Wonders of the Universe New Communications Era Began with Syncom III

By DR. I. M. LEVINE, DIRECTOR
The first of the new era in communications was inaugurated on Aug. 23 when the first synchronous satellite (SAT) Syncom III was launched into orbit at longitude 135 degrees and over the equator at all times. Just as Sputnik I inaugurated the space age, Syncom III marks the beginning of the new era in communications. The satellite must either be launched from the equator or at a latitude of 0 degrees, or be skewed in orbit so that it lies in the plane of the equator. As Cape Kennedy was not on the equator, the satellite was launched at a latitude of 28 degrees and over the equator at all times. Highest vote getters on the Republican side. The Illinois at large election was not, however, a winner-take-all affair. The election of at least half of the candidates of the losing party was guaranteed. The Republicans will have 59 members in the new House, which they used to control handsomely.

The history of reapportionment in Illinois to date has seen the old Republican Legislature pass a new districting plan which the Democratic Governor Kenney vetoed on the ground it was unfair to organized Democracy. That veto threw the redistricting problem into the hands of a bi-partisan commission. This bi-partisan commission died and found itself unable to perform.

The absence of any new districting system forced the holding of an election at large—a process Connecticut might have been forced to try Nov 3 if the Courts had not permitted legislative elections to be omitted.

After the regular election for the Illinois State Senate, which the Republicans still control, and the at large election for the House, which the Democrats will now control, the new Legislature will have to take up, again, the reapportionment problem.

Conceivably, the two parties will deadlock again as they have in the previous two efforts to accomplish reapportionment for the Illinois House.

One begins to wonder how many years of turmoil, in how many states, will have to be endured before the mandate of the Judiciary has been achieved.

And then one wonders whether, too late, even the Judiciary itself has not begun to regret it did not act earlier, in stages and more permissive schedules for such a sweeping revolution in grass roots context of the American political system.

Every Theory Has Its Day

In the world of the experts on intangible theories, the sun of final conclusion one way or another never really sets.

Theories may have periods in which they seem more fashionable than others. There are cycles and cycles of style. It is very easy to see the expert who preaches one thing or another really needs to disappear from the public scene, or change his tune.

It is his keep whispering, and sooner or later, people will begin joining him again.

What sparks such a philosophical vein of thought, at the moment, is a recommendation made by the Public Education Association, which is considered one of the really weighty powers in the field of educational theory down in New York City.

The recommendation made by this prestigious organization may be summed up in one word.

It is "decentralization."

The Public Education Association issued this mandate only a day or two after Dr. Conant, the continuous fount of supposed wisdom on educational matters, was publishing a new book in which he seemed to suggest great coordination and centralization of educational policy and administration.

And one does not realize that such a sentiment would be impossible for such a fine organization in this era when so much of school policy has come racial politics, one might even be tempted to think that the Public Education Association was coming out in favor of the old-fashioned neighborhood school.

Centralization or decentralization—bigger schools or smaller schools—learn by rote or learn only if you please—junior high schools or no junior high schools—these are issues on which the pendulum swings back and forth from expert to expert and generation to generation, and any theorist who lives long enough and holds to his own theory is likely to experience an age which is in tune with him.

The miracle is that, except for occasional wild periods of complete breakdown, like that which occurred when nobody learned either to spell or multiply, the educational product gets together better and better.

Looking At Main Street

So often it is the stranger in our midst that sees a case in point in Main Street, Middletown, mightily unchanged for 50 years, essentially unchanged for a century.

To Middletown the scene is so familiar as to not bespeak comment; to the stranger it is ugly, if somewhat breathtaking. Its great width invites comment, but mainly to our credit, never in a long time are vaguely aware that the land now is a strip of concrete and asphalt and indeed has retrogressed. The great trees that once graced its boundaries are gone, a scrub of evergreens takes effect of unorganized tangle.

Many communities have faced the same problem and have tried to cure the malady. If the first problem is the ability of recognition, the second is to find the means to deal with it. This is the one thing that only the efficacy of almost instantly, and at virtually no cost. Many of our major stores realize their solution lies in this scheme and have themselves avoided the over-hanging sign because they realize it is detrimental to the effect of the street as a whole, others have not.

The first "whereas" it is the fact that the "State of Connecticut, drawing its political principles from the Fundamental Orders of 1639 and continuing, then without interruption through its recent Constitution, has governed itself since Colony days as a sovereign, independent, and self-regulating entity and regulated its own internal political affairs."

Another "whereas" claims that "the validity of such orders (reapportionment) rests upon the power of authority delegated by the People or the

Reapportionment in Illinois

One of the 1964 elections that for the State House of Representatives out in Illinois is just over.

Because of deadlock over legislative reapportionment, the election of the Illinois House was last Nov. 3 an "at large" election. This, with each party nominating 11 candidates, made the longest ballot, in American political history. The main reason it took so long to count and tabulate the results.

With the pro-Johnson, anti-Goldwater sweep going for them, all 118 Democratic nominees came in ahead of the Manchester Bowling Green advertisement with logo and address.

Sirens Will Ring Monday Remembering Pearl Harbor

Manchester will participate in a statewide Civil Defense drill on Monday — the anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack that began American participation in World War II.

The drill is scheduled for 11 Monday morning, when civil defense alert sirens and signals will be tested as part of Connecticut's Civil Defense Day activities. The test calls for a steady siren blast of three to five minutes.

William Schatzman, state CD director, said in announcing the drill that the public is not being asked to participate.

That may be just as well in Manchester; the civil defense warning system in town includes only five sirens — three steam whistles and two conventional sirens.

The rest of the 17 warning devices in town are inoperative. Town CD director John Merz has instructed the Southern New England Telephone Co. to cut the power to those which do not work.

Merz has been asking since 1962 for funds to replace rusted or worn signals with seven new, high-powered ones. The Federal Signal & Signal Co. recommended in a report submitted to Merz in 1961 that the new signals be installed.

The cost for the new equipment has been estimated by Merz at about $25,000, although some of this amount would be returned to the town in matching federal funds.

Each year since 1962 the request has been cut from the town CD budget, however. Merz's request to cut the power to the 12 signals which do not work will save the town part of the telephone company's annual charge of about $1,500.

The relays and circuits will be left in place so that the system could be reinstated if new sirens are available.

The alarms are sounded by telephone from the town police station at a per-arranged signal.

General Manager Richard Martin has suggested that Merz report on the town CD setup to the town board of directors. The board became responsible for appointing both the CD director and members of the CD advisory council as the result of a charter change approved by the electorate in October.

As the advisory council and CD director's post are presently constituted, there are no definite terms of office.

The board has suggested that two-year terms be established for both the director and council members. An ordinance will be presented to the board in January, when the appointment of some council members and the director may also come up.

A general lack of interest in Civil Defense activities in Manchester brought criticism upon the town this summer from State CD Director Schatzman.

At a meeting this fall with the area civil defense commander, town officials promised to bring paperwork up-to-date on the town's status.

16 SHOPPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS

Cast Funny In 'Darling'

By PETER GEROUX

If the theater housing this comedy has an empty seat tonight it will simply mean that someone has fallen out of it—'Darling' is delightfully funny.

The action hinges on the effect of a precocious playwright (Gerard Bourrat) on the happy though-nective lives of Polly (Dona Leavitt), an erstwhile star, and Don (Clay Wilson), her perfume ad husband.

Not only does inexperienced Deerfield Prescott III agitate Don with his professed intent of slipping with his wife ('I haven't done well with women since I was eleven and the upstairs maid attacked me; they say I didn't even resist'), but, even more, he has the audacity to write better plays.

Martha (Ruth Palmes) the liquor lovin' copyist, who has a bowl of pretzels and a stool named after her at the neighborhood pub; and Juliet (Arline Culver), the flip and saucy family retainer, conspire to end Polly's perils with a good solid pregnancy. Their free flowing antics can scarcely be compressed in print. Arline can verbally give a line the same corkscrew twist that Margaret Rutherford manages with facial quirk.

Gloria, the free-lancing friend from Ohio, whose hard ego and obnoxious seductress is planned for Polly's father, flatter, bewildered and bewitching piety, is well played by Connie Benson. The policemen (Karl Then and Edward Zawistowski) are marvelously adroit when they hassle with Don and Deerfield, at which time the latter comes into manhood by biting the fuzz.

Ed Culver is the unprudent papa who is shopping with his luck ('He has ten million, and another 3 the government doesn't know about') for a savoir-faire suit to fit junior's background.

The sparkling little gem of the evening is Judy Egelston, who plays a bit part as Penelope, the Vassar beaver with aplomb and voice far beyond her meager stage experience.

The set, as usual, is tastefully done by Roger Negro, and made lovely with the paintings of Jeanette Eich.

The nimble direction of Dwight Martin and the good comic timing of the cast bring about another enjoyable production by a group who shows heart, in capitals.

Under the sponsorship of the Manchester Registered Nurses Association—see it at the Whitton Auditorium—curtain at 8:30 p.m.

Happy Birthday! Happy Anniversary! No matter what the song is, it will sound like 'Home Sweet Home' at Marilyn Court. In this warm atmosphere you feel like singing all the time. Singing the praises of Marilyn Court's privacy, of her comfort, of her convenience. And we mean privacy . . . closed circuit TV and intercom (you can see who your caller is!), entry foyers, glamorous main lobby, softly carpeted hallways, and extra thick soundproofing. Comfortable? Just look at the large bright rooms, walls of closets, electric heat with individual room controls, and smart kitchens with electric range, refrigerator and disposal. And convenient to be sure. Two elevators, complete laundry rooms on each floor, six 'chatting' lounges, master TV antenna and an easy walk to schools, shopping, bus line and just 15 minutes from downtown Hartford. We're not sure of the tune, but we know why everyone is singing 'It's the Finest Value You Can Find!' See for yourself.

TV Notebook

By JOAN CROSSBY NEW YORK (NEA)—For a man who makes his living talking, Les Crane is strangely uncommunicative during an interview.

Ask him, after he says he is constantly tired, why he works so hard and he answers, "I wish to hell I knew." Ask him why he chose performing after he established himself in the business side of radio or why he studied drama in college, and the answer is, "I really don't know."

Controversial? Maybe Crane is saving his talk for his new late night ABC-TV show seen five times a week. Both Crane and the show have been called controversial, a word usually applied when the talk descends to the level many people would not tolerate in their living room unless the speakers were on television. He does not, Crane says, seek controversy.

"We want people who are interesting. We don't sit and think what will be controversial."

Crane, a handsome, slight young man whose handshake betrays an exceedingly moist palm, does say that he has never been particularly happy doing any one thing. That will sound awful in print. But doing this show has made me happiest. We were rapped so badly by the critics, but we are trying to shake down the show in some 20 areas. It's a game, this whole thing with the ratings and the critics, and it becomes fun. It sounds dramatic and cliché to say it, but I have got to have a challenge.

Accidental Start Crane's talk show began by accident in San Francisco, when he was program director of an ABC-owned radio station. He decided the area needed a talk show, and he couldn't find anyone to head it. So he stepped in himself.

"Everyone is basically trying to communicate diligently with his fellow man. Even husbands and wives arguing are trying to communicate. When our guests get into a controversial area, they forget where they are and they really make attempts to communicate their thoughts."

Tessie O'Shea of "The Entertainers" was four years old when she faced her first audience to sing "Lullaby Land."

'Bristol Court' Closes Lively 'Karen' Stays

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Late this month "90 Bristol Court" will close its doors for the last time, ending NBC's experiment with a 90-minute, vaguely inter-connected situation comedy.

One-third of the series will remain in the form of "Karen." A major reason for its survival is Karen herself—vivacious, golden-haired Debbie Watson. "Gee, it's real sad to see the others go," she lamented. "I can't really say why we succeeded while the other two—'Harris Against the World,' 'Tom, Dick and Mary'—are going off the air. The only thing I can guess is that maybe we have more of a teen-age appeal, and there are just lots and lots of teen-agers."

True. And the teeners as well as old folks are intrigued with Karen, the ingenuous daughter of Richard Denning and Mary La Roche on the show. Even though Debbie appears set for at least a season and perhaps a lengthy career, she continues to live with her parents in La Mirada, 30 miles south of Universal City.

That means a one-hour drive through rush-hour freeway traffic twice a day, but she doesn't mind. Not much does bother her—except being 15. She suggested to the reporter: "Maybe if you don't do your article right away, you could say I was 16. I will be, on Jan. 17. Oh, how I wish I were older."

Curiously, "Karen" is Debbie's first big job in show business. The daughter of a purchaser for a trailer firm, she appeared in plays in Orange County, including "Bye Bye Birdie" and "Brigadoon" at Melodyland. One day she accompanied a friend to an audition at Paramount. A stranger mentioned that a teen-ager was being sought to "Karen" at Universal City. Debbie gave it a whirl and won.

Leading off the three-act series, "Karen" scored best in the ratings and was chosen as the survivor. Debbie has only one complaint about the transition. "When we lived in Bristol Court, I drove my own convertible in the show," she said. "Now that my father got a raise and we have moved to our own house, I suddenly don't have a car any more. You'd think it we could afford a house I could keep my car."

But Debbie has her own consolation. She has ordered her first car of her very own, a convertible of shell yellow with black top and black interior.

EARNED WAY Michael Tolson of "The Doctors and the Nurses" helped earn his way through Wayne University in Detroit by acting in "The Lone Ranger" on radio.

Networks Steel for N-Day: Release of National Ratings

By CYNTHIA LOWRY NEW YORK (AP)—Monday will be the 23rd anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor—and it may prove to be a Pearl Harbor for some limping television programs. It will be network television's N day—N for national Nielsen, the first estimates of program popularity this season which the industry considers really meaningful.

The Nielsen Research Organization reports on its estimates of the size of audiences for network TV shows every two weeks. Monday's report is considered critical because the period covered—the middle two weeks in November—were the first this season when no programs were preempted for political broadcasts.

Although there has been a barrage of criticism directed at sampling methods and although the size and composition of the sample—about 1,200 homes to reflect the viewing choices of more than 52 million TV equipped homes—has been questioned, the report is used as the authoritative yardstick by the industry. Millions of dollars and the future of many programs are affected by it.

The public may think of ratings as a mere program popularity contest—whether "Bonanza" or "Bewitched" is on top. They have a far more serious use for the companies that pay for the programs. If a sponsor spends, say, $100,000 to participate in a program, its rating gives him a rough idea about how much it costs to reach a thousand viewers. This figure is called "CPM"—cost per thousand—and it increases as the audience decreases. That is why a program with a low

Salute to Rudolph

"The Story of Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," a fully animated color-film musical Christmas fantasy, will be presented as a special holiday feature by General Electric on NBC tomorrow from 5:30-6:30 p.m.

Burl Ives is the off-camera voice of an animated snowman who sings and tells the tale of the little shiny-beaked buck which was barred from Santa's sleigh team until a blizzard threatened to cancel Christmas. The TV adaptation of Robert L. May's 25-year-old story of "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer" was written by Romeo Muller. It will feature seven new Christmas tunes composed especially for the colorcast by Johnny Marks, writer of the show's theme and title tune. It has become one of America's favorite Yuletide story-songs, and has sold over 40,000,000 recordings since its origination 15 years ago.

The story of the Christmas reindeer whose nose glowed through the murkiest fog is enacted by puppets "brought alive" by "Animakic" (dimensional animation), a technique created by its producers, Arthur Rankin Jr. and Jules Bass of Videocraft International. They also produced the first G-E Fantasy Special, "Return to Oz," last season.

Creator of 'Perry Mason' Visits Party for Losers

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Erie Stanley Gardner, the one-man book factory, was in town for a rare visit to his brainchild, Perry Mason, and to make sure the defense attorney continues his winning ways.

Gardner's advent was celebrated by a party given by Raymond Burr, the Mason of television, for the losers of the 371 shows during the series' eight years. The place: The Losers Club, a watering place along La Cienega's restaurant row.

Burr didn't appear, but dozens of his defeated opponents did. Gardner himself was a grumbling participant—"My ears are bad and I have no gift for small talk," he complained earlier. But he seemed to have no complaint as he posed for photographers with three of the most luscious losers—Joyce Jameson, Kathie Browne and Lisa Gays.

In a more relaxed mood, Gardner lounged at the Hollywood Hills home of his partners, Cornwell Jackson and Gail Patrick—the executive producer of the CBS series. He is a chunky, tweed-suited man whose quiet manner is in contrast to the enormous energy he has poured into his work over the years.

"I come to Hollywood as little as possible," he remarked. "People are apt to trample me to death, and I start to get behind in my work. I'm always closing offices and opening up new ones because people catch up with me."

Besides his 3,000-acre ranch in Riverside County, he has 27 acres at Paradise, Calif., and a houseboat which he keeps in the delta country of the Sacramento River. In these places and others, he maintains a staff of six to eight secretaries, who take the rat-a-tat-tat dictation for his books and correspondence—"I've forgotten how to operate a typewriter."

His output so far? He couldn't remember, so he had a secretary phone the ranch office. The report came back: 123 books, including 74 Perry Masons; four now at the publisher or in the works.

"I used to do two to four Masons a year, plus two under the name of A. A. Fair," Gardner said. "But lately I've gotten saidetracked into other interests. For instance, I've been doing a lot of research on Baja California and have made expeditions down there. I'm also producing a book about houseboats. And I've been doing a great deal of investigation in the Superstition Mountains about the Lost Dutchman mine."

"Run out of ideas?" he said. "I don't think I ever will, as long as I maintain a variety of experience. I try to make each new Perry Mason better than the last one."

A Return, A Reunion

NEW YORK (AP)—Diane Lennon, whose marriage and retirement from show business reduced the singing Lennon sisters from a quartet to a trio, has changed her mind. She'll be back as a Lawrence Welk regular from Dec. 12 on. Also back, after an enforced absence because of eye trouble, is Welk's veteran organist, Jerry Burke.

The merry crew which started the whole late evening entertainment cycle on television will be back together Thursday night—on Les Crane's ABC late show. They are Jerry Lester, Dagmar and Morey Amsterdam, once of NBC's "Broadway Open House."

Jerry Lewis, whose television appearances for the last year have been confined pretty much to re-runs of his old movies, will try it again, starting next Sunday with an appearance on CBS's "Ed Sullivan Show."

Now it is official: ABC has announced it will extend "Shindig," its Wednesday evening music show for the young crowd, to a full hour starting Jan. 20, a week after "Mickey," the disappointing Mickey Rooney comedy series, disappears.

Danny Thomas leads a show on NBC Thursday 10-11 p.m.
