Business: The group's principal activities are newspaper circulation, cable television and broadcasting. The group operates in five segments. The newspaper segment operates 21 daily newspapers in the United States and revenues are derived from advertising and circulation. The scripps networks includes four national television networks: home and garden television, food network, do it yourself and fine living. The broadcast televisions include ten television stations and rely on local sales operations. The shop at home sells a range of consumer goods directly to television viewers and visitors to its Website. The licensing and other media aggregates operating segments that are too small to report separately, and primarily includes syndication and licensing of news features and comics. Under the trade name united media, the group distributes news columns, comics and other features for the newspaper industry.

Business: The group's principal activities are to develop, manufacture and market innovative natural products for agriculture to improve plant protection and crop production worldwide. The group has recently initiated marketing activities designed to promote the distribution and sale of its first product, messenger. Messenger is a water-soluble, granular powder that is typically applied either independently or in conjunction with traditional chemical pesticides. Messenger provide growers with valuable benefits by increasing crop yields, quality and shelf-life and improving the plant's ability to withstand diseases and other environmental stresses. The group is currently concentrating its efforts in the United States on high-value crops, such as citrus, grapes, tomatoes, peppers, stone fruits, tobacco, cucumbers, melons, strawberries and other horticultural and specialty crops.

Business: The group's principal activities are to develop, manufacture and integrate energy saving technologies and custom electric switchgear. The group operates in three segments: the energy technology segment designs, manufactures and markets energy saving technologies primarily to commercial and industrial customers. The energy saving product is the energysaver(tm) system, which reduces energy consumed by lighting, typically by 20% to 30%, with minimal lighting level reduction. This technology has applications in commercial buildings, factories and office structures, as well as street lighting and parking lot lighting. The power management segment designs, manufactures and markets a wide range of commercial and industrial switch gear and distribution panels for use in telecommunication and Internet network centers. The building control and automation segment provides integration of building and environmental control systems for commercial and industrial customers.

Business: The group's principal activities are to own, operate and franchise casual full dining brand name restaurants in Canada and Washington, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Texas, California and Illinois in United States. The two principal brands are elephant and castle and alamo steakhouse and grill. The group operates authentic british-style pubs in North America. These pubs and restaurants serve traditional british fare as well as all the American favorites along with an extensive line of spirits. In addition, the group owns and operates the casual, themed restaurant concept called alamo steakhouse and grill. This southwestern-style steakhouse features Texas-sized portions of steaks and ribs and southwestern specialties along with a cantina that features the alamo's famous 20 oz. Margaritas. As on 08-Jan-2001 the group closed its twin restaurant in franklin mills.

Business: The group's principal activity is to provide international long distance services through its state-of-the-art digital switches and transmission facilities as well as through its interconnections with major international carriers. The group's operations employ advanced systems including call collection and call data storage linking to a proprietary reporting system. This permits management to determine the gross margin by destination country, by customer, as well as for overall operations on a daily basis. The international call services are provided through an integrated network infrastructure comprising both the packet-switched system and circuit switched system focusing on the Asia-Pacific region as well the United States. The services are provided to first-tier local and international telecommunications carriers, enabling those carriers and other service providers to offer voice and fax services to their end-customers.

Business: The group's principal activity is to design, develop and market oled (organic light emitting diode)-on-silicon microdisplays and related information technology solutions. The group integrates oled technology with silicon chips to produce high-resolution microdisplays smaller than one-inch diagonally. When viewed through a magnifier, this creates a virtual image that appears comparable to that of a computer monitor or a large-screen television. These products are being applied or considered for near-eye and headset applications in products such as entertainment and gaming headsets, handheld Internet and telecommunication appliances, viewfinders and wearable computers to be manufactured by original equipment manufacturer (OEM) customers. The group's first commercial product is the svga+ (super video graphics array plus 52 added columns of data) oled microdisplay.

Business: The group's principal activity is to focus on the development of biological and mechanical products to improve bird health and to reduce production costs in the poultry industry. The products of the group include inovoject system a proprietary, automated in-the-egg injection system. This system inoculates 20,000 to 60,000 eggs per hour and eliminates the need for manual, post-hatch injection of certain vaccines. The other products of the group include vaccine saver and egg remover modules to provide additional automation benefits to the poultry hatchery. The group operates in the United States, the United Kingdom, People's Republic of China, Brazil, France and Spain.

Business: The group's principal activities are to design, develop, manufacture and market patented electro surgical devices and aem laparoscopic instruments. The aem laparoscopic instruments are shielded and monitored to prevent stray electrochemical burns from insulation failure and capacitive coupling. The group's product lines include a broad range of scissors, graspers and dissectors, fixed-tip electrodes and suction-irrigation electrodes. The instruments are available in a wide array of reusable and disposable options. The group also markets the aem monitor product line that is used in conjunction with the aem instruments. The aem technology provides surgeons with the desired tissue effects, while preventing stray electro surgical energy that can cause unintended and unseen tissue injury.

Business: The group's principal activities are to provide a remote-sensing technology in the business of wide-area hydrocarbon reconnaissance exploration. The group uses stress field detector technology to survey or reconnoiter large exploration areas from the group's survey aircraft. The stress field detector is a recently developed technology which the group adapted for airborne survey operations and field tested for independent geologists and joint venture partners. The stress field detector is used to measure variations in energy fields which the group believes to be related to stressed subsurface structures and hydrocarbon accumulations. The group operates in the United States and Canada.

Business: The group's principal activity is to sponsor and conduct research and development on biopharmaceutical products. It is in the clinical-stage of developing antiangiogenesis therapeutic products. These products inhibit abnormal blood vessel growth associated with a broad range of diseases such as cancer, blindness atherosclerosis and endometriosis. The group's core technologies also include a blood cell permeation device, which is designed to enhance the ability of red blood cells to deliver oxygen to organs and tissues. This device may also be used to deliver drugs, genes or other therapeutic agents that otherwise would not readily diffuse through blood cell membranes. The antiangiogenic product candidates include endostatin, pazopanib and angiostatin. These products are used to inhibit the growth of tumor-feeding blood vessels.

Business: The group's principal activities are the development and ownership of electrical generating facilities powered by non-commodity fuels and renewable energy sources. The group's power generating facilities use alternative fuels most of that are wastes, which are generally not subject to the same cost fluctuations as traditional fuels. The power generating facilities have also been able to exceed air quality emission standards and to assist with the clean-up of wastes that are sources of water pollution. The group operates in two business segment: scrubgrass project and microgy. The scrubgrass project is an approximate 83 megawatt waste coal-fired electric generating station located on a 600-acre site in venango county, Pennsylvania. Microgy is engaged in the development and deployment of a proprietary technology for the extraction of methane gas from animal wastes and its use to fuel generation of energy.

Business: The group's principal activities are to provide in-room computer platform and communications network or the eroomsystem for the lodging industry. The group has designed processor-based eroomsystem that collects and controls data and offers eroomserv refreshment centers. The eroomserv refreshment centers provide guests with a selection of different beverages and snacks. It also offers electronic in-room safes called eroomsafes, which offers sufficient space for items such as laptop computers, video cameras and briefcases. The group designs, assembles and markets a complete line of fully automated refreshment centers and eroomsafes traditionally installed in hotels. The refreshment centers and eroomsafes use proprietary software and patented credit card technology that integrates with the data collection computer in each hotel.

Business: The company's principal activity was to exploit new enabling technologies to advance and shorten the new drug development cycle. As the company was unsuccessful at advancing research programs, it decided to focus on developing and marketing products to physicians practicing in specialist areas and entered into an agreement and plan of merger and reorganization with innovative drug delivery systems. This proposed merger had significant shareholder opposition and hence, both the companies reached a mutual decision to terminate the merger effort and completed it. During 2003, it discontinued its drug discovery operations and terminated all research activities in which it was involved before and began identifying potential business opportunities.

Business: The principal activity of the company is exploration of mineral properties in Argentina with a focus on the discovery of epithermal gold or silver and porphyry copper or gold projects in Argentina and Chile. The company conducts the examination and acquisition of mineral exploration opportunities and secures capital for the implementation of its exploration programs. The company also conducts developmental studies and carries out progressive environmental and engineering studies along with exploration. They identify through commercially mineable reserves through its exploration efforts on any of its mineral properties and seek to develop the opportunity by either bringing the property into commercial production itself, through a contract mining arrangement, or by way of a joint venture. The company's properties include an advanced stage project at La Cabeza in Argentina, with an inferred resource containing 891,000 ounces of gold based on 18.3 million tonnes grading 1.5 g/t gold, and a suite of gold properties in Argentinean Patagonia, partnered with Cerro Vanguardia SA (CVSA), a company owned by AngloGold & Fomircuz. Exeter owns epithermal gold and copper-gold porphyry properties in northern Argentina and has recently announced an alliance with Rio Tinto Mining and Explorations Chile, an affiliate of the Rio Tinto group of Companies in Pantagonian Chile. They exploration has been presently concentrated on the La Cabeza gold project and a three-year exploration program has commenced to expand the resources. The company was formerly known as Golden Glacier Resources Inc., which was a mineral exploration company, engaged in the acquisition, exploration and development of resource properties in South America. Exeter has entered into agreements whereby it has acquired 100% of the issued shares of Cognito Ltd., a company incorporated under the laws of the British Virgin Islands. Cognito Limited has an extant option to acquire 100% of the La Cabeza Project. Exeter has also acquired 100% of the issued shares of Estelar Resources Ltd., a company incorporated under the laws of the British Virgin Islands. Estelar Resources Limited has three advanced drill ready porphyry copper gold projects and one epithermal gold exploration project in Argentina. It has a registered branch office in the country.

Business: The company's principal activities are to acquire, explore, develop and produce oil and gas properties. The company is developing its core mineral interests in the maverick basin in south Texas. The company's 480,000-acre position in the basin offers multi-play/multi-pay opportunities from numerous oil and gas-producing horizons. It also holds interests in more than 90,000 acres of the williston basin in the western dakotas and eastern Montana. It also operates and directs the drilling of oil and gas wells and participates in non-operated wells. At Jun 2003, the company had proved reserves of 24.7 billion cubic feet of gas equivalent with a reserve mix of 41% crude oil and 59% natural gas.
