For the past six weeks, Westland motorists who used Newburgh Road south of Hines Drive have been forced to take alternate routes because of the Newburgh widening bebor Road and the rebuilding of the Newburgh bridge.

Residents score in 7 Eleven fight

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Residents in a northeast Westland neighborhood won a month-long reprieve Monday in their fight to prevent construction of a 24-hour convenience store at the corner of Joy and Merriman.

The Westland City Council voted unanimously to table site plan approval of a 7-Eleven until Aug. 21 in order to discuss residents' concerns and possible revisions of the plan.

The postponement came after an emotional hour-long debate involving council members, residents, the would-be franchise owner and a representative from Southland Corp., parent company of 7-Eleven.

The setback was the second in two years for the Southland Corp. at the at the intersection's southeast corner. In 1987, the council turned down a special use waiver that would have permitted construction of the store.

Before that, resident opposition killed a proposal for a Burger King restaurant on the corner, which is currently home to a vacant gas sta-

"Things look better than they did before, but we'll have to see what happens," said homeowner Wilhelmina Lawson following the postponement.

ABOUT 20 neighborhood residents attended the meeting. Their concerns ranged from the proposed 24hour operation of the store to placement of trash dumpsters and building upkeep.

The group has collected 270 signatures on petitions opposing the store, said spokeswoman Cathy Munoz.

"Our safety and privacy are the key issues," said Munoz, who lives on Cooley, directly behind the proposed

The council asked City Attorney Charles Bokos to look into the possibility of approving the site plan but limiting the hours of operation. There is no city ordinance regarding 24-hour businesses.

But Michael Raezler, Southland division development manager, said the company wouldn't back down on its requirement for business hours.

"That's the nature of our business," Raezler said, adding that all 100 7-Eleven stores in metropolitan Detroit are open 24 hours a day.

Raezler did agree to the residents' request for a brick wall separating the store from nearby homes.

RESIDENTS WERE also critical of the store's proposed location, a few blocks from Livonia Franklin High School, and the record of would-be franchise operator John Saying that he is "running on my record, and I think it's a good one,' Mayor Charles Griffin Monday announced his intention to campaign for a second term this fall.

Griffin, during a 40-minute press conference in his city hall office, talked about his administration's accomplishments during the last 31/2 years and his goals for the 1990s.

The announcement wasn't a surprise — bumper stickers touting Griffin's re-election sprouted last spring and the mayor himself hinted about his plans during the annual state of the city address in front of the Westland Chamber of Commerce last January.

So far, Griffin's only announced opposition is Robert Thomas, a department of public services employee and president of the city's AFSCME Local 1602. Several other potential candidates, including city council members Thomas Artley and Charles Pickering, have been circulating nominating petitions.

A FORMER Westland man has been sentenced by Detroit Recorders Court Judge Thomas Jackson to a 45to 80-year prison term for the November 1988 armed robbery of Deluca's restaurant, at Warren and Inkster roads.

Michael Alan Weaver, 40, pleaded guilty June 30 to three counts of armed robbery and one count of possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony.

Police said Weaver and a female accomplice escaped with several thousand dollars in the daylight robbery. The popular Italian restaurant was preparing to open for lunch when a woman knocked at the back door and asked for a job application.

A man later identified as Weaver then knocked at the door also asking for an application. He followed an employee inside and pulled a shotgun from under his coat,

Home sought for rescued cat

Most people think that all cats and then destroys them if no nave nine lives.

But that may not be the case for 'Jane Doe Kitty." who was rescued ecently by a Westland woman and a Garden City teenager. The cat is being temporarily adopted by a Michigan Humane Society employee for two weeks.

The cat was bloodled and injured, apparently during a mauling by a fog in a nearby yard, when it was found by Beverly Melasi of Westland and Janene Tackett of Garden City.

Melasi said she was driving on Grand Traverse near Casplan in Westland July 8 when she and her passenger noticed the cat, with a blood-covered face, in the street.

They hope that someone will permanently adopt the cat.

The cat is now temporarily housed by its "adoptive parent," Linda Thomas of South Lyon, a staffer at the society's shelter on Marquette near Newburgh.

The shelter serves Westland, Garden City and three other cities.

After picking up the young cat from the street, Melasi said she initially looked for a nearby veterinarian before heading for the MHS shel-

A few days later, Melasi returned estimated to be about 6 weeks old.

"I DON'T know what compelled me to do that, but it may have saved her life," Melasi said after learning that the cat would be put to sleep the next day.

Jackie Kunze, assistant shelter manager, said that a veterinarian inspected the cat, found no evidence of internal injuries, but had given it a penicillin shot.

Kunze told Melasi that the shelter holds stray animals for four days claims them. The assistant manager added that the cat Melasi and Tackett brought in was too young to be adopted.

But she suggested that the cat be placed in a foster home until it is old enough to be adopted.

Later that day, Kunze phoned Melasi to say that Thomas agreed to adopt the cat.

Thomas, 26, often takes in animals that are too small for adoption or who have special problems that make them temporarily unadopt-

She pays for the food and litter while the Humane Society pays for additional medical treatment.

Thomas will have the cat for two weeks and be in the company of three other cats in the household.

"Hopefully, by the end of the twoweek period (which ends Friday, July 28), someone will adopt Jane Doe Kitty," Melasi said.

Those interested can call the shelter at 721-7300.

THE CAT Melasi and Tackett rescued is one of 1,150 strays brought monthly to the Westland facility.

Annually, the shelter receives 15,000 strays, with June, July, and August being the peak months. The to check on the progress of the cat, ... three MHS shelters in the Detroit area receive 47,000 strays each year, with about 7,000 being adopted.

> "We would love to save every animal that comes in here," said Sue Gates, shelter manager. "We do what we can to save as many animals as possible, either by adoption or or the Leader Dog program (for blind people), but people have to care, too."

She appealed to pet owners to spay or neuter their pets and avoid having them run wild.

Woman charged in drug thefts

By Poggy Aulino staff writer

A 33-year-old Canton woman has been charged with two counts of armed robbery in connection with robberies at two Livonia pharmacles and demanding drugs.

The woman isn't a suspect in robberies of other area drug stores, including one in Westland, police said.

Bond was set at $50,000 for Beverly A. Hopfner, who pleaded not guilty at her June 29 arraignment.

Hopfner was arrested June 24, a week after holdups were reported at the Perry Drug Stores on Farmington Road at Seven Mile and on Grand River at Eight Mile, according to Livonia Police Detective Jesse Bartlett.

Wiltse's Pharmacy in Plymouth was also robbed by a woman on June 17, and Arbor Drugs on Middlebelt in Westland was held up

County commission chief speculates on his future

By Mary Rodrigue staff writer

Arthur M. Carter was destined for politics.

The 49-year-old chairman of the Wayne County Commission grew up in an atmosphere of political activism. His godmother is Detroit City Council president and mayoral candidate Erma Henderson.

His mother was involved in the Young Republicans in the '30s, before switching party allegiance during the Roosevelt administration. His dad and uncles, all members of the United Auto Workers, had spirited discussions on their union.

And young Arthur soaked it up in his house on Detroit's near east side - the current site of Joe Muer's Restaurant parking lot.

Although there are probably days Carter would rather be cruising down the Detroit River on his charter boat Renaissance Queen, his main love is politics.

"I've devoted a great deal of my life to county government, There's still a lot of work to do here. There are things I'd like to pursue," said Carter, a Democrat whose district covers a big chunk of northwest Detroit including Outer Drive, Rosedale Park and Mt. Carmel and Sinai hospitals.

"ONE OF MY goals would be to one day be county executive. That's a very definite goal."

Earlier this year there was some speculation that Carter would jump ship to the beleaguered Detroit Public Schools administration. But he shrugs off that possi-

"I haven't really talked with anyone in several weeks now." he said.

Carter, who has represented the 7th district since Jan. 1, 1975, is six months into a second two-year term as chairman of the 15-member board, which is the legislative branch of county government.

He was unanimously elected chairman by his peers a historical first.

"This is the best commission in Wayne County history," Carter said unabashedly. "We're very diverse, but a we work together very well.

"I've seen division between Detroit and the suburbs dissolve. The lines aren't drawn at Telegraph Road. We've really tried to work together whether it's a park issue - all the county parks are in the suburbs, or indigent health care."

Although Wayne County still has budget problems, Carter said the situation is a far cry from the early

Wayne County Commission Chairman Arthur Carter said his future includes a run for county

DSO talks about Lansing bailout

By Tim Richard staff writer

Lansing's ears should be burning. People at the nearly bankrupt Detroit Symphony Orchestra are talking about state government as the leader in an $18 million bailout.

"I've talked to the budget director, and they agree something should be done so they don't have problems," sald state Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, the Legislature's chief supporter of the arts.

"I intend to do something again," said Faxon, who despite his minority party status has a major role in getting state money for the arts.

DSO LEADERS announced Monday there is "no way" they can meet this week's $200,000 payroll. They are asking 97 musicians and 58 staff members to accept half pay.

the orchestra needs $18 million in pledges over four years to remain solvent. A source close to the DSO was quoted as saying the state had going to get their (state) money. It been asked for half or more of that Faxon, an Appropriations Committee member, said the state provides DSO $2.5 million currently.

"There is also lurking in the Senate and House a 'supplemental' appropriations bill," said Faxon. The $500 million bill has yet to be acted on by a joint Senate-House commit- been in trouble several times, tee. It would supplement the current year's budget.

Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said "I haven't heard any discussion" of more money for the DSO. __ -Faxon said he met two weeks ago with Deborah Borda, DSO's executive director and chief staff person. "I indicated my concerns and gave her some suggestions. She has a lot of energy. She knows her business."

BUT FAXON said that except for brief social encounters he hadn't met with Miller, the Chrysler executive who took over the reins at the DSO board last year.

"I don't know him that well. I don't know where he's going," Faxon

The Oakland County senator said Miller brought DSO "tremendous adverse publicity - national and international" - when he caved into Board chairman Steve Miller said pressure from two black legislators and hired a second black musician.

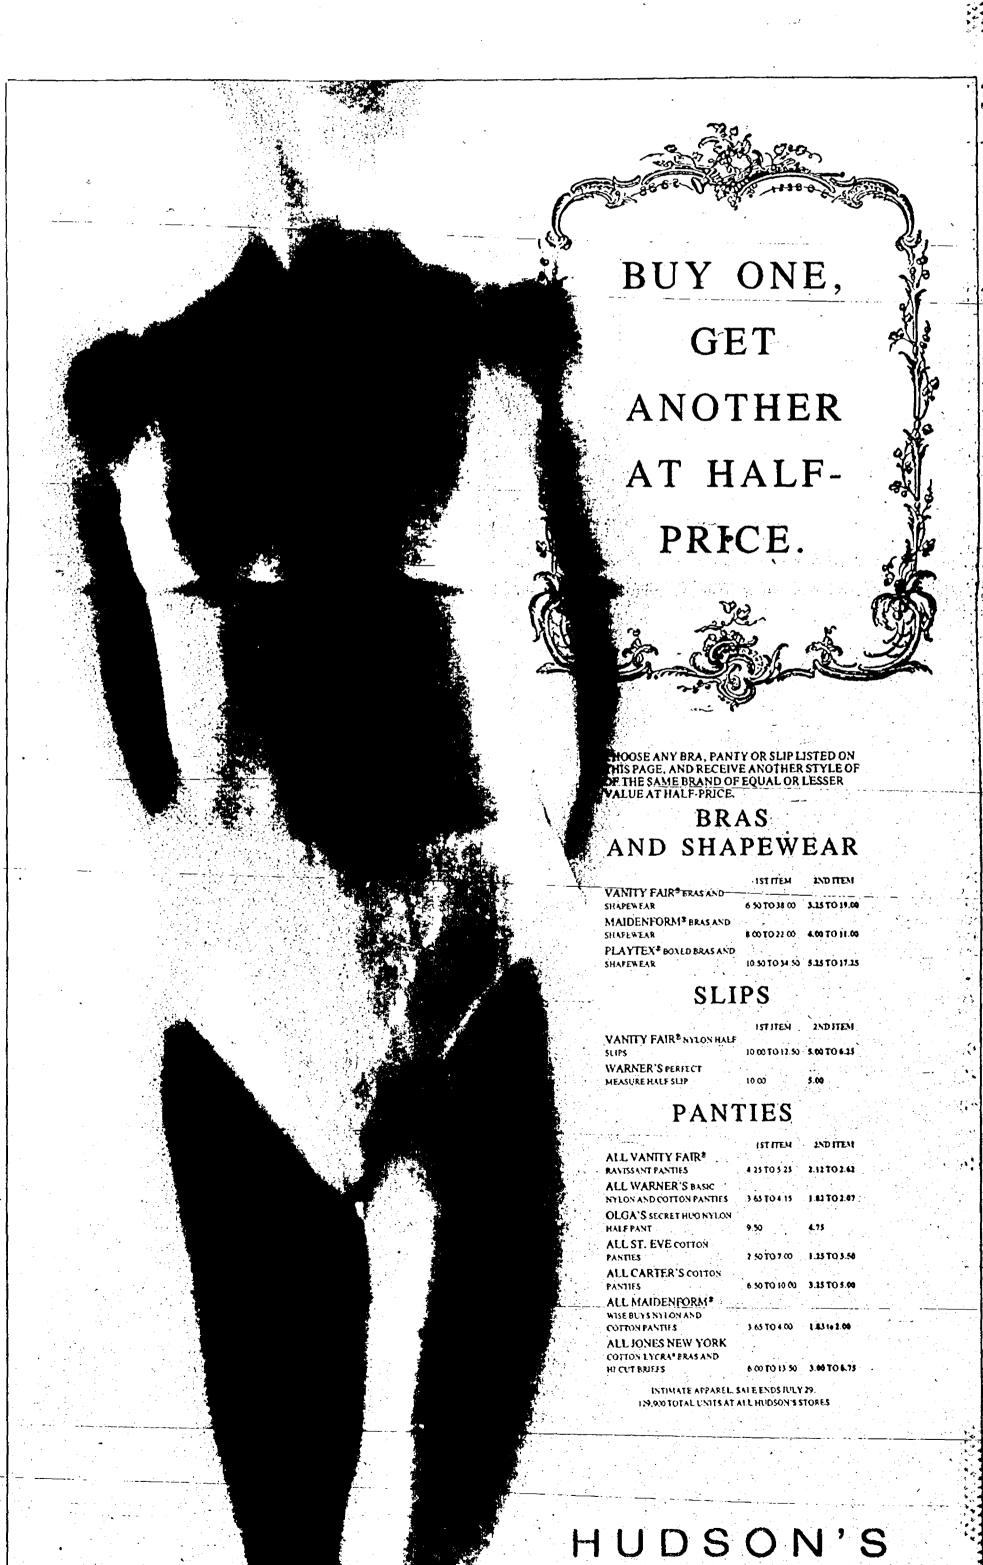

"She (Borda) believed if this wasn't done, they (the DSO) weren't just wasn't true," said Faxon. His unspoken message was that Miller should touch bases with him on legislative protocol.

"If someone were holding a gun to me, I'd want to find out who my friends are," Faxon said.

Commission chief sets sights on executive post

"WE'RE ON our way out of the mire and muck. We're healthier, stronger, more responsible to the citizens. We can't cure all the problems overnight. We still have significant problems, but I'm very upbeat. Government leaders have to be somewhat futuristic."

What worries him most is the rising cost of health care for indigents and the cost of caring for abused and neglected children - two areas the county is responsible for by law.

"These are two major hurdles to the financial solvency of Wayne County," said Carter.

The legislative and executive branch have locked horns on many issues, most recently child care for county employees. KidSpace advocates (with the blessing of County Executive Edward McNamara) crammed a recent board meeting to demand action on the day care

But Carter questions the fiscal responsibility of offering a limited option (KidSpace would be licensed for up to 90 children) to a few employees out of Wayne County's 4,500 worker pool.

"The fact is we are running a deficit," Carter said. "I've seen money spent on good programs in the past, but that's why we're in dire financial straits now. I'd be the first to support (Kidspace) with outside funding."

Carter believes controversy is a good thing in politics. "I NEVER shy away from a meaningful fight," he said. "It's healthier than the good ol' boys sitting in the back room cutting deals."

A project dear to his heart is creation of a youth camp where non-violent juvenile offenders can get education and training that can turn them away from a life of "The Wayne County Residential Youth Academy would be an intervention tool," he said.

County voters approved a millage last August that includes funds to develop the youth work and learn facility. Carter said he hopes the project is under way by September.

The program will be based on the highly successful Glen Mills schools in Concordville, Pa.

"After seeing Glen Mills and witnessing how these aggressive young men are being transformed into motivated citizens, we are filled with hope and conviction that something positive can be done about juvenile crime in Wayne County." Carter, a graduate of the now defunct Eastern High School, received bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from Wayne State University. The degrees are in special education, counseling and educational psycholo-

9 demonstrators found guilty, 24 acquitted

After almost five hours deliberafrom a Livonia jury found nine prolife demonstrators guilty and acquitted 24 others Monday of disorderly conduct in an April protest at a Livonià abortion clinic.

Court-ruling on flag inspires song

By Peggy Aulino

When Bruce Young heard about the U.S. Supreme Court's decision that offers legal protection to those who burn flags, he decided he wasn't going to take it lying down.

"I guess it was kind of fighting words," said Young, 70, the owner of Talent Live Entertainment, a Canton recording studio.

So Young sat down and wrote Don't Burn our Flag." His son, Rick, put the lyrics to music and recorded it in the Michigan Avenue facility. Rick Young, who was a member of the now defunct rock group Teezers, is the lead vocalist.

The Fabulous Falcons, who used to count Wilson Pickett among their members, also came to the studio to record an R&B version of the

And on both recordings, the backup is done by four girls from Canton. The parents of the girls, who sing in their respective church choirs, are friends of the Youngs. The youngsters are Emily and Jennifer Bowling and Chanel and Heather Ukkestad.

Young said his experiences in the Navy during World War II - and the things he witnessed in the course of the war — made him appreciate the U.S. flag. The lyrics were born out of a desire to voice some opposition to the Supreme Court ruling. "I feel that if I as an individual burn the emblem of authority of this nation, I'm putting my citizenship on the line," said Young. "When you start reducing the value of that flag you are reducing the equivalent in your citizenship, and the more devalued and the less you believe in your government, the closer you reach the direction of anarchy. This country doesn't need that kind of thing."

Now that the voices and the musical instruments have been recorded, all that remains is for radio stations to start giving the song some air time.

What kind of a kid do you suppose Thomas Edison was?

Bet he looked at problems and saw solutions. Like Maurice Scales who invented Baby No-Mash to prevent doors from closing on little fingers.

Bet he saw how things were done, and imagined better ways to do them. Like Lillian Lukas who invented the Puddle ecting Cane for the blind.

Bet he watched how things work and thought of ways to avoid wasting time or effort. Like Caitilin McCracken who invented the Orphan Kitten Feeder for Three.

Director aims to boost parks' image

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Call it the birth of a salesman. Hurley Coleman is out to sell area communities on a product they've had for 70 years — the Wayne County Park system.

"It's been here practically forev-, er, yet we're finding that many people still aren't even aware it exists," said Coleman, the county's new parks director. "We've got an image problem."

To boost the parks' image, he's starting with a simple premise:

"If, all of a sudden, people were to lose the county parks, would they know what they've lost?" Coleman said, describing the question that will guide him during his tenure as county parks chief.

"Right now, there are city softball leagues that use our diamonds," he said. "If they weren't there, these teams would have no place to play. This is the kind of thing we hope to stress."

ON THE job three weeks ("And what a three weeks it's been"), Coleman has begun meeting with city, township and county officials to sound out their perception of the

"I'm trying to ascertain what kind of community support there is for the county parks," he said.

Part of his job could be in building a county "parks community," he

"While the people I've met so far have been very warm and very interested in the parks, it appears people in one community generally aren't aware what goes on among their neighbors," he said. "What we need to do is have people look at the parks as a package."

FOR ITS part, the county parks system is considering offering services to local recreation agencies.

"This is still in the planning stage, but what we'd like to do is to offer something, at least in the way of expertise, that the locals couldn't provide on their own," he said. "In some cases, we could even come in and run programs.

"We have a very dedicated, capable staff, all the way around," he said. "That's one of the things that's impressed me most."

Fees from local municipalities would ensure the outreach programs tem is in danger of disappearing, but paid for themselves, Coleman said.

> A canoe launch, near the Nankin Mills recreation area, is another top priority, he said. County officials hope to be able to allow canoeing at least along a portion of the Rouge. River by next summer. A canoe storage area is being targeted as a special Michigan Youth Corps project, he said.

IN ADDITION to participating in the Rouge Rescue last month, Colemen has traveled to Washington, D.C., to help gain financing assistance for the parks.

"This is one of the oldest parks systems in the United States; and in many ways it's a role model for the federal system," he said. "What we'd like to see is at least some kind of historic designation for the parks."

Money, he acknowledges, has traditionally been tight. Nor is any movement afoot for a county parks

Coleman, however, is convinced he can work with county commissioners and other officials to help secure more money for county recre-

"When (Wayne County Executive) Ed McNamara selected me for the job, it sent a message that here is a young person with a commitment to parks and with the ability to get along with people," Coleman said. "I think that's important."

COLEMAN, 36, spent the past four years as recreation administrator for the city of Saginaw. There, he oversaw installation of a wave-action pool and water slide.

McNamara praised his ability to maintain parks services despite cutbacks in city financing.

As Wayne County parks director, Coleman will oversee nearly 4,500 aeres of open space, a 36-hole golf course and a boat launch and marina, in addition to Holliday Nature preserve in Westland and Canton Township.

In addition to his county duties, Coleman is chairman of the Governor's Recreation Advisory Committee and is president-elect of the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association.

Married and the father of three, Hurley said he and his family are definitely "parks people."

"If my wife and I want to make our children happy," he said, "all we have to do is tell them we're taking them to the park."

Hurley Coleman, 36, is out to sell area communities on a product they've had for 70 years — the Wayne County Park system.

Abortion battle Stage is set for hot debate

By Tim Richard staff writer

Look for a donnybrook at public hearings over state pro-life bills in September and October.

That's when chairman Fred Dillingham's Senate Human Resources Committee is likely to take up four pieces of legislation in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision allowing states greater powers to regulate the termination of a pregnancy.

"It's a committee designed for terror," said Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, who is pro-choice.

"It's a double-stacked committee," said Faxon after the Senate rejected pro-choice Sen. Lana Pollack's effort to send the measures to the Health Policy Commit-

"Dillingham pledged a full opportunity for hearings," countered Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, a member of Dillingham's panel.

THE SENATE HUMAN Resources Committee is one of the most conservative and pro-life in the Michigan Legislature.

Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, has his name on efforts to cut state spending for abortions. Geake, a psychologist, is pro-life. Other members are Harmon Cropsey, R-Decatur, a religious fundamentalist; Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, the Senate's most conservative Democrat; and John

Cherry, D-Clio, who is pro-life. "Pollack moved to send it to the Health Policy Committee, which she thought would be friendlier," said Geake. Health Policy is headed by moderate Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, and includes a physician, Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek. Geake predicted the measures would probably pass the full Senate in fall but might have more trouble in the House and on Gov. James J. Blanchard's desk. Judiclary Chairman Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, said the bills didn't belong in his committee because no constitutional issue involved.

DILLINGHAM WAS out of town and unavailable for comment, but an aide said the Human Resources panel has dealt with similar issues in the past.

"His committee has done a lot of health issues. It wasn't shenanigans" to send the anti-abortion issues to Human Resources.

"We've had a few pieces of mail already," he said.

THE MEASURES are:

• Senate Bill 513 (sponsored by Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo) - requiring parental consent before a minor (someone younger than 18) could have an abortion. But the minor could obtain a judge's consent under certain conditions.

• SB 514 (Welborn) — based on the Missouri statute upheld by the Supreme Court on July 3. It would prohibit abortions in hospitals associated with the state and require medical tests to determine whether a fetus could survive outside the womb. The Missouri act also contains a preamble declaring that life begins at con-

Infertility? Problem pregnancy? Oakwood specialists are here to help.

DR. MARIA HAYES

Director Oakwood's Division of Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility.

What is infertility therapy and who needs it?

A. Infertility therapy is an investigation into and the treatment of problems preventing conception. We evaluate women who have been trying to become pregnant for at least one year. If the woman is over 35 years of age, she is evaluated after six months of attempting to achieve pregnancy. We evaluate immediately a woman who has an obvious cause of infertility such as lack of menstruation or known damage to the fallopian tubes. In addition, we offer treatment for people who have had sterilization and desire reversal, for women who have had repeated miscarriages, and for women with uterine fibroids or pelvic endometriosis.

What kinds of infertility testing does Oakwood offer?

A. Tests are conducted on both the husband and wife, beginning with the simplest tests. Included may be evaluation of ovulation by observing basal body. temperatures in the wife, hormonal studies, a hysterosalpingogram (a test to determine if the falloplan tubes are obstructed), and semen analyses.

If these tests are normal, we conduct a postcottal test a few hours after intercourse to see if the sperm are surviving well in the cervical mucus. If this is normal, we do an endometrial biopsy to evaluate the lining of the uterus, to tell us whether it is developing well enough for an egg to attach. As a last step, we use a laparoscope (a telescope-like device with a camera) to view and evaluate the uterus.

fallopian tubes, and ovaries through the navel.

Once the cause of infertility is diagnosed, what can you do to correct the problem?

A. We prescribe medication (fertility drugs) to correct lack of ovulation. Blockage of the fallopian tubes is corrected by surgery. If the woman has a problem with her cervical mucus, we administer medication or perform artificial insemination with the husband's semen.

If problems with semen quality are encountered, medication, insemination with the husband's semen, or referral to a urologist for repair of a varicose vein in the scrotum (if one exists) may be used. If the semen quality cannot be improved, we offer artificial insemination with donor semen.

In vitro fertilization is offered in cases of irreparable tubal damage, severe endometriosis, uncorrectable cervical prob-Hems, and very low sperm counts.

How long does a patient need to see an infertility specialist?

A. Until a successful pregnancy is achieved or we determine that a problem exists which cannot be corrected. A successful pregnancy is defined as being able to detect a fetal heartbeat in the uterus on an ultrasound. If the pregnancy is progressing normally, the woman is referred back to her obstetrician. If it is considered a high-risk pregnancy, the obstetriclan may seek consultation with a -perinatologist, such as Dr. Mariona.

DR. FEDERICO MARIONA

Director of Oakwood's Division of Maternal-Fetal Medicine.

How do you determine if a pregnancy is "high-risk"?

A. We review the patient's previous obstetrical history and present health. A high risk pregnancy can occur in a young woman with a chronic disease, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, or heart disease; a woman with a history of past problem pregnancies, including multiple miscarriages; and/or a woman who is over age 35.

What is the first step a woman fitting any of these profiles should take when considering pregnancy?

A. First she should come in for preconception counseling with her partner. During our initial meeting, we would discuss the couple's general health and medical history and determine what their risks are for carrying a baby to term.

What services does Oakwood's Division of Maternal-Fetal Medicine offer for high-risk pregnancy?

A. We perform prenatal diagnosis on the fetus to give the couple appropriate information on the presence of a normal or abnormal baby. These tests include chorionic villus sampling (CVS), in which a portion of the placental tissue is examined for genetic abnormalities while the fetus is attaching itself to the lining of the uterus. This test can be performed as early as eight or nine weeks into the pregnancy.

We also do anintocentesis when the fetus is between 13 and 15 weeks old. During this procedure, we obtain a sample of amniotic fluid that is then examined for genetic abnormalities.

If the pregnancy is further along, we perform ultrasound, in which high frequency sound penetrates into the tissue and bounces off the structure of the fetus to generate pictures that we can observe. We use various types of ultrasound to look at organs, how the organs are functioning, and how the baby's systems are developing. We then arrive at a total evaluation that tells us if the baby is normal, growing, and functioning as it should.

Later in the pregnancy, other observations are performed, including but not limited to electronic and biophysical ... observations of the developing fetus, along with continuous monitoring of the mother to detect or treat complications.

Tradition

Union jumps into campaign

IN AN election year, Westland voters shouldn't get worked up about political hassles and labor relations disputes at

But what seems to be a local political tradition, the pace of contract negotiations of a union representing police lieutenants and sergeants has been injected as an issue in the upcoming mayoral campaign.

The union is unhappy about the pace of bargaining talks and is blaming Mayor Charles Griffin, who is seeking a second four-year term

But the union campaign is designed to embarrass the mayor more than to speed up negotia-

Voters should remember a few basic principles when sorting out the arguments and counter-arguments.

A municipal employee union is 🦠 renewing a political tradition by jumping into the upcoming mayoral election.

One: Griffin's only announced opponent at this writing is Robert Thomas, head of the union that represents most non-police/fire city employees.

Two: A state law prohibits police officers from striking but provides them the opportunity to get their salary increases through arbitration.

Three: Employees' salaries and fringe benefits account for nearly two-thirds of the city budget.

The bottom line is that unions want more than just a sympathetic ear from the mayor's office - they want more money.

Freeway fear

Time for drivers to fight back

S A FREEWAY driver, how long has it been since you've laid on the horn and shouted without signaling, nearly sheering off your front bumper?

Probably a long time. Freeway shootings have seen to that, and made us that much more paranoid in the process.

It's not healthy and it's not natural. Any doctor will tell you stress needs an outlet. Any driver will tell you navigating metro area freeways is-

SO WE seal ourselves in our cars, stare dead ahead and let rage silently build inside us.

That's ridiculous. A few armed lunatics have made us afraid to honk a horn in the Motor City.

Honking off that blind fool careening across lanes is a time-honored tradition around here. It at the jerk who's glided into your lane relieves stress. It directs frustrations where they should be directed and keeps us from taking it out somewhere else, on someone else.

> So let's get together on this. Someone saw the guy in the Geo Tracker who took at shot earlier this month at a car on I-696 near Orchard Lake Road. Call the police and help prosecute.

> Fight back. Call and write your legislators and tell them you want laws enacted specifically addressing penalties for those convicted of freeway shootings.

> This is not some complex, abstract issue steeped in philosophical meaning that will require time and even-handedness to resolve. It is an immediate problem that affects every one of us every day.

Abortion debate

Other issues need our attention

ITH THE onslaught of the Michigan important issues will remain in focus. gubernatorial sweepstakes, voters can only hope there is more to political life in Michigan than the abortion Important, yes, but abortion shouldn't be the all to end all of political debate in the Wolverine state. Unfortunately, the danger exists that, with the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision giving states more latitude in limiting abortion rights, this very emotional issue will become the main focus of political debate.

Without a doubt, the pro-life forces will inundate candidates of all stripes with their litmus test of loyalty to their cause. And pro-choice forces will be forced to respond with equal fer-

Neither politicians nor abortion activists, proor con, can be relied upon to keep the ship of state on an even keel.

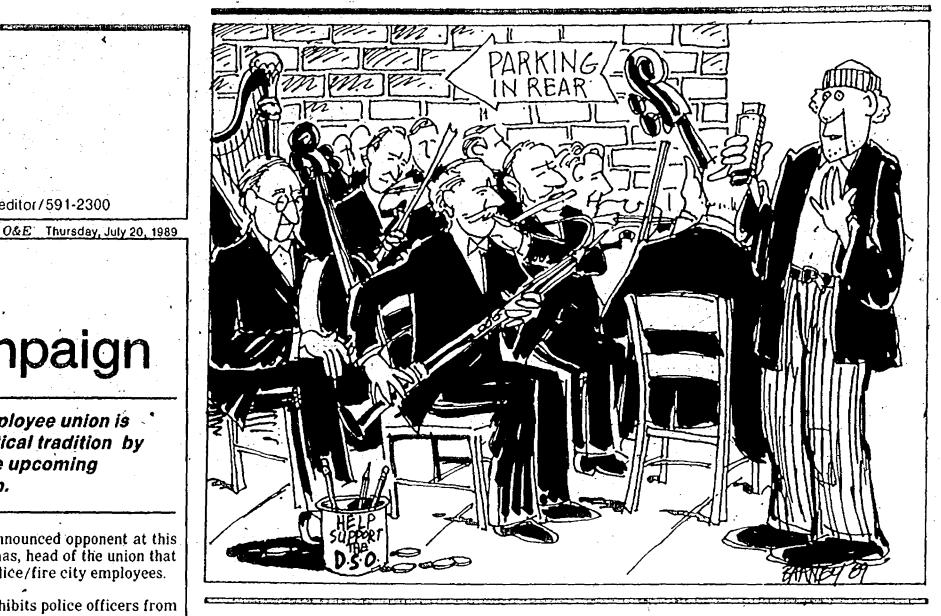

ONLY VOTERS, those out of the mainstream of power and special interest, can be relied upon to maintain a balance in the upcoming debate. Only the reaction of voters can ensure that all

While a militant group of citizens do feel that abortion is the most important issue, others realize that this state's leaders must address an agenda of political concerns.

- The governor and Lansing lawmakers must resolve the dilemma of public education which is rapidly becoming a system of haves and havenots.
- A plan must be molded to aid our socially and economically wounded cities. • The state must take a more active roll in
- dealing effectively with the war on drugs.
- Highway expansion and repair must be sorted out before we are overwhelmed with clogged highways.
- Economic development still must be a number one concern of a state which still lags behind much of the rest of the nation in maintaining healthy employment figures.

The list could go on. But as easily can be seen much more than the merits and demerits of abortion need to be discussed.

The voters will decide if this is to be so.

A society's lifeblood depends on the arts

No matter the demographics, a community needs the arts to live and grow. Without the arts, a community will eventually dwindle and perish.

I was thinking about that the other day as I was hosted to a tour through the Birmingham Village Players playhouse by members John Reddy and Art Underwood.

Many of you will remember Art as proprietor of the Little Professor Bookstore on Grand River in Farmington Hills. John is an editorial executive here at the paper who is reluctant to mix his activities. But because of my interest in the theater, he finally consented to a tour of his other life.

It was a delight.

THE VILLAGE Players, which has raised the curtain for more than 60 years, is one of the more successful local theater groups around. At present, the playhouse is being renovated to open for yet another season in September.

But they are not alone. The Village Players, and many other groups like them, reflect that sense of community that often is lost as our met-

They are a spirited bunch. To survive, they have to be. Live theater, even at its most successful, is a struggling venture.

Many don't survive. But the arts in our area has always lead a fringe existence. As we can see by recent events in the metro area, the arts is a hard sell.

IN CONTRAST, anyone traveling to Toronto, North America's premiere big city, can see how support of the arts fits, into the vitality of a community. Now whether it's a reflection of success or a cause of it can be debated. But it's there, an in- you do. It is a pleasure to experience tegral part of everyday life as are the streets full of people at all times of the day and night.

Anti-porn campaign appreciated

In response to the column written by Steve Barnaby, I wish to answer him about the use of pornography in our society and the idea that concerned citizens are using censorship - a violation of the First Amendment, right of free speech:

In an interview with Ted Bundy (the convicted killer executed in Florida) Dr. James Dobsen asked if pornography had any role in the murders he committed and he said it had and that was why he wanted to make the filmed interview with Dr. Dobsen. Dr. Dobsen was on the president's commission to study the effects of pornography on our society.

Mr. Barnaby is against censorship in a free society, but a free society does not mean people can do as they please even if it harms others. The minds of our young people are at stake. Money is being made on these magazines and the degradation of

If Mr. Barnaby wants to read these perverted magazines that's his choice, but don't put them in stores where young children can see them and purchase them. We must find a way to protect our young people from this visual pleasure that stimulates men into acts of crime.

Mr. Barnaby says it is controlling ideas through morality.

We have young killers stalking women, all ages, on the streets and it has nothing to do with free speech or the First Amendment.

Let's use dirt for sidewalks

I read with interest the article on the city's sidewalk maintenance program (July 10). I am also one of the people who has to replace several sections of sidewalk. I noticed in your article that (Joe)

Wyatt received a repair cost, which neither I nor other neighbors received. The city also sent certified letters to the people and followed it with the same letter by regular mail. Don't they think one letter is enough? What was the cost of all the letters?

But my main question about the sidewalk maintenance program is this: Why can't residents repair their sidewalks the way the contractor and city repaired the sidewalk at the northwest corner of Warren Road and Venoy.

Three blocks of sidewalk were dug out about a year ago to put a water line into a strip shopping center on the northeast side of the intersection. The sidewalk was replaced with dirt

But as it unfolds, I hope industry will have brains enough to grasp that Michiganians want a clean state and that the Litter Lobby will give in without an expensive, knock-down, drag-out fight.

Racial attitudes need changing

That's the opening line from Spike Lee's new film, "Do The Right Thing." And right there, both in the opening and title, iles its ambiguity - and its brilliance.

In fact, at 8 a.m. Monday, on a cooler summer day than Lee depicts, in Birmingham, not Brooklyn, 25° people - suburban white and black people - showed up at The Community House to probe what indeed this amazing film is all about.

Who, in fact, is Lee asking to wake up? And what, in fact, is the right thing to do?

Lending a practiced eye as well as a wealth of background in film to the discussion was Lewis Beale, a Detroit Free Press reporter recently transferred from L.A. where he had been a film industry reporter for the Los Angeles Daily News. He and his wife are new residents of Birming-

And those he was leading were members of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Task Force on Race Relations and Ethnic Diversity. They are the concerned people who recently put on the community forum in response to the racial problems in Birmingham schools and who now are planning a fall communitywide conference on achieving a diverse commu-

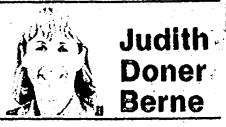

BEALE, WHO IS white, criticized the white media, particularly the allimportant New York City white media, for misinterpreting the film, for seeing it as "a very New York picture" and a call to racial violence.

No, this is not just a New York City film. As Marcia Femrite, a white former Detroit teacher now from Bloomfield Hills said, "You don't have to go far from here to see that street. The rage is not surprising at all."

Said Dana Cunningham, a black woman from West Bloomfield, "I think Spike makes his pictures for black people." Her interpretation of "Wake up" is that black people need to learn to take care of themselves economically.

Black people haven't done what other immigrant groups have, she said. They haven't gone from the pushcart, to a bigger pushcart, to the stand, to a store. "Historically, blacks who have done that have been murdered, have been 'fired' out of business.'

In the film, black people want the Italian plzza parlor owner to put up photographs of black people on the wall, and they taunt the Korean couple who owns a small fruit and vegetable store.

Beverly Knight, a black woman from Birmingham, says that in the neighborhood where she grew up the! fact that none of the markets is owned by black people is "a constant,"

GORDON MAY, the black director of Oakland Community College's' Pontiac Center, sees the film as a call for corporate America to wake up. When the pizza parlor owner refuses to hang other-than-Italian celebrities on his wall, May extends that to: no minorities on the wall of corporate America.

When Mary Cay Dirks, a white Bloomfield Hills resident, responds that it's obviously in corporate America's best interest to hire and train minorities, Cunningham points'

"It may be in corporate America's best interest, but we haven't seen enough of it," adding that business is, one of the main opponents of Michigan's school finance reform.

Much of the discussion of what is indeed "the right thing" turned on the film's ending, which featured a quote from Martin Luther King urging non-violence followed by one from Malcolm X, ostensibly urging violence.

"The movie stands on its own. It doesn't need that benediction," said the Rev. Almus Thorp Jr. from Christ Church Cranbrook.

'To me, the movie is about ambi guity," Dirks said. "The movie is raising the issue."

Beale sees the film and the ending as stating that when you are attacked, you attack back.

"DO THE RIGHT Thing" is "one

After 16 years as Oakland County's prosecutor and six months in private practice, L. Brooks Patterson powers of elocution are still strong as ever.

Has civilian life changed L. Brooks?

By Philip A. Sherman staff writer

Six months into civilian life, after 16 years as Oakland County's prosecutor, L. Brooks Patterson is still a man of carefully chosen words.

When asked if there was something he'd always wanted to say during those 16 years, but couldn't because he was prosecutor, Patterson didn't hesitate.

"---- you, Judge Thorburn," he said with a big smile. Patterson and James Thorburn, who used to be an Oakland County Circuit Court judge, had several celebrated, loud disputes over cases and judicial procedure during Patterson's tenure.

Thorburn has left the Oakland County bench and Patterson is in the litigation section of Barbier and Tolleson, a Troy law firm. "I'm still on a learning curve. I was out of civ--il practice for 16 years," he said.

HE THINKS he left the prosecu--tor's office with a 90 percent success rate. He enjoys his new job. And he hasn't backed away from issues important to him.

"I'm looking for a petition in the 'fall," Patterson said in reference to Citizens Unfairly Taxed, a group that wants to decrease school millages to offer homeowners property tax relief. CUT would place the burden for replacing those funds on the

Patterson said he's really just acted as a facilitator for the group, bringing it together and helping give

He's also supporting U.S. Rep. William Schuette for the U.S. Senate seat held by Sen. Carl Levin. Schuette is the stepson of the chair--man of Dow Chemical in Midland, according to The Almanac of American Politics.

PATTERSON THINKS Levin can be beaten, but hasn't been yet because the Republicans have thus far supported lackluster candidates.

"Jack Lousma was still in the dugout by the seventh inning," Patterson campaign. "But even then, Levin barely called it a victory."

Patterson said he has "no immediate agenda" regarding his own political career, but added "I'll never say never" when asked if he'd eventually make a run for the governor's office. On other issues, Patterson:

• Said if he were a citizen on the county's newly appointed Judicial Selection Committee, which will interview candidates for the two circuit court openings in next year, the top three characteristics he would look for are "fairness, intellect and objectivity, in that order. I never wanted a judge who was so prosecution you knew it was going to be your verdict," he said, citing concern about a reversal on appeal.

• Thinks-Richard Thompson, the Oakland County prosecutor who worked for him for 16 years, "has a nuts-and-bolts approach and extremely high integrity."

• Feels a slight "inability to make things happen. I had authority as a prosecutor. I could solve problems with a phone call. Now I file complaints," which he said is effective, but takes longer.

Misses "the strokes the most." He said on his last day as prosecutor, while he was walking down the hall, a crying woman ran up, hugged him and thanked him for bringing her daughter home. Patterson said it was a case where the woman's divorced husband had taken their child out of state and he'd brought him back with two phone calls - one for a warrant and one to "the feds. I had the child back home within days."

• Expected the Supreme Court to overturn Roe v. Wade.

• Feels really cheated by only one case — a "classic," he called it, where a killer admitted, on videotape, that he'd murdered someone, but the judge ruled the confession inadmissible.

And what's it like to have Patterson working for you? "It couldn't be better," said Ralph Barbler. "He works harder than anybody in the firm. I'd love to find something negsaid of the former astronaut's failed—ative to say about him, but I can't."

In the good old summer-time

Shorts: Stylish at last!

By Sue Mason staff writer

If you live in Michigan, there's two things you can count on — cold winters and hot, humid summers

And if you live in Michigan, you learn to dress accordingly. Heavy coats, hats and gloves are a must for winter and shorts are a mainstay of summer casual wear.

But it wasn't so long ago that shorts — on women in particular — were met with disapproval. A case in point was a 1931 pamphlet, "Modest Apparel — An Earnest Word to Christian Women," written by a Christian businessman Mr. T.W.I., who admonished women for wearing bathing suits, short dresses and, God forbid, shorts, saying they dressed "like harlots."

"As women have always been the instruments of Satan, it is not surprising that by their dress, they should tempt hapless men to crimes of passion," he wrote. "Remember, the girl who dresses in an alluring way cannot condemn anyone but herself, if the lure of her dress brings her the treatment which is usually accorded to women of questionable morals."

If Mr. T.W.I. were alive today, he'd probably be speechless. The barer the better is the key word for bathing suits are briefer, short dresses are back in vogue, and shorts . . . well, let's just say they're a common sight once the temperatures top 65 degrees.

But it wasn't so long ago that shorts were relegated to men, and women were literally covered from head to toe.

According to "Fairchild's Dictionary of Fashion," shorts are brief trousers ranging from midthigh to knee high in length. They were originally worn by athletes, but later adapted by men as underpants, then summer sportswear. And it wasn't until the 1930s that women began wearing shorts as sportswear.

BUT THE reformation of the bottom half of women's clothing can be traced back to the 1890s. (Blame it on the introduction of the bicycle.)

Heavy skirts were no go for bicycling since Victorian men would have been treated to a bit more than a glimpse of stocking, so it wasn't long after the bicycle came into being that someone came up with the idea of a divided skirt for female bicyclists.

Not that the divided skirt was anything great. It was, shall we say, voluminously modest. And even though it concealed a nicely turned ankle, the divided skirt drew criticism from men who called it unfeminine and even shocking.

By the 1920s, women were starting to wear slacks, and even shorts, for sports and lounging, which, like the divided skirt, was greeted with masculine disapproval and ridicule.

Some were heard to comment that it made women look "ugly" and that wanting to wear them was "unnatural and sexually unattractive."

In the age of the liberated female, those comments are fighting words, but the male reaction is understandable, considering that until the '20s, pants had been the badge of male authority for hundreds of years.

By the mid-30s, women had more freedom to wear pants and shorts, but those fashions were limited to their private and informal side of life. A woman who dared to show up at a formal affair clad in say a trouser suit was considered to be "Bohemian and probably a lesbian."

By World War II, when women became a mainstay of the war effort at home, functional masculine clothing became a must for factory work. Among women, it was looked upon as "part of the comraderie of the war effort."

BUT IN THE post war years, men still expressed disdain for such dress, saying it was a "slackness of behavior" on the part of women. One man, in a letter to the editor of a newspaper, wrote that he "refused to be seen in public with a female wearing shorts or slacks and dangling a cigarette from her lips."

Slowly, shorts became acceptable casual dress for women and by the late 1960s were respectable fashion for women. In the 1960s and '70s, shorts were paired up with jackets as pant suits.

But — there's always a but — before the feminine liberation movement of the 60s, women were only outwardly liberated when wearing shorts. Underneath, they were pinched and trussed up with underfashions to have a fashionable figure — a small derriere and no hips.

With the liberation movement, clothing changed, including under fashions which vanished or were mutated into harmless forms. Girdles and garter belts went out the window with the invention of panty hose, and brassieres emphasized a natural shape rather than a particular contour.

Contributing greatly to the rise of casual wear, including shorts, was a change in America's work habits. The advent of the 40-hour, five-day work week gave more and more people leisure time that once was the bastlon of the well-to-do. The leisure class suddenly became the leisure mass.

Along with the increased leisure time came the ideal of beauty linked with the concept of good health. Today, sportswear is representative of a national style and image. The clothing reflects a clean cut, wholesome, all-American image.

TODAY, SHORTS come in all shapes and sizes.

shapes and sizes.

There's even skorts — short divided skirts. For the brief coverage, there's short shorts. For a bit more coverage (mid-thigh to knee high), there's the sandpiper or Nassau, Jamaicas and Bermudas. For the more modest types, there's the knee high surfer or in the single street.

jam-kini.

And in the between range — between slacks and shorts — there's deck pants and pedal pushers.

And even though, shorts are acceptable leisure attire for both sexes these days, the jury is still out on their place in fashion over-

But rest assured someone is pressing the issue.

New York writer and editor John Fuller, in revolt against drab business suits, has been wearing Bermuda shorts to work for several years. He's been greeted with disdain in his refusal to be "slavish" to conventional businesss clothing.

His main motive, he says, is "why shouldn't men be comfortable at work."

Gina Franchi (left) of Livonia found her outfit at the Country Seat; Sara Erickson of Canton Township went wild with an outfit from Rave, and Tina Dale of Livonia chose the suspendered shorts featured at The Deb Shop.

Jean Richards of Westland opted for a dressy one-piece shorts set from Marti Walker, Jeff Lamphear showed he was a true "Bad Boys" backer with Pistons shirt and shorts from SportsMania, and Kelly Gudeth of Canton Township picked a coordinated print outfit from The Gap.

Angle Olszewski found her short sailor suit at Winkelman's and Christy Anzalone found her outfit at id, while Erin Sweeny of Westland donned clothes from Lady Footlocker.

Optometrist Barnet Leland said it's hard to get across to patients the long term benefits of protecting their eyes when they can't see it in the short term.

Sunglass chic: Stylish, helpful

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

Wearing sunglasses and a widebrimmed hat can do more for you this summer than mask your identity. It can help save your eves

Although consumers are becoming more aware of the harmful effects of too much sun, optometrist Barnet Leland feels most people aren't taking the initiative to change habits.

"It's difficult to tell patients the long-term benefits (of protecting their eyes) when they can't see it in the short term," said Leland, who oversees B. Leland & Associates. The corporation offers eye examinations and contact lens fitting in four Lens Crafters stores in the metropolitan Detroit and Flint areas.

"It's like smoking a cigarette," Leland sald. "You're not going to dle five minutes later, but the effects are cumulative."

RESEARCH HAS found that exposure to ultraviolet (UV) B radiation over a period of years can lead to cataracis. UV radiation is found in sunlight, to which everyone is exposed.

"A cataract is an opacity within the crystalline lens of the eye," Leland said. "There are lots of layers to the lens — similar to an onion. Any cloudiness within the layers is referred to as a cataract. It's like looking through a dirty window."

Cataracts must be removed surgically. And most implants are now UV-coated to protect the retina, Leland said.

"THERE'S ALREADY conclusive evidence of the harmful effects of ultraviolet rays on the skin, resulting in skin cancer," Leland sald. "But if you lie out in the sun, you don't get eye burn. What's happening is that by age 55, you begin to develop cataracts."

Wearing UV-absorbing sunglasses and a brimmed hat combine significantly to reduce the risk, he said.

"It's important that the sunglasses you select have adequate UV absorption," Leland said. "A dark lens with no UV absorption can actually do more damage, so it's more important to have a quality lens."

Contest helps launch careers

By Susan Steinmueller staff writer

For the aspiring models in the Model of the Year U.S.A. competition, the event is not all glamour.

"It was hard work," said the current title holder, blonde, hazel-eyed Lisa Richardson, 23, of Union Lake, who exudes a sparkle and finesse that makes one believe it was easy for her to win. "We did rehearsals from daybreak until sunset. We had to rehearse over and over."

"I think the tough part is the rehearsals," agreed Willoughby Woods, 22, of Rochester, a blonde, greeneyed third-time pageant contestant.
"We have worked until 12:30 at night

But for Richardson, Woods and three other contestants who gathered to talk about the competition on a recent afternoon, the hard work is worth it.

For them, the competition gives a unique opportunity to professionally showcase their talents before an audience of top modeling agencies, casting groups and talent scouts, which might lead to a modeling contract or a launched modeling career.

Judges of the event are representatives from major modeling agencles such as Elite from Chicago, Click Models from New York and Agence from Greece, who look to the competition as a way of acquiring fresh faces.

This year, the competition will be held Sat., July 29 at the Macomb Center of the Performing Arts.

"Without the exposure you have nothing," said brown-eyed, darkhaired Angelica Sgambati, 18, of Livonia. "You can be the best looking person in the world, but if no-body sees you, nothing comes of it."

But call it a beauty pageant, and Kimberley Djurovic is quick to correct you, by saying, "We are a "modeling competition."

Marie Anderson, vice president of Elite in Chicago and a judge of Model of the Year U.S.A., agrees that the contest is different from pageants.

"I don't look at it as a beauty pageant," said Anderson. "There's a big difference. The pageant industry tends to make them into Barbie dolls. I don't want that. I want them to be as natural as they possibly can be. In the modeling industry we tend to accentuate what the model was While participation in the competition opens doors, it doesn't guarantee jobs - especially in the Detroit area, where the modeling market centers on auto shows.

"Just because I received my title didn't automatically guarantee me work," said Richardson. "To work locally, I had to be aggressive."

Probably the biggest success story so far has been 1987 winner Ann Loosle of Livonia. Loosle, 18 when she won, went on to receive assignments including a recent two-month contract with Agence Model Management in Athens, Greece. She has appeared in the Elle, Seventeen and European Kai magazines.

moral perspectives Rev. Lloyd

Ruling on abortion offers skills further divides us developed through experience. I had never heard it in my 14 years spent in classrooms following high school graduation. (I might have missed it along with a number of other insights.)

He was a member of our church council and he said to me one day, There are two important things to remember in all negotiations. You never leave the room and you never push the other person into a corner."

Genuine care and regard for his colleagues in the office and on the line made him an especially effective negotiator and personnel officer. He knew them as men and women with goals and dreams and hopes and skills. He knew many of them by name. The plants under his responsibility had higher productivity and fewer grievances than all the others.

His observations about negotiations included the two popular features of humanity that create the very ambiguity we experience in the center of our lives. We have the potential of destruction for ourselves and our fellow human beings. We have the potential for fulfillment for ourselves and our fellow human beings.

THESE TWO powers are constantly at work in our beings and seldom, if ever, are they totally distinct. It can easily happen that the fulfillment we seek is rooted in the destruction of others around us. To be number one means that another has to be number two.

Beyond knowing the truth of human character is the practice of love and care in that constant effort for true community. Some peo-

It was the kind of insight that is, ple have the ability of arousing another person's every evil intent, and others have the ability that the consequence is exactly equal to the intention.

The recent decision of the Supreme Court regarding abortion and the actions of many groups supporting this decision have pushed those who do not support this decision into a corner.

With a ruthless disregard for the very nature of community, the gift of human life has been turned into a political issue where one claims victory over another.

Choosing for or against abortion (the word itself is a political word and should not be used in public discourse except in carefully defined terms) is not a political issue nor even a legal one. It has been turned into one because the fabric of community life has been torn by contempt and neglect.

PEOPLE LOCKED in mortal combat have no time and space for that exercise of care and regard fundamental to societal well-being. The net effect of destroying community life in order to save it is a very real responsibility.

It has been said that one cannot choose family, but one can choose friends. Perhaps that is why the plan of Providence is to set the care of life in the midst of family and not in the midst of friends.

To cause the choosing of sides for or against abortion in the affairs of state is to reject the very relationship of life that was created to carry it.

The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor of Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

A degree of humanity

Program in ministry

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Pastoral ministry is not for the chosen few, but those who chose it.

With the decrease in clergy, there is a large need for qualified laity to fill the bill. Madonna College has a new pastoral ministry program designed to help a few good people find. out what they are good at.

Students can major or minor in the program, supporting scripture and moral/ethical courses with practical skills. People can specialize in criminal justice, gerontology, hospice, sign language or business administration.

In fact, Sister Ann Stamm can't think of one area where the pastoral ministry program wouldn't be applicable.

"This program is designed for people who have done a wide variety of things, but never pulled them together," said Stamm, who is chairwoman of the religious studies/philosophy department at Madonna College. "This program will take an awareness of what areas where the person is strong.

"You can't give what you don't have. But you have to know where your strengths are."

That, perhaps is what separates Madonna College's pastoral ministry program from others of its type. The program is individualized, finding a specialization and then applying it to everyday life.

FOR EXAMPLE, a retired police officer is enrolled in the program so he can help troubled youths. He can use his experiences on the street and enhance those with counseling and other skills taught in the program.

Mariann Lupinacci of Canton knows where her strengths lay. With this program, she hopes to make

Then she met John, who later became her husband.

Lupinacci, though, didn't marry away her willingness to help others. She has taught religious education at various parishes. She's also worked with victims of domestic assault and unwed mothers.

Her goal is to specialize in secondary education, perhaps venturing out in marriage counseling. "This program allows me to be more of a professional," said Lupinacci, who met her husband in Stamm's religious class at Madonna. "It will take my experiences and ap-nacci of Canton.

The program evolved indirectly from an internal study of Madonna's religious studies/philosophy program three years ago. In the course of comparing curriculum at other Catholic colleges in the area ,it was found there was a dire need for a pastoral ministry program.

ply them in other areas."

STAMM THEN worked on a threeyear study, looking at pastoral ministry programs across the country. The program is ecumenical and multi-dimensional with both long- and short-term goals.

The program can assist someone already in the ministry, who wants to become updated with some courses. Or, it can help someone tackle a new career with a purpose of help others in mind.

The later is particularly important. Along with the shortage of clergy, skilled lay people can bring experience to areas where perhaps a priest or a nun would be hard pressed.

"As a mother, she can bring a dimension to it that I couldn't," said Stamm, pointing to Lupinacci.

Opening for Steve Allen will be magician comedian Jeff Hobson, a Detroit based performer.

The event also will give those who attend a chance to get Allen's autograph later in the evening, possibly on a copy of his latest book, "Murder on the Glitter Box."

ALLEN DESCRIBED the book as a "murder whodunit," which from conception has taken two years to be realized in print. It has been said that proper preparation prevents poor performance. This month's situation centers on Sheri Woods, who is trying to prepare for a solid financial future.

Woods, a single parent living in Farmington Hills, earns $24,500 as a legal secretary. Her income is supplemented by child support payments of $300 per month.

His short-term goals are modest - she would like to buy a new car this fall and do some home remodeling at a cost of approximately $3,500. Her long-term goals include preparing for her son's college tultion costs and beginning a program of retirement savings.

WOODS, 36, has been frugal with her money. Her only "extravagance" is sending her son to a private school at an annual cost of $1,000. Her son's education will continue to be a high priority for her.

Although she would like to be able to send her son to the college of his choice, she realizes that money constraints may require that he attend a college near home or perhaps a community college for two years to reduce costs.

this early. We suggest that when her son, who's age 10, enters high school, Woods should familiarize herself with college financial aid programs, talk with financial aid counselors and make use of the many excellent resources available at local librar-

WE WOULD also strongly suggest that she involve her son in the process of selecting a college and financing his education. If possible, it may be a good idea to allocate a majority of the child support payments (beyond that being used currently for private school expenses) to a college

In general, Woods' estate planning is in reasonably good shape. She has established a testamentary trust within her will. The trust takes effect on death and acts and part of

Presumably the needs of her son and the eventual distribution of assets to him is taken care of under the terms of the testamentary trust. One concern to note here is that because the trust is established within the will, it will remain a part of the probate process under Michigan law until all of the assets have been distrib-

Woods and her son should plan for by executing a revokable or "living" trust to replace the testamentary trust. The living trust, because it is a separate document from her will, will not be a part of the probate process and therefore will not delay the closing of the probate.

> TO THE extent assets are funded into the living trust prior to death, they can be controlled for the benefit of Woods and her son if Woods becomes incapacitated.

Except for disability insurance coverage, Woods' insurance picture is in good order. She currently has $50,000 of life insurance coverage that, with other assets, is sufficient to provide for her son's needs should anything happen to her.

She also has full coverage for her home and automobile, including at least $300,000 of liability coverage in each policy. She may want to review the collision coverage presently carried on her car.

BECAUSE IT is an older model (1983) with a value of just $1,500, she might find it advantageous to drop the collision and comprehensive coverage on this auto. After paying the $200 deductible on any claim, the maximum she could collect from the insurance company on this policy is

The significant premium cost of this coverage may not warrant the limited potential benefit. Once she consider modifying her estate plan buys a new car, she should add collision and comprehensive coverage for that car.

As the sole wage earner of the household, Woods realizes the need to protect her income stream in the event of her disability or illness. If she has no disability coverage available through her new employer, she should consider buying a personal policy covering their income needs until age 65. At her age, the premium should be affordable, and this. would fill a major gap in her insurance picture.

ONE FINANCIAL weakness we see is the credit card debts that Woods maintains, and the high interest cost associated with the debt. Woods may want to consider establishing a home equity loan to repay all the credit card debt.

The interest rate on the Ioan would be lower and would be fully deductible for tax purposes. Care should be given with this strategy, and she should pay off this home equity loan in a two- or a three-year time frame if at all possible. She should resist the urge to extend the period for repaying this loan.

ANOTHER OF Woods' concerns is planning for retirement because she alone is responsible for her longterm financial security. She should be commended for thinking about this so early.

She is fundamentally in good financial shape and because she has the desire to begin providing for long-term financial security now, with proper planning she has a good chance of meeting her goals.

Her most consistent method of saving over the most recent years has been to over withhold taxes from her wages. She then receives a lump sum tax refund and invests it.

THOUGH SHE knows that this is not the most advantageous way to save, it is a forced discipline that puts money aside that might otherwise be spent. Her refunds have been about $2,000 per year.

If Woods believes that this is the only way she can set aside money for the future, she should continue this practice. But there may be other ways to reach the same objective, such as direct deposit of a portion of her income into a separate, savings account.

Another plus for Woods is the profit sharing plan that her new employer maintains. Over time this

Dad's taste improved with age

"No one in his right mind would pay $4,000 for an automobile" was one of those pronouncements my father would make now and then to cool my adolescent yearnings for a Porsche, which I had already figured out would only be obtainable if I convinced him to buy one, and then I would borrow it.

I started thinking about my father's Oldsmobile as I started to write something about cars I have owned, which is when I realized my dad owned many more interesting cars than I ever did.

Another reason I started thinking about the cars my father owned was because I had to listen to another of those tired pronouncements about how youth has rejected not only Oldsmobiles, but Cadillacs, and most a yuppiemobile of choice - mainly high-performance sports sedans built somewhere north of France.

I REMEMBER when my father bought his first foreign car.

This was, in fact, after the Oldstone red and white, bought shortly for my father.

What came back wasn't even a run-of-the-mill Beetle, but one of the first six Karmann Ghias imported into the U.S. Somehow the bright red, weird-looking car sans gas gauge, with its 25-horsepower, aircooled motor in the rear struck a chord in my father's engineering heart, and that was the end of the Oldsmobile.

After that, foreign cars reigned, including one of the few targatopped Hilman Minxes seen on North Woodward. In an odd sort of way, the McCosh household was preceding the current fascination with imports by a couple decades.

Enter the 1965 Lincoln Continental, as big a reaction to the tiny foreign jobs as the VW was against the Oldsmobile.

The Lincoln had presence, mass, an incredible ride and more electronics than could be learned in an evening. It was the last car my father ever drove.

That wouldn't be so remarkable except he lived for another 20 years after buying that Lincoln. Eventually he owned three of them, all 1965s. As they aged, he repainted, reupholstered, and for a variety of reasons had to replace them, but always with Actually, the Lincoln wasn't the last vehicle my father bought. His stockbroker once related to me how he first met my dad, by then in his early 70s.

"He'd just come back from the beach, and he came roaring up to the office on that motorcycle," he said, without adding that by that time my father had trained his dog to ride on the back.

Resume should hint at writer's goals

Resumes serve many functions and should help employers identify and evaluate an applicant's career intentions, skills and experience.

The best resumes employers receive clearly communicate what applicants want to do and can do for the companies considering them instead of merely presenting work history information. Understanding this fact makes the resume screening process a lot easier and less confusing for small business owners and managers.

EMPLOYERS should also check for any inconsistencies that relate to an applicant's previous work experience. "If a person claims to have supervised 16 people but was employed as a clerk, there's good reason to be skeptical," Meagher said.

Before arranging for an interview, employers should make a point to call at least one of the referenced organizations or contact people listed on the applicant's resume. This gives the employer an opportunity to discuss a candidate's skills and qualifications in more detail.

"IT'S OFTEN easier to get information about an applicant from other small business owners or personal reference sources," Coxford said. "Larger corporations are nowquite restricted about what can and cannot be said about former employ-

Typically, large organizations can only confirm a former employee's length of service, regardless of the circumstances surrounding a voluntary leave or termination. For more information on applicant evaluation techniques available to small business employers and, managers, call MarkeTrends at 474-

Hines Park wins; rain stops Caesars

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

The grass needed it, but Livonia Little Caesars baseball coach John Moraitis could have done without all the rain that fell Wednesday at Livonia's Ford Field.

Constant rain and mud halted Caesars game against Walter's Appliance with Caesars leading 6-0 in the third inning. The game, which will be made up in its entirety at noon Saturday at Ford Field, left the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff picture looking equally muddled.

"We've got to play it by ear, now," Moraitis said. "I felt we'd get at least five innings in. This is going to screw up my pitching rotation now."

Hines Park Lincoln Mercury, tied for first place with Caesars before Wednesday, defeated Duffy's Plumbing 12-1 earlier in the day to improve its record to 21-5-1 and take a half-game lead over Gaesars.

Hines Park can win the LCBL regular season outright if it wins the season finale Friday at 8 p.m. against Duffy's and Caesars loses one of its last two games. Caesars plays Walter's Friday at 5:30 p.m. at Ford in its regular season finale before having to play Walter's again Saturday.

If there is a tie for first place after Saturday's game between Caesars and Walter's, Caesars and Hines Park will meet at 2:30 p.m. Saturday to decide who is seeded first in Sunday's four-team LCBL playoffs. The playoffs begin Sunday at noon.

Although Hines Park appears to have the upper hand, coach Dave Racer is taking the season's final innings one pitch at a time.

"One win don't mean a thing, if you don't win the next one," Racer said. "We're the little guy in this league. It seems everyone is pulling for Caesars. You read it in the papers - 'Caesars bombs someone, Hail Caesars.' We have to prove ourselves."

Hines Park proved it can back up the complete-game pitching of Dennis Szczechowski with timely hitting. Duffy's pitchers walked 13 batters and Hines Park got another banner day from Chris Sisler, who was 5-for-5 and drove in four runs. He has hit safely in 14 of his last 17 trips to the plate, a terrifying .824 clip.

"It's a good time for him to start," Racer said. "All the boys are hitting well. I hope it continues."

Szczechowski allowed only three hits and struck out five Duffy batters. Duffy's only run came in the fourth when Chris Mussat drove in Mike Siwajek with a one-out single.

Steve Young, the first of three Duffy's pitchers, suffered the loss, allowing three runs, three hits and eight walks over three innings.

Caesars also was the beneficiary of wild pitching. Walter's coach Mike Keller said two of his pitchers weren't in uniform so he started seldom-used Marty Wolfe, who walked six of the first seven Caesars batters in the first inning.

Caesars knocked Wolfe out of the game in the second, after Steve Malgay delivered, the game's only real blow, a double down 3 the left field line that scored Tim Napler from first base. Then came the rain. What a coincidence.

"We did a hell of a rain dance," joked Keller. "We feel fortunate. We'd like to beat? them one of two. Hines Park sure would like. us if we did and it would be gratifying."

Caesars assistant coach Ken Wandzel had the day's most clever idea while waiting through the rain delay. "I'll tell you what we can do," said Wandzel. "We can all fly out on a jumbo jet;" and head to Toronto and have the Sky Dome down and play in no time." Moraitis can't afford a team plane but. maybe Mike Ilitch can.

Mustang second baseman Scott Marinkovich takes the throw at first after an attempted bunt during Monday's 4-4 tie with the first-place Lincoln Park Rails.

Mustangs knot Rails, end up 2nd in league

A two-run rally with two out in the bottom of the seventh proved to be nothing more than a tease for the Livonia Mustangs.

The comeback pulled the Mustangs even with the Lincoln Park Rails and forced an extra inning, but after a scoreless eighth, the game was ended by the two-hour, 15-minute time limit with the teams tied 4-4 Monday at Ford Field.

The result finished any hopes the Mustangs had of overtaking the Rails in the Livonia Connie Mack League. The first-place Rails are 13-2-2; the second-place Mustangs are 11-4-2. Each has one league game re-

A week after Wimbledon, Schoolcraft College hosted its own tennis tournament - the Boys/Girls Junior

The talent last weekend was no match for the prestigious English tournament, it's true. But the Schoolcraft tourney provided its own excitement.

In one of the day's closest final rounds, Matt Smucker won the 16-Under boys crown, beating David Konop 7-6 (7-5), 6-3. Winning the 18-Under boys title was Paul Ripley, who ousted Rich Cundiff in the final, 6-2, 6-1.

Arvid Swan was declared winner of the 14-Under division after Chris Matson retired, falling behind 1-6, 0-1. Dan Eynon was the 12-Under boys winner, prevailing over Evan Hayes, and the 10-Under crown belonged to Bradley Adams, a 6-0, 6-0 winner over Dan Smokler.

In the featured match among girls, Plymouth's Missy Smith won the 18-Under title, beating Charis Hunt, 4-8, Boriboon's sister, Anita, managed to take a first-place award home, winning the 14-Under crown, 6-0, 6-1 over Kelly Kirkpatrick. The 12-Under champion was Andrea Narvaes, who beat Cynthia Obsitnik, 6-3, 6-2 in the final

First, understand the swimmer's dilemma. There are long (four or more hours a day), often boring, usually tedious, and mostly submerged workouts daily. Their only object seems to be to test an individual's mental and physical endurance.

And for what? There are no pro swim circuits. When college ends, so do most swim careers. Only the very elite swimmer (translated: Olympic gold medalists) can make money from swimming.

It is a sport requiring single-minded dedication to achieve national success. No other sport can interfere. There's no time for it. Topgrade swimmers train year-'round. No sport requires so much of its

An 11-run sixth inning sparked the rout in the nightcap and the winning pitcher was Nicole Canham, a 15-year-old Livonia Franklin student making her debut at the position.

STEVENS, PROMOTED to the No. 3 spot in the lineup in Game No. 2, responded with four hits in five trips, including a home run, double and five RBI. The Mustangs, who collected 25 hits, also received four hits from lead-off hitter Michelle Trybus and three hits each from Watson and Hott-

Blazers help Boyle Chevy get a split

Jomarie Skurtovich's seventh-inning single drove in the winning run and allowed Patricia Boyle Chevrolet to split a softball double-header with Lake Orion-Oxford last Thursday.

Boyle Chevrolet won the first game 4-3 after Skurtovich, from Livonia Ladywood, knocked in Kelly Coulson with the game-winner in the Waterford under-19 girls fast-pitch league.

After Lake Orion-Oxford, which won the second game 6-3, scored twice in the top of the seventh to tie, Coulson drew a walk to start the winning rally in the bottom of the inning. She stole second and took third on a wild pitch.

Coulson also had an RBI single earlier in the game, and Lisa Rockafellow was 2-for-3, which included a two-run single that gave Boyle Chevrolet a 3-1 lead in the second inning.

Shannon White, also from Ladyword, went the distance on the mound in both games. In the timeshortened, five-inning first game, she tossed a five-hitter and walked six.

Lake Orion-Oxford managed 10 hits in the nightcap. Kelli Koss, a graduate of Farmington High who now plays for Oakland Community College, was 3-for-4 and scored three runs for LOO.

Jenny Kennedy, Ladywood Blazer, was 2-for-3 and had one RBI for Boyle Chevrolet. Coulson knocked in a run with a triple, and Anne Rattenbury added an RBI single.

Boyle Chevrolet, coached by Al White and Dave Brubaker, is 9-5 and plays another doubleheader tonight at Fenton High School.

NACE rejuvenates junior hockey team

Following a busy off-season in the front office, the Redford NACE (North American Computer Equipment) Junior A hockey team has turned its attention to the ice.

The team, formerly known as the Redford Royals, will conduct a mini-camp for veterans, free agents and draft choices July 22-23 at the Plymouth Ice Arena.

The club has invited 112 players to the camp, including 32 veterans from its Junior A and Junior B (known as the Wayne Chiefs) teams, eight free agents and 72 layers whose rights were acquired in last month's draft. Walk-on players are not invited to this camp.

Players will be divided into four teams for the two-day workouts that will enable the coaching staff to evaluate talent before the start of training camp on Friday, Aug.

"What we'll be trying to do is determine where our strengths and weaknesses are, position by position," coach Kyle Krug said. "This way, when we go into camp next month and begin formulating depth charts, we'll have a better understanding of where we're at and where we need to go."

THE REDFORD NACE consists of 17- to 19-year-old players and will compete in the West Division of the North American Junior Hockey League. The acquisition of the franchise by NACE owners Larry and Marilyn Johnson and subsequent name change are part of a radical front office overhaul.

Rudy Cifolelli, president of MCN Computer Services, is the new general manager. His assistant is Eddle Mio, former NHL goalle with the Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers.

Olympic swimmers trigger enthusiasm

When they talk about how to prepare for big meets, or training harder than hard, the gap between them and ordinary people widens. Listen to Berkoff, a Harvard graduate, explain what he enjoys about swim-

"Money was never important to me. My happiness was important. And I was always happy in the water. Money shouldn't be a motivating factor to kids.

"To me, workouts are the greatest thing in the world. That's what I really miss. I don't miss the competing at all."

Does that sound ordinary? When Meagher related her experiences with the pressure surrounding the Olympic Games to a bunch of kids by saying "To me, it was no different than it was when I won my first national (event) when I was 10" - who could possibly identify? How many will even compete at a national meet, let alone win at one?

These are two athletes who experienced a greater degree of success by the time they were teenagers than most of their audience will in a lifetime. As Meagher admitted, winning motivated her.

While success may not have come easily to them, there's no denying it came more often. Certainly more often than the average person experi-

SO THERE was precious little the kids in the crowd could actually relate to, at least on a comparable athletic level. The gap separating the crowd and the Olympians was like the difference between an Escort and a Ferrari.

Even their advice on technique was too brief to be really useful. As Meagher said, "They may learn a few technical things, but I'd never take credit for a future butterflier. I don't expect to do miracles."

That's why their mere appearance outweighed anything they said or did. That's what made the gamble of bringing them into Detroit a good one for the NSSL and Stingrays.

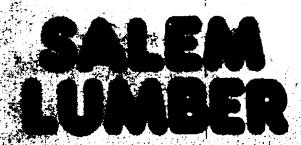

A sport like swimming desperately needs ambassadors. It needs people like Meagher and Berkoff - and Rowdy Gaines, who appeared briefly at Farmington Hills Mercy earlier this year - as role models and they know such people do exist. They've met 'em, in the flesh.

Loomis no-hits Walter's

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

A no-hitter by Brad Loomis highlighted Hines Park Lincoln Mercury's double-header sweep Sunday of Walter's Appliance.

Hines Park defeated Walter's 1-0 and 12-8 in games played at Canton High. The sweep moved Hines Park's Livonia Collegiate Baseball League record, not including Wednesday's game against Duffy's Plumbing, to 20-5-1.

Loomis raised his record to 3-0, leading Hines Park to the narrow win in Game No. 1. The Northville resident who attends Siena Heights College, struck out two and walked only a pair even though his time on the mound has been limited this month.

"He hadn't thrown in awhile," Hines Park coach Dave Racer said. "He had been having a little arm trouble but came out and threw hard. I didn't realize he had a nohitter going. I planned on using five pitchers.

An RBI double by Chris Sisler scored Joel Riggs, who had walked, with the game's only run in the bottom of the first inning. Sisler is 9for-12 in his last 12 games, collecting 11 RBI and one homer during that span.

Hines Park needed more offensive production in the nightcap and got it again from Sisler, who had three hits and drove in six runs.

HINES PARK trailed 7-6 after 414 innings, but a six-run fifth gave Hines Park the edge.

Sisler delivered a two-run single, two-run double and two-run homer. John Bonham, Brad Wright, Kevin Learned and Chris Michalik contributed to the 12-hit attack, adding two hits each. Bonham scored four times and Learned and Michalik scored two runs aplece.

Bob Files, the second of three Hines Park hurlers, picked up the win although he was pitching when Walter's scored three runs in the DUFFY'S PLUMBING coach Ray Fracassi is excited about Sunday's LCBL playoff opener because "some teams are peaking" and he believes Duffy's is one of them.

Duffy's ran its winning streak to five games Sunday, sweeping a double-header from Wendy's, 9-4 and 14-7 at Ford Field. The sweep improved Duffy's LCBL fourth-place record to 12-10-2, and Fracassi is thinking his chances in the playoffs are as good as the first-place team, whichever that may be.

"The playoffs will be very tough," Fracassi said. "Some teams are peaking and some teams are dropping. We've won five in a row and six of our last eight - that's peaking.

"Caesars and Hines Park are the ones to beat because they have the older players. The rest of the teams are a year away, but the nine-inning (playoff) games make a difference. That way, no one pitcher can domi-

Adam Havey's three RBI led the way in Game No. 1. Jason Hicks picked up the win, allowing three reliever Joe Jentzer. Lee Tappy was 2-for-3 for the winning team, and drove in one run.

A seven-run fourth inning lifted Duffy's to the easy win in Game No. 2. Tappy and Joe Delfgauw, both Redford Union graduates, had four RBI each. John Storm, now 3-2-1 on the mound, earned the win in three fifth. Mike Sulak closed out the innings of relief. Duffy's was trailing 4-1 when Storm entered the game but he was the beneficiary of Duffy's heavy hitting.

Hicks and Jentzer combined on a two-hitter Friday, leading Duffy's to a 7-4 win Friday over Walter's Appliance at Ford. Hicks started and left after four innings though he had a perfect game going. David Houghtby, who allowed nine hits and seven runs over 63% innings, suffered the loss for Walter's.

Mike Kaczmarek had two singles and a triple to drive in four Duffy's runs. Dave Crespi collected two hits and an RBI and John Gotts had an. RBI double for the winners.

In action last Wednesday, Duffy's pounded Holzer, 10-3, behind the combined pitching of Steve Young (Bloomfield Hills and Vanderbilt University) and Hicks. Young was lifted after the fourth inning with Duffy's ahead, 9-1.

Kaczmarek again swung a big bat, clubbing three hits in four trips and one RBI. Todd Fracassi, Mike Fiwajek and Crespi stroke a pair of hits each. Fracassi drove in one run, Fiwajek knocked in two and Crespi had three RBI.

LIVONIA LITTLE CAESARS began play this week impressively, beating Tom Holzer Ford Sunday by identical 10-0 scores in a doubleheader played at Ford Field. Caesars was tied for first with Hines Park at 20-5-1 before Wednesday's game against Walter's.

Mark Thierry was the winning pitcher in Game No. 1, throwing a one-hitter and striking out six in going the distance. Art George (Redford Union and Evansville University), the LCBL's leading hitter, had three RBI and was 3-for-5. Chris Kloc had three hits in three plate appearances and Tim Napler and Eric Linck collected two hits each.

Mike Boyd got credit for the win in the nightcap, a game that lasted only six innings because of the mercy rule. Boyd struck out six, walked four and allowed four hits.

Steve Malgay had three hits and Napier drove in two runs. Kloc, Miller and Jack Daniels had two hits Caesars beat Wendy's 7-2 Friday hits and no runs in four innings of at Ford as Kloc picked up his fourth work. Wendy's scored four runs off win without a loss. Kloc, a Redford Thurston graduate, went the distance and surrendered seven hits, fanned seven and did not walk a Shawn Maloney, Napier and George shared the hitting responsibility. Napler drove in two runs on two hits, Maloney had three hits and two RBI and George was 2-for-3.

Concours D'Elegance

Finally — automobile accepted as fine art

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

RTIST PETE MAIER runs on as many cylinders as the vintage cars he paints and draws - Rolls-Royces, Duesenbergs, Packards, LaSalles, Mercedes and Auburns.

Maier, poster artist for the Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall on Sunday, Aug. 6, is a man with a mission. When he left General Motors as senior designer for the Chevrolet, Pontlac and Cadillac divisions in 1980, to become a fulltime artist, he was determined "to bring the automobile as a subject into the realm of fine art rather than illustrative art."

To do this, he traveled a circuitous route. He concentrated on subjects such as animals and people and moved to rural Pennsylvania, convenient to New York City.

He established himself as a versatile artist who delighted in doing larger than life paintings of cows and horses and still lifes as well as cars. He eventually found two New York City gaileries ready to handle his work and promote him widely - Louis K. Meisel Gallery and Gallery Henoch.

Concours d'Elegance

features art events

The size in which he works, the planning, detail and the techniques which he has developed since those early days of his career give him a special place in the art world. He has perfected a technique in his front views of cars of showing much more in seemingly perfect perspective than the human eye could possibly see:

This requires not only an intimate knowledge of the vehicle, but great technical and artistic skill as well. It's like a camera's fish-eye lens view or frog's eye perspective without any distortion. From a video which Maier made, it's clear that there's very little guesswork in this process. -

"My auto paintings are the biggest being done in the world today. . . The fine art world has accepted my autos as fine art but, boy, that took a while." The largest is 6 by 7 feet and he plans to do side views in the 8 by 25 foot

HE SAID HE HAS SOLD more than 400 paintings since he left GM in 1980, but he hasn't had a one man show — not because he hasn't been asked, but because everything he does sells so fast, he can't accumulate a body of work. "It sometimes takes six to eight weeks to do one piece. The watercolor paper is imported from England on a roll. I build my own stretchers." He said paper is affixed to the stretcher and every inch is wetted down before he begins.

His egg tempera painting for the Concours d'Elegance poster is 48 by 64 inches. He said, "I had a big frame made and I finished it up to a sort of look like the architecture at-Meadow Brook. It weighs 75 pounds." It will be sold at the special preview auction on Saturday, Aug. 5, before the Concours.

Maier builds his own frames as well as his own stretchers. He said that the big ones framed, properly set back and ready for hanging weigh 185 pounds each.

Maier won the award of excellence at the 1987 Concours and among his awards is the Gold Medal of Honor from the Allied Artists of America and the Edgar A. Whitney Award from The American Watercolor Society. Dick Kughn of Southfield, longtime Concour committee member, classic car collector and exhibitor, is one of Maler's biggest patrons and currently owns more than 30 of his major pieces.

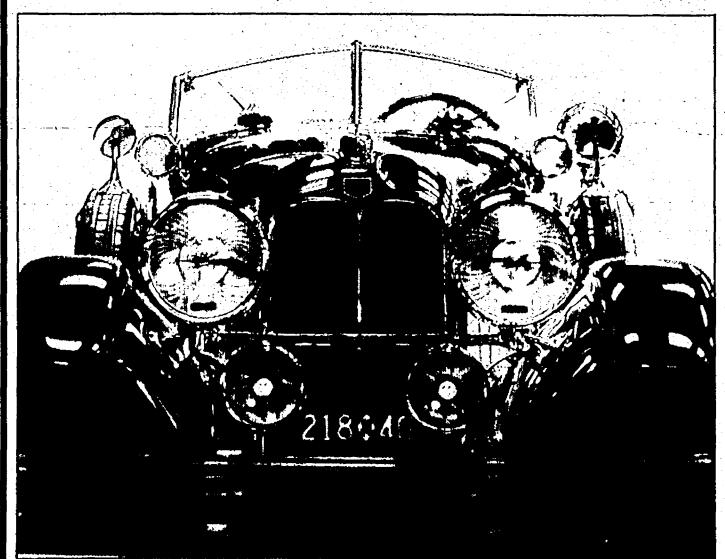

Maler learned last spring that Automobile Quarterly will be doing a full color ten-page write-up of his art for next spring's issue. While the publication has done illustrators in the past, he is the first fine artist to be featured.

TOM HALE OF Northville, who was also a GM designer before he left to become a full-time artist, is chairman of the art exhibition. Hale, like Maier, not only does paintings of cars, but handles a variety of other subjects adeptly as well. He is one of 13 nationally recognized artists in this year's art exhibition at the Meadow Brook Pa-

Hale said the proceeds for last's year's auction, which lasted about 30 minutes, were more than $60,000. He predicts this year's will top that. Part of the proceeds from the preview auction will benefit Meadow Brook Hall.

The Concours is the largest annual single-day fund-raiser for Meadow Brook Hall.

Mystery writers on panel

Three of Michigan's best known mystery writers will discuss their works and writing at 6 p.m. Sunday, July 23 in Borders Book Shop in Novi.

Loren D. Estleman, author of "Silent Thunder;" Tom Kakonis, author of "Michigan Roll;" and William X. Kienzle, whose latest novel is "Eminence," will participate in the panel discussion.

Space is limited and those interested in attending should register in advance by calling Borders.

The author of several private-eye novels as well as westerns, Estleman's stories are often set in the Detroit area. "Silent Thunder," his latest novel, is the tenth book featuring detective Amos Walker. In the story, Walker finds himself thrust into the illegal munitions scene in Detroit, where he is caught between the police and the gun deal-

Also set in Michigan is Kakonis' first novel. Timothy Waverly, a former college professor, returns to Traverse City he is soon on the run from two vengeful, sadistic killers. Kakonis is himself an English teacher, whose writing has often been compared to that of Ross MacDonald and Elmore sler. Leonard.

Background can heighten impact

In past columns, I've mentioned tus the need for simple, plain backgrounds that don't distract from the main subject in your photograph:

Plain backgrounds direct the viewer's attention to the subject and normally result in greater impact in vour shots.

But there are times when using the environment as a background will add extra dimension to your pictures, especially those of people.

A background can add information to a photograph of a person, particularly when the surroundings form his

Even though the person will invariably be the focal point, don't allow the background to dominate. The environment should always complement the subject, not overpower it.

Try placing your subject in the middle or near foreground for pleasing size proportions. For good composition, don't center the subject in the viewfinder and be sure your aperture is small enough to place both the subject and background in the camera's depth-of-field.

see how the surrounding elements help create the mood and setting.

In this case, the impact of the photograph is derived from the complementary background. Notice, too, how much information is conveyed by the background, how it helps to "tell the story."

As in all good photography, pay attention to lighting and camera angle and choose the lens that will enable you to include all that you want in the viewlinder.

Internationally known photographers Yousuf Karsh, Arnold Newman and Annie Leibovitz are experts at photographing people in their natural environments. A look at books by these masters will be a valuable and rewarding experience for you.

This photograph of a Mexican girl by Monte Nagler gets its strength and impact from the background, which complements rather than overpowers the subject.

Michigan artists are invited to submit their interpretation of "Our Town," any hometown and its meaning to them as part of competition held in conjunction with the Our Town Exhibition and Sale benefiting the Birmingham Community House.

the following: Michigan landmarks, architecture/city, nature/landscape, people/portraits and still life. Art work must be two-dimensional wall pleces, any medium, ready for presentation, wired for hanging and not previously shown in the 1986-87 or '88 "Our Town" exhibition.

Shuttle will get you to fair

The Ann Arbor Art Fair is taking place now through Saturday. The fair is 900 artists, artisans and craftsmen, outdoor entertainment and restaurants, sidewalk sales and displays all in the small university atmosphere of Ann Arbor.

It is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. The best way to get the fair - and some say the only way to get to the fair - is the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority shuttle bus service operating from the Briarwood Mall and Pioneer High School parking lots.

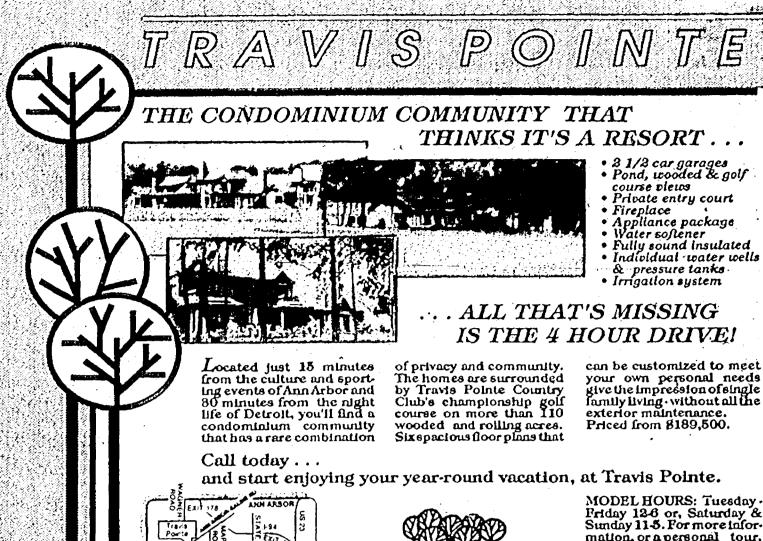

The shuttles operate every 10 minutes and cost $2 round trip. Children 7 and younger ride free. The shuttles will take you to and from elther end of the fair so you can walk from one end of the fair to the other and ride back to your car. The transportation authority also provides circulation service within the fair. For the first time this year, the authority will use old-style trolley buses for the air fair circulator. The circulator is free to those who buy round-trip tickets on the shuttle and is 50 cents for all others.

Shuttle parking can be reached off I-94 at the State Road (No. 177) or Ann Arbor-Saline Road (No. 175) exits or from M-14 at the Maple/Miller Road (No. 2) exit. Posted signs will direct you to

Tips on curtain care

Q. We are building a new home. The house will have 4,000 feet of living space. Our cellings are nine and 10 feet high. The floors will be marble. We like a contemporary look.

We now have two navy blue leather sofas in our living room. Can we use them in our new home with marble floors? Our interior designer has suggested raised panel doors, crown moldings and various trims. Are these appropriate for our new home?

A. You may use your leather sofas with the marble floors. However, since you have used them in your living room, why not change and try them in your library or family room? I agree with your interior designer on the various trims for architectural detail. The sleek lines of modern or contemporary are a wonderful surprise with the traditional trim.

Q. My under curtains in my living and dining rooms are dacron-polyester. I was told the fabric is machine washable. Should I try to do them myself?

A. If your curtains have a rod pocket you should have no problem handling them. If they are pinch pleated, I suggest sending them out. I personally have sent my curtains and draperies to the Custom Drapery Cleaners in Hamtramck. They do a wonderful job — they not only remove them, but rehang them as well.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

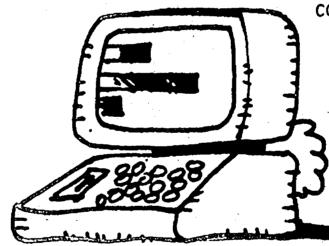

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
