New board member looking for solutions

Mike Reddy is all smiles Tuesday following his appointment to fill a vacancy on the Wayne-Westland school board.

By Todd Schnelder staff writer

The newest Wayne-Westland school board members said Tuesday he hopes to "come up with some solutions for the tremendous problems" faced by the financially strapped school district.

"It's a very tough time to come on the board and (the district) has taken a tremendous beating lately," Michael Reddy said following his appointment to fill the vacancy created by the Oct. 23 resignation of Kenneth Barnhill.

"But I think I can put something back into the community and after sending six kids through schools here this is where I want to do it," Reddy

Reddy, 47, a Westland fire department battalion chief, was selected by board members on the fifth ballot during Tuesday's special meeting. He will be sworn into office Mon-

Under state law, Reddy will be reance of the board term next June.

Reddy, during a public interview Monday, said his concern for children in Wayne-Westland and making sure they receive a top-notch education were the primary reasons he decided to seek the board seat.

"WE NEED to work together to convince the people of this community that we must provide a sound education for our children," Reddy

Responding to a question about reaching the 60 percent of the population with no direct ties to the district, Reddy said that wouldn't be an easy task, but added "we are all responsible for education in our community.'

"We all pay for uneducated people," Reddy said responding to another question on passing millages.

Voters have turned down tax increases for education twice since February, leaving the 16,000-student district with a $7 million deficit and quired to run for election for the bal- forcing board members to approve administration, staff and program cutbacks this fall.

> School officials are also in the middle of contract negotiations with the district's 1,050 full- and parttime teachers. (See related story).

Reddy said he saw the board's role in negotiations as having a "say-so" in contract proposals. As a union member and later a supervisor in the fire department he said he's experienced both sides of the bargaining table.

Reddy, who beat out seven other candidates for the opening, was one of 17 people who applied to fill a vacancy last December when Terri Reighard Johnson moved from the school board to the Westland City Council.

HE DIDN'T run for election when that seat was up last June though.

"I felt the board had picked the best candidate and that (appointed, then elected trustee Leonard) Posey was doing a good job," Reddy said Monday.

"I didn't think at that point the school district would be served by me throwing my hat into the ring." Reddy, who grew up in the district and graduated from Wayne Memorial High School, has been with the fire department for 14 years. He was instrumental in building the department's youth-oriented, educational fire safety house and last week was appointed by Gov. James Blanchard to the state Fire Safety

HE HAS an associate's degree from Detroit College of Business and is currently enrolled at Eastern Michigan University pursuing a bachelor's degree in Public Safety Administration.

Reddy said he recently completed the sale of three family-owned dry cleaning stores in Westland, Canton Township and Dearborn Heights so that he would be able to devote more time to other interests.

State mediator to join teacher contract talks

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Wayne-Westland school administrators will welcome the presence of a state mediator into contract talks with the teachers' union if it proves helpful in reaching a settlement, a school official said Tuesday.

"The goal is to do whatever it takes to settle this contract," said Tom Svitkovich, associate superintendent for administration.

"We have no objections to continuing the negotiations, with or without a mediator," Svitkovich said.

Members of the Wayne-Westland Education Association Monday directed union leaders to seek a mediator for the ongoing negotiations.

About 800 teachers approved the motion by a voice vote during an early-morning meeting in the Wayne Memorial High School auditorium.

The teachers, working without a contract since the start of school Aug. 27, also authorized a strike if negotiations are unsuccessful. No strike date was set.

The initial motion by the union's bargaining committee to extend the expired contract and continue negotiating through June was withdrawn for lack of support.

A MEDIATOR will be supplied by the Michigan Employment Relations Commission at state expense and talks will resume "as soon as everyone can get their schedules in synch," said Stewart Slatkin, school district attorney.

The mediator will have a labor relations background but won't necessarily be an attorney, Slatkin said.

"(Mediators) are helpful, but they don't bring any money of their own (for salary increases)," Slatkin said.

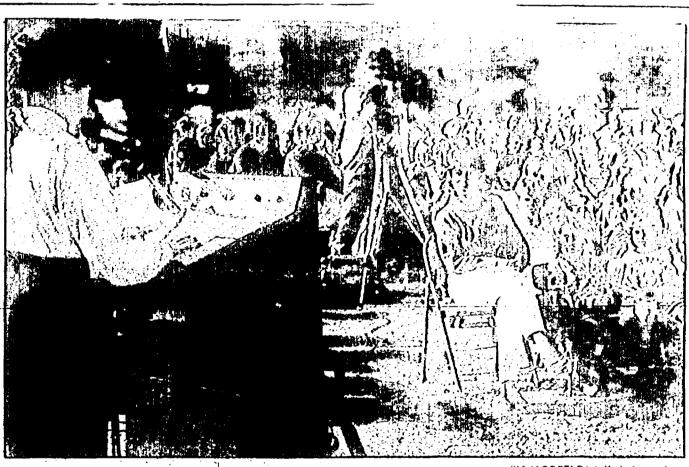

Mediators can offer creative solutions, make suggestions to both sides and inject new ideas into contract talks, Slatkin said. "It (mediation) gets you talking out loud," he said.

Svitkovich said the short break this week would give representatives from both sides in the 16,000-student district a chance to recover from marathon talks last weekend.

He said he felt both sides "made good progress" during the weekend session, which ended just before the teachers' 6 a.m. meeting.

Bill Reece, WWEA president, agreed Monday that there was progress, but said the sticking points were the same issues both sides have been discussing for months.

Those issues include salary, fringe benefits and preparation time for the district's 1,050 full- and parttime teachers.

Perfect fall weather greeted parents, students and school officials who attended groundbreaking ceremonies Tuesday for a new instructional materials center at Nankin Mills-Elementary in Westland. During the ceremony, Megan Shaw read her essay. "What IMC's mean to me." All sixth graders wrote essays but time constraints permitted the reading of only two, Megan's and Ryan

Consumers to feel pinch of tax hikes

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Local taxpayers will be shocked at the impact the deficit-reduction bill will have on their wallets, some area tax experts predicted Tuesday.

While the income tax bite will remain unchanged or go up slightly on most local residents, those in middle- and upper-income households will be affected the hardest, they - may be facing," Hendel added.

At the same time, virtually every American will feel the pinch of tax hikes on such items as gasoline, alcohol and cigarettes.

Analysis this week continued to sift through the details of the budget Congress approved Saturday after a month of wrangling that angered constituents back home.

"IT'S DEFINITELY A tax increase that will hit heavy in the middle- and upper-income brackets. I think it's going to surprise people how really heavy it will hit," said Gregory Hendel, a tax expert with the Detroit firm of KPMG Peat Marwick.

"I don't think it's really sunk in for most people how big of a change we

Many taxpayers will be placed in a higher tax bracket under the plan that will increase the top tax rate to 31 percent from 28 percent. Some also will be hurt by plans to reduce itemized deductions and phase out exemptions for upper-income taxpayers.

Some experts, however, doubt that Income tax-rate changes will have much affect on middle-income households.

"I deal with a lot of middle America, and from what I'm hearing the (tax-bracket changes) aren't going to hit Mom and Dad Lunchbucket that hard," said Phyllis Wordhouse, president of the Plymouth-based Wordhouse & Associates, a financial planning firm that also teaches adult money-management courses in such communities as Livonia, Farmington Hills and Westland.

Middle-income Americans will be hit harder by the consumer-based taxes, including gasoline, as opposed to the income tax-rate changes, she indicated.

Nankin Mills School breaks ground for library

By Mario Chestney and Leonard Poger staff writers

Mills Elementary in Westland. School officials described it as an "historic" project. The 4,500-square-foot addition actually was started a month ago. The Tuesday ceremony was included 418 students, plus their teachers and parents, most of whom were dressed in the school's colors of red in the summer for use next fall.

Three converted classrooms at. the school are now used to house books. When the new library is open, it will free up those rooms.

That change is important, said principal Paul Derwich, because it reflects the enrollment growth in that portion of the Livonia school district. The school's enrollment has grown by about 50 pupils in the past four years.

"THE NEW IMC will allow us to do more enrichment things with the youngsters," such as performing arts activities, Derwich said. "The space in the three classrooms is small, and we can't put equipment in there."

The library should be finished and the books moved in by September, when school starts. Over the summer, the three rooms now used as the library will be converted back to classrooms.

The addition is being built on the southeast corner of the school at 8100 Hubbard Drive at Ann Arbor

The three extra classrooms should give the school enough space because the enrollment jump

Incumbent, challenger express views on issues

It's incumbent Kay Beard, D-Inkster, versus GOP challenger Gerald Cox of Garden City in the 12th District Wayne County Com-

Garden City and Westland voters will choose their county representative during the general election on Tuesday, Nov. 6.

Beard has been a county commissioner since 1978. She is the chairwoman of the commission's audit committee and special committee on veterans' services. In 1989, she was chosen "Commissloner of the Year" by the Michigan Association of Countles.

Cox is retired. He is a former assistant professor at Wayne State University and also taught in the Detroit Schools. He was a Schoolcraft College trustee from 1973 to 1979 and challenged Beard for the commission seat in 1988.

Candidate responses to an Observer election questionnaire appear on page 2A.

The 12th district includes Garden City, Westland and Inkster.

County commissioners serve two-year terms. The annual salary will be a minimum $41,398 beginning in 1991.

Resident, 37, charged in Oct. 20 hit-and-run fatal

Police have charged a 37-year-old Westland man in connection with an Oct. 20 hit-and-run fatal accident at Cherry Hill near Merriman.

The man, whom police declined to name, is facing one count of manslaughter and one count of leaving the scene of a fatal accident.

Arraignment is pending and could be held by the end of the week, sald officer Jon Handzlik of the Westland police traffic bureau. "He's still in the area but not available for arraignment yet," Handzlik sald.

Gary Seguin, 36, of Westland.

Killed in the accident was Robin

Seguin was walking south across Cherry Hill, east of Merriman when he was struck by a passing car about 1:15 a.m., police said.

His body was discovered about 90 minutes later by another motorist, police sald.

Handzlik said police questioned the suspect after seizing his car by search warrant. Evidence found at the scene and examined by the Michigan State Police was used to identify the car involved in the accident, Handzlik sald.

The suspect admitted involvement in the incident during an interview with police, Handzlik said.

A: The public needs more parking space at the airport, which the bond issue addresses. It would be unfortunate if this failed, because of the very real hoise problems for those of us living near the airport. The FAA should restore the former take-off patterns until new quieter planes are built, hours should be restricted, berms built, etc., to help alleviate the problem.

Experts predict families will feel pinch of deficit

"If they're saving money for a trip to Grandma's house at Christmas, they might want to make some (spending) cutbacks now," Wordhouse sald.

AS PART OF the new tax rates, the deficit-reduction bill will eliminate the so-called "tax bubble" that taxes joint-filer incomes of $78,400 to $185,760 at 33 percent. While that will help some taxpayers, their gains may be offset by losses in itemized deductions and exemptions, said Jack Reinhart, a Troy tax expert and partner in the Detroit firm of Deivitte & Touche.

Although the bill sets a top tax rate of 31 percent, Reinhart said, "you might still be in a higher tax rate, in effect, because of the elimination of exemptions."

Reinhart provided some examples of how an average married couple with two children will be affected under the tax plan. A couple with a $30,000 income would pay about the same amount as before in income taxes, he said, while a couple earning $75,000 would pay an additional

A couple whose income is $150,000 would pay about $819 more in taxes, while a couple earning $1 million would see a tax increase of $29,068, Reinhard sald. He said he doubted that the tax increases could be offset much by changes in how taxpayers invest their money.

However, Aggie Monfette, investment counselor with A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc., disagreed, though she said that the majority of her upper-income clients "have always had a tax problem."

ALTHOUGH TAXPAYERS will have fewer write-offs, those who have newer write-ons, those who have money to invest will be able to virtually offset their tax increases by investing in tax-deferred annuities, municipal bonds and retirement plans, Monfette said.

In addition to advising her clients to make those kinds of investments, Monfette said, she also said she will tell them to look to the stock market.

"The stock market is on sale right now," she said.

Youngsters send special greetings to U.S. military

OUNGSTERS AT a Gerber Children's Center in Westland are making sure American service men and women are kept in touch with their supporters back home.

With help from teachers, the preschoolers packed boxes to be sent to military personnel in the Persian Gulf, stationed there as part of Operation Desert Shield.

The children drew pictures and baked cookies Monday morning for the service men and women.

Other items were donated by parents of the preschoolers in the move to boost the morale of the military personnel.

The children's center is on Ann Arbor Trail near Hubbard.

Students picking up Earth Day message

By Marlo Chestney staff writer

Earth Day has come and gone and, in the midst of a national budget crisis and looming recession, news stories about the environment have just about disappeared.

For some Churchill High students, however, the precarious future of planet Earth is one of the big topics of conversation.

Listen in as members of the student environmental activist group, STAND UP, talk during a recent meeting at the school which serves northwest Westland: "Learning Carly Taylor. "It all makes me wonder - what's going on?"

But the problem is solveable, insists Christine Hamada, and that's because young people are willing to admit that the problem exists.

YOUNG PEOPLE also are more idealistic and believe solutions can be found, suggests Bill Schlimme.

Eric Walter thinks some older people don't worry much about environmental problems because they won't be around in the mid-21st cen-

But Danielle Hall is not that pessimistic about the older generation. "Some do care and they do it (get involved) for their kids' future." Jeff Rice gave reasons why adults could be excused for not fully understanding the magnitude of the state of planet Earth. "Adults grew up in a throwaway about what's wrong with the envi- society and they're used to seeing ronment has been scary," begins people abuse the earth. The problem wasn't recognized until recently."

> That gives us our mission, says Amy Johnson. The younger generation has to get the environmental message out into the schools and into their community.

Adds Kiran Chaudhri: "Our parents are too busy. It's up to us."

Those last four words just about sums up the mission of STAND UP, a student group formed by three Churchill students (Allison Jatezak, Amy Johnson and Julie Newkirk) in January 1990.

"We want to stand up and get involved," said Allison, who has even pumped some of her own money into the group to help pay expenses. "Young people are the key. We're inheriting the Earth and we have to take care of it. All of us here are working together toward that common goal."

WHILE JUST a fledgling group, STAND UP has attracted major groups in the environmental movement to attend an Ecofair the group is holding Nov. 17 at the school on Newburgh, north of Joy. The fundraiser will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

International organizations to be represented include Greenpeace, Global Relief, Rain Forest Action Movement, Sane Freeze, American Lung Association and Amnesty International.

Local or Michigan organizations sending representatives include Friends of the Rouge, Livonia Citizens for Recycling, Michigan Humane Society, PIRGIM, Don't Waste Michigan and the Good Food Company.

Some of the groups are sending speakers who will tell what their group is doing to help the environment. All groups will have tables filled with information on how the average person can help save the environment.

"We hope everyone will come," said Allison. "Admission is free, but parking costs two recyclables; or a small donation to raise money for STAND UP."

Any environmental group wanting to participate in the Ecofair should call Allison at 425-9233 between 4-11 p.m. or Amy Johnson at 525-0152.

Clowns and eco-games will be on hand to help entertain youngsters.

CHURCHILL, STEVENSON and Franklin high students also plan to appear in January 1991 before the Livonia Board of Education to ask the district to press for certain environmental actions in the district which serves the northern section of Westland.

The students will suggest actions ranging from a districtwide paper recycling program to the eliminatainers in cafeterias.

So far, students from STAND UP have worked in Rouge Rescue '90 and the Holliday Park nature preserve cleanup.

STAND UP members just don't talk about helping the environment. All have incorporated some type of action in their everyday life.

Most have gotten their own families to recycle the family trash.

Julie Newkirk and Kiran Chaudhri walk a lot more now than they use

While shopping, Amy Johnson, Danielle Hall, Fran Priebe and Dawn Purdon pick products that can easily be recycled and avoid products harmful to the environment.

Jeff Rice and Carla Taylor donate to Greenpeace. Bill Chavelas makes sure he doesn't litter. He also packs groceries in paper bags at the store where he works. Melissa Jurkowski recycles the extra newspapers she doesn't deliver on her newspaper route.

Bill Schlimme keeps himself informed about environmental issues.

Schools urged back to basics

By Marie Chestney staff writer

As the Livonia school district moves toward the 21st Century, the district should give its students a firm foundation in such educational basics as reading, problem-solving and phonics.

That was one of the messages that emerged recently during a public hearing held by the school board, which represents the northern section of Westland, to help set the district's goals for the years ahead.

Many of the 23 parents who spoke to Superintendent Joseph Marinelli and school board trustees echoed some version of these words from a Munger resident.

"My son can't compose a fine paragraph. He can't express his thoughts on paper. The basics shouldn't be skimmed over too light-corporate suggestions made by need to get back to the basics." teachers, residents' and business, community and college leaders in even start a magnet school where setting its agenda for the years only the basics are taught.

Livonia School District

The Livonia School District includes the northern section of Westland.

Suggestions are now being made in meetings held by the district throughout the city:

Few of the residents who spoke suggested the district take steps to launch bold programs. Instead, most wanted the district to fine tune educational techniques that have long been in place but apparently aren't being mastered by many of today's students.

"Now kids can't solve story prob-DISTRICT OFFICIALS plan to in- lems," said a Woodside mother. "We

One father suggested the district

"It would be the opposite of ACAT

(magnet school for academically talented). They'd get basic English, learn arithmetic without the aid of calculators, they'd learn phonicsbased reading. The non-academic subjects would be removed."

SEVERAL RESIDENTS employed by local industries told of the troubles business have today hiring qualified workers. "Education iş too structured," said a resident who works for Ford Motor Co. "Industry is not looking for structured individuals. They have to be free-thinking."

Added another resident, who works as a UAW-Ford training coordinator: "When you get done with them, I get them, and I'm concerned about the math-writing skills of students."

Graduates today, he said, don't know how to work as a member of a team and don't know how to "problem-solve."

His wife, who works as an adult reading specialist, said students today need better communication, reading and research skills.

A LANSING man, 25, was treated and released early Sunday from Annapolis Hospital for unspecified injuries suffered during a fight outside Rumorz nightclub, police reported. A second man refused medical treatment, police said. Officers on patroi said they saw several people involved in a scuffle outside the east door of the nightclub, 450 S. Merriman, shortly after 1 a.m.

After calling for assistance, officers broke up the melee, according to police reports.

Neither participant wished to press charges, police said. Witnesses told police the fight began inside the nightclub and then continued in the parking lot, where both men went to get guns from their cars. Police confiscated one weapon, a 9-mm pistol, from the trunk of the car belonging to the second

Beard heavy favorite in 12th District

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Kay Beard can be forgiven if she feels her toughest race is behind her. Beard, 12th District county commissioner, survived a crowded Democratic Party primary, and is a heavy favorite to return to the commission in the Nov. 6 general elec-

"I'd say, yes, the primary was the toughest race — definitely," said Beard, D-Inkster.

The district also includes Westland and Garden City. While Gerald Cox of Garden City, her GOP rival, dreams of an upset, he's also realistic about his chances.

COX, WHO lost to Beard in at least two previous races, shrugs off his lack of success in the heavily Democratic district.

"If I lose, so what?" he said. "Somebody has to be there and I'm the one who's upholding the party's end of it."

Beard said she believes her opponent is running to become a state Republican convention delegate two years from now. Cox, however, said that wasn't the case. He makes no bones, however, about being a dedicated GOP foot soldier.

"I'm the guy who has the Republi-

Cox was a Schoolcraft College trustee 1973-79. A retiree, he taught in the Detroit Public Schools and was involved in the insurance business in Garden City.

BEARD IS currently chairwoman of the commission's audit committee and a member of its health and Human Services Committee.

A commissioner since 1978, she has also served as chairwoman of the Human Resources Committee and has been involved in numerous health care, veterans and senior citizens committees at the county, state and regional level.

Beard defeated two strong challengers, Westland councilwoman Terri Reighard Johnson and Inkster school board member Hilliard Hampton Jr., in the August party primary. Strained relations between the commissioner and county Executive Edward McNamara were a key issue in that race, though Beard's longstanding ties to area unions and rank-and-file Democrats helped carry her to victory.

"I think voters were looking for someone who was an independent voice," she said.

Board names vary, their duties do not

Not all Michigan universities have publicly elected governing bodies, just its three largest.

The University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University are each governed by an eight-member board. Officials are called regents at the U.M. trustees at MSU and governors at WSU.

Each board makes policy for the university and is responsible for overseeing curriculum and budget matters.

Candidates for each are appointed at party conventions. Voters will vote for two candidates for each university but can split tick-

Annual expenditures at U-M were $1.34 billion in 1987-88, the last year for which figures are available. MSU expenditures were $628 million for the same period. At WSU, expenditures were $292 million. Appointment of a new athletic director at MSU and creation of anti-racism classes at U-M have focused new attention on university board activities.

University board members are not paid but receive reimbursement for expenses.

MSU's Board of Trustees includes Dean Pridgeon, Montgomery; Kathy Wilbur, East Lansing; Joel Ferguson, Lansing; Barbara J. Sawyer, East Lansing, Thomas Reed, East Lansing; and Robert E. Weiss, Grand Blanc.

The WSU Board of Governors includes: C. Gary Artinian, Bloomfield Township, George N. Bashara Jr., Grosse Pointe Shores; Leon H. Atchinson, Detroit; Robert H. Naftaly, Southfield; Murray Jackson, Detroit; and Richard C. Van Dusen, Birmingham.

An eight-year term awaits the winners.

One third-party candidate is also on the ballot.

The board's 5-3 vote in January to appoint football coach George school into a wave of controversy involving President John DiBiaggio, who opposed the dual role:

Owen said the university needs to focus on keeping tuition within inflation. He said the Perles Issue is moot. Owen and Democrat Malcolm Dade, who is not seeking re-election, , division. voted to hire Perles against DiBiaggio's wishes.

Doss has refused to say how he would have voted on Perles' appoint-

Republican Cook said she would have supported DiBiaggio, saying the chief administrator should be able to choose his team. Shingleton pledges to ease tensions between the board and the president.

The candidates agreed that funding needs to be improved at the state level to keep tuition affordable.

Gov. James Blanchard threatened to cut state aid for the 1990-91 for universities that exceeded the inflation rate of 6.5 percent in tuition in-

Michigan Budget Director Shelby Solomon said Michigan State increased tuition by 7.2 percent and the state initially withheld some funding but has since allocated the money. The University of Michigan and Wayne State stayed within the guideline this year, he said.

FOOD LOVER'S DIET

To introduce a new approach to dieting, free diet pills were given to 50 people. With The Omicron Diet, one man lost 14 pounds in 5 days and one woman lost 18 pounds in 10 days. The average weight loss was over a pound a day for women and over 2 pounds a day for men. The Omicron Diet is a revolutionary new concept for unbelievably fast weight loss developed and clinically proven by National Dietary Research of Washington, D.C. This significant breakthrough in metabolic weight control was made possible by the utilization of biological information overlooked by other diet programs. With a formulation of natural enzymes along with real food, you shed unwanted pounds extremely rapidly and safely.

Maintain your new weight forever without dieting!!!!!!

With the special enzyme formula Metabolase, it is now possible to reduce your usual weight by up to 10% or to maintain the weight loss after dieting, without changing your normal lifestyle or eating habits. Available through physicians since 1982, the enzyme formula is now available in pharmacles without a prescription. Start enjoying the foods you love to eat without fear of gaining weight. lated agencies. The cost to taxpayers is more than 14 percent over the comparable 1990 bill. The budget for HHS will rise to $146.2 billion (up 17 percent), Education to $27.4 billion (up 13 percent) and Labor to $7.5 billion (up 11 percent): Though much higher than the year before, these budgets do not violate the five-year, $500 billion deficit-reduction legislation. This shows that the touted $300 million "savings" or "cuts" on the expenditure side of the deficit bill are not true reductions but only a slowing of planned spending growth. Only the post-Cold War defense budget among the 13 appropriations bills is lower in 1991 than Congress' Own Budget - By a vote of 249 for and 161 against, the House cut two percent, about $35 million, from the fiscal 1991 budget for Congress and its agencies. The cut was made in proposed spending of about $1.74 billion for all congressional operations except the Senate, which later added its own budget. When the bill emerged from the Senate (below), its cost was $2.08 billion, about five percent over the comparable 1990 bill. Salaries for lawmakers and staff, mailing costs, travel and expense accounts are among the hundreds of items funded by the legislative branch appropriations bill (HR 5399).

Supporter Nancy Johnson, R-Conn., said House members should show the same fiscal discipline they ask of their constituents.

Opponent Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., said "there is no need for this two percent cut. We are already down to the bones on this one . . .'

Pork Barrel — By a vote of 232 for and 167 against, the House transferred $54 million destined for lowincome housing to about five dozen special interest projects, most of which benefit the districts of members of the congressional appropriations committees. Critics said the community development projects were not requested by the Department of Housing and Urban Development or subjected to the authorization hurdle that is supposed to be cleared in advance of appropriations. The vote occurred as the House approved the conference report on a fiscal 1991 appropriations bill (HR 5158) for HUD and the Department of Veterans Affair.

Bob Traxler, D-Mich., whose district would get nearly $800,000 for bridge lighting, said "the infrastructure of America . . . is what we are working to build here. It is not some so-called pork effort."

Opponent Harris Fawell, R-Ill., called the expenditure "$54 million of pork" for members with clout.

Civil Rights Veto — By a vote of 66 for and 34 against, the Senate failed to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to overturn President Bush's veto of a bill designed to strengthen federal law against discrimination in the workplace. Bush contended employers would have to adopt hiring and promotion quotas to avoid being sued by women, minorities and others the bill sought to pro-

Override supporter Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said "the president has taken the low road on civil rights. But that is no reason for the Senate to do the same."

Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said "the is still a quota bill and still a litigation bonanza for lawyers." A yes vote supported the Civil Rights Act of 1990. Voting yes were Michigan's Democratic Senators Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

Federal Arts Funding - By a vote of 29 for and 70 against, the Senate refused to deny federal money for arts projects that "depict or de-scribe, in a patently offensive way, sexual or excretory activities or organs." The amendment was offered to legislation funding the National Endowment of the Arts. As later approved as part of HR 5789, a fiscal 1991 appropriations bill, the measure leaves obscenity judgments to the courts. But it requires artists to repay grants if courts rule they have run afoul of obscenity or child pornography laws.

Housing market slows down, but home prices are going up

Michigan housing sales dropped 2 percent during the third quarter compared to the same period a year ago, the Michigan Association of Realtors reported this week. But most areas reported price increases.

It blamed sagging consumer confidence, due in part to the struggle over the federal budget and the Mideast crisis.

Some potential buyers are taking a "wait and see" approach before moving up the housebuying ladder, reported Mel Durbin, president of the 23,000-member association.

"However, despite our recent downturn, Michigan's housing market is still a favorable market, with the average price of $82,938 well below the national average of $120,500, Durbin said.

Voters also to pick two for state board

In addition to voting for university board members, voters will also elect state board of education mem-

Two positions for eight-year terms are open on the state Board of Education; Michigan State University Board of Trustees; University of Michigan Board of Regents; and Wayne State University Board of Governors.

The Michigan Board of Education's Democratic incumbents, Rollie Hopgood of Taylor and Barbara Roberts Mason of Lansing, are being challenged by Republican nominees Dick DeVos of Grand Rapids and Lowell Perry of Southfield. A win by either challenger could tilt the political orientation of the eight-member board toward the GOP. Members were split along party lines 4-4 earlier this year over a Superintendent of Public Instruction Don Bernis.

Democrats praised him for new programs including hiring women and minorities. Republicans criticized him as a mediocre manager who lacks vision. His contract was renewed for a year due to a legal technicality.

DeVos said the split puts the board in limbo. He supports putting more decision-making authority into the districts to allow for more problemsolving creativity.

Mason and Hopgood blame the legislature for district spending discrepancies. Mason said the state should set program priorities and ensure funding for the most important.

Also vying for the two terms are Tisch candidates Fayanne Kaufman and Robert Tisch, and Libertarian candidates Mary Ruwart and Gwendoline Stillwell.

In mainstream Incumbents deserve support

FOCAL VOTERS will go to the polls Tuesday to make a host of political decisions. While the candidates for the governor's office and the U.S. Senate are getting most of the media attention, there are other offices on the Tuesday ballot that are important.

Locally, most of the political energies have been expanded in the U.S. House, state House and county commission campaigns.

On a lesser level, a district judge is being challenged by a newcomer, while our state senator is unopposed.

In summing up our endorsements, we urge voters to return U.S. Rep. William Ford, state Reps. Justine Barns and William Keith, county commissioner Kay Beard, and District Judge Thomas Smith for re-election.

State Sen. William Faust, first elected 24 years ago, is unopposed for a seventh term.

It's no surprise that all of the candidates endorsed for re-election are incumbents.

While the budget crisis in Washington, D.C., which has supported Democrats since the 1950s.

gives incumbents a bad image, the officials who represent Westland have been sensitive to the needs of local residents.

On a positive note, we're pleased that Republican challengers Burl Adkins (opposing Rep. Ford), Kenneth Raupp, (running against Rep. Barns), Gerald Cox (who wants Beard's seat) and Samuel Ayyash (seeking the court seat against Smith) have presented a more vigorous approach than previous challengers.

But the incumbents seem to be more in the mainstream of political thinking. Ford, Barns and Keith have emphasized strengthening educational programs, a high priority for the community's blue-collar families.

If Democratic incumbents are portrayed by opponents as the "liberal-tax-and-spend" officials, it's because most local voters benefit from those spending policies.

It's not fair, but it's real life in Westland,

Once again, we encourage county voters to vote yes on the bonds.

The bonds include money for a new parking structure, a new runway, new water retention ponds and an anti-noise berm.

ONE IMPORTANT fact: The bonds don't involve an increase in county taxes. They will be paid for by airlines using Metro, not county tax-

> BUT THERE'S nothing in the bond issue that would directly address noise concerns.

The bonds are part of a $1.5 billion project expected to expand and renovate Metro — making it better able to serve the estimated 15 million people who will be passing through its gates by the mid-1990s.

Rejecting the bonds would delay Metro's growth and modernization. More important, it would also delay the spinoff benefit in new airport-related jobs and industry expected to revitalize our area's economic base.

That's a risk we believe county voters should Simply put, the bond issue represents a way for county residents to improve county finances without raising taxes.

For that reason, we encourage county voters to vote yes on the county airport bond issue.

Vote for Ford

But race is a disappointment

TNLESS THERE IS a monumental political upset, William D. Ford, D-Taylor, will likely return to Congress after the Nov. 6 general election.

By doing so, he'll continue to represent the 15th District, southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton.

In itself, this isn't a bad thing. The 25-year Congressman will become chairman of the powerful House Committee on Education and Labor with re-election. From there, we hope, he will strongly influence education policy — not just securing more money, but helping define creative new education programs.

Nonetheless, the 15th district race, in many ways, points out what is wrong with our elective

Burl Adkins, Ford's GOP challenger, is a sincere candidate, but is running a relatively low budget "word of mouth" campaign. Adkins, a Southgate businessman, is receiving minimal support, at best, from state party members - sition. where are they?

Neither major party candidate impressed us with their positions on the federal deficit, Washington's most pressing issue during the campaign.

Ford, we believe, was too eager to raise taxes; Adkins too eager to cut programs, without offering specifics beyond a list of some small-scale "pork barrel" projects.

A series of district-wide debates would have helped all candidates shape their positions, but that's not likely now.

Media must do more to raise voter turnout

NEXT TUESDAY is election day. In a day or two we will be inundated with well-intentioned urgings to get out and vote, together with observations about democratic elections being the basis of our democratic freedoms. All true, of course.

At the same time, odds are that voter turnout will be very low. This is nothing new; voter turnout falls every election. At the same time, there is something very troubling about electing governors, state répresentatives and judges when less than half of those eligible actually

There's a contradiction here: the value we profess for voting versus the reality of low voter turnout.

THERE IS NO better illustration of this contradiction than the results of a poll of attitudes toward judicial elections as reported in last week's issue of Inside Michigan Politics, a useful—and—informative newsletter published by Bill Ballenger.

The first question asked 800 voters how much they felt they knew about candidates for judge and what the candidates stood for. Only 3 percent felt they knew a great deal, and another 19 percent thought they knew a fair amount. More than half (57 percent) said they knew "very little," and one voter of every five (21 percent) admitted knowing "nothing at all" about candidates for the bench.

These findings certainly confirm the widespread suspicion of vast ignorance of the various candidates for Michigan judicial offices locally (circuit, district and probate judges) and statewide (Court of Appeals and Supreme Court).

The second question asked whether, given the fact that most knew very little about judicial candidates, it would be better to appoint judges. The answer: a resounding

There is something very troubling about electing governors, state representatives and judges when less than half of those eligible actually vote.

"No." Sixty-four percent favored election, 30 percent preferred appointment, and 4 percent preferred some combination of appointment and election.

THIS IS A strange and contradictory result. What can explain it?

Simple. Even though voters realize they know little about who is running, they don't want to turn over the power to select judges to the political establishment, be it the governor, the Legislature, the courts or the State Bar Association.

Look at the detail. Excepting people who vote straight Republican (and who can be expected to view appointment by Democratic Gov. Blanchard as a bad idea), the groups most strongly favoring continued election in ignorance were those at the fringes of our political system. They included lower-income blue collar workers, those not married but with children, and those whose family income was less than $10,000.

BUT I THINK there is something more.

For one thing, I sense a profound distrust of the way the political establishment works. A big majority of people admit they know almost nothing about judicial candidates. But they don't want anybody else's hand on the election process. Governors and legislatures and courts may be tolerable in the abstract, but people seem to be saying they don't want them messing with their right to direct election. In reporting widespread ignorance, the data also portray a profound failure of the news media to do their jobs in covering the nonglamorous but profoundly important political contests for offices like

It's easy and fun to report on the sexy races like governor and senator. But how much coverage did you see on TV, hear on the radio or read in the big daily papers about judicial races and qualifications of the candidates? Not much. I'm even dissatisfied with the local coverage this newspaper has provided. It's hard to say it, but I think it's true. In practice, we in the news media have abdicated our professional responsibility to report on the daily grind of politics at all levels to the easy-to-prepare but next-to-useless voters guides and summary wrap-up stories.

So the next time you run into a self-satisfied editor or reporter blaming the politicians for the mess we're in, just ask them how much coverage they devoted to the race for local district judge.

Resignation is praised

Open letter to the Wayne/Westland Board of Education:

It was with great pleasure I read news of Mr. (Kenneth) Barnhill's resignation. He admits he has watched "this district decline in size, stature and educational quality." For a change, Mr. Barnhill and I agree on something. However, I also have to point out that these changes took place under his leadership.

The board, administration, and teachers' union has insisted all these problems are due to the failure of this community to increase our taxes. I insist you look to yourselves.

One of the reasons given for our district's problems is the old reliable "declining enrollment." Come on now! How many of those missing students never really existed? How many were created through "sloppy record keeping?" How many were really students at St. Mary's that you were counting illegally?

IS THIS community to believe that none of you knows what this cost us? Did you pass out blank checks and then never look to see how much was filled in? This school board and administration must take full responsibility for this incident.

I remember attending informational meetings where (former superintendent) Timothy Dyer tried to convince this community that our school district was so wealthy it could support an entire community college without affecting our K-12 programs. What happened?

Just a few years ago this school district was wealthy with an excellent reputation. We had excellent, quality educational programs and our teachers were among the highest paid in the U.S. What happened?

Under your leadership we are now teetering on the brink of disaster. We can't provide our children with a full day of school. Our children can't participate in extracurricular activities unless they are wealthy enough to buy their way in. Our fine arts program is in shambles and we can't af-

THROUGH COSTLY and irreversible errors in judgment you, the school board, have deservedly lost the faith and confidence of this community. When you ask us for more : money and say "it's for the kids," we

"This district has declined in size. stature and educational quality." Yes, it has, but you were in the leadership rolls. It was your duty to protect our district and you have falled ? miscrably. You have failed our community, our children and even our teachers.

I guess maybe you are right to 3 blame the voters. After all, we are the ones that trusted you with something so valuable.

Abortion issue blurs party lines

POLITICAL PARTY LINES are becoming more and more irrelevant. For years, I saw my husband, who grew up in Republican Ohio, claim he was a Republican, although what came out of his mouth sounded like Michigan Democrat to me.

In the heavily Republican sections of Oakland County, Democrats traditionally have had no choice but to vote Republican for local offices and representation or find themselves without a voice.

And a defeated Republican primary candidate, Debbie Schlussel, continues to challenge her party's nominee, Barbara Dobb, in the West Bloomfield area's state House race. She is asking voters to write her name in.

On Sunday the head of the National Abortion Rights Action League flew into Troy from Washington to tell 50 Republican pro-choicers to cross party lines and vote for Gov. Jim Blanchard.

"In Michigan, you face as stark a choice as any," Kate Michelman told her audience. "John Engler has abandoned all of you - it is quite fitting that you abandon him."

He's got time on his hands for a change

IT'S 2 A.M. Sunday. The alarm clock goes off.

I jump out of bed and turn on the lights.

'It's 2 a.m.," I say. "Time to set back the clocks."

"OK, dear," my wife says. "I'll change the one in here. You get the ones downstairs." "Deal," I say, "but first . . . . "

I'm pounding on the door to my son's room. "It's 2 a.m. Time to set your clock back.' "Thanks, dad," comes a cheerful voice from behind the door. It's the last Sunday in October in a typical American household. Time for the semiannual ritual of going on (or off) Daylight Saving Time.

And if you believe any of this, I've got some oil leases just off the Louisiana coast and I'm ready to deal. Here's what really happens.

THE SUN IS peeking through the bedroom window and the daughter, who has just turned 7 and is still convinced that she's supposed to get up when the clock strikes her age. comes bounding into the bedroom and dives into the water bed.

Still later, in the van on the way to the library. The digital clock glows in dull green that it's 12:42 p.m. Actually it's 11:42 a.m., but everytime I try to change it I tune in another golden oldies station. Forget it. I'll just remember to subtract an hour from whatever it says.

The next day, arriving at work at exactly 9 a.m. (on time for a change), I log in to the computer. According to the numbers in the lowerright corner of the screen, it's 8 a.m. Oh, geez. How do I change this one?

While I'm pondering that, the phone rings. I grab it before it goes into voice mail. It's my wife. She's at "Do you know how to change the

What was learned and what was forgotten goes into your computer, your brain. This learning is called "latent learning" and can be recalled, with a minimum review, once a need for such information arises.

But what was not learned cannot be stored in any computer let alone the brain. Therefore the teacher is using very poor judgment.

Can you imagine the football coach calling a time out at a Friday night game, calling his team over for a conference and saying, "Run Play XY." The players say, "But coach, we haven't learned that play, yet." "Run it anyway, I want to see if you have done any extra credit play studying this week on your own." Give me a break!

Point out the unfairness of testing on unassigned information. You will be doing him a favor. Our quality teachers became that way because they learned and grew from their youthful oversights.

Besides the principal is probably already aware of the situation, and it is hoped has counseled him while wondering if he should extend his probationary period, let alone consider tenure.

Get ready for the big traffic jam, it's coming

By Tim Richard staff writer

You'll be driving longer and enjoying it less by the year 2010.

With 6 percent more people, southeast Michigan will have: • 19 percent more households and 18 percent more jobs, • 40 percent more land built on.

• 40 percent more vehicle traffic but minimal road expansion.

• 50 percent longer vehicle trips because of more start-stop traffic.

The culprit will be "urban sprawl," members of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments were told last week - more vacant land going into development, at a pace faster than population growth, with developed land, streets, water and sewer lines left unused.

THAT GRIM outline of what "business as usual" will do to the seven-county region around Detroit was painted by Edward Hustoles, SEMCOG's chief planner, and Marilynn Gosling, co-chair of SEMCOG's Regional Development Initiative Committee. SEMCOG's general assembly met Thursday in Livonia.

"Business as usual" means the kind of bulldozer growth the region has seen since World War I in which a handful of developers make major decisions and fragmented local governments acquiesce.

SEMCOG will study in the next year. The study was prompted by the city of Auburn Hills' decision to allow development of a megamall drawing traffic from 50 miles to rural countryside and a wetland, with older neighboring communities voiceless.

"This situation to date has resulted from a fragmented reaction to a market-driven development pattern," said Gosling, an Oakland County commissioner from Bloomfield Hills.

"Decisions are made by literally thousands of individuals, firms and governments. Each decision in itself may be logical, but those decisions generally are without consider of eithr the immediate long-term impacts on surrounding communities, counties and the region."

BESIDES GOBBLING up farmland, Gosling told SEMCOG delegates, urban sprawl will mean shifting of population with little gain, longer commutes, a widening gap between the location of low-wage, entry level jobs and people who need such jobs — and more taxes to replace unused infrastructure.

Hustoles filled in some of the de-

"We can't build our way out," said Hustoles.

The goal will be to project nelther a 'doomsday' nor a 'rosy' picture of the future. Rather, we will seek a realistic 'trend' forecast," he SEMCOG planners will hold a series of six workshops to particular issues such as transportation and environment.

A final report to the general assembly is due in October of 1991.

"URBAN SPRAWL" has been denounced politically for years, particularly by Gov. William G. Milliken in the 1970s.

SEMCOG's elected leaders put the subject on the back burner in 1979 during the recession and scramble to lure "jobs, jobs, jobs." The Auburn Mills project sparked resistance, however, from even such postwar growth suburbs as Southfield and Rochester Hills.

SEMCOG delegates greeted Hustoles' and Gosling's remarks with polite applause and gasps but no public comment.

Traffic improvement plans are neglected—SEMCOG

Many local governments are neglecting traffic engineering — the science of moving vehicles more efficiently and safely than they're doing now.

So says the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, which deplores the 190,000 crashes, 600 deaths, 56,000 injuries and cost of $1.7 billion that occur each year in the seven-county region.

SEMCOG's newly adopted Regional Traffic Safety Policles says:

"Fourteen communities have a population greater than 50,000. For communities this size, the Federal Highway Administration recommends a full-time professional traffic engineer on staff.

"Yet . . . only six employ a fulltime traffic engineer," said the report, offered by Donald Jensen, an Oakland County commissioner from Birmingham.

THE POLICY, adopted unanimously, advocates:

More college programs in, and local use of, traffic engineers.

More truck inspections. Michigan's limit of 1,674,000 pounds is double the limit of any other state. Only three states allow semi-trailer lengths greather than Michigan's 53

Better screening of drivers over age 55. They are twice as likely to be involved in fatal accidents as the 25-54 age group. More roadway design research is needed to understand elderly drivers' reaction times and

Efforts to reduce crashes at highway construction and maintenance work zones, where 4,165 accidents occurred in 1987.

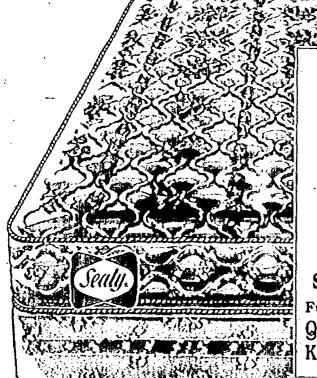

A tighter definition of drunk driving through lowering the allowable blood alcohol content, currently 0.10

Greater consistency in court sentencing of drunk drivers. District judges were praised for their program in this area.

More use of seatbelts, including making failure to wear a belt a "primary" offense for which police may stop a driver.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Holiday greetings that give year-round cheer

HRISTMAS IS NOT coming any earlier this year, it just seems that way.

We're not advocating rushing the season, but we are suggesting Christmas card senders take an early look at the wide array of cards sold by charitable, non-profit agencies to support their various causes. Sending a card that furthers the aims of these organizations, helps keeps the holiday giving message alive all

As a public service the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are offering an easy-way to select those cards.--Beginning today the 13 newspapers will publish samples of available cards with pertinent ordering information. The samples will be used as space permits through the holiday season.

In addition, scrapbooks of the cards will be maintained for browsers at the five O&E offices: 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia; 805 E. Maple, Birmingham; 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington; 410 N. Main, Rochester, and 744 Wing, Plymouth.

Holiday cards featured on this page (clockwise from

Anti-Cruelty Association, 13569 Joseph Campau, Detroit, 48212, and at Pet Supplies Plus in Redford and Farmington. Call 851-1433.

Michigan Cancer Foundation, at any of its 14 locations including 831 W. Huron, Pontiae. Call 332-5620. The Season's Greetings card in the lower right corner is being sold by these two organizations: Nardin Park Braille Transcribers, P.O Box 264, Farmington Hills through Fran Hoetger, 476-4973, or Marilyn Wegienka, 591-2387. Alzheimer's Association, 17251 W. 12 Mile Road, Suite

109, Southfield 48076. Call 557-8277. - Association for Retarded Citizens of Oakland County, 690 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009. Call 646-4522. The dog at the hearth is from UNICEF, Detroit Metro Community Office, 8716 Aquaview, Union Lake 48085. Call 363-2176.

Children's Hospital of Michigan, c/o Avis Beuther, 2351 Greensboro, Troy, 48098. Call 689-1254.

American Cancer Society, 29350 Southfield, Suite 110,

Southfield, 48076. Call 557-5353.

As in years past, about 50 non-profit organizations will show and sell their holiday cards and wrap from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 7 at The Community House in Birmingham, 380 S. Bates. Call 644-5832 for more information.

Lorene

Green

Dear Lorene Green,

I've been reading your column for sometime and wonder if you might be able to help me as you have so many others.

I'm a 38-year-old young woman (right handed) and my life has been a series of fallures and disappointments. I believe I'm intelligent but fine is wonder if you ought is able to only.

The is you have so many allies I've never managed to find anything. 1 was particularly good at. Lack of self-esteem is a major problem.

Any insight into my character through graphology would be greatly appreciated. I'd like to change my life around.

Royal Oak

I can see you are a special young woman. There is not another person just like you anywhere.

The most salient trait in this handwriting is your fine mind. High intelligence is quickly discernible here and is indeed a wonderful gift. Your thinking is geared toward efficlency. You can eliminate unessential steps and get right to the bottom line. You are probably skillful at problem solving, providing you are not emotionally involved.

Among behavioral scientists, there is a basic agreement that the fundamental cause of personality damage is poor self-esteem. We each act as we feel ourselves to be. Thinking and feeling are interrelated and good emotional development is a critical factor for success.

changes in your life is a great beginning. As I see it, the first challenge in your life is a great beginning. As I see it, the first challenge is to examine the reasons for underestimating yourself. I am inclined to think you are your own severest critic. Are you continuing to listen to negative messages you received as a child?

PAST EXPERIENCES have impacted strongly upon your personality. Seemingly, you did not feel you were given the amount of love and support you needed in the formative years. Very early you began to assert your independence, rebelling against the authority figure(s) in your home and probably other areas Desiring to make constructive as well. This resistance to authority still presents a problem for you.

Trust and security are limited in this handwriting. Some unwillingness or incapacity to relate cooperatively in interpersonal relationships may cause you to feel lonely at

An important ingredient for good self-esteem is love. Love is often called a two-way street. To receive it, we must also give it to others. And before we can do this, we must learn to love ourself.

Self-discipline is essential for success in any area of life. This is something you might want to work on. I can see your persistence in the handwriting. I can't help wondering, however, if you are persisting in the same old ways rather than changing to more positive ones. I can also see some unhappiness which comes with the lack of fulfillment you are currently experiencing in your life.

Perhaps it will be of some help to realize that you are not alone. Those who have had an idyllic childhood are somewhat limited in number. But at some point in our adult life it is necessary to face past problems and then put them behind us.

THE PAST IS only good for what we have learned from it. Try to forgive the persons involved in yours as they were probably doing the best they were capable of at the time. I believe it was Benjamin Franklin who said, "Things that hurt in-struct." If we allow ourselves to we can learn from our painful experiences and become stronger as a re-

I would like to recommend two excellent books for your reading -"The Road Less Traveled," written by M. Scott Peck, a Christian psychiatrist, and "Healing the Shame that Binds" by John Bradshaw. Both books address what you are going through and should be helpful, I feel.

I do not know what you have been trained for in the career area. However, with your superior intellect you should be able to do almost anything you set your mind to. Have you considered accounting or investments? You seem to have a natural ability for working with figures and the money they represent.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome. Lorene Green regrets that time does not allow her to mail presonal replies.

new way to detect back pain

By Sue Mason staff writer

When it comes to classifying aches and pains, lower back pain ranks right up there with a toothache. It can take the glow off a good day with its first irritating twinge.

Thirty million Americans suffer from lower back pain. Seven million are treated for it every year, and it is the major cause of lost work time in the country:

strain and goes away within a few days. But for some, the lower back pain doesn't go away. It's chronic and, in some cases, debilitating.

Finding the cause can resemble a game of cat-and-mouse, but doctors have a new tool in their diagnostic arsenal, MRI - the three-dimensional Magnetic Resonance Imaging.

"Magnetic Resonance Imaging is a way of looking at the body without X ray," said Dr. Gordon Sze, chief of neuroradiology at the Yale School of Medicine and attending physician at Sloan Kettering Hospital. "It is a is going on and in some cases, the only way to tell what is going on in the lower back.'

MRI HAS been around for about eight years, but just recently replaced the CT scan as the procedure of choice in scanning the brain and

"YOU CAN see what's going on with the spine far better," Sze said

For many, it's caused muscle at the University of California-San Francisco, where he did his internship, residency and a fellowship. At the time, it wasn't obvious how useful MRI would be as a diagnostic tool, but it was natural for Sze to get involved with it, considering his specialty is X rays of the brain and

About 1,000 large medical centers in the U.S. have MRI. The system carries a hefty price tag - between $132 million and 2 million - partly because it requires a separate building with special shields in the walls to block out exterior radio waves. better way to identify and show what MRI reads those radio waves as interference, similar to the waves on a TV screen, Sze said.

> While patients consume 150ccs of dye for a CT scan, the amount is 11/2 tablespoons for MRI, making it safer for the patient because of fewer side effects, Sze said. Like a CT scan, the patient lays in a tube that actually is a magnet and photographs the body.

The pluses of MRI is that it is simple and easy to do and often leads to a better diagnosis and treatment of a specific problem, Sze said. In the case of a herniated disc, MRI gives the physician an idea of how large it is and on what side it is, Sze said.

THE DOWNSIDE is treatment. Medical management has exploded in the last 15 years and while doctors are able to identify problems earlier with tools like MRI, mammograms and ultrasounds, they may not have better treatment for it, Sze said.

If you have a back problem, don't expect MRI will be the first thing your doctor does. According to Sze, the standard procedure is to get a good health history and perform a physical examination. If there is suspicion of a cause other than a strained muscle, then a referral for MRI may be in order.

"MRI is a diagnostic tool and it works well with the tools of treatment," Sze said. "It's important for the patient to know that there's a new modality, a new way of evaluating back pain and seeing what is

"It certainly can help with a lot of back pain problems."

Husband hollering

Sandy Trott of Westland claims she never practiced for the Michigan State Fair Husband Calling Contest. Well, in her case, no practice makes perfect as Trott won First Place in the annual event at the State Fair. She nearly backed out of the contest at the last minute after registering but was coaxed to follow through. Once on stage, though, Trott let out a call that would wake up all the husbands of Zsa Zsa Gabor."I hope I've never sounded like this before!," said Trott about her high-pitched holler.

They offer a different type of ministry

By Arlene Funke special writer

Debbie Schou was looking to put down new spiritual roots when she heard about the West Plymouth Community Church.

"I was trying to find a place I would be comfortable in," said Schou, 33, of Plymouth Township.

The Rev. Phil Rogers, who established the church three years ago with his wife, Diana, calls West Plymouth Community Church "Your Church for the '90s."

Church services feature such contemporary touches as Christian singers, upbeat sermons and a shunning of traditional trappings such as collection plates and "thou shalt not" messages.

After attending three services at West Plymouth Community Church, "I knew this was the place for me," said " Schou, an engineer and planner at Ford Motor Co.

"We are gearing our church to baby boomers," said Phil Rogers, a Plymouth resident. "They have pretty much rejected the traditional (church) package."

ROGERS USES marketing techniques such as mass' mailings to target people who, for a variety of reasons, aren't affiliated with a church. Schou recalls feeling "intrigued" when she received one of the mailings 21/2 years ago. Schou, who grew up in Livonia, had moved some distance from the Lutheran church she previously had attended.

What piqued Schou's interest was the description of some of the sermon titles, which parodied afternoon TV soap operas: "Daze of Our Lives," and "The Young and the Breathless: How to Have More Energy."

Schou liked what she saw at the services. "The thing that really jumped out at me was its casual atmosphere," she said. "It was real comfortable. I liked it because there aren't any rituals, no hymnals with outdated language, or offering plates." Schou is now an active member. Her husband, Fred Brunk, originally from Birmingham, has been supportive. They have a year-old daughter.

PHIL AND DIANA Rogers, both 30, grew up in the Lansing area and have been married for eight years. Both were raised as Baptists. Phil Rogers' father is a

Phil Rogers did his undergraduate studies at Michigan State University, then headed to Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas, where he earned a master's in divinity. Meanwhile, Diana worked as a TV producer for a Christian television network in Texas.

The couple came to Plymouth four years ago to start a new church. Moving to an unfamiliar area to take on na Rogers said.

THE PAIR knocked on doors, seeking people who weren't active church members. They asked questions: What are you looking for in a church? What turns you off den City. about church? What advice can you give us?

Phil and Diana Rogers became convinced that many people were looking for a fresh approach to religion. Many were left cold by what they considered meaningless rituals and constant pleas for money.

"Some churches are in a '60s or '70s time warp," Phil

Despite the alienation, Rogers said some of the un-

"I couldn't get Fred into a traditional church," Schou such a challenging task "can be quite intimidating," Dia-churched could be won over because "there is a piece of their life that is missing."

> West Plymouth Community Church's first service was just a little more than three years ago. The sponsoring church was the Merriman Road Baptist Church of Gar-ALTHOUGH AFFILIATED with the Southern Baptist Convention, Rogers has deliberately avoided calling attention to that link.

'We don't push the Baptist name," Rogers said. "A lot of people told us they wouldn't have come if they had known it was Baptist. We don't want people to feel awkward, to feel the pressure."

The church began with 33 worshipers and currently has around 85 members, Rogers said. Services are in the cafeteria at West Middle School, at Ann Arbor Traff and

Some of the members never attended church in the past. Others are former Catholics or dropouts from other mainline churches. The overwhelming majority are aged

THE EMPHASIS is on applying one's faith to everyday life. 🐍

"We are very biblical," Rogers said. "We are very conservative in our theology. We get the same thing done. We just do it in a different way."

There are no hymnals at West Plymouth Community Church, no organ. Sometimes recorded contemporary music is featured or guest musicians play. There is no formal passing of the collection plate, but one is available for people who want to contribute.

"We rarely mention the finances," Rogers said.

THE PASTOR isn't big on "thou shalt not" themes. He doesn't even like the word "sermon." He prefers to give 'life application' messages.

Small discussion groups, called growth groups, encourage adults to explore spiritual growth and its practical application. The Kids Club meets during Sunday worship, with adult members taking turns overseeing.

Last summer, around 250 children attended West Plymouth Community's contemporary version of the traditional vacation Bible school. The program used rap music and videos geared to youngsters' issues and interests.

THE FLEXIBILITY of members has moved the programs along, Diana Rogers said.

"We are willing to try new things, and if they don't get results, we scratch and start all over again," she said. "It gives us freedom."

There are no immediate plans to construct a church building. "We feel we are going to invest our money in the ministry," Phil Rogers said. West Plymouth Community Church isn't for everyone.

he emphasizes. "I'm not saying that every church needs to be like ours," he said. "There are many people who don't feel comfortable with our church. It was basically that we identified and felt there was a need for a different type of ministry."

God's gifts must be protected

Years ago, our neighbor in Troy told me that he had bought his house against the advice of his boss. His company wanted him to live in a house with a more prestigious mailing address.

He bought a house in Troy. When he sold it five years later, he proved that he was smarter than his boss. He made a better profit than if he had bought elsewhere.

It is enlightening to discover that the race to the suburbs was not as much a race issue as I had thought. There was big money to make by bullding out and moving out.

The current series in The Detroit News uncovers the way it has been done. Hudson's, that old favorite store for many of us, was involved in the scheme to make money by building homes on the edge of the

The religious concept of stewardship is essential if we are to face a future that will be livable. Homes, property, open space, wild things, these are all on loan to each

What we see instead is a few people making great masses of money by promoting the abandon and move to another location idea. Schools, churches, community institutions are not easily recreated and replaced as one would move to another house and make a profit.

We now live in the central city There are no traffic jams. Wild birds live here in abundance. Even pheasants are about.

There is lots of space because so much has been torn down. There is hope, I believe, simply because we now know the major reason why it has all happened. Someone is making a lot of money at our expense. They have been getting us to build up and tear down. This has to stop.

Road trip to China passes silks, spices

Thursday, November 1, 1990 O&E

(AP)- A gorgeous district the size of Switzerland has been opened up by the Karakoram Highway, the highest highway in the world, running from Pakistan to China.

This highway at the top of the world runs 798 miles, according to an article in the current issue of Connoisseur, following the fabled silk route Marco Polo used to bring back to Europe the silks and spices of Cathay.

Alexander the Great overran the area from the northwest and Genghis Khan, from the northeast. It was here Buddha's early disciples found sereni-

The new highway ends the modern isolation of this remote area, encircled by three mountain ranges - the Hindu Kush, the Karakoram and the Himalaya. The best way to tour is with a car, driver and personalized itinerary.

The necessary tourist infrastructure exists. Inns are clean and comfortable; western food is served on request. The innkeeper, often a former local ruler, can help you pursue such interests as archaeology, polo, fishing and trekking.

The trip goes through a region off northern Pakistan, bordered on the west and northwest by Afghanistan, by China on the northeast and by India on the east.

For a taste of Moghul culture before embarking, spend a couple of days in Lahore.

The Lahore Fort was built by Emperor Akbar as a palace with hundreds of marbled chambers, staircases and passageways. Its Sheesh Mahal, or hall of mirrors, were the gilded quarters of the empress and harem.

Other points of interest include the Badshahi Mosque, the largest in South Asia, whose courtyard can hold more than 100,000 souls, and the Shalimar Garden.

Rudyard Kipling's father used to curate the contents of the Lahore Central Museum.

Shah Jahan, who built the Taj Mahal, erected Jahanghir's Tomb for his father.

The highway begins at Abbottabad and heads into the Swat Valley, crossing a bridge that spans the Kabul and Indus Rivers. They flow side by side, one coal black, the other bright blue.

In Saidu Sharif is the Hotel Royal Palace, once the summer home of the last ruler of the kingdom of Swat.

Until the 1960s, regions like Swat were feudal places ruled by rajahs. When Zulfikar Ali Bhutto rose to power in the 1970s, he confiscated the rajahs' allowances. The palaces, which had required enormous upkeep, were vacated and the male members of the royal families often became man-

The route then follows the rocky Swat River into the mountains and the town of Bahrain, where shawled or veiled women shuttle over the bridge onto the high street alongside tribesmen with rifles slung over their shoulders.

From Besham, on the banks of the roaring Indus River, the country is dry and barren and Nanga Parbat peak, at 26,600 feet one of the world's highest mountains, comes into view. It seems to dangle from the clouds like a shard.

In the town of Chilas, rock carvings look like ancient graffiti, bearing scripts from the Neolithic and Bronze Ages.

Gilgit, once the main transit center of the silk route, remains the most bustling town on the highway, mostly because of agriculture.

On to Nagar, where you can see three sets of mountain ranges. The Nagar region was the model of James Hilton's Shangri-La in "Lost Hori-

"No, the people of the Hunza Valley do not live to be 120 years old," the Mir or rajah told Mark Ginsburg in Connoisseur." An Englishman spread that rumor 80 years ago."

From the Hunza Valley, the road enters China and ends at Kashgar.

Half Dome mountain in Yosemite National Park, Calif., rises almost 5,000 feet above the Yosemite Valley and Merced River. The granite domes are unsurpassed in number and variety.

Yosemite towers with snow-capped peaks

By Doris Scharfenberg special writer

Doris Scharfenburg of Farmington Hills recently attended an environmental conference in Yosemite National Park. She and her fellow travel writer conferees met with a Sierra Club representative, the Yosemite Fund chairmen and executives of the Curry Company, which runs the Yosemite concessions. Here is her report on what she found in the Yosemite Valley during a single day: Yosemite's 100th birthday.

YEVEN A.M., Oct. 1, Yosemite Valley, I was stepping out into a perfection of mornings. Crisp air, towering pines, glimpses of wonder. The sun, coming from behind Half Dome, sent tides of light across the soaring cliff face of El Capitan, and there was even a pale Ansel Adams moon hanging over a high ridge.

The valley, core and soul of the vast Yosemite National Park, is the Sistine Chapel of the American outdoors. Today would be a special day.

By 7:30 a.m., you could feel the bustle. Campers and cars were deep into their ritual search and maneuver for parking spaces. Tour buses were loading at Yosemite Lodge and Ahwahnee Hotel; cafeterias were full.

On that morning, workers in Sentinel Meadow gathered to put up a speaker's platform and press bleachers. Centennial celebration ceremonies would begin at noon, remembering 100 years of Yosemite's status as a National Park.

One Hundred Years is a puny handle to place on a splendor left by glaciers and too timeless to grasp. This occasion was really going to be a tribute to the piece of legislation that established the park a cento settle down in the YOSEMITE HAD been a California state park since the 1860s, set aside when the U.S. population was about 60 million. In the early days, visitors needed wills of iron and stamina; it took a steamer, a stagecoach, pack mules and half the summer to get here.

The first car showed up in 1913. Now a million cars and coaches, air conditioned and foam-padded, make the one-hour (or so) drive to the Valley from park entrances every year.

I had to wait several minutes for the traffic to clear before I was able to cross the road and get to

In the chatty cafeteria, not everyone was thinking about going to the ceremonies. Day packs hung over the backs of chairs, maps were on the tables. There was shopping talk.

ON MY walk to Sentinel Meadow, I headed in the wrong direction. Not too much of a mistake, since you can't go far astray in a valley only a mile wide and 11 miles long.

The trail I took edged other meadows, curved under canopies of oak, cedar, ponderosa, past tall yellow grasses of Indian paint brush along the Merced River, but never went beyond the sound of cars.

The barely moving stream was a flawless mirror, doubling the images of grandeur. I stopped to photograph and picked up beer cans and a ple tin held by tree roots along the bank.

Out of 18,000 visitors a day, some will have no concept of a sacred place, hallowed and special. These few raise maintenance costs considerably.

Up on one of the cliffs, I could see a bright red speck. Scores of climbers have gone up the sheer wall of El Capitan, and there are problems there, too. Along with the growing number of drill holes for their pitons, sometimes glistening hardware is left in high crevices.

Not all are conscientious about carrying out wastes, the foot of the cliff, they told me, is beginning to reek. Finally turned around, I followed the road, hopping off the slim shoulder as cars came by. That's how I spotted disposable diapers shoved into a cul-

Artists explore dreamy landscape of Ontario

KLEINBURG, Ont. — We are all shaped by our environment and the most important environment in the Canadian mind is wilder-

Like many of us in Michigan, Canadians spend their childhood summers walking between high trees, paddling canoes across cold lakes, exploring the rock and tree country of the Great Lakes.

Several Canadian artists, known now as the Group of Seven, flowered on that landscape when they created the first real Canadian art tradition in the 1920s. A couple of Danish Canadians named Robert and Signe McMichael loved the wilderness so much that they built a house of logs in the trees north of Toronto in the 1950s and filled the house with Group of Seven painttion, appropriately set in a rock and tree landscape north of Toronto.

SURPRISINGLY, VERY few Michigan travelers see the collection because they don't know it is there.

A couple of Danish Canadians named Robert and Signe McMichael loved the wilderness so much that they built a house of logs in the trees north of Toronto in the 1950s and filled the house with Group of Seven paintings.

It is a half hour drive north of downtown Toronto, or you can reach it while driving in on Highway 401 and turning north onto Highway 400. You will soon see two signs: one leads to a theme park called Canada's Wonderland, the other to the McMichael Collec-

Walk on, through the trees, and you will see the current artist-in-residence at work in the Tom Thompson Shack, which memorializes one of Canada's favorite painters.

Thompson was still a young man when he died in a canoe accident while painting in Algonquin Park, north of Toronto, in 1917, leaving the world to wonder what might have been.

THE BIG log and stone building with the 'at cathedral roof and a huge stone bear squatting out front is the museum that dominates these 100-acre grounds.

The original building was the McMichaels' private home, which has been expanded over the years to hold the world's largest collection of Group of Seven paintings and one of Canada's largest collections of Woodland Indian and Inuit art. Admission is $4 Canadian.

You might find a reception in progress in the high-ceilinged lobby, but what you will notice most is the view out the window. Big green trees soar out of sight, their branches layered back against the sky. A true Canadian landscape. You will see the same thing on the walls of

Sick child care provided at center Bulb sale benefits

In September, a sick child care center, Snlffles 'n' Snuggles, opened

The first of its kind in Michigan, it serves as a pilot program for the

This center is the brainchild of Lynn Kelley, vice president of Doctors Hospital.

"I'VE BEEN interested in setting one up for about five years, ever since reading about a center in Minneapolis," Kelley said.

However, it wasn't until about a year ago that Kelley began to campaign for the idea. "One night, our daughter wasn't feeling well, and we thought one of us might have to stay home. "As it turned out, she was fine, but when I went to work the next day, it struck me that the time for this had really come." With the support of hospital administration, a feasibility study and research were conducted. The hospital financed renovation and start-up ness Sept. 10.

THE CENTER, Kelley said, provides a homey, restful atmosphere for mildly ill children. With a play area and private areas for napping, children receive constant medical attention.

"We're not like regular day care. We have Nintendo, VCRs and activities for children who need bed rest or quiet play."

Kelley stresses the center is open for parents who work or live downtown. Even if only one parent works downtown, the child can be easily dropped off, she said.

The hospital is south of Jefferson, midway between the Renaissance Center and the Belle Isle bridge. Free parking is available.

"We are really geared toward costs, and the center opened for busi- working parents. For a nominal fee, we can have an extra lunch ready, for parents who want to join their

"We even have a fax machine, and . parents can send messages to their children.".

AS A pilot program, the center is closely monitored by the state.

"Those operated within hospitals fall under guidelines of the Public Health Department."

SNIFFLES 'N' SNUGGLES is licensed for up to 12 children, with a staff-to-child ratio of 1-to-3. The charge, including lunch and snacks, is $40 for a full day.

The center is open 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. A pre-admission phone line opens at 6:30 a.m.

"Parents with children under 5 lose more work days due to a sick child than for any other reason. And the average child under 5 is sick seven to nine times per year.

"Employers with a high concentration of female employees, such as banks, should especially consider such a benefit, even if they share the cost with the employee."

IN ITS first month, the center has averaged less than one child per day. The center will probably operate at a loss for the first year, Kelley said. "We need to average six children a day just to break even." To encourage use of the center, a discount coupon worth 50 percent off the cost of the initial visit is offered.

For more information, call 393-0843. P.S. Last week we misprinted the telephone number for All Kids Considered, southeast Michigan's parenting magazine. The correct number is 352-0990.

"Go all your life . . . "Nature's resources will never fail

A flutist played a solo that rang like a magic bird call between the trees. Perfect. After "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and "America the Beautiful," the crowd went back to Yosemite Village, to the Ahwahnee Hotel, tent any one of a dozen programs, tours and nature classes offered.

Or perhaps they stopped for a plzza, ice cream, a new jacket, a piece of jewelry, a poster, climbing gear. Many acted as if they were at a convention or had come to the park for a wedding.

THE Tuolumme Meadows, sequola groves, Glacier Point and other areas of stunning beauty are also under pressure, but every traveler who comes to the park comes to Yosemite Valley. To come to Yosemite and not see the valley is too much for most visitors to bear. So many come that is now too much for the valley to bear.

The park service's job is to protect, preserve and keep things open for public enjoyment, but the number of visitors is overwhelming. Eighteen thousand visitors a day need food, plumbing and a chance to walk around.

There is always talk about closing some of the area to private vehicles. but that would leave these wonders for only a hiking/biking elite. The dilemna is that facilities are use for functions that could take place elsewhere and that may stop future families from getting in at all.

This was never more evident than on Yosemite's 100th birthday.

If you would like more information about the park, its splendors and its problems, write to the Information Center, Yosemite National Park, Calif. 95389.

"Go to Yosemite Valley, you'll have a wonderful time" is less than responsible travel journalism. There are problems that touch all states with popular parks, eco-systems to protect, and quantum leaps in public use and expectations.

· Go, be scrupulous about obeying rules, seek areas off the beaten path and expect delays. There is still a tremendous amount to en-painting from each of the Group of Seven. It was really a group of eight or nine, most of them commercial artists working for a Toronto studio called GRIP.

THEY MET regularly to grouch about the stuffiness of Canadian art, which was really just the European style transferred to North America, and to dream about a truly Canadian art, one that reflected their own country.

Three things galvanized them into action. An exhibit of Scandinavian wilderness paintings in Buffalo, N.Y., convinced them that you could paint "true souvenirs of the wilderness.'

Thompson had already started traveling in Algonquin Park, where the trees, rocks and water landscape really said "Canada." Lawren Harris, heir to the Massey-Harris fortune, bought a red railway box car to carry the group into the wilderness on summer weekends.

You'll see a lot of small oil sketches along with their larger works, and if you look at Casson's paint box exhibit in the first gallery you will understand why.

They used 814-by-1014-inch birch panels especially made to fit that box, so that each painter could pack it easily into the woods, sketch outdoors during the summer and create the larger finished painting indoors during the winter.

YOU CAN see their work grow and diversify as you move from whitewashed walls to log-walled galleries and up ramps with full out-door views. Eventually you reach the McMichael's old living rooms, where the Group's history is told in photographs and other memorabilia.

The McMichaels bought their first painting in five $50 installments in the 1950s: Lawren Harris' "Montreal River, Algoma." Most of the Group of Seven visited the property regu-larly. A.Y. Jackson lived there during the last six years of his life.

When the McMichaels donated the house and a collection of 175 paintings to the province 25 years ago, Robert McMichael became the first curator of the new provincial museum. He was later replaced by a professional museum staff during a controversy over the quality of artistic preservation.

He and Signe live a few miles away now, but are still involved and very visible during this 25th anniversary year.

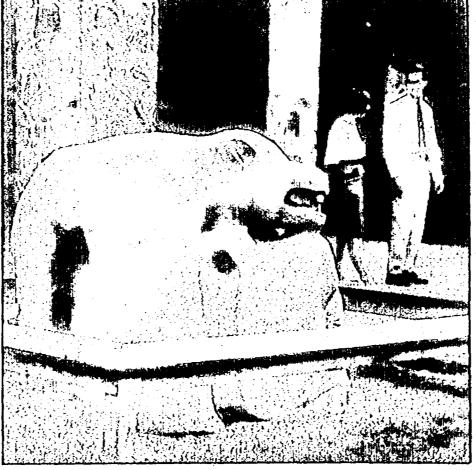

ACTIVITIES AT the McMichael Collection go beyond displays of the Group of Seven. My favorite Canadian painter, Emily Carr, is represented here because she followed the landscape tradition of the Group.

The museum houses a magnificent collection of Woodland Indian and Inuit art, as well as the work of contemporary Canadian Indian artists. The McMichael is the only major museum with an exclusively Canadian mandate and it takes that mandate seriously.

The museum also actively interacts with the metropolitan Toronto community, offering tours, lectures, children's programs, etc. winter and summer.

Be sure to visit the graves on the hill beside the parking lot before you leave. The artists won this one, and they are there, on their small grassy knoll, in the midst of their favorite Canadian wilderness, overlooking it

If excelling at a variety of activities defines professional success, then Sheldon Rich, 32, was a solid choice for Distinguished Young Pharmacist for 1990.

Rich, a Southfield resident and vice president of the Maple Drugs chain headquartered in Farmington Hills, received the award recently from the Michigan Pharmacists Association.

In addition to tending to purchasing, insurance and personnel matters and working an occasional shift dispensing prescriptions,

• Serves as a faculty instructor in the pharmacy technician program at Oakland Community College and as a clinical practice instructor for pharmacy students from the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

o Serves on the Pharmacy Certified Technician Board of Examiners, a task force for pharmacy law and a legislative council monitoring third-party insurance issues.

• Serves on the board of directors for the Oakland County Pharmacists Association.

RICH ALSO has been a CPR instructor for the American Red Cross and the American Heart Association.

"I have more flexibility to get involved," he said.

The Chrysler Corp. Technology Center is: (a) Chrysler's future, (b) the most advanced automotive research and development center in the world, (c) blg, (d) an attempt to re-establish American industry as a forward-thinking business, (e) all of the above.

Guess which one Lee A. Iacocca, chairman and chief executive officer of the Chrysler Corp., picks.

Iacocca, along with local and state officials, gave members of the media a preview of the 3.3-millionsquare-foot Technology Center Friday, he said, because there has been a lot of curiosity about the site since it began taking shape over the last lacocca sald Chrysler still intends to have the technology center mostly completed in 1992, nearly six years after the project broke ground. A scientific testing facility adjacent to the main structure will be completed in 1994.

Besides moving people, escalators at the Chrysler Technology Center are designed to open sight lines and lines of communication between employees.

lacocca reaffirmed Chrysler's commitment to the project. "This is our future — it gives us the environment and tools to create the cars of the future.

"This is the bedrock — this is the starting point," he said.

But the technology center is more than a research and development facility - it is also a symbol of American industry's commitment to planning for the future.

"We (the automobile industry) have been accused of being short term in our thinking," Iacocca said. "I hope this will be seen as a monu-

Customers rate attention

New Cadillac owners rate sales, service and car performance in a Gold Key survey. Select Kmart customers fill out a store report card before wheeling shopping carts to the parking lot. Even local hospitals ask patients recovering from surgery to score their doctors and treatment.

Businesses constantly gauge customer satisfaction and often loudly proclaim results, such as the J.D. Power and Associates' ratings for carmakers, in advertisements.

But If a University of Michigan professor has his way, customer satisfaction will become not simply a tion stemmed from the observation marketing ploy but integral to the that companies are probably spendway companies do business and measure success.

"I don't know what quality is. Nel-ther do companies, but the customer knows," said Dr. Claes Fornell, U-M's Donald C. Cook professor of business administration and creator of a new customer satisfaction barometer sponsored by the Swedish Post Office.

Instead, Fornell views quality as an underlying factor in customer satisfaction and loyalty. These ultimately lead to customer retention and sensitivity to price, both of which can be measured and used to predict profitability.

"My interest in customer satisfacing too much on customer acquisition and too little on maintaining customers," Fornell sald. "A few extra percentage points in customer retention will have a huge increase in profitability because of the expense of attracting new customers."

HIS FIRST customer satisfaction study, reported this year, rated 80 Swedish companies from 17 industries. Toyota received the highest individual rating. A second survey is under way in Sweden and will be reported in February.

Fornell's next task is to identify the specific components of customer

But it's only a start, he said, adding that Japan companies, in a country with only half the economy of the United States, spend nearly $100 billion more in research and develop-

The technology center will be different from other U.S. automotive research and development facilities in several ways.

Platform teams, groups of engineers, designers and even procurement specialists, will work exclusively on one model "taking it from cradle to grave."

The technology centers physical structure will be different, as well. Very few walls are included in the facilities design to encourage communication not just within divisions, but between them. The technology center will also give the automotive company a facility that combines many functions under one roof. Design centers, altitude, temperature, emissions, electromagnetic, noise, and vibration testing facilities, and even a prototype factory and a 1.8-mile test track will allow the company to gauge its ideas almost immediately. "If this doesn't speed (Chrysler automotive design) up by at least a year, nothing will," Iacocca said.

IACOCCA ALLOWED that the technology center has not been an easy project to build and that it has been downsized since its original but you're not getting anymore.

lion bucks for a research and devel- concept. Even still, the massive structure north of Featherstone Road and east of I-75 in the northwest corner of the 1,800-acre Oakland Technology Park in Auburn Hills, is the largest construction project in the country.

Chrysler has indefinitely postponed plans for phase two of the technology center and an adjacent 40-acre automotive supplier park.

"We're sinking a billion into this place when there's not a lot of billions to go around," Iacocca said.

Chrysler sold the technology center to Manufacturer's Hanover Co., a holding company in California in March 1990 to raise funds. Chrysler will lease the facility for 30 years at which time the technology center will revert back to the company.

Iacocca said that good news can be found even in the sale of the Chrysler jewel.

When the trust company sold bonds for the facility, investors responded by purchasing more than the $800 million the company had estimated, instead selling about $1.1

But all the technology and innovation in the world won't sell cars if consumers are distrusting of quality. "But I think we're on our way to convincing them that we make good

Ford spends a billion for a fine successer to its V-8

A new car engine doesn't do much for most people all by itself.

head inside a new car. That's the kind of reflex that reminds me of my mother squeezing tomatoes in the grocery, which meant we ate a lot of squished tomatoes.

But for most people, this exercise a washing machine to see if it's doing the job right.

ACTUALLY, THERE isn't much to see of an engine under a hood anyway. What those guys are looking at is pretty much the top of the air cleaner, a few exhaust pipes and ignition wires, and the air conditioner.

A lot of cars these days are so jammed with stuff that there is a OK, so a lot of car enthusiasts tend kind of solidity to the engine comto pop open the hood and stick their partment, giving the feeling that you could pour a bucket of water on top and nothing would run out under-

Now Ford has spent about a billion dollars in an effort to improve things in this heretofore-neglected is about as fruitful as looking inside area. It's introducing one of the first brand-new domestic V-8 engines in 30 years, at the beginning of this model year in the Lincoln Town Car. Then the engine will be installaed in the new full-size Ford sedans.

> IN FACT, the old Ford V-8 ran pretty well, which is the main reason why it lasted for three decades.

Ford's basic small-block V-8 powered everything from Fairlanes, to Mustangs to Lincolns, growing slightly in size, and maturing in tech-nology.

The aforementioned apathy among most customers about exactly what it is that moves this thing around was a good enough reason to concentrate on new styling and even new suspensions.

What changed things was the steady pressure coming from foreign competition, most notably the large V-8s introduced by Nissan and Toyota, and a growing list of proposed regulations restricting emissions and mandating corporate fuel economy.

FORD BEGAN working on its new engine about five years ago, when most of these considerations were less,they saw some opportunity to not only design a single engine that would work well in the future, but a way to make the whole engine operation more efficient.

The result is a new 4.6-liter V-8 that is the building block for a series of engines that could power Ford's entire careline. Some of these engines can be developed simply by reducing the number of cylinders, while others would share critical parts such as cylinder heads.

THIS SO-CALLED modular approach is the key to low cost, although it also lends itself to better machining efficiency and precision.

The redesign cut internal friction,

More noticeable to the average; consumer is the relative smoothness, comparable to the best of the Euro pean and Japanese luxury cars. The new V-8 was a massive effort, that took years of intensive engineering and the construction of a huge new plant. So far, it has earned just a few lines of mention in the automotive enthusiast magazines, and it will probably get the same knowing nods and blank stares from people who bother to raise the hood.

Still, a good engine is the most bhe sic element of a good car, and a billion dollars seems like a good start.

Retirees can ease tax bite

Thanks to Saddam Husseln and one-half of Social Security his courage to invade Kuwait, our combined income social insecurity has dramatically gone up. As a result, our legislators are seriously talking about subjecting Social Security benefits to higher income taxation.

Social Security retirement, survival, disability and other benefits may be taxable. Tier I railroad retirement benefits are subject to the same rules.

The taxable amount is the lesser of 1) one-half of the benefit, or 2) the excess of the excess income over a "base amount."

LET US begin with your adjusted gross income. The AGI is modified by adding to it all tax-exempt interest from municipal bonds and certain foreign source income items, otherwise not subject to taxation. This is your modified AGI.

Next, add one-half of the Social Security benefit to the modified AGI. This is your "combined income." From this income, subtract the base amount, which is $32,000 for married couples and $25,000 for a single person. Finally, compare this "excess" (If any) amount with one-half of Social Security. The lesser for the

AN EXAMPLE should make this clearer. Suppose John and Jane are married and file a joint return. Their Social Security tax computation is shown in the top half of the

Since the excess amount is $8,000, which is higher than onehalf of Social Security, the couple will pay taxes on $8,000 representing their excess income.

Incidently, a neat tax planning idea is to reduce the AGI by subsituting an annuity interest for taxable interest on a bond or certificate of deposit, if the CD was included in the AGI.

FOR INSTANCE, let us assume the couple received $7,000 taxable interest in corporate bonds, which was included in the AGI. By selling the bonds (if advisable) and investing the money in a tax-deferred annulty, the couple would avoid paying Social Security taxes completely, as shown in the accompanying who are current customers of your business, those you decided to stop and interview on the street, residents over the age of 30, etc.

When following non-probability sampling procedures, the amount of sampling error present in your survey results cannot be calculated. This means that you cannot estimate the likely extent to which your survey results (or values) differ from those that would be obtained if every resident in your service area were interviewed. For many business owners, the accuracy issue poses no problems when the survey's purpose is to explore problems and opportunities or confine information of interest to company management.

In probably sampling, the chance that a resident from your service area will be included in your sample is known, and participating residents would be selected by means of mechanical decision rules. An example; of this would be surveying every fifth resident listing in a telephone directory (referred to as systematic sampling). As a result, the sampling, error can be calculated and used to measure the accuracy of your survey results. Generally speaking. probability sampling is the preferred procedure of choice amon marketing research professionals On the other hand, it would be ex: tremely difficult to successfully carry out probability sampling procedures without a good understanding of classical statistics.

Cabaret star Bobby Short plays at mall

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

"Quite a different venue!" Bobby Short exclaimed, beaming in satisfaction, amid the hubbub of activity all around him.

He was signing autographs at the side of the temporary stage, where he had just finished performing two lively sets with his sidemen, on acoustic bass and drums.

Short was the star attraction at "Masterpiece Evening," a grand opening gala at the elegant, new Laurel Park Place mall in Livonia. The evening, which also included five buffet tables and a fashion show, was a benefit for the Auxiliaries of the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts.

Some of his audience at the mall was seated in folding chairs set up in front of the stage, and other party goers listened from tables and chairs dotting the mall interior, where they sipped drinks and nibbled international snacks (American, English, Greek, Japanese and French). Still more guests listened standing or walking nearby.

Earlier that afternoon Short met with the media at a press conference at the Marriott Hotel in the shopping mall complex. The famous singer-planist is known for his individualized interpretations of classics by Cole Porter and other sophisticated song writers.

FOR 21 YEARS, Short has been performing at the Cafe Carlyle in New York, where he has regular stays, performing 19 weeks a year. He returned to the Carlyle this week and will be there through 1990, resuming next May and June. "Thanksgiving night, I have always worked," he said. "I often find three generations at one table."

Short also goes on the road a lot. His appearance at Laurel Park Place was his third visit to metropolitan Detroit this year. He performed with the Detroit Symphony for three nights last January and at a private party for a golf tournament last spring.

The personable entertainer speaks in a colorful manner, his words flowing easily and expressively. Describing his longtime performing appeal, he said. "I do it with a lot of pizazz and a lot of energy. My energy seems to go on and on, although there are some nights I feel I couldn't do it one more time.'

He started his career as a 10year-old in vaudeville, with the Big Apple Dancers, and played Detroit's Fox Theatre in 1937. Although cabaret-goers are still smitten with Short, he declared easily, "I've been around so long now I wouldn't dare say I was a thrill of the moment.'

Short's autobiography, "Black and White Baby," already has been published, and he is working on a continuation of his life story in "Saloons." He also is planning a book of essays about black women on stage, telling about such glittering stars as Josephine Baker.

Production suffers from nerdy script

The Smith Theatre Guild production of "The Nerd" was presented Thursday-Saturday at Smith Theatre at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills.

By Helen Zucker special writer

The Smith Theatre Guild's attempt to get back on its feet would have been better served by a fine script. Larry Shue's "The Nerd" is really a sitcom, not a full-blown, two-act play.

Director William Sharpe gives us an energetic production, but what's meant as fey humor becomes repetitive and the viewer shifts in the seat, wondering where wit has gone. "The Odd Couple," a play based on a similar premise, seems a masterpiece compared to "The Nerd."

the Farmington Players continue where his famlly pioneered. through Saturday, Nov. 17, at the Farmington Players Barn in Farmington Hills. For ticket information call 553-2955.

Intermingling tears and laughter, "Foxfire" is a poignant love story, a paean to the indomitable spirit of Appalachian pioneers, and a marvelous evening of theater as performed by the excellent cast of the Farmington Players.

Foxfire is a lichen which lives on dead fallen trees and also the name of a magazine in which the young generation of Appalachia has recorded its grandparents' stories. These stories inspired the play by Susan Cooper and Hume Cronyn that also includes original regional songs.

As Annie and Hector Nations, lead players Jan Salisbury and Ralph Rosati are so outstanding in their roles that one can scarcely imagine the parts being improved upon, even by their Broadway originators Jessica Tandy and Cronyn.

Salisbury and Rosati both perfectly capture the regional accents, the feisty spirits and the slower-paced rhythms of their elderly characters. Salisbury also does a fine job with her stage movements and infirm gait, while Paula Myer's make-up has aged her very believably.

WEAVING BACK and forth in time, "Foxfire" traces the lives of Annie and Hector from their courting days into their old age. Though Hector has been dead for five years, she is an inveterate playgoer who Annie still converses with him regularly in the present and stays on New York productions.

Performances of "Foxfire" by alone in the mountaintop farmhouse

With changing times, her children and neighbors have moved away. Annie must face the possibility of leaving her land and Hector and letting the real estate sharks gobble up the mountaintop.

Joe Hislop is very likeable as Dillard Nations, the musician son whose visit to Annie gets her recalling scenes from the past. Though he fought with his father and spurned farm life for himself, Hislop's Dillard seems sensitive to his heritage and his parents' struggles. Hislop doesn't handle the songs as skillfully as his characterization, but he is always credible.

Lisa Muscio is very good as the perky Holly Burrell, a local girl who has chosen to return to her roots to teach because she loves the land and its people.

Jack Grulke is delightfully sleazy as real estate developer Prince Carpenter, who uses his "good ole boy" pose to get the edge on his competitior. As the crusty rural doctor who must contend with superstitions and folk tales, Jim Cave is well cast, despite occasional lapses into stiffness.

Overall, director Nancy Harrower has achieved an extremely impressive production, with the moments of dramatic intensity being as well handled as the generous dollops of humor.

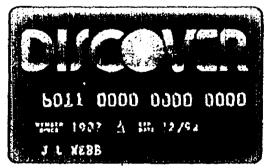

Barbara Michals teaches high school English in Southfield. A theater critic for the last 16 years, regularly catches up on all the

Animals aren't really gone

Walking trails in Autumn reveals a marked contrast from the same area in summer. Hidden leaf pigments show their colors. Few, if any insects are seen. Turtles, frogs and snakes are nowhere to be seen. Even familiar birds are gone from their perches.

When one considers the extreme contrast between the 90 degree temperature of summer and the sub-zero temperatures of winter, it is remarkable that animals, other than man, can survive such extremes for such long periods of time.

An alien from outer space walking trails in winter would think the areawas devoid of life. Yet when it returned again in spring it would find a myrlad of life forms that suddenly appeared.

Where .did · the snakes, turtles, frogs, insects, and birds come from? Well, some birds stay in the area all year, while other species migrate.

Meteor showers to light up November nights

November will offer skywatchers two meteor showers and a close approach of Mars to the earth.

The amount of sunlight we receive continues to decrease this month. On Nov. 1 the sun rises at 7:06 a.m. and sets at 5:26 p.m. This allows for a possible 10 hours and 20 minutes of sunlight. On the 31st these times are 7:15 a.m. and 5:01 p.m., allowing for a possible nine hours and 20 minutes of sun. This is a decrease of exactly one hour.

Of the five naked-eye planets, only three will be visible. Jupiter will be in the pre-dawn sky; Mars and Saturn will be visible after sunset. Mercury and Venus are too close to the sun to be seen.

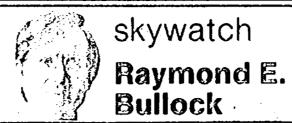

Venus is at superior conjunction on the morning of Nov. 1. Venus is located behind the sun, as seen from the earth.

The first of this month's two meteor showers reaches its maximum in the pre-dawn sky on the 2nd. This is the Taurid (TOR-id) meteor shower, so named because the "falling stars" appear to radiate from the constellation of Taurus the bull. Locating Taurus will be easy because the moon will be within that constellation on the 2nd.

FIND THE MOON and you will be looking toward Taurus. Unfortunately, the light scattered by the moon will wash out the fainter members of the Taurid meteor shower. Even under ideal observing conditions, this is not one of the year's best showers. You can expect an average of only 15 meteors to be visible each hour.

Full Moon is at 4:48 p.m. on Nov. 2. The moon is fully lighted by the sun and will rise in the northeast as the sun sets in the southwest. The moon will be visible all night. Directly to the left of the moon is the Pleiades (PLEE-a-dees), a star cluster. This star group marks the shoulder of Taurus. Seeing the Pleiades will be difficult because of the proximity of the bright full moon.

Look for an interesting grouping with the moon, Mars and Aldebaran (al-DEB-a-ran), the "eye" of Taurus, on the evening of the 4th. The object will be rising in the east northeast around 7:30 p.m. The moon is easy to identify; the bright red star below and to the right of the moon is Mars. Below and to the right of Mars is Aldebaran.

Mars and Aldebaran are very similar in color and, usually, similar in brightness. We are approaching the time when Mars will be quite close to the earth (astronomically speaking), and that will cause Mars to be at its brightest. It will easily outshine Aldebaran.

(There is a major difference between Mars and Aldebaran. Mars, a planet, reflects the light of the sun. Aldebaran, a star, produces its own

The moon will move from Taurus into Gemini on the 4th and 5th and will form a triangle with the stars Castor and Pollux on the 6th. Look toward the east northeast about five hours after sunset on the 6th. To the left of the moon is Castor. Below Castor is Pollux These "twin" stars each mark a "head" of one twin,

LOOK FOR the moon on the morning of Nov. 8. To the right of the moon is Pollux and to the right of Pollux is Castor. To the left of the moon, in Cancer; is Jupiter. Jupiter is the third brightest object in the night sky. Only Venus and the moon are brighter.

Jupiter is 1.6 degrees north of the moon at 2 a.m. on Nov. 9. Later that same morning, at 8:02 p.m., the moon is at Last Quarter phase. The moon is three degrees below Regulus (REG-u-lus) on the morning of the 10th. Regulus is the "heart" of Leo the lion.

Mars is six degrees to the north. (right) of Aldebaran at 5 a.m. on the 13th. You will see the red planet and the red star high in the west, with Mars easily outshining Aldebaran. The bright star to the east (left) of: waning (fading) crescent moon on the morning of the 14th is Spica, the brighest star in the constellation of Virgo. On the next morning the moon is 10 degrees below Spica.

Ford home seeks help

The Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane, Michigan's only National Historic Landmark home open to the public. is currently seeking volunteers to work as tour goldes, gift shop attendants, interpretors and demonstrators during upcoming holidays.

The number of visitors to the estate increase during the holidays and additional volunteers are needed, especially on weekdays.

All volunteers receive training to work in the estate, the playhouse, the visitor's center and the powerhouse.

"Volunteers are a significant part of our efforts," said Donn Werling, director of the 70-acre estate that is the former home of auto pioneer Henry Ford. "We want people who have an interest in assisting the public by sharing the historic significance of this landmark."

Saturn car lands at county dealership

By A. Giralt Bodford staff writer

It is the most anxiously awaited car of the year. The proof that American workers know how to build models that the American public will want to buy. The car to drive the market away from imports. And finally it's here in the Plymouth, Canton area. At 9 a.m. Sunday morning the first Saturn rolled into Don Massey's dealership on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township. By Monday, 20 people had put deposits on the cars and 68 had shown interest asking of Saturn salespeople to call them as soon as the cars were in, said Karen Tibus, president of Saturn of Plymouth. Someone ready to pick up his Saturn is Rick Hewitt, an independent contractor working for Massey. He put down a deposit about a month ago without test driving the car. "I have faith in GM," he said. And on Monday he wasn't disappointed. "It's really tight," he said. "Feels really solid, even the smaller engine model it's got some zip to it." While he ordered the SL-2 model, the demonstration car is a SL-1.

Saturns start at $7,995 and the top of the line model costs $14,000. The demonstration car at the dealership is $9,800. "They'll never be lower than they are today," Tibus said. "And as far as quality, they're really watching it."

The cars come with 3-year or 36,000 miles guarantees, bumper to bumper with no deductible, said Tibus. "You can get yourself a nice car and no worries with a solid guarantee," she said.

Observer staff photographer Bill : Bresler test drove the car Monday. Front seats come with separate shoulder harness and lap belts, while back seats come with shoulder harness seatbelts. Bresler drove the car over the rallroad tracks to check its suspension. "It rode very nicely over the railroad tracks," he said. He also liked the room space not expected of a small car.

When shifting gears, he said it was very smooth. "It slipped right into gear," he said. He also found the seats to be comfortable.

"I think they've got a winner," Bresler said. "I would trade in my Tracer today - and I like my Tracer."

The cars come with polymer vertical panels that don't rust and are more difficult to dent, Tibus said. Although they can be scratched with keys, if a shopping cart were to hit them, it would not damage them.

Saturns get 27 miles per gallon in the city and 34 in the highway.

4 GOOD REASONS TO VOTE YES FOR METRO AIRPORT BOND ISSUE

1. IT DOESN'T COST TAXPAYERS. THE AIRLINES PAY THE BILL

Don't be confused by ballot language. Even though this referendum is on the Wayne County Ballot, the airlines at Metro are responsible for paying all these bonds without ANY cost to taxpayers. The issue will permit $100 million worth of improvements to make Metro a safer, more efficient and more convenient airport.

2. A YES VOTE PROTECTS 50,000 JOBS

Metro Airport provides more jobs than six Saturn plants would. Passage of the hond issue will create 20,000 more airport-related jobs.

3. METRO IS OUTDATED

When construction began on Metropolitan Airport in the 1950s, no one dreamed air travel would become as important to business and vacation travel as it has. Metro now serves 14 MILLION PASSENGERS per year - and the demand for air travel is growing. The bond issue will provide more parking and a safer, more convenient airport.

4. METRO WILL GET OUIETER AND QUIETER

Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara has begun a campaign to make Metro Airport quieter. This bond issue will also pay for noise abatement measures.

66 Metro Airport is an important economic asset for Wayne County and our jobs.99

-- Pat Curtis Chief Mechanic Kitty Hawk Air Cargo

VOTE YES ON THE METRO BOND REFERENDUM NOVEMBER 6

Paid for by the Committee for a Better Airport, 16896 Collingham, Detroit, MI 48205

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

- 1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult...
- 2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
- 3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
- 4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
- 5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
- 6. Phone a friend.
- 7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
- 8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
- 9. Hug a pillow.
- 10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
- Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
- 12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866L, Chicago, IL 60690.

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

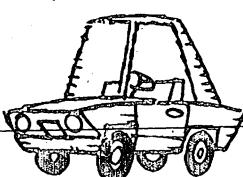

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the Item, service or lob you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accuratel Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

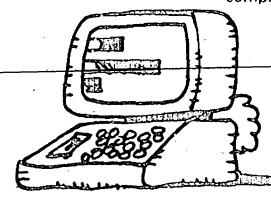

2. include the price, Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a salet

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone. salesperson or outside sales representative.

> Quickness was Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team's advantage Tuesday against Macomb CC in a playoff for the Region 12 title. George Abuamsha proved it.

> A foul called against the Monarchs with seven minutes left gave SC a free kick 30 yards from the Macomb net. Abuamsha quickly tapped the ball ahead to Jeff VanDemergel. The Macomb defenders failed to react, believing the play was offsides.

> Not so, said the officials. VanDemergel faked keeper Chris Weiskirch out of position and knocked the ball into the net to give SC a 1-0 triumph and a berth in the National Junior College Athletic Association Inter-re> gional Tournament this weekend. The Ocelots will face the Region 4 (northern Illinois) champion at 11 a.m. (CST) Saturday at the College of Lake County in Grayslake, Ill. The winner will play for the Inter-regional title - and a berth in the NJCAA tournament - at 11 a.m. Sunday.

"WAS THERE ever a doubt?" SC coach Van Dimitriou asked moments after his team had clinched the title, its second straight. He was joking, of course; although the Ocelots may have had more and better chances, it took Abuamsha's controversial quick pass to VanDemergel to decide the issue.

The result did not sit well with Macomb coach Mick Lakatos. "Both teams played a wonderful game," he said. "I'm taking nothing away from Schoolcraft. But two calls - one that took our goal away (a foul against Macomb just prior to its goal nullified it) and one they scored on — and we lose a game. It shouldn't be that way."

Abuamsha disagreed with the Macomb coach. "No, not at all," he said when asked if the play was offside. There were two (Macomb) guys standing there when I took it. You have to take (the free kick) quick. You can't well. Dimitriou described it as divine intervention. "I was calling for Shane (Millner)," Dimitriou said. "I don't know what George heard, but he got up. Then I said to myself, what the heck, Khaled (Zeidan) isn't doing anything, anyway."

SO IN WENT Abuamsha. "He started playing really well, and I said could this be a sign from above?" said Dimitriou.

Maybe so. But it's also a well-established fact; SC has met Macomb in a similar situation - a one-game playoff for first place and the NJCAA Inter-regional berth - four times. The Ocelots have won all four.

They did it this time without their best scorer, really. Zeidan was still battling the flu and was able to play barely half the match. They also struggled in the midfield, prompting Dimitriou to switch sweeper Dave Dinglie to center mid to start the second half.

That almost proved disastrous. SC's defense was confused and struggling for the first 10 minutes of the second half before Dimitriou abandoned that setup and put Dinglie back at sweeper.

"I didn't like the start of the second half at all," he admitted. "But we got it straightened out." Fortunately, SC keeper Scott Hauman was equal to all challenges. Macomb's John Sikorski got a cross directly in front of the net six minutes into the second half and pushed it toward the goal, but Hauman made a diving save.

It was a bad day for Sikorski - he got his foot on a rebound in the first half with no one between him and the SC net, but deflected it over the bar.

It wasn't a bad day for the Ocelots, though. They extended their season by one game, at least. And as long as they keep winning. . . .

Although the Michigan High School Athletic Association frowns on all gambling activities, the line on Saturday's Class AA Region II semifinal football encounter - Plymouth Canton at Westland John Glenn might surprise a few people.

At first glance, one would think Glenn would be the favorite.

Not only are the Rockets (8-1) playing at home (1:30 p.m. start, broadcast on WSDP-Radio 88.1 FM). but they are also steeped in playoff tradition, having qualified for their fifth post-season berth in six years. Glenn was also the top point-getter in Region II. Meanwhile, Canton (8-1) is making its first-ever playoff appearance. having squeaked in on points after edging out Battle Creek Central for the fourth and final spot.

But think again, according to Glenn coach Chuck Gordon.

"Comparative scores make me nervous," he said. "Of our five common opponents (during the regular season), they (Canton) won by bigger margins than we did. And obviously they played Farmington Harrison tough.'

IT WAS ONLY two weeks ago that Glenn- was stunned by perennial state Class B kingpin Harrison in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game, 29-0.

But earlier in the season, in what amounted to the Western Division championship game in the WLAA, Canton lost by only six to Harrison,

As far as the other four common foes, Glenn has beaten Walled Lake Western (31-0), Plymouth Salem (20-14), North Farmington (23-7) and Farmington (29-6).

Canton, meanwhile, has defeated Western (49-13), Salem (34-0), North (34-9) and Farmington (43-19).

"It's going to take a great effort," Gordon said. "They (Canton) are a tremendous football team. They're on a roll. They're a team that I think deserves more state recognition."

Is Gordon simply blowing smoke? Unlikely because of Canton's highpowered offensive attack.

Quarterback Karl Wukie has thrown for 1,061 yards and 14 touchdowns, while running backs Chris James and Jason Riggs have combined for nearly 1,000 yards on the ground.

"WUKIE IS GOOD, he makes a lot of things happen," said the Glenn coach. "James and Riggs are excellent backs. They have a lot of weapons, a lot of balance. We've got to play great defense against them, but nobody has shut them down. They've scored nearly 300 points this year. (287 to be exact). They mix it up so well and that makes it tough. Their balance puts guess work into it. They also have that big play capability."

Canton is coming off a high, having blitzed neighborhood rival Plymouth Salem in the regular season fi-

"I think we're going to have to control the ball like we did against Salem," said Canton coach Bob Khoenle. "Our coaches say our best championship remained in the Plym-come from Birmingham Brother outh Canton school district, and Rice's John Cowan. Farmington senior Ben Goba retained the individual title Saturday.

Plymouth Salem succeeded Canton as the team champion in the Class A regional at Marshbank Park with 81 points.

Novi (87) was second and the Chiefs (98) also qualified again-with a third-place finish. The top three teams from each regional compete Saturday for the state title at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilan-

Defending Class A champ Redford Catholic Central finished fourth and failed to qualify for the first time since 1986. The Shamrocks had 108 points.

"It's disappointing, obviously," CC coach Tony Magni said. "We didn't run well and the other three did. All the credit goes to them. Usually, 108 gets you out of the regional."

GOBA WON his second straight regional race with a 16:19.4 time, finishing six seconds ahead of Novi's

Brian Molly, who ran 16:25.2. "He didn't have a lot of competition like some other races," Farmington coach Jerry Young said. "He stayed together with the Novi kid for a mile and a half and pulled away."

Goba, who was fourth in the individual state race last year, will have a lot of competition this week in Ypsilanti, according to Young.

Rodney Westlake of Livonia Stevenson was an individual state qualifier in the boys reglonal.

"He's got to get out fast and not have (Cowan) around at the finish," Young said, "because John has an awful good kick.

"You have to take some gas out of him somewhere along the way. If it's a slow race, everybody will be in trouble with Cowan."

SALEM WAS led by John Thomas, who finished seventh in 17:00. Canton's top runner was Mike Ream, who finished third in 16:46.8. Jason Crain also cracked the top 10, placed eighth in 17:05.9.

Canton coach-Jim-Hayes attributed his team's strong showing to its top two runners scoring 11 points. Crain, who hyperventilated during the Western Lakes Activities Association meet and didn't finish, had an excellent race, Hayes said. "He bounced back three days lat-er," Hayes said, "so that was a real pleasant surprise for him and the

"Everybody assumes Mike Ream is going to do well, and he doesn't get the respect. We count on him so much and he's been right there all season. He's never had a bad race."

Dave Yack finished 20th for the Chiefs in 17:40, Jim Carnes 29th (17:55) and Jason Napolitano 38th (18:01). Yack, a sophomore, dldn't run cross country last year and would have just missed qualifying by one place for the individual race if the team hadn't advanced.

"He ran a heckuva race for a young man you didn't know was out there," Hayes said. "We didn't know where he was at the start of the year, and he dropped down to the top 15 in the league. That's a heck of an improvement."

CC'S JAMIE Fitzgerald and Jon Borke qualified for the individual state race, finishing 18th and 19th, respectively. Jack Massarello was 21st, Mike McDonald 24th and Luke Dahl 26th. The Shamrocks missed John Wiktor, who didn't run all year because of a stress fracture.

"He would have been our second or third runner, and he would have pushing everyone else all year," Magni said.

Also qualifying for the Class A individual race were Livonia Stevenson's Rodney Westlake, who was fourth in the regional; Livonia Franklin's Eric Curnow (fifth), Redford Union's Ken Podina (sixth) and Farmington's Dave Clinard (17th).

Lutheran Westland finished eighth in the Class C boys regional at Marshbank Park, Steve Walters was its top runner, finished 17th in 17:46.

State-bound

Dixon, Spartan girls set regional pace

Livonia Ladywood's Malia Dixon won the individual title and Redford Union took first place in the team standings Saturday in the Class A girls cross country meet held at Marshbank Park.

RU took first place with 82 points, followed by second-place Livonia Stevenson, 103, and Plymouth Salem in third place at 110. RU, still running without its top runner Liza Mockeridge at full strength, won its first regional since 1982 when the Panthers scored a record low total of 16 points.

The top three teams qualify for the Class A state meet, set for 11 a.m. Saturday at the Eastern Michigan University Golf Course in Ypsilan-

All RU coach Bob Ouellette wanted to do was finish in the top three in order to qualify for the state meet. So naturally, he accepted first place.

"Our kids did a nice job," Ouellette said. "The key for us was the fact that at the two-mile mark we did a quick score and found out we were in fourth place. The issue was not as much to win the regional as it was to qualify for the state meet. At the two-mile mark, we decided to go after them. The better teams will run better the ast third of a race."

RU, RATED FOURTH in the latest Class A state rankings, was led by Tracey James, who took fourth in 20:40. Other finishers for RU included: Jenni Sturdevant, who took 13th in 21:13; Melissa Still, 20th (21:23); Michelle Daraban, 21st (21:24); and Kelly Murray, 28th (21:41).

"Tracey and Jenni have come on like mad for us," Ouellette said. "They took over and it's very mportant because our seniors are really tired."

Stevenson, champion of the Western Lakes Acivities Association, was led by Stacy Prais, who inished third in 20:34.5, and A.J. Koritnik, who vas fifth (20:41.5). Stevenson's Carrie Creehan ik eighth (20:51.7). The Spartans' Gail Grewe took 31st (21:50).

"We were very hopeful of, and I would have been very disappointed had we not qualified for the state," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "I thought we had a chance to win it. Our first three kids ran extremely well and couldn't ask for anything more from them. We didn't seem to follow up after three.

"All season our success depended on what happens to our fifth runner. This was the only off meet Gail Grewe had, she's capable of being in the top 15."

SALEM, WHICH does not have a senior among its top five runners, was led by sophomore Corey Gulkewicz, who took seventh (20:50). Sophomore Stacy Wittoff was 12th, (21:02); freshman Julie Cutting, 27th (21:40); freshman Emily Farrell, 29th (21:46); and junior Beth Turomsha, 39th "That was the meet we were shooting for all year," Salem coach Mike Krafchak sald. "We have a young team and nobody counted us in all year. The only teams to beat us this year were Canton and Stevenson. We beat Canton in the regional, and we almost beat Stevenson.

"We started with the idea in camp that if we did the things necessary, we'd have a shot at qualifying for state. These kids deserve it; they've worked so doggone hard."

The state meet is hard to predict, Krafchak

"Our goal is to finish around the 10th position," he said. "These kids have improved steadily, and we are a great invitational team. You don't finish fourth at Holly and fifth at West Bloomfield without being a great invitational team."

Said Quellette: "We're just going to go there and race. The kids would like to be in the top five. We're going to race to win but the best teams are Traverse City and Ann Arbor Pioneer." LADYWOOD PLACED only 13th overall, but Dixon won the individual standings in a time of

"She had a good mile (6:10) and was still running strong," said coach Rich Dixon. "This was the fifth time she ran the course and she knows it pretty well." Canton was led by Amy Smith (21:09) and Heather Meyer (21:10), each of whom qualified for the state meet in placing 14th and 16th place, respectively. Farmington, which placed fifth at last year's state meet, placed sixth in the team standings with 163 points. Farmington's Allison Davis qualified for the state meet with a 19th place finish (21:26). Livonia Franklin placed only ninth overall with 242 points but the Patriots Stacy Hewett qualified for the state meet in placing ninth (20:52.7). North Farmington didn't score as a team but Tracy Mitchell qualified for the state in 17th place.

CLASS C

In the Class C regional at Marshbank Saturday, Lutheran Westland's girls team took fourth place, barely missing out on qualifying as a team for the state meet.

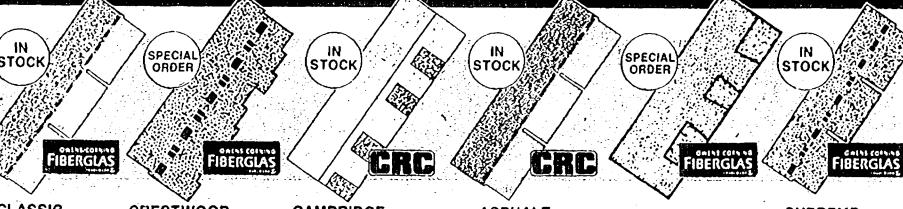

The Warriors scored 112 points. Southfield Christian was first with 80 points; Williamston. second (93); and Ida, third (98).

Senior Jennifer Gerlach, junior Lisa Shafer and junior Renee Ruth qualified individually for the Class C meet, which will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at Lake Fenton's Torrey Pines Golf Gerlach was third place in 20:08. Lisa Shafer took 17th (21:40) and Ruth, 20th (22:02).

Borgess falls to Rice, 17-6

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Al Fracassa kept a secret Sunday morning from his Birmingham Brother Rice football team - and a few hours later the Warriors let everyone know how explosive they Fracassa knew Rice would qualily for the Class A playoffs regardless of what happened later in the day against Redford Bishop Borgess in the Catholic League's Wildcard game at the Silverdome. He chose not to tell his players, who went on to score two early touchdowns and whip Borgess, 17-6, in the final regular-season game for both teams.

Rice improved to 7-2 overall and will play Royal Oak Dondero in the first round of the Class A playoffs at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Birmingham Groves. Borgess, champion of the Tri-Sectional League, finished at 6-3 overall and without a playoff berth.

This is Rice's eighth trip to the playoffs.

"I'll tell you what, one of my assistant coaches, Norm Krawczak, keeps track of those things (playoff points) and he said, 'Even if we lose, we're in the playoffs," Fracassa said. "I didn't want my players to hear that or the hoopla of the playoffs until the game was over. I'm glad we won and it's nice to go in with a 7-2 record instead of 6-3."

Matt Allen and Andy Haislip each caught their first touchdown passes of the year as Rice opened up a 14-0 lead before the game was nline minutes old. The Warriors scored on their first series when tailback Jon Burtraw took a pitch from quarterback Steve Merchant and threw a 55-yard scoring strike to Allen, who was all alone in the Borgess secondary.

Allen caught the ball at about the 20 and raced into the end zone untouched. The extra point by Kevin Cook gave Rice a 7-0 lead with 8:57 left in the first quarter.

"We practiced that play all winners. week, and Burt (Burtraw) has an extraordinary arm for a back," Al- zylewicz said.

"We made two early mistakes and they made 14 points that were a gift," Borgess coach Walt Bazylewicz said. "You can't make mistakes against a real good, sharp, well-coached football team. For three and a half quarters we did a good job.'

The statistics reflected that. Rice gained only 207 yards in total offense, compared to 190 by Borgess. Burtraw led Rice with 113 yards rushing on 25 carries, but had only 17 by halftime. Anthony Hood led Borgess with 56 yards on nine carries and backfield mate David Dobbin finished with 40 yards, also on nine carries.

Dobbin had the game's niftiest run, breaking several tackles on his way to a 21-yard TD with 8:26 left in the third quarter. The two-point attempt failed, leaving Rice ahead

Rice put the game away with a 13-play drive that ended with Cook's 29-yard field goal with 8:11 left in the game.

Ypsi's size haunts CC's Mach

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Redford Catholic Central coach Tom Mach didn't need to be walking the streets to receive a scare on Devil's Night.

Mach was inside the CC football office Tuesday night, watching film of the Ypsilanti football team, when a reporter called. Before long, he began talking about Ypsilanti's mammoth-sized offensive tackles, Jugurry Armstrong (6-foot-7, 300 pounds) and Joe Canzoneri (6-6, 255).

"They make everyone look small," Mach said. "That No. 76 (Armstrong) is one of the biggest kids I've ever seen in a football uniform. He's kind of a scary figure. He plays defense once in awhile, lining up right over the center. That's kind of intimidat-Mach will get to see the pair in person Saturday, when CC meets Ypsilanti in a Class AA first round game. Game time at Ypsilanti's Shadford Field is 7 p.m.

CC, 7-2 overall, assured itself of a post-season berth with an impressive, 31-0 win Sunday over Detroit St. Martin DePorres for the Catholic League championship. Ypsilanti was co-champion of the South Central Conference with Ann Arbor Pioneer, and finished the regular season at 8-1 overall.

THE BRAVES ALSO finished the season strong with a 21-7 win over Lake Orion, a playoff qualifier last year. It promises to be an exciting game between a pair of teams who think run first, pass second. And that's good news, since there's a bevy of running backs on each team worth watching.

CC's leading rusher, tailback Mike Thomas (ankle sprain), remains questionable, but fullback Jon Barbara (518 yards on 121 carries) and reserve Arshon Stewart (124 yards on 25 carries against DePorres) are healthy.

Each team has recorded four shut-

"It'll be a rough game," Mach said. "Both teams have similar philosophies. They run out of the Wing-T, so we know what they're trying to do. There might not be as many chances to score, because both teams like to keep drives going and keep the ball from the other team."

Ypsilanti has one of the state's best backs in 6-foot, 215-pound senior fullback Wardell Davis, who has gained 1,352 yards on 174 carries. The Braves usually go to Davis when inside the opponent's 10-yard line, as evidenced by the 14 touchdowns he has scored.

movement in the open field," Ypsilanti coach Bob Kohn said. "He also has good enough speed to break one now and again.' Kohn likes the idea of running behind his pair of book-end tackles, but. he wishes Armstrong wouldn't carry so much beef on his frame.

"He's a strong runner with good

"HE'S A PRETTY good blocker," said Kohn, "but of the 300 pounds, there's a lot of weight that doesn't need to be there. He's a good football player, but he'd be better if he weighed 270."

The tailback position is shared by 5-10 185-pound junior Bryant Hargrow and 5-10, 165-pound senior CATHOLIC CENTRAL

Senior quarterback Ryan Lovelace (5-10, 155) runs the Wing-T, and has completed 37 percent (23-66) of his passes for 400 yards and four TDs. He has been intercepted six

"The personnel we have at Ypsilanti lends itself to the ground attack," Kohn said. "We throw the ball enough to keep you honest, to supplement the running game."

For the second straight game, CC will play without Jack Davidson, who broke his collarbone in a 21-7 win last month over Harper Woods

Notre Dame. Davidson is the team's leading receiver with 14 catches for 134 yards, but he also lined up in CC's secondary, returned punts and held on field goals and extra points.

Quarterback Jason Carr (48-108, for 539 yards and four TDs), will have to look for Mario Vassallo (eight catches, 95 yards) more without Davidson in the lineup.

"I thought he was one of the top receivers around," said Mach of Davidson, an All-Catholic choice. "Four guys went in for him when he went ,down."

YPSILANTI'S DEFENSE has allowed only 860 yards in total offense, an average of 95.5 yards per game. CC, which has played the toughest schedule in the state, has given up 1,395 total yards (155 per game).

Inside linebacker Carl Kowalyk leads CC with 62 tackles, while defensive tackle Rob Sylvester has 58 tackles, two for quarterback sacks. Defensive end Brian Chaney leads CC with four sacks and has been in on 51 tackles.

If it comes down to the kicking game, CC has the edge. Junior Kerry Zavagnin has taken over full-time, kicking field goals of 39, 26 and 31 yards and seven extra points.

"Kerry has done a great job for us," Mach said. "It's not just the kicking either, but all aspects, including the snapping by James Budha and holding by Jon Barbara has been great."

Kohn isn't so confident about his kicking game.

"We've got a guy who kicks the ball when it's on the ground," Kohn defense is our offense. We have to get the ball and score. They (Glenn) are going to stop Wukie, I'm sure, but we're just going to do what they give us. I think we have plenty of 'ammo' to throw at people."

Khoenle believes that Glenn may try to play power football.

"Our thinking is that defense is based on quickness and stunting," said the Canton coach. "The impression I get is that Glenn likes to run the ball at you and they'll try to outmuscle you. Team-wise we're not that big except for one guy (defensive tackle Dean Benedict, who is 6foot-1, 215 pounds). If we can't do this against Glenn, it might cause us some problems."

"THEY PLAY A 5-2 (defensive front) and some 4-3," Gordon said of the Chiefs. "They're very aggressive up front. Their (line) backers are active. They'll hit the creases in your line. They disrupt things and they're very good at it. They'll gamble some. It's an attacking defense, they're not sitting and reading, they're attack-

Canton may also try to play the power game.

"Our offensive line has pretty good size," Khoenle said. "The offensive line has strength, the defensive line has the quickness and mobility. That's the way we plan it. We've got good size, we come off the ball well and we allow Karl to do what he does. They (offensive line) don't allow penetration, and we allow the ball carrier to get to the other side of the line of scrimmage. Our last two games (wins over Salem and North) we've taken control and sort of dom-

How will this Canton team react to its first-ever playoff game is anybody's guess, but Khoenle welcomes the opportunity.

"ALL WE CAN ask for is a chance to do it in the playoffs, and we have that chance," he said. "They (Glenn) are a good football team, and it's going to be tough.

"I assume everybody in our region thinks we're the weakest of the final region, so we are the lesser team. Anybody around here who knows us, and the other teams in the region, thinks that. I don't necessarily agree with it, but that's probably what others think."

Does playoff tradition help Glenn? "I hope that helps, but very few of these kids played in those games last year," said Gordon. "It's a new season and a new team."

Gordon says his team must stay away from mistakes, which nearly cost the Rockets last week in their regular season finale against rival Wayne Memorial.

Glenn led 24-0 midway through the third quarter before Wayne scored 20 straight points.

'Turnovers put our defense in a hole," he said. "We gave Wayne field position and you just can't do that against good teams. To win, you've got to stop making mistakes. Not to discredit Wayne, but I think we helped their cause." Gordon knows his team cannot repeat their miscues of week ago because Canton is very opportunistic. And what is the line for Saturday's

Truth: Churchill vs. Stevenson

By Bred Emons staff writer

· Forget about Evander Holyfield's quick knockout recently over Buster Douglas, the real "Moment of Truth" begins at 6 p.m. Friday at Ypsilanti High's Shadford Field.

soccer, Livonia rivals Churchill (15-1-2) and Stevenson (15-1-3), will square off for the regional: seconds later when Vince DeMassa fed Craig championship. champlonship.

In a rare doubleheader Wednesday night at Ypsi, the two Livonia teams advanced with wins. Churchill, behind Dominic Vella's hat trick, ousted Trenton in the opener, 5-2.

In the nightcap, Stevenson got a pair of goals from Matt Grodzicki, fighting off a determined Ann Arbor Huron squad, 4-2.

The regional final will be the second meeting this season between the two schools. Back on Sept. 19, Churchill railled for two goals in the final eight minutes to earn a 2-2 tie.

Expect a frenzied, high-scoring affair on Friday due to Ypsi's fight 100-yard pitch (field).

"If this was between two club teams on a wide-open field, I'd say it would be a conservative game," said Stevenson coach Walt Barrett. "But on this field, which is a lot like ours at Stevenson in narrow and short - anything could happen, especially when you're talking high school soccer."

But it was too little, too late for Huron, which bowed out with a 13-6-2 overall record.

The score may have been higher, but keepers Scott Plagenhoef (Stevenson) and Jerry Tarpley (Huron) each made sparkling saves.

Matesic sisters pace GC against Stevenson

Senior center Karla Matesic scored eight straight fourth-quarter points to break up a 28-28 tie, propelling Garden City to a 45-42 non-conference girls basketball win Tuesday at home over Livonia Stevenson.

Matesic finished with 10 points in the game. Junior forward Jenny Horosko led all scorers with 12 points and three assists. Matesic's twin sister, Krystal, added six points and 11 rebounds.

Senior point guard Carolyn Shanks, in foul trouble most of the game, was held to six points and five assists.

Sophomore guard Jenny Audet led Stevenson, 11-6 overall, with 11 points. Senfor center Teresa Sarno scored eight points, all in the second half.

Garden City, 16-2 overall and 6-0 in the Northwest Suburban League, hosts will play Redford Union (5-1 in the NSL) tonight at home for the league championship. (Game time is 7.)

FRANKLIN 41, CHURCHILL 34: Senior guard Jenny Mayle scored 16 points and senior forward Julianne Steslak added 13 points as Liyonla Franklin defeated Livonia Churchill

Tuesday on its home floor. Franklin, which took a halftime lead of 26-16, led the entire game.

Senior center Christina Garry and sophomore guard Chrissy Daly scored 10 points aplece for Churchill. Dawn Warner, Franklin's leading scorer, was limited to six points. "It was not the best game that we've played," said Franklin coach Dan Freeman. "But I have to give it to Churchill, which played very well and executed.

The difference was we got solid play in the post by (Jenny) Mayle."

Churchill used a triangle-and-two defense to slow down Warner, a junior guard. Although she scored only six points, Warner (averaging 17 points a game), dished out eight assists. We did a good job of playing defense," Churchill Coach Don Albertson said. "I'm real proud of Churchill's overall effort and I'm hap-

SC spikers eye regional tourney

The regular season is winding down for Schoolcraft College's volleyball team, and its victory total against impressive opponents keeps climbing. Last weekend, the Lady Ocelots captured the Calvin College Tournament, which featured 11 four-year schools and SC.

"Among those in the field were Kalamazoo College, ranked among the leaders in the NCAA Division III and the best team in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and Aquinas College, which finished second in the NAIA District 23 regular season.

SC defeated Aquinas in the final 15-13, 15-12, 6-15, 15-11 Saturday, gaining the victory in the fourth game with a comeback sparked by Jennifer Sproul's serving. The Lady Ocelots trailed 11-6 when Sproul started her serve; they led 14-11 when she finished. Three of those points came on aces.

Sproul finished with four aces in the match and 38 assists to kills. Kari Domanski had 16 kills (.168), Angellette Love had 14 (.080) and Renea Bonser had nine (.381). Kari Van Deusen added four kills and three solo blocks; Love also had three solos, while Lisa Domke totalled 17 digs.

WHAT MADE the win more impressive was the absense of SC leading hitter Elena Oparka, who missed the tournament because of a family wedding, and Stephanie Jandasek, whose knee was bother-

In the semifinal, the Lady Ocelots trimmed Kalamazoo College 15-7, 15-17, 15-3, 15-17, 15-6. Domanski was the spark, collecting 28 kills (.532), three service aces and 16 digs. Love added 23 kills (.333), five solo blocks, one block assist and 24 digs.

Other major contributors were Renea Bonser with 12 kills (.250),

Kickers fight adversity

By C.J. Risak staff writer

It has not been an easy season for Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team. Player defections, academic problems, rules violations all have combined to wreck a season that very possibly could have culminated in a National Junior College Athletic Association title.

True, it's not so much because SC's team was of championship stock; rather, the rest of the NJCAA field is abnormally weak. SC coach Nick O'Shea figures the team he started the season with had a very realistic chance of reaching the NJCAA final.

Now, it's doubtful the Lady Ocelots will even make the trip to Trenton, N.J., for the tournament. Only 11 players remain on the squad. Two - Cassie Ozog, and keeper LeAnne Adle - are gone.

Ozog quit, complaining of an injury to O'Shea less than an hour before the team left for two games in St. Louis, a trip she didn't make. She played the next week against Siena Heights, then never showed up again. Adle had academic problems and was suspended for two games; during her suspension she was to attend tutoring sessions. She didn't, so she was dropped from the squad.

FORTUNATELY, ANOTHER player who violated team rules --Donna O'Brien - did make it through her two-game suspension and made the team trip to North Carolina for matches at Brevard CC and Lees McRae College last weekend. That at least gave SC 11 players, enough to field a team.

There was no doubting their willingness to compete, either. A tough, frustrating 3-2 overtime defeat at Brevard Saturday might have left the Lady Ocelots physically and emotionally drained; however, they displayed character by bouncing back for a 2-0 shutout win at Lees McRae Sunday.

"You've got a nice team," Brevard Lady Ocelots did not get another coach Joe Bartlinski told O'Shea afgood scoring opportunity. ter Saturday's match, "I know we didn't play our best game, but it was our last home game so we were a for long On Sunday, with Bowman little emotionally charged up." playing well in the net, the Lady

The teams SC faced could hardly be referred to as patsies. They were tied for third in the NJCAA rankings going into the weekend, with SC rated fifth.

The Lady Ocelots went against McRae may have had something to them without a proven keeper. In the do with that: "They were not as Brevard match, O'Shea must've es- strong a team (as Brevard).'

Still, the SC defense the Angle Sti-Schoolcraft sports glmaier sweeping, and Jen Marshall, Lindy Tatale, Jennifer Whitfield and DeJohn all spending time in the back line - surrendered very few scoring chances.

The Lady Ocelots took the lead with 18:45 remaining in the first half on a restart - their second of three goals off restarts during the weekend, all three involving Johnson. Johnson took the free kick near the end line on the left side, angling the ball to Sara Hayes, who headed it in for the goal...

With, 51/2 minutes elapsed in the second half, Johnson again converted a free kick into a goal. From the left side, she looped the ball toward the far post. Bobcat keeper Sharon Morgan got her hand on the ball but couldn't hold it; it deflected off a Lees McRae defender into the net, making it 2-0.

THE SPLIT gave SC a final regular-season record of 7-3-4, and left O'Shea with a dilemma. Taking just 11 players to a national tournament, with the possibility of playing three games in three or four days, is asking for trouble.

Part of the blame for the current predicament is O'Shea's. His recruiting last summer was snarled by a few players he expected to join the team deciding not to, leaving him with a roster of just 13.

But if SC does not go to the NJCAA tournament, it will be as much because of the team's off-thefield problems as the lack of players.

There are other complications. Two years ago, SC was not given a bid to the NJCAA tournament, even though it produced a fine regularseason record and was the defending NJCAA champion. The reason: It had not played enough quality opponents. O'Shea's lobbying resulted in SC competing in an inter-regional playoff against Kansas and Nebraska JCs, with the winner securing an automatic bid.

Unfortunately, those teams said early this season they did not plan to partake in the inter-regional, thereby giving SC a free ride to the NJCAA tournament. Now, if O'Shea turns down the berth, he fears that what he fought for two years ago will be taken away.

It's a difficult decision. O'Shea doubts his team has the capability or maturity to handle the six-day trip to Trenton, N.J. But if they don't go, future SC teams could pay the penalty if automatic berth is withdrawn.

News.

Bad news.

The good news? More and more people, businesses and industries are finding ways to recycle.

It takes more than 6,000 tons of newsprint each year to print The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers plus a number of other publications. so we're doing a number of things to help the solid waste situation:

- 1. For years we've sold our waste newsprint to a recycling firm.
- 2. 25% of the newsprint we print on is recycled and we're increasing this amount by another 25% this year.

3. Our employees have begun to routinely put officer paper (memos, computer paper, waste copy paper) in recycle bins instead of waste baskets.

Of course, we still deliver thousands of newspapers twice each week. It's our business to bring you news of your local government, schools, sports scene and community events; the news you need to know.

And when you're finished reading your hometown newspaper there are places that will recycle them.

We've listed a few for you on this page because we think recycling is Good News.

Here is a list of recycling centers in or near The Observer & Eccentric circulation area. Please call the center nearest you for guidance in preparing your recyclables

Designing duo Love of art spurred a deeper kind of love

Ted Striewski models some of the jewelry he has made

By Janice Tigar-Kramor special writer

T WAS a love of art that first brought together Ted and Andrea (Andy) Striewski in August 1980. Ted and Andy, both artists who were showing their work at the Meadow Brook Art Festival, were assigned to booths opposite each other during the two-day show.

But it was enough time for the couple to begin a friendship that led to marriage just two years lat-

THEN A full-time professor of art at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills, Ted devoted most of his time to teaching drawing, design, sculpture and jewelry making.

He reserved weekends to show his organic jewelry at art shows.

Violin feeds concertmaster's yen for music

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

In half an hour, rehearsal was set to start for a benefit concert by the Livonia Symphony Orchestra on Nov. 14.

Soon the melodic notes of "Camelot" would cheerfully sound through the quiet air, enchanting all within hearing range. Concertmaster Victoria Haltom would soon be engaged in the pursuit of her lifelong passion,

Violinist Victoria Haltom began her music studies in Livonia at the age of 8. At 19, she left her parents' Livonia home to accept a position with the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony. For the next 13 years, Haltom performed with the symphony while living in New Orleans.

THIS SEASON, she returns to Livonia to fill the position of concertmaster with the Livonia Symphony, under Francesco DiBlasi's di-Haltom and DiBlasi work together as a team in rehearsal and on stage, leading the 80-member Livonia Symphony with a culmination of artistic talent and expertise.

Leading off the season opener as featured soloist of the evening, Haltom heightened the program with a heartfelt, spontaneous solo, ringing from her violin strings in Saint-Saens' "Dance Macabre."

'IN AN interview before an LSO rehearsal, Haltom said she "always had a real desire to play violin. "There wasn't anything else," Haltom said. "I went to Interlochen to study occause I was serious."

Arts Association of Livonia will be on display through Nov. 16 in the lobby of the Livonia City Hall, Five Mile and Farmington Road.

The public is invited to the opening reception, 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 4.

"The show is offered for the community's enjoyment while promoting the local artists' work," said Ruthann Platt, VAAL publicity director for the show. "The show also offers us exposure, letting the community know about our class-

The show features nearly 80 oil and watercolor paintings and collages that have been judged through a VAAL competition.

The art on display was juried on Oct. 18 in the VAAL art instruction classroom at Jefferson Center, Livonia.

JURIST FOR the show was Marjorie Chellstorp, a respected artist and teacher with a masters degree in fine arts from the University of Iowa. She has also received many awards for her artwork.

Council a cultural leader; historic site memorable

FROM THE arts beat:

• Local leadership - Its mission is simple. But its work is exciting. For 21 years, it has been a community fine arts leader.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council's aim is to develop artistic appreciation and foster artistic ex-

The volunteer-driven group works from a second-floor nook in a historld building off Plymouth's Kellogg Park. And its arts programming has touched many facets of the Plym-

It also brought Michigan Artrain, a traveling art museum, to town.

In her letter to the council last spring, outgoing president Elaine Bain outlined the breadth of the group's work:

"We have continued to grant view art with greater awareness.

awards and scholarships, to provide volunteers for supplemental activity in our schools, to sponsor and manage art events, to sponsor and manage art education, to fund professional performing arts assemblies, and to manage arts-related business endeavors." I found these council endeavors especially notable:

• Art Lady. It exposes kids to the classics, in turn teaching them to • Professional performances. They acquaint kids with the quality of professional performing artists.

• Save Our Earth. The one-time project, in cooperation with Plymouth Township, helped make students more aware of the Earth's limited environmental resources.

• The Russell L. Isbister Memorial Collection. It's a selection of student artwork that's professionally matted and framed and rotated through the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools as a traveling show.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council, now under the able helm of president Carolyn Simons, is supported in part by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

And I can't help but feel the state's $6,800 organization support grant for 1990-91 is money well spent.

• Fond memories - Witty and enthusiastic, Bob Slegmund shared the story of the historic Fruit IIIII Farm in Livonia with the Farmington Historical Society last week.

The 123-year-old former home of Joshua Simmons, the first to farm at Livonia's historic Greenmead, had been converted to the law offices of Helkamp, Ellis & Abraham in 1988.

The attorneys bought it from Slegmund, whose family called the frame house their home for 20 years. The attorneys' penchant for historic preservation matched that of the Siegmunds.

The 214-story house boasts a 36foot-long porch, 42 tall windows, a stone foundation, a gabled roof and projects.

The 114-acre, wooded site is on Eight Mile, west of Greenmead. In August, the house was torched, eight years after the horse barn burned. A suspect faces arson charges in the latest fire.

"It's a little tough to look at," Siegmund, who now lives in Farmingion, told the historical society, showing pictures of the fire scene.

"You're welcome to go by it and cry. Fortunately, nobody was hurt.

"You can replace a building, although not a historic one."

Sadly, how true.

Ted retired from his teaching job at the college last spring after 23 years to become a full-time jewelry designer.

"After telling my students for years that you need determination and drive to make it as an artist, I decided to take the risk,

Though he isn't certain yet whether the decision makes good financial sense, he is sure he'll "never go back."

Perhaps influenced by his background in sculpting, the pins, earrings and cuff bracelets that Ted makes from silver, copper and brass take on a natural appearance, or irregular form, rather than a geometric shape.

"My designs are always planned, but the pieces are never alike," he said. "The metal flows together to create a natural form, the shape becomes more potato than egg."

WHILE MOST other jewelry makers saw and solder, Ted shears the metal and heats it with a torch to bend and form. He then hammers the metal into shape and places it into a tumbler with pumice stones to smooth the edges. The metal then is sanded, polished, cleaned, buffed and polished again before a protective lacquer is applied. The custom cuff bracelets sell for $59 to $115. Pins are $39 to $59. Earrings are priced at $19 to $69. The jewelry is available at Jacobson's as well as museum ward to meeting other artists at shows and visiting new towns, shops and art galleries around the country.

ALL THE work is done in a small shop adjacent to the Striewskis' Farmington Hills house, which overlooks an inspiring view of a densely wooded ravine.

And when the couple can barely walk through the leaves from the house to the studio, they know it's time to pack the van for a Florida show.

"Doing this for a living now means we can do more than just travel to the weekend shows," Ted said. "We're looking forward to spending some time in the South this winter."

The wall hangings, which come in a range of sizes, sell for $250 to $2,000. Andy, who majored in physical education at Michigan State University, has always admired architecture and finds ideas for her work by strolling through historic neighborhoods in the cities that host art shows. She photographs particularly interesting places and often uses the pictures in a collage.

TED, FATHER of three adult children, and Andy, mother of a teenage daughter, have decorated their house with an eclectic assortment of artwork and photographs.

A wooden portrait of Ted, done by a former student, highlights the living room. Other areas of the house include the artists' work and photography done by Ted's daughter, as well as sculptures and drawings done by friends or artists the couple have met at shows. Besides enjoying their work, the Striewskis always look for-

In the gardens This peat works wonders

SOMETIMES KNOWING the origin of products we use in our gardens and on our lawns, helps us to become better gardeners.

Over 90 percent of the Canadian shaghnum peat moss harvested there is shipped to the Unital ed States. Why this peat and not just any peat? Shaghnum peat is an excellent amendment for a variety of soils.

This peat grows in the very cold, wet regions of Canada and has been growing there, in bogs, swamps and marshes, since the Ice Age. It was one of the first plants to grow on land as the glaciers pulled away.

As years went by, layers of decomposed plants formed. The hard, rigid cellular wall structure prevents further rapid decomposition, once this natural blodegradable substance is added to the Canadian peat can be mixed with soil to provide aeration and water retention in the ground and in planters, and it can be used as a protective top dressing for lawns. It can also be used as a mulch and will help areate compost.

BEFORE USING, open the bag and fill it with water so that the peat is completely moistened. Do this a day before using.

Here's some information to help you in your

For new lawns, mix two inches of peat in the top six inches of soil, cover grass seed and top with 4-1/2 inches of Canadlan spaghnum peat moss - 1,000 square feet; 23 bales.

To overseed established lawns, spread 4.4 inch layer over the surface where needed -1,000 square feet; 3-4 bales.

For bulb and flower beds and shrubs or transplants, blend peat 1/3 by volume with soil (or 1/3 peat, 15 and and 15 soil) — 24 square feet (bulbs) or 6-8 shrubs or trees; 1 bale. Here is a gardening project I haven't tried, but it sounds like an interesting one which will create a conversation piece in your home in the coming winter months. After planting, you will have flowers in just three weeks. SOMETIME THIS month dig up some clumps of lily-of-the-valley and keep them in a cool spot (60 degrees) in a container until the first of February. Don't let them dry out. When growth starts, pull the clump apart and

Murals enliven Livonia mall

By Linda Chomin special writer

Shades of gray color the 12-foot murals, depicting the cityscapes and landmarks of Greece, France, Japan, Italy, Great Britain and the United States. The murals were unveiled Oct. 24 to mark the opening of Laurel Park Place.

"Scott Staples painted the majority of the murals," said Mike Buesher, marketing director for the Livonia mall.

Staples, of Westland, used oilbased enamel paint on drywall to create murals of the United States, Greece, Japan, Italy and the Mona

"Steven Lewis and Thomas Morissey added the three-dimensional effects to the murals, the headlamps on the doubledecker, the jewelry on the ladies and the chiffon skirts on the ballerinas," Buesher said.

The grand opening, complete with cabaret entertainment provided by Bobby Short, was underwritten by

At left: The front end of a Piccadilly doubledecker graces one of the Laurel Park Place mural walls in shades of gray with electrified headlamps to light the streets at night. Schostak Brothers & Co., the Southfield-developers of Laurel Park Place, and by the mall to benefit the Detroit Institute of Arts:

The mural of Napolean on a galloping white steed was signed by Michael R. Lee of Windsor and Sonny Jemison of Mount Clemens. The two artists used loose, flowing strokes in the horse's mane and tail to give the scene movement.

Violins lined the walls in charcoal, pearl gray and steel with bridge and strings of brass placed upon each instrument to create a three-dimensional effect. Ballerinas danced in between the violins. Again, chiffon skirts were added to the ballerinas to give the work the appearance of three dimensions.

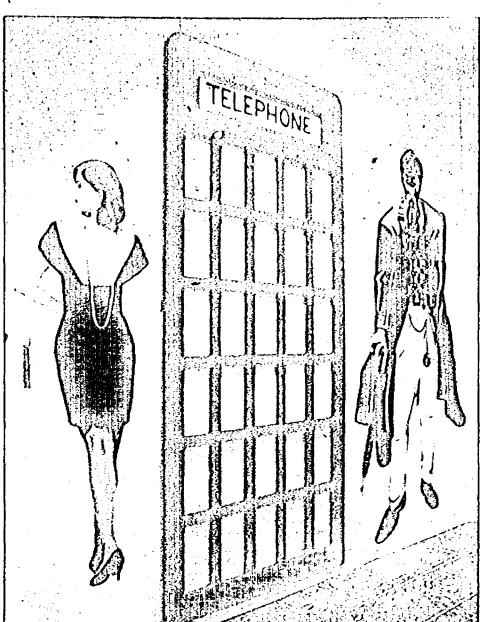

ON THE wall opposite Napolean was a surreal Buddha floating above Mount Vesuvius. A red, wooden telephone booth door stood out next to a lady in midnight blue with a string of pearls cascading down her back.

The murals of the United States, Greece, England, and the Mona Lisa took three weeks of 12-hour days to complete.

Throughout the mall, placed on easels, were groups of paintings by local media personalities. The pieces, created tongue-in-cheek for a good cause, were part of the silent auction to benefit the DIA.

Masterpieces by Bill Bonds, Mort Crim, Rich Fisher and Chuck Gaidica were painted in styles ranging from surreal to abstract.

Impressionist landscapes by Pierre Kinsey and Tranette Ledford show potential.

Try these cookbooks to get in holiday spirit

I'VE SPENT time lately browsing through new, just-in-time-for-theholidays cookbooks. As a result, I'm already starting to work up a holiday mood. Here's a sampling of same real standouts:

"Mrs. Witty's Home-Style Menu Cookbook" by Helen Witty (Workman, $12.95).

Down with trendiness! It's time, Mrs. Witty contends, to "get a grip again on such Americana as perfect mashed potatoes, lobster stew, peerless pot roast, upside-down cake, real lemonade, buttermilk biscuits .n. " and other traditional culinary

Why? Because, she says, "they're .good."

No argument there.

In this attractively designed volume are more than 200 recipes for those who want to enjoy old-fashioned American fare. How do butterpoached apples sound? Or blueberry and pound cake summer pudding? Or six-seafood chowder? How about wild rice and black walnut stuffing?

You'll find more than recipes here, too. Complete menus are built around each dish; each dish is introduced by Mrs. Witty's down-to-earth commentary. You'll also find, at the back of the book, sections like "Some Equipment Absolutely Not to Be Without" (forget the food processor and invest in a sturdy electric mixer) and "A Few Food Books to Read For Pleasure."

This book is a genuine pleasure to explore and a delight to use. Ultimately, it seems to matter not at all that there's not a single photo or even an illustration between its covęrs.

• "Cocolat: Extraordinary Chocolate Desserts" by Alice Medrich (Warner, $35).

This may be one of the most beautiful books I've seen. But it's really not a cookbook for most of us. For those who are game to try, though, be ready to prepare or work with ingredients like chocolate genoise, creme fraiche and vark (edible gold and silver leaf). Also, be ready to invest some chunks of time.

Cocolat is the name of a Berkeley. dessert shop, and the splendiferous concoctions featured here are owner book break Victoria Diaz

Alice Medrich's bestsellers.

You'll find recipes for such sophisticated treats as Gateau Grand Marnier, Chocolate Banana Charlotte and Coco Cabana ("a dreamy, moist cake flavored with freshly squeezed lemon juice, dark rum, cool whipped cream, and coconut" - and chocolate, of course).

You can almost taste these darkly delicious masterpieces by gazing at the absolutely stunning photos. Perhaps that visual pleasure will have to do for most of us, until we can make it to Berkeley and Ms. Medrich's sweet shop.

o "Vegetarian Celebrations" by Nava Atlas (Little, Brown,

Just in time for the biggest holiday season of the year comes this neat little paperback from vegetarian guru, Nava Atlas, showing how to celebrate the holidays in high style, vegetarian-style. If you're a longtime vegetarian, a sometime vegetarian or just somebody who appreciates good food (such as pineappleraisin-rum bread pudding, mapletarragon sweet potatoes, or basil cheese tortellini), this book is for Atlas offers complete menus and easy-to-follow recipes for not just Thanksgiving and Christmas, but 12 other holidays, including Mother's Day, Father's Day, Passover and New Year's. Since we're dealing with holiday meals here, there's the occasional cholesterol-heavy splurge, of course. But for the most part, Atlas is very conscientious about fat and cholesterol, at the same time that she takes great pains never to sacrifice flavor.

o "Sundays at Moosewood Restaurant" compiled by The Moosewood Collective (Simon and Schuster, $16,95).

The famed Moosewood Restaurant in Ithaca, N.Y., opened in 1973, deemphasizing pretension and focusing on "artfully prepared foods with a healthful vegetarian emphasis."

In this, the collective's third recipe book, each of the 18 cooks at the Moosewood has put together a section composed of favorite recipes from specific ethnic or regional groups throughout the world ("Africa South of the Sahara," "Japan," "New England," etc.). You can try your hand at East African Sweet Pea

Soup, Bulgarian Red Pepper Stew, Rhode Island Cornmeal Bread and 400 other intrigulng dishes. (Don't make the mistake of assuming that many of the ingredients in these recipes will be hard-to-find or too exotic for your taste. Most aren't unfamiliar at all.)

Sunday night at the Mooseweed is ethnic night, during which dishes from only one particular ethnic group or region are served. These are examples of some of the most popular.

• "Justin Wilson's Homegrown Louisiana Cookin'' by Justin Wilson with Jeannine Meeds Wilson (Macmillan, $19.95).

This collection of more than 300 new recipes reflects the folksy charm of the red-suspendered host of the popular PBS cooking series.

Complementing the recipes (most of which can be easily managed by the near-novice) are eye-catching photos, not just of the dishes featured here, but of Wilson and his family and friends. Wilson's wife, Jeannine, has written most of the introductory text, and Wilson's own inimitable Cajun-style stories add the perfect touch.

A resources list is a nice bonus: too. With it, you can learn where to get that southern cooking staple, Vidalla onlons, how to order specialty liquor products, and even how to get hold of forther information on Wilson's beloved Louisiana.

A word of warning: Need I say that most of us can't expect to indulge often in such wonderful stuff as Red Bean Gumbo, Pineapple Down-side-up Cake, or Cajun-style Over-stuffed Peppers with Shrimp, and not pay the price. Wilson claims he doesn't even know how to spell cholesterol.

Philip Glass Ensemble accompanies film

Fun Series explores the multi-media possibilities of music and film when Philip Glass and his ensemble provide live accompaniment to Godfrey Reggio's film, "Koyaanisqatsi/ Live!" at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3. "Koyaanisqatsi/Live!" is a mixture of sight and sound, an audiovisual tone poem of great power and energy. Based on the ancient Hopi Indian word meaning, "Life out of balance," Koyaanisqatsi integrates images, music and ideas into a totally unconventional film, a non-verbal, non-narrative tale about the encroachment of technology upon human and natural resources.

Glass' score sets the pace for live performance the music takes on added urgency and passion. Tickets for "Koyaanisqatsi/Livel" are $16.50 for Michigan Theater members; $18.50 for nonmembers. Call the box office for details, 668-8397.

Director Godfrey Reggio's film is a sophisticated work of wordless imagery on the theme of civilization expanding at the expense of the Earth and the survival of mankind.

The film opens with slow explorations of sand dunes, stoney surfaces kind and technology enter, with soileating tractors, clogged freeways,

> "WHEN SOMEONE sees the beauty of a nuclear explosion, it should be a key to them that things are awry. We are not adapting to the technological environment, it is adapting us to it," Reggio said.

> "Godfrey is clearly fascinated by modern life, and the film has a real ambivalence to it. You can look at the footage of New York or Los Angeles, and, on the one hand, it's terribly beautiful, and, on the other hand, life in those places can be unbearable," Glass said.

> "It's that double perception that makes the film interesting. He (Reggio) feels if he stirs up enough questions, we'll find ways of making life more liveable without giving up our pocket calculators and Sony Walkmans."

Touch of drama

Chamber Players will open artists series

A special performance by the great Shakespearean actor Brian Bedford on Feb. 10, 1991 highlights the 1990-91 season of the American Artists Series.

Bedford's solo performance of "The Lunatic, The Lover and The Poet" is an addition to a season featuring the AAS Chamber Players in three concerts, along with two special guest performances.

On Jan. 13, a guest appearance by the Mallarme Chamber Players will feature ex-Detroiter Jacquelyn Bartlett, harpist. She is the daughter of former Detroit Symphony harpist Mary Bartlett.

Special guests on April 7 will be the Washington Guitar Quintet with Charlie Byrd. Emmy-award winning Byrd is known for his jazz guitar recordings, as well as traditional classical repertoire.

REGULARS OF the American Artists Series Chamber Players include Detroit Symphony Orchestra members Ronald Fisher and Linda Snedden Smith, violin; Hart Hollman, viola, John Thurman, cello, Donald baker, oboe, and Ervin Monfounder and artistic director of the Series, beginning its 21st season.

The AAS Chamber Players open 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 4, with Detroit Symphony Orchestra members Eugene Wade, French horn, and Theodore Oien, clarinet, joining them. On the program will be Ernest Dohnanyi's Sextet in C Major, Opus 37, for clarinet, horn; violin, viola, cello and

Other concerts by the Chamber Players will be on March 3 and May 5, when David Wagner of radio station WQRS will play harmonium with the Chamber Players as they present Antonin Dvorak's "Baga-

All performances, except May, 5 will be at 3 p.m. at Kingswood Auditorium on the Cranbrook campus, 500 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills. Informal receptions with the artists follow each concert.

Ups and downs a natural for artists

"HI, MY name is David 'n' I'm gonna be a commerical artist." That was my opening line when I met someone for the first time.

"Good for you Sonny," most people would say as they rubbed my brush cut hairdo.

Of course, most people didn't know what a commercial artist was and I certainly didn't either. It sure brought me lots of favorable remarks, though. I think I got the idea from a career book at the school library. I can't remember how old I was, but I was at my Grandpa Messing's house. To impress Grandpa, I hit him with the old, "I'm gonna be a commercial artist" line. Smiling, he said, "Then let's go talk to my neighbor because he is one."

Excited that Grandpa cared, I remember walking a step or two ahead of him thinking to myself, "Wow, I'm gonna meet a for-real commercial artist.'

As the neighbor stepped out of his house, Grandpa said, "This is my little grandson, David, and he wants to be a commercial artist."

The neighbor had a closed-mouth smile, you know the kind that doesn't register in the eyes. Come to think of it, maybe it was a grimace.

As he put his hand on my shoulder, he bent over and said, "Son." And I leaned toward him to drink in every word. "Get that thought out of your head and go into one of the trades like carpentry, plumbin' or electrical like your grandpa here."

MY MOUTH dropped open, my eyes bugged out in shock and it felt like even my brush cut laid down flat to my scalp.

It was as if he punched me in the stomach and, still worse, he punched me in my dream. Like a bell without a clapper, I stood mute and listened

I am not, and was not, a strongwilled person. But before the wind was completely out of my sail, I thought to myself, "That's just him, maybe he ain't that good and maybe I'll be better."

What a precious seed is a young person's dream and what a tender reed is the first sight of its fruition.

The artist must at some time, somehow, ventilate artistic urges to create or express. So if you are the artist, then realize there will be both ups and downs and positive and negative input in your lifetime of artistic expression.

If you are the parents or friend of an artist, then you supply the honest praise or constructive criticism that will help the artist do his or her

My dream soon changed from a commercial artist to an artist that owned an art store and school. My dream began to germinate when the economy was not just experiencing snow flurries. No, it was an all out blizzard!

ACTUALLY, IT was 11 years ago, during the last major recession. Against all odds and advice of most people, we opened the Art Store & More. With the support of my wife and my mother-in-law, I was able to leave Ford Motor Co. after 14 years and fulfill my boyhood dream.

Dreams require tremendous effort and support. You support the dream with the hope that the dream will, one day, support you.

Hold on tight to your dreams, whatever they may be. Try to accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative. There is plenty of room for good artists in our world!

O SIGNING COPIES

Norma Cole, a former Livonia teacher and Farmington Hills resident, will sign copies of her first mafor young adult novel at 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10 at Borders Book Shop, Novi Town Center, Novi.

"The Final Tide" is set in Kentucky, where Cole now makes her home. Set in 1948, "The Final Tide" follows 14-year-old Geneva Haw as she calls upon an inherited stubborn streak to convince her Granny to leave her lifelong home, which willbe flooded soon by the waters of the government-built Wolf Creek Dam.

Cole, born and raised in South Dakota, spent her adult years in Michigan, raising four children and teaching in Detroit-area schools.

She retired in 1984 and moved to Monticello, Ky. "The Final Tide" is based on extensive research and stories she heard from neighbors.

® DSO IN CONCERT

Newly appointed Detroit Symphony music director Neeme Jarvi leads the orchestra in his second of three weeks of performances, highlighted by the first DSO performances of Mrs. H.H.A. Beach's Symphony in E minor since 1918.

Pianist Horacio Gutlerrez joins Jarvi and the orchestra for Prokofiev's Piano Concert No. 2 in G minor. Tchaikovsky's Francesca da Rimini empletes the program.

Performances take place at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 1, 10:45 a.m. Friday, Nov. 2 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov.

3 at Orchestra Hall. Call the box office: 833-3700.

O. WATERCOLOR ART

Johnnie Crosby's watercolor paintings will be shown in November at The Frameworks, on Penniman, in Plymouth. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Sunday.

The opening reception is 5:30-7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2.

Crosby also is exhibiting at the International Show, Niagara Frontier Watercolor Society, Lockport, N.Y.; the Northeast Watercolor Society Show, Trotting Horse Museum, Goshen, N.Y.; and the Main Gallery, University of Michigan Hospital,

The Frameworks exhibit includes scenes of Harbor Springs, Bermuda, Hawaii and local settings.

moted by the Plymouth Community

Arts Council.

The cards represented a competition for students in grades 2-12. Their expression of concern for our planet prompted her to portray her observations of the many ways painting is dependent on beautiful surroundings and the importance of keeping the Earth as nature intend-

© GLASS SHOW

The Michigan Depression Glass Society presents its 18th annual All Depression Era Glass Show and Sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Satuday-Sunday, Nov. 3-4, at the Dearborn Civic Center, 15801 Michigan Ave.

Thirty dealers from many states will exhibit American-made glassware dating from the early 1900s through 1950.

In addition to the colorful machine-made glassware made during the Depression, finer handmade glassware made by Fostoria, Cambridge, Heisey, Imperial, Fenton and Duncan Miller also will be featured.

Special guests will be Gene Florence, author of books on Depression glass, Teri Steele, editor and publisher of The Depression Glass Daze newspaper, and Bill and Phyllis Smith, Cambridge glass specialists.

Richard Heldenbrand will repair damaged glassware during show

A donation of $2 will be requested at the door. It will provide admittance for both days. Food service will be available.

The Michigan Depression Glass Society was founded in 1972. It is devoted solely to the preservation of Depression era glass.

Meetings are the first Monday of each month at the Livonia Senior Citizens Building, 15206 Farmington Road, Livonia.

Call Wanda Britton, show chair, 421-3098.

O SPATIAL VISIONS

An exhibition entitled "Spatial Visions: Paintings by Linda and Donald Mendelson" will open the 1990-91 series presented by the Fine Art Associates of the University of Michigan-

"Spatial Visions" runs Nov. 2 to Dec. 2 in the Mardigian Library on the UM-Dearborn campus, on Evergreen, between Ford Road and Michigan Ave.

The Mendelsons create colorful abstract paintings in media, including watercolor, acrylic and oil stick as well as mixed media works. Well known in the local art community, Linda is an instructor at Detroit's Center for Creative Studies and Donald teaches at the Oakland Community College Farmington Hills cam-

"Both artists create a new vision while examining a process and continuity of human life," said Electra Stamelos, UM-D director of art exhibitions and acquisitions. "Linda's work explores a tapestry of monumental and organic forms within a spatial ambiguity of color fields; Donald's painting contrasts primitive world images with the computerized space technology of today."

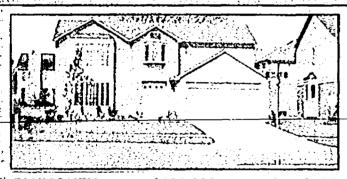

The events are free. For exhibition hours, call 593-5400.

o cares what time

Now you can place Observer & Eccentric Classified Ad 24 hours a day!

Here's how it works: First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.

Then, all you do is call us-remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here—to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed carlier.

Let's say it's 10 o'clock at night and you've just realized that you forgot to include the fact that the car you're selling has air conditioning. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the. exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it. If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers. Pretty neat, huh?

Of course, our

Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Thursday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and until 5:00 p.m. each Friday. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad—at your convenience.

"They may want to set up an office in this site," evine added.

Some homeowners apparently believe that you racquetball court. can never have too much space.

"It just gives more living area," said David Blatt, of $15,000, was an afterthought, Bentivolio said. a West Bloomfield builder. "If the lot warrants it, everyone wants it."

"They entertain and send people down there or et was to eliminate the rec room. may use it as a personal fitness area," said Mark ____ Garagiola, a West Bloomfield architect

'Or if they want to have a media room separate from the rest of the house, the lower level serves an ideal purpose," Compo said.

IT'S A GREAT place to put some distance between parents and kids but still be under the same Some have built-in sound systems, saunas, wine roof, said Blatt, who built a 5,800-square-foot house STRAIGHT-GRAINED, fine-textured, hard, strong, and at 44 pounds per cubic foot, as heavy as red oak, the wood of sugar maple has high commercial value. Its sapwood, frequently three to five inches thick, appears much lighter in color than the slightly pinkish-tan heartwood.

Next Homearamas planned By Doug Funke

Three Homearamas next year in metro Detroit?

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, primary sponsor of the annual cavalcade of new idea houses, is thinking about sponsoring a third show next year.

"For sure we'll have one, at most three," said Dennis Dickstein, chairman of the show committee and president of Ralph Manuel Realtors of Birmingham. "It's not 100 percent confirmed or approved."

Clarkston and Novi tentatively have been selected for shows next spring and fall, respectively. That leaves the East Side out — at least

"There's a couple of people who want to have a Homearama on the East Side and some builders want to do it," said Nancy Rosen, a spokeswoman for the BASM. She declined to be more specific.

BUILDERS IN Novi and Clarkston next year will be challenged to construct new idea homes to sell at about $200,000 including land costs, Dickstein said.

Brighton Homearama are priced in excess of $500,000.

Dickstein said he doesn't believe that a third Homearama would di-

"Novi and Clarkston are two different worlds, two different sets of people," he said. "People will drive three quarters of an hour to an hour to Brighton to see homes that sell for $500,000. They won't drive an hour for a $200,000 plus house.

"You might have smaller attendance at each show, but they pull from different areas. If we're going to put on an East Side show, houses will be in the $500,000 price," Dickstein sald.

ABOUT 100,000 turned out to tour 10 houses in the Pine Creek Subdivision surrounding Brighton Lake, Dickstein projected.

"It was very, very successful," he said. "Reception of the public to the site and environment was even more overwhelming than I thought.

"All the builders are talking with customers. All we have to do is tie them down with results. That's what matters," he said. The American, a 7,500-square-foot country or Cape Cod house built by James D. Compo of Farmington Hills, was selected the favorite of visitors during an informal survey the weekend of Oct. 12-13.

The house, with four to six bedrooms, three fireplaces, a lowerlevel recreation room with spa and sauna, and a multi-level deck, was lute attendance at the other two the largest in the show. Its price, which includes the lot and landscaping - in excess of $800,000.

VISITORS CITED the layout, view of the lake, decks and warmth in spite of size for making it their overwhelming favorite.

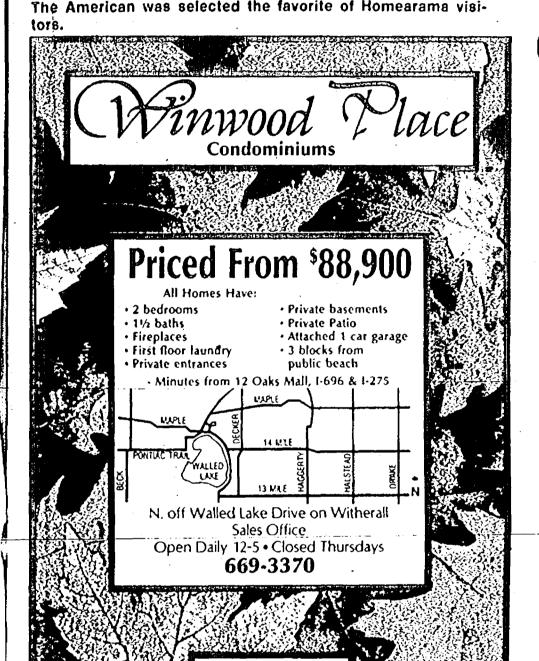

Runners-up were the Balmoral, a 5,200-square-foot model built by Robert R. Jones Associates of West Bloomfield, and The Glengarry, a 4,150-square-foot house constructed by Damascus Development of Rochester.

"We got a lot of comments like, 'You really finish everything off, you really complete the details," "Jones said. "We got all kinds of comments on the kitchen and family room, how cozy and warm they are."

The trim and floor plan of his house proved to be popular with visitors, said Timothy McDonald, president of Damascus.

A defense against cancer can be cooked up in your kitchen.

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Some foods may promote cancer, while others may protect you from it.

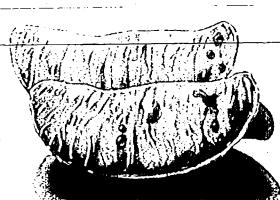

Foods related to lowering the risk of cancer of the larynx and esophagus all have high amounts of carotene, a form of Vitamin A which is in cantaloupes, peaches, broccoli, spinach, all dark green leafy vegetables, sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkin, winter squash and tomatoes, citrus fruits and brussels sprouts.

Foods that may. help reduce the risk of gastrointestinal and respiratory tract cancer are cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, cauliflower.

Fruits, vegetables, and wholegrain cereals such as oatmeal, branand wheat may help lower the risk of colorectal cancer.

Foods high in fats, salt-or nitrite-cured foods like ham, and fish and

types of sausages smoked by traditional methods should be eaten in moderation.

> Be moderate in consumption of alcohol also.

A good rule of thumb is cut down on fat and don't be fat. Weight reduction may lower cancer risk. Our 12- year study of nearly a million Americans uncovered high cancer risks particularly among people 40% or more overweight.

Now, more than ever, we know you can cook up your own defense against cancer. So eat healthy and be healthy.

No one faces cancer alone.

"I never liked those tiny stenciled borders - too cute and bland, " said technique for enlarged designs and for random patterns rather than a versatile.'

Wilson, an English painter and author of decorating books, used her Chelsea home as a laboratory to update the stencil. The result is some handsome rooms and an informative book of text and photographs. Inspired by a book on Portuguese

Interiors, Wilson used two patterns on the lower half of the living room wall then carried the design to the windows on Roman shades.

By creating a mural rather than a mere border, stenciling can result in infinitely more important effects, says Wilson. Her largest single stencil design is a 14-foot dragon which is the focus of a bedroom illustrated in her book. She copied and enlarged the image on a Tibetan rug from a picture in The Times of London.

Wilson usually sketches the elements she sees but says drawing is not a requirement for copying. "If you can't draw, go to the photocopy machine and get the motif enlarged and then trace it onto the paper."

Rarities glisten in art world

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

A Calder standing mobile . . . A Beidermeier pyramid, mahogany desk (c. 1850). A Tiffany lamp with tulip shade and bronze base, both signed and numbered . .

A pendant, with 44 perfectly matched rubies, by Anthony Lent of Philadelphia...

A Pre-Columbian feather textile (300 A.D.) . , .

HOSE UNFAMILIAR with art's ozone area might compare the price of these wonderful rarities (found locally) to a couple of new Lincolns, a nice house on Beverly Road, a condo in West Bloomfield or a cruise to Hawaii.

What's a piece of art compared to one of those? Well, everything, that's all, provided you're a collector or an art lover and are somewhere between reasonably and ridiculously affluent.

On a scale of 1-10, the Calder mobile, "Untitled,", is definitely a 10 in the art world. Calder mobiles of this kind sell for six figures at the big international sales. If you have platinum.

The remarkable thing (in addition to its sheer beauty) about Anthony Lent's pendant is that it's 'double entremblant invisible · set.' The 44 perfectly matched rubies are just there with no visible means of support. The metal is

"Untitled," is painted metal (red base), 1614 by 1814 by 5 inches and was made in 1956. It's available through Donald Morris Gallery of Birmingham.

Alexander Calder, born in Phildelphia in 1898, is really the inventer of the mobile, or moving sculpture. Huge outdoor Calder sculptures are in many major cities, including Chicago and Grand Rapids.

LIKE CALDER, the name Tiffany commands instant respect amongmany collectors. Both the tulip shade and the bronze base of the 16inch-high Tiffany lamp are signed and numbered, but the shade has a dash number that Ann Duke of the Duke Gallery of Birmingham, says, "means Tiffany himself thought it was exceptional."

The lamp, dating from the turn of the century, is priced at $80,000. Duke Gallery handles 20th century decorative arts, and mission furniture from the arts and crafts movement.

The remarkable thing (in addition to its sheer beauty) about Anthony Lent's pendant is that it's "double entremblant invisible set." The 44 perfectly matched rubies are just there with no visible means of support. The metal is 18 and 22k gold and platinum.

Pieces made by Van Clefs and Arpel, with invisible settings, range from $40,000-$80,000. The Lent one, available through Yaw Gallery of Birmingham, is from Bosch's "Garden of Earthly Delights."

THE PRE-COLUMBIAN textile, is subtly, beautiful, made of light green parrot feathers with a touch of red. In a private of corporate collection, it would surely command the immediate attention of the sophisticated collector/intellectual.

The rest won't appreciate it, but then, who cares about them anyhow? Price is $4,000 and don't worry

Louis Comfort Tiffany made many magnificent works of stained glass in his lifetime, from small screens to huge windows. The shade for this lamp is marked to indicate he considered it especially fine.

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

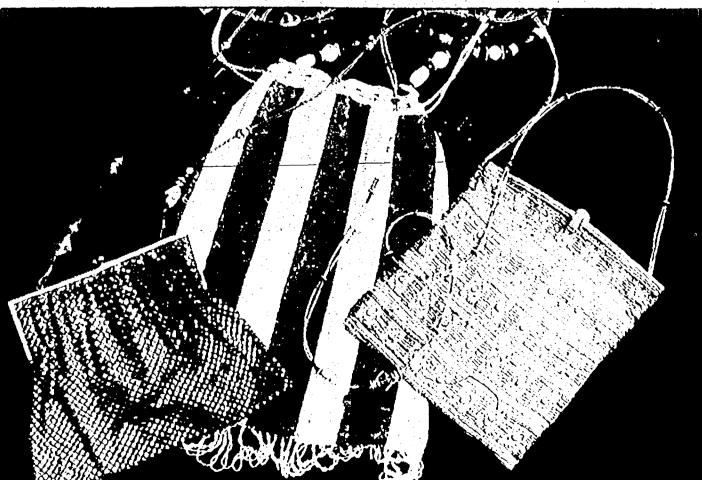

THIS FALL, you can add a personalized elegance to your wardrobe with a vintago ' handbag from Caryn Shaye of Franklin. Her bejeweled, beaded bags from the 1890s to the roaring 1920s create a fashion statement that's both glamorous and different.

According to Vogue magazine, everything from swimsuits to evening gowns gets ornamented with jewels this fall. Shaye's handbags are no exception. Semi-precious jewels, such as topaz, black onyx, hematite, tiger eye and carnellan, adorn her beaded bags.

JOHN STORMZAND/staff photographer

This trio of vintage handbags by Caryn Shave includes: (from left) a 1920s Whiting & Davis metal mesh bag with blue rhinestones and a brass frame, $750; a striped, black and white beaded bag with white beaded fringe, $925; and an art doco, steel-cut purse with rhinestones and a beaded, tassled clasp, $425.

Although to each handbag, Shaye adds her signature, "a hand-beaded, multi-strand shoulder strap, which can be worn across the chest like jewels."

"The tinier the bead, the more expensive the bag," Shaye said. "The tinlest beads are the most expensive."

In the early 1900s, women made the hand-beaded bags from kits sold through catalogs. "Many hours of labor went into beading each bag," Shaye said.

THE ANTIQUE, beaded handbags are a small investment to be sure. ranging from $750-$1,200, but will continue to grow in value as they age gracefully and beautifully.

"Many of the bags are French," Shaye said. "The French made luxurious beaded bags."

"A custom tapestry bag of minute beaded petit pointe will distinguish your look from anyone else's, the 'minute that you enter a room," Shaye sald. "In Europe, the bags are three to four times more expensive than here."

Several of the handbags that Shaye carries were made by Whiting & Davis of England, famous for metal mesh bags.

"In the early 1900s, Whiting & Davis began making bags from steel-cut beads by machine," Shave sald. "The steel-cut beads are no longer made; therefore, their quantity is extremely limited."

The size of the beaded handbags is small and dainty in comparison to the bulky, oversize bags of the 1980s. Frames are made of brass, sterling silver, gold and bakelite.

WHEN ONLY the frame of a handbag can be saved, Shaye. searches the open markets of Europe for rich fabrics, of which she buys only a few yards. So that you can be assured, a Caryn Shaye handbag is one-of-a-kind.

Shaye spends 15-20 hours refurbishing each handbag, replacing the lining, beading, fringe and finishing each with her signature strap, which is hand-beaded. The colors of the beleweled, beaded bags range from black to white, aubergine to coral and striped to floral tapestry.

A lot of her customers buy the beaded bags, only to store them out of sight. She encourages them to take the bags out and use them. "It's a shame to put them away where they can't be seen," Shaye said.

Besides antique beaded, bejeweled handbags, Shaye carries her Caryn Shaye designed jewelry; all arc oneof-a-kind necklaces, earrings, bracelets and pins.

She also carries vintage rhinestone and sterling silver jewelry.

Casual yet elegant

Leather — versatile keystone in fashion

By Cathleen Collins Lee special writer

T'S FASHIONABLE, yet durable. It's casual, yet elegant. Most of all, it's versatile, appearing in everything from Jackets and skirts to backgammon sets and backpacks.

It's leather-textured, embossed and handpainted; from the United States, England, France and New Zealand; available natural or in dozens of colors.

Leather goods have been very popular the last few years, and that trend is continuing. We found unusual and attractive leather clothing and accessories in stores all --- will buy leather with a sheepskin -- do, indeed, swing nicely. And many manufacturers are adding removable linings of wool or Thinsulate for added warmth.

In women's outerwear, the trend is toward longer leather coats. Stores are showing loose, elegant leather coats at almost ankle length as well as unconstructed, threequarter-length "swing" coats that ___ a tan coat with white sheepskin-

Laszlo's in Birmingham carries a loose leather coat with a Mandarin collar, intended to end just a few inches above the ankle, available in a variety of colors, for $1,059. Laszlo's three-quarter-length swing coats, with attractive pleated stitching, are about $800.

, ANOTHER TREND in leather outerwear is sheepskin linings. Laszlo Weiss of Laszlo's explained that many people who refuse to buy furs out of concern for animal rights lining instead. The sheepskin comes from animals that are already raised for food.

Laszlo's carries several styles of sheepskin coats and jackets for men and women. The most popular now is collar and cuffs, but many other colors are available. The threequarter-length coats are $700 to $800; full-length sheepskin coats are $1,000.

Jeff Sen, a sportswear buyer for Jacobson's, said suede and leather continue to be popular for sportswear as well as outerwear. Suede and leather skirts, in particular, can be a wardrobe basic.

"We sell the skirts in neutral colors like brown and black, so that the customer can take it and match it with a sweater, blazer or blouse. A bright flannel jacket over a short skirt is a great look."

Jacobson's has a long, silky-suede, full skirt for $148, and short, straight—scratches don't show," she said. leather skirts for $125 to $140.

HUDSON'S ALSO carries leather skirts, slim, knee-length styles for $270-$300, as well as a more unusual item: leather hats. They come in black and range from a baseballstyle cap with a visor for $26 to a tam for $48.

Along with that attractive leather skirt, jacket or hat, most of us will carry something leather as well in purses, briefcases and luggage. For these, the key is not just style, but durability.

Prices range from $72 for a threefold wallet to $104 for an address book/planner case and $520 for an attache. The items come in tan, black or brown and can be bought to match.

Hands-On Leather also carries attache cases and has several unusual ones.

A Western-style, cow-hide attache, handmade and handstitched, is $425. A black, expandable eelskin attache case with textured eelskin on the top is $500. And hidden among the briefcases and attaches is something unexpected: black, leather backpacks, for $101.

Doll collecting: not just for kids anymore

By C.L. Rugenstein special writer

T FIRST glance, Remembrance, a treasureladen shop off Northville's Main Street, seemed like a heaven for kids.

Dolls of all types, porcelain and vinyl beauties, were everywhere in the lace-curtained shop. In and on antique reproduction furniture, they spilled out of Victorian wicker baby beds and cozled up for high tea on munchkin-sized settees. But these dolls weren't for kids not really.

Limited-edition models at $50 to $10,000 each, they're prized by serious collectors and a growing number of investors who see the hobby as a fast way to make a tidy return on their investment.

Indeed, said Remembranco's owner, Lydia "Lily" Sweatt, price is no deterrent: "These dolls sell.

"Doll collecting is secondary only

"These dolls sell. Doll collecting is secondary only to stamp collecting in the world. And it's predicted to surpass that in the 1990s.' - Lydia Sweatt to stamp collecting in the world. And it's predicted to surpass that In the 1990s," the Livonia resident said.

A large part of the reason is the dolls themselves. Surprisingly, they're all new, not antiques. They're the product of a new breed of dollmaker, professional artists who've gained worldwide reknown.

PRODUCING THE limited-edition dolls, 20 to 250 at a time for worldwide distribution, makes them desirable enough. But when a doll artist wins a prestigious "Doty," the Oscar of the doll world, people will do almost anything for one of the dolls.

And each artist is immediately recognizable by his/her style. "It's the style that intrigues people," Sweatt said. The married German dollmaking team of Lothar Groessle and Gudrun Schmidt are probably foremost in the field at present. "I have one client who said, 'Every doll you have of his, I want it!" "Sweatt said. Looking at saucy Johanna, it's easy to see why. A 3- or 4-year-old imp in a blue-striped pinafore and ginger-colored twin pony tails, she's not your average prim-and-pretty baby doll.

In fact, she's very angry. She's sticking out her tongue. She's so angry her little hands are balled into fists. Even her toes on the plump little bare feet are curled. One can even feel the anger ridges in her forehead, just like a real child's. That's what gives her her charm, her reality.

FOR JO'S owner, Deanna Miller of Northville, that expression, reminiscent of her own children's, captured her heart. "I collect dolls that remind me of things in the past," Miller said.

A doll "fanatic from probably birth," Miller said she didn't start collecting them until her father died last year. He was a former World War II pilot who flew a restored biplane, with Miller often accompanying him.

Appropriately, Miller's first doll was a little blonde girl dressed in a red scarf and tan aviator jumpsult, holding a little bi-plane. Her name was "Kitty" and she even had grease on her hands. "

"Her expression reminded me of

Who knows where or when it will turn up for future generations to study as a link to the past as we know it?

But the custom portrait, while still a wonderful luxury more affordable to the rich and famous, is not far out of the range of lesser mortals.

Troy artist extraordinaire Glenn

Michaels has produced portraits along with special sculptures, for places like advertising giant Walter J. Thompson's New York headquarters, for more than 30 years.

His portraits hang in the homes of many Michigan notables, like the generational study of Ford Motor Co. president Donald Thompson's wife, Jody, her daughter, Leslie Price, and her granddaughter, Joanne Price.

Michaels prefers to work in oils, but occasionally does a portrait bust in bronze, such as the Birmingham family for which he did portraits of the four daughters' as each reached the age of 16.

Pedigree

Rare aura fuels certain kinds of cars

By Helen Diane Vincent special writer

¬ HERE'S A certain kind of automobile that stands apart from all others: It's the one whose pedigree shows by exuding power, confidence and a particular kind of beauty and, as a rule, it's very expensive. We're talking about the world of highly crafted, superbly engineered and usually limited production automobiles that captivate the hearts of their owners and the dreams of their admirers.

It takes daring and some special knowledge to own or fully appreciate these super performers, such as Lamborghini's new Diablo

WHEN ASKED about Diablo's softer body styling, replacing the more brutal, hard-edged Countach model, Mike Nowicki, the 46-yearold president of the local Lamborghini Club, defended the sleeker, aerodynamic look.

"It's time for a change; after all, the Countach has been around for about 13 years," he said.

"True, the Diablo is less muscularlooking, but it's more mechanically sophisticated and results in better performance, allowing it to exceed 200 mph on the race course.

"Those of us who own older models have to admire these advances," said Nowicki, who owns a rare 1983 Jaipa, one of 420 built by Lamborghini.

Regarding the inevitable question of pricing, "We expect to see as much as $100,000 over list price, so that it could cost up to $325,000."

IF THERE'S anyone who knows about exotic automobiles' advances

'I've already had customers lined up to buy the Diablo. Not surprisingly, they're in the upper-income brackets, mostly male, i middie-aged professionals.'

-Bob Schneider

as well as their desirability, it's Bob Schneider, the 42-year-old owner of the Sports Car Exchange in Dearborn.

His boutique dealership, representing a number of exotic--automóbiles, includes the Lamborghini.

"I've already had customers lined up to buy the Diablo. Not surprisingly, they're in the upperincome brackets, mostly male, middle-aged professionals," Schneider said.

"There are some who buy one of everything: one Porsche, one Ferrari . . . for outfitting the ultimate garage."

AND WHAT could it be that stirs such an emotional reaction?

"It is a mystique these type of automobiles project derived from the body styling, the powerful engines, and their very limited availability," Schneider said.

"Due to the limited production, all of the Lamborghini dealers in the USA are expected to sell in one year no more than 300 Diablos."

The Diablo generating such excitement has a V-12 engine with 485 hp. It accelerates from 0 to 60 mph in 3.9 seconds.

You might get some idea what 485 hp represents when you consider that a typical automobile's engine has a 127 to 170 hp capacity.

AMONG THE stunning lineup of Ferraris at the Sports Car Exchange stands a limited edition F-10 Ferrari, one of two here in Michigan at this time. The design and engineering of this long-awaited machine is expected to contend with the Diablo on the track for speed records, as well as on the street for admiring and astonished

For now, with a $399,150 price tag, it waits to be picked up by an anonymous owner.

--- ROBERT LARIVEE, the CEO of Group Promotions, the producer of Autorama, owns several Ferraris in his 25-car collection. Among these are the highly prized 1963, 12cylinder 250 GT/L and a Lusso.

"I've been collecting automobiles all my life," Larivee said. "But collecting is no longer that unusual today. I'm finding more people than ever before accumulating fine cars, often for the investment.

"Of all of the features important to me, I would single out beauty as the key element that makes a car collectible."

Neil Goldberg not only sees beauty in his favorite car, the Porsche, but highly developed engineering achievement. He's the technical chairman of the local Porsche Club of America.

IF ANY one automobile sustains a historic legacy, it's the Rolls Royce and its sporting cousin, the Bentley. Current models, such as the Silver Spur or the Corniche II, maintain a powerful and imposing image completely opposite to the aerodynamic, ground-hugging automobiles dedicated to acceleration and speed.

Rolls Royce disdains any reference to horsepower, assuming "it is sufficient to the needs," as Connie (Conrad) Bouchard, highly regarded senior authority on Rolls Royce, proudly said.

Fur styles show youthful flair

E'RE A nation with a young image. We're known for our jeans 'n boots and cowboy jackets. And keeping young is a national pastime. We're the "litegeneration."

In this season's New York fur collections, a younger image is evident everywhere. Furs are ruffled, flounced and hooded. Big cape collars are as much for style as added warmth. Furs are shaped with drawstring walsts and belted, trenchcoat style, a la Dick Tracy. Or, they swing free and easy.

Young also is synonymous with short: coats are above or just below the knee; jackets come in all lengths, from bolero to hip-length peacoats; stoles and capes wrap around every length._

And in keeping with America's young frontier image, fur fashion has developed a decidedly sportler image. Along with traditional shearlings, there are ride'em cowgirl leather fringed cowboy lackets, embroidered and stenciled shearlings, calfskin biker jackets, fur parkas, duffles and anoraks in sheared mink, fox, raccoon or, unexpectedly, in sable.

has grown up wearing and now wants in fur," said Sandy Blye, American Fur Industry executive vice president. "And because the average age of a first-time fur buyer is now 26, she is buying a second fur before age 30, usually one that is more casual, perfect for weekends." American-style also means choice.

"THIS IS styling today's fur buyer

This season, you can choose a fur that's just right for you, even if your lifestyle is bicoastal.

There are plenty of fur-trimmed, fur-lined and reversible furs. Two fashionable options: a nutria-lined rain slicker that keeps you dry and warm; or a taffeta and sheared mink wrap and tie short coat. You have the option to wear the fur on the inside or cutside; it's reversible.

Choice also is about color. You'll find brights, pastels and earth tones for winter. Choose your favorite color: from red-hot red to cool woodland green.

And for America's "litegeneration:" sheared mink. Just as technology has opened today's lightweight, cordless, compact, unfettered cellular lifestyle, it also has perfected sheared mink.

It gives fur designers new freedoms, a new lightweight fur with a plush velvet touch that's ideal for today's fur buyer, especially if you travel from north to south or east to west. Think of it as tactile sportswear to layer over your favorite ready to wear.

Newest in furs are asplash with color

UR DESIGNERS are making fashion history in a colorful way for winter 1990. Colors once considered extraordinary in fur are now a part of every designer collection — and the choice of young fur buyers everywhere.

New color plays include furs in bold oranges, yellows and acid greens. They're as bright as rings of liquid phosphorus color. Such colors show up in both tibetan lamb and sheared mink in designer Claude Montana's collection.

Oscar de la Renta likes orange, too. He pairs a tangerine mink short coat over purple ready-to-wear as part of his collection. Red is hot for 1990. It really revs

Pearls — elegance par excellence

By Joan Boram special writer

> IAMONDS, ACCORDING to folk wisdom, are a girl's . best friend. Nothing wrong with that, if you don't know very many people. But if you want to look radiant and elegant and stunning, there's nothing like a pearl.

Not only are pearls flattering to every woman, they're appropriate to every occasion, from morning to night. Certainly, you wouldn't wear your jeweled stomacher to the PTA or the supermarket, but a lustrous strand of cultured pearls adds a touch of grace to the most humdrum situation.

Surely the most dramatic pearls available are the South Sea pearls, sought for their large size and beautiful colorings. Of special interest are the lovely silvery gempearls from the warm waters of Australia, Burma and the Philippines. From Tahiti and Okinawa come the very valuable black pearls.

"South Sea pearls grow up to 20 times faster than cold water (Japanese) cultured pearls," said Brian Schubot, gemologist, of Jules R. Schubot Jewelers, Troy.

"But because they grow so fast, they're more likely to be baroque. Essentially, a pearl is a transplant, created when a piece of nacre is insterted into an oyster. Thousands of layers of nacre are added to the transplant over a period of several years: That's why large pearls are so rare, and so expensive. Each one is a kind of miracle."

A STUNNING choker of round graduated (15mm x 12mm) South Sea pearls is waiting for you at Schubot's ($200,000). For a more dramatic effect, consider the choker (1414mm x 13mm) of iridescent black Tahitian pearls ($227,000).

"The black pearl comes from a black-lipped oyster," Schubot said. "It has a darker nacre, producing a black pearl."

Japanese pearls are smaller and more predictable than South Sea

The language of pearls

By Joan Boram special writer

What it all means in the world of pearis:

• Nucleus: The stimulent placed in a pearl oyster, around which the oyster deposits nacre to form a pearl. The best nuclei are from the pig-toe clam found in the Tennessee, Wabash and Mississippi rivers and exported to Japan.

• Lustre: The unique deepseated glow, as opposed to surface shine, that distinguishes the pearl from all other gems. It's formed by the refraction of light through the crystals of the pearl nacre, which, like prisms, create irridescent beams of color that seem to dance from the heart of the pearl. Thincoated or imitation pearls may

reflect light to show a surface

oysters secrete to form pearls. Made of microscopic crystals of calcium carbonate deposited in layers and bonded with an organic substance called conchiolin. Finequality nacre gives the pearl its.

• Orient: The delicate play of color on or just below the surface of a nacreous pearl.

• Cleanliness: Absence of sports, cracks or discoloration on a pearl's surface.

• Millimeter: The diameter measurement of the pearl. Approximately 1/25th of an inch.

• Momme: The Japanese weight measurement used for pearls. One momme is equivalent to 3.75 grams, or 18.75 carats.

pearls, therefore, less expensive. A 20-inch strand of Japanese cultured pearls can cost as little as $20,000. "But water pollution is threatening the Japanese pearl industry," Brian Schubot said. "Consequently, prices for Japanese pearls are beginning to rise."

"A jeweled clasp can cost as little as the pearls themselves," Sydell Schubot said. "That's why I generally advise clients to spend their money on the pearls this year, and add the clasp next year. That way you get the best quality pearls you can afford. We are selling a lot of invisible clasps - you can only spot it because there isn't any knot."

A NECKLACE, of course, calls for other, complementary pieces: earrings, a bracelet or two, and

Each of a pair of earrings consists of a splendid, 16mm South Sea pearl enhanced by a three-carat "star" of round- and pear-shaped diamonds. black pearl is the underside of a fly's set in platinum, which brings out the sparkle in the diamonds ($36,000).

Another pair of earrings features 17½ mm Oriental Mabe pearls, reflecting all the colors of the rainbow, in round settings of 48 diamonds, one carat ($5,400).

There's a spectacular bracelet, six strands of black pearls, with a clasp of 18 karat gold, centered with a large emerald surrounded by diamonds ($20,000). Slightly less spectacular, but still very dramatic, is a multi-strand pearl cuff, set off by a diamond bar and clasp.

Schubot has just the thing for the sports-minded: a "tennis" bracelet of pearls set in 14 karat gold ($1,250). --

It's difficult to choose among the rings at Schubot's, but if you could only have one, surely it would be the one with the large mabe pearl pearched jauntily aside seven marquis diamonds (two carats). Sixteen baguettes (.36 carat) adorn the ring itself ($27,000). And then you could start saving for another!

We're a long way from the demure pearl circle pin, once the mainstay in a woman's jewel box. But that's the most wonderful thing about pearls: no matter how spectacular, how dramatic, how luxurious, they never outshine the woman wearing

Oysters a key to both cultured and natural pearls

Q: What's the difference between a cultured and a natural pearl? A: Natural pearls are created by the oyster as an act of self-defense against an intruder that has entered the oyster-totally by accident. Incultured pearls, the intruder is inserted by the pearl cultivator. In both instances, the oyster does the rest, by coating the nucleus with a nacreous material that hardens and forms the pearl.

Q: How can I tell the difference between a cultured or a natural pearl and a fake pearl bead?

A: Compare them side by side. One of the most obvious differences is the depth of luster of the cultured..... pearl. Another method is to rub them gently across the edge of your teeth. If it feels smooth, it is an imitation pearl. If it feels textured, it is a cultured or a natural pearl.

A: There are a variety of shapes

- baroque, pear, barrel, mabe (half sphere), as well as the round.

A: Graduated - A necklace in which pearls of gradually increasing size are strung with the smallest pearls near the clasp and the largest at the center.

hues of the spectrum, plus black.

Q: How are cultured pearls measured? A: In millimeters. A twomillimeter cultured pearl is considered extremely small, whereas those over nine millimeters are thought to be quite large. Large cultured pearls are usually the most costly, but the other "value points" - such as luster, shape and color must be considered when making a purchase.

Collectors, investors prize limited-edition dolls

my own childhood," Miller said. Kitty is the creation of another hot doll artist, Yolanda Bello. Miller paid $600 for Kitty, signed by Bello at a doll fair in April. The doll is now worth $1,400, Miller said.

Sweatt retrieved another Bello doll from a glass case at the back.

"Joli" is a black baby girl, about 5 months old. Bello's pose captured her efforts in just learning to sit up. Dressed in a pink frilly dress, her hair tied up in pink ribbons, her rosebud mouth invited one to touch it to see if it was real.

JOLI ALSO belongs to Miller and was one of a limited and numbered edition of 250.

"Joli is one of the most expensive dolls I carry," Sweatt said. "I bought her for $600 in August last year. Within three months on the secondary market, she brought $1,200."

Limited editions drive the secondary market price up. Miller said Johanna initially cost $1,300. Within two months, she was worth $2,000 on the secondary market.

Groessle-Schmidt made only 20 Johannas for worldwide distribution. Five went to European dealers, and 15 to dealers in the United States. Sweatt had a coup in getting two of

The quick increase in value is a factor that appeals to the many men who collect dolls, Sweatt said. Yes, men.

"About 25 percent of my clients are men. Because the resale value is higher, it's one virtue that appeals to men collectors." But over time, they get hooked on

SWEATT DOESN'T deal in the secondary market, however. Her primary interest is in making the hot collectibles available and "putting people together" who want to buy and sell particular dolls.

She keeps a book of photos, a catalog of the new dolls coming in from her several buying trips during the year.

It takes up to eight months sometimes for the handmade and clothed dolls to come in from the artists. Eighty percent of them are sold before they reach the shop. Many of her clients make the hobby pay for itself. They buy two of the same doll, keep on and sell the other later, when its value increases on the secondary market.

Sweatt stocks dolls by such notable American artists as Annette Himstedt, Pat Thompson, Lee Middleton and Johanna Zook of Midland.

"Everything in the shop is for sale," said Sweatt, including the exquisite Pat Thompson doll sharing the glass case with Joli.

"She's one of a kind," Sweatt said of the late-Victorian era belle.

All her clothes, from the feather boa and wide-brimmed Gibson Girl hat to her sweeping brocade walking dress, were made from material more than 100 years old.

For a mere $6,500, she'd make an admirable beginning into the lucrative hobby of doll collecting.

EVEN IF some of Barbara Terry Roy's subjects had time, they probably wouldn't sit still for long, if at all.

Multi-talented Roy's specialty is pet portraits in pastels, oils and oil crayons. Her love for animals is evident in the painstaking details, like the direction of fur whorls. It gives her work a quality of photorealism.

The portrait of a black and white cat, beloved pet of a psychiatrist whose friends commissioned the portrait as a surprise, is an example.

"The cat was 20 years old and dying. It was very thin, I really had to fill it out," said Roy, who works from her studio in Lathrup Village. She worked from six different photos to achieve the finished product. Her clients have also included the Ford family. She was commissioned to do a portrait of Benson Ford's But Roy also does people. Her dining room/gallery is filled with portraits of her daughter, granddaughter and a couple of other recent endeavors.

Roy is test-marketing pastel portraits of brides. She may start taking commissions through one of Birmingham's tiniest shops.

Her prices for a 12- by 16-inch pastel, pet or otherwise, start at $250. She charges by size, primarily. The bride portraits are 18 inches by . 24 inches unmatted and start at

ALTHOUGH SHE has been an artist for 20 years, Diane Postula Levine is a relative newcomer to the commercial portrait field.

She specializes in watercolors, but occasionally does oils. She started taking commission work six months ago and her reputation is spreading by word of mouth.

The painting in progress on her drawing board is a good example: a companion piece to the young woman on the wall playing a guitar.

She did portraits of two children in see the work until it's done, a family, as birthday and graduation gifts. The grandmother saw them and commissioned Levine to paint two more of her grandchildren the girl on the wall and her soccer player brother, unfinished on Levine's drawing board. Levine also works from photos because: "People don't have to sit for hours, and photos capture the spontaneity."

Levine goes to her subject's home to take the photos, and tries to find out about their interests, what props to use, what clothes they'd like to wear and how they'd like to look.

Most importantly, she tries to get them to relax and smile. The boy on the drawing board wouldn't, despite having a smile like movie star Tom Cruise. So Levine worked from several photos to get just the right look. She dentist, himself a collector of fine cars, including a Rolls. "In Italy, there's an added tax on horsepower, discouraging the emphasis."

Even without the added tax, a new Rolls Royce begins at $225,000. But one is assured that the value of the car diminishes very little with passing years, if well-maintained. Similar to other fine cars, it can increase in value, especially with limited edition models.

ANOTHER AUTOMOBILE, less well known than a Rolls Royce, is the newly restyled Aston Martin Virage, priced at $210,000. Only six are produced each week at Britain's Newport Pagnell factory.

The hand-sculpted, all-aluminum body owes as much to the limousine image as to aerodynamic efficiency. The Aston Martin exceeds the Rolls Royce in the amount of handcrafting - and it runs on unleaded fuel!

Somewhere between the stately limousine's opulence and the raw power of the racing machine is an elegant array of more familiar Jaguars, BMWs and Mercedes.

Each of them has made a significant contribution to quality automotive history, including racing

THE MERCEDES BENZ company continues in its own fine tradition with the 500SL coupe roadster with a V-8 engine priced at $83,500.

Following hard on the heels of the Mercedes 500 SL is BMW's new 850i, with its V-12 engine at $76,000. Erhard, the BMW dealership in Birmingham, will be getting a quota of only six cars for the first year, assuring a certain exclusivity in numbers.

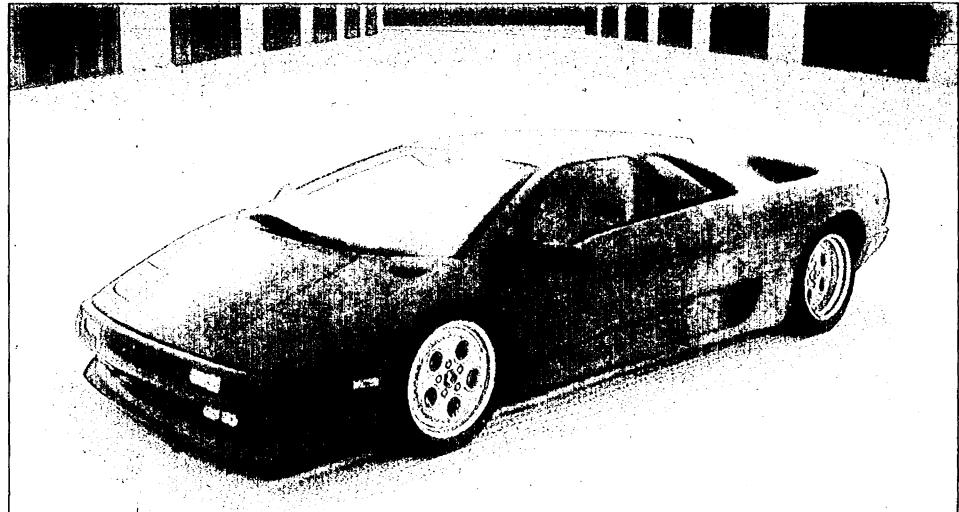

If this heated up competition were not enough, than the Honda introduction of the Acura NSX, already selling at $20,000 over its $65,000 sticker price, should convince you that the highperformance, fine-automobile market is where a lot of action is. Mark Sassak of Plymouth, already an owner of a more-than-$1 million 1968 Bizzarrini, has plans on owning an Acura NSX.

"I'm lucky to have my name on the list," he said.

Others question whether the Japanese can carry off the essential intangibles of pedigree and beauty to enter the world of ultra-fine automobiles.

Only time will tell.

The opposite attracts designer attention, as well. Some favor shades of white and pale or greyed neutrals

Arnold Scaasi goes softly into the night, selecting pale peach, dyed mink for his kimono-sleeved coats and wraps - perfect companions for his diaphanous peach, chiffon evening gowns.

YOUNG DESIGNER Marc Jacobs for Perry Ellis likes the mod-look of pale blue or pink shearling in a traditional style peacoat, and the modern combination of a pale grey. hooded, sapphire mink 7/8ths coat with a white faille shell.

Most often, the choice for 1990 is earth tones: mineral and spicery colors. It's environmental color: vermillon, nutmeg, cranberry and amber in sheared mink; amethyst dyed fox; copper dyed, sueded mink; and terra cotta, olive, mustard and plum dyed shearlings.

"These are colors you can wear every day - all winter long," said Sandy Blyo, American Fur Industry executive vice president. "And fur earth-tones mix with their ready-towear colors."

In designer Calvin Klein's collection, curry is a favorite in both mink and sheared beaver. European designers Andre and Lisa Bisang dye velvet mink in rich jewel tones: topaz, sapphire and emerald.

Both the Bisangs and American award-winning Coty designer Geoffrey Beene design garnet dyed, sheared mink jackets - waistlength and tailored at Beene, longer with a drawstring-walst and oversized shawl collar from the

Color — neon, neutral or of the earth — is an essential element for fur fashion 1990, says the American Fur Industry.
