new. But slipp'ry Time, enviously wasting all, Disgur'd soon those Tongues authentically, Which 'mid the Babel builders' thunder, bred On Tigris ' banks, o're all the Earth were spread :	470	A sub-division of the Languages first divided.
Praise of the Hebrew tongue, Mother and Queene of all the rest.	All hail, therefore, O sempiternall spring Of spirituall pictures ! speech of Heav'n's high King, Mother and Mistresse of all Tongues the Prime ; Which (pure) hast past such vast deep gulfs of Time ; Which hast no word but weighs, whose Elements Flow with hid sense, thy points with Sacraments. O sacred Dialect ! in thee the names Of Men, Towns, Countries register their fames In brief abridgements : and the names of Birds, Of Water-guests, and Forrest-haunting Heardes, Are open Books where every man might read Their nature's story ; till th' Heav'n-shaker dread, In his just wrath the flaming sword had set, The passage into Paradise to let.	430	Each Language alters, either by occasion Of trade, which (causing mutual commutation Of th' Earth's and Ocean wares) with hardy luck Doth words for words barter, exchange and truck : Or else, because Fame-thirsting wits, that toy In golden teares to trick their gracious stile, With new-found beauties pranck each circumstance Or (at the least) doe new-coyn'd words inbanche With current freedom : and again restore Th' old, rusty, mouldy, worm-gnaw'd words of yore.	480	Whereof proceed the sundry changes in one selfe same Language.
Adam gave Hebrew names to all the Crea- tures.	For, Adam then (in signe of mast'ry) giving Peculiar names unto all creatures living, When in a generall muster rang'd right, They marcht by couples in his awfull sight, He fram'd them so fit, that learn'd ears Bearing the soule the sound, the marvalls bears, Wherewith th' All-forming voyce adorn'd fair Th' inhabitants of Sea, and Earth and Ayre. And, for each body acts, or suffers ought, Having made Nouns, his Verbs he also wrought : And then, the more t' enrich his speech, he brings Small particles, which stand in lieu of strings, The master members fitly to combine (As two great boards, a little glew doth joyn) And serve as plumes, which ever-dancing light Deck the proud crests of helmets burnisht bright : Fringes to mantles ; ears, and rings to vessels : To marble statues, bases, feet and tressels.	440	For, as in Forrests, leaves do fall and spring : Even so the words, which whilom flourishing, In sweet Orations shin'd with pleasing lustre (Like snow-white Lillies in a fresh green pasture) Passe now no more ; but, banisht from the Court, Dwell with disgrace among the Country sort : And those, which Eld's strict doom did disallow, And damn for bullion, go for current now. A happy wit, with gracious judgement joya'd, May give a passport to the words new-coyn'd In his owne shop : also adopt the strange : Ingraft the wilde : enriching, with such change His powerfull stile ; and with such sundry amwell Painting his phrase, his Prose or Verse enamell.	500	Simile. The liberty of a witty, learned and judicious Writer.
He enriched the Language with the composition of Verbs and Clauses.	This (Adam's language) pure persisted since, Till th' yron Age of that cloud-climbing Prince ; Resounding onely, through all mortal tents, The peer-lesse accents of rich eloquence ; But then (as partiall) it itself retir'd To Heber's house : whether, of the conspir'd Rebels, he were not ; but in sober quiet, Dwelt far from Shinar , and their furious ryot : Or whether, thither by compulsion brought, With secret sighes he oft his God besought, So with unwilling hands helping to make The wals be wisht deep sunk in Syngian Lake : As wretched Galley-slaves (beating the Seas With forc'd oars, fighting against their ease And liberty) curse in their griev'd spright, Those, for whose sake they labour day and night ;	450	One language hath no law but use : and still Runs blinde, unbridled, at the Vulgar's will. Another's course is curiously inclos'd In lists of Art ; of choyce fit words compos'd. One, in the feeble birth, becomming old, Is cradle-toomb'd : another warreth bold With the yeer-spinners. One, unhappy-founded, Lives in a narrow valley ever bounded : Another 'mong the learn'd troop doth presse From Alexander's Altars, even to Fes . And such are now, the Hebrew , Greek , and Latin : Th' Hebrew , because of it we hold the Paten Of Thrice-Eternal's ever sacred Word : And of his Law, That is the first Record. The Greek , as having cunningly compris'd All kinde of knowledge that may be devis'd. And manly Roman , sith the sword undaunted Through all the world her eloquence hath planted. Writing these later lines, weary wel-aeer Of sacred Pallas ' pleasing labours deer ;	500	Excellency of the Hebrew , Greek , and Latin Tongues above the rest.
The Hebrew Tongue continued from Adam to the time of Nimrod : Since when it rested in the house of Heber , of whom it is called Hebrew.	Similar.

David.

Mine humble chin saluteth oft my brest ;
 With an Ambrosial dew mine eyes possess
 By peece-meal close ; all-moving powrs be still ;
 From my dull-fingers drops my fainting quill ;
 Down in my sloath-lov'd bed again I shrink,
 And in dark Lethe all deep cares I sink :
 Yea all my cares, except a zeal to len
 A gainfull pleasure to my Countrymen.
 For, th' holy love's-charm, burning for their sake,
 When I am sleeping, keeps my soule awake.
 Gold-winged Morpheus, East-ward issuing
 By 's crystall gate (it earlier opening
 Then daye's bright door) fantastick leads the way
 Down to a vale, where moist-cool night and day
 Still calms and storms, keen cold, & sultry smother,
 Rain, and fair weather follow not each other ;
 But May still raigns, and rose-crown'd Zephyrus,
 With wanton sighs, makes the green trees to buss.
 Whose whispering boughs, in Ovall form, do fence
 This flowrie field's delightfull excellence.
 Just in the midst of this enameld vale
 Rose a huge Rock, cut like a Pedestall ;
 And on the Cornich a Colossus stands
 Of during brass, which beareth in his hands
 Both fire and water : from his golden tongue
 Grow thousand chains, which all the mead a-long
 Draw worlds of hearers with alluring Art,
 Bound fast by th' ears, but faster by the heart.
 Before his feet, Boars, Bears, and Tigers lie
 As meek as Lambs, reclaim'd from crueltie.
 Neer hills do hop, and neighbour Forrests bound,
 Seeming to dance at his sweet voyce's sound.
 Of Carian pillars rais'd with curious Art
 On bases firm, a double row doth girt
 The soule-charm Image of sweet Eloquence :
 And these fair Piles (with great magnificence)
 Bear, foure by foure, one of the Tongues which now
 Our learned Age for fairest doth allow.
 Now, 'mong the Heav'n-deer spirits supporting here
 The Hebrew tongue, that Prince whose brows appear
 Like daunt-Earth Comet's Heav'n-adorning brand,
 Who holds a green-dry, withr'd-springing wand.
 And in his arms the sacred Register
 Of God's eternall ten-fold Law doth bear :
 Is Israel's guide : first Author, he that first
 Unto his heirs his writings offer durst :
 Whose hallowed Pages not alone precede
 All Grecian Writ, but every Grecian Deed.
David's the next, who, with the melody
 Of voyce-matcht fingers, draws spehar's harmony,
 To his Heav'n-tuned harp, which shall resound
 While the bright day-star rides his glorious Round :
 Yea (happily) when both the whirling Poles
 Shall cease their Galliard, th' ever-blesséd soules
 Of Christ his chápions (cheer'd wth his sweet songs)
 Shall dance to th' honour of the Strong of strongs ;
 And all the Angels glory-wingéd Hostes
 Sing Holy, Holy, Holy, God of Hoastes.

The third, his Son, wit-wondrous Salomon,
 Who in his lines hath more wise lessons sow'n,
 More golden words, then in his Crown there shin'd
 Pearls, Diamonds, and other Gemms of Inde.
 Then, Amos' son, in threatnings vehement,
 Grace-followed, grave, holy, and eloquent.
 Sweet-numbered Homer here the Greek supports,
 Whose Schoole hath bred the many-differing sorts
 Of ancient sages ; and, through every Realm,
 Made (like a Sea) his eloquence to stream :
Plato, the all-divine, who like the Fowl
 (They call) of Paradise ; doth never foul
 His foot on Earth or Sea, but lofty flies
 Higher then Heav'n from Hell, above the skies :
 Cleer-styl'd Herodotus, and Demosthen,
 Gold-mouthéd hearts-king, law of learned men.
 Th' Arch-Foe to factious Catiline, and (since)
 To Anthony, whose thundring eloquence Yields thousand streames, whence (rapt in admiration)
 The rarest wits are drunk in every Nation :
Caesar, who knows as well to write, as war :
 The Sinnewie Salust ; and that Heav'n-fall'n star,
 Which straggling Ilium brings to Tiber's brink,
 Who never seems in all his Work to wink ;
 Who never stumbled, ever cleer and grave ;
 Bashfully-bold, and blushing modest-brave :
 Still like himselfe ; and else, still like to no-man :
 Sustain the stately, grave-sweet ancient Roman.
 On mirthfull Boccacc is the Tuscan plac't,
 Bold, choice-tearm'd Petrarch, in deep passions grac't :
 The fluent fainer of Orlando's error,
 Smooth, pithy, various, quick affection-sthrer :
 And witty Tasso, worthy to indite
 Heroik numbers, full of life and light :
 Short, sharp-conceited, rich in language cleer,
 Though last in age, in honour formost here.
 Th' Arabian language hath for pillars sound,
 Great Aben-Rois most subtile, and profound,
 Sharp Eldebag, and learned Avicen,
 And Ibnn-farid's Figure-flowing Pen.
 The Dutch, hath him who Germania's d the story
 Of Sleidan : next, th' Isleban (lasting glory
 Of Wittemberg) with Benceur gilding bright
 His pleasing stile : and Butric my delight.
Guevarra, Boscan, and Granada, which sup
 With Garcilace, in hony Pytho's cup
 The smiling Nectar, bear th' Hyberian :
 And, but th' old glory of the Catalan,
 Ravisht Oryas, he might well have claymed
 The Spanish Laurell, 'mong these lastly named.
 Now, for the French, that shape-less Column rude,
 Whence th' idle Mason hath but grosly hew'd
 (As yet) the rough scales from the upper part,
 Is Clement Marot ; who with Art-lesse Art
 Busily toyls : and, prickt with praise-full thirst,
 Brings Helicon, from Po to Quercy first :
 Whom, as a time-torn Monument I honour :
 Or as a broken Toomb : or tattered Banner :

Or age-worn Image : not so much for show,
As for the reverence that to Eld I owe.

The next I know not well ; yet (at the least)
He seems some skilfull Master with the rest :
Yet doubt I still. For now it doth appear
Like Jagues Amyot, then like Viginere.

Amyot.
Ronsard.

That is, great Ronsard, who his France to garnish,
Robs Rome and Greece, of their Art-various varnish ;
And, hardy-witted, handleth happily 650
All sorts of subject, stile, and Poësie.

Plessis.

And this du Plessis, beating Atheisme,
Vain Paganisme, and stubborn Judaisme,
With their own Armes : and sacred-grave, & short,
His plain-prankt stile he strengthens in such sort,
That his quick reasons, wing'd with Grace and Art,
Pierce like keen arrowes, every gentle heart.

Ninthly,
The English,

by

Sir Thomas

Moore.

Sir Nilas Bacon.

Sir Philip

Sidney :

Our English Tongue three famous Knights sustain ;
Moore, Bacon, Sidney : of which former, twain
(High Chancellors of England) weaned first 660
Our infant-phrase (till then but homely nurst)
Our childish toys : and rudeness chasing thence,
To civill knowledge, joy'n'd sweet eloquence,
And (world-mour'd) Sidney, warbling to the Thames
His swan-like tunes, so courts her ooy proud streams,
That (all with-child with Fame) his fame they bear
To Thetis' lap ; and Thetis every-where.

But, what new Sun dasles my tender eyes ?
What sudden transe rapt me above the skies ?
What Princely Port ? O ! what imperiall grace ? 670
What sweet-bright-lightning looks ? what Angel's face ?

And the incomparable Queen
Elizabeth.

Say (learned Heav'n-born Sisters) is not this
That prudent Pallas, Albion's Misteris,
That Great Elisa, making hers disdain,
For any Man, to change their Maiden's reign ?
Who while Erynnys (weary now of hell)
With Fire and Sword her neighbour States doth quell.

And while black Horror threats in stormy rage,
With dreadful down-fall, th' universall stage ;
In happy Peace her Land doth keep and nourish : 680
Where reverend Justice, and Religion flourish.
Who is not onely in her Mother-voyce
Rich in Oration ; but with phrases choysse,
So on the sudden can discourse in Greek,
French, Latin, Tuscan, Dutch, and Spanish eke,
That Rome, Rhyme, Rhone, Greece, Spain, and Italy,
Plead all for right in her nativitie.

Her Prudence,
Piety, Justice,
Religion, Learning and Eloquence.

Bright Northren pearl, Mars-daunting Martialist,
To grace the Muses and the Arts persist :
And (O !) if ever these rude rymes be blest 690
But with one glance of Nature's onely Best ;
Or (luckie) light between those Yvory palms,
Which hold thy State's stern in these happy calms ;
View them with milde aspect, and gently read,
That for thy praise, thine eloquence we need.

Then thus I speake ; O spirits divine and learned,
Whose happy labours have your lauds eterned ;
O ! sith I am not apt (alas !) nor able
With you to bear the burthen honourable
Of Albion's Fame, nor with my feeble sight, 700
So much as follow your Heav'n-neighbouring flight ;
At least permit me, prostrate to embrace
Your reverend knees : permit me to inchase
Your radiant crests with April's flowry Crown ;
Permit (I pray) that from your high renown,
My feeble tunes eternall fames derive ;
While in my songs your glorious names survive.

Granting my suit, each of them bow'd his head.
The valley vanisht, and the pillars fled :
And there-with-all, my Dream had flow'n (I think) 710
But that I lim'd his limber wings with ink.

End of the Vision.

The Colonies.

THE THIRD PART OF THE SECOND DAY OF THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*To stop Ambition, Strife, and Avarice,
Into Three Parts the Earth divided is:
To Sem the East, to Cham the South, the West
To Japheth falls; their severall scopas express:
Their fruitfull Spawn did all the World supply:
Antiquitie's uncertaint Search, and why:
Assyria sceptred first; and first imparts,
To all the rest, Wealth, Honour, Arms, and Arts:
The New-found World: Men's divers humours strange: 10
The various World a mutuall Counter-change.*

Being here to in-treat of the Transmigration of so many Nations, issued out of the loyns of Noah, our Poet desireth to be addressed by some speciall favour of God.

WHile through the World's unhanted wilderness
I, th' old, first Pilot's wandring House address:
While (Famous DRAKE-like) coasting every strand
I do discover many a New-found-Land:
And while, from Sea to Sea, with curious pain
I plant great Noah's plenteous Vine again:
What bright-brown cloud shall in the day protect me?
What fiery Pillar shall by Night direct me
Toward each People's primer Residence, 20
Predestin'd in the Court of Providence,
Yer our bi-sexéd Parents, free from sin,
In Eden did their double birth begin?
O sacred Lamp that went'st so brightly burning
Before the Sages, from the spicie Morning,
To shew th' Almighty Infant's humble Birth;
O! chace the thick clouds, drive the darknesse forth

Which blindeth me: that mine adventrous Rime,
Circling the World, may search out every clime.
For, though my Wits, in this long Voyage shift
From side to side; yet is my speciall drift,
My gentle Readers by the hand to bring
To that deer Babe, the Man-God, Christ, our King.

As WHEN the lowring Heav'ns with loudest raps
Through Forrests thril their roaring thunder-claps,
The shivering Fowls do suddenly forgo
Their nests and perches, fluttering to and fro
Through the dark ayr, and round about there rings
A whistling murmur of their whisking wings;
The grissell Turtles (seldome seen alone)

Dis-payer'd and parted, wander one by one;
And even the feeble downie-feathered Young
Venture to fly, before their quills be strong:
Even so, the Builders of that Babel-wonder,
Hearing God's voyce aloud to roar and thunder
In their rude voyces barbarous difference,
Take all at once their fearfull flight from thence
On either hand; and through th' Earth voidly-vast
Each packs a-part, where God would have him plac't.

For, heav'n's great Monarch (yer the World began) 50
Having decreed to give the World to man,
Would not the same a nest of theeves should be,
That with the Sword should share his Legacie;
And (brutely mixed) with mongrell stock to store
Our Elements, round, solid, slimy floar;
But rather, fire of Covetize to curb,
Into three Parts he parts this spacious Orb

30
The true, and onely drift of all his endeavours.

A comparison expressing the effect of the astonishment, which the confusion of Tongues brought into the Babel-Builders.

50
Why God would not that the seed of Noah should reside in the plain of Shynar.

The Earth distributed among the Sons of Noah.
To Sem the East.

'Twixt Sem, and Cham, and Japheth: Sem the East,
Cham South, and Japheth doth obtain the West.
That large rich Country, from Parasite shores
Where stately Ob, the King of Rivers, roars,
In Scythian Seas voyding his violent load,
But little lesse then six dayes sayling broad)
To Malaca: Moluques Iles, that bear
Cloves and Canele: well-tempered Sumater
Sub-equinoctiall: and the golden streams
Of Bismagar, and Zeilan, bearing gemms:
From th' Buxin Sea and surge of Chaldean Twins
To th' Anian Streight: the sloathfull slimy Fens
Where Quinsay stands: Chiorno, where Bals big
As Elephants are clad in silken shag,
Is great Sem's portion. For the Destinies
(Or rather Heav'n's immutable Decrees)
Assur ' Assyria send, that in short time
Chall and Rhesus to the clouds might climbe,
And Nisus (more famous then the rest)
Above them raise her many-towred Crest:
The sceptred Elam chose the Persian Hills,
And those fat fields that swift Araxis fills;
Lud, Lydia: Aram all Armenia had:
And Chalde fell to learnéd Arphasad.

To Cham the South.

Cham became Sovereigne over all those Realms
South-bounded round with Sun-burnt Guinne
Botangas, Benin, Cephal, Guaguametre,
Hot Concritan, too-full of poysonie matter;
North-ward with narrow Mid-terranean Sea,
Which from rich Europe parts poor Africa:
Towards where Titan's Evening splendor sank,
With Seas of Fes, Cape-verdel and Cape-blanc:
And tow'rd where Phoebus doth each Morning wake, go
With Adel Ocean and the Crimsin Lake.
And further, all that lyes between the steep
Mount Libanus, and the Arabian Deep,
Between the Erythrean Sea, and Persian Sine,
He (mighty Prince) to's Afrik State doth joyne.
His Darling Canaan doth nigh Jordan dwell
(One-day ordain'd to harbour Israel):
Put peopled Lybia: Misriam Egypt mann'd
And's first-born Chus the Ethiopian strand.

To Japheth the North and West.

Japheth extends from struggling Hellespont,
The Tane and Buxin Sea, to th' double Mount
Of famous Gibraltar, and that deep Main,
Whose tumbling billows bathe the shores of Spain:
And from those Seas, where in the steed of Keels
Of winged Ships they roule their Chariot wheels,
To the Marsilian, Morvan, and Thyrranian;
Ligurian Seas, and learned Sea Athenian,
Just opposite to Asia rich in Spice,
Pride of the World, and second Paradise:
And that large Country stretcht from Amana
To Tanais shores, and to the source of Rha.

Forth of his Gomer's loigns (they say) sprang all
The war-like Nation scattered over Gaul,
And Germains too (yerst calléd Gomerits):
From Tubal, Spaniards: and from Magog Scythes.

From Madai, Medes: from Mesech, Masacans:
From Javan, Greeks: from Thyras, Thracians.

Here, if I list, or lov'd I rover-shooting,
Or would I follow the uncertaine footing
Of false Berosus and such fond Deluders,
(Their zealous Readers insolent Illuders)
I could derive the lineall Descents
Of all our Sires; and name you every Prince
Of every Province, in his time and place
(Successfully) throught-out his ancient Race:
Yes, sing the World's so divers populations;
And of least Cities show the first Foundations.
But, never will I so my sayls abandon
To every blast, and rowing so at randon
(Without the bright light of that glorious Star,
Which shines 'bove all the Heav'ns) venture so far
On th' unknown surges of so vast a Sea
So full of Rocks and dangers every way;
Having no Pilot, save some brain-sick Writers
Which coyn King's names, vain fabulous Inditers
Of their own fancies who (affecting glory)
Upon a Flye's foot build a goodly story.

Some words' allusion is no certain ground
Whereon a lasting Monument to found:
Sith fairest Rivers, Mountains strangely steep,
And largest Seas, never so vast and deep
(Though self-eternal, resting still the same)
Through sundry chances often change their name:
Sith it befalls not alwayes, that his seed
Who builds a Town, doth in the same succeed;
And (to conclude) sith under Heav'n no Race
Perpetually possesseth any place;
But, as all Tenants at the High Lord's will,
We hold a Field, a Forrest, or a Hill;
And (as when winde the angry Ocean moves)
Wave hunteth wave, and billow billow shoves;
So doe all Nations juttle each the other,
And so one People doth pursue another;
And scarce the second hath a first un-housed,
Before a thurd him thence again have roused.

So, th' ancient Britain, by the Saxons chæc't
From's native Albion, soon the Gauls displac't
From Armonik; and then victoriously
(After his name) surnam'd that Britanie.

So when the Lombard had surrendered
Fair, double-named Isther's flowry-bed
To scar-fac't Hunnus; he hunteth furiously
The rest of Gauls from wealthy Insubrie;
Which after fell in French-men's hands again,
Won by the Sword of Worthy Charlemain.

So th' Alain and North Vandall, beaten both
From Corduba and Sevil by the Goths,
Sels'd Carthage straight; which-afterward they lost
To wise Justinian's valiant Roman Hoast:
And Romans since, joynd with the barbarous troop

Of curléd Moors, unto the Arabian stoop.
The sacrilegious greedy appetite
Of Gold and Scepters glistering glorious bright,

According to his accustomed modesty and discretion, the Poet chuseth rather Silence then to speak uncertainly of things unknowne.

Reasons why the search of such antiquities is so obscure.

Famous examples to this purpose. Of the ancient Britains.

Of the Lombards.

Of the Alains, Goths, and Vandals.

The causes of such Transmigrations.

The thirst of Vengeance, and that puffing breath
Of elvish Honour built on blood and death,
On desolation, rapes and robberies,
Flames, ruins, wracks, and British butcheries,
Un-bound all Countries, making war-like Nations
Through every Climate seek new habitations.

I speak not here of those Alarbian Rovers, 180
Nemidian Shepherds, or Tartarian Drovers,
Who shifting pastures for their store of Cattle ;
Doe here and there their hairy Tents imbattle :
Like the black swarms of Swallows swiftly-light,
Which twice a-year cross with their nimble flight
The Pine-plough'd Sea, & (pleas'd with pureat ayr)
Seek every Season for a fresh repair :
But other Nations fierce, who far and nigh
With their own blood's-price purchast Victory ;
Who, better knowing how to win then wield ; 190
Conquer, then keep ; to batter then to build ;
And bravely choosing rather War then Peace,
Have over-spread the World by Land and Seas.

Such was the Lombard, who in Schonland nurs'd,
On Rugeland and Livonia seiz'd first.
Then having well reveng'd on the Bulgarian
The death of Agismont, the bold Barbarian
Surpriseth Poland ; thence anon he presses
In Rhine's fair streams to rinse his Amber tresses ;
Thence turning back, he seats him in Moravia, 200
After, at Buda ; thence he posts to Pavia ;
There reigns two hundred years : triumphing so,
That royall Tesin might compare with Po.

Such was the Goth, who whilom issuing forth
From the cold, frozen Ilands of the North,
Incamp't by Vistula : but th' Air (almost)
Being there as cold as on the Baltick Coast,
He with victorious arms Sclavonia gains,
The Transylvanian and Vallackian Plains.
Thence plies to Thracia : and then (leaving Greeks) 210
Greedy of spoyl, foure times he bravely seeks
To snatch from Rome (then, Mars his Minion)
The Palms which she o'r all the World had won ;
Guided by Rhadaguis, and Alaric,
And Vidimarius, and Theodoric :
Then comes to Gaul : and thence repulst, his Legions
Rest ever since upon the Spanish Regions.

Such th' antik Gaul : who, roving every way,
As far as Phabus darts his golden ray,
Sets'd Italy ; the World's proud Mistress sackt, 220
Which rather Mars then Romulus compact :
Then pill'd Panonia : then with conquering ploughs
He furrows-up cold Strymon's slymie sloughs ;
Wastes Macedonia : and (inclyn'd to fleece)
Spare not to spoyl the greatest Gods of Greece :
Then (cloy'd with Europe) th' Hellespont he past,
And there Mount Ida's neighbour world did waste :
Spoyleth Pisidia : Myria doth intrhall :
And midst of Asia plants another Gaul.
Most famous People's dark Antiquity, 230
Is as a Wood : where bold Temerity

Stumbles each step ; and learn'd Diligence
It selfe intangles ; and blind Ignorance
(Groping about in such Cimmerian nights)
In pits and ponds, & bogges, and quag-mires lights.

It shall suffice me therefore (in this doubt)
But (as it were) to coast the same about :
And rightly tun'd unto the golden string,
Of Amram's Son, in gravest verse to sing,
That Sem, and Cham, and Japheth, each re-plants 240
Th' unpeopled World with new inhabitants :
And that again great Noah's wandring Boat
The second time o'r all the World did float.
Not that I send Sem, at one flight unceast,
From Babylon unto the farthest East,
Tartarian Chorae's silver waves t' essay,
And people China, Cambula, Cathay ;
Japheth to Spain ; and that profanest Cham,
To thirsty Countries Meder and Bigam,
To Cephala, upon Mount Zambrica, 250
And Cape of Hope, last coign of Africa.

For, as Hymetus and Mount Hybla were
Not over-spread and covered in one yeare
With busie Bees ; but yearly twice or thrice,
Each Hive supplying new-com Colonies
(Heav'n's tender Nurcelings) to those fragrant mountains,
At length their Rocks dissolv'd in Hony Foun-
tains :

Or rather as two fruitfull Elms that spread
Amidst a Cloase with brooks environ'd,
Ingender other Elms about their roots ; 260
Those, other still ; and still, new-springing shoots
So over-grow the ground, that in few years
The sometimes-mead a great thick Grove appears :
Ev'n so th' ambitious Babel-building rout,
Disperst, at first go seat themselves about
Mesopotamia : after (by degrees)
Their happy Spawn, in sundry Colonies,
Crossing from Sea to Sea, from Land to Land,
All the green-mantled neather Globe hath mann'd :
So that, except th' Almighty (glorious Judge 270
Of quick and dead) this World's ill daies abridge,
There shall no soyl so wilde and savage be,
But shall be shadowed by great Adam's Tree.

Therefore, those Countries nearest Tigris's Spring,
In those first ages were most flourishing,
Most spoken-of, first Warriors, first that guide,
And give the law to all the Earth beside.

Babylon (living under th' awfull grace
Of Royall greatnesse) sway'd the Imperiall Mace,
Before the Greeks had any Town at all, 280
Or warbling Lute had built the Dircean Wall :
Yer Gauls had houses, Latins Burgages,
Our Britains Tents, or German's Cottages.

The Hebrews had with Angels Conversation,
Held th' Idol-Altars in abomination,
Knew the Unknown, with eyes of faith they saw
Th' invisible Messias, in the Law :

Hee affirmeth
finally that the three sons of Noah peopled
the World, and sheweth how.

Of the ancient Gauls.

	The Chaldees , Audit of the Stars had made, Had measured heav'n, conceiv'd how th' earth's thick shade,
	Eclipt the silver brows of Cynthia bright, And her brown shadow quencht her brother's light.	290
	The Memphian Priests were deep Philosophers, And curious gazers on the sacred Stars, Searchers of Nature, and great Mathematikes ; Yer any Letter knew the ancient'st Atticks .
	Proud Egypt glistered all with golden Plate, Yer the lame Lemnian (under Atlas grate) Had hammer'd yron ; or the Vultur-rent Promethus , 'mong the Greeks had fire invented.
The Egyptians & Tyrrians had their fill of riches, and pomp, and pleasure, before the Greeks or Gauls knew what the World meant.	Gauls were not yet ; or, were they (at the least) They were but wilde ; their habit, plumes ; their feast, But Mast and Acorns, for the which they gap't Under the Trees when any winde had hapt : When the bold Tyrrians (greedy after gain) Durst row about the salt-blew Africk Main ; Traffickt abroad, in Scarlet Robes were drest, And pomp and pleasure Euphrates possess.	300
	For, as a stone, that midst a Pond ye fling, About his fall first forms a little ring, Wherein new Circles one in other growing	310
	(Through the smooth water's gentle-gentle flowing) Still one the other more and more compell From the Pond's Centre where the stone first fell ; Till at the last the largest of the Rounds From side to side 'gainst every bank rebounds : So, from th' Earth's Centre (which I here suppose About the place where God did Tongues transpose) Man (day by day his wit repolishing) Makes all the Arts through all the Earth to spring, As he doth spread, and shed in divers shoals	320
	His fruitful Spawn, round under both the Poles . Forth from Assyria , East-ward then they travell Towards rich Hytanis with the golden gravel : Then people they the Persian Orodus ; Then cleer Coaspis , which doth humbly kiss The Walls of Susa ; then the Valleys fat Neer Caucasus , where yerst th' Arxaces sat : Then mann they Media ; then with humane seed, Towards the Sea th' Hyrcanian Plain they speed.	330
The first Colonies of Scen in the East.	The Sons of these (like flowing Waters) spread O'r all the Country which is border'd With Chisel River, 'bove Thacalistan ; Gadel , and Cabul , Bedan , Balestan .	340
The second.	Their off-spring then, with fruitful stems doth store Basinagar , Nayard and either shore Of famous Ganges ; Ava Toloman , The Kingdome Mein , the Musky Charasan ; And round about the Desert Op , where oft By strange Phantasms 's, Passengers are scoft.	350
The third.	Some ages after, linkt in divers knots, Tipur they take, rich in Rhinoceros ; Caichin , in Aloes ; Mangit , and the shore Of Quins ' and Anie lets them spread no more.	360
The fourth.	From that first Centre to the West-ward bending, Old Noah 's Nephews far and wide extending,	370
First Colonies of Japheth in the West.	Seislesse Armenia , then, within Cilicia , Possesse the Ports of Tharnis and of Issaa , And the delicious strange Corycian Cave (Wh' warbling sound of Cymbals seems to have) Ibsia , Cappadocia , Taurus horns, Bythinia , Troas , and Maanders turns.	380
	Then passing Sestos ' Straights ; of Strymon cold, Herber and Nest they quaff ; and pitch their Fold In vales of Rhodop , and plow the Plains Where great Danubius neer his death oomplains.		The second.
	On th' other side, Thrace subtle Greece beswarms ; Greece , Italy (famous for Art and Arms) : Italy , France ; France , Spain , and Germany (Rhine 's fruitful bed) and our Great Britanny . On the other side it spreads about Moldavia , Mars-Maiour , Podolia , and Moravia , With Transilvania , Servia , and Pannonia ; The Prussian Plains, and over all Polonia : The verge of Vistula , and farther forth Beyond the Alman , drawing to the North.	390	The third divided into many branches.
	Now turn thee South-ward : see, see how Chaldea Spews on Arabia , Phanice and Judaa , Cham 's curs'd Line, which (over-fertill all) Between two Seas doth into Egypt fall : Sows all Cyrene , and the famous Coast Whereon the roaring Panick Sea is tost :	400	First Colonies of Cham , toward the South.
	Fes , Dara , Argier , Galate , Gusol , Aden , Terminan Tombut , Melle , Gago , Gogden : The sparkling Desarts of sad Libya , Zecac , Benin , Borno , Cano , Nubia , And scalding quick-sands of those thirsty Plains Where Jesus ' name (yet) in some reverence reigns ; Where Prester John (though part he Judaine) Doth in some sort devoutly Christianise .
	But would'st thou know, how that long Tract that lyes Under Heav'n's stary Coach, covered with yoe, And round embrac'd in the winding arms Of Cronias Seas (which Sol but seldome warms) Came peopled first? Suppose that passing by The Plains where Tigris twice keeps company With the far-flowing silver Euphrates , They lodg'd at foot of hoary Nyphates ; And from Armenia , then Iberia mann'd, Albania , Colchis , and Bosphorian strand :	410	Colonies of the North.
	And then from thence, toward the bright Levants , That vast Extent, where now fell Tertors ' hant In wandring troops ; and towards th' other side Which (neer her source) long Volga doth divide, Moscovy Coast, Permia , Livonia , Prussia , Biarmania , Scripna , White-Lake , Lappia , Russia .	420
	But whence (say you) had that New-World his Guests, Wh' Spain (like Delas floating on the Seas) Late digg'd from darkness of Oblivion's Grave, And it undoling, it new Essence gave? If long agoe ; how should it hap that no-man Knew it till now? no Persians , Greeks , no Roman ; Whose glorious Peers, victorious Armies guiding O'r all the World, of this had never tyding?	430	How the new- found World (discovered in our time) came peopled. A double ques- tion.

r. Answer.

If but of late ; how swarm their Cities since
 So full of Folk ? how passe their Monuments
 The Egyptian Spires, Mausolus' stately Tomb,
 The Walls and Courts of Babylon and Rome ?
 Why ! think ye (fond) those people fell from Heav'n
 All-ready-made ; as in a Summer Ev'n
 After a sweltring Day, some sultry showr 410
 Doth in the Marshes heaps of Tadpals pour,
 Wh^{ch} in the ditches (chapt with parching weather)
 Lie crusht and croaking in the Mud together ?
 Or else, that setting certain slips, that fixt
 Their slender roots the tender mould betwixt,
 They saw the light of Phabus' live-ning face ;
 Having for milk, moyst dewes ; for Cradle grasse ?
 Or that they grew out of the fruitfull Earth,
 As Toad-stools, Turneps, Leeks, & Beets have birth ?
 Or (like the bones that Cadmus yerst did sow) 420
 Were bravely born arméd from top to toe ?

That spacious Coast, now call'd America,
 Was not so soon peopled as Africa ;
 (Th' ingenious, Towr-full, and Law-loving Soil,
 Which, Yovs did with his Leman's name en-stile)
 And that which from cold Bosphorus doth spread
 To pearl'd Aurora's Saffron-colour'd bed.
 Because they lye neerer the di'pry verges
 Of tear-bridge Tygris, Swallow-swifter surges,
 Whence our amard first Grand-sires faintly fled, 430
 And, like sprung Partridge, every-where did spread ;
 Except that World, where-under Castile's King,
 Famous Columbus Force and Faith did bring.

But the rich buildings' rare magnificence,
 T' infinite Treasures, various governments,
 Show that long since (although at sundry times)
 'T had Colonies (although from sundry Climes) :
 Whether the violence of tempestuous weather
 Some broken Vessels have inforcéd thither ;
 Whether some desperate, dire extremity 440
 Of Plague, War, Famine ; or th' Authority
 Of some brave Typhis (in adventure tost)
 Brought weathy Carvels on that Indian Coast.

Conjectures touching the peopling of the same.

Who maketh doubt but yerst the Quinsey fraights
 As well might venture through the Anian Straights,
 And finde as easie and as short a way
 From the East Indies to the Tolguage Bay,
 As usually the Arian Ships are wont
 To passe to Greece, a-crosse the Hellerpont :
Spaniards to Fen, a-thwart the Straight Abilia, 450
 Through Messine stream th' Italians to Sicilia ?

From Tolm and Quiver's spacious Plains (wherein Bunch-backed Calves, with Horse-like manes are seen,

And Sheep-like Fleece) they fill Asaria,
Tova, Topir, Canada, Cosia,
Mecchi, Avacal, Calicmas, Bacalos,
Los Campos de Labor (where floods are frose).

Wonders of the New-found World.

On th' other side, Xalisco soyl they mann
 (Now new Galixia) Cusula, Mechuacan :
 And cunningly in Mexih Sea they pile 460
 Another Venice (or a City-Isle).

Strange things there see they (that amaze them much)
 Green Trees to wither with their very touch ;
 And in Nicaragua, a Mountain top,
 That (Aitna-like) bright Flashes belches up.
 Thench, reach they th' Isthmos of rich Panama,
 And on their right hand build Oucanama,
 With Cassamalca, Cusco, Quito : and
 In famous Peru's very golden Strand
 Admire the Lake that laveth Collo about, 470
 Whose waves be salt within, and fresh without :
 And streams of Cisca, that, with vertue strange,
 To hardest stone soft Mud and Chalk doth change.

Then Seiz they Chili, where all Day the Deep
 Runs roaring down, and all the Night doth sleep :
China, the Patagon, and all the shore
 Where th' Azure Seas of Magellan do roar.
 Left-ward they spred them 'longst the Darians'
 side ;

Where through th' Vrabian fields th' Huo doth slide,
 Neer Zenu's stream, wh^{ch} toward the Ocean drags 480
 Pure grains of Gold, as big as Pullets' eggs :
 To new Granada, where the Mount embost
 With Emeralds doth shine ; Cumanean Coast,
 Where noysom vapours (like a dusky night)
 Be-dimms their eyes, and doth impair their sight :
 Therefore some troops from Cumana they carry
 To Caripana, Omagu and Pari :
 By Maragnon, all over fell Brasile,
 And Platt's fat Plains, where flowes another Nile.

Ghesse too, that Grotland yerst did Picns store, 490
 And Ireland fraught Los Campos de Labor ;
 As Tombut, Melli, Gag, and Terminan,
 Planted the Plains and shores of Corican.

Yet (surely) thou wilt gladly grant me this,
 That man's ambition ay so boundlesse is,
 That steepest Hills it over-climbs with ease,
 And runs (as dry-shod) through the deepest Seas :
 And (maugre-meagre Thirst) her Carvels Lands
 On Africk, Tolmon, and Arabian sands ;
 But hardly credit't that one Family 500
 Out of foure couples should so multiply,
 That Asia, Europe, Africa, and All
 Seems for their off-spring now too straight & small.

How it was possible that Noah and his three Sons should so multiply.

It thou set-light by th' everlasting Voyce,
 Which now again re-blest the Love-full choyce 1. Answer.
 Of sacred Wedlock's secret binding band ;
 Saying, Increase, Flourish, and Fill the Land :

And if (profane) thou hold it for a Fiction,
 That Seventy Jewes, in Egypt (in affliction)
 Within foure-hundred years and half three-score, 510
 Grew to five-hundred-thousand soules and more :

Consider yet, that being fed that while
 With wholesome Fruits of an un-forcéd soyl,
 And kindly meats, not marr'd by the Book,
 And wanton cunning of a sawcie Cook ;
 Weigh furthermore, that being not cut-down
 With bloody swords when furious neighbours frown ;
 Nor worn with Travell, nor enfeebled
 With hateful sloath ; Our Grand-sires flourishéd

Hundreds of years in youth ; and even in Age 530
 Could render duly Venus Escuage :
 And that Polygamy (in those dayes common)
 Most Men usurping more then one sole Woman,
 Made then the World so mightily augment
 In upright Creatures ; and (incontinent)
 From fruitfull loyns of one old Father-stock,
 So many branches of man-kinde to flock :
 Ev'n as an ear of Corn (if all the yield
 Be yearly sow'n still in a fertill Field)
 Fills Barns at length ; and spreads in spacious Plain 530
 Millions of millions of like ears again.
 Or as two Fishes, cast into large Meers
 With fruitfull Spawn will furnish in few years
 A Town with victuall, and serve (furthermore)
 Their neighbour Waters with their Fry to store.
 Have not our Dayes a certain Father known,
 Who with the fruit of his own body grown,
 Peopled a Village of a hundred Fires,
 And issue-blest (the Crown of Old Desires)
 In his own life-time, his own off-spring saw 540
 To wed each other without breach of Law ?
 So far the branches of his fruitfull Bed
 Past all the names of Kinreds-Tree did spread.
 'Tis known, that few Arabian Families
 New planted Lybia with their Progenies,
 In compass of three hundred years and lesse ;
 And Bugi, Argier, Oran, Thunis, Ten,
Fex, Melli, Gago, Tombut, Terminan
 With hateful Laws of Heath'nish Alcoran.
 If this among the Africans we see 550
 Whom cor'sive humour of Melancholy
 Doth alwayes tickle with a wanton Lust,
 Although lesse powfull in the Paphian Joust
 For Propagation (for, too-often Deed
 Of Lou's-Delight, enfeebles much their seed :
 And inly, still they feel a Wintery Fever ;
 As outwardly, a scorching summer ever)
 Ghesse how much more, those, whose hoar heads approach
 And see the turnings of Heav'n's flaming Coach,
 Doe multiply ; because they seldom venter, 560
 And, but in season, Venus' lists to enter.
 And, the cold, resting (under th' Arctick Star)
 Still Master of the Field in Champlan War,
 Makes Heat retire into the bodie's Towr :
 W^{ch}, there united, gives them much more powr.
 From thence indeed, Huns, Herules, Franks,
Bulgarians,
Cyrassians, Sueves, Burgognians, Turks, Tartar-
ians,
Dutch, Cimbers, Normans, Alains, Ostrogothes,
Tigurins, Lombards, Vandals, Virigothes,
 Have swarm'd (like Locusts) round about this Ball, 570
 And spoyl'd the fairest provinces of all :
 While barren South had much a-doe t'assemble
 (In all) two hoasts ; that made the North to tremble :
 Whereof ; the one, that one-ey'd Champion led,
 Who famous Carthage raz'd and ruin'd :

Comparison to that purpose.

An example of our daies.

Another example.

The North hath exceedingly multiplied in people : the South not so.

Th' other (by Tours) Charles Martell martyr'd so,
 That never since, could Ayrick Army show.

O ! see how full of wonders strange is Nature :
 Sith in each Climat, not alone in stature,
 Strength, hair and colour, that men differ doe, 580
 But in their humours and their manners too.
 Whether that, Custome into Nature change :
 Whether that, Youth to th' Eld's example range :
 Or divers Laws of divers Kingdoms, vary-us :
 Or th' influence of Heav'nly bodies, carry-us.

The northern-man is fair, the southern foul ;
 That's white, this black ; that smiles, and this doth scowl :

Th' one's blithe & frolike, th' other dull & froward ;
 Th' one's full of courage, th' other fearfull coward ; 589
 Th' one's hair is harsh, big, curled, the other's slender ;
 Th' one loveth labour, th' other books doth tender :
 Th' one's hot and moist, the other's hot and dry ;
 Th' one's voyce is hoarse, the other's clear and high :
 Th' one's plain and honest, th' other all deceit :
 Th' one's rough and rude, th' other handsom, neat :
 Th' one (giddy-brain'd) is turn'd with every wind :
 The other (constant) never changeth mind :
 Th' one's loose and wanton, the other continent ;
 Th' one thrift-lesse lavish, th' other provident :
 Th' one milde companion, th' other stern & strange 600
 (Like a wilde Wolfe) loves by himselfe to range :
 Th' one's pleas'd wth plainnes, th' other pomp affects :
 Th' one's born for Arms, the other Arts respects.
 But middling folk, who their abiding make
 Between these two, of either guise partake ;
 And such have stronger limbs, but weaker wit,
 Then those that neer Nile's fertill sides do sit ;
 And (opposite) more wit and lesser force,
 Then those that haunt Rhins's and Danubius' shores.

For in the Cirque of th' Universall City : 610
 The Southern-man, who (quick and curious-witty)
 Builds all on dreams, deep Extasies and Trances,
 Who measures Heav'n's eternall-moving Dances,
 Whose searching soule can hardly be suffis'd
 With Vulgar Knowledge ; holds the Place of Priest.
 The Northern-man, whose wit in's Fingers settles,
 Who what him list can work in Wood & Mettles,
 Who (Salmon-like) can thunder counterfeit ;
 With men of Arms, and Artisans is set.
 The Third (as knowing well to rule a State) 620
 Holds, gravely-wise, the room of Magistrate.
 Th' one (to be briefe) loves studious Theory,
 The other Trades, the third deep Policy.

Yet true it is, that since some later lustras,
Minerva, Themis, Hermes and his Sisters
 Have set, as well, their Schools in th' Arctick Parts,
 As Mars his Lists, and Vulcan Shops of Arts.

Nay, see we not among our selves, that live Mingled almost (to whom the Lord doth give But a small Turf of Earth to dwell-upon)
 This wondrous odds in our condition ?
 We finde the Alman in his fight courageous,
 But salable ; th' Italian too-outrageous ;

Whence our Author takes occasion to enter into an excellent discourse of Gods wondrous work in the divers temperatures, qualities, complexions, and manners of so many Nations in the World.

Notable differences betweene the Nations of Europe.

Especially the French, German, Italian, and Spaniard.

Sudden the French, impatient of delay,
The Spaniard slow, but subtle to betray ;
Th' Alman in Counsell cold, th' Italian quick,
The French inconstant, Spaniards politick ;
Fine feeds th' Italian, and the Spaniard spares,
Prince-like the French, Pig-like the Alman fares ;
Milde speaks the French, the Spaniard proud and brave, 640
Rudely the Alman, and th' Italian grave ;
Th' Italian proud in 'tire, French changing much,
Fit-clad the Spaniard, and un-fit the Dutch ;
The French-man braves his Foe, the Italian cheers-him,

The Alman spoils, the Spaniard never bears-him ;
The French-man sings, the Italian seems to bleat,
The Spaniard whines, the Alman howleth great ;
Spaniards like Jugglers jet, th' Alman like Cocks,
The French goes quick, th' Italian like an Ox ;
Dutch Lovers proud, th' Italian envious, 650
Frolick the French, the Spaniard furious.

Causes why the Lord would have Mankind so dispersed over all the World.

Yet would the Lord, that Noah's fruitfull Race
Should over-spread th' Earth's universall Face ;
That, drawing so his Children from the crimes,
Which seem peculiar to their Native Climes,
He might reveal his grace ; and that Heav'n's lights
Might well incline (but not constrain) our sprights ;
That over all the World, his Saints alwayes
Might offer him sweet Sacrifice of praise ;
That from old Scythia, his high Name as far 660
Might ay resound as Sun-burnt Zansibar ;
And that the treasures which strange soils produce,
Might not seem worth-lesse for the want of use ;
But that the In-land Lands might truck and barter,
And vent their Wares about to every Quarter.

The World compared to a mighty City, wherein dwell people of all conditions, continually trafficking together and exchanging their particular commodities, for benefit of the Publike.

For, as in LONDON (stuff with every sort)
Here's the King's Palace, there the Innes of Court ;
Here (to the Thames-ward, all a-long the STRAND)
The stately houses of the Nobles stand : 670
Here dwell rich Merchants, there Artificers :
Here Silk-men, Mercers, Gold-smiths, Jewellers,
There's a Church-yard furnisht with choyes of books ;
Here stand the Shambles, there the Row of Cooks :
Here wonn Vp-holsters, Haberdashers, Horners ;
There Potheccaries, Grocers, Tailors, Turners :
Here Shoo-makers ; there Joyners, Copers, Coriers :
Here Brewers, Bakers, Cutlers, Felters, Furriers :
This Street is full of DRAPERS, that of Dyars ;
This shop with Tapers, that with Women's Tiars :
For castly Toys, silk Stockings, Cambrick, Lawn, 680
Here's choice-full Plenty in the curious PAWN ;
And all's but an Exchange, where (briefly) no man Keeps ought as private. Trade makes all things common.

So come our Sugars from Canary Iles ;
From Candy Currans, Muskadels and Oyls ;
From the Moluques, Spices : Balsamum
From Egypt : Odours from Arabia come :
From India, Drugs, rich Gemms and Ivory :
From Syria, Mummy : black-red Ebony,

From burning Chus : from Peru, Pearl and Gold : 690
From Russia, Furres (to keep the rich from cold) ;
From Florence, Silks : from Spain, Fruit, Saffron,
Sacks :
From Denmark, Amber, Cordage, Firres and Flax :
From France and Flanders, Linnen, Woad & Wine :
From Holland Hops : Horse, from the banks of Rhine.
In brief, each Countrey (as pleas'd God distribute)
To the World's Treasure payes a sundry Tribute.

And as somtimes that sumptuous Persian Dame
(Out of her pride) accustomed to name
One Province for her Robe, her Rail another ; 700
Her Partlet this, her Pantofles the tother ;
This her rich Mantle, that her royall Chain ;
This her rare Bracelets, that her stately Train :
Even so may Man. For, what wilde Hill so steep?
What so vaste Desert? what so dangerous Deep?
What Sea so wrackfull? or so barren Shore
In all the World may be suppos'd so poor,
But yeelds him Rent ; and free from envious spight,
Contributes frankly to his Life's Delight?

Man, lord of the World : which for the commodity of his life contributes bountifullly all manner of necessaries.

Th' inammell'd Valleys, where the liquid glasse 710
Of silver Brooks in curled streams doth passe,
Serve us for Gardens ; and their flowry Fleece
Affords us Sithe-work yearly twice or thrice ;
The Plains for Corn ; the swelling Downs for sheep ;
Small Hills for Vines ; the Mountains strangely steep
(Those heav'n-climb ladders, labyrinth of wonder,
Cellars of Winde, and shops of Sulph'ry Thunder ;
Where stormy Tempests have their ugly birth ;
Which thou mis-call'st the blemish of the Earth ;
Thinking (profane) that God, or Fortune light, 720
Made them of envy, or of over-sight)

The same more specially dilated in the particulars.

Bound with eternall bounds proud Emperies ;
Bear mighty Forrests, full of Timber-Trees
(Whereof thou buildest Ships and Houses fair,
To trade the Seas and fence thee from the Aire)
Spew spacious Rivers full of fruitfull breed,
Which neighbour-Peoples with their plenty feed ;
Fatten the Earth with fresh sweet fertill mists ;
Drive gainefull Mills ; and serve for Forts and Lists
To stop the Fury of War's waste-full hand, 730
And joyne to th' Sea the middle of the Land.

The Wildes & Desarts, which so much amaze-thee,
Are goodly Pastures, that do dayly graze-thee
Millions of Beasts for Tillage, and (besides)
Store thee with Flash, with Fleeces, & with Hides.
Yea, the vast Sea (which seems but onely good
To drown the World, and cover with his Flood
So many Countries, where we else might hope
For thrifty pains to reap a thankfull Crop)
Is a large Lardar, that in briny Deeps 740
To nourish thee, a World of Creatures keeps :
A plenteous Victualler, whose provisions serve
Millions of Cities that else needs must starve
(Like half-dead Dolphins, which the Ebb lets lye Gasping for thirst upon the sand, a dry) :
'T increaseth Trade, Journeys abbreviates,
The flitting Clouds it cease-lesse exhales ;

Here (as it were) wearied with so long a voyage, from so broad and bottomlesse an Ocean (in imitation of the inimitable Author) the Translator hoping kind intertainment, puts in for the Port of England: whose happy praises he prosecutes at large: Concluding with a zealous prayer for preservation of the King, and prosperity of his Kingdome.

Which, cooling th' aire, and gushing down in rain,
Make Ceres' Sons, (in sight) to mount amain.

But shall I still be Boreas' Tennis-ball? 750
Shall I be still stern Neptune's toss'd Thrall?
Shall I no more behold thy native smooch,
Dear Ithaca? Alas! my Bark is broach,
And leaks so fast, that I can row no more:
Help, help (my Mates) make haste unto the shore.
O! we are lost; unless some friendly banks
Quickly receive our Tempest-beaten planks.

Ah, courteous ENGLAND, thy kinde arms I see
Wide-stretch'd out to save and welcome me.
Thou (tender Mother) wilt not suffer Age 760
To snow my locks in Forrein Pilgrimage;
That fell Brasile my breath-lesse Corps should throwd,
Or golden Peru of my praise be proud,
Or rich Cathay to glory in my Verse:
Thou gav'st me Cradle; thou wilt give me Herse.

All hail (dear ALBION) Europ's pearl of price,
The World's rich Garden, Earth's rare Paradise:
Thrice-happy Mother, which ay bringest forth
Such Chivalry as dazleth all the Earth 770
(Planting the Trophies of thy glorious Arms
By Sea and Land, where ever Titan warms):
Such Artisans as doe well near Eclipse
Fair Nature's praise in peer-lesse Workmanships:

Such happy Wits, as Egypt, Greece, and Rome
(At least) have equal'd, if not overcome;
And shine among their (Modern) learn'd Fellows,
As Gold doth glister among paler Yellows;
Or as Apollo th' other Planets passes;
Or as his Flower excels the Meadow-grasses,

Thy Rivers, Seas; thy Cities, Shires do seem; 780
Civill in manners, as in buildings trim:
Sweet is thine Aire, thy soyl exceeding fat,
Fenc'd from the World (as better worth then That)
With triple Wall (of Water, Wood, and Brasse)
Which never stranger yet had power to passe;
Save when the Heav'n's have, for thy haynous Sin,
By some of thine, with false keyes let them in.

About thy borders (O Heav'n-blessed ILE)
There never crawls the noisome Crocodile;
Nor bane-breath'd Serpent bashing in thy sand, 790
Measures an Acre of thy flowry Land,
The swift-foot Tiger or fierce Lionesse
Hau't not thy Mountains, nor thy Wilderness:
Nor ravening Wolves worry thy tender Lambs,
Bleating for help unto their help-lesse Dams;
Nor subtle Sea-Horse with deceitfull Call,
Intice thy Children in thy Floods to fall.

What though thy Thames and Tweed have never row'd,
Among their gravell, massy grains of Gold?
What though thy Mountains spew no Silver streams? 800
Though every Hillock yield not precious Gemms?
Though in thy Forrasts hang no silken Fleeces?
Nor sacred Incense, nor delicious Spices?
What though the clusters of thy colder Vines
Distill not Clarets, Sacks, nor Muscadines?

Yet are thy Wools, thy Corn, thy Cloth, thy Tin,
Mines rich enough to make thee Europ's Queen,
Yea Emperesse of the World; Yet not sufficient
To make thee thankfull to the Cause efficient 810
Of all thy Blessings: Who besides all this,
Hath (now nine Lustrus) lent thee greater blisse;
His bless'd Word (the witness of his favour)
To guide thy Sons unto his Son (their Saver)
With Peace and Plenty: while, from War and Want,
Thy neighbours' Countries never breath'd scant.
And last, not least (so far beyond the scope
Of Christians' Fear, and Anti-Christians' Hope)
When all, thy Fall seem'd to Prognosticate,
Hath higher rais'd the glory of thy State;
In raising STUARDES to thy regall Throne, 820
To rule (as David, and as Salomon)
With Prudence, Promise, Justice, and Sobriety,
Thy happy People in Religious Piety.
O too too happy! too too fortunats,
Knew'st thou thy Weal: or were thou not ingrate.

But lest (at last) God's righteous wrath consume-us,
If on his patience still we thus presume-us:
And lest (at last) all Blessings had before
Double in Curses to torment-us more:
Dear Mother ENGLAND, bend thine aged knee, 830
And to the Heav'n's lift up thy hands with mee;
Off with thy Pomp, hence with thy Pleasures past:
Thy Mirth be Mourning, and thy Feast a FAST:
And let thy Soule, with my sad soule confesse
Our former sins, and foul unthankfulness.

Pray we the Father, through th' adopting Spirit,
Not measure us according to our merit;
Nor strictly weigh, at his high Justice beam,
Our bold Rebellions, and our Pride extreme: 840
But, for his Son (our dear Redeemer's) sake
His Sacrifice, for our sins' Ransom, take;
And, looking on us with milde Mercie's Eye,
Forgive our Past, our Future Sanctifie;
That never more, his Fury we incense
To strike (as now) with raging Pestilence (Much lesse provoke him by our guilt so far,
To wound us more with Famine and with War).

Lord, cease thy wrath: Put up into thy Quiver
This dreadfull shaft: Dear Father, us deliver:
And, under wings of thy Protection, keep 850
Thy Servant JAMES, both waking and a-sleep:
And (furthermore) we (with the Psalmist) sing,
Lord give thy Judgements to (our Lord) the King
And to his Son, and let there ay be one
Of his Male Seed to sit upon his Throne,
To feed thy Folk in Jacob, and (advance)
In Israel thy (dear) inheritance,
And (long-long-lived) full of Faith and Zeal,
Reform (like Asa) Church and Common-weal:
Raysing poore Vertue, raving proudest Vice, 860
Without respect of Person or of Price;
That all bold Atheists, all Blasphemers, then,
All Popish Traitors may bee weeded, clean:
And, Curst be All that say not, here, Amen.

Psal. 72.

 THE FOURTH PART
 OF THE
 SECOND DAY OF
 THE II. WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Seth's Pillars found : Heber instructs his Son
 In th' use thereof, and who them first begun ;
 Opens the One, and findes on severall Frames,
 Foure lively Statues of foure lovely Dames ;
 (The Mathematickes) furnisht each a-part
 With Equipages of their severall Art :
 Wonders of Numbers and Geometry :
 New Observations in Astronomy :
 Musick's rare force : Canaan (the Cursed) cause 10
 Of Heber's stop : and BARTAS' witty pause.*

Being about to treat of the Mathematickes,
 our Poet here im-
 ploereth especiall assistance in handling so high and difficult a Subject.

IF ever (Lord) the purest of my Soule
 In sacred Rage were rapt above the Pole :
 If ever, by thy Spirit my spirit inspir'd,
 Offred thee Layes that learned France admir'd,
 Father of light, Fountain of learned Art,
 Now, now (or never) purge my purest part :
 Now quintessence my Soule, and now advance
 My care-free Powrs in some celestiall Transe :
 That (purg'd from Passion) thy divine addressee 20
 May guide me through Heav'n's glistening Palaces ;
 Where (happily) my dear URANIA's grace,
 And her fair Sisters I may all imbrace :
 And (the melodious Sirens of the Sphears, Charming my senses in those sweets of theirs)
 So ravishéd, I may at rest contemple
 The Starry Arches of thy stately Temple :
 Unto this end, that as (at first) from thee
 Our Grand-sires learn'd Heav'n's Course & Quality ;
 Thou now maist prompt me some more lofty Song, 30
 As to this lofty Subject doth belong.

AFTER THAT Men's strife-hatching, haught ambition,
 Had (as by lot) made this low World's partition ;
Phalec and Heber, as they wandred, fand
 A huge high Pillar, which upright did stand (Much like a Rock amid the Ocean set,
 Seeming great Neptune's surly pride to threat ;
 Whereon to Pharus bears a Lanthorn bright,
 To save from Shipwrack those that sayl by night)
 And afterward, another nigh as great ; 40
 But not so strong, so stately, nor so neat :
 For, on the flowry field it lay all flat,
 Built but of Brick, of rusty Tiles, and Slat :
 Whereas the first was builded fair and strong
 Of Jasper smooth, and Marble lasting long.
 What Miracles ! what monstrous heaps ! what hills
 Heav'd-up my hand ! what Types of antike Skills
 In form-lesse Forms (quoth Phalec) ! Father show
 (For th' ages past I know full well you know) :
 Pray teach me, who did both these works erect : 50
 About what time : and then to what effect ?
 Old Seth (saith Heber) Adam's Scholler yerst
 (Who was the Scholler of his Maker first)
 Having attain'd to know the course and sites,
 Th' aspect and greatness of Heav'n's glistening lights ;
 He taught his Children, whose industrious wit
 Through diligence grew excellent in it.
 For, while their flocks on flowry shores they kept
 Of th' Eastern Flouds, while other soundly slept (Hushing their cares in a Night-shortning nap, 60 Upon Oblivion's dull and sense-lesse Lap)
 They, living lusty, thrice the age of Rav'ns,
 Observ'd the Twinkling Wonders of the Heav'ns :

The occasion and ground of this discourse.

Phalec's question.

Heber's answer.

	Firm Mobile , an up-down-bending-Vault, Sloaping in Circuit, yet directly wrought. See, how so soon as it to veer begins, Both up and down, forward and back it wends ; And, rapt by other, not it self alone Moves, but moves others with its motion (Witness the Heav'ns) : yea, it doth seem, beside, When it stands still, to shake on every side, Because it hath but one small point, where-on His equall halves are equi-pois'd upon ; And yet this goodly Globe , where we assemble (Though hung in th' Air) doth never selfly tremble : For, it 's the midst of the Con-contrick Orbs Whom never Angle nor out-nook disturbs. All Solids else (cast in the Aire) reflect Un-self-like-forms : but in a Globe each tract Seems still the same, because it every-where Is uniform, and differs not a hair. More-over, as the Building's Amblygon May more receive then Mansion's Oxigon (Because th' acute , and the rect-Angles too, Stride not so wide as obtus Angles doe) So doth the Circle in his Circuit span More room then any other Figure can. Th' other are eas'ly broke, because of joynts, Ends, and beginnings, edges, nooks, and points : But, th' Orb 's not subject unto such distresse, Because 'tis joynt-lesse, point-lesse, corner-lesse. Chiefly (my Phalac) hither bend thy minde, And learn Two Secrets which but few shall finde, Two busie knots, Two labyrinthis of doubt, Where future Schools shall wander long about, Beating their brains, their best endeavors troubling : The Circle 's Squareness, and the Cube 's re-doubling. Print ever faster in thy faithfull brain Then on brasse leaves, these Problemes provéd plain, Not by Sophistick subtle Arguments, But even by practise and experience : Un-disputable Art, and fruitfull Skill, Which with new wonders all the World shall fill. Here-by, the Waters of the lowest Fountains Shall play the Millers, as the Winds on Mountains : And grain, so grown'd within a rowling Frame, Shall pay his duty to his niggard Dame. Here-by, a Bullet spewd from Brazen Brest In fiery fume against a Town distrest, With roaring powr shall pash the Rocks in sunder, And w th the noise ev'n drown the voice of thunder. Here-by, the wings of favourable Windes Shall bear from Western to the Eastern Indes , From Africa to Tull 's farthest Floud, A House (or rather a whole Town) of Wood ; While sitting still, the Pilot shall at ease With a short Leaver guide it through the Seas. Here-by the PRINTER, in one day shall rid More Books, then yerst a thousand Writers did. Here-by, a Crane shall steed in building more Then hundred Porters' busie pains before :	180
	The Jacob's-staffe , to measure heights, and Lands, Shall far excell a thousand nimble hands, To part the Earth in Zones and Climats even ; And in twice-twenty-and-foure Figures , Heav'n. A Wand, Sand, Water, small Wheels, turning ay, In twice-twelve parts shall part the night and day. Statues of Wood shall speak : and fainéd Sphears Show all the wonders of true Heav'n in theirs. Men rashly mounting through the empty Sky, With wanton wings shall cross the Seas well-nigh, And (doubtlesse) if the Geometrician finde Another World where (to his working minde) To place at pleasure and convenience His wondrous Engins and rare Instruments, Even (like a little God) in time he may To some new place transport this World away. Because these Two our passage open set To bright Urania 's sacred Cabinet, Wherein she keeps her sumptuous Furniture, Pearls, Diamonds, Rubies, and Saphires pure : Because to climb starry Parnassus ' top None can, unlesse these Two do help him up (For, who so wants either of these two eyes, In vain beholds Heav'n's glistering Canopies) : The Carver (here) close by Geometry And Numbring Art hath plac't Astronomy . A silver Crescent wears she for a Crown, A hairy Comet to her heels hangs down ; Brows stately bent in milde Majestick wise, Beneath the same two Carbuncles for eyes ; An Azure Mantle waving at her back, With two bright Clasps buckled about her neck ; From her right shoulder sloaping over-thwart her, A watchet Scarf, or broad imbrodered Garter, Flourisht with Beasts of sundry shapes, and each With glistering Stars imboast and pouderd rich ; And then, for wings, the golden plumes she wears Of that proud Bird which starry Rowels bears. But what faire Globes (quoth Phalac) seems she thus With spreading arms, to reach and offer us ? My Son (quoth Heber) that round Figure there, With crossing Circles, is the Mundane Sphear ; Wherein, the Earth (as the most vile and base And Lees of all) doth hold the lowest place : Whom prudent Nature girdeth over-thwart With Azure Zone ; or rather every part Covers with water winding round about, Save here and there some Angles peeping out ; For, th' Ocean's liquid and sad sliding Waves Sinking in deepest of Earth's hollow Caves, Seek not (within her vast unequal height) The Centre of the wideness, but the weight. There should be th' Aire, the Fire, and wandring Seven, The Firmament, and the first-moving Heav'n (Besides th' Emphyreall Palace of the Saincted) Each over other, if they could be painted. But th' Artist, faining in the steed of these, Ten Circles, like Heav'n's Superficies,	190	240	The Staffe. Dials and Clocks. Spheares. 250 260 Astronomy. 270 Her two Globes. 1. To guide us to them by more easie Path,
In hollow Globe the same described hath.

1.
The Equinoctiall.
Divides in two the Sphear's circumference,
Stands th' Equinoctiall, equi-distant all 300
From those two Poles which do support this Ball.
Therefore each Star that underneath it slides
A rest-lesse, long, and weary Journey rides,
Goes larger Circuit, and more speedy far
Then any other steady fixéd Star
(Which wezeth slow the more it doth advance Near either Pole his God-directed Daunce)
And while Apollo drives his Load of Light
Under this Line, the day and dusky Night
Tread equall steps : for, learned Nature's hand 310
Then measures them a-like in every Land.

2.
The Zodiack.
The next, which there beneath it slooply slides,
And his fair Hindges from the World's divides
Twice twelve Degrees ; is call'd th' Zodiack,
The Planets path, where Phobus plies to make
Th' year's Revolution : through new Houses ranging,
To cause the Seasons yearly four-fold changing.

3.
The Colure.
Th' other, which (crossing th' Universall Props,
And those where Titan's Whirling Chariot sloops)
Rect-angles' forms ; and, crooking, cuts in two 320
Here Capricorn ; there burning Cancer too ;
Of the Sun's stops, it Colure hath to name,
Because his Teem doth seem to trot more tame
On these cut points : for here he doth not ride
Flatting a-long, but up the Sphear's steep side.

4.
The Colure.
Th' other, which cuts this equi-distantly
With Aries, Poles, and Scale, is (like-wisely)
The second Colure : The Meridian, This
Which never in one point of Heav'n persists ;
But still pursues our Zenith : as the light 330
Inconstant Horison our shifting sight.

6.
The Horizon.
For the four small ones : here the Tropicks turn,
Both that of Cancer and of Capricorn.
And nearer th' Hindges of the golden Sphear,
Here's the South-Circle ; the North-Circle there :
Which Circles cross not (as you see) at all
The Center-point of th' universall Ball ;
But, parting th' Orb into unequal ells,
Twixt th' Equi-nox and them, rest Parallals.

7 and 8.
The Tropicks.
The other Ball her left hand doth support, 340
Is Heav'n's bright Globe : for, though that Art come short
Of Nature far, here may ingenious soules
Admire the stages of Star-seeléd Poles.

9 and 10.
The South and North Circles.
O what delight it is in turning soft
The bright Abbridgement of that upper Loft,
(To seem) to see Heav'n's glorious Hoast to march
In glistening Troops about th' Ethervall Arch !
Where, one for arms bears Bow & Shafts : a Sword
A second hath ; a trembling Launce a third :
One fals, another in his Chariot rowles 350
On th' Azure Brasse of th' ever-radiant Bowles :

The divers aspects of the Celestiall Bodies.
This serves a-foot, that (as a Horse-man) rides :
This up, that down ; this back, that forward slides :

Their order order-lesse, and Peacefull Braul
With-chil'ds the World ; fils Sea, and Earth, & All.

I never see their glances inter-ject
In Triangle, Sextile, or Square aspect,
Now milde, now moody ; but me thinks I see
Some frolike Swains amid their dancing glee ;
Where Men and Maids together make them merry, 360
With Jigs and Rounds, till Pipe and all be weary :
Where, on his Love one smiles with wanton eye ;
Where-at his Rivall frowns for Jealousie.

But why (quoth Phalec) hath th' Al-fair, who frams
Nought here below, but's full of Beautie's flames,
Ingrav'n on th' Orbs of th' Azure crystalline
(Where Beautie's self, and Love should ever shine)
So many hideous Beasts and Monsters fell ;
Fellows, more fit for th' ugly Fiends in Hell ?
Surely (saith Heber) God's All-prudent pleasure 370
Makes nothing Artlesse, nor without just measure :
And this the World's chief praise of Beauty carries,
That in each part it infinitely varies.

Our learned Elders then, who on this Sphear,
Heav'n's shining Signes imagin'd fitly-fair,
Did unto each, such Shape and Name devise,
As with their Natures neerly symbolize.

In form of Ram with golden fleece they put
The bi-corn'd Signe, which the Year's bounds doth butt ;
Because the World (under his temp'rate heat) 380
In fleece of flours is pranked richly neat.
Of Bull the next : because the Husband-men
With yokes of slow-pac't smoaking Bullocks then
Tear-up their Fallows, and with hope-full toyl, Furbush their Coultars in the Corn-fit soyl.

Of Twins the third : because then, of two Sexes
Kinde-cruell Cupid one whole body mixes :
Then all things couple, then Fruits double grow,
Then Flours do flourish, & corn Fields do show.
The fourth a Lobstar's name and frame they made, 390
Because then South-ward Sol doth retrograde,
Goes (Crab-like) backward, and so never stinteth,
But still his wheels in the same track reprinteth.

The fifth a Lion : for as Lion's breath
Is burning hot ; so likewise, underneath
This fiery Signe, th' Earth sparkles, and the streams
Seems sod-away with the Sun's glowing beams.

The sixth a Maid : because with Maid-like honour,
Th' Earth loatheth then the Sun's Love-glances on her
T' inflame her Love : and (reclus'd as it were) 400
This Virgin Season nought at all doth bear.
Balance the seventh ; because it equall weighs Night's loving-silence, and grieft-guiding Dayes ;
And Heat and Cold ; and in Must-Month, the Beam
Stands equi-pois'd in equi-poising them.

Scorpion the next : because his piercing sting
Doth the first tydings of cold Winter bring.
The ninth an Archer both in Shape and Name,
Who day and night follows his fairest game ;
And his keen Arrows every-where bestowes 410
Headed with Yoc, feathered with Sleet & Snowes.

Smile.
Question.
Answer.
The reason of the names given to the 12 Signes of the Zodiack.
1. Aries.
2. Taurus.
3. Gemini.
4. Cancer.
5. Leo.
6. Virgo.
7. Libra.
8. Scorpio.
9. Sagittarius.

10. Capricornus.	The next a Kid : because as Kids doe clime And frisk from Rock to Rock; about this Time The Prince of Planets (with the locks of Amber) Begins again up towards us to clamber. And then, because Heav'n always seems to weep Under the ensuing Signes ; on th' Azure steep Our Parents plac't a Skinker : and by him, Two silver Fishes in his flouds to swim.	Here shines his golden Harb , and there his Crown : 470 Corona Borealis . There th' ugly Bear bears (to his high renown) Seav'n (shining) Stars . Lo, here the whistling Lance ,	Vrsa minor . Pleiades . Cnspis .
11. Aquarius. 12. Pisces.	But if (my Son) this superficial gloze Suffice thee not; then may we thus suppose, That as before th' All-working Word alone Made Nothing be All's womb and Embryon , Th' eternall Plot, th' Idea fore-conceiv'd, The wondrous Form of all that Form receiv'd, Did in the Work-man's spirit divinely lie; And, yer it was, the World was wondrously; Th' Eternall Trine-one , spreading even the tent Of th' All-enlightning glorious Firmament, Fill'd it with figures; and in various Marks There pourtray'd Tables of his future Works.	Which frantick Saul at him doth fiercely glance. Pure Honour's Honour, Prayse of Chastity O fair Susanna , I should mourn for thee, And moan thy tears, and with thy friends lament (With Heav'n-lift-eyes) thy wofull punishment, Save that so timely (through Heav'n's providence) Young Daniel saves thy wrong'd Innocence: And by a dreadfull radiant splendor, spread From Times-Child Truth (not from Medusa's head) Condemns th' old Leachers, and eft-soons upon Their cursd heads there hays a storm of stone: Also, as long as Heav'n's swift Orb shall veer, A sacred Trophee shall be shining here In the bright Dragon , of that Idol fell, Which the same Prophet shall in Babel quell.	Andromada . Pleiades . Cepheus .
A deeper and more curious reason of the same.	430	480	Perseus .
In Heaven are patterns of all things that are in Earth.	See here the pattern of a silver Brook Which in and out on th' Azure stage doth crook; Here th' Eagle plays, there flies the rav'ning Crow; Here swims the Dolphin, there the Whale doth row; Here bounds the Courser, there the Kid doth skip; Here smoaks the Steer, the Dragon there doth creep: There's nothing precious in Sea, Earth, or Aire, But hath in Heav'n some like resemblance faire. Yea, even our Crowns, Darts, Lances, Skeyns, and Scales,	430	Caput Medusæ .
A third witty, pleasant, and ele- gant reason of the names afore-said.	Are all but Copies of Heav'n's Principals; And sacred patterns which to serve all Ages, Th' Almighty printed on Heav'n's ample stages. Yea surely, durst I (but why should I doubt To wipe from Heav'n so many slanders out, Of profane Rapine and detested Rapes, Of Murder, Incest, and all monstrous Scapec, Where-with (hereafter) some bold-fabling Greeks Shall foulely stain Heav'n's Rosie-blushing cheeks?) Here could I shoue, that under every Signe Th' Eternall grav'd some Mystery divine Of's holy Citie ; where (as in a glasse) To see what shall here-after come-to passe; As publick and authentick Rowles, fore-quoting Confusedly th' Events most worthy noting, In his dear Church (his Darling and Delight).	440	Draco .
Plaustrum.	O! thou fair Chariot flaming bravely bright, Which like a Whirl-winde in thy swift Career Rapt'st up the Thesbit ; thou do'st alwaies veer About the North-Pole , now no more be-dabbling Thy nimble spoaks in th' Ocean, neither stabling Thy smoaking Coursers under th' Earth, to bait: The while Elisha earnestly doth wait Burning in zeale (ambitious) to inherit His Master's Office and his mighty Spirit; That on the starry Mountain (after him) He well may manage his celestiall Teem.	460	Pegasus .
Bootes.	Close by him, David in his valliant fist Holds a fierce Lyon's fiery flaming Crest :	490	Pegasus .
Hercules . Lyra .		500	Cygnus .
		510	Piscis Borealis .
		520	Delphinus .
		530	Trigonos .
		540	Ophiucus .
		550	Aquila .
		560	Aries .
		570	Taurus .
		580	Gemini .
		590	Cancer .

In Vice's mire: profanest old (at last)
 In soule and body growne a-like un-chaste.

Leo. The fifth, that Lyon which the Hair-strong Prince 530
 Tears as a Kid, without War's Instruments,

Virgo. The sixth, that Virgin ever-maiden Mother,
 Bearing for us, her Father, Spouse, and Brother.

Libra. The next that Beams, which in King Lemuel's hand,
 So justly weighs the Justice of his Land.
 The next, that Creature which in Malta stings
 Th' Apostle's hand, and yet no blemish brings ;
 For 'tis indifferent, whether we the same,
 A spotted Scorpion, or a Viper name.

Scorpio. Th' Archer, is Hagar's Son: the Goat (I gness) 540
 Sagittarius. Is Aaron's Scape-Goat in the wilderness.
 Capricornus. The next, the deer Son of dumb Zacharias,
 God's Harbinger, fore-runner of Messias :
 Who in clear Jordan washeth clean the sin
 Of all that rightly do repent with-in.

Aquarius. These Two bright Fishes, those wher-with the Lord
 Pisces. (Through wondrous blessing of his powrful Word)
 Feeds with five loaves (upon Asphalt's shoar)
 Abundantly five thousand Folk and more.
 But, turn we now the twinkling Globe, & there 550
 Let's mark as much the Southern Hemi-spear.

Orion. Ah ! know'st thou not this glorious Champion heer, Eridanus. Which shines so brightly by the burning Steer ?
 'Tis Nun's great Son, who through deep Jordan leads
 His Army dry shod ; and (triumphant) treads
 On Caanan Curs, and on th' Ammorean Hare,
 Foyl'd with the fear of his victorious war.

Canis. See th' ancient Ship, which, over windes, & waves
 Canicula. Triumphant safe, the World's seed-remnant saves.
 Lepus. Loe, here the Brasen Serpent shines, whose sight 560
 Cures in the Desert, those whom Serpents bite.

Hydra. Here th' happy Rav'n that brings Elias' cates ;
 Corvus. Here the rich Cup where Joseph meditates
 Cratera. His grave Predictions : Here that Heav'nly Knight, Centaurus. Who prest appearing armed all in white,
 To Maccabews, with his flaming spear

Lupus. So deep (at last) the Pagan Wolfe doth tear,
 Ara. That on God's Altar (yerst profan'd so long)
 Sweet Incense fumeth, and the sacred Song
 Of Levites soundeth in his House again ; 570

Corona australis. And that rich Crown th' Asmonean Race doth gain, Piscis australis. To rule the Yewes. Loe, there the happy Fish
 Which payes Christ's Tribute (who our Ransom is) :
 And here the Whale, within whose noysom breast,
 Balzana. The Prophet Jonas for three dayes doth rest.
 But while (my spokes-man, or I rather his)
 Thus Heber comments on Heav'n's Images,
 Through path-lesse paths his wandering steps doth bring,

And boldly quavers on a Maiden string ;
 Suppose not (Christians) that I take for grounds 580
 Or points of Faith, all that he here propounds ;
 Or that old Zeno's Portall I sustain,
 Or Stoick Fate (th' Almighty's hands to chain) :
 Or in Heav'n's Volume reading things to come,
 Erroneously a Chaldee-Wife become ;

A notable correction of the Poet upon these last Discourses.

No, no such thing ; but to refresh again
 Your tyred Spirits, I sung this novell strain :
 That hither-to having with patience past
 Such dreadfull Oceans, and such Desarts vast,
 Such gloomy Forests, craggy Rocks and steep, 590
 Wide-yawning Gulfs, & hideous Dungeons deep ;
 You might (at last) meet with a place of pleasure,
 Where-on the Heav'ns lavish their plenteous treasure,
 Where Zephyr puffs perfumes, & silver Brooks
 Embrace the Meads, smiling with wanton Looks.
 Yet (curteous Readers) who is it can say
 Whether our Nephews yet another-day
 (More zealous then our selves in things Divine)
 This curious Art shall Christianly refine ;
 And give to all these glistening Figures then 600
 Not Heathen names, but names of Holy men ?
 But, seek we now for Heber, whose Discourse
 Informs his Phalec in the Planets' course :
 What Epicicle meaneth, and Con-centric,
 With Apapt, Perigil, and Eccentric :
 And how fell Mars (the Seedster of debate)
 Dayes glorious Torch, the wanton (Vulcan's mate)
Saturn, & Jove, three Spears in one retain,
 Smooth Hermes five, faire Cynthia two-times-twain.
 For, the Divine Wits, whence this Art doth flow, 610
 Finding their Fires to wander to and fro,
 Now neer, now far from Nature's Nave : above,
 Confusion, voyd ; and rupture to remove,
 Which would be caused, through their wanderment,
 In th' Heav'ns inclos'd within the Firmament ;
 Have (more then men) presum'd to make within
 Th' eternal Wheels where th' erring Taper 's been,
 Sundry small Wheels, each within other closed,
 Such equi-distance each-where inter-posed,
 That (though they kiss) they crush not ; but the base 620
 Are under th' high, the high the low imbrace :
 Like as the Chest-nut (next the meat) within
 Is cover'd (last) with a soft slender skin,
 That skin inclos'd in a rough tawny shell,
 That shell in-cas't in a thick thistly fell.
 Then takes he th' Astrolabe, where-in the Sphear
 Is flat reduced : he discovers there
 The Card of Heights, the Almycantharats,
 With th' Asimynths, and the Almadarats
 (Pardon me, Muse, if ruder phrase defile 630
 This fairest Table, and deface my stile
 With Barbarism : For in this Argument,
 To speak Barbarian, is most eloquent).
 On th' other side, under a veering sight,
 A Table veers ; which, of each wandring Light
 Shows the swift course ; and certain Rules includes,
 Dayes, names of Months, and scale of Altitudes.
 Removing th' Alhidade, he spends some leasure,
 To shew the manner how a Wall to measure,
 A Fountain's depth, the distance of a place 640
 A Countrie's compasse, by Heav'n's ample face :
 In what bright starry Signe, th' Almighty dread,
 Daye's Princely Planet's dayly billeted :

He proceeds to discover the secrets of Astronomie.

Simile.

The use of the Astrolabe.

In which his Nadir is : and how with-all
To finde his Elevation and his Fall.
How long a time an Entire Signe must wear
While it ascendeth on our Hemi-spear :
Poles' Elevation : The Meridian line :
And divers hours of Day and Night to finde.
These learned wonders witty Phalec marks, 650
And heedfully to every Rule he harks :
Wise Alchemist, he multiplies this Gold,
This Talent turns, increasing many-fold :
And then presents it to his Noble seed,
Who soon their Doctor in his Art exceed.
But, even as Mars, Hermes, and Venus bright,
Go visit now the naked Troglodite,
Then Jove, then Ganyney, and (inclin'd to change)
Oft shifting house, through both the worlds do range
(Both worlds ev'n-halv'd by th' Equinoctial Line) : 660
So the perfection of this Art divine,
First under th' Hebrews bred and born, anon
Comes to the Chaldees by Adoption :
Scorning anon, th' old Babylonian Spires,
It leaves swift Tigris and to Nile retires ;
And, wexen rich, in Egypt it erects
A famous School : yet, firm-lesse in affects,
It falls in love with subtill Gracian wits
And to their hands a while it self commits ;
But in renowned Ptolomeus' Raign, 670
It doth re-visit the dear Memphian Plain :
Yet, thence re-fled, it doth th' Arabians try ;
From thence to Rome : from Rome to Germany.
O true Endymions, that imbrace above
Upon mount Latmos your Imperiall Love (Great Queen of Heav'n) about, whose Bed, for Guard,
Millions of Archers with gold Shields do ward.
True Atlases : you Pillars of the Poles
Eupryreall Palace ; you fair learned soules ;
But for your Writings, the Starrs'-Doctrine soon, 680
Would sink in Leith of Oblivion :
'Tis you that Marshall Months, and years, & dayes :
'Tis you that quote for such as haunt the Seas
Their prosperous daies, & daies whē death ingraven
On th' angry welkin, warns them keep their haven :
'Tis you that teach, the Plough-man when to sow,
When the brave Captain to the Field shall goe ;
When to retire to Garrison again,
When to assault a batter'd Peece ; and when
To convoy Victuals to his valiant Hoast : 690
'Tis you that shew what season fifteth most
For every purpose ; when to Purge is good,
When to be Bathed, when to be Let-bloud :
And how Physicians, skilfully to mix
Their Drugs, on Heav'n their curious eyes must fix.
'Tis you that in the twinkling of an eye
Through all the Heav'nly Provinces doe flye :
'Tis you that (greater then our greatest Kings)
Possesse the whole World in your Governings :
And (to conclude) you demi-gods can make 700
Between your hands the Heav'ns to turn and shake.

O divine Spirits : for you my smoothest quill
His sweetest hony on this Book should still ;
Still should you be my Theam ; but that the Beauty
Of the last Sister draws my Love and Duty ;
For, now I hear my Phalec humbly crave
The fourth Maid's name : his Father, mildly-grave,
Replies him thus ; Observe (my dearest Son)
Those cloud-lesse brows, those cheeks vermilion, 710
Those pleasing looks, those eyes so smiling-sweet, The description
Of Musick.
That grace-full posture, and those pretty feet
Which seem still Dancing : all those Harps & Lutes,
Shawms, Sag-butts, Citrons, Viols, Cornets, Flutes,
Plac't round about her ; prove in every part
This is the noble, sweet, Voyce-ord'ring Art,
Breath's Measurer, the Guide of supplest fingers
On (living-dumb, dead-speaking) sinnew-singers :
Th' Accord of Discords : sacred Harmony,
And Numb'ry Law, which did accompany 720
Th' Almighty-most, when first his Ordinance
Appointed Earth to rest, and Heav'n to dance.
For (as they say) for sup' Intendent there,
The supreme Voyce plac'd in every Sphear
A Syren sweet ; that from Heav'n's Harmony
Inferiour things might learn best Melody,
And their rare Quier with th' Angels Quier accord
To sing aloud the praises of the Lord,
In's Royall Chappel, richly beautif'd
With gliistering Tapers and all sacred Pride.
Where, as (by Art) one selfy blast breath'd out 730
From panting bellows, passeth all-about Simile.
Winde-Instruments ; enters by th' under Clavers
Which with the Keys the Organ-Master quavers,
Fills all the Bulk, and severally the same
Mounts every Pipe of the melodious Frame ;
At once reviving lofty Cymbal's voyce,
Flute's sweetest ayre, and Regal's shrillest noyse :
Even so th' all-quickning Spirit of God above
The Heav'n's harmonious whirling wheels doth move ;
So that re-treading their eternall trace, 740
Th' one bears the Trebble, th' other bears the Base.
But, brimmer far then in the Heavens here
All these sweet-charming Counter-Tunes we hear :
For, Melancholy, Winter, Earth below,
Bear aye the Base ; deep, hollow, sad and slow :
Pale Phlegm, moist Autumn, Water moistly-cold,
The Plummet-like-smooth-sliding Tenor hold :
Hot-humid Bloud, the Spring, transparent Aire,
The Maze-like Mean, that turns and wends so fair :
Curst Choler, Summer, and hot thirsty Fire, 750
Th' high-warbling Treble, loudest in the Quire.
And that 's the cause (my Son) why stubborn'st things
Are stoopt by Musick ; as reteining springs
Of Number in them : and they feeble live
But by that Spirit which th' Heav'ns' dance doth drive.
Sweet Musick makes the sternest men-at-Arms
Let-fall at once their Anger and their Arms :
It cheers sad soules, and charmes the frantick fits
Of Lunaticks that are bereft their wits :

Towards Men.

It kills the flame, and curbs the fond desire 660
 Of him that burns in Beantie's blazing Fire (Whose soule, seduced by his erring eyes, Doth some prond Dame devoutly Idolize):
 It cureth Serpents' banefull bit, whose anguish
 In deadly torment makes men madly languish:
 The Swan is rapt, the Hinde deceiv'd with-all,
 And Birds beguil'd with a melodious call:
 Th' Harp leads the Dolphin, & the buzzing swarm
 Of Busie Bees the tinkling Brasse doth charm.
 O! what is it that Musick cannot do! 670
 Sith all-inspiring Spirit it conquers too:
 And makes the same down from th' Emperiall Pole
 Descend to Earth into a Prophet's soule;
 With divine accents tuning rarely right
 Unto the raptng Spirit the raptng Spright.

 Birds, Flies, and Fishes.

Sith, when the Lord (most moved) threatneth most,
 With wrathfull tempest arming all his hoast;
 When (angry) stretching his strong sinnewy arms,
 Wth a bended back he throws down thundry storms;
 Th' harmonious sighs of his heart-turning Sheep 680
 Supple his sinnews, lull his wrath a-sleep;
 While milde-ey'd Mercy stealeth from his hand
 Th' sulph'ry Plagues prepar'd for sinfull Man.
 But while that Heber (eloquently) would Old Musick's use and excellence have told;
 Curst Canaan (seeking Jordan's fatall course,
 Past by the Pillars, and brake his Discourse,
 And mine withall; for I must rest me here;
 My weary Journey makes me faint well-neer:
 Needs must I crave new ayde from High, and step 690
 A little back, that I may farther leap.

 THE
 THIRD DAY OF
 THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

ABRAM from Chaldé is divinely CALL'D :
 How Blest abroad : His (parted) Nephew Thrall'd
 In Sodom's aid) to Chedorlaomer ;
 Rescu'd by Him : Type of that bloody War :
 Melchisedec His Hap congratulates :
 Ismael great ; but GOD confederates
 With (promis'd) Isaac, and his (CHRIST-his) Seed,
 Which shall in number even the Stars exceed :
 Lot harbors Angels ; sav'd from Sodom's Fire ; 10
 His Wife Transform'd : His Daughters' foule Desire.

U Ntill this Day (dear Muse) on every side
 Within straight lists thou hast been boundifi'd, Pend in a path so narrow every-where,
 Thou couldst not manage : onely here and there (Reaching thine arms over the Rails that close Thy bounded Race) thou caught'st some fragrant
 Rose,
 Som July-flour, or som sweet Sops-in-wine,
 To make a Chaplet, thy chaste brows to binde.
 But now, behold th' art in the open Plain, 20
 Where thou maist lively, like the Horse of Spain
 (That having burst his halter and his hold, Flings through the field, where list him uncontrol'd)
 Corvet, & turn, run, prance, advance, & pride-thee,
 As sacred fury of thy Zeal shall guide-thee.
 Th' whole world is thine : henceforth thy Syth may mow
 The fairest Crop that in Fame's fields doth grow ;
 And, on the Sea of richest Histories
 Hulling at large, a hundred Victories,

Simile.

A hundred Rowts, a hundred Wonders new 30
 Come huddling in, in heaps before thy view :
 So that I fear, lest (train'd with various sent)
 Thou be at fault in this vast Argument ;
 And lest the best choyce in so bound-lesse Store
 Pain thee no lesse now, then did Want before.

But wot'st thou what, my Muse (my dear delight, Simile.
 My care, my comfort) we will follow right
 The modest hand of a fair Shepheardling,
 Who doth not rudely spoyle the flowry Spring
 Of all her painted beauties ; nor deface 40
 All in one day a pleasant Garden's grace ;
 But mannerly amid the Quarters seeks
 Such rarest flowrs as best her fancie likes :
 And here a blew one, there a red she puls,
 A yellow here, and there a white she culs ;
 Then bindes them with her hair, and blessed over
 With a chaste kisse, she sends them to her Lover :
 We'l over-run the Annals of all Ages ;
 And choosing-out the chiefeat Personages,
 And Prodiges amid the Hebrew Story, 50
 We'l offer them on th' Altar of God's glory.

For he (I hope) who, no lesse good then wise,
 First stirr'd us up to this great Enterprize,
 And gave us heart to take the same in hand,
 For Levell, Compasse, Rule and Squire will stand ;
 Will change the Pebbles of our puddly thought
 To Orient Pearls, most bright and bravely wrought ;
 And will not suffer in this precious Frame
 Ought that a skilfull Builder's eye may blame ;
 Or, if he suffer ought, 't shall be some trace 60
 But of that blindness common to our Race ;

Dedication to the King's Majesty.

T' abate my glory, and to give me prooffe,
That (mortal) I, build but with mortall stuff.
JAMES, richest Gem of Scots, & Scotland's Praise,
Who, with the same hand that the Scepter swayes,
On Heav'n-faln paper, in a golden stlle,
Dost happily immortall lines compile ;
And (new Apollo) under Others' names
Sing'st in thy Childehood thine Own future Fames :
To whom but Thee should I these Verses vow ? 70
Who through the World hast made me famous now,
And with a liberall learned hand indu'd
My Muse with lustre of a Royal Sute ;
Before-so ragged, that she blusht well-neer
That ber chaste Sisters should so homely see-ber :
The scorn of Art, of Helicon the shame,
Usurping (wrong) URANIA's sacred Name,
Through the shea Heav'nly. O wise, worthy Prince,
Maist thou surmount all those in excellence,
Which have (before thee) Rul'd th' hard-ruled Scots, 80
And ruder Picts (painted with Martiall spots)
That, first Fergusius (glory of his dayes)
Ev'nus and Donald may envy thy Praise ;
And even the Scott sk (or rather th' Hebrew) David
(Jesus's great Son so holly behaved)
Give place to thy renown, and therewithall
Give thee his Zeal and Heart heroicall,
And all his best (which doth thee best belong)
As he hath giv'n thee his sweet Harp and Song.
THOUGH profane service of Idolatry 90
Had drown'd the whole Earth universally :
Though shame-lesse sin (born with the COLONIES
Through all the world) through all did Tyrannize :
Yet in Chaldea was their chiefest Seat,
Their strength in Shinaar ; and that Citie great,
Built on the slimy strand of Euphrates,
Was the proud Palace where they held their Feasts.
So that, even Sem's and Heber's sacred Line
(Where God his grace yet seem'd to confine)
Sucking the Sin-bane of Assyrian ayre, 100
Did (like the Heathen) every day impaire ;
Forgot the true God ; followed (rashly-rude)
The grosse grand Error of the multitude ;
Degeneris'd, decald, and withered quite :
Like some rare Fruit-Tree over-topt with spight
Of Briars and Bushes which it sore oppresse
With the sower shadow of their thorny tresse ;
Till choakt withall, it dies as they doe growe,
And beareth nought but mosse and Misseitoe.
But God, desirous (more fo: us then him) 110
In some one stock to save Faith's sacred stem (Like as before from the All-drowning Flood
He sav'd the World's seed in an Ark of wood)
Marks Abram for his own : and from false Rites,
To Men, to Beasts, to Stocks, to Stones, to Sprites,
Him graciously to his owne Service draws ;
Not by meer Conduct of exteour cause,
As by contemplating th' Artship richly-rare
Which gilds the Seeling of this Globe so fair ;

Simile.

The calling of Abraham.

Earth's fruitfull powr, producing (goodly-green) 120
From so small seeds so huge and mighty Treen,
Flouris fragrant aire, so fresh and divers di'd ;
Sea's foaming Course, whose ever-Tilting Tide
(Ebbing or flowing) is confin'd to Season,
Bounded with lists, guided with reans of Reason :
But, by the motion of his spirit which seals
In our heart's Centre what his word reveals,
And prudently in his fit time and place
(Dispensing frankly his free gifts of Grace)
Doth inwardly bear-witnesse, and aver-it 130
Under our spirits that 'tis God's Holy spirit.
The sacred Faith of Abram languisht not
In idlennesse, but alwayes wakt and wrought,
And ever lively brought forth Patience,
Humility, Hope, Bounty, Innocence,
Love, fervent Zeal, Repentance, Temperance,
Sincerity, and true perseverance ;
Fruits that (like Load-stones) have a vertue given (Through faith) to draw their father-tree to heav'n,
And guide the soules to God (the spring of life) 140
Of's kins-man Lot, and Sara his dear Wife ;
Who with him following the Almighty's call,
Wend to the strand where Jordan's course doth crawl :
Their own dear Country willingly forsake
And (true-religious) lesse account do make
Of goods and lands, and quiet-life's content,
Then of an end-lesse friend-lesse Banishment.
O sacred ground of Vertue's sole perfection !
O shield of Martyrs ! Prophets' sure direction !
Soule's remedy ! O contrite heart's restorer ! 150
Tears-wiping tame-griefe ! Hope's guide, hunting horror !
Path of Salvation ! Pledge of Immortality !
O lively FAITH ! through thy admir'd quality,
How many wonders dost thou work at once,
When from Sin's slumbers thou hast wakt us once,
And made us inly in our spirits conceive
Beauties that never outward eyes perceive !
Alas ! said Abram, must I needs forgoe
These happy fields where Euphrates doth flow ?
Here, first I drew this vitall aire, and (pleas'd) 160
With my birth's news) my mother's throes I eas'd :
Here, from her tender brest (as soft as silk)
My tender gums suckt my first drop of milk :
Here, with the pleasure of mine infant-smile
Her Cares and Cumbers I did oft beguile :
Here, my chaste Sisters, Uncles, Aunts, and Kin,
My pretty prattling have delighted in :
Here, many a time I wantonly have clung,
And on my father's wrinkled neck have hung :
Here have I past my Lad-age fair and good : 170
Here, first the soft Down on my chin did bud :
Here, I have learn'd Heav'n's Motions, & the nature
And various force of Aire, Ayre, Earth, and Water :
Here, I have show'n the noblest tokens forth
Both of my Minde's and of my Bodie's worth :
Here, I have spent the best part of mine age :
Here, I possess a plenteous Heritage :

The fruits of a true faith, and the effect thereof.

Naturall considerations to have stopt the Journey of Abraham.

Here, I have got me many friends, and fame,
 And by my Deeds attain'd a glorious Name :
 And must I hence, and leave this certain state, 180
 To roam uncertain (like a Runagate)
 O're fearfull Hills, and thorough foaming Torrents
 That rush down mountains wth thier roaring currëts ;
 In dreadfull Desarts, where Heav'n's hottest beam
 Shall burn without ; within us, Thirst extream :
 And gloomy Forrests full of ghastly fear
 Of yelling Monsters that are dwelling there :
 To seek a Country (God knowes where, & whither)
 Whose unknown name hath yet scarce sounded hither ?
 With staffe in hand, and wallet at our back, 190
 From Town to Town to beg for all we lack ?
 To guise our selves (like counterfeiting Ape)
 To th' guise of Men that are but Men in shape ?
 T' have (briefly) nothing properly our own
 In all the World ; no, not our Grave-place known ?
 Is't possible, I should endure to see
 The sighs and tears my friends will shed for me ?
 O ! can I thus my Native soyl forsake ?
 O ! with what words shall I my Farewell take ?
 Farewell Chaldeæ : dear delights, adieu : 200
 Friends, Brothers, Sisters, farewell all of you,
 Farewell for ever : can I thus (alas !)
 Rudely unwinde me from the kinde embrace
 Of thier dear arms, that will me faster hold
 Than trembling Ivie doth the Oak embrace ;
 Or then the Vine doth with her crawling spray
 The boughs of Elm, her limber limbs to stay ?
 Can I expose (with perill of my life)
 The un-vulgar beauties of my vertuous wife,
 To the none-sparing lust of that loose Nation 210
 That brutely burns in all abomination ?
 Besides, what rigour ? nay what parricide ?
 To hale from Tigris' shore to Jordan's side
 A weak old-man ? a man so weak and old,
 He scarce can creep without our help and hold.
 Yet, 't must be so : for so the Lord commands.
 A carnall man on carnall reason stands :
 But, for all Reasons, Faith sufficeth me ;
 Who lodge with God can never House-less be.
 Then cheerly marcht he on, and though the age 220
 And death of Terah slow'd his pilgrimage ;
 The rest of His he doth conduct (in fine)
 To Canaan (since called Palestine) :
 Where God pours down such fouds of goods upon them,
 And bounteously bestowes such blessings on them,
 That thier abundance shortly seems t' exceed
 God's Promises, and thier desires indeed.
 Their fruitfull Heards, that hill and dale do haunt,
 Resemble not the breed of th' Elephant,
 Which (slowe in coupling, and in calving more, 230
 Pining her Master so long time before
 With lingring hope) brings-forth, with painfull grones,
 But once in twelve years, but one Calfc at once.
 All's white wth thier wooll : all thier Cattell proves,
 Still, still increasing like to Stares and Doves.

Their Wealth so growes, that, wantoniz'd withall,
 Their envious Shepherds broach a civill Brawl.
 But, lest this Mischief, by the Grooms begun,
 Between thier Masters might unkindly run,
 The Grave-milde Grand sire of the Faithfull (there) 240
 And Ammon's Father, to cut off the fear
 Of farther strife, and to establish rather
 Their Mindes then Bodies, in a league together ;
 Divided duly with a deep foresight
 Thier Flocks and Heards in number infinite.

Then pleas'd and parted ; both go live a-part :
 The Uncle kept the Mountain for his part ;
 For, 's Nephew chose the fat and flowry Plain,
 And even to Sodom stretch his Tent and Train ;
 And, dwelling there, became a Citizen 250
 Among those monstrous, Nature-forcing Men.

O Lot (alas !) what lot hast thou elect ?
 Th' eternal verdure, and the trim prospect,
 The plenteous Pastures, and the purling Springs,
 Whose fibrous silver, thousand Tributes brings
 To wealthy Jordan, wat'ring so the soil
 (Like God's owne Garden) doth thy sense beguile,
 Blindeth thy judgment, makes thee (miserable)
 To seat thee with a people execrable ;
 Whose War thrall'd woes, and odious villanies 260
 To springs of tears shall turn thy tender eyes.

Elam's proud King, great Chedorlaomer (Leagued with Arioch King of Ellasar,
 The Sovrain of the Nations, Thadasi,
 And with the King of Shynaar, Amraphel)
 Made war against the Kings of Sodoma,
Gomorrah, Zebelm, Zoar, Adamah ;
 Who, subject to him for twelve years before,
 Rebell'd now, and cast the yoke they bore.

Both ; Camps approach, their bloody rage doth rise, 270
 And even the face of Cowards terrilize ;
 New Martiall heat inflames thier mindes with ire,
 Their bloud is mov'd, their heart is all on fire.
 Their cheerfull limbs (seeming to march too slowe)
 Longing to meet, the fatal drums out-goe ;
 And even already in thier gesture fight :
 Th' iron-footed Coursers, lusty, fresh, and light,
 Marrying thier Master's cause and courage both,
 Snow all the field with a white foaming froth,
 And prancing with their load (as proud withall) 280
 With loud-proud neighings for the Combat call.

Now both the Hoasts march forward furiously,
 The Plain between soon shrinketh equally :
 First in the Ayre begins a fight of dust,
 Then on the Earth both Armies bravely joest.

Brave yet it was : for yet one might behold
 Bright swords & shields, & plumb'd helms of gold
 Un-guard with bloud ; no Cask had lost his head,
 No Horse his load, no scattered Corps lay dead.
 But, on our Corn-fields towards harvest-time 290
 (For punishment of some ingratefull crime)
 Th' incens'd hand of Heav'n's Almighty King
 Never more thick doth slippery Ice-pearles fling,

Iarre begun

 Servants, & the Servants of Lot.

290 Comparison.

Two Comparisons.

His resolution above all discourse of reason.

The great blessing of God on his Obedience.

Simile.

Then here the Arrows show on every side :
 An iron Cloud Heav'n's angry face doth hide
 From Souldiers' sight ; and flying weapons then
 For lack of ground fall upon horse or men :
 There 's not a shaft but hath a man for White,
 Nor stone but lightly in warm bloud doth light :
 Or, if that any faile their foes to hit 300
 In fall ; in flight themselves they enter-split :
 The wounds come all from Heav'n : the bravest
 Hee

Kills and is kild of him he doth not see :
 Without an aym the Dart-man darts his spear,
 And Chance performs th' effect of Valour there.

Simile.

As two stout Rams, both Jealous-phrenzy-kick,
 Afront two flocks, spurd on with anger's prick,
 Rush on each other with tempestuous shock,
 And, butting boisterous, horns and heads do knock :
 So, these two Armies enterchanged blowes ; 310
 And doubling steps and strokes upon their Foes,
 First flesh their Lances, and their Pikes embrew,
 Then with their Swords about them keenly heav,
 Then stab with Daggers ; standing bravely to-'t,
 Till Foe to Foe they charge them foot to foot ;
 So neer, that oft ones Target's pike doth pierce
 Another's Shield, and sends him to his Heere.
 And gawdy plumes of Foes (be-Cedered brave)
 Oft on their Foes' (un-pluméd) crests do wave.

Of all their strokes scarce any stroke is vain ;
 Yet stand they firm, and still the fight maintain :
 Still fronting Death, they face to face abide,
 None turn their backs ; no, neither shrink aside ;
 Of their own blood, as of their Foe's, as frank. 320

But too-too-tiréd, some at last dis-rank :
 Then Threats, and Cries, and Plaints redoubled ay,
 And so pel-mel rage-blinded Mars doth play,
 That now no more their Colours they discern ;
 But, knowing none, to all are strangely stern. 330
 The Palistine fights under Elam's Standard,
 The Skinarite with Sodom's Ensignes wander'd :

Simile.

Even as two swarms of busie Buzzers, mounting
 Amid the Ayre, and mutually affronting,
 Mingle their Troups ; one goes, another coms,
 Another turns ; a cloud of Moastlings hums
 Above our heads, who with their cipres wings
 Decide the Quarrell of their little Kings :
 Either of which a hundred times a minute
 Doth lose a Souldier, and as oft re-win-it.

A martiall brave
 of an old Captain
 against the effeminate softness & delicacie of Carpet Knights.

But may one hope in Champions of the Chamber, 340
 Soft Carpet-Knights, all-senting Musk and Amber, (Whose chief delight is to be over-come)
 Un-daunted hearts that dare not Over-come ?
 In Woman-Men a manly Constancie ?
 In wantom Arms un-wearied Valiancie ?
 No, no (Gomorra's) this is not the place
 For quav'ring Lutes a warbling Voyce to grace :
 No (filthy Sodom) 'tis not here the game
 To play with Males in spight of Nature's name :
 No (Zebotim) here are no Looking-Glasses 350
 For Para-Nymphs to gaze their painted faces :

To starch Mustachoes, and to prank in print,
 And curl the Lock (with favours braided in't) :
 No (Adamah) we spend not here the day
 In Dancing, Courting, Banqueting and Play :
 Nor lastly (Zoar) is it here the guise
 Of silken Mock-Mars (for a Mistress-Prise)
 With Reed-like Lance, and with a Blunted blade,
 To Championize under a Tented shade,
 As at your Tourneys. Therefore to your Mew : 360
 Lay-down your weapons, here's no Work for you.
 'Tis here the Fashion (and the pride of Wars)
 To paint the face with sweat, dust, blood & scars :
 Our Glass is here a bright and glist'ring shield
 Our Satten, steel : the Musick of the Field
 Doth rattle like the Thunder's dreadful roar :
 Death tilteth here : the Mistriss we adore,
 Is Victory (true Sovrain of our hearts)
 Who without danger graceth no Deserts :
 Dead carcases perfume our Dainty Nose : 370
 Our Banquets here, be Banquets for the Crowes :
 Flee therefore (Cowards) flee and turn your backs,
 (As you were wont in your thought-shaming acts)
 But with our Swords and Lances (in your haste)
 Through-thrilléd (Villains) this shall be your last,
 Said Amraphel : and charg'd them in such sort,
 That 't seems a sudden Whirl-winde doth transport
 Their fainting Troups. Some (best adviséd) flie
 To tops of Mountains that do neighbour by ;
 Som, through the plain ; but, neither (in the chace) 380
 Dares once look back (no, not with half a face)
 Their fear had no restraint, and much less Art :
 This throwes away his shield, and that his dart ;
 Swords, Morrions, Pouldrons, Vaunt-brace, Pikes & Lances,

Defeatue of the Sodomites.

Are no defence, but rather hinderances ;
 They, with their hearts, have also lost their sight,
 And reeking less a glorious end, in Fight,
 Then thousand base deaths, desperately they ran
 Into the floods that fets rich Canaan.

Then, Jordan arms him 'gainst these infidels, 390
 With rapid course, and like a sea he swels ;
 Lakes under ground into his chanell range,
 And shallowest Foords to ground-less gulfs doe change :
 He fumes, he foams ; and, swiftly whirling round,
 Seems, in his rage, these bitter words to sound :

Dye (Villians) dye : O more then infamous
 Foule Monsters ! drench your damnéd soules in us.
 Sa, sa, my Floods : with your cold moisture quench
 The lust-full flame of your self-burning stench. 399
 Drown, drown the Hel-hounds, and revenge the wrong
 W^{ch} they have don our Mother Nature long.

The River, swiftly whirling-in the slaves,
 Above with Boaws, beneath with Bodies, paves :
 The gaudy Plume, yet floating light and soft,
 Keeps for a while the hollow helm aloft ;
 But yet (at length) even those that swim the best,
 Down to the bottom sink among the rest,
 Striving and struggling (topai-turvie tost)
 While fain they would, but cannot, yeeld the ghost ;

	Because the flood (unwilling to defile His purest waves with spirits so foule and vile) Re-spews them still into themselves, and there Smoother, and choaks, and rams them, as it were : Then both at once (Bodies and Soules) at last To the main Sea, or his own shore doth cast.	410	Even so sometimes, the loving Vine and Elm (With double damage) joyntly over-whelm ; She walls the wrack of her dear Husband's glade ; He moanes his Spouse's feeble arms and shade : But most it grieves him with his Trunk to crush The precious Clusters of her pleasing Bush ; And presse to death unkindly with his weight Her that for love imbraceth him so straight.	470	Simile.
Their owne Ambush serves against them- selves.	The Kings of Sodom and Gomorrah then, Hoping to train the King of Elam's men, Among the Clay-pits which themselves before (T' intrap the Foe) with boughs had covered o're, Ran thither-ward : but their confuséd flight, In their own Ambush made their own to light : Wherein they lost the flouwr of all their rest ; Sooner of death, then of death's fear possest.	420	Yet Lot alone (with a small troupe assisted) The Martiall brunt with manly breast resisted, And thirsting Fame, stands firmly looking for The furious hoste of Chedorlaomer : But as a narrow and thin-planted Copse, Of tender saplings with their slender tops, Is fell'd almost as soon as under-taken By Multitudes of Peasants Winter-shaken : Lot's little Number so environ'd round, Hemm'd with so many swords, is soon hew'n down.	480	Lot's valour.
	One, as he flies with trembling steps the dart Which (from behind) nigh pierc't him to the heart, Tangling his foot with twynning tendrels tho Of a wilde Vine that neer a pit did grow, Stumbles, and tumbles in, hung by the heels Up to the Waste in water : where he feels A three-fold Fate : for there (O strange !) he found Three deaths in one ; at once slain, hang'd & drown'd.	430	Then left alone, yet still all one he fares ; And the more danger, still the more he dares : Like a strange Mastiff fiercely set upon By mongrell Curs, in number ten to one : Who tyr'd with running (grown more cunning) gets Into some corner ; where upright he sits Upon his stern, and sternly to his foes His rage-full, foaming, grinning teeth he shewes, And snarles, and snaps ; and this and that doth bite, And stoutly still maintains th' unequal fight With equall fury, till (disdaining Death) His Enemies be beaten out of breath.	490	His undaunted resolution.
	Another, weening o'r a Well to skip, From the wet brim his hap-lesse foot doth slip, And in he falls : but instantly (past hope) He catcheth hold upon a dangling rope, And so at length with shifting hands gets-up By little and little to the fountain's top. Which Thadael spying, to him streight he hies, And thus aloud unto the wretch he cries ; Varlet, is this, is this the means you make, Your wonted yoke of Elam off to shake? Is this your Skirmish ? and are these your blowes, Where-with t' incourter so courageous Foes ? Sir, leave your ladder ; this shall serve as well, This sword shall be your ladder down to Hell : Goe pay to Pluto (Prince of Acheron) The Tribute here deny'd unto your own : Here-with he draws his Fauchin bright and keen, And at a blow heaws both his arms off clean : His trickling hands held fast, down fell his Trunk, His bloud did swim, his body quickly sunk.	440	Arioch , admiring, and (even) fearing too What Lot had done, and what he yet might doe ; Him princely meets, and mildly greets him thus : Cease (valiant youth) cease, cease t' incourter us. Wilt thou (alas !) wilt thou (poor soule) expose And hazard thus thy life and fame to lose, In such a Quarrell, for the cause of such ? Alas, I pittie thy misfortune much. For, well I see, thy habit and thy tongue Thine Arms (but most) thy courage (yet so young) Shew that in SODOM's wanton walls accurst Thou wert not born, nor in Gomorrah's nurst. O chief of Chivalry, reserve thy worth For better wars : yeeld thee ; and think hence-forth I highly prize thy powers ; and, by my sword, For thousand kingdoms will not false my word.	450	Simile.
	Another (roughly pushed by the Foe) Falls headlong down into a Bog below : Where, on his head deep planted in the mud With his heels upward like a Tree he stood ; Still to and fro, waving his legs and arms, As Trees are wont to wave in windy storms.	450	Past hope of Conquest (as past fear of death) LOT yeelds him then upon the Prince's Faith : And from his Camell quick-dismounting hies His Royall hand to kisse in humble wise : And th' Army, laden with the richest spoyl, Triumphantly to th' Eastward march the while.	500	Lot taken prisoner.
Simile.	Another here (on hors-back) posting over A broad deep clay-pit that green boughs do cover, Sinks instantly ; and in his sudden Fate Seems the brave Horse doubly unfortunate : For, his own neck he breaks, and bruizing in (With the keen scales of his bright Brigandin) His Master's bowels, serves (alas !) for Tomb To him that yerst so many times did comb His crispy Crest, and him so frankly fed In's hollow Shield with oats, and beans, and bread :	460	No sooner noyse of these sad novells came Unto the ears of faithfull ABRAHAM , But instantly he arms to rescue LOT , And that rich prey the Heathen Kings had got. Three hundred servants of his house he brings (But lightly arm'd with staves, & darts, and slings,	520	Abraham with his family of 300 goes to rescue Lot .

Ayded by MAMRE (in whose Plain he wons)
 ASCOL and ANER (AMOR's valiant sons)
 So at the heels he hunts the fear-lesse Foe,
 Yet waits advantage yer he offer blow)
 Favour'd by streightnesse of the wayes they took, 530
 And cover'd close with night's deceitfull cloak.

In Groon-land field is found a dungeon,
 A thousand-fold more dark then Acheron ;
 It hath no door, lest as it turns about,
 On rusty hooks, it creak too lowly out,
 But Silence serves for Port and Porter there :
 A gaggéd Usher that doth never wear
 Stiff-rustling silks, nor rattling chamlet sutes,
 Nor gyngling spurs, nor creaking Spanish boots ;
 But, that he make no noyse (when e're he sturs) 540
 His high-day sutes are of the softest Furs ;
 At other times (lesse-stately-service-full)
 He's onely clad in cotton, shod in wooll :
 His left fore-finger o're his lips he locks ;
 With th' other beckens to the early Cocks,
 The rushing streams, and roaring Etlus,
 Seeming (though dumb) to whisper softly thus :
 Sleep silver Torrents ; cease, sweet Chante-clear,
 To bid Good-morrow to the Morning here :
 Be still, ye Windes, keep in your native nest ;
 Let not your storms disturb this house of Rest. 550

In midst of all this Cave so dark and deep,
 On a still-rocking couch lies blear-ey'd Sleep,
 Snorting aloud, and with his panting breath
 Blowes a black fume, that all envapoureth :
Oblivion lies hard-by her drowzie brother
 Who readily knowes not her selfe nor other :
 Then solitary Morpheus gently rockt,
 And nasty Sloath self-pyn'd, and poorly frockt, 560
 Irresolute, unhandsome, comfortlesse,
 Rubbing her eyes with Poppy, and doth presse
 The yellow Night-shade, and blew Gladiol's juyce,
 Where-with her sleep-swoln heavy lids she glews.
 Confusédly about the silent Bed
 Fantastick swarms of Dreams there hovered,
 Green, red, and yellow, tawny, black, and blew :
 Some sacred, some profane ; some false, some true ;

Some short, some long ; some div'llish, some divine ;
 Some sad, some glad ; but monstrous all (in fine) :
 They make no noyse, but right resemble may 570
 Th' unnumberd Moats which in the Sun do play,
 When (at some Cranny) with his piercing eye
 He peepeth in some darker place to spy.
 Thither th' Almighty (with a just intent
 To plague those Tyrants pride) his Angels sent,
 No sooner entred, but the radiant shine
 Of's glistring wings, and of his glorious eyn,
 As light as Noon makes the darke House of Night.
 The gawdy swarm of Dreams is put to flight :
 And opening wide the sable Canapey 580
 The wingéd Herald summon'd Sleep away.

Silence dislodg'd at the first word he spake :
 But deaf-dead Sleep could not so soon awake.

Hee's call'd a hundred times, and tugg'd and touz'd,
 And by the Angel often rubb'd and rouz'd :
 At length he stirs, and stretching lazily
 His legs and arms, and opening halfe an eye,
 Foure or five times he yawns ; and leaning-on His (Lob-like) elbow, hears This Message done.

Great Spir't's-restorer, Care's charm-Chasing-grief 590
 Night-short'ning Sire, Man's-Rest, & Mind's Relief,
 Up, up (said he) dispatch thee hence in poste
 And with thy Poppy drench the conquering Hoste
 Of those proud Kings, that (richly charg'd with Prey)
 On Canaan Mountains lodge in dis-aray.

Th' Angel, in th' instant back to Heav'n-ward gon,
Sleep slowly harness his dull Bears anon ;
 And, in a noys-lesse Coach all darkly dight,
 Takes with him Silence, Drowsinesse, and Night :
 Th' air, thickning where he goes, doth nod the head, 600
 The Wolf in Woods lies down, th' Ox in the Mead,
 Th' Orque under Water ; and on Beds of Down
 Men stretch their limbs, and lay them softly down.
 The Nightingale, pearcht on the tender spring
 Of sweetest Haw-thorn, hangs her drowzie wing,
 The Swallow's silent, and the loudest Humber,
 Leaning upon the Earth, now seems to slumber :
 Th' yeugh moves no more, the asp doth cease to shake
 Pines bow their heads, seeming some rest to take.

So soon as Sleep's black wings had over-spread 610
 The Pagan Hoast ; the Souldiers haste to bed :
 For, instantly begin they all to wink,
 To hang their heads, and let their weapons sink :
 Their words-half-spoke are lost between their lips,
 Through all their veins Sleep's charming humour slips,
 Wech to a deep & death-like Letharge brings
 Both Heathen Souldiers and their Heathen Kings.

Abram perceiving now the Army neer,
 By their own Fires ; 'gan thus his Troups to cheer :
 Souldiers (said he) behold this happy Night 620
 Shall make amends for that dis-astrous Fight
 Was fought in Siddim, and acquittance cry,
 For Sodom's shame, and Lots's captivity ;
 Me thinks, already Victory adorn'd
 With Bowes, and Blades, and Casks, and Crowns return'd

From th' Enemy, on our triumphant spears
 Erecteth Tropheis far more rich then theirs ;
 Me thinks, already on our glistering Crests,
 The glorious Garland of the Conquest rests ;
 Our way to vertue lyes so smooth and plain, 630
 With pain-lesse Honour and unvent'red Gain.
 This Hoast you see, is not the valiant Troup
 That stript Gomorrhka, and made Segor stoop ;
 That Jordan, Inde, and Euphrates admire ;
 But a foule Heard of Swine wall'wing in mire ;
 Regard them as they are, not as they were ;
 See but their sloath, doe not their number fear ;
 He that 's asleep is dead, and he that 's dead
 Bites not (they say) ; What have we then to dread ?
 Why stay we, Lads ? already down they are, 640
 Their throats be naked, and their bosoms bare,

Abram's oration
 to his little Troup.

A lively description of Sleep
 with his Cell, Servants, Furniture and Company.

	Their lives lie prostrate here at our command ; And fortune calls but for your helping hand. Come, follow me ; rather, the Lord of Hosts (Terror of Tyrants) who through all the Coasts Of all the Earth confoundeth (with a thought) All worldly power, & brings men's plots to nought ; Come (happy Troup) follow with one accord Th' invincible brave Standard of the Lord.
Simile.	This said ; oft-soons I wot not what a grace, What divine beam reflected on his face ; For, as in March, the Serpent having cast His old foule skin crawls from his hole full fast, Hisses and stings, and stares us in the face, And (gold-like glistering) glides along the grass ; So Heav'n inspires fresh vigour in each part, His blood renews, his heart doth take new heart, A martiall fury in his breast there boyls, His stature seems much taller then yer-whiles ; Youth paints his cheeks with Rose and Lilly Dies, A lovely Lightning sparkles in his eyes ; So that his gallant Port and gracefull voyce Confirms the faintest, makes the sad rejoyce.	650
	Then on the Camp he sets, where round about Lie mingled Carrs, and Horse, and Men, that rout ; Rest seizeth all ; and (wanting what it fed) The fire it self slept in his ashy bed. Th' Hebrews the-while laid-on back, or breast, Or arm, or side, according as their Rest To th' ground had bound them ; & those lives bereft	660
Abraham sets upon the Camp of Chedorlomer.	The which Death's Image in a Image left. Here, one beheaded on a Trunk of Pine, Pours-out at once his gore, his ghost, and Wine ; The full Helm hops, and with a voyce confused, Murmurs, as if it his fell Fate accused. Another taken by enchanting sleep, Mid Pots and Cups, and Flagons quaffing deep, Doth at a wound, given in his rattling gorge, The Wine again in his own Cup dis-gorge. Another, while ingeniously he plays Upon his Lute some passing-pleasing Lays, Sleep seals his eyes up with a gloomy cloud ; And yet his hand still quavers light and loud : But, at the last it sinks ; and offering fair To strike the Base, strikes but the empty ayre : His soule, descending to th' Infernall Coasts, Goes to conclude his Song unto the Ghosts : Dolefull it was, not for the Argument (For 'twas of Love) but for the sad event. Another, wak'ned with those loud alarms, Starts-up and groapeth round about for arms ; Which, ah too soon he findeth, for his part : For a keen poignard stabs him to the heart.	670
Simile.	Like as a Tigress, having with the gore Of Buls, and Heifers made her spots the more, And pav'd a Plain with creatures' mangled limbs, Views on each side her valiant stratagems, Treads on the vanquisht, and is proudly sad, That no more Foes, nor no more Maw she had :	680
	Another, wak'ned with those loud alarms, Starts-up and groapeth round about for arms ; Which, ah too soon he findeth, for his part : For a keen poignard stabs him to the heart.	690
	So th' Hebrew stalking round about the slain, Braves (but it boots not) and would very fain That those dead bodies might their Ghosts re-gather, Or that those Mountains would produce him (rather) Some Foes more wakefull, that more manfully In bloud-drown'd Valleys might his valour try. Amor's three sons did no lesse slaughter make ; Abram for zeale, they but for furies' sake ; This, nails a Souldier with his Sword to th' ground ; That, at a blow, th' heads of two Heads dis-crown'd. This, underneath a Chariot kills the driver : That, lops off legs and arms, and heads doth shiver.	700
	The Tents already all in bloud doe swim, Gushing from sundry Corps, from severall lim. In briefe, so many ravening Wolves they seem, Within whose breast, fierce Famine biteth keen, Who softly stealing to some fold of Sheep (While both the Shepheard & his Curr doth sleep) Furbush their hungry teeth, tear, kill, and prey Upon the best, to eat and bear away.	710
	Yet, at the length, the vanquish'd awake, And (re-aray'd) the Victors under-take ; Putting the three proud Amorites, to flight, Who but for Abram, had been routed quite. Sleep sleep (poor Pagans) sith you needs must dy, Go sleep again, and so dye easily, Dye yer you think on death, and in your Dreams Gasp-out your soules ; Let not your dazed beams Behold the havock and the horror too Of th' Execution, that our swords shall doe, Hacking your bodies to heaw-out your breaths, Yer death, to fright you with a thousand deaths, Said Abraham : and pointing every word With the keen point of his quick-whirled sword (As swift in doing, as in saying so) More fiercely chargeth the insulting Foe, Then ever storm-full cloud, which fed with water's Thin moist-ful fumes (ye snowy mountains' daughters) Showr'd heaps of hail-shot, or pour'd fouds of rain, On slender stems of the new tender grain :	720
	Through bloud, and blades, through danger, dust and death, Through mangled Corps and carrs he traverseth ; And partly in the shock, part with the blows, He breaketh in through thickest of his Foes, And by his travell topsi-turneth then The live and dead, and half-dead horse and men : His bright-keen Fauchin never threats, but hits ; Nor hits, but hurts ; nor hurts, but that it splits Some privie postern, whence to Hell (in Post) Some groaning Pagan may gasp out his ghost : He all assayls, and him so brave bestows, That in his Fight he deals more deaths then blows.	730	Comparison.
	As the North-winde, re-cleering-up the front Of cloudy Heav'n, towards the South doth hunt The showrs that Austers spongie thirst exhales Out of those Seas that circle Oran's wals ; So where-so-e're our Hebrew Champion wield His war-like weapon and his glistering shield	740	750

thrown by Abraham.*

(Whose glorious splendor darts a dreadful light)
All turn their backs, and all be-take to flight ;
Forgetting Fame, Shame, Vertue, Hope, and all, 760
Their hearts are don, and down their weapons fall :
Or, if that any be so strangely-stout
As not to faint, but bravely yet hold out,
Alas ! it boots not, for it cannot stop
The victory, but haste his own mishap.

God giveth victory.

But in what Fence-schoole, of what Master, say,
Brave Pearl of Souldiers, learn'd thy hands to play
So at so sundry weapons, such passados,
Such thrusts, such foyns, stramazos, and stoccados ?
Even of that mighty God, whose sacred might 770
Made Heav'n & Earth (& them so brave bedight)
Of meerly nothing ; of that God of Powr
Who swore to be thy Target and thy Tower ;
Of that high God who fortifies the weak,
Who teacheth his, even steely bowes to break ;
Who doth his Children's zealous hearts inflame,
But daunts the proud, and doth their courage tame.

*Abraham follows
the execution.*

Thy Sword abates th' armed, the strong, the stout ;
Thou cleav'st, thou kill'st : The faint dis-armed rout,
The lightning of thine eyes, thy voyces thunder, 780
And thy stern dreadful port confounds with wonder ;
Death and Despair, Horror and Fury fight
Under thine Ensignes in the dismall Night ;
Thou slayest this, and that thou threat'st as much,
This thou pursu'st, that thou disdain'st to touch ;
In brief (thou blest Knight brave) thou quelst at once
Valiant and vile, arm'd and unarmed ones.

Here, thine even hand (even in a twinkling trice)
In equall halves a Pagan's head doth slyce :
Down on each shoulder looketh either halfe, 790
To gaze upon his ghastly Epitaph,
In lines of blood writ round about him fair,
Under the curtain of his parted hair.
Here, through a Jerkin (more then Musket-prooffe)
Made twelve-fold double of East-country Buff, Clean through and through thy deadly shaft doth thrill

A gyant's bulk ; the wounded hulk doth reel :
The head behinde appears ; before, the feathers ;
And th' Ethnick soul flies both wayes out togethers :
Here thou dost cleave, with thy keen fauchin's force, 800
The Bards and Breast-plate of a furious Horse,
No sooner hurt, but he recoyleth back,
Writing his fortune in a bloody track :
Thy barbéd dart, here at a Chaldee flies,
And in an instant lardeth both his thighes,
While he (blaspheming his hard stars and state)
Hops (like a Pie) in stead of wonted gate.

Lot rescued revenge bravely his captivity.

Now LOT (the while) escapt from ELAM's hands,
Free from the burden of his yron bands ;
With just revenge retorts his taken wrong, 810
His feet grow swift, his sinnews waxen strong,
His heart revives ; and his revived heart
Supplies new spirits to all and every part.
And as a wilde and wanton Colt, got out
Of some great Stable, staring scuds about,

Simile.

Shakes his proud head and crest, yerks out his heels,
Butts at the ayre, beats on the humble fields,
His flying shadow now pursues amain,
Anon (amaz'd) flies it as fast again,
Again beholds it with selfe-proud delight, 820
Looks on his legs, sets his stiff tayl upright,
And neighs so loud to Mares beyond the Mound,
That with the noyse the neighbour hills resound :
So, one while LOT sets on a Troup of Horse,
A band of Sling-men he anon doth force,
Anon he pusheth through a Stand of Pikes,
A wing of Archers off anon he strikes,
Anon he stalks about a steepfull Rock,
Where some, to shun death's (never shunnéd) stroke,
Had clambred-up ; at length a path he spies, 830
Where up he mounts, & doth their Mount surprise :
Whence, stones he heaves, so heavy and so huge,
That in our Age, three men could hardly bouge ;
Under whose weight his flying Foes he dashes,
And in their flesh, bones, stones, and steel he pashes :
Sometimes he shoots, sometimes he shakes a Pike,
Which death to many, dread to all doth strike.
Some in the breast he wounds, some in the backs,
Some on the hanch, some on the head he hacks,
He heaws down all ! and maketh where he stood 840
A Mount of bodies in a Moat of bloud.

At length the Pagans wholly left the place,
Then both sides ran ; these chasdéd, those to chase :
These onely use their heels ; those heels and hands :
Those wish but a fair way ; these that the sands
Would quickly gape, and swallow quick to Hell
Théselves that fled, & thè that chac't to fell :
These render nought but blows ; those nought but bloud :
Both sides have broke their ranks : pel-mel they scud ;
Choakt-up with dust, dis-ordered, dis-array'd : 850
Neither Command, Threat, nor Intreat obey'd.

The Pagans wholly put to flight.

Thou that (late) bragg'st, that thy white Wormly
brave
Could dry-foot run upon the liquid Wave :
And on the sand leaving no print behinde
Out-swifted Arrows, and out-went the Winde,
With a steel Dart, by ABRAH'm stifly sent,
Art 'twixt thy Cuirace and thy Saddle slent :
And thou that thrice, near Tigris' silver source,
Hadst won the Bell, as best in every Course,
Art caught by LOT, and (thrild from side to side) 860
Losest thy speed-praise, and thy life beside.

It seems no Fight, but (rather as befals)
An execution of sad criminals :
Who-so escapes the sword, escapes not so
His sad destruction ; or, if any tho
Escap't at all, they were but few (at least)
To rue the fatal ruine of the rest :
Tor th' Uncle and the Nephew never lin,
Till out of Canaan they have chac't them clean :
Like to a Cast of Falcons that pursue 870
A flight of Pigeons through the Welkin blew ;
Stooping at this and that, that to their Louver,
(To save their lives) they hardly can recover.

870 Simile.

The Kings of Canaan received Abraham and his company with great joy, and the grateful offer of their homage unto him.

At his return from Fight, the Kings and Lords
Of Palestine, with glad and humble words,
Do welcome Abraham and refresh his Troup ;
To's knees their heads, to's feet their knees they stoop :

O valiant Victor ! for thy high Deserts,
Accept the homage of our humble hearts.
Accept our gratefull zeale : or if ought more 880
(As well thou mayst) thou dost expect therefore,
Accept (said they) our Lands, our goods, our gold,
Our wives, our lives, and what we dearest hold :
Take all we have ; for all we have is thine :
No wrong to us to take thy Valour's Fine.

Melchisedech blesseth Abraham.

Melchisedech, God's sacred Minister,
And King of Salem coms to greet him there,
Blessing his blisse, and thus with zealous cry
Devoutly pierc't Heav'n's starfull Canapey :
Blest be the Lord, that with his hand doth roule 890
The radiant Orbs that turn about the Pole ;
And rules the Actions of all humane-kinde
With full command ; and with one blast of winde
Razes the Rocks, and rends the proudest Hills,
Dries-up the Ocean, and the empty fils :
Blest be the great God of great Abraham :
From Age to Age extolléd be his Name :
Let every place unto him Altars build,
And every Altar with his praise be fill'd,
And every Praise above the Welkin ring 900
As loud or louder then the Angels sing :
Blesséd be He, that by an arm-lesse crew
Of Art-lesse Shepherds did so quick subdue
And tame the Tamers of Great Syria so ;
And to the servants of an exil'd Foe
Hath giv'n the Riches and the royall store
(Both of their Booty and their Own before)
Of such an Hoast of Nations that first see
Sol's early rising from Aurora's knee.

Abraham distrib-
utes the booty, reserving only a portion for the Amorites that were his confederates.

But Abraham, to prove that not for prey,
He puts-on arms, divides the Spoils away ;
The Tythes the Priests : the Rest of all the things
(Yerst lost in field) he renders to the Kings,
Save but the Portion he participates
To th' Amorites his stout Confederates ;
Shewing himselfe a Prince as Politick,
Prudent, and just, as stout and souldier-like,
That with his Prowesse Policy can mell,
And Conquering, can use his Conquest well ;
Magnanimous in deeds, in words as meek, 920
That scorning Riches, true renown doth seek.

He is famous far and neere.

So, from the Sea, even to th' Euphratean-source,
And even from Dan to Nilus crystal course,
Rings his renown ; Of him is all the speech,
At home, abroad ; among the poor and rich,
In war and peace ; the Fame of his high deeds
Confirms the Faithfull in their fainting Creeds ;
And terrifies the Tyrant Infidels,
Shaking the sides of their proud Citadels,
That with their fronts the seat of Jove do scorn, 930
And with their feet at Pluto's crown do spurn.

Voyce, Harp, and Timbrel sound his praise together,
Hee's held a Prophet or an Angel rather ;
They say that God talks with him face to face,
Hoasts at his House, and to his happy Race
Gives in Fee-simple all that goodly Land
Even from the Sea, as far as Tigris' Strand.

And it is certain, the Thrice-sacred One
The King of kings, by Dream or Vision,
Speaks with him oft ; and calls him thus by name ; 940
Faint not my servant, fear not ABRAHAM ;
I am no fiend that with a fainéd lip
Seek guilefully thy simpleness to trip,
Nor to entice the (with a baen-full breath)
To bite (like ADAM) a new fruit of death :
'Tis I, that brought thee from thy Native UR,
From night to day, from death to life (thus far)
I brought thee hither, I have blest thee here,
I with thy flocks have covered far and neer
Canaan's fat Hills ; I have preserv'd thy Wife 950
From strangers' lust, and thee from Tyrants' knife,
When thy faint heart, and thy false tongue, affray'd
To tell the truth, her and thy selfe betray'd :

God appears unto him, and maketh covenant with him.

'Tis I, that have so oft from Heathens' powr
Preserv'd thy person ; and (as Conqueror)
Now made thee triumph over th' Eastern Kings
(Whereof so far thy famous Valour rings) :
I am (in brieve) I am the Lord thy God,
Thy help at home, thy Guide and Guard abroad :
Keep thou my Covenant : and (to signifie, 960
That to the World thou dy'st, to live to Mee)
Go Circumcise forth-with thy Selfe and Thine,
Lead holy Life walk in my Wayes divine
With upright-foot : so shall my favour hant
Thy House and thee, and thou shalt nothing want :
No, I will make thee Lord of all the Land
Which Canaan's Children have with mighty hand
So long possess ; a happy Land that flowes
With milk and hony : a rich Land where growes
(Even of it selfe) all kind of Fruit & Corn, 970
Where smiling Heav'ns pour-down their Plentie's-horn :

Circumcision
instituted.

Canaan promised to Abraham.

Ile heap thee there with Honour, Wealth, & Powr,
I will be thy Reward, thy Shield, and Towr.

O Lord (said ABRAM) though into my lap
In showers of gold ev'n all the Heav'ns should drop,
What bootéd all, to me that am alone ?
Alas ! my Lord, I have enough, for one
That hath no issue after to inherit,
But my good servant ELEAZAR's merit.

Not so, my Son (replies th' Omnipotent) 980
Mistake not so my bountifull intent ;
Ile not disparage to a Servant's Fee
The rich estate, and royall dignity
That in my People shall hereafter shine :
No, no (mine ABRAM) even a stock of thine,
Thine own deer Nephews, even thy proper Seed
Shall be thine Heirs, and in thy state succeed.
Yea thine own Son's immortal-mortal Race
Shall hold in gage the Treasures of my Grace.

The Patriarch, then rapt with sudden joy, 990
 Made answer thus : Lives then my wandering Boy?
 Lives ISMAEL? is ISMAEL alive?
 O happy news ! (Lord let him ever thrive)
 And shall his Seed succeed so eminent ?
 Ah ! let me dye then : then I dye content.
 ISMAEL indeed doth live (the Lord replies)
 And lives, to father mighty Progenies :
 For, from the Day when first his Mother (flying Thy jealous Sara's curst and threatfull crying)
 To the dry Desart's sandy horror hy'd, 1000
 I have for both been careful to provide ;
 Their extreme Thirst due-timely to refresh,
 Conducting them unto a Fountain fresh,
 In liquid Crystall of whose Maiden spout
 Bird never dipt her bill, nor Beast his snowt.
 And if I erre not (but I cannot erre :
 For, what is hid from Heart's-Artificer ?
 What can the Sight of the Sight-maker dim ?)
 Another Exile yet attendeth him,
 Where-in he shall (in season) feed and finde, 1010
 How much to him I will be good and kinde.
 He shall grow great, yet shall his rest be small ;
 All shall make war on him, and he on all :
 Through Corlets, Rivers, Jacks, and Shirts of Mail,
 His shaft shall thrill the Foes that him assail :
 A swift Hart's heart he shall (even running) hit ;
 A Sparrow's head he shall (even flying) split :
 And in the ayre shall make the Swallow cease
 His sweet-sweet note, and slicing nimbleness.
 Yea (O Saints-Firstling) only for thy sake, 1020
 Twelve mighty Princes will I shortly make Spring from his Loines, whose fruitfull seed shall sway
 Even unto Sar from golden Havila.
 Yet 'tis not He, with whom I mean to knit
 Mine inward Covenant ; th' outward seal of it
 ISMAEL may bear, but not the efficacy
 (Thy Son, but after flesh, not after Grace).
 But to declare that under Heaven's Frame,
 I hold nought dearer then mine ABRAHAM,
 Ile open SARA's dry and barren womb, 1030
 From whence thine ISAAC (Earth's delight) shall come,
 To glad the World ; a Son that shall (like thee)
 Support thy Faith, and prop her Family.
 Com from thy Tent, com forth & here contempe
 The golden Wonders of my Throne and Temple ;
 Number the Stars, measure their bignesse bright,
 With fixé eye gaze on their twinkling light,
 Exactly mark their ordred Courses driven
 In radiant Coaches through the Lists of Heav'n :
 Then mayst thou also number thine own Seed, 1040
 And comprehend their Faith, and plainly read
 Their noble Acts, and of their publike State
 Draw an Idea in thine own conceit.
 This, This is Hee, to, and with whom I grant
 Th' eternall Charter of my Covenant ;
 Which if he truly keep, upon his Race
 Ile pour an Ocean of my plenteous Grace :

Ismael's mightiness.

Isaac promised.

In him the Covenant ratified.

Ile not alone give him the Fields here seen
 But even from India all that flowreth green
 To th' utmost Ocean's utmost sand and shelve ; 1050
 Ile give him Heav'n, Ile give him even my Selfe.
 Hence, hence, the High & mighty Prince shal spring
 Sin's, Death's, and Hel's eternall-taming King,
 The sacred Founder of Man's soverain Bliss,
 World's peace, world's ransom, & world's righteousness.
 Th' eternall seem'd then towards Heav'n to hie,
 Th' old-man to follow him with greedy eye.
 The sudden dis-appearing of the Lord,
 Seem'd like to powder, fired on a boord,
 When smoakingly it mounts in sudden flash, 1060
 With little flame, giving a little clash.
 Plenty and Pleasure had o'r-whelm'd the while Sodom and Gomor in all Vices vile :
 So that, already the most ruth-less Rape
 Of tender Virgins of the rarest shape,
 Th' adulterous kiss (which Wedlock's bands unbides)
 Th' incestuous Bed, confounding Kindred's kindes
 (Where Father woos the Daughter, Sister Brother,
 Th' Uncle the Niece, and ev'n the Son the Mother)
 They did not hate, nor (as they ought) abhor ; 1070
 But rather scorn'd, as sports they car'd not for.
 Forbear (dear Younglings) pray a-while forbear,
 Stand farther from me, or else stop your eare,
 At th' obscene sound of th' unbeeseeming words
 Which to my Muse this odious place affords :
 Or, if its horror cannot drive you hence,
 Hearing their Sin, pray hear their Punishments.
 These beastly Men (rather these man-like Beasts)
 Could not be fill'd with VENUS's vulgar Feasts ;
 Fair Nature could not furnish their Desire ; 1080
 Some monstrous mees these Monsters did require :
 An execrable flame inflam'd their hearts,
 Prodigiously they play'd the Women's parts :
 Male hunted Male ; and acted, openly,
 Their furious Lusts in fruitless Venery.
 Therefore, to purge Ulcers so pestilent,
 Two Heav'nly Scowts the Lord to Sodom sent ;
 Whom (deeming Mortals) Lot importunates
 To take his Lodging, and to taste his Cates.
 For, Angels, being meer Intelligences 1090
 Have (properly) no Bodies, nor no Senses :
 But (sacred Legats of the Holy-One)
 To treat with us, they put our Nature-on ;
 And take a body fit to exercise
 The Charge they have, which runnes, and feeds, and flies ;
 Dures during their Commission ; and, that past,
 Turns t' Elements, whence first it was amast.
 A simple Spirit (the glittering Child of Light)
 Unto a bodie doth not so unite,
 As to the Matter Form incorporates : 1100
 But, for a season it accomodates,
 As to his Tool the quaint Artificer,
 (That at his pleasure makes the same to stir)
 Yet in such sort that th' instrument (we see)
 Holds much of him that moves it actively.

Of his line shall come Christ the Redeemer.

Prosperity
 plungeth the Sodomites in all manner of abominations.

Their most execrable sinne.

Two Angels sent downe, received and gusted by Lot.

Of the nature and essence of Angels.

But alwaies in some place are Angels : though
 Not as all-filling (God alone is so,
 The Spirit which all good spirits in spirit adore,
 In all, on all, with-out all evermore).
 Nor as inviron'd (That alone agrees
 To bodies bounded with extremities
 Of the next substance ; and whose superface Unto their place proportionable is)
 But rather, as sole-selfly limited,
 And joy'n'd to place, yet not as quantiti'd ;
 But by the touch of their live efficacy
 Containing Bodies which they seem t' embrace :
 So, visibly those bodies move, and oft
 By word of Mouth bring arrands from aloft,
 And eat with us ; but, not for sustentation,
 Nor naturally, but by n̄er dispensation.

Such were the sacred Guests of this good Prince :
 Such, courteous ABRAM feasted in his Tents,
 When, seeing three, he did adore but one ;
 Which, comming down from the celestiall Throne,
 Fore-told the sad and sudden Tragedy,
 Of these loose Cities, for their Luxurie.

Exhortation to hospitality.

You that your Purse do shut, and doors do bar
 Against the cold, faint, hungry Passenger ;
 You little think that all our life and age
 Is but an Exile and a Pilgrimage :
 And that in earth whoso hath never given
 Harbour to strangers, shall have none in Heav'n,
 Where solemn Nuptials of the Lamb are held,
 Where Angels bright and souls that have excell'd,
 All clad in white, sing th' Epithalamy,
 Carousing Nectar of Eternitie.

The lustfull
 Sodomites
 inflamed with the beauty of the Angels, mutiny against Lot for harbouring them.

Sans Hospitality, the Pilgrim poor
 For Bed-fellow might have a Wolf or Boar :
 What e'er is given the Strange and Needy one,
 Is not a gift (indeed) but 't is a Loan,
 A Loan to God, who payes with interest ;
 And (even in this life) guerdons even the least.
 For, alms (like heaven) make our goods to rise,
 And God his own with blessings plentifis.

O Hosts, what know you, whether (charitable)
 When you suppose to feast men at your Table,
 You guest God's Angels in Men's habit hid,
 (Heav'n-Citizens) as this good Hebrew did?
 Who supped them : & when the time grew meet
 To go to bed, he heard amid the street
 A wrangling, jangling, and a murmur rude,
 Which great, grew greater through night's solitude.
 For, those that first these two bright stars surveyed,

Wilde, Stalion-like, after their beauties neigh'd ;
 But, seeing them by the chaste Stranger sav'd,
 Shame-less and sens-less up and down they rav'd,
 From House to House knocking at every doore,
 And beastly-brute, thus, they rayle and roare ;
 Brethren, shall we endure this Fugitive,
 This stranger LOT, our pleasures to deprive?
 O Cowardise ! to suffer in our sights
 An exile here t' usurp our choyce delights,

T' embrace a brace of Youths so beauteous
 (Rather two Gods com-down from Heav'n to us)?
 Shall it be said that such an old cold stock
 Such rare young minions in his bed should mock,
 While wretched we, unto our selves make mone?
 And (Widow-like) wear out our sheets alone?
 Let's rather break his doors, and make him know,
 Such dainty morsels hang not for his Mow.

*Even as at Bath, down from the neighbour hills,
 After a Snowe, the melting Crystall trils
 Into the Avon (when the Pythian Knight Strips those steep Mountains of their shirts so white)
 Through hundred Valleys gushing Brooks & Torrents,*

*Striving for swiftnesse in their sundry Currents,
 Cutting deep Chanels where they chance to run,
 And never rest till all do meet in one :*

So, at their cry from every corner throng
 Unto LOT's house, Men, Children, old and young,
 For, common was this execrable sin,
 With blear-ey'd Age, as nusled long therein ;
 With Youth, through rage of lust ; with infancie,
 Example-led : all through Impunitie.

And thus, they all cry out ; Ope, ope the door,
 Come, open quickly, and delay no more :
 Let forth that lovely pair, that they may proove
 With us the pleasures of Male-mingled love.

LOT lowly then replies : Brethren and Friends,
 By all the names that amity commends,
 By Nature's Rules, and Rites of Hospitality,
 By sacred Laws, and Lessons of Morality,
 By all respects of our com-Burgership
 (Which should our minds in mutuall kindnes keep)
 I do abjure you all, that you refrain

Lot speaks them faire, and intreats them earnestly for the safety of his guests.

The honour of my harmlesse guests to stain,
 Nor in your hearts to harbour such a thought
 Whereby their Vertues may be wrong'd in ought.

Base busie Stranger, com'st thou hither thus (Controller-like) to prate and preach to Us?
 No (Puritan) thou shalt not here do so ;
 Therefore dispatch and let thy darlings goe ;
 Let-forth that lovely Payr, that they may proove
 With us the Pleasures of Male-mingled love.

The horror of this sin, their stubborn rage,
 His sacred promise given his Guests for gage,
 Th' old Hebrew's mind so trouble and dismay,
 That well he wots not what to doe nor say.
 For, though we ought not (if God's word be true)
 Doe any evill that good may ensue :

1900 Their insolent reply.

To shun one ill, another ill he suffers,
 He prostitutes his issue ; and he offers,
 Lambs to the guard of Wolves : and thus he cries,
 I have (with that, the tears ran-down his eyes)
 I have two Daughters that be Virgins both ;
 Go, take them to you (yet alas full loth)
 Go, crop the first-fruits to their Bride-grooms due
 (O! death to think it) : But let none of you
 Abuse my chaste Guests with such villany
 As merits Fire from Heav'n immediately ;

He offers them his own daughters to rescue his guests.

1220

A sin so odious that the Name alone
Good men abhor, yea even to think upon.

Their monstrous
impudency.

Tush : we are glutt'd with all granted loves,
And common pleasures nought our pleasure moves ;
LOT, our delights (ty'd to no law's conformity)
Consist not in the pleasure, but th' inornity,
Which fools abhor : and, saying so they rush,
Some upon LOT, some at his gates do push.

O curséd City ! where the agéd Sire, 1230
Un-able thus to doe, doth thus desire ;
And younglings, yet scarce weanéd from their nurse

Strive with their Elders whether shall be worse ;
Full is the measure of thy monstrous sin :
Thy Canker now o'r all thy bulk hath bin.

Impudence in sinning, doubles the guilt of sin.

God hates all sin : but, extreme Impudence
Is even a greater sin then the Offence :
The sweet kinde Kisses of chaste Man and Wife
Although they seem by God and Nature (rife)
Rather command'd then allow'd, and grac't 1240
In their sweet fruits (their issue choicely-chaste)
With law's large priviledge ; yet evermore
(As Modesty and Honesty implore)
Ought to be private, and (as things forbidden Unto the sight) with Night's black curtain hidden.

Yet these foul monsters in the open street
Where altogether all the Town might see't,
Most impudent, dare perpetrate a sin
Which Hell it selfe before had never seen ;
A sin so odious, that the fame of it 1250
Will fright the damnéd in the darksom Pit.

Before their fear-
full destruction,
the Angels bring Lot and his family safe out of the City.

But now, the Angels, their celestiall kinde
Un-able longer to conceal, strook blinde
Those beastly Letchers, and brought safe away
LOT and his household by the break of Day.
But, O prodigious ! never rose the Sun
More beautifull, nor brighter shin'd upon
All other places (for he rose betimes
To see such Execution on such Crimes) :

And yet, it lowrs, it lightens, and it thunders 1260
It rores, it rains (O most unwonted wonders !)
Upon this Land ; which 'gainst th' Omnipotent
Had warr'd so long with sins so insolent :
And 'gainst the pride of those detested livers,
Heav'n seems to empty all his wrathfull Quivers.
From Acheron even all the Furies hie,
And all their Monsters them accompany,
With all their tortures and their dismall terrors,
And all their Chaos of confuséd Horrors ;

All on the guilty strand of Jordan storm, 1270
And with their Fire-brands all to Sodom swarm ;
As thick as Crows in hungry shoals do light
On new-sow'n lands ; where stalking bold upright,
As black as Jet they jet about, and feed
On Wheat, or Rye, or other kinde of seed ;
Kaaking so loud, that hardly can the Steer
The whistling Goad-man's guiding language hear.

Simile.

The manner of their punishment
by fire and brim-

It rain'd indeed ; but, not such fertile raine
As makes the Corn in Summer sprout amain ;

And all things fresh'd with a pleasant ayr, 1280
To thrive, and prove more lively, strong and fair :
But in this sink of Sin, this stinking Hell,
A rain of Salt, of Fire, and Brimstone, fell.
Salt did consume the pleasant fruitfulnessse,
Which serv'd for fuell to their Wantonnesse :
Fire punishéd their beastly Fire within :
And Brimston's stink the stench of their foul Sin.
So, as their Sin was singular (of right)
Their punishment was also exquisite :
Here open Flames, and there yet hidden Fires 1290
Burn all to ashes, sparing neither Spires
Of brick nor stone, nor Columns, gates, nor arches, Nor bowrs, nor Towrs, nor even their neighbour-marches.

stone from heaven,
and the reason
therof.

In vain the-while y^e People weep & cry,
To see their wrack, and know no remedy :
For, now the Flame in richest Roofs begun,
From molten gutters scalding Lead doth run,
The Slat and Tyles about their ears do split,
The burning Rafters Pitch and Rosin spet :
The whirling Fire re-mounteth to the Skie, 1300
About the fields ten thousand sparks do flie ;
Half-burnéd houses fall with hideous fray,
And VULCAN makes Mid-night as bright as day :
Heav'n flings down nought but flashing Thundershot,
Th' Ayr's all a-fire, Earth's exhalations hot
Are spewing ÆTNAS that to Heav'n aspire :
All th' Elements (in brief) are turn'd to fire.

The same most lively represented.

Here, one perceiving the next Chamber burning,
With suddain leap towards the window turning,
Thinks to cry Fire : but instantly the smoke 1310
And flame without, his with-in Voice do choke :
Another sooner feels then sees the Fire.
For, while (O horror !) in the stinking mire
Of his foul Lust he lies, a Lightning flash
Him and his Love at-once to dust doth dash :
Th' abhorred Bed is burnt ; and they, aswell
Coupled in Plague as Sin, are sent to Hell.

Another yet on tops of Houses crawls :
But his foot slips, and down at last he falls.
Another feeling all his clothes a-fire, 1320
Thinking to quench them yer it should com nigher,
Leaps in a Lake : but all the Lake began
To boyl and bubble like a seething Pan,
Or like a Caldron that top-full of oyl,
Environ'd round with fume and flame doth boyl,
To boyl to death some cunning counterfett
That with false stamp some Princes Coyn hath beat.

Simile.

Another, seeing the City all in Cinders,
Himselfe for safety to the field he renders :
But flakes of fire, from Heav'n distilling thick, 1330
There th' horror of a thousand deaths do strike.

Through Adamak's and Gomer's goodly Plains,
Sodom and Seboim not a soul remains :

Horse, Sheep, and Oxen, Cows and Kids partake
In this revenge, for their vile Masters' sake.

Thus hath the hand of the Omnipotent
Inroll'd the Deed of their drad Punishment,

	With Diamant in Pen, on Plates of Brasse, With such an Ink as nothing can deface : The moulten Marble of these cindred Hills, 1340 Asphaltis Lake, and these poor mock-fruit Fields Keep the Record ; and cry through every Age, How God detesteth such detested Rage. O chastisement most dradly-wonderfull ! Th' Heav'n-cindred Cities a broad standing Pool O'r-flowes (yet flows not) whose infectious breath Corrupts the Ayr, and Earth dis-fertileth : A Lake, whose back, whose belly, and whose shore, Nor Bark, nor Fish, nor Fowl hath ever bore. The pleasant Soy! that did (even) shame yer-while 1350 The plenteous beauties of the banks of Nile, Now scarr'd, and collow'd, with his face and head Cover'd with ashes is all dry'd and dead ; Voyd of all force, vitall, or vegetive ; Upon whose brest nothing can live or thrive : For, nought it bears save an abortive suit Of seeming-fair, false, vain and fainéd fruit : A fruit that feeds the eye, and fills the hand, But to the stomach in no stead doth stand ; For, even before it touch the tender lips, 1360 Or Ivorie teeth, in empty smook it slips, So vanishing : onely the nose receives A noysome savour, that (behinde) it leaves.	Set by some shepheard near the Copse's side, The more it struggles is the faster ty'd. And, as the venom of an eating Canker 1400 From flesh to flesh runs every day the ranker, And never rests, untill from foot to head O'r all the body his fell poyson spread : This Yce creeps-up, and ceaseth not to num, Till ev'n the marrow hard as bones become, The brain be like the skull, and bloud convert To Alablaster over every part ; Her pulse doth cease to beat, and in the ayr The windes no more can wave her scattered hair : Her belly is no belly, but a Quar Of Cardon Rocks, and all her bowels are 1410 A precious Salt-mine, supernaturall ; Such, as (but Salt) I wot [not] what to call ; A Salt, which (seeming to be fall'n from Heav'n) To curious Spirits hath long this Lesson giv'n, Not to presume in Divine things to pry, Which sev'n-times seal'd, under nine Locks do ly. She weeps (alas !) and as she weeps, her tears Turn into Pearls fro'm on her thynking hairs ; Fain would she speak : but (forced to conceal) In her cold throat, her guilty words congeal ; 1420 Her mouth yet open, and her arms a-crosse, Though dumb, declare both why, & how she was Thus Metamorphos'd : for, Heav'n did not change Her last sad gestures in her sudden Change.	Simile. 1400 1410 1420
Exhortation to Travellers that have seene, and to others that shall reade or heare these fearefull monuments of God's severe Justice, to make right use of this fearefull example.	Here, I adjure you vent'rous Travellours, That visit th' horror of these curséd shores, And taste the venom of these stinking streams, And touch the vain fruit of these witheréd stems : And also you that doe behold them thus, In these sad Verses pourtray'd here by us, To tremble all, and with your pearly tears 1370 To showr another Sea ; and that your hairs Staring upright on your affrighted head Heave up your Hats ; and in your dismall dread, To thinke, you hear like Sulph'ry Stormes to strike On our new Monsters for offences like. For, the Almighty's drad all-danting arme Not onely strikes such as with Sodom swarme In these foul sins ; but such as sigh or pity Sodom's destruction, or so damn'd a Citie, And cannot constant with dry eyes observe 1380 God's judgements just on such as such deserve.	No gorgeous Mausole, grac't with flatt'ring verse, Eternizeth her Trunk, her House, and Herse ; But, to this Day (strange will it seem to some) One and the same is both the Corps and Tomb. Almighty Father ! Gracious God and Just ! O ! what hard-heartednesse, what brutish Lust, Pursueth man, if thou but turn thy face, And take but from us thy preventing grace ; And, if provokéd for our past offences, Thou give us up to our Concupisences ? O Harran's Neeeces, you (LOT's daughters) saw SODOM consumed in that Sulph'ry flaw : Their Hills and Forrests calcined (in fine) Their liberrall fields sow'n with a burning brine, Their stately houses like a Coale-pit smooking, The Sun it selfe with their thick vapours choking : So that within a yard for stinking smother 1440 The Labourers cold hardly know each other ; Their flowring valley to a Fen exchang'd : And your own Mother to a Salt-stone chang'd : Yet all (alas !) these famous Monuments Of the just rigour of God's Punishments Cannot deterre you : but ev'n Sodom-like Incestiously a holy-man you seeke : Even your own Father, whom with wine you fill ; And then by turns intice him to your will Conceiving so (O can Heav'n suffer it !) Even of that seed which did your selves beget : Within your wombs you bear for nine months' time Th' upbraiding burden of your shame-lesse Crime ;	Man's pronenesse to fall without the support of God's gracious favour. 1430 1440
Lot's wife Meta- morphos'd.	LOT hies to SEGOR : but his Wife behinde Laggéd in body, but much more in minde : She weeps and wayls (O lamentable terror ! O impiuous Pietie ! O kinde-cruell error !) The dire destruction of the smooking Cities, Her Sons-in-Law (wch should have bin) she pities, Grieves so to leave her goods, and she laments To lose her Jewels and habiliments : And (contrary to th' Angels' Words precise) 1390 Towards the Town she turns her wofull eyes. But instantly, turn'd to a whitely stone, Her feet (alas !) fast to the ground be grown. The more she stirs, she sticks the faster in : As silly Bird caught in a subtile gin,	Even your own Father, whom with wine you fill ; And then by turns intice him to your will Conceiving so (O can Heav'n suffer it !) Even of that seed which did your selves beget : Within your wombs you bear for nine months' time Th' upbraiding burden of your shame-lesse Crime ;	Lot drawne by his daughters in drunkennesse to commit incest with both of them. 1450

And troubling Kindred's names and Nature quite,
 You both become, even in one very night,
 Wives to your Fathers, Sisters to your Sons,
 And Mothers to your Brothers all at once ;
 All under colour that thus living sole,
 Sequestred thus in an unhaunted hole,
 Heav'n's envie should all ADAM's race have left, 1460
 And LOT alone should in the World be left.
 Had 't not been better, never to have bred,
 Then t' have conceiv'd in so foul a bed ?

Had 't not been better never t' have been Mothers,
 Then by your Father, to have born your Brothers ?
 Had 't not been better to the death to hate,
 Then thus t' have lov'd him that you both begate ?
 Him, so much yours, that yours he mought not be ?
 Sith of these Rocks God could immediately
 Have rais'd LOT Son-in-lawes ; or, striking but 1470
 Th' Earth's solid bosom with his brazen foot,
 Out of the dust have rear'd sudden swarms
 Of People, stay'd in Peace, and stout in Arms ?

NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

Line 12, 'every'—misprinted 'overy' in the original.
 L. 13, 'lists' = bounds, as of a race-course. L. 18,
 'Sops-in-wine' = pinks as a species of gillyflowers.
 Nares describes it as a fanciful name ; but it was given from its being used to flavour wine and beer. L. 29,
 'Hulling'—see Glossarial Index, s.v., for a full note.
 L. 55, 'Squire' = square—a frequent contemporary spelling without rhythmica causa. L. 67, 'compile' = compose. L. 80, 'hard-ruled' = hard-to-be-ruled.
 L. 118, 'contempling' = contemplating. L. 119, 'Seel-
 'lists'—See on l. 13: ib., 'reuns' = reins. L. 170, or helmet. L. 298, 'White' = mark—as for arrows.

 L. 301, 'enter-split' = inter-split. L. 333, 'affronting' = confronting or facing. L. 335, 'Moallings'—diminutive of 'motes'. L. 336, 'cipres' = gauzy. L. 341,
 'all-senting' = all-scenting. L. 360, 'Mew' = close place, as Spenser:—

'Forth coming from her darksome mew.'—F. Q., i. v. 20.

L. 384, 'Morriions' = morions, i.e. a steel cap or helmet:
ib., 'Pouldrons' = armour for neck and shoulders
 —probably from epaule (Nares, s.v.): ib., 'Vaunt-brace' = vant or vam-brace, i.e. defensive armour for the arm. So Shakespeare:—

'And in my vant-brace put this wither'd brawn.'
 (Troilus & C. i. 3.)

L. 387, 'reeking' = reckoning. L. 403, 'Boarws' = boughs. L. 408, 'topsi-turvi'—see Glossarial Index, s.v., and l. 744. L. 417, 'train' = to mislead by strata-gem, as substantively in Macbeth (iii. 4):—

—'Devilish Macbeth

By many of these trains hath sought to win me.'

So Spenser, F. Q., i. iii. 24. L. 448, 'Fauchin' = falchion. See l. 746. L. 469, 'domage' = damage.
 L. 520, 'novels' = news: nouvelle (French). This is an apter example than Todd quotes from our Sylvester.
 L. 526, 'wons' = dwells. L. 531, 'deceitfull' = deceiving?
 L. 532, 'Groom-land'—see Glossarial Index, s.v.
 L. 536, 'Port' = gate. L. 538, 'chamlet' = a parti-coloured stuff. L. 548, 'Chante-cleer'—see Glossarial Index, s.v. L. 562, 'Gladiol's' = gladiolus. L. 589, to push in fencing: ib., 'stramasos' = direct descending cut of a sword. L. 796, 'thrill' = pierce. See

 l. 860: ib., 'stocados' = thrust in fencing. L. 799,
 'Ethnick' = heathen. L. 801, 'Bards'—usually corrupted into 'barbed' = barde or barred, armed. L. 807,
 'Pie'—bird so named—a graphic if somewhat grotesque metaphor. L. 833, 'bodge' = budge. L. 835, 'pashes' = crushes. L. 852, 'Wormly brave'—see Glossarial
 Index, s.v. L. 857, 'slent' = slain. L. 868, 'lin' = cease. L. 870, 'Cast' = a flight. L. 918, 'mell' = mingle. L. 935, 'Hoasts'—noticeable verb-form.
 L. 986, 'Nephews' = descendants generally, 'seed.'
 L. 989, 'gage' = pledge. So l. 1207. L. 1014,
 'Rivers'—see Glossarial Index, s.v.: ib., 'Jacks' = jackets. L. 1019, 'slicing mimbleness'—a peculiarly felicitous descriptive word, as all will allow who have watched the swallow on the wing. L. 1034, 'contempe' = contemplate. L. 1096, 'Dures' = endures. L. 1119,
 'arrands' = errands. L. 1148, 'guest'. Cf. on l. 935.
 L. 1150, 'supped' = suppered. L. 1167, 'minions' = associates, in a bad sense. L. 1171, 'Mow' = mouth, used in the Nursery still: Scotticé 'moo'. L. 1173,
 'trils' = trickles. L. 1174, 'Pythian Knight'—see Glossarial Index, s.v. L. 1183, 'nusted' = nuzzled, nursed. L. 1194, 'com-Burgership' = common citizenship. L. 1298, 'Slats' = slates. L. 1338, 'Diamant' = diamond. L. 1352, 'collow'd' = blackened—a fine example. See Glossarial Index, s.v., for a full note.
 L. 1354-5. The vulgar notion ; but I myself saw a jungle of vegetation on the shore, and storks and cranes and other birds among the reeds, and sea-birds rocking on the crystal-clear water and flocks flying all round.
 I also gathered some pretty little flowers within a gunshot of the beach. But I looked in vain for any shellfish. It is now admitted that the doomed cities were on the mountain-sides and plains, not on the site of the Dead Sea. Holy Scripture gives no real warrant for this popular notion. L. 1361, 'in empty smook it slips'
 —I found the so-called 'Dead Sea fruit' abundant in the Sinaitic desert—pale yellow with a touch of pink as on cheek of a peach, and when fully ripe the interior, when you broke through the shell-like rind, was black and ashy. They were not plentiful at the Dead Sea ; but a few were met with near Jericho. There is enough of truth in the thing to give ground for the now familiar illustration of the text. L. 1408, 'Qnar' = quarry.
 L. 1411—I have filled in an omitted 'not'. L. 1417,
 'fro'rn' = froary: ib. 'thinkling' = tinkling. L. 1424,
 'Mausole' = mausoleum. L. 1425, 'Trunk' = body.
 L. 1468, 'mought' = might. L. 1471, 'brazen foot' = brass-strong foot—the reference is to the old classic myth.—G.

The Fathers.

A PART OF THE
SECOND PART
OF THE THIRD DAY
OF THE II. WEEKE.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The famous FATHER of the Faithfull, here
Limn'd to the life, in strife of Faith and Feare :
His Son's sweet Nature, and his nurture such,
Endear his TRIALL with a neerer Touch :
REASON's best Reasons are by FAITH refull'd ;
With GOD, th' Affection, for the Action held ;
So, counter-manding His Command (atchiev'd)
The Sire's approvd, and the Son reprov'd.
Here (had our Author liv'd to end his Works)
Should have ensu'd the other PATRIARCHS.*

10

O ! 'Tis a Heav'nly and a happy turn,
Of godly Parents to be timely born :
To be brought-up under the watchfull eyn
Of milde-sharp Master's awfull Discipline :
Chiefly, to be (even from the very first)
With the pure milk of true Religion nurst.

Such hap had Isaac : but his Inclination
Exceeds his Birth, excels his Education.
His Faith, his Wit, Knowledge, & Judgement sage, 20
Out-stripping Time, anticipate his age.
For (yet a Childe) he fears th' Eternall Lord,
And wisely waits all on his Father's word ;
Whose steady steps so duly he observes,
That every look, him for a lesson serves ;
And every gesture, every wink and beck,
For a command, a warning, and a check :
So that, his toward Diligence out-went
His father's hopes and holy document.

Now, though that Abram were a man discreet, 30
Sober and wise, well-knowing what is meet ;

Though his dear Son sometimes he seem to chide,
Yet hardly can he his affection hide :
For, evermore his love-betraying eye
On 's darling Isaac glanceth tenderly :
Sweet Isaac's face seems as his Glass it were,
And Isaac's Name is musick in his care.

But God, perceiving this deep-settled Love,
Thence takes occasion Abram's Faith to prove ;
And tempteth him : but not as doth the Divell 40
His Vassals tempt (or man his Mate) to evill :
Satan still draws us to Death's dismall Path ;
But God directs where Death no entry hath :
Ay Satan aymes our constant Faith to foyl ;
But God doth seal it, never to recoyl :
Satan suggesteth ill ; God moves to grace :
The Divell seeks our Baptisme to deface ;
But God, to make our burning Zeal to beam
The brighter ay in his Jerusalem.

A Prince, that means effectuall proof to make 50 Simile.
Of some Man's faith that he doth newly take,
Examins strictly, and with much a-doe,
His words and deeds, and every gesture too ;
And, as without, within as well to spy-him,
Doth carefully by all means sift and try-him,

But God ne'r seeks by Triall of Temptation
To sound Man's heart and secret cogitation
(For, well he knowes Man, and his eye doth see All thoughts of Men yer they conceiv'd be) :
But this is still his high and holy drift, 60
When through Temptation he his Saints doth sift,
To leave for pattern to his Church's seed
Their stedfast Faith, and never-daunted Creed.

Yet, out of season God doth never try
 His new-converted Children, by and by ;
 Such novices would quickly faint and shrink,
 Such ill-rigg'd ships would even in lanching sink ;
 Their Faith's light blossoms would with every blast
 Be blown away and bear no fruit at last ;
 Against so boystrous strokes they want a shield ; 70
 Under such weight their feeble strength would yield.
 But when his Word's dear seed, that he hath sown
 Within their hearts, is rooted well and grown :
 And when they have a broad thick Breast-plate on,
 High peril-proof against affliction ;
 Such as our Abram : Who, now wexen strong
 Through exercise of many trials long,
 Of Faith, of Love, of Fortitude and right.
 Who, by long weary wandrings day and night,
 By often Terrors, Lol's imprisonment, 80
 His Wife's twice taking, Ismael's banishment,
 Being made invincible for all assaults
 Of Heav'n and Earth, and the infernall Vaults ;
 Is tempted by the voyce which made all things,
 W^{ch} sceptereth Shepherds, and un-crowneth Kings.
 Give me a Voyce, now, O Voyce all-divine !
 With sacred Fire inflame this breast of mine ;
 Ah ! ravish me, make all this Universe
 Admire thine Abram pourtray'd in my Verse.
 Mine Abram, said the Lord, dear Abraham, 90
 Thy God, thy King, thy Fee, thy Fence I am :
 He straight to Salem, and there quickly kill
 Thine owne Son Isaac ; on that sacred Hill
 Heaw him in pieces, and commit the same
 In sacrifice unto the ragefull Flame.

As he, that slumbring on his carefull Bed,
 Seems to discern some Fancie full of dread ;
 Shrinks down himselfe, and fearfull hides his face,
 And scant draws breath in half an hower's space :
 So Abraham, at these sharp-sounding words 100
 (W^{ch} wound him deeper then a thousand swords)
 Seized at once with wonder, griefe, and fright,
 Is well nigh sunk in Death's eternall night ;
 Death's ash-pale Image in his eyes doth swim,
 A chilling Yce shivers through every lim ;
 Flat on the ground himselfe he groveling throwes,
 A hundred times his colour comes and goes ;
 From all his body a cold deaw doth drop,
 His speech doth fail, and every sense doth stop.
 But, self-return'd, two sounding sobs he cast, 110
 Then two deep sighs, then these sad words at last ;
 Cruell command, quoth He, that I should kill
 A tender Infant, innocent of ill ;
 That in cold bloud I (barbarously) should murder
 My (fear-less, fault-less) faithfull friend ; nay (further)
 Mine own dear Son : and what dear Son ? Alas !
 Mine onely Isaac (whose sweet Vertues passe
 The lovely sweetnesse of his Angel-face)
Isaac, sole pattern of now-Virtue known,
Isaac, in years young, but in wisdome grown ; 120
Isaac, whom good men love, the rest eavie ;
Isaac, my heart's heart, my life's life, must dye.

That I should stain an execrable Shrine
 With Isaac's warm bloud, issued out of mine.
 O ! might mine serve 't were tolerable losse,
 'T were little hurt ; nay, 't were a welcom crosse.
 I bear no longer fruit : the best of Mee
 Is like a fruit-lesse, branch-lesse, sap-lesse Tree,
 Or hollow Trunk, which onely serves for staves
 To crawling Ivie's weak and winding spraes. 130
 But, losing Isaac, I not onely leese
 My life withall (which Heav'ns have linkt to his)
 But (O !) more millions of Babes yet un-bore,
 Then there be sands upon the Libyan shore.

Canst thou mine Arm ? O ! canst thou, cruell arm,
 In Isaac's breast thy bloody weapon warm ?
 Alas ! I could not but even dye for griefe,
 Should I but yeeld mine Age's sweet reliefe
 (My blisse, my comfort, and mine eyes' delight)
 Into the hands of hang-men's spare-lesse spight : 140
 But, that mine own selfe (O extremest Rigour !)
 What my selfe formed, should, my selfe, disfigure :
 That I (alas !) with bloody hand, and knife,
 Should rip his bosome, rend his heart and life :
 That (odious Author of a Precedent
 So rarely ruth-lesse) I should once present,
 Upon a sacred Altar, an Oblation
 So barbarous (O brute abomination !)
 That I should broil his flesh, and in the flame
 Behold his bowels crackling in the same ; 150
 'Tis horrible to think and hellish too,
 Cruell to wish, impossible to doe.

Doe 't he that lists, and that delights in bloud ;
 I neither will nor can become so wood,
 'T obey in this : God, whom we take to be
 Th' eternall Pillar of all verity,
 And constant faith ; will he be faith-lesse now ?
 Will he be false, and from his promise bow ?
 Will he (alas !) undoe what he hath done ?
 Mar what he makes, and lose what he hath won ? 160
 Sail with each winde ? and shall his promise, then,
 Serve but for snares t' intrap sincerest men ?
 Somtimes, by his eternall self he swears,
 That my Son Isaac's number-passing Heirs
 Shall fill the Land, and that his fruitfull Race
 Shall be the blessed leaven of his Grace ;
 Now he commands me his dear life to spill,
 And in the Cradle my Health's Hope to kill,
 To drown the whole World in the bloud of him ;
 And at one stroke, upon his fruitfull stem, 170
 To strike off all the heads of all the flock
 That should hereafter his drad Name invoke,
 His sacred nostrils with sweet smels delight,
 His ears with prayses, with good deeds his sight.
 Will God impugn himselfe ? and will he so
 By his command his Cov'nant overthrow ?
 And shall my faith my faith's confounder be ?
 Then faith, or doubting, are both one to me.
 Alas ! what sayst thou, Abram ? pawse thou must.
 He that revives the Phanix from her dust, 180

And from dead Silk-worms' Tombs (their shining Clews)
 A living Bird with painted wings renews ;
 Will he forget Isaac the onely stock
 Of his chaste spouse (his Church, and chosen Flock) ?
 Will he forget Isaac the onely Light
 Of all the World, for Vertue's lustre bright ?
 Or, can he not (if 't please him) even in death
 Restore him life, and re-inspire him breath ?
 But mark, the while thou bringest for defence
 The All-proof Towr of his Omnipotence, 190
 Thou shak'st his Justice. This is certain (too)
 God can do all, save that he will not doe.
 He loves none ill : for when the wreakfull Waves
 Were all return'd into their wonted Caves ;
 When all the Meads, and every fruitfull Plain,
 Began with joy to see the Sun againe ;
 So soon as Noah (with a gladsome heart)
 Forth of his floating Prison did depart,
 God did forbid Murder : and nothing more
 Then Murder doth his Majestie abhor. 200
 But (shallow man) sound not the vaste Abyss
 Of God's deep Judgements, where no ground there is :
 Be sober-wise : so, bound thy frail desire :
 And, what thou canst not comprehend, admire.
 God our Law-maker (just and righteous)
 Maketh his Laws, not for himselfe, but us.
 He frees himselfe ; and flees with his Powr's wing,
 No where, but where his holy will doth bring :
 All that he doth is good : but not therefore Must he needs doe it 'cause 't was good before : 210
 But good is good, because it doth (indeed)
 From him (the Root of perfect good) proceed :
 From him, the Fountain of pure righteousness :
 From him, whose goodnesse nothing can expresse.
 Ah profane thoughts ! O wretch ! & thinkst thou then
 That God delights to drink the blood of men ?
 That he intends by such a strange impiety
 To plant his service ? You, you forgéd deity
 Of Molech, Milchom, Camosh, Astaroth,
 Your damnéd shrines with such dire Orgies blot : 220
 You Tyrants you delight in sacrifice
 Of slaughterd Children : 't is your bloody guise
 (You cruell Idols) with such Hecatombs
 To glut the rage of your outrageous dooms :
 You hold no sent so sweet, no gift so good,
 As streaming Rivers of our luke-warm blood :
 Not Abram's God (ay gracious, holy, kinde)
 Who made the World but onely for Mankind :
 Who hates the bloody hands ; his Creatures loves ;
 And contrite hearts for sacrifice approves. 230
 You, you, disguis'd (as Angels of the light)
 Would make my God Author of this despight,
 Supplant my Faith on his sure promise built,
 And stain his Altars with this bloody guilt.
 No, no, my Joy, my Boy, thrice-happy borne (Yea, more then so, if furious I, foriorn, Hurt not thy Hap) a Father shalt thou bee
 Of happy People that shall spring from thee.

Fear not (dear Childe) that I, unnaturall,
 Should in thy blood imbrue my hand at all : 240
 Or by th' exploit of such detested deed
 Commend my name to them that shall succeed.
 I will, the Fame that of my name shall ring
 In time to come shall flee with fairer wing.

The lofty Pine, that's shaken to and fro Simile.
 With Counter-puffs of sundry windes that blow,
 Now, swaying Southwards, tears som root in twain,
 Then bending North-wards, doth another strain,
 Reels up and down, tost by two Tyrants fell,
 Would fall, but cannot ; neither yet can tell 250
 (Inconstant Neuter, that to both doth yeeld)
 Which of the two is like to win the Field ;
 So Abraham, on each side set-upon
 Betwixt his Faith and his Affection ;
 One while his Faith, anon Affection swaies ;
 Now wins Religion, anon Reason waighs ;
 Hee's now a fond, and then a faithfull, Father :
 Now resolute, anon relenting rather ;
 One while the Flesh hath got the upper hand :
 Anon the Spirit the same doth countermand. 260
 Hee's loth (alas !) his tender Son to kill ;
 But much more loth to break his Father's will.
 For thus (at last) He saith, Now sure I know,
 'T is God, 't is God ; the God that loves me so,
 Loves, keeps, sustains : whom I so oft have seen :
 Whose voyce so often hath my comfort been.
 Illuding Sathan cannot shine so bright,
 Though Angelliz'd : No, 't is my God of Might.
 Now feel I in my Soule (to strength and stir-it)
 The sacred Motions of his sacred Spirit. 270
 God, this sad Sacrifice requires of me ;
 Hap what hap may, I must obedient be.

The sable Night dis-lodg'd, and now began
Aurora's Usher with his windy Fan
 Gently to shake the Woods on every side,
 While his fair Mistresse (like a stately Bride)
 With Flowers, and Gems, & Indian Gold, doth spangle
 Her lovely locks, her Lover's looks to tangle ;
 When gliding through the Ayre in Mantle blew,
 With silver fring'd, she drops the pearly dew. 280
 With her goes Abram out ; and the third day,
 Arrives on Cedron's Margents greenly gay,
 Beholds the sacred Hill, and with his Son
 (Loaden with sacred Wood) he mounts anon.
 Anon, said Isaac ; Father, here I see
 Knife, fire and fagot, ready instantly :
 But where's your Hosts ? O ! let us mount, my Son,
 Said Abram : God will soon provide us one.
 But, scant had Isaac turn'd his face from him
 A little faster the steep Mount to climbe, 290
 Yea Abram changéd cheer ; and, as new Wine,
 Working a-new, in the new Cask (in fine)
 For being stopt too-soon, and wanting vent,
 Blows up the Bung, or doth the vessell rent,
 Spews out a purple stream, the ground doth stain
 With Bacchus colour, where the Cask hath lain :

So now the Tears (which manly fortitude
Did yerst as captive in the Brain include)
At the dear names of Father and of Son,
On his pale cheeks in pearly drops did run : 300
His eyes' full vessels now began to leake ;
And thus th' old Hebrew muttering 'gan to speak
In submisse voyce, that Isaac might not hear
His bitter grieft, that he unfoldeth here.

Sad spectacle ! O now my hap-lesse hand,
Thou whetst a sword, and thou dost teend a brand ;
The brand shal burn my hart, the sword's keen blade
Shall my bloud's bloud, and my life's life, invade :

And thou poor Isaac, bearest on thy back
Wood that shall make thy tender flesh to crack ; 310
And yeeld'st thee (more for mine than thine amiss)
Both Priest and Beast of one same Sacrifice.

O hap-lesse Son ! O more than hap-lesse Sire !
Most wicked wretch ! O what mis-fortune dire
In-gulfs us here ! where miserable I,
To be true godly, must God's Law deny :
To be true faithfull, must my faith transgresse ;
To be God's Son, I must be nothing lesse
Than Isaac's Sire ; and Isaac (for my sake)
Must Soile, and Sire, and Life, and all forsake. 320

Yet on he goes, and soon surmounts the Mount ;
And, steel'd by Faith, he cheers his mournfull
Front :

(Much like the Delian Princesse, when her Grace
In Thetis' Waves hath lately washt her face)
He builds his Altar, layes his Wood there-on,
And tenderly binds his dear Son anon.

Father, said Isaac, Father, Father deare
(What? doe you turn away, as loth to heare ?
O Father, tell me, tell me what you mean :
O cruelty unknown ! Is this the mean 330
Whereby my loynes (as promised long since-is)
Shall make you Grandsire of so many Princes ?
And shall I (glorious) if I here do dye,
Fill Earth with Kings, with shining stars the Skie ?

Back, Phabus : blush, go hide thy golden head ;
Retire thy Coach to Thetis' watery Bed :
See not this savage sight. Shall Abraham's minde
Be milde to all, and to his Son unkinde !
And shall great Abram doe the damnéd deed
That Lions, Tigers, Boars and Bears would dread ! 340
See how (incent) he stops his ear to mee,
As dreaming still on's bloody Mysterie.
Lord, how precise ! see how the Paricide
Seems to make conscience in lesse sins to slide :
And he, that means to murder me (his Son)
Is scrupulous in smaller faults to run.

Yet (Father) heare me ; not that I desire
With sugréd words to quench your Anger's fire :
In God's Name reap the Grain your self have sow'n,
Come take my life, extracted from your own, 350
Glut with my bloud your blade, if you it please
That I must dye ; welcome my death (mine ease) :
But, tell me yet my fault (before I dy)
That hath deserv'd a punishment so high.

Say (Father) have I not conspir'd your death ?
Or, with strong poyson sought to stop your breath ?
Have I devis'd to short my Mother's life ?
Or, with your Foes ta'en part in any strife ?
O thou Æthereall Palace Crystalline
(God's highest Court) if in this heart of mine 360
So damnéd thoughts had ever any place,
Shut-up for ever all thy Gates of Grace
Against my Soule ; and suffer not, that I
Among thy wingéd Messengers do fly.

If none of these, Abram (for I no more Dare call thee Father) tell me furthermore
What rests besides, that damnéd I have done,
To make a Father butcher of his Son ?
In memorie, that fault I fain would have,
That (after God's) I might your pardon crave 370
For such offence ; and so, th' Attonement driv'n,
You live content, that I may dye forgiv'n.

My Son, said he, thou art not hither brought
By my fell furie, nor thine own foul fault ;
God (our God) cal's thee, and he will not let
A Pagan sword in thy dear bloud be wet ;
Nor burning plague, nor any pining pain
With langour turn thy flesh to dust again ;
But sacrific'd to him (for sweet perfume)
Will have thee here within this fire consume. 380

What? Fears my Love, my Life, my Gem, my Joy ?
What God commands, his servants must obey,
Without consulting with frail flesh and bloud,
How he his promise will in time make good :
How he will make so many Scepters spring
From thy dead dust : How He (All-wise) wil bring,
In his due season, from thy sense-lesse Thighes,
The glorious Son of righteousness to rise
Who shall the Mountains bruise with yron Mace,
Rule Heav'n and Earth, and the Infernall place. 390
For he that (past the course of Nature's Kinde)
First gave thee birth, can with his sacred Winde
Raise thee again out of the lowest dust,
Ten thousand means he hath to save the Just :
His glorious wisdom guides the World's societie
With equall reans of Power and of Pietie.

Mine own sweet Isaac, dearest of my seed (Too-sweet alas ! the more my grieft doth bleed,
The more my loss ; the more with ease-less anguish
My vexéd Bowels for thy lack shall languish) 400 Adieu, dear Son (no longer mine, but His Who cal's thee hence) let this unhappy kisse
Be the sad seal of a more sad Farewell
Than wit can paint, or words have powr to tell.

Sith God commands, and (Father) you require
To have it so, Come death (no longer dire,
But glorious now) come gentle death, dispatch :
The Heav'ns are open, God his arms doth reach
T' imbrace my Soule : O ! let me bravely fly
To meet my Lord, and death's proud darts defie. 410
What, Father? weep you now? Ah ! cease those showrs

Weep not for me ; for I no more am yours :

I was the Lord's yer I was born, you know ;
 And he but lent me for a while to you :
 Will you recoil, and (Coward) lose the Crown
 So neer your head, to heap you with renown ?
 Shall we so dare to dally with the Lord ?
 To cast his yoke, and to contemn his Word ?
 Where shall we fly his hand ? Heav'n is his Throne :
 The Earth his foot-stool : and dark Acheron 420
 (The Dungeon where the damnéd soules be shut)
 Is of his Anger evermore the Butt.
 On him alone all our good hap depends :
 And he alone from dangers us defends.

Ah ! weep no more ; This sacred Turf doth crave
 More bloud then tears : let's so our selves behave,
 That, joy'n'd in zeal, we yeeld us willingly
 To make a vertue of necessity.
 Let's testifie, we have a time abod ;
 I, in your School ; you, in the School of God : 430
 Where we have learnéd, that his sacred Word
 (Which made of nothing all that ever stirr'd :
 Which all sustains, and all directeth still)
 To divers ends conducts the good and ill.

Who loves not God more then all Kinn's respect,
 Deserves no place among his dear Elect ;
 And who doth once God's Tillage under-take,
 Must not look back, neither his Plough forsake.

Here-with, th' old Hebrew cheerfuller became,
 And (to himselfe) cries, Courage Abraham : 440
 The World, the Flesh, Adam, are dead in thee ;
 God, Spirit, and Faith, alone subsisting be.
 Lord, by thy Spirit unto my spirit annex
 So lively Faith, that still mine eyes may fix
 On thy true Isaac, whose sharp (sin-lesse) Suffering
 Shall purge from Sin me and my sinfull Offering.

Scarce had he drawn his Sword (in resolution)
 With heavéd hand for instant execution,
 When instantly the thundring Voyce of God
 Staid heart, and hand, and thus the fact forbod ? 450
Abram, enough ; hold, hold thy hand (said he)
 Put-up thy sword ; thine Isaac shall not dye ;
 Now, of thy Faith I have had perfect proof ;
 Thy Will for Deed I doe accept : Enough.

Glad Abram, then, to God gives thanks & praise,
 Unbindes his Son, and in his room he layes
 A Lamb (there strangely hamper'd by the head)
 And that to God devoutly offeréd.

Renownéd Abraham, Thy noble Acts
 Excell the Fictions of Heroik Facts : 460
 And that pure law a Son of thine should write,
 Shall nothing else but thy brave deeds recite.
 Extoll who list thy wisdom's excellence,
 Victorious Valour, frank Beneficence,
 And Justice too (which even the Gentiles honor) :
 Ill dares my Muse take such a task upon-her.
 Onely thy Faith (not all, with all th' effects)
 Onely one fruit of thousand she selects,
 For glorious subject : which (to say the right)
 I rather love to wonder-at, then write. 470

Goe Pagans, turn, turn-over every Book ;
 Through all Memorials of your Martyrs look :

Collect a Scroule of all the Children Slain
 On th' Altars of your gods : dig-up again
 Your lying Legends : Run through every Temple :
 Among your Offerings choose the best example
 (Among your Offerings which your fathers past
 Have made, to make their names eternall last)
 Among them all (fondlings) you shall not finde
 Such an example, where (unkindly-kinde) 480
 Father and Son so mutually agree
 To shew themselves, Father nor Son to be :
 Where man's deep zeal, & God's dear favour strove
 For Counter-conquest in officious love.

One, by constraint his Son doth sacrifice :
 Another means his name t' immortalize
 By such a Fact : Another hopes to shun
 Some dismall Plague, or dire Affliction ;
 Another, onely that he may conform
 To (Tyrant) Custom's aw-lesse, law-lesse Form. 490
 Which blears our eyes, and blurs our senses so
 That Lady Reason must her seat forgoe ;
 Yea, blindes the judgement of the World so far,
 That Vertue's oft arraign'd, at Vice's Bar.

But, un-constrain'd, our Abram, all alone,
 Upon a Mountain, to the guise of none
 (For it was odious to the Yerus to doe)
 And in a time of Peace and Plenty too,
 Fights against Nature (prickt with wondrous zeal)
 And, slaying Isaac, wars against his Weale. 500

O sacred Muse ! that on the double Mount,
 With withering Baies bind'st not thy Singers' Front ;
 But, on Mount Sion in the Angels' Quire,
 With Crowns of glory dost their brows attire ;
 Tell (for, thou know'st) what sacred mystery
 Under this shadow doth in secret lie ?

O Death, Sin, Satan, tremble ye not all,
 For hate and horror of your dreadful Fall
 So lively figur'd ? To behold God's Bow
 So ready bent to cleave your heart in two ? 510
 To see young Isaac, Pattern of that Prince
 Who shall Sin, Satan, Death and Hell, convince ?

Both onely Sons, both sacred Potentates,
 Both holy Founders of two mighty States,
 Both sanctifi'd, both Saints' progenitors,
 Both bear their Crosse, both Lamb-like Sufferers,
 Both bound, both blame-lesse, both without reply,
 Both by their Fathers are ordain'd to dye
 Upon Mount Sion : which high glorious Mount
 Serves us for Ladder to the Heav'ns to mount, 520
 Restores us Eden's key (the key of Eden,
 Lost through the eating of the fruit forbidden,
 By wretched Adam and his weaker Wife)
 And blesséd bears the holy Tree of life.

Christ dies indeed : but Isaac is repriv'd
 (Because Heav'n's Councell otherwise contriv'd)
 For, Isaac's bloud was no sufficient price
 To ransome soules from Hell to Paradise :
 The Leprosie of our contagious sin
 More power-full Rivers must be purgéd in. 530

The Law.
 THE THIRD PART OF
 THIRD DAY OF
 THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Envy in Pharao, seeks to stop the Cause
 Of Jews' increase : Moses escapes his claws ;
 Out of a Burning (unburnt) Bush, a Voyce
 For Jacob's Rescue doth of Him make choise ;
 Sends him (with Aaron) to th' Egyptian King :
 His Hardning, PLAGUING, small Ruining
 In the Red Sea. Israel ingrate for all :
 Christ-Typing Manna, Quails, Rock-waters fall :
 The glorious LAW : the golden Calfe : strange Fire : 10
 Coré in-gulft : MOSES prepar'd t' expire.

Arm-Arming Trumpets, lofty Clarions,
 Rock-batt'ring Bombards, Valour-murdering Guns,

Thinke you to drown with horror of your Noise
 The choise sweet accents of my sacred Voyce ?
 Blow (till you burst) roar, rend the Earth in sunder ;
 Fill all with Fury, Tempest, War, and Thunder :
 Dire Instruments of Death, in vain yee toyl,
 For, the loud Cornet of my long-breath'd stiele 20
 Out-shrils yee still ; and my Stentorian Song,
 With warbled Ecchoes of a silver Tongue,
 Shall brim be heard from India even to Spain,
 And then from thence even to the Artick Wain.

Yet, 'tis not I, not I in any sort ;
 My side's to weak, alas ! my breath's too-short :
 It is the spirit-inspiring Spirit, which yerst
 On th' eldest Waters mildly movéd first,
 That furnishes and fils, with sacred winde,
 The weak, dull Organs of my Muse and minde.

So still good Lord, in these tumultuous times, 30
 Give Peace unto my Soule, soule to my Rimes :

Let me not faint amid so faire a course ;
 Let the World's end be th' end of my Discourse :
 And while in FRANCE fell MARS doth all devour,
 In lofty stiele (Lord) let me sing thy Power.
 ALL-CHANGING Time had cancell'd and sup-prest

JOSEPH's Deserts : his Master was deceast,
 His Sons were dead ; when currish Envie's strife
 Laves each-where ambush for poor ISRAEL's life :
 Who, notwithstanding, doth far faster spread 40 Comparison.
 And thicker spring, then in a fruitfull Mead
 Moted with Brooks, the many-leavéd locks
 Of thriving Charvel ; which the bleating Flocks
 Can with their daily hunger hardly mow
 So much as daily doth still newly grow.

This Monster wuns not in the Cell she wout,
 Sh' hath rear'd her Palace on the steepest Mount,
 Whose snowie shoulders with her stony pride
 Eternally doe Spain from France divide ;
 It hath a thousand loop-holes every-way, 50

Yet never enters there one sunny ray :
 Or if that any chance so far to passe,
 'Tis quickly quenched by her cloudy face ;
 At every Loop, the Work-man wittily
 Hath plac't a long, wide, hollow Trunk, where-by Prattling Renowne and Fame with painted wing,
 News from all corners of the World do bring,
 Buzzing there-in : as in a Summer Even, 60
 From clefts of Meadows that the Heat hath riven,
 The Grasse-hoppers, seeming to fain the voyces
 Of little Birds, chirp-out ten thousand noyses

It fortun'd now that a swift-flying Fame,
 Which (lately but) from stately Memphis came,

40 Comparison.

Description of the Palace of Envie.

Simile.

60

To whom Fame reports Israel's prosperity.

Sweating, and dusty, and nigh breath-lesse, fils
 With this report one of her listening Quils :
 O curious Nymph (lives there a Wit with us, Acute and quick, that is not curious ?)
 Most wakefull Goddesse, Queen of mortall hearts,
 Consort of Honour, Wealth, and High-deserts ;
 Do'st thou not know, that happy ISRAEL 70
 (Which promiseth the Conqueror of Hell,
 That twice-born King, here-after to bring-forth,
 Who dead shall live again ; and by his worth
 Wipe-out Man's Forfeit, and God's Law fulfill,
 And on his Crosse th' envie of Envie kill)
 Doth (even in sight) abundantly increase ?
 That Heav'n and Earth conspire his happinesse ?
 That seventy Exiles, with un-hallowed Frie
 Cover the face of all the World well-nigh ?
 And, drunk with wealth, weigh not thy force a jot ? 80
Envie, thou seest it, but fore-seest it not.

Envie incenseth
Pharao to oppress
 them.

Swoln like a Toad, between her bleeding jaws
 Her hissing Serpents' wriggling tails she chawes :
 And, hasting hence, in ISIS form she jets :
 A golden vessel in one hand she gets,
 In th' other a sweet Instrument ; her hood
 Was Peacocks' feathers mixt with Southernwood ;
 A silver crescent on her front she set,
 And in her bosome many a fost'ring teat ;
 And, thus disguis'd, with pride and impudence 90
 She presses-in to the Bubastick Prince ;
 Who, slumbring then on his un-quiet Couch,
 With ISRAEL's greatnesse was disturb'd much :
 Then she (the while, squinting upon the lustre
 Of the rich Rings which on his fingers glister ;
 And, snuffing with a wrythéd nose the Amber,
 The Musk and Civet that perfum'd the Chamber)
 'Gan thus to greet him : Sleep'st thou? sleep'st thou, son ?

And seest thou not thy selfe and thine undon,
 While cruell Snakes, wch thy kinde brest did warm, 100
 Sting thee to death, with their ungratefull swarm ?
 These Fugitives, these out-casts doe conspire
 Against rich Egypt, and (ingrate) aspire
 With odious Yoke of bondage to debase
 The noble PHARAOKS, God's immortal Race.

With these last words, into his brest she blowes
 A banefull ayre, whose strength unfeltly flowes
 Through all his veins ; and, having gain'd his heart,
 Makes Reason stoope to Sense in every part :
 So th' Aspick pale (with too-right ayme) doth spet 110
 On his bare face that comes too-neer to it,
 The froth that in her teeth to bane she turns ;
 A drowzy bane, that inly creeps, and burns
 So secretly, that without sense of pain,
 Scar, wound, or swelling, soon the Partie's slain :
 What shall I farther say ? This Sorrow's-Forge,
 This Rack of Kings, Care's fountain, Courtier's scourge,
 Besides her sable poyson, doth inspire
 With Hate and Fears the Prince's fell desire.

Simile.

Envie's two Twins.

Hence-forth therefore, poor ISRAEL hath no peace, 120
 Not one good day, no quiet nap, no ease ;

Still, still opprest, Tax upon Tax arose ;
 After Thefts, Threats, & after threats com blowes.
 The silly wretches are compell'd som-while
 To cut new chanel for the course of Nile ;
 Sometimes some Citie's ruins to reaire,
 Sometimes to build huge Castles in the ayre ;
 Sometimes to mount the Parian Mountains higher
 In those proud Towrs that after-worlds admire ;
 Those Towrs, whose tops the Heav'ns have terrifi'd ; 130
 Those Towrs, that 'scuse th' audacious Titan's pride
 (Those Towrs, vain Tokens of a vast expence, Tropheis of Wealth, Ambition's Monuments)
 To make with their own sweat & bloud their mortar ;
 To be at-once Brick-maker, Mason, Porter ;
 They labour hard, eat little, sleeping lesse,
 No sooner layd, but thus their Task-Lords presse ;
 Villains, to work ; what? are ye growne so sloth ?
 Wee'll make yee yeeld us wax and hony both.

Slavery of the Israelites.

In brieft, this Tyrant, with such servitude,
 Thought soon to waste the sacred multitude ;
 Or at the least, that overlayd with woe,
 Weakned with watching, worn with toyling so ;
 They would in time become lesse service-able
 In VENUS' Battails, and for breed lesse able (Their spirits disperst, their bodies over-dri'd,
 And Cypris' sap un-duly qualifi'd) :
 But, when he saw this not succeed so well,
 But that the Lord still prosper'd ISRAEL ;
 Inhumane, he commands (on bloody Pain)
 That all their male babes in their birth be slain :
 And that (because that charge had done no good)
 They should be cast, in CAIRO's silver Floud.

140 Pharao's his vain policy.

O Barbarisme, learned in Hell below !
 Those, that (alas !) nor steel nor stream do know,
 Must die of steel or stream : cruell Edicts !
 That, with the Infant's bloud, the Mother's mix ;
 That, Childe and Mother both at once cut-off ;
 Him with the stroke, her with the grieft thereof ;
 Wth two-fold tears Jenes greet their Native Heav'n : 160
 The day that brings them life their life hath reav'n.

150 His cruell Edict against the male children.

But, JOCHEBED would fain (if she had durst)
 Her deer son MOSES secretly have nourc't :
 Yet thinking better her sweet Babe forgoe,
 Then Childe and Parents both to hazzard so,
 At length she layes it forth ; in Rush-boat weaves it,
 And to God's Mercy and the Flood's, she leaves-it.

Though Rudder-lesse, not Pilot-lesse this Boat
 Among the Reeds by the Floud's side did float ;
 And saves from wrack the future Legislator, 170
 Lighting in hands of the King's gracious Daughter :
 Who op'ning it, findes (which with ruth did strike-
 her)

His Daughter finding Moses exposed, causeth
 him to be princely brought up.

A lovely Babe (or little Angel, liker)
 Which with a smile seem'd to implore the ayde
 And gentle pity of the Royall mayd.
 Love, and the Graces, State and Majesty,
 Seem round about the Infant's face to flie ;
 And on his head seem'd (as it were) to shine
 Presagefull rayes of som-what more divine.

	She takes him up and rears him royall-like, And his quick Spirit, train'd in good Arts, is like A well-breath'd Body, nimble, sound, and strong, That in the Dance-school needs not teaching long : Or a good Tree set in as good a soyl, Which grows a-pace without the Husband's toyl. In time he puts in Practise what he knowes : With courteous Mildnesse , manly Courage shows : H' hath nothing vulgar : with great happinesse, In choyse discourse he doth his minde expresse ; And as his Soul's-type his sweet tongue affords, His gracefull Works confirm his gracious Words : His Vertues make him even the Empire's heir : So means the Prince ; such is the people's pray'r.	180 185 190	It flames and burns not, cracks and breaks not in, Kisses, but bites not, no-not even the skin ; True figure of the Church , and speaking Signe Which seemeth thus to, of it selfe, define : What (Amram's son !) Doth Jacob's bitter Teene Dismay thee so ? Behold, this Haw-thorn greene Is even an Image of thing ISRAEL , Who in the Fire of his Afflictions fell Still flourishes ; on each side hedged round With prickly Thorns, his hatefull Foes to wound : This Fire doth seem the Spirit Omnipotent, Which burns the wicked, tries the Innocent : Who also addeth to the sacred Signe, The more to move him, his owne Word Divine.	240 245 250
Two Similes.	Thus, while o're-whelm'd with the rapid course Of Mischiefe's Torreat (and still fearing worse) ISRAEL seems help-lesse, and even hope-lesse too Of any help that Mortall hand can doe : And, while the then-Time's hideous face and form Boards them (alas !) nothing but wrack and storm, Their Castor shines, their Saviour's sav'd : and Hee	190 200	I AM that I am, in me, for me, by me ; All Beings Be not (or else un-selfy be) But, from my Being, all their Being gather ; Prince of the World, and of my Church the Father : Onely Beginning, Midst, and End of all ; Yet sans Beginning, Midst, and End at all : All in my selfe compris'd, and all comprising That in the World was, is, or shall be rising : Base of this Universe ; th' uniting Chain Of th' Elements ; the Wisdome Sovereigne ; Each-where, in Essence, Powr and Providence ; But in the Heav'ns, in my Magnificenoe : Fountain of Goodnesse ; ever-shining Light ; Perfectly Blest ; the One, the Good, the Bright : Self-simple Act, working in frailest matter ; Framer of Forms : of Substances, Creator : And (to speak plainer) even that God I AM Whom so long since religious Abraham , Isaac , and Jacob , and their Progenies Have worshipped and prays'd in humble wise.	250 260 270	The voyce of the Lord speaking of out of the Bush.
God's providence in his preservation.	That with high hand shal them from bondage free, Scourging with Plagues, scarring w th endless shame Th' Egyptian Court, is rais'd by the same. For, though him there they as a God adore, He scorns not yet his friends and kindred poor : He feels their Yoke, their mournings he laments : His word and sword are prest in their defence ; And, as ordain'd for their Deliverance, And sent expresse by Heav'n's pre-ordinance, Seeing a Pagan (a proud Infidell, A Patagon , that tasted nought so well As ISRAEL's bloud) to ill-intreat a Jew , Him bold incounters, and him bravely slew.	200 210	My sacred ears are tyred with the noyse Of thy poor Brethren's just-complaining voyce ; I have beheld my people's burdens there : MOSES , no more, I will, nor can, forbear ; Th' have groan'd (alas !) and panted all too-long Under that Tyrant's un-releting wrong. Now their Deliverer , I authorize thee, And make thee Captain of their Colony ; A sacred Colony, to whom (as mine) I have so oft bequeath'd rich Palestine . Therefore from me command thou PHARAO That presently he let my people goe Into the Dry-Arabias Wildernesse ; Where far from sight of all profane excesse On a new Altar they may sacrifice To ME the LORD, in whom their succour lies ; Haste, haste (I say) and make me no excuse On thy Tongue's rudenesse (for the want of use) Nor on thy weaknesse, nor unworthinesse To under-goe so great a Businesse ; What? cannot He that made the lips and tongue, Prompt Eloquence and Art (as doth belong) Unto his Legat? and, who every thing Of Nothing made, and all to nought shall bring ;	280 290	God hath pity on his People afflicted in Egypt . He ordaineth Moses for their Deliverer & gives him commission to goe to Pharao .
Moses' affection and duty toward his Parents, and care of his Brethren.	But fearing then lest his inhumane Prince Should hear of it, young MOSES flies from thence : And hard by Horeb , keeping JETHRO's sheep, He Fasts and Prayes ; with Meditations deep His vertuous zeal he kindles more and more, And prudently he layes-up long before Within his Soule (his spirituall Armory) All sacred Weapons of Sobriety ; Where-with t' incounter, conquer, and suppress All Insurrections of Voluptuousnesse. Also, not seldome some deep Dream or Trance Him suddainly doth even to Heav'n advance ; And Hee, that whilom could not finde the Lord On plenteous shores of the Pelusian Foord, In walled Cities with their Towrd Ports, In learned Colledges, nor sumptuous Courts ; In Desart meets him ; greets him face to face, And on his brows bears tokens of his Grace.	210 220 230
He flies out of Egypt.	For, while he past his sacred Prentiship ; (In Wildernesse) of th' Hebrans' Shepherdschip ; In driving forth to kisse-cloud SINA's foot His fleecy Flock, and there attending to 't ; He sudden sees a Bush to flame and fume, And all a-fire, yet not at all consume ;	230
God talketh to him in the Wildernesse.
Moses' vision of the flaming bush.

Th' Omnipotent, who deth confound (for his)
By weak the strong ; by what is not, what is :
(That in his wondrous Judgments, men may more
The Work-man then the Instruments adore)
Will he forsake, or leave him un-assisted,
That in his service duly hath insisted?
Sith faithfull Servant, to do well affected,
Can by his Master never be rejected.

300

Moses (accompanied with his brother Aaron) sets forward in his high Embassy.

No sooner this, the Divine Voice had ended,
And up to Heav'n the bushy Flame ascended,
But MOSES, with (his fellow in Commission)
His Brother AARON, wends with expedition
First to his People, and to PHARAO then,
The King of Egypt (cruellest of Men) ;
And inly filled with a zealous flame,
Thus, thus he greets him in th' Almighty's name ;
Great NILUS' Lord, thus saith the Lord of Hoasts,
Let goe my people out of all the Coasts ;
Mine ISRAEL (PHARAO) forth-with release,
Let them depart to HOREB's Wilderness ;
That unto me, without offence or fear,
Their Hearts and Heifers they may offer there.

310

Pharao's proud answer.

Base Fugitive, proud slave (that art return'd
Not to be whipt but rather hang'd, or burn'd)
What Lord said PHARAO? ha! what Sovereigne?
O seven-horn'd Nile! O hundred-pointed Plain!
O Cittle of the Sun! O Thebes! and Thou
Renowned Pharao, doe ye all not bow
To us alone? Are ye not onely Ours?
Ours at a beck? Then, to what other Powers
Owes your great PHARAO homage or respect?
Or by what Lord to be controul'd and checkt?

320

I see the Drift. These off-scums all at once
Too idly pamper'd, plot Rebellions :
Sloth marrs the slaves ; and under fair pretence
Of new Religion (Traytours to their Prince)
They would Revolt. O Kings! how fond are we
To thinke by Favours and by Clemency,
To keep men in their duty! To be milde,
Makes them be mad, proud, insolent, and wilde?
Too-much of Grace, our Scepters doth dis-grace,
And smooths the path to Treason's plots a-pace.
The dull Asse, numbers with his stripes his steps ;
Th' Ox, over-fat, too-strong, and resty, leaps
About the Lands, casteth his yoke, and strikes ;
And wexen wilde, ev'n at his keeper kicks.

330

340

Well ; to enjoy a People, through their skin
With scourges slyc't, must their bare bones be seen ;
We must still keep them short, & clip their wings,
Pare neer their nayles, and pull out all their stings ;
Load them with Tribute, and new Toll, and Tax,
And Subsidies, untill we break their backs ;
Tire them with travell, flay-them, pole-them, pil-
them,
Suck bloud and fat, then eat their flesh, & kil-them.
'Tis good for Princes, to have all things fat,
Except their Subjects : but beware of that.
Ha, Miscreants! ha, rascal excrements,
That lift your heel against your gracious Prince ;

350

The true Anatomy of a Tyrant.

Hence-forth you get of wood or straw no more,
To burn your Bricks as you have had before ;
Your selves shall seek it out ; yet shall you still
The number of your wanted task fulfill.

I have Commission from the King of kings,—
Maker, Preserver, Ruler of all things,—
Replies the Hebrew ; that (to know the Lord)
Thou feel his hand, unlesse thou fear his word.

Moses' reply.

360

In th' instant, AARON on the slippery sand
Casts down his Rod ; and boldly thus began :
So shall thy golden Scepter down be cast,
So shall the Judgements of the Lord at last
(Now deemed dead) revive, to daunt thy pow'r :
So ISRAEL shall Egypt's wealth devoure,
If thou confesse not God to be the Lord ;
If thou attend not, nor observe his Word :
And if his people thou doe not release,
To go and serve him in the Wilderness.

370

Aaron casteth down his Rod, which immediately turns into a Serpent.

Before that AARON this discourse had done,
A green-gold-azure had his Rod put on ;
It glist' red bright ; and in a fashion strange,
Into a Serpent it did wholly change ;
Crawling before the King, and all along
Spetting and hissing with his forked tongue.

The Memphian Sages then, and subtil Priests,
T' uphold the Kingdome of their OSIRIS,
Upbraid them thus : Alas ! is this the most
Your God can doe, of whom so much you boast?
Are these his Wonders? Goe, base Monti-banks,
Go shew els-where your sleights & juggling pranks.
Such tricks may blear some vulgar innocents,
But cannot blinde the Councell of a Prince ;
Who, by the gods instructed, doth contain
All Arts' perfection in his sacred brain.

380

The Magicians of Egypt counterfeit that miracle, and bewitch the eyes of the King.

And, as they spake, out of their curs'd hands
They all let-fall their strange-inchanted Wands ;
Which instantly turn into Serpents too,
Hissing and spetting, crawling to and fro.
The King too much admires their cunning Charms :
The place with Aspicks, Snakes, & Serpents, swarms ;

390

Simile.

Creeping about : as an ill-Huswife sees
The Maggots creeping in a rotten Cheese.
You, you are Jugglers, th' Hebrew then repli'd ;
You change not Nature, but the bare out-side :
And your Enchantments onely doe transform
The face of things, not the essentiall form.
You, Sorcerers, so mock the Prince's eye,
And his Imagination damnifie ;
That common Sense to his externall, brings
(By re-percussion) a false shape of things.
My Rod's indeed a Serpent, not in show,
As here in sight your selves by proof shall know.
Immediately his Dragon rear'd his head,
Rowl'd on his brest ; his body wriggell'd
Somtimes aloft in length ; somtimes it sunk
Into it selfe, and altogether shrunk :
It slides, it sups the ayre, it hisses fell ;
Instead of eyes, two sparkling Rubies swell :

400

410

Moses' rod-
Serpent devoureth
the Serpents of the Egyptians.

Pharaoh & his people hardened :
Therefore God
plagued Egypt.

The first Plague :
By turning their
Waters into blood.

The second : By covering their Land with Frogs.

The Magicians counterfeit the same, but their deceits are vain.

And all his deadly baens, intrenchéd strong
Within his trine Teeth and his triple Tongue,
Call for the Combat : and (as greedy) set
With sudden rage upon those counterfeit,
Those seeming-Serpents, and them all devour :
Even as a Sturgeon, or a Pike, doth scour
The Creeks, and Pills in Rivers where they lie,
Of smaller Fishes and their feeble Fry.

But at high Noon, the Tyrant wilfull-blind, 430
And deaf to his own good, is more inclin'd
To Satan's tools : the people, like the Prince,
Prefer the Night before Light's excellence.
Wherefore the Lord, such proud contempts to pay ;
Ten sundry plagues upon their Land doth lay :
Redoubling so his dreadful strokes, that there,
Who would not love him milde, him rough should fear.

Smiting the Waves with his Snake-wanded wood,
AARON anon converts the Nile to blood ;
So that the stream, from fruitfull MEROE, 430
Runs red and bitter even unto the Sea.
The Court re-courst to Lakes, to Springs, & Brooks ;
Brooks, Springs, & Lakes had the like taste & looks :
Then to the Ditches ; but, even to the brink
There flow'd (alas !) in stead of Water, Ink :
Then to the likeliest of such weeping ground
Where, with the Rush, pipe-opening Fern is found :
And there they dig for Water ; but (alas !)
The wounded soyl spets blood into their face.
O just-just Judgement ! Those proud Tyrants fell, 440
Those bloody Foes of mourning ISRAEL ;
Those that delighted, and had made their game
In shedding blood, are forc't to drink the same ;
And those, that ruth-les had made Nile the slaughter
Of th' Hebrew Babes, now die for want of Water.

Anon, their Fields, Streets, Hals & Courts he loads
With foule great Frogs aud ugly croking Toads ;
Which to the tops of highest Towers do clamber
Even to the Presence, yea the privie Chamber ;
As starry Lezards in the Summer time 450
Upon the wals of broken houses clime.
Yea, even the King meets them in every diah
Of Privie-dyets, be it Flesh or Fish :
As at his Boord, so on his royall Bed ;
With stinking Frogs the silken quilts be spread,
The Priests of PHARAOH seem to doe the same ;
AARON alone in the Almighty's Name,
By Faith almighty ; They for Instruments
Use the black Legions of the Syngian Prince :
Hee by his Wonders labours to make known 460
The true God's glory ; onely they their own :
He seeks to teach ; they to seduce awry :
Hee studies to build up ; they to destroy :
He striking Strangers, doth His People spare ;
They spoyle their owne, but cannot hurt a hair
Of the least Hebrew : they can onely wound,
He hurts, and heals : He breaks, and maketh sound :
And so, when PHARAOH doth him humbly pray,
Re-cleers the Flouds, and sends the Frogs away.

But (as in Heav'n there did no Justice raign) 470
The King's repentance endeth with his pain.
Hee is re-hardned : like a stubborn Boy
That plies his Lesson (Hypocritely-coy)
While in his hand his Master shakes the Rod :
But if he turn his back, doth flout and nod.
Therefore the Lord, this Day, with loathsom Lice
Plagues poor and rich, the nastie and the nice,
Both Man and Beast : For, AARON with his wand
Turns into Lice the dust of all the Land.

The morrow after, with huge swarms of Flies, 480
Hornets & Wasps, hee hunts their Families
From place to place, through Meadows, Fens and Flouds,
Hills, Dales, and Desarts, hollow Caves and Woods.
Tremble therefore (O Tyrants) tremble aye,
Poor worms of Earth, Proud Ashes, Dust and Clay :
For, how (alas !) how will you make defence
'Gainst the tri-pointed wrathfull violence
Of the drad dart, that flaming in his hand,
Shall pash to powder all that him withstand ?
And 'gainst the rage of flames eternall-frying, 490
Where damnéd soules lie ever-never-dying :
Sith the least Flies, and Lice, and Vermine too
Out-brave your braves, and triumph over you.

Gallop to Anian, sail to Jucatan,
Visit Botangas, dive beyond the Dane :
Well may you fly, but not escape him there ;
Wretches, your halters still, about, you bear.
Th' Almighty's hand is long, and busie still ;
Having escap't his Rod, his Sword you feel :
He seems somtimes to sleep and suffer all, 500
But calls at last for Use and Principall ;
With hundred sorts of shafts his Quiver's full,
Some passing keen, some som-what sharp, som dull,
Some killing dead, som wounding deep, som light,
But all of them doe always hit the White,
Each after other. Now th' Omnipotence
At Egypt shoots his shafts of Pestilence :
Th' Ox fals-down in 's yoke, Lambs bleating dye,
The Bullocks as they feed, Birds as they fly.

Anon he covers Man and Beast with cores 510
Of angry Biles, Botches, and Scabs, and Sores ;
Whose ulcerous venoms, all-inflaming, spread
O'r all the body from the foot to head.
Then, Rain, and Hail, and flaming Fire among Spoyle all their fields : their Cattell great wth young
All brain'd wth hail-stones : Trees wth tempest cleft, Rob'd of their boughs, their boughs of leaves bereft.
And, from Heav'n's rage, all, to seek shelter, glad ;
The Face of Egypt is now dradly-sad :
The Sods Virgins tear their Beautie's honour ;
Not for the waste, so much as for the manner.

For, in that Country never see they Cloud,
Wth weight of Snowes their trees are never bow'd,
They know no Yce : and though they have (as we)
The Yeaere intire, their Seasons are but three :
They neither Rain-bowe, nor fat Dewes expect,
Which from else-where Sol's thirsty rayes erect :

The King eased of his punishment is againe hardood.

The third : Therefore Egypt is plagued with Lice.

The fourth : with Flies &c.

Man cannot hide him from the hand of God, nor avoyd his vengeance.

The fifth : With the Plague of Pestilence.

The sixth : With Ulcers and grievous
Scabs or Murrain.

The seventh :
With Hail and Firs from Heaven.

The Egyptians
amaz'd at this extraordinary scourge.

The natural fruitfulness and prosperity of Egypt in it selfe marvellous.

Rain-lesse their soyl is wet, and Cloud-lesse, fat ;
 Itself's moist bosome brings in this and that :
 For, while else-where the River's roaring pride
 Is dryed-up ; and while that far and wide
 The Palestine seeks (for his thirsty Flock)
Jordan in Jordan, Jabboc in Jabboc ;
 Their fload o'reflowes, and parched Misrdim
 A season seems in a rich Sea to swim,
Nile's billows beat on the high-dangling Date ;
 And Boats do slide, where Ploughs did slice of late.

530

Steep snowy Mounts, bright Stars' Elesian gales,
 You cause it not : no, those are Dreams and Tales ;
 Th' Eternal-Trine who made all compassly,
 Makes th' under waves, the upper, wants supply ;
 And Egypt's Womb to fill with Fruits and Flowrs,
 Gives swelling Nile th' office of heav'nly Showrs.
 Then the Thrice-Sacred with a sable Cloud
 Of horned Locusts doth the Sun be-cloud,
 And swarmeth down on the rebellious Coast
 The Grass-hoppers lean, dam-devouring Hoast,
 Which gleans what Hail had left, & (greedy) crops Both night and day the Husband's whole-year's hopes.

540

Then, gross thick Darknes over al he dight,
 And three fair Dayes turns to one fearfull Night :
 Wth Ink-like Rheum the dull Mists' drouzy vapours
 Quench their home Fires, & Temple-sacred Tapers.
 If hunger drive the Pagans from their dens,
 One, 'gainst a settle breaketh both his shins ;
 Another groaping up and down for bread,
 Fals down the stayrs, and there he lies for dead.

550

But though these works surmount all Nature's might,
 Though his own Sages thē of guil acquight,
 Though th' are not casual (sith the holy-man Fore-tels prefixtly What, and Where, and When)
 And though that (living in the midst of His)
 The Israelites be free from all of This,
 Th' incensed Tyrant (strangely obstinate)
 Retracts the leave he granted them of late.

560

For, th' Ever-One, who with a mighty hand
 Would bring his people to the plenteous Land
 Of Palestine : Who providently-great,
 Before the eyes of all the World would set
 A Tragedy, where wicked Potentates
 Might see a Mirroure of their owne estates :
 And, who (most just) must have meet Arguments,
 To show the height of his Omnipotence ;
 Hardens the King, and blinding him (selfe-blinde)
 Leaves him to Lusts of his own vicious minde.
 For, God doth never (ever purely bent)
 Cause sin as sin ; but, as Sin's Punishment.

570

For, the last Charge, an Angel in one Night
 All the first-born through all the Land doth smite :
 So that from Sues Port to Birdens Plain,
 There's not a House, but hath somebody slain,
 Save th' Israelites, whose doors were markt before,
 With sacred Pass-Lamb's sacramentall gore.
 And therefore ever-since on that same day,
 Yearly, the Jews a Yearling Lamb must slay ;

580

A token of that Passage, and a Type
 Of th' Holy-Lamb, which should (in season ripe)
 By powring-forth the pure and plenteous Floud
 Of his most precious Water-mixed Bloud ;
 Preserve his People from the drad Destroyer,
 That fries the wicked in eternal fire.

590

Through all the Land, all in one instant crie,
 All for one cause, though yet all know not why.
 Night heaps their horrors : & the morning showes
 Their private griefs, and makes them publick woes.
 Scarce did the glorious Governour of Day
 O're Memphis yet his golden tresse display,
 When from all parts, the Maidens and the Mothers,
 Wives, Husbands, Sons, & Sires, Sisters, & Brothers,
 Flock to the Court, where with one common voice
 They all cry-out, and make this mournfull noise :

600

O stubborn stomach ! (cause of all our sadnesse)
 Dull Constancy ! or rather, desp'rate Madnesse !
 A Floud of Mischiefs all the Land doth fill ;
 The Heav'n's still thunder ; th' Air doth threaten still :
 Death, ghastly death, triumpheth every-where,
 In every house ; and yet, without all fear,
 Without all feeling, we despise the Rod,
 And scorn the Judgements of the mighty God.
 Great King, no more bay with thy wilfullings
 His Wrath's dread Torrent. He is King of kings ;
 And in his sight, the greatest of you all
 Are but as Moats that in the Sun do fall ;
 Yeeld, yeeld (alas !) stoop to his powfull threat ;
 He's warn'd enough that hath been ten-times beat.

After so many grievous plagues, the Egyptians cry out upon their King to let the Israelites goe.

Goe, get you gone : hence, hence, unlucky Race :
 Your eyes bewitch our eyes, your feet this place,
 Your breath this Ayre : why haste you not away ?
Hebrews, what lets you ? wherefore doe you stay ?
 Step to our houses (if that ought you lack)
 Choose what you like, and what you like goe take,
 Gold, Plate, or Jewels, Ear-rings, Chains, or Ouches,
 Our Girdles, Bracelets, Carkanets, or Brouches ;
 Bear them unto your gods, not in the sands
 Where the Heav'n-kissing Cloud-brow'd Sina stands ;
 But much, much farther ; and so far, that here
 We never more your odious news may hear ;
 Goe, Hebrews, goe, in God's Name thrive amain ;
 By losing you, we shall sufficient gain.

620

With the King's leave, then th' Hebrew's Prince collect
 His Legions all, and to the Sea directs,
 Scarce were they gone, when Pharaoh doth retract,
 And arms all Egypt to goe fetch them back ;
 And, camping neer them, execrably rude,
 Threatens them Death or end-lesse Servitude.

They hasten and importune them to be gone.

630

Even as a Duck, that nigh some crystall brook
 Hath twice or thrice by the same hawk bin strook,
 Hearing aloft her ginging silver bells
 Quivers for fear, and looks for nothing else
 But when the Falcon (stooping thunder-like)
 With sudden souse her to he ground shall strike ;
 And with the stroke, make on the sense-less ground
 The gut-less Quar, once, twice, or thrice, rebound ;

640

After their departure Pharaoh immediately pursues them.

The eight : They are vexed with Grass-hoppers.

The ninth with palpable Darknes.

The Israelites in all these plagues untoucht, yet Pharaoh still hardened.

The tenth : Therefore all the first born of Egypt are slaine in one night by the Angel.

So Israel, fearing again to feel
Pharaoh's fell hands, who hunts them at the heel,
 Quivers and shivers for despair and dread ;
 And spets his gall against his godly Head :
 O base ambition ! This false Politick,
 Plotting to Great himselfe, our deaths doth seek ;
 He mocks us all, and makes us (fortune-lesse) 650
 Change a rich Soyl for a dry Wilderness ;
 Allur'd with lustre of Religious shewes,
 Poor soules, He sels us to our hatefull Foes ;
 For, O ! what strength alas ! what stratagem ?
 Or how (good God) shall we encounter them ?
 Or who is it ? or what is it shall save-us
 From their fell hands that seek to slay, or slave-us ?
 Shall we, disarm'd, with an Army fight ?
 Can we (like Birds) with still-steep-rising flight
 Surmount these Mountains ? have we ships at hand 660
 To passe the Sea (this halfe a Sea, halfe sand) ?
 Or, had we Ships, and Sails, and Owers, and Cable ;
 Who knows these Waters to be navigable ?
 Alas ! some of us shall with Scythes be slasht ;
 Some, with their Horse-feet all to peeces pasht ;
 Som, thrill'd wth Swords, or shafts, through hundred holes
 Shall ghastly gasp-out our untimely soules.
 Sith dye we must, then dye we voluntary ;
 Let's run, our selves, where others would us carry ;
 Come, Israelites, come, let us dye together, 670
 Both men and women : so we shall (in either)
 Prevent their rage, content their avarice,
 And yeeld (perhaps) to MOSES even his Wish.
 Why, Brethren ? know ye not (their Ruler saith)
 That in his hand God holdeth life and death ?
 That he turns Hills to Dales, and Seas to Sands ?
 That he hath prest a thousand wing'd Bands
 'T assist his Children, and his Foes t' assaill ?
 And that he helps not, but when all helps fail ?
 See you this mighty Hoast, this dreadful Camp, 680
 Which dareth Heav'n, & seems the Earth to damp ;
 And all hrug'd, already chargeth ours,
 As thick or thicker then the Welkin pours
 His candi'd drops upon the ears of Corn,
 Before that Ceres yellow locks be shorn ?
 It all shall vanish, and of all this Crew
 (Which thinks already to have swallow'd you)
 Of all this Army, that (in Armour bright)
 Seems to out-shine the Sun, or shame his light ;
 There shall to-morrow not a man remaine : 690
 Therefore be still ; God shall your side sustaine.
 Then (zealous) calling on th' immortal God,
 He smote the Sea with his dead-living Rod ;
 The Sea obey'd, as bay'd : the Waves controul'd,
 Each upon other up to Heav'n doe fold ;
 Between both sides a broad deep Trench is cast,
 Dri'd to the bottom with an instant blast :
 Or rather, 'tis a Valley pav'd (else)
 With golden sands, with Pearle, and Nacre-shells ;
 And on each side is flank'd all along 700
 With wals of Crystall, beautifull and strong.

This flood-lesse Foord the Faithfull Legions passe,
 And all the way their shoe scarce moisted was.
 Dream we, said they ? or is it true we try ?
 The Sea start at a stick ? The Water dry ?
 The Deep a Path ? Th' Ocean in th' Ayr suspending ?
 Bulwarks of Billows, and no drop descending ?
 Two Wals of Glasse, built with a word alone ?
Africk and Asia to conjoyn in one ?
 Th' all-seeing Sun new bottoms to behold ? 710
 Children to run where Tunnies lately roul'd ?
 The Egyptians Troups pursue them by the track ;
 Yet waits the patient Sea, and still stands back ;
 Till all the Hoast be marching in their ranks
 Within the lane between his crystall banks.
 But, as a wall, weakned with mining-under, 720
 The Piles consum'd fall suddenly asunder,
 O'r-whelmeth all that stand too neer the breach,
 And with his Ruines fil's-up all the ditch :
 Even so God's finger, which, these Waters bay'd, 730
 Being with-drawn, the Ocean swell'd and sway'd ;
 And, re-conjoyning his conjeal'd Flood,
 Swallows in th' instant all these Tyrants wood.
 Here, one by swimming thinks himselfe to save :
 But with his scarfe tangled about a Nave,
 He's strangled straight ; and to the bottom sinking,
 Dies ; not of too-much drink, but for not drinking ;
 While that (in vain) another with loud lashes
 Scours his proud Coursers through the scarlet Washes :
 The streams (whereon more Deaths then Waves do swim) 730
 Bury his Chariot ; and his Chariot, him :
 Another, swallowed in a Whirl-Whale's womb,
 Is laid a-live within a living Toomb :
 Another, seeing his Twin-brother drowning ;
 Out of his Coach, his hand (to help him) downing ;
 With both his hands grasping that hand, his Twin Unto the bottom hales him head-long in :
 And instantly the water covers either ;
 Right Twins indeed ; born, bred and dead, together.
 Nile's stubborn Monarch, stately drawn upon 740
 A curious Chariot, chac't with pearle and stone ;
 By two proud Coursers, passing Snow for colour ;
 For strength, the Elephant's ; Lion's for valour ;
 Curseth the Heav'ns, the Ayr, the Windes & Waves ;
 And, marching up-ward, still blasphem'es & braves :
 Here, a huge Billow on his Targe doth split :
 Then comes a bigger, and a bigger yet,
 To second those : The Sea grows ghastly great ;
 Yer stoutly still he thus doth dare and threat :
 Base roguing Juggler, think'st thou wth thy charms 750
 Thou shalt prevail against our puissant arms ;
 Think'st thou, poor shifter, with thy Hel-spells thus
 To crosse our Counsels, and discomfit Us ?
 And, O proud Sea ! false, trayterous Sea, dar'st thou,
 Dar'st thou conspire 'gainst thine own Neptune now ?
 Dar'st thou presume 'gainst Us to rise and roar ?
 I charge thee cease : be still, I say : no more :
 Or, I shall clip thine arms in marble stocks,
 And yoke thy shoulders with a Bridge of Rocks :

The Israelites
 feare, and murmur against
 Moses.

Moses his instruction to encourage them, with assured confidence in God.

Simile.

Calling upon
 God, hee parts
 the Red Sea, so that the people passe thorough as on dry land.

The Egyptians
 following them are swallowed in the Sea.

Simile.

Pharaoh pro-fanely blasphem-
 ing and proudly braving Moses and the Sea, is notwithstanding drowned with the rest.

Or banish thee from Etham far, for ay, 760
 Through some new Chanell to goe seek thy way.
 Here-at the Ocean, more then ever, frets,
 All topsie-turvie up-side-down it sets ;
 And a black billow, that aloft doth float
 With salt and sand, stops his blasphemous throat.
 What now betides the Tyrant? Waters now
 Have reft his neck, his chin, cheeks, eyes and brow,
 His front, his fore-top : now there 's nothing seen
 But his proud arm, shaking his Fauchin-keen :
 Wherewith he seems, in spight of Heav'n and Hell, 770
 To fight with Death, and menace Israel.

At last he sinks all under water quite,
 Spurning the sand : again he springs upright ;
 But, from so deep a bottom to the top,
 So clogg'd with arms, can cleave no passage up :
 As the poor Partridge, cover'd with the net,
 In vain doth strive, struggle, and bate, and beat ;
 For, the close meshes, and the Fowler's craft,
 Suffer the same no more to whurre aloft.

Simile.

I to your selves leave to conceive the joy 780
 Of JACOB's heirs thus rescu'd from annoy ;
 Seeing the Sea to take their cause in hand,
 And their dead Foes shuffled upon the sand ;
 Their shields, and staves, and chariots (all-to-tore)
 Floating about, and flung upon the shore ;
 When thus th' Almighty (glorious God most high)
 For them without them, got the Victory,
 They skip and dance ; and, marrying all their voices
 To Timbrels, Hawboys, and loud Cornets' noises,
 Make all the shores resound, and all the coasts 790
 With the shrill Praises of the Lord of Hostes.

Eternall issue of eternall Sire,
 Deep Wisdome of the Father, now inspire
 And abew the sequell that from hence befell,
 And how he dealt with his dear Israel,
 Amid the Desert, in their Pilgrimage
 Towards the Promis'd plenteous Heritage :
 Tell, for (I know) thou know'st : for, compast ay
 Wth Fire by Night, & wth a Cloud by Day,
 Thou (my soule's hope) wert their sole Guide and 800
 Guard,

Their Meat and Drink in all their Journey hard.
 Marching amid the Desart, nought they lack :
 Heav'n still distills an Ocean (for their sake)
 Of end-lesse good : and every Morn doth send Sufficient food for all the day to spend.
 When the Sun riseth, and doth haste his Race
 (Halfe ours, halfe theirs that underneath us pase)
 To re-behold the beauty, number, order,
 And prudent Rule (preventing all mis-order,
 Of th' awfull Hoast lodg'd in the Wildernease,
 So favour'd by the Sun of Righteousnesse ;
 Each comes but forth his Tent, and at his doore
 Findes his bread ready (without seeking more) :
 A pleasant bread, which from his plenteous Cloud,
 Like little Hail, Heav'n's wakefull Steward strow'd.
 The yellow sands of Elisim's ample Plain
 Were heap'd all with a white sugred grain :

God gives them Manna.

Sweet Corianders ; Junkets, not to feed
 This Hoast alone, but even a World (for need).
 Each hath his part and every one is fed 820
 With the sweet morsels of an un-bought bread.

It never rains for a whole year at-once,
 But daily for a day's provisions :
 To th' end, so great an Hoast, so curb'd straight,
 Still on the Lord's wide open hand should wait,
 And every dawning have new cause to call
 On him their Founder, and the Fount of all ;
 Each, for his portion hath an Omer full ;
 The sur-plus rots, moulds, knead it how they will.
 The Holy-One (just Arbitrer of wrong) 830
 Allows no lesse unto the weak then strong :

It is given from day to day.

On Sabbath's Eve, he lets sufficient fall
 To serve for that day, and the next withall :
 That on his Rest, the sacred Folk may gather,
 Not Bodie's meat, but spirituall Manna rather.
 Thou, that from Heav'n thy daily White-bread hast
 Thou, for whom Harvest all the year doth last,
 That in poor Desarts rich abundance heap'st,
 That sweat-lesse eat'st, and without sowing reap'st, 840
 That hast the Ayre for farm, and Heav'n for field
 (Which, sugred Mel, or mell'd sugar yeeld)
 That, for taste-changing dost not change thy cheer,
 God's Pensioner, and Angel's Table-peer :

O Israel! see in this Table-pure,
 In this fair glasse, thy Saviour's portrayture,
 The Son of God, MESSIAS promis'd,
 The sacred seed, to bruise the Serpent's head :
 The glorious Prince, whose Scepter ever shines,
 Whose Kingdom's scope the Heav'n of Heav'ns confines :
 And, when He shall (to light thy sin-ful load) 850
 Put Man-hood on, dis-know him not for God.

It is a lively figure of Christ the true bread of life.

This grain is small, but full of substance though :
CHRIST strong in working, though but weak in show.
Manna is sweet : CHRIST as the hony-comb.
Manna from high : & CHRIST from Heav'n doth come.

The same demon- strated by particu- lar conference.

With that, there falls a pleasant pearly dew :
CHRIST coming down doth all the Earth be-strew
 With spirituall gifts. That, unto great and small,
 Tastes to their tastes : and CHRIST is all to all :
 (Food to the hungry, to the needy wealth, 860
 Joy to th' afflicted, to the sickly health ;
 Pardon to those Repent, Prop to the bow'd,
Life's savour to the Meek, Death's to the Proud)

That's common good : and Christ communicate.
 That's purely white : and Christ immaculate.
 That gluts the wanton Hebrews (at the last)
Christ and his Word the World doth soon distaste.
 Of that, they eat no lesse that have one measure,
 Then who have hundred : and in Christ his treasure
 Of Divine Grace, the faith-full Proselyts 870
 Hath no lesse part, then Doctors (deep of sight.)

That's round : Christ simple and sincerely round.
 That in the Ark : Christ in his Church is found.
 That doth (with certain) stinking worms become :
Christ (th' Ever-Word) is scandall unto some.

	That raineth not, but on the sacred Race : Christ to his Chosen doth confine his Grace. That's broken, every Grain Christ (Lamb of God) Upon his Crosse -presse is so torn and trod, That of his Bloud the pretious Floud hath puri'd 880 Down from Mount Sion over all the World.
The people lust for flesh.	Yet glutt'd now with this ambrosiall Food, This Heav'nly bread, so holy and so good, Th' Hebrews do lust for flesh : a fresh South-winde Brings shoals of Fowls to satisfy their minde ; A Cloud of Quails on all the Camp is sent, And every one may take to his content ; For, in the Hoast, and all the Country by, For a day's-journey, Cubit-thick they lie.
God sends them Quails.	But, though their Commons be thus delicate, 890 Although their eyes can scarce look out for fat, Although their bellies strut with too-much meat, Though (Epicures) they vomit as they eat, Yet still they howl for hunger : & they long For Memphian hotch-potch, Leeks, and Garlick strong : As Childe-great Women, or green Maids (that miss Their Terms appointed for their flourishes) Pine at a Princely feast, preferring far, Red-Herrings, Rashers, and (some) sops in Tar ; Yea, coals, and clowts, sticks, stalks, & dirt, before 900 Quail, Pheasant, Partridge, and a hundred more ; So, their fantastick wearisom disease Distastes their tastes, and makes them strange to please.
They long for the Garlick and Onions of Egypt . Simile.	But, when the Bull, that lately tost his horn In wanton Pride, hangs down his head, forlorn For lack of Water, and the Souldier bleak Grows (without Arms) for his own weight too-weak : When fiery Thirst through all their veins so fierce Consumes their bloud, into their bones doth pierce, Supps-up their vitall humour, and doth dry 910 Their whilom-beauties to Anatomy ; They weep and wail, and but their voyce (alas !) Is choakt already that it cannot passe, Through the rough Straights of their dry throats they would
They murmur for want of water with grievous imputation to their good guide.	Roar-out their grief, that all men hear them should. O Duke ! (no Hebrew , but a Ethnick rather) Is this (alas !) the guerdon that we gather For all the service thou hast had of us ? What have we done, that thou betray'st us thus ? 920 For our obedience, shall we evermore With Fear and Want be haunted at our door ? O windy words ! O perjurd promises ! O gloze, to gull our honest simpleness ! Escap't from Hunger, Thirst doth cut our throat : Past the Red-Sea , here up and down we float On firm-lesse sands of this vaste Desart here, Where, to and fro we wander many a year : Looking for Liberty, we finde not Life ; No, neither Death (the welcom end of strife). Envie not us dear Babes : we envie you, 930 You happy ones, whom Egypt's Tyrant slew ; Your birth and death came hand in hand together, Your end was quick, nay 't was an Entry rather
	To end-lesse Life : wee wretches, with our age Increase our Woes in this long Pilgrimage : We hope to Harbour where we may take breath : And life to us is a continual Death. You blessed live, and see the Almighty's face ; Our Dayes begin in tears, in toyls they passe, And end in dolours (this is all we doe) ; 940 But Death concludes tears, toyls, and dolours too. Stiff-necked People, stubborn Generation, Egypt doth witness (in a wondrous fashion) God's goodness (to thee) : all the Elements Expound unto thee his Omnipotence ; And dost thou murmur still ? and dar'st thou yet BlaspHEME his promise, and discredit it ? Said MOSES then ; and gave a sudden knock With his dear Scepter on a mighty Rock ; From top to toe it shakes, and splits with-all, 950 And wel-nigh halfe unto the ground doth fall, As smit with Lightning : then, with rapid rush, Out of the stone a plenteous stream doth gush, Which murmurs through the Plain ; proud, that his glass, Gliding so swift, so soon re-youngs the grass ; And, to be gaz'd-on by the wanton Sun, And through new paths so brave a course to run. Who hath not seen (far up within the Land) 960 A shoal of Geese on the dry-Summer sand In their hoarse language (sometimes lowly-loud) Suing for succour to some moist-full cloud ; How, when the Rain descends, their wings they beat, (With the first drops to cool their swelting heat) Bib with their Bil, bouse with their throats, & suck, And twenty times unto the bottom duck ? Such th' Hebrews' glee : one, stooping down, doth sup The clear quick stream ; another takes it up In his bare hand ; another in his hat ? This, in his buskin ; in a bucket, that (Well-freast himselfe) bears some unto his Flock ; 970 This fils his pitcher-full ; and that, his Crock : And other-some (whose Thirst is more extreme) Like Frogs lie paddling in the crystal stream. From Rephidim , along the Desart Coast, Now to Mount Sina marcheth all the Hoast ; Where, th' everlasting GOD, in glorious wonder, With dreadfull voyce his fearfull LAW doth thunder ; To show, that His rev'rend, Divine Decrees (Whereto all hearts should bow, & bend all knees) Proceed not from a Politick Pretence, 980 A wretched Kingling, or a petty Prince (Nymph-prompted NUMA , or the Spartan's Lord, Or him that did Cecropian strifes accord) Nor from the mouth of any mortal man ; But from that King, who at his pleasure can Shake Heav'n, and Earth, and Ayre, and all therein ; That ISRAEL shall finde him (if they sin) As terrible with Vengeance in his hand, As dreadfull now in giving the COMMAND : And that the Text of that drad Testament , 990 Grav'n in two Tables for us impotent,		Moses reproves them, and smites the Rock from whence issues plenty of Water.
			Simile.
			They March toward Mount Sina , where God delivereth them his LAW.

With what dreadfull Majesty it was delivered.

Hath in the same a sadder load compris'd,
And heavier yoke, then is the yoke of Christ.
That, that doth show us Sin, threats, wounds and kills :
This offers Grace, Balm in our sores distilla.

Redoubled Lightnings dazle th' Hebrews' eyes ;
Cloud-sund'ring Thunder roars through Earth and Skies,

Louder and louder in careers and cracks,
And stately SINA's massie centre shakes,
And turneth round, and on his sacred top 1000

A whirling flame round like a Ball doth wrap :
Under his rocky ribs, in Coombs below,
Rough-blust'ring BOREAS nurst with Riphean snow,
And blub-cheekt AUSTER, pufst with fumes before,
Met in the midst, justling for room, do roar :
A cloak of clouds, all thorough-lin'd with thunder,
Muffles the Mountain both aloft and under :

On PHARAN now no shining PHARUS shoes.
A Heav'nly Trump, a shrill Tantara blowes,
The wingéd Windes, the Lightning's nimble flash, 1010
The smoaking storms, the whirl-fire's crackling clash,
And deafning Thunders, wth the same do sing
(O wondrous consort !) th' everlasting King
His glorious Wisdome ; who doth give the Law
To th' Heav'nly Troops, and keeps them all in awe.

Simile.

But, as in Batell we can hear no more
Small Pistol-shot, when once the Canons roar :
And as a Cornet soundeth clear and rife
Above the warbling of an Almain Fife ;
A drader voyce (yet a distincter voyce) 1020
Whose sound doth drown all th' other former noyse,
Roars in the Vale, and on the sacred Hill,
Which thrills the ears, but more the heart doth thrill
Of trembling Jacob : who, all pale for fear,
From God's own mouth these sacred words doth hear ;

Simile.

Hark, Israel : O Jacob, hear my Law :
Hear it, to keep it (and thy selfe in awe.)
I am JEHOVAH, I (with mighty hand)
Brought thee from bondage out of Egypt Land :

The Decalogue.

ADORE ME ONELY for thy God and Lord, 1030
With all thy heart in every Deed and Word.
MAKE THREE NONE IMAGE (not of any sort)
To thy own Works My Glory to transport ;
USE NOT MY NAME without respect and fear,
Never Blaspheme, neither thy selfe for-swear,
SIX DAYES, WORK for thy food : but then (as I)
REST ON THE SEVENTH, and to my Temple hye.
TO THOSE that gave thee life, due REVERENCE give,
If thou desire long in the Land to live.

IMBRUE thou NOT THY HAND IN HUMANE BLOOD. 1040
STAIN NOT another's BED. STEAL NO MAN'S GOOD.
BEAR NO FALSE WITNES. COVET NOT to have
Thy Neighbour's Wife, his Oxe, his Asse, his Slave,
His House, his Land, his Cattell, or his Coyn,
His Place, his Grace, or ought that is not Thine.

The excellency of the Law of God.

Eternall Tutor, O Rule truly-right
Of our frail life ! our foot-steps' Lanthorn bright :
O Soule's sweet rest ! O biting curb of Sin !
Which Bad despise, the Good take pleasure in :

Reverend EDICTS upon Mount SINA giv'n, 1050

How-much-fold sense is in few words contriv'n !
How wonder-ful, and how exceeding far !
How plain, how sacred, how profound you are !
All Nations else, a thousand times (for cause)
Have writ, & ras't, & chop't, & chang'd their Laws ;
Except the Jews : but they, although their State
With every Moon almost did innovate
(As somtimes having Kings, and somtimes none)
In all their changes kept their Law still one.

What resteth at this day of Salaminian ? 1060
Laconian LAWS, or of the Carthaginian ?
Yea Rome, that made even all the World one City,

So strong in Arms, and in State's-Art so witty !
Hath in the Ruines of her Pride's rich Babels,
Left but a Relique of her Twice-Six-Tables.

But, since in Horeb the High-Thundering ONE
Pronounc't This Law, three-thousand times the 1070
Sun

Hath gallopt round Heav'n's golden Bandeleer,
Imbost with Beasts, studded with stars so clear :
And yet one tittle hath not Time bereft ;
Although the People unto whom 'twas left,
Be now no People, but (expulst from home)
Through all the corners of the World do roam :
And though their State, through every Age almost,
On a rough Sea of Mischiefs hath been tost.

A Butt, a Brook, a Torrent doth confine
All other Laws : Megarian Discipline
Hath nought of th' Attick : nor the Coroman
Of Theban Rites : nor Thebes of Cadmean :
But, this set-LAW, given JACOB's Generations, 1080
Is the true Law of Nature and of Nations ;
Which (sacred) sounds where-ever (to descry)
Th' all-searching Sun doth cast his flaming eye.
The Turks imbrace, the Christians honour it,
And Jewes with fear do even adore it yet.

I onely, I (Great GOD) thy LAWS do spurn,
With my foule feet, I do thy Statutes scorn ;
Pufst in my Soule with extreme Pride, before,
Nay in thy stead, I do my selfe Adore.
I Serve no wooden gods, nor Kneel to Stones ; 1090
But Covetous, I worship golden ones.
I Name thee not, but in vain Blasphemie,
Or (ACHAB-like) in sad Hypocrisie.

I Rest the Sabbath : yet I break thy LAW,
Serving (for thee) mine idle Mouth and Maw.
I Reverence Superiours, but in show ;
Not out of Love, but as compelled so.
I Murder none, yet doth my Tongue too-rife
Wound others' Fame, & my Hearts-hate their life.
I Civilise, lest that I seem Obscene : 1100
But Lord (Thou know'st) I am Unchaste, unclean.
I seem no Theef : yet tempted with my Want,
I take too oft the Fruit I did not plant.
I speak not much : yet in my little Talk,
Much Vanity, and many Lies do walk.
I Wish too-earnest and too-oft (in fine)
For others' Fortunes, male-content with mine.

Remedie for all our sinnes.

Here lye I naked : loe th' Anatomy
Of my foule Heart, O Humane-Deity!
O Christ! th' Almighty's like, All-mighty Word, 1110
O put-me-on Thy Robe! as whilom (Lord)
Thou put'st on Mine : me in Thy Blood be-lave ;
And in my Soule thy sacred Lawes ingrave.

While with the Duke, th' Eternall did devise,
And to his inward sight did modulize
His Tabernacle's admirable Form,
And prudently him (faithfull) did inform
In a new Rubrick of the Rites Divine,
To th' end the Heirs of promis'd Palestine
After their fancie should not worship him, 1120
Nor (Idol-prone) example leading them,
Into his sacred TEMPLE introduce
The Sacrifices that the Heathen use ;
But, by their Rites to guide their spirituall eye
To Christ, the Rock on whom their hopes should lie ;

In Moses' absence
Aaron makes the golden Calf.

Behold (alas !) frail Aaron, Deputi'd
During his absence, all the Flock to guide,
Dumb coward Curr, barks not against their ill ;
But giving way to the mad People's will,
Casteth a Golden Calf, and sets it up, 1130
For them to worship, and unto it stoop :
Gold, Rings and Jewels, which the Lord of Heav'n
Had (as Love-tokens) lately to them given,
Are cast into a Mould ; and (which is worse)
Jacob, to wed a Calf, doth God divorce.
Those feet that dry-shod past the Crimsin Gulfe,
Now daunce (alas !) before a Molten Calf :
That Voyce which late on ETHAN sands had rung
Th' Almighty's glory, now to Satan sung.

Moses sharply reproves Aaron, breaks the Idol,
and punisheth the Idolaters.

The zealous Prophet, with just fury mov'd, 1140
'Fore all the Hoast, his Brother sharp reprov'd :
And pulveris'd their Idol ; and eft-soons,
Flankt by old LEVIE's most religious Sons, Throgs through the Camp, & eachwhere strows his way

Simile.

With blood and slaughter, horror & dismay :
As halfe a score of Reapers nimbly-neat,
With cheerful eye choosing a plot of Wheat,
Reap it at pleasure, and of Ceres' locks
Make hand-fuls sheaves, & of their sheaves make shocks ;
And through the Field from end to end do run 1150
Working a-vie, till all be down and don.

Simile.

Or, as so many Canons shot at-once
A-front a Camp ; th' Earth with the Thunder grones ;
Here flies a broken arm, and breaks another ;
There stands th' one halfe of a halv'd body, th' other
Fals-down a furlong thence : here flies a shield ;
And deep-wide windowes make they in the field.

Aaron and Mary
(or Miriam) murmur against Moses.

All these sure signes of God's dear estimate
Cannot confirm the Hebrew Magistrate
In his Authority : even AARON spites-it, 1160
And MIRIAM (his sister) too back-bites-it.
But suddenly, on her in his Defence,
Foul Leprosie did punish this Offence.

His Nephews, scorning his Command, aspire
Before the Lord to offer forrain Fire :

But on them soon a Heav'nly Flame down-falling
(As in the Summer some hot-dry Exhaling,
Or Blazing-Star with sudden flash doth fall
Or Palmer's feet, and him affright with-all :
Fires instantly their beards and oyléd hair, 1170
And all the sacred vestiments they wear ;
Exhales their blood, their Bodies burns to ashes,
Their Censers melts with heat of Lightning flashes,
Their coals are quenchéd all, and sacred Flame
Th' unhallow'd Fire devour'd & overcame.

His Kins-man CORÉ then (with DATHAN joyn'd
And with ABIRAM) murmur'd and repin'd :
O see, saith he, how many a subtile ginne
The Tyrant sets to snare our Freedoms in !
How we abus'd with Oracles most vain, 1180
(Which MOSES and his brother AARON fain)
For idle hopes of promis'd Signories,
Do simply lose our sweetest Liberties !
See, how they do ingross between them two
Into one House, SCEPTER and EPHOD too ;
See, how they dally and with much delay
Prolong their Journey to prolong their Sway :
And (to conclude) see how slie Course they take,
To build their Greatness on our grievous wrack.

Hear'st thou me (MOSES) if thou chiefly joy
To see thy Brethren's torments and annoy, 1190
'Twere good to walke us yet for ten years more
About these Mountains in these Desarts poor :
Keep us still Exiles ; Let us (our Desire)
Languish, wex-old, and in these Sands expire,
Where cruell serpents haunt us still at hand,
A Fruit-less, Flood-less, yea a Land-less Land.
If, rear'd from Youth in Honour, thine ambition
Cannot come down to private men's condition,
Be Captain, Duke & King : for, God approves-thee, 1200
Thy vertue's guard, the People fears & loves-thee.
But as for AARON, What is his desert?
What High Exploit, what Excellence, what Art
Gain'd him th' High-Priesthood? O good God, what shame?

Alas ! hath he for any thing got fame
But HOEB'S Horn-God? for despising thee,
And thy Commands ; and for conspiracie?

The morrow-next, before the Sacred Tent
This Mutiner with sacred Censer went
Adorn'd, selfe-gazing, with a lofty eye, 1210
His faction present ; AARON also by.

Lord shield thy cause, approve thee veritable,
Let not thy Name be to the lewd a Fable :
Oynt thine Anointed publikely : by Miracle,
Show whom thou hast selected for thine Oracle,
Said MOSES then ; and even as yet he spake,
The groaning Earth began to reel and shake,
A horrid Thunder in her bowels rumbles,
And in her bosom up and down it tumbles,
Tearing her rocks, untill she Yawn away 1220
To let it out, and to let-in the Day :
Heav'n sees to Hell, and Hell beholdeth Heav'n,
And Divels dazled with the glistring leav'n

Nadab and Abihu
for offering of strange Fire, are kild by Fire from Heaven.

Core, Dathan
and Abiram,
their conspiracie.

Their dreadful
punishment.

Of th' ancient Sun, yet lower fain would dive ;
 But chain'd to th' Centre all in vain they strive.
 CORÉ, round compass with his Rebel friends,
 Offers to BELZEBUB and to the Fiends :
 His bodie's batter'd with Rocks falling down,
 And Arms of Trees there planted up-side-down :
 He goes with Noyse down to the Silent Coast, 1230
 Intoom'd alive, without all Art or cost.
 And all the rest that his proud side assum'd,
 Scaping the Gulf, with Lightning are consum'd.
 And AARON's Office is confirm'd by God,
 With wondrous Signes of his oft-quickned Rod,
 Which dead, re-buds, re-blooms, & Almonds bears :
 When all his Fellows have no life in theirs.
 Now, shall I sing through MOSES' prudent Sway,
 How ISRAEL doth AMALEC dismay,
 ARAD and OG (that of huge Giants springs) 1240
 Proud HESERON, and the five Madian Kings,
 With the false Prelat, who profanely made
 Of Prophets' gifts, a sacrilegious trade ;
 Who false, sayes true ; who striving (past all shame)
 To force the Spirit, is forc'd by the same :
 Who, snaring th' Hebreus with frail beautie's graces,
 Defiles their bodies, more their soules defaces ?
 Doubtless his Deeds are such, as would I sing
 But halfe of them, I under-take a thing
 As hard almost, as in the Gangic Seas 1250
 To count the Waves, or Sands in Euphrates ;
 And, of so much, should I a little say,
 It were to wrong him, and his praise betray.
 His Noble Acts we therefore here suspend,
 And skip unto his sweet and happy End :
 Sith, th' End is it whereby we judge the best
 (For either life) how Man is Curs'd or Blest.
 Feeling his vigour by degrees to waste,
 And, one Fire quencht, another kindling fast,
 Which doth his Spirit re-found, his Soule refine, 1260
 And raise to Heav'n, whence it was sent divine :
 He doth not (Now) study to make his Will,
 T' Entail his Land to his Male-Issue still :
 Wisely and justly to divide his Good,
 To Sons and Daughters, and his neerest blood :
 T' assigne his Wife a Dowry fair and fit,
 A hundred times to adde, and alter it :
 To quittance Friendships with frank Legacies :
 To guerdon Service with Annuities,
 To make Executors, to Cancel some, 1270
 T' appoint himself a Palace for a Toomb.
 I praise a care to settle our estate :
 But, when Death threatens us, then it is too-late.
 A seemly Buriall is a sacred Rite :
 But let the living take that charge of right.
 He (lifting higher his last thoughts) besides
 The Cómon-Weale's care, for the Church provides,
 And gravng his discourse with voyce devout,
 Bids thus farewell to all that stand about :
 O JACOB'S seed (I might say, my deer sons) 1280
 Y' are sense-less more then metals, stocks or stones,

Aaron's charge is confirmed by miracle.

Sundry victories of the Israelites, under the conduct and direction of Moses.

Reserving the wars for another discourse, our Poet hasteth to the death of Moses.

By his example men are warn'd not to differ to make their Will till it be too late to be troubled with the businesse of this World.

He pronounceth the blessing and the curses written

If y' have forgot the many-many Miracles
 Where-wth the Lord hath seal'd my sacred Oracles ;
 And all the Favours (in this savage Place)
 In forty yeares receiv'd of his grace.
 Therefore (O ISRAEL) walk thou in his fear,
 And in thy heart's-heart (not in Marble) beare
 His ever-lasting LAW : before him stand,
 And to his service consecrate thy hand.
 If this thou doe, thy Heav'n-blest fleecie Flocks 1290
 Shall bound about thy Pastures, Downs and Rocks ;
 As thick as skip in Summer, in a Mead,
 The Grass-hoppers, that all with Deaw are fed :
 Thy fruitfull Eaws, fat Twins shall bring thee ever,
 And of their Milk shall make a pienteous River :
 Th' old Tyrant loads not with so many loans,
 Toules, Taxes, Succours, Impositions,
 The panting Vassals to him Tributary,
 As thy rich fields shall pay thee voluntary :
 Thy children, and thy children's children, set 1300
 About thy Table side by side at meat,
 Shall flourish like a long and goodly rowe
 Of pale-green Olives that uprightly growe
 About a ground, and (full of Fruit) presage
 Plenty of Oyle unto their Master sage :
 Sons of thy sons shall serve thy reverend Eld :
 Thou shalt dye quiet, thou shalt live unquell'd,
 Blesséd at home, and blesséd in the Plain :
 The blesséd God shall send thee timely Rain,
 And wholsom windes, & with his keyes of grace 1310
 Open Heav'n's storehouse to thy happy Race :
 Thy proud fell Foes with Troops of arm'd men
 Shall charge thee one way, but shall fly thee ten ;
 The peace-plant Olive, or Triumphant Bay
 Shall shade thy gates ; Thy valour shall dismay
 And daunt the Earth ; and with his sacred aw
 Thy Saviour-King shall give the World the Law.
 If otherwise ; the Megrim, Gowt, and Stone,
 Shall plague thee fell with thousand pangs in one ;
 Thy numbrly Flocks in part shall barren be, 1320
 In part shall bring abortives unto thee ;
 Accurst at home, accurs'd in the Plain,
 Thy labour boot-less, and thy care in vain :
 Thy Field shall be of steel, thy Heav'n of brass,
 Thy Fountains dry : and God displeas'd (alas !)
 Instead of wholsom shows, shall send down flashes
 Of Lightning, Fire, Hail, Sulphur, Salt, and Ashes :
 Thou shalt reap little where thou much hast shed,
 And with that little shall thy Foe be fed ;
 He shall the fattest of thy Heard devour 1330
 Before thy face, and yet thou must not lowr :
 Thou shalt build fair, another have thy Place :
 Thou wed a wife, another 'fore thy face
 Shall lose her Bride-bell : God with rage shall smite
 Thy stubborn heart, with blindness and affright ;
 So that a wagging leaf, a puff, a crack,
 Yea, the least crack shall make thee turn thy back :
 Thou never shalt thine adverse Hoast surway,
 But to be beaten, or to run away.

in Levit. 26. & Deut. 28. where- unto the people say, Amen.

Blessings on those that obey.

Curses on the disobedient.

The SONG OF
MOSES.

A People stout, for strength and number ample, 1340
Which th' Eagle hath for Ensigne and Example,
With a new Wall thine ancient Wall shall dam,
And make thee (Famisht) thy voyd bowels cram
With thine own bowels, and for want of meat
Thine own deer children's trembling flesh to eat.
And then, thy Remnant (far disperst from home)
O'r all the corners of the Earth shall roam :
To shew their Curse, they shall no Country ow'ne,
And (which is worse) they shall not be their Own.
AMEN, said all the Hoast. Then (like the Swan) 1350
This dying Song, the Man of GOD began :

SITH ISRAEL (O wil-full !) will not hear ;
Hearken O Heav'ns, and O thou Earth give ear
Unto my voyce, and Witness (on my part)
Before the Lord, my zeal, and their hard heart.

O Heav'n and Earth attend unto my Song,
Hear my Discourse, which sweetly slides along ;
As silver shows on the dry Meads do trill,
And honey Deaws, on tender grass distill.

God grant (I pray) that in their hearts my Verse 1360
(As water on the wither'd Lawns) may pierce :
And that the honey dropping from my tongue
May serve the old for rain, for deaw the young.

I sing th' Eternall : O let Heav'n and Earth
Come praise him with me, sound his glory forth,
Extoll his Powr, his perfect Workes record,
Truth, Goodness, Greatness, Justice of the Lord.

But, though for ever He have shown him such ;
His children yet (no Children, rather much
A Bastard Race) full of malicious sin, 1370
All kinde of vice have foulely wallowed in.

O foolish People! dost thou thus requite
His Father-care, who fenc't thee day and night,
As with a Shield? Who chose thee as his heir?
Who made thee, of so foule a mass, so fair?

Un-winde the bottom of old Times again,
Of Ages past un-reel the snarled skain :
Ask of thy Parents, and they shall declare ;
Thine Elders and they 'l tell the Wonders rare.

They 'l tell thee, how, when first the Lord had spread 1380
Men on the Earth, and justly levelléd
His strait long Measure, th' All-Ball to divide,
He did for thee plenteous Land provide :

For his deer JACOB, whom his favour then
Seem'd t' have sequestered from the rest of men,
To th' end his Blesséd Seed (in future age)
Should be his care, Love, Lot, and Heritage.

They 'l tell thee too, how through the sandy horror
Of a vast Desart, Den of gbastly terror, 1390
Of Thirst and Hunger, and of Serpents fell,
He by the hand conducted ISRAEL :

Yea, (of his goodness) to direct him still,
By Word and Writ show'd him his sacred Will ;
Under his wings' shade hid him tenderly,
And held him deer, as apple of his eye.

As is the Royall Eagle's sacred wont,
When she would teach her tender Birds to mount,
To fly and cry about her Nest, to cheer-them ;
And when they faint on her wing'd back to bear-them :

God (without ayd of other gods or Graces) 1400
Safe guide, hath made him mount the highest places,
Such Oyl and Honey from the Rocks distilling,
In plenteous Land wth pleasant Fruits him filling.

He gave him Milk and Butter for his meat,
Kid, Lamb, and Mutton, with the flowr of Wheat ;
And for his Drink, a most delicious Wine
(The sprightfull blood of the broad-spreading Vine)

But, wexen fat, he lifts his wanton heel
Against his God (to whom his soule should kneel)
Forsakes his Maker, and contemns the Same 1410
That savéd him from danger, death, and shame.

Then, hee inflam'd the fury of the Lord,
With profane bowing to false Gods abhord :
With serving Idols, and with sacrificing
To Fiends, and Phansies of his own devising.

For vain false gods, gods un-renown'd, and new,
Gods that his Fathers nor he never knew ;
He hath forgot the true eternall BEING,
The God of whom he holds his bliss and being.

God saw it well, and jealously a-fire 1420
Against his Children, thus he threatens his ire :
No ; I will hide the brightnesse of my face,
He take from them the treasures of my grace.

Then let us see what will of them become,
But, what but mischief can unto them come,
That so perverse with every puff let fly
Their faith, sole constant in inconstancy?

Th' have made me jealous of a God, no god :
He make them jealous, I will Wed (abroad)
A People (yet) no people : And their brest 1430
Shall split, for spight, to see the Nations blest.

Devouring Fire, that from my heart doth fume,
Shall fiercely burn and in my wrath consume
The deep of Deeps, the middle Downs, and Fields,
And strong foundations of the steepest Hills.

He spend on them my store of punishments,
And all mine Arrows ; Famine, Pestilence,
Wilde Beasts, and Worms that basely crawling are,
Without remorse shall make them end-lesse War.

Abroad, the Sword their strong men shal devour, 1440
At home, through Fear, the Virgin in her flowr,
The fresh young Youth, the sucking children small,
And hoary head, dead to the ground shall fall.

Yes, even already would I quite deface
And clean destroy them, I would JACOB race;
Raze his memorial from the Earth for ay,
But that I fear the Heathen thus would say:

We have prevail'd, we by our strength alone
Have quell'd this People, and them overthrown:
'Twas not their God that did it for their Sins; 1450
No, he himselfe is vanquish't with his Friends.

Ha! sottish blocks, voyd of all sense and sight;
Could one man put a thousand men to flight:
And two, ten thousand, if the God of Arms
Had not even sold their troupes & bound their arms?

For God, our God, doth all their gods surpass;e
They know it well: but, their Wine springs (alas!)
From SODOM'S Vine, and grew in GOMOR'S fields,
Which Gall for Grapes, for Raysons Poysson yeelds.

It is no Wine: no, the black bane it is, 1460
The killing vomit of the Cockatrice;
'Tis bitter venom, 'tis the same that coms
From the fell ASPIC'S foul infecting gums.

Doe not I know it? keep not I account
(In mine Exchequer) how their sins do mount?
Vengeance is mine: I will (in fine) repay
In my due time: I will not long delay.

Their ruin posteth: then th' Omnipotent
Shall Judge for JACOB: then will I repent
To quite destroy mine own beloved people, 1470
Seeing their strength all fall'd and wholly feeble.

'Twill then be said, Where are their gods becom
(Their deaf, dull Idols, sent-lesse, sight-lesse, dumb)
To whom they lift their hearts, and hands, & eyes,
And (as their Guards) so oft did sacrifice?

Now let those trim Protectors them protect;
Let them rise quickly and defend their Sect,
Their Fires and Altars; and come stand before,
To shield the Fondlings that their Fanes adore.

Know therefore, Mortals, I th' IMMORTAL am, 1480
There's none like Me, in or above this Frame:
I wound, I heal; I kill, I fetch from Grave,
And from my hands none can the Sinner save.

Ile lift my hand tow'rd th' arched heav'ns on high
And swear with-all by mine Eternity
(Which onely Being, gives to all to Beem)
That if I whet my Sword of Vengeance keen:

If once (I say) as Sovereign King alone,
I sit me down on my high Justice Throne,
Ile venge me roughly on mine Enemies, 1490
And guerdon justly their iniquities:

My hart-thrill darts I wil make drunk with bloud,
Ile glut my sword with slaughter; all the brood
Of Rebell Nations I will raze (in fine)
To recompence the bloud and death of mine.

O Gentiles, then his People praise and fear,
Sith to the Lord it is so choicely dear:
Sith hee'l avenge his Cause; and, beating down
His enemies, will mildly cheer his Own.

FINIS.

The Captains.

THE FOURTH PART OF THE THIRD DAY OF THE II. WEEK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Just-Duked JOSUAH cheers the Abramides
To CANAAN's Conquest : Jordan self-divides :
Re-Circumcision, what, and where, and why :
Sacks Jericho : Hai won (so Achan die) :
Gibeonites' guile : strange Hall : the Sun stands still :
Nature repines. Jews (Guide-lesse) prone to ill.
 Adoni-Besec, Sangar, DEBORA,
 Barac and Jabel conquer SISERA.
Samuel succeeds : Jews crave a KING : a vis 10
Of People-Sway : States-Rule : and MONARCHY.

Canaan saluted.

H All holy JORDAN, and you blessed Torrents
 Of the pure Waters, of whose crystall Currents
 So many Saints have sipt : O Wals, that rest
 Fair monuments of many a famous Guest :
 O Hills, O Dales, O Fields so flowry sweet,
 Where Angels oft have set their sacred feet :
 And thou, O sacred Place, which wert the Cradle
 Of th' onely MAN-God, and his happy Swaddle :
 And thou, O Soil, which drank'st the crimson shower 20
 That (for our health) out of his veins did pour :
 And you, fat Hillocks (which I take as giv'n
 For a firm pledge of the full joyes of Heav'n)
 Where Milk and Honey flow ; I see you all,
 Under the conduct of my Generall,
NUN's valiant Son : and under GEDEON's Sway,
SANGAR, and SAMSON, BARAC, DEBORA.

For, here (brave Heroes) your high Feats I sing ;
 Thrice sacred Spirit, thy speedy succour bring :
 O Spirit, which wert their guide, guard, strength & stay, 30

Argument of this Tract.

Let not my Verse their Vertue's praise betray.
 JOSUAH, by favour, nor by Bribes, obtains
 A higher Rank then Royall Sovereigns.
 (Who buys in grosse, he by retail must sell :
 And who gives Favour, Favour asks as well) :
 He gets it not by Fortune (she is sight-lesse) :
 Neither by force (for, whoso enters (Right-lesse)
 By Force, is forced to go out with shame) :
 Nor sudden climbs he (raw) unto the same
 (For, to high Place, who mounts not step by step, 40
 He coms not down, but headlong down doth leap) :
But, even as that grave-gracefull Magistrate,
Which (now) with Conscience, Law doth moderate,
Was first a Student (under others' aw)
Then Barister, then Counsellor at-Law,
Then Queen's Solicitor, then Roules-Arbitrer,
And then Lord-Keeper, now LORD CHANCELLOR ;
 He com's to 't by degrees : and having first
 Shown Himselfe wise in spying Canaan yerst,
Faithfull to MOSES in his Ministrings, 50
 And Stout in fight against the Heathen Kings ;
 God makes him CAPTAIN, and the sacred Priests Pronounce him so, the people pleaséd is.

Josuah his just authority over the people of Israel.

Simile.

50

But in his State yer he be stall'd (almost)
 Set in the mid'st of God's beloved Hoast.

His first Oration to the people.

He thus delates : O happy Legions dear,
Which sacred Arms under Heav'n's Ensigns bear.
Fears not that I, yet forty years again
Your wandering Troups in these vast sands should train
'Twixt Hope and Fear : th' unhallowed Offerings, 60
The proud revolts, blasphemous Murmurings
Of your stiffe Fathers, have with-holden rather Then whole with-drawn, th' ayd of your heavenly Father :

God tenders it in time, and (pacif'd)
Nils the set Term without effect should slide.
Serve him therefore, now take him at his word
And now to Canaan march with one accord,
And bravely shew that th' Hoast of ISRAEL,
In valour, far doth his drad fame excell.

Courageous JACOB, ARAD's stoutest hearts 70
And strongest Holds have prov'd thy pikes & darts ;
The Madianites have thine Arm's thunder known,
Th' hast razed Basan, ransackt Hesebon,
Scap't scaly Serpents (in these Desarts vast)
Crost the Red-Sea, and Heav'n-prop SINA past,
And sent to Hell thy dradest Foes : Lo, now
God offers thee the Crown, accept it thou.

Then turning him to RUBEN and to GAD,
And to MANASSES, who their portion had
By MOSES' grant on Jordan's Eastern verge ; 80
War-eloquent, he thus proceeds to urge :

Can you (my hearts) finde in your hearts to leave
Your Ranks, and us thus of your ayds bereave ?

Will you lie wrapped in soft beds a-sleep,
While in cold Trenches your poor Brethren keep ?

Will you sit washing (when your Feasts be done)
In sweet Rose-water, while that Orion

His cloudy store in storm-full furie pours,
And drowns your Brethren with continual showers ?

Will you goe dance and dally to and fro, 90
While in the Field they march to charge the Foe ?
Will you expect a part with them in gain,
While they the blowes and all the brunt sustain ?

God shield, you should dishonour so your Blood :
Nay rather (leaving on this side the Floud

Your Wives, and Children, and (unfit for Battell)
Your agéd Parents, and your Heards of Cattell)

Come arm your selves, t' advance our Victories,
And share with us in Perill, as in Prize.

O noble Prince (then all the Hoast reply'd) 100
March-on a God's Name ; and good Hap betide :

Were Canaan turn'd another Wildernesse,
Were there before us yet more crimson Seas,

Were Horeb, Carmel, and Mount Séir set
Each upon other (up to Heav'n to get)

We'l follow thee through all ; and onely th' end
Of our own lives shall our brave Journey end.

After the Ark, then march they in array
Direct to Jordan, praising all the way

That living God, whose matchlesse mighty hand 110
Parted the Sea, that they might passe by Land.

Hoar-headed Jordan neatly lodgéd was
In a large Cave, built all of beaten Glasse ;

Whose wavéd Seeling, with exceeding cost,
The Nymphs (his Daughters) rarely had imbost
With Pearls and Rubies, and in-layd the rest
With Nacre cheeks, and Corall of the best ;
A thousand Streamlings that n'er saw the Sun,
With tribute silver to his service run ;
There, IRIS, AUSTER, and Clouds blewly black 120
Continually their liquor leave and take ;

There th' agéd Floud layd on his mossie bed,
And pensive leaning his flag-shaggie head
Upon a Tuft, where th' eating waves incroach,
Did gladly wait for ISRAEL's approach :
Each hair he had is a quick flowing stream,
His sweat the gushing of a storm extream,
Each sigh a Billow, and each sob he sounds
A swelling Sea that over-floues his bounds :
His weak gray eyes are always seen to weep, 130
About his loyns a rush-Belt wears he deep,
A Willow wreath about his wrinkled brows ;
His Father NEREUS his complexion shoues.

So soon as He their welcome rumour heard
His frosty head above the Waves he rear'd ;

With both his hands strook back behinde his ears
The waving Tresses of his weeping hairs :

And then perceiving JACOB's Army stay'd
By his proud streams, he chid them thus, and said :

Prestiptuous Brook, dar'st thou (ingrateful Torrent) 140
Lift-up thy horn, lash-out thy swelling Current Against the Lord, and over-flow thy bound
To stop his passage ? Shall the Flouds profound

Of the proud Ocean to his Hoast give-way ?
Shall Egypt's honour, shall that Gulfe (I say)

That long large Sea, w^{ch} with his plenteous waves
A third or fourth part of the World be-laves ;

Shall that yeeld humbly at his Servant's beck ?
And thou, poor Rill, or gutter (in respect)

Resist himselfe (his glorious selfe) that Inns 150
Here in his Ark, between the Cherubins ?
And saying so, he on his shoulder stung
His deep wide Crock that on his hip had hung ;

And down his back pours back-ward all his course.

The stream returns towards his double source ;
And leaving dry a large deep lane betwixt,

The fearfull waves in heaped Hills were fixt,
To give God place, and passage to his Hoast,

Towards their Promis'd and appointed Coast.
So, dry they passe (after the sacred Oracle) 160

And leave Memorials of that famous Miracle
Upon Mount Gilgal : and their flesh anon

They seal with Signe of their Adoption.
For, the All-guiding God, the Almighty Prince,

To give to His some speciall difference,
Will'd that all Males of Abram's Progenies

With sacred Razor should them Circumcise ;
And ever-more, that Isaac's blessed Race

Should in their Fore-skin bear his gage of Grace. 170
But, why (sayst thou) should ancient ISRAEL
In such a secret place Record and Seal

He urgeth particularly Ruben,
Gad, and Manasses, to take part with their brethren, in prosecuting the Conquest of Canaan.

The general and joyfull answer of the people.

tion of the river

Circumcision.

A curious question, why it was appointed in such a place.	Th' Act of the Covenant : and with bloudy smart Ingrave their glory in a shameful part ?	180	There sadly sinks, or sudden stops the way Of some swift Torrent hasting to the Sea.	230
A sharp and sober answer.	Who blushes at it, is a grace-lesse Beast ; Who shames to see the Signe of Grace imprest In shameful part, he is asham'd of CHRIST Born of that Race, and selfy Circumcis'd .		Boast you, O Bombards, that you Thunder drown : And vaunt you, Mines, that you turn up-side down Rampres and Towns, and Walls the massie-most ; Yet, your exploits require both time and cost : You make but a small breach, but a rough way, And (by mischance) oft your own side betray. But, th' Hebrews with a sudden showt and cry, A whole great Town dis-mantle instantly, And (unresisted) entring every-where,	240
The right application and use thereof.	A hundred subtill Reasons from the Writs Of Rabbins could I bring : but, sober Wits Rest satisfied, conceiving that th' incision Of th' obscene Fore-skin , signifies th' abecission, Or sacred cutting-off of foul Affects, Beseeching those whom God for His elects ; That God the Fruits of flesh, and bloud doth hate : And that through CHRIST we must regenerate.		They exercise all hostile vengeance there. And, as a sort of lusty Bill-men, set In Wood-sale time to fell a Cops, by great ;	Simile.
The passeover.	Now, th' Hebrews kept their Pass-over ; and go (By Heav'n's addresse) to mighty Jericho ; Besieging so the City round about, That fear got in, but nothing could get out.		Be-stir them so, that soon with sweating pain, They turn an Oak-grove to a field of grain : So th' Hebrew Hoast, without remorse or pitty, Through all sad corners of the open City, Burn, break, destroy, bathe them in bloud, and toyl To lay all level with the trampled soyl ;	* Jericho sackt and consumed with fire, and all her in- habitants put to the sword without respect of State, Sexe, or Age.
The siege of Jericho after a strange manner.	Souldiers (said then th' undaunted Generall) Prepare no Mattocks, Ladders, nor Rams at all, To mine, or scale, or batter-down these Towns ; The great, the high, the mighty God of Powrs Will fight himselfe alone ; and then he bod (As first himselfe had been inform'd by God) That daily once they all should march the Round About the City with horn-Trumpets sound ; Bearing about, for onely Banneret, The light-full Ark , GOD's sacred Cabinet ;	190	The Idof's Temples, and the delicate Prince-Palaces are quickly beaten flat ; The fire loud-crackling, w th the Clouds doth meet, A bloudy Torrent runs through every street, Their venge-full sword spares neither great nor small ;	250
The Citizens deride it.	Their swords un-drawn, not making any noyse ; Threat-lesse their brows, and without braves their voice ; No shaft to shoot, no sign of war, no glance ; And even their March doth rather seem a Dance.	200	Neither the Child that on his hands doth crawl, Nor him that wears snow on his shaking head, Yce in his heart ; not the least Beast they bred. A deed (indeed) more worthy th' Heseline , Then th' holy Hebrews ; had the voyce Divine Not charg'd them so, and choicely arm'd them 'Gainst Jericho , with his own* Anathem ; Reserving onely for his Sacred place , The Gold and Silver, th' Iron and the Brasse.	260
On the seventh day their walls of themselves fall down.	What childre-spel ? what may-game have we here ? What ? dare you (Gallants) dare you come no neer ? Is this your brave assault ? is this your fight ? Seen you to scar-crows us (like birds) to fright ? (Said the besiegd) get you som-where else (Poor sots) to shew your Bug-bears and your spels ; Cease your hoarse musick, leave the stage alone : Fools draw the Curten, now your Play is done.	210	Yet sacrilegious Achan dar'd to hoord Some precious Pillage : which incenst the Lord Against the Camp, so that he let them fly For this Offence before their enemy. For, when three thousand chosen Israelites Were sent to Hai t' assault the Canaanites , The Town all armes : their prince the forwardest (No lesse-brave Souldier then proud Atheist) Arms the broad Mountain of his hayrie breast With horrid scales of Nilus' greedy beast ; His brawny arms and shoulders, with the skin Of the dart-darting wily Porcupis ;	* Achan's Sacri- ledge.
Simile.	Six dayes together had the Hebrews thus't About the Town, seven-times the Seventh they must ; When sacred Levites sound more loud and high Their horny Trumps : then all the People cry, Come, come (great God) come, batter, batter down These odious wals, this Idol-wedded Town.		He wears for Helm a Dragon's ghastly head, Where-on for plume a huge Horse-tail doth spread ; Not much unlike a Birch-tree bare below Which at the top in a thick tuft doth grow ; Waving with every winde, and made to kisse Th' Earth, now on that side, and anon on this : In Quiver made of Lezard's skins he wears His poisoned Arrows ; and the Bow he bears, Is of a mighty Tree, strung with a Cable ; His shaft a Lever, whose keen head is able To pierce all proof, stone, steel, and Diamant. Thus furnishead, the Tyrant thus doth vaunt :	270
	It cracks in th' instant, the foundation shrinks, The mortar crumbles from the yawning chinks ; Each stone is loose, and all the Wall doth quiver And all at once unto the ground doth shiver With hideous noise ; and th' Heathen Garrison Is but immur'd with Clouds of dust alone ; So shall you see a Cloud-crown'd Hill sometime, Torn from a greater by the waste of Time ; Dreadly to shake, and bounding down to hop, And roaring, here it routes tall Cedars up ; There aged Oaks ; it turns, it spurns, it hales The lower Rocks into th' affrighted Vales ;	220	The antick armour of the King. His insolent and blasphemous Oration.	280

Sirs, shall we suffer this ignoble Race,
Thus shamefully us from our Own to chase?
Shall they be Victors yer they overcome? 290
Shall our Possessions and our Plenty come Among these Mongrels? Tush: let Children quake

At dreams of ABRAM: let faint Women shake
At their Drad God, at their Sea-drying Lord;
I know no Gods, above my glittering Sword.
This said, he sallies and assaults the Foe
With furious skirmish; and doth charge them so,
As stormy billows rush against a Rock:
As boystrous winds (that hath their prison broke)
Roar on a Forrest: as Heav'n's sulph'ry Flash 300
Against proud Mountains' surly brows doth dash.

The sacred Troups (to conquer alwayes wont)
Could not sustain his first tempestuous brunt,
But turn their backs: and, as they fly amain,
Foure lease then forty of their band were slain.

The son of NUN then (with th' Isacian Peers)
Before the Ark in prostrate wise appears.
Sack on his back, dust on his head, his eyes
Even great with tears, thus to the Lord he cries:
O! what alas? what have we done, O Lord? 310
The People destin'd to thy People's sword,
Conquers thy People? and the Canaanites
(Against thy Promise) chase the Israelites.

O Lord, why did not Jordan's rapid Tyde
Still stay our Hoast upon the other side?
Sith here, in hope to get the Promis'd more,
We hazzard all that we had won before.

Regard and guard us; nay, regard thy Name:
O! suffer not the seed of Abraham
(Almighty Father, O thou God most high!)
To be expos'd to Heathen's Tyrannie! 320
Much lease thy sacred Ark, for them to burn:
And least of all, thy glorious Selve to scorn.

JOSUAH (said God) let th' Hoast be sanctifi'd,
And let the Church-thief dye, that dar'd to hide
Th' unlawfull Pillage of that curséd Town
(The Mayden Conquest, prime of thy Renown):
Then shalt thou vanquish, and the lofty Towers
Of HAI shall fall under thy war-like powrs.

The morrow next, after the great Assise, 330
ACHAN (convicted, not by bare surmise,
But by God's Spirit, which undermines our minds,
And cleerly sees our secretest designes;
To whom, Chance is no Chance, and Lot no Lot,
To whom the Dye uncertaine rouleth not)
Is brought without the Hoast, with all he hath,
And sacrific'd unto th' Almighty's wrath.

Now, between Bethel and HAI's western wall,
There lies a Valley close inviron'd all
Between the forking of a hill so high,
That it is hidden from all passers-by: 340
Whose hornéd cliffs, below are hollowéd,
And with two Forrests arbour'd over head:
Tis long and narrow; and a rapid Torrent,
Bounding from rock to rock with roaring Current,

Deafens the Shepheards: so that it should seem Nature fore-cast it for som stratagem.

Thither the Duke (soon after mid-night) guides 350
His choycest Bands, and them there war'ly hides;
Each keeps his place, none speaks, none spets, none coughs, 350

But all as still, as if they march on Moss;
So fallow Wolves, when they intend to set
On fearfull flocks that in their Folds do bleat,
Through silent darknesse secret wayes do groop:
Their feet are feather'd with the wings of hope,
They hold their breath, and so still undiscry'd,
They passe hard by the watchfull Mastie's side.

Mean-while the howrs op'ned the doors of Day,
To let out Titan that must needs away:
Whose radiant tresses, but with trailing on, 360
Began to gild the top of Libanon;

When, with the rest of all his Hoast, the GRAVE
Marcheth amain to give the Town abrave.
They straight re-charge him: as in season warm
The honey-makers busie-bussing swarm,
With humming threats throngs from the little gates
Of their round Towr, and with their little hates
Fiercely assayl, and wound the naked skins
Of such as come to rob their curious Inns.

Why (Cowards) dare you come again for blows? 370
Or, do you long your wretched lives to lose?
Com, we are for you; wee'l dispatch you soon:
And for the many wrongs that you have done
Unto our Selves, our Neighbours, and our Friends,
This day our swords shall make us full amends
(Cry th' Amorites): and th' Hebrew Captain then Flies as affraid, and with him all his men

Disorderly retire; still fainting so,
Till (politick) he hath in-trayn'd the Foe
Right to his Ambush: then the Souldiers there, 380
Hid in the Vale, hearing their noyse so neer,
Would fain be at them, were they not with-held
By threatning gestures of Commanding Eld:

So have I seen on LAMBORN's pleasant Downes
When yelping Beagles or some deeper Hounds
Have start a Hare, how milk-white Minks and Lun
(Gray-bitches both, the best that ever run)
Held in one lash, have leapt, and strain'd, and wokin'd
To be restrain'd, till (to their Master's minde)
They might be slipt, to purpose; that (for sport) 390
Watt might have low neither too-long nor short.

But, when the Heathen had the Ambush past,
The Duke thus cheers his sacred Troups as fast,
Sa, sa, my Hearts; turn, turn again upon-them,
They are your own; now charge and cheery on them.
His ready Souldiers at a beck obey,
And on their Foes courageous load they lay: 400
They shoot, they shock, they strike, they stab, they kill
Th' unhallow'd Currs, that yet resisted still;
Untill behinde them a new storm arose
With horrid noyse, which daunts not onely those,
But with the furie of it's force doth make
The Hills and Forrests, and even Hell to quake,

Pagans, what will you doe? If here you fly,
You fall on Caleb, where y' are sure to dy:
If there, on Yosuah: O unfortunate!
Your help-lesse gods in vain you invoke.
Y' are (O forlorne!) like Rabbets round beset
With wily Hunters' Dogs, and deadly Net:
With shrill Sa-haw, here-heres-ho, here-again, 410
The Warren rings; th' amazed Game amain
Runs here and there: but if they scape away
From Hounds, staves kill them; if from staves, the Yeeld, yeeld, and dy then, strive not to retire:

For, even in death behold your Town a-fire.

Then Gibeon, a mighty City neer,
That these Exploits of Heav'n's drad hand did bear,
Sent subtilly, to League with Israel,
No: y' are deceiv'd (said then th' Arch-Colonel)
The Canaanites are destin'd long ago 420
To Fire, and Sword, and utter overthrow;
From Heav'n's high Judge the Sentence doth proceed:

Alas! my Lord (reply'd th' Embassadors):
You may perceave, we are no Borderers
Upon these Countries: For, our suits, our slops,
Our hose and shoes, were new out of the shops
When wee set forth from home; and even that day
This bread was bakéd when we came away;
But the long Journey, we have gone, hath wore 430
Our cloaths to rags, and turn'd our victuals hoar:
W' abjure thee therefore in the sacred Name
Of that drad GOD to whom your vows you frame,
By the sweet aire of this delightfull Coast,
By the good Angel that conducts your Hoast,
By deare Embraces of your dearer Wives,
And by your Babes (even) dearer then your lives;
By each of these, and all of these together,
And by your Arms, whose Fame hath drawn us hither;
T' have pity on us, and to swear unto-us, 440
To save our lives, and not so to undoe-us,
As these neer Nations: Israel accords,
And with an Oath confirms the solemn words.

A sacred application of their pro-

So I (good Lord) perceiving all the Seed
Of Sin-full Adams unto Death decreed,
Doom'd to the Vengeance of thy Furie fell,
And damn'd for ever to the deepest Hell;
Would fain be free: but, if I should (alas!)
Come, as I am, before thy glorious face,
Thou (righteous God) wilt turn thine eyes away;
For, Flesh and Blood possesseth not Heav'n for wy;
And the strict Rigour of thy Justices pure
Cannot (O Lord) the least of sins endure.
Oh then! what shall I doe? He stillize
These Gibeonites: I will my selfe disguise
To gull thee, Lord (for, even a holy Guffe Finds with thee grace and favour often-while):
He put-on (crafty) not the cloak of Pydis
(For, that was it whereby our Grand-sires di'd:
And Lucifer, with his associates, fell 460
From Joyes of Heav'n, into the pains of Hell):

But th' humble Fleece of that sweet sacred Lamb
Which (for our sakes) upon the Crosse becam
So torn and tatter'd; which the most refuse:
Scorn of the Gentiles, Scandall of the Jews.
And, as a peece of Silver, Tin, or Lead,
By cunning hands with Gold is covered;
I, that am all but Lead (or drosse more base)
In fervent Crucible of thy free Grace,
He gild me all with his pure Beautie's Gold; 470
Born a new man (by Faith) He kill mine old:
In Spirit and Life, Christ shall be mine Example,
His Spirit shall be my Spirit, and I his Temple.

Simile.

I being thus in Christ, and Christ in mee,
O! wilt thou, canst thou, drive Vs far from thee?
Deprive, from promis'd new-Jerusalem,
Christ thine owne Likeness; and mee, like to him?
Banish from Heav'n (whose Blisse shall never vade)
Thy Christ, by whom & me, for whom 'twas made?

But, O presumption! O too rash Designe! 480
Alas! to Will it onely, is not mine:
And, though I Would, my flesh (too-Winter-chill)
My spirit's small sparkles doth extinguish still.

O! therefore thou, thou that canst all alone;
All-sacred Father's like all-sacred Son,
Through thy deep Mercy daign thou to transform
Into thy Self, mee sin-full silly worm;
That so, I may be welcom to my God.
And live in Peace, not where the Jews abode,
But in Heav'n-Sion: and that thou maist be 490

Now, Eglon's, Hebron's, Jarmuth's, Salem's Lords,
And Lachis Kingling (after these Accords)
Wroth, that their Neighbours had betray'd so
Their common Country to their common Foe,
Had made so great a breach, and by the hand
Led (as it were) th' Hebrews into their Land;
Set-upon Gibeon: but th' Isaacian Prince,
As just as valliant, hastes to hunt them thence;
And, resolute to rescue his Allies, 500
He straight bids Battell to their Enemies.

500

The fight grows fierce; and winged Victory,
Shaking her Laurels, rusht confusedly
Into the midst; she goes, and comes and goes,
And now she leans to these, and now to those.
Auster the while from neighbour Mountains arms
A hundred Winters, and a hundred storms
With huge great Hail-shot, driving fiercely fell
In the stern visage of the Infidel:
The roaring Tempest violently retorts 510
Upon themselves the Pagans' whirling darts,
And in their own breasts, their own Laurels bore,
Wber-with they threatned th' Hoast of God before:
And (even) as if it env'd the Retown
Of valliant Yosuah (now by Omger known)
With furious shock, the foremost Ranks it whir'd
Upon the next, the second on the third:
Even as a Bridge of Cards, which Phy-full Child
Doth in an evening on a Carpet build,

The battell of the five Kings.

When some Wag by, upon his work doth blow ; 520
 If one Arch fall, the rest fall all a-row
 Each upon other, and the Childe he cries
 For his lost labour, and again hee tries.
 If any, resting on his knotty Spear,
 'Gainst arms and storms, yet stand out stify there,
 Th' Hail, which the winde full in his face doth yerke,
 Smarter then Racquets in a Court re-jerk
 Balls 'gainst the Wals of the black-boorded house ;
 Beats out his eyes, batters his nose, and brows.
 Then turn the Pagans, but without a veil : 530
 For, instantly the stony storm of Hail
 Which flew direct a-front, direct now falls
 Plumb on their heads, & cleaves their sculs & cauls :
 And ever, as they waver to and fro,
 Over their Hoast the Haily Cloud doth go :
 And never hits one Hebrew, though between,
 But a Sword's length (or not so much) be seen :
 A buckler one, another a bright helm
 Over his threatned or sick head doth whelm :
 But, the shield broken, and helm beaten in, 540
 Th' Hail makes the hurt bite on the bloody green.
 Those, that escape, betake them to their heels ;
 Joshua pursues, and, though his sweat distils
 From every part, hee wounds, hee kills, hee cleaves.
 Neither the Fight imperfect so hee leaves :
 But, full of faithfull zeal and zealous faith,
 Thus (O strange language !) thus aloud he saith :
 Beam of th' Eternall, daye's bright Champion,
 Spall of Nature, O all-seeing Sun,
 Stay, stand thou still, stand still in Gibeon ; 550
 And thou O Moon i' th' vale of Ajalon,
 That th' Amorites now by their Hare-like flight
 Scape not my hands under all-hiding Night.
 As a Caroche, drawn by four lusty Steeds,
 In a smooth way whirling with all their speeds,
 Stops suddenly, if 't slip into a slough,
 Or if it crosse some Log or massie bough ;
 The Day-reducing Chariot of the Sun,
 Which now began, towards his West to run,
 Stops instantly, and gives the Hebrews space 560
 To rid the Pagans that they have in chase.
 Nature, amaz'd, for very anger shakes ;
 And to th' Almighty her complaint shee makes :
 Seemly she marches with a measur'd pase,
 Cholera puts colour in her lovely face ;
 From either nipple of her bosom-twins
 A lively spring of pleasant milke there spins ;
 Upon her shoulders (Atlas-like) she bears
 The frame of All ; down by her side shee wears
 A Golden Key, where-with she letteth forth 570
 And locketh up the Treasures of the Earth ;
 A sumptuous Mantle to her heels hangs down,
 Where-in the Heav'ns, the Earth, and Sea is shown ;
 The Sea in Silver woven, the Earth in Green,
 The Heav'ns in Azure with Gold threds between :
 All-quickenng Love, fresh Beauty, smiling Youth,
 And Fruitfulness, each for her favour sa'th :

At the command of Joshua the Sun standeth still.

Accoutred thus and thus accompani'd, 580
With thousand sighs thus to the Lord shee cri'd :
Shall it be said a man doth Heav'n command ?
Wilt thou permit a braving Souldier's hand
To wrong thine eldest Daughter ? Ah ! shall I
Have the bare Name, and He th' authority
To govern all, and all controul (O Lord)
With the bare winde of his ambitious word ?
Shall I (the World's Law) then, receive the Law
At others' hands ? of others stand in aw ?
If 't be thy pleasure, or thou think it fit, 590
To have it so or so to suffer it,
(Pardon me, Father, that I am so free)
I here surrender thy Lievtenancie :
Bestow't on him, put all into his hand :
Who Heav'n commands, He well may Earth command.
Why (Daughter) knowst thou not (God answers her)
That many times my Mercy doth transfer
Into my Children mine own powr, where-by
They work (not seldom) mine own Wonders high ?
That th' are my sacred Vice-Royes ? and that he, 600
Who (stript of flesh) by Faith is joy'n'd to me,
May remove Mountains, may dry-up the Seas,
May make an Ocean of a Wildernesse ?
Th' hast seen it, Daughter : therefore, but thou pine
In jealousy of this drad arm of mine,
Grudge not at theirs : for they can nothing do,
But what my spirit inables them unto.
O happy Prince ; I wonder not at all,
If at thy feet the stout Anachian fall,
If th' Amorrhite, Hevite, and Canaanite, 610
The Pheresite, Helhite, and Jebusite,
And huge Basanian, by thy daunt-lesse hoast
Were over-thrown : and if as swift (almost)
As my slow Muse thy sacred Conquest sings, Thou Cam'st, Saw'st, Conquer'dst more then thirty kings ;
Subduing Syria, and dividing it
Unto twelve Kindreds in twelve portions fit ;
Sith (O grand Vicar of th' Almighty Lord)
With onely summons of thy mighty Word,
Thou makest Rivers the most deafly-deep 620
To lobsterize (back to their source to creep) ;
Wals give thee way : after thy Trumpet's charge,
Rock-rushing Tempests do retreat, or charge :
Sol's at thy service : and the starry Pole
Is proud to passe under thy Muster-Roule.
As a blinde man, forsaken of his Guide
In some thick Forrest, sad and self-beside,
Takes now a broad, anon a narrow path ;
His groping hand his (late) eyes' office hath :
Here at a stub he stumbles, there the bushes 630
Rake-off his cloak ; here on a Tree he rushes,
Strays in and out, turns, this and that way tries,
And at the last fals in a Pit, and dies :
Even so (alas !) having their Captain lost,
So blindly wanders JACOB's wilfull Hoast,
After his death
Israel having lost
his guide, fals

 No here (poor sot) thou other fence shalt need.
 SANGAR runs at him : and he runs so fierce,
 That on his staffe, him six steps back he bears ;
 Bears down another with him, and another,
 That but with gesture stood directing other :
 As when 'tis dark, when 't rains and blusters rough,
 A thund'ring tempest with a sulph'ry puff
 Breaks down a mighty Gate, and that another, 760
 And that a third, each opposite to other :
 Smoak, dust, & door-fals, with storm's roaring din,
 Dismay the stoutest that command within ;
 The common sort (beside their little wits)
 Scar'd from their beds, dare not abide the streets ;
 But, in their shirts over the wals they run,
 And so their Town, yer it be ta'n, is wun ;
 The sudden storm so inly-deep dismayes-them.
 That fear of Taking to despair betrayes them.
 Amid their Hoast then bravely rushes SANGAR, 770
 His sinnewy arm answers his sacred Anger :
 Who flies or follows, he alike besteads :
 On scattered heap of slaughtered Foes he treads.
 This with his elbow here he over-turns,
 That with his brow ; this, with his foot he spurns ;
 Here, with his staff he makes in shivers fly
 Both cask and scull ; and there he breaks a thigh,

This said, on BARAC she a shield bestows,
 Indented on the brims, which plain fore-shows
 In curious Boss-work (that doth neatly swell)
 The (won and lost) Battails of Israel,
 As an abridgement, where to life appear
 The noblest acts of eight or nine score year.
 Lo, here an army, stooping by the side
 Of a deep River (with their Thirst halfe dry'd)
 Sups, licks, and laps the stream ; of all which rout,
 The Captain chuses but three hundred out ;
 And arming each but with a Trump and Torch, 820
 About a mighty Pagan Hoast doth march,
 Making the same through their drad sudden sound,
 With their own Arms themselves to inter-wound ;
 A hellish rage of mutuall furie swels
 The bloody hearts of barbarous Infidels ;
 So that the friends that in one Couch did sleep,
 Each other's blade in either's breast do steep :
 And all the Camp with head-less dead is sown,
 Cut off by Cozen-swords, kill'd by their own.
 Lo there, another valiant Champion, 830 Iephe.
 Who having late triumphant Laurels won ;
 His heed-less Vow (in-humane) to ful-fill,
 His onely Daughter doth unkindly kill :
 The frantick Mother, all unbrac't (alas !)
 With silver locks unkemb'd about her face ;
 Arming her rage with nails, with teeth and tongue,
 Runs-in, and rushes through the thickest throng :
 And, shee will save, and shee will have, (shee sayes)
 Her Deer, her Daughter ; and then hold shee layes
 Upon the Maid : and tearing-off her Coat, 840
 Away shee runs, thinking shee her had got.
 The Priest dissolves in tears, th' Offring is cheer-full ;
 The Murdred's valiant, and the Murdrer fearfull ;
 The Father leads with slow and feeble pase,
 The Daughter seems to run to death a-pace ;
 As if the Chaplet that her temples ties,
 Were Hymen's Flowrs, not Flowrs for Sacrifice ;
 Her grace and beauties still augment ; (in fine)
 Whoso beholds her sweet, love-darting Eyn,
 Her Cheeks, Lips, Brows, fresh Lillies, Corall, Jet ; 850
 Hee sees (or seems to see) a Sun to set.
 And (to conclude) the Graver, Maul, and Mould,
 Have given such life to th' Iron, Brass, and Gold,
 That here wants nothing but the Mother's screech,
 The Father's sigh, and the sweet Daughter's speech.
 Loe here, another shakes his ushawn tresses,
 Triumphant on a Lyon torn in peeces.
 O match-less Champion ! Pearl of men-at-arms,
 That emptiest not an Arcenall of Arms,
 Nor needest shops of Lemnian Armourers, 860
 To furnish weapons for thy glorious Wars ;
 An Asse's Jaw-bone is the Club where-with Thy mighty arm braines, beats, and battereth
 Th' uncircumcised Camp : all quickly scud ;
 And th' Hoast that flew in dust, now flows in bloud.
 Here th' Iron Gates, whose hugeness wont to shake
 The masse Towrs of Gaza, thou dost take

	On thy broad shoulders : there (in seeming jest) Crushing their Palace-pillars (at a feast) Thou over-whelm'st the House, and with the fall 870 The Philistins blaspheming Princes all. Here, from one's head, which two huge coins do crush, (As whay from Cheese) the battred brains do gush : Here lies another in a deadly swoune ? Nail'd with a broken rafter to the ground : Another, here pasht with a paine of Wall, Hath lost his soule, and bodie's shape withall : Another, here o're-taken as he fled, Lyes (Tortois-like) all hidden but the head : Another, covered with a heap of lome, 880 Seems with his moving to re-move his Toomb : Even as the soft, blade, Mine-inventing Moule, In velvet Robes under the Earth doth roule ; Refusing light, and little ayre receives, And hunting Worms her moving hillocks heaves.
Simile.	Lo, lower here, a beastly Multitude On one poor Woman all their lusts intrude ; Whose Spouse (displeas'd with th' execrable Fact) Into twelve Peeces her dead Body hacket ; And, to twelve Parts of ISRAEL them transfers, 890 As twelve quick tinders of intestin Wars.
The Levite's wife.	And lower yet, behold (with hateful scorn) The ARK of God to DAGON's Temple born : But th' Idol yeelds to GOD, and DAGON fals Before the ARK, which Heathens ' pride appalls. BARAC thus arm'd, th' ASORIANS sets-upon, That bright in Brass, steel, gold, and silver shone : But his young Souldiers were much daunted tho, To see the fearful Engins of the Foe ; Nine hundred chariots, whirling swift and light, 900 Whose glistening Irons dazle even their sight ; Whose barb'd Steeds bear in their heads a Blade Of the right temper of DAMASCUS made (As proud of it as Unicorns are wont Of their rich Weapon that adorns their Front) Amidst their Pettral stands another Pike ; On either side, long grapples (Sickle-like) The like at either Nave : so that (in Wars) 'Tis present death t' approach these broaching Cars.
The Arke taken by the Philistines.	But DEBORA, her Troops encouraging, Bestirs her quick, and steps from wing to wing : Courage (saith she) brave Souldiers, sacred Knights, Strike, & strike home, lay on with all your mights ; Stand, fear them not (O Champions of the Faith) God drives your Foes into the snares of Death. Doubtless, they are your own : their armed Charrets They are but Buggs to daunt dejected spirits. No, no (my Hearts) not Arms, nor Engins glorious, But 'tis the heart that makes a Camp victorious : Or rather, 'tis God's Thunder-throwing hand, 920 Which onely doth all Warr's success command : And, VICTORIE his Daughter whom he now (For his own sake) frankly bestows on you. Even as a sort of Shepherds, having spi'd A Wolfe come stealing down a Mountain's side,
The Battail be- tweene the Israel- ites and Assyrians with their iron Chariots.
Debora com- forteth and in- courageth the Israelites.

Some, with the blades in every Courser's brow, Were (as with Launces) bored through & through ; Some torn in peeces with the whirling wheels ; Some trod to death under the Horses' heels ; As (in some Countries) when in season hot, Under Horse feet (made with a whip to trot) They use to thresh the sheaves of Winter-Corn, 940 The grain spurts-out, the straw is bruis'd and torn. Some (not direct before the Horse, nor under) Were with the Scythes mow'n in the midst a-sunder : As in a Mead the Grass yet in the flow, Fals at the Foot of the wide-straddling Mower ; That with a stooping back, and stretch'd arm, Cuts-cross the swathes to winter-feed his Farm. If there rest any resolute, and loth To lose so soon their Arms, and honours both At first assault, but rather bravely bent 950 To see so fierce and bloody Fight's event ; Both DEBORAH and BARAC thither pl'i'd ; But (as 'tis writ of the milde AMRAMIDE, And NUN's great Son, that Heav'n-deer MARS-like man, Who did transplant the Tribes to CANAAN) Shee (in the zeal of her religious sprite) Lifts-up her hands to pray, and he to fight. At last, the Helm of head-strong ISRAEL Coms to the hand of famous SAMUEL ; One rarely-wise, who weds his Policy, To divine gifts of sacred Prophecie : But, his two greedy Sons, digressing quite From his good steps, dis-taste the ISRAELITE Of th' ancient RULE of th' Heav'nly Potentate : So that all seek a sudden Change of STATE. Assembled then in sacred PARLIAMENT, 970 Up starts a Fellow of a mean Descent (But of great spirit, well-spoken, full of wit, And courage too, aspiring high to sit) And having gain'd attention, thus he sayes : Divine Designs ! O purpose worthy-praise, To now-Reform the STATE, & soundly heal With wholesome Lawes th' hurts of the Common-wool : But (prudent ISRAEL) take now heed or never ; Change not an Ague for a burning Fever ; In shaking-off confus'd Amarckie , 980 To be intic'd t' embrace a Monarchie , Admir'd of Fools, ador'd of Flatterers, Of Softlings, Wantons, Braves, and Loyterers :	God's enemies over-throwne by their owne Engines. The Freedome and Defence of the base Rabble ;
 But, to brave mindes a Yoke intolerable.
 For, who can brook, millions of men to measure
 Breath, Life, and Moving, all at one man's pleasure?
 One, to keep all in awe? One at a beck
 A whole great Kingdome to controule and check?
 Is 't not a goodly sight, to see a Prince, 990
 Void of all Vertue full of insolence,
 To play with Noble States, as with a straw?
 A Fool, to give so many Wise the Law?
 A Beast, to govern Men? An Infant Eld?
 A Hare to lead fierce Lions to the field?
 Who is 't but knowes that such a Court as this,
 Is the open Shop of selling Offices?
 Th' harbour of Riot, stews of Ribaldry,
 Th' haunt of Profusion, th' Hell of Tyrannie :
 That no-where shines the REGAL Diadem, 1000
 But (Comet-like) it boads all vice extrem?
 That not a King among ten thousand Kings,
 But to his Lust his Law in bondage brings?
 But (shameless) triumphs in the shame of Wives?
 But bad, prefers the bad, and good deprives?
 But gildeth those that glorifie his Folly?
 That sooth & smooth, & call his Hell-ness holy?
 But with the Torrent of continual Taxes
 (Pour'd every where) his meanest Subjects vexes?
 As an ill-stated body doth distill 1010
 On 's feeblest parts his cold-raw humors still.
 That Form of RULE is a right Common-weal
 Where all the People have an Enter-deal,
 Where (without aw or Law) the Tyrant's sword
 Is not made drunk with blood, for a Mis-word :
 Where, Each (by turn) doth Bid and doth Obe ;
 Where, still the Commons, (having Sovereign-sway)
 Share equally both Rigour and Reward
 To each-man's merit : giving no regard 1020
 To ill-got Wealth, nor mouldy Monuments
 From great-great-Grand-sires scutcheon'd in Descents :
 Where, Learnd men, un-soule-clog'd (as it were)
 With servile gyves of King's imperious Fear,
 Fly even to Heav'n ; and by their Pens inspire
 Posterity with Vertue's glorious Fire ;
 Where, Honor's honest Combat never ceases,
 Nor Vertue languishes, nor Valour lees
 His sprightfull nerves through th' envy of a Prince,
 That cannot brook another's excellence ;
 Or, pride of those, who (from great Elders sprung) 1030
 Have nothing but Their glory on their tongue ;
 And deeming Others' worth, enough for them,
Vertue and Valour, and all Arts contemn :
 Or, base Despair, in those of meaner Calling,
 Who on the ground still (worm-like) basely crawl-
 ing,
 Dare not attempt (nor scarcely thinke, precise)
 Any great Act or glorious Enterprize ;
 Because Ambition, Custom, and the Law,
 From high Estate hath bounded them with aw.
 Where, hee that never rightly learn'd t' obey 1040
 Commandeth not, with heavie Sword of Sway :

The corruption and licentiousness of most Princes' Courts.

Where, each i' th' Publick having equal part,
 All to save all, will hazzard life and heart :
 Where Liberty (as dear as life and breath)
 Born with us first, consorts us to our death.
 Shall savage beasts like-better Nuts and Mast 1050
 In a free Forrest, then our choyce Repast
 In Iron Cages? and shall we (poor Sots)
 Whom Nature Masters of our selves allots,
 And Lords of All besides ; shall wee go draw
 On our own necks an ease-less Yoke of Aw?
 Rather (O JACOB) chuse wee all to die,
 Then to betray our Native Libertie ;
 Then to become the sporting Tennis-ball
 Of a proud Monarch ; or to yeeld us thrall
 To serve or honour any other King
 Then that drad LAW which did from SINA ring.
 Another then, whom Age made venerable,
 Knowledge admir'd, and Office honourable,
 Stands up, and speaks (majestically-milde) 1060
 On other Piles the COMMON-WEAL to build.
 Doubt-less (said he) with waste of time & Soap,
 Y' have laboured long to wash an ÆTHIOPE :
 Y' have drawn us here a goodly form of STATE
 (And well we have had proof of it of late) :
 Shall we again the Sword of JUSTICE put
 In mad men's hands, soon their own throats to cut?
 What Tiger is more fierce? what Bear more fell?
 What Chaff more light? what Sea more apt to swell
 Then is th' unbridled Vulgar, passion-toss't ; 1070
 In calms elated, in foul-weather lost?
 What boot deep projects, if to th' eyes of all
 They must be publisht in the common Hall?
 Sith known Designs are dangerous to act :
 And, th' un-close Chief did never noble fact.
 DEMOCRACY is as a toss'd Ship,
 Void both of Pole and Pilot in the deep : 1080
 A Senate fram'd of thousand Kinglings slight ;
 Where, voyces pass by number not by weight ;
 Where, wise men do propound, and fools dispose :
 A Fair, where all things they to sale expose :
 A sink of Filth, where ay th' infamousest,
 Most bold and busie, are esteem'd best : 1090
 A Park of savage Beasts, that each-man dreads :
 A Head-lesse Monster with a thousand heads.
 What shall wee then do? shall wee by and by
 In Tyrants' paws deject us servilely?
 Nay, rather, shunning the extremities,
 Let us make choise of men upright and wise ;
 Of such whose Vertue doth the Land adorn,
 Of such whom Fortune hath made Noble-born, 1090
 Of such as Wealth hath rais'd above the pitch
 Of th' abject vulgar ; and to th' hands of such (Such, as for Wisedome, Wealth, and Birth excell)
 Let us commit the Reins of ISRAEL ;
 And ever from the sacred Helm exclude
 The turbulent, base, moody Multitude.
 Take away Choyce and where is Vertue's grace?
 What? shall not Chance unto Desert give place?

 Then to fill all with Bloud-floods of Debate;
 While, to Reform, you would Deform a STATE.

One cannot (with-out danger) stir a stone

 And, a good Leach seeks rather to support,

 Then with strong Med'cines to destroy it quite.

And therefore, Curséd, ever Curséd be 1230
 Our^m Hell-spurr'd PERCIE'S fell Conspiracie;
 And every head, and every hand and heart,
 That did Conceive or but Consent his part:
 POPE-prompted Atheists, faining Superstition
 To cover Cruelty, and cloak Ambition:
 Incarnate Devils, Enemies of Man,
 Dam-Murdering Vipers, Monsters in-humane,
 Dis-natur'd NEROS, impious EROSTRATES,
 That with one Puff would blow-up all Estates;
 Prince's and Peer's, and People's Government 1240
 (For, of all Threes consists our PARLIAMENT)
 Religion, Order, Honesty, and all,
 And more then all that Fear can fear to fall.

And therefore, Blessed, ever Blessed be
 Our glorious GOD's immortall Majestie;
 ENGLAND'S Great Watch-man, see that Israel keeps,
 Who never slumbers, and who never sleeps:
 Our gracious Father, whose still-firm affection
 Defend us still with wings of his Protection:
 Our loving Saviour, that thus Saves us still 1250
 (Vs so unworthy, us so prone to ill):
 Our sacred Comforter (the Spirit of Light)
 Who steers us still in the True FAITH aright:
 The TRINITY, th' Eternall THREE in ONE,
 Who by his Pow'r and providence alone,
 Hath from the Furnace of their Fiery Zeal
 Preserv'd our PRINCE, our PEERS, our PUBLICK-WEAL,
 Therefore, O PRINCE (our nostrils' dearest breath)
 Thou true Defender of true Christian FAITH,
 O! let the Zeal of GOD's House eat thee up: 1260
 Fill BABYLON her measure in her Cup:

Maim the King-maiming Kinglings of Bezeck:
 Pittie not Agag, spare not Amalech:
 Hunt, hunt those Foxes, that would under-mine
 Root, Body, Branches of the Sacred Vine:
 O! spare them not. To spare Them, is to spoyl
 Thy Selfe, thy Seed, thy Subjects, and thy Soyl.

Therefore O PEERS, Princely-loyall Paladines,
 True-noble Nobles, lay-by-by-Designes:
 And in God's quarrell and your Country's, bring 1270
 Counsell and Courage to assist your KING
 To counter-mine against the Mines of ROME;
 To conquer Hydra, and to over-come
 And clean cut-off his Horns, and Heads, and all
 Whose hearts doe Vow, or knees doe Bow to Baal:
 Be Zealous for the LORD, and Faith-full now,
 And honour Him, and he will honour you.

Fathers, and Brethren, Ministers of CHRIST,
 Cease civill Warrs: war all on Anti-Christ;
 Whose subtle Agents, while you strive for shels, 1280
 Poyson the kernal with Erroneous Spels:
 Whose Envious Seed-men, while you Silent Sleep,
 Sow Tares of Treason, which take root too deep.
 Watch, watch your Fold: feed, feed your Lambs at home:
 Muzzle these Sheep-clad bloody Wolves of ROME.

Therefore, O PEOPLE, let us Praise and Pray
 Th' Almighty-most (whose Mercy lasts for aye)
 To give us grace, to ever-keep in minde
 This MIRACLE of his Protection kinde:
 To true-Repent us of our hainous Sin 1290
 (Pride, Lust, and Loosenesse) we have wallowed in:
 To stand still constant in the pure Profession
 Of true RELIGION (with a due discretion
 To try the Spirits, and by peculiar choyce
 To know our Shepheards from th' Hyæna's voyce):
 And, ever loyall to our PRINCE, & expose
 Goods, Lands, and Lives, against his hate-full Foes:
 Among whom (Lord) if (yet) of Thine be found,
 Convert them quickly; and the rest Confound.

And (to Conclude) PRINCE, PEERS, and PEOPLE too, 1300
 Praise all at once, and selvy each of you,
 His Holy Hand, that (like as long a-goe,
 His Sidrach, Misach, and Abednego)
 From the hot Furnace of POPE Powder'd Zeal
 Hath sav'd our PRINCE, our PEERS, our PUBLICK-weal.

Dedicated

To Prince HENRY his Highnesse.

Acceptam refero.

TO PRINCE HENRY
HIS HIGHNES.

A SONNET.

TAVING new-mustred th' HOAST of all this ALL
Your Royall Father in our Fore-ward stands ;
Where (Adam-like) Himselfe alone Commands
A WORLD of Creatures, ready at his Call.
Our Middle-ward doth not unfitly fall
To famous Chiefs whose grave-brave heads and hands
In Counsaill'd Courage so conduct our Bands,
As (at a brunt) affront the force of Baal.
Our Reare-ward (Sir) shall be your Princely Charge,
Though last, not least (sith it most Honour brings)
Where Honour's Field before you lies more large :
For ; Your Command is of a Camp of KINGS,
Some good, some bad : Your Glory shall be, here
To Chuse and Use the good, the bad Cashier.

A STANZA.

TEwell of NATURE, Joy of ALBION,
To whose perfection Heav'n and Earth conspire :
That, in Times fulness, Thou maist bless this Throne
(Succeeding in the Vertues of thy Sire)
As happy thou hast begun, goe-on :
That, as thy Youth, we may thine Age admire :
Acting our Hopes (which shall revive our hearts)
Pattern and Patron both of Arms and Arts.

Josuah Sylvester.

The Tropheis.

FIRST BOOKE OF
THE II. WEEKE OF
BARTAS.

THE ARGUMENT.

Saul's fall from Favour, into God's Disgrace.
David design'd Successor in his Place :
Braving Goliath, and the Phillistins
Hes bravely foylet : Hee flies his furious Prince.
Seem-Samuel rais'd : Saul routed ; Selvy-slain :
Kind David's TROPHEIS, and triumphant Reign,
His heav'nly Harp-skill (in King JAMES renew'd) :
His humane frailty, heavily pursu'd.
Bersabe bathing : Nathan bold-reproving :
David repenting (Our REPENTANCE moving). 10

Saul King of Israel, fortunate at the first, is afterward reject-ed, and David elected in his stead.

H EROfK force, and Prince-fit forme withall,
Honour the Scepter of courageous Saul ;
Successes confirms it : for the pow'r Divine
Tames by his hand th' outrageous Philistine,
Edom, and Moab, and the Ammonite,
And th' ever-wicked, curst Amalehite :
O too-too-happy ! if his arrogance
Had not transgress Heav'n's sacred Ordinance :
But therefore, God in 's secret Counsell (just) 20
Him even already from his Throne hath thrust,
Degraded of his gifts ; and in his stead
(Though privily annoynted Jesse's Seed ;
Th' honour of Jacob, yea of th' Universe,
Heav'n's darling DAVID, Subject of my Verse.
Lord, sith I cannot (nor I may not once)
Aspire to DAVID's Diadems and Thrones ;
Nor lead behinde my bright Triumphal-Car
So many Nations Conquered in War :

Invocation.

Nor (DAVID-like) my trembling Aspes adorn 30
With bloody TROPHEIS of my Foes forlorn :
Vouchsafe mee yet his Verse : and (Lord) I crave
Let me his Harp-strings, not his Bow-strings have :
His Lute, and not his Lance, to worthy-sing
Thy glory, and the honour of thy King.
For, none but DAVID can sing DAVID's worth :
Angels in Heav'n thy glory sound ; in Earth,
DAVID alone ; whom (wth Heav'n's love surpris'd)
To praise thee there, thou now hast Angelis'd.
Give me the Laurell, not of War, but Peace ; 40
Or rather give mee (if thy grace so please)
The Civik Garland of green Oaken boughs,
Thrice-three times wreath'd about my glorious brows.
To ever-witness to our after-friends
How I have rescu'd my con-Citizens,
Whom profane Fame's-Thirst, day and night did move
To be beslav'd to th' yoke of wanton Lovs :
For (not to mee, but to thee, Lord, be praise)
Now by th' example of my sacred Layes,
To Sacred Lovs our noblest spirits are bent 50
And thy rich Name's their onely argument.

HEE, WHOM in private wals, with privie signe,
The great King-maker did for King assigne,
Begins to show himselfe. A fire so great
Could not live flameless long : nor would God let
So noble a spirit's nimble edge to rust
In Shepherds' idle and ignoble dust.

My Son, how certain wee that saying prove,
That doubtfull Fear still waits on tender Love ;

Jesse (or Ishe)
sendeth David to see his brethren
in the Campe.

	DAVID (saith Jesse) I am full of fears 60 For thy dear Brethren : Each assault, salt tears Draws from mine eyes ; me thinks each point doth stab Mine Eliab, Samma, and Aminadab. Therefore go visit them, and with this Food Beare them my blessing ; say I wish them good ; Beseeching God to shield and them sustain, And send them (soon) victorious home again. Gladly goes DAVID, and anon doth spie, Two steep high Hills where the two Armies lie : A Vale divides them ; where in raging mood 70 (Colossus-like) an arméd Gyant stood : His long black locks hung shaggéd (sloven-like) A-down his sides : his bush-beard floated thick ; His hand and arms, and bosome bristled were (Most Hedge-hog-like) with wyer in stead of hair. His foule blasphemous mouth, a Cave's mouth is ; His eyes two brands, his belly an Abyse : His legs two Pillars : and to see him goe, Hee seem'd some steeple reeling to and fro. A Cypress-Tree, of fifteen Summers old, 80 Pyramid-wise waves on his Helm of Gold. Whose glistering brightnes doth (with rayes direct) Against the Sun, the Sun it selfe reflect ; Much like a Comet blazing bloudy-bright Over some City, with new threatfull light ; Presaging down-fall or some dismall fate, Too-neer approaching to some ancient State. His Lance a Loom-beam, or a Mast (as big) Which yet he shaketh as an Osier twig ; Whose harmfull point is headed stiffy-straight 90 With burnisht Brasse above an Anvil's weight : Upon whose top (in stead of Bannaret) A hissing Serpent seems his foes to threat : His brazen Cuirasse, not a Squire can carrie ; For 'tis the burthen of a Dromedarie : His Shield (where Cain his brother Abel slaes, Where Cain his son, Heav'n-climbing Towrs doth raise ; Where th' Ark of God, to th' Heathen captivate, To Dagon's House is led with scorne and hate) Is like a Curtain made of double planks 100 To save from shot some hard-besiegéd Ranke. His threatfull voice is like the stormfull Thunder When hot-cold Fumes teare sulph'ry clouds asunder. O Fugitives ! this is the forti'th day (Thus barks the Dog) that I have stalked aye About your fearfull Hoast : that I alone Against your best and choycest Champion, In single Combate might our Cause conclude, To shun the slaughter of the multitude ; Come then, who dares ; and to be slain by mee, 110 It shall thine honour and high Fortune be. Why am I not lesse strong ? my common strength Might finde some Brave to cope with at the length. But, fie for shame, when shall wee cease this gear : I to defie, and you to flye for feare ? If your hearts serve not to defend your Lot, Why are you arm'd ? why rather yeeld you not ?	Why rather doe you (sith you dare not fight) Not prove my mildeness then provoke my might ? What needed Coats of brasse and Caps of steel 120 For such as (Hare-like) trust but to their heel ? But, sith I see not one of you (alas !) Alone dares meet, nor looke mee in the face, Come ten, come twenty, nay come all of you, And in your ayde let your great God come too : Let him rake Hell, and shake the Earth in sunder, Let him be arm'd with Lightning & with thunder : Come, let him come and buckle with mee here : Your goodly God, lesse then your selves, I feare. Thus having spew'd, the dreadfull Cyclop stirr'd 130 His monstrous Limbes ; beneath his feet he rear'd A cloud of dust : and, wheresoe're hee wend, Flight, Feare, and Death, his ghastly steps attend. Even as a paire of busie chattering Pies, 140 Seeing some hardie Tercell from the skies To stoop with rav'nous seres, feel a chill fear, From bush to bush, wag-tayling here and there ; So that no noyse, nor stone, nor stick can make The tim'rous Birds their Covert to forsake ; So th' Hebrew Troups this braving Monster shun ; And from his sight, some here, some there, do run. In vain the King commands, intreats and threats ; And hardly three or foure together gets. What shame (saith he) that our Victorious Hoast Should all be daunted with one Pagan's boast ? Brave Jonathan, how is thy courage quail'd ? Which yerst at Bosus, all alone assail'd Th' whole Heathen Hoast. O worthy Abner too, What chance hath cut thy Nerves of Valour now ? And thou thy self (O Saul) whose Conquering hand 150 Had yerst with Tropheis filléd all the Land, As far as Tigris from the Japhean Sea : Where is thy heart ? how is it fall'n away ? Saul is not Saul : O ! then, what Israelite Shall venge God's honour and Our shame acquite ? Who, spurr'd with anger, but more stir'd with seal, Shall foyle this Pagan, and free Israel ? O ! who shall bring me this Wolf's howling head, That Heav'n and Earth hath so un-ballowéd ? What e're hee be that (lavish of his soule) 160 Shall with his bloud wash-out this blot so foule, I will innoble him, and all his House ; He shall enjoy my Daughter for his Spouse : And ever shall a Deed so memorabile Be (with the Saints) sacred and honourable. Yet for the Duel no man dares appear : All wish the prize ; but none will win 't so dear : Big-looking Minlons, brave in vaunts and vows, Lions in Court, now in the Camp be Cows : But, even the blast that cools their courage so, 170 That makes my DAVID's valiant rage to glow. My Lord (saith He) behold, this hand shall bring Th' Heav'n-scouring head unto my Lord the King. Alas, my Lad, sweet Shepheard (answers Saul) Thy heart is great ; although thy Limbs be small :
Description of Goliath .
Simile.			Simile.
			Saul stirreth up his Souldiers, and proposeth ample Reward to him that shall under- take the Phil- istine.
His braving De- fiance to the Hoast of Israel .			David 's offer.

High fie thy thoughts ; but we have need of more,
More stronger Toyls to take so wilde a Boare :
To tame Goliak, needs some Demi-god,
Some Nimrod, rather then a Shepheard-Lad
Of slender growth, upon whose tender Chin 180
The budding doun doth scarcely yet begin.
Keep therefore thine own Rank, & draw not thus
Death on thy selfe, dis-honour upon us,
With shame and sorrow on all Israel,
Through end-lesse Thraldome to a Foe so fell.

His assurance.

The faintest Harts, God turns to Lions fierce,
To Eagles Doves, Vanquisht to Vanquishers :
God, by a Woman's feeble hand subdued
Jabins Lievtenant, and a Judge of Yveses.
God is my strength : therefore (O King forbear, 190
For Israel, for thee, or mee, to fear :)
No self-presumption makes me rashly brave ;
Assured pledge of his proud head I have.

Seest thou these arms, my Lord? These very arms

(Steeld wth the strength of the great God of Arms)
Have bath'd Mount Bethlem with a Lion's blood,
These very arms, beside a shady wood,
Have slain a Bear, which (greedy after prey)
Had torn and born my fattest sheep away.
My God is still the same : this savage Beast, 200
Which in his Fold would make a Slaughter-feast,
All-ready feels his furie and my force ;
My foot al-ready tramples on his Corps :
With his own sword his curs'd length I lop,
His head already on the ground doth hop.

The Prince beholds him, as amaz'd and mute
To see a minde so young, so resolute :
Then son (saith hee) sith so confirm'd thou art,
Goe, and God's blessing on thy valiant heart ;
God guide thy hand, and speed thy weapon so, 210
That thou return triumphant of thy Foe.
Hold, take my Corslet, and my Helm, and Lance,
And to the Heav'ns thy happy Prowes advance.

The faithfull Champion, being furnisht thus,
Is like the Knight, which 'twixt Eridannus
And th' Heav'nly Star-Ship, marching bravely-bright (Having his Club, his Casque, and Belt bedight
With flaming studs of many a twinkling Ray)
Turns Winter's night into a Summer's day.
But, yer that he had halfe a furlong gon, 220
The massie Lance and Armour he had on
Did load him so, he cold not freely move
His legs and arms, as might him best behoove.
Even so an Iris Hobby, light and quick
(Which on the spur over the bogs they prick
In highest speed) if on his back hee feel
Too-sad a Saddle, plated all with steel,
Too-hard a Bit with-in his mouth ; behinde,
Crooper and Trappings him too-close to binde ;
Hee seems as lame, hee flings and will not goe ; 230
Or, if hee stir, it is but stiff and slow.

Simlle.

DAVID therefore layes-by his heavy load ;
And, on the grace of the great glorious GOD

(Who by the weakest can the strongest stoop)
Hee firmly founding his victorious hope,
No Arrows seeks, nor other Arcenall ;
But, from the Brooke that runs amid the Vale,
Hee takes five Pebbles and his Sling, and so,
Couragiously encounters with his Foe.

What Combat's this? On the one side, I see 240
A moving Rock, whose looks doe terrifie
Even his own Hoast ; whose march doth seem to make

The Mountain tops of Succoth even to shake :
On th' other side, a slender tender Boy
Where grace and beauty for the prize do play :
Shave but the doun that on his Chin doth peer,
And one would take him for Achises Pheer :
Or, change but weapons with that wanton Elf,
And one would thinke that it were Cupid's selfe.
Gold on his head, scarlet on either Cheek, 250
Grace in each part, and in each gest, alike ;
In all so lovely, both to Foe and Friend,
That very Envie cannot but commend
His match-lesse beauties : and though ardent seale
Flush in his face against the Infidell,
Although his fury fume, though up and down
Hee nimbly traverse, though hee fiercely frown,
Though in his breast boyling with manly heat,
His swelling heart do strongly pant and beat ;
His Storm is calm, and from his modest eyes 260
Even gracious seems the grimmet flash that flies.

Am I a Dog, thou Dwarf, thou Dandiprat,
To be with stones repell'd and palted at?
Or art thou weary of thy life so soone ?
O foolish boy ! fantastical Baboone !
That never saw'st but sheep in all thy life ;
Poore Sot, 'tis here another kinde of strife :
Wee wrestle not (after your Shepheard's guise)
For painted sheep-hooks, or such pettie Prize,
Or for a Cage, a Lamb, or bread and cheese : 270
The Vanquisht Head must be the Victor's Fees.
Where is thy sweaty dust? thy sun-burnt scars
(The glorious marks of Souldiers train'd in Wars)
That make thee dare so much? O Lady-Cow,
Thou shalt no more be-star thy wanton brow
With thine eyes rayes : Thy Mistress shall no more
Curl the quaint Tresses of thy Golden ore :
I'll trample on that Gold ; and Crowes and Pyes
Shall peck the pride of those sweet-smiling eyes :
Yet, no (my girl-boy) no, I will not file 280
My sear'd hands with blood so faintly-vile :
Goe seek thy match, thou shalt not die by mee,
Thine honour shall not my dishonour be.
No (silly Lad) no, wert thou of the Gods
I would not fight at so un-knightly oddes.

Com barking Curre (the Hebrew taunts him thus)
That hast blasphem'd the God of gods, and us ;
The oddes is mine (villain, I scorn thy Boasts)
I have for Ayde th' Almighty Lord of Hoasts.

Th' Ethnick's a-fire, and from his goggle eyes 290
All drunk with rage and blood, the Lightning flies :

- Out of his bever like a Boare he fomes :
 A hellish fury in his bosome roames :
 As mad, he marcheth with a dreadfull pase,
 Death and destruction muster in his face,
 He would a-fresh blaspheme the Lord of lords
 With new dispights ; but in the steed of words
 He can but gnash his teeth. Then, as an Oxe
 Straid 'twixt the hollow of steep Hills and Rocks, Through craggie Coombs, through dark & ragged turnings, 300
- Lowes hideously his solitary Mournings :
 The Tyrant so from his close helmet blunders
 With horrid noise, & this harsh voyce he thunders :
 Thy God reigns in his Ark, and I on Earth :
 I Challenge Him, Him (if he dare come forth)
 Not Thee, base Pigmeæ. Villain (says the Yew)
 That blasphemy thou instantly shalt rue.
- Simile. If e'r you saw (at Sea) in Summer weather,
 A Galley and a Caraque cope together
 (How th' one steers quick, & th' other veers as slow 310
 Lar-boord and star-boord from the poop to prow :
 This, on the winde ; that, on her owres relies :
 This daunteth most, and that most damniifies)
 You may conceive this Fight : th' huge Polyphemæ
 Stands, stify shaking his steel-pointed beam :
David doth traverse (round about him) light,
 Forward and back, to th' left hand, and the right,
 Steps in and out ; now stoops, anon he stretches ;
 Then he recoyles, on either hand hee reaches ;
 And stoutly-active, watching the adverse blowes, 320
 In every posture doth himselfe dispose.
- Simile. As, when (at Cock-pit) two old Cocks do fight, (Bristling their Plumes, & (red with rage) do smite
 With spurs and beak, bounding at every blow,
 With fresh assaults freshing their fury so,
 That, desperate in ther un-yeelding wrath,
 Nothing can end their deadly fewd but death)
 The Lords about, that on both sides do bet
 Look partially when th' one the Field shall get,
 And, trampling on his gaudy pluméd pride, 330
 His prostrate Foe with bloody spurs bestride,
 With clanging Trumpet, and with clapping wing,
 Triumphantly his Victory to sing :
 So th' Hebrew Hoast, and so the Heathen stranger
 (Not free from fear, but from the present danger)
 Behold with passion these two Knights, on whom
 They both have wagerd both their Fortune's sum :
 And either side, with voyce and gesture too,
 Heartens and cheers their Champion well to doe ;
 So earnest all, that almost every one 340
 Seems even an Actor, not a looker-on.
 All feel the skirmish 'twixt their Hope and Fear :
 All cast their eyes on this sad Theater :
 All on these two depend, as very Founders
 Of their good Fortune, or their Fate's Confounders.
 O Lord, said DAVID (as he whirl'd his Sling)
 Be bow and Bow-man of this shaft I sling.
 With sudden flerk the fatall hemp lets goe
 The humming Flint, which with a deadly blow
- Pierc't instantly the Pagan's ghastly Front, 350
 As deep as Pistol-shot in boord is wont.
 The villain's sped (cryes all the Hebrew band)
 The Dog, the Atheist feels God's heavie hand.
 Th' Isaacian Knight, seeing the blow, stands still. Goliath over-
 Fro th' Tyrant's wounds his ruddy soule doth trill ; thrown.
 As from a crack in any pipe of Lead
 (That conveyes Water from some Fountain's head)
 Hissing in th' Ayre, the captive Stream doth spin
 In silver threds her crystall humour thin.
- 360 The Gyant wiping with his hand his wound,
 Cries tush, 'tis nothing : but eftsoons the ground
 Sunk under him, his face grew pale and wan,
 And all his limbs to faint and fail began :
 Thrice heaves hee up his head ; it hangs as fast,
 And all a-long lies Isaac's dread at last,
 Covering a rood of Land ; and in his Fall,
 Resembles right a lofty Tower or Wall, 370
 Which to lay levell with the humble soyl
 A hundred Miners day and night do toyl ;
 Till at the length rushing with thundrous roar,
 It ope a breach to th' hardy Conquerour.
- Then, two loud cries, a glad and sad, were heard :
 Wherewith reviv'd, the vaunting Tyrant stird
 Resummoning under his weak Controule
 The fainting Remnants of his flying Soule ;
 And (to be once more buckling yer hee dies,
 With blow for blow) hee strives in vain to rise.
 Such as in life, such in his death he seems ;
 For even in death he curses and blasphemes :
 And as a Curre, that cannot hurt the flinger, 380
 Flies at the stone and biteth that for anger ;
Goliath bites the ground, and his own hands
 As Traytors, false to his fell heart's commands.
 Then the Hebrew Champion 'heads the Infidell
 With his own sword, and sends his soule to Hell.
- Pagans* disperse ; and the Philistian swarms
 Have Armes for burthen, & have flight for Armes ;
 Danger behinde, and shame before their face ;
 Rowting themselves, although none give them chase. 390
- Armi-potent, Omnipotent, my God,
 O let thy Praise fill all the earth abroad ;
 Let Israel (through Thee, victorious now)
 Incessant songs unto thy glory vow :
 And let me Lord (said DAVID) ever chuse
 Thee sole, for Subject of my sacred Muse.
 O wondrous spectacle ! unheard-of Sight !
 The Monster's beaten down before the Fight :
 A Dwarfie, a Shepheard, conquers (even unarm'd)
 A Gyant fell, a famous Captain arm'd. 400
 From a frail Sling this Batt'ry never came,
 But 'twas the Breach of a Tower-raising Ram :
 This was no cast of an uncertain Slinger,
 'Twas Crosse-bow-shot, rather it was the finger
 Of the Al-mighty (not this hand of mine)
 That wrought this work so wondrous in our eyne :
 This hath Hee done and by a woman weak
 Can likewise stone the stout Abimelech :

Therefore, for ever, singing sacred Layes,
I will record his glorious Pow'r and Praise.
Then Yacob's Prince him joyfully imbraces, 410
Prefers to honours, and with favours graces,
Employs him farre and nigh; and farre and neer,
From all sad cares he doth his Sovereign cleer.
In Camp he Curbs the Pagan's arrogance;
In Court he cures the Melancholy Transe
That toys his soule; and, with his tunefull Lyre,
Expels th' ill Spirit which doth the body tyre.
For, with her sheath, the soul commerce frequents,
And acts her office by his instruments;
After his pipe she dances; and (again) 420
The body shares her pleasure and her pain;
And by exchange reciprocally borrowes
Som measure of her solace & her sorrows.
Th' Eare (door of knowledge) with sweet warbles
pleas'd,
Sends them eftsoones unto the soule diseas'd
With dark black rage; our spirits pacifies,
And calmly cools our inward flames that fries.
So, O Tyrteus, changing Harmonie,
Thy Rowt thou chengest into Victory.
So, O thrice-famous, Princely Pelleas, 430
Holding thy heart's reanes in his Tune-full hand,
Thy Timothie with his melodious skill
Arms & dis-arms thy World's-drad arme (at will),
And with his Phrygian Musick, makes the same
As Lion fierce; with Dorick, milde as Lambe.
So, while in Argos the chaste Violon
For's absent Sovereign doth grave-sweetly grone,
Queen Clytemnestra doth resist th' alarmes
Of lewd Egysthus, and his lustfull Charmes.
So, at the sound of the sweet-warbling brasse, 440
The Prophet raptng his soule's soule a space
Refines himselfe, and in his phantasie
Graves deep the seal of sacred Prophecie.
For, if our Soule be Number (some so thought)
It must with Number be refreshed oft;
Or, made by Number (so I yeeld to sing)
Wee must the same with some sweet Numbers bring
To some good Tune: even as a voice (somtime)
That in its Part sings out of Tune and Time,
Is by another Voice (whose measur'd strain 450
Custome and Art confirms) brought in again.
It may be too, that DAVID's sacred Ditty
Quickned with Holy-Writ, and couched witty,
Exorcist-like, chac't Nature's cruell Foe,
Who the King's soule did tosse and torture so,
How e'r it were, Hee is (in every thing)
A profitable servant to the King:
Who envious yet of his high Feats and Fame,
His Faith, and Fortitude, distrusts to same;
And, the divine Torch of his Vertues bright 460
Brings him but sooner to his latest Night:
Save that the Lord still shields him from on he,
And turns to triumph all his Tragedy.
O bitter sweet! I burst (thus raves the King)
To hear them all, in Camp and Court to sing,

Effects of Musick.

Examples of the same.

Simile.

Saul's envie to David.

SAUL hee hath slain a thousand, DAVID ten,
Ten thousand DAVID. O faint scorn of men!
Loe how, with Lustre of his glorious parts,
Hee steals-away the giddy people's hearts;
Makes lying Prophets sooth him at a beck, 470
Thou art but King in name, Hee in effect;
Yet thou indur'st it; haste thee, haste thee (Sot)
Choak in the Cradle his aspiring Plot;
Prevent his hopes; and, wisely-valiant,
Off with his head that would thy foot supplant.
Nay, but beware; his death (below'd so well)
Will draw thee hatred of all Israel.
Sith then so high his heady valour flies,
Sith common glory can not him suffice,
Sith Danger upon Danger he pursues, 480
And Victorie on Victorie renews;
Let's put him to't: Let's make him Generall,
Feed him with winde, and hazard him in all:
So shall his owne Ambitious Courage bring
For Crown a Coffin to our Junior-King:
Yea, had hee Sangar's strength, and Sampson's too,
Hee should not scape the taske I'll put him to.
But yet, our DAVID more then all achieves,
And more and more his grace and glory thrives:
The more hee does, the more hee dares adventure, 490
His rest-lesse Valour seeks still new Adventure.
For, feeling him arm'd with th' Almighty's Spirit,
Hee reckes no danger (at the least to feare it).
Then, what does Saul? When as hee saw no speed
By sword of Foes so great a Foe to rid,
Hee tries his own: & one-while throws his dart,
At un-awares to thrill him to the heart;
Or treacherously hee layes some subtile train,
At boord, or bed, to have him (harm-lesse) slain;
On nothing else dreams the disloyall wretch, 500
But David's death; how David to dispatch.
Which had been done, but for his Son the Prince (Who dearly tenders David's Innocence,
And neerly marks and harks the King's Designes,
And warns the Jessean by suspect-lesse signes)
But for the kinde Courageous Jonathan,
Who (but attended onely with his man)
Neer Senaan Rocks discomfited, alone,
The Philistines' victorious Garison,
About his ears a Showr of Shafts doth fall; 510
His Shield's too-narrow to receive them all:
His sword is dull'd with slaughter of his Foes,
Wherefore the dead hee at the living throws:
Head-lined helmes, heaw'n from their trunks hee takes,
And those his vollies of swift shot he makes.
The Heathen Hoast dares him no more affront,
Late number-lesse but easie now to count.
David therefore, flying his Prince's Furie,
From end to end flies all the Land of Jurie:
But now to Nob; t' Adullam then, anon 520
To Desert Zif, to Keilah, Maaon,
Having for roof heav'n's arches' starry-feeld;
And, for repast, what waving woods doe yeeld.

Jonathan's love to David.

The Tyrant (so) frustrate of his intent,
 Wreaks his fell rage upon the innocent ;
 If any winke, as willing t' have not seen-him
 Or if (unweeting what 's the odds between-him
 And th' angry King) if any had but hid-him ;
 Hee dyes for it (if any had but spid-him) :
 Yea the High-Priest, that in God's presence stands, 530
 Escapeth not his paricidiall hands ;
 Nor doth hee spare in his unbounded rage.
 Cattell, nor Curre, nor State, nor Sex, nor Age.

Contrariwise, David doth good for ill,
 Hee hates the haters of his Sovereign still.
 And though hee oft incounter Saul lesse strong
 Then his own side ; forgetting all his wrong,
 He shews him, aye, loyall in deed and word
 Unto his Liege, th' Annoynted of the Lord ;
 Respects and honours him, and mindes no more 540
 The King's unkindnesse that had past before.

One day as Saul (to ease him) went aside
 Into a Cave, where David went to hide,
David (un-seen) seeing his Foe so neer
 And all alone, was strook with sudden fear,
 As much amaz'd and musing there-upon ;
 When, whisp'ring, thus his Consorts egge him on :

Who sought thy life is fall'n into thy lap ;
 Do'st thou not see the Tyrant in thy Trap ?
 Now therefore pull this Thorn out of thy foot : 550
 Now is the Time if ever thou wilt doe 't ;
 Now by his death establish thine estate ;
 Now hugge thy Fortune yer it be too-late ;
 For, hee (my Lord) that will not, when hee may,
 Perhaps hee shall not, when hee would (they say).
 Why tarriest thou ? what dost thou trifle thus ?
 Wilt thou, for Saul, betray thy selfe and us ?

Won with their words, to kill him he resolves :
 But, by the way thus with himselfe revolves : 560
 Hee is a Tyrant. True : But now long since,
 And still, hee bears the mark of lawfull Prince :
 And th' Ever-King (to whom all Kings do bow)
 On no pretext, did ever yet allow
 That any Subject should his hand distain
 In sacred bloud of his own Sovereain.

He hunts me cause-less. True : but yet, God's word
 Bids me defend, but not offend my Lord.
 I am annoynted King ; but (at God's pleasure)
 Not publickly : therefore I wait thy leasure.
 For, thou (O Lord) regardest Thine, and then 570
 Reward'st, in fine, Tyrants and wicked men.

Thus having said, hee stalks with noise-less foot
 Behinde the King, and softly off doth cut
 A skirt or lap of his then-upper clothing ;
 Then quick avoydes : and, Saul, suspecting nothing,

Comes forth anon : and David afterward
 From a high Rock (to be the better heard)
 Cries to the King (upon his humble knee)
 Come neer (my Liege) come neer, & fear not mee,
 Fear not thy servant David. Well I know, 580
 Thy Flatterers, that mis-inform thee so,

With thousand slanders daily thee incense
 Against thy Servant's spot-less innocence :
 Those smooth-sle Aspics, with their poysony sting

Murder mine honor, mee in hatred bring
 With thee and with thy Court (against all reason)
 As if Convicted of the Highest Treason :
 But my notorious Loyalty (I hope)
 The venom of their Vip'rous tongues shall stop ;
 And, with the splendor of mine actions bright, 590
 Disperse the Mists of Malice and Despight.

Behold, my Lord (Truth needeth no excuse)
 What better witness can my soule produce
 Of faithfull Love, and Loyall Vassalage,
 To thee, my Liege, then this most certaine gage ?
 When I cut-off this lappet from thy Coat,
 Could I not then as well have cut thy throat ?
 But rather (Soverain) thorow all my veins
 Shall burning Gangrens (spreading deadly pains)

Benum my hand, then it shall lift a sword 600
 Against my Liege, th' annoynted of the Lord ;
 Or violate, with any insolence,
 God's sacred Image in my Sovereain Prince.
 And yet (O King) thy wrath pursues me still ;
 Like silly Kid, I hop from hill to hill ;
 Like hated Wolves, I and my Souldiers starve :
 But, judge thy selfe, if I thy wrath deserve.

No (my Son David) I have done thee wrong :
 Good God requite thy good : there doth belong
 A great Reward unto so gracious deed. 610

Ah, well I see it is above decreed
 That thou shalt sit upon my Seat supreme,
 And on thy head shalt wear my Diadem :
 Then, O thou sacred and most noble Head
 Remember Mee and Mine (when I am dead) :
 Be gracious to my Bloud, and raze not fell
 My Name and Issue out of Israels.

Thus said the King ; & tears out-went his words :
 A pale despair his heavie heart still-girds ;
 His feeble spirit preasing his Mis-fortune, 620
 Doth every-kinde of Oracles importune ;
 Suspicious, seeks how Clotko's Clew doth swell ;
 And, cast off Heav'n, will needs consult with Hell.

In Endor dwelt a Beldam in those dayes, Deep-skild in Charms (for, this weak sex always Hath in all Times been taxt for Magick Tricks,
 As pronest Agents for the Prince of Styx :
 Whether, because their soft, moist, supple brain,
 Doth easie print of every seal retain :

Or, whether wanting Force and Fame's desert, 630
 Those Wizzards ween to win it by Black-Art).
 This Stygian scum, the Furies' fury fell,
 This Shop of Poysons, hideous Type of Hell,
 This sad Erinny's, Milcom's Favourite,
Chamosk his Joy, and Belzebub's Delight,
 Delights alonely for her exercise
 In secret Murders, sudden Tragedies ;
 Her drink, the bloud of Babes ; her dainty Feast
 Men's Marrow, Brains, Guts, Livers (late deceast).

 ples, Authors

The woman with of Endor.

At Weddings aye (for Lamps) shee lights debates ; 640
 And quiet Love much more then Death shee hates :
 Or if shee reak of Love, 'tis but to trap
 Some severe Cato in incestuous Lap.
 Sometimes (they say) shee dims the Heav'nly Lamps,
 She haunts the graves, she talks wth ghost, she stamps
 And cald-up Spirits, and with a wink controules
 Th' infernall Tyrant, and the tortur'd Soules.

Art's admiration, Israel's Ornament,
 That (as a Queen) Command'st each Element,
 And from the Tomb deceas'd Trunks canst raise, 650
 (Th' unfaithfull King thus flatters her with praise)
 On steepest Mountains stop the swiftest Currents,
 From driest Rocks draw rapid-rolling Torrents,
 And fitly hasten Amphitrite's Flood,

Or stay her Ebbe (as to thy selfe seems good) :
 Turn day to night : hold windes within thy hand,
 Make the Sphears move, and the Sun still to stand :
 Enforce the Moon so with thy Charms som-times,
 That for a stound in a deep Swoun shee seems :
 O thou all-knowing Spirit ! daign with thy spell 660
 To raise-up here renowned Samuel,

To satisfie my doubtfull soule, in sum,
 The issue of my Fortune's yet to-come.
 Importun'd twice or thrice, shee, that before
 Resembled one of those grim Ghosts (of yore)
 Which she was wont wth her un-wholsom breath
 To re-bring-back from the black gates of death,
 Growes now more ghastly, and more Ghost-like grim,
 Right like to Satan in his Rage-full Trim.

The place about darker then Night shee darkes, 670
 She yels, she roars, she houles, she brayes, she barks,

And, in un-heard, horrid, Barbarian termes,
 Shee mutters strange and execrable Charms ;
 Of whose Hell-raking, Nature-shaking Spell,
 These odious words could scarce be hearkned well :

Eternall Shades, infernall Deities,
 Death, Horrors, Terror, Silence, Obsequies,
Demons, dispatch : If this dim stinking Taper
 Be of mine owne Son's fat ; if here, for paper,
 I write (detested) on the tender skins 680
 Of time-less Infants, and abortive Twins

(Torn from the wombe) these Figures figure-less :
 If this black Sprinkle, tuft with Virgin's tress,
 Dipt, at your Altar, in my Kinsman's blood ;
 If well I smell of humane flesh (my food) :
 Haste, haste, you Fiends : you subterranean Powrs :
 If impiously (as fits these Rites of yours)

I have invok't your grizly Majesties,
 Harken (O Furies) to my Blasphemies,
 Regard my Charms, and mine enchanting Spell, 690
 Reward my sins, and send up Samuel

From dismall darkness of your deep Abiss,
 To answer me in what my pleasure is :
 Dispatch, I say, (black Princes) quick, why when ?
 Have I not Art, for one, to send you ten ?

When ? stubborn Ghost ! The Palfraies of the sun
 Doe fear my Spels ; and when I spur, they run :

The Planets bow, the Plants give ear to me,
 The Forrests stoop, and even the strongest Tree,
 At drierie sound of my sad whisperings, 700
 Doth prophesie, foretelling future things,
 Yea (maugre Jove) by mine Almighty Charms,
 Through Heav'n I thunder with Imperious Arms ;
 And comst not thou ? O, so : I see the Sage,
 I see th' ascent of some great man : his age,
 His sacred habit, and sweet grave aspect
 Some God-like rayes about him round reflect :
 Hee's ready now to speak, and pliant too
 To cleer thy doubtings, without more adoo.

Soul flat adores ; and wickedly-devout, 710
 The fained Prophet's least word leaves not out.

What dost thou Saul ? O Isra'ls Sovereign,
 Witches, of late, fear'd onely thy disdain :
 Now th' are thy stay. O wretch dost thou not know
 One cannot use th' ayde of the Powrs below
 Without some Pact of Counter-Services,

By Prayers, Perfumes, Homage, and Sacrifice ?
 And that this Art (meer Diabolicall)
 It hurteth all, but th' Author most of all ?
 And also, that the impious Athèist, 720
 The Infidel, and damned Exorcist,

Differ not much. Th' one Godhead quite denies :
 Th' other, for God, foule Satan magnifies :
 The other, Satan (by enchantment strange)
 Into an Angel of the Light doth change.
 When as God would, his voyce thou wouldst not hear ;

Now he forbids thee, thou consult'st else-where :
 Whom (living Prophet) thou neglect'st, abhorr'st,
 Him (dead) thou seek'st, & his dead Trunk ador'st :
 And yet not him, nor his ; for th' ugly Fiend 730
 Hath no such powr upon a Saint t' extend,

Who fears no force of the blasphemous Charms
 Of mumbling Beldams, or Hel's damned Arms ;
 From all the Poysons that those powrs contrive,
 Charm-charming Faith's a full Preservative.

In Soule and Bodie both, Hee cannot come ;
 For they re-joyne not till the day of Doom :
 His Soule alone cannot appear ; for why,
 Soules are invisible to mortall eye :
 His bodie onely, neyther can it be ; 740
 For (dust to dust) that soon corrupts (wee see).

Besides all this, if 'twere true Samuel,
 Should not (alas) thine eyes'-sight serve as well
 To see and know him, as this Sorceresse,
 This hatefull Hag, this old Enchanteresse,
 This Divel incarnate, whose drad Spell commands
 The rebell-Furie of th' infernall Bands ?

Hath Lucifer not Art enough to faim
 A body fitting for his turn and train ?
 And (as the rigour of long Cold congeals 750
 To harsh hard Woolle the running Water-Rills)

Cannot hee thicken thinnest parts of Air,
 Commixing Vapours ? glew them ? hue them fair ?
 Even as the Rain-bow, by the Sun's reflection
 Is painted fair in manifold completion :

A body which wee see all-readie formd ; But yet perceive not how it is performd : A body perfect in apparent show ; But in effect and substance nothing so : A Body, heart-lesse, lung-lesse, tongue-lesse too, 760 Where Satan lurks, not to give life thereto ; But to the end that from this Counter-mure, More covertly hee may discharge more sure A hundred dangerous Engins, which he darts Against the Bulwarks of the bravest hearts : That, in the Sugar (even) of sacred Writ, Hee may em-pill us with some bane-full bit : And, that his counterfeit and fained lips, Laying before us, all our hainous slips, And God's drad Judgments and just Indignation, 770 May under-mine our surest Faith's Foundation. But, let us heare now what he saith. O Saul, What frantick furie art thou mov'd with-all, To now re-knit my broken thred of life? To interrupt my rest? And 'mid the strife Of struggling Mortals, in the World's affairs (By powr-full Charms) to re-entoyl my Cares? Inquir'st thou what's to come? O wretched Prince!	Of his almighty Hands ; the next, in reaving Thy needfull Service, it should be receiving ; The third, in rash-usurping his Commission ; And last Thy Selfe, in thine own Self's perdition, When (by two Deaths) one voluntary wound Doth both thy body and thy soule confound. But Ishbosheth (his dear Son) yet retains 820 His place a space, and David onely reigns In happy Juda. Yet, yer long (discreet) Hee makes th' whole Kingdom's wracked ribs to meet :
Too much, too-soon (what I fore-told long since) : Death's at thy door ; to-morrow Thou and Thine 780 Even all shall fall before the Philistine ; And great-good David shall possesse thy Throne, As God hath said to be gain-said by none. Th' Author of Lies (against his guise) tels true ; Not that at-once hee Selfly all fore-knew, Or had revolv'd the leaves of Destinie (The Childe alonely of Eternitie) ; But rather through his busie observation Of circumstance, and often iteration Of reading of our Fortunes and our Fals, 790 In the close Book of clear Conjecturals, With a far-seeing Spirit, hits often right ; Not much unlike a skilfull Galenite, Who (when the Crisis comes) dares even foretell Whether the Patient shall do ill or well. Or, as the Star-wise sometimes calculates (By an Eclipse) the death of Potentates ; And (by the stern aspects of greatest Stars) Prognosticates of Famine, Plague, and Wars.	And so Hee rules on th' holy Mount (a mirror) His people's Joy, the Pagan's onely Terror. If ever, standing on the sandy shore, Y' have thought to count the rowling waves that roar Each after other on the British Coast, When Eolus sends forth his Northern Poast ; Wave upon wave, Surge upon surge doth fould, 830 Sea swallows sea, so thickly-quickly rould, That (number-lesse) their number so doth mount, That it confounds th' Accompter and th' Accompt : So David's Vertues when I think to number, Their multitude doth all my Wits incumber ; That Ocean swallows mee : and mazed so, In the vast Forrest where his Praises grow, I know not what high Fir, Oak, Chest-nut-Tree, (Rather) what Brasil, Cedar, Ebonie My Muse may chuse (Amphion-like) to build 840 With curious touch of Fingers Quaver-skild (Durst shee presume to take so much upon-her) A Temple sacred unto David's honour.
As hee foretold, in brief, so fell it out ; Brave Jonathan and his two brethren stout Are slain in fight ; and Saul himselfe forlorn, Lest, Captive, hee be made the Pagan scorn, Hee kills him-self ; and, of his Fortune froward, To seem not conquer'd, shews himselfe a Coward.	Others shall sing his mind's true constancie, In oft long exiles tri'd so thorowly : His life compos'd after the life and likeness Of sacred Patterns : his milde gracious meeknesse Tow'rds railing Shimei, and the * Churlish Gull : * Nabal. His lovely eyes, and face so beautiful, Some other shall his equity record, 850 And how the edge of his impartial sword Is ever ready for the Reprobate, To hew them downe ; and help the Desolate : How hee no Law, but God's drad Law enacts ; How he respects not persons, but their facts : How brave a Triumph of Self's-wrath he showes, Killing the killers of his deadly Foes. Some other shall unto th' Emperereall Pole The holy fervour of his zeal extoll : How for the wandring Ark hee doth provide 860 A certain place for ever to abide : And how for ever every his designe Is ordered all by th' Oracle Divine.
For, 'tis not courage (whatsoe'r men say) But Cowardise, to make one's Self away. 'Tis even to turn our back at Fear's alarms ; 'Tis (basely-faint) to yeeld up all our Arms. O extreme Rage ! Of his valour and victories.

The Twelve stout Labours of th' Amphitruionide
(Strongest of Men) are justly magnifi'd :
Yet, what were They but a rude Massacre
Of Birds, and Beasts, and Monsters here and there ?
Not Hoasts of Men and Armies overthrow'n ;
But idle Conquests ; Combats One to One :
Where boist'rous Limbs, and sinnews strongly knit,
Did much availe with little ayd of Wit.
Bears, Lions, Gyants, foyl'd in single fight, 88o
Are but th' Essayes of our redoubted Knight :
Under his Arms sick Aram deadly droops ;
Unto his pow'r the strength of Edom stoops ;
Stout Amalek even trembles at his name ;
Proud Ammon's scorn he doth returne with shame ;
Subdueth Soba ; foys the Moabite ;
Wholly extirps the down-trod Jebusite ;
And (still victorious) every month, almost,
Combats and Conquers the Philistian Hoast ;
So that, Alcide's massie Club scarce raught 89o
So many blows, as David Battels fought.

Pompey.

Th' expert great * Captain, who the Pontiks quaild,
Won in strange Wars ; in Civill fights he faild :
But David thrives in all ; and fortunate,
Triumphs no lesse of Saul's intestine hate,
Of Isbosheth's and Absalon's designs,
Then of strong Aram, and stout Philistines.
Good-Fortune alwayes blows not in the Poop
Of valiant Cæsar, shee defeats his Troup,
Slays his Lieutenants ; and (among his Friends) 90o
Stabb'd full of Wounds, at length his Life she ends :
But David alwayes feels Heav'n's gracious hand ;
Whether in person Hee himselfe command
His royall Hoast ; or whether (in his stead)
By valiant Joab his brave Troups be led ;
And happinesse, closing his aged eye,
Ev'n to his Toomb consorts him constantly.
Fair victory, with Him (even from the first)
Did pitch her Tent : his Infancy she nurst
With noble Hopes, his stronger years she fed 91o
With stately Tropheis, and his hoary head
She crowns & comforts with (her cheerfull Balms)
Triumphant Laurels and victorious Palms.
The Mountains stoop to make him easie way ;
And Euphrates, before him, dries away :
To Him great Jordan a small leap doth seem ;
Without assault, strong Cities yeeld to Him :
Th' Engine alone of His far-fear'd Renown
Beats (Thunder-like) Gates, Bars, and Bulwarks down ;
Gad's goodly Vales, in a gore Pond hee drenches ; 92o
Philistian Fires, with their own bloud he quenches :
And then in God (pursuing still his Foes)
His wrath's just Tempest on fell Giants throws.
O strong, great Worthies (will some one day say,
When your huge Bones they plough-up in the clay)
But, stronger, greater, and more WORTHY Hee,
Whose Heav'n-lent Force & Fortune made you be (Maugre your might, your massie spears & shields)
The fatt'ning dung-hill of those fruitfull Fields.

His enemies, scarcely so soon he threats 93o
As overthrows, and utterly defeats.
On David's head, God doth not spin good hap ;
But pours it down abundant in his Lap :
And Hee (good Subject) with his Kingdom, ever
T' increase th' Immortall Kingdom doth endeavour.
His swelling Standards never stir abroad,
Till hee have call'd upon th' Almighty God ;
Hee never conquers but (in heav'nly Songs)
Hee yeelds the Honour where it right belongs :
And evermore th' Eternal's sacred praise 94o
(With Harp and Voyce) to the bright Stars doth raise.
Scarce was hee borne, when in his Cradle, prest His Po[et]sie.
The Nightingale to build her tender nest :
The Bee within his sacred mouth seeks room
To arch the Chambers of her Honey-comb :
And th' heav'nly Muse, under his roof descending
(As in the Summer with a train down-bending,
Wee see some Meteor, winged brightly-fair
With twinkling rayes, glide through the crystall Aire,
And suddenly, after long-seeming flight, 95o
To seem amid the new-shav'n Fields to light)
Him softly in her Ivory arms shee folds,
His smiling face she smilingly beholds :
Shee kisses him, and with her Nectar kisses
Into his Soule shee breathes a Heav'n of Blissess ?
Then laies him in her lap : and while shee brings
Her Babe a-sleep, this Lullabie she sings.
Live, live (sweet-Babe) the Miracle of Mine, 96o
Live ever Saint, and grow thou all Divine :
With this Celestiall Winde, where-with I fill
Thy blessed bosom, all the World full-fill :
May thy sweet Voyce, in Peace, resound as far
And speed as fair as thy drad Arm in War :
Bottom nor Bank, thy Fame's Sea never bound :
With double Laurels be thy Temples crown'd.
See (Heav'n-sprung spirit) see how th' allured North,
Of thy Child's-cry (shrill sweetly warbling forth)
Al-ready tastes the learned, dainty pleasures.
See, see (young Father of all sacred Measures)
See how, to hear thy sweet harmonious sound, 97o
About thy Cradle here are thronging (round)
Woods, but with ears : Flouds, but their fury stopping :
Tigres, but tame : Mountains, but alwayes hopping :
See how the Heav'ns, rapt with so sweet a tongue,
To list to thine, leave their own Dance and Song.
O Idiot's shame, and Envie of the Learned !
O Verse right-worthy to be ay eterned !
O richest Arras, artificiall wrought
With liveliest Colours of Concept-full Thought !
O royall Garden of the rarest Flowrs 98o
Sprung from an Aprill of spirituall Showers !
O Miracle ! whose star-bright beaming Head
When I behold, even mine own Crown I dread.
Never else-where did plenteous Eloquence,
In every part with such magnificence
Set forth her Beauties, in so sundry fashions
Of Robes and Jewels (suting sundry passions)

Excellency of the Psalmes of David.

As in thy Songs : Now like a Queen (for Cost)
 In swelling Tissues, rarely-rich imbost
 With precious stones : neat, City-like, anon, 990
 Fine Cloth, or silk, or Chamlet puts shee on :
 Anon, more like some handsome Shepherdesse,
 In courser Clothes shee doth her cleanly dresse :
 What-e're she wear, Wooll, Silk, or Gold, or Gems,
 Or Course, or Fine ; still like her Self she seems ;
 Fair, modest, cheerfull, fitting time and place,
 Illustring all even with a heav'n-like grace.
 Like proud loud Tigris (ever-swiftly roul'd)
 Now, through the Plains thou pour'st a Floud of gold :
 Now, like thy Jordan, (or Meander-like) 1000
 Round-winding nimble with a many-Creek,
 Thou run'st to meet thy self's pure streams behind thee,
 Mazing the Meads wher thou dost turn & wind thee.
 Anon, like Cedron, through a straighter Quill,
 Thou strainest out a little Brook or Rill,
 But yet so sweet, that it shall ever be
 Th' immortal Nectar to Posterity :
 So clear, that Poesie (whose pleasure is To bathe in Seas of Heav'nly Mysteries)
 Her chastest feathers in the same shall dip, 1010
 And deaw withall her choycest workmanship :
 And so devout, that with no other Water
 Devoutest Souls shall quench their thirst hereafter.
 Of sacred Bards Thou art the double Mount,
 Of faith-full Spirits th' Interpreter profound :
 Of contrite Hearts the clear Anatomy :
 Of every Sore the Shop for remedy ;
 Zeal's Tinder-box : a Learned Table, giving
 To spirituall eyes, not painted Christ, but living.
 O divine Volume, Sion's cleer dear Voyce, 1020
 Saints' rich exchequer, full of comforts choice :
 O, sooner shall sad Boreas take his wing
 At Nilus' head, and boyst'rous Auster spring
 From th' ycie flouds of Iceland, then thy Fame
 Shall be forgot, or Honour fail thy Name :
 Thou shalt survive throughout all Generations,
 And (plyant) learn the language of all Nations :
 Nought but thine Airs through air & sea shal sound,
 In high-built Temples shall thy Songs resound,
 Thy sacred Verse shall cleer God's cloudy face, 1030
 And, in thy steps the noblest Wits shall trace.
 Grosse Vulgar, hence ; with hands profanely vile,
 So holy things presume not to defile,
 Touch not these sacred stops, these silver strings :
 This Kingly Harp is onely meet for Kings.
 And so behold, toward the farthest North,
 Ah see, I see upon the Banks of FORTH
 (Whose forceful stream runs smoothly serpentine)
 A valiant, learned, and religious King,
 Whose sacred Art retuneth excellent 1040
 This rarely-sweet celestiall Instrument :
 And David's Truchman, rightly doth resound
 (At the World's end) his eloquence renown'd.
Dombertan's Clyde stands still to hear his voyce :
 Stone-rowling Tay seems thereat to rejoyce ;

The trembling Cyclads, in great Lusmond-Lake,
 After his sound their lusty gambols shake ;
 The (Trees-brood) Bar-geese, mid th' Hebridian wave,
 Unto his Tune their far-flown wings do wave ;
 And I my selfe in my pide Pleid* a-slope, 1050
 With Tune-skild foot after his Harp do hop.

Thus, full of God, th' Heav'n Sirene (Prophet-wise)
 Pours-forth a Torrent of mel-Melodies,
 In DAVID's praise. But DAVID's foule defect
 Was yet un-seen, un-censur'd, un-suspect.
 Oft in fair Flowrs the banefull Serpent sleeps :
 Somtimes (we see) the bravest Courser trips ;
 And sometimes David's Deaf unto the Word
 Of the World's Ruler, th' Everlasting Lord ;
 His Song sweet fervor slakes, his Soul's pure Fire 1060
 Is damp't and dimm'd with smoak of foule desire,
 His Harp is layd aside, hee leaves his Lays,
 And after his fair Neighbour's Wife hee neighs.
 Fair Bersabé's his Flame, even Bersabé
 In whose chaste bosom (to that very day)
 Honour and Love had happy dwelt together,
 In quiet life, without offence of either :
 But, her proud Beauty now, and her Eyes' force,
 Began to draw the Bill of their Divorce ;
 Honour gives place to Love : and by degrees 1070
 Fear from her heart, shame from her fore-head flees.

The Presence-chamber, the High street, the Temple,
 These Theaters are not sufficient ample
 To shew her Beauties, if but Silk them hide :
 She must have windows each-where open wide
 About her Garden-Baths, the while therein
 She basks & bathes her smooth Snow-whiter skin :
 And one-while set in a black Jet-like Chair,
 Perfumes, and combs, and curls her golden hair :
 Another-while under the Crystall brinks, 1080
 Her Alabastrine well-shapt Limbs shee shrinks
 Like to a Lilly sunk into a glasse :
 Like soft loose Venus (as they paint the Laese)
 Born in the Seas, when with her eyes' sweet-flames,
Tonnies and Triton, shee at once inflames :
 Or like an Ivorie Image of a Grace,
 Neatly inclos'd in a thin Crystall Case :
 Another-while, unto the bottom dives,
 And wantonly with th' under Fishes strives :
 For, in the bottom of this liquid Yce, 1090
 Made of Musdick work, with quaint device
 The cunning work-man had contrived trim
 Carpes, Pikes, and Dolphins, seeming even to swim.

Ishai's great son, too-idly, walking hie
 Upon a Tarras, this bright star doth spy ;
 And sudden dazled with the splendor bright,
 Fares like a Prisoner, who new brought to light
 From a Cymmerian, dark, deep dungeon,
 Feels his sight smitten with a radiant Sun.
 But too-too-soon re-cleer'd, he sees (alas) 1100
 Th' admired Tracts of a bewitching Face.
 Her sparkling Eye is like the Morning Star ;
 Her lips two snips of crimson Sattin are :

*A kind of light mantle made of a thin checkerd
 Cloth, worn by the Hil-men in Scotland : and now much used with us for Saddle clothes.

Bersabé bathing.

David gazing.

Her teeth as white as burnisht silver seem
 (Or Orient Pearls, the rarest in esteem) :
 Her Cheeks and Chin, and all her flesh like Snows
 Sweet intermixed with Vermilion Rose,
 And all her sundry Treasures selfly swell,
 Proud, so to see their naked selves excell.

What living Rance, what raptng Ivorie 1110
 Swims in these streams? O what new Victorie
 Triumphs of all my TROPHEIS? O cleer Therms,
 If so your Waves be cold; what is it warms,
 Nay burns my heart? If hot (I pray) whence comes
 This shivering winter that my soule benums,
 Freezes my Senses, and dis-selfs me so
 With drouzy Poppey, not my self to know?
 O peer-lesse Beauty, meerly beautifull;
 (Unknown) to me th' art most un-mercifull :
 Alas! I dye, I dye (O dismall lot!) 1120
 Both for I see thee, and I see thee not
 But a-far-off, and under water too :
 O feeble Power, and O (what shall I doe?)
 Weak Kingly-State! sith that a silly Woman Stooping my Crown, can my soule's Homage summon.

But, O Imperiall power! Imperiall State!
 Could (happy) I give Beautie's Check the Mate.

Thus spake the King: and, like a sparkle small
 That by mischance doth into powder fall,
 Hee's all a-fire; and pensive, studies nought, 1130
 But how t' accomplish his lascivious thought :
 Which soon hee compass; sinks himself therein :
 Forgetteth David; addeth Sin to Sin :
 And, lustfull, playes like a young lusty Rider
 (A wilfull Gallant not a skillfull Guider)
 Who, proud of his Horse pride, still puts him to 't :
 With wand and spur, layes on (with hand and foot)
 The too-free Beast; which, but too-fast before
 Ran to his ruine, stumbling evermore
 At every stone, till at the last hee break 1140
 Against some Rock his and his Rider's neck.
 For, fearing not Adulterie's fact, but fame;
 A jealous Husband's Fury for the same :
 And lessening of a Pleasure shar'd to twain;
 He (treach'rous) makes her valiant Spouse be slain.

The Lord is mov'd: and, just, begins to stretch
 His Wrath's keen dart at this disloyall wretch :
 When Nathan (then bright Brand of Zeal & Faith)
 Comes to the King, and modest-boldly saith :
 Vouchsafe my Liege (that our chief Justice art) 1150
 To list a-while to a most hainous part.
 First to the fault give ear: then give consent
 To give the faulty his due punishment.
 Of late a Subject of thine owne, whose flocks
 Pow'd all Mount Liban's pleasant plenteous locks;
 And to whose Heards could hardly full suffice
 The flowry Verge that longst all Jordan lies;
 Making a feast unto a s[tr]anger-Guest,
 None of his own abundant Fatlings drest;
 But (privy Thiefe) from a poor neighbour by 1160
 (His faithfull Friend) hee takes feloniously

Nathan's Parable, reproving
David.

A goodly Lamb: although he had no more
 But even that one: whereby hee set such store,
 That every day of his own hand it fed,
 And every night it coucht upon his bed,
 Supt of his Cup, his pleasant morsels pickt,
 And even the moisture from his lips it lickt.
 Nay more my Lord. No more (replies the King, Deeply incenst) 'Tis more then time this thing
 Were seen into; and so outrageous Crimes, 1170
 So insolent, had need be curb'd betimes :
 What ever Wretch hath done this Villany
 Shall Dye the Death; and not alonely Dye,
 But let the horror of so foul a Fact
 A more then common punishment exact.

O painted Toomb (then answer'd sacred Nathan)
 That hast God in thy Mouth, in thy Minde Sathan :
 Thou blam'st in other thine own Fault denounc't
 And unawares hast 'gainst thy selfe pronounc't
 Sentence of Death, O King, no King (as then) 1180
 Of thy desires: Thou art the very man :
 Yea thou art hee, that with a wanton Theft
 Hath just Uriah's onely Lamb bereft :
 And him, O horror! (Sin with Sin is further'd)
 Him with the sword of Ammon hast thou murder'd.
 Bright beautie's eye, like to a glorious Sun,
 Hurts the sore eye that looks too-much there-on :
 Thy wanton-eye, gazing upon that eye,
 Hath given an entrance too-too-foolishly
 Unto that Dwarfe, that Divell (is it not?) 1190
 Which out of sloth, within us is begot ;
 Who entering first but Guest-wise in a room,
 Doth shortly Master of the house become ;
 And makes a Saint (a sweet, milde minded man)
 That 'gainst his Life's Foe would not lift his hand,
 To plot the death of his dear faith-full Friend,
 That for his Love a thousand lives would spend.

Ah! shak'st thou not? is not thy Soule in trouble
 (O brittle dust, vain shadow, empty bubble!)
 At God's drad wrath, which quick doth calcinize 1200
 The marble Mountains and the Ocean dries?
 No, thou shalt know the weight of God's right hand
 Thou, for example t' other Kings shalt stand,
 Death, speedy death, of that adult'rous Fruit,
 Which even al-ready makes his Mother rue 't,
 Shall vex thy Soule, and make thee feele (indeed)
 Forbidden pleasure doth repentance breed.

Ah shame-less beast! sith thy brute Lust (forlorn)
 Hath not the Wife of thy best Friend forborn,
 Thy Sons (dis-natur'd) shall defile thy bed 1210
 Incestiously; thy fair Wives (ravished)
 Shall doublely thy lust-full seed receive :
 Thy Concubines (which thou behinde shalt leave)
 The wanton Rapes of thine own Race shall be :
 It shall befall that in thy Family,
 With an un-kinsman's kisse (un-loving Lover)
 The Brother shall his Sister's shame discover :
 Thou shalt be both Father and Father-in-law
 To thine own bloud. Thy Children (past all aw

Of God or Man) shall by their insolence 1220
 Even Justifie thy bloody foule offence.
 Thou sinn'dst in secret : but Sol's blushing eye
 Shall be eye-witnesse of their villanie :
 All Israel shall see the same : and then,
 The Heav'n-sunk Cities in Asphaltis Fen,
 Out of the stinking Lake their heads shall show,
 Glad, by thy Sons, to be out-sinned so.
 Thou, thou (inhumane) didst the Death conspire
 Of good Uriah (worthy better Hire),
 Thou cruell didst it : therefore, Homicide, 1230
 Cowardly treason, cursed Paricide,
 Un-kinde Rebellion, ever shall remain
 Thy house-hold Guests, thy house with blond to stain.
 Thine own against thine own shall thrill their darts :
 Thy Son from thee shall steal thy people's hearts :
 Against thy Self hee shall thy Subjects arm,
 And give thine age many a fierce alarm,
 Till hanged by th' hair 'twixt Earth, and Sky
 (His gallows' pride, shame of the World's bright Eye)
 Thine owne Leivtenant, at a crimson spout, 1240
 His guilty Soule shall with his Lance let-out,
 And (if I fail not) O what Tempest fell
 Beats on the head of harm-lesse Israel!
 Alas ! how many a guiltlesse Abramide
 Dyes in three daies, through the too-curious Pride !
 In hate of thee, th' Air (thick and sloathfull) breeds
 No slow Disease ; both young and old it speeds ;
 All are indifferent : For through all the Land
 It spreads, almost in turning of a hand :
 To the so-sick, hard seem the softest plumes : 1250
 Flames from his eies, from 's mouth coms Jakes-like fumes :
 His head, his neck ; his bulk, his legs doth tire ;
 Outward, all water : inward, all a-fire :
 With a deep Cough his spongy Lungs he wastes :
 Black Bloud and Choler both at once he casts :
 His voyce's passage is with Biles-belayd,
 His Soul's Interpreter, rough, foul, and flayd :
 Thought of the Grief its rigor oft augments
 'Twixt Hope and Fear it hath no long suspense :
 With the Disease Death joyntly traverseth : 1260
 The infection's stroke is even the stroke of Death.
 Art yeelds to th' anguish : Reason stoops to rage :
 Physician's skill, himselfe doth still engage.
 The streets too still : the Town all out of Town :
 All Dead or Fled : unto the hallowed ground
 The howling Widow (though she lov'd him dear)
 Yet dares not follow her dead Husband's Beer,
 Each mourns his losse, each his own case complains
 Pel-mel the living with the dead remains.
 As a good-natur'd and well-nurtur'd Childe, 1270
 Found in a fault (by 's Master sharply milde)
 Blushing and bleaking, betwixt shame and fear,
 With down-cast eies laden with many a tear,
 More with sad gesture, then with words, doth crave
 An humble Pardon of his Censor grave :
 So David, hearing th' holy Prophet's Threat,
 Hee apprehends God's Judgments dradly great ;

And (thrill'd with fear) flies for his sole defence
 To pearly Tears, Mournings, and sad Laments :
 Off goes his Gold ; his glory treads hee down, 1280
 His Sword, his Scepter, and his precious Crown :
 He fasts, he prays, he weeps, he grieves, he groanes,
 His hainous sins he bitterly bemoanes :
 And, in a Cave hard-by, he roareth out
 A sigh-full Song, so dolefully devout,
 That ev'n the Stone doth groan, and pierc't withall,
 Lets its salt tears with his sad tears to fall.
 Ay-gracious Lord (thus sings he night and day) Psal. 51.
 Wash, wash my Soule in thy deep Mercie's Sea :
 O Mercy, Mercy Lord, aloud he cries ; 1290
 (And Mercy, Mercy, still the Rock replies).
 O God, my God, sith for our grievous Sin
 (Which will-full wee so long have weltred in)
 Thou powr'st the Torrents of thy Vengeance down
 On th' Asure Field with Golden Lillies sow'n :
 Sith every moment thy just Anger drad
 Roars, thunders, lightens on our guilty head :
 Sith Famine, Plague, and War (with bloody hand)
 Doe all at once make havock of this Land :
 Make us make use of all these Rods aright ; 1300
 That wee may quench with our Tears-water quite Thine Ire-full Fire : our former Vices spurn ;
 And, true-reform'd, Justice to Mercy turn.

*And so, O Father, (Fountain of all Good Ocean of Justice, Mercie's bound-lesse Floud)
 Since, for Our Sins, exceeding all the rest,
 As most ingratefull, though most rarely blest,
 After so long Long-Sufferance of Thine :
 So-many Warnings of thy Word divine :
 So-many Threatnings of thy dreadfull Hand : 1310
 So-many Dangers scapt by Sea and Land :
 So-many Blessings in so good a King :
 So-many Blossoms of that fruit-full Spring :
 So-many Foes abroad ; and False at home :
 So-many Rescues from the rage of Rome ;
 So-many Shields against so many Shot :
 So-many Mercies in that Powder-Plot
 (So light regarded and so soon forgof).*

*Since, for Our Sins so many and so great,
 So little mov'd with Promise or with Threat, 1320
 Thou, now at last (as a just jealous God)
 Strik'st us thy Selve with thine immediate Rod,
 Thy Rod of PESTILENCE : whose rage-full smart,
 With deadly pang's piercing the strongest heart,
 Tokens of Terror leaves us where it lights :
 And so infects us (or at least affrights)
 That Neighbour neighbour, Brother brother shuns ;
 The tenderest Mother dares not see her Sons ;
 The nearest Friend his dearest Friend doth flye ;
 Yea, scarce the Wife dares close her Husband's eye. 1330
 For, through th' Example of our Vicious life,
 As Sin breeds Sin, and Husband marr's the Wife,
 Sister prouids Sister, Brother hardens Brother,
 And one Companion doth corrupt another :*

So, through Contagion of this dire Disease,
 It (justly) doth thy heav'nly Justice please,
 To cause us thus each other to infect :
 Though This was fly, and that too nigh affect.
 Since, for our Sins, which hang so fast upon-us,
 So dreadfully thy Furie frowneth on-us ; 1340
 Sith still thou Strikest, and still Threat nest more,
 More grievous Wounds then we have felt before :
 O gracious Father, give us grace (in fine)
 To make our Profit of these Rods of thine ;
 That, true-Converted by thy milde Correction,
 Wee may abandon every soules Affection :
 That Humbleness may starving Pride dis-plume :
 That Temperance may Surfeiting consume :
 That Chastity may chase our wanton Lust :
 That Diligence may wear-off Slothfull rust : 1350

That Love may live, in Wrath and Envie's place :
 That Bountie's hand may Avarice deface :
 That Truth may put Lying and Fraud to flight :
 That Faith and Zeal may keep thy Sabbaths right :
 That Reverence of thy dread Name may banish
 Blasphemous Oaths ; and all Profaneness vanish.
 Since for our sins (as well in Court as Cottage)
 Of all Degrees, all Sexes, Youth and Dotage,
 Of Clarks and Clowns ; Rich, Poor ; and great and small,
 Thy fearfull Vengeance hangeth over all ; 1360
 O Touch us all with Horror for our Crimes :
 O Teach us all to turn to thee betimes :
 O Turn us (Lord) and wee shall turned be :
 Give what thou bidst, and bid what pleaseth thee :
 Give us Repentance ; that thou mayst repent
 Our present Plague, and future punishment.

The Magnificence.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE FOURTH DAY OF THE II. WEEKE, OF BARTAS.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Death-summon'd DAVID, in his sacred Throne
Instals (instructs) his young Son SALOMON :
His (please-God) Choice of WISDOM, wins him Honor,
And Health, and Wealth (at once) to wait upon her :
His wondrous Doom, quick Babe's Claim to decide :
Mis-Matches taxt, in His with PHARAONIDE :
Their pompous Nuptials: Seav'n Heav'n-Masquers there.
The glorious TEMPLE, Builded richly-rare.
Salem's Renown drawes Saba to his Court : 10
King JAMES, to His brings BARTAS, in like sort.*

HAppy are you (O You delicious Wits)
That stint your Studies, as your Fury fits :
That in long Labours (full of pleasing pain)
Exhaust not wholly all your learned brain :
That changing Note, now light, and grave anon,
Handle the Theam that first you light upon :
That, here in Sonnets, there in Epigrams,
Evaporate your sweet Soule-boying Flames.
But my dear Honor, and my sacred Vows, 20
And Heav'n's decree (made in that Higher-House)
Hold mee fast fetter'd (like a Gally-slave)
To this hard Task. No other care I have,
Nought else I dream of ; neither (night nor day)
Ayme at ought else, or look I other way :
But (alwaies busie) like a Mil-stone seem
Still turned round with the same rapid stream.
Thence is 't that oft (maugre Apollo's grace)
I humme so harsh ; and in my Works inchase

Lame, crawling Lines, according to the Fire, 30
Which (more or lesse) the whirling Poles inspire :
And also mingle (Linsie-woolsie-wise)
This gold-ground Tissue with too-mean supplies.
You, all the year long, do not spend your wing ;
But during onely your delightfull Spring
(Like Nightingales) from bush to bush you play,
From tune to tune, from Myrtle spray to spray ;
But I, too-bold, and like the Swallow right,
Not finding where to rest mee, at one flight
A bound-lesse ground-lesse Sea of Times I passe, 40
With Auster now, anon with Boreas.
Your quick Career is pleasant, short, and eath ;
At each Land's-end you sit you down and breathe
On some green bank ; or, to refresh you, finde
Some Rosie-arbour, from the Sun and winde :
But end-lesse is my Course ; for, now I glide
On Yce ; then (dazled) head-long down I slyde :
Now up I climb : then through the Woods I crawl,
I stray, I stumble, sometimes down I fall.
And, as base Mortar serveth to unite 50
Red, white, gray Marble, Jasper, Galactite :
So, to connex my quaint Discourse, sometimes
I mix loose, limping, and ill-polisht Rimes.
Yet will I not this Work of mine give o're :
The Labour's great, my courage yet is more ;
My heart's not yet all voyd of sacred heat :
There's nothing glorious but is hard to get.
Hills were not seen but for the Vales betwixt
The deep indentings artificall mixt

	Amid Mushicks (for more ornament) Have prizes, sizes, and dyes different. And O! God grant, the greatest spot you spy In all my Frame, may be but as the Fly, Which on her ruff (whiter then whitest snows) To whiten white, the fairest Virgin sowes ; (Or like the Velvet on her brow ; or, like The dunker Mole on Venus' dainty Cheeke) And that a few faults may but lustre bring To my high furies where I sweetest sing.	60	To plant a graft, yer e'r hee taste the same, Save with the teeth of a (perhaps) false Fame. These Parasites are ev'n the Pearls and Rings (Pearls, said I? Perils) in the ears of Kings : For O, what Mischief but their Wiles can work? Sith ev'n within us (to their ayd) doth lurk A smoother Soother, ev'n our own Self's-Love (A malady that nothing can remove) Which with these strangers, secretly combin'd In League offensive (to the firmest Minde) Perswades the Coward, hee is Wisely-meek ; The Drunkard, Stout : the Perjure, Politick ; The cruell Tyrant, a just Prince they call ; Sober the Sott : the Lavish Liberal : And, quick-nos'd Beagles, senting right his Lore (Trans-form'd into him) ev'n his Faults adore.	120	Impatient of parasites and flatterers.
	DAVID wext old and cold ; and 's vitall Lamp, Lacking its oyle of Native moist, grew damp (But by degrees) ; when with a dying voyoe (But lively vigour of Discretion's choyce) Hee thus instructs his young Son SALOMON, And (as Heav'n calls) instals him in his Throne. Whom, with-out Force, Uproar, or Rivaling, Nature and Law, and Fortune make a King ; Even hee (my Son) must be both Just and Wise , If long hee look to Rule and Royalise : But hee, whom onely Fortune's Favour rears Unto a Kingdome, by some new-found stairs ; Hee must appeare more then a Man, and cast By rarest Worth to make his Crown sit fast.	70	Flye then those Monsters : and give no accesse To men infamous for their wickednesse : Endure no Atheist, brook no Sorcerer Within thy Court, nor Thief, nor Murderer : Lest the contagion of their banefull breath Poysnon the publick fountain, and to death Infect Thy manners (more of force then Law) The spring, whence Subjects good or bad will draw.	130	To banish Atheists and all notoriously wicked persons from his presence.
David's instructions to his Son Salomon.	My SALOMON, thou knowst thou art my Yongest : Thou knowst besides, out of what bed thou sprungest : Thou seest what love all Israel bears thy Brother ; To honour Thee, what wrong I do to other : Yea, even to Nature and our Native Law ; 'Tis thy part therefore in all points to draw To full perfection ; and with rare effect, Of Noblest Vertues hide thy Birth's defect.	80	Rule thine affects, thy fury, and thy fear ; Hee 's no true King, who no self's-sway doth bear : Not what thou couldst, but what thou shouldst effect : And, to thy lawes, first thine own self subject. For, ay the Subject will (fear set a-side) Through thick and thin, having his King for guide. Shew thy Self gracious, affable and meek ; And be not (proud) to those gay godlings like, But once a year from their gilt Boxes ta'en, To impetrate the Heav'n's long wisht-for rain.	140	To over-rule his own passions and affections.
	Thou, Israel's King, serve the great King of All, And onely on his conduct's pedestal Found thine affaires : upon his Sacred Lore Thine eyes and minde be fixed evermore : The barking rage of bold Blasphemers hate ; Thy Sovereign's maners (Vice-Roy) imitate. Nor think the thickness of thy Palace wals, Thine iron-gates, and high gold-seeled Hals, Can let his eye to spy (in every part) The darkest Closets of thy mazie Heart.	90	Be prodigall of Vertue's just reward : Of punishments be sparing (with regard) Arm thou thy brest with rarest Fortitude ; Things eminent are ever most pursu'd : On highest Places, most disgraces threat ; The roughest windes on widest gates do beat. Toyl not the World with war's ambitious spite : But if thine Honour must maintain thy Right, Then shew thee DAVID's Son ; and, wisely-bold, Follow 't as hot, as thou began'st it cold : Watch, Work, Devise, and with unweariy limb, Wade thorough Foords, and over Channels swim.	100	To be milde and gracious.
A King (first of all) ought to be Religious.	If Birth or Fate (my Son) had made thee Prince Of Idumeans or of Philistins , If Pharaoh's Title had befall'n to thee, If the Medes' Myter bowed at thy knee, Wert thou a Sophy ; yet with Vertue's luster Thou ought'st (at least) thy Greatnesse to illustre : But, to command the Seed of Abraham , The Holy Nation to controule and tame, To bear a Josuah's or a Samson's load, To be God's Vice-Roy, needs a Demi-God .	100	Let tufted Planes for pleasant shades suffice In heat ; in Cold, thy Fire be exercise : A Targe thy Table, and a Turf thy Bed ; Let not thy Mouth be over-dainty fed : Let labour be thy sauce, thy Cask thy Cup ; Whence for thy Nectar some ditch-water sup :	150	To be faithfull of his promise.
Valorous.	Before old Servants give not new the start (King's-Art consists in Action more then Art.) Old Wine excelleth new : Nor (giddily) Will a good Husband grub a goodly Tree In his faire Orchard's midst, whose fruitfull store Hath grac't his Table twenty years and more ;	110		To be readier to reward then punish.
Impartiall in bestowing preferments.				Not to be quarrellous, yet quick and courageous in a just cause.
Simile.				His exercise in warre.

Let Drums, and Trumpets, and shrill Fifes, & Flutes
 Serve thee for Citterns, Virginals, and Lutes ;
 Trot up a Hill ; run a whole Field for Race ;
 Leap a large Dike ; Toss a long Pike, a space :
 Perfume thy head with dust and sweat ; appear 180
 Captain and Souldier. Souldiers are on fire,
 Having their King (before them marching forth)
 Fellow in fortune, witness of their Worth.

In peace not to be over-studious ;
 yet, to understand the Principles of all Prince-fit Sciences.

I should inflame thy heart with learning's love ;
 Save that I know what divine habits move
 Thy profound Spirit : onely, let th' ornament
 Of Letters wait on th' Art of Regiment :
 And take good heed, lest an exesse of humour
 In Plants, becomes their Flowring Life's consumer ;
 So too-much Study, and delight in Arts, 190
 Quench the quick vigour of thy Spirituall parts,
 Make thee too-pensive, over-dull thy Senses,
 And draw thy Mind from Publick cares of Princes.
 With a swift-winged soule, the Course surway
 Of Night's dim Taper and the Torch of Day :
 Sound round the Cels of the Ocean dradly-deep ;
 Measure the Mountains' snowie tops and steep :
 Ferret all Corners of this neather Ball ;
 But to admire the Maker's Art in all,
 His Power and Prudence : and, resemble not 200
 Some simple Courtier, or the silly Sot

 The chamfred Pillers, Plinths, and Antique Bosses,
 Medals, Ascents, Statues, and strange Colosses ;
 Amas'd and musing upon every piece
 Of th' uniforme, fair stately Frontispice ;
 Too-too-self-rapt (through too-self-humouring)
 Losing himselfe, while others finde the King.

Revenge severely Publike Injuries :
 Remit thine Own. Hear the Cries, see the Tears
 Of all distressed poor Petitioners.
 Sit (oft) thy self in Open Audience :
 Who would not be a Judge, should be no Prince.
 For, Justice Scepter and the Martiall Sword
 Ought never sever, by the sacred Word.
 Spare not the Great ; neither despise the Small :
 Let not thy Lawes be like the Spider's Caul,
 Where little Flies are caught and kild ; but great 220

Simile.

Away with Shepherds that their Flocks deface ;
 Chuse Magistrates that may adorn their Place ;
 Such as fear God, such as will judge uprightly :
 Men by their servants judge the Master lightly.
 Give to the vertuous ; but thy Crown-demain
 Diminish not : give still to give again ;
 For there too-deep to dip, is Prodigalitie ;
 And to dry-up the Springs of Liberalitie.

*Hic labor, hoc

But above all (for God's sake) Son, beware, 230
 Be not intrapt in Women's wily snare.
 I fear, alas (good Lord, supremely sage,
 Avert from mine th' effect of this Præsaige)

Alas ! I fear that this sweet Poyson will
 My house here-after with all Idols fill.
 But, if that neither vertue's sacred love,
 Nor fear of Shame thy wanton Minde can move
 To watch in Armes against the Charms of those ;
 At least, be warned by thy Father's Woes.

Fare-well my Son : th' Almighty calls me hence : 240
 I passe, by Death, to Life's most excellence ;
 And, to go Raigin in Heav'n (from world-cares free)
 The Crown of Israel I resign to thee.

O thou that often (for a Prince's Sin)
 Transport'st the Scepter, even from Kin to Kin,
 From Land to Land ; let it remain with Mine :
 And, of my Sons' Sons (in successive Line)
 Let that All-Powerfull dear-drad Prince descend,
 Whose glorious Kingdome never shall have end :
 Whose yron Rod shall Satan's Rule undoe ; 250
 Whom Yacob trusts in : whom I thirst for too.

DAVID deceast : His Son (him tracking right)
 With heart and voyce worships the God of might ;
 Enters his Kingdome by the Gate of Pietie ;
 Makes Hymns and Psalms in laud of the true Deity :
 Offers in Gibeon ; where, in Spirit he sees (While his Sense sleeps) the God of Majesties,
 The Lord of Hoasts : who crown'd with radiant flames,

Initium Regni Salomon.

His vision.

Offers him choyce of these four lovely Dames :

First, Glory, shaking in her hand a pike 260
 (Not Maid-like Marching, but brave Souldier-like)
 Among the Stars her stately head shooe bears,
 A silver Trumpet shrill, a-slope shooe wears,
 Whose Winde is praise, and whose Stentorian sound
 Doth far and wide o'r all the world rebound.
 Her wide-side Robes of Tissue passing price,
 All Story-wrought with bloudy Victories,
 Triumphs & Tropheis, Arches, Crowns and Rings :
 And, at her feet, there gize a thousand Kings.

Description of Glory.

Not far from her, comes Wealth, all rich-bedight 270
 Of Riches.
 In Rhèa's, Thetis, Pluto's Treasures bright :
 The glittering stuff which doth about her fold
 Is rough with rubies, stiffe with beaten gold.
 With either hand from hollow steans shooe pours
Pactolian surges and Argolian showrs.
 Fortune and Thrift, and Wakefulness and Care,
 And Diligence, her daily Servants are.

Then cheerfull Health, whose brow no wrinkle bears, 280
 Of Health.
 Whose cheek no paleness, in whose eye no tears ;
 But like a childe, shooe's pleasant, quick, and plump,
 Shooe seems to fly, to skip, to dance, & jump :
 And Life's bright Brand in her white hand doth shine :
 Th' Arabian Bird's rare plumage (platted fine)
 Serves her for Sur-coat : and her seemly train,
 Mirth, Exercise and Temperance sustain.

Wisdom.

Last, Wisdom comes, with sober countenance :
 To th' ever-Bowrs her oft a-loft t' advance,
 The light Mamuques wing-lesse wings she has :
 Her gesture cool, as comely-grave her pase :
 Where e'r shooe go, she never goes without 290
 Compasse and Rule, Measure and Weights about :

And by her side (at a rich Belt of hers)
 The Glasse of Nature and her-Self shee wears.
 Having beheld their Beauties bright, the Prince
 Seems rapt al-ready even to Heav'n from hence :
 Sees a whole Eden round about him shine ;
 And 'mid so many Benefits divine,
 Doubts which to chuse. At length hee thus begun :
 O Lord (saith hee) what hath thy Servant done,
 That so great blessings I should take or touch, 300
 Or thou shouldst daign to honour me so much ?
 Thou dost prevent my Merit ; or (dear Father)
 Delights to Conquer even my malice rather.
 Fair Victoria's a noble Gift : and nought
 Is more desired, or is sweeter thought,
 Then even to quench our Furie's thirst with bloud,
 In just Revenge on those that wrong our Good :
 But oft (alas) foul insolence comes after ;
 And, the long Custome of inhumane Slaughter,
 Transforms in time the mildest Conquerors 310
 To Tygres, Panthers, Lions, Bears, and Boars.
 Happy seems Hte, whose count-less Heard's for pasture
 Dis-robe (alone) mount Carmel's moatly Vesture :
 For whom alone a whole rich Country, torn
 With timely Tools, brings forth both wine and corn :
 That hath soft Sereans yellow Spoyls, the Gems,
 And precious stones of the Arabian streams,
 The Mines of Ophir, th' Entidorian Fruits,
 The Saban odours, and the Tyrian Sutes.
 But yet wee see, where Plenty chiefly sways, 320
 There Pride increases, Industry decays :
 Rich men adore their Gold : whose aspires
 To lift to Heav'n his sight and Soule's Desires,
 Hee must be poor (at least-wise like the Poor)
 Riches and Fear are fellows evermore.
 I would live long, and I would gladly see
 My Nephews' Nephews, and their Progenie :
 But the long Cares I fear, and cumbers life,
 Which commonly accompany long-Life.
 Who well lives, long lives : for this Age of ours 330
 Should not be numbred by years, daies and hours ;
 But by our brave Exploits : and this Mortality
 Is not a moment, to that Immortality.
 But in respect of Lady Wisdom's grace
 (Even at their best) the rest are all but base.
Honour is but a puffe ; Life but a vapour ;
Wealth but a Wish ; Health but a sponce of paper :
 A glistring Scepter but a Maple twig ;
Gold, drosse ; Pearls, dust ; now-ever bright and big.
 She's God's own Mirror, she's a Light, whose glance 340
 Springs from the Lightning of his Countenance :
 She's mildest Heav'n's most sacred influence ;
 Never decays her beauties' excellence ;
 Aye like her-Self : and shee doth alwayes trace
 Not onely the same path, but the same pace.
 Without her, Honour, Health, and Wealth would prove Three Poysons to mee. Wisdom (from above)
 Is th' onely Moderatrix, spring, and guide,
 Organ and Honour of all Gifts beside.

Salemon's choyce.

Her, her I like, her onely (Lord) I crave, 350
 Her company for ever let mee have :
 Let mee for ever from her sacred lip,
 The Ambrosiall Nard, and Rosiall Nectar sip :
 In every Cause, let me consult with her :
 And, when I Judge, be shee my Counsellour.
 Let, with her staffe, my yet-Youth govern well
 In Pastures fair the Flock of Israel :
 A compt-lesse Flock, a Flock so great (indeed)
 As of a Shepheard sent from Heav'n had need.
 Lord, give her mee, alas ! I pine, I die ; 360
 Or if I live, I live her Flame-bred-Flie* :
 And (new Farfalla) in her radiant shine,
 Too-bold, I burn these tender wings of mine.
 Hold, take her to thee, said the Lord : and sith
 No beauty else thy soule enamoureth ;
 For ready hand-maids to attend upon her,
 Ile give thee also Health, and Wealth, and Honour ;
 (For 'tis not meet, so High-descended Queen,
 So great a Lady, should alone be seen)
 The rather, that my bounty may invite 370
 Thee, serving Her, to serve Mee day and night.
 King SALOMON, awaked, plainly knew
 That this divine strange Vision never grew
 From the sweet Temper of his sound Complexion :
 But that it was some Peece of more Perfection,
 Some sacred Picture admirably drawn
 With Heav'nly pencill, by an Angel's hand.
 For (happy) Hee had (without Art) the Arts,
 And Learning (without learning) in all parts :
 A more then humane Knowledge beautifies 380
 His princely actions ; up to Heav'n hee flies,
 Hee dyves to Hel, hee sounds the Deep, hee enters
 To th' inmost Cels of the World's lowest Centers.
 The secret Riddles of the sacred Writ
 Are plain to him ; and his deep-piercing Wit,
 Upon few Words of the Heav'n-prompted stile,
 In a few Dayes, large Volumes can compile.
 Hee (learned) sees the Sun's Eclipse, sans terror ;
 Hee knows the Planets' never erring Error :
 And whether Nature, or some Angel move 390
 Their Sphears, at once with triple Dance above :
 Whether the Sun self-shine ; his Sister, not ;
 Whether Spring, Winter, Autumn, Summer hot,
 Be the Sun's Sons : what kinde of mounting vapor
 Kindles the Comet, and the long-tail'd Taper :
 What boystrous lungs the roaring whirlers blown :
 What burning wings the Lightning rides upon ;
 What Curb the Ocean in his bounds doth keep :
 What pow'r night's Princesse pours upon the Deep :
 Whether the Heav'n's sweet-sweating Kisse appear 400
 To be Pearl's parent, and the Oyster's Pheer ;
 And whether, dusk, it makes them dim withall ;
 Cleer, breeds the cleer ; and stormy, brings the pale :
 Whether from Sea the Amber-greece be sent ;
 Or be some Fishes' pleasant excrement.
 He knows, why th' Earth's immoveable & round,
 The lees of Nature, Center of the Mound :

Pyronista.*

His excellent Wisdome and Understanding in all things

Hee knows her measure. And hee knows beside,
 How Coloquintida (duely apply'd)
 Within the darknesse of the Conduit-Pipes, 410
 Amid the winding of our in-ward Tripes,
 Can so discreetly the White humour take ;
Rheubarb, the Yellow ; Hellebore, the Black :
 And, whether That in our weak Bulks be wrought,
 By drawing 't to them ; or by driving 't out.
 In brief, from th' Hysop to the Cedar-Tree,
 Hee knows the Vertue of all Plants that be.
 Hee knows the Reason why the Wolf's fell tooth
 Gives a horse swiftnesse ; and his footing, sloth :
 Why the Sex-changing, fierce Hyena's eye 480
 Puts curstest Curs to silence suddenly :
 Why th' irefull Elephant becometh tame
 At the approaching of the fleecie Lamb :
 Why th' eye-bold Eagle never fears the flash
 Or force of Lightning, nor the Thunder-clash :
 Why the wilde Fen-Goose (whch keeps warme her eggs
 With her broad feet under her heatfull legs,
 And tongue-lesse, cries) as wing-lim'd, cannot fly,
 Except shee (glad) Seas briny glasse descry.
 Hee knoweth also, whether that our stone 430
 Be caked Earth, or exhalation ;
 Whether the Metals (that we daily see)
 Be made of Sulphur and of Mercury ;
 Or, of some Liquor by long Cold condens't,
 And by the Heat well purified and cleans'd ;
 Or, of a certaine sharp and cindrous humor,
 Or whether hee that made the Waving Tumor ;
 The motly Earth ; and th' Heav'nly Sphears refin'd ;
 All-mighty, made them such as now we finde.
 Hee comprehends from whence it is proceeding, 440
 That spotted Jasper-stones can staunch our bleed-
 ing ;
Saphires, cure eyes, the Topaz to resist
 The rage of Lust ; of drink the Amethyst :
 And also, why the clearest Diamant
 (Jealous) impugns the thefts of th' Adamant.
 Tunes, Measures, Numbers, and Proportions
 Of Bodies with their Shadows, als' hee kons ;
 And (fill'd with Nectar-deaws, which Heaven drips)
 The Bees have made honey within his lips.
 But he imbraceth much more earnestly 450
 The gainfull Practice then cold Theory :
 Nor reaks hee so of a Sophistick pride
 Of prattling knowledge (too-self-magnifi'd)
 As of that goodly Art to govern well
 The sacred Helms of Church and Common-weal,
 And happily to entertain in either,
 A harmony of Great and Small together.
 Especially Hee's a good Justicer,
 And to the Laws doth life and strength confer.
 And, as the highest of Bigaurian Hills 460
 Aye bears his head up-right, and never yeelds
 To either side, scorns Winde and Rain and Snow,
 Abides all weathers with a cheerfull brow ;
 Laughs at a Storm, and bravely tramples under
 His stedly knees, the proud, loud-rowling Thunder :

So hee's a Judge inflexibly-upright,
 No Love, nor Hatred of the guilty wight
 (What e'r hee wear for Calling, small or great)
 His Venging blade can either blunt or whet ;
 Hee spurneth Favours, and he scorneth Fears ; 470
 And under foot hee treadeth private tears :
 Gold's radiant Lustre never bears his Eye ;
 Nor is hee led through Ignorance a-wry.
 His Voyce is held an Oracle of all ;
 The soule of Laws hee wisely can exhale :
 In doubtfull Cases he can subtilize,
 And wyliest pleaders' hearts anatomize.
 Scarce fifteen times had Ceres (since his Birth)
 With her gilt Treasses glorifi'd the Earth ;
 When hee decides, by happy Wisdom's meanes 480
 The famous quarrell of two crafty Queans.
 Is 't possible, O Earth (thus cries the first)
 But that (alas) thou shouldst for anger burst,
 And swallow quick this execrable Quean !
 Is 't possible (O gracious Sovereign)
 That comming new from doing such a deed
 So horrible, she shamelesse dares proceed
 T' approach thy sight, thy sacred Throne t' abuse,
 Not begging pardon, but ev'n bent t' accuse ?
 Last night, with surfeit and with sleep sur-cloyd, 490
 This care-lesse Step-dam her own Child o'r-layd :
 And softly then (finding it cold and dead)
 Lays it by mee, and takes mine in the stead.
 Here, old, bold strumpet, take thy bastard brat,
 Hence with thy Carion, and restore me that,
 Restore mee mine, my lovely living Boy,
 My hope, my hap, my love, my life, my joy.
 O cruell chance ! O sacrilegious !
 Shall thy foule lips my little Angell busse ?
 At thy fond prattling, shall hee prett'y smile ? 500
 And tug, and touze thy greazie locks the-while ?
 And all his Child-hood fill thy soule with glee ?
 And, grown a man, sustaine thine age and thee ?
 While wretched I have onely, for my share,
 His Birth's hard Travell, and my burthen's Care,
 His rest-lesse rocking, wiping, washing, wringing ;
 And to appease his wayward Cries with singing ?
 O most unhappy of all Women-kinde !
 O Child-lesse Mother ! O why is my Minde
 More passion-stirred, then my hand is strong ? 510
 But rather then Ile pocket up this wrong,
 To be reveng'd, Ile venture two for one,
 Ile have thy life although it cost mine owne.
 O filthy Bitch ! Vile Witch (says th' other tho)
 O ! who would think that Wine could mad one so ?
 O impudent ! though God thou fearest not, fear
 The King's cleer judgement, who God's place doth bear.
 Art not content t' have call'd (or rather cry'd)
 Mee Whore, and Thief, Drunkard, and Paricide :
 But thou wilt also have my Childe, my dear 520
 (Whom with so strong a knot Love links so neer)
 My Babe, my Blisse ? Yea marry (Minks) and shall :
 Who takes my Childe, shall take my life with-all.

The controversie
 betweene the two Harlots for the live Childe.

Just David's just Son, for thy Father's sake,
 For his dear love, for all that he did make
 Of thee a Child, when hee (re-childing) sought
 With childish sport to still thy cries, and taught
 (Or 'gan to teach) with language soft and weak,
 Thy tender tongue some easie tearme to speak :
 Or, when (all bloody, breath-lesse, hot hee came) 530
 Laden with spoyles of Kings hee overcame,
 Hee ran t' imbrace thee, rockt thee in his Targe,
 And when thou cry'dst, upon his shoulder large
 Did set thee up, while thou his beard didst tug,
 Play'd'st with his nose, about his neck didst tug,
 Gap'st on his glittering Helm, and smil'dst to see
 Another SALOMON there smile on thee :
 And underneath his dancing Plume didst play
 Like Bird in bush ; sporting from spray to spray ;
 I doe adjure thee to attend my Plea : 540
 By the sweet name of thy dear Bersabé,
 Who, in the night, shivering for cold, so oft,
 Hath bow'd her self over thy Cradle soft ;
 Who both the bottles of her Nectar white
 Hath spent upon thee, hundred times a night ;
 Who on thy head hath set her pearly Crown,
 And in thy life liv'd more then in her Owne ;
 I doe adjure thee (O great King) by all
 That in the World wee sacred count or call,
 To doe me Right : and if, too-milde, alas, 550
 Too mercifull thou wilt not Sentence passe
 Of just revenge for my received wrong ;
 Yet, reave mee not what doth to mee belong,
 What liberal Nature hath bestow'd on mee,
 What I am seis'd-of (without thank to thee) ;
 For pittie do not my heart blood deprive,
 Make me not Childless ; having Child a-live.
 While both, at once, thus to the King they cry,
 'Tis mine, 'tis mine : thou ly'st ; and thou dost lye :
 The partiall People divers Verdict spend ; 560
 Some favour th' one, others the other friend :
 As when two Gamesters hazzard (in a trice)
 Fields, Vine-yards, Castles, on the Chance of Dice,
 The Standers-by, diversly stirr'd with-in,
 Wish, some that This, & some that That may win :
 Waver twixt Hope and Fear : and every one's Mov'd, with the moving of the guilefull Bones.
 Onely, the King demurrs : his prudent ears
 Finde, like, both reasons, both complaints, both
 tears :
 The infant's face could not discipher whether 570
 Of both should be the very Mother : neither
 Could calculation of their ages, cleer
 The Judge's doubt, nor any proof appear.
 Then, thus He weighs (but as in dreaming wise) ;
 Th' industrions Judge, when all proofs fail him, flies
 Unto Conjectures drawn (the probablest)
 Out of the Book of Natur's learned brest ;
 Or to the Rack : Now, Mother's love (thinks hee)
 Is Nature's own unchangeable Decree :
 And there's no Torture that exceeds the pains 580
 Which a kinde Mother in her Childe sustains.

Then (as awake) Come, Come, no more a-doo,
 Dispatch (saith he) Cleave the quick Childe in two,
 Look that the Sword be sharp ; in such a case,
 Needs must our Pitty give our Justice place :
 Justice (ye see) can judge him whole to neither :
 Divide him therefore, and give half to either.
 O difficult ! but thus the King descries
 Their hearts' deep secrets : all discover'd lies,
 The vizer's off ; their Tongues, sincerely prest 590
 With true instinct, their very Thoughts express ;
 Be 't (said the Stepdam) so, sith 't must be so ;
 Divide him justly from the top to toe.
 No (said the other) rather, I renounce
 My right in him, take thou him all at once,
 Enjoy him all ; Ile rather have him thine
 A-live, and whole, then dead and mangled, mine.
 Thine (quoth the King) he's thine by Birth (I see)
 Thine by thy Love, and thine by my Decree.
 Now, as wth Gold grows in the self-same Mine 600
 Much Chrysocholle, and also Silver fine ;
 So supreme Honneur, and Wealth (match by none)
 Second the Wisdom of great SALOMON.
 He far and neer commands by Land and Seas ;
 A hundred Crowns do homage unto His ;
 His nearest Bounds, Nile's Sea and Sidon seem,
 And Euphrates bows his moist horns to Him ;
Peru, they say (supposing Ophir so)
 By yeerly Fleets into his Fisk doth flow ;
 In Sion Gold's as common as the Sand ; 610
 As Pebles, Pearles ; Through-out all Jury Land,
 There seems an Ocean of all happinesse
 To over-flow ; and all do all possesse ;
 Each under his own Vine and his own Tree,
 His Grapes and Figs may gather quietly.
 Thus hee abounds in Bliss ; not so to change-ill
 Man into Beast, but make of Man an Angel ;
 To praise th' Immortall, who to him hath given
 Even here a Taste of the delights of Heav'n.
 This great, wise, wealthy, and well-spoken King 620
 His sweet renown o'r all the World doth ring ;
 The Tyrian, for Confederate desires him ;
Pharaoh for Son ; th' Alien no lesse admires him
 Than his own Subject ; and his eyes' sweet flames,
 As far as Nilus, fire the flower of Dames.
 O SALOMON, seest thou not (O mis-hap !)
 This Marriage is no Marriage, but a Trap ?
 That such a mongrell Match of differing Creed,
 Of mortall quarrels is th' immortal seed ;
 That Ox and Asse can never well be broke 630
 To draw one Plough together in one yoke ?
 Who-ever weds a Miscreant, forth-with Divoreth God : our Faith still wavereth ;
 It needs an Aide and not a Tempter nigh,
 Not th' instrument of th' old Deceiver slie,
 Not deadly poyson in our Coach to couch,
 Sleep in our bosome, and our breast to touch,
 And breathe into us (in a kinde of kissing)
 An Ir-religion of the Serpent's hissing.

The doubt admirably decided.

She that from Egypt comes (O King) is none
Flesh of thy Flesh, nor yet Bone of thy Bone :
But a strange Bone, a barbarous Rib, a Peece
Imposioned all with Memphian Leprosies.

But, thou wilt say, thy Love hath stript yer-while
Her spotted suit of Idol-serving Nile :
And clad her all, in Innocence, in white ;
Becomn by Faith a true born Abramite,
It might be so : and to that side I take,
The rather, for that sacred Beauties' sake,
Where-of shee is a figure. Yet, I fear
Her Train will stain thy Kingdome every-where,
Corrupt thy Court : and God will be offended
To have his People with strange People blended ;
The mighty Lord, who hath precisely said,
You shall not theirs, nor they your daughters wed.

A pleasant description of Love's fruitfull Grove.

Under the gentle Equinoctial Line,
Fair amorous Nature waters freshly-fine
A little Grove clad in eternall green,
Where all the year long lusty May is seen,
Suiting the Lawns in all her pomp and pride
Of lively Colours, lovely varif'd :
There smiles the ground, the starry-flowers each one,
There mount the more, the more th' are trod upon :
There all grows toyl-less ; or if tild it were,
Sweet Zephyrus is th' onely Husband there.
There Aurifer never roars, nor Hail dis-leaves
Th' immortall Grove, nor any branch bereaves.
There the straight Palm-Tree stoopeth in the Calm
To kiss his Spouse, his loyall Female Palm :
There with soft whispers whistling all the year
The broad-leav'd Plane-tree Courts the Plaine his Pheer ;

The Poplar woos the Poplar, & the Vine
About the Elme her slender armes doth twine ;
Th' Ivie about the Oak : there all doth prove,
That there all springs, all grows, all lives in Love
Opinion's Porter, and the Gate shee bars
'Gainst Covetize, cold Age, and sullen Cares,
Except they leave-off and lay down before
Their troublous load of Reason at the doore ;
But opens wide, to let-in Bashfull-Boldness,
Dumb-speaking Signs, Chill-Heat, & Kindled-coldness,
Smooth-soothing vows, deep sorrows soon appeas'd,
Tears sudden dry'd, fell Angers quickly pleas'd,
Smiles, Wylie-Guiles, quaint witty-pretty Toyes,
Soft Idleness, and ground-less bound-less Joyes,
Sweet Pleasure plunged over head and ears
In sugred Nectar, immateriall Fears,
Hoarse Wakes, late Walks, Pain-pleasing kindly cruell,
Aspiring Hope (Desire's immortall fuell)
Licentious Loosness, Prodigall Expence,
Inchaunting Songs, deep Sighs, and sweet Laments.

These frolick Loveings: fraighted Nests do make
The balmy Trees' o'r-laden Boughs to crack ;
Beauty layes, Fancie sits, th' inflamed heat
Of Love doth hatch their Couvies nicely-neat :
Some are but kindled yet, some quick appeare,
Some on their backs carrie their Cradles dear,

Some douny-clad, some (fledger) take a twig
To perch-upon, some hop from sprig to sprig :
One, in the fresh shade of an Apple-Tree
Lets hang its Quiver, while soft-pantingly
'T exhales hot Vapour : one, against a Sparrow
Tries his stiff Bow and Gyant-stooping Arrow :
Another slie sets lime-twigs for the Wren,
Finch, Linot, Tit-mouse, Wag-tail (Cock & Hen) :
See, see how some their idle wings forsake,
And (turn'd of Flyers, Riders) one doth take
A Thrush, another on a Parret rides,
This mounts a Peacock, that a Swan bestrides,
That manageth a Pheasant : this doth make
The Ring-Dove turn ; that brings the Culver
back :

See how a number of this wanton Frie
Do fondly chase the gawdie Butter-flie :
Som with their flowrie Hat, som with their hands
Som wth sweet Rose-boughs, som wth Myrtle wands :
But, th' horned Bird, with nimble turns, beguiles
And scapes the snares of all these Loves a-whiles.
Leave wags (Cries Venus) leave this wanton Play :
For so, in stead of Butter-Flyes, you may,
You may (my Chicks) a Childe of Venus strike :
For, some of mine have Horns and all alike.

This said, eftswoones two twins whose gold-head darts
Are never steeped but in Royall hearts ;
Come, Brother dear (said either) come let 's to 't,
Let 's each a shaft at yon two bosoms shoot.

Their winged words th' effect ensues as wight,
Two or three steps they make to take their flight,
And quick-thick shaking on their sinnewie side
Their long strong sarrels, richly triple-di'd
Gold-Azure-Crimsin ; th' one aloft doth soar
To Palesine, th' other to Nilus' shore.

Pharo's fair daughter (wonder of her Time)
Then in the blooming of her beauties' Prime,
Was quaintly dressing of her Tress-full head
Which round about her to the ground did spread :
And, in a rich gold-seeled Cabinet,
Three Noble Maids attend her in the seat.

One with a piece of double-dented Box
Combs out at length her goodly golden locks :
Another 'noynts them with Perfumes of price :
Th' other with bodkin, or with fingers nice,
Frizzles and Furls in Curls and Rings a-part ;
The rest, loose dangling without seeming Art,
Wave too and fro, with cunning negligence
Gracing the more her Beauties' excellence :
When, arm'd with Arrows, burning brightly keen,
Swift Swallow-like, one of these Twins comes in ;
And, with his left wing hiding still his Bow,
Into her bosom shot, I wot not how.
My side ! my heart (the Royall Maid cries out)
O ! I am slain : But, searching all about,
When shee perceiv'd no bloud, nor bruise ; alas
It is no wound ; but, sleeping on the grasse,
Some snake (saith shee) hath crept into mee quick,
It gnawes my heart : ah, help mee, I am sick :

750 Love's first Feaver.

PHARONIDA

Have mee to bed : eigh mee, a friezing-frying,
 A burning cold torments mee living-dying.
 O cruell Boy, alas, how mickle Gall
 Thy baenfull shaft mingles thy Mell withall !
 The Royall Maid, which with her Mates was wont 760
 Smile, skip and dance on Field's inammeld front,
 Love's solennesse, sadnesse, and Self-privacie ;
 Sighes, sobs & throbs, & yet shee knows not why ;
 The sumptuous pride of massie Piramides
 Presents her eyes with Towns of Jebusides ;
 In Nile's cleer Crystall shee doth Jordan see ;
 In Memphis, Salem ; and un-warly
 Her hand (unbidden) in her Samplars sets
 The King of Juda's Name and Counterfeits.
 Who, medi'ting the Sacred TEMPL's plot, 770
 By th' other Twin at the same time is shot :
 The shaft sticks fast, the wound 's within his veins :
 Sleep cannot bring a-sleep his pleasing pains ;
 PHARONIDA 's his heart, PHARONIDA
 Is all his Theam to talk-of, night and day ;
 With-in his soule a civill War hee feeds :
 Th' all-seeing Sun now early backs his Steeds,
 Now mounts his Mid-day, and then setteth soon :
 But still his Love stands at the hot high Noon.
 He rides not his brave Coursers (as hee wont) 780
 Nor reads, nor writes, nor in his Throne doth moit
 To hear the Widow's Cause ; neglects his Court,
 Neglects his Rule ; Love rules him in such sort.
 You prudent Legats, Agents for this Marriage,
 Of Rings and Tablets you may spare the Carriage :
 For, witty Love hath with his lovely shaft
 In either's heart grav'n other's lively Draught ;
 Each lives in other, and they have (O strange !)
 Made of their burning hearts a happy Change.
 Better abroad, then home, their hearts' delight ; 790
 Yet long their bodies to their hoasts t' unite.
 Which soon ensues : the Virgin's shortly had
 From Mother's armes imbracing gladly-sad ;
 And th' aged Father, weeping as he spake,
 Bids thus adieu when shee her leave doth take ;
 Sweet Daughter dear, Osiris be thy guide,
 And loving Isis blesse thee and thy Bride
 With golden fruit ; and dayly without cease
 Your mutuall Loves may as your years increase.
 Wives, Maids & Children, youg & old each-wher, 800
 With looks & vows from Turrets follow her ;
 Calm Nilus calmer then it wont is grow'n,
 Her Ships have merry windes, the Seas have none ;
 Her footing makes the ground all fragrant-fresh ;
 Her sight re-flowres th' Arabian Wilderness ;
Jury joycees, and in all the way
 Nothing but Trumpets, Fifes and Timbrels play ;
 The flowr-crown'd People, swarming on the Green,
 Crie still, God save, God save, God save the Queen ;
 May shee be like a scion, pale and sick 810
 Through th' over-shading of a Sire too thick ;
 Which being transplanted, free, sweet aire doth sup,
 To th' sweating Clouds her grovie top sends up,

And prospers so in the strange soyl, that (till'd)
 Her golden Apples all the Orchard gild.
 No streets are seen in rich JERUSALEM :
 For, under-foot fine scarlet paveth them,
 Silks hang the sides, and over-head they hold
 Archt Canopies of glistening Cloth of gold.
 They throng, they thrust, an ebbing-flowing Tide, 820
 A Sea of Folk follows th' adored Bride :
 The joyfull Ladies from their windows shed
 Sweet showrs of flours upon her radiant bead ;
 Yet jealous, lest (dy'd in their native grain)
 Her Rosie Cheeks should Natur's Roses stain.
 But loe, at last, th' honour of Majestie,
 Glory of Kings, King SALOMON draws nigh :
 Loe, now both Lovers enter-glancing sweet (Like Sun and Moon, when at full view they meet
 In the mid-month) with amorous raye's reflection 830
 Send mutuall Welcoms from their deep affection :
 Both a-like young, like beautifull, like brave,
 Both grac't a-like ; so like, that who have
 Not neer observ'd their heads' unlikenesse,
 Think them two Adons, or two Venuses.
 These novice Lovers at their first arrive
 Are bashfull both ; their passions strangely strive :
 The soule's sweet Fire his ruby flames doth flush
 Into their Faces in a modest blush :
 Their tongues are ti'd, their star-bright eye seems vail'd 840
 With shame-fac't Cypres ; all their senses fail'd.
 But, pompous Hymen, whither am I brought ?
 Am not I (heathen) under th' happy Vault
 Where all the Gods, with glorious mirth enhanc't,
 At Thetis's Nuptials ate, and drank, and danc't ?
 Here, th' Idumeans's mighty Jove treads under His tripping feet, his bright-light burning Thunder.
 A-while he layes his Majesty aside,
 To court, and sport, and revell with his Bride ;
 King, playes the Courtier ; Sovereign, Suter 'coms ; 850
 And seems but equal with his Chamber-Grooms :
 But yet, what e'r hee doe, or can devise,
 Disguised glory shineth in his eyes.
 Here, many a Phabus, and here many a Muse
 On Heav'nly Layes so rarely-sweet doe use
 Their golden bowes, that with the rapt sound
 Th' Arches & Columns wel-nigh dance the Round.
 Here many a Juno, many a Pallas here,
 Here many a Venus and Diana cleer
 Catch many a gallant Lord, according as 860
 Wealth, Beauty, Honour, their affection drawes.
 Here, many a Hebt fair, here more then one
 Quick-serving Chiron neatly waits upon
 The Beds and Boords, and plant bears about
 The bowles of Nectar quickly turned out ;
 And th' over-burdned Tables bend with weight
 Of their Ambrosiall over-filled fraight.
 Here, many a Mars un-blondly Combats fights ;
 Here, many a Hermes findes out new delights ;

	Here, many a horned Satyr , many a Pan , 870	Bordred with Pheasants, Eagles winged-black,
	Here, Wood-Nymphs , Flood-Nymphs , many a Fairy	And Elephants with Turrets on their back ;
	Fawn	Pointed with Diamonds, powdred and imbost 990
	With lusty frisks and lively bounds bring-in	With Emeralds, perfum'd with wondrous Cost.
	Th' Antike, Morisho , and the Mattachins :	The third leads quicker on the selfsame Arch	Mars.
	For, even God's Servants (God knows how) have supt	His Pyrrhic Galiard, like a star-like March :
	The surged baen of Pagan Rites corrupt.	His face is fiery ; Many an Amethyst,
	But, with so many lively Types, at will,	And many a Jasper of the perfectest
	His rich rare Arras shall some other fill :	Doth brightly glister in the double gilt
	Of all the sports, He onely chuse one Measure ,	Of the rich Pommell, and the precious Hilt
	One stately Mask compos'd of sage-sweet pleasure ;	Of his huge Fauchin, bow'd from hand to heel ;
	A Dance so chaste, so sacred, and so grave 880	His boystrous body shines in burnisht Steel :
	(And yet so gracefull, and so lofty-brave)	His Shield flames bright with gold, imbosmed high 940
	As may besoeem (except I mee abuse)	With Wolves and Horse seem-running swiftly by,
	Great SALOMON, and my celestiaall Muse .	And frieng'd about with sprigs of Scammony,
	The Tables voided of their various Cates,	And of Euphorbium , forged cunningly.
	They rise at once : and, suiting their Estates,	But, O fair Fairy , who art thou, whose eyes	Venus.
	Each takes a Dame, and then to Dance they come	Inflame the Seas, the Ayre, the Earth, and Skies ?
	Into a stately, rich, round-arched Room,	Tell us, what art thou, O thou fairest Fair,
	So large and lightsom, that it right they call	That trimm'st the Trammels of thy golden hair .
	The Universall , or the World's great Hall .	With Myrtle, Thymes and Roses ; and thy Brest
	O what delight, to see so rich a show 890	Gird'st with a rich and odoriferous * Cest ,	*A Spouse: bel .
	Of Lords and Ladies dancing in a row	Where all the wanton brood of sweetest Loves 950
	All in a Round, reaching so far and wide	Doe nestle close ; on whom the Turtle-Doves,
	O'r all the Hall to foot-it side by side !	Pigeons, and Sparrows day and night attend,
	Their eyes' sweet splendor seems a Pharus bright,	Cooing and wooing wheresoe'r thou wend :
	With clinquant Rayes their Body's clothed light :	Whose Robe 's imbroidered w th Pomgranat boughs,
	'Tis not a Dance, but rather a smooth sliding,	Button'd with Sapphires, edg'd with Beryll rowes :
	All move alike, after the Musick's guiding :	Whose capering foot, about the starry floor,
	Their Tune-skill'd feet in so true Time doe fall,	The Dance-guide Prince now follows, now 's before ?
	That one would swear one Spirit doth bear them all :	Art thou not Shee, that with a chaste-sweet flame
	They poste un-moving ; and, though swift the passe, 900	Did'st both our Brides' hearts into one heart frame ?
	'Tis not perceiv'd : of hundred thousand pase,	And, was not Hee, that with so curious steps, 960	Mercury.
	One single back they : Round on Round they dance,	Next after thee, so nimbly turns and leaps ;
	And, as they traverse, cast a fruitfull glance.	Say, was not Hee the witty Messenger,
	Just in the middle of the Hall ; a-sloop	Their eloquent and quick Interpreter ?
	(Even from the floor unto the very top)	How strange a suit ! His medly Mantle seems
	A broad rich Baldrick there extendeth round,	Scarlet, Wave-laced with Quick-silver streams ;
	In-laid with gold upon an azure ground ;	And th' end of every Lace, for tuft, hath on
	Where (cover'd all with Flames) in wondrous art	A precious Porphyre, or an Agate stone :
	Five Lords , two Ladies dance ; but each a-part.	A crie of Hounds have here a Deer in Chase ;
Saturn.	Here trips an Old-man in a Mantle dy'd 910	There a false Fox, here a swift Kid they trace :
	Deep Leaden-hue, and round about him ty'd	There Larks and Linots, and sweet Nightingals 970
	With a Snake-girdle biting off her tail.	(Fain'd upon fained Trees) with wings and tails
	Within his Robes' stuff (in a winding trall)	Loose hanging, seem to swell their little throats,
	Creeps Mandrake, Comin, Rue and Hellebore ;	And with their warbling, shame the Cornet's notes.
	With lively figures of the Bear and Boar,	Light Fumitory, Parsly, Burnet's blade,
	Camell, and Asse (about to bray well-nigh) :	And winding leafe his crispy Looks beshade :
	There the Strimonian Fowl seems ev'n to cry ;	Hee's light and lively, all in Turns and Tricks ;
	The Peacock, even to prank. For Tablet fine	In his great Round, hee many small doth mix :
	About his neck hangs a great Cornaline,	His giddy course seems wandring in disorder ;
	Where some rare Artist (curiousing upon 't)	And yet there's found, in this disorder, order.
	Hath deeply cut Time's triple-formed Front : 920	Avoyd base Vulgar, back Profane, stand-by ; 980
	His pase is heavie, and his face severe ;	These sacred Revels are not for your eye :
	His Body here, but yet his Minde else-where.	Come gentle Gentles, Noble Spirits, draw neer,
Jupiter.	There the Lord Zedec him more spritley bears,	Preasse through the Preasse, come take your places
	Milde, fair and pleasant : on his back he wears	here,
	Tin-colour'd Tissue, figur'd all with Oaks,	To see at full the Bride-groom and the Bride,
	Ears, Violets, Lillies, Olives, Apricocks ;	A lovely Pair, exactly beautif'd

With rare perfections, passing all the rest,
Sole-happy Causes of this sumptuous Feast.
Loe where they come : O what a splendor bright
Mine eyes do dazle ! O thou primer Light !
Sun of the Sun, thy Rayes' keen point rebate, 990
Thy dread-spread Fire a little temperate ;
O, dart (direct) on thy fair Spouse a-space
Thine eyes' pure light, the lustre of thy Face ;
For, I no longer can endure it, I Am burnt to ashes : O, I faint, I dye.

But, blessed Couple, sith (alas) I may-not Behold you both unmasked (nay, I can-not)
Yet in these Verses let mee tell (I pray)
Your Dance, your Courting, and your rich array.

Lana. The Queen's adorn'd down to her very heels 1000
In her fair hair (whence still sweet deaw distils)
Halfe hanging down ; the rest in rings and curls,
Platted with strings of great, round, orient Pearls :
Her gown is Damask of a Silver-ground,
With Silver Seas all deeply-frienged round ;
With Gourds & Moon-wort branched richly-fair,
Flourisht with beasts that onely eat the Ayre.

But why, my Muse, with pencil so precise,
Seek'st thou to paint all her rich Rarities ?
Of all the Beauties, Graces, Honours, Riches, 1010 Wherewith rich Heav'n these Maskers all in-riches,

Shee's even the Mother ; and then, as a Glasse,
On the Beholders their effects shee casts.

Sol. A Garland, braided with the Flowry foulds
Of yellow Citrons, Turn-Sols, Mary-Golds,
Beset with Bal'nites, Rubites, Chrysolites,
The royall Bride-groom's radiant brows be-dights :
His saffron'd Ruffe is edged richly-neat
With burning Carbuncles, and every set
Wrought rarely-fine with branches (draw'n upon) 1020
Of Laurell, Cedar, Balm, and Cinnamon :

On his Gold-grounded Robe the Swan so white
Seems to his honour some new Song t' indite.
The Phenix there builds both her nest and tomb ;
The Crocodile out of the waves doth come ;
Th' amazed Reaper down his sickle flings ;
And sudden Fear grafts to his Ancles wings.
There the fierce Lion, from his furious eye,
His mouth and nostrils, fiery Flames lets-flie ;
Seems with his whisking train his rage to whet ; 1030
And, wrath-full ramping, ready even to set
Upon a Heard of fragrant Leopards ;

When loe, the Cock (that light his rage regards)
A purple Plume timbers his stately Crest ;
On his high Gorget and broad hardy Brest
A rich Coat-Armour (Or and Azure) shines,
A friedge of ravel'd gold about his Loins,
In lieu of Bases. Beard as red as blond,
A short Beak bending like the Eagle's brood ;
Green-yellow Eyes, where Terrour's Tent is pight, 1040
A Martiall gait, and spurred as a Knight ;
Into two arches his proud Train divides,
With painted wings hee claps his cheerfull sides,

Sounds his shrill Trumpet, and seems with his sight
The Lion's courage to have daunted quite.

These happy Lovers, with a practiz'd pase,
Forward and backward and a-side doe trace ;
They seem to dance the Spanish Pavane right :
And yet their Dance, so quick and lively-light,
Doth never pass the Baldrick's bounds (at all) 1050
Which grav'n with Star-beasts over-thwarts the Hall.

When the brave Bride-groom tow'rds Mount Silo traces,

A thousand Flowrs spring in his spritefull pases :
When towards Mount Olivet he slides, there grows
Under his feet a thousand Frosty Snowes :

For, the Floor, beaten with his Measures ever,
Seems like the Footing of the nimble Weaver.

This lovely Couple now kisse, now recoil :
Now with a lowring eye, now with a smile :
Now Face to Face they Dance, now side by side, 1060
With Course un-equal ; and the tender Bride,
Receives strange Changes in her Countenance,
After her Lover's divers-seeming glance.

If unawares some, Envious, come between
Her and her Love, then is shee sad be-seen,
Shee shuts her eye, shee seems ev'n to depart ;
Such force hath true Love in a noble heart.
But all that's nothing to their Musick choyce ;
Tuning the warbles of their Angell-Voyce
To Foot and Violl, and Care-charming Lute, 1070
In amorous Ditty thus doe they dispute ;

O "Bright-ey'd Virginia ! O how fair thou art ! The Epithalamy.

"O how I love thee, My Snow-winged Dove !

"O how I love thee ! Thou hast rapt my heart.

"For thee I Die : For thee I Live, my Love.

"How fair art thou, my Dear ! How dear to mee !

"Dear Soule (awake) I faint, I sink, I swoon

"At thy dear Sight : and when I sleep, for Thee

"Within my brest stil wakes my sharp-sweet woild. 1079

"My Love, what Odours thy sweet Treas it yields !

"What Amber-greece, what Incense breath'st thou out

"From purple fillets ! and what Myrrh distils

"Still from thy Fingers, ring'd with gold about !

"Sweet-heart, how sweet is th' odour of thy praise !

"O what sweet airs doth thy sweet air deliver

"Unto my Burning Soule ! What hony Layes

"Flow from thy throat ! thy throat a golden River.

"Among the Flowrs, my Flow'r's a Rose, a Lilly :

"A Rose, a Lilly ; this a Bud, that blow'n :

"This fragrant Flow'r first of all gather will-I, 1090

"Smell to it, kisse it, wear it as mine owne.

"Among the Trees, my Flow'r's an Apple-Tree,

"Thy fruitfull Stem bears Flow'r & Fruit together :

"I'll smell thy Flow'r, thy Fruit shall nourish mee,

"And in thy shadow will I rest for ever."

While Hesperus in Azure Waggon brought Millions of Tapers over all the Vault,

These gorgeous Revels to sweet Rest give place,
And the Earth's Venus doth Heav'n's Venus trace.

These Spousals past the King doth nothing minde 1100
But The Lord's House; there is his care confin'd :
His Checker's open, hee no cost respects ;
But sets a-worke the wittiest Architects.

Millions of hands be busie labouring,
Through all the Woods, wedges, and beetles ring :
The tufted tops of sacred Libanon,
To climb Mount Sion, down the stream are gone :
Forrests are saw'd in Transoms, Beams and Somers,
Great Rocks made little, what with Saws & Hammers :

The sturdy Quar-man with steel-headed Cones 1110
And massie Sledges slenteth out the stones,
Digs through the bowels of th' Earth baked stiff,
Cuts a wide Window through a horned Cliff

Of ruddy Porphyre, or white Alabaster,
And masters Marble, which no time can master.
One melts the White-stone with the force of Fire ;

Another, level'd by the Lesbian Squire,
Deep under ground (for the Foundation) joyns
Well-polisht Marble, in long massie Coins ;

Such, both for stuff, and for rare artifice, 1120
As might beseech some royall Frontispice.

This heaws a Chapter ; that a Frize doth frame :

This carves a Cornich ; that prepares a Jambe :

This forms a Plynth ; that fits an Architrave :

This planes a Plank ; and that the same doth
grave :

Gives life to Cedars dead, and cunningly
Makes Wood to move, to sigh and speak well-nigh :

And others, rearing high the sacred Wall,

By their bold Labours Heav'n it selfe appall :

Cheerly they work, and pile it in such sort 1130

As if they thought long Summer-dayes too-short.

As in Grape-Harvest, with unwearie pains,

A willing Troup of merry-singing Swains

With crooked hooks the strouting Clusters cut,

In Fraills and Flaskets them as quickly put,

Run bow'd with burdens to the fragrant Fat,

Tumble them in, and after pit-a-pat

Up to the Waste ; and, dancing in the Must,

To th' under-Tub a flowry showr doe thrust ;

They work a-vie, to th' eie their Work doth grow, 1140

Who saw 't i' th' Morning, scarce at Night can know

It for the same : and God himselfe doth seem

T' have ta'en to task this Work, and work for them

While in the Night sweet Sleep restores with rest

The weary limbs of Work-men over-prest.

Great King, whence came this Courage, Titan-like,

So many Hills to heap upon a rick ?

What mighty Rowlers, and what massie Cars

Could bring so far so many monstrous Quars ?

And what huge strength of hanging vaults embow'd 1150

Bears such a weight above the winged Cloud ?

If on the Out-side I doe cast mine eye,

The Stones are joyn'd so artificially,

That if the Mason had not checkerd fine

Syrre's* Alabaster with hard Serpentine,

And hundred Marbles no lesse fair then firm :
The whole, a whole Quar one might rightly learn.

If I look In, then scorn I all with-out ;

Surpassing Riches shineth all about :

Floor, Sides and Seeling cover'd triple-fold, 1160

Stone lin'd with Cedar, Cedar linn'd with Gold :

And all the Parget carv'd and branched trim

With Flowrs and Fruits, and winged Cherubim.

I over-passe the sacred Implements,

In worth far passing all these Ornaments ;

The Art answers to the stuff, the stuff to th' use.

O perfect Artist ! thou for Mould did'st chuse

The World's Idta : For, as first the same

Was sever'd in a Three-fould divers Frame,

And God Almighty rightly did Ordain 1170

One all Divine, one Heav'nly, one Terrene ;

Decking with Vertues one, with Stars another,

With Flowrs, & Fruits, & Beasts, & Birds, the other :

And plaid the Painter, when he did so gild

The turning globes, blew'd seas, & green'd the field,

Gave precious Stones so many-coloured luster,

Enameld Flowrs, made Metals beam and glister ;

The Carver, when he cut in leaves and stems

Of plants, such veins, such figures, files and hems :

The Founder, when hee cast so many Forms 1180

Of winged Fowls, of Fish, of Beasts, of Worms.

Thou dost divide this Sacred House in Three ;

Th' HOLY OF HOLIES, wherein none may bee

But God, the Cherubins, and (once a year)

The Sacred Figure of Perfection dear,

Of God's eternal Son (Sin's sin-lease check)

The everlasting true MELCHISEDEC :

The fair mid-TEMPLE, which is ope alone

To Sun-bright Levits, who on Israell shone

With Rayes of Doctrine ; and who, feeding well 1190

On the Lawe's Hony, seem in Heav'n to dwell ;

And th' utter PORCH, the People's residence,

The Vulgar's Ile, the World of Elements ;

And various Artist honour'at all the Parts

With Myron's, Phidias', and Appelles' Arts.

This Pattern pleas'd thee so, th' hast fram'd by it

Th' eternal Watch-births of thy sacred Wit :

Thy pithy Book of Proverbs, richly-grave,

Unto the PORCH may right relation have ;

For that it gives us Oeconomick Lawes, 1200

Rules Politick, and private civill Sawes ;

And (for the most) those Lessons generall

At Humane matters ayme the most of all.

Ecclesiastes the Mid-TEMPLE seems :

It treadeth down what ever Flesh esteems

Fair, pleasant, precious, glorious, good or great ;

Drawes us from earth, and us in Heav'n doth seat :

And, all the World proclaiming Vain of Vains,

Man's happnesse in God's true Fear maintains.

SANCTUM-SANCTORUM in thy Song of Songs, 1210

Where, in Mysterious Verse (as meet belongs)

Thou marriest Jacob to Heav'n's glorious King,

Where thou (devoted) dost divinely sing

The building of the TEMPLE.

Simile.

*Syrian.

CHRIST's and his CHURCHE's Epithalamy :
Where (sweetly-rapt in sacred Extasie)
The faithfull Soule talks with her God immense,
Hears his sweet Voyce, her selfe doth quintessence
In the pure flames of his sweet-piercing eyes
(The Cabinets where Grace and glory lies),
Enjoys her Joy, in her chaste bed doth kisse 1220
His holy lips (the Love of loves) her Blisse.

Dedication of the Temple.

When hee had finisht and had furnisht full
The House of God, so rich, so beautifull ;
O God, said Salomon, great Onely-Trine !
Which of this Mystick sacred House of Thine
Hast made mee Builder ; build mee in the same
A living Stone. For thy dear DAVID's name,
On DAVID's branches DAVID's blisse revive ;
That on his Throne his Issue still may thrive.
O All-comprising, None-comprised Prince, 1230
Which art in Heav'n by thy Magnificence,
In Hell by Justice, each-where by thy Pow'r's,
Dwell here, dear Father, by thy Grace (to Ours).
If, in a doubtfull Case, one needs must swear,
Loose thou the Knot, and punish thou severe
Th' audacious Perjure ; that hence-forth none chance
Tax thee of Malice, or of Ignorance.
If our dis-flowered Trees, our Fields Hail-torn,
Our empty Ears, our light and blasted Corn,
Presage us Famine ; If, with ten-fold chain, 1240
Thy hand hath lockt the Water-gates of Rain ;
And, tow'rds this House wee, humbled, cast our eie,
Hear us, O Lord, hear our complaint and crie.
If, Captives, wee in a strange Land bewail,
If in the Wars our Force and Fortune fail ;
And, tow'rds this House we, humbled, cast our eye,
Hear us, O Lord, hear our complaint and crie.
If Strangers, mov'd with rumour of thy Miracles,
Come here to Offer, to consult thine Oracles,
And in this House do kneel religiously ; 1250
Hear them, O Lord, hear their complaint and crie :
Hear them from Heav'n ; and, by thy Favours prest,
Draw to thy TEMPLE, North, South, East, and West.

The passe-Man *Wisdom*e of th' Isaacian Prince,
A light so bright, set in such eminence
(Un-hideable by envious Arrogance,
Under the Bushell of black Ignorance)
Shines every where, illusters every place :
Among the rest it Lightens in the Face
Of the fair Princesse, that with prudent hand 1260
The soft Arabian Scepter doth command ;
The Queen of Saba, where continuall Spring
Red Cinnamon, Incense and Myrrhe doth bring ;
Where private men do Prince-like Treasures hold,
Where Pots be Silver, Bedsteads beaten Gold ;
Where Walls are rough-cast wth the richest Stones,
Cast in Devices, Emblems, Scutchions.
Yet leaving all this Greatnesse of her owne,
Shee comes to view the State of SALOMON,
To hear his *Wisedom*e, and to see his Citie, 1270
Refuge of Vertues, School of Faith and Pitie.

The Queen of Saba.

You that do shut your eyes against the rayes
Of glorious Light, which shineth in our dayes ;
Whose spirits, self-obstin'd in old musty Error,
Repulse the Truth (th' Almightie's sacred Mirror)
Which day & night at your deaf Doors doth knock ;
Whose stubbornnesse will not at all un-lock
The sacred Bible, nor so much as look
(To talk with God) into his holy Book :
O, fear you not, that this great Princesse shall 1280
Of thank-less Sloth one day condemne you all ?
Who (both a Woman, Queen, and Pagan) borne
Ease, Pleasures, Treasures, doth despise and scorn ;
To passe with great pains, and with great expence,
Long weary Journeys full of diffidence,
And nobly travels to another Land
To hear the words but of a (mortall) Man ?
Her Time's not lost : there (rapt) shee doth con-temple

A just reproofe of all obstinate Keruanis.

The sumptuous beauties of a stately TEMPLE,
The lofty Towers of hundred Towns in one, 1290
A pompous Palace, and a Peer-lesse Throne,
Wals rich without ; furnisht in richer sort :
Number of Servants doth adorne the Court,
But more their Order. There, no noise is heard,
Each his owne Office onely doth regard :
And (in one instant) as the quaverings
Of a quick Thumb move all the divers strings
Of a sweet Gittern ; and, its skill to grace,
Causeth a Treble sound, a Mean, a Base :
So SALOMON, discreetly with a becke, 1300
A wink, a word, doth all the Troups direct :
Each of his Servants hath his proper Lesson,
And (after his Degree) each hath his fashion.

This Queen, yer parting from her fragrant Iles,
Arm'd her wth Riddles and with witty Wiles,
T' appose the King ; and she resolves shee will
With curious Questions sift and sound his Skill.
But loe what Oedipus ! The Law-learn'd Sage,
Which at the Bar hath almost spent his age,
Cannot so soon a common Doubt decide, 1310
Where Statutes, Customs, and Book-Cases guide,
As hee dissolves her Gordian-knots, and sees
Through all her nights, and ev'n at pleasure frees
Such doubts, as doubt-less might have taskt, t' untwist,
The Brackman, Druide, and Gymnosophist :
And knowing, Good becoms more Good, the more
It is en-common'd, hee applies therefore
T' instruct her in the Faith ; and (envious-idle)
His brains' rich Talent buries not in Idle.

Alas, I pity you : alas (quoath Hee) 1320
Poor Soules besotted in Idolatry,
Who worship Gold and Silver, Stocks and Stones,
Men's Workmanship, and Fiends' Illusions ;
And, who (by your sage Magies' Lore mis-led)
So-many Godlings have imagined ;
Madame, there is but one sole God, most-High,
The Eternall King ; nay, self-Eternitie,
Infinite, All in all, yet out of all,
Of Ends the End, of Firsts Originall,

Of Lights the Light, Essence surpassing Essence, 1330
 Of Pow'r pure Act, of Acts the very Puissance;
 Cause of all Causes, Ocean of all Good,
 The Life of Life, and of all Beauty Floud;
 None-seen All-Seer, Starr's-guide, Sight of Seeing,
 The Uni-form, which gives all forms their Being.
 God, and One, is all One: whose the Unitle
 Denies, hee (Atheist) disannuls Divinity:
 Th' Unity dwels in God, i' th' Fiend the Twine;
 The greater World hath but one Sen to shine,
 The lesser but one Soule, both but one God, 1340
 In Essence One, in Person Trinity-odde.
 Of this great Frame, the parts so due-devis'd,
 This Bodie, tun'd so, measur'd, sympathis'd,
 This TEMPLE, where such Wealth and Order meet,
 This Art in every part cannot proceed
 But from one Pattern; and that but from one
 Author of all, who all preserves alone.
 Else should wee see in set Batalions
 A hundred thousand furious Partisans;
 The World would nurse civill intestine Wars, 1350
 And wrack it selfe in it self's factious Jars.
 Besides, God is an infinite Divinity:
 And who can think of more then one Infinity?
 Seeing the one restrains the other's might,
 Or rather reaves its name and being quite.
 Therefore (O Pagans) why do you confine
 The infinite in narrow Walls of Lime?
 Why shut you him in a base Trunk or Tree;
 Why paint you Whom no mortall eye can see?
 Why offer you your carnall services 1360
 Unto the Lord, who a meer Spirit is?
 Why then doe you (said shee) by our example,
 Inclose th' Immortall in this earthly TEMPLE?
 Lock him within an Arke? and, worse then wee,
 Feed him with Fumes, and bloody Butchery?
 This Sacred House so fair (reply'd hee then)
 Is not to contain God, but godly men
 Which worship him: and we doe not suppose
 That Hee, whose Arms do Heav'n & Earth inclose,
 Is closed in a Chest; but th' ancient Pact, 1370
 The solemne Cov'nant, and the sure Contract,
 Which leagues us with our God, & each wth other,
 And (holy Bond) holds Heav'n and Earth together:
 As for our Incense, Washings, Sacrifices,
 They are not (as is thought) Our vain Devices;
 But, God's their Author, and himselfe Ordains
 These Elements, whereby hee entertains
 And feeds our understanding in the hope
 Of his dear Son (of all These things the Scope);

Setting before us th' Onely Sacrifice, 1380
 Which in CHRIST'S Blood shall wash-out all our vice.

Come then, O Lord, Come thou Lawes finisher,
 Great King, great Prophet, great Self's Offerer:
 Come, come thou thrice Great Refuge of our State
 Come, thou our Ransome, Judge and Advocate:
 Milde Lamb, Saive-Serpent, Lion generous,
 Un-challeng'd Umpire betwixt Heav'n and Us,
 Come thou the Truth, the Substance and the End

Of all our Offerings (whither all doth tend):
 Come O MESSIAS, and doe now begin 1390
 To Reign in Sion, to triumph o'r Sin;
 And, worshipp'd in Spirit and Truth, restore
 Upon the Earth the Golden age of yore:
 Accept this Queen, as of all Heathen Princes
 The dear First-Fruits; take on thee our Offences,
 That, stript of Adam's sinfull sute, in fine
 With sacred Angels wee in Heav'n may shine.

The Queen, nigh sunk in an amazefull Swoun,
 Bespake him thus; My Lord, prattling renown
 Is wont in flying to increase so far, 1400
 That shee proclaims things greater then they are;
 And, rarest Spirits resemble Pictures right, Simile.
 Whereof the rarest seem more exquisite
 Far-off, then neer; but, so far as thy Fame
 Excels all Kings, thy Vertues passe the same:
 Thy peer-less Praise stoops to thy Learned tongue,
 And envious brutt hath done thy Wisdome wrong.

So may I say, even so (O SCOTTISH King)
 Thy winged Fame, which far and wide doth ring, Application to the King's Majesty.
 From th' edge of Spain hath made mee ventrously 1410
 To crosse the Seas, thy Britain's end to see:
 Where (Lord!) what saw I? nay, what saw I not?
 O King (Heav'n-chosen, for some speciall Plot)
 World's Miracle, O Oracle of Princes?
 I saw so much, my Soule mistrusts my Senses.
 A gray-beard's Wisdome in an amber-bush,
 A Mars-like Courage in a Maid-like blush,
 A settled Judgement with a supple Wit,
 A quick Discourse, profound and pleasing yet;
Virgil and Tully, in one spirit infus'd, 1420
 And all Heav'n's Gifts into one Head diffus'd.
 Persist, O King, glory on glory mount;
 And as thy Vertues thine owne Fame surmount,
 So let thy future passe thy former more,
 And goe-before those that have gone-before:
 Excell thy selfe; and, brave, grave, godly Prince,
 Confirm my Song's eternall Evidence.

The Schisme.

THE THIRD BOOKE OF THE FOURTH DAY OF THE II. WEEKE, OF BARTAS.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Rejecting Old, Young-Counsail'd rash ROBOAM
 Loseth Ten Tribes, which fall to JEROBOAM.
 Hos, Godding Calves, makes Israel to Sin :
 His Scepter therefore shortly fails his Kin.
 BA'Z, ZIMRI, OMRI, ACHAB (worst of all)
 With JEZABEL. Elias conquers Ba'l :
 Commands the Clouds : rapt-up to Heav'n, alive,
 Elisha's Works : his bones the dead revive.
 SAMARIA's tragick Siege. A Storm at Sea,
 For Jona's sake : repentant NINIVE.*

10

The misery of a State distracted by factions into Civill Wars.

Here sing I ISAAC's civill Brawls and Broils ;
Jacob's Revolt : their Cities sack, their Spoils ; Their curs'd Wrack, their Godded Calves : the rent

Of th' Hebrew Tribes from th' Ishean's Regiment.

Ah ! see we not, some seek the like in France ?
 With rage-full swords of civill Variance,
 To share the sacred Gaulian Diadem ?

Application.

To strip the Lillies from their native stem ?
 And (as it were) to Cantonise the State
 Whose Law did aw Imperiall Rhines (of late)
Tiber and Iber too ; and under whom
 Even silver Jordan's captive flouds did foam.

20

Deprecation.

But, let not us, good Lord, O let not us
 Serve servilely a hundred Kinglings thus,

In stead of one great Monarch : never let
 The lawfull Heir from his owne Throne be beat ;
 This Scepter yearly to be new possess ;
 Nor every Town to be a Tyrant's nest :
 Keep all intire, re-establish prudent Reign,
 Restore the Sword to Justice's hand again ;
 That, blest with Peace, thy blessed Praise (O Lord)
 My thankfull Laves may more and more record.

30

THE GENERALL States of Israel, gathered all,
 By thousands now, within strong Sichem's Wall ;
 All joyntly name ROBOAM for their King,
 But (strictly stout) his Pow'r thus limiting :

A Parliament or Assembly of the Estates of Israel

Command (say they) and Rule in Abram's Fold,
 Not as a Wolf, but as Shepheard should :
 Slacken the reans of our late Servitude :
 Lighten our gall'd backs of those Burthens rude,
 Those heavie Imposts of thy Father (fierce) ;
 Represse the rapin of thine Officers :
 So, wee will serve thee, life and goods at-once :
 If other-wise ; thy service wee renounce.

The People capitulate with their new King.

Here-with amaz'd, the moody Prince, in post
 Sends for those Ancients which had sway'd most
 His Father's Counsails : and hee seems to crave
 Their sage Advices, in a case so grave.

God hath not made, say they (jumping together)
 Subjects for Kings, but Kings for Subjects rather :
 Then, let not thine (already in distresse)
 Be gnaw'n by others ; by thy self much lesse.

50 The Council of the ancient Nobles.

What boots a Head, with-out the Hand and Foot?
 What is a Scepter, and no Subjects to 't?
 The greater Milt, the Body pines the more:
 The Checker's fatt'ng makes the People poor:
 A Prince's Wealth in Subjects' Wealth is set:
 The Bank of Thrift, where gold doth gold beget:
 Where the good Prince comes never but at need: 60
 For, he is prais'd for a good Heard (indeed)
 Whose Flock is fat and fair, with frolick bounds
 Frisking and skipping up and down the Douns.
 Among the Beasts fullest of furious gall,
 The Vulgar's fiercest, wildest, worst of all;
Hydra with thousand heads, and thousand stings,
 Yet soon agreed to war against their Kings.
 If then you wish, their barking rage to cease
 Cast them a bone; by an abatement, cease
 Their wringing Yoke, thy pity let them prove: 70
 And ground thy Greatnesse on thy People's love.
 Or, if thou (fell) wilt needs feed on their yoe,
 Yet use no threats, nor give them flat Denies:
 But, to establish thy yet-new estate,
 Give them some hope, and let them feed on that:
 And (wisely) minde thy Father's Saying sage,
 That A soft answer (soon) appeaseth rage.
 ROEOAM, scorning these old Senators,
 Leans to his Yonglings, Minions, Flatterers
 (Birds of a feather) that with one accord 80
 Cry-out, importune, and perswade their Lord,
 Not sillily to be by such disturb'd,
 Nor let him-selfe so simply to be curb'd;
 But, to repress, presse, and oppresse the more
 These Male-contents, but too-well us'd before;
 With yron teeth to bruise their idle bones,
 To suck their Marrow out; and (for the nonce)
 Their rebell Pride to fetter (as it were)
 And lock their Fury in the stocks of Fear,
 And to shake-off (on th' other side) and shun 90
 Those Gray-beards' old and cold direction,
 Their sawcy censures, snibbing his Minority;
 Where-by (too-proud) they trip at his Authority,
 Usurp his place; and (too-too-malapert)
 Would teach a wiser then themselves his part:
 To know that hee 's a King; and that hee took
 Even in the womb, as th' outwards limbs and look,
 So th' inward graces, the Discretion
 And deep fore-sight of prudent SALOMON;
 And, in the shop of Nature, learn'd (long since) 100
 The Art of State, the Office of a Prince.
 Wisdome (fond King) her sacred Seat erects
 In hoary brains; and Day the Day directs:
 Th' Old-man-fore-sees a-far; by past events
 Hee (prudent) ponders future accidents;
 The Young-man knows not (new-com, as it were)
 This wily World, but as a Passenger;
 And, more with Courage then with Counsaill's guide,
 Barely beholds things on the outer side.
 Yet, to the last thou lean'st; and, frowning fell, 110
 Check'st thus the Sons of noble Israel:

Ah! rebell Slaves! you, you will Rule your King:
 You 'l be his Carvers: you will clip his wing:
 You 'l hold the sacred Helm, controule the Crown:
 You 'l rate his State, and turn all up-side-down.
 But, know you (varlets) whom you dally-with?
 My little finger over-balanceth
 My Father's loynes: hee did but rub you light,
 I 'l flay your backs; hee bow'd, I 'l break yee quite.
 Hee threatned Rods (or gentle Whips of cord) 120
 But I will have your carrion shoulders goar'd
 With scourges tang'd with rowels: and my Name
 Shall make you quake, if you but hear the same.
 As rapid streams, incountring in their way
 With close-driv'n piles of some new bank or bay,
 Or steady pillars of a Bridge built new,
 Which last-past Summer never saw, nor knew;
 Swell, roar, and rage far fiercer then they wont,
 And with their foam defile the Welkin's front:
 So yerst griev'd Isaac, now grown desperate, 130
 With loud proud tearms doth thus expostulate;
 Why? what have wee to doe (what part? what place?)
 With Bozaiann Ishay's avaricious race?
 Goe, Reign (proud Juda) where thou wilt; for wee
 Nill bear the burthen of thy Tyranny;
 Goe, use else-where thy cruell threats and braves;
 Wee are thy Brethren, wee, and not thy Slaves.
 Thus cry the People, and th' ill-counsaill'd King
 Un-kingly yeelds to their rude mutining:
 And flies eft-soons with some few Benjamites, 140
 The zealous Levites, and the Judaites:
 The rest revolt, and chuse for Sovereign
 A shame-lesse, faith-lesse, bold and busie-brain,
 An Ephraimite, who (double-false) doth fall
 Both from his King and from his God withall. 150
 For, hee fore-sees, that if th' Isacians still (As Law injoyn'd) should mount on Sion Hill
 To sacrifice; with beauty of that Temple,
 Their Prince's sight, the Doctrine and example
 Of sacred Levites, then would soon be taken, 160
 And drawn aboard the Bark they had forsaken.
 To rent the Church therefore hee doth devise;
 And God's true Spouse doth Harlot-like disguise;
 Will have them henceforth worship God the Lord
 Under the Form of Hay-fed Calves (abhor'd)
 In Dan and Bethel: brings up Service new:
 Profane, usurping sacred Aaron's Dew.
 But, how (ingrate) requit'st thou God, in this?
 Hee, of a Servant, made thee King of His;
 Thou, of a God, mak'st him a horned Steer: 160
 Sett'st Altar against Altar; and, the deer,
 Cleer Star of Truth beclouding with the veil
 Of thine Ambition, mak'st all Israel fail,
 And fall with-all into the Gulfe of Death.
 So deep (alas!) that from thence-forth, un-eath
 Could th' operation of so many Miracles,
 In their hard hearts reprint the Sacred Oracles.
 One-day (the while this Priest-King sacrific'd)
 To 's clov'n-foot God in Bethel (self-devis'd)

The King's rash-nesse threatning rigour.

Simile.

The Revolt of the ten Tribes.

Jeroboam.

Robosw, leaving their sound advice, leaneeth
 rather to the young fury of his Minions & Flatterers.

	A zealous Prophet from the Lord there came, 170 Who boldly thus his brutish rage doth blame : O odious House, O execrable Cell, O Satan's Forge, O impious Shop of Hell ! Accursed Altar, that so braves and boasts Against the Altar of the Lord of Hoasts ! Behold, from David shall a King return That on thy stones thy own Priests' bones shall burn : Thus saith the Lord ; and this shall be the Signe (Prodigiously to seal his Word in mine) Thou now in th' instant shalt in sunder shatter, 180 And in the Ayre shall thy vile cinders scatter.	Who, with a sigh (or with a whistle, rather) Can call the North, South, East, and West together : Who, at a beck, or with a wink, commands 230 Millions of millions of bright-winged-bands : Who with a breath, brings (in an instant) under The proudest Pow'rs : whose arrows are the Thunder. While yet they sang, fell Discord reaching-far, Hi[c]e to the Heathen that encamped are : Clean through her mantle (tattered all in flakes) Appears her brest all-over gnaw'n with Snakes, Her skin is scarr'd, her teeth (for rage) doe gnash, The Basilisk with-in her eyes doth flash ; And, one by one, shee plucks-off (in despite) 240 Her hairs (no hairs, but hissing Serpents right) And, one by one shee severally bestowes 'em Through all the Camp, in every Captain's bosom ; Blowes every vein full of her furious mood, Burns every Souldier with the thirst of blood : And, with the same blade that shee died once In valliant Gedeon's (Brother-slaught' red) Sons, Shee sets the Brother to assail the Brother, The Son the Sire, and dearest friends each-other.	Description of Discord.
Simile.	Take, take the Sot, said then th' ungodly Prince, And (as hee spake in rage-full vehemence) Reacht-out his arm : but, instantly the same So strangely with 'red and so numb became, And God so rustied every joynt, that there (But as the Body stird) it could not stir : Th' unsacred Altar sudden slent in twain ; And th' ashes flying through th' un-hallowed Fane, Blinde the blinde Priests ; as in the Summer (oft) 190 The light, white Dust (driv'n by the Winde aloft) Whirling about, offends the tendrest eye, And makes the Shepheards (with-out cause) to cry. O holy Prophet (prays the Tyrant then) Dear man of God, restore my hand again : His hand is heal'd. But (obstinate in ill) In His Calf-service Hee perseverers still ; Still runs his race, still every day impairs, And of his Sins makes all his Sons his heirs.	The swords, new draw'n against their Enemies, 250 Now (new revolted) hack their owne Allies ; And Mars so mads them in their mutuall Jar, That strange, turns civill ; civill, houshold War : Proud Edom heaws Moab and the Ammonite ; Ammon hunts Edom and the Moabite ; Moab assaults Ammon and Edom too ; And each of them wars first with th' other two, Then with themselves : then Ammon Ammon thrills, Moab wounds Moab , Edom Edom kills.	Miraculous slaughter of the Heathen by their mutuall swords divided among themselves.
	The King of Juda little better proves, 200 His Father's by-paths so Abijam loves ; The People, pliant to their Prince's guise, Forget their God, and his drad Law despise. God, notwithstanding (of his speciall grace) Entails the Scepter to the sacred race Of his dear David : and hee bindes with boughs Of glorious Laurels their victorious brows ; And evermore (how-ever Tyrants rave) Some form of Church in Sion hee will have.	From Hoast to Hoast, blind-fold Despair, in each, 260 Disports her selfe ; those that are one in speech, Under one Colours, of one very coat, Combat each other, cut each other's throat. Rage-full confusion every-where commands : Against his Captain the Lievtenant stands, The Corporall upon his Serjant flies, And basest Boyes against their Masters rise. Nay, drad Bellona passeth fiercely further, Th' own Uncle doth his owne dear Nephew murder, The Nephew th' Uncle with the like repayes, 270 Cosen thrills Cosen, Kins-man Kins-man slayes : Yea, even the Father kills his Son most cruell, And from one belly springs a bloody Duell ; Twins fiercely fight : and while each woundeth other, And drawes the life-bloud of his half-selfe Brother, Feels not his owne to fail, till in the place Both fall ; as like in fury as in face : But, strength at length (not stomach) fals in either ; And, as together born, they dye together.	The confusion of such a Camp so together by the cars.
Aza.	Asa , Abijam's Son, Jehosopha 210 The son of Asa (rightly zealous) hate All Idol-gods : and, warring with successe, Dung Isaac's Fields with Forrain carcasses. In Asa's ayd fights th' arm armi-potent, Which shakes the Heav'ns, rakes Hills, and Rocks doth rent, Against black Zerah's overdaring boast, That with drad deluge of a Million-Hoast O'r-flow'd all Juda ; and, all sacking (fell) Transported Africk into Israel : He fights for his ; who, seeing th' Ammonite , 220 The Idumean , and proud Moabite , In battell 'ray, caus'd all his Hoast to sing This Song aloud, them thus encouraging : Sa, sa (my hearts) let's cheerly to the charge ; Having for Captain, for Defence and Targe, That glorious Prince to whom the raging Sea Hath heretofore, in foaming pride, giv'n way :	The faithfull Hoast draws neer, and gladly goes 280 Viewing the bodies of their breath-lesse Foes. Men, Camels, Horse (some saddled, some with- out) Pikes, Quivers, Darts, lye mingled all about The bloody Field ; and from the Mountains nigh The Rav'ns begin with their pork-porking cry :

Here seems an arm, a Gyant late did ow,
As if it would to a Dwarf's shoulder grow ;
A Prince's hand there (known by precious signes)
Unto the arm of a base Porter joyns ;
An Old-man's head here to a Stripling's neck ; 290
And there lean buttocks to a brawny back :
Here of a body justly cloven in two,
The bloody tripes are trailing to and fro ;
There, five red fingers of a hand cut-off
Gripe still the truncheon of a steeled staff ;
And, there (at once, all broached on one Lance)
Lye three brave Horse-men in a deadly Transe.

Chariots, unfurnisht and unharnest, stood,
Over the spoaks, up to the naves in bloud ;
Th' Engaddian Snowes melt in vermilion streams, 300
And (now no marvell) Yarvel warmly steams
Stopt with dead bodies ; so, that never-more
It should have seen the Ocean (as before)
Nor paid the Tribute that his Duty craves,
Save that the crimson holp the crystall waves.

Praysed be God (said Juda) praysed be
The Lord of Hoasts, the King of Majesty,
That moaves his Foes ; that doth his own protect,
That holds so dear the bloud of his Elect ;
That fights for us, and teacheth us to fight, 310
Conquer, and triumph o'r the Pagans's might ;
And (finally) doth punish Tyrants fell,
With their owne swords, to save His Israel.

But, notwithstanding Yeroboam's Plot,
His third Successor yet succeeds him not ;
A barbarous Fury reigneth in his Race,
His bloody Scepter shifteth hands apace ;
Nadab his son, and all his seed beside,
Feels cursed Baasha's cruell Paricide ;
And Baasha's issue is by Zimri slain, 320
Zimri by Zimri : then doth Omri reign,
Omri, accursed for his owne transgression,
But more accursed for the foule succession
Of such a Son as Achab (sold to Sin)
That boldly brings Sidonian Idols in,
Builds unto Baal ; and, of all Kings the worst,
Weds Yezabel, addes Drunkenness to Thirst.

Blinde Superstition 's like a drop of Oyle
Still spreading, till it all a Garment spoyle ;
Or, like a spark, fall'n in a floor of Mat, 330
Which soon inflameth all the Chamber ; that, Fires the whole House ; the House, the Town about ;

Consuming all, and never going-out,
Till Goods, and Bodies, Towns and Temples high,
All in a Toomb of their own ashes lie :
When one begins (how little be 't) to stray
From the divine Law's little-beaten way,
We cursed fall into the black Abyse
Of all foule Errors : Every Sin that is Donns sacred Mask ; and, monsters most abhord, 340
Killing the Saints, we think to please the Lord,
As Achab did ; who vanquisht with the spel,
Speech, grace, and face of painted Yezabel,

Presumes to lay his sacrilegious hand
On th' Oyled Priests that in God's presence stand ;
Of honest Men his Towns depopulates,
Lessens the Number of his Noble States,
T' augment his Lands ; and, with the bloud of His,

Writes th' Instruments of his new purchases.
But slain (at last) by th' Hoast of Benhadad, 350
His Son* succeeds him, (and almost as bad)
Hee breaks his neck, and leaves his fatall place,
To 's brother Joram, last of Achab's race ;
An odious race, th' alliance of whose bloud
Corrupts the Heirs of Josaphat the good.
Causing his Son (charm'd with Athalia's wile)
In 's Brother's bloud his armed arms to file,
And Ahaziah's giddy brain t' infect
With the damn'd Error of Samaritan Sect.

But though these Kings did openly oppugn, 360
And stubbornly the King of Heav'n impugn ;
Though Abrah'm's issue (now degenerate)
Did but too-neer their Princes imitate ;
Though over all, a Chaos of confusion,
A Hell of Horror, Murder, and Delusion,
A Sea of Sins (contempt of God and Good)
Cover'd these Kingdoms (as another Floud) ;
God left not yet that Age without his Oracles :
A hundred Prophets, strong in word and miracles,
Resist their rage, and from sad drowning keep 370
The wracked planks on th' Idol-Ocean deep.
Cler Summer Noons need not a candle-light ;
Nor sound, Physician ; but clean opposite :
So, in our Soules, the more Sin's Flouds doe flow,
The more God makes his Mercie's Gulfe to grow.

For his Embassage in sad Achab's dayes,
Thesbite Elijah did th' Almighty raise ;
Who, burning-bold in spirit and speech, cries-out,
In Achab's ears, and all his Court about ;
O impious Achab, fear'st thou not (quoth hee) 380
The sulph'ry flames and Thunder-bolts that be Already roaring in the dreadfull fist
Of God the Lord, that doth the proud resist,
Revengeth wrongs, th' outrageous Heathen's Hammer,
Terror of Terrors, and all Tyrants' Tamer ;
Dost thou not know, He threats to Israel
A Heav'n of Brasse, if they his grace repell,
Reject his Love, and get them other Loves,
Whoring about with forrain Gods, in Groves ?
God cannot lie : his dreadfull Threatnings ever 390
Draw dreadfull Judgements (if our Sin persever) :
As the Lord lives, this Thirsty yawning Plain
In seav'n six month's drinks not a drop of Rain.

No sooner spoken, but a present view,
The Heav'ns begin to change their wonted hew ;
Th' Ayre deadly thick, doth quickly vanish quite ;
To a sad Day succeeds a sadder Night :
A bloudy vapour and a burning cloud,
By day, begirt the Sun, (all coaly-brow'd) :
By night, the Moon denies to fading Flows 400
Her silver sweat, and pearly-purled shows :

Wicked generation of the wicked.

Elijah the Prophet.

Description of the extreme Drought in Israel for three years and a halfe.

The Welkin's studded with new Blazing-Stars,
 Flame-darting Lances, fiery Crowns and Cars,
 Kids, Lions, Bears, wrapt in prodigious Beams,
 Dreadfull to see : and Phabus (as it seems)
 Weary of travell in so hot a time,
 Rests all the while in boyling Cancer's clime.
 Hills, lately hid with snow, now burn amain :
 May hath no Deaw, nor February Rain :
 Sad Atlas Niecess, and the Hunter's Star 430
 Have like effect as the Canicular :
Zephirs is mute, and not a breath is felt,
 But hectick Auster's, which doth all things swelt,
 And (panting-short) puffs every-where upon
 The with'red Plains of wicked Shomeron ;
 Th' unsavory breath of Serpents crawling o're
 The Lybians' pest-full and un-blest-full shore.

The miserable effects thereof.

Now Herbs to fall, and Flowrs to fall began ;
 Myrtles and Bays for want of moist grew wan :
 With open mouth the Earth the aide doth crave 430
 Of black-blew Clouds : cleer Kishon's rapid wave
 Wars now no more with Bridges arched round ;
Sorack, for shame, now hides him under ground :
Mohmar, whose murmur troubled with the noise
 The sleeping Shepheards, hath not stream, nor voice,
Cedron's not Cedron, but (late) Cedron's bed,
 And Jordan's Current is as dry, as dead :
 The beam-brow'd Stag, & strong-neckt Bull do lie
 On pale-fac't banks of Arnon (also drie)
 But, neither sup, nor see the Crystall Wave, 430
 Over the which so often swom they have :
 The lusty Courser, that late scorn'd the ground,
 Now lank and lean, with crest and courage downd,
 With rugged tongue out of his chained mouth,
 With hollow-flanks panting for inward drouth,
 Rouling his Bit, but with a feeble rumor,
 Would sweat for faintness, but he wanteth humour :
 The Towr-back't Camel, that best brooketh Thrust,
 And on his bunch could have transported yerst
 Neer a whole Houshold, now is able scant 440
 To bear himselfe, hee is so feebly-faint.

Both young and old, both of the base and best,
 Feel a fell Etna in their thirstie brest :
 To temper which, they breathe, but to their woe :
 For, for pure ayre, they sup into them, so,
 A putride, thick, and pestilentiall fume,
 Which stuffs their Lights, and doth their lives consume.

There's not a Puddle (though it strangely stink)
 But dry the draw't, Sea-Water's dainty Drink :
 And fusty-Bottles, from beyond-Sea, (South) 450
 Bring Nile to Somer, for the King's own mouth.
 For, though the Lord th' whole Land of Syria smites,
 Th' heat of his anger on Samaria lights
 With greatest force ; whose furious Prince implies
 The Prophet Cause of all these miseries.

Therefore, hee fearing Achab's ragefull hate,
 Down to Brook Cherith's hollow banks him gate ;
 Where, for his Cooks, Caters, and Wayters tho,
 From the foure windes the winged people goe.

Thence, to Serephka ; where hee craves the ayde 460
 Of a poor Widow : who thus mildely said,
 Alas ! fain would I, but (God wot) my store
 Is but of bread for one meal, and no more :
 Yet, give mee (saith hee) give mee some (I pray) ;
 Who soweth sparing, sparing reapeth aye :
 Sure, a good turn shall never guerdon want ;
 A Gift to Needlings is not given, but lent :
 'Tis a Well of Wealth, which doth perpetuall run :
 A fruitfull Field which thousand yeelds for one.

While thus he said, and staid ; the Widow glad, 470
 Gives to him frankly all the bread shee had :
 Shee lost not by 't : for, all the Famine-while,
 That rag'd in Tyrs, her little Flowr and Oyle
 Decreased not, yet had abee plenty still,
 For her and hers to feed in time their fill.
 At length befell fell Death to take-away
 Her onely Son, and with her Son her Joy :
 Shee prayes her Guest, and hee implores his God,
 And stretching him upon the breath-less Lad,
 Thus cries aloud : Vouchsafe mee, Lord, this boon, 480
 Restore this child's soule, which (it seems) too-soon
 Thou hast bereft : O ! let it not be said,
 That here for nought I have so oft been fed :
 Let not my presence be each-where abhor'd ;
 Nor Charity with thee to want Reward.

As a small seedling of that fruitfull Worm,
 Which (of it selfe) fine shining Sleeves doth form,
 By the warm comfort of a Virgin brest,
 Begins to quicken, creepeth (as the rest)
 Re-spins a-fresh, and, in her witty loom, 490
 Makes of her corps her corps a precious Toomb :
 This Childe (no Man, but Man's pale Module now)

With death i' th' bosom, horror on the brow,
 The bait of Worms, the booty of the Beer,
 At sacred words begins his eye to rear ;
 Swimming in Death, his pow'rs do re-assemble,
 His spirits (rewarm'd) with-in his artir's tremble ;
 Hee fetcht a sigh ; then lively rising too,
 Talks, walks, and eats, as hee was wont to do.

Fain would the Mother have besought the Seer 500
 T' have past the rest of his cold Old-age here :
 But th' holy Spirit him sudden hence doth bring Unto Samaria to th' incensed King ;

Who rates him thus : O Basilisk ! O Bane !
 Art not thou hee that sow'st the Isaacian Plain
 With Trouble-Tares ? Seditious, hast not thou
 Profan'd the Lawes of our Fore-fathers now ?
 Broken all Orders, and the Altars hann'd
 Of th' holy Gods, Protectors of our Land ?
 Since thy fond Preaching did here first begin, 510
 More and more heavie hath Heav'n's anger bin
 Upon us all ; and Ba'l's, blasphem'd by thee,
 Hath since that season never left us free
 From grievous Plagues : it is a Hell wee feel,
 Our Heav'n is Brass, our Earth is all of Steel.
 No, no, O King (if I the Truth shall tell)
 Thou, thou art hee that troublest Israel.

The like Impo-
 tion, in our dayes
 the blinde Pope-
 lings and profane
 Worldlings have laid upon the Gospel and the preachers thereof

Thou (give mee leave) thou & thy Grand-sires, mad
 After strange Gods in every Grove to gad,
 Have left the true, wise, wondrous (all-abroad) 500
 Omnipotent, victorious, glorious God :
 Such shall you prove him ; if you dare oppone
 All your Ba'l-Prophets against mee—but one.

Content, quoth Achab. Then to Carmel's top
 The Schismick Priests were quickly called up :
 Unto their Ba'l an Altar build they there ;
 To God, the Prophet doth another rear :
 Both have their Beast ; and by their prayer must prove

Whose God is GOD, by Fire from Heav'n above.
 The People's eyes, and ears, and mindes are bent 530
 Upon these Marvails, to observe th' event
 (Marvails, which might well cleer the difference
 That had so long depended in suspence
 'Twixt Israel and Juda ; and direct

Simile.

Th' Earth how to serve Heav'n's sacred Architect)
 As when two Buls, inflamed fiercely-fell
 Met front to front, their forked arms do mell.
 The feeble Heards of Heifers in a maze,
 'Twixt hope and fear, unfeeding, stand at gaze,
 To see the fight, and censure which do prove 540
 The valiantest, that hee may be their Love.

Baal's Priests.

Ba'l's bawling Priests call and cry out for life,
 They gash their flesh, with Launcet and with knife ;
 They, cruell, make their blood to spin about
 (As Claret wine from a pierc't Piece doth spout)
 And, madly shaking heads, leggs, sides and arms.
 They, howling chaunt these Dithyrambick charms ;

Help, Help, O Ba'l, O Ba'l, attend our cries,
Ba'l, heare us Ba'l, O Ba'l, bow down thine eyes :
 O Stratian, Clarian, Elutherian Pow'rs, 550
Panophæan God, approve us thine, thee ours :
 O Epicarpian ! O Epistatirian,
Phyxian, Feretrarian, O Exacestirian,
Xenian, Messapian, O Lebradean Ba'l,
 O Assabine, Ba'l-SAMEN hear our Call.

Elijah, that their bloody Rites abhord,
 And knowes aright the service of the Lord,
 T' appease his wrath hee doth not scarre his skin ;
 Nor with self-wounds presume his grace to win,
 Nor makes himselfe unfitting for his function, 560
 By selfy stripes (as causing more compunction)
 Nor, thrild with bodkins, raves in frantick-wise,
 And in a furie seems to prophetize ;
 But offers God his heart, in stead of blood :
 His speech is sober, and as milde his mood.

Ironia.

Cry loud, quoth hee : your God is yet perchance
 In a deep sleep, or doth in Arms advance
 Against his Foes (th' Egyptian Deities)
 Or is consulting how to keep the Flies
 From off his Altar. But, O Israel ! 570
 Alas ! why yoa'k'st thou God with Ba'l (or Bell) ?
 Alas ! how long thus wilt thou halt 'twixt either,
 And fondly mix Darnell and Wheat together
 In thy Faith's Field ? If Ba'l be God indeed,
 Then boldly serve him, seek him sole at need :

But, if blew Sea, and winged Firmament,
 Th' all-bearing Earth, and Storm-breed Element,
 Be but the least works of th' Almighty hand
 Of Jacob's God : If Heav'n, Ayre, Sea, and Land,
 And all in all, and all in every one, 580

By his owne finger be sustain'd alone :
 If hee have cast those cursed Nations out,
 Which yerst defil'd this fair, fat Land about ;
 To give it thee, to plant thee in their place,
 Why him alone do'st thou not aye imbrace,
 And serve him onely in thy Soule and Heart,
 Who in his Love brooks none to share a part ?
 The cord un-twisted weakens : and who serves
 Two Lords at-once, to lose them both deserves.
Ba'l dead (thou seest) hears not his Servants call, 590
 Much less can grant them their Desires at all :
 But, Jacob's God, JEHOVA, ELOHIM,
 Never deceives their hope that trust in him.

Hear me therefore, O Lord, and from above
 With sacred Fire (thy Sovereign pow'r to prove) Consume this Bullock, and shew by the same
 That thou art GOD, and I thy Servant am :
 And to thy Fold (thy Church's Lap) repeal
 Thy wandring Flock, thy chosen Israel.

600 Simile.

As fals a Meteor in a Summer Even,
 A sudden Flash comes flaming down from Heav'n,
 Licks drie the Dikes, and instantly, at once,
 Burns all to Ashes, both the Altar-stones,
 And th' Offred Bullock : and the People fall
 In zealous furie on the Priests of Ba'l ;
 And, by Elijah's prayer, soon obtain
 Rain, which so often they had askt in vain.

For, what is it Elijah cannot doe ?
 If he be hungry, Fowls, and Angels too,
 Become his Stewards. Fears hee th' armed Bands 610
 Of a fell Tyrant ? from their bloody hands
 To rescue him, Heav'n (his confederate)
 Consumes with Fire them and their fierie hate.
 Or, would hee passe a Brook that brooks no Bay,
 Nor Bridge, nor Bank ? The Water gives him way.
 Or, irks him Earth ? To Heav'n alive hee hies,
 And (saving Henock) onely hee not-dies.

This Man of God, discoursing with his heir
 Of th' upper Kingdome, and of God's Affair, 620
 A sudden whirl-winde, with a whiffing Fire,
 And flaming Chariot rapt him up intire.
 Burns not, but 'fines ; and doth (in fashion strange)
 By death-less Death, mortall immortall change.
 A long-tail'd squib, a flaming ridge, for rut Seems seen a while, where the bright Coach hath cut.

Elijah taken up alive into Heaven.

This sacred Rape, nigh rapt Elisha too :
 Who, taking up his Tutor's Mantle, though,
 Follows as far as well hee could with eye
 The fire-snort Palfreys, through the sparkling Sky ;
 Crying, my father, father mine fare-well, 630
 The Chariots and the Horse of Israel.

The Thibbian Prophet hangs not in the Air,
 Amid the Meteors to be tossed there,

As Mists, and Rains, and Hail, and hoarie Plumes,
And other Fierie many-formed Fumes :
Amid the Air tumultuous Satan roule ;
And not the Saints, the happy, Heav'nly Soules.

Nor is he nailed to some shining Wheel,
Ixion-like continually to reel ;
For CHRIST his flesh, transfigur'd, and divine, 640
Mounted above the Arches Crystalline :
And where CHRIST is, from pain and passion free,
There (after death) shall all his Chosen be.

Elijah therefore climbs th' Emperiall Pole ;
Where, ever-blest in body and in soule,
Contemns this World, becoms an Angel bright,
And doth him firm to the TRINE-ONE unite.

But how, or why should Hee this vantage have Yer CHRIST (right call'd the first-fruits of the Grave) ?

O happy passage ! O sweet, sacred Flight ! 650
O blessed Rape ! thou raptest so my sprite
In this Dispute, and mak'st my weaker wit
So many wayes to cast-about for it,
That (I confess) the more I doe contend,
I more admire, and less I comprehend.

For lack of wings, then, bidding here below
With his Successor, I proceed to show,
How, soon as hee took-up his Cloak (to bear it)
Within Elisha shin'd Elijah's Spirit ;

By pow'r whereof, immediately hee cleaves 660
An un-couth way through Jordan's rapid waves ;
Past hope hee gives to the Sunnamian Wife
A Son ; and soon restores him dead to life :
With sudden blindness smites the Syrian Troup,
The which in Dotkan did him round incoup :
Increaseth bread, and of a pound of Oyle
Fills all the Vessels in a town that while :

His hoary head (in Bethel) laught to scorn,
Is veng'd by Bears, on forty children torn :
Naaman's cleans'd ; and for foule Simonie, 670
Gehasi's punisht with his Leprosie :

Mends bitter Broath, hee maketh Iron swim
As porie Cork, upon the Water's brim.
Rich Yericho's (sometimes) sal-peetry soyl,
Through brinie springs that did about it boyl,
Brought forth no fruit, & her un-wholsom Brooks
Voyded the Town of Folk, the Fields of Flocks :

The Towns-men, therefore, thus besought the Seer,
Thou seest our Citie's situation here
Is passing pleasant ; but the ground is naught, 680
The Water worse : we pray thee mend the fault,
Sweeten our Rivers : make them pleasanter,
Our Hills more green, our Plains more fertiler.

The Prophet cal's but for a Cruse of Salt
(O strangest cure !) to cure the brynie fault
Of all their Floods : and, casting that in one
Foul stinking Spring, heals all their streams anon :
Not for an hour, or for a day, or twain,
But to this Day they sweet and sound remain.

Their Valley, walled with bald Hills before, 690
But even a horror to behold, of-yore ;

Is now an Eden, and th' All circling Sun,
For fruitfull Beauty ; sees no Paragon.
There (labour-less) mounts the victorious Palm,
There (and but there) grows the all-healing Balm,
There ripens the rare cheer-check Myrobalan,
Minde-gladding Fruit, that can un-old a Man.
O skilfull Husbands, give your fattest Plains
Five or six earths ; spare neither cost nor pains,
To water them ; rid them of weeds and stones, 700
With Muck and Marie batten and baste their bones ;
Unlesse God blesse your Labour and your Land,
You plough the Sea, and sow upon the sand.

This, Jury knows ; a Soyl sometimes (at least)
Sole Paradise of all the proudest East :
But now the brutest and most barren place,
The curse of God, and all the World's disgrace ;
And also Greece, on whom Heav'n's (yerst so good)
Rain nothing now but their drad Furie's Fload.
The grace of God is a most sure Revenue, 710
A Sea of Wealth, that ever shall continue,
A never-failing Field, which needs not ay
The cool of Night, nor comfort of the Day.

What shall I say ? This sacred Personage
Not onely profits to his proper Age ;
But, after life, life in his bones hee leaves,
And dead, the dead hee raiseth from their graves.

Nor is Elisha famous more for Miracles,
Then for the Truth of his so often Oracles :
Hee shows the Palms and Foils of Israel, 720
Benhadad's death, the Reign of Hazael :
Beyond all hope, and passing all appearance,
Dejected Joram's neer relief hee warrants.

For, now the Syrian, with insulting Powrs,
So strict besiegeth the Samaritan Towns,
That even al-ready in each nook agrising,
Fell, wall-break (all-break) Famine ill-advising
Howls hideously : even the bare bones are seen
(As sharp as knives) thorow the empty skin
Of the best bred : and each-man seems (almost) 730
No man indeed but a pale ghastly Ghost.

Some snatch the bread from their own Babes, that pine ;

Some eat the Draff that was ordain'd for Swine,
Some do defile them with forbidden flesh,
Som bite the grass their hunger to refresh ;
Some, gold for Bird's-dung (weight for weight) exchange :

Some, of their Boots make them a Banquet strange,
Some fry the Hay-dust, and it savory finde :
Some, Almond-shels and Nut-shels gladly grinde,
Some mince their Father's Wils, in Parchment writ, 740
And so devour their birth-right at a bit.

The King, when (weary) hee would rest awhile,
Dreams of the dainties he hath had yer-while,
Smacks, swallows, grindes both with his teeth and jaws ;

But, onely winde his beguil'd belly draws :
And, then awaking, of his own spare Dyet
Robs his own breast, to keep his Captains quiet,

Mothers eat their own Children.

Hee is importun'd here and there about ;
Above the rest, a Woman shrieketh out
In mournfull manner, with dis-sheveled haire ; 750
Her face dispiight, her fashion shews despair.
O ! stay my Liege, hear, hear a grievous thing ;
Justice, great Joram, Justice, gentle King.
O no, not Justice : (did I Justice crave?)
Fondling, in Justice thou canst nothing have
But a just death ; nay, but a Torture fell ;
Nay, but a Torment like the pains of Hell.
Yet, even this Plea is worse then death to mee :
Then grant mee Justice, Justice let it be.
For (O !) what horror can restrain desire 760
Of just revenge, when it is once a-fire?
My Lord, I bargain'd, and (to binde the Pact)
By solemane Oath I sealed the Contract ;
Contract, indeed cruell, yet could not be Infring'd, or broken, without cruelty.
(Tell it, O Tongue : why stayst thou so upon-it ?
Dar'st thou not say-it, having dar'd, and don-it ?
Not having fear'd heav'n's King, how canst thou
fear
An earthly King ? (Then, thus) my liege) while-yer
I, and my Neighbour desprately agreed, 770
Joyntly to eat, successively our seed ;
Our own dear Children : and (O luck-lesse Lot !)
Mine first of all, is destin'd to the Pot ;
Forth-with I catch him, and I snatch him to mee
Up in my arms : hee straight begins to woe-mee,
Stroaks, colls, and hugs me, with his arms & thighs ;
And, smiling sweet Mam-mam, mam-mam, he cries,
Then kisses mee : and with a thousand toyes,
Thinks to delight mee with his wonted joyes.
I look away ; and, with my hand addest, 780
Bury my knife within his tender brest ;
And, as a Tygresse, or the Dam of Bears,
A Fawn, or Kid in hundred gobbets tears,
I tear him quick, dresse him, and on our Table
I set him : Oh ! ('t is now no time to fable)
I taste him first, I first the feast begin,
His bloud (my bloud) runs round about my Chin,
My Childe returns, re-breeding in my Womb ;
And of my Flesh my Flesh is shamefull Tomb :
Soon cloyd (alas !) but little could I eat : 790
And up again that little strives to get.
But shee, shee layes it in, shee greedy pyles it ;
And all night long shee sits to gourmandize-it ;
Not for her fill so much of such (think I)
As to prolong the more my misery :
O God, said shee (and smiles in eating it)
What a sweet morsell ! what a dainty bit !
Blest be the brest that nurc't such meat for mee ;
But more the Womb that bare it, so to be.
So (to be brief) my Son is eat : But hers 800
Alive and lusty in her armes shee bears.
Why should her pity, rather her despise,
Doe both her Faith, Mee, and my Son, un-right ?
Ah ! for her belly, rather then her Boy,
Shee playd this prank (and robd mee of my Joy).

Shee did it not of tender heart to save him ;
But, greedy-gut, that she alone might have him.
Therefore, O King, doe Justice in this case :
Nor crave I pardon of thy Princely grace
For mine Offence ; (such an Offence, I know, 810
As yet grim Minos never judg'd below)
For if I should, how should I do, for meat ;
Not having now another Childe to eat ?
No : this is all I crave before I dye,
That I may taste but of her son's sweet thigh ;
Or, that (at least) mine eye, more just then cruell,
May see him slain by her, my Horror's fuel.
But, if you weigh not mine unfained tears
(Indeed un-worthy) : yet vouchsafe your ears
To the loud Plaints of my lamenting Son ; 820
Who, with strange murmurs rumbling up & down,
Seems in my bowels as reviv'd to groan,
And to your Highnesse, thus to make his moan ;
Sir, will you suffer, without all revenge,
Men's cursed Malice boldly to infringe
Law, Faith, and Justice, Vows, and Oaths, and all ;
As buzzing Flies tear Cob-webs on a wall ?
Ah ! shall I then descend alone below ?
Dye un-revend'd ? foster my cruell Foe ?
And then, cast-forth in foulest Excrement, 830
Infect the Aire, offend the Element ;
The while her Darling, on his Hobby-horse
About the Hall shall ride, and prance, and course ;
And imitate men's actions (as an Ape)
Build paper-Towrs, make Puppets, sit in Lap ?
No : let him die, let him (as I) be cut,
Let him (as I) be in two Bellies put :
Full-fill the Pact ; that so our wretched mothers
Their guilt & grief, may either's match wth others.
The King, less mov'd with pity then with horror, 840
Thunders these words, raging in threat-full terror ;
Vengeance and mischief on mine own head light,
If curst Elisha keep his head this night :
And, as he spake, forth in a rage hee flings,
To execute his bloody Threatenings.
Sir, said the Prophet, you have seen the scathe
Devouring Famine here performed hath ;
But, by to-morrow this time (God hath said)
Samaris's Gates shall even abound with bread.
Tush, said a Minion of the Court, hard by 850
(Of surly speech, proud gait, and lofty eye)
Though God should open all Heav'n's windows wide,
It cannot be : Yes, Infidell (reply'd
The zealous Prophet) Thou thy Selfe (in sum)
Shalt see it then : but shalt not taste a crum.
Thus said Elisha, and th' Almighty Power
Perform'd his sayings in that very howr.
Her scarlet Robe Aurora's had not donn'd,
Nor had shee yet limn'd the Euphratean strond
With trembling shine, neither was Phabus yet 860
Willing to wake out of a drouzy Fit,
When pallid FEAR, flies to the Pagan Hoast, Wilde-staring Hag, shiv'ring, and wav'ring most ;

Description and effects of Fear.

Shee, that her voyce and visage shifts so oft :
 Shee that in Counsails strives to lift aloft
 Irresolution, to be President
 (Canker of Honour, curse of Government) :
 Shee that even trembles in her surest Arms,
 Starts at a leaf, swouns at report of harms :
 Beleeves all, sees all ; and so swayeth all, 870
 That, if shee say, The Firmament doth fall :
 There be three Suns : This, or that Mountain sinks :

Paul's Church doth reel, or the foundation shrinks :
 It is belev'd, 't is seen : and, seis'd by Her,
 The other Senses are as apt to erre.

Clashing of Arms, rattling of yron Cars,
 Murmur of Men (a World of Souldiers)
 Neighing of Horse, noise of a thousand Drums
 With dreadful sound from the next Vale there coma.

The Syrian Camp, conceiving that the Troupe 880
 Of Nabathites, Hethites, and Ethiops,
 Hyr'd by th' Isaacians, came from every side,
 To raise their Siege, and to repell their pride ;
 Fly for their lives, disordered and disperst
 (Amid the Mountains) so well-ordered yerst.
 One, in his Cap-case leaves-behinde his Treasure :
 To bridle 's horse another hath not leasure ;
 Another, hungry on the grasse hath set
 His break-fast out, but dares not stay to eat.
 One thinks him far, that yet hath little gone : 890
 Another wins him in plain ground, anon
 Hee breaks his neck into a Pit : another
 Hearing the Boughs that brush against each other,
 And doubting it to be the Conquerer,
 Hee, wretched, dies of th' onely wound of FEAR.

As after tedious and continual rain,
 The honey-Flies haste from their Hives again,
 Suck here and there, and bear into their bowr
 The sweetest sap of every fragrant flower :
 So from besieg'd Samaria each man hies, 900
 Unto the Tents of fear-fled Enemies :
 Wherein, such store of corn and wine they pill,
 That in one day their hungry Town they fill :
 And in the Gate the Croud, that issaeth,
 Treads th' unbelieving Courtier down to death ;
 So that (at once) even both effects agree
 Just with Elisha's holy Prophecie.

From this School comes the Prophet Amethis,
 The twice-born Preacher to the Nivivite.

Jonas, begon : hie, hie thee (said th' Almighty) 910
 To Nivivé, that great and wanton City :
 Cry day and night, cry out unto them all ;
 Yet forty dayes, and Nivivé shall fall.

But, 'gainst th' Eternall, Jonas shuts his ear,
 And ships himself to sail another-where :
 Wherefore, the Lord (incensed) stretch his arm,
 To wrack the wretch in sudden fearful storm.

Now, Nereus foams, and now the furious waves
 All topsie-turned by th' Boisian slaves,
 Do mount & roule : Heav'n wars against the waters, 920
 And angry Thetis Earth's green bulwarks batters :

A sable ayr so muffles-up the Sky,
 That the sad Sayers can no light descry :
 Or, if some beam break through their pitchy night,
 'Tis but drad flashing of the Lightning's light.
 Strike, strike our saile (the Master cries) amain,
 Vaile misne and sprit-sail : but hee cries in vain ;
 For, in his face the blasts so bluster ay,
 That his Sea-gibb'rish is straight born away.
 Confused cries of men dismay'd in minde, 930
 Sea's angry noise, loud bellowing of the Winde,
 Heav'n's Thunder-claps, the tackles whisteling
 (As strange Musicians) dreadfull descant sing.

The Eastern winde drives on the roaring train
 Of white-blew billows, and the clouds again
 With fresh Seas crosse the Sea, and shee doth send (In counter-change) a rain with salty-blend.
 Heav'ns (head-long) seem in Thetis' lap to fall,
 Seas scale the skies, and God to arm this All
 Against one ship, that skips from stars to ground, 940
 From wave to wave (like Balloons windy bound)
 While the sad Pilot, on a foamy Mount,
 Thinks from the Pole to see Hei's pit profound ;
 And, then, cast down unto the sandy shole,
 Seems from low Hell to see the lofty Pole ;
 And feeling foes within, and eke without,
 As many waves, so many deaths doth doubt.

The billows, beating round about the ship,
 Unchawk her keel, and all her seams unrip ;
 Whereby the waters, entring uncontrol'd, 950
 Ebbing abroad, yet flow apace in hold :
 For every Tun the plied Pump doth rid,
 A floud breaks in ; the Master mastered
 With dread and danger (threatning every-way)
 Doubts where to turn him, what to doe, or say,
 Which wave to meet, or which salt surge to flye ;
 So yeelds his charge, in Sea to live or dye.

As, many Canons, 'gainst a Castle bent, 960
 Make many holes, and much the ramfire rent,
 And shake the wall, but yet the latest shock
 Of fire-wing'd Bullets batters down the Rock :
 So, many mounts, that muster 'gainst this Sall,
 With roaring rage doe this poor ship assail :
 But yet the last (with foaming fury swoln,
 With boystrous blasts of angry tempests boln)
 Springs the main-mast : the mast with boystrous
 fall

Breaks down the deck, and sore affrights them all.
 Pale Idol-like, one stands with arms a-crosse :
 One moans himself ; one mourns his children's loss :
 One, more then death, this form of death affrights : 970
 Another cals on Heav'n's un-viewed Lights :
 One, 'fore his eyes his Ladie's looks beholds :
 Another, thus his deadly fear unfolds :
 Curst thirst of gold ! O how thou causeth care !
 My bed of Doun I change for hatches bare :
 Rather then rest, this stormy war I chose :
 T' inlarge my fields, both land and life I lose :
 Like peizlesse plume, born-up by Boreas' breath,
 With all these wings I soar, to seek my death,

The Shipwrack of Jonas.

A lively description of the Storm
 at Sea.

To Heav'n and Hell, by angry Neptune led, 980
 Where lest I scape it, all these sails I spread.
 Then thus another ; Sure no winde (quoth hee)
 Could raise this Storm ; some rarer Prodigie
 Hath caus'd this Chaos (cause of all our grieft)
 Some Atkeist dog, some Altar-spoyling thief
 Lurks in this ship : come (Mates) by lot let 's try (To save the rest) the man that ought to dy.
 'Tis I, quoth Jonas, I indeed am cause
 Of this black night, and all the fearfull flaws
 Of this rough Winter ; I must sole appease 990
 (By my just death) these wrathfull wrack-full Seas.
 Then up they heave him straight, & from the waste
 Him suddenly into the Sea they cast.
 The King of Winds calls home his churlish train,
 And Amphitritt smooths her front again :
 Th' ayr's cloudy Robe returns to Crystall clear,
 And smilling Heav'n's bright Torches re-appear
 So soon as Jonas (to them all appease)
 O'r head and ears was soused in the Seas.
 Thrice coms hee up, and thrice again goes down 1000
 Under the waves (yer hee do wholly drown)
 But then hee sinks ; and, wretched, rould along
 The sands, and Oase, and rocks, and mud among,
 Thus, thus hee cries with lips of zealous faith ;
 Mercy, my God, shew mercy, Lord (hee saith).
 Then God (who ever hears his children's wish)
 Provided straight a great and mighty Fish,
 That swilling swallow'd Jonas in her womb ;
 A living Corps layd in a living Toomb.
 Simile. Like as a Roach, or Ruff, or Gudgeon, born 1010
 By some swift stream into a Weer (forlorn)
 Frisks to and fro, aloft and under dives,
 Fed with false hope to free their Captive lives :
 The Prophet so (amazed) walks about
 This wondrous Fish, to finde an issue out,
 This mighty Fish, of Whale-like hugeness,
 Or bigger-bellied, though in body lesse.
 Where am I, Lord? (alas !) within what vaults?
 In what new Hell dost thou correct my faults?
 Strange punishment ! my body thou bereav'st 1020
 Of mother-earth, which to the dead thou leav'st :
 Whither thy wrath drives mee, I doe not know ;
 I am depriv'd of air, yet breath and blow ;
 My sight is good, yet can I see no sky ;
 Wretch, nor in Sea, nor yet a-shore am I ;
 Resting, I run ; for, moving is my Cave :
 And, quick, I couch within a living Grave.
 While thus hee plain'd ; the third day on the sand
 The friendly Fish did cast him safe a-land.
 And then, as if his weary limbs had been 1030
 So long refresh't, and rested at an Inne,

Hee seems to flee ; and comn to Ninivè,
 Your sins have reached up to Heav'n (quoth hee) :
 Wo and alas, woe, woe unto you all :
Yet forty dayes and Ninivè shall fall.
 Thus Jonas preacht : but, soon the Citizens,
 Sincerely toucht with sense of their foul sins,
 Dispatch (in haste) to Heav'n, Repentance sad,
 Sweet-charming Prayer, Fasting hairy-clad.
Repentance makes two Torrents of her eyes, 1040
 Her humble brow dares scant behold the skies :
 Her sobbing breast is beaten blew and black :
 Her tender flesh is rent with rugged sack :
 Her head (all hoar'd with hearty sorrows past)
 With dust and ashes is all over-cast.
Prayer's head, and sides, and feet are set about
 With gawdy wings (like Jove's Arcadian Scout) :
 Her body flaming, from her lips there fumes
Nard, Incense, Mummy, and all rich perfumes.
Fasting (though faint) her face with joy she cheers, 1050
 Strong in her weakness, yong in aged years ;
 Quick health's preserver, curbing Cupid's fits,
 Watchfull, purge-humors, and refining wits.
 Then Faith (Grand-Usher of th' Emperial Court)
 Ushers these Legats by a golden Port
 Into the Presence, and them face to face
 Before th' All-Monarch's glorious throne doth place ;
 Where (zealous) prostrate on her humble knee,
 Thus Prayer speaks in Name of all the Three :
 God, slow to wrath ! O Father, prone to grace ! 1060
 Lord, sheath again thy vengeance-sword a space.
 If at thy beam of Justice thou wilt weigh
 The works of men that wander every day :
 If thou their metall by that touch-stone try
 Which fearfull-sounding from thy mouth doth fly :
 If thou shalt summ their sins (which passe the sand)
 Before thee, Lord, who shall endure to stand?
 Not Ninivè alone shall perish then
 But all this All be burnt to ashes clean :
 And even this day shall thy just wrath prevent 1070
 The dreadfull Day of thy last Doom's event.
 This world to Chaos shall again return ;
 And on thine Altars none shall incense burn.
 O therefore spare (Lord) spare the Ninivites,
 Forgive their sins ; and, in their humbled sprites,
 From this time forth thy sacred Laws ingrave ;
 Destroy them not, but daign them Lord to save :
 Look not (alas !) what they have been before ;
 But us regard, or thine owne mercy more.
 Then, God reacht out his hand, unfolds his frowns, 1080
 Disarms his arm of Thunder brusing-Crowns,
 Bows graciously his glorious flaming Crest,
 And mildely grants, in th' instant, their request.

The Decay.

THE FOURTH BOOK
OF THE
THE II. WEEKE, OF
BARTAS.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Ambitious bitter fruit, fell Achab's Stock,
With his proud Queen (a painted Beauty-mock)
Extirpt by JEHU : JEHU's Hne likewise
Shallum supplants. King-killing Treacheries
Succeed a-row, with Wrack of ISRAEL,
Time-switing Batts : Athalia Tygresse fell.
JOASH well-nurtur'd, natur'd-ill, doth run
After his kinde : hee kills his Tutor's Son.
ZENACHERIB : life-lengthned EZECHIAH :
NABUCHADNEZAR : Captive ZEDECHIAH.*

Ambition pour-trayed to the life.

Huff-puft AMBITION, Tinder-box of WAR,
Down-fall of Angels, Adam's murderer,
Parent of Treasons, Reason's Contradiction,
Earth's Enemy, and the Heav'n's Malediction,
O! how much Bloud hath thy respect-lesse Age
Shed in the World! showed on every Age!
O Scepter's, Throne's, and Crown's insatiate Thirst,
How many Treasons hast thou hatched yerst!
For, O! what is it that hee dares not doe,
Who th' Helm of Empire doth aspire unto?
Hee (to beguile the simple) makes no bone
To swear by God (for, hee beleeves there's none);
His Sword's his Title; and who scapes the same,
Shall have a Pistoll, or a poysony Dram:

20

Hee, fear'd of all, fears all; hee breaks at once
The chains of Nature and of Nations:
Sick of the Father, his kinde heart is woe
The good old man travels to Heav'n so slow:
His own dear Babes (yet Cradled, yet in Clouts) 30
Haste but too fast; are at his heels hee doubts:
Hee passeth to his promis'd Happinesse
Upon a Bridge of his Friends' Carcasses;
And mounts (in fine) the golden Throne by stairs
Built of the Souls of his owne Country's heirs.
Yet thou permitt'st it, Lord; nay, with thy wings
Cover'st such Tyrants (even the shame of Kings)
But, not for nothing dost thou them forbear;
Their cruell scalps, a cruell end shall tear:
And, when the Measure of their Sin is full, 40
Thy hands are yron, though thy feet be wooll.
The Throne of Tyrants totters to and fro;
The bloud-gain'd Scepter lasts not long (we know):
Nail driveth Nail: by Tragick death's device,
Ambitious hearts do play at * Level sice;
Prov'd but to plain in both the houses Royall
Of Jacob's Issue, but too-too disloyall;
As, if thou further with thy grace divine
My Verse and Vows, shall here appear in time.
GOD NOW no longer could support th' excesse
Of Achab's House, whose cursed wickednesse

* A kinde of Christmas play:
wherein each hunteth other from his seat.
The name seems derived from the French levons sus,
in English,
Arise-up.

	Was now top-full : and, Dogs already stood Fawning and yawning for their promis'd bloud. Heav'ns haste their work. Now in tumultuous wise 'Gainst Achab's Son doe his own Souldiers rise ; Yehu's their Captain : who foresees, afar, How-much, dispatch advantageth in War ; And, polittick, doubles his Armie's speed To get before ; yea, before Fame , indeed.
Yehu.	Joram , surpriz'd in feeble Bulwarks then (Unfurnished of Victuals and of Men) And, chiefly wanting royall fortitude, Un-kingly yeelds unto the Multitude. Bold Nimshal's Son, Sir Yehu , what 's this Thing ? What mean these Troups ? what would you of the King ? Where shal the bolt of this black thunder fal Say, bringst thou Peace ? or bringst thou war withall ? Said Joram , loud : but, Yehu louder saith, No (wretch) no Peace, but bloody wars and death.	60
Simile.	Then fled the King : and (as a Ship at Sea, Hearing the Heav'ns to threaten every way, And Winter-Storms with absent Stars compact, With th' angry Waters to conspire her wrack, Strives not to ride it out, or shift abroad, But plies her Oars, and flies into the Road) Hee jerks his Jades, and makes them scour amain Through thick and thin, both over Hill and Plain. Which, Yehu spying, and well-eying too, As quick resolveth what he hath to doe ; Cries, Boy, my Bow : then nocks an arrow right, His left hand meets the head, his breast the right. As bends his Bow, he bends ; lets goe the string : Through the thin air the winged shaft doth sing King Joram's Dirge ; and, to speed the more, Pierces behinde him, and peeps-out before.	70
Simile.	The Prince now hurt (that had before no heart) Fals present dead, and with his Courtly-Cart Bruis'd in the Fall (as had the Thisbite said) The Field of Naboth with his bloud beraid : And Salem's King had also there his due, For joyning hands with so profane a Crew. Then the proud Victor leads his loyall Troups Towards the Court (that all in silence droops) ; And more for Self-love, then for God's pure zeale, Means to dispatch, th' Earth's burden Yezabel .	80
Yezabel.	The Queen had inkling : instantly she sped To curl the Cockles of her new-bought head : The Saphyr, Onyx, Garnet, Diamond, In various forms cut by a curious hand, Hang nimble dancing in her hair, as spangles : Or as the fresh red-yellow Apple dangles (In Autumn) on the Tree, when to and fro The Boughs are waved with the winds that blow.	90
Her pride.	The upper garment of the stately Queen, Is rich gold Tissue, on a ground of green ; Where th' art-full shuttle rarely did encheck The *cangeant colour of a Mallard's neck : 'Tis figur'd o'r with sundry Flowers and Fruits, Birds, Beasts, & Insects, creeping Worms, & Neuts,	100
* Changeable.
	Of Gold-Smith's Work : a fringe of Gold about, With Pearls and Rubies richly-rare set-out, Borders her Robe : and every part describes Cunning and Cost, contending for the prize. Her neat, fit, Startups of green Velvet bee, Flourisht with silver ; and beneath the knee, Moon-like, indented ; butt'ned down the side With Orient Pearls as big as Filberd's pride. But, besides all her sumptuous equipage (Much fitter for her State then for her age) Close in her Closet, with her best complexions, Shee mends her Face's wrinkle-full defections : Her cheek shee cherries, and her Eye shee cheers, And fains her (fond) a Wench of fifteen yeers ; Whether she thought to snare the Duke's affec- tion ; Or dazle, with her pompous Pride's reflection, His daring eyes (as Fowlers with a Glasse, Make mounting Larks com down to death apace) : Or, were it, that in death shee would be seen (As 't were) interr'd in Tyrian Pomp, a Queen. Chaste Ladie-Maids, here must I speak to you, That with vile Painting spoyl your native hue (Not to inflame yonglings, with wanton thirst, But to keep fashion with these times accurst) When one new ta'en in your seem-beautie's snare, That day and night to Hymen makes his prayer, At length espies (as who is it but spies ?) Your painted brests, your painted cheeks and eyes, His Cake is dough ; God dild you, hee will none ; Hee leaves his sute, and thus he saith anon : What shall I doe with such a wanton Wife, Which night and day would cruciate my life With jealous pang's ? sith every-way shee sets Her borrow'd snares (not her own hairs) for Nets To catch her Cuckoos ; with loose, light Attires, Opens the doore unto all lewd Desires : And, with vile Drugs adultering her Face, Closely allures th' Adulterer's embrace. But, judge the best : suppose (saith hee) I finde My Lady chaste in body and in minde (As sure I think) : yet, will shee mee respect, That dares disgrace th' eternall Architect ? That (in her pride) presumes his Work to tax Of imperfection ; to amend his tracts, To help the Colours which his hand hath laid, With her frail fingers with foul dirt beraid ? Shall I take her that will spend all I have, And all her time, in pranking proudly-brave ? How did I dote ! the Gold upon her head, The Lillies of her brests, the Rosie-red In either cheek, and all her other Riches, Wherewith she bleareth sight, & sense bewitches, Is none of hers : it is but borrow'd stuff, Or stoln, or bought, plain Counterfeit in proof : My glorious Idol I did so adore, Is but a Visard, newly varnish'd o'r With spauling Rheums, hot Fumes, and Ceruses : Fo, phy ; such poysons one would loath to kisse :	110	Her painting.
		130	A just Invective against those two (predominant) Court Qualities.
		150
		160

I wed (at least, I ween to wed) a Lasse
Yong, fresh, and fair : but in a year (alas !)
Or two, at most ; my lovely lively Bride 170
Is turn'd a Hag, a Fury by my side ;
With hollow, yellow teeth (or none perhaps)
With stinking breath, swart cheeks, and hanging chaps ;
With wrinkled neck ; and stooping as she goes,
With driveling mouth, and with a sniveling nose.

The Queen thus pranked, proudly gets her up
(But sadly though) to her guilt Palace top ;
And, spying Yehu, from the window cride :
Art thou there Zimri, cursed Paricide ?
Fell master-killer, canst thou chuse but fear 180
For like offence, like punishment severe ?

Bitch, cries the Duke, art thou there barking still ?
Thou Strumpet, Thou art Cause of all this Ill :
Thou brought'st Samarita to Thine Idol-Sin :
Painting and pois'ning first thou broughtest in
To Court and Country, with a thousand mo
Loose Syrian vices, which I shame to show.
Thou brought'st-in Wrong, with Rapine and Oppression,

By Perjury supplanting Men's possession
And life withall : yea, Thou hast been the Baen 190
Of Peers and Seers (at thy proud pleasure slain) :
Thou life of strife, thou Horse-leach sent from hell,
Thou Drouth, thou Dearth, thou Plague of Israel,
Now shalt thou dy : Grooms (is there none for me ?)
Quick, cast her down, down with her instantly.

O tickle Faith ! O fickle trust of Court !
These Palace-mice, this busie-idle sort
Of fawning Minions, full of sooths and smiles,
These Carpet-Knights had vow'd and sworn yerwhiles,
Promis'd, protested unto Jesabel, 200

Rav'd, brav'd and bann'd (like Rodomont in Hell)
That in her cause they every Man would dy,
And all the World, and Hell and Heav'n defie ;
Now, ycy Fear (shiv'ring in all their bones)
Makes them with Fortune turn their backs at once.
They take their Queen betwixt their traitorous hands,
And hurl her headlong, as the Duke commands ;
Whose courser, snorting, stamps in stately scorn
Upon the Corps that whilom Kings had born :

And, to fulfill from point to point the Word 210
Elijah spake (as Legat of the Lord)
The Dogs about doe greedy feed upon
The rich-perfumed, royall Carrion ;
And Folk by thousands issuing at the Gate,
To see the sight, cry thus (as glad thereat)
Ses, ses, here Dogs, here Bitches, doe not spare
This Bitch that gnaw'd her subjects' bones so bare ;
This cruell Cur, that made you oft becom
Saints' Torturers, and many a Prophet's Tomb ;
This Whore of Ba'l, tear her so small, that well 220
No man may say, Here lyeth Jesabel.

Yehu's drad Vengeance doth yet farther flow ;
Curst Achab's issue hee doth wholly mow :
Hee slayes (moreover) two and forty men
Of Ahasiah's hap-lesse bretheren :

Ba'l's Idol-Clergy hee doth bring to nought,
And his proud Temple turns into a Draught :
Good proofs of zeal. But yet a Diadem,
Desire of Reign, keeps from Jerusalem
His service due ; content (at home) by halves 230
To worship God under the form of Calves.

His Son and Nephews track too-neer his trace ;
And therefore Shallum doth unhorse his race :
The murd'rer Shallum (after one Month's Reign)
By Manahem as murd'rously is slain :
The traitor Manahem's wicked-walking Son
By trait'rous Pekah unto death is don :
And so on Pekah, for Pekahiah's death,
Hosheah's treason, treason quittanceeth ;
A proud, ingrate, perfidious, troublous King, 240
That to Confusion did Samarita bring.

Their Towns trans-villag'd, the Ten Tribes, transported

To a far Clime (whence never they reverted)
Sojourn in forreign soyl, where Chobar's streams Serve them for Jordan ; Basan, Chison seems :
While Assur's scorn, and scum of Euphrates
Dance up and down th' Isaacian Palaces,
Drink their best Nectars, anchor in their Ports,
And lodge profanely in their strongest Forts.

But, changing air, these change not mind (in Jury). 250

For, though fierce Lions' homicidial fury
Make them retire under th' Almighty's wing,
Their Country-gods with the true God they ming :
They mix his Service, plow with Asse and Oxe,
Disguise his Church in suits of Flax and Flocks,
Cast (in one wedge) Yron and Gold together :
Jew-Gentiles, both at once : but, both is neither.

There is a Tale, that once the Hoast of Birds, 260
And all the Legions of Grove-haunting Heards,
Before the Earth ambitiously did strive,
And counter-plead for the Prerogative :

Now, while the Judge was giving audience,
And either side in their seem-Rights' defence
Was hot and earnest at the noise-full Bar,
The neuter Bat stood fluttering still afar :
But shee no sooner hears the Sentence past
On the Beasts' side ; but, shuffling her in haste
Into their Troup, shee them accompanieth,
Shows her large forehead, her long ears, and teeth.

The Cause was (after) by Appeal remov'd 270
To Nature's Court ; who by her Doom approv'd
The others' Plea : then flies the shame-lesse Bat
Among the Birds, and with her Chit-chit-chat
Shee seems to sing : and, proud of wings, shee plays
With nimble turnes, & flies a thousand wales.

Hence, beak-less-Bird ; hence winged-Beast, they cride,

Hence, plume-less wings (thus, scorn her either side)
Hence, Harlot, hence ; this ever be thy Dole ;
Be still Day's Prisoner in thy shame-full hole :
May never Sun (vile Monster) shine on thee ; 280
But th' hate of all, for ever, mayst thou be.

Application.

Such is this People : for, in plenteous show'rs
When God his blessings upon Isaak pow'rs
Then are they Isaak's Sons ; but, if with thunder
Hee, wrath-full, tear the Hebrew Tree in sunder,
These Traytors rake the boughs, and take the fruit ;
And (Pagans then) the Jews they persecute.

*And such are those, whose wily, waxen minde

*Yea, oldest Gangrens of blinde-burning Zeal
(As the King's Evil) a new KING can heal.*

*And those Scene-servers that so loud have cride
'Gainst Prelats sweeping in their silken Pride,
Their wilfull Dumbnesse, forcing others dumb* 300

In Spain, as Spain : as Luther, on the Rhine : 310

With Saints, a Saint : and among Knaves, a Knave.

*But all such Neuters, neither hot nor cold,
Such double Halters between GOD and GOLD,
Such Luke-warm Lovers will the Bride-groom spue
Out of his mouth : his mouth hath spoke it true.*

O ISRAEL, I pity much thy case :
This Sea of Mischiefs, which in every place
So over-flows thee, and so domineers ; 320
It drowns my soule in griefs, mine eyes in tears :
My heart's through-thrilled with your miseries
Already past ; your Father's Tragedies.
But (O ! I dy ; when in the sacred stem
Of royall JUDA, in Jerusalem,
I see fell Discord, from her loathsome Cage,
To blow her poyson with ambitious rage ;
Sion to swim in blood ; and Achab's Daughter
Make David's House the Shambles of her slaughter.

Athaliah.

Cursed Athaliah (shee was called so) 330
Knowing her Son, by Nimsi's Son, his foe
(For Joram's sake) to be dispatcht ; disloyall,
On th' holy Mount usurps the Scepter Royall ;
And, fearing lest the Princes of the Blood
Would one-day rank her where of right she should,
Shee cuts their throats, hangs, drowns, destroyes them
all,

Not sparing any, either great or small ;
No, not the infant in the Cradle lying
Help-lesse (alas !) and lamentably crying

(As if bewailing of his wrongs unknown) ; 340
No (O extreme !) shee spareth not her own.

Like as a Lion, that hath tatter'd here
A goodly Heifer, there a lusty Steer, 350
There a strong Bull (too-weak for him by halfe)
There a fair Cow, and there a tender Calf ;
Strouts in his Rage, and wallows in his Prey,
And proudly doth his Victory survey ;
The grasse all goary, and the Heard-groom up
Shiv'ring for fear upon a-pine-Tree's top :
So swelleth shee, so growes her proud Despight ;
Nor Aw, nor Law, nor Faith shee reaks, nor Right.

Her Cities are so many Groves of Thieves ;
Her Court a Stew, where not a chaste-one lives ;
Her greatest Lords (giv'n all, to all excesse)
In stead of Prophets in their Palaces
Have Lectures read of Lust and Surfeting,
Of Murder, Magick, and Impoisoning.

While thus she builds her tott'ring Throne upon
Her children's bones, Jehoshaba saves one, 360
One Royall Imp, yong Joash, from the pile
(As when a Fire had fiercely rag'd awhile
In some fair House, the avaricious Dame
Saves som choice Casquet from the furious flame)

Hides him, provides him ; and, when as the Sun
Six times about his Larger Ring hath run,
Jehoiada, her husband, brings him forth
To the chief Captains and the Men of worth ;
Saying ; Behold, O Chiefs of Juda, see,
See here your Prince, great David's Progeny,
Your rightfull King : if mee you credit light, 370
Beleeve these Priests, which saw him from the first,
Brought to my house, there bred, and fed, and nurs't.

In so just Quarrell, holy Men-at-arms,
Imploy (I pray) your anger and your Arms ?
Plant, in the Royall Plot, this Royall Bud ;
Venge Obed's bloud on strangers' guilty bloud ;
Shake-off, with shouts, with fire & sword together,
This Woman's yoke, this Furie's bondage rather.

Then shout the People with a common cry, 380
Long live King Joash ; long, and happily :
*God save the King : God save the noble seed
Of our true King ; and ay may They succeed.*

This news now bruted in the wanton Court,
Quickly the Queen coms in a braving sort
Towards the Troup ; and spying there anon
The sweet young Prince set on a royall Throne,
With Peers attending him on either hand,
And strongly guarded by a gallant Band ;
Ah ! Treason, Treason, then shee cries aloud : 390
False Joiada, disloyall Priest, and proud,
Thou shalt abide it : O thou House profane !
I'll lay thee level with the ground again :
And thou, yong Princor, Puppet as thou art,
Shalt play no longer thy proud Kingling's Part
On such a Kixey stage ; but, quickly stript,
With wtery Rods thou shalt to death be whipt :

	And so, goe see thy Brethren, which in Hell Will welcom thee, that badst not them Farewell.		And (ay un-daunted) in his God's behalf Hazzards at once his Scepter and himself.
	But suddenly the Guard layes bold on her,	400	For, though (for Neighbours) round about him reigne Idolaters (that would him gladly gain)
	And drags her forth, as 't were a furious Cur, Out of the sacred Temple ; and with scorn, Her wretched corps is mangled, tugg'd and torn.		Though Godlings, here of wood, and there of stone, 460 A Brazen here and there a Golden one, With Lamps and Tapers, even as bright as Day, On every side would draw his mind astray :
	Th' High-Priest, inspired with a holy zeal, In a new League authentickly doth seal Th' obedient People to their bounteous Prince :		Though Assur's Prince had with his Legions fell Forrag'd Samaris , and in Israel Quencht the small Faith that was ; and utterly Dragg'd the Ten Tribes into Captivity,
Simile.	And both, to God ; by joynt obedience. Now, as a Bear-whelp, taken from the Dam, Is in a while made gentle, meek and tame By witty usage ; but if once it hap	410	So far, that ev'n the tallest Cedar-Tree In Libanon they never since could see :
	Hee get som Grove, or thorny Mountain's top, Then plays hee Rex : tears, kilis, and all consumes, And soon again his savage kind assumes :		Yet, EZECHIAH serves not Time ; nor Fears The Tyrant's fury : neither roars with Bears, Nor howls with Wolves, nor ever turns away ; But, godly-wise, well-knowing that Delay Gives leaves to Ill ; and Danger still doth wait On lingering, in Matters of such waight ; Hee first of all sets-up th' Almighty's Throne :	470
* Zachariah .	So Joash , while good Joiada survives, For Piety with holy David strives ; But, hee once dead, walking his Father's wayes, (Ingrately-false) his Tutor's * son hee slayes. Him therefore shortly his own servants slay ; His Son, soon after, doth them like repay ; His people, him again : then Amasiah	420	Is as the Preface of his happy Reigne. The Temple purg'd, th' High-places down hee pashes,	480
Simile.	Ussiah follows, Joatham Ussiah . As one same ground indifferently doth breed Both food-fit Wheat and dizzie Darnell seed ; Baen-baening * Mug-wort, and cold Hemlock too ; The fragrant Rose, and the strong-senting Rue :		Which his own Father serv'd ; and Zeal -full, brake The Brazen Serpent , Moses yest did make.
* Artemisia .	So, from the Noblest Houses oft these springs Some monstrous Princes, and some vertuous Kings ; And all-fore-seeing God in the same Line Doth oft the god-lesse with the godly twine, The more to grace his Saints, and to disgraee	430	For, though it were a very Type of CHRIST, Though first it were by th' Holy-Ghost devis'd, And not by Man (whose bold blinde fancie's pride Deforms God's Service, strays on either side, Flatters it self in his Inventions vain, Presumes to school the Sacred Spirit again, Controuls the Word, and (in a word) is hot	490
	Tyrants the more, by their own proper Race. Ahas , betwixt his Son and Joathan (Hee bad, they good) seems a swart Mauritan Betwixt two Adons : Ezechiah , plac't Between his Father and his Son, is grac't (Hee good, they bad) 'twixt two Thorns a Rose ; Whereby his Vertue the more vertuous showes. For, in this Prince, great DAVID, the divine, Devout, just, vallant, seems again to shine.		Though the Prescript of Ancient use defend it, Though Multitude , though Miracles commend it (True Miracles, approved in conclusion, Without all gulle of Men's or Friends' illusion) The King yet spares not to destroy the same, When to occasion of Offence it came ; But, for th' Abuse of a fond People's will, Takes that away which was not selfy ill ; Much lesse permits hee (thorough all his Land)	500
Ezechiah .	And, as wee see from out the sev'rall Seat Of th' ASIAN Princes, self-surnamed Great (As the great Cham , great Turk , great Russian , And if lesse Great more glorious Persian) Araxis , Chesel , Volga , and many moe Renowned Rivers, Brooks, and Flouds, doe flow, Falling at once into the Caspian Lake With all their streams his streams so proud to make :	440	One rag, one relique, or one sign to stand Of Idolism , or idle Superstition Blindly brought-in, without the Word's Commission . This zealous Hate of all Abomination, This royall Work of thorough- Ereformation , This worthy Action wants not recompence : God, who his grace by measure doth dispense, Who honours them that truly honour him, To EZECHIAH not so much doth seem
Simile.	So, all the Vertues of the most and best Of Patriarchs, meet in this Prince's breast :	450	His sure Defence, as his Confederat : His Quarrel's His, Hee hates who him doe hate, His fame Hee bears about (both far and nigh) On the wide wings of Immortality :	510
The true pattern of an excellent Prince.	Pure in Religion, Wise in Counselling, Stout in Exploiting, just in Governing ; Un-puft in Sun-shine, un-appall'd in Storms (Not, as not feeling, but not fearing Harms) And therefore bravely hee repels the rage Of proudest Tyrants (living in his Age)

To Gath Hee guideth his victorious Troup,
 Hee makes proud Gaza to his Standards stoup,
 Strong Ascalon Hee razeth to the ground :
 And punishing a People wholly drown'd
 In Idolism, and all rebellious Sins,
 Addes to his Land the Land of Philistins.
 Yea, furthermore, 'tis Hee that him with-draws 520
 From out the bloody and ambitious paws
 Of a fell Tyrant, whose proud bounds extend
 Past bounds for breadth, and for their length past end ;
 Whose swarms of Arms, insulting every-where,
 Made all to quake (ev'n at his name) for fear.

Already were the Calo-Syrian Town's
 All sackt, and seized by th' Assyrian Pow'r's :
 And, of all Cities where th' Isaacians reign'd,
 Onely the great Jerusalem remain'd ;

Railing Rabshakeh
 in the name of his Master Zenachcherib braving and blaspheming
 against God and good king Esachiah.

When Rabshakeh, with railing insolence, 530
 Thus braves the Hebrews and upbraids their Prince (Weening, them all with vaunt-full threats to snib)

Thus saith th' Almighty, great Zenachcherib :
 O Salem's Kingling, wherefore art thou shut
 In these weak walls? Is thine affiance put In th' ayd of Egypt? O deceitfull prop!
 O feeble stay! O hollow-grounded hope!

Egypt's a staffe of Reed; which, broken soon,
 Runs through the hand of him that leans there-on.
 Perhaps thou trustest in the Lord thy God : 540

What! whom so bold thou hast abus'd so broad,
 Whom to his face thou daily hast defi'd,
 Depriv'd of Altars, robb'd on every side
 Of his High-places, hallow'd-Groves, and all
 (Where yerst thy Fathers wont on him to call)
 Whom (to conclude) thou hast exiled quite
 From every place, and with profane desight
 (As if condemned to perpetuall dark)

Keep'st him close-Prisoner in a certain Ark?
 Will Hee (can Hee) take Sion's part and Thine ; 550
 And with his Foes will Hee unjustly joyn?

No (wretched) know, I have His Warrant too
 (Expresse Commission) what I have to doe :

I am the Scourge of God : 'tis vain to stand
 Against the pow'r of my victorious hand :

I execute the counsails of the Lord :
 I prosecute his vengeance on th' abhorr'd
 Profaners of his Temples : and if Hee
 Have any Pow'r, 'tis all conferr'd to mee.

Yeeld therefore, Baechia, yeeld ; and waigh 560
 Who I am ; who thou art : and by delay
 Blow not the Fire which shall consume the[e] quite,
 And utterly confound the Israelite.

Alas! poore People, I lament your hap :
 This lewd Impostor doth but puff you up
 With addle hope, and idle confidence
 (In a delusion) of your God's Defence.
 Which of the Gods, against my pow'r could stand,
 Or save their cities from my mightier hand?
 Where's Hamath's God? where's Arpad's God
 becom? 570

Where Sephervais's God? and where (in summ)

Where are the Gods of Heva, and Iva too?
 Have I not conquer'd all? So will I doe
 You and your God ; and I will lead you all
 Into Assyria, in perpetuall Thrall :
 I'll have your Manna, and your Aran's Rod,
 I'll have the Ark of your Almighty God,
 All richly furnisht, and new furbisht o'r,
 To hang among a hundred Tropheis more :
 And your great God shall in the Roule be read 580
 Among the Gods that I have Conquered ;
 I'll have it so, it must, it shall be thus,
 And worse then so, except you yeeld to us.

Scarce had hee done, when Ezechias, gor'd
 With blasphemies so spewd against the Lord,
 Hies to the Temple, tears his purple weed,
 And fals to Prayer, as sure hold at need.

O King of All, but Ours, especially ;
 Ah! sleep'st thou Lord? What boots it, that thine ey 590
 Pierceth to Hell, and even from Heav'n beholds

The dumbest Thoughts in our hearts' in-most folds,
 If thou perceiv'st not this proud Chalenger,
 Nor hear'st at the barking of this foul-mouth'd Cur?
 Not against us so much his threats are meant,
 As against Thee : his Blasphemies are bent
 Against Thy Greatnesse ; whom hee (proudly-rude)

Yokes with the Godlings which hee hath subdu'd.
 'Tis true indeed hee is a mighty Prince,
 Whose numbrous Arms, with furious insolence,
 Have over-born as many as with-stood, 600

Made many a Province even to swim in bloud, Burnt many a Temple ; and (insatiate still)
 Of neighbour Gods have wholly had their will But, O! What Gods are those? Gods void of Bee-
 ing

(Save, by their hands that serve them) Gods un-seeing,
 New, up-start Gods, of yester-dayes device ;
 To Men indebted, for their Deities :
 Gods made with hands, gods without life, or breath ;
 Gods, which the Rust, Fire, Hammer conquereth.

But, thou art Lord, th' invincible alone, 610
 Th' All-seeing GOD, the Everlasting ONE :

And, who so dares him 'gainst thy Pow'r oppose,
 Seems as a Puff which roaring Boreas blows,
 Weening to tear the Alps off at the Foot,
 Or Clouds-prop Athos from his massie Root :
 Who but mis-speaks of thee, hee spets at Heav'n,
 And his owne spettle in his face is driven.

Lord, shew thee such : take on thee the Defence
 Of thine owne glory, and our innocence :
 Cleer thine own name of blame : let him not thus 620
 Triumph of Thee, in triumphing of us :

But, let there (Lord) unto thy Church appear
 Just Cause of Joy, and to thy Foes of fear.

God hears his Cry, and (from th' Emperial Round)
 Hee wrathfull sends a winged Champion down ;
 Who, richly arm'd in more then humane Arms,
 Mowes in one night of Heathen men at Arms,
 Thrice-three-score thousand, & five thousand more
 Feld round about ; beside, behinde, before.

Prayer, the Refuge of the godly.

Miraculous slaughter of the Assyrians.

Simile. Here, his two eyes, which Sun-like brightly turn, 630
Two armed Squadrons in a moment burn :
Not much unlike unto a fire in stubble,
Which, sodain spreading, stil the flame doth double,
And with quick succour of some Southern blasts
Crick-crackling quickly all the Country wastes.

Here the stiff storm, that from his mouth he blows
Thousands of Souldiers each on other throws ;
Even as a Winde, a Rock, a sodain Floud
Bears down the Trees in a side-hanging Wood ;
Th' Yew over-turns the Pine, the Pine the Elm, 640
The Elm the Oak, th' Oak doth the Ash o'er-whelm ;
And from the top, down to the vale below,
The Mount 's dis-mantled and even shamed, so.

Here, with a Sword (such as that sacred blade
For the Bright Guard of Eden's entry made)
Hee hacks, he heaws ; and sometimes with one blow
A Regiment hee all at once doth mow :

Simile. And, as a Cannon's thundry roaring Ball,
Batt'ring one Turret shakes the next withall,
And oft in Armies (as by proof they finde) 650
Kills oldest Souldiers with his very winde :
The whiffing flashes of this Sword so quick,
Strikes dead a many, which it did not strike.

Here, with his hands hee strangles all at-once
Legions of Foes. O Arm that Kings dis-thrones :
O Army-shaving Sword ! Rock-razing Hands !
World-tossing Tempest ! All-consuming Brands !
O, let some other (with more sacred fire,
Then I, inflam'd) into my Muse inspire
The wondrous manner of this Overthrow, 660
The which (alas !) God knowes, I little know :
I but admire it in confused sort ;
Conceive I cannot ; and, much lesse report.

Come-on, Zemacherib : where 's now thine Hoast ?
Where are thy Champions ? Thou didst lately boast,

Th' hadst in thy Camp as many Souldiers,
As Sea hath Fishes, or the Heav'ns have Stars :
Now, th' art alone : and yet, not all alone :
Fear and Despair, and Fury wait upon
Thy shame-full Flight : but, bloody Butcher, stay : 670
Stay, noysom Plague, fly not so fast away,
Fear not Heav'n's Fauchin : that foul brest of thine
Shall not be honor'd with such wounds divine :
Nor shalt thou yet in timely bed decease ;
No : Tyrants use not to Depart in Peace :
As bloud they thirsted, they are drown'd in bloud ;
Their cruell Life a cruell Death makes good.

Senacherib slain by his own Sons.
For (O just Judgement !) lo, thy Sons (yer-long)
At Nisrock's Shrine revenge the Hebrews' wrong : 680
Yea, thine owne Sons (foul eggs of fouler Bird)
Kill their own Father, sheath their either sword
In thine owne throat ; and, heirs of all thy vices,
Mix thine own bloud among thy Sacrifices.

Ezechiah's sickness.
This Miracle is shortly seconded
By one as famous, and as strange, indeed.
It pleas'd the Lord with heave hand to smite
King Ezechiah ; who, in dolefull plight,

Upon his bed lies vexed grievously,
Sick of an Ulcer past all remedy.
Art fails the Leach, and issue faileth Art, 690
Each of the Courtiers sadly wails a-part
His losse and Lord : Death, in a mourn-full sort,
Through every Chamber daunteth all the Court ;
And, in the City, seems in every Hall
T' have light a Taper for his Funerall.

Then Amos * Son, his bed approaching, pours
From plentious lips these sweet & golden show'rs ;
But that I know, you know the Lawes Divine,
But that your Faith so every-where doth shine,
But that your Courage so confirm'd I see ; 700
I should, my Liege, I should not speake so free ;
I would not tell you, that incontinent
You must prepare to make your Testament :
That your Disease shall have the upper hand :
And Death already at your Door doth stand.

What? fears my Lord? Know you not here beneath
Wee always saff towards the Port of Death ;
Where, who first anch'reth, first is glorified ?
That 't is decreed, confirm'd, and ratified,

That (of necessity) the fatal Cup, 710
Once, all of us must (in our turn) drink up ?
That Death's no pain, but of all pains the end,
The Gate of Heav'n, and Ladder to ascend ?
That Death's the death of all our storms and strife,
And sweet beginning of immortall Life ?
For, by one death a thousand deaths wee slay :
There-by, we rise from body-Toomb of Clay,
There-by, our Soules feast with celestiall food,
There-by, we come to th' Heav'nly Brother-hood, 720
There-by, w' are chang'd to Angels of the Light,
And, face to face, behold God's beauties bright.

The Prophet ceast : and soon th' Isaacian Prince,
Deep apprehending Death's drad form and sense,
Unto the Wall-ward turns his weeping eyes :
And, sorrow-torn, thus (to himselfe) he cries :

Lord, I appeal, Lord (as thine humble childe)
From thy just Justice to thy Mercy milde :
Why will thy strength destroy a silly-one,
Weakned and wasted even to skin and bone ;
One that adores thee with sincere affection, 730
The wrack of Idols, and the Saint's protection :
O ! shall the good thy servant had begun
For Sion, rest now by his death undone ?
O ! shall a Pagan After-king restore
The Groves and Idols I have raz'd before ?
Shall I dye Childlesse ? shall thine Heritage
In vain expect that glorious golden Age
Under thy CHRIST ? O ! mercy, mercy, Lord :
O Father milde, to thy dear Childe accord
Some space of life : O ! let not, Lord, the voice 740
Of Infidels at my poor death rejoyce.

Then said the Seer ; Bee of good cheer, my Liege :
Thy sighes and tears and prayers so besiege
The throne of pitty, that, as pierc't with-all,
Thy smiling Health God yeeldeth to re-call,

* The prophet Isaiah.

A comfortable Visitation of the sick.

A prayer for a sick Person, mutatis mutan-dis.

The King's Praiser heard and his life prolonged 15. years.

- Wils, to his Temple (three daies hence) thou mount,
Retracts his Sentence, and corrects his count,
Makes Death go back, for fifteen yeers : as lo,
This Dial's shadow shall here back-ward go.
- The Sun goes back.
- His Word's confirm'd with wonderfull effect : 750
For, lo, the Dial, which doth houres direct (Life's-guider, Day's-divider, Sun's-consorter, Shadow's dull shifter, and Time's dumb reporter)
Puts-up-again his passed hours (perforce)
And back-ward goes against his wonted course.
'Tis Noon at Mid-night ; and a triple morn
Seems that long day to brandish and adorn :
Sol goes, and coms ; and, yer that in the Deep
Of Atlas' shade hee lay him down to sleep,
His bright, light-winged, gold-shod wheels do cut 760
Three times together in the self-same rut.
- Lord ! what are we ? or, what is our deserving !
That, to confirm our Faith (so prone to swerving)
Thou daign'st to shake heav'n's solid Orbs so bright ;
Th' Order of Nature to dis-order quite ?
To make the Sun's Teem with a swift slow pase,
Back, back to trot ; and not their wonted Race ?
That, to dispell the Night so blindly-black,
Which siels our souls, thou mak'st the shade go back
- On Ahas Dial ? And, as self-un-stable, 770
Seem'st to revoke thine Acts irrevocable,
Raze thine own Dooms (tost in unsteady storm)
And, to reform us, thine own speech reform ;
To give thy Self the Lie : and (in a word)
As Self-blam'd, softly to put-up thy Sword ?
- Thrice glorious God ! thrice great ! thrice gracious
Here-in (O Lord) thou seem'st to deal with us,
As a wise Father, who with tender hand
Severely shaking the correcting Wand,
With voyce and gesture seems his Son to threat : 780
Whom yet indeed hee doth not mean to beat ;
But, by his curb of fained Rigour, aims
To awe his Son : and so him oft reclaims.
- This Prince no sooner home to Heav'n returns,
But Israel back to his vomit turns ;
Him re-bemires : and, like a head-strong Colt,
Runs headlong down into a strange Revolt.
And, though Jarias, Heav'n-dear Prince (who young Coms wisely-old, to live the older long)
Had re-advanc't the sacred Lawes divine, 790
Propt Sion's Wall (all ready to decline)
With his own back ; and, in his happy Reign,
The Truth re-flour'n, as in her Prime again :
Yet Jacob's Heirs strive to resemble still
- Simile.
- A stiff-throw'n Bowl, which running down a Hill,
Meets in the way some stub, for rub, that stops
The speed a space ; but instantly it hops,
It over-jumps ; and stays not, though it stumble,
Till to the botom up-side-down it tumble.
- Simile.
- With puissant Hoast proud Nebuchadnezzar 800
Now threatned Juda with the worst of War :
His Camp comes marching to Jerusalem,
And her old Walls in a new Wall doth hem.
- The busie-Builders of this newer Fold,
In one hand, Swords, in th' other, Trowels hold :
Nor selder strikes with blades then hammers there ;
With firmer foot the Sieged's shock to bear,
Who seem a swarm of Hornets buzzing out
Among their Foes, and humming round about,
To spet their splight against their Enemies, 810
With poysonle Darts, in noses, brows, and eyes.
Cold Capricorn hath pav'd all Juda twice
With brittle plates of crystall-crusted Ice,
Twice glased Jordan ; and the Sappy-bloud
Of Trees hath twice re-perriwig'd the Wood,
Since the first siege : What ? said the younger sort,
Shall wee grow old, about a feeble Fort ?
Shall wee (not Martial, but more Mason-skild)
Shall wee not batter Towers, but rather build ?
And while the Hebrew in his sumptuous Chamber 820
Disports himselfe, perfum'd with Nard and Amber,
Shall wee, swelting for Heat, shiv'ring for Cold,
Here, far from home, lie in a stinking Hold ?
Shall time destroy us ? shall our proper sloath
Annoy us more then th' Hebrew's valour doth ?
No, no, my Lord : let not our Fervour fault,
Through length of Siege ; but let us to th' Assault.
Let's win't and wear it : tut (Sir) nothing is Impossible to Chaldean courages.
- Contented, said the King : brave Blouds away, 830
Go seek Renown, 'mid wounds and death, to-day.
Now, in their brests, brave Honor's Thirst began :
Mee thinks, I see stout Nobusaradan Nobusaradan
Already trouping the most resolute
Of every Band, this plot to prosecute.
Each hath his Ladder ; and, the Town to take,
Bears to the Wall his Way upon his back :
But, the brave Prince cleaves quicker then the rest
His slender Firr-poles, as more prow's-full prest.
- Alike they mount, affronting Death together ; 840
But, not alike in face, nor fortune neither :
This Ladder, slippery plac't, doth slide from under : A Scalado.
That, over-sloap, snaps in the midst asunder ;
And souldiers, falling, one another kill
(As with his weight, a hollow Rocky-Hill, 850
Torn with some Torrent, or Tempestuous windes, Shivers it selfe on stones it under-grindes) :
Some, rashly climb'd (not wont to climb so high)
With giddy brains swim headlong down the Sky :
Some over-whelm'd under a Mil-stone-storm, 850
Lose, with their life, their living bodie's form.
- Yet mounts the Captain, and his spacious Targe
Bears off a Mountain and a Forrest large
Of Stones and Darts, that flie about his ears ;
His teeth do gnash, he threats, he sweats, & swears :
As steady there, as on the ground hee goes ;
And there, though weary, hee affronts his Foes,
Alone ; and halfy-hanging in the ayr,
Against whole Squadrons standing firmly fair :
Upright he rears him, and his Helmet brave 860
(Where, not a Plume, but a huge Tree doth wave)
- Nebuchadnezzar*
besiegeth
Jerusalem.

- Reflecting bright, above the Paripet,
Affrights th' whole Citie with the shade of it.
Then, as halfe Victor, and about to venter
Over the Wall, and ready even to enter ;
With his bright Gantlet's scaly fingers bent
Grasping the coping of the battlement,
His hold doth fall, the stones un-fastned, fall
Down in the Ditch, and (headlong) hee with-all :
Yet, hee escapes, and gets again to shoar ; 870
Thanks to his strength : but, to his courage more.
- Nergal.*
Now here (mee thinks) I hear proud Nergal rave :
In War (quoth hee) Master or Match to have,
By Mars I scorn ; yea, Mars himselve in Arms ;
And all the Gods with all their braving storms.
O wrathfull Heav'ns, roar, lighten, thunder threat ;
Gods, do your worst ; with all your batt'ries beat :
If I begin, in spite of all your powrs
I'll scale your Wals, I'll take your Crystall Towrs.
Thus spewd the Curre ; and (as hee spake) withall 880
Climbs up the steepest of a dreadfull Wall,
With his bare-feet on roughest places sprawling,
With hook-crookt hãds upon the smoothest crawling.
- Simile.*
As a fell Serpent, which som Shepheard-lad
On a steep Rock encounters gladly-sad,
Turning and winding nimbly to and fro,
With wriggling pase doth still approach his Foe,
And with a Hiss, a frisk, and flashing eye,
Makes suddenly his faint Assailer file :
Even so the Duke, with his fierce countenance,
His thundering-voice, his Helm's bright radiance, 890
Drives Pashur from the Wals and Yucal too
(A jolly Prater, but a Jade to doe ;
Braver in Counsall then in Combat, far)
With Sephtiah, tinder of this War ;
And Malchy, hee that doth in Prison keep
Under the ground (a hundred cubits deep)
Good Jeremy, an instrument, alone
Inspir'd with breath of th' ever-living ONE.
- Let's fly, cries Pashur : fly this Infidell, 900
Rather this Fiend, the which no weight can fell.
What force can front, or who encounter can
An armed Faulcon, or a flying Man ?
While Nergal speeds his Victory too-fast,
His hooks dis-pointed, disappoint his haste ;
Prevent him, not of praise, but of the Prize
Which (out of doubt) hee did his own surmize.
Hee swears & tears : (what should ? what could hee more ?)
He cannot up, nor will he down, therefore.
Unfortunate ! and vainly-valiant ! 910
- Simile.*
Hee's faine to stand like the Funambulant
Who seems to tread the air, and fall hee must,
Save his Self's weight him counter-poyseth just ;
And save the Lead, that in each hand hee bears,
Doth make him light : the gaping Vulgar fears,
Amaz'd to see him ; weening nothing stranger
Then Art to master Nature, lucre danger.
At last, though loath (full of despight and rage)
Hee slideth down into a horrid hedge,
- Cursing and banning all the Gods ; more mad 920
For the disgrace, then for the hurt hee had.
Els-where the while (as imitating right
The Kinde-blinde Beast, in russet Velvet dight)
Covertly marching in the Dark by day,
Samgarnemo seeks under ground his way.
But Ebedmelech, warn'd of his Designes,
With-in the Town against him counter-mines
Courageously, and still proceedeth on,
Till (resolute) hee bring both Works to one ;
Till one strict Berrie, till one winding Cave 930
Become the Fight-Field of two Armies brave.
- As the self-swelling Badgerd, at the bay
With boldest Hounds (inured to that Fray)
First at the entry of his Burrow fights,
Then in his Earth ; and either other bites :
The eager Dogs are cheer'd with claps and cryes :
The Angry Beast to his best chamber flies,
And (angled there) sits grimly inter-gerning ;
And all the Earth rings with the Terryes yearning :
So fare these Miners ; whom I pittie must, 940
That their bright valour should so darkly joust.
- Whil hotly thus they skirmish in the vault,
Quick Ebedmelech closely hither brought
A Dry-fat, sheath'd in latton plates with-out,
With-in with feathers fill'd, and round about
Bor'd full of holes (with hollow pipes of brass)
Save at one end, where nothing out should pass ;
Which (having first his Jewish Troups retir'd ;
Just in the mouth of th' enter-Mine hee fir'd :
The smoak whereof with odious stink doth make 950
The Pagans soon their hollow Fort forsake :
As from the Berries in the Winter's night
The Keeper draws his Ferret (flesht to bite).
- Now Rabshakeh (as busie) other-where
A rowling Tower against the Town doth rear,
And on the top (or highest stage) of it
A flying Bridge to reach the Courtin fit,
With Pullies, poles ; and planked Battlements
On every story, for his Men's defence.
On th' other side, the Towns-men are not slow 960
With counter-plots to counter-push their Foe :
Now, at the wooden side, then at the front,
Then at the Engins of the Persian Mount,
With Brakes and Slings, and Phalariks* they play,
To fire their Fortresse, and their Men to slay :
But yet, a Cord-Mat (stiffly stretch about)
Defends the Towr, and keeps their Tempests out.
- While thus they deale ; Sephtiah, desperate,
Him secretly out of the City gat,
And with a Pole of rozen-weeping Fir,
So furiously hee doth himselve bestir, 970
That with the same the walking Fort hee fires :
The cruell flame so to the top aspires,
That (maugre bloud, shed from above in slaughter,
And, from below, continuall spouting Water)
It parts the fray : stage after stage it catches,
And th' half-broild Souldiers headlong down it fetches.
- Mines and Counter-mines.*
Simile.
Simile.
*Instruments of Wars wherin wilde-fire is put.

The King (still constant against all extremes)
 To press them nearer yet, with mighty beams
 Rears a new Plat-form, nearer to the Wall, 980
 And covers it, with three-fold shelter all ;
 The Timber (first) with Mud, the Mud with Hides,
 The Hides with Wool-sacks (w^{ch} all Shot derides).
 As th' Aire exhaled by the fiery breath
 Of th' Heav'nly Lion, on an open Heath,
 Or on the tresses of a tufted Plain,
 Pours-down at-once both Fire, and Hall, and Rain :
 So all at once the Isaacian Souldiers threw Floods, Flames and Mountains on these Engins new :
 But th' hungry Flames the Muddy-damp repels ; 990
 The Mounts, the Wool ; the drowning Floods, the Fels.
 There-under (safe) the Ram with yron horn,
 The brazen-headed clov'n-foot Capricorn,
 The boistrous Trepane, and steel Pick-ax play
 Their parts apace, not idle night nor day.
 Here, thorough-riv'n from top to toe, the Wall
 On reeling props hangs ready ev'n to fall :
 There a vast-Engine thundreth upside-down
 The feeble Courtin of the sacred Town.

Simile.

If you have bin, where, you have seen somwhiles, 1000
 How with the Ram they drive-in mighty Piles
 In Dover Peer, to bridle with a Bay
 The Sand-cast Current of the raging Sea ;
 Swift-ebbing streams bear to the Sea the sound,
 Ecco assisteth, and with shrill rebound
 Fls all the Town, and (as at Heav'nly Thunder)
 The Coast about trembles for fear and wonder ;
 Then have you heard and seen the Engins beating
 On Sion's Walls, and her foundations threatning.

Simile.

In fine, the Chaldees take Jerusalem, 1010
 And reave for ever Jurie's Diadem.
 The smoaky burning of her Turrets steep
 Seems ev'n to make the Sun's bright eye to weep :
 And wretched Salem, buri'd (as it were)
 Under a heap of her own Children dear,
 For lack of friends to keep her Obsequies,
 Constraineth sighs (even) from her Enemies :
 Her massie Ruines, and her Cinders show
 Her Wealth and Greatnesse yer her over-throw.
 A sudden horror seizeth every eye 1020
 That views the same : and every Passer-by (Yea, were hee Geta, or Turk, or Troglodite)
 Must needs, for pity of so sad a Sight,
 Bestow some tears, some swelling sighs, or groanes
 Upon these batter'd sculs, these scatter'd stones.
 In Palaces, where lately (gilded rich)
 Sweet Lutes were heard, now luck-lesse Owles doe screech :

The sacred TEMPLE, held (of late) alone
 Wonder of wonders, now a heap of stone :
 The House of God (the hol'st-holy-Place) 1030
 Is now the house of Vermin vile and base :
 The Vessels, destin'd unto sacred use,
 Are now profan'd in Riot and Abuse :
 None scapeth wounds, if any scape with life :
 The Father's rest of Son, the Man of Wife :

Jacob's exil'd : Juda's no more in Fury,
 But (wretched) sighs under the Chaldean fury.
 Their King in chains, wth shame & sorrow thrill'd, Hoshem.
 Before his face sees all the fairest pill'd ;
 Yea, his own Daughters, and his Wives (alas !) 1040
 (Rich Vines and Olives of his lawfull Race)
 Whose love and beautie did his age delight,
 Shar'd to the Souldiers, ravisht in his sight.
 O Father, Father, thus the Daughters cry
 (About his neck still hanging tenderly)
 Whither (alas !) O, whither hale they us ?
 O, must wee serve their base and beastly Lusts ?
 Shall they dissolve our Virgin-zones ? Shall they (Ignoble Grooms) gather our Maiden-May,
 Our spot-lesse Flowr, so carefully preserv'd 1050
 For som great Prince, that mought have us deserv'd ?
 O Hony-dropping Hills wee yerst frequented,
 O Milk-full Vales, with hundred Brooks indented,
 Delicious Gardens of dear Israel ;
 Hills, Gardens, Vales, wee bid you all fare-well :
 Wee (will-wee-nill-wee) hurried hence, as slaves,
 Must now, for Cedron, sip of Tygris's waves ;
 And (weaned from our native Earth and Air)
 For Hackney-Jades be sold in every Fayr ;
 And (O heart's horror !) see the shame-lesse Foe 1060
 Forcing our Honours, triumph in our woe.
 All-sundring Sword ! and (O !) all-cindring Fire !
 Which (mercy-less) do SION's Wrack conspire,
 Why spare you us, more cruell (cry'd the Wives)
 In leaving ours, then reaving others' lives ?
 Your pity's pity-lesse, your Pardon Torture :
 For, quick dispatch had made our sorrows shorter ;
 But your seem-Favour, that prolongs our breaths,
 Makes us, alive, to dye a thousand deaths.
 For, O dear Husband, dearest Lord, can wee, 1070
 Can wee survive, absented quite from Thee,
 And slaves to those whose talk is nothing else
 But thy Disgrace, thy Gyves, and Israel's ?
 Can wee (alas !) exchange thy Royall bed
 (With cunning-cost rare-richly furnished)
 For th' ugly Cabb'n and the lousie Couch
 Of some base Ruffon, or some beastly Slouch ?
 Can wee, alas ! can wretched wee (I say)
 Wee whose commands whole kingdoms did obey,
 Wee at whose beck even Princes' knees did bend, 1080
 Wee on whose Train there dayly did attend
 Hundreds of Eunuchs, and of Maids of Honour
 (Kneeling about us in the humblest manner)
 To dresse us neat, and duly every Morn
 In silk and gold our Bodies to adorn ;
 Dresse others now ? work, on disgrace-full frame
 (Weeping the while) our SION's wofull flame ?
 Dragging like Moyls ? drudge in their Mills ? & hold
 Brooms in our hands, for Scepter-Rods of gold ?
 Come, Parrats come, y' have prated now enough 1090
 (The Pagans' cry in their insulting ruff)
 On Chaldt shoars you shall goe sigh your fill,
 You must with us to Babel : there at will

You may bewail : there, this shall be your plight,
Our Maids by day, our Bed-fellows by night.
And as they spake, the shame-less lust-full crew
With furious force the tender Ladies drew
Even from between th' arms of the wofull King,
Them haling rough, and rudely hurrying ;
And little lackt the act of most despight, 1100
Even in their Father's and their Husband's sight,
Who, his hard Fortune doth in vain accuse :
In vain hee raves, in vain hee roars and rews :
Even as a Lion pris'ned in his grate,
Whose ready dinner is bereft of late,
Roars hideously ; but his fell furie-storm
May well breed horror, but it brings no harm.

The proud fell Pagans do yet farther pass :
They kill, they tear, before the Father's face
(The more to gore : what Marble but would bleed ?) 1110
They massacre his miserable seed.

O ! said the Prince, can you lesse piteous be
To these Self-yeelders (prostrate at your knee)
Than sternly-valiant to the stubborn-stout
That 'gainst your rage courageously stood-out ?
Alas ! what have they done ? what could they doe
To urge revenge and kindle wrath in you ?
Poore silly Babes, under the Nurse's wing,
Have they conspir'd against the Chaldean King ?
Have they sweet Infants, that yet cannot speake, 1120
Broke faith with you ? Have these so youg & weak,
Yet in their Cradle in their Clouts, bewayling
Their woes to-com (to all Man-kinde, unfailing) Dis-ray'd your Ranks ? Have these that yet do craul

Upon all foure, and cannot stand, at all,
With-stood your Fury, and repulst your Powrs,
Frust'rd your Rams, fired your flying Towrs ?
And, bravely sallying in your face (almost)
Hew'n-out their passage thorough all your Hoast ?

O ! no Chaldeans, onely I did all : 1130
I did complot the King of Babel's fall :
I foyld your Troups : I fill'd your sacred Flood
With Chaldean bodies, dy'd it with your blood.
Turn therefore, turn your bloody Blades on-me ;
O ! let these harm-less Little-ones go free ;
And stain not with the blood of Innocents
Th' immortal Tropheis of your high Attents.
So, ever may the Riphean Mountains quake
Under your feet : so ever may you make
South, East, and West your own : on every Coast 1140
So, ay victorious march your glorious Hoast :
So, to your Wives be you thrice welcom home,
And so God bless your lawfull-loved womb
With Self-like Babes, your substance with increase,
Your selves (at home) with hoary haire in Peace.

Simile.

But as a Rock, 'gainst w^{ch} the Heav'ns do thudder,
Th' Aire roars about, the Ocean rageth under,
Yeelds not a jot : no more this savage Crew ;
But rather, muse to finde-out Tortures new.
Here, in (his sight) these cruell Lestrigons 1150
Between them take the eldest of his Sons,

With keenest swords his trembling flesh they heaw,
One gobbet here, another there they streaw.
And from the veins of dead-live limbs (alas !)
The spirit-full bloud spins in his Father's face.
There, by the beels his second Son they take,
And dash his head against a Chimney's back ;
The scull is dasht in pieces, like a Crock,
Or earthen Stean, against a stony Rock :
The scatter'd batter'd brains about beameard, 1160
Some hang (O horror !) in the Father's beard.
Last, on himselfe their savage furie flies,
And with sharp bodkins bore they out his eyes :
The Sun he loses, and an end-less night
Be-clouds for ever his twin-balled sight :
Hee sees no more, but feels the woes hee bears ;
And now for crystall, weeps hee crimson tears,
For, so God would (and justly too, no doubt)
That hee which had in Juda clean put-out
Th' immortal Lamp of all religious light, 1170 Should have his eyes put-out, should lose his sight ;

And that his body should be outward blinde,
As inwardly (in holy things) his minde.

O Butchers (said hee) satiate your Thirst,
Swill, swill your fill of blood, untill you burst :
O ! broach mee not with Bodkin but with Knife ;
O ! reave mee not my bodie's light, but life :
Give mee the sight not of the Earth, but Skies :
Pull-out my heart : O ! poach not out mine eyes.
Why did you not this barb'rous deed dispatch, 1180
Yer I had seen me an unseptred Wretch,
My Cities sackt, my wealthy subjects pill'd,
My Daughters ravisht, and my Sons all kill'd ?
Or else, why stayd you not till I had seen
Your (beast-like) Master grazing on the Green :
The Medes conspiring to supplant your Throne :
And Babel's glory utter overthrowne ?

Then had my soule with Fellow-Fals been eas'd :
And then your pain, my pain had part appeas'd.

O ragefull Tyrants ! moody Monsters, see, 1190
See here my Case ; and see your selves in mee.
Beware contempt : tempt not the Heav'nly Powrs,
Who thunder-down the high-aspiring Towrs
(But mildely pardon, and permit secure Poor Cottages that lye below obscure)
Who Pride abhor ; who lifts us up so high,
To let us fall with greater infamie.
Th' Almighty sports him with our Crowns and us ;
Our glory stands so fickle-founded thus
On slippery wheels, already rowling down : 1200
He gives us not, but onely shews the Crown :
Our Wealth, our Pleasure, and our Honour too
(Whereat the Vulgar make so much adoe)
Our Pomp, our State, our All that can be spoken,
Seems as a glasse bright-shining, but soon broken.

Thrice-happy Hee, whom with his sacred arm,
Th' Eternal props against all Haps of Harm ;
Who hangs upon his providence alone,
And more prefers God's Kingdome then his own.

So happy be great BRITAIN Kings (I pray) 1210
Our Sovereigne JAMES, and all his Seed for ay ;
Our hope-full HENRY, and a hundred mo
Good, faithfull STUARTS (in successive row)
Religious, righteous, learned, valiant, wise,
Sincere to Vertue, and severe to Vice ;
That not alone These Dayes of Ours may shine
In Zeal-full Knowledge of the TRUTH divine,
And Wee (illightned with her sacred rayes)
May walk directly in the Saving wayes
Of faith-full Service to the ONE true Deitie, 1220
And mutuell Practise of all Christian Pietie ;
But, that our Nephews, and their Nephews (till Time be no more) may be conducted still
By the same Cloud by day, and Fire by night
(Through this vast Desart of the World's despight)
Towards their Home the heav'nly CANAAN,
Prepared for us yer the World began :
That they with us, and wee (complete) with them
May meet triumphant in JERUSALEM ;
With-in whose Pearly Gates and Jasper Walls 1230
(Where th' Holy LAMB keeps his high Nuptials,
Where needs no shining of the Sun or Moon ;
For, God's own face makes there perpetuall Noon :
Where shall no more be Waylings, Woes, nor Cryes ;
For God shall wipe all tears from weeping eyes)

Shall enter nothing filthy or unclean,
No Hog, no Dog, no Sodomite obscene,
No Witch, no Wanton, no Idolater,
No Thief, no Drunkard, no Adulterer,
No wicked-liver, neither wilfull Lyer : 1240
These are without, in Tophet's end-lesse Fire.
Yet such as these (or some of these, at least)
Wee all have been : in somewhat all have mist
(And, had wee broken but one Precept sole,
The Law repntes us guilty of the whole) :
But, wee are washed, in the Sacred-Floud ;
But, wee are purged, with the Sprinkled-Bloud ;
But, by the Spirit, wee now are sanctifi'd ;
And, through the Faith in JESUS, justifi'd. 1250
Therefore no more let us our selves defile,
No more returne unto our vomit vile,
No more profane us with Concupiscence,
Nor spot the garment of our Innocence :
But, constant in our Hope, fervent in Love
(As even al-ready conversant Above)
Proceed wee cheery in our Pilgrimage
Towards our happy promis'd Heritage,
Towards That City of heart-bound-lesse Blisse
Which CHRIST hath purchast with his blood, for his :
To whom, with FATHER, and the SPIRIT, therefore 1260
Be Glory, Praise, and Thanks, for evermore.

Amen Amen
 Amen.

Say not, My hand This Work to END hath brought :
 Nor, This my Vertue hath attained to :
 Say rather thus ; This GOD by mee hath wrought :
 GOD's Author of the little Good I doe.
