Dear Customer,

Van Geest Nurseries offers a wide range of both spring and summer flowering bulbs, perennials, rose bushes and shrubs, which can be despatched to customers both in Holland and abroad. By working closely with the very best growers, we are able to offer a wide range of products. We handle volumes according to our customer's needs, nothing is too large or too small. We will pack them according to our customer's wishes. We would also like to draw your attention to our Wholesale Cash & Carry range of products. These are standard unit counts and are available for collection. Delivery can be arranged upon request. We advise you to pre-order until February via sales.nl@vangeest.net.

Van Geest Nurseries have developed extremely efficient systems over the years to pack and deliver orders tailor-made to suit individual customer's needs. For Landscapers and Local Authorities we offer the facility to pack and label orders according to planting plans, thereby reducing labour costs. Boxes can be labelled with contents, bed number and location, making unpacking and planting of a consignment easier for landscape teams.

Based on our customer's needs, we select suitable packaging for transport, whether it is plastic crates, cardboard boxes, nets, wooden crates or paper bags, we guarantee the best material to keep the quality of the bulbs at a peak and get the best flowering results.

Quality, service and reliability are our priorities. The strength of Van Geest Nurseries is the ability to provide solutions to customer's needs, thus ensuring delivery of product in perfect condition.

Best regards,

Sales team
Van Geest Nurseries

ALLIUM

Many hundreds of Allium species exist, but only a modest few have made a name for themselves as garden plants. This text describes the most significant ones. The genus, Allium also includes important plants used for human consumption such as onions, leeks, shallots and the familiar cooking herb, chives. The natural distribution of these species is limited to the temperate regions of Europe, Asia and the Middle East. The ornamental onions distinguish themselves by their great diversity in colour, inflorescence and flowering height. Many species bloom in early summer - just after the spring-flowering period and just before the exuberant full bloom of summer. When slightly bruised, the bulbs, leaves and stems of these plants give off a definite onion scent. Although this has been considered a problem when using ornamental onions as cut flowers, the odour quickly disperses after the stems have been immersed in water for a few moments. Naturally, only the tall and middle-tall species are used as cut flowers. Several species require a bit of special treatment, but will remain beautiful for a long time, even as dried flowers. All species can be used in the border. Certain small species are just perfect for a rock garden, and several lend themselves to naturalising.

ANEMONE

Origin: South Europe (around the Mediterranean Sea)

Before planting you should soak the tubers for a couple of hours. They will grow in any type of soil which is well-drained. Very often Anemone coronaria is sold mixed. Even the small corms (2-3 cm) will flower!

Anemone coronaria single flowering version is also called the "Florist" or "Poppy-flowered" Anemones. We divide them into two groups: Anemone coronaria 'De Caen' varieties (single flowered) and 'St. Brigid' varieties (double flowered).

Flowering period: May-August

Planting depth to base of bulbs: 5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 10 cm

Light requirements: sun or light shade and sheltered spot (PM sun)

Landscape uses: border, beds, pots

BEGONIA

Origin: South America

Begonias are not winter hardy. They cannot tolerate exposure to frost. In spring, plant them out after the last threat of night frost. (Many people start up begonias indoors 4 - 6 weeks before planting them outdoors to get a "jump" on the season and produce earlier blooms. In fall dig up the bulbs before the first night frost and store them, layered in peat or vermiculite, in a cool dry place, for replanting the following spring.

Flowering period: June - October

Average plant height: 25 - 40 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: just covered with soil

Spacing between bulbs: 15 cm

Light requirements: grows best in light shade, direct sunlight causes burning of flowers and leaves (AM sun to 50% shade)

Landscape uses: borders, beds and pots.

DRACUNCULES

VULGARIS (Syn. Arum Dracunculus)	PURPLE	60 CM.	LATE SPRING	13-15
----------------------------------	--------	--------	-------------	-------

EREMURUS

Its enormously tall flower clusters - towering up to 65 inches (175 cm.) above the ground - make it one of the most spectacular bulbous plants in the entire assortment. The name of this genus comes from 'ekemos' meaning 'solitary' and 'oura' meaning 'tall'. All of the several dozen species originated in Asia. Unfortunately, the Eremurus is little used in gardens. Its tuberous roots have a very strange shape; thick fleshy roots fan out in all directions from a central hub. These roots must be handled very carefully. The soil should be well-drained, so add sufficient sand to heavy clay soils.

Flowering period: May - July

Average plant height: 100-250 cm, depending on the species or

Planting depth to base of bulb: 15 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 60 cm

Light requirements: full sun

Landscape uses: at the back of borders and perennial beds

HIPPEASTRUM

A certain amount of confusion exists surrounding 'Hippeastrum', the plant's scientific name, and 'Amaryllis', its common name. The Hippeastrum, a bulbous plant that originated in South Africa, has 4 to 6 large flowers on a hollow stem. Amaryllis belladonna is another bulbous plant from South Africa, but this plant has 6 to 12 smaller flowers on a solid flower stem. For reasons which are difficult to fathom but certainly confusing, the Hippeastrum is known almost the world-over as 'Amaryllis'. The genus, Hippeastrum is composed of several species, while Amaryllis belladonna is the only species in the genus, Amaryllis. The numerous Hippeastrum cultivars being grown were developed from hybridisation's involving several species.

HIPPEASTRUM Syn. 'Amaryllis'

IRIS DUTCH (Syn. Hollandica)

These irises never grew wild in the Netherlands. Instead, they are the products of hybridisation carried out by a Dutch plant breeding firm by the name of Tubergen. Two species playing an important role in the development of these hybrids were I. xiphium and I. lusitanica. For growing them, a rich, well-drained soil is important for success. The bulbs can be left in the ground if desired, but there is a risk of disease. The flowers are 10 cm in diameter, and the flower stalks are very sturdy - a quality which makes them quite suitable for use as cut flowers. The colour assortment is very wide and includes bicoloured varieties.

Flowering period: June - July

Average plant height: 60 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 15 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 10

Light requirement: full sun

Landscape uses: beds, borders and as cut flowers

NARCISSI & DAFFODILS

Popular names: Daffodil and Jonquil

Narcissi join tulips, hyacinths and crocuses to make up the most important of the spring-flowering bulbous, cormous and tuberous plants. Narcissi are used in abundance in gardens. This has much to do with their winter hardiness, the ease with which they naturalise, and their many applications. The various colours and flower types available also play a role in their popularity. The large-flowered yellow daffodils in particular are the flowers that promise that the warm spring air is on the way. The number of wild species varies widely, depending on how one defines 'wild species'. Usually this number is limited to 26 (not counting the subspecies and varieties). In addition to these, many hundreds of cultivars are known. The most important colours are yellow, white, orange-red, orange and salmon. Many cultivars display marked or subtle differences in colour between the corona (trumpet or cup) and the perianth (petals).

Flowering period: February - May

Planting depth to base of bulb: large bulbs: 20 cm; small bulbs: 12.5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 7.5 cm for large bulbs; 2.5 cm for small bulbs

Light requirements: full sun to full shade

Landscape uses: Narcissi are suitable for almost every possible application: fields, beds, containers, borders, rock gardens, as cut flowers, and for forcing.

NERINE

Origin: South Africa

According to popular anecdote, Nerine got its popular name, Guernsey lily, when a specimen washed up on the shores of the English Channel island of Guernsey, thus introducing the South African native to Europe.

Nerine blooms as a cluster of flowers on a leafless stem. Each flower is trumpet-shaped, the petals curl backward. The difference between Nerine bowdenii and Nerine sarniensis is: Nerine bowdenii flowers at the end of the growing period (Sept - Oct) when the foliage has almost withered; Nerine sarniensis flowers in September, flowering is followed directly by growth and foliage development.

Flowering period: September - October

Planting depth to base of bulbs: neck just above the soil

Spacing between bulbs: 20 cm

Light requirements: full sun and sheltered location (AM sun)

Landscape uses: border and container, excellent cut flower.

ORNITHOGALUM

Ornithogalum Saundersiae(Spring delivery) is a specially imported, treated bulb to grow in pots. They can be planted in pots from the beginning of February, until the beginning of July. Each bulb will produce a flower after 6-7 weeks, which will still look attractive later on, producing spectacular seed heads.

AGAPANTHUS

Origin: South Africa

Agapanthus is sometimes used as a border plant, but is mainly a pot plant. During the winter, the pot or container should be taken indoors and grown as a greenhouse plant.

Agapanthus are divided into two groups

- 1 Evergreen group (Intermedius type, for example, variety 'Donau') which you can keep over the winter as a container plant indoors;
- 2 Leaf-losing group (for example, 'Blue Triumphator'), which die off before the winter and can be stored in a cool place.

Flowering period: July-August

Average plant height: up to 100 cm

Planting depth to base of the bulb: just deep enough to cover the rhizome.

Spacing between bulbs: 20 cm

Light requirements: full sun is essential (AM sun)

Landscape uses: borders and containers

CANNA

Origin: South and Middle America

Canna is a half-hardy summer rhizome. Most often used in pots and containers, they are enjoying a resurgence in popularity as a prime summer garden plant. Here, they are divided into three groups: tall, brown-leaved varieties; tall, green-leaved varieties and dwarf varieties. The blooms are up to 5 inches (12.5 cm) and the leaves are very decorative. Canna will bloom longer if you remove dead flowers.

In warm climate zones Canna is perennial. In other areas the rhizomes should be lifted and stored in sand or peat.

Flowering period: July-October

Average plant height: 80 -200 cm

Planting depth to base of bulbs: just deep enough to cover with soil

Spacing between bulbs: 30 cm

Light requirements: sun is essential (full AM sun)

Landscape uses: containers and borders.

Customer Service

Quality, service and reliability are our priorities. The strength of Van Geest Nurseries is the ability to provide solutions to customer needs, thus ensuring supply and delivery of product in the exact format required. To achieve this level of service it is necessary to charge a fee of £ 3,00 per item when the quantity required is less than 500 units and the price per 1000 is less than £ 500,00. Additionally, where an order amounts to less than £ 100,00 in total, an administration charge of £ 8.50 will be added to the total cost of goods required.

Export

Van Geest Nurseries have a great deal of experience in the export of flower bulbs outside the EU and can organise transport and the necessary export documentation required. Please contact us for additional information.

Packaging

We aim to accommodate all your delivery and packaging requirements, whether it is packing individual lines into suitable mailing cartons, or collating several varieties into appropriate outers. We have the facility to print text direct onto packets, or even attach a picture card if required. Whatever your needs, please get in touch and we will help you to achieve your aims.

We continually strive to improve and customise our service according to individual needs and our focus is on our customer requirements and fulfilling these to the very best of our ability. If you would like more information, please get in touch, we will be happy to help.

Best regards,

Sales team Van Geest Nurseries
