Noisy jets causing turbulence

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Westland residents are mad about noise levels from jets thundering overhead, and they're telling their elected officials they aren't going to take it anymore.

When asked if he had received any complaints, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas said: "You'd be able to fill your paper up with them. There's a lot of complaints, and not just from the (southeast) corner of the city...

"When it first warmed up in April, I began to receive a ton of complaints. I've talked to the county and we just don't have a good answer

After three years of study, the Federal Aviation Administration changed flight patterns at Metro last fall. But officials say complaints about noise began pouring in with the arrival of spring, with storm doors and windows coming down and screens going up.

The three main patterns for departing jets now take them over Westland, Garden City, Dearborn, or Dearborn Heights.

THE NOISE has spawned a variety of legal action.

• The Dearborn City Council has allotted $100,000 to hire a Washington, D.C., law lirm to battle the federal government over the issue.

Taylor has sued the FAA over the accuracy of its environmental impact statement about a proposed airport expansion.

• And a group of Dearborn residents calling themselves Citizens Against Aircraft Noise has presented the Wayne County Clerk's Office with petitions containing 19,000 signatures, in hopes of forcing a ballot issue in November on whether the county can issue bond sales for the expansion, which has a price tag of $1 billion.

In Garden City, Mayor Jim Plakas said, "I had three calls just this morning and I must have had 30 in the last month-and-a-half."

He met recently with assistant county executive Brian Amman, who has been named the county's noise czar to help figure out a noise-abatement program for Metro Airport.

"While we were sitting in the office, planes roared over non-stop," said Plakas. "We had difficulty

Developer: 'I'm ticked' over decision

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Citing environmental and building design concerns, the Westland City Council Monday rejected special approval for a condominium complex bordering the William P. Holliday nature preserve.

But the developer said he would take the city to court to get his project back on track and charged city officials with "pulling a fast one" as he stormed out of city hall following the 4-3 vote against the complex.

"Hell yes, I'm ticked," said Curtis Kime of Kime Brothers Homes in-Westland. "I've spent two years on this thing."

Kime has proposed a planned unit development of 62 condominiums.

"We met the ordinances. We did what they called for . . . and now this," he said.

Kime referred to a push from Detroit environmentalist Jack Smiley, who made an impassioned plea to the council Monday to turn down the project, proposed for a site on the east side of Hix and the north side of Warren Road:

Several members of the Holliday Nature Preserve Association — the group Smiley formed to fight a 1988 proposal by then Mayor Charles Griffin to convert a portion of the preserve into an 18-hole golf course — attended the meeting as well.

SMILEY SAID the city should take advantage of state law governing natural areas and buy back the property from Kime.

"I'm not saying we should penalize the developer," Smiley said. "But if Condo plan rejected in Westland we let (the area) slip away, it will be gone forever."

He argued that wildlife and flowers on the property would be irreparably harmed by the complex, despite previous approval to build from the state Department of Natural Resources. He said animals living on the 40-acre site immediately south of the nature preserve included foxes, deer and amphibians.

In addition, Smiley said, although the site "is technically not a flood plane" upstream development would bring damaging floods to the area.

Councilman Charles Pickering said the site should be packaged with other natural areas in the city for a comprehensive study of how residential and commercial development would affect the environment.

Schools band to fight 'Robin Hood' aid bill

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Livonia Public Schools officials have joined a growing line of school officials in the state who are trying to keep the governor from signing legislation that would cut $50 million in state aid to wealthy school districts and redistribute the money to poorer school systems.

If the 1990-91 state aid bill for education is signed by Gov. James Blanchard, the Livonia district stands to lose an estimated $3.4 million in state aid this year, said superintendent Joseph Marinelli.

That loss is $2.8 million more than the district had anticipated, will dip into the district's $9.9 million rainy day fund, and could lead either to cuts in school programs or higher taxes, Marinelli said.

The loss also is higher than the estimated $2.6 million loss expected to hit the Birmingham school district and the estimated $2 million loss expected by the Bloomfield Hills school district under the "Robin Hood" approach to school financing adopted by the Legislature in its $3.15 billion school aid budget.

MARINELLI USED such words as deplorable, inexcusable and incomprehensible Monday in describing this Robin Hood approach as he urged the Livonia Board of Education to lobby Gov. Blanchard not to sign the legislation.

"Although we had anticipated some increase in recapture and budgeted the loss of funds accordingly, the dramatic increase in the size of recapture in one year is incomprehensible," Marinelli said.

Calling the recapture formula unacceptable and irresponsible, board members voted to urge Blanchard to either veto the recapture provision or the entire state aid actitself.

The trustees also urged Livonia residents to write Blanchard, urging him to veto the act.

"He should hear from us loud and long," said trustee Carol Strom.

Livonia School District

The Livonia School District includes the northern section of Westland.

Blanchard must sign the Legislature's 1990-91 school aid budget for it to become law. He is expected to get the legislation this week, and has 14 days to sign it.

Livonia officials had expected a possible $599,256 loss in categorical state aid, and had figured that loss into its 1990-91 budget.

Categorical alds are state payments for Social Security, pensions, bilingual teaching, dropout pilot programs, gifted and talented programs, transportation, and special education.

EARLIER, SCHOOL officials had estimated the district receives $6 million in categorical aid, of which $4.6 million is for Social Security contributions.

"The net effect of the Legislature's action is that the Livonia Public Schools will no longer receive any state categorical program funding even for state-mandated programs and, in fact, now will send a portion of its locally generated property tax revenues to the state for use by informula districts," Marinelli said.

"The action by the Legislature flies in the face of the Headlee provision in the state's constitution which requires the state to pay for statemandated programs."

All districts, regardless of wealth, used to get categorical aid. But increasingly, Lansing "recaptures", payments formerly made to the wealthier districts and redistributes them to poorer school districts.

Livonia already had adopted its new $93.3 million budget before the state lawmakers passed the school aid package in late June.

Marinelli called the legislation a "simplistic and band-aid approach to the complex problem of adequately and equitably funding K-12 education in Michigan."

"It expresses that education in Michigan will be provided through the Robin Hood approach, which is to lower educational quality through decreases in funding to some districts in order to raise the quality of education through increases in funding to other districts, thus creating mediocrity statewide.

"Although I will add that money alone does not guarantee quality, it, along with the wise use of money, is an essential ingredient."

If the recapture trend continues, as it most likely will, and the district does not cut services or raise taxes, Livonia could deplete its reserve fund in three years, Marinelli said.

Working women get down to business

By Tedd Schnelder staff writer

BPW is returning to Westland.

The city's expanded business community and the growing number of women in the metro-area work force has prompted a group of business-women to form a local chapter of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women.

The chapter will hold an inaugural meeting 6 p.m. Monday at the Old Country Buffet restaurant in the Westland Plaza, Wayne Road at Hunter.

Charter members will be able to join until September, said Joyce

R.

Wheeler, office manager of the Westland Chamber of Commerce.

A local chapter of the national organization folded in the late 1960s due to lack of interest, Wheeler said.

"The goal is to promote the interests of working women from Westland," Wheeler said. "We're going to ests of working women from Westland," Wheeler said. "We're going to appeal to everybody from waitresses to company presidents."

WHEELER SAID the local business community has grown to the point where she isn't concerned about finding members.

"This is like starting fresh because we're really in a different era," said Margaret Harlow, co-owner of Harlow Tire. In addition to Wheeler and Harlow, members of the organizing committee are Barbara Barr, manager of Abington Manor retirement residence; Sandra Cicirelli, city councilwoman and an attorney; and Renee Roberts, a financial planner for IDS.

The organization is open to all working people — men and women, Westland residents and non-residents.

Wheeler said the chapter won't compete with the Chamber of Commerce or other local business organizations: "I think it can only complement the chamber, help it grow," she said.

She said a minimum of 18 members are required to incorporate. She hopes to be able to launch the chapter with 50 to 100 members.

Several other western Wayne communities have BPW chapters, including Garden City and Livonia. The Westland chapter will seek some

Resident faces trial in girlfriend's murder

The trial for a 29-year-old Westland man charged in the fatal strangulation of his live-in girlfriend last February will begin Sept. 24 in Detroit Recorder's Court.

Judge James R. Chylinski will preside over the jury trial for Miracle Ewayne Crawford, who has pleaded not guilty to an open murder charge in the death of Shirley Ann Harris, 28.

If convicted, Crawford faces a mandatory sentence of life in prison without parole.

Crawford is charged with killing Harris in the early morning hours of Feb. 24 following an argument in the bedroom of a home the couple shared on the 2000 block of Steiber.

According to testimony at Craw-ford's March 12 preliminary examination, Harris was strangled with a rope or cord.

Crawford, who had called police, was with the body in the southeast bedroom when officers arrived at the house about 5 a.m., testimony revealed. The bedroom window was ajar and officers observed footprints in the snow, but there was no sign of forced entry, police said.

Crawford was arrested March 2.
Police said information they received showed a "discrepancy" in Crawford's stated whereabouts shortly before the body was discov-cred.

Crawford was given a lie detector test by Michigan State Police before his March 4 arraignment.

Kitze, 51, raised $3,264 on 169 pledges last year and has raised more than $10,000 in the four years he's run the distance for MS.

DISABLING DISEASES have struck close to Kitze. Four buddies: from high school days were later struck down with MS and two of them have died, including Jack McNellis, co-captain of the football team in '55.

Kitze's wife, Sharon, who dropped out of Garden City High School to marry him, was diagnosed with severe rheumatoid arthritis in 1958.

One of Kitze's high school buddles who contracted MS, Jerry Patrell, started the pledge campaign rolling four years ago. On some of his 10mile training runs, Kitze would jog out to the Camelot Hall Nursing Home in Livonia to visit him.

Patrell asked Kitze to pledge for MS and, soon, every staff member at Camelot had signed up. Patrell made a huge commitment - $100 a mile - but he didn't tell Kitze until the week before the race. "He put so much pressure on me when he final-·ly told me," said Kitze.

No problem. Kitze finished the '86marathon just as he has finished all 20 of his marathons.

This week's question:

Should Michigan have a 'right-to-die' law, allowing terminally ill people to terminate lifesupporting equipment?

We asked this question to Westland residents at Westland Center.

'Yes. I can't see that a person should suffer if they're terminally ill." - Alfred Scobie

'I think the person should be able to decide for themself. I think a person should have a right to die with dignity."

Judy Stone

'Yes, I think if a person is ill enough and still has the (mental) capacity, it should be their own decision."

Michael Donahee

Yes. People should be able to make their own choice. If you're just lying there in pain and you don't want to stay hooked up (to a machine), you shouldn't have to."

- Jim Bates

'Absolutely, It's much more humane than letting somebody stay alive by breathing through a tube. I've talked this over with my husband and we decided to state our wishes through living wills."

- Ruth Crossett

'Yes. I think it's a person's right. It should be what a person wants." - Nikki Davis

Salvation Army needs food donations

By Joanne Maliszewski staff writer

It's not a holiday. But hunger is still here. And so is the need to donate food to the Salvation Army's food pantry, which is running low with summer around the corner.

"People don't think about donating in the summer. At Christmas and Thanksgiving, that's usually when people think of it," said Lt. Jonathan Rich of the Salvation Army Community Center of Farmington Hills which includes Livonia in its service

But the food pantry, which serves needy families or those in the midst of emergencies, is running low.

Neighborhood House, located in the Salvation Army Community Center, also distributes food from the pantry. The organization is an umbrella service or clearinghouse that matches residents in need with appropriate services and agencies.

"When we get low, we have to refer people to other food programs," Neighborhood House director Cheryl Carter said. "We try to help as many people as possible, but right now we can't take walk-ins."

CARTER EXPECTS that the cupboard will be bare within the next 1-2 weeks.

On Thursday alone, Carter provided food for 16 clients, with more ex-

"We have some empty space in the freezers for perishable foods. But in quantities, we are in need of non-perishables," Rich said.

That means canned goods: tuna fish, soups, macaronl and cheese, peanut butter, jelly and anything else popular with kids.

"A lot of parents are on fixed incomes. Then all of a sudden the kids (who participate in school lunch programs) are out of school and the money isn't stretching," Rich said.

Anyone who wishes to donate food to the pantry may drop it off between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday-Friday at the Salvation Army Church, 27500 Shiawasee at Inkster Road.

"We have less this summer than in other summers. We are anticipating there will be a shortfall," Rich said.

THE SALVATION Army food pantry serves residents in Farmington, Farmington Hills, Southfield, Livonia and Novi.

Neighborhood House specifically serves Farmington and Farmington Hills residents.

Sixty-percent of the food pantry's caseload is Farmington and Farmington Hills residents.

Residents in need of food can make an appointment with Neighborhood House director Cheryl Carter, 477-1153. The program is based on need.

Though families may have an adequate income, extenuating circumstances and emergencies can easily put a family in need, she said.

Thomas and Plakas said they oppose legal action, for now.

"Tve talked to (Dearborn Mayor) Mike Guldo and I respect his position, but we don't have the luxury of that kind of revenue to undertake something like that," said Plakas. "Not that we might not join a suit at some time, but we're pursuing other remedies first."

IN RESPONSE to flak from pol-

Plakas said he and Amman are scheduling a cable-TV appearance for Amman in Garden City. Residents will be invited to attend the meeting and air their gripes to Amman, said Plakas, adding the he hoped to announce a time and date soon.

"We're not trying to stop progress at the airport," said Plakas. "We're just trying to lower the noise."

S'craft summer programs let kids explore new fields

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Ninja turtles and splattered eggs - the stuff of summer enrichment for area youths participating in College for Kids and Adventures in Learning at Schoolcraft College in

The flat green turtle, actually "my own character" that only resembles a Ninja, was sketched by Paul Wolfert, 8, under the guldance of West Bloomfield artist Joyce Gottleib, who is teaching Cartoon Capers for the second summer running.

The eggs, one hard-boiled, two that splattered and a handful that survived a two-story drop, were part of an experiment on speed and force in Exploring the Sciences, taught by veteran Wayne-Westland science teacher Tom Morgan.

Brian Robison, 8, of Canton knew his egg wrapped in disposable diapers borrowed from a neighbor would survive the drop.

"I tested it already. My momthrew it out the window," he said in a serious tone.

College for Kids, a series of classes offered for two or three weeks each, provides individualized and group instruction in such diverse areas as math, English, science and the arts. Adventures in Learning offers similar enrichment courses but is aimed at students who are talented or gifted.

"CARTOONING IS BASICALLY drawing, using distortion and exaggeration to tell a simple story," said Gottleib, who holds fine art degrees from both Wayne State and Eastern Michigan universities.

Gottleib's students range in age from 7 to 16 years, including the St. Louis children from Plymouth who display a definite artistic flair.

Vince, 11, and Ben; 9, have enrolled in the class twice, last summer and this summer. Sister Becky enrolled for the first time this year.

"I just add things and make a poster. It's regular cartoons," Vince said of his detailed pen and ink sketch. Ben is busy on a large fantasy figure and Becky proudly displays a gray owl she has just completed.

The first up is Jennifer Bronlak, 8, of Plymouth. Her egg, wrapped in tissue and encased in a blue shoebox, survives intact. Jamison Beevers, 10, who attends Wayne-Westland schools, packed his egg in balloons and it also survived. Eric Phelps, 9, of Farmington, is not so lucky. His egg, cushioned by a small blow-up pad, splatters.

The most ingenious is Justin Nadolny, 8, of Redford His pink shoebox, attached to a parachute of plastic, floats to earth without breaking the egg inside.

"MY OBJECTIVE," said Morgan, who is overseeing the activity, "is to excite them about science, open up avenues and expose them to sci-

The egg experiment is meant to measure speed and force, whether "student engineering in cushioning the egg" is effective enough to prevent it from breaking "during the ·drop."

Chris Payne, 10, of Livonia, clarifies the point.

"The egg doesn't need cushioning when it drops. It needs cushioning when it hits."

Chris' egg survived the impact.

PLANTERS' "Everybody Loves A Nut" commercials are airing on programs such as "Late Night with David Letterman," "Stingray" and "Cheers."

Planters' Search for America's Funniest Nut is an extension of the brand's new "Everybody Loves a Nut" advertising campaign.

This campaign began airing in May. It features such acts as a contortionist who goes head over heels for Planters mixed nuts and a couple who perform the world's first safe Lambada dance.

"The ultimate goal of our ad campaign and talent search is to encourage consumers to think of nuts as a fun, contemporary snack for everyday use," said Roger. Adams, Planters' director of marketing for nuts.

MET actuary labels criticism sour grapes

By Janice Brunson staff writer

The Michigan Education Trust (MET), a prepaid college tuition program launched in 1988, faces economic disaster apt to encroach on the future quality of higher education, according to the results of a new study by University of Michigan law professor Jeffrey Lehman, who predicts the program will require a tax ballout to remain solvent.

Kaye of Coopers & Lybrand, the ac- spells trouble. luary who sets MET enrollment they don't want someone looking over their shoulder when they pass along future tuition increases," said Kaye who lives in West Bloomfield.

MET, designed to protect parents against high tuition inflation in coming years, assures future college costs at state institutions for children in the program. During the first two years, more than 49,000 contracts were sold at a total cost of $300 million.

Much of MET's success is the program's relatively low price, accord-Sour grapes, counters Richard ing to Lehman. But such pricing

The program is dependent on the prices and monitors the program's assumption tuition will increase slowly in the future. If schools face "They're (university officials) reduced tuition income, they will be programs, the study concluded.

NOT SO, said Kaye. The MET tuition increase assumption of 7.3 percent is based on actuarial accountings of the past 20 years that consider both actual tuition costs and mitigating circumstances.

Lehman's figures rely only on actual costs which, Kaye maintains, are simplistic and do not accurately reflect future costs.

The study also questions MET's taxing policies. Money from the purchase of a contract is viewed as nontaxable. Only income earned on invested monies is taxable.

The point is moot, Kaye said. A ruling by the IRS confirms MET policies, and it is unlikely the IRS will. refute its own ruling.

Finally, the study concludes MET faces an eventual shortfall of $100 million that will require a bailout by taxpayers. If so, the primary beneficiaries will be Michigan's most affluent citizens because half of those enrolled in the program are in the top 20 percent of income.

Sabrina Keeley of the Michigan Department of Treasury refutes Lehman's findings.

"He believes in his study. We believe in MET and we stand by what our experts tell us. They have thoroughly researched the issue. Based on their findings, we are overfunded," she said.

An audit of Sept. 30, 1989 credited the program with a surplus of $1 million, said Kaye, who is a certified Society of Actuaries. MET is legally represented by Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone.

"WE DON'T FEEL we have to defend ourselves. There are a lot of happy people out there" enrolled in MET, Keeley said.

John Lore of Plymouth Township, a former college president and past president of the Michigan Colleges Foundation who now serves on the MET board of directors, agrees.

"Our audits show very clearly we are overfunded, and it's a very positive program.

"It gives college access to people who have never before had access and opportunity to those who never before had opportunity," Lore said. A university, Kaye added, "must be run like a business and if the University of Michigan doesn't think so, it's 15 years behind the times." Kaye, incidentally, is a U-M gradu-

Magnetic Resonance Imaging

Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) is a breakthrough diagnostic tool being used routinely at Oakwood Hospital today MRI allows physicians to "see" into the body without x-rays, sound waves or surgery. As the name implies, Magnetic Resonance Imaging uses a strong magnetic field to produce multi-dimensional images of the inner structure of the body The patient experiences no pain.

Oakwood provides patients access to MRI as well as the more traditional diagnostic procedures available at your physicians office or local Oakwood facility. MRI can reveal disorders much earlier in the course of a disease. In many cases, this early detection results in simpler and more effective treatment.

Humane society to replace protesters By Janice Brunson staff writer

Marie Turri, 72, of Canton doesn't understand why most of the employees at the Michigan Humane Society in Westland walked off the job last week. Nor, she said, is she particularly interested in the details.

She wants Dr. Tim Dobson back on the lob.

"He's been my pet doctor for years. He's like a son. He looks after my pets so nicely. I want these people to reconcile their differences," Turri said as she picketed the facility earlier this week. 🧍 🛦

The sign she carried read, "We need Dr. Tim Dobson and nine others back working."

Their return is unlikely, according to the society's director Gary Tiscornia, who said, "we will be replacing most of the (Westland) staff." The society employs 114 people in facilities

On Friday, 10 of 17 employees in Westland resigned in a dispute over a newly written employment policy that permits "at will" termination. Four veterinarians, including Dobson who supervised the Westland clinic, three licensed veterinarian technicians, one veterinarian assistresigned.

"FEAR AND INTIMIDATION. A total disrespect of people," said Dobson, in describing the working atmosphere in the clinic since Tiscornia's appointment as director last June, following an embezzlement scandal that left the society $1.5 million in debt.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

The present dispute erupted in May, when employees were required to sign a policy containing a new clause that permits termination "with or without cause, at any time, for any reason."

The former manual allowed for "at will" termination, but with reason, Dobson said, adding the new But, she is certain of one thing, phrase removes "all recourse for wrongful discharge." Employees were issued a nasty "love it or leave it" ultimatum to sign, he said.

Tiscornia said the clause, prompted by a $2,000 employee severance settlement last fall, is "a desire to protect the organization. We cannot afford to litigate. We can't afford

- payoffs." The new phrase, he added, carries the same message as before. "At will means with or without reason, Our intention is identical. The legal effect is identical." The expanded policy is also meant to end the practice of severance pay in Westland, Detroit and Auburn and voiding any existing employment contracts calling for it. In early 1989. Tiscornia received severance pay equal to three weeks salary when he resigned after six years as director of corporate affairs. The new clause now applies to him.

Michigan is an "employment at will" state, according to a spokeswoman for the Michigan Departant and two receptionists quit. On ment of Labor. Specific phrases, Monday, a fourth licensed technician such as "with or without cause," are relevant only in specific instances, such as in claims of unemploymentor disability benefits.

> "I CAN'T UNDERSTAND what they're reacting to so violently," Tiscornia said.

The lack of understanding is precisely the point, according to Dobson, who said low staff morale is due to perceived harassment by Tiscornia and his general lack of respect toward employees who Dobson said are concerned with the future direction of the society.

Aside from economic viability, the society's main priority now is standardization of services between each of the three shelters and hospitals, Tiscornia said, "an across-the-board standardization."

Because each facility services a different clientele based on location, Dobson said primary services vary from one community to another. three to 17 employees.

"You must have individualization." Meanwhile, Lois and Jeff Scupholm of Redford adopted a new puppy, her first ever, as a skeleton staff attempts to maintain basic services in Westland, ministering nonprofit care to a multitude of animals. Dobson, describing himself as distraught, said "we've worked so hard, hard, hard and look at how much we've accomplished." In the nearly nine years he worked for the society, staff in Westland increased from

Pay dispute

Salary issue in union's court

YNE-WESTLAND school district employees have the ball in their court, following rejection of a proposed millage increase and renewal by voters twice this year.

Now that several million dollars have been taken off the collective bargaining table for next 'fall, the unions representing all employees have to make some basic decisions on what level of pay raises and fringe benefits they want in their new contracts.

It's clear that voters don't want to increase their property tax burdens just to give raises to school employees.

Fair or not, that's the situation school staffers have to face.

The bottom line for them to recognize is that the higher the level of pay raises approved by board of education and union negotiating teams, the more employees will lose their jobs in the

Jobs can be saved mainly by accepting a pay freeze through a one-year contract extension, a moderate raise, and/or cutting the cost of fringe

Other school districts and municipal governments have done it as well as those working in the private sector.

SPECIFICALLY, THERE are several ways to control personnel costs, such as changing health insurance carriers and combining jobs whenever possible. Another is to drop minor fringes which may be costly but not important to teachers.

These seem elementary but it's better than wholesale elimination of jobs needed to pay for salary raises.

The unions have to realize what the voters and school officials have long realized — that the Wayne-Westland school district depends on state aid revenues, has a serious financial problem and aren't to be resolved quickly.

The Wayne-Westland Education Association, which has the negotiating ball in its court, must understand that the level of proposed pay raises will affect the number of layoffs of their members.

can't afford to continually give away pay raises now and worry later about where the money will come from to pay for the raises.

Most voters may agree that there is an unfairness in the state school aid formula which penalizes in-formula districts like Wayne-Westland. Under the current formula, Wayne-Westland loses state aid revenues when local property taxes increase through rising property values.

At the same time, the state aid revenues drop when the local millage rate goes down — as it will with the loss of the 2.75 mill renewal on June

But while voters said in two recent elections that the school aid formula/isn't fair, they still don't want to raise their property taxes.

POLITICAL LEADERS in Lansing also don't care about helping in-formula districts.

While local legislators are aware of the problem, others are more concerned about their own political agenda when narrowing the gap between rich and poor school districts.

For example, Gov. James Blanchard insists local schools do more while state government does little to provide more money to reduce the inequities.

But school employees must realize that life isn't fair and that the problems of school finances.

.. AND THEN THAT ORNERY COMERICA KID GAVE 'EM A FRIGHTFUL ULTIMATUM AT THE OLD FORD AUDITORIUM.....

Abstract legal principles intrude in family matters

I WAS AS shocked as anybody at the story in last week's Detroit pa-

A 6-year-old boy was ordered by a judge to be taken from loving relatives to live with his mother and her husband. He was taken away crying. He was then repeatedly abused. The Protective Services Division of the state Department of Social Services was notified. Neither the state agency nor the judge did anything.

Shortly thereafter, the boy was found beaten to death. The mother and her husband are in jail on a murder charge.

I'll bet the judge — Martin Maher ' of Wayne County Probate Court feels awful. His decision to give the child back to the mother was reviewed by the state Supreme Court, which upheld Maher's decision but said the Legislature should have allowed probate judges more discretion in handling such matters in the best interests of the child.

We have here a case in which the entire juridical (Judge Maher), legal (state law) and regulatory (DSS) apparatus of state government failed totally to resolve a complex and important family matter. A little boy is now needlessly dead. My guess is that the apparatuses of the state will continue to trundle on in their inflexible, mindless ways.

BUT THERE'S more to this than meditating on the many ways in which states botch things up.

In recent days, the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled to permit interposing the instruments of state control - law, judges and bureaucrats into sensitive and previously private family matters.

The high court held that the state of Missouri could prohibit Nancy Cruzan's parents from having a feeding tube removed from their comafose daughter because there was no definitive evidence Nancy wanted the feeding stopped.

Following an auto accident that severely damaged her brain, Ms. Cruzan has been hospitalized in a "persistent vegetative state" for seven years. Her doctors testified she had no chance of recovery. Her parents finally decided to permit her to die, in part because she once had casually indicated she would not want to be kept alive as a "vegeta-..ble.''

To Missouri, there was not clear and convincing" evidence. The Supreme Court agreed. And so Mr. and Mrs. Cruzan are obliged by the apparatuses of state control - laws, judges and bureaucrats — to twist slowly in the wind,

They can hope the Missouri Legislature in its wisdom changes state law to permit their daughter to die. Or they can move to another state, which probably will set off another expensive and time-consuming round of legal wrangling. Or they can indefinitely continue to visit and grieve over the shell that once was their daughter.

PERSONALLY, I never have been enormously impressed with the timeliness, skill or subtlety of the ways governments do things.

Judge Maher, for example, either made a decision that later events proved to be tragically wrong or found his hands tied by a state law that obliges judges to return children hypocrites. to their natural parents regardless of the welfare of the child.

Mr. and Mrs. Cruzan are experiencing a tragedy because abstract legal principles are being applied

THERE IS A lot of talk about "family values" and the importance? of keeping families together - talk to which I wholeheartedly subscribe.

But it's a nearly universal truth what whatever governments intend works out just the opposite. The perverse consequence applies most I don't want a judge imposing rigid, imprecise state law to tell me can or cannot end the life of an elderly parent who has signed a living will? or a son who is brain-dead after and auto accident. I suspect a lot of otherpeople feel the same way. And I find people who chant about

"family values" but are diligent in resorting to courts to enforce their values on others nothing short of

Tax limit petition drive falls short

7E NOTE with civic satisfaction that the bundle of fishhooks known as the Patterson-Anderson . tax limitation amendment won't be on the state

Despite trumpeting by the sponsors that people were eager, the drive fell 40,000 signatures short of the quarter-million it needed to be placed before voters Nov. 6. Although the idea charmed some folks in Oakland, Macomb and Kent_counties_much_of.the_rest_of_the_state-

A state constitution is supposed to be a framework for government and a protection of people's rights. Clearly, the wordy proposal by former Oakland Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson and economist Patrick Anderson was legislative in nature and had no place in our constitution, whatever its merits.

They sought to limit school property taxes. Fine. They sought to ratchet more money out of the state budget for schools. Cheers,

But the proper way to do that is to leap into the sweaty fray of the budget battle, not sit in air-conditioned suburban offices and concoct paper formulas.

Look the social services lobby in the eye and say no. Look the prison operators in the eye and say no. Look the environmental cleanup people in the eye and say no. Look the job training, university research, tourism promotion, factory inspection, judicial and state parks people in the eyes and say no - that's what Patterson and Anderson should be doing .--

The circulators had six months to collect their signatures. We hope there will be no effort to tinker with that law and lengthen the period. Michigan has too long a ballot as is without cluttering it with more confused and confusing ballot proposals.

Patterson, Anderson and friends should have been running for the Legislature, the body which 1990 opportunity.

Telephones—fascinating, complex

ETTER GET your dialing finger in shape. As if we didn't have enough buttons to push already, it's about to take three more numbers to place a phone call. By the end of this year we're all going to have to dial "313" for long-distance phone calls within this

We're running out of phone numbers, said Michigan Bell. In fact, if nothing's done by February of next year there will be no more new

In short, by using a 313 preface for local calls, the phone company can add much-needed exchanges (the first three numbers) to the system. The new exchanges will - for lack of choice actually be numbers with a 0 or 1 in the middle, like all the U.S. area codes. Bell computers, however, will get confused unless actual area codes are dialed first.

There is nothing simple about our phone system anymore. Things have come a long way from Lily Tomlin's "Ernestine the Operator."

It is now much more than merely vogue to have an answering machine. It's a necessity. And worse yet, we are expected to have them. The same goes for redial, speed dial, call waiting, call forwarding and all the other call somethings you can buy.

For those of us whose friends have call waiting, it's practically the norm to get put on hold half a dozen times during a single conversation, so that the friend - alerted by the obnoxious clicking noise - can check to see if the other caller is more interesting than we are.

Ahhh, the joys of technology. Hopefully, though; the engineers have time to work on other challenges as well, such as why there are a zillion phone books for metro Detroit.

Or, better yet, the zone calling quandary. Translation: Why can a West Bloomfield resident call for free a number in Rochester, located an hour away, but not in Farmington Hills, which happens to be on the other side of the street? Or why do the poor souls who move to the Plymouth area feel they have been disconnected from all their friends who they have left behind in the rest of metropolitan Detroit?

Phone technology is fascinating, even helpful, but often in these days of free market deregulation, we yearn for the good old days when a call was a dime and one phone call could get you all the phone service you could possibly ever desire.

Now let's see, do I call AT&T or Michigan Bell for this problem?

Weapon ban

appreciated

Thanks to Mayor (Robert) Thomas for placing a ban on the firing of any weapons in parades. I also enjoyed the Memorial Day parade, but the firing was unnecessary.

Instead of shooting off their weapons, the children (and adults) would enjoy picking up candy just as much as (empty) shells. That would be cheaper than ammunition anyway, wouldn't it? Candy isn't good for their teeth, but I'd rather have them brush well when they got home instead of bandaging their fingers.

On a different subject, I guess a ban on public fireworks would make a safer July 4th, especially after some of the accidents that occurred this year in other areas. But I hope it won't come to that.

Whoever was responsible for the fireworks display this year in Westland did a spectacular job! This was our second year watching, and they were even more enjoyable. Thanks for the good work of displaying them beautifully, yet safely.

good deed

To the editor: Today the senior citizens of Royal Holiday Mobile Home Park picketed the sales office on Ford Road (Village Homes), which is owned by Mr. Futenmick. Grievances being high rent and numerous violations.

Why I am sending you this letter is to say thanks to the lady and herthree daughters who went by, saw the senior citizens picket, went home and brought back some Kool-Aid for us (and we did need it badly).

In this day of so much crime, violence and drugs, it is so nice to see a good deed being done by someone

So from the senior citizens of Royal Holiday we wish to thank you. from the bottom of our hearts.

Knowledge of their subject area, empathy for children, clearly stated goals, and evidence of a willingness to continue their education, to be a team player, were characteristics looked for over and above the institution they attended.

This is a tough question. There are obviously certain state institutions of higher education that do focus more on teacher education than other schools.

However, there are colleges and universities whose major focus is not education but who also deliver good to excellent teachers.

Political financing poisons campaigns

I HAVE BEEN solicited by phone to vote for a particular candidate, usually in local elections. But I don't recall ever being asked to contribute money to a political campaign war chest. The first was this summer when I was requested to donate $100 to U.S. Senator Carl Levin's campaign for re-election.

I get plenty of invitations to fund raisers. When I was a full-time reporter for the Southeild Eccentric, the amount of the donation was' crossed out. I never attended any in the interest of objectivity.

I'M STILL on the list, but now, in most cases, I'm welcome to pay at least $50 for the privilege of toasting the candidate with wine and cheese or coffee and bagel. To this day, I don't do fund-ra-

Getting back to Levin, the aide who called me mentioned that the senator will continue to fight for Israel. My contribution, I was told, will be used to ward off the attacks of the national Republican Party.

The GOP, I was advised, plans to wage an all out effort against Levin, who I respect and admire. Levin wants to remain in the U.S. Senate so he can continue cutting government waste, fighting drugs and supporting education.

Levin and his opponents are spending millions of dollars on their campaigns. The aide said if I couldn't afford $100, would I make it

I'M NOT singling out Levin. But the whole system of campaign financing, it seems to me, is out of proportion. Candidates spend way more to get elected than they will earn while serving.

In Southfield, where the yearly stipend for a city council member has been raised to $11,000, more than twice that amount is spent by some candidates. That doesn't guarantee that they will come in first.

When the big givers are developers, this smacks of favoritism. It's the old "you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours" syndrome, real or im-

State Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, is chairing election committee hearings on state financing for legislative races.

Jackie Klein

BERMAN IS seeking legislation to require that House of Representative candidates get at least 50 percent of their contributions in amounts of $100 or less and state senate candidates $150 or less.

The perception, Berman says, is that huge Political Action Committee contributions control all campaigns. Her proposed legislation will end that perception, according to Berman.

Her goal is to limit the influence of PACs. The larger issue is public financing of political campaigns. Instead of being asked for $100, I, along with other voters, could donate $1 to our favorite candidate.

This has been tried in other states, and I remember some manner of public financing in presidential races. We checked off a box on our state income tax returns to donate to the war against child abuse. This seems 🦟 a more valid expenditure.

The 1990 Senate races, including Levin's, are pitting pro-life candidates against pro-choice candidates.

In a three-cornered tussle, Democrat Levin defends legalized abortion. Republican challengers Clark Durant and Rep. Bill Schuette denounce it.

THIS RACE and others have been targeted by national and state groups on both sides of the abortion issue. That means PACs of these activist organizations are supporting candidates who think as they do.

Abortion, in at least one state senate runoff, has been declared a pivotal issue.

With so many other problems, such as skyrocketing property taxes, financially strapped school districts and environmental whim whams, contributing to campaigns on the basis of a single issue seems nearsight-

I'm not minimizing the importance of the abortion issue. The question of governmental intervention: into a private decision will not soon be resolved.

Pro-choice and pro-life voters aren't likely to change their minds or be influenced by special interest groups. The issue is delicate, volatile. and divisive.

SENATE HOPEFULS deny that they are single-issue candidates. The abortion factor has been fueled by the media and activist groups, according to political opponents.

But the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League, for example, is determined to put pro-choicers intooffice regardless of their stance on

A candidate who is not being endorsed by any PAC, is likely to say; he or she is against special interest groups and is being supported by individuals including party; heavyweights. I'm not sure Maxine Berman's proposals are on the money. But some kind of campaign financing reform is needed. The best guy or gal. for the job may not have the war; chest to beat an incumbent or other contenders.

HOW DID we make our decisions before the advent of television? Who were the image makers before the Madison Avenue type TV ads with production pizzaz?

There's no denying that a $1 million media elfort improves name. identification. The candidate who hands out emery boards, ball point pens and swizzle sticks isn't likely to make it to the top.

When so much money is needed to cure the many ills of cities, counties, states and the nation, the millions spent on political campaigns seem downright obscene.

It may be naive to believe that there's a better way to go than buy. ing votes. Money makes politicians shift positions and promise to do more for a popular cause than they possibly can. Compromising for bucks lacks the dignity and ethics we should expect from elected officials.

Yo-Master Zeemo shows his wizardry with the yo-yo before an appreciative audience during a workshop at Twelve Oaks Mall's "Return of the Yo-Yo Exhibit."

Eric Tolletson, 4, of West Bloomfield needed the extra distance at the edge of the steps to let the yo-yo go where it would spin to the end of its string and promptly stop.

up and down Exhibit revives memories of childhood and yo-yos

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

To become a yo-yo champion, Yo-Master Zeemo had

And some 30 years later, the former middle school teacher is still yanking them. Some 225 yo-yo tricks are in his repertoire. The well-known ones - "Walk the Dog," "Shoot the Moon" and "Rock the Baby" - are mere child's play to him--You can take the yo-yo out of the youth, but you can't take the youth out of the yo-yo.

"You had to take your yo-yo to school because everyone else would bring theirs," said Zeemo, whose real name is Paul Kyprie and who lives in Ann Arbor. "I had a blue, plastic Imperial and you would just look at it and say, 'Wow.' '

The Duncan Imperial model he speaks of is on display along with more than 500 yo-yos in a special exhibit, "The Return of the Yo-Yo," at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi. The exhibit runs through Sunday, July 29.

FEATURED IN the vast display is the Donald Duncan family collection of yo-yos from 1930-90 and memorabilia illustrating the history of the popular toy that has spanned many generations.

A yo-yo for Hulk Hogan? How about the 258-pound monster made of wood that is in "The Guinness Book of World Records" as the largest yo-yo? Or a yo-yo for when the power goes out? There are some that light up or glow in the dark that are on display.

If anything, the exhibit brings back memories. Everyone can remember their first yo-yo.

"As teenagers, we had a choice of hanging out on street corners doing yo-yo tricks or stealing hubcaps," he said. "I chose yo-yo tricks."

Patlow has 30 yo-yos stashed away in his bottom desk drawer at work, he said. Included in the batch is one commemorating "The Yo-Yolympics," which took place in 1979 in Gurney, Ill.

THE EVENT itself marked a pivotal turning point in the history of the yo-yo. Donald Duncan Jr., son of Donald Duncan Sr., tried to re-enter the yo-yo market without much success.

The Duncans are considered the first family of yoyoing, though Pedro Flores is credited with operating the first yo-yo company in the United States.

Lily society promises 'blooming' good show

By C.L. Rugenstein staff writer

Everything's coming up lilies for the Michigan Regional Lily Society Flower Show this weekend at Livonia's Laurel Park Place Mall.

Hundreds of lily enthusiasts will bring cuttings of their prized plants for nationally accredited lily judges to choose the fairest of them all Saturday and Sunday, July 20-21. Speciators will be able to ramble through the cuttings to admire - and sniff — the colorful, atomatic blossoms.

And Illy growers will congregate to trade tips on growing, breeding and disease proofing their prize plants.

Virginia Heller, editor of the Michigan Regional Lily Society's bulletin, despaired of baying any blooms at all to enter.

"They all bloomed terribly early — about three weeks early. I won't have anything for the show," she said in the lily garden of her Palmer Park home,

There were two reasons for that. Heller said. One was because the temperatures in the city are generally warmer than in the suburbs, causing the flowers to peak earli-

But also, "we ran into a lot of problems. Because the National Lily Society is having its show the week before ours, we didn't get any judges."

ALL WAS NOT lost, however. The Michigan Region snared nationally accredited Illy judges Sandra and David Ross of Amherst, Ohlo, who will "drive all night" to be at the Laurel Park show.

Some of the things they'll be looking for are the condition of the flower. That's worth 30 points out of a possible 100. Blooms also should not be faded and along with their leaves be clean and free from damage. Vigor, and placement of the blooms (no crowding or void spaces, please) are other categories worth 20 points each.

Interestingly, the top award winner in the exhibit is called the "Queen of the Show." The runner-up, however, is only the "King of the Show."

Categories will include unnamed seedlings grown and hybridized by the exhibitors, artistic arrangements with an international theme - lilies in the cities of the world - and single stem entries grown from

Cloning is the latest development in lily hybridizing, said Virginia's Heller's husband, Harry. Her enthusiasm has rubbed on her husband, a recently retired doctor.

Lilles are generally grown from bulbs. Hybridizers grow them from seedlings, which can take a couple of years to get them to show size — if they come up at all.

Lilies are so unpredictable that one may "come up one year — then die out the next year because it didn't get the proper attention, said Dr. Heller.

"NOW THEY'RE cloning them from tissue," growing the whole plant from one cell, Judith McRae of Oregon, who's experimenting with cloning, is the foremost hybridizers in the country. Charles Kroell of Troy is also well known for developing the popular "Vonnie," a brilliant orange - and hardy — lily.

Lilles are cross-bred to get sizes and colors, but developing hardy, longer lasting lilles that are also disease resistant is an important factor for growers.

Heller called the species "Enchantment," also a large, red-orange blossom, "the greatest lily in the world." Developed by Jan De Graaf, who died recently, "It was the first disease-free lily with a strong constitution that could be depended on to grow and be strong," she said.

On that note, Heller observed that some other flowers that have the word "lily" in their name are not lilies at all.

Daylilies and lilies of the valley, for instance, are also not illies. But the lowly Tiger Lily that can be found growing wild by the side of many Michigan roads - is a true lily.

"BUT I'D HATE to bring one into my garden because they carry diseases," Heller

The Michigan Regional Lily Society also does public plantings in places like the Detroit Zoo and the grounds of the Dow Chemical Plant in Midland.

'As for her passion for lilles, Heller said: "Anybody can drop a daylily bulb in the ground and it will come up. It takes a little more skill to grow a lily."

Times for the Laurel Park Place lily snow are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 21, and noon-5 p.m: Sunday, July 22. The show will off the mall's central court. Laurel Park Place is at Newburgh and Six Mile roads in Livonia.

Dear Ms. Green,

Dear C.T.

I'm glad you jumped right on the band wagon and wrote for an evaluation of your handwriting. I see an interesting young man here who is doing some introspection at this particular time.

I also see you as a man of intelligence and somewhat serious. You appear to be probing in the abstract areas of life. With only a limited

Emotionally, you are rather dependent on the past and feel a need to conform to "accepted" behavior, as you perceive it to be. Other times you feel lonely and see yourself marching to a different drummer. These conflicting messages may cause you to procrastinate or step aside to dwell on all that you are feeling. As a result you experience moods and periods of restlessness.

In your interpersonal relationships, you like to keep a certain amount of distance between yourself and others. You are probably not the one to make the first gesture and may vacillate a little on how much of yourself you are prepared to give to another. After a friendship has developed you become a tad domineering, possibly without realizing it.

In matters of a real importance, you can become defiant and argue your cause. At this time you may not always be realistic in your thinking. A little tendency to make mountains out of mole hills also seems like a possibility.

unleashed a mania in the 1930s akin to the Hula-Hoop in the '50s or Cabbage Patch Dolls in the '80s.

Without the benefit of television advertising, Duncan would employ yo-yo professionals who would perform tricks in front of stores. Children were dazzled, rushing inside to buy them.

IN THE 1960S, oversaturation of the market and legal wrangling left yo-yo sales hanging. In 1962, 45 million units were sold in this country that had less than 40 million children. Duncan lost a battle in court to get exclusive rights to the yo-yo name. The company went bankrupt in 1966.

The exhibit at Twelve Oaks symbols a rebirth of the toy. "The Return of the Yo-Yo" will travel throughout the United States for three years. Then the collection of yo-yo memorabilia will go on display in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

For a yo-yo pro like Zeemo, the exhibit is a chance to strut his stuff. He conducts workshops in the mall, including juggling and other magic.

Zeemo was Ann Arbor city champion in both 1959 and 1960. He teaches yo-yo workshops at annual juggling conventions.

"Traveling Salesmen"

Firefighter finds his station in life

By Pat Schutte staff writer

When Alan Brandemihl Jr. gets home from work, he hangs up his overcoat and helmet, slips off his boots and puts away his ax. Then maybe he'll shower to rid himself of the smell of smoke, or think back to the big smile on the old woman's face whose cat he rescued from a

Then he'll pick up a "good book" to read. Brandemihl wears two hats. Well, actually one hat and a collar.

MUCH OF the week he spends as a firefighter at Station No. 3 of the Livonia Fire Department. And when he's not spending time with his wife, Sandra, and children, Vickle, 12, and Alan, 10, the Rev. Brandemihl can be found attending to the duties of the deacon of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Livonia.

Brandemihi, 36, grew up in the Livonia area and attended Franklin High School. And as a youth, he was involved with St. Andrew's as an altar boy and in the choir. Although he didn't know it at the time, the church was to play a great role in his life.

"Church was a really important thing for me as a child," he said. "I didn't understand the calling back then, but I enjoyed the capacity I served in."

Following high school, Brandemihl served a stint in the U.S. Marine Corps and was stationed outside Memphis, Tenn. While there he kept practicing the faith as a lay reader and lay Eucharist minister, taking communion to the sick and shut-ins. He was in the service when he met his wife.

UPON RETURNING to Livonia, Brandemihl decided to follow in his father's footsteps, becoming a firefighter for the city of Livonia in 1979. His father had been a Livonia firefighter for 27 years.

"Many fathers who are firemen have children who become firemen. But the real motivation was that I wanted to work for a service organization. With the fire department you see people at their worst, but in the same breath, it's so rewarding to help people at their

The rewards of the church were also something that he decided to pursue.

BRANDEMIHL CONTINUED to work as a lay reader in his own parish, And eventually, after a friend, Ed King (who was a deacon at the time and has since become a priest) recommended it to him, Brandemihl began to take courses in religion at the Whitaker School of

From 1984 to 1989 he studied the Bible and continued to fight fires and help those in trouble, serving people both physically and spiritually.

On June 9, Brandemihl became the Rev. Brandemihl at a service officiated by the Rev. R. Stuart Wood at St. Andrew's Church. Brandemihl was ordained as a deacon, third in line behind a priest and a bishop.

"As Christ said in Luke 22, during the Last Supper dispute, 'It's not the one that sits at the table, it's the one that serves.' And that's what I do in both professions."

And to Brandemihl, the physical and spiritual healing often cross each other as a servant of God and a servant to the public.

"EMERGENCY MEDICAL Service (EMS) serves a role of healing. Also, over at our parish, we have a significant healing ministry that goes on."

So with the crossover in the two jobs, how do his parishioners and fellow firefighters feel about his two pro-

"As the deacon, I bring the church to the people," said Brandemihl, who puts in 56 hours a week at the fire department and 20 hours a week at the church. "The people of our church see the job of a firefighter as an exciting one. They're fascinated by it.

"And as tough as they may be on the exterior, I'd have to say that you'd never find a greater hearted bunch of guys (firefighters) in the world.

'Sure, I get teased from time to time, but it's all in fun. I think they've grown to know me from who I am and who I've become, and they accept this."

WITH HIS busy schedule, Brandemihl still manages to find time to play a little golf or softball with his fellow firefighters. And he spends valued time with his family at church and in the outdoors.

"Family camping is a real fun thing that we like to do. And since I've channeled my energies into different church activities, I get to spend time with my family there doing different things."

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Livonia firefighter Alan Brandemihl Jr. has been involved in St. Andrew's Episcopal

St. Andrew's has an interesting mix in the clergy, one as unusual as it is effective. Not only do they have a firefighter, but they also have a former Los Angeles County sheriff, the Rev. Robert A. Clapp.

Brandemihl will be the first to admit that police and firefighters have a notorious relations problem, yet, in their case it have worked out for the best.

"TYPICALLY, COPS and firefighters don't work well together, but we really do. We have an advantage because of having dealt with things at their absolute worst, which can make most things in the ministry seem rather easy at times.

"We see people wanting to be their best, and this gives us a good sense of balance in being able to relate to good and bad."

So for Brandemihl, you could say that his careers are measured not by monetary excellence, but by the reward of helping those in need.

"For persons in the church who are alone and scared," just being able to hold their hand or put my arm around them, gives me a great sense of satisfaction . . . and you can't put a price on that.

"And as a firefighter, I come into contact with people and work my hardest to do the best job I can do in their

Talents exceed our character

"There may be times when you strengthen our national character will be sorry about something you said; sorry that you stayed too late, but all your life you'll never be sorry you were kind."

These words, from an unknown pen, move us forward to another truth as expressed by John Luther:

"Good character is more to be praised than outstanding talent. Most talents are, to some extent, a gift. Good character, by contrast, is not given to us. We have to build it piece by piece - by thought, choice, courage and determination."...

The recently concluded economic summit in Houston was assessed by a White House official as a "fact . . . that the United States is no longer the world's pre-eminent economic power."

IT IS REGRETTABLE that he did not notice how our moral character and stature has shriveled. The competitive nature of the economic summit did not extend, enrich nor

. . . it exposed us for what we are.

President George Bush was opor sorry that you went so early, sorry that you won something, or lost, and succeeded in delaying any unified package until the end of the year. He insisted that the Soviet economy be studied and evaluated before any grants be made.

Bush also blocked a provision that carbon dioxide emissions would be cut by 25 percent in 15 years.

What did not change as a result of the Houston summit is the fact that the United States is still ranked No. 1 in military power. We build the best weapons, equip and train more armies and can control more people with armed power than any other nation in the world.

With very few exceptions, politicians are a talented people. Their range of skills and abilities is greater than the average. It is regrettable that talents do not guarantee charac-

IT WOULD take courage and a special type of character for any politician to worry more about the next generation than the next election, but just how many opportunities to be moral leaders do we allow our politicians to ignore?

Until we are part of the solution, we continue to be part of the prob-Iem. Our country will continue to rank No. 1 in military power, and falled to provide a basic economic much lower in moral presence and

Our international ranking as a military power is a sign of our talents. We know how to build weapons and compose armies. And surely there are times when they are neces-

Canadian appeal draws on canoes, crafts and cruises

crossroads

One of these days we should come back and do that."

I heard myself say that over and over last week when we weekended in Peterborough, Ontario.

Peterborough is in heavily treed Canadian Shield country north and west of Toronto. It's about 90 minutes by car from Toronto unless you go during Friday rush hour, as I did, and then it takès three hours.

Peterborough is on the Otonabee River and is part of the Trent-Severn Waterway system that allows passage from Lake Ontario to the Georgian Bay in Lake Huron.

The city of 60,000 population is in the Kawartha Lakes region, a fabulous inland recreational center where canoe and kayak championships are held regularly and where sailors are in their glory. The lakes and rivers of the 240-mile-long Trent Waterway, traveled by Champlain in 1615, are now the preserve of pleasure boaters who motor and sall through its 45 locks.

THE MOST-FAMOUS lock is the historic Hydraulic Lift Lock, which is said to have the highest lift of any lock in the world. I saw the lock once a long time ago. One of these day's I'm going to come back and take a cruise through the lock and up the waterway to Stoney Lake and the Viamede Resort, a wonderful old restored wooden lodge.

There are three companies which cruise the waterway. Bobcaygeon Cruises ((705) 738-4779) does a two-hour cruise daily except Friday out of Lock 32 as well as sunset cruises, and is the oldest lock on the waterway. Stoney Lake Cruises ((705) 652-8389) does several cruises a day through Labor Day during the summer plus fall cruises, Sept. 16 through Oct. 15. Liftlock Cruises Ltd. ((705) 742-9912), does a two-hour cruise over the lift

All cruises cost approximately $12 Canadian for adults and $6 for children. I'm going to do that sometime. This time, we explored the countryside by land. A country auction outside a church in the rain, with the auctioneer selling china cups and Canadian paintings and the antique glass bowl of a kerosene lamp.

We ate lunch at the Curve Lake Indian reservation where we delighted in wild rice soup and an Indian fried bread called Saucegun. We went shopping at an elegant gallery of Canadian Indian crafts, which carries everything from $12 handmade bead earrings from Owen Sound to $3000 bentwood painted boxes made by the Haida Indians in British Columbia.

The Trent Canal widens into Little Lake in the heart of Peterborough, and the city throws a free party every Wednesday and Saturday night during the summer.

LAST WEEK the historic boats were in, including some from Michigan; their sleek mahogany hulls rocking at the Little Lake Marina. We sat on lawn chairs and laughed through a stage presentation by Dave Broadfoot, a well-known character in the Royal Canadian Air Force. Lots of you laugh through that program weekly on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. station out of Windsor.

We were stopped at a customs station and rest area just inside the French border near Italy. The guide went through the usual routine, telling us that it is only: (1) her skill as a linguist, (2) her savoir faire as a briber and/or (3) her charms as a femme fatale, that will get us through unharmed.

Though it is never said, we all understand that without exercise of all of the above, we would be pulled out of the bus by cold-eyed French officials, none of whom could speak a word of English.

We detoured off the highway for a turn on the Corniche in order to get a glimpse of Monaco. Alessandro, our driver, maneuvered the long coach on a hairpin switchback road as if there were nothing to it.

We came back to Corniche for dinner that night in the little cliffside village of Eze, in a restaurant run by a charming couple known to our guide. We were promised the meal would be superb. French cuisine. We were not disappointed.

We later went to the Casino at Monte Carlo. We were hoping to catch a glimpse of Prince Rainier or Princess Caroline. Tres charmante!

MONACO and the Monte Carlo Casino are filled with elegant women and handsome men who lean over gambling tables, lounge at the bar and promenade the salons.

We won a little money at the tables, but lost it before we were through. We enjoyed a consolation coffee in the Cafe de Paris. It's a French-speaking version of a downtown Las Vegas hotel lobby.

We returned to our hotel in Nice and were in bed by midnight. The next morning, we walked around town. Nice is a beautiful city with a population of 750,000 and the climate of San Diego, Calif. The shops are full of expensive and elegant merchandise. Small parks stand along the inland and sea shore.

Heading toward Cannes on the coach again, we passed the Hippodrome de Cote d'Azur.

Cannes was named for the reeds that grow everywhere in the marshes nearby. The city is beautiful, warm and rich and looks across the bay toward an ancient monastery.

We made our lunch stop after winding along the Boulevard Carnot and the Rue Jean de Rioffe. The beachfront is lined by expensive hotels: Miramar, Splendid, Carlton, Grand, Cornet de la Reine, Majestic, and Gray Albion, the latter in honor of expatriate Englishmen and British tourists who developed the beach area and continue to donate time and labor to keep it neat.

MAKING OUR WAY through the city, we encountered construction work around which our coach had to detour down narrow streets and alleyways. Seeking a path through the maze, we confronted a semitruck and

Our coach and the truck were hood-to-bonnet in a street so narrow that the sides of each were nearly scraping the stucco off the buildings that line it.

Alessandro and our guide conferred with the driver of the semitruck. There was much waving of hands, scratching of heads, kicking of tires and spitting. Someone soon gave way. As Alessandro would say, it was time to apply "l'arte di ariangiarsi," ("Working things out; finding a compromise.")

We stopped for lunch in Cannes, on the fashionable avenue which rims the seashore and the strand. At a sidewalk cafe drenched in glorious French sunshine, we ordered potage de poisson, crusty French bread, and cool white wine. Nectar and ambrosia!

After lunch, we depart along the Rue Georges Clemenceau, the Boulevard du Riviera and the Boulevard Franklin Roosevelt. We turn north toward Grasse, where we visit the Parfumerie Galimard.

Each parfumeri (there are several in Southern France) has at least one "nose" (Les Nez) who is responsible for quality control in the works. The French perfume industry has some 40 noses, nearly all male.

ON AVERAGE, Les Nez work for an hour a day, 15 days per month. This gives them plenty of time off in which to rest their famous nostrils. It is vital that they be up to snuff for the delicate work of sniffing out new

By 2:45 p.m. we were on our way to Avignon and Aix le Provence. The fields were full of flowers; the hillsides were latticed with grape vines.

Low mountains rim a shallow valley. They were covered with stunted pines and brush, not too unlike the Fremont River Valley in southern Utah. The air was bright with sunshine and fairly dry. Forest and brush fires have ravaged many square miles. There are strict regulations concerning campfires.

We entered a divided highway and drove past mile upon mile of vineyards. The red, yellow, gold and light green of the vines mixed with the flaming colors of deciduous trees and the dark green of pines. Here in the Vaucluse region, as in Provence and Languedoc, the vines are not staked as they are in Italian vineyards.

We passed the village of St. Maximin, named for the saint whose tomb is located there, but better known for the place where Mary Magdalene is believed to be bur-

Looping through Wonderland on water rides and roller coasters

By Roberta Schwartz special writer

Sprinkle in some excitement, stir with a dash of spectacle and shake well with color to concoct a day of fun at Canada's Wonderland, a somethingextra theme park near Toronto.

That something extra comes in many forms including the Canadian discount on the U.S. dollar, which rates at 17 percent or more.

It's easy to get there too. The drive from Windsor via highway 401 takes about three hours. Wonderland rests just off highway 400, 10 minutes

This year the park celebrates its 10th anniversary of keeping folks happy beneath 150-foot high

Wonder Mountain. Yet the terrifying variety of huge roller coasters reigns suspreme as Wonderland's premier attraction. Challenge the Bat, Ontario's first and only backward looping coaster and Sky Rider, Canada's only stand up, looping coaster requires riders to forget their instinct for self-preservation upon boarding.

The Mighty Canadian Minebuster throws its devotees down 94 slopes at 100 kilometers an hour. Many visitors awed by the thrill rides are amazed when they find that they are still alive at the end of each roller coaster ride.

Wonderland hosts a wide variety of spectacles for those who would rather watch than be turned inside out on the coasters. Street entertainers, clown bands and cliff divers keep more passive visitors happy. Italian celebrations, fireworks spectaculars, and heritage days saluting different ethnic groups still add more spice to the overflowing Wonderland pot.

Two theme areas for youngsters give kids a chance to meet their favorite cartoon characters and shake hands with such stars as Fred Flintstone and the Smurfs. They love exploring Hanna Barbara Land and meeting Scooby Doo and the Jetsons. These cartoon celebrities hug their fans Wonderland takes pride in its claim of operating the wettest rides in the Western Hemisphere. Kids who want to cool off can try Timberwolf Falls, an exciting drop of water bound to leave them screaming and soaking wet. The great raft ride etched in the memories and hearts of kids and written on untold thousands of t-shirts White Water Canyon, tests both their skills and personal courage. It gives them a feel for what going over Niagara Falls in a barrel must be like except that the Wonderland vehicle resembles a gigantic inner tube.

The beautiful landscape of the park is most noticeable with its splendid fountains and lagoons, majestic mountains, and elegant restaurants and shops.

Wonderland managers boast that the park's laser show, light and music extravaganza can't be matched for the beauty of its special effects. This year the park has added Jet Scream, but warns that the new ride is only for those with the right stuff. This 10-story ride goes through 360 degree loops that would test the courage of King Kong.

Ten live shows a day including a Broadway musical review, fairytale follies in which kids star in their favorite stories, and salt water friends show featuring dolphins, sea lions and a high comedy dive show staged on a galleon. These attractions leave visitors wondering what they should see first.

For those who want some refuge from excitement and all the challenge, international restaurants featuring the foods of many countries, wooden horses and antique cars offer some fun and consolation.

This year the park has introduced a special $5 children's concert series which brings top children performers to the Kingswood Music Theatre.

Crossroads Village in Flint beckons to those who seek a tranquil day and a chance to learn what life was like in the middle of the 19th centu-

Crossroads is located north of Flint on Mott Lake.

This summer, Crossroads hosts thousands of people eager to ride the 100-year-old Huckleberry Railroad through farmland, forests and past rural lakes. A mock holdup toward the end of the ride keeps passengers laughing as the bandits create more smiles than fear.

In the winter, the Crossroads staff harvests tons of ice and welcomes visitors to a Polar Bear Festival. Down the road at Bluebell Beach, competitors test their skills in an ice fishing derby.

the mill in operation, ride a bright vintage carousel and nibble hot dogs or doughnuts in Crossroads Cafe. Dropping by a completely furnished country kitchen, studying a rural garden and watching a handset print shop in operation are both delightful and instructional. For most kids, it's the first chance to see a blacksmith's shop at work. The dirt roads of this small village with its flour mill and ancient water tank resembling the one on the "Petticoat Junction" TV show draws those who want a day away from the crush of the city. Crossroads invites exploration but it never tires visitors because of its size and slow pace.

Kids love to buy hankies, wooden tovs and the games of yesterday for pennies at the general store. In winter, Crossroads blazes with 40,000 lights and plenty of hollday cheer as the little town goes all out to greet its guests and provide a good time.

MOTION SICKNESS Off-balance misery on vacation

(AP) A common complaint that can make traveling a misery results when the brain receives conflicting signals from the body's balance system.

The symptoms of motion sickness — nausea that may lead to vomiting, drowsiness, dizziness, headache and general discomfort - are a "weak" balance system's response to movement, said Dr. Ronald A. Hoffman, an ear, nose and throat specialist at New York University Medical Center. The brain provides a sense of balance based on information from three sources: the inner ear, the proprioceptors, Hoffman said. Most sufferers are born with a tendency to motion sickness, but an acquired inner-ear abnormality may increase sensitivity to movement.

GENERALLY, MOTION sickness first appears during childhood, and many people outgrow it. Occasionally it develops later.

An adult who experiences motion sickness for the first time should consult a physician to rule out an underlying inner-ear problem: tumor, infection, metabolic disorder or traumatic injury, Hoffman said.

For most people, however, motion sickness is a nuisance, not a sign of underlying illness.

HOFFMAN SUGGESTED taking an over-thecounter preparation designed to relieve symptoms: dimenhydrinate (Dramamine) and meclizine (Bonine) turn off or tone down the balance eyes and certain muscles in the body called center in the brain, thus reducing the amount of conflicting sensory input,

The drugs start working in 45 minutes and usually last four hours. They may cause drowsiness and blurred vision, which make it unsafe to oper-

Children's dosages are available, and the side effect of drowsiness may be desirable, permitting a restless child to sleep during the trip.

For severe seasickness, a transdermal patch worn behind the ear that dispenses a steady amount of the central nervous system depressant scopolamine is available by prescription.

Drivers normally do not suffer from motion sickness because the driver's vision permits anticipation of the car's movement.

TO LESSEN the chance of motion sickness. Hoffman recommended driving whenever possible. Sitting in the front passenger seat and gazing out the front window is the next best position to avoid symptoms.

In a boat or plane, he suggested sitting where motion is least - amidship or over the wing and reclining with eyes above the horizon.

Lying down, reading or otherwise fixing the eyes on a stationary object makes things worse. Although it may be tempting to try to distract a child with a toy or picture book, it is better to encourage looking out the window.

It is rewarding to know that you have helped your children obtain the skills needed to face the everchanging world. Our profiled cou-. ple this month, Harry and Sue Pierce, both 50, find themselves in this enviable position.

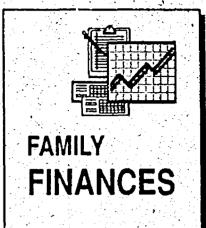

The youngest of their three children will be graduating from a state university next year, and the money for his last year's tuition and expenses has already been set aside. Their two other children are already out on their own and have no need of assistance from their parents. Harry and Sue now can turn their attention to their other goals, especially their retirement planning.

In recent years, their financial savings efforts have been focused on assisting their children through college. They are very concerned now about their own future, and want to make retirement planning their primary goal.

HARRY, AN insurance adjuster, and Sue, a store salesperson, both plan on working for 10 more years; although if financially able, they would consider retiring earlier.

Both Sue and Harry contribute to a 401(k) retirement plan where they work. They have recently increased their contributions. Harry now puts 12 percent of his income, and Sue adds 14 percent of her weekly income to these plans. This totals about $350 per month, which is helping to form a solid foundation for their retirement planning.

They wonder whether they are putting too much money into their retirement plans. Specifically, they asked, "Should we cancel Sue's 401(k) plan and bank the $50 per week contribution?"

We would strongly recommend against any reduction in contributions to their retirement plans. Their retirement plans are excellent places to build their retirement assets. It is convenient for

Manufacturers on watch for counterfeit elements

By David Stein special writer

In May 1989, a 30-year-old truck driver died in a steering-loss accident in Ontario. The accident was traced to a counterfeit bolt, manufactured overseas, that was falsely marked as meeting Society of Automotive Engineer standards.

Today, automotive manufacturers, including the Big Three, continue to fight counterfeiters of replacement parts. Companies estimate that as much as $3 billion of the $50 billion per year automotive aftermarket involves counterfelt or simulated parts. The Federal Trade Commission translates this into 210,000 lost jobs for Americans, who would be producing legitimate equivalents.

"Counterfeiting is the imitation of Motorcraft trademark."

something genuine with the intention to defraud or deceive," said Michael Dinger, Chrysler product development manager. "In my five years of fighting this problem, all counterfeit parts I have examined were definitely inferior to genuine ones."

Counterfelt parts may originate overseas, imported legally as generic parts before being placed in counterfeit boxes, or be made in the U.S. Original equipment manufacturers warn that these parts usually fail to meet industry or individual company standards.

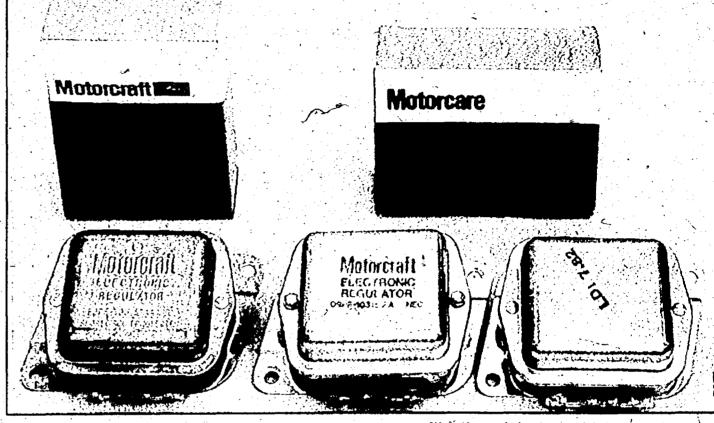

In other cases, called simulation, parts of uncertain quality are offered in "look-alike" packages. Boxes with Motorcare and Autocraft labels, for example, have been used to deceive customers looking for Ford's

THE COUNTERFEIT and simulation problems need to be distinguished from the current crash parts controversy where less costly, but clearly marked, parts are used in collision repairs, Dinger said. In this case, automakers contend that such "imitation" parts do not provide satisfactory quality of repairs.

Manufacturers, worried about safety as much as lost sales and reputation, are getting tough with counterfeit parts makers and distribu-

Energy tax plan would hurt state, utility chief says

By Tim Richard staff writer

Michigan and the industrial states would be hardest hit - in the export pocket — by proposed federal energy taxes, says the chairman of Consumers Power Co.

"Energy taxes will fall very heavily on an industrial economy," said William T. McCormick Jr., who heads the utility selling natural gas and electricity to two-thirds of Michigan's residents. "This is going to be war between the states."

The firm estimated that $1 billion of the first year's $20 billion of budget-balancing taxes would fall on Michigan homeowners and businesses alone.

THE ONLY southeastern Michigan member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Democrat Sander Levin of Southfield, said energy taxes are among thousands of proposals.

"They (energy taxes) have all the problems mentioned by Consumers Power. But no one should think adoption of them is imminent. It's an idea."

Levin said he has "pre-judged none" of the tax ideas.

But Levin warned the estimated budget deficit - raised Monday to $168.8 billion for fiscal 1991 — is two-thirds higher than President Bush's estimate of six months ago. With the bailout of savings and loan depositors, the total deficit could reach $231 billion - "a very, very serious budget problem in this country," sald Levin.

McCORMICK CALLED a news conference Monday in Detroit to say the energy tax proposals are "highly regressive, hitting people on fixed incomes and the poor.

"It would do great harm to the industrial economy. Michigan is the nation's ninth largest energy user and the fourth largest exporter. It would affect our country's competitive position. It would be unfair and discriminatory to the large industri-

"Five or six states already are in a mild recession."

For homeowners in Consumers Power's service area of Oakland County and northwestern Wayne County, it would mean gas bill increases of 8 percent. For customers of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. and electric customers of Detroit Edison, the increases would be about

TWO MEASURES are under consideration by Congress and the Bush administration:

• A bill by Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, D-Calif., a high ranking member of the Ways and Means Committee. Coal, now priced at $35 to $40 a ton, would be taxed $15 a ton, in $3 increments over five years; petroleum, $3.35 a barrel, phased in at 65 cents a year; and natural gas, 40 cents a thousand cubic feet, phased in at 8 cents a year.

them since they save by payroll deduction and it provides them with significant tax advantages.

THE CONTRIBUTIONS they make are currently tax deductible, and there is a very real possibility that the money withdrawn at retirement will be taxed at a lower rate than they currently pay. Alternatively, they may be able to take advantage of favorable five year averaging treatment on a lump sum distribution from their 401(k) plans. If their contributions continue at their present rate, it could increase their retirement nest egg by more than $100,000 - a significant sum for

The Pierces should review their expected retirement needs and estimate their future living expenses. -This will also help them to determine if their current savings will be sufficient to allow them to live in the desired manner.

Harry estimates relatively high inflation in the future, as much as 10 percent, yet all of their assets are in investments which have little inflation protection - bank deposits and certificates of deposit. They may want to give some thought to including some growth assets which have inflation protection over the long term, such as stocks, real estate and

ONE OF Harry and Sue's goals is to pay off their house by the time they retire. At the current payment rate, the mortgage will not be paid off for 13 years. With retirement just 10 years away, they are considering retiring the mortgage three years

They wonder if they should make extra payments on the mortgage at this time so that the mortgage is paid off when they are ready to retire, or whether they should bank the money between now and retirement and then pay the mortgage balance in a lump sum at that time.

Their current mortgage rate is only 7 percent, and we would recommend that they not make additional principal payments on their mortgage. Because home interest is a fully tax deductible expense, the interest rate cost is only 5 percent after

At retirement they will have assets to pay off the mortgage if they desire. However, even at that time it may make more sense to maintain their regular monthly payments rather than paying a lump sum to eliminate that debt. With their mortgage interest at just 7 percent, the only reason we would recommend paying the mortgage off early is if it would add to their piece of mind. In that case, it might be an acceptable "investment."

One of the financial strengths of the Pierces is that they have adequate medical, disability and homeowner's insurances. However, their auto insurance liability coverage is only $100,000. They should raise this to $300,000, which is in line with their current coverage under their homeowners' policy.

IF HARRY were to die unexpectedly with his current life insurance ($141,000 face value), the income from the proceeds would only replace about one-third of his current income. It also would not replace his pension and 401(k) retirement plan contributions during the next 10 years. We would recommend that Harry consider an additional term insurance policy covering him for the next 10 years to protect Sue in the case of his premature death.

Currently, Harry and Sue own three certificates of deposit jointly with their children. Each of the children is named as joint owner with Harry and Sue on the three different CD's. While this arrangement can avoid probate under Michigan law, and perhaps avoid Michigan inheritance taxes, it can become very unwieldy if it is intended to be used in lieu of a properly executed will.

Fortunately, the Pierces have wills in place, so that should not be a problem. In an effort to be fair to each child, they may create problems if not all three of the CD's are cashed in and used at the same time. One or more of the children may receive a disproportionate amount of their estate. In addition, at least theoretically, the children are entitled to a portion of the CD during their lifetimes, which is not the intent of the Pierces. Care should be taken with this type of relationship.

AS YOU can see, with increased assets available for retirement come financial strength. However, proper planning for that retirement is a necessity. The Pierces are allocating a significant portion of their assets to meeting the primary goal of retirement, and they should allocate a significant amount of time to be certain that their goal is realistic. As the financial assets and planning come together, the Pierces can move toward the realization of a sound retirement

Counterfeits hurt manufacturers

The suit charged that Roy Lanza, operator of both businesses, sold inferlor oil seals as Federal Mogul parts he placed in counterfeit Federal-Mogul boxes that he had printed.

"We discovered the problem in 1988 when a customer of Mr. Lanza tried to return the oil seals to Federal-Mogul for credit," said George Bashara, Federal-Mogul vice president and general counsel. "This practice, involving hundreds of thousands of dollars of parts, had been going on for at least three years."

In a federal court-approved settlement, Lanza admitted fraud, pledged to stop counterfeit practices and agreed to pay damages to Federal-Mogul. The counterfeit parts and boxes were confiscated by the U.S. Marshal's office.

MANUFACTURERS have an ally in the Federal Counterfeit Trademark Act. Enacted in 1986, the act. imposes criminal penalties of up to five years in prison and fines of up to $250,000 for individuals and $1 million for businesses dealing in counterfeit goods. In contrast, those "simulating" genuine parts are subject only to civil penalties.

The message for counterfeiters, Bashara said, is that "Federal-Mogul is no longer going to assume that this is a cost of doing business and let it go at that. In the past, Bashara said, Federal-Mogul feared bad publicity but now will prosecute whenever it

In 1989, aftermarket sales accounted for 68 percent of Federal-Mogul's earnings of $56 million. Federal-Mogul components include engine bearings, sealing devices, fuel pumps, and lighting and electrical systems.

-Federal-Mogul continues vigilance against counterfeiters with the same strategies used by the Big Three: constant checking of products in the field, information programs, improvements in packaging, and the willingness to prosecute offenders.

In January, a nationwide FB1 sting netted 30 counterfeit parts distributors. The FBI had been working on the case with major manufacturers for nearly three years. The investigation is continuing.

"Seven indictments have been handed down, but no cases from January have been completely settled yet," sald Ken Myers, marketing manger for Ford's Parts and Service division.

WHILE MYERS sees less counterfeiting from Ford's standpoint in the last few years, he believes that it "probably will never go away; there is too much money to be made."

Myers said that counterfeit parts distributors are getting more sophisticated, with some using telemarketing schemes to reach auto service centers.

Both Chyrsler's Dinger and Ford's Myers believe that counterfeit parts are more likely to be found in repair centers than auto parts stores. "In my experience, no prosecutions over the last four to five years have involved any legitimate parts stores," Dinger said.

Locally, auto parts dealers also see less of a problem than in the past. Scott Harthun, manager of Southfield Auto Parts in Southfield, said he has never encountered any counterfelt parts or offers of them.

'We also buy direct from manufacturers, so we are unlikely to have the problem," Harthun said.

Bob Morton, owner of Stem's Auto Supply in Livonia, agreed.

"I am not aware of any problems with counterfeit parts for the last two or three years," Morton said, "Brand name stuff is all I sell; other projects don't last."

AT MID-5 AUTO Supply in Livonia, manager John Ginther said he may be offered parts from independent jobbers two to three times a years. Ginther shies away, buying strictly from established warehouses.

Morton and Ginther, each with more than 20 years of experience in auto parts, suggest buying from reputable stores and repairing cars at well-established service centers which are more likely to resist the temptation of selling off-brand parts as genuine.

"The problem is probably greater away from the city, especially when you are on a trip and need a repair," Morton said. He recommends carrying routine réplacement parts such as belts or hoses when traveling.

As consumers defend against counterfeit or poor quality parts by careful shopping, a new motto based on manufacturer resolve emerges -Counterfeiter beware.

Utility chairman knocks plan to tax energy

Impact on Michigan would be $226 million next year, rising to $1.13 billion by 1995, Consumers Power said. • A tax on BTUs (for British thermal units, a measure of energy). It reportedly is in a proposal by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-New Mexico, a Bush administration ally. On gasoline, it might amount to 5 or 6 cents

Cost to Michiganians would be $700 million to $1 billion the first year and $1 billion to $1.5 billion the fifth, the utility said.

CONGRESS AND the president reportedly are aiming to close the deficit by $100 billion - half by spending cuts and half by revenue increases, with half the revenue coming from energy taxes.

"I'm not here to propose ways of raising taxes," said McCormick. "It's not a deficit problem; it's a spending problem . I'm hopeful we'll kill this one."

He added, "There are probably broader kinds of taxes" if more taxes are necessary.

THE OIL Daily, a trade publication, called both bills "foolish" and "far, far back on the list of potentially fair and equitable taxes."

The Stark bill would fall one-third on coal, one-half on petroleum and one-sixth on natural gas. The Oil Daily said Stark has no reputation as a "deal maker."

The tax sponsors span the political spectrum. The liberal Americans for Democratic Action gives Stark a 95 rating and Domenici a 5.

No matter what, owners complain about their cars

This is the first year in history that an auto manufacturer managed to build a car that nobody coinplained about.

The source of this startling information is the J.D. Power & Associates "initial quality survey" of new cars. Power's people survey new carowners and ask them if they have anything to complain about. The results are tabulated annually and then the auto companies brag about them if they are on the top of the list or complain about the survey if they are at the bottom.

The Power survey is the one that the guy to insult him. ranks new cars according to quality that you probably have seen referred up his own quality surveys, something he started to do after he looked him and realized that he was paying pretty lousy.

Actually, if you spend a lot of money on a car, you aren't about to complain, which I figure is why Mercedes, Lexus and Buick usually do pretty

AUTOMAKERS SCRAMBLE to to in advertisements - at those not get a good ranking in the Power surwritten by Lee Iacocca, who makes 'vey so they can claim their car is better than the next. What they don't want anybody to notice is that acat how much Power was charging cording to Power, all cars are still Power says that two-thirds of the people buying the best-quality car in the world (the Toyota Cressida, according to the survey) complain about it anyway. In fact, until this year, no car brand had averaged fewer than 100 complaints per 100 cars, which means that somebody was complaining about every car.

Even really terrific cars have more than one person complaining about them. Buick, for example, had 1.13 complaints per car, which means that somebody's spouse must have put in their two cents' worth. Most cars get at least two complaints, and some get up to three, which means that probably the neighbor came over, and picked at something as soon as he saw the thing pull into the driveway.

I THINK one reason that Power gets so many complaints is that he is basically a nice guy, and when he asks people to complain about their , car, nobody wants to disappoint him.

'Yeah, I've got a few complaints, but what the heck, nobody's perfect" already adds up to about 300 complaints per 100 cars sold.

Actually, if you spend a lot of money on a car, you aren't about to complain, which I figure is why Mercedes, Lexus and Bulck usually do pretty well on Power's complaint survey. On the other hand, when you find yourself driving, say, a Dodge Omni, you probably have other worries and aren't so picky anymore, which explains why the Omni ranked higher than the Honda Clvic on this year's survey. I never really complained about my Omni, but I muttered a lot.

HOW YOU feel about your car, is clearly the deciding factor as to whether you complain about it. For example, my old Triumph had lots of flaws — such as a glove box that was a real cardboard box that was supposed to be attached behind a little leather-covered door that unlocked with a key. But when you put a set of socket wrenches in it (don't ask why), the box would fall off and hit your passenger on the ankle.

Then you had to put the glove box ... with the wrenches in it in the trunk, which meant that you could open the little leather-covered door with the key, hold your hands up behind the opening and do a passable rendition of a Punch and Judy puppet show.

I thought it was astute British engineering that left space in the trunk for the glove box. Funny, I never " thought to complain about it. I wonder what Mr. Power would have thought of that,

Work of free-lance writers can help small businesses

"Hiring the words" is one way to describe how a growing majority of small business owners are converting their ordinary printed materials into captivating business communications.

In today's competitive marketplace, business leaders realize that their customer-directed literature must not merely be read, but read with great interest. When this goal is accomplished, the job of persuading readers to do what they've been asked becomes much more effective.

ADDING "SPARK" to a firm's written materials traditionally has been focused on company brochures, advertising copy and annual reports. Advertising agencies usually were perceived as the only source for professional writing help.

But working with an agency often meant spending a small fortune to receive receive finished copy that sometimes read like yesterday's newspaper. But as the writing-relatover the years, so did the opportunities to receive affordable assistance from alternate sources.

FREELANCE WRITERS have since become the small business industry's best investment and have been commissioned to do much more than create attention-getting, oneliners or organize factual information. Put your money where it counts. Even using the DNA's un-audited figures, SPRING delivers Detroit's suburban market at a lower cost per inch and a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

In short, your advertising dollar will pack a bigger punch when you place your ad in SPRING

The Star is the Perfect Setting for any Special Occasion.

What's an advertiser to do?

Trust the right numbers. The Detroit News and Free Press' own figures show suburban circulation of both the dailies and Sunday newspaper is down.

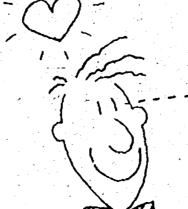

At the same time, SPRING's network of 39 Detroit suburban newspapers offers a solid, stable circulation of 530,000. (That represents more than one million readers!) What's more, all SPRING newspapers are audited by either ABC or CAC.

Switch to SPRING.

Lower your cost per ad. Drop your cost per thousand. Hit your budget. And reach the SPRING suburban buyers you want to reach.

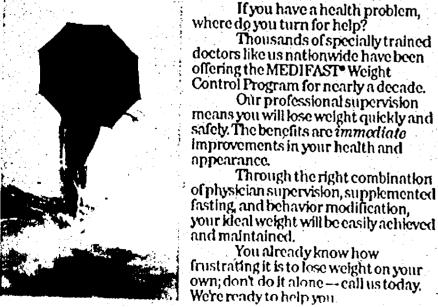

Put more SPRING in your next media buy.

SC participates in engineering enrichment

Schoolcraft College in Livonia is hosting a summer enrichment program for middle and high school minority students who are interested in engineering and science.

The college is providing classrooms and instructors in such courses as laser technology, quadratic formulas and test taking.

The program, the Summer Engineering Enrichment Program sponsored in conjunction with the Detroit Area Pre-College Engineering Program, is held annually at area colleges.

In addition to Schoolcraft, courses are also scheduled at Wayne State University, the University of Michigan, the University of Michigan-Dearborn, Michigan State University, the Universty of Detroit and Lawrence Technological University.

S'craft offers career workshop

A workshop on planning a successful career is scheduled 6-8 p.m. Tuesday, July 31, at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

The workshop will consider realities in career planning, factors involved in successful career choices, exploring current occupation trends and conditions of the current job market.

The workshop is open to the public free of charge. For reservations, call 462-4421.

Please Help A Jeighbor's Child In Need!

In Third World countries, hundreds of thousands of children are in desperate need of food, clothing, medical care—the basics of life. These girls and boys are even denied the opportunity to attend school.

They are our neighbors in a world that grows smaller every day.

Through CCF, you can sponsor a neighbor's child. The cost is $18 a month - just 60¢ a day – to help a poor child in Asia, Africa or Latin America -a child who has virtually nothing.

Please pick up your phone now and dial the toll-free number below Be a good neighbor by helping an innocent child.

Mustangs recover to defeat Langlois

By Ray Setlock staff writer.

For two innings Tuesday at Ford Field, it looked as though the Langlois Cardinals were going to do the previously impossible — defeat the Mustangs and take over first place in the Livonia Connie Mack League.

Things didn't work out the way Langlois had hoped; the Cards ended up losing to the Mustangs for the third time this season, by an 8-7 margin. They previously lost by 12-0 and 8-6 scores.

Langlois' record is now 13-3, while the Mustangs are Langlois jumped to an early 5-0 advantage following the first inning, thanks to four walks and a run-scoring double off the bat of Dave Borkowski.

"OUR GUYS were really on a high when we jumped off to that lead in the first inning," Langlois coach Bob Murray said. "But you have to like the way the Mustangs fought back. It showed a lot of character on their Langlois added two more runs in the second inning when Borkowski crushed an RBI triple to right field, scoring Andy Hathaway and Brett Welling.

The Mustangs made their comeback in the top of the third, scoring eight runs on six hits. They sent 11 batters

Scott Marinkovich and Jeff Graham led the offensive attack in the third inning. Both had run-producing

"YOU GOT to like the way we fought back," Mustang coach Jim Karoub said. "That is the mark of a good baseball team."

Tad Dennis earned the victory for the Mustangs, hurling four innings and striking out two. Craig Overaitis got credit for the save, pitching two solid innings of relief. He collected two strikeouts.

Rick Fowler suffered the loss for Langlois in relief of starter Joel Mussat. Fowler tossed 3% innings, striking out six and walking two. He allowed two runs. Mussat pitched 21/2 innings, allowing six runs and four hits. He collected one strikeout.

"IT WAS a tough day for pitchers," Murray said. "There were some bad hops and some of the guys had trouble with the lights. But that is a part of the game.

Both teams have to deal with it." The Mustangs had six hits, all of which came in the pivotal third inning. Langlois managed just four hits.

Murray says he enjoys the match-up between the Mustangs and Langlois because of the friendly competition it offers.

"It's a fun game when these two teams get together," he said. "A lot of the guys on the two teams know each other and its friendly competition. We played a good game tonight. We weren't humiliated like the previous two games. We played well."

Magic Wolves, Wolves capture regional crowns

And then there were four.

Which is all that remains in the U.S. Youth Soccer Association National Championships: four teams in each of the nationally-contested age divisions (under 14, under 16, under 18), for both boys and girls.

One of the teams to reach the final four in its respective age division is the Michigan Magic Wolves. They qualified for the national tournament, to be held July 28-29 in Fairfax, Va., by capturing the USYSA Region II title Tuesday in Kalamazoo.

The Magic Wolves, a 1974 boys' team coached by John Boots, edged the Dynamo

(from Columbus, Ohio) 2-1 in an overtime penalty-kick shootout. Two other teams, the '76 Livonia Wolves, a boys team coached by Paul Scicluna, and the Vardar '78 boys, coached by Morris Lupenec, collected regional crowns as well, but there is no national tournament for their age divisions. The Wolves blanked the Huber Heights (Ohio) Stingers, 4-0. Vardar toppled Busch of St. Louis, 2-0.

TWO OTHER area teams reached the fihals of the region, which covers 12 states and 13 districts: Michigan, Ohio north, Ohio south, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Kansas.

The Livonia Hawks '74 girls, coached by Tom Coyne, lost 1-0 to the Beechmont (Ohio) Blitz; the Birmingham Blazers, a '78 soccer girls squad coached by Roger Cummings, fell 4-0 to Wisconsin.

The Magic Wolves, 2-1 winners over Kansas in Monday's regional semifinal, were pushed to the limit before advancing. A goal in the 10th minute by Travis Roy put them ahead, and they clung to the lead throughout the match - almost. With just two minutes remaining, the Dynamo tied it to force

After a scoreless extra session, the two teams went to penalty kicks. Kerry Zavagnin, who assisted on Roy's goal, and Will Bothe hit their tries for the Magic Wolves, but misses on the next two penalty kicks left the two sides tied 2-2 after four.

STEVE SCHWARTZ connected to put the Magic Wolves ahead. Tim Webb stopped the Dynamo next effort, but the referee ruled the Magic Wolves' keeper had moved too soon. Webb, though, was up to the challenge, stopping the retake to preserve the victory.

The '76 Wolves' match wasn't nearly as foramatic. They led 3-0 at the half on two goals by Richie Walos and one by Shamus Rustin. Kenny Perlin got the fourth score in the second half. Alan Placek blanked all five Wolves' opponents in the tournament, including a 3-0 triumph over Missouri in the Ollie Curtis and Ryan Kyes connected in the first half to spark the '78 Vardar boys. They, too, recorded five-straight tournament shutouts, beating Kansas 2-0 in Monday's semis.

The '74 Hawks' girls, on the other hand, surrendered just one goal in the tourney, and it came early in the final match. They never regained the advantage, however. On Monday, the Hawks beat Kansas 5-0 in the

The '78 Blazers' girls were also 5.0 winners, over Middletown (Ohlo), in Monday's semis.

Wayne cage coach takes varsity post at Western

By Brad Emons and C.J. Risak staff writers

One district's loss will be another district's gain.

That is the belief of the two athletic directors involved in Chuck Henry's departure as Wayne Memorial's boys' basketball coach for the same job at Walled Lake Western.

Wayne is losing someone who will be, at the very least, difficult to replace. Western, on the other hand, is gaining a coach who will be counted on to turn a poor program around.

Henry's impressive credentials speak for themselves. In 13 years as a coach at Wayne and Dearborn Divine Child, he has compiled a 207-82 overall record and has guided his teams to three state district and six league championships.

Think Wayne HS is going to miss him? Consider what AD Bill Hawley pointed out: "He's had 19 wins or better for the last five years."

Now that's impressive, in a sport limited to 20 regular-season games.

WALLED LAKE school district AD Bob Atkins was, not surprisingly, extremely pleased to get someone with such proven ability to replace Dick Hobson, who guided Western to a 5-16 record last season and was 12-31 in his two seasons as coach.

"He's an outstanding coach and, more importantly, an outstanding person," said Atkins. "That's the key.

"He's a basketball person, very knowledgeable about the game. He's been a winner and winners know how to put a program together from the ground up, organization-wise. He has a very sound philosophy."

But, as important as philosophy and organization and motivational ability are, a team still needs talent to succeed. Henry will be hardpressed to come close to posting numbers similar to those he had at Wayne, ...

His leaving the Wayne-Westland school district was not an easy decision, according to both Hawley and his brother, Dan. Henry left on vacation last week after making his decision and could not be reached for comment.

who was Wayne's coach in the mid-70s and hired Henry as his assistant. But what it comes down to is you have to take care of your family. first. That's what's most important, even though I hate to see him go.

"He's one of the best coaches I've ever seen. There's no doubt about it; I would have no qualms recommending him for any coaching position in the country."

Henry, who served for 19 years in the Wayne-Westland school district, most recently as a physical education teacher at Adams Junior High (he also taught an advanced basketball class for one hour a day at Wayne), based his decision on factors outside the basketball arena, according to Hawley and his brother.

Because of the recent miliage failure, staff cutbacks and reassignments are necessary. Henry had reportedly lost his phys ed teaching position and was going to have to teach "TO WALK away from a program: junior high science, a subject he had

That was a very prominent reason (for his leaving), no doubt about it," said Hawley. Money, too, played a role; Henry would get a substantial raise for relocating at Western, where he will again be teaching phis

TRUE, HENRY'S reputation will precede him, and that could place him in a pressurized situation. But it would not have been any easier at Wayne, where — again because of the miliage failure - athletes and others involved in extracurricular activities will face a pay-to-play sit-

Hines Park battles back to top Duffy's

Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury outslugged Duffy's Plumbing 16-12 to defeat the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League leader 13-9 in a makeup game Monday night.

Winning pitcher Bill Bannon entered in the bottom of the second inning in relief of starter Dennis Szczechowski, who allowed eight hits and saw his team fall behind 8-4.

kits and one run over the last four innings of the six-inning game.

Szczechowski was a factor with the bat, however. He was 3-for-5 with a solo home run and three RBI. Bannon also had an impact, going 3for-4 with two RBI.

Dan Niemiec was another threehit player for Hines Park, and Mike Lulver's two hits included a two-run homer. Jeremy Krol had two hits, DUFFY'S LEADING bitters were Kaczmarek, Todd Fracassi and Matt Scalf with two each. Scalf drove in four runs with a pair of doubles, and Brent Haywood hit a two-run single.

David Jones was the losing pitcher, allowing six runs on eight hits in 2% innings.

On Sunday, Duffy's and Little Caesars split a double-header, Duffy's winning the first game 5-4 and Caesars the nightcap 17-13.

Siwajek's two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning enabled fy's, allowing seven runs on seven

baseball

Duffy's to win the first game. Eric Linck hit a three-run shot in the top half to give Caesars a 4-3 lead.

Fracassi and Steve Michelz But Bannon limited Duffy's to four chipped in RBI singles for the winners, and Paul Pirronello had tivo hits for Caesars.

Doug McGregor pitched 6% innings for the win despite mixing eight walks with six hits. Losing pitcher Jim Miller had a no-hitter through five innings but eventually gave up three. He also walked eight and struck out seven.

IN THE SECOND game, Caesars jumped to a 12-2 lead after two innings and outhit Duffy's 16-12. Gerald Davis hit a three-run homer for the Mike Siwajek with three and Mike winners, Joe Ransley a two-run shot and Adam Hazey a solo dinger.

Rich Roy led Caesars' attack with three hits, and Tom Hill, Linck and Bill Bertera added two apiece. Siwajek, Scalf, Kevin Adams and Michelz had two hits each for Duffy's. Fracassi had no hits but two RBI.

Omar Ahart got all but one out in the six-inning game dominated by the hitters. Mike Dallmonte got the final out with the bases loaded. Bill Wicker pitched one inning for Dufhits, and was the loser. Wendy's of Ann Arbor swept a Sunday double-header from visiting Tom Holzer Ford, 9-4 and 10-6. Stuart Hirshman had three hits (homer, double, single) and four RBI in the first game for Wendy's. Jim Izzo managed three hits for Holzer, John Frazzini two hits and two RBI.

Steve Hirshman went the distance on the mound for Wendy's. Steve Ross also pitched a complete game for Holzer.

EIGHT WALKS led to Holzer's undoing in the nightcap. Greg Hysell lasted only 11/3 innings, giving up seven runs despite only three hits.

Holzer started with five straight hits and four runs in the first inning but couldn't contain Wendy's. Rob Baumgartel, Brian Daniels and Brian Frellick had two hits aplece.

Walter's Home Appliance also made a complete sweep of Sunday's action, beating Total Travel Value 11-6 and 9-6.

Jerry Koester hit safely in three of four trips and had two RBI in the opener. Joe Sturtz, a holdover from the 1989 championship team and playing in his first game of the summer after recovering from surgery, and Jay Gabel had two hits and three RBI apiece. Jeff Pendell and David Houghtby chipped in two hits and one RBI each.

Anthony Chandler surrendered all nine of Total Travel's hits but ter's 8-2.

pitched 4% innings for the win. Chad Wrona struck out six of the eight batters he faced in relief.

Jason Hicks pitched 2% innings, gave up nine runs on nine hits and suffered the loss.

In the second game, John Gotts drove in three runs with two hits for Walter's. Total Travel rallied with a four-run sixth but merely dented Walter's 9-2 lead.

DAMIAN HALL also had two hits for the winners. Steve Pollock's three-run double was the big blow for Total Travel in the sixth. Dave Schmaltz had two hits and two RBI, and Chris Schmid also hit safely on two occasions.

Steve Owens pitched 5% innings to become the winner. He was nicked for eight hits but struck out six while walking only two. Craig Murray, working the first 2% innings, got tagged with the loss. In a Saturday makeup game, Hines Park bombed Walter's 11-1 as Krol pitched a two-hitter, which included five strikeouts and one walk. Culver had two hits and two RBI, and Niemiec doubled home a run.

Gene Boyce went 21/2 innings, allowed five runs and was saddled with the loss. Koester had an RBI single for Walter's. -

On Friday, Duffy's defeated Hines Park 6-4, Walter's blanked Holzer Ford 10-0 and Wendy's dumped Wal-

Redford MVP leads team to title

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Much earlier in his softball career, Bill Nawbert was forced by necessity to become a pitcher.

On Sunday, as on many previous occasions, that fortuitous move meant the 26-year veteran of slopitch — the last 18 spent in the center of the infield — was in the right position. valuable player of the 21st Annual Farmington-Farmington Hills Founders Festival Softball Tournament after leading JN Little/Shot's Tavern to an 11-7 victory over JW's Saloon in the championship game.

"I started in left field, but I burned my arm out and had to find a position where I didn't have to throw hard," Nawbert said. "When I'm warming up, people think I have a drop ball, but it's just lack of velocity.

While Nawbert poked fun at his ability, teammates Jim Little, the team co-sponsor and owner of JN Little, and Ron Leonetti were more certain . things," said Nawbert, reférring to his frequent about Nawbert's contribution to the team's suc-

"JW WAS loaded," Little said. "Individually, they had some great ballplayers, but pitching was able to keep them under control. That was the key to that game. The MVP went to the right guy."

Billy Nawbert, a 42-year-old guy who plays with such heart, is an inspiration to all of us," Leonetti said.

Leonetti also was a major contributor. Playing second base, he batted in the leadoff spot, went 3for-4 with a team-high three RBI and scored a run in the final. His two-run single in the second inning helped propel Little/Shot's into a 7-0 lead over its favored opponent.

"We weren't concerned about (statistics)," Leonetti said. "The theme here is everybody contributes. If you didn't get a hit, you made a play in the field."

JW's Saloon had a potent lineup that featured former Redford Catholic Central, Michigan State and Detroit Drive offensive lineman Jeff Wiska, fellow power hitter Don Fradette, Farmington High School baseball coach Kevin Kansman and Mark MacDonald, coach of the Livonia Clarenceville baseball team and veteran of many a softball tournament.

But JW's had lost its first game Saturday morning to Bud Light and had to fight through the losers' bracket, needing to beat Little/Shot's twice to win the title. After falling behind by sev-Nawbert, from Redford, was named the most -- en runs, JW's faced an uphill-struggle that eventually ruled out even one victory.

"WE HAD to play a perfect game to beat them," said Nawbert, who plays with Little/Shot's in the regular Farmington rec league. "I think they had the better people. I've played 26 years; I think I know.

"The reason we won is we played as a team. Good chemistry. No stars, just good people."

And Nawbert was at the center of that team effort, both as the pitcher and as an emotional "I happen to be in the position to do spectacular stabs at line drives, often with his bare hand. For that reason, the thumb on Nawbert's right hand was too swolen and too sore for him to accept his teammates' congratulations with the traditional hand shake afterward. "I've got to do those things to contribute," he said. "I'd have to stand on second base and hit it one-hop to the fence. I'm just a singles hitter. 'Good teams come up the middle," he added. "I get (the MVP awards - the seventh of his career)

for cheering, pumping people up and giving 110 percent. I get a lot of it on sentiment." NAWBERT ALSO was named to the all-tournament team along with teammates Joe Ranusch, Leonetti, Shawn Shannon and Mike Nikitin. Other selections were Paul Welch and Mike McNamara of Bud Light, Frank Vellucci of Vellucci's and Wiska and MacDonald of JW's Saloon. JN Little/Shot's won its first three games 7-3 over E.C.I, 11-4 over Balloon Saloon and 6-3 over

Petersen Glass, but it was a 17-7 defeat of (Page's) Pub that gave the team a boost in confidence, according to Nawbert.

JN Little/Shot's rallied from a 4-0 deficit to lead 7-4 and, after Page's had tied 7-7, took another three-run lead that it expanded. Little/Shot's then beat Bud Light 10-3 to move into the championship round.

"I think that's when people started sensing it," Nawbert said. "We started to come together. Everybody-started to believe we could win."

JN Little/Shot's jumped in front 4-0 in the first inning on run-scoring doubles by Ranusch, Tony Antal, Jack Aronson and Rick French. Ted Ackerman's RBI double and Leonetti's two-RBI single made it 7-0 in the second.

But JW's pulled within one during a six-run, sixhit fourth inning. Tom Bagnasco, MacDonald and Greg Gorski had consecutive RBI singles to round out the rally.

Leonetti's RBI single in the bottom of the fourth gave Little/Shot's a two-run cushion, and a three-run fifth all but cemented the victory. Following a leadoff single by Antal, Aronson and Nikitin had back-to-back RBI triples and French drove in the last run with a base hit.

FRENCH WAS 3-for-3, and Antal, Aronson Nikitin, Milo Karhu and Shannon had two hits apiece for the winners. MacDonald was 3-for-3 for JW's, and Kansman drove in his team's seventh run with a ground-ruled double in the seventh in-

"I've been in this tournament 12-14 years, and it's certainly a highlight this year to win," Kramer said. "We've been in more competitive tournaments but never one that was more fun." Little and Leonetti echoed those thoughts.

"I've been on teams that won the World Series at Softball City but never the Founders," Leonetti said. "This is the greatest because it's the hometown tournament. All the guys who grew up here look forward to playing in this tournament."

"Like Bill said, it was chemistry," Little said. "We don't have any superstars. We have a great bunch of guys who play well together."

Top pros to appear

Monacelli, two of the top stars in professional bowling will be in the area for personal appearances Saturday, Aug. 18, at Oak Lanes in Westland.

The event is the grand re-opening of the newly expanded and remodeled bowling center. The center has expanded from the original 34 lanes to 50 and has incorporated. the new Brunskwick System 2000; the ultimate in pinsetting equip-

Roth, the all-time, leading money winner on the pro tour, has long been established as one of the alltime great professionals.

Monacelli, a young pro from Venezuela, was selected as the Pro Bowler of the Year last season and is regarded as one of the top competitors on the pro circuit.

Their appearances will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 8-11 p.m. Roth and Monacelli will be signing autographs and answering bowling questions.

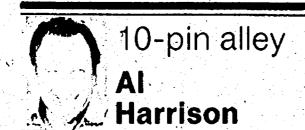

On the same day, youth registration for fall leagues at Oak Lanes will be held. Come register the kids and spend time with some of the sports finest performers.

• Tony Camerella of Westland has some bragging rights with his bowling, thanks to a high mark of 298 rolled back in 1982. Earlier this month, Camerella went one step better when he recorded a hole-in-one on the 142-yard fourth hole at Independence Green Golf Course in Farmington Hills.

Camerella used a six iron, and perhaps now will be able to register that elusive 300 game next season in the Bel Aire Senior House League in Farmington.

Great Lakes champs aim to add playoff crown, too

By C.J. Risak staff writer

There are several reasons Paragon Productions should be considered the favorite to win the Clarke Cup, presented to the Great Lakes Men's Soccer League playoff champion, according to Paragon coach Dan Duggan.

"If I was a betting man, I'd say we'd win the league," said Duggan. His reasoning? "We're deeper than o(other teams) are."

Paragon's depth, which accounts for its "several reasons" to be favored, made it the regular-season champ. In the Great Lakes playoffs, there's no roster limit and substitution is open. The Michigan Cup tournament, on the other hand, limits teams to 15-player rosters, and in the National Amateur Cup tournament only two substitutions are allowed per match.

"We'll run five guys in and out of the lineup every 15 minutes," said Duggan, defining his strategy.

The Great Lakes playoffs start Sunday at three sites: Livonia's Bicentennial Park (two fields), Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn and Flint Atwood Stadium. There will be four matches in Livonia (two at 4 p.m., two at 6 p.m.) and two more at the other sites (4 and 6

EACH OF the four fields will host a Division I and Division II match. Paragon is slated to host the Ann Arbor Hattricks at 6 p.m. at Bicentennial. The other three Division I matches were not set; they would be determined after Wednesday's make-up between the Redford Marauders and Livonia Wolves.

If the Marauders, the defending Clarke Cup champions currently in fourth place, defeat the Wolves, they would play the Def Koreans, Brothers United would meet the secondplace Birmingham Cobras, and third-place Bud Light would go against the Wolves.

'The eight playoff teams in the second division were decided, but the match-ups were not. The Birmingham Cobras II had clinched first, with the Corinthians second. Livonia Venom and Ann Arbor City Grill were tied for third, with the Venom playing the Homenetmen Wednesday. Other second division playoff teams were the Rochester Rebels, Phase I, Homenetmen and the Rangers. . . .

THE GREAT LAKES semifinals were originally slated for July 29, but the start of the Michigan Cup Tournament begins on that date andruns through the last Sunday of October, with games scheduled on the final Sunday of each month.

So the Great Lakes has rescheduled its semifinal matches for Wednesday, Aug. 1. The Clarke Cup final will be Sunday, Aug. 5.

Although Duggan is confident of his team's chances, he knows potential upsets abound. The Marauders made a lengthy run in the National Amateur Cup Tournament earlier this summer (which, because they were forced to reschedule several matches, affected their Great Lakes season) and are dangerous.

So is Bud Light, which tied Paragon 0.0 during the season. "They're technicians," said Duggan of Bud Light. "They all played together at Michigan State, and they all play the same game."

The second-place Cobras could challenge as well. For that matter, Paragon's opening-round opponent, the Hattricks, could be troublesome. Paragon, 6-0-3 for the season, tied the Hattricks in their season opener.

Wins push Wolves to top

The Wolverines won two Metro Summer Hockey League games at the start of the week to jump from third place in the Eagle Conference standings to first.

Replacing the Huskies as the division leader, the Wolverines thumped the Wildcats 9-2 on Sunday and the Spartans 11-2 on Monday to improve their record to 3-2-2.

That gave the Wolverines a halfgame lead over the Huskies, who lost their grip on first place with a 9-6: loss to the Lakers and stand 3-2-1.

The Bulldogs, meanwhile, continue as the only unbeaten team, leading the Bakes Conference with a 5-0-1 mark following an 8-3 win over the Falcons on Sunday.

The Lakers, with their defeat of the Huskles and an 8.3 victory in their game Monday with the Broncos, stepped up from third to second place in the Bakes at 4-1-2.

Following are summaries of three MSHL games played Sunday and two Monday:

• DITTMAR REELECTED

Art Dittmar of Farmington Hills was reelected as a statewide vice president of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) at the association's 53rd annual convention held recently in Grayling. Dittmar joins John Sherk of Jackson and William Habich of Onekama as the three active statewide vice presidents.

Robert "Bud" Slingerlend, of Atlanta, was elected as the 30th president of MUCC. He succeeds Grand Rapids resident Wendle Biggs, who served two one-year terms as MUCC president.

MUCC is the largest state federation of conservation and outdoor recreation organizations in America. It is dedicated to furthering the cause of the environment and conservation and to promoting programs designed to educate citizens in natural resource conservation and environmental protection and enhancement.

SNAGGING BAN

Salmon snagging will be banned, beginning this fall, on the portion of the Muskegon River that flows through Newaygo County under legislation recently signed by Michigan Governor James Blanc-

The legislation, introduced by representatives Donald Van Singel (R-Grant) and Marvin "Mickey" Knight (R-Muskegon), amends the Michigan Sportfishing Act and was supported by the Department of Natural Resources and a number of sport fishing and conservation

"The measure will facilitate long-range fisheries management plans designed to enhance fishing opportunities on the Muskegon River," DNR director David Hales said. "We hope this river will become an increased year-round attraction to anglers. The Muskegon River is widely acknowledged to be an important state salmon spawning stream, particularly that area upstream near Croton Dam. In recent years, however, annual autumn spawning runs have experienced a decline. By eliminating the practice of snagging, state fisheries managers hope to boister future runs. Fishing for resident brown and rainbow trout should improve under the new snagging ban and the river's increasing walleye popula-tion will be better protected. Habitat damage and littering are expected to decrease in the area as

OSPREY AID

A number of Michigan's endangered osprey, the second largest birds of prey in the state, are benefiting from a joint effort between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Coast Guard.

On the St. Mary's River, between Sault Ste Marie and DeTour, nesting pair of osprey have adopted several aid-to-navigation towers as convenient and safe platforms for building their large, stick nests. The nests partially cover the beacons and the solar panels that power them, creating a potential safety problem for ships that use the beacons for navigating the Great Lakes shipping channel.

This past winter, while the osprey were on their wintering grounds in Central America, the Coast Guard installed brackets and a large metal platform, shaped like a flat umbrella, four feet above the beacon on four of the towers. Osprey returning this spring built nests on two of the special plat-

Saxhorns serve up rock 'n roll of 1860s

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

HE DODWORTH Saxhorn Reserve Band plays hit tunes - tunes like "Slumber Polka,". "Water Witch Quick Step," "Helter Skelter Galop" and the "Wedding Schottishe." Hit tunes of the 1860s, that is.

"This was the rock and roll of the 1860s," said Alexander Pollock, founder of the 5-year-old, Plymouthbased Victorian band. "The waltzes we play were the dirty dancing of the 1880s."

The 12-member reserve band performs in a variety of settings: Victorian balls, historic home tours, Civil War dedications, political rallies and

It will perform in concert in the gazebo at Southfield's Historic Village, Civic Center Drive and Berg Road, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug.

For this summer concert, members will wear shirts typical of the Victorian times, not their usual wool uniforms from the Detroit Street Railway Band, which are too hot for a summer evening.

If the band's music was considered vulgar in the late 19th century and the dances risque, the instruments the band uses were thought to be "brassy."

of the 19th century and made between 1843 and the 1880s. Pollock owns 43 of these horns, which have been restored by the band's piccolo in D player, Tim Holmes, who does instrument restoration for Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn.

"These instruments were not used in orchestras because their sound was considered too 'brassy' at that time," said Pollock, "By today's standard, the sound is quite muted

POLLOCK THEORIZES that littoday's pop tunes, the pieces only last 2-3 minutes.

"Compared to high-brow European classical music, this was the American rubbish - the frontier music," said Pollock. "I think the music symbolizes the way we do things in America — quickly. We want immediate success."

One reason the instruments were not accepted in orchestras was the change in brass instrument design in the 1880s. These instruments are conical instruments fashioned with the diameter of the instrument increasing in size from the mouthpiece to the bell, which faced behind the They did not produce the large volume of sound for the orchestra. Today's cylinder instruments have one diameter from the lead pipe to the bell and have a mouthpiece that the players can use without tiring.

pieces but the band members found that we couldn't get the same sound quality with the modern mouthpieces. So everyone voted to use original'pleces.

BECAUSE THE instruments were made by different U.S. manufacturers, they are pitched differently, not at the standard pitch of 440. The band members have found that if The band uses original American, they tune to 457, it seems to be a made saxhorns popular in the middle mmon denominator for all the inthey tune to 457, it seems to be a struments.

The music the band uses is often copies of handwritten manuscript, very difficult to read. The music comes from several sources: the Smithsonian, the Library of Congress and two private dealers, Mark Elrod of Maryland and Paul Mayberry, a musician who transcribes music of this vintage.

The pieces may be popular and short and the instruments may be brassy, but that does not mean the music is easy. The musicians of the times practiced diligently and their tle has changed in American musical tastes in the last 100 years. The music this band plays is melodic, upbeat, toe-tapping and short. Like lic wanted showy numbers played in brilliant virtuoso style.

"We don't play 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home," said Pollock. "We try to concentrate on the other music of the era, entertainment pieces that were performed in the gazebos."

EVEN THOUGH the band doesn't perform the military music of the Civil War, the instruments came from the Civil War time. About 50,000 such instruments were made in America. Few are left, the metal being used in World War I or for other uses.

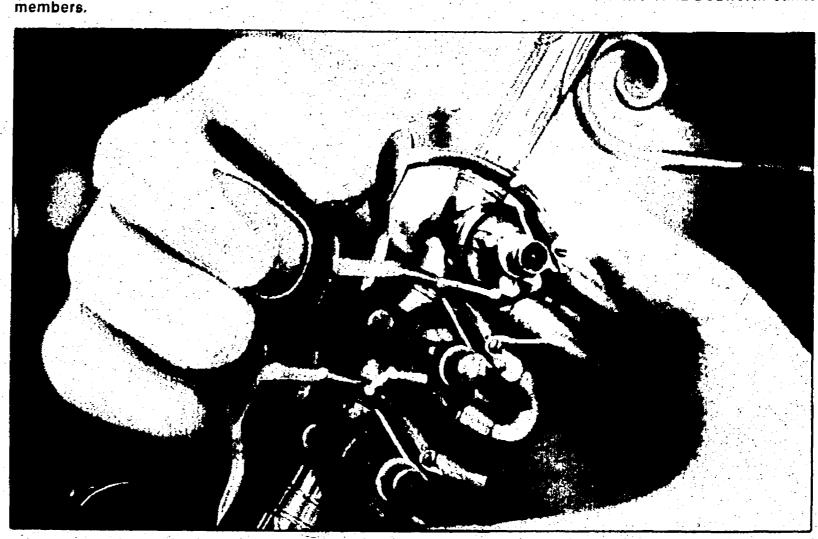

In the Civil War, each regiment players, not toward the audience. had 20 companies. Each company was expected to provide two musicians, making a band of 24. Detroit Light Guard Band of 1862 was a regiment band, 24 musicians all playing

DIA figures up for films, kids, shows

Attendance results show a successful year for two Detroit Institute of Arts programs, the Detroit Film Theatre (DFT) and and the Detroit Youtheatre. Final attendance results released by DFT show that attendance increased by 19 per cent last year, the program's 17th year at the museum. Close to 126,000 patrons came to see such films as "Camille Claudel," "Henry V" and Oscar nominee "My Left Foot".

During the past season, the DFT offered foreign, classic and present day films. It's season opener, "sex, lies and videotape," brought 22,000 people to the theater and broke previous DFT attendance figures. Other films shown included "The Little Thief," "Story of Women" and "Weapons in the Spirit." The DFT is currently taking a summer break and will resume in mid-August.

Mickey Miners, Detroit Youtheater founder and curator, reports that the Youtheater celebrated its 25th year this past year, presenting theatrical productions for more than 468,300 people. The program began its season with a musical production of "The Wizard of Oz" presented by its resident company, the Prince Street Players. Next year, the company will present "The Emperor's New Clothes" and will take it on a tour to Japan.

Cranbrook offers 3 movies for kids

This summer the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills will present three films especially for kids.

These are "Where the Wild Things Are," "Don't Eat the Pictures: Sesame Street at the Metropolitan Museum of Art" and "Where the Forest Meets the Sea."

The two-hour program may be viewed at 2 p.m. through Aug. 1 and Aug. 14 through Sept. 2, in DeSalle Auditorium, during museum hours. The films are free with museum admission.

"Where the Wild Things Are" is the collaboration of composer Oliver Knussen with author and designer Maurice Sendak.

"Don't Eat the Pictures" follows the adventures of Bird Bird, Snuffy, Cookie Monster and the rest of the Sesame Street gang as they find themselves accidentally locked in the museum.

ers almost all of the Motown favorites by taking on the personas of the era's great recording stars. Smokey Robinson, Marvin Gaye, Tammy Tyrell, the Temptations, the Supremes and many more go through sets of their greatest hits.

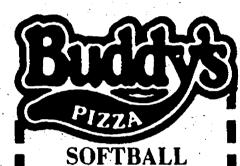

All cast members sing well, and the taped background music blends nicely with the human voices, with a few exceptions. But the real treats here are the dancing and the boundless energy exhibited by the cast.

Those of us who grew up listening to Motown records without experiencing a live show got only the tip of the Motown iceberg.

Choreographer Jay Johnson's dance numbers sizzle with an energy and precision that you are not likely to see matched on any Detroit stage this year.

The show-stopper of the evening is a frenetic audience-participation number called "The Bird Song," as performed by Morris Day and the Time. Rick Ingram as Morris Day is joined by Johnson and back-up singers Earl Vinson and Larry Johnson in a hilarious and musically exotic performance.

MY OTHER personal favorite was a tribute to the Jackson Five, featuring 14-year-old Myron Tate as Michael. With silver lame jumpsuits and oversized Afro-wigs, the boys Applause also goes to the show's costumers, whose outfits range from super-sophisticated formal wear to :: get-ups wild enough to get you arrested in most states.

The show's climax begins as a tribute to the Temptations and the Four Tops and builds to a crescendo featuring the Supremes and Gladys 347 Knight as well. In tune Violinist volunteers as a mentor

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

F YOU ask Livonia violinist Linda Ignagni why she gives so much of her time to benefit young violinists, she will tell you she wants to give back a little of the help given to her as a young student.

"When I was 9 years old, my parents were opposed to my studying

"I credit my first instructor, Lester Farkas, with making my violinstudies possible," she said during an interview in her Livonia home.

"When he learned that my parents would not give me money to rent a violin from the Livonia Public Schools, he let me use his violin while in class."

Before attending Wayne State University on a full scholarship in music performance, her instructor, Jack Boesen, who was with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, gave her a violin that he put together.

"After such positive experiences, I decided one day when I was able, I would return the help which I had received."

FOR THE last four years, Ignagni has served on the board of directors for the American Youth Symphony Orchestra.

During the last half of the season, she volunteered many hours to conduct the American Youth String Orchestra.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Linda Ignagni learned to play the violin in Livonia Public Schools.

Close in her heart and related to her volunteer work is the Doree String Quartet.

In 1982, Ignagni assembled the quartet, which consists of herself, another violinist, a violist and a cellist. The quartet performs for private gatherings, public recitals, festivals, churches and wedding ceremonies.

MOST RECENTLY, the quartet volunteered to perform on behalf of the American Youth String Orchestra, during the second half of a concert by the orchestra.

The quartet also donates its time to present original chamber music programs to young students at lo-

Art display at city hall is worth checking out

IT MAY not rival the quality of the work on display at the DIA or Cranbrook.

But no matter.

That doesn't make the art on display in the lobby of the Livonia City Hall any less fulfilling for either the artist or the viewer.

For the art aficionado, the monthlong displays provide a creative respite to the typically routine business conducted at city hall.

For folks less than avid about the world of artistry, I'd suggest they seriously consider the wise words of Livonia arts commissioner Dorothy Wilshaw:

"If people who have no interest in art come to city hall and take the time to look at what's displayed, they might develop an interest. And if they do, that's great. Art is such a big part of our culture."

The latest exhibit includes 17 paintings by Karyn Butler De Alvarado of Livonia.

The artist's first eight paintings, of Guatemalan women weaving colored threads, are, in her words, "silken experiences of the rural farm in the mountains, of mystery and magic, of the cult of the Virgin and of Third World poverty and rich-

IN THE artist's statement accompanying her oils on canvas and oils on paper, De Alvarado writes: "Painting flows from life - from landscape, from portraiture, from still life, from experiences. Images weave and blend with the act of putting paint on canvas, into expressions of profound experiences."

In a particularly insightful passage, she adds: "Myth, ritual, magic serve to ground these experiences to that which is the ground of all and s gives everything its expressions."

Preference is given to Livonia residents but artists from nearby communities also have been shown at city hall. Lack of display cases limits exhibits to art that can be hung: paintings, stencils, photographs.

But that limit might soon be sidestepped. The Livonia Arts Commise sion, which oversees city hall exhibits, hopes to spread the wealth and soon display such custom creations as pottery and jewelry at the Livonia Public Library.

MEANWHILE, ARTISTS interested in displaying their wares in the city hall lobby should call the Livonia Community Resources Department: 421-2000, ext. 221.

Leave your name and number. Wilshaw will call you back and arrange to screen your work.

"Basically, I keep out anything that's not in good taste," she says. "I don't judge artistic quality but there are certain minimum standards that must be met."

Wilshaw is an art lover, not an artist in her own right. She and husband Ron became hooked almost by fate while coming upon an art show in the Livonia Mall more than 20 years

That hook soon extended to art galleries and juried art shows. Favorites in the Wilshaw home are wildlife paintings and photographs, and birds in china, glass and pewter.

As community art displays are extended to both the city hall and the library, I urge Wilshaw to pursue her dream of exhibits that reflect the ethnic diversity of Livonia and its neighbors.

Bob Sklar is the O&E's assistant managing editor for special projects.

TISTOLIC LIOUSE reflects couple's artistic passion

Getting 'more deeply in touch,' 2E

By Janice Brunson staff writer

VISIT to the Farmington Hills home of noted artist David McCall Johnston and his wife, Ruth, is a journey into yesteryear, a trek to a masterplece of historical accuracy and architectural integrity:

The house, built in 1843 by Cornelius Davis and later the site of Gravlin's Drive-In at Northwestern Highway and 13 Mile, was salvaged by the Johnstons, who bought the decrepit dwelling in 1985 for the princely sum of $500.

Once forgotten and certainly scheduled for destruction, the home, since moved, is now perfectly restored to its original Greek Revival style at a cost substantially more than the purchase price. A year ago, it was listed in the State Register of Historic Sites:

"Literally, we saved this house," David said. "Its present presentation is a good part of who we are." His former home, also historic, was a converted post office in Franklin vil-"It goes beyond being just a pos-

THE MAILBOX at the front of the property, painted early red, is the first hint there is something special beyond the stand of wild growth.

Artist's goal: 'to get more deeply in touch'

By Janice Brunson staff writer

David McCall Johnston's paintings reflect a rebirth rooted a decade ago in a new marriage, a new child and a deepening self-awareness.

"It's trying to get more deeply in-touch," he said, "a new beginning" that combines the old and the new.

The result is a matured expression springing from an original love of graphic design and now translated into Americana pieces of strong color fantasy in muted shades. He works in ink and gouache or opaque watercolor.

"Jordan On The Carousel" is purely Americana, a true whimsical reflection of the spirit of America. Johnston's son, Jordan, now 8, Johnston's Americana is colorful and graphic, strongly influenced by folk art. It is, he said, a natural outgrowth of training in design. He is a graduate of the Art Center College of Design in California,

Much of Johnston's work hangs in his home, period pieces that embellish the 19th-century farm house. He also produces unusual Americana portraits that, in a single work, tell much of a family's history.

The portrait was commissioned by Judy and Walter Breyer of Birmingham, portraits of the couple in their natural setting.

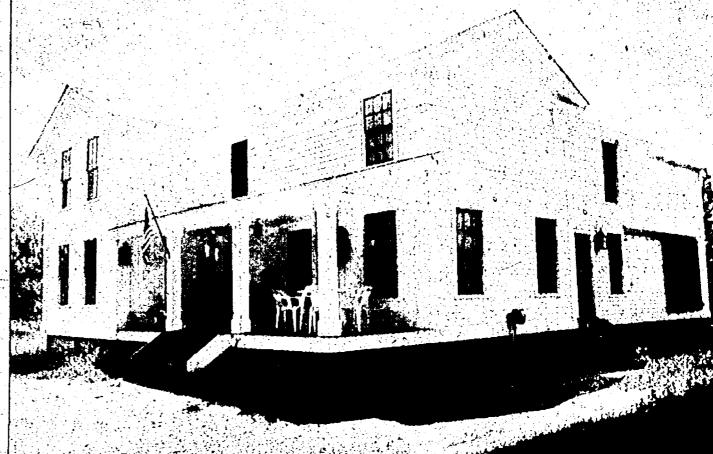

Johnston's fantasy, complex line works that include finely executed pattern and texture, transports one to another world, Johnston said. Colors are more muted as a result of detailed lining.

Fantasy is most often used in children's book illustrations for Harper and Row, MacMillian and other publishers. Johnston has also completed commissions for Steuben Glass, His work has adorned covers of such magazines as "Heritage" and "Country Home." Four of his works hang in the Jules Verne Museum in Nates. France.

His work is carried in 62 galleries across the country, including Knollwood Art Frames & Gallery in Birmingham. Prices range from $2,000 to $20,000.

The Ritz Carlton Hotel in Dearborn will exhibit Johnston's paintings Sept. 25 to Oct. 20.

U-M panel debates censorship of art

By Jill Hamilton special writer

What exactly is obscene? Who, for that matter, should answer this question? Are blasphemous works of art protected by the First Amendment? How about homoerotic works? Or racist art? Or sexist art?

By refusing to fund so-called objectionable art, is the U.S. government censoring it? In other words, is censorship the same thing as refusal to support?

These are the questions that a conference at the University of Michlgan Museum of Art called "Censorship, Obscenity and Funding of the Arts" set out to answer Saturday. And the verdict was . . . there are no easy answers to these questions.

It was not for lack of trying or intelligence that the forum, hosted by the U-M Museum of Art in conjunction with the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair this week, failed to provide any solutions.

A three-person panel was moderated by Elizabeth Douvan, University of Michigan professor of psychology and women's studies.

The two featured speakers were Lee Bollinger, U-M Law School dean, and William Hennessey, U-M Museum of Art director.

THE AUDIENCE of about 100 seemed to have set ideas on the issue at hand when they arrived at the two-hour forum.

"I think it's a very important issue in the country at this time," said Beverly Galtner, an educational administration professor at Oakland University, Rochester Hills. "Serious forces have been unleashed that are dangerous to the country. I want to make my support known."

What brought Galtner to the con-

"The purity of National Endowment for the Arts funding," she said.

'It's our job to open ourselves up to their work and to listen to what they (artists) say.'

> - William Hennessey ... art museum director

"It reminds me, quite frankly, of totalitarian countries. My oath to this country is to defend the Constitution - not Jesse Helms' oath."

Her husband, Gerson Galtner, a Troy businessman, agreed. "The things that they want to censor are the things they censor in Germany - in most totalitarian countries. They (the NEA) are in perfect agreement with the old-style Commu-

Galtner finds it ironic that people are concerned with monitoring the arts while violent TV shows escape such scrutiny, "You can kill another person but not make love to them," he said with disbelief.

A spokeswoman for the NEA in Washington said Monday the NEA has a multi-tiered review process involving both a council and a panel. "It's a review by peers," she said, The panel changes every year.

"And that's about all I can say."

A LARGE part of the audience

Sunday was composed of folks 50 or older. "There is no limit when you start censoring," said an older woman to her friend in the audience.

That seemed to be the prevailing belief of the audience; no one actually stated their views aloud. It was all very fair and polite - each person would argue a position, then offer a counterargument.

Hennessey got closest to stating a position in his closing remarks:

"Art is not to make us feel good. It's not a visual hot tub. And we have to remember that not all visitors to museums are thin, white, male, heterosexual Christians.

"Artists today are pushing the limits harder and farther than ever before. It's our job to open ourselves up to their work and to listen to what they say."

The issue, which had seemed clear at the beginning of the conference, grew clouded as the day wore on. Where should we draw the line on what should be funded by the government? If nudity is OK, is child pornography all right also? Should anti-Semitic, racist or sexist works be funded? Hard questions all. A POSSIBLE solution came from a young woman who waited until the end of the conference to speak. She suggested that art be classified as

"celebratory" or "condemnatory." A Mapplethorpe showing homoerotic activity, for example, would be celebratory because it upholds a way of life or thought.

A racist piece of work, on the other hand, would be condemnatory because it tries to criticize another way of life or thought, thereby depriving the victim group of its

ON STAGE

Matthew Cahill of Garden City will perform in Henry Ford Community College's production of "The Servant of Two Masters," a 16th century slapestick comedy by Carlo Goldoni, Aug. 9-12 on the Dearborn campus.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

The Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane invites the public to join in a celebration commemorating the 127th birthday of auto pioneer Henry Ford I Mon-Zday, July 30.

Visitors will receive a reduced admission price of $1 on tours and a complimentary slice of birthday cake. The regular $6 per person charge for tours of the mansion and powerhouse will be reduced to $1 for this celebration only.

Construction on the Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane, Michigan's only National Historic Landmark chome open to the public, was completed in 1915. It served as home to Ford and his wife, Clara, for 30 years. It reflects their simple tastes and orientation to nature. 🏻

The powerhouse, used as a model for Ford's mill sites throughout Michigan, made the estate self-sufficient with its independent source of heat, electric service and water.

Guided tours of the mansion and powerhouse will be available at 10 and 11 a.m. and 1, 2 and 3 p.m. on July 30. Slices of a birthday cake bake especially for the occasion will be offered to visitors at each

The estate is on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, Evergreen, between Ford Road and Michigan Ave. Call 593-5590.

Special tours of the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum grounds and outdoor sculpture will be given at 1 p.m. on Sundays, July 22, 29, Aug. 12, 19, 26. The tours will be free with the admission price to the museum.

companying photograph. While on the patio, I looked up to see the interesting design of shapes and tones in the opened umbrella.

One of the best ways to see pattern and design is to use a viewing mask. A "window" cut from a piece of eardboard will do just fine.

Your viewing mask will isolate pattern and design from distracting surroundings. You'll find yourself zooming in on meaningful subjects you never knew were there.

Remember, the aim of creative photography is to make a visual interpretation of something that moves you, not just to record an image. With design and pattern, you can do just that.

their individual capabilities. Then they give a performance of chamber music.

"Without these programs, many students would not be exposed to the beauty of stringed instruments," sald Ignagni, who is married and the mother of two teenage sons.

OVER THE past 20 years, Ignagni has accumulated quite a Tengthy list of orchestras with whom she has performed.

They include the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, the Saginaw Symphony Orchestra, the Meadow Brook Music Festival Orchestra and the Nashville Players.

"I enjoy the challenge and experience of working under different conductors. I believe this strengthens my playing skills and also my adaptability."

FLOODED OUT-Splashing through flooded streets is not in the best interest of any automobile. Avoid such streets, if possible, but if you must drive through them, do so slowly, with patience and

Save Your Fun On Water For Ride In Boat

Cars were not intended to be water-borne vehicles, and perhaps leave you stranded. encounters with flooded streets can only increase the chance of a car malfunction.

During the rainy season, avoid standing water at intersections or elsewhere if possible, particularly if it is above the bottom of the wheel rims. However, if you have no alternative but to drive through, here are some tips to help you safely navigate these water hazards:

Drive through the water very slowly. Rapid movement might cause the water to 'swamp' or stall the engine, and

If you do stall as you cross a deep puddle, try to coast toward the side of the road and wait for the engine to dry out before trying to start it. Wiping off the spark plugs, wires, and other parts of the ignition system with a dry cloth can help you get moving faster. Remember that the car's brakes may be affected by driving through standing water, and you should check their stopping ability before an emergency demands their

Getting away from it all within your home

Marilyn Fitchett editor/591-2300

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Call it what you will — a library, a den, a study, a "personal space room," whatever, but specialization in the home is pushing builders to include extra rooms beyond the traditional family, dining and liying rooms. While still a fairly exclusive amenity found in luxury homes, the extra room is becoming a popular addition and may be the new status symbol for keeping up with the Jonses.

Upstairs and downstairs libraries, dens off master suites, studies, home offices — the extra room attracts a lot of buyers, according to sales manager Linda Friedman of Harbor Oaks Development in Walled Lake.

How to select the quality lot

(AP) — Selecting a quiet site is the least expensive way to diminish the din, but not all sites are as peaceful as they look.

Evaluating the noise environment before signing on the dotted line may save lots of headaches later, Home Plan Ideas magazine

The location of the lot and the topography of the land can affect the amount of noise a family will have to live with.

Overall topography of a site has a dramatic effect on noise. A location upwind from a source of noise, such as a neighborhood ball diamond, will be quieter.

THOSE BUILDING downwind should plant a windbreak between the house and the noise. A tight evergreen or deciduous hedge will provide noise protection as far downwind as 20 times its height. If space is limited, use fences or columnar-shaped shrubs as noise buffers and privacy screens.

ings can reflect unwanted sounds onto an urban site. The noisiest places will be on traffic arteries set between tall buildings. On the other hand, skyscrapers can perform a service if they are between a house and a source of noise. Greenbelts or trees also create pockets of quiet.

Families considering a site within two miles of a major airport should get a map and check with airport officials on normal flight paths. The noislest area will be a three-mile-wide swath of land directly under these paths for 15 miles on either side of the airport.

PEOPLE WHO are serious about a building site should take the time to visit it several times during the day.

Sometimes an area that is quiet at midday can become noisy in the evening or early in the morning. A building site near a school playground is apt to be noisy several times during the day.

commit $2.5 million to cover loan losses not covered by private mortgage insurance.

Specifically, the program reduces to 5 percent the down payment required on a new or used house, lowers income levels needed to qualify for a mortgage and eases credit requirements.

And the program is not limited to first time house buyers, according to MSHDA spokeswoman Ann Harrison.

THE LOANS will be 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages at interest rates negotiated with lenders. Commercial banks, savings & loan associations, eligible if they are a Freddie Mac approved seller. Currently there are 161 lenders in the state that are so approved, and that number could rise, Harrison made available to the public in the fall.

"Any program that helps people get into proper-ty is a plus," said Lynn Egbert, spokesman for the Michigan Association of Home Builders in Lansing. "This is a program of encouragement."

The average sales price of houses in western Wavne and Oakland counties (new and used housing combined) was $95,157 for the first half of 1990, according to the Michigan Association of Realtors.

THE BUILDERS Association of Southeastern Michigan puts the average cost of new house conand mortgage companies throughout Michigan are struction at $114,000 in the seven-county region including Wayne and Oakland counties.

That figure is higher in southern Oakland and western Wayne counties, although an average was unavailable, said Peter Logan, BASM spokesman.

(AP) - Here is some advice from the "Guide to Hazardous Products Around the Home."

Before you buy a product: • Read the label. Make sure it is the product you want to buy and that you're comfortable with the ingredients.

 Buy the least hazardous product. Let the signal words serve as a guide. With pesticides, "DANGER" means highly toxic, "WARNING" means moderately toxic, and "CAUTION" means slightly toxic.

• With household products, "POISON" means highly toxic, "DANGER" means extremely. flammable or corrosive or highly toxic, "WARNING" or "CAU-TION" means less toxic.

Buying products labeled "nontoxic" may be a way of identifying a safer product; however, be aware that the word non-toxic is an advertising word and has no federal regulatory definition.

• Avoid aerosol products. Aerosol disperses the substance in tiny droplets that can be inhaled deeply into the lungs and absorbed into the bloodstream. In addition, aerosol cans may become explosive when heated.

Once it's in your house, use it

• Read labels carefully before using hazardous products.

• Use the proper safety equipment when working with hazardous chemicals.

• Leave products in the original containers with the label that clearly identifies the contents. Never put hazardous products in food or beverage containers.

• Do not mix products unless directed to do so by label direc-
