

TEACH YOURSELF BOOKS

Myles Dillon/Donncha ó Cróinín

IRISH

A complete introductory course

IRISH

Irish is a Celtic language, closely related to Gaelic and Manx, and, as the official language of the Republic of Ireland is taught in schools throughout the country, thus playing an important part in the revival of Irish culture.

This course has been divided into three parts. Part I covers the alphabet and pronunciation and the problems of spelling. Part II is a series of twenty-seven graded lessons, each one covering a particular aspect of the grammar. Part III contains the keys to the exercises which are to be found in each of the lessons, while at the end of the book are verb lists and a vocabulary.

'It is very difficult to achieve the perfection which is so obvious in the text. Great talent and a lot of hard work has gone into it'

Irish Press

TEACH YOURSELF BOOKS/HODDER AND STOUGHTON

Languages

Published in USA by David McKay Company, Inc.

ISBN 0 340 05797 1

UNITED KINGDOM 95p
AUSTRALIA $3.05*
NEW ZEALAND $3.05

*recommended but not obligatory

IRISH

Irish is a Celtic language, closely related to Scottish Gaelic and Manx, and is still spoken in small areas of Waterford, West Cork and West Kerry, and in wider areas of Connemara, Mayo and Donegal. This book has been specially prepared by two expert teachers for all who wish to learn to speak, read and write Irish, and to enable them to do all three as quickly and as easily as possible. At the same time, the authors have tried to serve the needs of those who would like to know something of the language but have no intention of speaking it.

TEACH YOURSELF BOOKS

It will in time prove its own worth . . . it is very difficult to achieve the perfection which is so obvious in this text. Great talent and a lot of hard work has gone into it.

Irish Press

IRISH

Myles Dillon

Formerly Senior Professor in the Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies

Donncha Ó Cróinín

Professor of Irish in Our Lady of Mercy Training College, Carysfort Park, Dublin

TEACH YOURSELF BOOKS
Hodder and Stoughton

*First printed 1961
Tenth impression 1977*

*Copyright @ 1961
Hodder and Stoughton Ltd.*

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopy, recording, or any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher.

This volume is published in the U.S.A. by David McKay Company Inc., 750 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

ISBN 0 340 05797 1

*Printed in Great Britain for Hodder and Stoughton Paperbacks, a Division of Hodder and Stoughton Ltd, Mill Road; Dunton Green, Sevenoaks, Kent (Editorial Office: 47 Bedford Square, London WC1 3DP)
by J. W.Arrowsmith Ltd., Bristol.*

CONTENTS

	PAGE
Introduction	ix-xii

PART I

The Irish Alphabet	3
Pronunciation	7
Syncope	12
Rules for Aspiration	13
Rules for Eclipsis	18
Key to the Simplified Spelling	21

PART II

Lesson
I The Simple Sentence	25
II The Regular Verb	31
III Cases of the Noun	35
IV Present of the Verb “to be”	39
V The Verb “to have” and the Past Participle. The Perfect Tense.	41
VI The Verbal Noun. Past and Future of the Verb “to be”	44
VII Particles with ro . Personal Pronouns. Posses- sives and Pronominals	47

VIII	The Copula	52
IX	Future, Imperfect, and Conditional Tenses. The Adjective. Sitting, standing, etc.	57
X	Tá sé ina fhear . Is and Tá with adjectives. Numerals from one to ten	62
XI	Declension of Nouns. The Second Conjugation	66
XII	Rules for Gender. Abstract Nouns. Nouns of agency. Diminutives. The Dual Number. Prepositions	70
XIII	Prepositional Pronouns. Irregular Verbs: “come” and “go”. The Verbal Noun	77
XIV	Uses of the Prepositions. Irregular Verbs: “hear” and “get”	83
XV	Prepositional Pronouns (contd.). Irregular Verbs: “see” and “say”	88
XVI	Conditional Sentences. Subordinate Clauses. Conjunctions	93
XVII	Liking, thinking, wishing	99
XVIII	Weak Plurals and Irregular Nouns	102
XIX	Passive and Impersonal	109
XX	Irregular Formation of the Verbal Noun. Uses of the Verbal Noun	114
XXI	The Adjective. Irregular Verbs: “bear” and “give”; “do” and “eat”	118
XXII	Irregular Comparison of Adjectives. The Adverb	125
XXIII	Ownership. Buying and Selling	130
XXIV	Numbers, days, months and seasons	136
XXV	Imperative and Subjunctive	142

XXVI	Relative Sentences	147
XXVII	Idioms. Defective Verbs. Points of Syntax	151
	Passages of Irish Prose and Verse	155
	Conclusion	161

PART III

Key to the Exercises	165
--------------------------------	-----

APPENDIX

Declension of Nouns	193
First Conjugation of Stems ending in a long vowel	197
Second Conjugation and Irregular Verbs	199
VOCABULARY	212

List of Substantive Ammendments.

Corrections of OCR errors moved to back sheet.

Chapter XVI of Ó Cuív's "The Irish of West Muskerry, Co, Cork", (scan only), added, and the refernces thereto linked.

4th February 2011

Pages 75 & 76: footnotes added.

23rd February 2011.

Page 86: footnote added.

27th February 2011.

Pages 5 & 6: table page break adjusted.

Page 20: conformed to 1987.

Page 116: footnotes added.

15th March 2011.

Page 140: 'vn.' moved to after '(shaynt)'.

Page 106: 'préamhacha' indented as not new paragraph.

New section added to back sheets detailing limitations of audio recordings, and my efforts to correct them.

24th March 2011.

Numbering and formatting of exercises harmonized. This involved alterations to pages: 28, 34, 65, 169, 175, 177, 180, 181, 182, 183, 185, and 186.

Page 185: Ex. 48, sentence 6: '(and they)' not good English.

Modified to read '(and they are)' for better sense.

30th March 2011.

INTRODUCTION

Irish is a Celtic language, closely related to Scottish Gaelic and Manx which are really dialects of Irish and have had a distinct literary form only since the seventeenth century. These three form the Goidelic group, so called from Goídel, the Old Irish word for “Irishman”. The other surviving Celtic languages are Welsh and Breton, which together with Cornish form the Britannic (or British) group. Manx and Cornish are now extinct. A few speakers of Manx may survive, but the language is no longer used: Cornish ceased to be spoken at about the end of the eighteenth century.

Irish is still spoken in small areas of Waterford, West Cork and West Kerry, and in wider areas of Connemara (West Galway) Mayo and Donegal. Four dialects can be roughly distinguished, East Munster (Waterford) and West Munster (Cork and Kerry) forming a southern group, Connacht (Galway and Mayo) and Ulster (Donegal) forming the northern group. There are, of course, minor points of difference between Cork and Kerry, and between Galway and Mayo, and the speech of North Mayo approaches that of South Donegal. The dialect chosen for this book is that of West Munster, as it is phonetically the simplest, and it is closest to the language of the Munster poets of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, who best represent the last survival of the old literary tradition.

When we have had to choose between a recognised literary form which is not obsolete, and a form which appears to us to be “sub-standard”, the literary form has been preferred. For example, the formation of the plural of nouns is sometimes free in the spoken language, and anomalous forms occur. In West Munster the plural of abha “river” may occur as aibhnte or aibhní, but aibhne is the established form, and will be accepted by native speakers: léine “shirt” may occur in the plural in conversation as léinteacha or léinte, but léinte is the established form and has been preferred. For some nouns, two plural forms have been allowed, where both can be defended.

The prepositional pronoun dó “to him” has a short vowel in Munster, but dó is the established form.

The preposition roimh has generalised the pronominal form roimis in West Munster, but the normal form will be understood and is here preferred. So too cé acu “which” is used here, although the colloquial form doubles the acu (cé acu acu).

Opinions will vary as to how these matters should be presented. We have had to make decisions and have done as we thought best.

In 1948 a standard form of spelling used by the Translation Branch of the Oireachtas was approved by the Department of Education, and we have adopted their system of spelling as far as possible, while adhering to the grammatical usage of West Munster. Dinneen’s Irish Dictionary and books published before 1948 are in the old spelling. The chief purpose of the new spelling is to get rid of silent consonants (as in English “plough”, “though”, “island”), which in Irish are, or were, very common and very inconvenient. A list of examples to illustrate the old and new spellings is given below. It is hoped that the learner will quickly adapt himself to the old spelling, when he meets it.

It is assumed that those who use this book will want to read, write and speak Irish, and it has been designed to enable them to do all three as quickly and easily as possible. But Irish is not an easy language, and learning Irish means hard work and constant practice. In order to speak a foreign language well, you must have opportunities for conversation, and there is really no substitute for a long visit to Coolea or Ballinskelligs or Ballyferriter or Dunquin. But, as a preparation for visits to the Gaeltacht, the Irish exercises in this book have been recorded on two long-playing records,* and these records should be learned by heart. Conversational power is what you make of it. The student can practise by asking himself questions aloud and answering them, varying the sentences given in the exercises. Not much has been given of actual conversation, but all the exercises are conversational in tone and subject matter.

*Gael-Linn54, Grafton St., Dublin, price £4.30.

Some readers will use the book merely to learn something about the language, without any intention of speaking it; and we have tried to serve their purpose also. For a more learned and scientific treatment, these mere linguists should proceed to the two excellent books by M. L. Sjoestedt-Jonval, Phonétique d'un parler irlandais de Kerry (Paris, 1931) and Description d'un parler irlandais de Kerry (Paris, 1938). The phonetic system has been fully described for West Cork by Brian Ó Cuív, The Irish of West Muskerry, Co. Cork (Dublin, 1944).

A Key to the exercises is given. This should be used sensibly. Do your exercise before consulting the Key, and then correct your work. Afterwards, do the exercises the other way round, testing your translation of the Key with the original exercises. Irish is much more different from English than is German or French, not merely in vocabulary (you can learn the words easily), but in syntax and idiom. Great care has been taken with the Lessons, but sometimes you may have to resort to the Key while doing the translation into Irish. Do so boldly and with a clear conscience. That is in part what the Key is for. When you then make the Key the exercise, things will be easier.

Revise constantly. After every three lessons, go back and refresh your memory of grammar and vocabulary.

In the section on pronunciation the International Phonetic Alphabet has been used, but a simplified spelling is given in the vocabularies in the Lessons. The International Phonetic Alphabet has been supplied in the general vocabulary.

In planning the book we have been guided by the authors of two earlier volumes in the series, Teach Yourself Norwegian and Teach Yourself German. The Irish handbooks of the Christian Brothers, An Irish Grammar and Aids to

Irish Composition have been most helpful; and we have, of course, consulted O’Nolan, New Era Grammar of Modern Irish and Studies in Modern Irish, Mac Giolla Phádraig, Réidh-Chúrsa Gramadaí and Bun-Chúrsa Gaedhilge and Ó Cadhlaigh, Ceart na Gaedhilge and Gnás na Gaedhilge. In presenting the rules for aspiration and eclipsis we have followed the method of the Réidh-Chúrsa Gramadaí. For details of pronunciation we have relied upon Brian Ó Cuiv, The Irish of West Muskerry. Where we have had to make a choice, we have followed as closely as possible the standard usage as presented in Gramadach na Gaeilge agus Litriú na Gaeilge (Dublin, Stationery Office, 1958).¹

We are specially indebted to Seán Ó Cróinín for advice and criticism, and to Máiréad Ni Ghráda who kindly read the book in typescript and suggested many improvements.

Our thanks are also due to the Trustees of the O’Leary Trust and to Browne & Nolan Limited for permission to use the passage quoted from Séadna, and to those whose comments have helped us to improve this edition.

¹Thus for éinne “anyone”, éinní. “anything”, we have adopted aon duine, aon ní. For baochas “thanks, gratitude”, Gaoluinn “Irish” of the dialect, we use the prescribed spellings buíochas and Gaeilge respectively, but the pronunciation is always given. For “minute(s)” the form now prescribed is nóiméad, nóiméid, but neomat, neomatai are retained here. So also duart “I said”, where the prescribed form dúirt mé is strange to the dialect.

PART I

THE IRISH ALPHABET

The use of roman type has only recently become common, and many books are still printed in the old Gaelic type. The student should, therefore, learn both. As the Gaelic form is simply the medieval manuscript form, it presents no difficulty.

Roman	Gaelic
a	À
b	b
c	c
d	ḃ
e	e
f	F
g	Ġ
h	h
i	i
l	l
m	m n	n
o	o
p	p
r	r R
s	s S
t	t
u	u

Only r and s have distinct capital forms in Gaelic type. For the other letters the capitals are merely larger than the others.

The old names of the letters were tree-names: ailm “elm”, beith “birch”, coll “hazel”, dair “oak”, edad “aspen”, fern “alder”, gort “ivy”, idad “yew”, luis “mountain-ash”, muin “vine”(?), nin “ash”, onn “gorse”, pin(?), ruis “elder”, sail “willow”, tinne “holly”, úr “blackthorn”.

These names are no longer used, and the names are as in English except for a, which is named as it is pronounced.

Three important points which affect spelling may be introduced here.

(i) Every consonant has two qualities, velar and palatal, called “broad” and “slender” respectively; and these qualities are marked in spelling by means of glide-vowels. The consonant is “broad” when it precedes (or follows) a “broad” vowel, (a, o, u). It is “slender” when it precedes (or follows) a “slender” vowel (e, i). When a consonant is between vowels, the following vowel predominates and a slender vowel is inserted before a slender consonant, a broad vowel before a broad consonant. Thus the flanking vowels will always agree, slender with slender and broad with broad (“caol le caol agus leathan le leathan”).

(ii) The consonants p, t, c, b, d, g, m, f, s are liable to a change called aspiration, which turns them into spirants. This change is written by adding h in roman and by adding a dot in Gaelic type: bh ð, dh ò, gh ċ, and so on.¹

(iii) The consonants p, t, c, f and b, d, g are liable to a change called eclipsis, which makes the voiceless consonants voiced, and the voiced consonants nasal. Thus p, t, c, f become b, d, g, v (written bh) respectively, and b, d, g become m, n, ng. But the original consonant is kept in spelling, and the eclipsis is written before it: bp, dt, gc, bhf, mb, nd, ng.

The rules for aspiration and eclipsis are given below.

The contrast of sound between broad and slender may be illustrated in English by the following pairs:

¹ For the pronunciation see p. 9.

tool	tune
cool	cure
foot	few boot	beauty
do	duty
good	gules
moon	music
noon	new
loose	lure
soon	sure

This illustration should be helpful. It needs qualification for t and d, which in Irish, when “broad”, sound not like English t, d, but more like French t in très, d in dresser, the tongue being spread just behind the upper teeth; when “slender” they are close to the English sounds. Note that the slender s is like s in “sure” not in “sewer”

The vowels have their Latin values, not as in English, and may be long or short. A long vowel is marked with the acute accent, and this may not be omitted,¹ as there are many pairs of words distinguished only by this mark of the long vowel:

ait queer áit place ait sounds like Eng. “at”; áit like Eng. “art” (but with palatal t)

cas curly cás case cas rhymes with Eng. “moss”;
cás with Eng. “farce”

cead permission céad hundred cead rhymes with Eng. “had”;
céad is [k'iad]

¹ In the new spelling the accent is omitted over long o preceded by e, as this digraph rarely occurs with short o. The only words in this book to have short eo are deoch [d'ox] “drink”, eochair “key” and seo “this”.

fear man féar grass mear lively méar finger
sean old séan good luck

fear sounds like Eng. “far” with the vowel short and the r trilled: féar is between “fair” and “fear” with the r trilled; and so also for mear and méar, sean and séan (sean as in Eng. “shanty”)

min meal mín smooth

min as in Eng. “tin”; mín as in Eng. “mean”

solas light sólás comfort

solas is like Eng. “solace”; sólás has both vowels long.

There are two true diphthongs, both written and pronounced, ia and ua. The written diphthong ao is pronounced as an open e like the vowel in English “mare”, “hair”. Before a slender consonant it is long i as in “see”: taobh [tɛ:v] “side”, gen. taoibh [ti:v]. There are other diphthongs in pronunciation (p. 7), arising from loss of consonants, as in English “plough”, “dough”, “through”, but usually when two vowels occur together one is merely a glide. Thus fios [f'is] “knowledge” and fuil [fil'] “blood” both have the vowel i; the former has slender f and broad s, the latter has broad f and slender l: fear [f'ar] “man” and cailc [kal'k'] “chalk” both have the vowel a; the former has slender f and broad r, the latter has broad c and slender lc. And these values for the groups ui, ea, ai are normal¹, when they are stressed. In a few words three vowels come together: when ia, ua are followed by a slender consonant, we get iai, *uai*² as in riail “rule”, fuair “found”; sometimes a broad vowel is flanked by slender consonants as in ciúin [k'u:n'] “quiet”, ceoil [k'o:l'] “music” (gen.).

¹ Not constant, cf. beag and words ending in -ll, -nn, -rr (geall, ceann, fearr) in the vocabulary. In -io- the i is often the glide, cf. pioc, sioc, siopa, and also iomad, see Ó Cuiv §301.

² The diphthongs are then [ie], [ue], while before a broad consonant they are [iə], [uə].

PRONUNCIATION

The pronunciation given in this book is that of West Munster, which is the easiest to learn and the most commonly used by learners. Irish pronunciation is probably not as difficult for an English speaker as French, and certainly much easier for an Irishman, for English as spoken in Ireland still has an Irish flavour. But the sounds are not well shown by the spelling, for in Irish, as in English, many consonants have become vocalised and have given rise to diphthongs or long vowels, while the old spelling has remained. English “dough”, “plough”, “through” have been mentioned, and “rough”, “enough”, “thought”, “fought” add to the list of sounds spelt ough in English. But beside “thought” you have “taught”, and then “taut” without gh. Beside “fought” you have “fort”, which in Standard English are pronounced alike. The difficulty of Irish sounds for English speakers is of the same kind, not so much in the sounds themselves as in the awkward spelling. The new spelling has removed much of this difficulty, and our simplified spelling will be a further help. In the general vocabulary at the end of the book the IPA is supplied throughout.

We have seen that beside the diphthongs ia (iai) and ua (uai) there are others arising from loss of consonants. For the purpose of this book they might be reduced to two: au as in “house” (or better German Haus) and ay as in “light”. In fact there is also a diphthong ou, beginning with o rather than a, and there is also a diphthong əi, beginning with ə rather than a, but you should not worry about the distinction. You will be understood with a mere au and ay, and accuracy can come later when you are in touch with native speakers. These diphthongs most commonly arise when an “aspirated” b, d, g or m occurs in medial position, followed either by a vowel or by another consonant. Thus gabhar

“goat” is pronounced [gour], domhan “world” is pronounced [doun], amhras “doubt” [aurəs]; gadhar “dog” [gəir], raghad “I shall go” [rəid], adhmaid “wood” [əiməd], feidhm “force” [f’əim’]. As a general rule, when the vocalised (or lost) consonant is a broad bh or mh, the diphthong is au (or ou); when it is broad dh or gh, or any slender consonant, the diphthong is ai (or əi). One other point must be noticed: when the consonant is mh, the diphthong is often nasalised, and this is a difficulty for English speakers, unless they know French. Again, it is not of great importance for beginners. You will be understood even if you omit the nasal quality: aimhleas “disadvantage” [ail’əs] may be pronounced [ãil’əs], with a nasal diphthong; amhras “doubt” may be [ãurəs], but the pronunciation [aurəs] is acceptable, and is normal in West Cork.

Diphthongs arise also when a vowel is followed by ll, nn or m in words of one syllable: dall “blind” is [dau], mall “slow” is [mau], gann “scarce” [gaun], cam “crooked” [kaum], donn “brown” [doun], poll “hole” [pou], *greim*¹ “grip” [gr’əim’]. Before -rr a short a is lengthened: gearr “short” [g’a:r], fearr “better” [f’a:r]; or else a short final vowel develops: [g’arə], [f’arə].

So much for vowels and diphthongs. The vowels have been described on p. 5. We must now return to the consonants. You have seen that every consonant has two qualities, broad and slender, and this distinction may not be neglected even by beginners, for it is fundamental to the system. It is commonly the main difference between two words, or between two cases of a noun or two forms of a verb. Thus, bó “cow” [bo:] is distinct from beo “alive” [b’o:], bog “soft” is distinct from beag [b’og] “small”; maoin “wealth” [mi:n’] is distinct from mín “smooth” [m’i:n’]; labhair “speak” [lour’] is distinct from leabhair “books” [l’our’]; nom. sg. bád “boat” [ba:d] is distinct from gen. sg. and nom. pl. báid [ba:d’]; bhíos “I was” [v’i:s] is distinct from bhís “you (sg.) were” [v’i:ʃ]. In practice, as suggested on p. 5, a slight y-sound after the slender consonant will serve. Thus (byō) for beo, and this is easy if the following vowel is broad (a, o, u), but not if it is slender, or if the consonant itself is final. For the m in mín you must keep the lips close to the teeth, and for maoin they are looser (there may even be an off-glide like w). And in either word, if you pronounce a broad final n, you may not be understood. (There are words mbuíon [mi:n] and mbíonn [m'i:n] which would interfere.) A double nn when slender is pronounced ng as in “sing”.

¹ Historically the vowel is e, and the i is a slender glide.

Remember that if a consonant is preceded or followed by e or i, it is slender, if by a, o or u, it is broad.

One sound about which a special note is required is r. It is always trilled, never flapped or silent as in English. For broad r there is no further difficulty, but slender r is difficult for English speakers. It approaches the sound of z. (In some dialects it has almost become z.) If you sound a z and then trill it, you will get a fair result. Fortunately original slender r has become broad when it begins a word, so that this sound is required only in medial or final position: ri “king” has a broad r, but tír “country” and Máire “Mary” have the slender sound.

The second point about consonants is “aspiration”,¹ of which something has been said in connection with diphthongs. The following table shows the sound-changes caused by aspiration:

	written	pronounced
p	ph	f
t	th	h
c	ch	ch

{ broad as in German ach or Scottish Loch.
 { slender as in German ich.

¹ The term is phonetically wrong, for the affected consonants are not aspirated but spirant. However it is firmly established in grammars of Modern Irish, and we are not here concerned with the science of phonetics.

	written	pronounced
f	fh	silent
s ¹	sh	h ²
b	bh	v
d	dh	{ broad, a voiced guttural spirant ³
g	gh
m	mh	v

These values are true for ph, th, ch, fh, sh in all positions. In medial position, as we have seen, bh, dh, gh, mh are vocalised when broad and give rise to diphthongs. The group -omha- in the middle of a word is pronounced as a long nasal o: comhartha “sign”, pron. [kõ:rhə]. The group -ghe is pronounced as a long i, and written í in the new spelling, a reform which we have adopted. Slender dh and gh (-idh and -igh) at the end of a word are pronounced as g. Broad dh at the end of a noun is silent; in the 3 sg. ending of a verb, it is pronounced as ch; in the past passive as g or ch. Medial -lt- is pronounced lh.

The Additional Vowel.

When l, n or r is followed by b, bh, ch, g (not after n), m or mh, and preceded by a short stressed vowel, an additional vowel is heard between them: balbh “dumb” is pronounced [bələv], bolg “stomach” [boləg], borb “rude” [borəb], garbh “rough” [garəv], dorcha “dark” [dorəxə], fearg “anger” [f'arəg], gorm “blue” [gorəm], seanchai “story-teller” [ʃanə'xi:], ainm “name” [an'im'], ainmhi “animal”

¹ Note that when aspiration of initial s- is caused by the definite article (p. 17), t is prefixed to the s-, and the sound is t.

² When slender initial s is followed by a broad vowel, aspiration normally changes it to slender ch: a Sheáin [ə'x'a:n'] “John!”, hata Shiobhán [hatə x'ə'vɑ:n] “Joan’s hat”.

³ This is the voiced sound corresponding to ch. It occurs in North German sagen, Magen, Bogen, etc.

[an'iv'i:]. You need not memorise this rule, as the pronunciation of each word is given in the vocabulary, but you will want to refer to it when puzzled by the simplified spelling. For a fuller treatment of the additional vowel, see Ó Cuív, pp. 105-6.

Stress

As a general rule the stress is on the first syllable, and it is so strong that all short vowels in the following syllables are indistinct. They are reduced to the quality of the murmured vowel [ə] in English “barrăck”, “commŏn”, “custŏm”, “solăce”. If the flanking consonants are slender, the unstressed vowel will have i-quality, as in ainm above. But if you pronounce the slender consonants correctly the vowel will take care of itself.

In West Munster, however, there are exceptions to the rule of initial stress as follows:

- i. If the second syllable is long, it bears the stress: cailín, garsún, tógálach, except for some verbal endings.
- ii. When the first two syllables are short and the third is long, the third syllable bears the stress: amadán.
- iii. Where the second syllable contains -ach- and there is no long syllable, the second syllable bears the stress: coileàch, beannàcht, casàchtach.

Here the stress is marked by the grave accent. In the phonetic alphabet it is marked by a vertical line before the stressed syllable, if the first syllable does not bear the stress, as in [an'iv'i:] above.

Finally, if you want to pronounce the Irish of this book correctly, you must get records, or better still, spend some months in West Cork or West Kerry.

SYNCOPE

As well as reducing the short unstressed vowels, the strong stress on the first syllable may knock out a syllable. This sometimes happens when by inflexion an ending is added to a word of two syllables. For example obair “work” forms the gen. by adding -e, and the gen. is oibre, not obaire*. Note that the broad b becomes slender when it is joined to the slender r. Similarly the comparative of adjectives is formed by adding -e: íseal [i:ʃəɫ] “low”: ísle [i:ʃl'i] “lower”.

This is important for the inflexion of one class of verbs of the second conjugation (p. 66):

imrim I play ipv. sg. 2 imir past sg. 3 d'imir sé

osclaim I open ipv. sg. 2 oscail past sg. 3 d'oscail sé

RULES FOR ASPIRATION (See Page 4)

- I. The initial consonant of nouns is aspirated:
- (a) following the article an
 - (i) in the nominative–accusative singular of feminine words: thit an chloch “the stone fell”, cuir ort an chasóg “put on the coat”.
 - (ii) in the genitive singular of masculine words: cos an mhadra “the dog’s leg”, ceann an fhir “the man’s head”.
 - (b) after the vocative particle a, in both sing. and pl. (m. and f.):
a dhuine uasail “dear sir”, a chairde “my friends”
 - (c) in the genitive following a feminine noun:
tine mhóna “a turf fire”, lámh chúnta “a helping hand”.
 - (d) in the genitive of proper nouns:
leabhar Shéamais “James’s book”, athair Mháire “Mary’s father”, muintir Chiarraí “the people of Kerry”.
 - (e) after the possessive adjectives mo “my”, do “your” (sing.), and a “his”:
mo bhean “my wife”, do chapall “your horse”, a mhac “his son”.
 - (f) after the prepositions ar “on”, do “to”, de “from”, fé “under”, gan “without”, idir “between”, “amongst”, mar “as”, ó “from”, roimh “before”, thar “over, beyond”, trí “through”, um “about”:
ar chloich “on a stone”, do Thadhg “to Tadhg”, lán de bhainne “full of milk”, fé chathaoir “under a chair”, gan mhaith “useless” (literally “without use”), idir dhaoine “between people”, mar chúamh

“as a help”, ó Sheán “from John”, roimh theacht “before coming”, thar Dhiarmaid “past Dermot”. trí dhearmhad “through (by) mistake”, um Cháisc “at Easter”.

- (g) after don “to the”, den “from, off the”, and sa “in the”:
don gharsún “to the boy”, den bhóthar “off the road”, sa bhaile “at (lit. “in the”) home”; but sa tigh “in the house.”¹

Note: In Kerry Irish no distinction is made between don and den, and don alone is used, followed usually by eclipsis: don gcapall “to (off) the horse”, don mbád “to the boat”, “off the boat”.

- (h) when the noun forms the second element of a compound word:

leasmháthair “a stepmother”, deathuairisc “a good account”, droch-chaint “bad language”.

- (i) when it begins a noun-phrase which is the equivalent of a definite noun in the genitive:

mac fhear an gheata “the gate-keeper’s son”; fé dhéin thigh an rí “towards the king’s house”.

- (j) after the numerals aon “one” dá “two”, and after céad “first”:

aon fhear amháin “one man”, dhá chuid “two parts”, an chéad cheist “the first question”.

- (k) after trí “three”, cheithre “four”, cúig “five” and sé “six” where the sing. of the noun is used:

trí chapall “three horses”, cheithre dhuine dhéag “fourteen persons”, cúig bhosca “five boxes”.

- (l) after the dative of verbal nouns in the more frequently used verbal noun phrases:

ag baint fhéir, (mhóna) “cutting hay (turf)”, ag cur phrátaí (choirce) “sowing potatoes (oats)”.

¹ sa is a reduced form of insan now established in writing, and does not cause aspiration of t, d.

Note: Where sa is followed by a noun beginning with f, the f is eclipsed: sa bhfeirm “in the farm”, sa bhfarráige “in the sea”.

II. The initial consonant of an adjective is aspirated:

- (a) when qualifying a feminine noun in the nom.-accus. sing.:
- fuinneog mhór* “a large window”, bó bhán “a white cow”, cearc fhrancach “a turkey-hen”.
- Note: When the adj. precedes a fem. noun to form a compound, the initial consonant is aspirated following the sing. article:
- an chaolchuid “the lesser share”; an mhórchuid “the greater share, part”, an phríomhcheist “the principal question”, an tseana-bhean “the old woman” (see below p. 16).
- (b) after the gen. sing. of a masculine noun:
- mála an duine bhoicht* “the poor man’s bag”, lucht an tí mhóir “the people of the big house”, cos an chapail bháin “the white horse’s leg”.
- (c) after the nom.-accus. plural of a noun when it ends in a slender consonant:
- fir mhóra* “big men”, crainn bheaga “small trees”, capail mhaithe “good horses”, lachain bhána “white ducks”.
- (d) after a noun in the dative sing. fem. and in the dat. sing. masculine when the noun itself is aspirated:
- fé bhróig mhóir* “under a big shoe”, ar láir bháin “on a white mare”, ó dhuine chríonna “from an old person”, do bhuachail bhocht “to a poor boy”.
- (e) after a noun in the vocative sing.:
- a chailín bhig “my little girl”, a chréatúir bhoicht “my poor creature!”.
- (f) after a noun in the dual number:
- dhá lachain bhána* “two white ducks”, dhá mhuic mhéithe “two fat pigs”.

(g) after the past tense and conditional of the verb is:

ba, níor, ar, nár, gur:

ba mhór an trua é “it was a great pity”, níor mhaith liom é “I would not like it”, ar cheart é a dhéanamh? “would it be right to do it?”, dúirt sé gur bhocht an scéal é “he said it was a poor story” (“bad case”), nár bhreá an rud é? “was it not a fine thing?” (“would it not be. . . .?”)

III. The d- of the prepositional pronouns dom. duit, etc., díom, díot, etc. is usually aspirated after vowels and silent consonants:

Go mbeannai Dia dhuit “May God bless you”,
Thug sé dhom é “he gave it to me”,
Chuir sé dhe “he made off”,
Níor fhiafraigh sé dhinn “he did not inquire of us”,
Tabharfaidh sé tuilleadh dhuit “he will give you more”.

IV. The initial consonant of a verb is aspirated:

(a) in the past, imperfect and conditional, whether the particle do is used or not (see p. 32):

(Do) tháinig Seán “John came”, (do) chuireadh sé “he used to put”, (do) dhéanfaimís “we would do”.

(b) after ní, má, and containing perfective ro (see p. 47):

má bhuaileann tú “if you strike”, ní chreidim é “I do not believe it”, níor thógas é “I did not take it”. Nár thugais dó é? “Did you not give it to him?”
Ar chuais ann? “Did you go there?”

(c) following the nom.-accus. of the relative particle a (see p. 147):

an duine a chloiseann “the person who hears”,
an capall a dhíolas “the horse (that) I sold”.

Special rules for aspiration of d, t, s.

Initial d and t are not regularly aspirated after the homorganics d, n, t, l, s: ceann an duine “the person’s head”, gan toradh “without fruit”, slat tirim “a dry rod”, dhá chapall déag “twelve horses”.

s is never aspirated in the groups sc-, sm-, sp-, st-.

s before a vowel or l, n, r is changed to t after the article an, and written ts-:

- (a) an tsráid “the street”, an tsagairt “of the priest”, an tsrotha “of the stream”;
- (b) den tsaol “(out) of the world”, don tsagart “to the priest”, den tslait “from the rod”, sa tsruth “in the stream”, sa tsnáthaid “in the needle”.

Special rules for aspiration after prepositions:

s- is not aspirated after the preposition gan:

bás gan sagart “death without a priest”.

ar “on” does not aspirate the initial of a following noun:

- (a) when the sense is general: ar bord “on board (ship)” in contrast to ar bhord “on a table”, ar muir “at sea”, ar buile “angry”, ar meisce “drunk”.
- (b) in phrases with a verbal noun expressing a state or condition: ar bogadh “steeping”, ar crochadh “hanging”, ar siúl “going on, happening”.

gan “without” does not aspirate a following noun when the noun is part of a verbal noun phrase:

gan capall do cheannach “without buying a horse”, “not to buy a horse”.

Non-aspiration occurs also in gan pósadh “unmarried”, gan peaca “sinless”, gan moill (beside gan mhoill) “without delay”, féar gan baint “unmown hay”, etc.

thar “over, beyond” is subject to similar exceptions: thar barr “excellent”, thar farraige “beyond the sea”, etc.

RULES FOR ECLIPSIS (See Page 4)

I. The initial consonant of a noun is eclipsed:

- (a) in the gen. pl. following the article:
tithe na ndaoine “the peoples’ houses”, lán na mbuidéal “the full of the bottles”.
- (b) in the dat. sing. following a preposition (other than de and do) with the article:
ag an dtigh “at the house”, leis an mbata “with the stick”, insan bpáirc “in the field”.
(Cf. Kerry: “don gcapall”, “don mbád” etc. above, under Aspiration g note.)
- (c) after the preposition i, without the article:
i bpáipéar “in a paper”, i gcathair “in a city”.
Note: This preposition combined with the article normally gives sa, which aspirates: sa pháirc “in the field”, sa bhaile “at home”; but it eclipses f: sa bhféar “in the grass” (see under Aspiration p. 15); and “sa mbliain” is frequently heard beside “sa bhliain” “in the year (per annum)”.
- (d) after the poss. adjectives ár, bhur, and a (pl.):
ár gceart “our right”, bhur ngnó “your business”, a mbeatha “their life”.
- (e) after the numerals 7 to 10, seacht, ocht, naoi, deich:
seacht gcapaill “seven horses”, ocht gcearca “eight hens”, naoi bpáirceanna “nine fields”, deich ndoirse “ten doors”.
- (f) after the numerals trí, cheithre, cúig, sé, when in the genitive case:
ainmhí cheithre gcos “a four-footed animal”, féar

sé mbó “the grass of six cows”, fé cheann cúig mblian “after five years”.

II. Eclipsis of Adjectives:

The eclipsis of adjectives has ceased to be a regular feature of the language, and is confined to the gen. pl. and occasional use with the dative sing. after the article, e.g.

a bhean na stocaí mbána “O woman of the white stockings”, ar an leacain mbáin “on the white slope”, ar an gcuma gcéanna “in the same way”.

III. Verbs:

The initial consonant of a verb is eclipsed:

- (a) after an (interrog.), cá “where?”, go “that”:
an bhfuil sé anso? “is he here?” cá dtéann tú? “where do you go?” is dócha go dtiocfaidh sé “it is likely he will come”.
- (b) after dá “if”, mara “unless”, sara “before, lest”:
dá mbeinn ann “if I were there”, mara gcreideann tú mé “if you do not believe me”, sara ndéanfainn dearmad “lest I should make a mistake”.
- (c) after the dependent relative particle go:
an té go bhfuil a chroi san airgead “the person whose heart is in (the) money”, an fear go bhfuil an t-airgead aige “the man who has the money”.
- (d) after the relative a (“all that”):
Sin a bhfuil agam “that is all I have”, ná feic a bhfeicfir “do not see what you will see”.

In positions where an initial consonant is eclipsed, n- is prefixed to an initial vowel: Tir na nÓg “The Land of the Young”; i n-áit “in a place”; na deich n-aitheanta “the Ten Commandments”.

Obviously these rules for aspiration and eclipsis are not to be memorised. They are given together here, so that you may refer to them when you are puzzled by examples in the Lessons.

The prefixed h:

One other initial change must be noted. The gen. sg. fem. and the nom. pl. of the article prefix h to a following initial vowel: na habhann “of the river”; na huain “the lambs”. h is also prefixed as follows:

- (a) to nouns after the fem. possessive a “her”; after the numerals trí, cheithre, sé and after tarna “second” and ordinals ending in ú; after the prepositions go and *le*¹: a hiníon “her daughter”, trí huaire “three times”, an tarna huair “the second time”, go hÉirinn “to Ireland”, le hór “with gold” ;
- (b) to adjectives after chomh “as, so” and go (forming adverbs): chomh hálainn “as beautiful”, go holc “badly”; after the negative copula ní: ní hamhlaidh “it is not so” ;
- (c) to verbs in the passive-impersonal after all particles ending in vowels, and to all forms of the verb after the negative ná: ní hitear “is not eaten”, do hóladh “was drunk; ná hól! “do not drink!”; ná hitheann sé? “does he not eat?”, ná hólann sé tóbac i n-aon chor? “does he not smoke at all?”, deir sé ná hólann “he says that he does not (smoke)” ;
- (d) to pronouns after the interrogative cé and after the negative copula ní: cé hé (hí)? “who is he (she)?” cé hiad? “who are they?”, ní hé (hí), ní hiad; ní hea “it is not”.

¹ Le prefixes n to the verbal nouns ithe “to eat” and ól “to drink” (p. 84).

KEY TO THE SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

The sounds of Irish are quite unlike those of English, but they may still be heard in English as it is spoken in Ireland. The simplified spelling used here can therefore be only an approximation. The vowel symbols used are as follows:-

ă	as in English	ăbout
a	as in English	at aa	as in English	far
ä	as in English	mare, hair
e	as in English	bet
ē	as in Italian	sera
i	as in English	it
ee	as in English	fee
o	as in English	loss
ō	as in German	Lohn
ö	as in French	homme
u	as in English	put
oo	as in English	soon

Diphthongs:—

ay	as in English	light
au	as in English	round
ou	as in English	road
eeă	as in English	paean
ooă	as in English	gruel

Consonants:

For the broad and slender sounds of consonants you must refer to p. 5. Except for the dentals no attempt is made to indicate them in the simplified spelling. For the dentals t, d, remember that the broad sounds are not as in English, but are made with the tongue against the upper teeth. We write them t, d, in simplified spelling. Broad c, g, ng require practice. The c is like English qu without the w-glide.

Thus caol “narrow” is like English “quail”, but without rounding of the lips, and g, ng are in the same position, but with voicing and nasality respectively.

When the stress is not on the first syllable (see p. 11), the stressed syllable is separated by a hyphen, and marked with the grave accent unless another diacritic appears: ansan (ǎn-sùn) “there”; dinnéar (dee-ngē) “dinner”.

The New Spelling.

The following list of words illustrates the reformed spelling introduced in 1948 and now generally adopted. The purpose of the reform is to eliminate silent consonants and so far as possible to establish a uniform spelling for all the dialects.

Old Spelling	New Spelling	Old Spelling	New Spelling
aimhdheoin	: ainneoin	bliadhain	: bliain
aoinfheacht	: éineacht	brígh	: brí
baoghal	: baol	buidheachas	: buíochas
biadh	: bia	céadna	: céanna
ceannóchad	: ceannód	ithte	: ite
claidhim	: cloím	laetheamhail	: laethúil
comhgar	: cóngar	leanbhaí	: leanaí
comhnaidhe	: cónaí	lobhtha	: lofa
congnamh	: cúnamh	naomhtha	: naofa
cosamhail	: cosúil	Nodlaig	: Nollaig
cruinneóchad	: cruinneod	riaghail	: riail
dóighim	: dóim	ríoghdha	: ríoga
éadtrom	: éadrom	seachtmhain	: seachtain
éagcóir	: éagóir	síothcháin	: síocháin
éirghe	: éirí	siubhal	: siúl
fiafruigheann	: fiafraíonn	timcheall	: timpeall
Gaedhilge	: Gaeilge	tosnughadh	: tosnú

PART II

LESSON I

The Simple Sentence

1. Masculine Nouns.

All Irish nouns are either masculine or feminine, as in French. The gender is important, as the rules for aspiration vary according to the gender. When the noun is nominative-accusative singular, the article prefixes t- to masculine nouns beginning with a vowel and aspirates feminine nouns beginning with a consonant. The article is an, gen. sg. fem. and nom. pl. masc. and fem., na. Thus an bád “the boat”, an t-uisce “the water”, an bhean “the woman”.

There is no indefinite article: fear “a man”, bean “a woman”, uisce “water”.

THE FIRST DECLENSION.

Most masculine nouns ending in a broad consonant form the genitive singular and nominative plural by changing the broad consonant to slender, inserting the glide-vowel i: an bád “the boat”; an bháid “of the boat”; pl. na báid “the boats”; an garsún “the boy”; an gharsúin “of the boy”; na garsúin “the boys”. Note that the plural of an is na. When the final consonant is ch, it is changed to gh in the gen. sg. and nom. pl. When the vowel of the final syllable is short, there is a change of vowel as in “man, men”. By this change ea becomes i. Thus coileach “cock”, pl. coiligh; fear “man”, pl. fir. In mac “son”, pl. mic, the a becomes i. Some nouns add -e for the nom. pl.: doras “door”, pl. doirse; bóthar “road”, pl. bóithre; solas “light”, pl. soilse, with syncope of the second syllable, see p. 12.

THE FOURTH DECLENSION.

Most nouns ending in a vowel form the plural in -í, and have the same form for nominative and genitive in both singular and plural.

The following list of nouns should be learned:

Singular		Genitive	Nom. Plural
bád	boat	báid	báid
bainne	milk	bainne
bosca	box	bosca	boscaí
bóthar	road	bóthair	bóithre
buidéal	bottle	buidéil	buidéil
cat	cat	cait	cait
ceann	head	cinn	cinn
dinnéar	dinner	dinnéir	dinnéir
doras	door	dorais	doirse
fear	man	fir	fir
focal	word	focail	focail
gadhair	dog	gadhair	gadhair
garsún	boy	garsúin	garsúin
gort	tillage-field	goirt	goirt
leabhar	book	leabhair	leabhair
páipéar	paper	páipéir	páipéir
sagart	priest	sagairt	sagairt

The verb stands first in its clause. Eng. “the man is here” is tá an fear anso (lit. “is the man here”). In English when the verb comes first we have a question, but in Irish there is a special particle an (ecl.) to mark the question, and, strange to say, a different verb is used for “is” in questions and in the negative. The word is fuil which with ní “not” is contracted to níl “is not”. The interrogative is an bhfuil? and the negative interrogative ná fuil? “is not?” Tá is the independent, or absolute, form of the verb, and fuil is the dependent form.

Note that there are no words in Irish for “yes” and “no”. The verb in the question must be repeated in the answer: An bhfuil sí ann? Tá. “Is he there?” “Yes”.

VOCABULARY

ach (och) but	fós (fōs) yet airgead (arigyăd) m. money, silver	fuair (fooär) cold
ann (aun) in it, there	garbh (gorăv) rough, windy
ansan (ăn-sún) there (demon.), then	géar (geear) sour
anso (ăn-sö) here	iasc (eeăsk) m. fish
bainne (bangi) m. milk	lá (laa) m. day
bosca (bösgă) m. box	lán (laan) full
bóthar (bōhăr) m. road	leabhar (lyour) m. book
breoite (brōti) sick	ní (nee) not
brónach (brōnăch) sad	níl (neel) is not
buidéal (bi-dēl) m. bottle	ná fuil? (naa fwil) is not?
caillte (kaylhi) lost	sé (shē) he
dinnéar (dee-ngēr) m. dinner	siad (sheeăd) they
díreach (deerăch) straight	tá (taa) is
fear (far) m. man	an bhfuil? (ă-vwil) is? folamh (föläv) empty	tuirseach (tir-shòch) tired ullamh (öläv) ready úr (oor) fresh

Exercise 1

Read aloud and then translate:

1. Tá an bosca lán. 2. Tá buidéal ansan. 3. Tá an leabhar cailte. 4. Tá an bóthar díreach. 5. An bhfuil an buidéal folamh? 6. Níl, tá bainne ann. 7. Ná fuil an bainne géar? Tá. 8. Tá an t-iasc úr. 9. An bhfuil an dinnéar ullamh? 10. Níl sé ullamh fós. 11. Tá an garsún breoite. 12. An bhfuil airgead anso? 13. Tá an fear tuirseach. 14. Ná fuil an lá garbh? 15. Tá, ach níl sé fuair.

Now let us try these sentences in the plural. The adjective does not change, but there are plural forms of tá and fuil which may be used¹: táid “(they) are”, nílid “they are not”.

¹ Commonly in answer to a question.

Exercise 2

Translate into Irish:

1. The boxes are full. 2. There are bottles there. 3. The books are lost. 4. The roads are straight. 5. Are the bottles empty? 6. No. 7. Are the boxes not ready? 8. The boys are sick. 9. The men are tired.

2. Feminine Nouns.

THE SECOND DECLENSION.

Most feminine nouns ending in a broad consonant form the genitive singular by adding -e and the nominative-accusative plural by adding -a: cloch “stone”, an chloch “the stone”, gen. na cloiche, nom. pl. na clocha. Note that the gen. sg. of the feminine article is na, and that it does not aspirate: it prefixes h- to an initial vowel. The -e of the gen. sg. changes a preceding ia to éi, and other changes are as for the masculine nouns. In nouns of more than one syllable, a -ch becomes -gh- before the -e, and the resulting -(a)ighe is pronounced -í, and is now so written (see p. 10).

The following list should be learned:

Singular		Genitive	Nom. Plural
baintreach	widow	baintrighe, baintrí	baintreacha
bréag	lie, falsehood	bréige	bréaga
bróg	shoe	bróige	bróga
cearc	hen	circe	cearca
ciall	sense	céille
clann	children (coll.), family	clainne	clanna
cluas	ear	cluaise	cluasa
cos	leg, foot	coise	cosa
deoch	drink	dighe, dí ¹	deocha
fuinneog	window	fuinneoire	fuinneoga
grian	sun	gréine
lámh	hand	lámh	lámha

¹This is an exception.

Singular		Genitive	Nom. Plural
muc	pig	muice	muca
póg	kiss	póige	póga
scian	knife	scine ¹	sceana ¹

Feminine nouns ending in a slender consonant commonly form a “weak” plural by adding -eanna:

áit	place	áite	áiteanna
ceist	question	ceiste	ceisteanna
páirc	field	páirce	páirceanna
scoil	school	scoile	scoileanna
sráid	street	sráide	sráideanna

Some, however, form the plural in -e: pingin “penny”, pl. pingine; scilling “shilling”, pl. scillinge; seachtain “week”, pl. seachtaine;² súil “eye”, pl. súile. Im “butter”, g. ime is masculine, nom.-acc. sg. an t-im.

VOCABULARY

agus (ogäs) and	glan (glon) clean
bád (baad) m. boat	lámh (laav) f. hand
bia (beeă) m. food	milis (milish) sweet
briste (brishdi) broken	muc (muk) f. pig
caite (kati) worn out	óg young
cam (kaum) crooked	ramhar (raur) fat
cearc (kyark) f. hen	salach (sloch) dirty
clann (klaun) f. children, family	scian (shgeeăn) f. knife
deoch (dyöch) f. drink	sí (shee) she
díolta (deelhă) sold	sráid (sraad) f. street
doras (dörăs) m. door	súil (sool) f. eye
dúnta (doontă) shut	te warm
fliuch (flyuch) wet	tinn (tayng) sore
fuinneog (fi-ngög) f. window	téad (teead) f. rope
fuar (fooär) cold	tirim (trim) dry
géar (gear) sharp	ar oscailt (er-ösgilt) open

¹ This is an exception. ² See also p. 103.

The Irish for “very” is a particle ana- which aspirates the following consonant and is joined to it with a hyphen in writing; but it is fully stressed: ana-bheag “very small”, ana-chiúin “very quiet”, ana-dhorcha “very dark”, *an-óg*¹ “very young”, ana-shalach “very dirty”.

Note that the feminine pronoun sí is used when referring to a feminine noun.

Exercise 3

Read aloud and then translate:

1. Tá an chlann óg. 2. Tá na cearca díolta. 3. Tá an fhuinneog ar oscailt. 4. An bhfuil sí dúnta? 5. Níl, tá sí ar oscailt. 6. Tá an bhróg ana-bheag. 7. Tá an deoch ana-mhilis. 8. An bhfuil sí te? 9. Níl, tá sí fuar. 10. Tá an lámh tinn. 11. Tá an scian géar. 12. Tá an téad briste. 13. Tá na súile dúnta. 14. Tá an scian glan. 15. An bhfuil na bróga caite? 16. Nílid. 17. An bhfuil an tsráid fliuch? 18. Níl, tá sí tirim. 19. Tá an mhuc ramhar.

Exercise 4

Translate:

1. The food is cold, but the drink is warm. 2. The shoes are worn out. 3. Are the knives clean? 4. No, they are dirty. 5. The doors are closed and the windows are open. 6. Are the streets straight? 7. No, they are crooked. 8. Are the pigs sold? Yes. 9. The hens are fat. 10. Is the eye sore? 11. The hands are cold. 12. The rope is dry. 13. The window is broken. 14. The street is very quiet.

¹ Before vowels the form is an-, and an- is the form in Northern Irish in all positions.

LESSON II

The Regular Verb

You have seen that the verb “to be” is irregular in Irish, as it is in English. Most Irish verbs are regular. There are two conjugations, of which only the first need now concern us. There are five tenses, present, imperfect, past, future, conditional. The stem may end in a broad or slender consonant, and to it are added endings for each person of each tense. Here are the endings of the present and past tenses:

Present		Past
Sg. 1 -im	Pl. 1 -imíd	Sg. 1 -as	Pl. 1 -amair
2 -ir	2 -ann	2 -is	2 -abhair
3 -ann	3 -id	3 -	3 -adar

Now if the stem is slender, a broad glide is required before broad endings; if the stem is broad, a slender glide is required before slender endings. The 1 sg. pres. could be stated as -(a)im, the 1 sg. past as -(e)as. These facts should help to give you a grasp of the system, both of spelling and pronunciation; for in each of these endings the vowel-sound is simply the “murmured” vowel of the final syllable in Eng. “ribbon”, “villain” etc., duly modified by the consonants which surround it. If you watch your broad and slender consonants, the unstressed vowel must come right. And the quality of the consonants is always marked by the vowels which surround it.

Now let us take two verbs, one with a broad stem and one with a slender:

IRISH

dúnaim "I shut"

		Present		Past
Sg. 1		dúnaim	do	dhúnas
2	{	dúnair	do	dhúnais
		dúnann tú
3		dúnann sé, sí	do	dhún sé, sí
Pl. 1		dúnaimíd	do	dhúnamair
2		dúnann sibh	do	{ dhúnabhair dhún sibh
3		dúnaid	do

buailim "I strike"

		Present		Past
Sg. 1		buailim	do	bhuaileas
2	{	buailir	do	bhuailis
		buaileann tú
3		buaileann sé, sí	do	bhuail sé, sí
Pl. 1		buailimíd	do	bhuaileamair
2		buaileann sibh	do	{ bhuaileabhair bhuail sibh
3		buailid	do

Note that the 2 and 3 sg. and 2 pl. of every tense may take the common form of the tense with a personal pronoun. This form, originally 3 sg., may also occur in the 3 pl. (dúnann siad "they shut") and it is the form used with a noun subject. The past, imperfect and conditional take the particle do (asp.): it is frequently omitted in conversation, when the verb begins with a consonant, as the aspiration suffices, but it is never omitted before a vowel. Before vowels and fh- (which is silent), the o of do is dropped: (do) bhuail sé "he struck", d'ól sé "he drank", d'fhéach sé "he looked".

The negative and interrogative particles are ní (asp.) and an (ecl.) respectively (see p. 26), but with the past tense the forms are níor (asp.) and ar (asp.), and do is dropped: ní bhualim “I do not strike”, an mbuailim “do I strike?”, níor bhuaileas (dhúnas) “I did not strike (shut)”, ar bhuaileas (dhúnas) “did I strike (shut)?”.

The following list should be learned:

caillim I lose	díolaim I sell, pay caithim I spend, use	dúnaim I shut ceilim I conceal	fágaim I leave creidim I believe	fanaim I wait, stay
crúdham, crúim I milk	féachaim I look cuirim I put	iarraim I request léighim, léim I read	scríobhaim I write líonaim I fill	stadaim I stop múinim I teach	suidhim, suím I sit nighim, ním I wash	titim I fall
ólaim I drink	tuigim I understand rithim I run

Exercise 5

Put the following into the plural, past tense, thus:

léim : do léamair

cuireann sé : do chuireadar

stadann tú : do stadabhair

caillir; cuireann sí; creidim; líonann tú; díolann sé; fanaim; scríobhair; tuigeann sé.

Exercise 6

Put the following into the present:

Do dhíolabhair; d'iarradar; d'fhéachais; do chailleamair; do thit sé; do mhúin sibh; do stadamair; do thuigeas.

VOCABULARY

ceilim (kelim) I conceal firinne (feeringi) f. truth

focal (fökäl) m. word
gadhar (gayär) m. dog

garsún (gor-soòn) m. boy glanaim (glonim) I clean litir f. letter

páipéar (paa-pēr) m. paper
 sagart (sogärt) m. priest
 uisce (ishgi) m. water

Exercise 7

Translate into Irish:

A. 1. We read the books. 2. The boy drinks the milk. 3. They do not understand. 4. You (pl.) fall. 5. I spend the money. 6. You (sg.) clean the knife. 7. They shut the door, but they do not shut the window. 8. Do you (pl.) understand? 9. Does he believe? 10. No. 11. He writes a letter. 12. He conceals the truth.

B. 1. They understood the words. 2. Did the priest believe the boys? 3. You lost the money. 4. Did he strike the dog? 5. We filled the bottles. 6. Did the boys drink the water? 7. No, but they drank milk. 8. Did you (sg.) read the paper? 9. The priests read the books.

LESSON III

Cases of the Noun

In Irish the noun has four distinct cases: nominative-accusative, genitive, dative and vocative. This may cause you some difficulty, as there is only one extra case left in English, the genitive singular in -s, as in “my father’s hat”, “the man’s stick”, “the girl’s frock”, and in English it is usually possessive. You have seen how the genitive singular is formed in the two classes of nouns in Lesson I, and in Irish the genitive is used not only for possession but also as an adjective, and in other ways. For example adhmaid means “wood” and bosca adhmaid means “a wooden box”; slinn “slate”: ceann slinne “slate roof”; im “butter”: punt ime “a pound of butter”. The genitive plural in these two classes is the same as the nom. sg.

But in addition to the genitive, there is a dative case for what is called in English the indirect object. In the sentence: “the man gives the boy an apple,” we say that “boy” is the indirect object, and it is marked in English by its position before the object. Its position is fixed unless indeed you bring in the preposition and say “gives an apple to the boy”, which is not the normal phrase. In Irish you must use a preposition, and there is a separate form for the second declension in the singular, and for all nouns in the plural. The dat. sg. of the second declension is formed by dropping the -e of the genitive; the dative pl. has the ending -(a)ibh¹. Finally there is a vocative case, used of a person spoken to, and the vocative of the first declension has the same form as the genitive in the singular, and a separate form in the plural.

¹The dative plural is now becoming a literary form and the nominative plural serves as dative in conversation, and is often so used in the lessons.

In the second declension it is the same as the nominative. But it is preceded (as in Arabic) by a vocative particle a (asp.): a mhic “my boy!” (lit. “O son!”), a ghrá “my love!” With proper names: Seán “John” a Sheáin. Tomás “Thomas” a Thomáis, Máire “Mary” a Mháire.

Now we can tackle these two declensions in full, and the two paradigms should be learned by heart:

FIRST DECLENSION (m.) an bád “the boat”

Sg.	Pl.
N-Acc. an bád the boat	na báid the boats
Gen. an bháid of the boat	na mbád of the boats
Dat. don bhád to the boat	dosna bádaibh to the boats
Voc. a bháid	a bháda

SECOND DECLENSION (f.)

an chloch “the stone”

Sg.	Pl.
N-Acc. an chloch the stone	na clocha the stones
Gen. na cloiche of the stone	na gcloch of the stones
Dat. don chloich to the stone	dosna clochaibh to the stones
Voc. a chloch	a chlocha

Simple prepositions take the dative case (except gan “with-out” and idir “between”, which take the nom.-acc.; chun “towards”, timpeall “around” and trasna “across”, which were originally nouns and take the genitive):

ag at	ar (asp.) upon
de (asp.) from	i (ecl.) in
do (asp.) to	le with
fé (asp.) under	ó (asp.) from

The prepositions de, do and fé elide the a of the article: den, don, fén. With the article all prepositions cause eclipsis, except den, don which aspirate; i and le with the article make insan, insna and leis an, leisna respectively,¹ but insan is commonly reduced to sa (asp.). Note that the definite article may not be doubled: hata an fhir “the man’s hat” (not an hata an fhir, see p. 79).

VOCABULARY

adhmad (aymăd) m. wood	ceann (kyaun) m. head
bacach (bă-kòch) lame	cos (kös) f. leg bainim (bwinim) de I take from	deisithe (deshihi) mended
bord (bōrd) m. table	fráma (fraamă) m. frame brisim (brishim) I break	gloine (glini) f. glass
briste (brishdi) broken	láidir (laadir) strong
buartha (booărhă) troubled	mála (maală) m. bag, sack
capall (kopăl) m. horse	páirc (paark) f. field
casóg (kă-sōg) f. coat	urlár (oor-laàr) m. floor

Exercise 8

1. Tá capall an tsagairt bacach. 2. D’fhágadar bosca adhmaid ar an urlár. 3. Tá casóg an gharsúin ana-mhór. 4. Do chailleadar mála airgid ar an mbóthar agus táid siad buartha brónach². 5. D’fhág sí buidéal bainne agus gloine uisce ar an mbord. 6. Bhriseadar an fhuinneog le clochaibh. 7. Tá na cearca ag an bhfuinneog. 8. Tá an gadhar fén mbord. 9. Tá seomra na ngarsún dorcha. 10. Do dhúnamair fuinneog an tseomra. 11. Ar bhainis an t-airgead den ghar-sún? Do bhaineas. 12. Fágann na fir na capaill sa pháirc.

Exercise 9

1. The dog’s leg is broken. 2. He reads the boy’s books. 3. We put (past) the money under the stone. 4. The cat is under the window and the dog is at the door. 5. Have you lost (say “did you lose?”) the priest’s money? 6. He put a glass on the table. 7. The men break stones on the road. 8. The man is at the head of the table. 9. The horses run round the field. 10. He took the books from the boys. 11. We left the window of the room open. 12. The frame of the window has been (say “is”) mended.

¹ ag, de, do, fé and ó with the pl. article make agesna, desna, dosna, fésna and ósna in Munster, but these forms may be regarded as colloquial.

² Note that agus is not used between two adjectives.

LESSON IV

Present of the verb “to be”

		Negative
Sg.	1 táim	nílim
	2 táir, taoi, tá tú ¹	nílr ²
	3 tá sé (shē)	níl sé
Pl.	1 táimid	nílimíd
	2 tá sibh (shiv) ¹	níl sibh ²
	3 táid, táid siad	nílíd
		Negative
		Interrogative
Sg.	1 an bhfuilim (ã vwilim)?	ná fuilim?
	2 an bhfuilir (ã vwilir)?	ná fuilir?
	3 an bhfuil sé (ã vwil shē)	ná fuil sé?
Pl.	1 an bhfuilimid (ã vwilimeed)?	ná fuilimid?
	2 an bhfuil sibh (ã vwil shiv)?	ná fuil sibh?
	3 an bhfuilid (ã vwilid)?	ná fuilid

This paradigm of the present indicative of tá should be studied carefully, as the forms are in constant use, and they will familiarise you with the use of verbal particles, and of absolute and dependent forms of irregular verbs (see Lesson XIII).

VOCABULARY

amuigh (ã-mù) outside

anso (ãn-sò) here

baile (bali) m. village; sa

bhaile at home

buíochas (bächäs) m. thanks;

buíochas le Dia! thank God!

cá? (kaa) ecl. where?

¹ tánn tú, tánn sibh are common colloquial forms.

² níleann tú, níleann sibh are common colloquial forms.

Cill Airne (aarni) Killarney
 cistin (kishdin) f. kitchen
 clós m. yard
 conas? (kunās) how?
 Corcaigh (kōrkig) f. Cork
 fál m. hedge gairdín (gaardeèn) m. garden
 gearrachaile (gyarächāli) m.
young girl go léir (gǎ-lēr) all go maith (gǎ-mòh) well isteach (ish-dàch) into, in (with motion)

istigh (ish-dig) inside, in (at rest) Mícheál (mee-haàl) Michael,
 voc. a Mhíchíl (ǎ vi-heèl)
 páirc (paark) f. field
 páiste (paashdi) m. child
 Seán (shaan) John
 speal (sbal) f.; g. speile scythe Tadhg (tayg) Timothy thall (haul) yonder, over there
 tigh (tig) m., pl. tighthe, tithe house
 Tomás (tǎ-maàs) Thomas,
Tom

The common greeting is Dia 's Muire dhuit! God and Mary to you! and the reply is Dia 's Muire dhuit agus Pádraig! God and Mary to you and Patrick!

Exercise 10

1. Dia 's Muire dhuit, a Thaidhg! 2. Dia 's Muire dhuit agus Pádraig! Conas taoi? 3. Táim go maith, buíochas le Dia! Conas tá sibh go léir sa bhaile? 4. Táimíd go maith. 5. Tá Seán i gCill Airne, ach tá Mícheál agus Nóra anso. Táid istigh sa tigh¹. 6. Cá bhfuil an garsún óg agus an gearrachaile? 7. Táid amuigh sa ghairdín. 8. D'fhág Tomás an speal thall fén bhfál. 9. Do chuireamair na capaill isteach sa stábla.

Exercise 11

1. God and Mary to you, Tom! How are you? 2. I am well, thank God! 3. Are the children at home? 4. They are all (inside) in the kitchen. 5. Is Michael outside in the yard? 6. He is, but John and Nora are in Cork. 7. The boys are over there in the field. 8. Where is the scythe? 9. It is here under the hedge.

¹ t is not aspirated after sa (= insan), p. 14, note 1.

LESSON V

The Verb “to have” and the past participle The Perfect Tense

There is no proper verb “to have” in Irish, and the notion is expressed by the verb “to be” with the preposition ag “at”: tá sé ag Seán “John has it” (lit. “it is at John”). This idiom, with the past participle of a verb, provides a perfect tense, distinct from the simple past: tá sé déanta ag Seán “John has done it”; tá an dinnéar ite ag Tomás “Tom has had (eaten) dinner”; tá an leabhar cailte ag an ngarsún “the boy has lost the book”.

The past participle is formed with the ending -te, -ta, according as the verbal stem is slender or broad.

bris-	“break”	briste
caill-	“lose”	cailte
dóigh-	“burn”	dóighte, dóite
dún-	“shut”	dúnta
ith-	“eat”	ite
léigh-	“read”	léighte, léite
ól-	“drink”	ólta
scríobh-	“write”	scríte (irreg.)

The t is aspirated after b, bh, c, g, m, p, r:

scuab-	“sweep”	scuabtha
treabh-	“plough”	treabhtha, treafa
strac-	“tear”	stractha
leag-	“knock down”	leagtha
cum-	“compose”	cumtha
stop-	“stop”	stoptha
scar-	“separate”	scartha

It is pronounced as h also after l, but is written t.

An adjective follows the noun it qualifies: gort mór “a big field”; scoil nua “a new school”; *cloch bheag*¹ “a small stone”. Sean(a)- “old” precedes the noun and forms a compound: seana-bhróg “an old shoe”, seana-thigh “old house”, an seana-dhream “the old folk”.²

VOCABULARY

Aifreann (afirän) m. Holy Mass	Eibhlín (ay-leèn) Eileen
anois (ã-nìsh) now	gúna (goonã) m. dress
barr, barra (baar, borã) m. top	léite (lēti) read
briste (brishdi) broken	litir (letir) f. letter
caillte (kaylhi) lost	Máire (maari) Mary cheana (honã) already	Maighréad (may-reèad) Margaret
cnoc (knök) m. hill	ólta (ólhã) drunk
cóta mór (kõtã mooär) overcoat	Pádraig (paadrig) Patrick
déanta (deeantã) made, built	scoil (sgöl) f. school
dúnta (doontã) shut	scríte (shgreeti) written
	trucail (trukil) f. cart

Exercise 12

Translate:

1. Tá bróga nua ag Máire.
2. Tá gadhar óg ar an mbóthar.
3. Tá cóta mór ag Tadhg anois.
4. Tá an tAifreann léite ag an sagart.
5. Tá litir scríte ag Pádraig.
6. Tá an doras dúnta ag an bpáiste.
7. Tá an fhuinneog briste ag na garsúnaibh.
8. Tá maide beag ag an ngadhar.
9. Tá scoil nua ar bharr an chnoic.
10. Tá an t-airgead cailte ag Mícheál.

Exercise 13

1. Tom has read the letter.
2. Eileen has a new dress.
3. The young man has lost the books.
4. There is a cart at the door.

¹ See p. 15.

² seanduine “old man”, with sean and unaspirated d is an exception.

5. The child has drunk the milk. 6. The man has money. 7. Tim has lost the overcoat. 8. The boys have broken the bottles. 9. The old school is closed, and a new school has been built on top of the hill. 10. Margaret has written the letter.

LESSON VI

The Verbal Noun. Past and Future of “to be”

The English present participle is expressed by the preposition ag (ig) “at” and a verbal noun: tá sé ag teacht “he is coming”, tá sé ag ól “he is drinking”. The verbal noun of regular verbs is usually formed by adding -adh (pron. ă) to the stem, and, if there is an object, it appears in the genitive case: tá sé ag dúnadh an dorais “he is shutting the door” (lit. “at shutting of the door”); tá sé ag gearradh adhmaid “he is cutting wood”; táid ag baint fhéir “they are mowing hay” (see p. 14).

Regular Verbal Nouns

briseadh (brishă)	breaking, to break
bualadh (booălă)	striking, to strike
casadh (kosă)	turning, to turn
dúnadh (doonă)	shutting, to shut
gearradh (gyară)	cutting, to cut líonadh (leenă)	filling, to fill.
magadh (mogă)	mocking, to mock
stracadh (sdrokă)	tearing, to tear

Some Irregular Verbal Nouns (see Lesson XX)

baint (bwint)	taking, to take; cutting, to cut cailliúint (ko-loònt)	losing, to lose
cur	putting, to put
dul	going, to go
fanúint (fo-noònt)	waiting, to wait
féachaint (feeachint)	looking, to look iarraidh(eeărig)	asking, to ask; trying, to try

ól drinking,	to drink
rá. (raa)	saying, to say
rith (rih)	running, to run
scríobh (shgree, shgreev)	writing, to write
stad (sdod)	stopping, to stop
teacht (tacht)	coming, to come

The past of tá, like the present, has absolute and dependent forms. The future has only one set of forms:

		Past		Future
		Absolute	Dependent
Sg.	1	do bhíos (vees)	rabhas (rous)	bead (bed)
	2	do bhís (veesh)	rabhais (roush)	beir (ber)
	3	do bhí sé (vee shē)	raibh sé (rev shē)	beidh sé (be shē)
Pl.	1	do bhíomair (veemir)	rabhamair (roumir)	beimid (bemeed)
	2	do { bhíobhair (veeoor) bhí sibh (vee shiv)	{ rabhabhair (rouoor) raibh sibh (rev shiv)	beidh sibh (be shiv)
	3	do bhíodar (veedär)	rabhadar (roudär)	{ beid (bed) beid siad

The verbal noun of tá is bheith “to be”.

VOCABULARY

abhaile (ã-vàli) home	bearradh (barã) clipping,
amach (ã-mòch) out	shaving, to shave
amáireach (ã-maäräch) to-	buaint (booint) reaping, to
morrow	reap
arís (ã-reèsh) again	caint (kaynt) f. talk; ag caint
ar maidin (er-màdin) this	talking
morning	coirce (körki) m. oats
a thuilleadh (ã-hìli) any more	eile (eli) other

fáechaim (feeachim) ar I look at, watch	práta (praatã) m. potato
fós (fōs) yet, still	rá (raa) saying, to say
garda (gaardã) m. civic guard	sásta (saasdã) satisfied
leis (lesh) also; with him;	scuabaim (sgooãbim) I sweep
ag caint leis talking to him	tarrac (torãk) drawing, to draw
obair (öbir) f. work; ag obair working	teacht (tacht) coming
piocadh (pyukã) picking, to pick; piochta (pyukihi) picked	tuirseach (tir-shòch) tired

Exercise 14

1. Táimid ag ól uisce. 2. Bhíomair ag caint leis an ngarda. 3. An raibh Séan anso ar maidin? 4. Do bhí; agus bhí sé ag féachaint ar an gcapall óg. 5. An rabhais ag caint leis? Bhíos. 6. Beidh sé ag teacht arís amáireach. 7. Tá na fir ag briseadh chloch ar an mbóthar. 8. Cá bhfuil na garsúin eile? 9. An bhfuilid ag piocadh na bprátaí? 10. Táid tuirseach anois, agus níl na prátaí go léir piochta fós. 11. Beid siad ag dul abhaile amáireach, agus ní bheid ag teacht a thuilleadh.

Exercise 15

1. They were cleaning the windows. 2. We were working on the roads. 3. Will you be coming again tomorrow? 4. Are you going home now? 5. The priest is saying Mass now. 6. Margaret and Eileen are watching the men reaping the oats. 7. Will they be clipping the horses? 8. No; it is cold still. 9. Were they breaking the stones? 10. No; they were bringing (drawing) in the hay. 11. She is sweeping the floor. 12. We are tired, but we are not satisfied yet.

LESSON VII

Particles containing ro. Personal Pronouns Possessives and Pronominals

We have seen (p. 33) that níor and ar are the negative and interrogative particles with a past tense. These forms contain an old particle ro which was used with the past tense of verbs in the earlier language, and has been ousted by do. With the negative interrogative particle ná (see p. 26) it makes nár, and with the conjunctions go “that” and ná “that not” it makes gur and nár respectively. Thus do bhuaíl sé “he struck”; níor bhuaíl sé “he did not strike”; ar bhuaíl sé? “did he strike?”; nár bhuaíl sé? “did he not strike?”; gur bhuaíl sé “that he struck”; nár bhuaíl sé “that he did not strike”. Note that these particles containing ro aspirate the initial of the verb.

VOCABULARY

baile mór town	fanaim (fonim) I stay, re-
bainim (bwinim) I cut (hay)	main
bó f. cow	mias (meeäs) f. dish caithim (kohim) I spend	ólaim (ōlim) I drink creidim (kredim) I believe	poll (poul) m. hole
crúim (krooim) I milk	scéal (shgeeal) m. story
díolaim (deelim) I sell

Exercise 16

Put the following into the negative, the interrogative and the negative interrogative.

1. Do chaitheas.
2. D’fhanamair.
3. D’ólais.
4. Do dhíoladar.
5. D’fhéach sé.
6. Do bhaineadar.
7. D’iarr sibh.
8. Do thuigis.

Exercise 17

Translate into Irish.

1. The children did not believe the story. 2. Did they understand the story? No. 3. Did she not wash the dishes? Yes. 4. I did not write the letter. 5. Did you drink the milk? 6. You did not milk the cow. 7. Did they not sell the horses? 8. Did we shut the windows? 9. They did not spend the money. 10. Did he stay in the town? 11. Did they not look at the paper? 12. Did the child fall into the water? 13. We did not cut the hay yet.

Personal Pronouns

The personal pronouns are:

Singular	Plural
1 mé	sinn
2 tú	sibh
3 sé, sí	siad

There are also emphatic forms:

Singular	Plural
1 mise	sinne
2 tusa	sibh-se
3 seisean, sise	siad-san

For the 2 sg. and 3 sg. and pl. there are special forms thú,¹ é (m.) í (f.), iad which are used as object of a transitive verb. Thus buailim é “I strike him”; buaileann sé mé “he strikes me”; buailimid iad “we strike them”; buaileann tú sinn “you (sg.) strike us”; buailid sibh “they strike you”. Note that a pronoun as object tends to stand at the end of the sentence: do chailleadar inné sa bhaile mhór é “they lost it yesterday in town”.

¹ Colloquially short forms tu, thu occur, the aspirated form commonly after a vowel: do chonac tu “I saw you”; do chonaic sé thu “he saw you”.

The possessive adjective is declined as follows:

Singular	Plural
1 mo (asp.)	ár (ecl.)
2 do (asp.)	bhur (ecl.)
3 a m. (asp.); a f.	a (ecl.)

mo and do drop the o before a vowel, and the d of do is changed to t: m'athair "my father", t'athair "your father".

Prepositions ending in vowels, except do "to" and de "from", prefix n to possessive a: ina "in his, her; their"; lena "with his, her, their", óna "from his, her, their", with aspiration, no change, or eclipsis according as a is masc., fem., or plural. Do and de with possessive a make dá. The noun following a possessive may take an emphatic particle which varies for person and number:

Singular	Plural
1 -sa, -se	-na, -ne
2 -sa, -se	-sa, -se
3 m. -san, -sean f. -sa, -se	-san, -sean

mo mhac-sa "my son"; do thigh-se "your house"; a hiníon-sa "her daughter"; a bpáirc-sean "their field". These particles may also be added to verbs: brisim-se "I break"; téimid-ne "we go".

"This" and "that" are expressed by the enclitics so, seo and san, sín respectively, added to a definite noun: an maide seo "this stick"; an bhróg san "that shoe". "That" (more remote) may also be *úd*¹: an cnoc úd thall "that hill yonder".

The word féin means "self": mé féin "myself"; sinn féin "ourselves". It may follow a noun preceded by a possessive adjective: ár dtalamh féin "our own land"; or a verb: beimid féin ann "we shall be there ourselves"; or it may qualify a noun (or an adverb) in the sense "even": *tá an*²

¹ After a pronoun the form is siúd.

² The article is used in Irish, as in French, where it is not used in English, cf. la viande est chère "meat is expensive".

mhóin féin gann i mbliana “even turf is scarce this year”; do bhíos ag caint leis inniu féin “I was talking to him even today”; mar sin féin “even so”.

Cuid “share” is used with a possessive when the thing possessed is a quantity of something: a chuid airgid “his money”, mo chuid coirce “my oats”, a gcuid oibre “their work”.

VOCABULARY

ag gearán (ig gi-raàn) com- plaining	gadhar (gayär) m. dog
béile (bēli) f. a meal	hata (hoṭă) m. hat
Baile Átha Cliath (blaa- kleəă) Dublin	imeacht (i-mächṭ) going away
buainim (booănim) I reap	ithim (ihim) I eat
cailín (ka-leèn) m. girl	lámh (laav) f. hand caithfead (kohăḍ) I must	mac (mok) m. son
cuid (kid) f. share ; ár gcuid coirce our oats	ó chianaibh (cheeăniv) a while ago
dícheall (deehăl) m. one's best effort	pioc (pyuk) nothing (with neg.)
fadó (fo-dō) long ago	sa bhaile (să-văli) at home stól (sdōl) m. stool

Exercise 18

(i) 1. Brisimíd iad. 2. Do cheil sé é. 3. Ligeann sé isteach sinn. 4. Ar chuir sé amach sibh? 5. Do chailleamair iad. 6. Ar bhuaile sé thú? 7. Níor chreideamair í. 8. D'fhág sí ann mé.

(ii) 1. Tá mo leabhar-sa cailte, ach tá do leabhar-sa thall ar an stól. 2. Bead-sa ag imeacht amáireach. 3. An mbeir féin ag dul go Baile Átha Cliath? Ní bhead. 4. Tá mo mhac breoite agus caithfead fanúint sa bhaile. 5. Dheineas-sa mo dhícheall ach níor dheineadar-san pioc. 6. Tá do lámha salach agus tá mo lámha-sa salach leis. 7. Do bhí na cailíní tuirseach agus bhí na garsúin féin ag gearán. 8. Nár chuir sé amach na gadhair fós? 9. Níor chuir, ach cuirfead-sa¹

¹ See Lesson IX.

amach anois iad. 10. D'itheamair-ne ár mbéile ó chianaibh, agus beidh bhur gcuid-se fuar. 11. Tá m'athair i gCorcaigh ach tá t'athair-se sa bhaile.

Exercise 19

(i) My hat; your stick; his shoes; her box; our books; your (pl.) father; their children. I believe you. Did you believe her? He put them out and he let me in. Did they leave you (pl.) there? We lost it (m.). He believes us.

(ii) 1. My house is here, and his house is over there (thall) on the hill. 2. He did his best, but you did nothing. 3. Her shoes are new and my shoes are worn out. 4. Our books are lost; where are your books? 5. We will be going away tomorrow, but you will be staying here. 6. They had (use ithim) their dinner a while ago. 7. Have you had yours (use cuid) yet? 8. I shall be going to Cork and she will be staying in Dublin. 9. We reaped our oats yesterday. 10. Did you (pl.) reap yours (say "your own share") yet? 11. She believed the story, but I did not believe a bit (say "nothing") of it.

LESSON VIII

The Copula

In the simple sentences of Lesson I you have learned the verb tá which means “is” in such phrases as “the hat is on the table” or “the day is cold, the bag is empty,” etc. But in sentences of definition or identity, you must use a different verb, namely is (rhymes with Eng. “hiss”), which is called the copula, because it merely joins two notions.¹ The forms are easy, as this verb has no persons or number and only two tenses, present is and past (and conditional) *ba*²; but the syntax of these sentences is troublesome and requires careful study and practice. Definition is to say what a person or thing is: “it is a book, a horse, a hill”, etc. A sentence of identity says who or which he, she or it is: “it is my book, his horse”; “he is John Smith”. And these two types have slightly different constructions. You have seen that é, í, iad are the forms of the pronoun as object of a transitive verb. They are also the forms used as subject of the copula.

(a) The sentence of definition is then is leabhar é “it is a book”, is cloch í “it is a stone”, is fir iad “they are men” (verb-predicate-subject); or, with the demonstratives so, seo “this” and san, sin “that”:³ is leabhar é seo “this is a book”, is cloch í sin “that is a stone”, is fir iad san “those are men”.

(b) In the sentence of identity the pronoun occurs twice, before and after the noun, unless the subject is the demonstrative. Suppose you want to say simply “it is the book” (not the paper or the pen), you must say is é an leabhar é;

¹ For those who know Spanish, the distinction between ser and estar will be helpful.

² See p. 16.

³ So and san after a broad consonant or vowel, seo and sin after a slender. These are here fully stressed, not enclitic as on p. 49.

“they are the boys” is iad na garsúin iad; “it is John” is é Seán é. But the demonstrative is not repeated after a definite noun: is é sin an leabhar “that is the book”, is iad so na garsúin “these are the boys”, is é sin Seán “that is John”.

If both the subject and predicate are definite nouns, e.g. “Tom is the old man”, “John is my son”, “the big book is the prize”, then the order is: is é Tomás an sean-duine; is é Seán mo mhac; is é an leabhar mór an duais. The notion to be emphasised precedes, but a definite noun may not follow the copula directly.

(c) The first type, however, has a common alternative form with the old neuter pronoun ea: fear is ea é “it is a man”; bó mhaith dob ea í sin “that was a good cow”.¹ The past in this position is dob (the particle do and b). And the type is é sin an fear has an alternative form sin é an fear, which is that commonly used.

These four types should be memorised:

is fear é or fear is ea é “it is a man”
is é an fear é “it is the man” is é sin an fear or sin é an fear “that is the man” is é Seán mo mhac “John is my son”

(d) In such a sentence as “good advice is a great help”, the normal construction is permissible: is cúnamh mór comhairle mhaith; but when there is emphasis on the predicate, the common usage is to make the adjective predicative and the noun definite, so that the logical subject appears in apposition: is mór an cúnamh comhairle mhaith. Thus the common form is: is maith an rud é “it is a good thing”, rather than rud maith is ea é. This form gives greater emphasis than (c).

¹ This form does not occur in Northern Irish, but tá with the preposition i n- may be used instead: (is) buachaill maith atá ann “he is a good boy”, (is) bó mhaith do bhí inti “she was a good cow”. This latter idiom appears in Southern Irish only in the negative form: níl ann ach cleasaí “he is only a trickster”, níl ann ach leath-scéal “it is only an excuse” (see p. 83).

Learn the following three sentences by heart:

is breá an lá é “it is a fine day”
is mór an trua é “it is a great pity” is láidir na fir iad “they are strong men”.

For emphasis a noun-subject may here be preceded by a pronoun: is maith an múinteoir é Seamas “James is a good teacher”.

These constructions do not occur in the future tense or in the imperfect; but they do occur in the past and conditional: ba bhreá an lá é “it was a fine day”, ba mhaith an rud é “it would be a good thing”. In order to illustrate the contrast between is and tá, examples of both will be given in the exercises.

The negative of is is ní, which prefixes h to vowels; the interrogative is an; the negative interrogative is nach; dependent gur; dependent negative nach. The copula itself disappears after the particles.

The negative of ba is níorbh (níorbh before vowels and aspirated f); the interrogative is ar; the negative interrogative is nár (nárbh before vowels); dependent gur (gurbh before vowels); dependent negative nár (nárbh before vowels).

ní fear é	níorbh fhear é
it is not a man	it was not (would not be) a man,
an fear é	arbh fhear é
is it a man?	was it a man?
nach fear é	nárbh fhear é
is it not a man?	was it not a man?
gur fear é	gurbh fhear é
that it is a man	that it was a man
nach fear é	nárbh fhear é
that it is not a man	that it was not a man

And for identity (i.e. with a definite noun): ní hé an fear é, an é an fear é? níorbh é an fear é, etc.

Finally, in answering a question, the forms for “yes” and “no” are is ea and ní hea for definition, and is é (í) and ní he

(hí) for identity: an fear é sin? is ea ('sea) Is that a man? Yes.
an é sin t'athair? is é ('sé) Is that your father? Yes.

VOCABULARY

ais (ash): lena ais beside him	long (loong) f. ship am (aum) m. time	Meiriceánach (meri-kaànäch) American
amuigh (ǎ-mù) outside	móin (mōn) f. turf
aon one, any	múinteoir (moon-tōr) m. teacher
ard (aard) tall, high	1. ná, that not (takes depend- ent form of irregular verbs)
captaen (kop-tän) m. captain	2. ná nor
cé acu (kyukǎ)? which?	nó (noo) or
cluiche (klihi) m. game	obair (öbir) f. work ; g. oibre
chomh (chō) as ; chomh láidir le as strong as	portach (pär-tòch) m. bog
comhairle (kōrli) f. advice	saibhir (sevir) rich
cruithneacht (krin-hàcht) f. wheat	scoláire (sgǎ-laàri) m. scholar, school-boy dochtúir (dōch-dòr) m. doctor	Séamas (sheeamǎs) James
éachtach (eeachdäch) very good, wonderful	seol (shōl) m. sail ; bád seoil sail-boat
eorna (ōrnǎ) f. barley	Síle (sheeli) Sheila
folláin (fǎ-laàn) healthy	siúd (shood) yonder
Gaeilge (gǎling) f. the Irish language	slán safe
Gearmánach (gyarǎ-maàn- äch) German	teannta (tyountǎ): ina tean- nta with her
go (gu) conj. that, ecl. (takes dependent form of ir- regular verbs)	tigh (tig) m. house ; tigh ósta hotel
go luath (looǎh) soon, early	trua (trooǎ) f. pity iascaire (eeǎsgiri) m. fisher- man

Exercise 20

1. Is leabhar é sin. 2. Is speal í seo. 3. Is bád í siúd. 4. An í sin do chasóg? 5. Ní hí, is í casóg Sheáin í. 6. An é¹ seo do

¹ The pronoun here is in fact neuter, as it does not agree in gender with cuid (f.).

chuid airgid-se? Is é. 7. Leabhar Gaeilge is ea é seo. 8. Is mise an múinteoir agus is sibh-se na scoláirí. 9. An iad san na Meiriceánaigh? Ní hiad. 10. Is iad na Sasanaigh iad. 11. Sin é an captaen. 12. An é an fear mór ard an captaen? 13. Ní hé, ach an fear beag lena ais. 14. Is í seo mo mháthair ag teacht isteach anois, agus sin í Máire ina teannta. 15. Tá Seán láidir ach níl sé chomh láidir le Séamas. 16. An é Séamas an dochtúir? 17. Is é, agus dochtuir maith is ea é. 18. Cá bhfuil Seán? 19. Tá sé amuigh sa ghairdin ag obair. 20. Is éachtach an fear é chun oibre. 21. Do bhí sé breoite, ach tá sé slán folláin¹ anois. 22. Cé acu eorna nó coirce é sin? 23. Cruithneacht is ea í sin agus coirce is ea é seo, ach níl aon eorna sa ghort. 24. Ba mhór an trua ná rabhamair ann i n-am.

Exercise 21

1. It is a very big house. 2. That is a table and this is a chair. 3. Is that a boat or a ship?² 4. It is a sail-boat.³ 5. Those are my shoes. 6. He is a teacher. 7. Is this your turf? 8. No, mine (say “my share”) is still in the bog. 9. Is that wheat or barley?² 10. It is neither wheat nor barley but oats. 11. This is a clean knife. 12. Are those Englishmen? 13. Yes, they are the fishermen who are (atá) in the hotel. 14. These are the Germans. 15. The tall men⁴ are the Americans. 16. The Germans are wonderful men for work. 17. Where is Sheila? 18. She is (within) in the house washing the dishes. 19. She will soon be ready. 20. James is a big boy, but he is not as tall as Sheila. 21. It is a great pity that she is so tall. 22. John is a teacher and James is the doctor. 23. Is John a good teacher? Yes. 24. Is not that tall man yonder the captain of the boat? 25. No, the captain is the dark little man beside him. 26. Is this a good game? No.

¹ Note that agus is not used between two adjectives.

² Cé acu “which (of them)” usually takes the place of an in these questions.

³ bád though m. takes a fem. pronoun.

⁴ See p. 58.

LESSON IX

Future, Imperfect, and Conditional Tenses.
The Adjective. Sitting, standing, etc.

The Irish future tense translates the “shall” and “will” forms of English verbs, and the imperfect is a habitual: dúnfad “I shall shut”, do dhúnainn “I used to shut”. If you want to say in Irish “I was shutting”, you have to use the verb “to be”, just as in English: do bhíos ag dúnadh.

These paradigms should be learned:

		Future	Imperfect	Conditional
		dúnaim “I shut”
Sg.	1	dúnfad	do dhúnainn	do dhúnfainn
	2	dúnfair	do dhúnthá	do dhúnfá
	3	dúnfaidh sé	do dhúnadh sé	do dhúnfadh sé
Pl.	1	dúnfaimíd	do dhúnaimís	do dhúnfaimís
	2	dúnfaidh sibh	do dhúnadh sibh	do dhúnfadh sibh
	3	dúnfaid (siad)	do dhúnaidís	do dhúnfaidís
		buailim “I strike”
		Future	Imperfect	Conditional
Sg.	1	buailfead	do bhuailinn	do bhuailfinn
	2	buailfir	do bhuailtheá	do bhuailfeá
	3	buailfidh sé	do bhuaileadh sé	do bhuailfeadh sé
Pl.	1	buailfimid	do bhuailimís	do bhuailfimis
	2	buailfidh sibh	do bhuaileadh sibh	do bhuailfeadh sibh
	3	buailfid (siad)	do bhuailidís	do bhuailfidís

The f of the future stem is pronounced h except in the 2 sg. conditional and in the passive-impersonal forms (p. 109): doonhá, doonhir, doonhi shē, etc.; but ghoonfaa, doonfár, doonfee.

The verb tá has, beside the imperfect, a special habitual present:¹

	Habitual Present	Imperfect	Conditional
Sg. 1	bím I am (habitually) ²	do bhínn I used to be	do bheinn
2	bír, bíonn tú	do bhítheá	do bheifeá
3	bíonn sé	do bhíodh sé	do bheadh sé
Pl. 1	bímíd	do bhímís	do bheimís
2	bíonn sibh	do bhíodh sibh	do bheadh sibh
3	{ bíd (siad) bíonn siad	do bhídís	do bheidís

The attributive adjective follows the noun it qualifies and agrees with it in number, gender and case: an fear mór “the tall man”, an chloch mhór “the big stone”. Adjectives ending in a broad consonant are declined like the nouns in Lesson I, except that the nom. pl. masc. is the same as the fem., and the dat. pl. is the same as the nom.: an fhir mhóir “of the tall man”, na fir mhóra “the tall men”, na bhfear mór “of the tall men”, dosna fearaibh móra “to the tall men”; na cloiche móire “of the big stone”, ar an gcloich mhóir “on the big stone”, na clocha móra “the big stones”. Remember that when the adjective is predicative it does not agree with the noun (p. 27), and note that nearly all adjectives that end in vowels are indeclinable, that is, they have the same form for all cases sg. and pl.

The adjective is made into an adverb by putting go before it: go maith “well”, go mór “greatly”, go holc “badly”. The following common adjectives always take go after the verb tá: aoibhinn, álainn, breá, deas, dona, iontach, maith, olc. Go is never used with an adjective after the copula: do dheinis go maith é or is maith a dheinis é! “you did it well!” is beag a cheapas, “little I thought”, nach luath a tháinig sé! “isn’t it early he came!”

¹ The future of “to be” was given in Lesson VI.

² Anglo-Irish “I do be”

These last examples illustrate an important use of the copula, namely emphasis. In Irish, if you want to say “he came yesterday” (not to-day), the word for yesterday is brought to the head of the sentence by means of the copula, and is followed by the relative particle a which causes aspiration: is inné a tháinig sé; just as you can say in English “it was yesterday that he came”. But this order is normal in Irish where in English a mere stress would suffice. So also is é a tháinig inné “it is he who came yesterday”. And similarly for any notion to be emphasised: is i mBaile Átha Cliath atá sé anois “he is in Dublin now”; ní thíos atá sé ach thuas ar an gcnoc “it is not below, but up on the hill”, where both is and tá appear together. Note that the relative form of tá is atá without aspiration of the t.

We have seen (p. 44f.) that the verbal noun and some other nouns of action, preceded by the preposition ag, serve to translate an English present participle: tá sé ag briseadh chloch “he is breaking stones”, tá sé ag déanamh tí “he is building a house”, tá sé ag obair “he is working”, tá sé ag caint “he is talking”. The verbal nouns for standing, sitting, lying, sleeping, waking, and dwelling and the word tost “being silent” (which is not a verbal noun) require a special construction. The preposition i with a possessive adjective is used: tá sé ina sheasamh “he is standing”; táimid inár suí “we are sitting”, “we are up (out of bed)”; táid ina lui ar an urlár “they are lying on the floor”; tá Seán ina chodladh “John is asleep”; táimid inár gcónaí i gCorcaigh “we live in Cork”; bhíobhair in bhur ndúiseacht “you were awake”; bhí sé ina thost “he was silent”.

Cé? who? an té he who, cathain? when? conas? how? and nuair when (rel.) are followed by the relative particle a. After cé and an té the particle is usually omitted in writing, but the aspiration remains, The particle do is not used after relative a unless the verb begins with a vowel: cathain a bhís ann? “when were you there?” cathain a ithis (or a dh'ithis) do dhinnéar? “when did you have dinner?”; cé bheidh ag teacht? “who will be coming?”

VOCABULARY

aibidh (abig) ripe	láidir (laadir) strong
aimsir (aymshir) f. weather	luí (lee) lying
álainn (aaling) beautiful	nuair (nooir) when
anocht (ǎ-nöcht) to-night	olc (ölk) bad báisteach (baashdäch) f. rain	scaoilim (sgeelim) I let loose
beithígh (be-heèg) pl. cattle	seasmh (shasāv) standing
bó f. cow; pl. ba (bo)	séideadh (shēdā) blowing, to blow
breá (braa) fine	slacht (sloch) m. (indecl.) order, tidiness
buicéad (bǎ-kēd) m. pail	sráidbhaile (sraadvali) m. village cáithim (kaahim) I winnow	suí (see) sitting
cathain? (kǎ-hin) when?	súiste (sooshdi) m. flail
cónaí (kô-neè) living, dwelling	tairicthe (tariki) drawn deas (das) pretty, nice	tapaídh (topig) quick
do chonac (chnuk) I saw	teacht (tacht) coming, to come do thánag (haanǎg) I came	tirim (trim) dry
deartháir (dri-haàr) m. brother	Tráigh Lí (traa-leè) Tralee
dul going, to go	tráthnóna (traan-hōnǎ) m. evening; um thráthnóna in the evening
eochair (öchir) f. key	trom (troum) heavy
fadó (fo-dō) long ago	taobh (täv) m. side gach each, every gairdín (gaar-deèn) m. garden gráinne (graangi) m. grain isteach (ish-däch) in (adv.) istoíche (is-deèhi) at night

Exercise 22

A. Do rithimís. Ólfad. Scríobhfaid siad. D'fhanadh sé. Díolfaimíd. D'fhéachadh sibh. Cuirfead amach iad. D'fhagaidís na páistí sa bhaile.

B. 1. Bhí an fear mór ag caint le garsún beag. 2. Cathain a chuirfid siad amach na capaill óga? 3. Tá na leabhair mhóra san ana-throm. 4. Fanfaimíd i gCorcaigh anocht. 5. Do bhíodh Seán ina chónaí i mBaile Átha Cliath, ach ní hann atá sé anois. 6. Díolfad an bhó dhubh amáireach. 7. Tá na clocha troma ar thaobh an bhóthair. 8. Bhí Mícheál ina shuí ar an stól nuair a thánag isteach. 9. Bhí sé ina thost agus do bhíos-sa ag caint. 10. Tá sé ina sheasamh ag an ndoras anois. 11. D'fhágadh sé bainne na bó deirge sa bhuicéad bhán. 12. Do bhídís ann gach maidin agus do ghlanaidís an tigh. 13. Scaoilfid amach na ba um thráthnóna. 14. Buainfid siad an coirce nuair a bheidh sé aibidh. 15. Nuair a bheidh sé tairicthe isteach, buailfid siad é le súistíbh. 16. Cáithfid siad ansan é, agus cuirfid siad an gráinne isteach i málaíbh. 17. Féachann an gairdín go hálainn. 18. Bíonn sé go deas sa tSamhradh. 19. Ní deas a bhí sé nuair a thánag anso, ach ní rabhamair i bhfad ag cur slacht air.

Exercise 23

A. 1. I shall run. 2. They will drink. 3. You used to write. 4. They will stay. 5. They used to sell. 6. He will look. 7. We shall strike them. 8. They will put him out. 9. We used to read those books. 10. They will leave the money in the box.

B. 1. My father will sell the big house. 2. He is not living there now. 3. The men used to thresh the oats with flails and put the grain into sacks. 4. The little girl was standing in the field when I saw her. 5. I came in when you were going out. 6. The little boys will let out the dogs. 7. Were you awake when they were coming in? 8. Mary will sell the butter in the village. 9. She used to send it to Tralee long ago. 10. When will Michael weed (say "clean") the garden? 11. My brother was asleep when I came in. 12. I shall leave the key under the big stone. 13. We were standing at the window and they were sitting on the floor. 14. I was talking, but she remained silent. 15. He used to speak quickly but he used to speak well. 16. The poor cattle used to be always out in (say "under") the rain at night. 17. Yesterday (an lá inné) was fine. 18. The wind was blowing strongly, but the weather was not bad.

LESSON X

Tá sé ina fhear. Is and Tá with adjectives.
Numerals from “one” to “ten”.

The same construction as that with the verbal nouns for “standing”, “sitting”, etc. is used with common nouns as predicate of the verb tá: tá sé ina fhear shaibhir “he is a rich man”; tá sí ina bó mhaith “she is a good cow”. Here is fear saibhir é, fear saibhir is ea é; is bó mhaith í, bó mhaith is ea í are also correct. In sentences of mere definition only the copula is may be used: is fíon é (or fíon is ea é) “it is wine (not water)”; ní sionnach é sin ach gadhar “that is not a fox but a dog”. But in sentences of description either form is permissible, and both are equally common.

Where a future of the copula might be expected, the construction with ina is always used: beidh sé ina shagart fé Cháisc “he will be a priest by Easter”. And this construction is also used in the present and past tenses, when the definition depends upon the time:¹ tá sé ina dhochtúir (anois) “he is a doctor (now)”; bhí sé ina innealtóir “he was an engineer”. Thus it is quite correct to say: bhí sé ina dhochtúir agus ba dhochtúir maith é (or dochtúir maith dob ea é), where the second proposition is also descriptive. And likewise, “it was a big house” would be tigh mór dob ea é; but bhí sé ina thigh mhór is also permissible.

Is and tá with adjectives.

The verb tá is used only to describe a temporary or accidental condition or a position. It may therefore be followed by a preposition, or by adjectives meaning “hot, cold, full, empty, hard, soft, ready, broken, closed, tired, sick, sore, sad, alive, dead” and so on.¹ The copula is is used when the predicate is a noun, or an adjective expressing inherent quality, measure or colour: “he is a man”, “the house is big”, “the stone is heavy”, “the paper is white”. And these adjectives are further divided into adjectives of quality and adjectives of measure or colour. The former may be used with tá as adverbs (p. 58), but the latter may not. You may say tá an lá go breá or is breá an lá é “it is a fine day”, “tá an cailín go deas” or is deas an cailín í “she is a pretty girl”, and so for other adjectives of quality. But mór “big”, beag “small”, fada “long”, gearr “short”, trom “heavy”, etc. and the names of colours, are better construed with the copula: is mór an tigh é, is tigh mór é, tigh mór is ea é, is trom an chloch í, is cloch throm í, cloch throm is ea í, and so on. The form tá an chloch trom, tá an tigh mór, tá an páipéar bán would be exceptional.² (Is) páipéar bán é seo “this is white paper” is the normal form.³

¹ Féidir “possible” always takes the copula: is féidir duit dul ann amáireach “you can (shall be able to) go there tomorrow”. B’fhéidir means “perhaps” and is followed by the conjunction go.

However, when either of the prefixes ana- or ró- precedes the adjective, or a qualifying adverb follows, the classification of adjectives is dissolved and all may occur with tá: tá sé sin ana-mhaith “that is very good”; tá an claí ró-ard “the fence is too high”; níl sé fada a dhóthain “it is not long enough”.

THE NUMERALS FROM ONE TO TEN.

a haon	one	a sé	six
a dó	two	a seacht	seven
a tri	three	a hocht	eight
a ceathair	four	a naoi	nine
a cúig	five	a deich	ten

The numerals without a following noun are as above,

¹ Adjectives used with tá include all those ending in -ach, and all past participles.

² tá an páipéar bán might be said of a page still blank.

³ As Professor Tomás Ó Máille has pointed out, there is a close analogy with the Spanish verbs ser and estar, Ériu vi 57.

always preceded by unstressed a which prefixes h to aon and ocht. With a noun a is dropped, dó is changed to dá and ceathair to cheithre. Aon and dá always aspirate a following initial consonant (but see the special rules pp. 16-17), and dá is usually itself aspirated (dhá) if the article does not precede (an dá); trí, cheithre, cúig, sé may be followed by a noun in the singular, which is then aspirated¹, but if the plural is used there is no aspiration; seacht, ocht, naoi, deich cause eclipsis. Note that dhá is followed by the dual (Lesson XII). Aon meaning “one” requires amháin “only” after the noun: aon fhear amháin “one man”. Without this supporting amháin, aon means “any”: an bhfuil aon airgead agat “have you any money?” Ní fhaca aon ní iontach “I did not see anything strange, I saw nothing strange”.

VOCABULARY

abhar (ouär) m. material, the makings of ; abhar tine fuel	Daingean, An (dangän) m. Dingle
ar an dtuaith (erä duä) in the country	dócha probable; is dócha go bhfuil there probably is ar maidin (er-màdin) this morning, in the morning	fé cheann at the end of; fé cheann bliana in a year's time
ar scoil (er-sgöl) at school	giúistís (gyoosh-deèsh) m. district justice atúrnae (o-toörnä) m. solicitor	i gcónaí always bliain (bleeän) f. year ; mile sa bhliain a thousand a year; deich mbliana ten years	liathróid (leeär-höd) f. ball
brothallach (bröhäläch) warm	máistir (maashdir) m. master
cat (kot) m. cat	mar conj. for cathair (kahir) f. city	míle (meeli) m. pl. mílte thousand
claí (klee) m. fence	pingin (pingin) f. penny
contae na Midhe (koontä, nã mee) county Meath	punt (poont) m. pound scilling (shgiling) f. shilling tráigh (traag) f. beach

¹ This is by analogy with dhá which always aspirates and appears to be followed by a singular, as the dual has a separate form only in some classes of feminine nouns, see p. 73.

Exercise 24

A. Aon chapall amháin. Dhá shúil. Tri bliana. Cheithre punt. Cúig leabhair. Sé tithe. Seacht mba. Ocht gcapaill. Naoi mbáid. Deich ngadhair. Seacht scillinge agus deich bpingine.

B. 1. Do bhí sé bocht, ach tá sé ina fhear shaibhir anois. 2. Is dócha go bhfuil na mílte punt aige. 3. Beidh sé ina dhochtúir fé cheann bliana. 4. Bhí sí ina cailín mhaith inniu, ach ní bhíonn sí mar sin i gcónaí. 5. Bhíomair inár suí ar an gcláí nuair a thit an crann. 6. Cram mór ard dob ea é. 7. Beidh sé ina abhar tine againn. 8. Is maith an t-abhar tine é an t-adhmad. 9. Nuair a bhíomair inár bpáistí¹ do bhíomair inár gcónaí ar an dtuaith. 10. Tá Séamas ina atúrnae, agus tá Tomás ina dhochtúir. 11. Dochtúir ana-mhaith is ea é.

Exercise 25

A. 1. One cat and two dogs. 2. Three sticks and four balls. 3. Five pounds, six shillings and sevenpence. 4. Eight dogs, nine horses and ten cows.

B.1. Tom was ten years a solicitor, but he is a justice now. 2. He is a rich man. 3. He probably has two thousand pounds a year. 4. His son will be a farmer, for they have land in County Meath. 5. When they were boys, they lived in the country. 6. Michael was at school in Dingle when he was a little boy. 7. When I was a child, I lived in the city. 8. We used to go to the beach every Sunday. 9. The master is a good teacher. 10. The boys will be good scholars. 11. Yesterday was a very wet day. 12. It was cold this morning, but it is fine and warm now.

¹ Here and in future exercises the nominative pl. may be used for the dative, as is now common in the spoken language.

LESSON XI

Declension of Nouns. The Second Conjugation.

You have learned the declension of the two largest classes of nouns, the first and second declensions, and we have had some nouns ending in vowels (with pl. in -í of the fourth declension. The student should now learn by heart the third, fourth and fifth declensions. There is not very much to be learned, only one form (in -a) and the various weak plurals for the third, and only the two plural endings for the fourth; the fifth declension may be regarded as a collection of irregular nouns, but it has a common pattern. The “weak” plurals are the only trouble, and they will come with practice. In the spoken language there is some fluctuation, so that even if you use -acha where -anna is normal, it is not disastrous. These declensions are given on pages 193-196, with lists of nouns.

The second conjugation of verbs differs from the first only in the future stem, which ends in (e)ó- instead of the -f(e)a- of the first. Two classes of verbs have this future in -ó-: (a) verbs in -im, and (b) syncopated verbs (with stems of more than one syllable, ending in -il, -in, -ir).¹ The first class changes the -í- of the stem (formerly written -ighi-) to -ó-; the second adds -ó- to the stem and syncopates the preceding vowel. Thus (a) imím “I go away” fut. imeod; ceannaím “I buy” fut. ceannód; diúltaím “I refuse” fut. diúltód; (b) osclaim “I open” (stem oscail-), fut. osclód; fógraim “I announce” (stem fógair-), fut. fógród. The verbal noun of class (a) is usually formed by changing the -í to -ú:

¹ For syncope see p. 12. Insim “I tell” (stem innis-) has an irregular future neosad. Verb of class (b) tend to adopt the long í of class (a) so that osclaim, d’ósclaíos, seachnaím, do sheachnaíos are the normal forms in Munster of osclaim “I open”, seachnaim “I avoid”.

diúltú. The verbal noun of class (b) is formed by adding -t: oscailt, fógairt. The verbal noun of imím is imeacht, and of ceannaím ceannach (see further p. 114).

Only the future and conditional need now be learned. The full paradigm is given in the Appendix, p. 199.

(a) imím "I go away"
	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	imeod	d'imeoinn
2	imeoir	d'imeofá
3	Imeoidh sé	d'imeodh sé
Pl. 1	imeoimid	d'imeoimis
2	imeoidh sibh	d'imeodh sibh
3	imeoid	d'imeoidís

(b) osclaim "I open"
	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	osclód	d'osclóinn
2	osclóir	d'osclófá
3	osclóidh sé	d'osclódh sé
Pl. 1	osclóimid	d'osclóimis
2	osclóidh sibh	d'osclódh sibh
3	osclóid	d'osclóidís

Note that all these forms have the stress on the second syllable.

The possessives of the 1st and 2nd sg., mo and do, are joined to the prepositions do "to", i "in, into", le "with" and ó "from", and drop the -o: dom (asp.) "to my"; *dod*¹ (asp.) "to your"; im (asp.) "in my", *id*² (asp.) "in your (sg.)"; lem (asp.) "with my", and so on.

VOCABULARY

abair (obir) say! sing!
ach (och) but, except

amhrán (ovă-raàn) m. song aon (än) any

¹ Or dot, see p. 49.

² Or it, see p. 49.

aonach (änäch) m. fair
 bailím (ba-leèm) I collect cártaí (kaar-tee) cards ceannaím (kya-neèm) I buy ceoltóir (kyōl-hōr) m.
musician críochnaím (kreech-neèm) I finish
 deatach (di-tòch) m. smoke
 dó (dö) to him
 duine (dini) m. person; pl.
 daoine (deeni)
 éirim (ay-reèm) I rise; éirim
 as I cease from, give up fiafraím (feeär-heèm) de I enquire of, ask gan mhoill (gon-vweèl) with- out delay, soon go moch (gã-mùch) early gortaím (gör-teèm) I hurt
 iascaireacht (eeäsgirächt) f.
fishing

im (eem) m. butter
 imím (i-meèm) I go away;
 imionn sé leis, he goes off,
sets out
 imrím (imi-reèm) I play
 insint (eenshint) telling, to tell iompaím (oom-peèm) I turn margadh (morägä) m. market
 oíche (eehi) f. night; pl.
 oícheanta osclaim (ösgälim) I open;
 d'oscail sé he opened sara (sorä) conj. before scéalta (shgealhă) stories seachtain (shachdin) f. week
 siúl (shool) walking, to walk
 tairgim (tarigim). I offer;
 fut. tairiceod (irreg.)
 toснаím (tos-neèm) I begin uair (ooir) f. hour, a time;
 uair sa tseachtain, once a week; uaireanta sometimes

Exercise 26

A. Tosnóid. Do dhiúltóinn. Neosaimíd. Do cheannóidís. Criochnóir. Do thosnaíodar.¹ Éirímíd. Do dhiúltódh sé. D'iompaíodar. Do cheannaigh² sé.

B. 1. Críochnód an obair amáireach. 2. D'fhiafraigh² sí dá hathair cad a bhí ar siúl. 3. Níor éirigh² Tomás fós ach éireoidh sé gan mhoill. 4. Imíd leo abhaile tar éis na scoile. 5. Ceannaíonn³ mo mháthair an t-im uair sa tseachtain.

¹ In the new spelling -odar after í. The old spelling is do thosnaigh-eadar.

² Verbs in -ím, originally -ighim, retain the final -gh in the 3 sg. past and in the 2 sg. imperative. It is pronounced g except before pronouns.

³ In the new spelling -onn after í. The old spelling is ceannaigheann.

6. Nuair a bhead ag caint le Tadhg tairiceod deich bpuint dó ar an ngamhain. 7. Bainfead an scian san den pháiste nó gortóidh sé é féin. 8. Abair amhrán, a Thomáis, agus ansan imeoimid abhaile. 9. Do thosnaigh na hiascairí ag iascair-eacht go moch ar maidin. 10. Tosnóimid-ne amáireach le cúnamh Dé. 11. Do bhailíomair an t-airgead sarar imigh na daoine. 12. Bíonn aonach sa bhaile mhór uair sa mhi agus margadh uair sa tseachtain. 13. Blianta ó shin do chaitheadh na daoine oícheanta geimhridh ag insint scéalta, ach d'éiríodar¹ as an nós san. 14. Osclód an fhuinneog agus imeoidh an deatach so. 15. D'fhiafraíodar cathain a thosnódh an ceol. 16. Tosnóidh sé nuair a bheimíd ullamh.

Exercise 27

A. 1. We begin. 2. They will finish. 3. He did not refuse. 4. Did you tell? 5. They bought. 6. We would buy. 7. Would they turn? 8. Did they begin? 9. He would not tell. 10. You will hurt.

B. 1. I shall buy the books tomorrow. 2. We shall get up early and finish the work. 3. I shall ask my mother who will be coming. 4. They turned the hay yesterday, and they will turn it again today. 5. The music will begin when the musicians are ready. 6. We shall collect the money before we let (fut.) the people in. 7. He opened the book and (he) began to read. 8. When the nights are (habit.) long people play cards. 9. They will not play (any) cards tonight.

¹ In the new spelling -odar after í. The old spelling is d'éirigheadar.

LESSON XII

Rules for Gender. Abstract Nouns. Nouns of Agency.

Diminutives. The Dual Number.

Prepositions.

In a general way, every noun meaning a male person or animal is masculine, and every noun meaning a female person or animal is feminine. But whereas in English things are generally neuter, there is no neuter gender in Irish. In this respect Irish is like French, and you have to learn the rules. The endings of words have much to do with gender, and we cannot depend on the meaning.

We have had in Lesson I lists of nouns ending in broad consonants, of which the first contains only masculine nouns and the second only feminine. These are distinguished by their inflexion, and if you know that a noun forms the genitive singular by making the broad consonant slender, you can be sure that it is masculine. There are, however, certain endings which are regularly either masculine or feminine, and these must now be learned.

1. ABSTRACT NOUNS. Most abstract nouns are feminine. There are two common ways of forming an abstract noun from an adjective: (a) by adding -e, so that the form is the same as the gen. sg. fem. of the adj.: geal “white”, gile “whiteness”; righin “slow”, righne “slowness”; séimh “gentle”, séimhe “gentleness”; gear “sharp”, géire “sharpness”¹; (b) by adding -acht, which is much the commoner:

In a few instances where there are two forms, only this one may be used for the idiom with dá illustrated on p. 84: e.g. binne, binneas “sweetness”; ciúine, ciúineas “quietness”; cruinne, cruinneas “exactness”; fuaire, fuacht “coldness”.

sásta “satisfied”, sástacht “satisfaction”; milis “sweet”, milseacht; luath “early” luathacht; misniúil “courageous”, misniúlacht “courage” (and so for all adjectives in -úil). Both these endings are feminine, and the second is also freely used to form nouns of action from nouns: coeltóir “musician”, coeltóireacht “making music”; scéalaí “storyteller”, *scéalaíocht*¹ “storytelling”; rógair “rogue”, rógairacht “playing tricks”; meisceoir “drunkard”, meisceoireacht “drunkenness”.

A third suffix forming abstract nouns is -as, and these are masculine: dona “bad”, donas; maith “good”, maitheas “goodness”; olc “bad”, olcas “badness”; righin “slow”, righneas “slowness”; most of these form the genitive in -is, but the genitive of maitheas (somet. f.) is maitheasa.

2. NOUNS OF AGENCY. There are three suffixes, -aire, -óir and -í (formerly written -aighe), all masculine: (a) cócaire “cook”, iascaire “fisherman”, rógair “rogue”; (b) rincoir “dancer”, ceoltóir “musician”, cainteoir “speaker”, Gaeilgeoir “one who speaks Irish”, muilleoir “miller”, feirmeoir “farmer”, meisceoir “drunkard”; (c) ceannaí “buyer”, gréasaí “cobbler”, scéalaí “storyteller”, robálaí “robber”. Even when used of a woman, these nouns are treated as masculine: rincoir breá is ea í; cócaire maith is ea í; rógair mór is ea í; without aspiration of the adjective.

3. DIMINUTIVES. The two masculine suffixes are -án and -ín. There is some contrast between them, for the first is no longer productive, and is sometimes pejorative; the second is still productive and often expresses affection. (a) amadán “fool”; balbhán “a dumb man”; bochtán “a pauper”; ciseán “basket”. Diminutives in -án belong to the first declension (gen. sg. and nom. pl. in -áin); (b) cailín “girl” (masc.); boiscín “a little box”; firín “a little man” (note the change of vowel fear, fir-); crúiscín “a little jug”. Almost any noun may take this diminutive suffix, and words so formed belong to the fourth declension (indecl. in the sg., and nom. pl. in

¹ In the new spelling -ocht after í. The old spelling is sgéalaigheacht.

-î). Some feminine nouns keep their gender even with the suffix: an bheainín chríonna “the little old woman”.

The feminine suffix is -óg. It is not used to make new diminutives. All words ending in -óg belong to the second declension (gen; sg. -óige, and nom. pl. -óga): ciaróg “beetle”; ciotóg “left hand”; fuiseog “lark”; fuinseog “ash tree”; gráinneog “hedgehog”; ordóg “thumb”; putóg “intestine”.

4. Many names of trees and most river-names are feminine. Most names of countries are feminine and take the definite article: an Fhrainc “France” (compare “la France”); an Spáinn “Spain”; an Eilbhéis “Switzerland”; an Iodáil “Italy”; an Ghearmáin “Germany”. Sasana “England” is masculine and does not take the article. Alba “Scotland” and Éire “Ireland” take the article only in the genitive: na hAlban, na hÉireann, but i nAlbain, i nÉirinn.

Exercise 28

Applying these rules, arrange the following nouns in two classes, masculine and feminine:

bó cow	deirge redness
gairbhe roughness	fuinseog ash
amhrán song	fearúlacht manliness
cumhracht fragrance	ceannaí merchant
ciaróg beetle	an Spáinn Spain
cráin sow	boiscín a little box
tarbh	giúis pine
Bóinn Boyne	sicín chicken
dair oak	feirmeoir farmer
gairdín garden	robálaí robber
ordóg thumb	piiseog superstition
dílseacht faithfulness	Sionainn Shannon

THE DUAL NUMBER

Irish is peculiar in having a special form for the dual, that is for pairs of things. It occurs only with the numeral dá

“two”, and is the same as the dative singular. Therefore, it is the same as the nominative singular for masculine nouns, but not always for feminines. It is commonest with the names of things that go in pairs, arms, legs, eyes, ears, shoes, etc.: mo dhá chois “my two legs”; a dhá shúil “his two eyes”; a dhá bhróig “his two shoes”; mo dhá láimh “my two hands”. The numeral dá aspirates, and is itself usually aspirated unless preceded by the article, which has the singular form. “Two” of a number of objects is expressed as dhá cheann (contrast trí cinn “three”)¹: tabhair dom an dá cheann san “give me those two”. If the feminine possessive a “her” is used, the numeral usually remains aspirated, but the following noun is unaspirated: a dhá bróig “her two shoes”. The genitive dual is the same as the genitive plural. A dual noun takes the plural form of the adjective: an dá chloich mhóra “the two big stones”; an dá lachain bhána “the two white ducks”.

An interesting point is that singulatives are formed for these words that go in pairs, by prefixing leath- to the noun. Thus leath-lámh “one hand”, leath-shúil “one eye”, leath-bhróg “one shoe”. But these forms occur only when you want to specify one of the two things: ar leath-láimh “one-armed”; ar leath-ghlúin “kneeling on one knee”; leath-chúpla “one of twins”; leath-taobh, (leataobh) “one side”; leath-laí “one of the shafts (of a cart)”, and so on. The point is that here the meaning is not “half an arm”, “half a shoe”, “half a knee”, although leath- commonly has its true value, as in leath-ghloine “half a glass (of whiskey)”, leath-phunt “half a pound”, leath-mhíle “half a mile”, leath-phingin “halfpenny”. Note the idiom: do chuir sé leath-chluas air féin “he turned his head to listen” (“he gave ear”).

PREPOSITIONS.

We have seen (Lesson III) that simple prepositions take the dative case. The following is a full list of prepositions:

¹ ceann “head” is commonly used in this sense: tá ceann desna leabhair cailte “one of the books is lost”.

ag at	i gcóir (c. gen.) for
ar (asp.) upon	i n-aice (c. gen.) near
ar feadh (c. gen.) during	i ndiaidh (c. gen.) after
as out of	le with ; le hais beside
chun (c. gen.) towards	ó (asp.) from
cois (c. gen.) at	os cionn (c. gen.) over, above ;
de (asp.) from, of	os comhair (c. gen.) in do (asp.) to	front of
fé (asp.) under, about	roimh (asp.) before
gan (asp.) without	tar éis (c. gen.) after
go to (with place-names and some expressions of time)	thar across, over go dtí to (of motion), till	timpeall (c. gen.) around
i (ecl.) in	trí (asp.) through ; tríd an through the
i dtaobh (c. gen.) about	trasna (c. gen.) across
idir (asp.) between	um (asp.) about

The compound prepositions are ar feadh, go dtí, i dtaobh, i n-aice, i ndiaidh, le hais, os cionn, os comhair, tar éis, of which go dtí contains an old verbal form (lit. “till it come”) and takes the nominative case.¹ The others take the genitive. If the word governed by the latter prepositions is a pronoun, it appears in the possessive: ina thaobh, about it; im aice, near me; id dhiaidh, after you; lenár n-ais, beside us; os a gcionn, above them. So also im thimpeall, around me. Note that chun, timpeal and trasna also take the genitive. chun and go dtí serve also as conjunctions: chun gur thánadar, go dtí gur thánadar “until they came”. um is commonly used with the verb buail in the sense “to meet”: do bhuail Seán umam “I met John”; and in expressions of time: um Cháisc “at Easter”; um Nollaig “at Christmas”; um thráthnóna “in the evening”; um an dtaca so “by this time”. But also cuir umat do chasóg “put on your coat”; uime sin “on that account”.

¹ In Kerry go dtí takes the dative, causing eclipsis after the article: go dtí in mbád “to the boat”.

VOCABULARY

amach (ă-mòch) out ; amach	léimim (lēmim) I leap
liom out with me, I hastened out	lem chois along with me
ar fad (er fod) altogether, entirely	loch (löch) m. lake
banc (bounk) m. bank	mórthimpeall c. gen. (mooär-heèmpäl) all around
breac (brak) m. trout	ó chianaibh (ō-cheèäniv) a while ago
casaim (kosim) I turn	oifig an phoist (öfig ä fwisht) f. post-office
cead (kyad) m. permission	rinced ¹ (reengki) m. dance
do ghlaoi ^h ar (ghläg) called	saighdiúir (say-dyoòr) m. soldier do chuas (chuaigh sé) I (he) went (Lesson XIII)	séipéal (shē-pēl) m. chapel
coinín (kā-neèn) m. rabbit	soir (sir) eastwards droichead (dröhäd) m. bridge	seasaím (sha-seèm) I stand
drisiúr (dri-soòr) m. dresser	siúlaím (shoo-leèm) I walk
fúm beneath me	suím (seem) I sit
giorracht (gyă-ròcht) shortness ; ag dul i ngiorracht getting shorter	do tháinig sé suas leis he overtook him
halla (holă) m. hall	do thánadar they came
i leataoibh (la-teèv) to one side	thíos (hees) below
i n-aon chor (i-nächär) at all	ticéad (ti-kēd) m. ticket

Exercise 29

A. 1. Mo dhá chois. 2. A dhá súil. 3. Do dhá láimh. 4. A dhá chluais. 5. Tá an fear bocht san ar leath-shúil, slán mo chomhartha.² 6. D'fhan Seán leath-uair an chloig ar a leath-ghlúin. 7. Do chuir an seanduine leath-chluas air féin. 8. Tá leath-laí briste sa trucail sin. 9. Do ghlaoi^h a mháthair i leataoibh ar Sheán.

¹ 'R' should be a trilled dental fricative, but some speakers use a glottal fricative, so the ghost of a 'g' may appear before the 'r'.

² lit. "safe (be) my sign". This pious expression is used at the mention of any human deformity, and is usually rendered in English "God bless the mark!"

B¹. 1. Tá tithe móra sa bhaile mhór. 2. Tá an banc idir oifig an phoist agus an séipéal. 3. D'imigh na buachaillí síos an tsráid i ndiaidh na gcailíní, agus sheasaíodar ag doras an halla. 4. Tá fuinneoga arda ar an halla agus dhá dhoras mhóra. 5. Bhí an rince ar siúl nuair a thánadar, agus cheannaíodar ticéadaí ó fhear an dorais. 6. Ní raibh sé de chead ag aon duine² dul isteach gan ticéad. 7. Do chonac ag dul abhaile iad ó chianaibh. 8. Do ritheas as an seomra agus amach liom ar an sráid. 9. Shiúlaíos tríd an mbaile mór agus timpeall an locha soir go dtí an droichead. 10. Do bhí mo ghadhar lem chois. 11. Sheasaíos ag an ndroichead agus bhíos ag féachaint ar na breacaibh san uisce thíos fúm. 12. Níor chuas trasna na habhann i n-aon chor. 13. Chasas thar n-ais tar éis tamaill. 14. Nuair a bhíos ag siúl abhaile trasna na bpáirceanna, do léim coinín amach as poll agus do chuaigh an gadhar ina dhiaidh, ach níor tháinig sé suas leis.

Exercise 30

A. 1. His two feet. 2. My two eyes. 3. Her two shoes. 4. The old soldier has (only) one arm. 5. It is better to have one eye than to be altogether blind. 6. That girl is a twin.

B. 1. I hastened out of the house. 2. It was dark outside, for the evenings were getting short. 3. We walked across the fields and over the bridge. 4. There was an old man sitting near the bridge. 5. The dog ran all around the field after the rabbits. 6. Then I walked through the town to the post-office and came home without delay. 7. I met your brother in the street. 8. The girls went to the chapel a while ago (ó chianaibh). 9. Some (cuid) of the money is lost. 10. He took it from the table and put it into a box which was under the dresser.

¹ If you are using the sound recording, you will notice that it does not match sentence 6 precisely.

² Some words are run together, and often, a syllable or two are dropped in the process, so 'aon duine' may be spoken as 'aoine'.

LESSON XIII

Prepositional Pronouns.

Irregular Verbs: “come” and “go”. The Verbal Noun.

You have learned the pronouns in Lesson VII. Where in English a preposition is followed by a pronoun e.g. “on me, from you, to him, her, them” etc., in Irish preposition and pronoun are joined together as one word: “on me” is not ar mé but orm; “from you” is not ó tú but uait; “to him” is dó, “to her” di, and so on. Here are the forms for the six prepositions ag, ar, do, de, le, ó:

	ag “at”	ar “on”	do “to”
Sg.	1 agam (ǎ-gùm)	orm	dom
	2 agat (ǎ-gùt)	ort	duit
	3 aige, aici (i-gè, i-ki)	air, uirthi	dó, ¹ di
Pl.	1 againn (ǎ-gíng)	orainn	dúinn
	2 agaibh (ǎ-giv)	oraibh	daoibh ²
	3 acu (ǎ-kù)	orthu	dóibh
	de “from”	le “with”	ó “from”
Sg.	1 díom	liom	uaim
	2 díot	leat	uait
	3 de, di	leis, léi	uaidh, uaithi
Pl.	1 dínn	linn	uainn
	2 díbh	libh	uaibh
	3 díobh	leo	uathu

We have seen that the verbs tá and is (copula) are irregular, and that they have separate dependent forms. There are ten other irregular verbs, most of which also have dependent forms. The dependent form is used after ní

¹ do short in Munster. ² The d is pronounced as slender.

“not”, ná (negative interrogative or dependent negative “is not?” or “that not”), an (interrogative), go “that”, cá? “where?”, dá “if”, mara “unless” (Lesson XVI), sara “before”, dependent relative (Lesson XXVI), and relative a meaning “all that” (p. 152).

The verbs for “to come” and “to go” are irregular (cf. Eng. “go”: “went”) but have no dependent forms:

Present	Imperfect	Past
tagaim “I come”	do thagainn	do thánag
téim “I go”	do théinn	do chuas ¹
Future	Conditional	Participle	Verbal Noun
tiocfad	do thiocfainn	tagtha	teacht
raghad	do raghainn	dulta	dul

The 2 sg. of do raghainn is do raghfá (rayfaa), but the f is omitted in the other persons.

Only the past tense of these two verbs needs to be given in full. The singular of do thánag is quite irregular, and the 3 sg. of do chuas should be noted.

Sg. 1	do thánag “I came”	do chuas “I went”
2	do thánaís	do chuais
3	do tháinig sé	do chuaigh sé
Pl. 1	do thánamair	do chuamair
2	do { thánabhair	do { chuabhair
	{ tháinig sibh	{ chuaigh sibh
3	do thánadar	do chuadar

Go eclipses the initial of tánag: go dtáinig sé that he came.

The English present participle is rendered into Irish by ag and a verbal noun: tá an bhean ag déanamh creasa “the woman is making a belt” (p. 44). For the question “what is she doing?”, the preposition do takes the place of ag, and in this position it is pronounced (and usually written) a: cad tá sí a dhéanamh? “what is she doing?” So too, an crios a bhí sí a dhéanamh “the belt she was making.” For another construction, normal in West Cork, see p. 110 n. 2.

¹ In Northern Irish there is a dependent form of this paradigm: ní dheachas, ní dheachais, ní dheachaigh sé etc. It may sometimes be heard as ni dheaghas (yayās) etc., in Munster speech.

The verbal noun is commonly used as a sort of infinitive, like the word “come” in English “it is difficult to come” is deacair teacht, “he cannot come” ní féidir leis teacht, “I asked him to come” d’iarras air teacht. If the meaning is transitive, the order is object + do¹ + verbal noun: is deacair an doras do dhúnadh “it is difficult to shut the door”, ní féidir leis an doras do dhúnadh “he cannot shut the door”, d’iarras air an doras do dhúnadh “I asked him, etc.” An doras do dhúnadh is a “bracketed construction”, and may be subject or object of a verb, or be governed by a preposition (p. 115).

The definite article may not be doubled in Irish unless a demonstrative follows: deireadh an scéil “the end of the story” (p. 37). When a definite noun in the genitive depends on another definite noun, the article is omitted before the first noun: leabhar Shéamais “James’s book”; capall m’athar “my father’s horse”; but an leabhar san Shéamais “that book of James’s”; an obair seo na Gaeilge “this Irish language work”. (If the first noun is indefinite you must use either of the prepositions do or le: mac do Sheán “a son of John’s”, leabhar le Séamas “a book of James’s”.)

VOCABULARY

abhar tine fuel
 anam (onām) m. soul, life;
 i ndeireadh an anama exhausted
 bláth (blaah) m. flower
 boladh (bolāhi) m. smell buachaill (booāchil) m. boy buailte (booālhi) threshed
 Cáisc (kaashk) f. Easter;

Domhnach Cásca (on) Easter Sunday
 caoireoil (kee-rōl) f. mutton
 Cill Dara (keel dorā) Kildare claí (klee) m. fence
 cleasai (kla-seè) m. trickster
 cnámh (knaav) m. bone
 cosnaíonn sé it costs
 dath (doh) m. colour

¹ Pronounced a (ǎ), and often so written.

deir (der) says	mairteoil (mar-tyōl) f. beef
deireadh (deri) m. end	mar as, for
drom (droum) m. back ; ar shlait a dhroma on the flat of his back	meas (mas) m. regard, esteem
falla (folā) m. wall	móin (mōn) f. turf, peat
fearr (faar) better	mórán (mooā-raàn) much, many (c. gen.)
feirmeoir (feri-myōr) m. far- mer	muiceoil (mwi-kyōl) f. pork
feoil (fyōl) f. meat	náire (naari) f. shame
feochta (fyōchdā) withered	ó since
foghlaim (foulim) f. learning, to learn	pian (peeān) m. pain
gréasaí (greea-seè) m. cobbler	rás (raas) m. race
iarraim (eeārim) ar I ask , ¹ request of	rothar (rōhār) m. bicycle
i gcóir (c. gen.) for	scéalaíocht (shgeea-leèächt) f. storytelling
i mbliana (i-mleeānā) this year	siúinéir (shoo-nēr) m. joiner, carpenter
i n-airde (ā-naardi) up, above	suipéar (sā-pēr) m. supper
iomad (umād) ; an iomad too much	taitneann liom (tanghyān lum) I like
lá day ; pl. laetheanta (lāhāntā)	tabhair (toor) ipv. give! ; tabhair dhom (tröm) give (to) me!
leabaidh (labig) f. bed	tinneas (tengās) m. pain, soreness
lochta (löchda) m. loft	titim vn. falling, to fall
má if : with the copula más	tóg take!
Magh Chromtha (mā- chroumhā) Macroom	uaigneas (ooāginās) m. loneli- ness
cad tá ort? (kod taä ört) what is wrong with you?	ualach (ooäläch) m. load cad tá uait? (ooet) what do you want? i n-éineacht (le) (i nēnäch) together, along (with) is fearr liom I prefer } is mian leis he wishes } see Lesson XVII níl a fhios agam I do not know

¹ Note that iarraim ar means to request and fiafraím de means to ask a question.

Exercise 31

A. 1. Tóg díom an mála so agus cuir i n-airde ar an lochta é. 2. Tá uaigneas orthu¹ ó imigh Máire uathu. 3. D'fhiafraigh an garda dhínn cad a bhí uainn.² 4. Fanfad leat más maith leat. 5. Do thaispeáin Seán dom an rothar nua atá aige. 6. Do chuamair go Cill Airne inné agus níor thánamair abhaile go dtí maidin inniu. 7. Fiafród de cad tá sé a dhéanamh. 8. Rógair mór is ea Máirtín. 9. Níl ann ach cleasaí³ agus tá an iomad measa aige air féin. 10. Neosad scéal duit mar gheall air. 11. D'iarr sé orainn teacht anso inniu, ach níor fhan sé linn. 12. Do chuaigh sé amach ag iascaireacht go moch ar maidin agus níor tháinig sé thar n-ais fós.

(Third and fourth declensions)

B. 1. Tá na bláthanna san feochta. 2. Cuirfead isteach sa tine iad. 3. An dtaitneann boladh na móna leat? 4. Taitneann, ach is fearr an t-adhmad mar abhar tine. 5. Bhíodar i ndeireadh an anama tar éis an ráis agus chuadar sa leabaidh. 6. Tiocfaidh sí abhaile i ndeireadh na bliana. 7. Do léim sé an clái agus thit sé ar shlait a dhroma. 8. An raibh tinneas air?¹ 9. Ní raibh aon phian mór air, ach bhí náire air. 10. Tabhair dhom rothar an bhuachalla agus raghad go dtí an Daingean. 11. Tá na cnámha ag na gadhair. 12. Bíonn gréasaithe agus táilliúiri go maith chun scéalaíochta.

Exercise 32

A. 1. Diarmaid came in this morning. 2. I asked him what he wanted, but he did not tell me. 3. He went to Macroom after dinner and he will not come back till tomorrow. 4. I do not know what he is doing there. 5. The boys went out fishing, and the rain came on them. 6. When they came home, they took off (them) their (say "the") wet clothes, and went to bed. 7. James was not with them, for he was cutting hay. 8. They will have good hay this year. 9. He will tell you the end of the story when you go to the house. 10. We asked them to go to Dingle with the butter. 11. They were not able to sell it here in the village. 12. It is hard to make money these days.

¹ For this use of ar "on", see p. 83.

² For this use of ó "from" see p. 83.

³ See p. 53 n. 1.

B. 1. We bought a load of turf from the boatman. 2. I like the smell of the turf. 3. Turf is good as fuel. 4. We prefer (the) wood. 5. What does a pound of mutton cost? 6. It is very dear now; it is as dear as beef. 7. That boy is a farmer's son, and he wishes to be a teacher. 8. He is good at learning. 9. The soldiers will go to Kildare on Easter Sunday, and they will come back at the end of the year. 10. The belt she is making has many colours.¹ 11. Is that the carpenter's house over there near the chapel? 12. No, that is the young doctor's house. 13. I was talking to the tailor's son, and he says his father will be staying in Killarney till the end of the week. 14. We shall go to Tom's house for supper, and come back before the fall of night, and Tom will come along with us.

¹ Say "there are many colours on".

LESSON XIV

Uses of the prepositions.

Irregular Verbs “hear” and “get”.

Some uses of prepositions in Irish are quite different from English idiom, and they may well be learned in connection with the prepositional pronouns. The verb tá is used with various prepositions in special senses: tá uaim lit. “is from me” means “I want”, just as tá sé agam means “I have it”. Hunger, thirst, tiredness, anxiety, anger, fear, joy, shame, are said to be “on” a person: tá ocras orm “I am hungry”; an bhfuil tuirse ort? “are you tired?”; bhí eagla orthu “they were afraid”, etc. An action to someone’s disadvantage is said to be done “on” him: dhóigh sé an fraoch orm “he burned my heather”; bhris sé an cláí orm “he broke my fence”, lit. “he broke the fence on me”, as is commonly said in Ireland. Describing someone, you may say níl ann ach tosnóir “there is not in him (anything) but a beginner” = “he is only a beginner”; níl inti ach gearrachaile “she is only a young girl”; níl iontu ach creacháin “they are only small ones (of potatoes)”.¹ Tá aithne agam air means “I know him”, lit. “I have acquaintance on him”; tá eolas agam air “I know it (of places and things)”; tá a fhios agam “I know” (of facts), lit. “its knowledge is at me.”

Ar is used to describe a state, and does not then aspirate the following noun (p.17): ar crochadh “hanging”, ar buile “in a rage”, ar siúl “going on”, “happening”, ar meisce “drunk”, ar bóthar “on the way” (but ar bhóthar Chorcaí “on the road to Cork”), ar lóistin “lodging”.

Chun “towards” with a verbal noun expresses purpose or futurity (p. 115).

¹ Prepositional pronouns with i are in Lesson XV.

De “from” followed by the possessive a (dá) and an abstract noun means “however great, small, good, bad”, etc.: dá mhéid é, níl sé mór a dhóthain “however big it is (= big as it is), it is not big enough”; dá laghad é “small as it is”; dá fheabhas é “good as it is”; dá olcas é “bad as it is”. Notice that the verb is is simply omitted. The phrase may be completed by is ea is and a comparative adjective (p. 120) in such sentences as “the sooner the better”: dá luaithe é is ea is fearr. And the abstract noun may be followed by a relative clause: dá luaithe a thiocfaidh sé is ea is fearr “the sooner he comes the better”.

Fé “under, about” is used in various idioms. Note fágaim fút féin é “I leave it to yourself to decide”; fé cheann “within” in expressions of time: fé cheann uair an chloig “in an hour’s time”; fé cheann seachtaine “in a week”; fé dheireadh “at last”; fé nó thairis “more or less”.

Gan “without” with a verbal noun makes it negative: gan dul “not to go”; gan an leabhar do léamh “not to read the book”.

Idir . . . agus can mean “both . . . and”: idir fhir agus mná “both men and women”. The literal meaning is, of course, also normal: idir an tine agus an doras “between the fire and the door”; idir Chorcaigh agus Baile Átha Cliath.

Le “with” with a verbal noun has the force of Eng. “to” as in “a book to read”, “work to do”: tá litir le scríobh agam “I have a letter to write; tá ba agam le cur go dtí an t-aonach “I have cows to send to the fair”; cad tá le déanamh anois againn? “what are we to do now?”. In expressions of time le means time since when: le seachtain “for the past week”, le huair an chloig “for the past hour”: tá sé ina chónaí anso le bliain “he has been living here for a year.” Le is used for ownership (p. 130); leabhar liom-sa “a book of mine” as distinct from mo leabhar “my book”.

Ó “from”: besides tá sé uaim, an impersonal verb teastaíonn sé is common: teastaíonn sé uaim (or tá sé ag teastáil uaim) “I want it”; do theastaigh sé uaim “I wanted it; do theastaigh uaim é do dhéanamh “I wanted to do it”, where é do dhéanamh is subject of the verb (p. 79). Note also chonac uaim é “I saw him in the distance”.

The verb cloisim “I hear” is irregular only in the past tense: sg. 1. do chuala, 2. do chualais, 3. do chuala sé; pl. 1. do chualamair, 2. do chualabhair, do chuala sibh, 3. do chualadar. Partic.: cloiste. Verbal noun: clos, cloisint.

The verb gheibhim “I get” is irregular, and has distinct absolute and dependent forms except in the past tense:

	Pres.	Imperf.	Past
Absol.	gheibhim	do gheibhinn	do fuaireas
Dep.	faighim	faighinn	fuaireas
	Future	Condit.	Partic.	Verbal Noun
Absol.	gheobhad	do gheobhainn	fachta	fáil
Dep.	faighead	faighinn

After the negative particle ní, the initial f is eclipsed except in the imperfect: ní bhfaighim, ní bhfuaireas, ní bhfaighead, ní bhfaighinn, but ní fhaighinn “I used not to get”.

VOCABULARY

aithne (ahini) f. acquaintance	fada (fodă) long ; sara fada
b' fhéidir (bēdir) go perhaps	before long caitheamh (kohāv) vn. throwing, spending	fágaint (faagint) vn. leaving
ciall (keeāl) f. sense	faid (fad) f. length ; dá fhaid
coróin (krōng) f. five shillings	the longer . . . , however long. . .
Dé hAoine (dē-heèni) on Friday	faill (fayl) f. cliff do mholas dó I advised him	feabhas (fyaus) m. goodness, excellence ; dá fheabhas
drochscéal (dro-shgeèl) m. bad news	however good eolas (ōlās) m. knowledge	féadaim (feeādim) I can fearr (faar) better fios (fis)m. knowledge gáirim (gaarim) I laugh	muintir (mweentir) f. people

gleo (glō) m. noise	naomhóg (nä-vōg) f. coracle
go léir (gǎ-lēr) all	ocras (ökārās) m. hunger iarraim (eeārim) I ask	os comhair (kōr) in front of
imní (imi-neè) m. anxiety	snámh (snaav) vn. swim-
iníon (i-neeān) f. daughter	ming ; de shnámh by swim-
is dócha probably	ming
laghad (leeād) m. smallness ;	traein (trän) f. train
dá laghad the less . . .	triúr (troor) m. three people
mí (mee) m. month	tuirse (tirshi) f. tiredness

Exercise 33

1. Fuaireas litir óm mháthair ar maidin. 2. D'iarr sí orm teacht abhaile fé cheann seachtaine. 3. Raghaid ar an dtraein ó Magh Chromtha Dé hAoine. 4. An bhfuilir chun mise d'fhágaint anso? 5. Nílím. Féadfair-se teacht i n-éineacht liom. 6. Gheobhair-se litir amáireach is dócha. 7. Ar chualáis an scéal i dtaobh an triúir a chuaigh ag iascaireacht inné? 8. D'iompáigh an naomhóg orthu agus thánadar i dtír de shnámh. 9. An bhfuil aithne agat orthu? 10. Tá aithne mhaith again ar dhuine acu agus do mholas dó gan dul amach i n-aon chor. 11. Cad tá ar siúl amuigh ar an mbóthar? 12. Ná cloiseann tú an gleo? Ní chloisim. 13. Tá na garsúin thoir fén bhfaill ag caitheamh cloch isteach sa bhfarráige. 14. Gheobhaid siad ciall le haois!

15. An bhféadfaidh sé bheith anso fé cheann uair an chloig? 16. An bhfuairis aon scéal ó Mháirtín ó imigh sé? 17. Ní bhfuaireas. B'fhéidir go bhfaighinn¹ litir uaidh sara fada. 18. Níor chualamair aon ní mar gheall air ach go bhfuil sé ar lóistín i n-éineacht lena dheartháir. 19. Is maith an scéal é sin, dá laghad é. 20. Dá fhaid a fhanfaidh sé sa Ghaeltacht is ea is fearr a fhoghlaimoidh sé an Ghaeilge². 21. Dá fheabhas í an mhóin, is fearr an gual ná í. 22. Bhíodar go léir ag rince, idir bhuachaillí agus cailíní. 23. Do bhriseadar an fhuinneog orm sarar imíodar. 24. An bhfuil a fhios agat cár chuadar? Níl a fhios².

¹ Note the conditional (not the simple future) after b'fhéidir.

² In the recording you will hear dialect forms of these words.

Exercise 34

1. They are anxious, for they got bad news from their daughter today. 2. She is sick and she cannot come home till the end of the month. 3. Do you know what was wrong with her? No. 4. Perhaps we shall get a letter tomorrow. 5. I have not got any news from my people for a week. 6. The sooner you write to them (chúthu) the better. 7. You will probably get an answer. 8. They have all gone away, both men and women.

9. My father asked me to go to the shop and get him tobacco. 10. I got five shillings from him. 11. I went down to the shop. 12. When I went in, the girl said to me: What do you want? 13. You will not get any tobacco from me for you are only a child (p. 88). 14. Tell (p. 90) your father to come. 15. My father laughed when he heard the story.

16. Who is that man who is standing in front of the fire? 17. I do not know him. 18. He is the school-master. 19. They have not come home yet. 20. They will be tired and hungry after the work. 21. They will sleep well tonight.

LESSON XV

Prepositional Pronouns (contd.). Irregular Verbs “see” and “say”.

Here are the forms for the prepositions as out, i in, chun towards, fé under, roimh before, thar over, past, trí through:

asam	ionam	chúm	fúm
asat	ionat	chút	fút
as,	ann,	chuige,	fé,
f. aisti	f. inti	f. chúithi	f. fúithi
asainn	ionainn	chúinn	fúinn
asaibh	ionaibh	chúibh	fúibh
astu	iontu	chúthu	fúthu

romham	tharam	tríom
romhat	tharat	tríot
roimhe,	thairis,	tríd,
f. roimpi	f. thairsti	f. tríthi
romhainn	tharainn	trínn
romhaibh	tharaibh	tríbh
rompu	tharstu	tríothu

The verb chím “I see” is irregular, and has distinct absolute and dependent forms in all tenses:

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Abs.	chím	do chinn	do chonac
Dep.	feicim	feicinn	faca

	Future	Conditional	Partic.	Verbal Noun
Abs.	chífead	do chífinn	feicthe	feiscint
Dep.	feicfead	feicfinn

The past tense must be learned in full:

Abs. Sg.	1 do chonac	Pl.	1 do chonaiceamair
	2 do chonaicís	2 do	{ chonaiceabhair
	3 do chonaic sé		{ chonaic sibh
Dep. Sg.	1 faca	Pl.	3 chonaiceadar
	2 facaís	1	facamair
	3 faca sé	2	{ facabhair
			{ faca sibh
		3	facadar

The verb deirim “I say” is irregular, and has distinct absolute and dependent forms except in the past tense:

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Abs.	deirim	deirinn	duart
Dep.	abraim	abrainn	duart
	Future	Conditional	Partic.	Verbal Noun
Abs.	déarfad	déarfainn	ráite	rá
Dep.	abród	abróinn

The 3 sg. pres. abs. has two forms deir and deireann, of which the latter serves as a habitual.

Note that the imperfect, past and conditional do not take do, and the initial d is not subject to aspiration: ní deirim, an rud adeirim, ní duart, etc.¹

The past tense must be learned in full:

Sg.	1 duart	Pl.	1 dúramair
	2 dúrais	2	{ dúrabhair
	3 dúirt sé		{ dúirt sibh
		3	dúradar

¹ There is an historical reason for this. The verb is an old compound which begins with unstressed a-. This initial vowel has been lost except in the relative construction, as in the case of tá (atá). It will be seen that the absolute forms commonly serve as dependent in Munster: ní deirim, etc.

The verb deirim (le) “I say (to)” when followed by a verbal noun means “I tell”: deirim leat imeacht “I tell you to go away”; dúirt m’athair liom leabhar do cheannach “my father told me to buy a book” (p. 79).

Note imperative 2 sg. téir, go! tair, come! abair, say! recite!

An, go, ná and ní do not take ro (p. 47) with the past tense of these verbs.

VOCABULARY

áis (aash) f. benefit, use	comhaireamh (kôrăv) vn.
bainim as I get from	counting
bean (ban) f. woman, wife	cupán m. cup
bláthach (blaahăch) f. butter-	fan! stay! ipv.
milk	gabha (gou) m. blacksmith;
braon (brăn) m. a drop. a	g. gabhann
little (of liquid)	gáire (gaari)m. a laugh
cara (koră) m. and f. friend;	gach aon duine (goch ēngi)
g. carad	everyone, each one
caora (keeră) f. sheep; g.	imithe (i-mihi) gone away
caorach (karach)	iníor (eeng-eèr) vn. grazing cathaoir (ko-heèr) f. chair;	leanbh (lanăv) m. child
g. cathaoireach	plaincéad (playng-kēd) m.
ceárta (kyaar-tă) f. forge;	blanket
g. ceártan	teanga (tangă) f. tongue,
cóir (kōr) right, proper	language; g. teangan
comharsa (kôrsă) f. neigh-	tuilleadh (tīli) more; a thuille-
bour; g. comharsan	adh any more

Exercise 35

A. 1. Tháinig sé chúinn. 2. Chuamair chuige. 3. Cuirfead cóta mór ar an bhféar fút. 4. Ar imigh sí uaibh? 5. Bainfid díobh na bróga fliucha nuair a thiocfaid isteach. 6. Fan amach uathu anois! 7. Tá tuirse uirthi tar éis na hoibre. Cad tá inti ach leanbh! 8. Do chonac romham amach ar an mbóthar é. 9. Bhain sé gáire asam. 10. Bainfimíd áis as an adhmaid san i gcóir tine. 11. Do chuaigh sé tharainn ach ní fhaca sé sinn. 12. Cuirfimid braon bainne sa chupán agus cuirfimid uisce tríd. 13. Ní bheidh deoch ann i gcóir gach aon duine. 14. Tá na fir ag sábhail fhéir ó mhaidin agus tá tart agus ocras anois orthu. 15. Tabhair an bhláthach san le n-ól dóibh agus bainfidh sé an tart díobh.

B. Fifth Declension.

1. Sin é talamh na comharsan. 2. Do chuaigh an gabha isteach sa cheártain. 3. Tá cos bhriste sa chathaoir sin; caithfead ceann nua a chur inti. 4. An bhfuil na cathaoirreacha go léir anso? Táid. 5. Ní fhaca mo dheartháracha fós inniu. 6. An bhfacaís i n-aon áit iad? 7. Abair leo gur chuas ag comhaireamh na gcaorach. 8. Déarfad. 9. Is mór an cúnamh comhairle charad. 10. Tá na cairde imithe agus tá tithe na gcomharsan uaigneach. 11. Chím na cnoic mhóra ach ní fheicim aon tithe orthu. 12. Do chinn t'athair go minic nuair a thagadh sé anso. 13. Chífir arís i mbliana é, mar tiocfaidh sé i ndeireadh an mhí. 14. An bhfeicfead do mháthair leis, nó an bhfanfaidh sise sa bhaile? 15. Déarfad léi teacht más féidir léi i n-aon chor é.

Exercise 36

A. 1. I shall go to them. 2. They took off their coats. 3. I shall make you laugh (say "get a laugh out of you"). 4. She went away from them. 5. Have they any work to do? 6. We have had (say "eaten") supper already. 7. She put a blanket under us. 8. What is wrong with you ("on you" pl.)? 9. I was there before her.

B. 1. My friends will go home tomorrow. 2. The blacksmith is in the forge. 3. The sheep are grazing in the field beside the house. 4. We used to go to a neighbour's house every evening. 5. The neighbours will come to our house tomorrow. 6. I shall see Michael in the morning, and he will tell them (it). 7. Have we chairs for everyone? 8. The back of that chair is broken. 9. I do not see the other chairs. 10. Have you seen them anywhere? 11. No. 12. Has your friend's wife come yet? 13. Yes. She is standing outside near the door. 14. Shall I tell her to come in? 15. Do. 16. I used to see her often before she married, when we were learning the language.

LESSON XVI

Conditional Sentences. Subordinate Clauses. Conjunctions.

(For the paradigms, see pages 57 and 58)

There are two words for “if” in Irish, má (asp.) and dá (ecl.). In present and future conditional clauses má is used and takes the present indicative of the verb, with present or future (or an imperative) in the main clause: má thagann sé, beidh fáilte roimhe “if he comes, he will be welcome”; má tá sé agat, tabhair dom é “if you have it, give it to me”; má cheapann tú é sin, níl an ceart agat “if you think that, you are wrong”. In these clauses the habitual form of tá is used when the main verb is in the future: má bhíonn sé go breá amáireach, raghaimíd ag iascaireacht “we shall go fishing tomorrow, if it is fine”.

In simple past conditions má is used with the past indicative, and a past indicative in the main clause: má bhí sé ann ní fhaca-sa é “if he was there, I did not see him”; *má dúirt sé é sin, do bhí an ceart aige*¹ “if he said that, he was right”.

In remote conditions dá is used and takes the conditional (or past subjunctive): *dá bhfeicfinn (bhfeicinn)*² é, do labharfainn leis “if I saw him, I would speak to him”; dá raghadh (dtéadh) sé ann, do chífedh sé iad “if he were to go there, he would see them”; dá mbeidís ann, do gheobhaimís iad “if they were there, we should find (get) them”. Or, with féin (p. 49), dá mbeidís ann féin, ní bhfaighimís iad “even if they were there, we would not find them”.

There is no pluperfect in Irish, and these sentences may also have the force of unfulfilled conditions: “if I had seen him, I should have spoken to him”; “if he had gone there, he would have seen them”. The context alone distinguishes the two meanings. The negative for both má and dá is mará which takes the present or past subjunctive in the north, and usually the future or conditional in the south: mará raghaidh sé ann, ní fheicfidh sé iad “if he does not go there, he will not see them”; mará raghadh sé ann, ní fheicfeadh sé iad “if he did not go there, he would not see them”.

1 cf. Fr. il avait raison, Germ. er hatte recht.

2 Here there is no difference of pronunciation, as the f is silent. The subjunctive mood is given in Lesson XXV.

With the copula má makes present más, past má ba (asp.), and dá makes dá mba (asp.): más fear é “if it is a man”, más fíor é “if it is true”, má b’fhíor é “if it was true”, dá mba mhaith leat é “if you liked”. The negative forms are present marar, maran, past and conditional marar before consonants; and present marab, past and conditional mararbh before vowels: ná téir ann maran maith leat é! “don’t go there unless you like it”; duart leis gan dul ann marar mhaith leis é “I told him not to go there unless he liked it”; marab é atá ann “unless it be he that is there”; mararbh é a bhí ann “unless it was he that was there”.

In conditional sentences a more emphatic form of the “if -clause employs the copula with rud “thing” and a subordinate clause (v. inf.): más rud é go (ná), dá mba rud é go (ná), e.g. más rud é nár fhéad sé teacht “if in fact he was not able to come”; dá mba rud é ná féadfadh sé teacht “if in fact he were not able to come”. Here rud may be omitted: dá mba ná féadfadh sé teacht. Finally, there is a construction with the verb tá and a subordinate clause: mará mbeadh gur fhéad sé teacht “if it were not for the fact that he was able to come.

SUBORDINATE CLAUSES

When a clause is introduced by the conjunction “that”, we call it a subordinate clause, e.g. “he said that he would come”. You have learned already (pp. 47, 78) that the conjunction in Irish is go (ecl.), and the negative (“that not”) is ná: dúirt sé go dtiocfadh sé; dúirt sé ná tiocfadh sé. And the forms of is in these dependent clauses were given in Lesson VIII.

B’fhéidir “perhaps”, and cad ’na thaobh “why” are followed by go (ná): cad ’na thaobh ná cuireann tú umat do chasóg? “Why do you not put on your coat?” B’fhéidir go dtiocfadh sé “perhaps he will come”.

Other common subordinate clauses in English are classified as temporal, final, concessive, causal and consecutive, and we shall see how these are expressed in Irish. The temporal conjunctions are nuair “when”, with rel. a,¹ sara (ecl.) “before” and ó “since”: nuair a bhíonn an cat ar an margadh bíonn na lucht ag rince “when the cat has gone to market the mice dance”; d’imigh sé sara raibh sé d’uain agam labhairt leis “he went away before I had time to speak to him”; ní fhaca é ó phós sé “I have not seen him since he married”.

A final clause is introduced by chun or i dtreo “towards”, which here serve as conjunctions and are followed by go (ná): do chuaigh sé ann d’aon-ghnó chun go bhfeicfí é “he went there on purpose to be seen”; do chuireas an t-airgead i bhfolach i dtreo ná faigheadh aon duine é “I hid the money so that no-one should find it”.

A concessive clause is introduced by cé “although” with go (ná): cé go raibh sé ann, níor labhair sé “he did not speak, although he was present”.

A causal clause is introduced by ó “since”, mar (go) “for”, or toisc (go) “because”: bhí sé ceart aige labhairt, ó bhí sé ann “he ought to have spoken, since he was present”; níor inseas dó é, mar ná faca in-aon chor é “I did not tell it to him, for I did not see him at all”; d’fhanas amuigh toisc ná raibh slí dhom istigh “I stayed outside because there was no room for me within”.

A consecutive clause may be introduced (1) by chomh (. . . go): do bhí an sneachta chomh doimhin nár fhédamair siúl “the snow was so deep that we could not walk”; bhí an mála chomh héadrom gurbh fhéidir é iompar gun dua “the sack was so light that one could carry it without difficulty”. (2) by i dtreo go: do chaith sé a chuid airgid i dtreo go raibh sé gan pioc sa deireadh “he spent his money so that he had nothing in the end”.

¹ For relative clauses see Lesson XXVI.

But the tendency is to avoid the subordinate clause by using a verbal noun: do chonac é agus mé ag imeacht “I saw him when I was going away” (p. 105); roimh imeacht dó “before he went away”; tar éis imeacht dó “after he went away”; chun é a fheiscint “in order to see it” (p. 115); toisc é bheith as baile “because he was not at home”.

The co-ordinating conjunctions require no separate treatment, but it will be convenient to list them here:

ach	but	mar	for
agus	and	mar sin féin	even so idir. . . agus	both. . . and	ná	nor, than chomh	so, as	nó	or

VOCABULARY

am (aum) m. time	féidir (fēdir) possible ; is féidir
amanathar (ã-mònãrhãr) “ the day after tomorrow ”	liom I am able
amú (ã-moò) astray	feitheamh (fihãv) le awaiting, to await
áthas (aahãs) m. joy	fé thráthnóna by evening
cá bhfios dom? (ko vis dum) how do I know?	fómhar (fôr.) m. harvest
caoi (kã) f. opportunity	gearán (gi-raàn) vn. complaining, to complain ceapaim (kyapim) I think	glacaim (glokim) I take
ciall (keeãl) f. sense	mall (maul) slow ciallmhar (keeãlvãr) sensible, wise	misneach (mish-nòch) m. courage do shíleas (heelãs) I thought	náire (naari) f. shame
éigean (ēgãn) f. necessity ; is éigean dom “ I must ”	puinn (pweeng) much, many (only with a negative):
éiríonn leis he succeeds	níl puinn céille aige he has not much sense
éisteacht (ēshdãcht) vn. listening, to listen	sásamh (saasãv) vn. satisfying, to satisfy
fáilte (faalhi) f. welcome ; cuirim fáilte roimh ¹ I welcome	sioc (shuk) m. frost síol (sheel) m. seed tair (tar) come!

¹ The recording has a dialect form of this word.

teip: do theip orm It failed tionóisc (ti-nōshk) f. accident
me, I failed tost (tōst) m. silence

Exercise 37

A. 1. Má chuireann sibh-se an síol, bainfimid-ne an fómhar. 2. Tair go luath, más féidir leat é! 3. Má thugann tú a ndóthain le n-ithe dhóibh, beid sásta. 4. Má dheinid a ndícheall, éireoidh leo, agus mara ndeinid, ní éireoidh. 5. Maran maith leis dul i dteannta na ndaoine eile, féadfaidh sé dul ann ina aonar. 6. Más rud é go bhfaca sé an tionóisc, is aige atá a fhios cad a tharla. 7. Dá bhfaighimís caoi chuige, bheadh an obair déanta i n-am againn. 8. Dá dtuigfeá i gceart é, do ghlacfa a chomhairle. 9. Dá mbeadh an lá inné go breá, do bheimís amuigh sa ghairdin. 10. Má bhíonn an lá amáireach fliuch, fanfaimíd sa bhaile. 11. Dá mba rud é go mbeadh an talamh le diol, do cheannóinn é. 12. Dá mba ná beinn ann, ní fhéadfainn fáilte do chur roimhe¹. 13. Mara mbeadh go rabhas ann go luath, ní fheicfinn i n-aon chor é. 14. Conas a thuigfeadh duine an Ghaeilge mara bhfoghlaimeodh sé í?

B. 1. Is dócha go mbeidh sioc anocht againn. 2. Cad 'na thaobh gur chuaigh Seán go dtí an baile mór? 3. Shíl sé go mb'²fhéidir go mbeadh Caitilín ag teacht abhaile. 4. Do cheapamair ná tiocfadh sí go ceann coicís. 5. Do shíleas-sa go mbeadh sí anso fé thráthnóna. 6. B'fhéidir go dtiocfadh sí fós. 7. Cad 'na thaobh nár fhan sí sa bhaile? 8. Deir a máthair gur deacair í a shásamh. 9. Bhí eagla uirthi go mbeadh uaigneas ar Mháire. 10. Cá bhfios di go mbeidh Máire ann roimpi? 11. Do scríobh sí chúithi agus dúirt go mbeadh sí ag feitheamh léi. 12. Fanfaidh sí go dtí go mbeidh Caitilín ina teannta. 13. Ba chóir go mbeadh áthas ar Chaitiín.

14. Ní rabhas i bhfad aim nuair a tháinig uaigneas orm.
 15. Theip orm an obair a dhéanamh cé gur dheineas mo

¹ The sound recording gives a dialect version of 'roimhe'.

² The copula is here conditional (p. 52), and the ro-form gurbh is not required.

dhícheall. 16. Do chuas go dtí é chun go labharfainn leis. 17. Bhí sé chomh maith aige an obair a chríochnú, ó thosnaigh sé i n-aon chor. 18. Níor chuas ann toisc go raibh gnó sa bhaile agam. 19. Bhí sé chomh dorcha gur cheapamair go raibh an oíche tagtha. 20. Bíonn an fear ciallmhar ina thost nuair ná bíonn pioc le rá aige.

Exercise 38

A. 1. If you come early tomorrow, I shall give you the money. 2. I should have given it to you yesterday, if you had come in time. 3. Come if (it is) possible, and if (it is) not (possible), I shall go to you. 4. If he speaks slowly, perhaps we shall understand him. 5. If they wish to come, they will be welcome, but I shall not ask them to come. 6. Why should they eat meat, if they prefer fish? 7. If we said that, they would be very angry. 8. If in fact they said that, they were wrong. 9. If it were not for the fact that I saw him there, I should not have believed that he was in Dublin. 10. How would they have heard the story, unless someone told it to them?

B. 1. Why is Martin going to Cork? 2. He thinks that the boat will be going south a week from to-day. 3. He says he wants to go (together) with his brother. 4. I know (tá a fhios agam) that he would like to go there, but he must wait till the day after tomorrow. 5. They are afraid that people will believe what (an rud) he says. 6. Tell him (abair leis) that we shall wait till he is ready. 7. Why did you not go to school yesterday? 8. The master says that you were not there. 9. You ought (say "it would be right") to be ashamed!

10. When he saw the men coming, he stood up to welcome them. 11. We gave them a meal before they went away. 12. They did not stay long for they were tired. 13. The night was so dark that we went astray. 14. We did not buy anything because we had no money. 15. Although you have courage, you have not much sense. 16. The children complain when they have nothing to do.

LESSON XVII

“Liking”, “thinking”, “wishing”.

We have seen that tá aithne agam air means “I know him”. Similar constructions are used for English verbs of liking, loving, respecting, interest and desire: tá meas agam air “I respect him”, tá cion agam air “I like him”, tá grá agam di (with prep. do) “I love her”, bhí trua agam dó “I pitied him”, tá suim agam ann (with prep. i) “I am interested in it”, tá dúil agam ann “I have a desire for it”.

Some such abstract nouns take the verb is (copula) and the prep. le: is mian leis “he wishes”; is trua liom é “I think it a pity”; is dóigh liom “I think it probable”, “I think”; and so with adjectives: is maith liom é “I like it”; is mór liom é “I think it too much”; ní beag liom é “I think it enough”; is fada liom é “I think it too long”; is cuma liom “I do not care” (“I think it equal”).

This construction (is . . . le) expresses opinion (“thinking”). The preposition do is used instead of le to state a fact. Note specially ní miste liom “I do not mind”, “I think it no harm”, which occurs only in the negative and interrogative; and ní miste dhom “I may as well” (“it is no harm for me”). So also ní mór dom “I must”; ní foláir dom “I must” (“it is not excess for me”); ní beag dom é, or is leor dom é “it is enough for me”.

So you can say b’fhada liom fanúint leis “I thought it (too) long to wait for him”; ní mór liom duit é “I do not grudge it to you”. Similarly is áil liom “I wish”; sin é dob áil liom do rá “that is what I wanted to say”.

You have had two simple verbs for “to think”, ceapaim and sílim: ceapann Seán (or is dóigh le Seán) means “John thinks”. Note that in West Munster sílim is not used in the present tense.

VOCABULARY

a laghad san (leeăd) so little	feirm (ferim) f. farm
bás (baas) m. death	fírinne (feeringi) f. truth
beagán (byă-gaàn) m. a little	fuair sé bás he died
cathain? (kă-hin) when?	gá (gaa) m. need ; tá gá le
canad (= cé an áit)? where?	tine there is need of a fire
cé acu? (kyukă) which (of them)?	ionadh (oonă) f. wonder ; dob
cíos (kees) m. rent	ionadh leis he wondered cuimhne (keeni) f. memory ;	leor (lyōr) enough
cuirim i gcuimhne (do) I remind	maith: ba mhaith liom I would like
cuma equal	mar gheall ar (youl) about, on account of
dearmhad (da-roòd) m. forgetting, to forget	moill (mweel) f. delay ; moill
eagal (ogăl); is eagal liom I fear	do chur ar to delay
éigin (ēgin) some	saghas (says) m. sort
féar (feear) m. grass, hay	tart (tort) m. thirst
fearr (faar) better ; is fearr liom I prefer	tuillim (tilim) I earn, I deserve
	ubh (öv) m. egg ; pl. uibhe (ee)

Exercise 39

1. Cad ba mhaith leat i gcóir do dhinnéir? 2. An bhfuil dúil agat i n-iasc? 3. Níl; is fearr liom uibhe i n-éineacht leis na prátaí. 4. An bhfuil an t-im ar an mbord? 5. Is eagal liom ná fuil. 6. Dheineas dearmhad ar é¹ a cheannach agus mé sa tsiopa². 7. Is trua liom nár chuireas i gcuimhne dhuit é ach ní fhaca thú sarar imís.

8. Ar mhiste leat an fhuinneog a dhúnadh? 9. Níor mhiste, ach ní féidir liom é. 10. Ní miste dhúinn beagán oibre a dhéanamh. 11. An dóigh leat go mbeidh sé fuar um thráth-nóna? 12. An mbeidh gá le tine againn? 13. Ní bheidh. Is cuma liom-sa mar gheall ar an bhfuacht.

¹ Note that the phrase é a cheannach remains after the preposition; the prepositional pronoun is not used.

² See p. 96.

14. An bhfuil eolas na háite seo go maith agat? 15. Tá go deimhin, ach níl a fhios agam cá bhfuil an t-ospidéal. 16. Féadfaidh mé é a fhiafraí de dhuine éigin. 17. Bhí aithne agam ar dhochtúir a bhí ann, ach fuair sé bás anuraidh. 18. Bhí ana-mheas ag gach aon duine air, agus bhí san tuille go maith aige. 19. Do dheineadh sé a dhícheall don té a bheadh breoite, agus níor mhór le haon duine dhó an t-airgead d'iarradh sé.

Exercise 40

1. I would like to write a letter, but I cannot find a pen. 2. My father bought one for me, but I have lost it. 3. You might as well buy another. 4. One is enough for me. 5. I think it too long to wait until I find (fut.) it again. 6. They wondered that we were so tired. 7. Which do you prefer, tea or milk? 8. I do not care. 9. Any sort of drink will take my thirst away.

10. We shall all die, but we do not know when or where. 11. The doctor likes to do his best for us all. 12. He does not mind waiting for you. 13. We think it a pity to delay him. 14. Would you mind closing the door? 15. No, but I do not think it is open. 16. Does Michael like fish for supper? 17. I do not know. I prefer eggs.

18. Do you know where the station is? 19. No, but I can (fut.) ask (it of) the guard. 20. He knows the town well.

LESSON XVIII

Weak Plurals and Irregular Nouns

The regular plurals in the last three declensions have been studied in connection with Lesson XI (Appendix pp. 193-6). Some plural endings have the advantage that they are distinctive and cannot be confused with any form of the singular, because they are extra syllables. They have the further advantage that they remain in the genitive, -ibh being added for the dative case, insofar as the dative survives. These endings, which are regular for some declensions, tend to spread to others, and are called “weak” endings.

(i) *-tha (-ta), -the (-te)*¹

This ending is regular in the third and fourth declensions. It has spread to nouns of the first and second, namely to some nouns ending in l, n, r:

I seol “sail”, pl. seolta; scéal “story”, scéalta; cuan “bay, harbour”, cuanta; líon “net”, líonta; muileann “mill”, muilte; glór “voice”, glórtha. And note céad “hundred”, céadta.

II coill “wood”, coillte; buíon “group” “troop”, buíonta; pian “pain”, pianta; slinn “slate”, slinntte; spéir “sky”, spéartha; tír “country”, tíortha.

(ii) (e)anna, -anta

The ending -(e)anna is common to all declensions except the first. There is a form -anta which is to be distinguished from it. It occurs notably in words expressing time: bliain

¹ After d, n, t, l, s the th becomes t.

“year” pl. blianta; uair “time”, uaireanta; am “time”, amanta; lá “day”, laetheanta; oíche “night”, oícheanta. Note also aithne “commandment”, aitheanta.

(iii) -acha

This ending is common to the third and fifth declensions, and it tends to spread to nouns of the first and second, and also within the others:

I clár “board”, pl. cláracha; tobar “well”, pl. toibreacha.

II áit “place” pl. áiteanna is normal, but áiteacha is also used; craobh “branch”, pl. craobhacha; préamh “root”, pl. préamhacha. Note ainm “name”, pl. ainmneacha.

(iv) -í

This ending is regular in the third and fourth declensions, and has also spread as a weak ending. In the first declension cogadh “war” and margadh “market” which end phonetically in a short vowel (cogă, marăgă) form the pl. cogaí, margaí. And note leanbh “child”, pl. leanaí (old spelling leanbhaí).

Some nouns of the second declension which end in a slender consonant form this plural: abairt “saying, sentence”, abairtí; óráid “speech”, óráidí; tuairim “opinion”, tuairimi. Also pingin, scilling and seachtain except after numerals.

In the spoken language, plurals in -íocha are often heard, where -acha has been added to -í, so that you have a double plural: crannaíocha “trees”, beside crainn, crainnte. Many nouns have alternative plural forms: áiteanna and áiteacha are both common as plural of áit “place”. In general it may be said that plural forms in Irish are much freer than in English. As pl. of óráid “speech”, óráidí, óráideanna, óráideacha, óráidíocha would all be understood, and none of them would be shocking to a native speaker.

The following nouns are irregular:

Nom.	Gen.	Dual	Pl.	G. Pl.
bean f. woman	mná (dat. mnaoi)	dhá mhnaoi	mná	ban
bó f. cow	bó	dhá bhoin	ba	bó
bráthair m. brother (religious)	bráthar	dhá bhráthair	bráithre	bráthar
caora f. sheep	caorach	dhá chaora	caoirigh	caorach
cara m. and f. friend	carad		cairde	carad
codladh m. sleep	codlata
dia m. god	dé		déithe	déithe
duine m. person	duine		daoine	daoine
gnó m. business, use	gnótha		gnóthaí	gnóthaí
lá m. day	lae	dhá lá	laetheanta	laetheanta
leabaidh f. bed	leapa, leapan	dhá leabaidh	leapacha	leapacha
sliabh m. mountain	sléibhe	dhá shliabh	sléibhte	sléibhte
talamh m. and f. land	tailimh, talún		tailte, talúintí	tailte, talúintí
tigh m. house	tighe (tí)	dhá thigh	tighthe (tithe)	tighthe (tithe)
uibh m. egg	uibh	dhá ubh	uibhe	ubh

The conjunction agus is commonly used to introduce a clause which in English would be introduced by “when” or “as” : “I saw him as I was coming out” (Do) chonac é agus mé ag teacht amach; “I met him as I was on my way home” Do bhuail sé umum agus mé ar mo shlí abhaile. Notice that the verb “to be” is not expressed in the co-ordinate clause. Similarly: bhíodar ina suí i dteannta a chéile agus iad ag caint “they were sitting together talking”, where English has merely the participle in apposition.

The same construction may have other shades of meaning, e.g. fuair sé bás agus é cuíosach óg “he died (while) fairly young”; ná fuil do dhóthain cheana agat agus gan bheith ag lorg tuilleadh? “have you not enough already, without asking for more?” and clearly disjunctive, do labhair sé liom as Béarla agus afios aige ná raibh aon Bhéarla agam “he spoke to me in English though he knew I had no English”.

When the logical object of a verbal noun is a noun, it appears in the genitive case (except in the bracketed construction (see p. 79)): tá sé ag insint scéil “he is telling a story” (p. 44). When this object is a phrase, it is anticipated by a proleptic possessive a preceding the verbal noun: ar mhiste a fhiafraí dhíot cad é an t-aos tú? “Would it be any harm to ask your age?” (lit. “its asking”); is deacair a rá cé acu is fearr “it is hard to say which is best” (lit. “its saying”).

VOCABULARY

aithním (an-heëm) I recognise	crochta (kröchdã) set (of sails), aloft
aníos (ã-neès) up	cruach (krooäch) f. rick
bairille (borili) m. barrel	cuan (kooän) m. harbour ;
buíon (bweeän) f. class	Cuan Dor Glandore Harbour
ceist (kesht) f. question	cúnamh (koonäv) m. help
cóir (kōr) f. provision, favourable wind	cúntóir (koon-tōr) m. assistant
craobh (kräv) f. branch	díol (deel) vn. selling
cró (krō) m. byre

Dún na Séad (doonă sheead) Baltimore	mórthimpeall (moosr- heèmpäl) all around
éirí (ay-reè) m. rising ; le héirí gréine at sunrise	Oileán Cléire (i-laàn klēri) Cape Clear Island
fé cheann (fă-chyoùn) within (of time)	Ó Súilleabháin (ō-soòlăvaan) O'Sullivan
foláir (fālaär): ní foláir one must (lit. it is not too much)	Ó Séaghdha (ō-shē) O'Shea
gabham (goum) I take, I go ; ghaibh sé he went	paróiste (prōshdi) f. parish post (pöst) m. post, position
gaoth (gäh) f. wind	praghas (prays) m. price
grian (greeän) f. sun	préamh (preeav) i. root (pl. préamhacha)
iarthar (eeärhär) m. the west	scadán (sgă-daàn) m. herring iascach (eegsgäch) m. fishing, to fish	scaoilim I let go, I let loose
lá (laa) m. day	seol (shōl) m. sail
leisce (leshgi) f. laziness, unwillingness ; tá leisce air he is loth	sliabh (shleeäv) m. mountain
linn (leeng): le linn during	stoirm (sderim) f. storm
líon (leen) m. net	taobh (täv) m. side ; taobh thall de beyond ; taobh theas south ; taobh istigh within
maircréal (mar-krēl) m. mackerel	tairgim (tarigim) I draw
mó, an mó? how many? (followed by a noun in the singular , p. 125)	treo (trō) m. direction, place ; i dtreo in order, ready tugaim fé ndeara I notice tuairim (tooärim) f. opinion

Exercise 41

(Weak plurals, irreg. nouns and revision of irreg. verbs)

1. Nuair a chuaigh sé amach ar maidin, do dhein sé dearmhad ar an ndoras a dhúnadh. 2. Níor aithníos an máistir nuair a chonac ag an stáisiún é. 3. Ní fhacaís-se i n-aon chor é. 4. Do chuireas ceist chuige agus níor fhéad sé í a fhreagairt. 5. Cad d'fhiafraís de? 6. Do bhí ceisteanna agam le cur chuige mar gheall ar na scoileanna. 7. Deir daoine go bhfuil na buionta ró-mhór, agus nach foláir dúinn tuilleadh múinteoirí a thabhairt isteach chun na hoibre a dhéanamh. 8. An mó scoil atá ann? 9. Tá dhá cheann, ceann i gcóir na mbuachaillí agus ceann i gcóir na gcailíní. 10. Is deacair múinteoirí d'fháil na laetheanta so. 11. Tá cairde agam-sa agus ba mhaith leo bheith ina múinteoirí. 12. Iarr orthu scríobh chúm i n-ainm Dé, mar beidh postanna agam dóibh.

13. Is olc an chomhairle comhairle mhná. 14. Do bhí ba agus caoirigh le díol againn an tseachtain seo ghaibh tharainn, agus bhí leisce ar mo mhnaoi iad a scaoileadh uaithe gan praghas maith d'fháil. 15. Cloiseann na mná an iomad scéalta agus an iomad tuairimí. 16. Tá coillte breátha ar na sléibhte. 17. Do thit cuid desna crainn le linn na stoirme. 18. Tá na préamhacha aníos as an dtalamh agus craobhacha briste ar chrainn mórthimpeall orthu. 19. Chonaiceamair iad agus sinn ag teacht ón mbaile mór. 20. Bíonn báid iascaigh ag teacht isteach i gcuantaibh iarthair Chorcaí le maircréil sa tsamhradh agus le scadaín sa bhfómhar. 21. Bíonn na seolta crochta orthu chun dul amach arís tar éis lae a chaitheamh i gCuan Dor nó i nDún na Séad, agus na líonta i dtreo.

Exercise 42

1. We went out in a fishing boat from Glandore yesterday. 2. There were three sails on her, and we had a fair wind. 3. She was south of Cape Clear Island within two hours. 4. The fishermen put out the nets, and then we ate supper. 5. We all slept until morning, and at sunrise they drew in the nets. 6. We had six barrels of herring to bring home.

7. There are three schools in this parish and six classes in each school. 8. Who are the teachers in the new school? 9. Michael O'Sullivan is the head-master, and he has James O'Shea as assistant. 10. Did you notice the big trees beside the road as you came from Mass? 11. Two of them fell last night and there are branches broken on the others. 12. We shall have firing (abhor tine) for the winter without buying any coal. 13. Everyone has stories about the storm. 14. There are boats without sails in the harbours, 15. We shall get help from the neighbours to bring in the sheep. 16. The cows were in before the wind rose. 17. Where is the cowbyre? 18. It is beyond the turf-rick.

LESSON XIX

Passive and Impersonal

Passive-Impersonal Forms of Regular Verbs

First Conjugation

Present	dúntar	buailtear
Past	do dúnadh ¹	do buaileadh ¹
Imperfect	do dúntaí	do buailtí
Future	dúnfar	buailfear
Conditional	do dúnfaí	do buailfí
Present Subjunctive	dúntar	buailtear
Past Subjunctive	dúntaí	buailtí
Imperative	dúntar	buailtear

Second Conjugation

	(a)	(b)
Present	cruinnítear	osclaítear
Past	do cruinníodh ¹	do hoscladh ¹
Imperfect	do cruinnítí	do hosdaítí
Future	cruinneofar	osclófar
Conditional	do cruinneofaí	do hosclófaí
Present Subjunctive	cruinnítear	osclaítear
Past Subjunctive	cruinnítí	osclaítí
Imperative	cruinnítear	osclaítear

In every tense of the verb there is a passive and impersonal form which has neither person nor number. There is thus only one form for each tense. As the form occurs in both transitive and intransitive verbs, it is best described as passive-impersonal. Buailtear é (í) “he (she) is struck”; buailtear iad “they are struck”; do buailtí é (í, iad) “he (she, they) used to be struck”; buailfear é (í, iad) “. . . will be struck”; do buailfí é (í, iad) “. . . would be struck”; do buaileadh é (í, iad) “. . . was struck¹. But the verb téim “I go” also has these forms: téitear ann gach Domhnach “people go there every Sunday”; do téití go minic ann fadó “long ago people used often to go there”, and so on for any intransitive verb, as occasion may arise. Even the verb tá has impersonal forms: táthar ag déanamh bóthair nua “they are making a new road, “a new road is being made”²; sara mbeifí ag magadh fé “lest people should make fun of him”; ní mar a síltear a bítear “things are not as they seem”. This form corresponds to the English use of “one” (French on, German man) in “one likes”, “one fears”, “one sees”, “one sleeps”, etc.: téitear i dtaití ar gach rud leis an aimsir “one gets accustomed to anything with time.”

¹ The ending -(e)adh is here pronounced -äg in Cork and -äch in Kerry.

Note that the initial consonant of the passive-impersonal is not aspirated after rel. a, nor in the imperf., past and conditional after do (which may be omitted) and that an h- is prefixed to initial vowels. The negative particle before the past tense is níor which behaves like do: dó hóladh ar fad é “it was all drunk”; do hití an iomad “too much used to be eaten”; níor hóladh é “it was not drunk”; ní hití é “it used not to be eaten”; do híosfaí é “it would be eaten”. After ní aspiration is now the common usage: ní bhuailtear, ní bhuailtí, ní bhuailfear, ní bhuailfí; and colloquially it may be heard in the other positions.

Six of the eleven irregular verbs form the preterite passive in -thas:

¹ Note form of pronoun.

² The commoner construction here, however, is tá bóthar nua dá dhéanamh, where bóthar is the subject, and an agent may be expressed with the preposition ag: tá bóthar nua dá dhéanamh acu “they are making a new road” (Lesson XXVII).

	Pret. pass.
	Absolute	Dependent
chím “ I see ”	chonaictheas	facthas
gheibhim “ I get ”	fuarthas
téim “ I go ”	chuathas
tagaim “ I come ”	thánathas
cloisim “ I hear ”	chualathas
táim “ I am ”	bhíothas	rabhthas

With facthas, fuarthas and rabhthas the particles an, go, ná and ní do not take ro (cf. p. 89), and facthas suffers aspiration, fuarthas eclipsis after ní (cf. p. 85).

This preterite passive must be distinguished from the 1 sg. preterite of the active voice, where the ending is -as (not -thas).

VOCABULARY

beithíoch (be-heèch) m. beast ;	such a thing ;	a leithéid the
pl. beithígh (be-heèg)	like of it
cattle	magadh (mogã) fé mocking,
bréag (breeag) f. a lie	to mock, make fun of
Cill Mo Bhí (keelmã-veè)	maraím (mo-reèm) I kill
Kilmovee	mar ba cheart properly
díobháil (dee-vaàl) f. harm	páirc (paark) f. field
dúradh (doorãg) leo they	plúr (ploor) m. flour
were told	riamh (reeãv) ever (in the past) éad (ead) m. jealousy	sáraím (saa-reèm) I contra-
eagla: le heagla go for fear	dict, prove wrong
that, lest	seanfhocal (shanãkãl) m.
Gaeltacht (gãltãcht) f. the	proverb
Irish-speaking country	séipéal (shē-pēl) m. chapel
glacaim (glokim) le I accept	stróinséir (sdrōn-shēr) m.
go brách (gã-braàch), go	stranger
deo (gã-dyō) ever (in the	tábhairne (taarni) m. public-
future)	house
leathar (lahãr) m. leather	teacht (tacht) vn. coming
léann (lēn) m. learning	thíos (hees) below, down
leithéid (li-hēd) f. the like ;	thuas (hooãs) above, up ualach (ooãlach) m. burden

Exercise 43

A. 1. Dúntar an doras gach tráthnóna. 2. Do buailtí iad. 3. Raghfar. 4. Gheofaí an t-airgead. 5. Do briseadh na huibhe. 6. Deintear arán de phlúr. 7. Buailtear an coirce le súiste. 8. Do crúdh na ba. 9. Chonaictheas na daoine. 10. Do scaoilí amach iad.

B. 1. Do scaoileadh amach na ba agus tugadh isteach na capaill as an bpáirc. 2. Cathain a cuirfear na muca go dtí an t-aonach? 3. Téití go Cill Mo Bhí chun an Aifrinn fadó, ach tá séipéal againn ar an mbaile seo anois. 4. Ní fhacthas a leithéid riamh. 5. Dúradh leo dul chun cainte leis an stróinséir. 6. Cad 'na thaobh nár hinseadh dom go rabhais anso? 7. Dá gceilfí an fhírinne, b'fhéidir go neosfaí bréag. 8. D'fhan sé sa bhaile sara mbeifí ag magadh fé. 9. Dúradh leis na páisti gan dul i n-aise na habhann. 10. Do hiarradh orthu teacht abhaile chun a ndinnéir. 11. Tar éis mo dhíchill ní bhítear buíoch díom. 12. Is seanfhocal é: "an té atá thuas óltar deoch air agus an té atá thíos buailtear cos air." 13. Ní féidir an seanfhocal do shárú.

Exercise 44

A. 1. It was sold. 2. They were bought. 3. We would be killed. 4. She was not seen. 5. The money was lost. 6. The books will be found. 7. (People) came. 8. The dogs were let loose.

B. 1. Shoes are made of leather. 2. They used to be made of wood long ago. 3. People sometimes go to the public-house after the fair. 4. Those men were never seen before that. 5. We were told to come here after dinner. 6. When will those cattle be sold? 7. If you do that, people will say that it was through jealousy you did it. 8. Why are people always complaining? 9. If the story had been told properly there would have been no harm in it. 10. The like of it will never be seen again, 11. They say that "learning is no burden to a man". 12. When were you told that? 13. It is a proverb that is often heard in the Gaeltacht.

Exercise 45

Exercise in Irregular Verbs

1. They shall see. 2. You (pl.) saw. 3. I would see. 4. We shall go. 5. They came. 6. Would you (sg.) go? 7. Did he say? 8. We shall come. 9. They would not see. 10. You (sg.) would say. 11. They said. 12. I shall hear. 13. Did you (pl.) hear? 14. I do not see. 15. We get. 16. We got. 17. Do you (sg.) get? 18. I shall get. 19. I shall not get. 20. They said that you would not get it, but I hear that you will.

LESSON XX

Irregular Formation of the Verbal Noun.

Syntax of the Verbal Noun.

We have seen (p. 44) that verbs of the first conjugation normally form the verbal noun by adding -adh (-ă) to the stem (-eadh if the stem ends in a slender consonant); dúnaim “I shut”, vn. dúnadh; millim “I destroy”, vn. milleadh.¹

Verbs of the second conjugation (a) change the í of the stem to -(i)ú or (b) add -t to il, in, ir; (a) diúltaím “I refuse”, vn. diúltú; cruinním “I collect”, vn. cruinniú; (b) cimlím “I rub”, vn. cimilt; seachnaím “I avoid”, vn. seachaint; fógraim “I announce”, vn. fógairt; labhram “I speak”, vn. labhairt; insim “I tell”, vn. insint (irreg.). See p. 67.

There are also irregular formations which must be learned for each verb. (i) Some verbs use the stem as verbal noun: ceanglaim “I bind”, vn. ceangal; cuirim “I put”, vn. cur; fásaim “I grow”, vn. fás; machnaím “I consider”, vn. *machnamh*²; ólaim “I drink”, vn. ól; rithim “I run”, vn. rith; siúlaim “I walk”, vn. siúl; snámhaim “I swim”, vn. snámh.

(ii) Some verbs add -úint to the stem: caillim “I lose”, cailliúint; creidim “I believe”, creidiúint; fanaim “I wait, stay”, fanúint; leanaim “I follow”, leanúint; scaraim “I separate, part from”, scarúint. (These words are stressed on the second syllable, p. 11).

(iii) Vn. in -int: cloisim “I hear” vn. cloisint; fágaim “I

¹ buailim “I strike” has vn. bualadh with broad l.

² Some verbs with stems ending in a broad consonant form the 3 sg. past (and 2 sg. imperative) with a slender final: do cheangail sé, do mhachnaimh sé.

leave” m. fágaint; féachaim “I look”, vn. féachaint; ligim “let”, vn. ligint; tuigim “I understand”, vn. tuiscint (irreg.); chím “I see”, vn. feiscint (irreg.).

(iv) Vn. in -amh: caithim “I spend, am obliged to (do)”, vn. caitheamh; deinim “I do”, vn. déanamh; léim “I read”, vn. léamh; máithim “I forgive”, vn. maitheamh; sásaím “I satisfy”, vn. sásamh; seasaím “I stand”, vn. seasamh; tuillim “I earn”, vn. tuilleamh. Feitheamh “to await” occurs only as a vn.

(v) Vn. in -áil; gheibhim, faighim “I get”, vn. fáil; gabhaim “I take”, vn. gabháil.

Téim “I go”, vn. dul; tagaim “I come”, vn. teacht.

The commonest uses of the verbal noun correspond (a) to the English present participle (p. 44) and (b) to the infinitive (p. 79). These are by now familiar. Other uses are as follows:

(a) Purpose is expressed by the prep. chun “towards” with a verbal noun construction: bhíos chun dul ann “I intended to go there”; chuaigh sé ann chun féir do bhaint “he went there to cut hay”. The noun may be nominative or genitive after chun in this construction (p. 79).

(b) The preposition le “with” is used in the construction: tá litir le scríobh agam “I have a letter to write”; tá bó le díol agam “I have a cow to sell” (p. 84).

(c) The verbal noun sometimes occurs in the genitive case, which generally has the same form as the past participle (p. 41). The commonest use is when the vn. in the genitive depends upon an agent-word in the nom.-acc.: fear déanta bróg “shoemaker” (lit. “man of making of shoes”); lucht díolta an éisc “the people who sell fish”; lucht léite páipéar “people who read newspapers”. However, the colloquial form is rather: fear bróg do dhéanamh, lucht éisc do dhiol, lucht páipéar do léamh.

VOCABULARY

áit: i n-áit éigin eile some- where else	gnó (gnō) m. business
thar n-ais (hor-nàsh) back	ionadh (oonă) f. wonder
ceannaí (ka-neè) m. buyer	lá saoire (laa-seèri) m. holiday
cois (kösh) beside , c. gen.	Peadar (padăr) Peter
ceannach (kyă-nòch) vn.	pioc (pyuk) nothing
buying, to buy	seachaint (shachint) vn.
dearmhadaim (da-roòdim)	avoiding, to avoid
I forget; ná dearmhad (da- roòd) don't forget	siúcra (shookiri) m. and f.
deireadh (deri) m. end	sugar deacair (dyökir) difficult	sroisim (sröshim) I reach,
fágaint (faagint) vn. leaving,	arrive at
to leave	stáisiún (sdaa-shoòn) m. sta- fliuch (fluch) wet	tion
glaoch (gläch) calling, to	tabhairt (toort) vn. bringing,
call; glaoch chun to call	to bring
upon, visit	tagtha (togăhi) come (partic.)

Exercise 46

1. D'iarramair uirthi fanúint linn. 2. Dúrabhair liom gan teacht. 3. Is deacair é sin do chreidiúint. 4. Ba mhian leis an gceannaí an capall do cheannach uaim. 5. Thánadar anso chun airgid do bhailiú. 6. Is mór an trua an lá do¹ bheith² chomh fliuch. 7. Nach mór an ionadh gan iad do bheith² tagtha? 8. B'fhearr dosna páistí an tarbh do sheachaint. 9. Chuadar go Corcaigh chun an lá saoire do chaitheamh ann. 10. Tá an sean-duine ina shuí cois na tine. 11. Iarrfaimíd air scéal d'insint. 12. Tiocfaimíd thar n-ais oíche eile chun deireadh an scéil do chloisint. 13. Beidh mo mháthair ina codladh nuair a shroisfimid an baile. 14. Dhearmhadamair an t-airgead do thabhairt linn.

¹ After a vowel, in speech, but not writing, expect aspiration.

² The verb, 'to be', is often elided in speech.

Exercise 47

1. They will be going to Killarney tomorrow. 2. I asked them to buy me (for me) sugar and flour. 3. We shall be waiting for them at the station. 4. I told them not to call on my brother, for he is away (as baile). 5. When you are (fut.) coming back, do not forget to bring Peter and Sheila with you. 6. The buyer has come (say "is come") to look at the horse. 7. Is it not a pity that my father is not here to meet him (say "before him")? 8. I should not like to sell the horse without his being there. 9. I shall tell the buyer to come some other day. 10. Perhaps he has business to do somewhere else. 11. We asked the old man to tell us a story, but it was very long and we did not wait to hear the end of it (say "its end"). 12. The people of the house were asleep when we reached home.

LESSON XXI

The Adjective. Irregular Verbs: “bear”; “give”; “do”; eat”.

We have seen (p. 58) that an attributive adjective follows the noun and agrees with it in gender, number and case. A predicative adjective is indeclinable (p. 27). There are four classes, or declensions, of adjectives, and they present no difficulty, once the declensions of nouns have been learned:

1. Adjectives ending in a broad consonant are declined like nouns of the first declension in the masculine singular, and like nouns of the second declension in the feminine singular. The nom-acc. and dative plural are formed by adding -a.¹ The gen. pl. is the same as the nom. sg.

Masculine

	Singular	Plural
N-A	fear mór	fir mhóra
G	fir mhóir	fear mór
D	fear mór	fearaibh móra
V	a fhir mhóir	a fheara móra

Feminine

	Singular	Plural
N-A	cloch mhór	clocha móra
G	cloiche móire	cloch mór
D	cloich mhóir	clochaibh móra
V	a chloch mhór	a chlocha móra

2. Adjectives ending in a slender consonant (except those in -úil and cóir “just”, deacair “difficult”, socair “quiet”) are indeclinable in the singular, except for the genitive sg. fem. which is formed by adding -e. The nom-acc. and dat. pl. are the same as the gen. sg. fem. The gen. pl. is the same as the nom. sg.

¹ uasal “noble” makes the pl. in -e with syncope, uaise.

Masculine

	Singular	Plural
N-A	fear maith	fir mhaithe
G	fir mhaith	fear maith
D	fear maith	fearaibh maithe
V	a fhir mhaith	a fheara maithe

Feminine

	Singular	Plural
N-A	cloch mhaith	clocha maithe
G	cloiche maithe	cloch maith
D	cloich mhaith	clochaibh maithe
V	a chloch mhaith	a chlocha maithe

3. Adjectives in -úil and cóir, deacair, socair are indeclinable in the sg. except for the genitive sg. fem. which is formed by adding -a (-úla). The pl. form is the same as the gen. sg. fem. The ending -úil corresponds to the -ly of English “manly”, and is added to nouns to form adjectives: fearúil “manly”, laethúil “daily”, tráthúil “timely”, etc.

fear flaithiúil “a generous man”

Masculine

	Singular	Plural
N-A	fear flaithiúil	fir fhlaithiúla
G	fir fhlaithiúil	fear flaithiúil
D	fear flaithiúil	fearaibh flaithiúla
V	a fhir fhlaithiúil	a fheara flaithiúla

bean fhlaithiúil “a generous woman”

Feminine

	Singular	Plural
N-A	bean fhlaithiúil	mná flaithiúla
G	mná flaithiúla	ban flaithiúil
D	mnaoi fhlaithiúil	mnáibh flaithiúla
V	a bhean fhlaithiúil	a mhná flaithiúla

4. Adjectives ending in a vowel are indeclinable in singular and plural, except breá “fine”, gsf. and pl. breátha and te “hot”, gsf. and pl. teo.

There is no separate dual form of the adjective, and the plural is used: an dá choin mhóra “the two big hounds”.

Where two adjectives are joined by “and” in English, the conjunction is omitted in Irish: tá sé mór láidir “he is big and strong”.

You have learned (p. 30), that the prefix ana- means “very”. English “too”, as in “too good”, “too young” is expressed by the prefix ró- which aspirates: ró-mhaith, ró-óg; ró-fhada “too long”; ró-luath “too early”, “too soon”. The adjectives dea- “good”, droch- “bad”, occur only as prefixes¹: dea-scéal “good news”; droch-chomhairle “bad advice”.

Note the prefixes so- “good” and do- “bad” which are used with a few participles, e.g. so-bhlasta “good to taste”, so-thógtha “easy to rear (of cattle)”; do-líonta “hard to fill”, do-shásta “hard to satisfy”.

Comparison of Adjectives

There are three degrees of comparison as in English “long”, “longer”, “longest”. But the form of the regular comparative and superlative is the same. In the first and second declensions -e is added, so that the form is the same as the gen. sg. f.: glan “clean”, glaine; daingean “firm”, daingne. Adjectives in -úil (third declension), and the words cóir, deacair and socair form the comparative-superlative by adding -a: fearúil, fearúla; cóir, córa; deacair, deacra (with syncope). Most adjectives of the fourth declension are unchanged: cneasta “gentle”, cneasta; dorcha “dark”, dorcha; simplí “simple”, simplí. Fada “long” and gránna “ugly” change the final -a to -e: faide, gráinne.

The difference between comparative and superlative is in the syntax. The comparative may be expressed with either is or tá, and the following phrases should be memorised (ná means “than”):

¹ For sean(a)- “old” see p. 42.

is sine Seán ná Séamas } “John is older than James”.
 tá Seán níos sine ná Séamas }

When tá is used, the particle níos precedes the comparative. This particle contains is, so if the verb “to be” is past or conditional, the particle is often changed to ní ba: bhí Seán ní ba shine ná Séamas.

The superlative may be expressed only with is, and takes a relative clause (see Lesson XXVI): is é Seán an té is sine “John is the eldest” (or “the older”) (lit. “it is John who is oldest”); an fear is sine “the oldest man” (lit. “the man who is oldest”); sin é is fearr leo “that is what they like best”.¹ But is fearr leo é seo ná é siúd “they like this better than that”.

The verb beirim “I bear” is irregular:

Present	Imperfect	Past
beirim	do bheirinn	do rugas
Future	Conditional	Participle	Verbal Noun
béarfad	do bhéarfainn	beirthe	breith

The verb bheirim “I give” is irregular, and has distinct absolute and dependent forms except in the past tense.

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Abs.	bheirim	do bheirinn	do thugas
Dep.	tugaim	tugainn
	Future	Conditional	Participle	Verbal Noun
Abs.	bhéarfad	do bhéarfainn	tugtha	tabhairt
Dep.	tabharfad	tabharfainn

In conversation the dependent forms of this verb are commonly used for absolute.

¹ Only the context decides whether the meaning is comparative or superlative in these phrases: an fear is sine, may be said of the older of two men; sin é is fearr leo may mean “that is what they prefer”. But is sine Seán ná Séamas can only be comparative: “John is older than James”.

The verbs deinim “I do”, “I make” and ithim “I eat” are irregular only in the future and conditional:

Future:	déanfad “I shall do”	íosfad “I shall eat”
Conditional:	do dhéanfainn	d’íosfainn
Participle:	déanta	ite
Verbal Noun:	déanamh	ithe

VOCABULARY

airim (a-reèm) I hear	geal (gyal) bright, light (of colour)
amhras (aurās) m. doubt	gealach (gyă-lòch) f. moon
arbhar (o-roòr) m. corn	glas (glos) grey, green (of grass, etc.)
aréir (ă-rēr) last night	goirt (girt) salty
beagnach (byög-naàch) almost	gorm (göram) blue
binn (beeng) sweet (of music)	gual (gooäl) m. coal
bóithrín (bör-heèn) m. lane	iasacht (eeäsächt) f. loan ; faighim ar iasacht I borrow
buan (booän) lasting, durable	i n-éagmais (i-neèamish) without
cá (kaa) where? cár before a past tense	íseal (eeshäl) low
caol (käl) narrow	leathan (lyahän) wide
casúr (ko-soòr) m. hammer	lom (loum) bare
císte (keeshdä.) m. cake	maol (mäl) bald
citeal (kitäl) m. kettle	oiread (iräd): oiread agus as much as ; an oiread san that much
compordach (koom-pördäch) comfortable	ramhar (râur) fat cosúil (kö-soòl) like	rogha (rou) m. choice
daingean (dangän) firm	rua (rooă) red (of hair, animal fur, etc.)
daor (där) dear (of price)	saor (sär) cheap
dearg (daräg) red	seachtain (shachdın) f. week ; an tseachtain seo chúinn next week
deirfiúr (dră-foòr) f. sister	uaine (ooini) green dubh (dub) black, dark éadrom (eeădrăm) light (of weight) folamh (föläv) empty fuair (fooär) cold gann (gaun) scarce garbh (goräv) rough ; compar. gairbhe (go-reè)

Exercise 48

1. Cár airíodar na hamhráin bhréatha san? 2. Do bhí cailíní óga agus seana-mhná ag obair i dteannta a chéile. 3. Do chonac na cupáin bheaga san a cheannaís inné, agus is deas na cupáin iad gan amhras. 4. Cá bhfuil na cistí milse úd a thugais leat ón siopa? 5. Do chuireas isteach insna boscaí bána san thall iad. 6. Tá dhá chapall dhubha thíos ar an mbóthar agus iad marbh ag an ocras beagnach. 7. Do bhí fir fhlaithiúla riamh sa cheantar so, ach is deacair dóibh bheith flaithiúil i n-éagmais an airgid. 8. Tá na cathaoireacha troma san ró-mhór don tseomra so agamsa.

9. Tá na hamhráin sin ana-bhinn, ach is breátha na sean-amhráin ná iad. 10. Tá Liam níos cosúla lena athair ná Tomás. 11. Tá an clár san ró-leathan, agus is leithne fós an ceann eile. 12. An bhfeiceann tú an fear maol san agus an fear óg rua lena ais? 13. Sin iad m'athair agus mac mo dheirféar. 14. Is glas iad na cnoic i bhfad uainn. 15. Is gile an ghrian ná an ghealach.

16. Tá an bord san mór leathan ach tá an ceann íseal níos saoire ná é. 17. Cé acu is fearr leat díobh? 18. Is é an ceann is daoire an ceann is buaine. 19. Is óige m'athair ná t'athair-se, ach is é Diarmaid an fear is láidre acu go léir. 20. Is troime an gual ná an mhóin. 21. Bhí an oíche aréir ní ba dhorcha ná an oíche anocht. 22. Tá an bóithrín níos caoile agus níos gairbhe ná an bóthar mór. 23. Bhí sé fuar ar maidin ach tá sé níos fuaire fós anois. 24. Is é an casúr is troime an casúr is fearr. 25. Tabhair dhom an stól is ísle agus cuirfidh mé mo dhrom leis an bhfalla.

26. Fuaireas an leabhar san ar iasacht ó dheirfír Thomáis. 27. Bhéarfad duit amáireach é. 28. Do rug an bhó aréir, agus shíleas ná béarfadh sí go ceann seachtaine eile. 29. Ní tabharfar do dhóthain le n-ithe dhuit sa bhaile mhór. 30. Íosfad mo dhóthain, nó oiread agus is féidir liom ar aon chuma. 31. Ní hitear an oiread ann agus a ithimid anso. 32. Bhéarfad a rogha dhóibh, imeacht nó fanúint sa bhaile.

Exercise 49

A. 1. We bear. 2. They bore. 3. You gave. 4. They will not give. 5. He will do. 6. They will eat. 7. They will be eaten. 8. It was brought here. 9. It will not be done.

B. 1. Where did you buy those large cups? 2. I bought the large ones in the village, but I got the small green ones in Cork. 3. The big boys and the strong men were working together reaping the corn. 4. When will the new schools be opened? Next week. 5. We shall have good teachers, and fine schools then. 6. That chair is very comfortable, but the other one is firmer. 7. It is too big; I prefer the red one. 8. Wood is lighter than water. 9. We are older than they. 10. This is the longest road. 11. He is the oldest man in the village. 12. We gave the dryest part of the turf to the oldest people. 13. Wheat is dearer than barley. 14. Is this bag heavier than the other one? 15. They brought these black bags from Cork yesterday. 16. When you have the kettle boiling, we shall eat our supper. 17. Which do you prefer, fresh fish or salt fish? 18. My choice is the salt fish. 19. He will give them the money when they come in. 20. We shall do our best to satisfy him. 21. They borrowed the two small hammers from John, but they have done no work with them yet. 22. They will make the sweet cakes tomorrow and give them to the little children.

LESSON XXII

Irregular Comparison of Adjectives. The Adverb.

The following adjectives have irregular forms in the comparative-superlative:

ard “high”	aoirde	maith “good”	fearr
beag “small”	lú	minic “often”	minicí
breá “fine”	breátha	mór “big”	mó
cruaidh “hard”	crua	olc “bad”	measa
fada “long”	sia (faide)	te “warm”	teo
fuiriste “easy”	usa	tirim “dry”	trioma
gearr “short”	giorra	tréan “strong”	treise

Chomh “as” is followed by the preposition le before a noun (p. 55). Before a verb it is followed by the conjunction agus and the relative particle: tá Máirtín chomh hard le Seán “Martin is as tall as John”; níl na prátaí chomh maith i mbliana agus a bhíodar anuraidh “the potatoes are not as good this year as they were last year”. Ná “than” is followed by the conjunction mar before a verb: tá na prátaí níos fearr i mbliana ná mar a bhíodar anuraidh.

For the use of go to form adverbs see p. 58: go maith “well”, go holc “badly”.¹

In the comparative and superlative go is not used, and the adjective serves as an adverb: labhrann Seán níos fearr ná Séamas “John speaks better than James”; is fearr a labhrann Tomás “Tom speaks better”; Is é Diarmaid is fearr a labhrann “Dermot speaks best”.²

(To be distinguished from mó “bigger, more” is the word mó “many”, which has a peculiar construction, being

¹ Both chomh and go prefix h- to vowels.

² See Lesson XXVI (relatives).

preceded always by the copula is, and followed by a relative clause: is mó oíche a chattheas ann “many a night I spent there”; is mó duine ná féadfadh é a dhéanamh “many a man could not do it”; an mó duine atá ann “how many people are there?” (Note that in Irish the noun is always singular.)

Some simple adverbs of time have already occurred in the vocabularies: anois “now”, ansan “then”, inniu “today”, inné “yesterday”, cathain “when?” anocht “tonight”, aréir “last night”, amáireach “tomorrow”. Adverbs of place: ann “there”, as “away, out”, ansan “there” (demonstr.), anso “here”, ansúd “yonder”, thall “over there”, abhus “over here”, i n-airde “up, above”, cá (ecl.) “where?”

Some adverbs of place have two forms for rest and motion respectively; and others have three forms, when motion towards and from the speaker are distinguished.

Adverbs with two forms¹

Motion	Rest
isteach “in”	istigh (ish-dìg)
amach “out”	amuigh (ã-mú)

Adverbs with three forms

Rest	Motion	Motion towards ¹
thíos “down, below”	síos “down”	aníos “up from below”
thuas “up, above”	suas “up”	anuas “down from above”
thiar “west”	siar “west”	aniar “from the west”
thoir “east”	soir “east”	anoir “from the east”
thuaidh “north”	ó thuaidh “north”	aduidh “from the north”
theas “south”	ó dheas “south”	aneas “from the south”

¹ All of these are stressed on the final syllable.

The following adverbs and adverbial phrases should be memorised. Many of them have already occurred in the Lessons.

anuraidh (ã-nirig) last year
 ar éigin (er-ēgin) hardly ar maidin (er-màdin) in the morning, this morning
 arú amáireach (o-roò maàrch) the day after tomorrow
 arú inné (o-roô né) the day before yesterday beagnach (byög-naàch) almost cad 'na thaobh (konã-häv) why?
 choíche (cheehi) ever (in the future), always fé láthair (fē laàhir) at present geall le (gyoul le) almost go deo- (gã-dyō) for ever go brách (gã-braàch) for ever go deimhin (gã-dàyn) indeed go léir (gã-lēr) entirely, all i gcónaí (i-gōneè) always
 i láthair (i-laàhir) present
 i mbliana (i-mleèänã) this year
 i n-aisce (i-nàshgi) free, for nothing
 i n-aon chor (i-nächär) at all i n-éineacht (le) (i-nēnächt) together (with) istoíche (is-deèhi) at night leis (lesh) also ó shin (ō-hìn) since riamh (reeäv) ever thar n-ais (hor-nàsh) back um thráthnóna (hraan-hōnã) in the evening

Note coicios ó shin “a fortnight ago”; but coicios is an lá inniu “a fortnight ago today” and coicios ón lá inniu “a fortnight from today”. Note also: an baile seo againn-ne “our village”; an gairdín seo againn-ne “our garden”.

VOCABULARY

aer (är)m. air	farraige (forigi) f. sea
ag éiri (ig ay-reè) rising, becoming	fíor-uisce (feerishgi) m. spring-water
álainn (aaling) beautiful; compar. áilíe (aali)	iarann (eeärän) m. iron an Bhóin (än vōing) f. the Boyne	im choinnibh towards me an tSionainn (än tyuning) f. the Shannon	ísleán (eesh-laàn) m. -low ground
ardán (aar-daàn) m. high ground	leisciúil (lesh-gyoòl) lazy
ceacht (kyacht) m. lesson (pl. ceachtanna)	ór (ōr) m. gold
cliste (klishdi) clever	radharc (rayärk) m. view
cúramach (koorämäch) care- ful	sáile (saali) m. sea-water
doimhin (dayng) deep	scríobhaim (shgreem) I write domhan (doun) m. world	Seosamh (shōsāv) Joseph staighre (sdayri) m. stairs, staircase tiománaí (tä-maànee) m. driver úll (ool) m. apple

Exercise 50

From the following groups make up comparisons thus:
an coileach, láidir, an chearc

Is láidre an coileach ná an chearc; tá an coileach níos láidre ná an chearc.

1. Baile Átha Cliath, mór, Corcaigh. 2. An domhan, beag, an ghrian. 3. An Bhóinn, fada, an tSionainn. 4. An t-ór, cruaidh, an t-iarann. 5. An t-aer, trom, an t-uisce. 6. An tarbh, tréan, an fear. 7. An garsún, cliste, an cailín. 8. An loch, doimhin, an fharraige.

Exercise 51

1. An bhfuil na húlla so níos daoire ná na cinn sin? 2. Sin iad na cinn is daoire. 3. Is í Máire an cailín is áille ar an mbaile. 4. Cé acu an garsún is cliste? 5. Is é Peadar an té is cliste acu, ach tá Seosamh beagnach chomh cliste leis. 6. Tá crann is aoirde ná é sin sa ghairdín seo againn-ne. 7. Caithfidh an tiománaí bheith níos cúramaí ar an mbóthar istoíche ná mar a bheadh sé sa lá. 8. Bím-se cúramach i gcónaí. 9. Táim ag imeacht go tapaidh anois, ach tá radharc maith agam ar an mbóthar. 10. Chuamair isteach sa tigh i gcóir an dinnéir agus d'fhanamair istigh leath-uair an chloig. 11. Thánamair amach ansan agus d'fhanamair amuigh go tráthnóna. 12. Raghaidh sí i n-airde an staighre chun na seomraí a ghlanadh, agus beidh sí tamall thuas. 13. Tiocfaidh sí anuas ansan, agus fanfaidh sí thíos. 14. Rith soir go dtí an tobar agus tabhair leat anoir buicéad uisce. 15. Nuair a bhíos ag dul siar an bóthar, do bhí an sagart ag teacht aniar im choinnibh.

Exercise 52

1. Sugar is cheaper now than it was last year. 2. Is Tom taller than Mary? 3. Michael is the tallest of them. 4. John will do the work well, but Michael will do it better. 5. Margaret does her lessons more carefully than her sister. 6. Are you as lazy as your brother? 7. This boy does not look as strong as his friend. 8. James is the strongest of them all. 9. I answered as well as I could. 10. Is that knife sharper than this one? 11. Sea-water is warmer than spring-water. 12. The road eastwards is shorter than the road westwards. 13. The high ground is drier than the low ground. 14. When we were going upstairs, James was coming down.

LESSON XXIII

Ownership. Buying and Selling. Proper Names.

Ownership is expressed by the verb is and the preposition le: is le Seán an leabhar san “that book belongs to John”; an leat-sa an chasóg so? “does this coat belong to you?”; ní liom “no (it does not)”. There is thus a contrast between possession and ownership, the verb tá and the preposition ag being used for possession (p. 41): ba le Peadar an capall a bhí ag Máirtín “the horse that Martin had belonged to Peter.”

To ask “whose is (are)?” you put cé “who” before the prepositional pronoun and the copula is omitted: cé leis an talamh san? “whose is (who owns) that land?”.

The word for “I buy” is ceannaím (vn. ceannach), and you buy from (ó) a person for (ar) a sum of money: (do) cheannaíos an bhó uaidh or daichead punt “I bought the cow from him for forty pounds”; ceannóidh sé an tigh úd ar dhá chéad déag punt “he will buy that house for £1,200”. “To sell” is díol, and you sell to (le) a person: an ndíolfair liom é? “will you sell it to me?” But díol also means “to pay”, and you pay for (as) a thing: ar dhíoladar as an dtalamh fós? “have they paid for the land yet?”; do dhíolfainn leis é dá ndíolfadh sé as “I would sell it to him, if he would pay for it”.

The notion of “owing” is expressed by the verb tá with the preposition ag of the creditor and the preposition ar of the debtor: tá scilling agat orm “I owe you a shilling”; tá scilling agam ort “you owe me a shilling”.

Most Irish surnames begin with Mac “son” or Ó “grandson, descendant”, and the second element is a personal name in the genitive case, rather as in English “Johnson”, “Thomson”, “Williamson”. The Ó prefixes an h to vowels:

Ó hAodha “Hayes, O’Hea”; Ó hAirt “Hart”; Ó hÓgáin “Hogan”. Both prefixes are inflected for gender and in the gen. sg. masc. The feminine of Mac is Ní (indecl., asp.),¹ and the gen. sg. masc. is, of course, Mic which will always be aspirated (p. 13) and causes aspiration of a following consonant. The feminine of Ó is likewise Ní and the gsm. is Uí (asp.).

Séamas Mac Diarmada “James MacDermot”, Bean Shéamais Mhic Dhiarmada “Mrs. James MacDermot”; Siobhán Ní Dhiarmada “Joan MacDermot”; Seán Ó Briain “John O’Brien”; Bean Sheáin Uí Bhriain “Mrs. John O’Brien”; Maighréad Ní Bhriain “Margaret O’Brien”; Pádraig Ó hÓgáin “Patrick Hogan”; Bean Phádraig Uí Ógáin “Mrs. Patrick Hogan”; Caitilín Ní Ógáin “Kathleen Hogan”.

A married woman does not take the surname of her husband. If Mary Kelly marries Peter O’Sullivan, she remains Máire Ní Cheallaigh or may be called bean Pheadair Uí Shúilleabháin, but not Máire Ní Shúilleabháin. Surnames of foreign origin have no prefix: Báróid, Bairéad “Barrett”, Breathnach “Walsh”, Brún “Brown” Cundún “Condon”, Feiritéir “Ferriter”, Paor “Power”, Seoigheach “Joyce”; but some Norman names have the particle de: de Barra “Barry”, de Búrca “Burke”, de Róiste “Roche”.

Breathnach “Walsh” and Caomhánach “Kavanagh” are treated as adjectives: Máire Bhreathnach “Mary Walsh”, Síle Chaomhánach “Julia Kavanagh”. From other surnames adjectivals may be formed: Brianach “an O’Brien”, Ceallach “an O’Kelly”, Róisteach “a Roche”.

When the surname begins with Mac, there is a tendency to form the feminine in this way: Máire Charthach “Mary MacCarthy.” When the surname begins with Ó, Mac may take the place of a Christian name in formal use: Mac Uí Shúilleabháin “Mr. O’Sullivan”. When a family is referred to, muintir “people” is used, or the plural adjective: muintir Laoghair “the O’Learys”, muintir Shúilleabháin “the

¹ Nic (asp.) in northern dialects.

O'Sullivans", na Brianaigh "the O'Briens", na Ceallaigh "the O'Kellys".

Remember that the initial of a proper name in the gen. is aspirated (p. 13): leabhar Sheáin "John's book", tigh Thaidhg "Tim's house", rothar Shíle "Julia's bicycle".

Common Surnames

Ó Braonáin	Brennan
Ó Briain	O'Brien
Ó Broin	Byrne, O'Byrne
Ó Catháin	O'Kane
Ó Ceallacháin	O'Callaghan
Ó Ceallaigh	Kelly, O'Kelly
Ó Cinnéide	Kennedy
Ó Conaill	O'Connell
Ó Conchobhair	O'Connor
Ó Dálaigh	O'Daly
Ó Domhnaill	O'Donnell
Ó Donnchadha	O'Donoghue
Ó Donnabháin	O'Donovan
Ó Dubhghaill	Doyle
Ó Dubhthaigh	O'Duffy, Duffy
Ó Duibhir	O'Dwyer
Ó Fearghail	O'Farrell
Ó Flaithbheartaigh	O'Flaherty
Ó Floinn	O'Flynn
Ó Gallchobhair	O'Gallagher
Ó Grádaigh	O'Grady
Ó hAodha	Hayes, O'Hea
Ó hAodhagáin	O'Hagan, Egan
Ó hEadhra	O'Hara
Ó hÓgáin	Hogan
Ó Laoghaire	O'Leary
Ó Lochlainn	O'Loughlin
Ó Loingsigh	Lynch
Ó Máille	O'Malley

Ó Mathghamhna	O'Mahony
Ó Meachair	O'Meagher, Maher, Meagher
Ó Meadhra .	O'Mara
Ó Murchadha	Murphy
Ó Néill	O'Neill
Ó Raghallaigh	O'Reilly
Ó Ruairc	O'Rourke
Ó Séaghdha	O'Shea
Ó Siothcháin	Sheehan
Ó Súilleabháin	O'Sullivan
Ó Tuathail	O'Toole
Ó Tuama	Twomey, Toomey
Mac Cába	McCabe
Mac Canna	McCann
Mac Carthaigh	McCarthy
Mac Cionnaith	McKenna
Mac Conmara	Macnamara
Mac Cormaic	MacCormick
Mac Craith	McGrath
Mac Diarmada	MacDermot
Mac Domhnaill	MacDonnell
Mac Dubhghaill	MacDowell
Mac Lochlainn	McLoughlin
Mac Mathghamhna	MacMahon
Mac Maoláin	MacMullen
Mac Néill	MacNeill
Mac Suibhne	MacSweeney
Mág Aonghusa	McGuinness, Magennis, Guinness
Mág Uidhir	McGuire, Maguire

VOCABULARY

áfach (aafäch) however

aghaidh (ayg) f. face; ar aghaidh in front of

aimsir (aymshir) f. weather

an mór (än mooär)? how much?

ar chúil (er chool) behind, c. gen.

banc (bounk) m. bank	gnáthach (gnaahäch) custo-
buaille (booäli) f. paddock	mary
bullán (bu-laàn) m. bullock	inneall (ingäl) buailte
Ciarraí (keeä-reè) Kerry	(booälhi) m. threshing-
cíos (kees) m. rent	machine
dá chuid féin of his own	le fáil (le faal) to be got
cúpla (koopälä) m. a pair, a	méid (mēd) m. amount; an
few	méid sin that much
feirm (ferim) f. farm	seol (shōl) m. sail; bád seoil
fiú (fyoo) worth	sailing-boat
	a sé sa chéad six per cent

Exercise 53

1. Is leis na Brianaigh an dá thigh sin thuas ar an gcnoc. 2. An leo an talamh atá ar aghaidh na dtithe? 3. Ní leo; is ar cíos atá sé¹ acu ó fheirmeoir eile. 4. Is le Seán Mac Diarmada an capall a bhí agam inné. 5. Is ag Máirtín Ó Briain atá sé inniu, mar níl aon chapall dá chuid féin aige. 6. Ba ghnáthach leis capall a bheith aige, áfach. 7. Cé leis an bád seoil sin? 8. Is lem dheartháir i, agus níl sí aige ach le bliain. 9. Is dócha go ndíolfaidh sé an bhliain seo chúinn í, má fhaigheann sé duine chun í a cheannach uaidh. 10. An mór an t-airgead a thug sé uirthi? 11. Thug sé deich bpuint fhichead² uirthi agus níorbh fhiú an méid sin í. 12. Ba liomsa í blianta ó shin, ach níl aon bhád agam anois. 13. Ar dhíoladar as an móin fós? 14. Níor dhíoladar, mar tá sí fliuch agus nílid sásta léi. 15. Chonaiceamair Caitlín Ní Dhuibhir agus Bríd Ní Dhiarmada ag dul isteach i dtigh mhuintir Shúilleabháin ó chianaibh. 16. Cá bhfuil inneall buailte Thomáis Uí Dhonnchadha ag obair? 17. Ní fhaca ó mhaidin é. 18. Chonac-sa aréir é ar fheirm Chonchubhair Uí Aodha.

Exercise 54

1. The field in front of the house is ours. but the land behind the house belongs to another farmer. 2. It is not mine; I have rented it (have it upon rent) from him. 3. Whose are the cattle in the big field? 4. I do not know. 5. We have a few bullocks in the paddock, but those other cattle do not belong to us. 6. Has James O'Sullivan paid for the new house yet? 7. Yes, but he has not yet paid for the land. 8. How much money does he owe you? 9. Five hundred pounds. 10. He has not that much (of) money. 11. He will have to borrow it (get it on loan). 12. It is to be got in the bank at (ar) six per cent. 13. Where is Daniel O'Connell's house? 14. It is in County Kerry, westwards from Killamey. 15. They saw John MacCarthy coming out of the Kelly's house this morning.

¹ For the emphatic use of the copula see p. 59.

² See Lesson XXIV.

LESSON XXIV

Numbers, days, months and seasons.

We have already had the numbers from one to ten (Lesson X). Those from eleven to nineteen are formed by adding -déag (not deich) to the simple number, just as -teen is added in English fourteen, sixteen, seventeen. Thus aondéag 11, dódhéag 12, tridéag 13, ceathairdéag 14, cúigdéag 15, sédéag 16, seachtdéag 17, ochtdéag 18, naoidéag 19. These numerals are separable, that is to say that a noun is inserted between the simple number and the second element. If the singular form of the noun is used, it is aspirated (p. 64) (except after seacht, ocht and naoi which eclipse), and the aspiration is carried over to déag as well; trí dhuine dhéag “thirteen people”; cheithre choca dhéag “fourteen cocks (of hay)”; *dhá chapall déag*¹ “twelve horses”; *trí phunt déag*¹ (or trí punt déag) “thirteen pounds”. The word for “twenty” is fiche which is a noun. It is added to the simple numbers either with agus (is) “and” or in the genitive, fichead, or with ar “on” and the dative fichid. Thus “twenty-four miles” is cheithre mhíle fichead or cheithre mhíle is fiche or cheithre mhíle ar fichid. The other “tens” are reckoned by scores:

21 aon is fiche	60 trí fichid
22 dó is fiche	70 deich is trí fichid
23 trí is fiche	80 cheithre fichid
30 deich fichead	90 deich is cheithre fichid
31 aondéag ar fichid	100 céad
32 dódhéag ar fichid	105 céad is a cúig
33 tridéag ar fichid	“105 sheep” cúig chaora
40 daichead	is céad
50 deich is daichead	110 céad is a deich

¹ See p. 17.

200	dhá chéad	900	naoi gcéad
300	trí chéad	1,000	míle
700	seacht gcéad	100,000	céad míle
800	ocht gcéad	1,000,000	milliún

Here are some examples of high numbers:

334 trí chéad is a ceathair déag ar fhichid
 906 naoi gcéad is a sé
 1959 míle naoi gcéad is a naoidéag is daichead

Céad 100 and míle 1,000 are nouns and are indeclinable in counting, but the plurals céadta and mílte are used elsewhere: bhí na céadta agus na mílte ann “there were hundreds and thousands there”.

Fiche, céad and míle take the nom.-acc. sg. of a following noun: fiche duine “twenty people”; céad bean “a hundred women”; míle punt “a thousand pounds”.

There are special words for counting persons up to twelve. For “one person” you say simply duine. For “two”, “three”, “four” etc. there are personal numerals, which are nouns and are followed by the genitive plural: beirt “two people” is feminine (with the article an bheirt, g. na beirte) and aspirates a following noun: beirt fhear “two men”, beirt bhan “two women”.

The other personal numerals (being compounds of fear) are masculine:

triúr	three people	ochtar	eight people
ceathrar	four people	naonúr	nine people
cúigear	five people	deichniúr	ten people
seisear	six people	dáréag	twelve people
mór-sheisear	(seachtar) seven people

Triúr sagart three priests, ceathrar feinneoiri four farmers, cúigear Sasanach five Englishmen, seisear cailíní six girls.

The form for “eleven” agrees with the higher numbers:

aon duine déag “eleven people”, sé dhuine dhéag “sixteen people”.

In counting animals and things the use of cinn, mentioned on p. 73, is common: trí cinn de bhuaibh “three cows”, cúig cinn déag ar fhichid de mhucaibh “thirty-five pigs”, ocht nó naoi gcinn de leabhraibh “eight or nine books”.

Ordinal Numbers

These are the forms corresponding to English “first, second, third”, etc. The Irish for “first” is céad, which aspirates a following noun and is itself aspirated by the article: an chéad fhear “the first man”; “second” is dara: an dara fear. The other ordinals are formed by adding -ú to the simple numeral: triú, ceathrú, cúigiú, séú, etc. For “eleventh” the word is aonú . . . déag; an fichiú ceann “the twentieth (one)”. The higher ordinal numbers should be avoided. We cannot propose a satisfactory form for “the two hundredth” (an dá chéadú?), “the five hundred and sixtieth”, etc., but these forms are clumsy in any language.

Addition and Subtraction

Addition is expressed as follows: a cúig agus a cúig, sin a deich, $5 + 5 = 10$; deich fichead agus fiche, sin leath-chéad, $30 + 20 = 50$.

For subtraction: a cúig óna deich, sin a cúig, $10 - 5 = 5$; a deich óna daichead, sin a deich fichead, $40 - 10 = 30$.

Multiplication and Division.

Multiplication is expressed by putting fé “under” before the multiplier: a dó fé thrí, sin a sé, $2 \times 3 = 6$; a deich fé chúig, sin deich is daichead, $10 \times 5 = 50$.

Division is expressed by putting a roinnt ar (“to divide by”) before the divider: fiche a roinnt ar dhó, sin a deich, $20 \div 2 = 10$.

Days and Months.

The names of the days are preceded by the definite article, except when used adverbially:

an Domhnach (dounăch) m.	an Déardaoin (dēr-deèn) f.
an Luan (looăn) m.	an Aoine (eeni) f.
an Mháirt (vaart) f.	an Satharn (sohărn) m. an Chéadaoin (cheea-deèn) f.

When used adverbially they are preceded by Dé “day” (except Déardaoin), and the masculine forms are inflected in the genitive:

Dé Domhnaigh (dounig)	Déardaoin
Dé Luain	Dé hAoine
Dé Máirt	Dé Sathairn
Dé Céadaoin

Thus “today is Monday” is is é an lá inniu an Luan or simply inniu an Luan. But “he is coming on Monday” is tiocfaidh sé Dé Luain; “he is coming next Monday” tiocfaidh sé Dé Luain seo chúinn. When a defining phrase follows, the form with the article is used: tiocfaidh sé an Luan ina dhiaidh san “he will come on the following Monday”.

The names of months are usually preceded by the article and often by the word mí “month”; for December mí is required:

Eanáir (anaar)	an Meitheamh (mihăv)
Feabhra (fyoură)	Iúil (ool)
or mí na Feabhra	mí na Lúnasa (loonăsă)
an Márta (maartă)	Meán Fhómhair (maan ōr)
an tAibreán (obă-raàn)	Deireadh Fómhair (deri fōr)
an Bhealtaine (vyoulhini)	mí na Samhna (soună)
or mí na Bealtaine	mí na Nollag (nolăg)

May, August and November are named from ancient pagan feasts, and December from the Christian Natalicia, and these names are feminine. The names here given for January, February and July are obsolete, but have now been restored in the schools. The colloquial names are an chéad mhí den bhliain, mí na Féile Bríde, and July respectively.

May 1, August 1, November 1 are Lá Bealtaine, Lá Lúnasa, Lá Samhna respectively. For other dates, the preposition de “of” is used: an tríú lá déag d’Aibreán “April 13”; an chéad lá de mhí nu Nollag “December 1”. Lá Nollag means “Christmas Day”.

The names of the seasons are masculine:

An tEarrach (tǎ-ròch)

Spring

An Samhradh (saurǎ)

Summer

An Fómhar (fōr) Autumn

An Geimhreadh (geerǎ)

Winter

The hours of the day are expressed by the numeral followed by a chlog: a trí a chlog “three o’clock”; leath-uair tar éis a trí “half past three”; ceathrú chun a ceathair “a quarter to four”. The question “what o’clock is it” goes directly into Irish: cad a chlog é? At such a time is expressed by ar “on”: ar a cúig a chlog “at five o’clock”; ar deich neomataí chun a seacht “at ten minutes to seven”.

VOCABULARY

Aibreán (obǎ-raàn) m. April

an mó? how many?

an mór? how much?

barra (borǎ) m. crop

Bealtaine (baulhini) f. May

bliain (bleein) f. year

Céadaoin (keea-deèn) f. Wednesday

cé (kē) m. quay

ceoltóir (kyōl-hōr) m. musician

Déardaoin (dēr-deèn) f.

Thursday

Earrach (ǎ-ròch) m. Spring

Fómhar (fōr) m. Autumn

Lá le Pádraig (laale-paàdrig)

St. Patrick’s Day

Márta (maartǎ) m. March

Meitheamh (mihǎv) m. June

réal (rāl) m. sixpence

réitím (rē-teèm) ar I agree upon

seint (shaynt) vn. playing, to play (music)

saor cloiche (sār klōhi) m. stone-mason

tuistiún (tish-dyoòn) m. fourpence

Exercise 55

1. Cheannaíos na beithígh sin ar thrí punt fhichead¹ an ceann. 2. An mó peann atá sa bhosca san? 3. Tá cúig cinn déag ann. 4. Thugas an tríú cuid den airgead dom athair. 5. An mór a thugais dó? Trí punt déag agus daichead. 6. Tá trí chéad agus cúig laetheanta agus trí fichid sa bhliain. 7. Tá deich lá fichead (or is fiche) san Aibreán agus aon lá déag ar fhichid i mí na Bealtaine. 8. Thánadar Dé Céadaoin, an cúigiú lá déag de Mhárta, agus imeoid siad Déardaoin, an dara lá de Mheitheamh. 9. Cuirtear an síol san Earrach agus baintear an barra sa bhFómhar. 10. Tá cúigear siúinéirí agus triúr saor cloiche ag obair sa tigh sin. 11. An mó ceoltóir a bhí ag seint sa halla anocht? 12. Do chonaiceamair trí dhuine dhéag ann, ach do bhí ceathrar eile nár fhéadamair a fheiscint.

Exercise 56

1. How much did you give the man for that horse? Seventy-nine pounds. 2. How many sixpences are there in a pound? Forty. 3. My aunt will be coming on the twelfth of August. 4. Next Sunday is the first of June. 5. Four sevens are twenty-eight, two shillings and fourpence. 6. Twenty-five and eleven are thirty-six. 7. Friday is the sixth day of the week. 8. The seventeenth of March is St. Patrick's Day. 9. I see two men and three boys coming across the field. 10. There are five priests in the parish. 11. There are only (see p. 153) thirty days in April, June and September. 12. Saturday is the fourth of November. 13. How many fishermen did you see down at the quay tonight? Seven.

¹ For aspiration after the nom. pl. see p. 15

LESSON XXV

Imperative and Subjunctive.

The tenses of the indicative mood are given in Lessons II and IX. There remain to be learned the imperative and subjunctive moods. The imperative expresses a command: "Go away!" "Open the window!" "Let us begin!" "Let them do their best!"

We can now consider the imperative forms of the regular verb and of táim. The second person singular, which is the commonest form, is the bare stem of the verb: dún "shut"; buail "strike"; éist "listen"; *éirigh*¹ "get up"; suigh "sit down", etc. And the second person plural has the ending idh, pronounced -ig. (In Northern Irish this ending has become -igí.)

	Dúnaim "I shut"	Buailim "I strike"	Táim "I am"
Sg.	1 dúnaim	buailim	bím
	2 dún	bud	bí
	3 dúnadh sé	buailleadh sé	bíodh sé
Pl.	1 dúnaimís	buailimís	bímís
	2 dúnaidh	buailidh	bídih
	3 dúnaidís	buailidís	bídís
Passive:	dúntar	buailtear	bítear

You have had some examples of the imperative 2 sg. in earlier lessons: abair "say", tabhair "give", innís "tell", etc. Here are examples of other forms which may now be introduced: cuiridh oraibh bhur mbróga "put on your shoes!"; suigh ar an stól san "sit on that stool!"; bídís anso ar a haon a

¹ Verbs in -ím (new spelling for -ighim) show the -gh of the stem in the 2 sg. imperative and 3 sg. past (d'éirigh), where the finite form is the mere stem. Remember that this final -igh is pronounced ig (p. 10).

chlog “let them be here at one o’clock!” (The English translation can here cause confusion. “Let them come in!” as a command is tagaidís isteach; but if the meaning is “allow them to come in!” the Irish will be lig dóibh teacht isteach). The negative particle used with the imperative is ná: ná bíodh eagla ort! “don’t be afraid!”; ná bac é! “don’t heed him!”

VOCABULARY

brostaigh ort! (brösdig ört) hurry!	lampa (laumpä) m. lamp
coróin (krōng) f. five shillings	luach (looäch) m. value, price; luach scillinge a shilling’s worth
déanach (deeanäch) late	maide rámha (modi-raà) m. oar
fód (fōd) m. sod (of peat)	milleán (mi-laàn) m. blame
fuiscí (fwishgee) m. whiskey	milseán (meesh-laàn) m. a sweet
gloine (glini) f. glass	téir! (tēr) go! go fóill (fōl) yet, for awhile id theannta (hauntă) with you

Exercise 57

1. Tabhair dúinn dhá ghloine fuiscí, más é do thoil é. 2. Cuir umat do chasóg mhór agus téimis abhaile anois. 3. Deineadh sé a rogha rud, ach ná bíodh aon mhilleán aige orm-sa. 4. Ná caillidís an t-airgead. 5. Tugaidh¹ libh na páistí agus ná deinidh aon mhoill ar an mbóthar. 6. Bídh istigh roimh a deich a chlog. 7. Tagaidís abhaile id theannta. 8. Bris na fóid sin agus cuir síos tine. 9. Ná las an lampa go fóill, mar níl sé dorcha fós. 10. Téir soir go dtí an siopa agus ceannaigh luach scillinge de mhilseáin dom.

Exercise 58

1. Send a letter to (use chun) Cormac and tell him to send us money. 2. Go to the post-office and buy five shilling’s worth of stamps. 3. Hurry, and do not be late for (from the) supper! 4. Let us have a game of cards before the strangers come. 5. Put (pl.) out the dogs and shut the stable-doors, for it will soon be dark. 6. Let them do their best, and we shall not blame them. 7. Let them ask William where he left the oars, and we shall all go fishing.

¹ The 2 sg. tabhair is irregular; the other forms are tugadh sé, tugaimís, tugaidh, tugaidís, tugtar.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

The subjunctive of the regular verb and the subjunctive of táim are as follows:

First Conjugation.

dúnaim "I shut"

	Present	Past
Sg. 1	dúnad	dúnainn
2	dúnair	dúnthá
3	dúns sé	dúnadh sé
Pl. 1	dúnaimíd	dúnaimís
2	dúna sibh	dúnadh sibh
3	dúnaid	dúnaidís
Passive:	dúntar	dúntaí

buailim "I strike"

	Present	Past
Sg. 1	buailead	buailinn
2	buailir	buailtheá
3	buaile sé	buaileadh sé
Pl. 1	buailimid	buailimís
2	buaile sibh	buaileadh sibh
3	buailid	buailidís
Passive:	buailtear	buailtí

táim "I am"

Sg. 1	rabhad	beinn
2	rabhair	beitheá
3	raibh sé	beadh sé
Pl. 1	rabhaimíd	beimís
2	rabhabhair	beadh sibh
	(raibh sibh)
3	rabhaid	beidís
Passive:	rabhthar	beifí

Second Conjugation.

imím "I go"

Present	Past
Sg. 1 imíod	imínn
2 imír	imítheá
3 imí sé	imíodh sé
Pl. 1 imímíd	imímís
2 imí sibh	imíodh sibh
3 imíd	imídís
Passive: imítear	imítí

osclaim "I open"

Sg. 1 osclaíod	osclaínn
2 osclaír	osclaítheá
3 osclaí sé	osclaíodh sé
Pl. 1 osclaímíd	osclaímís
2 osclaí sibh	osclaíodh sibh
3 osclaíd	osclaídís
Passive: osclaítear	osclaítí

A wish is expressed by the subjunctive mood, preceded by the particle go (ecl.) for the affirmative, or by nár (asp.) for the negative: go dtéir slán abhaile! "(May you go) safe home!" Go gcuire Dia an t-ádh ort! "God prosper you!" Go méadaí Dia do stór! "God increase your wealth!" (said in thanks). Nár lige Dia san! "God forbid!" Go maithe Dia dhuit é! "God forgive you!" Go raibh maith agat! "Thank you!"

Before raibh the negative is ná: ná raibh sé mar sin! "may it not be so!"

The forms of the copula (is) are: pres. -b; past ba. In an affirmative wish the conjunction is gura, and -b is dropped before consonants, so that you have gurab, gura, and negative nárab, nára: Gurab amhlaidh dhuit! "The same to you!" (in reply to a salutation); Gura fearrde thú é! "May you be the better of it!"; Nára fada go bhfeicfimid arís tú! "May it not be long until we see you again!" Dá mba mhaith leat é "if you liked."

Apart from this use, the subjunctive is almost obsolete in southern Irish. The subjunctive may be used after go "until", and the past subjunctive after dá "if" (see Lesson XVI). Thus "wait till he comes!" is fan go dtaga sé or fan go dtiocfaidh sé; "if he should come" dá dtagadh sé or dá, dtiocfadh sé. The forms of the past subjunctive are the same as those of the imperfect indicative, but the past subjunctive is always preceded by an eclipsing conjunction (go, dá, or mara).

LESSON XXVI

Relative Sentences

Relative clauses are either direct or oblique. In Irish there is no relative pronoun, and an indeclinable relative particle is used. The particle in direct clauses is a (do)¹ which aspirates; it expresses the nominative or accusative relation (p. 59). The particle in oblique relative clauses is go (a in northern dialects) which eclipses; it is used in all other cases. Thus an t-éan a chionn an garsún means “the bird that sees the boy” or “the bird that the boy sees”. But when the relative corresponds to Eng. “whose, to whom, in which, by which, with whom,” etc., the particle is go: an fear go bhfuil a mhac chun pósadh “the man whose son is to be married”; an tigh go rabhas ann “the house in which I was”; an bhean go bhfuair an t-airgead uaithi “the woman from whom I got the money”; an speal go mbaineann sé an féar léi “the scythe with which he cuts the hay”. Note that where in English the relative pronoun is preceded by a preposition, in Irish the relative particle is completed by a prepositional pronoun. This is now the normal usage. The older construction in which the preposition precedes the particle is also permissible: an áit ina raibh sé “the place in which he was” (instead of *an áit go raibh sé ann*²); an té dá dtáinig³ ciall le haois, cuir-se gach ní ina chead “consult him who was grown wise with age”.

The direct relative particle is omitted before the copula

¹ Historically the form is do, and it so appears in early Modern Irish; but in spoken Irish it is commonly reduced to a mere [ə], written a.

² Or an áit go raibh sé; ann is here commonly omitted.

³ Note that the relative preceded by a preposition cause eclipses, and takes a dependent form of irregular verbs.

(is, ba) and the oblique form is gur (gurb before vowels) in the present and gur (gurbh before vowels) in the past and conditional: an fear is saibhre “the man who is richest (= “the richest man”); an fear ba shaibhre “the man who was richest”; an fear gur leis an tigh “the man whose house it is (or “was”); cailín gurbh ainm di Síle “a girl named Sheila”. Where, however, the past or conditional of the copula is reduced to b (before a word beginning with a vowel or f) the relative particle appears: na daoine ab óige “the youngest people”; an chuid ab fhearr “the best share”.

The particle go (a) is changed to gur (ar) before the past tense of a regular verb: an fear gur imigh a mhac go Sasana “the man whose son went to England”; an speal gur bhain sé an féar léi. The negative relative in both direct and oblique clauses is ná: an fear ná baineann an féar; an fear nár bhain an féar; an fear ná fuil aithne agat air “the man whom you do not know”; an duine nár chuiris ceist air “the person whom you did not question”.

The relative clause tends to stand first in the sentence: “the man who came yesterday will go away today” will not be imeoidh an fear a tháinig inné inniu, but an fear a tháinig inné, imeoidh sé inniu.

In sentences of identity (p. 52) when the subject is a definite noun followed by a relative clause (“the man who was there”, “the book I read”, etc.), the article may be omitted before the noun, and the relative clause may be followed by the particle ná: is é ainm a bhí air ná Séadna “his name was S.”

There may also be a double relative: an fear a cheapas a chonac “the man whom I thought I saw”; ná daoine adeir sé a thiocfaidh “the people he says will come”. The latter example illustrates two points to be remembered: (a) the verbs (a)deir, (a)tá having an unstressed a- as first syllable¹ seem to escape aspiration, but in fact the d or t is not the true

¹ The initial a- is not now pronounced except as here, when it may be said to blend with the relative particle; and the verbs are usually written deirim, táim.

initial; (b) when the relative is the subject, the verb is always in the third person singular. This may be shown in examples where the main verb is an is-clause of the type “it is we (they, the strangers) who . . .” Is mise adúirt é (not aduart) “it is I who said it”; is sinn-ne a raghaidh isteach ar dtúis “it is we who shall go in first”; is iad na Sasanaigh a fuair an chuid ab fhearr “it is the English who got the best share”. (Note that the initial of fuair also escapes aspiration.)

Perhaps the commonest type of double relative is that with an adverbial superlative, “the people we see most often”, “the man who came first”, etc.: na daoine is minicí a chímíd (here the relative is the object); an fear is túisce (or ba thúisce) a tháinig. Note that the adverb precedes the verb. And with an oblique relative: téir san áit is fearr go bhféadfair an rás d’fheiscint “go to the place where you will be best able to see the race.”

VOCABULARY

an té (ǎn-tē) he who	duais (dooësh) f. prize
beatha (bahă) f. life, livelihood, food	foighne (fayngi) f. patience
cad is ainm duit? (kod is anim döt) what is your name?	leigheas (layäs) m. cure
ceantar (kyauntär) m. district, part of the country	lionn (lyoon) m. porter, ale
coinne (kingi) m. expectation; tá coinne agam leis I expect him	ospidéal (ösbidēl) m. hospital
Corca Dhuibhne (körkä gheeni) Corkaguiney, Co. Kerry	réitim (rē-teëm) I solve (a problem)
creidiúint (kre-doönt) f. credit	saothrú (sär-hoò) vn. earning, to earn
deireanach (derănăch) late;	tairbhe (tarifi) m. profit, good
deireanaí (deră-neè) latest, last	Tiobrad Árann (tyubrăd aarăn) Tipperary
	trácht (traacht) vn. discussing, to discuss, speak of
	tugaim ar iasacht I lend
	túisce (tooshgi) soonest

Exercise 59

1. Sin é an fear a chonaiceamair ar an aonach. 2. Is í Bríd a bhris an fhuinneog. 3. An té is túisce a réiteoidh an cheist, is é a gheobhaidh an duais. 4. Is mó duine go mbíonn airgead aige agus ná deineann sé aon tairbhe dhó. 5. Cad é an ceantar gurb as tú? 6. Ó Chorca Dhuibhne. 7. An bhfacaís an bhean go rabhas ag trácht uirthi? 8. Is iad na daoine is mó a bhíonn ag caint is lú a dheineann obair. 9. Téir san áit is fearr go bhféadfair do bheatha a shaothrú ann. 10. Caithfidh mé labhairt leis an bhfear go bhfuil a mhac san ospidéal. 11. “Rud gan leigheas is foighne is fearr air.” 12. An t-airgead a shíleas a bhí cailte agam tá sé anso im phóca. 13. Na daoine is túisce a tháinig is iad is deireanaí a dh’imigh.

Exercise 60

1. Which horse (cé acu capall) did you buy at the fair? 2. A boy named John O’Donovan was the best scholar in the class. 3. Where is the coat I lent to Michael? 4. The shoes you said you had cleaned are still dirty. 5. Many people (is mó duine) would prefer porter to whiskey, and some (say “there are people who”) would not drink them at all. 6. He will come when we least expect him. 7. That is the man from whom we bought the house. 8. What is his name? 9. I think his name is James O’Sullivan. 10. That is the man whose son is a doctor in Cork. 11. What part of the country is he from? 12. From Tipperary. 13. Diarmaid did the work best, but he got the least credit.

LESSON XXVII

Idioms. Defective Verbs. Points of Syntax.

Words for kinship in Irish do not always correspond to English words. There is no difficulty about “father”, “mother”, “brother”, “sister”; but there are no Irish words for “nephew”, “niece”, “uncle”, “aunt”, and you have to specify the sister’s son, brother’s son, father’s brother or sister, or mother’s brother or sister. The English “uncle” and “aunt” (uncail, áintín) are now sometimes used. Note the word cliamhain “son-in-law”.

We have seen that numbering is by scores in the spoken language, but old literary forms have recently been restored in the schools and are now generally understood: tríochoa 30, ceathracha 40, caoga 50, seasca 60, seachtó 70, ochtó 80, nócha 90.

With regard to the verbal system, remember that the preterite and perfect of English “I saw” and “I have seen” are not distinguished in Irish: an bhfacaís fós é? “have you seen him yet?”; an bhfacaís an páipéar inné? “did you see the paper yesterday?”¹ But there are two extra tenses, or aspects, in Irish, one for action completed in the present: tá sé déanta agam “I have done (finished) it”; and one for an event that has just happened: táim tar éis teacht isteach “I have just come in” (lit. “I am after coming in”).

We have seen that the passive corresponding to active buaileann sé “he strikes” is buailtear é (Lesson XIX). Corresponding to the actual present tá sé ag bualadh is the form tá sé dá bhualadh “he is being beaten”.

The passive of casaim “I turn” is used to express meeting: castar orm é “I meet him.”

¹ Irish agrees in this with French and German.

Éirigh “rise” as an impersonal has the meaning “to succeed”; éiríonn liom “I succeed”; go n-éirí leat! “may you be successful!”

Rel. a can mean “all that (which)” and then causes eclipsis and takes a dependent form of irreg. verbs even as nom.-acc. (cf. p. 59): caitheann sé a dtuilleann sé “he spends all he earns”; imeoidh a dtiocfaidh agus a dtáinig “all that will come and all that ever came will pass away”; an cailín is deise dá bhfacaís riamh “the prettiest girl that you ever saw” (lit. “of all that”).

Note lá dá rabhas ann “one day when I was there”, where dá “when” is an old conjunction, quite distinct from dá in the preceding example.

An interesting use of the negative ná occurs in is fada ná faca thú “it is a long time since I saw you”, where ó chonac thú is also correct.

Defective Verbs.

One curious verb which has not yet been introduced must be mentioned, as it is in common use: ní fheadar “I do (did) not know”. It is peculiar in that it occurs only in the negative and interrogative: an bhfeadraís “do you know?” (The positive statement must be tá a fhios agam, agat, etc.) And it has both present and past meaning. The forms are as follows:

Sg. 1	feadar	Pl.	feadramair
2	feadraís		feadrabhair
3	feadair sé		feadradar

Tharla “it happened” is impersonal and takes a dependent clause: tharla go raibh sé ann “he happened to be there”.

Ba dhóbair “it almost happened” is followed by the conditional in a dependent clause: ba dhóbair go ndearmhadfainn é “I almost forgot it (him)”; ba dhóbair . . . go dtitfeadh an capall “the horse nearly fell”, or by a verbal noun: ba dhóbair dhom é a dhearmhad.

Ar, arsa “said” is used only to quote direct speech, and follows the words quoted. The longer form arsa is used with mise, tusa and a noun-subject; ar with seisean, sise. The emphatic forms of the pronoun are always used.

Ach “but” is used much as in English, except that when it means “only” the verb in Irish is negative or interrogative: ní raibh aige ach scilling “he had but a shilling”; níor dhein sé ach féachaint uirthi “he did but look at her”; cé thiocfadh isteach ach Seán! “who should come in but John!” Idiomatic uses of ach are the phrases ach chomh beag “either” after a negative; ach go háirithe “at any rate”: níor labhair Seán agus níor labhras-sa ach chomh beag “John did not speak and I did not speak either”; raghad-sa ann ach go háirithe “I shall go there at any rate”.

Sara “before” has also the force of a final conjunction “lest, in order that not”: chuir sé i bhfolach é sara bhfaighinn é “he hid it lest I should find it”; labhair go réidh sara n-aireofaí thú “speak low lest they should hear you (you should be overheard)” see p. 110.

Fé mar “as, as if”: fé mar aduart leat “as I told you”; bhí sé ag screadaigh fé mar a bheadh pian air “he was crying out as if he were in pain”.

You have learned to use is and tá correctly (Lessons VIII and X). In sentences of mere description, where the predicate is a noun, a peculiar construction with tá and the preposition ar “on” is common: tá sé ar an ngarsún is fearr sa rang “he is the best boy in the class” = is é an garsún is fearr sa rang é; bhí sé ar dhuine desna daoine ba léannta a bhí san áit “he was one of the most learned men in the place” = duine desna daoine ba léannta . . . dob ea é; tá sí ar chailín chomh deas agus a gheofá “she is as pretty a girl as you would find”.

VOCABULARY

ach chomh beag either (after a negative)	ait (at) queer, strange
	ar dtúis (er-dòsh) at first

bus m. bus	feitheamh (fihāv) le awaiting cathair (kahir) f. city	fíor-bheagán a very little
céile (kēli) m. and f. companion, partner; i dteannta a chéile together	laetheanta saoire (lähăntă seeri) holidays
cérbh í féin? who was she?	sara fada before long
comhrá (kô-raà) m. conversation	slua (slooă) m. crowd
costas (kösďăs) m. cost	taitneann sé liom (I like it, him) cúimhnim (kee-neëm) I remember	teacht ar cuairt (chun) to visit
cuirim moill ar I delay (trans.)	tuath (tooă) f.: ar an dtuaith in the county
déanach (deeanăch) late	uaigneas (ooăginăs) m. loneliness fágaim slán (ag) I say goodbye (to)

Exercise 61

1. Do chuas féin agus Séamas don Daingean inné agus casadh Liam Ó Murchadha orainn. 2. Mac driféar do Mháire Ní Dhomhnaill is ea é. 3. “Conas taoi?” ar seisean. “Is fada ná faca thú.” 4. “Cad na thaobh”, arsa mise leis, “ná tagann tú ar cuairt chúinn?” 5. “Is annamh a théim go dtí an baile mór, mar is fada liom an turas nuair ná bíonn gnó agam ann.” 6. Do thosnaigh sé ag cur ceisteanna orm fé mar ná beadh aithne aige orm i n-aon chor. 7. Ar airís a leithéid riamh? Is ait an duine é. 8. Dúirt sé liom go bhfuil tithe nua dá ndéanamh ar Bhóthar na Trágha agus gur dóigh leis go bhfaighidh sé ceann acu. 9. D’imíos uaidh sara gcuirfeadh sé fearg orm. 10. Níor dheineas ach fíor-bheagán cainte leis. 11. Thánag abhaile ar an mbus, agus do bhíos anso ar a sé a chlog. 12. Ba dhóbair go dtitfinn agus mé ag teacht anuas den bhus, ach tharla go raibh mo dheartháir ag feitheamh liom agus d’éirigh leis breith orm.

Exercise 62

1. James Murphy and I were in Killarney on Thursday, and we met a niece (brother’s daughter) of James’s.¹ 2. I did not recognise her at first, and she did not recognise me either; but when she spoke to James, I knew who she was. 3. She lives (is living) in Cork now, and she comes to Killarney only to spend holidays there. 4. "I cannot come oftener," she said, "for I find the journey too long and the cost too great." 5. We spent the day together, and in the evening we went to the station with her. 6. "May God bring you safe home!" said James. 7. "Don't forget to visit us before long." 8. "I thought she spoke as though she did not like the city", said I, when she had gone. 9. "Perhaps she is lonely," said James. 10. "I am glad that I live in the country." 11. We were almost late for the bus, but it happened that there was a big crowd waiting for it, and that delayed it.

¹See p. 79.

Passages of Irish Prose and Verse

(i)

The most successful writer of the Munster dialect is Canon Peter O'Leary (1839-1920), and the learner will do well to begin his reading with O'Leary's works. Here is the beginning of the story of Séadna, generally considered his best book:

Bhí fear ann fadó agus is é ainm a bhí air ná Séadna. Grésaí ab ea é. Bhí tigh beag deas cluthar aige ag bun cnoic, ar thaobh na fothana. Bhí cathaoir shúgáin aige do dhein sé féin dó féin, agus ba ghnáth leis suí inti um thráth-nóna, nuair a bhíodh obair an lae críochnaithe, agus nuair a shuíodh sé inti bhíodh sé ar a shástacht. Bhí mealbhóg mine aige ar crochadh i n-aice na tine, agus anois agus arís chuireadh sé a lámh inti agus thógadh sé lan a dhoirn den mhin, agus bhíodh sé á chogaint ar a shuaimhneas. Bhí crann úll ag fás ar an dtaobh amuigh de dhoras aige, agus nuair a bhíodh tart air ó bheith ag cogaint na mine, chuireadh sé lámh sa chrann san agus thógadh sé ceann desna húlloibh, agus d'itheadh sé é.

Lá dá raibh sé ag déanamh bróg, thug sé fé ndeara ná raibh a thuilleadh leathair aige, ná a thuilleadh snátha, ná a thuilleadh céarach. Bhí an taoibhín déanach thuas agus an greim déanach curtha, agus níor bh'fholair dó dul agus abhar do sholáthar sara bhféadfadh sé a thuilleadh bróg a dhéanamh. Do ghluais sé ar maidin, agus bhí trí scillinge ina phóca, agus ní raibh sé ach míle ón dtigh nuair a bhuail duine bocht uime, a d'iarraidh déarca.

“Tabhair dhom déirc ar son an tSlánaitheora agus le hanaman do mharbh, agus tar cheann do shláinte,” arsan duine bocht.

Thug Séadna scilling dó, agus ansan ní raibh aige ach dhá scilling. Dúirt sé leis féin go mb'fhéidir go ndéanfadh an dá sciling a ghnó. Ní raibh sé ach míle eile ó bhaile nuair a bhuail bean bhocht uime agus í cos-nochtaithe.

“Tabhair dhom cúnamh éigin,” ar sise, “ar son an tSlánaitheora, agus le hanaman do mharbh, agus tar cheann do shláinte.”

Do ghlac trua dhi é, agus thug sé scilling di, agus d'imigh sí. Do bhí aon scilling amháin ansan aige, ach do chomáin sé leis, ag brath air go mbuailfeadh seans éigin uime a chuirfeadh ar a chumas a ghnó a dhéanamh. Níor bh'fhada gur casadh air leanbh agus é ag gol le fuacht agus le hocras.

“Ar son an tSlánaitheora,” arsan leanbh, “tabhair dhom rud éigin le n-ithe.”

Bhí tigh ósta i ngar dóibh, agus do chuaigh Séadna isteach ann, agus cheannaigh sé bríc aráin agus thug sé chun an linbh é. Nuair fuair an leanbh an t-arán d'athraigh a dhealbh. D'fhás sé suas i n-aoirde, agus do las solas iontach 'na shúilibh agus 'na cheannaithibh, i dtreo go dtáinig scanradh ar Shéadna. Chomh luath agus d'fhéad sé labhairt, dúirt sé:

“Cad é an saghas duine thusa?” Agus is é freagra a fuair sé:

“A Shéadna, tá Dia buíoch díot. Aingeal is ea mise. Is mé an tríú haingeal gur thugais déirc dó inniu ar son an tSlánaitheora. Agus anois tá trí ghuí agat le fáil ó Dhia na glóire. Iarr ar Dhia aon trí ghuí is toil leat, agus gheobhair iad. Ach tá aon chomhairle amháin agam-sa le tabhairt duit—ná dearmhad an trócaire.”

“Agus an ndeirir liom go bhfaighead mo ghuf?” arsa Séadna.

“Deirim, gan amhras,” arsan t-aingeal.

“Tá go maith,” arsa Séadna. “Tá cathaoir bheag dheas shúgáin agam sa bhaile, agus an uile dhailtín a thagann isteach, ní foláir leis suí inti. An chéad duine eile a shuífidh inti, ach mé féin, go gceangla sé inti!”

“Faire, faire, a Shéadna!” arsan t-aingeal; “sin guí bhreá imithe gan tairbhe. Tá dhá cheann eile agat, agus ná dearmhad an trócaire.”

“Tá,” arsa Séadna, “mealbhóigín mine agam sa bhaile, agus an uile dhailtín a thagann isteach, ní foláir leis a dhorn a shá inti. An chéad duine eile a chuirfidh lámh sa mhealbhóig sin, ach mé féin, go gceangla sé inti, féach!”

“Ó, a Shéadna, a Shéadna, níl fasc agat!” arsan t-aingeal. “Níl agat anois ach aon ghuí amháin eile. Iarr trócaire Dé dot’ anam.”

“Ó, is fíor dhuit,” arsa Séadna, “ba dhóbaire dom é dhearmhad. Tá crann beag úll agam i leataoibh mo dhorais, agus an uile dhailtín a thagann an treo, ní foláir leis a lámh do chur i n-airde agus úll do stathadh agus do bhreith leis. An chéad duine eile, ach mé féin, a chuirfidh lámh sa chrann san, go gceangla sé ann!—Ó! a dhaoine,” ar seisean, ag sceartadh ar gháirí, “nach agam a bheidh an spórt orthul”

Nuair a tháinig sé as na trithíbh, d’fhéach sé suas agus bhí an t-aingeal imithe. Dhein sé a mhachnamh air féin ar feadh tamaill mhaith. Fé dheireadh thiar thall, dúirt sé leis féin: “Féach anois, níl aon amadán i n-Éirinn is mó ná mé! Dá mbeadh triúr ceangailte agam um an dtaca so, duine sa chathaoir, duine sa mhealbhóig, agus duine sa chrann, cad é an mhaith a dhéanfadh san domh-sa agus mé i bhfad ó bhaile, gan bhia, gan deoch, gan airgead?”

Ní túisce a bhí an méid sin cainte ráite aige ná thug sé fé ndeara os a chomhair amach, san áit ina raibh an t-aingeal, fear fada caol dubh, agus é ag glinniúint air, agus tine chreasa ag teacht as a dhá shúil ina spréchaibh nimhe.

Bhí dhá adhairc air mar a bheadh ar phocán gabhair, agus meigeall fada liath-ghorm garbh air; eireaball mar a bheadh ar mhada rua, agus crúb ar chois leis mar chrúb thairbh. Do leath a bhéal agus a dhá shúil ar Shéadna, agus do stad a chaint. I gcionn tamaill do labhair an Fear Dubh.

“A Shéadna,” ar seisean “ní gá dhuit aon eagla do bheith ort romhamsa. Nílím ar tí do dhíobhála. Ba mhian liom tairbhe éigin a dhénamh duit, dá nglacthá mo chomhairle. Do chloiseas thú anois beag á rá go rabhais gan bhia, gan deoch, gan airgead. Thabharfainn-se airgead do dhóthain duit ar aon choinníoll bheag amháin.”

“Agus greadadh trí lár do scart!” arsa Séadna, agus tháinig a chaint dó; “ná féadfá an méid sin do rá gan duine do mhilleadh led’ chuid glinniúna, pé hé thú féin?”

“Is cuma dhuit cé hé mé, ach bhéarfad an oiread airgid duit anois agus cheannóidh an oiread leathair agus choimeádfaidh ag obair thú go ceann trí mblian ndéag, ar an gcoinníoll so—go dtiocfair liom an uair sin.”

“Agus má réitím leat, cá raghaimíd an uair sin?”

“Cá beag duit an cheist sin do chur nuair a bheidh an leathar ídithe agus bheimíd ag gluaiseacht?”

“Bíodh ina mhargadh!” arsa Séadna.

“Gan teip?” - arsan Fear Dubh.

“Gan teip,” arsa Séadna.

“Dar bhrí na mionn?” arsan Fear Dubh.

“Dar bhrí na mionn.” arsa Séadna.

(ii)

One of the finest poets of the modern period is Eoghan Rua Ó Súilleabháin (1748-1784). This lullaby is chosen for its simplicity. The metres of his songs are a matter for separate study. They are based on an elaborate system of rhymes. The metrical analysis of the second verse here is as follows:

~ x ~ ú ~ ú ~ ó
 ~ x ~ ú ~ ú ~ ó
 ~ x ~ a ~ a ~ ó
 ~ x ~ í ~ í ~ ó

It will be noticed that the final rhyme in -ó is maintained throughout the poem.

Seóthó, a thoil, ná goil go fóill.

Seóthó, a thoill ná goil go fóill.
 Do gheobhair gan dearmad taisce gach seoid
 Do bhí ag do shinsear ríoga romhat
 I n-Éirinn iath-ghlais Choinn is Eoghain.
 Seóthó, a thoil! ná goil go fóill.
 Seóthó, a linbh, a chumann 's a stór,
 Mo chúig céad cumha go dubhach faoi bhrón
 Tú ag sileadh na súl 's do chom gan lón!

Do gheobhair ar dtúis an t-úll id' dhóid
 Do bhí ag an dtriúr i gclúid id' chomhair,
 An staf bhí ag Pan—ba ghreanta an tseoid—
 'S an tslat bhí ag Maois ghníodh díon dó 's treoir.
 Seóthó, a thoil! etc.

Do gheobhair 'na bhfochair sin lomra an óir
 Thug Iason tréan don Ghréig ar bord,
 'S an tréan-each cuthaigh mear cumasach óg
 Do bhí ag Coin Chulainn, ceann urraidh na sló.
 Seóthó, a thoil! etc.

Do gheobhair slea Aicill ba chalma i ngleo,
 Is craoiseach Fhinn gan mhoill id' dhóid,
 Éide Chonaill dob ursa le treoin,
 Is sciath gheal Naois ó Chraoibh na sló.
 Seóthó, a thoil! etc.

Do gheobhair saill uaim, fíon is beoir,
 Is éadach greanta ba mhaise do threoin;
 Ach ó chím do bhuime chúm sa ród
 Ní gheallfad uaim duit duais níos mó.
 Seóthó, a thoil! etc.

Hush, darling! Don't cry just yet!
 You shall get without fail possession of every treasure
 That your royal ancestors had before you
 In green-clad Ireland of Conn and Eoghan.
 Hush, darling! Don't cry just yet!
 Hush, baby, my love and my treasure!
 My five hundred sorrows, as I lament
 That you are crying your eyes out on an empty stomach!

You shall get first into your hand the apple
 Which the Three Maidens put aside for you,
 The staff of Pan—it was a handsome treasure—
 And the rod of Moses which protected and guided him.
 Hush, darling!

You shall get with them the Golden Fleece
 Which brave Jason brought in a ship from Greece,
 And the mettlesome swift horse, young and sturdy
 Of Cú Chulainn, the leader of the hosts.
 Hush, darling!

You shall get the spear of Achilles who was valiant in battle
 And the javelin of Finn into your hand without delay,
 The amour of Conall who stood with the brave,
 And the bright shield of Naoise from the Branch of the Hosts!¹
 Hush, darling!

You shall have bacon from me, wine and beer,
 And handsome clothes that would do honour to warriors;
 But I see your nurse coming along the road,
 So I will promise you no more rewards.
 Hush, darling!

¹ The banquet-hall at Emain Macha.

Conclusion.

For further reading we recommend Hyde's old books Beside the Fire and The Love-Songs of Connacht, if the reader can get hold of them. Both have an English translation opposite to the Irish text. They are written in the Connacht dialect, but the reader who has mastered the lessons given here should have no great difficulty with them, apart from the old spelling. It was of the Love-Songs that Yeats said: "the prose parts of this book were the coming of a new power into language." He meant, of course, Hyde's English translation, but one of the claims of Modern Irish upon the English-speaking world is that it is the source of that power.

Failing these, for they are out of print and could only be found in public libraries, O'Leary's Séadna, Bricriu and An Craos-Deamhan are good books to begin with. There is a complete vocabulary to Séadna, sold separately, which is useful for all his books, but Dinneen's Irish Dictionary is indispensable. O'Leary's autobiography, Mo Sgéal Féin, may also be recommended. The next step will be to tackle the famous autobiography of Tomás Ó Criomhthain, An tOileánach, of which there is a translation by Robin Flower, The Islandman; and then two other books from Corca Dhuibhne, Fiche Blian ag Fás, by Muiris Ó Súilleabháin¹ and Peig by Peg Sayers. By that time the reader will be choosing for himself, and beginning to feel his way into the Munster poetry of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and perhaps even the lyric and bardic poetry of an earlier time.

¹ Twenty Years A-Growing, translated by Moya Llywelyn Davies and George Thomson, London, 1933,

PART III

Key to the Exercises.

Exercise 1

1. The box is full. 2. There is a bottle there. 3. The book is lost. 4. The road is straight. 5. Is the bottle empty? 6. No, there is milk in it. 7. Is the milk not sour? It is. 8. The fish is fresh. 9. Is (the) dinner ready? 10. It is not ready yet. 11. The boy is sick. 12. Is there money here? 13. The man is tired. 14. Is not the day windy? 15. Yes, but it is not cold.

Exercise 2

1. Tá na boscaí lán. 2. Tá buidéal ansan. 3. Tá na leabhair cailte. 4. Tá na bóithre díreach. 5. An bhfuil na buidéal folamh? 6. Nílid. 7. Ná fuil na boscaí ullamh? 8. Tá na garsúin breoite. 9. Tá na fir tuirseach.

Exercise 3

1. The family is young. 2. The hens are sold. 3. The window is open. 4. Is it closed? 5. No, it is open. 6. The shoe is very small. 7. The drink is very sweet. 8. Is it warm? 9. No, it is cold. 10. The hand is sore. 11. The knife is sharp. 12. The rope is broken. 13. The eyes are closed. 14. The knife is clean. 15. Are the shoes worn out? No. 16. Is the street wet? 17. No it is dry. 18. The pig is fat.

Exercise 4

1. Tá an bia fuar, ach tá an deoch te. 2. Tá na bróga caite. 3. An bhfuil na sceana glan? 4. Nílid, táid siad salach. 5. Tá na doirse dúnta agus tá na fuinneoga ar oscailt. 6. An bhfuil na sráideanna díreach? 7. Nílid, táid siad cam. 8. An bhfuil na muca díolta? Táid. 9. Tá na cearca ramhar. 10. An bhfuil an tsúil tinn? 11. Tá na lámha fuar. 12. Tá an téad tirim. 13. Tá an fhuinneog briste. 14. Tá an tsráid ana-chiúin.

Exercise 5

Do chailleabhair; do chuireadar; do chreideamair; do líonabhair; do dhíoladar; d'fhanamair; do scríobhabhair; do thuigeadar.

Exercise 6

Díolann sibh; iarraid; féachann tú; caillimid; titeann sé; múineann sibh; stadaimid; tuigim.

Exercise 7

A. 1. Léimid na leabhair. 2. Ólann an garsún an bainne. 3. Ní thuigid (or Ní thuigeann siad). 4. Titeann sibh. 5. Caithim an t-airgead. 6. Glanann tú an scian. 7. Dúnann siad (dúnaid) an doras, ach ní dhúnann siad (dhúnaid) an fhuinneog. 8. An dtuigeann sibh? 9. An gcreideann sé? 10. Ní chreideann. 11. Scríobhann sé litir. 12. Ceileann sé an fhírinne.

B. 1. Do thuigeadar na focail. 2. Ar chreid an sagart na garsúin? 3. Do chaillis an t-airgead. 4. Ar bhuail sé an gadhar? 5. Do líonamair na buidéal. 6. Ar ól na garsúin an t-uisce? 7. Níor óladar, ach d'óladar bainne. 8. Ar léis an páipéar? 9. Léann na sagairt na leabhair.

Exercise 8

1. The priest's horse is lame. 2. They left a wooden box on the floor. 3. The boy's coat is very big. 4. They lost a bag of money on the road and they are troubled and sad. 5. She left a bottle of milk and a glass of water on the table. 6. They broke the window with stones. 7. The hens are at the window. 8. The dog is under the table. 9. The boys' room is dark. 10. We shut the window of the room. 11. Did you take the money from the boy? Yes. 12. The men leave the horses in the field.

Exercise 9

1. Tá cos an ghadhair briste. 2. Léann sé leabhair an ghar-súin. 3. Do chuireamair an t-airgead fén gcloich. 4. Tá an cat fén bhfuinneog agus tá an gadhar ag an ndoras. 5. Ar chaillis airgead an tsagairt? 6. Do chuir sé gloine ar an mbord. 7. Briseann na fir clocha ar an mbóthar. 8. Tá an fear ag ceann an bhoird. 9. Ritheann na capaill timpeall na páirce. 10. Do bhain sé na leabhair desna garsúnaibh. 11. D'fhágamair fuinneog an tseomra ar oscailt. 12. Tá fráma na fuinneoige deisithe.

Exercise 10

1. God and Mary to you, Tim! 2. God and Mary to you and Patrick! How are you? 3. I am well, thank God! How are you all at home? 4. We are well. 5. John is in Killarney, but Michael and Nora are here. They are inside in the house. 6. Where are the young boy and the young girl? 7. They are out in the garden. 8. Tom left the scythe over there under the hedge. 9. We put the horses into the stable.

Exercise 11

1. Dia 's Muire dhuit, a Thomáis! Conas taoi? 2. Táim go maith, buíochas le Dia! 3. An bhfuil na páistí sa bhaile? 4. Táid go léir istigh sa chistin. 5. An bhfuil Mícheál amuigh sa chlós? 6. Tá, ach tá Seán agus Nóra i gCorcaigh, 7. Tá na garsúin thall ansan sa pháirc. 8. Cá bhfuil an speal? 9. Tá sí anso fén bhfál.

Exercise 12

1. Mary has new shoes. 2. There is a young dog on the road. 3. Tim has an overcoat now. 4. The priest has said (read) Mass. 5. Patrick has written a letter. 6. The child has shut the door. 7. The boys have broken the window. 8. The dog has a little stick. 9. There is a new school on top of the hill. 10. Michael has lost the money.

Exercise 13

1. Tá an litir léite ag Tomás. 2. Tá gúna nua ag Eibhlín.

3. Tá na leabhair cailte ag an bhfear óg. 4. Tá trucail ag an ndoras. 5. Tá an bainne ólta ag an bpáiste. 6. Tá airgead ag an bhfear. 7. Tá an cóta mór cailte ag Tadhg. 8. Tá na buidéil briste ag na garsúnaibh. 9. Tá an tseana-scoil dúnta agus tá scoil nua déanta ar bharr an chnoic. 10. Tá an litir scríte ag Maighréad.

Exercise 14

1. We are drinking water. 2. We were talking to the policeman. 3. Was John here this morning? 4. Yes; and he was looking at the young horse. 5. Were you talking to him? Yes. 6. He will be coming again tomorrow. 7. The men are breaking stones on the road. 8. Where are the other boys? 9. Are they picking the potatoes? 10. They are tired now, and the potatoes are not all picked yet. 11. They will be going home tomorrow, and they will not be coming any more.

Exercise 15

1. Bhíodar ag glanadh na bhfuinneog. 2. Bhíomair ag obair ar na bóithre. 3. An mbeir (mbeidh tú) ag teacht anso arís amáireach? 4. An bhfuilir ag dul abhaile anois? 5. Tá an sagart ag rá an Aifrinn anois. 6. Tá Maighréad agus Eibhlín ag féachaint ar na fearaibh ag buaint an choirce. 7. An mbeid siad ag bearradh na gcapall? 8. Ní bheid, tá sé fuar fós. 9. An rabhdar ag briseadh na gcloch? 10. Ní rabhdar; bhíodar ag tarrac isteach an fhéir. 11. Tá sí ag scuabadh an urláir. 12. Táimid tuirseach, ach nílmíd sásta fós.

Exercise 16

1. Níor chaitheas. Ar chaitheas? Nár chaitheas? 2. Níor fhanamair. Ar fhanamair? Nár fhanamair? 3. Níor ólais. Ar ólais? Nár ólais? 4. Níor dhíoladar. Ar dhíoladar? Nár dhíoladar? 5. Níor fhéach sé. Ar fhéach sé? Nár fhéach sé? 6. Níor bhaineadar. Ar bhaineadar? Nár bhaineadar? 7. Níor iarr sibh. Ar iarr sibh? Nár iarr sibh? 8. Níor thuigis. Ar thuigis? Nár thuigis?

Exercise 17

1. Níor chreid na páistí an scéal. 2. Ar thuigeadar an scéal? Níor thuigeadar. 3. Nár nigh sí na miasa? Do nigh. 4. Níor scríobhas an litir. 5. Ar ólais an bainne? 6. Níor chrúis an bhó. 7. Nár dhíoladar na capaill? 8. Ar dhúnamair na fuinneoga? 9. Níor chaitheadar an t-airgead. 10. Ar fhan sé sa bhaile mhór? 11. Nár fhéachadar ar an bpáipéar? 12. Ar thit an páiste isteach insan uisce? 13. Níor bhaineamair an féar fós.

Exercise 18

(i) 1. We break them. 2. He concealed it. 3. He lets us in. 4. Did he put you out? 5. We lost them. 6. Did he strike you? 7. We did not believe her. 8. She left me there.

(ii) 1. My book is lost, but your book is over there on the stool. 2. I shall be going away tomorrow. 3. Will you be going to Dublin yourself? No. 4. My son is ill and I must stay at home. 5. I did my best, but they did nothing. 6. Your hands are dirty and my hands are dirty also. 7. The girls were tired and even the boys were complaining. 8. Has he not put out the dogs yet? 9. No, but I will put them out now. 10. We ate our meal a while ago, and your share will be cold. 11. My father is in Cork but your father is at home.

Exercise 19

(i) Mo hata-sa; do mhaide-se; a bhróga-san; a bosca-sa; ár leabhair-ne; bhur n-athair-se; a bpáistí-sean. Creidim thú. Ar chreidis í? Do chuir sé iad-san amach agus do lig sé mise isteach. Ar fhágadar ann sibh? Do chailleamair é. Creideann sé sinn.

(ii) 1. Tá mo thigh-se anso, agus tá a thigh-sean thall ansan ar an gcnoc. 2. Dhein seisean a dhícheall, ach níor dheinis-se pioc. 3. Tá a bróga-sa nua agus tá mo bhróga-sa caite. 4. Tá ár leabhair-ne cailte; cá bhfuil bhur leabhair-se? 5. Beimíd-ne ag imeacht amáireach, ach beidh sibh-se ag fanúint anso. 6. D'itheadar-san a ndinnéar ó chianaibh. 7. Ar itheabhairse bhur gcuid féin fós? 8. Bead-sa ag dul go Corcaigh agus beidh sise ag fanúint i mBaile Átha Cliath. 9. Do bhuaineamair ár gcuid coirce inné. 10. Ar bhuaineabhair-se bhur gcuid féin fós? 11. Do chreid sise an scéal, ach níor chreideas-sa pioc de.

Exercise 20

1. That is a book. 2. This is a scythe. 3. That is a boat. 4. Is that your coat? 5. No, it is John's coat. 6. Is this your money? Yes. 7. This is an Irish book. 8. I am the teacher and you are the pupils. 9. Are those the Americans? No. 10. They are the Englishmen. 11. That is the captain. 12. Is the big tall man the captain? 13. No, but the small man beside him. 14. This is my mother coming in now, and that is Mary with her. 15. John is strong, but, he is not as strong as James. 16. Is James the doctor? 17. Yes, and he is a good doctor. 18. Where is John? 19. He is out in the garden working. 20. He is a wonderful man for work. 21. He was sick but he is hale and hearty now. 22. Which is that, barley or oats? 23. That is wheat and this is oats, but there is no barley in the field. 24. It was a great pity that we were not there in time.

Exercise 21

1. Tigh ana-mhór is ea é. 2. Is bord é sin agus is cathaoir í seo. 3. Cé acu bád nó long í sin? 4. Bád seoil is ea í. 5. Sin iad mo bhróga-sa. 6. Múinteoir is ea é. 7. An é seo do chuid móna-sa? 8. Ní hé; tá mo chuid-se sa phortach fós. 9. Cé acu cruithneacht nó eorna é sin? 10. Ní cruithneacht ná eorna é, ach coirce. 11. Scian ghlan is ea í seo. 12. An Sasanaigh iad san? 13. 'Sea; is iad na hiascairí iad atá sa tigh ósta. 14. Is iad na Gearmánaigh iad so. 15. Is iad na fir mhóra na Meiriceánaigh. 16. Is éachtach na fir iad na Gearmánaigh chun oibre. 17. Cá bhfuil Síle? 18. Tá sí istigh sa tigh ag ní na mias. 19. Beidh sí ullamh go luath. 20. Garsún mór is ea Séamas, ach níl sé chomh hard le Síle. 21. Is mór an trua go bhfuil sí chomh hard. 22. Múinteoir is ea Seán agus is é Séamas an dochtúir. 23. An múinteoir maith é Seán? 'Sea. 24. Nach é an fear ard úd (san) thall captaen an bháid? 25. Ní hé; is é an fear beag dubh lena ais an captaen. 26. An cluiche maith é seo? Ní hea.

Exercise 22

A. We used to run. I shall drink. They will write. He used to stay. We shall sell. You used to look. I will put them out. They used to leave the children at home.

B. 1. The big man was talking to a small boy. 2. When will they put out the young horses? 3. Those big books are very heavy. 4. We shall stay in Cork to-night. 5. John used to live in Dublin but he is not there now. 6. I will sell the black cow tomorrow. 7. The heavy stones are on the road-side. 8. Michael was sitting on the stool when I came in. 9. He was silent and I was talking. 10. He is standing at the door now. 11. He used to leave the red cow's milk in the white pail. 12. They used to be there every morning, and they used to clean the house. 13. We shall let out the cows in the evening. 14. They will reap the oats when it is ripe. 15. When it has been drawn in, they will thresh it with flails. 16. They will then winnow it and put the grain into sacks. 17. The garden looks lovely. 18. It is nice in summer. 19. It was not nice when I came here, but we were not long making it tidy.

Exercise 23

A. 1. Rithfead. 2. Ólfaid siad. 3. Do scríobhthá. 4. Fanfaid siad. 5. Do dhíolaidís. 6. Féachfaidh sé. 7. Buailfidimid iad. 8. Cuirfid siad amach é. 9. Do léimís na leabhair sin. 10. Fágfaid siad an t-airgead sa bhosca.

B. 1. Díolfaidh m'athair an tigh mór. 2. Níl sé ina chónaí ann anois. 3. Do bhuaileadh na fir an coirce le súistíbh agus chuiridís an gráinne isteach i málaíbh. 4. Do bhí an cailín beag ina seasamh sa pháirc nuair a chonac í. 5. Thánag isteach nuair a bhís-se ag dul amach. 6. Scaoilfidh na garsúin bheaga na gadhair amach. 7. An rabhais id dhúiseacht nuair a bhíodar ag teacht isteach? 8. Díolfaidh Máire an t-im sa tsráidbhaile. 9. Is go Tráigh Lí a chuireadh sí é fadó. 10. Cathain a ghlanfaidh Mícheál an gairdín? 11. Bhí mo dheartháir ina chodladh nuair a thánag isteach. 12. Fágfad an eochair fén gcloich mhóir. 13. Bhíomair-ne inár seasamh ag an bhfuinneog agus bhíodar san ina suí ar an urlár. 14. Do bhíos-sa ag caint ach d'fhari sise ina tost. 15. Do labhradh sé go tapaidh ach do labhradh sé go maith. 16. Do bhíodh na beithígh bhochta i gcónaí amuigh fén mbáistigh istoíche. 17. Do bhí an lá inné go breá. 18. Do bhí an ghaoth ag séideadh go láidir, ach ní raibh an aimsir go holc.

Exercise 24

A. One horse. Two eyes. Three years. Four pounds. Five books. Six houses. Seven cows. Eight horses. Nine boats. Ten dogs. Seven shillings and tenpence.

B. 1. He was poor, but he is a rich man now. 2. He probably has thousands of pounds. 3. He will be a doctor in a year's time, 4. She was a good girl today, but she is not always like that. 5. We were sitting on the fence when the tree fell. 6. It was a big tall tree. 7. We shall have it as fuel. 8. Wood is good fuel. 9. When we were children we lived in the country. 10. James is a solicitor and Thomas is a doctor. 11. He is a very good doctor.

Exercise 25

A. 1. Aon chat amháin agus dhá ghadhar. 2. Trí maidí agus cheithre liathróidí. 3. Cúig punt, sé scillinge agus seacht bpingine. 4. Ocht ngadhair, naoi gcapaill agus deich mba.

B. 1. Bhí Tomás deich mbliana ina atúrnae ach tá sé ina ghiúistís anois. 2. Tá sé ina fhear shaibhir. 3. Is dócha go bhfuil dhá mhíle punt sa bhliain aige. 4. Beidh a mhac ina fheirmeoir, mar tá talamh acu i gcontae na Midhe. 5. Nuair a bhíodar ina ngarsúnaibh do bhíodar ina gcónaí ar an dtuaithe. 6. Théadh Mícheál ar scoil sa Daingean nuair a bhí sé ina gharsún bheag. 7. Nuair a bhíos im pháiste do bhíos im chónaí sa chathair. 8. Do thémís go dtí an tráigh gach Domhnach. 9. Tá an máistir ina mhúinteoir mhaith. 10. Beidh na garsúin ina scoláirí maithe. 11. Bhí an lá inné ina lá ana-fhliuch. 12. Bhí sé fuar ar maidin, ach tá sé go breá brothallach anois.

Exercise 26

A. They will begin. I would refuse. We shall tell. They would buy. You will finish. They began. We rise. He would refuse. They turned. He bought.

B. 1. I shall finish the work tomorrow. 2. She asked her father what was going on (happening). 3. Thomas has not got up yet, but he will get up soon. 4. They go off home after school. 5. My mother buys butter once a week. 6. When I am talking to Tim I will offer him ten pounds for the calf. 7. I will take that knife from the child or he will hurt himself. 8. Sing a song, Tom, and then we shall go home. 9. The fishermen began fishing early this morning. 10. We will begin tomorrow, with the help of God. 11. We collected the money before the people left. 12. There is a fair in the town once a month and a market once a week. 13. Years ago people used to spend winter evenings telling stories, but they gave up that custom. 14. I shall open the window and this smoke will go away. 15. They inquired when the music would begin. 16. It will begin when we are ready.

Exercise 27

A. 1. Tosnaímíd. 2. Críochnóid siad. 3. Níor dhiúltaigh sé. 4. Ar insis? 5. Do cheannaíodar. 6. Do cheannóimís. 7. An n-iompóidís? 8. Ar thosnaíodar? 9. Ní neosadh sé. 10. Gortóidh tú.

B. 1. Ceannód na leabhair amáireach. 2. Éireoimíd go moch agus críochnóimíd an obair. 3. Fiafród dem mháthair cé bheidh ag teacht. 4. D'iompaíodar an féar inné agus iompóid siad arís inniu é. 5. Tosnóidh an ceol nuair a bheidh na ceoltóirí ullamh. 6. Baileoimíd an t-airgead sara ligfimíd na daoine isteach. 7. D'oscail sé an leabhar agus thosnaigh sé ag léamh. 8. Nuair a bhíonn na hoícheanta fada imreann na daoine cártaí. 9. Ní imreoid siad aon chártaí anocht.

Exercise 28

	Masculine		Feminine
amhrán	boiscín	bó	dilseacht
tarbh	sicín	gairbhe	deirge
gairdín	feirmeoir	cumhracht	fuinseog
ceannaí	robálaí	ciaróg	fearúlacht
		cráin	an Spáinn
		Bóinn	giúis
		dair	piaseog
		ordóg	Sionainn

Exercise 29

A. 1. My two feet. 2. Her two eyes. 3. Your two hands. 4. His two ears. 5. That poor man has only one eye, God bless the mark! 6. John stayed (kneeling) on one knee for half an hour. 7. The old man turned his head to listen. 8. One shaft of that cart is broken. 9. His mother called John aside.

B. 1. There are big houses in the town. 2. The bank is between the post-office and the chapel. 3. The boys went down the street after the girls and stood at the door of the hall. 4. The hall has high windows and two big doors. 5. The dance was in progress when they arrived, and they bought tickets from the door-man. 6. No one was allowed in without a ticket. 7. I saw them going home a while ago. 8. I ran out of the room and hastened out on to the street. 9. I walked through the town and round the lake east¹ to the bridge. 10. My dog was with me. 11. I stood at the bridge and watched the fish down below me in the water. 12. I did not cross the river at all. 13. I turned back after a while. 14. When I was walking home across the fields, a rabbit jumped out of a hole, and the dog went after it but he did not overtake it.

¹ In Irish the direction is usually stated (as north, south, east or west).

Exercise 30

A. 1. A dhá chois. 2. Mo dhá shúil. 3. A dhá bróig. 4. Tá an seana-shaighdiúir ar leath-láimh. 5. Is fearr bheith ar leath-shúil ná bheith dall ar fad. 6. Leath-chúpla is ea an cailín sin.

B. 1. Amach liom as an dtigh. 2. Bhí sé dorcha amuigh, mar bhí na tráthnóintí ag dul i ngiorracht. 3. Do shiúlaíomair trasna na bpáirceanna agus anonn thar an ndroichead. 4. Do bhí seandúine ina shuí i n-aice an droichid. 5. Do rith an gadhar mórthimpeall na páirce i ndiaidh na gcoiníhí. 6. Ansan do shiúlaíos tríd an mbaile mór go dtí oifig an phoist, agus thánag abhaile gan mhoill. 7. Do bhuail do dheartháir umam sa tsráid. 8. D'imigh na cailíní go dtí an séipéal ó chianaibh. 9. Tá cuid den airgead cailte. 10. Do thóg sé den bhord é, agus chuir sé isteach i mbosca é a bhí fén ndriosúr.

Exercise 31

A. 1. Take¹ this sack from me and put it up on the loft. 2. They are lonely since Mary left them. 3. The policeman asked us what we wanted. 4. I shall wait for you if you like. 5. John showed me the new bicycle he has. 6. We went to Killarney yesterday, and we did not come home till this morning. 7. I shall ask him what he is doing. 8. Martin is a great rogue. 9. He is only a trickster, and he thinks too much of himself. 10. I will tell you something about him. 11. He asked us to come here today, but he did not wait for us. 12. He went out fishing early in the morning and he has not come back yet.

B. 1. Those flowers are withered. 2. I shall put them in the fire. 3. Do you like the smell of turf? 4. Yes, but wood is better as fuel. 5. They were exhausted after the race, and they went to bed. 6. She will come home at the end of the year. 7. He jumped the fence and fell on the flat of his back. 8. Was he hurt? 9. He was not in much pain, but he was ashamed. 10. Give me the boy's bicycle and I will go to Dingle. 11. The dogs have the bones. 12. Cobblers and tailors are good at telling stories.

¹ Contrast the use of bainim for taking by force (p.37), a distinction not made in English.

Exercise 32

A. 1. Tháinig Diarmaid isteach ar maidin inniu. 2. D'fhiafraíos de cad a bhí uaidh, ach níor inis sé dhom. 3. Chuaigh sé go Magh Chromtha tar éis dinnéir agus ní fhillfidh sé go dtí amáireach. 4. Níl a fhios agam cad tá sé a dhéanamh ann. 5. Chuaigh na buachaillí amach ag iascaireacht agus tháinig an bháisteach orthu. 6. Nuair a thánadar abhaile bhaineadar díobh na héadaí fliucha agus chuadar sa leabaidh. 7. Ní raibh Séamas i n-éineacht leo, mar bhí sé ag baint fhéir. 8. Beidh an féar go maith acu i mbliana. 9. Neosaidh sé deireadh an scéil duit nuair a raghair go dtí an tigh. 10. D'iarramair orthu dul go dtí an Daingean leis an im. 11. Níor fhéadadar é do dhíol anso sa tsráidbhaile. 12. Is deacair airgead do dhéanamh na laetheanta so.

B. 1. Do cheannaíomair ualach móna ó fhear an bháid. 2. Taitneann boladh na móna liom. 3. Is maith í an mhóin mar abhar tine. 4. Is fearr linn-ne an t-adhmad. 5. Cad a chosnaíonn punt caoireola? 6. Tá sí ana-dhaor anois; tá sí chomh daor le mairteoil. 7. Mac feirmeora is ea an buachaill sin agus is mian leis bheith ina mhúinteoir. 8. Tá sé go maith chun foghlama. 9. Raghaidh na saighdiúirí go Cill Dara Domhnach Cásca agus tiocfaid siad thar n-ais i ndeireadh na bliana. 10. Tá mórán dathanna ar an gcrios atá sí a dhéanamh. 11. An é sin tigh an tsiúinéara thall ansan i n-aice an tséipéil? 12. Ní hé; sin é tigh an dochtúra óig. 13. Do bhíos ag caint le mac an táilliúra agus deir sé go mbeidh a athair ag fanúint i gCill Airne do dtí deireadh na seachtaine. 14. Raghaimid go tigh Thomáis gcóir suipéir agus tiocfaimid thar n-ais roimh thitim na hoíche, agus tiocfaidh Tomás i n-éineacht linn.

Exercise 33

1. I got a letter from my mother this morning. 2. She has asked me to come home in a week. 3. I shall go by train from Macroom on Friday. 4. Are you going to leave me here? 5. No. You may come with me. 6. You will probably get a letter tomorrow. 7. Did you hear the story about the three people who went fishing yesterday? 8. Their canoe turned over and they swam ashore. 9. Do you know them? 10. I know one of them well, and I told him not to go out at all. 11. What is going on out on the road? 12. Do you not hear the noise? No. 13. The boys are east under the cliff throwing stones into the sea. 14. They will get sense with age (when they are older). 15. Can he be here in an hour? 16. Have you had any news from Martin since he went away? 17. No. Perhaps I shall get a letter from him before long. 18. We have heard nothing about him except that he is lodging with his brother. 19. That is good news, little as it is. 20. The longer he stays in the Gaeltacht, the better he will learn Irish. 21. Good as the turf is, coal is better. 22. They were all dancing, both boys and girls. 23. They broke my window before they left. 24. Do you know where they went? No.

Exercise 34

1. Tá inní orthu, mar fuaireadar drochscéal óna n-inín inniu. 2. Tá sí breoite agus ní fhéadfaidh sí teacht abhaile go dtí deireadh an mhí. 3. An bhfuil a fhios agat cad a bhí uirthi? Níl a fhios. 4. B'fhéidir go bhfaighimís litir amáireach uaithi. 5. Ní bhfuaireas aon scéal óm mhuintir le seachtain. 6. Dá luaithe a scríobhfaidh tú chútha is ea is fearr. 7. Gheobhaidh tú freagra, is dócha. 8. Táid siad go léir imithe, idir fhir agus mná. 9. D'iarr m'athair orm dul go dtí an siopa agus tobac d'fháil dó. 10. Fuaireas coróin uaidh. 11. Chuas síos go dtí an siopa. 12. Nuair a chuas isteach, dúirt an cailín liom: "Cad tá uait? 13. Ní bhfaighir aon tobac uaim-se, mar níl ionat ach leanbh. 14. Abair le t'athair teacht." 15. Do ghéir m'athair nuair a chuala sé an scéal.

16. Cé hé an fear san atá ina sheasamh os comhair na tine? 17. Níl aon aithne agam air. 18. Is é an máistir scoile é. 19. Nílid tagtha abhaile fós. 20. Beidh tuirse agus ocras orthu tar éis na hoibre. 21. Codlóid siad go maith anocht.

Exercise 35

A. 1. He came to us. 2. We went to him. 3. I shall put a topcoat under you on the grass. 4. Did she go away from you? 5. They will take off their wet shoes when they come in. 6. Keep away from them now! 7. She is tired after the work. She is only a child. 8. I saw him ahead of me on the road. 9. He made me laugh. 10. We shall use that wood for firing. 11. He went past us but he did not see us. 12. We shall put a little (lit. "a drop of") milk in the cup and we shall add water to it. 13. There will not be a drink for everyone. 14. The men have been saving hay since morning, and they are thirsty and hungry now. 15. Give them that butter-milk to drink and it will take their thirst away.

B. 1. That is our neighbour's land. 2. The blacksmith went into the forge. 3. There is a broken leg on that chair: I shall have to put a new one on it. 4. Are all the chairs here? Yes. 5. I have not seen my brothers yet today. 6. Have you seen them anywhere? 7. Tell them that I went to count the sheep. 8. I will. 9. A friend's advice is a great help. 10. The friends are gone away and the neighbours' houses are lonely. 11. I see the big hills but I do not see any houses on them. 12. I used to see your father often when he used to come here. 13. You will see him again this year, for he is coming at the end of the month. 14. Shall I see your mother too, or will she stay at home? 15. I shall tell her to come if she possibly can.

Exercise 36

A. 1. Raghad chútha. 2. Bhaineadar díobh a gcasóga. 3. Bainfead gáire asat. 4. D'imigh sí uathu. 5. An bhfuil aon obair le déanamh acu? 6. Tá an suipéar ite againn cheana féin. 7. Chuir sí plaincéad fúinn. 8. Cad tá oraibh? 9. Bhíos aim roimpi.

B. 1. Raghaidh mo chairde abhaile amáireach. 2. Tá an gabha sa cheártain. 3. Tá na caoirigh ag inníor sa pháirc i n-aipe an tí. 4. Do théimís go tigh comharsan gach tráth-nóna. 5. Tiocfaidh na comharsain go dtí ár dtigh-ne amáireach. 6. Chífead Mícheál ar maidin, agus neosaidh sé dhóibh é. 7. An bhfuil cathaoireacha againn i gcóir gach aon duine? 8. Tá drom na cathaoireach san briste. 9. Ní fheicim na cathaoireacha eile. 10. An bhfacaís i n-aon áit iad? 11. Ní fhaca. 12. Ar tháinig bean do charad fós? 13. Do tháinig. Tá sí ina seasamh amuigh i n-aipe an dorais. 14. An ndéarfad léi teacht isteach? 15. Abair. 16. Do chinn go minic í sarar phós sí, nuair a bhíomair ag foghlaim na teangan.

Exercise 37

A. 1. If you sow the seed, we shall reap the harvest. 2. Come early if you can! 3. If you give them enough to eat, they will be satisfied. 4. If they do their best, they will succeed; and if they don't they won't. 5. If he does not like to go with the others, he can go there alone. 6. If in fact he saw the accident, it is he who knows best what happened. 7. If we had (had) an opportunity, we should do (or "have done") the work in time. 8. If you (had) understood him correctly, you would take (have taken) his advice. 9. If yesterday had been fine, we should have been out in the garden. 10. If tomorrow is wet, we shall stay at home. 11. If in fact the land were for sale, I should buy it. 12. If I were not (had not been) there, I could not welcome (have welcomed) him. 13. If I had not been there early, I should not have seen him at all. 14. How could a person understand Irish unless he learned it?

B. 1. We shall probably have frost tonight. 2. Why has John gone to town? 3. He thought that perhaps Kathleen would be coming home. 4. We thought she would not come for a fortnight. 5. I thought she would be here by evening. 6. Perhaps she will come yet. 7. Why did she not stay at home? 8. Her mother says it is hard to satisfy her. 9. She was afraid that Mary would be lonely. 10. How does she know that Mary will be there to meet her? 11. She wrote to her and said she would be expecting her. 12. She will wait until Kathleen is with her. 13. Kathleen ought to be delighted. 14. I was not long there when I became lonely. 15. I failed to do the work although I did my best. 16. I went up to him in order to speak to him. 17. It was as well for him to finish the work, since he began it at all. 18. I did not go there as I had business at home. 19. It was so dark that we thought night had come. 20. The wise man is silent when he has nothing to say.

Exercise 38

A. 1. Má thagann tú go luath amáireach tabharfad duit an t-airgead. 2. Thabharfainn duit inné é dá dtaghá i n-am. 3. Tair más féidir leat é, agus maran féidir, raghad-sa chút. 4. Má labhrann sé go mall, b'fhéidir go dtuigfimis é. 5. Más mian leo teacht, beidh fáilte rompu, ach ní iarrfad-sa orthu teacht. 6. Cad 'na thaobh go n-íosfaidís feoil más fearr leo iasc? 7. Dá ndéarfaimís é sin chuirfeadh sé ana-fhearg orthu. 8. Más rud é go ndúradar é sin ní raibh an ceart acu. 9. Mara mbeadh go bhfaca ann é, ní chreidfinn go raibh sé i mBaile Átha Cliath. 10. Conas a chloisfidís an scéal mara mbeadh gur innis duine éigin dóibh é?

B. 1. Cad 'na thaobh go bhfuil Máirtín ag dul go Corcaigh? 2. Is dóigh leis go mbeidh an bád ag dul ó dheas seachtain ón lá inniu. 3. Deir sé gur mian leis dul i n-éineacht lena dheartháir. 4. Tá a fhios agam gur mhaith leis dul ann, ach caithfidh sé fanúint go dtí amanathar. 5. Is eagal leo go gcreidfidh daoine an rud a deir sé. 6. Abair leis go bhfanfaimíd go dtí go mbeidh sé ullamh. 7. Cad 'na thaobh nár chuais ar scoil inné? 8. Deir an máistir ná rabhais ann. 9. Ba chóir go mbeadh náire ort! 10. Nuair a chonaic sé na fir ag teacht, d'éirigh sé chun fáilte a chur rompu. 11. Do thugamair béile dhóibh sarar imíodar. 12. Níor fhanadar i bhfad mar bhí tuirse orthu. 13. Bhí an oíche chomh dorcha gur chuamair amú. 14. Níor cheannaíomair aon ní toisc ná raibh aon airgead againn. 15. Cé go bhfuil misneach agat ní puinn céille agat. 16. Bíonn na páistí ag gearán nuair ná bíonn aon ní le déanamh acu.

Exercise 39

1. What would you like for dinner? 2. Do you like fish? 3. No; I prefer eggs with potatoes. 4. Is the butter on the table? 5. I am afraid it isn't. 6. I forgot to buy it when I was in the shop. 7. I am sorry I did not remind you of it, but I did not see you before you went off. 8. Would you mind closing the window? 9. No, but I can't. 10. We may as well do a bit of work. 11. Do you think it will be cold this evening? 12. Shall we need a fire? 13. No. I don't mind the cold. 14. Do you know this place well? 15. Indeed I do, but I do not know where the hospital is. 16. I can ask someone. 17. I used to know a doctor there, but he died last year. 18. Everyone liked him and he well deserved it. 19. He used to do his best for anyone who was sick, and no one grudged him the money he asked.

Exercise 40

1. Ba mhaith liom litir a scríobh, ach ní féidir liom peann d'fháil. 2. Cheannaigh m'athair ceann dom ach tá sé cailte agam. 3. Níor mhiste dhuit ceann eile a cheannach. 4. Is leor aon cheann amháin dom. 5. Is fada liom fanúint go dtí go bhfaighead arís é. 6. Dob' ionadh leo go rabhamair chomh tuirseach. 7. Cé acu is fearr leat, té nó bainne? 8. Is cuma liom. 9. Bainfidh aon tsaghas dí an tart díom. 10. Gheobhaimíd go léir bás, ach níl a fhios againn cathain ná canad. 11. Is maith leis an ndochtúir a dhícheall a dhéanamh dúinn go léir. 12. Ní miste leis fanúint leat. 13. Is trua linn moill a chur air. 14. Ar mhiste leat an doras a dhúnadh? 15. Níor mhiste, ach ní dóigh liom go bhfuil sé ar oscailt.

16. An maith le Micheál iasc i gcóir suipéir? 17. Níl a fhios agam. Is fearr liom-sa uibhe.

18. An bhfuil a fhios agat cá bhfuil an stáisiún? 19. Níl a fhios, ach féadfaidh mé a fhiafraí den gharda. 20. Tá eolas an bhaile go maith aige.

Exercise 41.

1. When he went out this morning, he forgot to shut the door.
2. I did not recognise the master when I saw him at the station.
3. You did not see him at all.
4. I asked him a question and he was not able to answer it.
5. What did you ask him?
6. I had questions to put to him about the schools.
7. People say that the classes are too big, and that we shall have to bring in more teachers to do the work.
8. How many schools are there?
9. There are two, one for the boys and one for the girls.
10. It is difficult to find teachers these days.
11. I have friends who would like to be teachers.
12. For God's sake ask them to write to me, for I shall have jobs for them!
13. A woman's advice is bad advice.
14. We had cows and sheep to sell last week, and my wife was not willing to let them go without getting a good price.
15. Women hear too many stories and too many opinions.
16. There are fine forests on the mountains.
17. Some of the trees fell during the storm.
18. The roots are up out of the ground, and branches broken on trees all around them.
19. We saw them as we were coming from the town.
20. Fishing-boats come into the harbours of West Cork with mackerel in summer and with herrings in autumn.
21. Their sails are set to go out again after spending a day in Glandore or Baltimore, and the nets ready.

Exercise 42

1. Chuamair amach ó Chuan Dor inné i mbád iascaigh.
2. Bhí trí seolta uirthi agus do bhí cóir againn.
3. Bhí sí taobh theas d'Oileán Cléire fé cheann dhá uair an chloig.
4. Chuir na hiascairí amach na líonta, agus d'itheamair an suipéar ansan.
5. Do chodlaíomair go léir go maidin, agus le héiri gréine do thairicíodar isteach na líonta.
6. Do bhí

sé bhairille de scadánaibh againn le tabhairt abhaile.

7. Tá trí scoil sa pharóiste seo agus tá sé rang i ngach scoil acu. 8. Cé hiad na múinteoirí atá sa scoil nua? 9. Is é Mícheál Ó Súilleabháin an t-ard-mháistir, agus tá Séamas Ó Séaghdha mar chúntóir aige. 10. Ar thugais fé ndeara na crainn mhóra le hais an bhóthair agus tú ag teacht ón Aifreann? 11. Do thit dhá cheann acu aréir, agus tá craobhacha briste ar na cinn eile. 12. Beidh abhar tine againn i gcóir an gheimhridh gan aon ghual a cheannach. 13. Tá scéalta ag gach aon duine i dtaobh na stoirme. 14. Tá baid gan seolta ins na cuantaibh. 15. Gheobhaimid cúnamh ós na comharsain chun na gcaorach a thabhairt isteach. 16. Bhí na ba istigh sarar éirigh an ghaoth. 17. Cá bhfuil cró na mbó? 18. Tá sé ar an dtaobh thall de chruaich na móna.

Exercise 43

A. 1. The door is shut every evening. 2. They used to be beaten (struck). 3. People will go. 4. The money would be found (got). 5. The eggs were broken. 6. Bread is made of flour. 7. The oats is threshed with a flail. 8. The cows were milked. 9. The people were seen. 10. They used to be let loose.

B. 1. The cows were put out, and the horses were brought in from the field. 2. When will the pigs be sent to the fair? 3. People used to go to Mass at Kilmovee long ago, but we have a chapel in this village now. 4. The like of it never was seen. 5. They were told to go to talk to the stranger. 6. Why was I not told that you were here? 7. If the truth were concealed, perhaps a lie would be told. 8. He stayed at home for fear people would be making fun of him. 9. The children were told not to go near the river. 10. They were asked to come home to their dinner. 11. Even after I have done my best, people are not grateful to me. 12. It is a proverb: "He who is up, his health is drunk, and he who is down is trampled under foot". 13. The proverb cannot be gainsaid.

Exercise 44

A. 1. Do díoladh é, 2. Do ceannaíodh iad. 3. Do marófaí sinn. 4. Ní fhacthas í. 5. Do cailleadh an t-airgead. 6. Gheofar na leabhair. 7. Do thánathas. 8. Do scaoileadh amach na gadhair.

B. 1. Deintear bróga de leathar. 2. Deintí d'adhmaid iad fadó. 3. Téitear go dtí an tábhairne uaireanta tar éis an aonaigh. 4. Ní fhacthas na fir sin riamh roimhc sin. 5. Dúradh linn teacht anso tar éis dinnéir. 6. Cathain a díolfar na beithígh sin? 7. Má dheineann tú é sin, déarfur gur le héad a dheinis é. 8. Cad 'na thaobh go mbítear ag gearán i gcónaí? 9. Dá neosfaí an scéal mar ba cheart ní bheadh aon díobháil ann. 10. Ní feicfead a leithéid go brách arís. 11. Deirtear nach ualach do dhuine an léann. 12. Cathain a dúradh é sin leat? 13. Seanfhocal is ea é a cloistear go minic sa Ghaeltacht.

Exercise 45

1. Chífid siad. 2. Do chonaiceabhair (chonaic sibh). 3. Do chífinn. 4. Raghaimid. 5. Do thánadar. 6. An raghfá? 7. An ndúirt sé? 8. Tiocfaimid. 9. Ní fheicfidís. 10. Déarfá. 11. Dúradar. 12. Cloisfidh mé. 13. Ar chualabhair? 14. Ní fheicim. 15. Gheibhimid (Faighimid). 16. Fuaireamair. 17. An bhfaigheann tú? 18. Gheobhad. 19. Ní bhfaighead. 20. Dúradar ná faighfeá é, ach cloisim-se go bhfaighir.

Exercise 46

1. We asked her to wait for us. 2. You told me not to come. 3. It is hard to believe that. 4. The buyer wanted to buy the horse from me. 5. They came here to collect money. 6. It is a great pity that the day is so wet. 7. Is it not a great wonder that they have not come? 8. It would be better for the children to keep away from the bull. 9. They went to Cork to spend the holiday there. 10. The old man is sitting by the fire. 11. We shall ask him to tell a story. 12. We shall come back some other night to hear the end of the story. 13. My mother will be asleep when we reach home. 14. We forgot to bring the money with us.

Exercise 47

1. Beid siad ag dul go Cill Airne amáireach. 2. D'iarras orthu siúcra agus plúr do cheannach dom. 3. Beimíd ag fanúint leo ag an stáisiún. 4. Duart leo gan glaoch chun mo dhearthár, mar tá sé as baile. 5. Nuair a bheir ag teacht thar n-ais, ná dearmhad Peadar agus Síle do thabhairt leat. 6. Tá an ceannaí tagtha chun féachaint ar an gcapall. 7. Nach trua gan m'athair do bheith anso roimhe? 8. Níor mhaith liom an capall do dhíol gan é do bheith ann. 9. Déarfad leis an gceannaí teacht lá éigin eile. 10. B'fhéidir go bhfuil gnó aige le déanamh i n-áit éigin eile. 11. D'iarramair ar an seandúine scéal d'insint dúinn, ach bhí sé an-fhada agus níor fhanamair chun a dheireadh do chloisint. 12. Bhí muintir an tí ina gcodladh nuair a shroiseamair an baile.

Exercise 48

1. Where did they hear those fine songs? 2. There were young girls and old women working together. 3. I saw the small cups that you bought yesterday, and they are certainly pretty cups. 4. Where are those sweet cakes that you brought from the shop? 5. I put them into those white boxes over there. 6. There are two black horses down on the road, (and they are) nearly dead with hunger. 7. There were always generous men in this district, but it is hard for them to be generous without money. 8. Those heavy chairs are too big for this room of mine. 9. Those songs are very sweet, but the old songs are finer than they. 10. William is more like his father than Thomas. 11. That board is too wide, and the other is wider still. 12. Do you see that bald man and the young red-haired man beside him? 13. Those are my father and my nephew. 14. Distant hills are green. 15. The sun is brighter than the moon. 16. That table is big and wide, but the low one is cheaper than it. 17. Which of them do you prefer? 18. The dearer one is the more lasting. 19. My father is younger than your father, but Dermot is the strongest man of them all. 20. Coal is heavier than turf. 21. Last night was darker than tonight. 22. The lane is narrower and rougher than the main road. 23. It was cold this morning, but it is still colder now. 24. The heaviest hammer is the best hammer. 25. Give me the lowest stool, and I shall put my back against the wall.

26. I borrowed that book (got that book on loan) from Tom's sister. 27. I shall give it to you tomorrow. 28. The cow calved last night, and I thought she would not calve for another week. 29. They will not give you enough to eat in town. 30. I shall eat enough, or as much as I can anyway. 31. They do not eat as much there as we eat here. 32. I shall give them their choice, to go away or to stay at home.

Exercise 49

A. 1. Beirimíd. 2. Do rugadar. 3. Do thugais. 4. Ní thabharfaid siad. 5. Déanfaidh sé. 6. Íosfaid siad. 7. Íosfar iad. 8. Tugadh anso é. 9. Ní déanfar é.

B. 1. Cár cheannaís na cupáin mhóra san? 2. Cheannaíos na cinn mhóra sa tsráidbhaile, ach is i gCorcaigh a fuaireas na cinn bheaga uaine. 3. Do bhí na garsúin mhóra agus na fir láidre ag obair i dteannta a chéile ag buaint an arbhair. 4. Cathain a hosclófar na scoileanna nua? An tseachtain seo chúinn. 5. Beidh múinteoirí maithe agus scoileanna breátha againn ansan. 6. Tá an chathaoir sin ana-chompordach, ach tá an ceann eile níos daingne. 7. Tá sí ró-mhór; is fearr liom an ceann dearg. 8. Is éadroime an t-adhmad ná an t-uisce. 9. Is sine sinn-ne ná iad-san. 10. Is é seo an bóthar is sia. 11. Is é an fear is sine sa tsráidbhaile é. 12. Thugamair an chuid ba thrioma den mhóin dosna daoine ba shine. 13. Is daoire an chruithneacht ná an eorna. 14. An bhfuil an mála so níos troime ná an ceann eile? 15. Thugadar na málaí dubha so ó Chorcaigh inné. 16. Nuair a bheidh an citeal ar fiuchadh agat, íosfaimíd ár suipéar. 17. Cé acu is fearr leat, iasc úr nó iasc goirt? 18. Is é an t-iasc goirt mo rogha-sa. 19. Tabharfaidh sé an t-airgead dóibh nuair a thiocfaid siad isteach. 20. Déanfaimíd ár ndícheall chun é a shásamh. 21. Fuaireadar an dá chasúr bheaga ar iasacht ó Sheán, ach níor dheineadar aon obair fós leo. 22. Déanfaid siad na cístí milse amáireach agus tabharfaid siad dosna páisti beaga iad.

Exercise 50

1. Is mó Baile Átha Cliath ná Corcaigh
Tá Baile Átha Cliath níos mó ná Corcaigh.
2. Is lú an domhan ná an ghrian
Tá an domhan níos lú ná an ghrian.
3. Is sia (faide) an tSionainn ná an Bhóinn Tá an tSionainn níos sia (faide) ná an Bhóinn.
4. Is crua an t-iarann ná an t-ór
Tá an t-iarann níos crua ná an t-ór.
5. Is troime an t-uisce ná an t-aer
Tá an t-uisce níos troime ná an t-aer.
6. Is treise an tarbh ná an fear
Tá an tarbh níos treise ná an fear.
7. Is cliste an cailín (garsún) ná an garsún (cailín)
Tá an cailín (garsún) níos cliste ná an garsún (cailín).
8. Is doimhne an fharraige ná an loch
Tá an fharraige níos doimhne ná an loch.

Exercise 51

1. Are these apples dearer than those? 2. Those are the dearest. 3. Mary is the prettiest girl in the village. 4. Which of them is the cleverest boy? 5. Peter is the cleverest of them, but Joseph is almost as clever as he. 6. There is a higher tree than that in our garden. 7. The driver must be more careful at night than he would be by day. 8. I am always careful. 9. I am going fast now, but I have a good view of the road. 10. We went into the house to dinner and stayed inside for half an hour. 11. We came out then and stayed outside till evening. 12. She will go upstairs to clean the rooms, and she will be a while above. 13. She will come down then and stay below. 14. Run east to the well and bring back a bucket of water. 15. When I was going west along the road, the priest was coming towards me.

Exercise 52

1. Tá siúcra níos saoire anois ná mar a bhí sí anuraidh. 2. An bhfuil Tomás níos aoirde ná Máire? 3. Is é Micheál an té is aoirde acu. 4. Déanfaidh Seán an obair go maith, ach is fearr a dhéanfaidh Micheál é. 5. Deineann Maighréad a cuid ceachtanna níos cúramaí ná mar a dheineann a deirfiúr iad. 6. An bhfuilir-se chomh leisciúil led' dheartháir? 7. Ní fhéachann an garsún so chomh láidir lena charaid. 8. Is é Séamas an té is láidre (treise) dhíobh go léir. 9. D'fhreagraíos chomh maith is d'fhéadas. 10. An bhfuil an scian san níos géire ná an ceann so? 11. Is teo an sáile ná an fíor-uisce. 12. Is giorra an bóthar soir ná an bóthar siar. 13. Is trioma an t-ardán ná an t-ísleán. 14. Nuair a bhíomair ag dul i n-airde an staighre, do bhí Séamas ag teacht anuas.

Exercise 53

1. Those two houses up on the hill belong to the O'Briens. 2. Is the land in front of the houses theirs? 3. No; they have rented it from another farmer. 4. The horse I had yesterday belongs to John MacDermot. 5. Martin O'Brien has him today, for he has no horse of his own. 6. He used to have a horse, however. 7. Who owns that sail-boat? 8. It belongs to my brother, and he has had it only a year. 9. He will probably sell it next year, if he finds someone to buy it from him. 10. How much money did he pay for it? 11. He paid thirty pounds for it, and it was not worth that much. 12. It was mine years ago, but I have no boat now. 13. Have they paid for the turf yet? 14. No, because it is wet and they are not satisfied with it. 15. We saw Kathleen O'Dwyer and Brigid MacDermot going into O'Sullivan's house a while ago. 16. Where is Thomas O'Donoghue's threshing-machine working? 17. I have not seen it since morning. 18. I saw it last night on Conor Hayes's farm.

Exercise 54

1. Is linn-ne an pháirc atá ar aghaidh an tí, ach is le feirmeoir eile an talamh atá ar chúl an tí. 2. Ní liom-sa é; is ar cíos atá sé agam uaidh. 3. Cé leis na beithígh atá sa pháirc mhóir? 4. Níl a fhios agam. 5. Tá cúpla bullán againn sa bhuaile, ach ní linn-ne na beithígh eile sin. 6. Ar dhíol Séamas Ó Súilleabháin as an dtigh nua fós? 7. Do dhíol, ach níor dhíol sé fós as an dtalamh. 8. An mór an t-airgead atá agat air? 9. Cúig céad punt. 10. Níl an méid sin airgid aige. 11. Caithfidh sé é fháil ar iasacht. 12. Tá sé le fáil sa bhanc ar a sé sa chéad. 13. Cá bhfuil tigh Dhomhnaill Uí Chonaill? 14. Tá sé i gContae Chiarraí, siar ó Chill Airne. 15. Chonaiceadar Seán Mac Carthaigh ag teacht amach as tigh mhuintir Cheallaigh ar maidin.

Exercise 55

1. I bought those cattle for twenty-three pounds each. 2. How many pens are there in that box? 3. There are fifteen in it. 4. I gave the third part of the money to my father. 5. How much did you give him? Fifty-three pounds. 6. There are three hundred and sixty-five days in the year. 7. There are thirty days in April, and thirty-one days in May. 8. They came on Wednesday, the fifteenth of March, and they will go away on Thursday, the second of June. 9. The seed is sown in Spring and the crop is cut in Autumn. 10. There are five carpenters and three masons working in that house. 11. How many musicians were playing in the hall tonight? 12. We saw thirteen there, and there were four others whom we could not see.

Exercise 56

1. An mór a thugais don fhear ar an gcapall san? Naoi bpunt déag is trí fichid. 2. An mó réal atá i bpunt? Daichead. 3. Beidh m'aintin ag teacht ar an dara lá déag de Lúnasa.

4. Is é an Domhnach so chúinn an chéad lá de Mheitheamh. 5. A seacht fé cheathair sin a hocht is fiche, dhá scilling agus tuistiún. 6. A cúig fichead agus a haondéag sin sédeag ar fhichid. 7. Is í an Aoine an séú lá den tseachtain. 8. Is é an seachtú lá déag de Mhárta Lá le Pádraig. 9. Chím beirt fhear agus triúr buachaillí (garsún) ag teacht trasna na páirce. 10. Tá cúigear sagart sa pharóiste. 11. Níl ach deich lá fichead (ar fhichid) san Aibreán, sa Mheitheamh agus i mí Mheán an Fhómhair. 12. Is é an Satharn an ceathrú lá de mhí na Samhna. 13. An mó iascaire a chonaicís thíos ag an gcé anocht? Mórshéisear.

Exercise 57

1. Give us two glasses of whiskey if you please. 2. Put on your overcoat and let us go home now. 3. Let him do as he likes, but let him not blame me! 4. Let them not lose the money! 5. Bring the children with you, and do not delay on the road! 6. Be in before ten o'clock! 7. Let them come home with you! 8. Break those sods and set a fire. 9. Do not light the lamp for a while, for it is not dark yet. 10. Go east to the shop and buy me a shilling's worth of sweets.

Exercise 58

1. Cuir litir chun Cormaic agus abair leis airgead a chur chúinn. 2. Téir go dtí oifig an phoist agus ceannaigh luach coróineach de stampaí. 3. Brostaigh ort, agus ná bí déanach ón suipéar! 4. Bíodh cluiche cártaí againn sara dtiocfaidh na stróinséirí. 5. Cuiridh amach na gadhair agus dúnaidh doirse na stáblaí, mar beidh sé dorcha gan mhoill. 6. Deinidís a ndícheall, agus ní bheidh aon mhilleán againn orthu. 7. Fiafraídís de Liam cár fhág sé na maidí rámha, agus raghaimíd go léir ag iascaireacht.

Exercise 59

1. That is the man we saw at the fair. 2. It was Bridget who broke the window. 3. He who solves the question first will get the prize. 4. Many a man has money and it does him no good. 5. What district are you from? 6. From Corkaguiney 7. Did you see the woman that I was talking about? 8. The people who talk most are those who do the least work. 9. Go where you will be best able to earn your living. 10. I must speak to the man whose son is in hospital. 11. "What can't be cured must be endured". 12. The money I thought I had lost is here in my pocket. 13. The people who came earliest were the last to go away.

Exercise 60

1. Cé acu capall a cheannaís ar an aonach? 2. Buachail gurbh ainm dó Seán Ó Donnabháin dob é an scoláire ab fhearr sa rang é. 3. Cá bhfuil an chasóg a thugas ar iasacht do Mhícheál? 4. Na bróga a dúraís a bhí glanta agat, táid siad salach fós. 5. Is mó duine gurbh fhearr (go mb'fhearr) leis lionn ná fuiscí, agus tá daoine ná hólfadh i n-aon chor iad. 6. Tiocfaidh sé nuair is lú a bheidh coinne againn leis. 7. Sin é an fear gur cheannaíomair an tigh uaidh. 8. Cad is ainm dó? 9. Is dóigh liom gur Séamas Ó Súilleabháin is ainm dó. 10. Sin é an fear go bhfuil a mhac ina dhochtúir i gCorcaigh. 11. Cad é an ceantar gurb as dó? 12. Ó Thiobrad Árann. 13. Is é Diarmaid is fearr a dhein an obair, ach is é is lú a fuair creidiúint.

Exercise 61

1. James and I went to Dingle yesterday and we met William Murphy. 2. He is a nephew of Mary O'Donnell. 3. "How are you?" said he. "It is a long time since I saw you". 4. "Why", said I to him, "don't you come to visit us?" 5. "I rarely go to town because I find the journey long when I have no business there". 6. He began to ask me questions as though he did not know me at all. 7. Did you ever hear the like? He is a queer fellow. 8. He told me that new houses are being built (made) on Strand Road and that he thinks that he will get one of them. 9. I went away from him lest he should make me angry. 10. I only talked very little with him. 11. I came home on the bus and I was here at six o'clock. 12. I almost fell getting down from the bus, but it happened that my brother was waiting for me and he was able to catch me.

Exercise 62

1. Bhíos féin agus Séamas Ó Murchadha i gCill Airne Déardaoin, agus casadh iníon dearthár do Shéamas orainn. 2. Níor aithníos ar dtúis í, agus níor aithin sise mise ach chomh beag; ach nuair a labhair sí le Séamas bhí a fhios agam cérbh í féin. 3. Is i gCorcaigh a chónaíonn sí anois, agus ní thagann sí go Cill Airne ach amháin chun laetheanta saoire a chaitheamh ann. 4. “Ní fhéadam teacht níos minicí,” adúirt sí, “mar is fada liom an turas agus is mór liom an costas.” 5. Do chaitheamair an lá i dteannta a chéile, agus um thráthnóna chuamair go dtí an stáisiún i n-éineacht léi. 6. “Go mbeire Dia slán abhaile thú,” arsa Séamas. 7. “Ná dearmhad teacht ar cuairt chúinn sara fada.” 8. “Mheasas gur labhair sí fé mar ná taitnfeadh an chathair léi,” arsa mise nuair a bhí sí imithe. 9. “B’fhéidir gur uaig-neas atá uirthi,” arsa Séamas. 10. “Tá áthas orm gur ar an dtuaithe atáim im chónaí.” 11. Ba dhóbair dúinn bheith déanach don bhus, ach tharla go raibh slua mór daoine ag feitheamh leis, agus chuir san moill air.

APPENDIX

Declension of Nouns

There are five declensions of nouns, and they are distinguished by the formation of the genitive singular. The first and second declensions are given in Lesson I.

THIRD DECLENSION. The gen. sg. is formed by adding -a.

Words ending in a consonant, broad or slender. If the final consonant is slender in the nom. sg., it becomes broad before the -a of the genitive (see p. 4), and the preceding vowel is subject to certain changes:

u(i) > o; fuil f. blood, g. fola; sruth m. stream, g. srotha; cuid f. part, g. coda.

i(o) > ea; crios m. belt, g. creasa; sioc m. frost, g. seaca; mil f. honey, g. meala.

The formation of the plural divides the declension into five classes:

I. The plural is formed by adding -a

cleas m. trick	g.sg. cleasa	pl. cleasa
gamhain m. calf	gamhna	gamhna

The gen. pl. in this class drops the -a, leaving a final broad consonant. In all the other classes, which form weak plurals,¹ the gen. pl. is the same as the nom. pl.

II. The plural is formed by adding -(a)i

- i agent-words in -éir, -óir, -úir (all m.)
- ii abstract nouns in -acht (mostly f.)
- iii a few other nouns

¹ The "weak" plural endings, common to many declensions, are -í, -acha, -anna, -tha (-ta), -the (-te), and they remain in the genitive case.

siúnéir m. carpenter	g.sg.	siúnéara	pl.	siúinéirí
bádóir m. boatman		bádóra		bádóirí
táilliúir m. tailor		táilliúra		táilliúirí
dochtúir m. doctor		dochtúra		dochtúirí
saighdiúir m. soldier		saighdiúra		saighdiúirí
áilleacht f. beauty		áilleachta		áilleachtaí
beannacht f. blessing		beannachta		beannachtaí
iasacht f. loan		iasachta		iasachtaí
buachail m. boy, lad		buachalla		buachailí

III. The plural is formed by adding -anna

Monosyllables tend to form this plural

bláth m. flower	g.sg.	blátha	pl.	bláthanna
cath m. battle		catha		cathanna
dath m. colour		datha		dathanna
sruth m. stream		srotha		srothanna
tráigh f. shore		trágha, trá,		trághanna, tránna

IV. The plural is formed by adding -acha

Some nouns ending in -ir, and a few others, form this plural.

altóir f. altar	g.	altóra	pl.	altóracha
anam m. soul		anama		anamnacha
onóir f. honour		onóra		onóracha

V. The pl. is formed by adding -ta.

bliain f. year	g.	bliana	pl.	blianta
gleann m. valley, glen		gleanna		gleannta

FOURTH DECLENSION. The gen. sg. is the same as the nom.

Words ending in a vowel (except those which belong to the fifth declension), and diminutives in -ín. Agent-words in -í, -aire, abstract nouns in -e formed from adjectives (all fem.), and some loan-words belong to this declension.

The formation of the plural divides the declension into two classes:

I. The plural is formed by adding -í

Nouns ending in a short vowel, and diminutives in -in.

aiste f. essay, article	aistí
file m. poet	filí
iascaire m. fisherman	iascairí
mála m. bag	málaí
tiarna m. lord	tiarnaí
cailín m. girl	cailíní
sicín m. chicken	sicíní
ticéad m. ticket	ticéadaí

Exceptions. Some words ending in -le or -ne form the plural by adding -te, with syncope: baile m. “village”, bailte; míle m. “thousand, mile”, mílte; léine f. “shirt, chemise”, léinte; líne f. “line”, línite; tine f. “fire”, tinte.

Irregular plurals are: duine m. “person”, daoine; oíche f. “night” oicheanta; teanga f. “tongue”, teangacha.

II. The plural is formed by adding -the.

Nouns ending in -í or -aoi; -í is shortened before -the.

gréasaí m. cobbler	gréasaithe
gadaí m. thief	gadaithe
croí m. heart	croithe
dlí f. law	dlithe
ní m. thing	nithe
rí m. king	rithe
laoi f. lay, ballad	laoithe

FIFTH DECLENSION. The gen. sg. ends in a broad consonant [-ach, -d or -n(n)], and there is a separate form for the dative sg. This declension may be regarded as a collection of irregular nouns. They have, however, a common feature in the gen. sg. In the classes with strong plurals (I and II), the gen. pl. is the same as the gen. sg.

The formation of the plural divides the declension into three classes:

I. The plural is formed by making the broad consonant slender.

caora f. sheep	g. caorach	d. caoirigh	pl. caoirigh
comharsa f. neighbour	comharsan	comharsain	comharsain
cú f. hound	con	coin	coin
fiche m. twenty, a score	fichead	fichid	fichid
lacha f. duck	lachan	lachain	lachain

II. The plural is formed by adding -e to the gen. sg., with syncope.

abha f. river	g. abhann	abhainn	pl. aibhne
gabha m. blacksmith	gabhmán		gaibhne
cara m. & f. friend	carad	caraid	cairde

III. The plural is formed by adding -acha.

(i) Nouns ending in -il, -in or -ir, with gen. sg. in -ach

riail f. rule	rialach	rialacha
cáin f. tax	cánach	cánacha
cathair f. city	cathrach	cathracha
cathaoir f. chair	cathaoireach	cathaoireacha
láir f. mare	lárach	láiracha

(ii) Nouns of relationship

The words for “father”, “mother” and “brother” have a peculiar formation in the gen. sg.

athair m. father	g. athar	pl. aithreacha
máthair f. mother	máthar	máithreacha
deartháir m. brother	dearthár	deartháracha

The word for “sister” is irregular:

deirfiúr f. sister	g. deirféar	d. deirfír	pl. deirféaracha
------------------------------	-------------	------------	------------------

Note also:

teanga f. tongue	g. teangan	d. teangain	pl. teangacha
-------------------------	------------	-------------	---------------

First Conjugation of Stems ending in a long Vowel.

The stem ends historically in gh which has disappeared between vowels but remains in the two forms in which the bare stem appears, namely the 2 sg. imperative and the 3 sg. past. Where the vowel preceding the original gh was short, it remains short in these forms, and before t.

crúim (crúigh) "I milk"

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	crúim	do chrúinn	do chrús
2	{ crúir	do chrúitheá	do chrúis
	{ crúinn tú
3	crún sé	do chrúdh sé	do chrúigh sé
Pl. 1	crúimíd	do chrúimis	do chrúmair
2	crúinn sibh	do chrúdh sibh	do chrúigh sibh
3	crúid	do chrúidís	do chrúdar
	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	crúfad	do chrúfainn
2	crúfair	do chrúfá
3	crúfaidh sé	do chrúfadh sé
Pl. 1	crúfaimíd	do chrúfaimís
2	crúfaidh sibh	do chrúfadh sibh
3	crúfaid	do chrúfaidís
Pass.-Impers.
	Present	Imperfect	Past
	crúitear	do crúití	do crúdh
	Future	Conditional
	crúfar	do crúfaí
		Present	Past
	Imperative	Subjunctive	Subjunctive
Sg. 1	crúim	crúd	crúinn
2	crúigh	crúir	crúitheá
3	crúdh sé	crú sé	crúdh sé

Pl. 1	crúimís	crúimíd	crúimís
2	crúidh	crú sibh	crúdh sibh
3	crúidís	crúid, crú siad	crúdís
Pass.-Impers.	crúitear	crúitear	crúití
		Participle	Verbal Noun
		crúite	crú

fím (figh) “I weave”

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	fím	d’fhínn	d’fhíos
2	{ fír fionn tú	d’fhítheá	d’fhís
3	fionn sé	d’fhíodh sé	d’fhigh sé
Pl. 1	fímíd	d’fhímís	d’fhíomair
2	fionn sibh	d’fhíodh sibh	d’fhíobhair (d’fhigh sibh)
3	fíd	d’fhídís	d’fhíodar
	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	fífead	d’fhífinn
2	fífir	d’fhífeá
3	fífidh sé	d’fhífeadh sé
Pl. 1	fífimíd	d’fhífimís
2	fífidh sibh	d’fhífeadh sibh
3	fífid	d’fhífidís
Pass.-Impers.	Present	Imperfect	Past
	fítear	do fítí	do fíodh
	Future	Conditional
	fífear	do fífí

Imperative		Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg.	1 fíim	fíod	fíinn
	2 fíigh	fíir	fítheá
	3 fíodh sé	fí sé	fíodh sé
Pl.	1 fíimís	fíimíd	fíimís
	2 fíidh	fí sibh	fíodh sibh
	3 fídís	fíd	fídís
Pass.-Impers.	fítear	fítear	fítí
	Participle	Verbal Noun
	fite	fí

Second Conjugation

(a) diúltaím (diúltaigh) “I refuse”

		Indicative
		Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg.	1 diúltaím	do dhiúltaínn	dhiúltaíos
	2 diúltair	do dhiúltaítheá	dhiúltaís
	3 diúltaíonn sé	do dhiúltaíodh sé	do dhiúltaigh sé
Pl.	1 diúltaímíd	do dhiúltaímís	do dhiúltaíomair
	2 diúltaíonn sibh	do dhiúltaíodh sibh	do dhiúltaíobhair
	3 diúltaíd	do dhiúltaídís	do dhiúltaíodar
Pass.-Impers.	diúltaítear	do diúltaítí	do diúltaíodh
		Conditional
Sg.	1 diúltód	do dhiúltóinn
	2 diúltóir	do dhiúltófá
	3 diúltóidh sé	do dhiúltódh sé

Pl. 1	diúltóimid	do dhiúltóimis
2	diúltóidh sibh	do dhiúltóidh sibh
3	diúltóid	do dhiúltóidís
Pass.-Impers.	diúltófar	do diúltófaí
	Imperative	Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	diúltaím	diúltaíod	diúltaínn
2	diúltaigh	diúltaír	diúltaítheá
3	diúltaíodh sé	diúltaí sé	diúltaíodh sé
Pl. 1	diúltaímís	diúltaímíd	diúltaímís
2	diúltaídh	diúltaí sibh	diúltaíodh sibh
3	diúltaídís	diúltaíd	diúltaídís
Pass.-Impers.	diúltaítear	diúltaítear	diúltaítí
	Participle	Verbal Noun
	diúltaíthe	diúltú

(b) osclaim (oscail) “I open”

	Present	Indicative Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	osclaím	d’osclaínn	d’osclaíos
2	osclaír	d’osclaítheá	d’osclaís
3	osclaíonn sé	d’osclaíodh sé	d’oscail sé
Pl. 1	osclaímíd	d’osclaímís	d’osclaíomair
2	osclaíonn sibh	d’osclaíodh sibh	d’osclaíobhair
3	osclaíd	d’osclaídís	d’osclaíodar
Pass.-Impers.	osclaítear	do hosclaítí (d’osclaítí)	do hosclaíodh (d’osclaíodh)

Future		Conditional
Sg. 1	osclód	d'osclóinn
2	osclóir	d'osclófá
3	osclóidh sé	d'osclódh sé
Pl. 1	osclóimíd	d'osclómís
2	osclóidh sibh	d'osclódh sibh
3	osclóid	d'osclóidís
Pass.-Impers.	osclófar	do hosclófaí (d'osclófaí)
Imperative		Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	osclaím	osclaíod	osclaínn
2	oscail	oscláir	oscláitheá
3	osclaíodh sé	oscláí sé	osclaíodh sé
Pl. 1	osclaímís	osclaímíd	osclaímís
2	oscláidh	oscláí sibh	oscláíodh sibh
3	oscláidís	oscláid	oscláidís
Pass.-Impers.	oscláítear	oscláítear	oscláítí
	Participle	Verbal Noun
	oscailte	oscailt

Irregular Verbs

1 beirim "I bear"
Indicative
	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	beirim	do bheirinn	do rugas
2	beirir	do bheirtheá	do rugais
3	beireann sé	do bheireadh sé	do rug sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.	beirtear	do beirtí	do rugadh

	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	béarfad	do bhéarfainn
2	béarfair	do bhéarfá
3	béarfaidh sé etc.	do bhéarfadh sé etc.
Pass.-Impers.	béarfar	do béarfaí
	Imperative	Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	beirim	beiread	beirinn
2	beir	beirir	beirtheá
3	beireadh sé	beire sé	beireadh sé
Pl. 1	beirimís	beirimid	beirimís
2	beiridh	beire sibh	beueadh sibh
3	beiridís	beirid	beiridís
Pass.-Impers.	beirtear	beirtear	beirtí
	Participle beirthe	Verbal Noun breith

2 bheirim “I bring”, “I give” Indicative

Absolute

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	bheirim	do bheirinn	do thugas
2	bheirir	do bheirtheá	do thugais
3	bheireann sé etc.	do bheireadh sé etc.	do thug sé etc.
Pass.-Impers.	bheirtear	do bheirtí	do tugadh

Dependent

Sg. 1	tugaim	tugainn	tugas
2	tugair	tugthá	tugais
3	tugann sé	tugadh sé	tug sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.
tugtar

tugtaí

tugadh

Future

Conditional

Absolute

Sg. 1	bhéarfad	do bhéarfainn
2	bhéarfair	do bhéarfá
3	bhéarfaidh sé	do bhéarfadh sé
	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.
bhéarfar

do bhéarfaí

Dependent

tabharfad

tabharfainn

Pass.-Impers.
tabharfar

tabharfaí

Imperative

Subjunctive

Present

Past

Sg. 1	tugaim	tugad	tugainn
2	tabhair	tugair	tugthá
3	tugadh sé	tuga sé	tugadh sé
Pl. 1	tugaimis	tugaimíd	tugaimís
2	tugaidh	tuga sibh	tugadh sibh
3	tugaidís	tugaid	tugaidís

Pass.-Impers.
tugtar

tugtar

tugtaí

Participle
{ tabhartha tugtha

Verbal Noun
 tabhairt

3 chim “I see”

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Indicative
Absolute
Sg. 1	chím	do chinn	do chonac
2	chíonn tú	do chíteá	do chonaicís
3	chíonn sé	do chíodh sé	do chonaic sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.	chítear	do chítí	do chonaictheas
Dependent
	feicim	feicinn	faca
Pass.-Impers.	feictear	feictí	facthas
Future
Conditional
Absolute
Sg. 1	chífead	do chífinn
2	chífir	do chífeá
3	chífidh sé	do chífeadh sé
	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.	chífear	do chífí
Dependent
	feicfead	feicfinn
Pass.-Impers.	feicfear	feicfí
Imperative
Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	feicim	feicead	feicinn
2	feic	feicir	feictheá
3	feiceadh sé	feice sé	feiceadh sé
Pl. 1	feicimís	feicimid	feicimís
2	feicidh	feice sibh	feiceadh sibh
3	feicidís	feicid	feicidís

Pass.-Impers.	feictear	feictear	feictí
	Participle feicthe	Verbal Noun feiscint
	4	cloisim "I hear"
		Indicative
	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	cloisim	do chloisinn	do chuala
2	{ cloisir cloiseann tú	do chloistheá	do chualaís
3	cloiseann sé etc.	do chloiseadh sé etc.	do chuala sé etc.
Pass.-Impers.	cloistear	do cloistí	do chualathas
	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	cloisfead	do chloisfinn
2	cloisfir	do chloisfeá
3	cloisfidh sé etc.	do chloisfeadh sé etc.
Pass.-Impers.	cloisfear	do cloisfí
	Imperative	Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	cloisim	cloisead	cloisinn
2	clois	cloisir	cloistheá
3	cloiseadh sé	cloise sé	cloiseadh sé
Pl. 1	cloisimís	cloisimid	cloisimís
2	cloisidh	cloise sibh	cloiseadh sibh
3	cloisidis	{ cloisid cloise siad	cloisidis
Pass.-Impers.	cloistear	cloistear	cloistí
	Participle cloiste	Verbal Noun cloisint, clos

5 deirim "I do"

Indicative

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	deirim	do dheininn	do dheineas
2	{ deirin deineann tú	do dheintheá	do dheinis
3	deineann sé etc.	do dheineadh sé etc.	do dhein sé etc.

Pass.-Impers.

deintear

do deintí

do deineadh

Future

Conditional

Sg. 1	déanfadh	do dhéanfainn
2	déanfaid	do dhéanfá
3	déanfaidh sé etc.	do dhéanfadh sé etc.

Pass.-Impers.

déanfar

do déanfaí

Imperative

Subjunctive

	Present	Past
Sg. 1	deirim	deininn
2	dein	deintheá
3	deineadh sé	deineadh sé
Pl. 1	deirimís	deirimís
2	deinidh	deineadh sibh
3	deinidís	{ deimid deine siad deinidís

Pass.-Impers.

deintear

deintear

deintí

Participle

déanta

Verbal Noun

déanamh

6 deirim "I say"

Indicative

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	deirim	deirinn	duart

2	{ deirir, deir tú deireann tú	deirtheá	dúrais
3	{ deir sé deireann sé etc.	deireadh sé etc.	dúirt sé etc.
Pass.-Impers.
	deirtear	deirtí	{ dúradh dúrathas
Dependent ¹
Sg. 1	abraim	abrainn	As above
2	abrann tú	abarthá
3	abrann sé	abradh sé
	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.
	abartar	abartaí
	Future	Conditional
Sg. 1	déarfad	déarfainn
2	déarfair	déarfá
3	déarfaidh sé	déarfadh sé
	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.
	déarfar	déarfaí
Dependent
Sg. 1	abród	abróinn
2	abróir	abrófá
3	abróidh sé	abródh sé
	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.
	abrófar	abrófaí
	Imperative	Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	abraim	abrad	abrainn

¹ The dependent forms are given here to complete the paradigm, but the absolute forms of this verb are commonly used for dependent in West Munster.

	2 abair	abrair	abarthá
	3 abradh sé	abra sé	abradh sé
Pl. 1	abraimís	abraimíd	abraimís
	2 abraidh	abra sibh	abradh sibh
	3 abraidís	abraid	abraidís

Pass.-Impers.
abartar

abartar

abartaí

Participle
ráite

Verbal Noun
rá

7 gheibhim “I get”

Indicative

Present

Imperfect

Past

Sg. 1	gheibhim	do gheibhinn	do fuaireas
	2 gheibheann tú	do gheibhtheá	do fuairis
	3 gheibheann sé	do gheibheadh sé	do fuair sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.

gheibhtear

gheibhtí

fuarthas

Dependent

Sg. 1	faighim	faighinn	fuaireas
	2 faighir	faightheá	fuairis
	3 faigheann sé	faigheadh sé	fuair sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.

faightear

faightí

fuarthas

Future

Conditional

Sg. 1	gheobhad	do gheobhainn
	2 gheobhair	do gheofá
	3 gheobhaidh sé	do gheobhadh sé
	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.

gheofar

do gheofaí

Imperative		Subjunctive
		Present	Past
Sg. 1	faighim	faighead	faighinn
2	faigh	faighir	faightheá
3	faigheadh sé	faighe sé	faigheadh sé
Pl. 1	faighimís	faighimid	faighimís
2	faighidh	faighe sibh	faigheadh sibh
3	faighidís	{ faighid faighe siad	faighidís
Pass.-Impers.
	faightear	faightear	faightí
Participle		Verbal Noun
fachta (faighte)		fáil

8 ithim “I eat”

Indicative

Present		Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	ithim	d'ithinn	d'itheas
2	itheann tú	d'itheá	d'ithis
3	itheann sé	d'itheadh sé	d'ith sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.
	itear	do hití	do hitheadh
Future		Conditional
Sg. 1	íosfad	d'íosfainn
2	íosfair	d'íosfá
3	íosfaidh sé	d'íosfadh sé
	etc.	etc.
Pass.-Impers.
	íosfar	do híosfaí

Imperative

Subjunctive

		Present	Past
Sg. 1	ithim	ithead	ithinn

	2 ith	ithir	itheá
	3 itheadh sé	ithe sé	itheadh sé
Pl. 1	ithimís	ithimíd	ithimís
	2 ithidh	ithe sibh	itheadh sibh
	3 ithidís	ithid	ithidís
Pass.-Impers.
	itear	itear	ití
	Participle	Verbal Noun
	ite	ithe

9 tagaim "I come"

Indicative

	Present	Imperfect	Past
Sg. 1	tagaim	do thagainn	do thánag
	2 tagann tú	do thagthá	do thánaís
	3 tagann sé	do thagadh sé	do tháinig sé
	etc.	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.

	tagtar	do tagtaí	do thánathas
--	--------	-----------	--------------

Future

Conditional

Sg. 1	tiocfad	do thiocfainn
	2 tiocfair	do thiocfá
	3 tiocfaidh sé	do thiocfadh sé
	etc.	etc.

Pass.-Impers.

	toicfar	do tiocfaí
--	---------	------------

Imperative

Subjunctive

		Present	Past
Sg. 1	tagaim	tagad	tagainn
	2 tair	tagair	tagthá
	3 tagadh sé	taga sé	tagadh sé
Pl. 1	tagaimís	tagaimíd	tagaimís
	2 tagaidh	taga sibh	tagadh sibh
	3 tagaidís	tagaid	tagaidís

Pass.-Impers.

tagtar

tagtar

tagtaí

Participle

tagtha

Verbal Noun

teacht

10 téim "I go"

Indicative

Present

Sg. 1 téim
 2 téann tú
 3 téann sé
 etc.

Imperfect

do théinn
 do théitheá
 do théadh sé
 etc.

Past

do chuas do chuais
 do chuaigh sé
 etc.

Pass.-Impers.

téitear

do téití

do chuathas

Future

Sg. 1 raghaid
 2 raghair
 3 raghaidh sé
 etc.

Conditional

do raghainn do raghfá do raghadh sé
 etc.

Pass.-Impers.

raghfar
Imperativedo raghfaí
Subjunctive

Present

Sg. 1 téim
 2 téir
 3 téadh sé
 Pl. 1 téimís
 2 téigidh
 3 téidís

téad
 téir (té tú)
 té sé téimíd té sibh
 téid

Past

téinn téitheá
 téadh sé
 téimís téadh sibh
 téidís

Pass.-Impers.

téitear téitear

téití

Participle
dultaVerbal Noun
dul

VOCABULARY

1. a [ə] (asp.) vocative particle
2. a [ə] (asp.) rel. particle who, which, that
3. a [ə] (ecl.) rel. particle all that
4. a [ə] possessive pron. his (asp.), her, their (ecl.)
5. a [a] prep. out of (before consonants), see as abair [abir'] imper. of deirim I say

abha [au] f. g.-nn, pl. aibhne [əi'ŋ'i:] river

abhaile [ə'val'i] home, homewards

abhar [aur] m. g.-air, pl. id. reason, material; abhar sagairt a clerical student

abhus [ə'vus] adv. on this side

acu [ə'ku] see ag

ach [ax] but

acra [akərə] m. g. id., pl.-í an acre

ád[h] [a:] m. g. áid[h] luck

adhmad [əiməd] m. g.-aid wood

admháil [adəlvɑ:l'] vn. of admhaím I admit adhmhaím [adə'vi:m'] I admit aduaidh [ə'duəg'] from the north

aer [e:r] m. g. aeir air

áfach [a:fəx] however

ag [ig'] at: with affixed pron. agam [ə'gum], agat [ə'gut], aige [i'g'e], aici [i'k'i], againn [ə'gun], agaibh [ə'gub], acu [ə'ku]

aghaidh [ə'g'], f. face, front; ar aghaidh in front of, facing, ahead; i n-aghaidh against

agus [agəs] and

aibidh [ab'ig'] ripe

Aibreán [abə'ra:n] m. g.-áin April

Aifreann [af'ir'ən] m. g.-rinn, pl.-aí Mass

aice [ak'i]: i n-aice [i'nak'i] near

- áil [ɑ:lʲ]: is áil liom I wish
 áille [ɑ:lʲi] see álainn aimhleas [ail'əs] m. g.-a disadvantage, mischief
 aimsir [aimʃirʲ] f. g.-e weather
 aingeal [aŋ'əɫ] m. g.-gil pl. id. angel
 ainm [an'imʲ] f. g.-e, pl.-neacha name; cad is ainm duit?
 what is your name?
 ainneoin [i'ŋ'o:nʲ]: d'ainneoin [di'ŋ'o:nʲ] in spite of áintín [ɑ:n't'i:nʲ] m. g. id. aunt air [erʲ], see ar
 airde [ɑ:rd'i]: i n-airde up, above
 aire [ar'i] f. g. id. attention, heed, care áireamh [ɑ:r'əv] vn. g.-rimh of áirim I count, reckon airgead [ar'ig'əd] m. g.-gid silver, money
 airím [a'r'i:mʲ] I hear áirím [ɑ:r'i:mʲ] I count, reckon áirithe [ɑ:r'ihʲ] special; ach go háirithe at any rate; duine
 áirithe a certain person ais [ɑʃ]: thar n-ais back; lena ais beside him
 áis [ɑ:ʃ] f., g.-e, pl.-eanna convenience, benefit aisce [ɑʃg'i]: i n-aisce free, gratis
 ait [atʲ] queer, strange
 áit [ɑ:tʲ] f. g.-e, pl.-eanna place
 1. aithne [əhin'i] f. g. id. acquaintance
 2. aithne f. g. id, pl. aitheanta commandment aithním [an'hi:mʲ] I recognise álainn [ɑ:liŋʲ] beautiful; compar.-superl. áille [ɑ:lʲi]
 Alba [aləbə] f. g.-n Scotland am [aum] m. g.-a, pl.-anta time; amanta sometimes amach [əmax] out
 amadán [əmə'dɑ:n] m. g.-áin, pl. id. a fool
 amháin [ə'vɑ:nʲ] only, one: aon fhear amháin one man;
 ach amháin except; ní hamháin not only amhlaidh [auligʲ] thus, so, how amáireach [a'mɑ:r'əx] tomorrow
 amanathar [ə'manərhər] the day after tomorrow
 amhrán [avə'ra:n] m. g.-áin, pl. id. song

amhras [ãurəs] m. g.-ais doubt

amú [ə'mu:] astray

amuigh [ə'mu] outside

1. an [un] the article, gsf. na; pl. na [nə]

2. an (ecl.) interrog. particle ana- [anə] intensive prefix very

anall [ə'nau] hither

anam [anəm] m. g.-a, pl.-nacha soul

aneas [i'n'as] adv. from the south

aniar [i'n'iər] from the west

aníos [i'n'i:s] up from below

ann [aun] in him, in it; there

anocht [ə'nuxt] tonight

annamh [anəv] seldom

anoir [a'nir'] from the east

anois [i'n'is] now; anois beag just now

anonn [ə'nu:n] over (from the speaker); anonn is anall to and fro

ansan [ən'son] there, then

anso [ən'so] here

anuraidh [ə'nir'ig'] last year

anuas [ə'nuəs] down from above

Aoine [i:n'i] f.g. id., pl.-nte Friday

aoirde [i:rd'i] f. g. id. height

aon [e:n] (asp.) one, any; aon ní [e:'n'i:] anything

aonach [e:nəx] m. g.-aigh, pl. aontaí fair

aonar [e:nər] m. g.-air solitude, singleness; duine aonair a solitary person

aos [e:s] m. g. aois; aois [i:f] f. age

aosta [e:sdə] old

1. ar [er'] (asp.) upon, on; with affixed pron. orm [orəm], ort [ort], air [er'], uirthi [ir'hi], orainn [orin'], oraibh [oriv'], orthu [orhə]

2. ar [ər] (an + ro) interrog. particle before a verb in the past tense

3. ar, arsa [er', ersə] said

ár [a:r] (ecl.) our

- arán [ə'ra:n] m. g.-áin bread
 arbhar [a'ru:r] m. g.-air corn ard [a:rd] high ardán [a:r'da:n] m. g.-áin, pl. id. high ground
 aréir [ə're:r'] last night
 arís [i'r'i:f] again
 arú [a'ru:]: arú inné (amáireach) the day before yesterday (after tomorrow)
 as [as] prep. out of; with suffixed pron. asam [asəm], asat [asət], as [as], aisti [aʃd'i], asainn [asiŋ'] asaibh [asiv'], astu [asdə]
 asal [asəl] m. g.-ail, pl. id. donkey
 athair [ahir'] m. g.-ar, pl. aithreacha father áthas [a:həs] m. g.-ais joy athraím [ahə'ri:m'] I change
 athrú [ahə'ru:] vn. of athraím I change
 atúrnae [a'tu:rne:] m. g. id., pl. -tha attorney
1. ba [ba] nom-acc. pl. of bó cow
 2. ba [bə] pret. and condit. of is (copula) bacach [bə'kaχ] lame bacaim [bakim']: ná bac é! don't heed him! ná bac leis! have nothing to do with him (it)! leave him (it) alone!
 bád [ba:d] m. g. báid, pl. id. boat
 bádóir [ba:'do:r'] m. g.-óra, pl.-í boatman
 bagún [ba'gu:n] m. g.-úin bacon bail [bal'] f. prosperity
 baile [bal'i] m. g. id., pl.-lte townland, home; baile mór [bal'i'muər] town
 Baile Átha Cliath [bl'a:'kl'iəh] Dublin
 bailím [ba'l'i:m'] I gather, collect bainim [bin'im'] I cut (turf or hay): bainim as I get from; bainim de I take away from bainne [ban'i] m. g. id. milk
 baint [baint'] vn. of bainim baintreach [baintr'əχ] f., g.-trí, pl. -a widow bairille [baril'i] m. g. id., pl. -llí barrel

- báisteach [ba:ʃd'əx] f. g. báistí rain
 bán [ba:n] white
 banbh [banəv] m. g. bainbh, pl. banaí pigling
 banc [baun̩k] m. g. bainc, pl. id. a bank
 baol [be:l] m. g. baoil danger barr, barra [ba:r, barə] m. g. barra, pl. barraí summit, crop;
 de bharr as a result of
 bás [ba:s] m. g. báis death; fuair sé bás he died bata [batə] m. g. id., pl. -í stick bead [b'ed] fut. sg. 1 of táim beag [b'og] small; cá beag duit? is it not enough for you?;
 ach chomh beag either (after negative) beagán [b'ə'gɑ:n] g.-áin a small amount; fíor-bheagán very little beagnach [b'og'na:x] almost béal [b'ial] m. g. béil, pl. id. mouth Bealtaine [b'aulhin'i] f. g. id. May bean [b'an] f. g. mná, pl. id. woman, wife beannacht [b'ə'naxt] f. g. -a, pl. -aí blessing Béarla [b'iarlə] m. g. id. the English language
 bearradh [b'arə] vn. of bearraim bearraim [b'arim'] I clip, shave
 beatha [b'ahə] f. g. id. life, livelihood, food béile [b'e:l'i] f. g. id., pl. -lí a meal beirim [b'er'im'] I bear, take: beirim ar I take hold of beirim [b'e'r'i:m'] I boil
 beiriú [b'e'r'u:] vn. of beirim I boil
 beirt [b'ert'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna two persons beithíoch [b'e'hi:x] m. g. -ígh, pl. id. beast
 beo [b'o:] alive
 bheirim [v'er'im'] I give, bring, see p. 121
 bheith [v'e] vn. of tá
 bia [b'ia] m. g. bídh, pl. -nna food
 bím [b'i:m'] habit. pres. sg. 1 of tá binn [b'i:n̩] sweet (of music)
 blas [blas] m. taste
 bláth [bla:h] m. -a, pl. -anna flower
 bláthach [bla:həx] f. g. -thaí buttermilk

- bliain [bl'ien'] f. g. bliana, pl. blianta (bliana with numerals) year; i mbliana [i'ml'ienə] this year
- bó [bo:] f. g. id., pl. ba cow
- bocht [boxt] poor
- bog [bog] soft
- bonn [boun] m. g. boinn, pl. id., a coin
- boladh [balihí] m. g. id. smell
- bord [bo:rd] m. g. boird [bu:rd'], pl. id. table
- bosca [bosgə] m. g. id., pl. -í box
- bóthar [bo:hər] m. g. -air, pl. bóithre road
- brách [brax]: go brách for ever
- bradán [brə'da:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. salmon
- braon [bre:n] m. g. braoin, pl. braonacha a drop
- brath [brəh] m. g. braith expectation; ag brath air expecting, trusting
- breá. [br'a:] fine
- breac [br'ak] m. g. bric, pl. id. trout
- bréag [br'iaɣ] f. g. bréige, pl. -a a lie, untruth
- breith [br'eh] vn. of beirim I bear
- breoite [br'o:t'i] sick
- bríc [br'i:k'] m. g. id., pl. -í brick; bríc aráin a loaf of bread
- brisim [br'isim'] I break
- bróg [bro:g] f. g. bróige, pl. -a shoe
- brón [bro:n] m. g. bróin grief
- brónach [bro:nəx] sad, sorrowful
- brostaigh [bro:stiaɣ] hurry!
- brothallach [bro:hələx] warm (of weather)
- buachail [buəxil'] m. g. -alla, pl. -i boy
- buaile [buəl'i] f. g. id. paddock, milking-place
- buailim [buəl'im'] I strike; do bhuail sé umam I met him
- buainim [buən'im'] I reap
- buaint [buənt'] vn. of buainim
- bualadh [buələ] vn. of buailim
- buartha [buərhə] worried, troubled
- buan [buən] lasting, durable
- buí [bi:] yellow
- buicéad [bə'ke:d] m. g. -éid, pl. -aí bucket

buidéal [bi'd'e:l] m. g. -éil, pl. id. bottle

buíochas [be:xəs] m. g. -ais thanks

buíon [bi:n] f. g. buíne, pl. -ta class

bullán [bə'lɑ:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. bullock

bus [bos] m. g. id., pl. -anna bus

cá [ka:] where? (before a past tense cár)

cad [kad] what?; cad tá ort? what is wrong with you?

cailín [ka'l'i:n'] m., g. id. pl. -í girl

caillim [kal'im'] I lose

cailliúint [ka'l'u:nt'] vn. of caillim

caint [kaint'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna talk, conversation; ag caint [ə kaint'] talking

Cáisc [ka:ʃk'] f. g. Cásca Easter; fé Cháisc by Easter; um Cháisc at Easter

caitheamh [kahəv] vn. of caithim I spend

caithim [kahim'] I spend, throw, wear, use; fut. caithfead [kahəd] I must

cam [kaum] crooked

canad [kanəd] where

caoi [ke:] f. g. id. way, opportunity

caoireoil [ki:r'o:l'] f. g. -eola mutton

caol [ke:l] narrow

caora [ki:rə] f. g. caorach [ke:r'əx], pl. caoirigh [ki:r'i] sheep

capall [kapəl] m. g. -aill, pl. id. horse

captaen [kap'te:n'] m. g. -aein, pl. -aeiní captain

cara [karə] m. and f. g. -d, pl. cairde friend

cárta [ka:rtə] m. g. id., pl. -í card

casadh [kasə] vn. of casaim

casaim [kasim'] I turn

casóg [kə'so:g] f. g. -óige, pl. -a coat

casúr [ka'su:r] m. g. -a, pl. -acha hammer

cat [kat] m. g. cait, pl. id. cat

cathain? [kə'hin'] when?

cathair [kahir'] f. g. cathrach, pl. cathracha city

cathaoir [ka'hi:r'] f. g. -each, pl. -eacha chair

1. cé [k'e:] m. g. id., pl. -anna quay

2. cé? who?; cé leis [k'e:l'eʃ] whose is? cé acu [k'ukə] which of them?
3. cé although
- cead [k'ad] m. permission
1. céad [k'iad] m. pl. -ta hundred
2. céad (asp.) first
- Céadaoin [k'ia'di:n'] f. g. -e, pl. -eacha Wednesday
- céanna [k'ianə] same
- ceann [k'aun] m. g. cinn, pl. id. head; one (of a number of things): ceann acu, ceann díobh one of them; fé cheann seachtaine in a week's time
- ceannach [k'ə'nax] vn.of ceannaím I buy
- ceannaí [k'a'ni:] m. g. id., pl. -aithe buyer
- ceannaím [k'a'ni:m'] I buy
- ceannaithe [k'ə'nahə] features, face
- ceantar [kauntər] m. g. -air, pl. id. district
- ceapaim [k'apim'] I think
- cearc [k'ark] f. g. circe, pl. -a hen
- ceart [k'art] m. g. cirt, pl. -a right
- ceárta [k'a:rtə] f. g. -n forge
- ceathair [k'ahir'] four (before a noun, cheithre [x'er'hi])
- ceathrar [k'ahərər] m. four people
- ceathrú [k'ar'hu:] f. g. -n, pl. -na quarter, fourth
- céile [k'e:l'i] m. and f. g. id., pl. céilí spouse; a chéile each other; le chéile together
- ceilim [k'el'im'] I conceal
- céir [k'e:r'] f. g. céarach wax
- ceist [k'eʃt'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna question
- ceoltóir [k'o:l'ho:r'] m. g. -óra, pl. -i musician
- cheana [hana] already
- cheithre [x'er'hi], see ceathair
- chím [x'i:m'] I see; dependent feicim
- choíche [xi:hi] ever, always (in present or future)
- chomh [xo:] as; chomh láidir le as strong as
- chonac [xnuk] I saw
- chuas [xuəs] I went
- chuala [xuələ] I heard

- chun [xun] to, towards; with suffixed pron. chúm [xu:m], chút [xu:t], chuige [xig'i], chúithi [xu:hi], chúinn [xu:ŋ], chúibh [xu:v'], chútha [xu:hə]
- ciall [k'iəɫ] f. g. céille sense
- ciallmhar [k'iəlvəɾ] sensible, wise
- cian [k'iən]: ó chianaibh [o:'x'iən'iv'] a while ago, just now (in the past)
- Cill Airne [k'i:l'a:rn'i] Killarney
- cionn [k'u:n]: os cionn [os k'u:n] over, above (c. gen.)
- cíos [k'i:s] m. g. -a, pl. -anna rent
- císte [k'i:ʃd'i] m. g. id., pl. -tí cake
- cistin [k'iʃd'in'] f. g. cistean, pl. -eacha kitchen
- citeal [k'itəɫ] m. g. -il, pl. id. kettle
- cith [k'ih] m. g. ceatha, pl. ceathanna shower
- ciúin [k'u:n'] quiet
- claí [kli:] m. g. id., pl. clathacha fence
- clann [klaun] f. g. clainne, pl. -a family, children (coll.)
- clár [kla:r] m. g. -áir, pl. -acha board, table
- cleasaí [k'l'a'si:] m. g. id., pl. -aithe trickster
- cloch [klox] f. g. cloiche, pl. -a stone
- clog [klog] m. g. cloig, pl. id. clock, bell; a cúig a chlog [ə ku:g' ə xlog] five o'clock
- cloisim [kloʃim'] I hear
- clos [klos] vn. of cloisim I hear
- clós [klo:s] m. g. clóis, pl. -anna yard
- cluas [kluəs] f. g. cluaise, pl. -a ear
- cluiche [klihi] m. g. id., pl. -chí game
- cluthar [kluhər] cosy, comfortable
- cnámh [kna:v] m. g. cnáimh, pl. -a [kna:] bone
- cnoc [knuk] m. g. cnoic, pl. id. hill
- codlaim [kolim'] I sleep
- cogadh [kogə] m. g. -aidh, pl. cogaí war
- cognaím [kogə'ni:m'] I chew
- cogaint [kogint'] vn. of cognaim
- coileach [ki'l'ax] m. g. -ligh, pl. id. cock
- coicíos [kəi'k'i:s] m. g. -ís fortnight
- coill [ki:l'] f. g. -e, pl. -te wood

- coinín [ki'n'i:n'] m. g. id., pl. -í rabbit
 coinne [kiŋ'i] m. g. id. expectation; im choinnibh towards me
 coinníoll [ki'n'i:l] m. g. -íll, pl. -acha condition
 1. cóir [ko:r'] right, just
 2. cóir f.g. córach, pl. córacha right, justice; favourable wind;
 i gcóir for, to provide for (c. gen.)
 coirce [kork'i] m. g. id. oats
 cois [kos] beside; lem chois along with me comáin [kə'mɑ:n'] = tiomáin; do chomáin sé leis he went on, he proceeded comhair [kõ:r']: os comhair: in front of, in presence of (c. gen.) comhaireamh [ko:r'əv] vn. counting comhairle [kõ:r'l'i] f. g. id., pl. -lí advice
 comharsa [ko:rsə] f. g. -n, pl. -in neighbour comhrá [ko:'rɑ:] m. g. -idh, pl. -ití conversation
 compordach [ku:m'po:rdəx] comfortable cónaí [ko:'ni:] vn. of cónaím I dwell; i gcónaí always cónaím [ko:'ni:m'] I dwell conas [konəs] how contae [ku:n'te:] f. g. id., pl. -the county
 cor [kor] m. a twist, a stir; i n-aon chor [i 'n'e:xər] at all coróin [kro:ŋ'] f. g. -each crown, five shillings cos [kos] f. g. coise, pl. -a leg, foot; lem chois along with me cos-nochtaithe [kos'noxdih] barefoot cosnaíonn [kos'ni:n]: cosnaíonn sé it costs
 costas [kosdəs] m. g. -ais cost cosúil [ko'su:l'] like cóta mór [ko:tə muər] m. overcoat
 crann [kraun] m. g. crainn, pl. id. tree craobh [kre:v] f. g. craoibhe, pl. -acha [kre:xə] branch creidim [kr'ed'im'] I believe creidiúint [kr'e'd'u:nt'] f. g. -iúna credit (vn. of creidim) críochnaím [kr'i:x'ni:m'] I finish
 crionna [kr'i:nə] old crios [kr'is] m. g. creasa, pl. -anna belt
 cró [kro:] m. g. id., pl. -ite byre crochaim [kroxim'] I hang crochta [kroxdə] set (of sails), aloft, suspended

- croi [kri:] m. g. id., pl. croithe heart cruach [kruəx] f. g. cruaiche, pl. -a rick cruaidh [kruəgʲ] hard crúb [kru:b] f. g. crúibe, pl. -a hoof
 crúim [kru:mʲ] I milk
 cruithneacht [krin'həxt] f. g. -an wheat cuairt [kuərdʲ] f. g. cuarta, pl. -eanna visit cuan [kuən] m. g. cuain, pl. -ta harbour cuid [kidʲ] f. g. coda, pl. -eanna share, part; dá chuid féin of his own cúig [ku:gʲ] five cúigear [ku:g'ər] five people
 cuimhin [ki:nʲ]: is cuimhin liom I remember cuimhne [ki:n'i] f. g. id. memory cuimhním [ki:n'i:mʲ] I remember cuíosach [ki:səx] fairly, moderate cuirim [kir'imʲ] I put cúl [ku:l]: ar chúl behind
 1. cuma [kumə] f. appearance
 2. cuma equal; is cuma liom I don't care
 cúnamh [ku:nəv] m. g. -aimh (cúnta) help cúntóir [ku:n'to:rʲ] m. g. -tóra, pl. -í assistant cupán [kə'pɑ:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. cup cúpla [ku:pələ] m. g. id., pl. -í a pair, a few, twins cur [kur] vn. of cuirim I put cúramach [ku:rəməx] careful
1. dá. [dɑ:] (asp.) two
 2. dá. (ecl.) if
 3. dá to his, her, their; from his, her, their; dá fheabhas é [da:'aus e:] however good it is daichead [dahəd] forty dailtín [dal'hi:nʲ] m. g. id., pl. -í brat Daingean, An [ən daŋ'ən] m. g. An Daingin Dingle daingean [daŋ'ən] firm
 daor [de:r] dear (of price)
 dara [darə] second

- dath [dɑh] m. g. -a, pl. -anna colour
- de [d'e] (asp.) of, from; with pron. díom [d'i:m], díot [d'i:t], de [d'e], di [d'i], dinn [d'i:n], dibh [d'i:v], díobh [d'i:v]
- Dé [d'e:]: with names of days, Dé Luain Monday
- deacair [d'akir', d'okir'] difficult
- dealbh [d'aləv] f. g. deilbhe appearance, shape
- déanach [d'ianəx] late
- deara [d'arə]: tugaim fé ndeara I notice (see fé)
- Déardaoin [d'e:r'di:n] f. g. -e, pl. -eacha Thursday
- dearg [d'arəg] red
- dearmad [d'arəməd]: gan dearmad without doubt
- dearmhad [d'a'ru:d] m. g. -aid, pl. -taí act of forgetting; mistake
- deartháir [dr'ə'hɑ:r'] m. g. -ár, pl. -áracha brother
- dearmhadaim [d'a'ru:dim'] I forget
- deas [d'as] pretty, nice
- deatach [d'ə'tax] m. g. -aigh smoke
- deich [d'eh] ten
- deichniúr [d'en'hɜ:r] ten people
- deimhin [d'əin']: go deimhin indeed
- deinim [d'in'im'] I do
- déirc [d'e:rk'] f. g. déarca alms
- deireadh [d'er'i] m. g. -ridh, pl. -ríocha end; fé dheireadh thiar thall at long last, finally
- deireanach [d'er'ənəx] last, late
- deirfiúr [dr'ə'fu:r] f. g. -féar, pl. -féaracha sister
- deirim [d'er'im'] I say
- deisithe [d'e'ʃihi] mended
- deo [d'o:]: go deo for ever
- deoch [d'ox] f. g. dí, pl. -anna drink
- Dia [d'iə] m. g. Dé God
- diaidh [d'iəg']: i ndiaidh after (c. gen.)
- dícheall [d'i:həl] m. g. -chill one's best effort
- dinnéar [d'i:ŋ'e:r] m. g. -éir, pl. -acha dinner
- díobháil [d'i:'vɑ:l'] f. g. -ála harm, damage
- díol [d'i:l] vn. of díolaim I sell
- díolaim [d'i:lim'] I sell

- díreach [d'i:r'əx] straight, exact diúltaím [d'u:l'hi:m'] I refuse do [də] (asp.) to. for; with pron. dom [dom], duit [dot'], dó [do], di [d'i], dúinn [du:ɲ'], daoibh [d'i:v'], dóibh [do:v'] dócha [do:xə] probable; is dócha it is probable, likely dochtúir [dɔx'du:r'] m. g. -úra, pl. -í doctor dóigh [do:]: is dóigh liom I think it likely doimhin [dəiɲ'] deep domhan [doun] m. g. -ain world
 Domhnach [dounəx] m. g. -aigh, pl. Domhntaí Sunday
 dona [donə] bad
 donn [doun] brown
 doras [dorəs] m. g. -ais, pl. doirse door
 dorcha [dorəxə] dark dorn [dorən] m. g. doirn, pl. doirne fist; lán a dhoirn [ɣoriɲ']
the full of his fist dream [draum] m. g. -a, pl. -anna crowd, party dóthain [do:hin'] m. g. id. enough; mo dhóthain my fill, as much as I want dréimire [dr'e:m'ir'i] m. g. id., pl. -irí ladder
 driosúr [dri'su:r] m. g. -ach, pl. -acha dresser
 droichead [drohəd] m. g. -chid, pl. id. bridge drom [droum] m. g. -a, pl. -anna back duais [duəʃ] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna prize
 duart [duərt] I said
 dubh [dʊv] black dúil [du:l'] f. g. -e desire duine [din'i] m. g. id., pl. daoine person; aon duine [e:ɲ'i] anyone; gach aon duine [gax e:ɲ'i] everyone dúiseacht [du:ʃəxt] f. state of being awake, to awaken dul [dul] vn. of téim I go dúnadh [du:nə] vn. of dúnaim dúnaim [du:nim'] I shut

é [e:] he, him: used as subject of the copula, and as object of transitive verbs

ea [a] it; is ea it is; ní hea it is not; an ea? is it?

- éachtach [iɑxdəx] wonderful éadach [iədəx] m. g. éadaigh, pl. éadai cloth; culaith éadaigh [kliħ iədigi'] a suit of clothes
 éad [iad] m. g. -a jealousy
 éadrom [iadrəm] light
 eagal [ɑgəl]: is eagal liom I fear
 eagla [ɑgələ] m. and f. g. id. fear éagmais [iamiʃ] : i n-éagmais without éan [ian] m. g. éin, pl. id. bird Earrach [ə'rɑx] m. g. -aigh Spring
 eatarthu [atərħə], see idir éigean [e:g'ən] f. necessity; b'éigean dom I had to; ar éigin hardly éigin [e:g'in'] some, as in duine éigin some-one eile [el'i] other éineacht [e:nəxt] : i n-éineacht le together with éinne [e:ŋ'i] m. anyone éinní [e:ŋ'i:] m. anything
 Éire [e:r'i] f. g. -ann Ireland
 éirí [əi'r'i:], vn. of éirím I rise
 éirím [əi'r'i:m'] I rise; éiríonn liom I succeed éis [e:ʃ]: tar éis [tr'e:ʃ] after (c. gen.)
 éisteacht [e:ʃd'əxt], vn. of éistim [e:ʃd'im'] I listen eochair [oxir'] f. g. eochrach, pl. eochracha key eolas [o:ləs] m. g. -ais knowledge
 eorna [o:rnə] f. g. id. or -n barley
- fad [fad] length; ar fad [er' fad] entirely, altogether: i bhfad [ə'vad] far; for a long time fada [fadə] long fadó [fa'do:] long ago
 fágaim [fa:gim'] I leave fágaint [fa:gint'], vn. of fágaim I leave faid [fad'] f. length (time or distance) faighim [fəim'] dependent of gheibhim I get fáil [fa:l'], vn. of faighim (gheibhim); le fáil to be got fail [fail'] f. g. -e, pl. -teacha cliff

- fáilte [fɑ:l'hi] f. g. id., pl. -tí welcome
 faire! [far'i] shame!
 fairsing [farʃəŋ] wide, extensive fál [fɑ:l] m. g. fáil, pl. -ta hedge falla [falə] m. g. id., pl. -í wall
 fanaim [fanim'] I wait
 fanúint [fɑ'nu:nt'], vn. of fanaim I wait
 farraige [farig'i] f. g. id., pl. -gí sea
 fasc [fask] m. iota (of sense)
 fáth [fɑ:h] m. g. -a, pl. -anna cause, reason; cad fáth? why?
 fé [f'e:] under; fé ndear [f'e: n'a:r] caused; tabhairt fé ndeara [tu:rt' f'e: n'arə] to notice, observe; with suffixed pronoun fúm [fu:m], fút [fu:t], fé [f'e:], fúithi [fu:hi], fúinn [fu:ŋ'], fúibh [fu:v'], fúthu [fu:hə]
 feabhas [f'aus] m. g. -ais goodness, excellence, improvement féachaim [f'iaxim'] I look féachaint [f'iaxint'] vn. of féachaim féadaim [f'iaðim'] I can feadar [f'adər]: ní fheadar [n'i: 'adər] I do not know feadh [f'ag]: ar feadh [er' f'ag] during, throughout fear [f'ar] m. g. fir, pl. id. man
 féar [f'iar] m. g. féir grass
 fearg [f'arəŋ] f. g. feirge anger fearr [f'a:r] better, best; is fearr liom I prefer feasta [f'asdə] in future, from now on feicim [f'ik'im'], dependent of chím I see féidir [f'e:d'ir'] possible; b'fhéidir perhaps féin [f'e:n'] self, even feirm [f'er'im'] f. g. -e, pl. -eacha farm feirmeoir [f'er'i'm'o:r'] m. g. -eora, pl. -í farmer feochta [f'o:xdə] withered
 feoil [f'o:l'] f. g. -ola meat fiafraím [f'iar'hi:m'] I ask (a question) fiche [f'ihɪ] twenty fíor [f'i:r] true; fíor-uisce spring water
 fios [f'is] m. g. feasa knowledge; cá bhfios dom? how do I know?

- fírinne [f'i:r'ín'i] f. g. id., pl. -inní truth
 fiú [f'u:] worth fiuchadh [f'uxə], vn. boiling, to boil; ar fiuchadh [f'uxig'] boiling (sic) flaithiúil [fla'hu:l'] generous fliuch [fl'ux] wet
 focal [fokəl] m. g. -ail, pl. id. word
 fód [fo:d] m. g. fóid, pl. id. sod foghlaim [foulim'] vn. of foghlaimím foghlaimím [foulə'mi:m'] I learn foighne [fəin'i] f. g. id. patience folamh [foləv] empty foláir [fə'la:r'] (excessive): ní foláir dom [n'i: fə'la:r dom] I must folláin [fə'la:n'] healthy Fómhar [fõ:r] m. g. -air Autumn fonn [fu:n] m. desire fós [fo:s] still, yet
 fráma [fra:mə] m. g. id., pl. -í frame freagairt [fr'agirt'] vn. to answer freagra [fr'agərə] m. g. id., pl. -í answer fuacht [fuəxt] m. g. -a cold
 fuar [fuər] cold
 fuil [fil']: ná fuil? is not? an bhfuil? is? (see tá) fuilim [fil'im'], dependent of táim I am fuinneog [f'i'ín'o:g] f. g. -eoige, pl. -a window fuiriste [fr'is'd'i, ir'is'd'i] easy; compar. usa [usə] fuiscí [fi'f'g'i:] m. g. id. whiskey
- gá [ga:] m. g. id. need gabha [gou] m. g. id., pl. gaibhne [gəin'i:] blacksmith gabhar [gour] m. g. -air, pl. id. goat gabháil [gva:l'], vn. of gabhaim I take, I go gabhaim [goum'] I take, I go gach [gax] each, every gadhar [gəir] m. g. -air, pl. id. dog
 Gaeilge [ge:liŋ'] f. g. id. the Irish language

- gairdín [gɑ:r'd'i:n'] m. g. id., pl. -í garden
 gáire [gɑ:r'i] m. g. id., pl. -rí a laugh
 gáirí [gɑ:'r'i:], vn. laughter; ag gáirí laughing gamhain [gɑun'] m. g. gamhna, pl. id. calf gan [gan] (asp.) without gann [gɑun] scarce
 gaoth [ge:h] f. g. gaoithe wind gar [gar] near; i ngar dóibh near them garbh [garəv] rough garda [gɑ:rdə] m.g. id., pl. -í guard; garda síochána [ʃi:'xɑ:nə]
 civic guard
 garsún [gar'su:n] m. g. -úin, pl. id. boy
 geal [g'al] bright, white gealach [g'ə'lax] f. g. -laí moon geall [g'aul] m. g. gill pledge, wager; geall le almost; mar gheall ar concerning, because of géar [g'iar] sharp, sour gearán [g'ir'a:n], vn. of gearánaim gearánaim [g'ir'a:nim'] I complain
 gearr [g'a:r] short: is gearr go soon gearradh [g'arə] vn. of gearraim I cut gearraim [g'arim'] I cut gearrahaile [g'arəxal'i] m. g. id., pl. -lí young girl Geimhreadh [g'i:r'i] m. g. -ridh Winter
 gheibhim [jəim'] I get; dependent faighim giúistís [g'u:ʃ'd'i:ʃ] m. g. id., pl. -í district justice giorracht [g'ə'raxt] shortness; ag dul i ngiorracht getting shorter glacaim [glakim'] I take, I accept glan [glan] clean glanaim [glanim'] I clean glaoch [gle:x] vn. of glaoim glaoim [gle:m'] I call
 1. glas [glas] grey, green (of grass, the sea etc.)
 2. glas m. g. -ais, pl. -aiseanna lock gleo [gl'o:] m. g. -idh noise glinniúint [gl'i'η'u:nt'] vn. staring

gloine [glin'í] f. g. id., pl. -ní glass glóire [glo:r'í] f. glory gnáth [gna:h] usual; de ghnáth usually gnáthach [gna:həx] customary gnó [gno:] m. g. -tha, pl. -thaí business
 1. go [gə] to, till; go leir entirely; go maith well; uair go leith [uər' gil'í] an hour and a half
 2. go (ecl.) conj. that goirt [girt'] salty
 gorm [gorəm] blue
 gort [gort] m. g. goirt, pl. id. (tillage) field, cornfield gortaím [gor'ti:m'] I hurt, I injure grá [gra:] m. g. id. love
 gráinne [gra:ŋ'í] m. g. id., pl. -nní grain gránna [gra:nə] ugly
 greadadh [gr'adə] vn. scorching, warming; greadadh trí lár do scart! torture through the middle of your entrails!
 gréasaí [gr'ia'si:] m. g. id., pl. -aithe shoemaker
 greim [gr'əim'] m. g. -eama, pl. -eamanna grip; bite; bit;
stitch; an greim déanach curtha the last stitch put in grian [gr'ian] f. g. gréine sun gruaig [gruəg'] f. g. -e hair
 guala [guələ] f. g. -nn, pl. guaille shoulder guí [gi:] f. g. id., pl. guíonna prayer, wish gúna [gu:nə] m. g. id., pl. -í gown, dress

halla [halə] m. g. id., pl. -í hall
 hata [hatə] m. g. id., pl. -í hat

i [i, ə] (ecl.) in iarann [iərən] m. g. -ainn iron iarracht [iərəxt] f. g. -a, pl. -aí attempt, try iarraidh [iərig'], vn. of iarraim I ask a d'iarraidh (= ag iarraidh) asking iarraim [iərim'] I ask (a favour) iarthar [iərhər] m. g. -air the west

- iasacht [iəsəxt] f. g. -a, pl. -aí loan iasachta [iəsəxtə] foreign iasc [iəsk] m. g. éisc, pl. id. fish iascach [iəsgəx] m. g. -aigh fishing iascaireacht [iəsgir'əxt] f. g. -a fishing iascaire [iəsgir'i] m. g. id., pl. -airí fisherman idir [id'ir', d'ir'] (asp.) between; with affixed pron. eadrainn, eadraibh, eatarthu.
 im [i:m'] m. g. -e butter
 imeacht [i'm'əxt], vn. of imím I go away
 imím [i'm'i:m'] I go away
 imirt [im'irt'] f. g. imeartha, vn. of imrím I play
 inní [im'i'n'i:] m. g. id. anxiety imrím [im'ir'i:m'] I play
 iníon [i'n'i:n] f. g. -íne daughter iníor [i:'ŋ'i:r], vn. grazing
 inné [i'n'e:] yesterday
 inneall [iŋ'əɫ] m. g. -ill, pl. id. machine; inneall buailte threshing machine
 inniu [i'n'uv] today
 insim [i:n'ʃim'] I tell insint [i:n'ʃint'], vn. of insim I tell iomad [uməd]: an iomad too much, too many iompaím [u:m'pi:m'] I turn ionadh [u:nə] m. and f. g. id., pl. ionaí wonder, surprise ionann [in'ən] same, identical iontach [u:ntəx] wonderful íseal [i:ʃəl] low
 ísleán [i:ʃ'l'a:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. low ground isteach [iʃ'd'əx] into, in (with motion); isteach i into istigh [iʃ'd'ig'] in, inside
 istoíche [is'di:hi] at night
 ithim [ihim'] I eat
- lá [lɑ:] m. g. lae, pl. laetheanta day; lá dá raibh sé one day, when he was . . .
 labhairt [lour't], vn. of labhram I speak
 labhram [lourim'] I speak

- lách [lɑ:x] friendly, pleasant
 lag [lɑg] weak
 laghad [li:d] fewness, smallness láidir [lɑ:d'ir'] strong laistigh [lɑʃ'd'ig'] within, inside
 lámh [lã:v] f. g. láimhe [lã:], pl. lámha [lã:] hand lán [lɑ:n] full lasaim [lasim'] I light
 lasmuigh [las'mu] outside; lasmuigh dhíom-sa except myself
 lathair [lɑ:hír'] f. presence; i láthair present; fé láthair at present
 le [l'e] with; with affixed pron. liom [l'um], leat [l'at], leis [l'eʃ], léi(thi) [l'e:(hi)], linn [l'inʃ], libh [l'iv'], leo(tha) [l'o:(hə)]
 leabaidh [l'abig'] f. g. leapan, pl. leapacha bed leabhar [l'our] m. g. -air, pl. id. book léamh [l'e:], vn. of léim I read leanaim [l'aním'] I follow
 leanbh [l'anəv] m. g. linbh, pl. leanaí child léann [l'e:n] m. g. léinn learning leataoibh [l'a'ti:v'] one side; i leataoibh mo dhorais beside my door leath [l'ah] f. half, side; (as prefix) one of a pair, leathshúil one eye leath [l'ah]: do leath a bhéal ar Shéadna Séadna's mouth opened wide (with astonishment) leathan [l'ahən] broad, wide leathar [l'ahər] m. g. -air leather leigheas [l'əis] m. g. -ghis, pl. -anna cure léim [l'e:m'] I read léimim [l'e:m'im'] I jump, leap léir [l'e:r']: go léir entirely, all leis [l'eʃ] also, with him, with it. See le leisce [l'eʃg'i] f. g. id. laziness, reluctance; tá leisce air he is loth leisciúil [l'eʃ'g'u:l'] lazy leithéid [l'i'he:d'] f. pl. -í something like; a leithéid the like of it, such a thing as it

leor [l'o:r]: go leor plenty liath-ghorm [l'iəhɣorəm] grey-blue, steel-grey liathróid [l'iər'ho:d'] f. g. -e, pl. -í ball ligim [l'ig'im', l'ogim'] I let, I allow; pret. do ligeas líon [l'i:n] m. g. lín, pl. -ta net
 líonadh [l'i:nə], vn. of líonaim líonaim [l'i:nim'] I fill lionn [l'u:n] m. g. leanna porter, ale litir [l'et'ir'] f. g. -treach, pl. -treacha letter loch [lox] m. and f. g. -a (or loiche), pl. -a lake lóistin [lo:ʃ'd'i:n'] m. g. id. lodging lom [loum] bare
 long [lu:ŋg] f. g. loinge, pl. longa ship lorg [lorəg] m. track; ar lorg looking for, seeking luach [luəx] m. price
 Luan [luən] m. g. -ain Monday; Dé Luain on Monday
 luath [luəh] early; go luath soon
 luch [lux] f. g. luiche, pl. -aigh mouse
 lucht [loxt] m. people; lucht oibre working-people
 luí [li:], vn. of luím [li:m'] I lie Lúnasa [lu:nasa] f. g. id. August

má [ma:] if; with copula más mac [mak] m. g. mic, pl. id. son machnaím [max'ni:m'] I reflect machnamh [maxnəv] vn. of machnaím mada rua [madə ruə] m. fox
 magadh [magə] m. g. -aidh mocking, joking
 maide [mad'i] m. g. id., pl. -dí stick, beam; maide rámha [rã:] oar
 maidean [mad'ən] f. g. -dine, pl. -acha morning; ar maidin [er' mad'in'] in the morning, this morning maircréal [mar'kr'e:l] m. g. -éil, pl. id. mackerel mairteoil [mar't'o:l'] f. g. -eola beef máistir [ma:ʃd'ir'] m. g. id., pl. -trí master, schoolmaster maith [mah] good; go maith well; is maith liom I like maithim [mahim'] I forgive

- mála [mɑ:lə] m. g. id., pl. -í bag
 mall [maul] slow
 maol [me:l] bald
 mar [mar] as; mar sin therefore mara [marə] unless marbh [marəv] dead
 margadh [marəgə] m. g. -aidh, pl. -gaí market
 Máirt [mɑ:rtʰ] f. g. -e Tuesday; Dé Máirt on Tuesday
 Márta [mɑ:rtə] m. g. id. March máthair [mɑ:hirʰ] f. g. -ar, pl. máithreacha mother meabhair [m'aurʰ] f. g. -bhrach mind, memory; meabhair chinn intelligence mealbhóg [m'alə'vo:g] f. g. -óige, pl. -óga satchel, bag
 meán [m'a:n] m. g. -áin middle; meán oíche midnight
 Meán Fhómhair [m'a:n o:rʰ] m. g. id. September meas [m'as] m. g. -a regard, esteem
 measa [m'asə] compar. of olc measaim [m'asimʰ] I think méid [m'e:dʰ] m. g. id. amount: an méid sin that much; dá mhéid however much meigeall [m'eg'əl] m. g. -ill a goat's beard, "goatee" meisce [m'eʃg'i] f. g. id. drunkenness; ar meisce drunk Meitheamh [m'ihəv] m. g. -thimh June mí [m'i:] m. g. id., pl. -onna month
 mian [m'iən]: is mian liom I wish, desire mias [m'iəs] f. g. méise, pl. -a dish míle [m'i:l'i] m. g. id., pl. mílte thousand, mile milis [m'il'is] sweet milleán [m'il'a:n] m. g. -eáin blame millim [m'il'imʰ] I destroy milleadh [m'il'i] vn. of millim min [m'inʰ] f. g. -e meal minic [m'in'ikʰ] often
 mionn [m'u:n] m. g. -a, pl. id. oath; dar bhrí na mionn! by virtue of the oaths!
 miste [m'iʃd'i] the worse for it, harm; ní miste dhuit it is no harm for you; ní miste liom I do not mind
 mithid [m'ihidʰ]: is mithid duit it is time for you

1. mó [mo:]: an mó? how many? is mó duine many a person
2. mó, compar. of mór big
- moch [mux]: go moch early
- moill [mi:l'] f. g. -e delay
- móin [mo:n'] f. g. móna turf, peat
- molaim [molim'] I praise, commend
- mór [muər] great, big; an mór? how much? nach mór almost
- mórán [muə'ra:n] m. much
- móorthimpeall [muər'hi:mpəl] all round
- muc [muk] f. g. muice, pl. -a pig
- muiceoil [mi'k'o:l'] f. g. -eola pork
- múineadh [mu:n'i] teaching
- múinim [mu:n'im'] I teach
- múinteoir [mu:n't'o:r'] m. g. -eora, pl. -í teacher
- muintir [mi:nt'ir'] f. g. -e people
- Muire [mir'i] f. Mary (as the name of Our Lady) na [nə] gsf. and pl. of the article an

1. ná. [na:] than
2. ná that not; which not
3. ná, neg. interrog. particle
- nach [na:x] which is not; is not? nach mór almost
- náire [na:r'i] f. g. id. shame
- naoi [ne:] (ecl.) nine
- naomhóg [ne:'vo:g] f. g. -óige, pl. -a coracle
- nár [na:r] that not, which not (with past tense)
- neamh- [n'a(v)] negative prefix
- neomat [n'o:mət] m. g. -ait, pl. -aí minute
1. ní [n'i:] (asp.) not
2. ní m. g. id., pl. nithe thing
- níl [n'i:l'] is not (see tá)
- ním [n'i:m'] I wash
- nimh [n'iv'] f. g. -e poison; ina spréachaibh nimhe [n'ĩ:] in venomous sparks
- níor [n'i:r] (asp.) not (with past tense)
- níos [n'i:s], before comparatives in the present tense (p. 121)
- nó [nu:] or
- Nollaig [nolig'] f. g. -ag, pl. -í Christmas

nós [no:s] custom; ar aon nós anyhow nua [no:] new nuair [nuər'] when

ó [o:] from, since; with affixed pron. uaim [uəm'], uait
 [uət'], uaidh [uəg'], uaithi [uəhi], uainn [uəŋ'], uaibh [uəv'], uathu [uəhə]

obair [obir'] f. g. oibre, pl. oibreacha work

ocht [oxt] eight

ocras [okərəs] m. g. -ais hunger

ó dheas [o:'jas] to the south

óg [o:g] young

oíche [i:hi] f. g. id., pl. -anta night; istoíche at night

oifig [ef'ig'] f. g. -e, pl. -f office; oifig an phoist [fiʃt'] post-office

oileán [i'l'a:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. island

oiread [ir'əd] so much, so many, as many

ól [o:l] vn. of ólaim

ólaim [o:lim'] I drink

olc [olk] bad

ór [o:r] m. g. óir gold

os [os]: os cionn above, over (c. gen.); os comhair in front of (c-gen.)

oscailt [osgilt'], vn. of osclaím I open; ar oscailt open

osclaím [osgəlim', osgə'li:m'] I open

ó shin [o:'hin'] since; bliain ó shin a year ago

osta [o:sdə]: tigh ósta hotel

paidir [pad'ir'] f. g. -dre, pl. -dreacha prayer

páipéir [pa:'p'e:r] m. g. -éir, pl. id. paper

páirc [pa:rk'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna field

páiste [pa:ʃd'i] m. g. id., pl. -tí child

paróiste [pro:ʃd'i] f. g. id., pl. -, -tí parish

pé [p'e:] whatever (adj.): pé duine whoever; pé rud whatever;

pé hé thú féin whoever you are; pé scéal é in any case

peann [p'aun] m. g. pinn, pl. id. pen

pian [p'iən] m. g. id., pl. -ta pain

- pingin [p'ɪŋ'in'] f. g. -e, pl. -í penny pioc [p'uk] nothing
 piocadh [p'ukə] vn. of piocaim piocaim [p'ukim'] I pick plaincéad [plain'k'e:d] m. g. -éid, pl. -aí blanket plúr [plu:r] m. g. plúir flour
 póca [po:kə] m. g. id., pl. -í pocket
 pocán gabhair [pə'ka:n gour'] he-goat
 póg [po:g] f. g. póige, pl. -a kiss poll [poul] m. g. poill, pl. id. hole pósaim [po:sim'] I marry post [post] m. g. poist, pl. -anna post, position praghas [prəis] m. -price
 práta [prɑ:tə] m. g. id., pl. -í potato préachán [pr'i:'xɑ:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. crow puinn [pi:ŋ'] much (with neg.)
 punt [pu:nt] m. g. pint, pl. id. pound
- rá [rɑ:], vn. of deirim I say radharc [rəirk] m. g. -airc, pl. -anna view, sight
 raghad [rəid] I shall go ráithe [rɑ:hə] f. g. id., pl. -thí a season, three months
 ramhar [raur] fat
 rás [rɑ:s] m. g. ráis, pl. ráiseanna race
 réal [re:l] m. g. réil, pl. -acha sixpence
 réidh [re:g'] ready; level; quiet réir [re:r'] f. order; de réir according to (c. gen.)
 réitím [re:'t'i:m'] I agree, come to terms; I solve (a problem) riamh [riəv] ever, always (in the past) rince [ri:ŋk'i] m. g. id., pl. -cí dance rith [rih], vn. of rithim I run; i rith during (c.gen.)
 rithim [rihim'] I run
 rogha [rou] m. g. id. choice
 roimh [rim'] before; with affixed pron. romham [ro:m], romhat [ro:t], roimhe [rim'is], roimpi [ri:mp'i], romhainn [ro:ŋ'], romhaibh [ro:v'], rompu [ro:mpə] rothar [rohər] m. g. -air, pl. id. bicycle

- rua [ruə] red
 rud [rod] thing
 rugas [r'ugəs] I bore, I caught, I took (see beirim)
 rún [ru:n] m. g. rúin, pl. id. secret
- sa [sə] (= ins an) in the sá [sɑ:], vn. of sáim sagart [sagərt] m.g. -airt, pl. id. priest saghas [səis] m. g. -ais, pl. -anna sort, kind saibhir [sev'ir'] rich
 saighdiúir [səi'd'u:r'] m. g. -diúra, pl. -í soldier
 sáile [sɑ:l'i] m. g. id. sea-water saileach [si'l'ax] f. g. -lí, pl. -a willow sáim [sɑ:m'] I thrust, push, plunge
 salach [slax] dirty
 salann [salən] m. g. -ainn salt
 Samhradh [saurə] m. g. -aidh Summer
 san [son] that saoire [si:r'i]: lá saoire holiday
 1. saor [se:r] cheap, free
 2. saor cloiche [klohi] m. stonemason saothrú [se:r'hu:], vn. earning, to earn sara [sarə] before (of time); sara fada before long sáraim [sɑ:'ri:m'] I contradict, overcome sásamh [sɑ:səv], vn. of sásaím I satisfy sástacht [sɑsdəxt] contentment; ar a shástacht quite content scadán [sgə'dɑ:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. herring scanradh [sgaurə] m. g. id. terror, fright
 scaoilim [sgi:l'im'] I loose, set free scart [sgart] gp.of scairt, entrails scéal [ʃg'ial] m. g. scéil, pl. -ta story scéala [ʃg'ialə] m. g. id. news, tidings scéalaíocht [ʃg'ia'li:xt] f. g. -a storytelling sceartadh [ʃg'artə], vn. bursting (into laughter)
 scian [ʃg'ien] f. g. scine, pl. sceana knife scilling [ʃg'il'in'] f. g. -e, pl. -í shilling (see p. 103)
 scoil [sgol'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna school

- scoláire [sgə'lɑ:r'í] m. g. id., pl. -rí scholar
 scríobh [ʃgr'i:(v)], vn. of scríobhaim I write scríobhaim [ʃgr'i:m'] I write scríte [ʃgr'i:t'í] written scuabaim [sguəbim'] I sweep
 1. sé [ʃe:] he
 2. sé six seachaint [ʃaxint'], vn. of seachnaím I avoid seachnaím [ʃaxə'ni:m'] I avoid seacht [ʃaxt] (ecl.) seven seachtain [ʃaxdin'] f. g. -e, pl. -í week
 seans [ʃans] m. chance, luck
 sean(a) [ʃan(ə)] old (as prefix) seanfhocal [ʃanokal] m. g. -ail, pl. id. proverb seasáim [ʃa'si:m'] I stand seasamh [ʃasav], vn. of seasáim I stand seint [ʃəint'], vn. playing (music) séipéal [ʃe:'p'e:l] m. g. -éil, pl. id. chapel seo [ʃo] this (after a slender consonant). See so seol [ʃo:l] m. g. seoil, pl. -ta sail seomra [ʃo:mərə] m. g. id., pl. -í room
 sí [ʃi:] she sia [ʃiə] compar. of fada siad [ʃiəd] they siar [ʃiər] westwards
 sílim [ʃi:l'im'] I think; do shíleas I thought [də hi:l'əs] sin [ʃin'] that sinn [ʃin'] we
 sioc [ʃuk] m. g. seaca frost
 síol [ʃi:l] m. g. síl., pl. -ta seed siopa [ʃupə] m. g. id., pl. -í shop síos [ʃi:s] down
 siúcra [ʃu:k'ir'í] m. and f. g. id. sugar
 siúinéir [ʃu:n'e:r'] m. g. -éara, pl. -í carpenter, joiner
 siúl [ʃu:l], vn. of siúlaím I walk siúlaím [ʃu:'li:m'] I walk slán [slɑ:n] safe, sound; fágaim slán (ag) I say goodbye (to) Slánaitheoir [slɑ:nəho:r'] m. g. -eora Saviour

- slat [slat] f. g. slaite, pl. -a rod; ar shlait a dhroma on the broad of his back
- slí [ʃl'i:] f. g. id., pl. slite way, path; space
- sliabh [ʃl'iəv] m. g. sléibhe [ʃl'e:], pl. sléibhte [ʃl'e:t'i] mountain
- slua [sluə] m. g. id. crowd
- snámh [sna:v], vn. of snámhaim [snarm'] I swim, float
- snáth [sna:h] m. g. -a, pl. id. thread
- so [so] this
- soir [sir'] eastwards
- solas [soləs] m. g. -ais, pl. soilse light
- soláthraím [sla:r'hi:m'] I provide, supply
- soláthar [sla:hər], vn. of soláthraím
- son [son]: ar son for the sake of (c. gen.)
- speal [sb'al] f. g. speile, pl. -a scythe
- spórt [sbo:rt] m. g. spóirt sport, fun
- spréach [sbr'iax] f. spark
- sráid [sra:d'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanna street
- sráidbhaile [sra:dv'al'i] m. village
- sroisim [sroʃim'] I reach
- stábla [sda:bələ] m. g. id., pl. -í stable
- stad [sdad], vn. of stadaim
- stadaim [sdadim'] I stop
- staithim [sdahim'] I pluck, pull
- staitheadh [sdahə] vn. of staithim
- staighre [sdəir'i] m. g. id., pl. -rí stairs
- stáisiún [sda:ʃu:n] m. g. -iúin, pl. id. station
- stoca [sdokə] m. g. id., pl. -í stocking
- stoirm [sder'im'] f. g. -e, pl. -eacha storm
- stól [sdo:l] m. g. stóil, pl. id. stool
- stracadh [sdrakə], vn. of stracaim
- stracaim [sdrakim'] I tear
- stróinséir [sdro:n'ʃe:r'] m. g. séara stranger
- suaimhneas [suən'əs] m. g. -nis peace, quietness
- suas [suəs] upwards
- súd [su:d] that; iad súd those people; a thigh siúd [ə hig' ʃu:d] his (that man's) house
- súgán [su:ʃa:n] m. g. -áin, pl. id. straw-rope

suí [si:], vn. of suím I sit súil [su:l'] f. g. -e, pl. id. eye suím [si:m'] I sit suim [sim'] f. g. -e heed, attention suipéar [sə'p'e:r] m. g. -éir, pl. -acha supper súiste [su:ʃd'i] m. g. id., pl. -tí flail

tá [tɑ:] is (Lessons IV and VI) tábhairne [tɑ:r'n'i] m. g. id., pl. -ní tavern, public-house tabhairt [tu:rt'], vn. of bheirim I give taca [takə] m. point of time; um an dtaca so by this time tagaim [tagim'] I come táilliúir [tɑ:l'u:r'] m. g. -iúra, pl. -í tailor tairbhe [tar'if'i] m. g. id. profit, good, benefit
 1. tairgim [tar'ig'im'] I offer; vn. tairiscint
 2. tairgim I draw; vn. tarrac
 tais [tɑʃ] damp
 taispánaim [t'iʃ'b'a:nim'] I show
 taithí [tɑ'hi:] f. habit, practice, use taitneann [tɑŋ'hən]: taitneann sé liom I like him (it) talamh [taləv] m. and f. g. tailimh, talún, pl. tailte, talúintí land
 tamall [taməl] m. g. -aill, pl. -acha a while; a space (of time or distance)
 taobh [te:v] m. g. taoibh, pl. -anna side taoibhín [ti:v'i:n'] m. g. id., pl. -í patch on shoe-upper tapaidh [tapig'] quick tarbh [tarəv] m. g. tairbh, pl. -aí bull tar éis [tr'e:ʃ] after (c. gen.) tarna [tarnə] second tarrac [tarək], vn. of 2. tairgim tart [tart] m. g. -a thirst te [t'eh] hot
 1. té [t'e:] f. g. id. tea
 2. té: an té he who teacht [t'axt], vn. of tagaim I come téad [t'iad] f. g. téide, pl. -racha rope

- teanga [t'aŋə] f. g. -n, pl. -cha tongue, language teannta [t'auntə]: i dteannta along with; im theannta with me
 teas [t'as] m. g. -a heat teastaíonn [t'as'ti:n] is lacking; teastaíonn sé uaim I want it, need it téim [t'e:m'] I go teipeann [t'ep'ən] fails (impers.); do theip orm I failed; gan teip without fail
 thall [haul] yonder, over there
 thar [har] beyond, over; thar n-ais back; thar cheann in return for; with pron. tharam [harəm], tharat [harət], thairis [har'is], thairste [hɑ:rs'i], tharainn [harin'], tharaibh [hariv'], tharstu [ho:rsə]
 tharla [hɑ:rlə] it happened
 thiar [hiər] in the west; taobh thiar behind thíos [hi:s] below
 thoir [hir'] in the east
 thuas [huəs] above
 tí [t'i:]: ar tí about to, intending ticéad [t'i'k'e:d] m. g. -éid, pl. -aí ticket
 tigh [t'ig'] m. g. tí, pl. tithe house timpeall [t'i:mpəl] around (c. gen.)
 tine [t'in'i] f. g. id., pl. tinte fire; tine chreasa [xr'asə] frictional sparks, "flashing fire"
 tinn [t'əin'] sore, sick
 tinneas [t'əŋ'əs] m. g. -nis, pl. -aí pain, soreness
 tiomáinim [tə'mɑ:n'im'] I drive
 tiomáint [tə'mɑ:nt'] vn. of tiomáinim tiománaí [tə'mɑ:ni:] m. g. id., pl. -aithe driver tionóisc [t'ə'no:ʃk'] f. g. -e, pl. -í accident tirim [tr'im'] dry
 titim [t'it'im'] I fall
 tobac [tə'bək] m. g. id. tobacco tobar [tobər] m. g. -air, pl. toibreacha a well tógaim [to:gim'] I raise, I take toil [tol'] f. g. tola will; más é do thoil é [ma: ʃe: də 'hol'e:] if you please

- toisc [toʃkʷ] because tosach [tə'sax] m, g. -aigh beginning, front tosnáim [tos'ni:mʷ] I begin tost [tost] m. silence
 trácht [trɑ:xt] vn. of tráchtaim tráchtaim [trɑ:xdimʷ] I speak of, discuss (with ar)
 traein [tre:nʷ] f. g. -enach, pl. -enacha train tráigh [trɑ:gʷ] f.g. trá, pl. tránna strand trasna [tr'asnə] across (c. gen.)
 tráthnóna [trɑ:n'ho:nə] m. g. id., pl. -nóintí evening; fé
 thráthnóna by evening tréan [tr'ian] strong
 treo [tr'o:] m. way, direction; i dtreo in order
 1. trí [tr'i:] three
 2. trí through; with pron. tríom [tr'i:m], tríot [tr'i:t], tríd [tr'i:dʷ], tríthi [tr'i:hi], trinn [tr'i:nʷ], tríbh [tr'i:vʷ], tríothu [tr'i:hə]
 triall [tr'iəl] journeying, going; chuas ag triall air [xuəs ə
 I went to fetch it tríd [tr'i:dʷ] through trithí [tr'i'hi:] fits of laughter tríú [tr'i:u:] third triúr [tr'u:r] m. g. triúir, trír three persons trócaire [tro:kir'i] f. g. id. mercy troigh [trigʷ] f. g. -e, pl. troithe foot trom [troum] heavy trua [truə] f. g. id. pity trucail [trukilʷ] f. g. -e, pl. -í cart tuairim [tuər'imʷ] f. g. -e, pl. -í opinion, estimate tuairisc [tuər'iʃkʷ] f. g. -e, pl. -í news, account, description
 tuath [tuəh] f. g. -a countryside tugaim [tugimʷ] I give, bring tuí [ti:] f. g. id. straw, thatch tuigim [tig'imʷ] I understand tuilleadh [til'i] m. more, additional quantity; a thuilleadh any more tuillim [til'imʷ] I earn, deserve

- tuirse [tirʃi] f. g. id. tiredness
 tuirseach [tirʃax] tired túis [tu:ʃ]: ar dtúis at first túisce [tu:ʃg'i] sooner, soonest tuistiún [tiʃ'd'u:n] m. g. -iúin fourpence
 turas [trus] m. -ais, pl. -anna journey
- uachtar [uæxdər] m. g. -air, pl. id. top, surface, cream
 uaigneach [uæg'in'əx] lonely
 uaigneas [uæg'in'əs] m. g. -nis loneliness
 uain [uən'] f. time, opportunity uaine [uən'hi] green
 uair [uər'] f. g. -e, pl. -eanta hour, time; uaireanta sometimes ualach [uələx] m. g. -aigh, pl. -laí burden, load
 uan [uən] m. g. uain, pl. id. lamb ubh [ov] m. g. uibh, pl. uibhe [iv', i:] egg
 úd [u:d] that, see súd uile [il'i] [el'i] all uisce [iʃg'i] m. g. id. water ullamh [oləv] ready
 um [um] about, around; um thráthnóna [um hra:n'ho:nə]
 in the evening; with affixed pron. umam, umat, uime, uimpi, umainn, umaibh, umpu úr [u:r] fresh urlár [u:r'lɑ:r] m. g. -áir floor
 usa [usə], see fuiriste
 úsáid [u:'sa:d'] f. g. -e use

TEACH YOURSELF BOOKS

IRISH

Irish is a Celtic language, closely related to Gaelic and Manx, and, as the official language of the Republic of Ireland is taught in schools throughout the country, thus playing an important part in the revival of Irish culture.

This course has been divided into three parts. Part I covers the alphabet and pronunciation and the problems of spelling. Part II is a series of twenty-seven graded lessons, each one covering a particular aspect of the grammar. Part III contains the keys to the exercises which are to be found in each of the lessons, while at the end of the book are verb lists and a vocabulary.

‘It is very difficult to achieve the perfection which is so obvious in the text. Great talent and a lot of hard work has gone into it’

Irish Press

TEACH YOURSELF BOOKS/HODDER AND STOUGHTON

Languages

Published in USA by

David McKay Company, Inc.

ISBN 0 340 05797 1

UNITED KINGDOM 95p

AUSTRALIA $3.05*

NEW ZEALAND $3.05

*recommended but not obligatory

Comments from the Transcriber

Whereas I have striven to reproduce accurately, the appearance and format of the original, in some cases I have been forced to use a very different character font from the original. This is particularly the case when trying to uniformly represent the IPA phonetic symbols.

The Font set I have used here is predominantly Arial, but for some of the characters I have had to use Monaco.

In the group of non normal characters shown below:

[aãəĩʃŋ']

[aãʃ] are Monaco, the prime, ['] is Times New Roman while the rest are Arial. The Braces are also Arial.

Proof reading.

Though I have taken great care with the transcription, it is inevitable that some errors will have crept in. The original scanned file can be found at:

<http://www.box.net/shared/b8l2xyuk8t>

Please notify me with any errors found at:

daveat168@btinternet.com

Friday 21 May 2010.

I have crosslinked the text, numbered the pages, and set up the bookmarks.

I have been given access to a virgin set of Gael-Linn records, and have been given permission to copy them, and make them freely available. I have digitized the recordings, and divided them into their relevant sections, and linked them to this text.

Although the copyright of this document still belongs to Hodder & Stoughton, I have, by much pestering obtained a statement from them, that they consider this book to be obsolete and superceded, and as such, they have no further interest in it.

There is an email trail at the back of this book recording these negotiations.

Is mise, le meas, David R Smith.

THE AUDIO RECORDING

gael-linn

AGUISÍN LEIS AN gCEIRNÍN TEAGAISC SEO

After the reading from 'Séadna', examples are given to illustrate points of difference in speech of the South, the West and the North West

Words with Medial It

1. Bealtaine
2. Buailte
3. Cailte
4. Ceoltóir
5. Díolta
6. Diúltaím
7. Fáilte
8. Mílte
9. Ólta
10. Scéalta

Words Ending in idh, igh

- | | |
|-------------|-------------|
| 1. Aibidh | 4. Istigh |
| 2. Beithígh | 5. Leabaidh |
| 3. Corcaigh | 6. Tapaidh |

Words with Medial bh, mh

- | | |
|-------------------|-----------------|
| 1. Abhar | 7. Lámha |
| 2. Amhras | 8. Maidí rámha |
| 3. Cnámha | 9. Préamhacha |
| 4. Craobhacha | 10. Scríobhaim |
| 5. Gairbhe (níos) | 11. Tairbhe |
| 6. Fómhar | 12. Uibhe(acha) |

Accentuation

- | | |
|------------------|-----------------|
| 1. Agam | 17. Gearán |
| 2. Bacach | 18. Imeacht |
| 3. Beagán | 19. Leathghlúin |
| 4. Buicéad | 20. Leithéid |
| 5. Buidéal | 21. Milleán |
| 6. Captaen | 22. Milseán |
| 7. Casúr | 23. Múinteoir |
| 8. Cathaoir | 24. Páipéar |
| 9. Ceannach | 25. Paróiste |
| 10. Cónaí | 26. Portach |
| 11. Cruithneacht | 27. Salach |
| 12. Deirfiúr | 28. Siúinéir |
| 13. Dinnéar | 29. Tirim |
| 14. Drisiúr | 30. Tuirseach |
| 15. Earrach | 31. Turas |
| 16. Gealach | |

Vowels and Diphthongs

- | | |
|--------------|--------------------|
| 1. Adhmad | 27. Gaoth |
| 2. Aibreán | 28. Géar |
| 3. Aimsir | 29. Gréasaí |
| 4. Am | 30. Im |
| 5. Amhrán | 31. Imní |
| 6. Ann | 32. Ionadh |
| 7. Aoirde | 33. Laghad |
| 8. Aon | 34. Leabhar |
| 9. Aonach | 35. Linn (le linn) |
| 10. Baint | 36. Lom |
| 11. Bord | 37. Long |
| 12. Buíochas | 38. Maol |
| 13. Cam | 39. Moill |
| 14. Caol | 40. Mór |
| 15. Ceann | 41. Nua |
| 16. Claí | 42. Peann |
| 17. Coill | 43. Poll |
| 18. Daor | 44. Rogha |
| 19. Déanach | 45. Scéal |
| 20. Doimhin | 46. Taobh |
| 21. Éad | 47. Téad |
| 22. Faighim | 48. Teannta |
| 23. Féach | 49. Thall |
| 24. Féar | 50. Tinn |
| 25. Folamh | 51. Uaidh |
| 26. Gann | 52. Urlár |

Some Verbal Forms

- | | |
|----------------------|---|
| 1. Ná fuil? | Nach bhfuil? |
| 2. Chím | Feicim; Tchím |
| 3. Chonac | Chonaic mé |
| 4. An mbeir? | An mbeidh tú? |
| 5. Ar chualaís? | Ar chuala tú? |
| 6. Féadfairse teacht | { Féadfaidh tusa a thíocht;
{ Féadfaidh tusa theacht |
| 7. Ní bheid siad | Ní bheidh siad |
| 8. Tabhair dom | |

9. Raghaidh sé	Rachaidh sé
10. Sroisim	Sroichim
11. Fiafraigh
12. Shiúlaíomair	Shiúl muid
13. Thánadar	Tháinig siad
14. Tosnaíonn sé	Tosaíonn sé
Ag tosnú	Ag tosaí
	Ag toiseacht
15. Tairigim	Tarraingím
Ag tarrac	Ag tarraingt
Tairichthe	Tarraingthe
16. Scríte	Scríofa
17. Cuireadh é
18. Bí istigh
Bídh istigh	Bígí istigh

Some Prepositional Forms

1. Ar an dtalamh	Ar an talamh
2. Sa bhád	Sa mbád
3. Leis an bhfear	Leis an fhear
4. Fé thalamh	Faoi thalamh
5. Im phóca	I mo phóca

Relative & Interrogative Forms

1. An fear go bhfuil a mhac san ospidéal	An fear a bhfuil a mhac san ospidéal
2. Is mó duine go mbíonn airgead aige agus ná deineann sé aon tairbe dhó	Is iomaí duine a mbíonn airgead aige agus nach ndéanann sé aon tairbhe dhó
3. Cad is ainm duit?	Cén t-ainm atá ort?
4. Cad 'na thaobh?	Tuige?
5. Cathain?	Cén uair?
6. Conas taoi?	{ Cé chaoi a bhfuil tú? { Goidé mar tá tú?

Ceartú: In the comment on Exercise 10. Sentence 3 (on Record 1), the reference to the footnote on Page 35 should be to Page 39

Note: on this combined book and recording set, this error has been edited out.

AGUISÍN LEIS AN gCEIRNÍN TEAGAISC SEO

After the reading from 'Séadna', examples are given to illustrate points of difference in the speech of the South, the West, and the North West

Words with Medial It <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Bealtaine 2. Bualite 3. Cailte 4. Ceoltóir 5. Dloíta 6. Diútaim 7. Fáilte 8. Mílte 9. Óíta 10. Scéalta Words Ending in idh, igh <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Abidh 2. Beithigh 3. Corcaigh 4. Istigh 5. Leabaídh 6. Tapaídh Words with Medial bh, mh <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Abhar 2. Amhras 3. Cánmha 4. Craobhacha 5. Gairbhe (níos) 6. Fómhar 7. Lámha 8. Maidí ráimha 9. Préamhacha 10. Scriobhaim 11. Tairbhe 12. Uibhe (acha) Accentuation <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Agam 2. Bacach 3. Beagán 4. Buicéad 5. Buidéal 6. Captaen 7. Casúr 8. Cathaoir 9. Ceannach 10. Cónaí 11. Cruithneacht 12. Deirfiúr 13. Dinnéar 14. Drisiúr 15. Earrach 16. Gealach 17. Gearán 18. Imeacht 19. Leathghlúin 20. Leithéid 21. Milleán 22. Milséán 23. Múinteoir 24. Páipéar 25. Paróiste 26. Portach 27. Salach 28. Siúinéir 29. Tirim 30. Tuirseach 31. Turas 	Vowels and Diphthongs <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Adhmad 2. Aibreán 3. Aimsir 4. Am 5. Amhrán 6. Ann 7. Aoird 8. Aon 9. Aonach 10. Baint 11. Bord 12. Buíochas 13. Cam 14. Caol 15. Ceann 16. Claf 17. Coill 18. Daor 19. Déanach 20. Doimhin 21. Éad 22. Faighim 23. Féach 24. Féar 25. Folamh 26. Gann 27. Gaoth 28. Géar 29. Gréasaí 30. Im 31. Imní 32. Ionadh 33. Laghad 34. Leabhar 35. Linn (le linn) 36. Lom 37. Long 38. Maol 39. Moill 40. Mór 41. Nua 42. Peann 43. Poll 44. Rogha 45. Scéal 46. Taobh 47. Téad 48. Teannta 49. Thall 50. Tinn 51. Uaidh 52. Urlár Some Verbal Forms <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Ná fuil? 2. Chím 3. Chonac 4. An mbeir? 5. Ar Chualais? 6. Féadfaise teacht 7. Ní bheid siad 8. Tabhair dom Nach bhfuil? Feicim; Tchím Chonaic mé An mbeidh tú? Ar chuala tú? Féadfaidh tusa a thíocht; Féadfaidh tusa theacht Ní bheidh siad Tabhair dom 	Some Verbal Forms (Contd.) <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 9. Raghaidh sé 10. Sroisim 11. Fiafraigh 12. Shúilaimair 13. Tháadar 14. Tosnaim sé 15. Tairigim 16. Scríte 17. Cuireadh é 18. Bí istigh Rachaidh sé Sroichim Shíúil muid Tháinig siad Tosaíonn sé Ag tosaí Ag toiseacht Tarraingim Ag tarraingt Tarraingthe Scríofa Bí istigh Bígf istigh Some Prepositional Forms <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Ar an dtalamh 2. Sa bhád 3. Leis an bhfeair 4. Fé thalamh 5. Im phóca Ar an talamh Sa mbád Leis an fheair Faol thalamh I mo phóca Relative & Interrogative Forms <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. An fear go bhfuil a mhac san ospidéal 2. Is mó duine go mbíonn airgead aige agus ná deineann sé aon tairbhe dhó 3. Cad is ainm duit? 4. Cad 'na thaobh? 5. Cathain? 6. Conas taoi? An fear a bhfuil a mhac san ospidéal déal Is iomaí duine a mbíonn airgead aige agus nach ndéanann sé aon tairbhe dhó Cén t-ainm atá ort? Tuige? Cén uair? Cé chaoi a bhfuil tú? Goidé mar tá tú?
---	---	---

Caertú: In the comment on Exercise 10, Sentence 3 (on Record 1), the reference to the footnote on Page 35 should be to Page 39.

GAEL-LINN - 26 CEARNOG MHIRFEAN - ATH CLIATH 2

Text Editor
Donncha Ó Cróinín

Producer
Seán Mac Réamoinn

Speakers
Donncha Ó Cróinín
Gobnait Ní Shúilleabháin

'Séadna'
Read by Gobnait Ní Shúilleabháin

Appendix
Speakers: Donncha Ó Cróinín, Siobhán
Nic Oireachtaigh, Aindreas Ó Gallchoir

gael-linn 26 Cearnóg Mhuirfean Baile Átha Cliath 2.

Text Editor: Donncha Ó Cróinín

Producer: Seán Mac Réamoinn

Speakers: *Donncha Ó Cróinín
Gobnait Ní Shúilleabháin*

'Séadna': Read by Gobnait Ní Shúilleabháin

Appendix:
Speakers: *Donncha Ó Cróinín,
Siobhán Nic Oireachtaigh,
Aindreas Ó Gallchoir*

THE IRISH OF WEST
MUSKERRY, Co. CORK

A PHONETIC STUDY

BY

BRIAN Ó CUIV

DUBLIN

THE DUBLIN INSTITUTE FOR ADVANCED STUDIES

1988

Chapter here given in full to keep referred sections in context.

CHAPTER XVI

VOWELS AND DIPHTHONGS

LONG VOWELS

280. á, áí=a:, e.g. bád, sásta, cáil, áit, lá.

Exceptionally > a: in dearbh-bhráthair dr'i'ha:r' with some speakers. Others say dr'i'ha:r'.

281. ao=e: normally, e.g. baoth, laogh, Aodh.

Exceptions:—(1) ao > i: in caora ki:rə. Also in droch-shaoghail dro'hi:l', gen. of droch-shaoghal. (2) ao > əi in pretonic position in *caorán, draonán, maothán, saoráideach¹, slaodán, taobhán¹, taosgán. So also perhaps əi'sa:d'əx < aosáideach*.

282. aoi=i: normally, e.g. baois, gaoithe, claoi, díomhaoin, aoibhinn.

Exceptions:—(1) aoi > e: (a) In absolute final position in a number of monosyllabic words², e.g. aoi e:, caoi ke: 'opportunity', naoi ne:, sgaoi sge:h. (b) In Gaoidheal ge:l and its derivatives. (c) In caoireach³ ke:r'əx, gen. of caora, and faoiseamh fe:fəv. (2) aoi > əi in pretonic position in caoicíos kəi'k'i:s.

283. éa > ia normally, e.g. béal, éan, séanadh.

It is e: (1) After r, which has lost its palatalized quality, e.g. réab, réasún. (2) When in absolute final position through vocalization of a following consonant, e.g. géadh g'e:, Ó Séaghdha o: je:.⁴ (3) In the borrowed words véarsa v'e:rsə*, léas l'e:s*, téarma t'e:rmə, and in the terminations -éad, -éal, -éan,⁵ -éar, -éas, in borrowed words, e.g. *firéad, Maighréad,⁶ buidéal,

¹ Also pronounced with e:.

² But it is i: in caoi 'lament', claoi, dlaoi, draoi, Laoi, taoi, etc. Note that laoi or lae, gen. of lá, is le:.

³ caorach ke:rəx is also said.

⁴ So also in léaghaim l'e:m', and derivatives such as léaghthóir l'e:'ho:r'.

⁵ The word firéan f'i:r'e:n (for earlier firian) is an early borrowing from Welsh.

⁶ Also məi'r'ied.

Oileán l'e:n, dainnséar, cáipéasai ka:p'e:si:. So also in suibhisgéal si:f'g'e:l. (4) In verse. (5) In a few words which possibly reflect the verse pronunciation, viz. créacht kr'e:xt, dréacht dr'e:xt, déarca d'e:rkə, gen. of déirc, éasgaidh e:sgə, léan l'e:n, d'éag d'e:g 'died', bréag br'e:g (vb.), gléas gl'e:s (vb.).

Further exceptions:—(1) éa > a: in the suffix -éan (now written -eán), e.g. oileán > oileán i'l'a:n. Also in the suffix -éal in muinéal m'i'n'a:l, cinéalta k'i'n'a:lhə. Cf. Míchéal m'i:'ha:l. (2) éa > a: in coimhhead k'i'm'a:d. (3) éa has become eó o: in the future and cond. of gabhaim, do-gheibhim, e.g. géabhad > geóbbhad g'o:d. (4) éa > i: in pretonic position in préachán pr'i:'xa:n. (5) éa > iə in féadaim f'iəd'im'. (6) éa > o in réad rod through generalization of a shortened form developed in unstressed position as in aon réad.

284. é, éi = e: normally, e.g. géill, leitheid, éigin, cré, dé.

Exceptions:—(1) As inflected form of the suffix -éan, -éin has become -eáin a:n', e.g. oileán > oileáin i'l'a:n'. Similarly taisbéin (vb.) t'i'ja:n'. However the inflected form of the suffix -éal is regularly -il i:l' in muinil m'i'n'i:l'. Cf. Míchil m'i:'hi:l'. (2) éi > əi in éirigh əir'ig' and its derivatives, féileacán p'əil'əka:n, and in the borrowed words péire f'əir'i and déileáil* d'əi'l'a:l'. (3) éist e:ft' has a by-form est' with short vowel. léig (> leig) is leog l'og generally, but l'e:g' is heard in the Lord's Prayer. déin (do-ni) > *din*¹ d'in', but d'e:n' is heard in the prayer déin trócaire orainn d'e:n' tró:kir'i orinj'. Cf. déintear do thoil d'e:n'tər də hol' in the Lord's Prayer. (4) éi before palatalized rr which has become non-palatalized > éa > ia, e.g. Béirre > Béarra b'iarə. So also through syncope occasioned by the loss of dh in déidheanach > déanach d'ianəx. Contrast tréidheanas tr'e:nəs.

285. eó, eói = o: e.g. ceól, beó, treóir.

286. í, ío = i: e.g. míle, trí, siol.

287. iú, iúí = u: e.g. fiú, ciúin, deirbhfiúr.²

288. ó, ói = o: normally, e.g. tóg, bó, móin, ól.

¹ The vowel of din is borrowed from the past rin* < do-rinne.

² The forms of this word are very irregular. The nom. deirbh-fiúr is dr'i'fu:r or dr'i'f'u:r; the gen. deirbh-feathar is dr'i'f'e:r; the dat. deirbh-fiair is dr'i'f'i:r.

Exceptions:—(1) $\delta > \acute{u}$ u: in nó nu:. (2) $\delta, \delta i > ua, uai, uə$ in mór muər and inflected forms,¹ but (f)urmhór is forə'vo:r.

289. $\acute{u}, \acute{u}i = \mathbf{u:}$, e.g. dún, cú, súil.

DIPHTHONGS

290. ia, iai = iə,² e.g. ciall, iarla, dhiaidh, Briain.

Exceptions:—(1) ia > éa ia in mian m'ian, mianach m'ianəx, and *niamhrach*³ n'iavrəx. Also in pretonic position in fiarán f'ia'ra:n, and hathróid l'iar'ho:d'. (2) ia > ə: in geirrfhiadh > giorraé g'i'rə:, pl. g'irihi. (3) ia > i: in pretonic position in cliathán kl'i:'ha:n, sgrathán [g'i:'ha:n, sgrathóg [g'i:'ho:g. (4) iai > i: in deirbh-fiarr dr'i'f'i:r'.

291. ua, uai = uə, e.g. fuair, cluas, fuairm.

Exceptions:—(1) ua > ó in cnuasach kno:səx, nua no:. ó o: < Ua with surnames goes back to Ear. Mod. Irish. (2) ua > u: in pretonic position in uanán u:'na:n. (3) uai > əi in pretonic position in buardhréan bəi'r'a:n, Ruaidhri rəi'r'i:. (4) uai > i: in smuain > smaoin smi:n', probably under the influence of saol. (5) In the prep. pron. uairm, uairt, etc. the diphthong uai > ve, i.e. vem', vet', etc. The forms uəm', uət', etc. are also heard.

VOWEL SHORTENING

292. The shortening of a long vowel or a diphthong before a voiced spirant followed by d, l, n, or r, is regular from the Ear. Mod. Irish period on, e.g. naimhde (< námha), braighdeanas (< brágha). Exceptionally suaimhneas suən'əs retains the original diphthong.

¹ But mo:r is heard in verse

² Note that when ia is final (including when followed by silent dh) or when followed by final th, the diphthong used is the second member (§ 86), that used in pronouncing iai, e.g. dia, biadh, hath

³ The variation ia, éa in the root of this word occurs at an early date and is common in Ear. Mod. Irish. Cf. niamann némann, IGT Decl. § 12.4. So also the variation dias dés, ib. § 39. 13. the current form being léas l'ias. Similarly méan occurs for mian in Ó Bruadair II, 258. 5

⁴ For a fuller discussion on this subject see O'Rahilly, Ériu XIII, 128 sqq.

293. A further development in our dialect is the tendency to shorten the long vowel in the group -ámha- > -amha- > -au-. Thus námhaid > nauid, snámhaire > snauire. On the other hand the long vowel is retained in lámhach la:x, lámhacán la:ka m, lámhannán la:na:n, rámhann ra:n, gs. rámhainne ra:ŋ'i.

The word lámhann, pl. lámhanna is treated as if pl. lámhne* which > laimhni læi'ŋ'i; with a new sg. læiŋ'i.

294. Apart from the cases discussed above, vowel shortening occasionally takes place in phrases, e.g. lá la:, but lá iar na bhárach lar na va:r'əx; ós o:s, but ós a chonn os ə x'u:n.¹

SHORT STRESSED VOWELS

295. a=a normally, e.g. capall, fada, anam, ba.

Exceptions.—(1) It is a in athair.² (2) It becomes o o in gabhtha > gobhtha gofə.³ (3) In position before nasals and l > au, § 401. (4) In position before r > a:, § 406. (5) With lost fricative > au, occasionally ou, in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > əi, exceptionally a:, in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

296. ai=a normally, e.g. baile, cailc.

Exceptions:—(1) Initially it is a, e.g. ait, ainm. So also in taithe ta'hi:, and taitnim and its derivatives. (2) It becomes oi > e in raibh rev',⁴ saidhbhir sev'ir', air er'. Cf. goibh* gov' < gaibh < gabh. (3) In position before nasals and l > ai, § 401. (4) In position before r > a:, exceptionally i:, § 406. (5) With lost fricative > əi or ai, in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > əi, exceptionally i:, in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

297. ea=a normally, e.g. fear, lean.

Exceptions:—(1) Initially it is a, e.g. eagla, eachtra. So also after sr, e.g. sreath > srath srah, sreabh > srabh srahv, and after h (< ch, th, or sh) in cheana hane, sheasaimh hasiv', theagasc hagesk. (2) It is e in bead b'ed, beam b'em, etc. (fut.-concl. of atáim). So also in beathadhach > beithidheach b'e'hi:x. (3) It

¹ In the compound word koun'tra:h, the diphthong ou may represent an original ó i.e. c(r)ón-tráth*

² But it is a in inflected forms where the r is non-palatalized, e.g. athar aher.

³ goite* got'i is also heard

⁴ Also heard with o, rov'.

becomes eo in *beag*¹ > beog b'og, deacair > deocair, seachas > seochas. (4) In position before nasals and l > au, § 401. (5) In position before r > a:, § 406. (6) With lost fricative > au, occasionally ou, in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > øi or ai, in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

298. e, ei=e normally, e.g. geit, breibe, te.

Exceptions:—(1) When adjoining a nasal it is raised to i, e.g. meinic > minic m'in'ik', meitheamh m'ihəv, deithneas > dithneas d'ihənes, teine > tine, neimh > nimh. Exceptionally e is retained in meil, meisge, teinneas, smeig sm'eg', smeigin sm'e'g'i:n', deichneabhar d'en'hu:r, meirg m'er'ig', meigeal m'eg'əl, Neidín n'e'd'in'. The same raising to i occurs in a few other words: leic, leice > lic, lice (from leac), faicim > feicim > ficim, feitheamh > fitheamh; *seisean*² > sisean. (2) ei > a in ceirtlín k'ar'hl'i:n'. (3) In position before nasals > øi, occasionally i:, § 401. (4) In position before r > e:, § 406. (5) With lost fricative > i: or øi in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > øi in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

299. eo (rare)=o, e.g. seo, deoch.

300. i=i normally, e.g. inis, file.

Exceptions:—(1) In position before nasals and l > i:, § 401. (2) With lost fricative > i:, §§ 349, 363.

301. io=i before r, s, t, th, d, e.g. bior, fios, giota*, cioth. Before other consonants > iu u, e.g. sioc > siuc ʃuk, cion > ciun k'un, aniogh > aniugh i'n'uv.

Exceptions:—(1) In position before nasals and l > u:, § 401. (2) With lost fricative > u: in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > i: in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

302. *iu*³=u, e.g. tiugh.

Exception:—With lost fricative > u:, § 349.

303. o=o normally, e.g. bocht, doras.

Exceptions:—(1) When adjoining a nasal it tends to be raised to u, e.g. cnoc knuk, moch mux, *domblas*⁴ dumələs. But ¹ But it is ø in the phrase ní beag liom de n'i: b'e l'um d'e.

² Also heard with e, sefan.

³ In Ear. Mod. Irish iu is found regularly only in a few words (mainly before ch), e.g. fliuch, fiuch; otherwise only as an occasional variant of io, e.g. lium.

⁴ Also heard with o, domeles.

in many such words the o is retained, e.g. mol, molt, cromadh, nocht, nod, con. (2) In position before nasals > ou or u:, § 401; before l > ou, § 401. (3) In position before r > o:, § 406. (4) With lost fricative > ou, occasionally o:, §§ 349, 363.

304. oi=o in a number of words, e.g. cloisim*, coirce, doirt, loisg, loit, sgoil, sgoilt, sroisim, toil, troid. Occasionally > e, e.g. croiceann krok'ən,¹ doimhneas den'əs,¹ oibre eb'ir'i, oilithreach el'ir'həx, oile el'i.

In most words oi has become ui > i, e.g. soineann > suineann sin'ən, coire > cuire, foirm > fuirm, foirbhte > fuir'fe fir'ih, foirseadh > fuirse fir'fi, foireann > fuireann, croise (gen. of crois) > cruise. This occurs especially when Ear. Mod. Irish oi represents an earlier (Mid. Irish) ai, e.g. broid > bruid brid', goid > guid, soir > suir, troigh > truigh, coinneal > cuinneal, doille (from dall) > duille, goinne (from gann) > guinne, gloise (from glas) > gluise, coise (from cas) > cuisse, soilche (from salach) > suil'che sil'ih.²

Exceptions:—(1) In position before nasals and l > i:, rarely oi, § 401. (2) In position before r > o:, § 406. (3) With lost fricative > oi in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > i:, rarely oi, in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

305. u=u normally, e.g. dubh, luch, muc.

Exceptions:—(1) It becomes o in Cúigeadh Uladh olə, fulang foləg (besides fuləg), lucht loxt. (2) In position before nasals > u:, § 401. (3) In position before r > u:, § 406. (4) With lost fricative > u:, exceptionally uo, in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > u: in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

306. ui > i normally, e.g. cuil, muileann.

Exceptions:—(1) It is u in a few words: amuigh ə'mu, cuid kud', cuic* kuk'.³ (2) It becomes oi o in duit dot', and oi > e in uirthe er'hi (also ir'hi). (3) In position before nasals and l > i:, § 401. (4) In position before r > u:, § 406. (5) With lost fricative > i:, exceptionally oi, in the case of bh, mh, § 363; > i:, exceptionally e:, in the case of dh, gh, § 349.

¹ Also heard with o, krok'ən, den'əs.

² Already in Ear. Mod. Irish the ui (< oi) is general in Muire, and is a permitted alternative in words like cuinne, buile, uiread, fuireann.

³ With the exception of amuigh these words are also commonly pronounced with i, e.g. kid'.

SHORT UNSTRESSED VOWELS

Posttonic

307. Short vowels other than in the first syllable are usually unstressed, and have in general become obscured. See Chap. XII.

308. a, ea, io, iu, o, u, > ə normally, e.g. capall, báirsteach, féileacán, Éirionn, cionnus.

Exceptions:—(1) Through loss of final dh, -each > -e > i, e.g. milleadh > mille m'il'i § 355. (2) With lost fricative > u: in the case of bh, mh, §§ 365-6; > u:, occasionally i:, in the case of dh, gh, § 352. (3) Through shifting of stress a=a; ea=a, or when preceded by h > a; e.g. bacach bə'kax, cailleach ki'l'ax, dlightheach dl'i'hax. See § 236. In the case of the prep. pron. agam, in which the stress is attracted to the second syllable, a (=u) > u, e.g. agam ə'gum.

309. ai, e(i), i, oi, ui, > i normally, e.g. socair, file, inis, tosnuigh.

Exceptions:—(1) With lost fricative > i:, §§ 351, 365. (2) Through shifting of stress ai (=ui) > u in againn ə'gʊŋ', agaibh ə'gʊv'.¹

310. Epenthetic vowels in general develop on the same lines as the above > ə, u: and occasionally i:, when non-palatal; > i and i: when palatal, e.g. marbh > mar^əbh marəv, searbhás > sear^əbhas ja'ru:s, garrdha > garr^ədha ga'ri:, ainm > ain'm an'im', gainmhe > gain'mhe ga'n'i:.

Note faitcheas > faitios fa't'i:s, as if < faitigheas and exceptionally coitcheanta > coitianta ko't'ientə.

311. In the above cases of posttonic and epenthetic vowels, where compensatory lengthening of a short vowel takes place in the second syllable, the stress is shifted to that syllable.

Pretonic

312. As we have already seen (Chap. XII) the stress is often attracted to the second syllable of a word. The effect of this is generally to weaken a short vowel in the first syllable. Thus

¹ These words are also frequently pronounced with i, i.e. ə'giŋ', ə'giv'.

when the second syllable is stressed and does not contain i or ú (or an i or ú diphthong), a short vowel in the first syllable becomes obscured.

313. a, o, u, > ə, e.g. casóg, cromán, copán, mullach*.

Exceptions:—(1) corpán kor'pa:n with o retained, perhaps under the influence of corp. (2) captaén kap'te:n' with a retained. (3) fad-aradhnach is generally pronounced fada'ri:nəx with the second a regularly retained, but some speakers say fada'reinəx in which case also the a is retained.

314. ai, ei, i, oi, ui, > i, e.g. caisléan, leithéid, milléan, coileach, cuiléan, cuisleóir.

315. ea, io > i before r s, t, th, d, e.g. Gearóid g'i'ro:d', gearán g'i'ra:n, teasbach t'is'ba:x, ciotóg k'i'to:g, feadó g'f'i'do:g. Otherwise > ə, e.g. beagán, gealach, ceannach.

316. In a number of words where the second syllable begins with l or r, a pretonic short vowel may be lost, e.g. an t-arán > an trán ən tra:n, biorán > breán br'a:n, coláiste kla:ʃd'i, colbhar > clúr klu:r, coróin > cróinn kro:ŋ', corrán > crán kra:n, foláir fla:r', Oiléan > Léan l'e:n, salach slax, soláthar sla:hər, Uilliam > Liam l'iəm.

In slow speech the pretonic vowel is sometimes retained.

317. When the second syllable is stressed and contains i: or u: (or i: or u: diphthongs), or when the third syllable is stressed, the vowel of the first syllable is not obscured but retains its value as in stressed positions (§§ 295—306), e.g. ealadha a'li:, bailiughadh ba'l'u:, oileamhaint e'l'u:nt',¹ coitcheanta ko't'iente, meabhóg m'alə'vo:g, spealadóir sb'alə'do:r'. Exceptionally the first vowel is detoned in amadán əmə'da:n.

EPENTHETIC VOWELS

318. The tendency to develop an epenthetic vowel in consonant groups is a common feature in Irish. In our dialect the vowel is sometimes fully developed (as i or ə), sometimes only partially so. (See § 323.)

319. l, n, and r, when preceded by a short vowel and followed by a labial or velar plosive or fricative (other than c, p, or f),

¹ Also i'l'u:nt'.

develop an epenthetic vowel,¹ e.g. dealg d'aləg, leanbaidhe l'anə'bi:, ainmhidhe an'i'v'i:, seanchaighe ʃanə'xi:, marbh marəv, dearg d'arəg, dorcha dorəxə. So also an epenthetic vowel is developed in the group rrth in parrthas parəhəs.

320. In the groups lm, lng, ml, mn, mr, nm, ngn, rm, rng and rn (final), preceded by a short vowel, an epenthetic vowel is developed, e.g. pailme fal'im'i, fuilngim > fuilingim > fuiligim fil'ig'im', imleacán im'il'əka:n, simné* ʃim'i'n'e:, seamróg ʃamə'ro:g, ainm an'im', ingneach in'in'əx, arm arəm, tairnge tariŋ'i, dorn dorən.

321. In the groups thl, thn, thr, an epenthetic vowel is usually developed, except when a long vowel or diphthong follows the group, in which case the group is metathesised giving lh, nh, rh, e.g. iothla ihələ,² aithne ahin'i, aithris ahir'ij.

Exceptions:—(1) breathnuigh br'anbig', oilithreach el'ir'həx, cheithre x'er'hi,³ with metathesis. (2) athrughadh ahə'ru: with epenthetic vowel,⁴ probably under the influence of the regular athraigh ahərig', or of the older aithearrach 'a change'.

322. Medially before l, n, and r, other consonants (except dentals and alveolars when laterally exploded) may develop an epenthetic vowel, e.g. oibre eb'ir'i, ampla aumpələ, eachtra axdəərə, coidreabh kod'ir'əv, eagla agələ, acra akərə, aifreann af'ir'ən, seachrán ʃaxə'ra:n. So also sr develops a vowel in gasra gasərə, fiosrughadh f'isə'ru:, seisreach ʃejir'əx, coisreacan koʃir'əkən.⁵

323. Initially before l, n, and r, voiced consonants tend to develop a slight vowel, e.g. gleann g'l'aun, bláth b'la:h, gnó g'no:, drom d'roum. This vowel is very slight and is not recorded in the phonetic transcriptions.

324. In the following words an epenthetic vowel also develops: admháil adə'va:l', sleaghán ʃi'l'a:n.

325. For the subsequent development of epenthetic vowels see § 310.

¹ So also in compound words, e.g. baill-chrioth bal'ixr'ih, sean-bhean ʃaniv'an, an-mhaith anəvah, gearr-chuid g'arəxud'.

² A, Ó L. says i'he:lə.

³ Contrast ceathrar k'ahərər.

⁴ Contrast aithrighe ar'hi:.

⁵ Some speakers say koʃrəkən without an epenthetic vowel.

VOWELS IN HIATUS¹

326. Where there is a hiatus in a word, either naturally or through the loss of a fricative consonant, two vowels or a vowel and a diphthong coming together tend to coalesce, the result being either a new diphthong or a long vowel.

327. í, ío, and ia coalesce with a following á or ái to produce a new diphthong ia, e.g. tríáil tr'ial', diogháir d'iar',² fiadháin f'ian', liagháin l'ian', tríálacha tr'ialəxə, fiadhántas f'iantəs, liaghán l'ian.

328. ea coalesces with a following á, ái, or ó to produce a long vowel a:, a:, or o:, e.g. Seaán ja:n, sleaghán sil'a:n, Sheadán x'a:n', meadhón (or perhaps meadhán) m'a:n with a:, meadhón (in phrase thar meadhón) m'o:n with o:. So also neim-meadhón n'a'm'o:n.

329. a coalesces with a following á > a: in fagháil fa:l'. So also gabháil is pronounced ga:l' by some speakers.³

330. á coalesces with a following éa > e: in áíear e:r.

331. á coalesces with a following ó > a: in cáóg > cáog > cág ka:g.

332. o coalesces with a following á > o: in comháireamh > cóireamh ko:r'əv.

333. Coalescence does not take place in the case of ú or ua, e.g. *naomhadh ne:u:, *séú je:u:, tríú tr'i:u:, ruadhán ru:'a:n, tu(bh)áille tu:'a:l'i (< Mid. Eng. 'towaille'). So also in the 2 pl. past tense of verbs, e.g. nigheabhair > níúir n'i:u:r', luigheabhair > luiúir li:u:r', do-chuabhair > chuaúir xuəu:r', bháidheabhair > bháúir va:u:r'.

¹ See also O'Rahilly, Ériu XIII, 135 sqq.

² A. Ó L. says d'iar', but D.B. pronounces it as above.

³ Conversely teastáil is commonly pronounced teastabháil t'asdə'va:l'.

Typos, and OCR Errors reported:

Page 47: Ex. 16, #5: 'Dífhéach' should read 'D'fhéach'. Page 50: Ex. 18, #9: 'a&' should read 'ach'. Page 97: Ex. 37B, #15: 'orrn' should read 'orm'. Page 100: Vocabulary: 'beagin' should read 'beagán' Reported by Joe Murphy 3rd March 2010.

Corrected and reposted 3rd March 2010.

Page 4: 'cool' in place of 'caol' corrected.

Found by me 29th Oct. 2010.

Page 21: 'ō' found in place of 'o', corrected. Found by me 3rd Nov. 2010.

Page 139: 'rní Feabhra' in place of 'mí Feabhra' also found by me in same place, 2 cases of 'or' in place of 'or'.

Reported by Joe Murphy 5th Nov. 2010.

Page 55: 'foUAin' found in place of 'folláin', 'sl&nsafe' found in place of 'slán safe'.

Page 80: 'rAs' found in place of 'rás', page 82: no space after '11.', 'co1ours' found in place of 'colours', page 91: minor format error, page 96: 'ceapairn' found in place of 'ceapaim', page 106: format error, page 111: 'dy6' found in place of 'dyō'.

Corrected and reposted 5th Nov. 2010.

Page 21: 'eea' found in place of 'eeá'. General harmonization of various formats based on single quotes. Errors found in the process include page 86: 'gaarirn' for 'gaarim', page 90: 'bainirn' for 'bainim', page 96: 'ceapairn' for 'ceapaim', page 160: 'I' in place of 'i', and 'Noses' for 'Moses'.

Corrected and reposted 7th Nov. 2010.

Page 27: Vocabulary: column 2 'tir-shòch' should read 'tir-shòch'.

Also Exercise 1: space missing after '10.'

Corrected and reposted

2nd Feb. 2011.

Page 29: Vocabulary: formatting: Tab missing before 'glan'.

Corrected and reposted 3rd Feb. 2011.

Page 39: Vocabulary: fada missing from 'i' in 'buíochas'. Page 40: Voabulary: fada missing from 'i' in 'Michael' Page 157: line 15: after 'agat', 'I' found in place of 'i', end of page: period missing after 'nimhe'

Corrected and reposted 7th Feb. 2011.

Page 46: Vocabulary: 'rn', (RN), found in place of 'm' in "scuabim (sgooábim)".

Page 69: Line 1: 'le' found in place of 'le', Ex. 27 A: 'g' found in place of '9', 27 B: space missing after '4.'

Corrected and reposted 9th Feb. 2011.

Page 47: Vocabulary: 'bainim': 'rn' found for 'm' in '(bwinim)', and 'u' found for 'a' in 'hay', 'I' missing from '(ólim)', page 50: Ex 18 (1) 3: 's6' found for 'sé'. A search for 'rn' found errors for 'm' on pages: 33, 85, 86, 89, 90, 96, 111, 127, 132, 139, 154, 168, 176, 179, 181, 182, 217, & 222.

Corrected and reposted 10th Feb. 2011.

Page 60: Ex 22 A ln 3: 'f' found for 'f' in 'fhágaidís', page 64: Vocabulary L-3: 'claf (Idee)' for 'clafí (klee)', R-6: 'pi' for 'pl'.

Assorted typos found on pages 63 - 65.

Corrected and reposted 18th Feb. 2011.

Systematic typo search commenced, pages i to 32, and 63 to 70 searched to date. Assorted typos found on pages v, vi, x, xii, 4, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 16, 18, 26, 27, 29, 31, 32, 67, 68, 69, 70.

Corrected and reposted 20th Feb. 2011.

Continuing the search, typos found on pages 33, 36, 37, 39, 40, 41, 42, 44, 45, 46, 71, 73, & 74.

Corrected and reposted 23rd Feb. 2011.

Continuing: pages: 45, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 78, 79, 80, 81.

Continuing: pages: 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 83, 84, 85, 86. 25th Feb. 2011.

Continuing: pages: 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 83, 84, 85, 86. 26th Feb. 2011.

Page 91 Ex 35 B 4, period missing in original. Typos: pages: 89, 90, 91. 1 Mar 2011.

Pages 93, 94, 96, 97, 99, 100, 101, and most of 211 - 241. 7 Mar 2011.

Lesson XVIII. 8/Mar/2011.

Lesson XIX. 10/Mar/2011.

Lessons XX, XXI. 15 Mar 2011.

Lessons XXII and XXIII. 17 Mar 2011.

Lessons XXIV and XXV. 19 Mar 2011.

Lessons XXVI and XXVII. 24 Mar 2011.

Key to excrcises. 30 Mar 2011.

Appendix proofing completed. 31 Mar 2011.

Agusín proofed and reformatted to better represent the record covers. Actual scans of the covers used to replace library copies. This proofing is now closed. 05 April 2011.

Dave webb has found more errors, and is reporting them as he continues the search. His reports can be seen on the next page. I am updating the files as I receive his reports.

My thanks to Dave Webb..

More Typos found, Aug. 2017

Introduction: page xi: OCR errors:

'learn' digitised as 'leam'. 2 locations on this page. Here corrected

Found by Michael O'Loughlin. Many thanks.

Archive.org Review:

Reviewer: Monty12 -

favoritefavoritefavoritefavoritefavorite -

December 30, 2023

Subject: Great Resource + Correction

The best resource for learning the dialect of Munster Irish, exceptional work in bringing it to us digitally.

On page 54, under sentences to learn by heart, it reads:

"is láidir nu fir iad" when it should be "is láidir na fir iad"

Many thanks.

Incorporated: Jan 04 2024.

Dave Webb's Progress report:

27 March 2013 14:173

Hi, I just looked at chapter 1 of the file on archive.org:

p26 the singular should be dinnéar not dinnéir

p27 exercise 1 6, níl should be níl with fada p30 "the feminine pronoun sí" - sí should be italicised.

23 March 2013 02:13

p32: "particle do" = do should be italicised

p33: cruim should be crúim and should not be italicised

léim should not be italicised

féachaim should not be indented

cuireann si - should be sí

Notes on the sound recording.

The recording supplied to me by Gael Linn, though nearly perfect, did have some minor scratches and pressing faults. These I have to a great extent managed to edit out using an excellent sound editing tool, Amadeus. However, some of the artefacts in the recording could not be completely repaired, and so there are still some minor clicks and bumps in the sound files. Also, sadly, some of the speakers were using poorly fitted dentures, and there are some dreadful clacks and whistles. The clacks are strongly associated with the 'L' sound, and have been moderately easy to remove, though success here has not been 100%. The whistle, associated with the 'R' sound has been masked by forcing a 180 degree phase error every 5th cycle approximately, into the sound to destroy the resonance. It should be noted that 'L', and 'R' involve similar mouth positions, such that in Japanese, they are considered to be the same sound.

That aside, there remains an unaccountable error. The readers have, either by design or error, omitted some words, and put some others in the wrong order.

Where possible, I have sought out the missing word from other lessons, or the exercise associated with the lesson, thus sometimes, in the vocabulary, a word is uttered by the wrong speaker. As with other faults, success here has not been 100%, and some words I have reconstructed from existing sounds in the recording, and some I have imported from Buntús Cainte. Some I have failed to find anywhere, and so have been forced to leave the word unlinked.

Notes:

Caution, these synthesized words are judged from the simplified spellings to be phonetically accurate, but that may not be correct.

1 'ar scoil': from 'ta scoil', ex. 12, sen. 9, and 'ar maidin', voc. X.

2 'drochscéal': from 'droiched', voc XII, and 'scéal', voc VII.

3 'préamh': from 'préamhcha', ex. 41, sen. 18, and 'sliabh', voc XVIII.

LESSON	WORD/PHRASE	REASON	PAGE	SUBSTITUTION	LOCATION	PAGE
VI	caint	missing	45	ag caint leis, (leis)	VI: Vocab.	46
	ag caint	missing	45	ag caint leis, (leis)	VI: Vocab.	46
	obair	missing	46	obair	VIII: Vocab.	55
	ag obair	missing	46ag obair.	VIII: Ex. 20: Sen. 19	56
VII	ár gcuid coirce	missing	50	No substitution available.
VIII	móin	missing	55	móin	XIII: Vocab.	80
	siúd	missing	55siúd.	VIII: Ex. 20: Sen. 3	55
IX	gairdín	wrong	60	gairdín	IV: Vocab.	40
X	ar scoil	missing	64	Synthesized	See note 1 opposite.
	fe cheann bliana	wrong	64fe cheann bliana.	X: Ex. 24: B: Sen. 3	65
	mar	missing	64	mar	XIII: Vocab.	80
XI	d'oscaíl sé	missing	68	No substitution available.
	seachtain	missing	68	seachtain	XXI: Vocab.	122
XIV	ciall	missing	85ciall le haois!	XIV: Ex. 33: Sen. 14	86
	coróin	missing	85	Coróin	XXV: Vocab.	143
	drochscéal	missing	85	Synthesized	See note 2 opposite
	iarraim	missing	86	Iarraim ar, modified.	XIII: Vocab.	80
	iníon	missing	86	No substitution available.
XV	leanbh	missing	90leanbh!	XV: Ex. 35: Sen. 7	90
XVIII	fé cheann	missing	106	fé cheann	X: Vocab.	64
	préamh	missing	106	Synthesized	See note 3 opposite
	préamhacha	missing	106préacha anois ...	XVIII: Ex. 41: Sen. 18	107
XIX	maraim	missing	111	No substitution available.
	stróinséir	missing	111stróinséir.	XIX: Ex. 43: B: Sen. 5	112
XXII	ceacht	missing	128	an ceacht	Buntús Cainte	58
	ceachtanna	missing	128	na ceachtanna	Buntús Cainte	58
	cliste	missing	128cliste?	XXII: Ex. 51: Sen. 4	128
XXVII	costas	missing	154	No substitution available.
	déanach	missing	154	déanach	XXV: Vocab.	143

From: "Education" <education@hachette.co.uk>
Subject: RE: Teach Yourself Irish, Myles Dillon / Donnach o Chronin FAO Nick Wetton & Ginny Catmur
Date: 27 June 2011 14:42:11 BST
To: "David R Smith" <DaveAt168@btinternet.com>

Dear Dave,

Yes that is correct. They have no interest in publishing the work you have put together.

They have a new edition of the textbook now so you will have to find interest from other publisher parties.

Sorry about that.

Regards

Catherine Shipston

Direct Services

Bookpoint Ltd
130 Milton Park
Abingdon
OX14 4SB

Tel: 01235 827827

Fax: 01235 400401

From: David R Smith [<mailto:DaveAt168@btinternet.com>]
Sent: 22 June 2011 15:35
To: Education
Subject: Re: Teach Yourself Irish, Myles Dillon / Donnach o Chronin FAO Nick Wetton & Ginny Catmur

Dear Catherine,

Am I reading too much into this reply, or does it actually mean that I have leave to release this work as 'free issue' to interested parties for educational use only?

Best regards,

Dave.

On 22 Jun 2011, at 12:37, Education wrote:

Dear David,
Thank you for your email, I emailed our publishers again who told me that the editor should have replied back to you.
They have recently published a new edition of the book by different authors so they are happy for the old edition to be re-produced by yourselves.
http://www.hoddereducation.co.uk/Title/9781444102451/Complete_Irish_Audio_Support_Teach_Yourself.htm

Any queries then dont hesitate to contact me.

Regards

Catherine Shipston

Direct Services

Bookpoint Ltd
130 Milton Park
Abingdon
OX14 4SB

Tel: 01235 827827
Fax: 01235 400401

From: David R Smith [<mailto:>]
Sent: 10 June 2011 13:30
To: Education
Subject: Re: Teach Yourself Irish, Myles Dillon / Donnach o Chronin FAO Nick Wetton & Ginny Catmur

Dear Catherine,
I have to report, with some regret, that the silence from the publishers is absolutely deafening. If there is no interest, then I would appreciate a statement to that effect, as there are parties still interested in this old, and out-of-print publication, and the sources of old copies are drying up. The re-typeset version is faithful to the original layout as far as is physically possible, and errors of fact, and unfortunate formatting has been corrected. If you are prepared to take over the work and republish as a pdf file with the Gaell-Linn recordings embodied, I would be pleased to provide copies of all the files involved. I find the position I am in, where the publishers seem to be turning a benevolent blind eye to my work, quite uncomfortable, as do others who then, rightly, refuse to handle the work. Please help me to sort this, as, because there is limited support in the Gaoltachts for the artificial C.O. dialect, TYI1961 is still a popular, and much missed publication, especially in the Munster Gaoltacht.

Best regards,
Dave Smith.

On 3 May 2011, at 12:06, Education wrote:

Dear Dave
Thank you for your email. We are the distribution centre so your email was forwarded to the Teach Yourself publishers.
I have forwarded your recent email onto the publisher who will chase up the reply, you should receive an email shortly.
Regards
Catherine Shipston
Direct Services
Bookpoint Ltd
130 Milton Park
Abingdon
OX14 4SB
Tel: 01235 827827
Fax: 01235 400401

From: David R Smith [<mailto:DaveAt168@btinternet.com>] <<mailto:DaveAt168@btinternet.com>>
Sent: 29 April 2011 22:44
To: Education
Subject: Re: Teach Yourself Irish, Myles Dillon / Donnach o Chronin FAO Nick Wetton & Ginny Catmur

Dear Catherine,
More than a little time has passed, and I have received no response. Am I to take this lack of response as lack of interest?
If indeed, you have no interest, then a statement to that effect would be appreciated, so that I can make the work publicly available without risk to handlers.
I would still be prepared for the blank pages to carry your adverts.

Best regards,
Dave.

On 7 Apr 2011, at 10:59, Education wrote:

Dear David

We have received your email and the publishers are looking into the matter.

You will receive a response shortly.

Regards

Catherine Shipston

Direct Services

Bookpoint Ltd
130 Milton Park
Abingdon
OX14 4SB

Tel: 01235 827827
Fax: 01235 400401

From: David R Smith [<mailto:DaveAt168@btinternet.com>]
<<mailto:DaveAt168@btinternet.com>>
Sent: 06 April 2011 11:42
To: Education Enquiries
Subject: Teach Yourself Irish, Myles Dillon / Donnach o Chronin FAO Nick Wetton & Ginny Catmur

Dear Friends,
I have completed the re-typesetting of the above book, and have assembled it as a pdf file, incorporating sound files extracted from the Gael Linn recordings. This work was not commissioned by you, neither was it permitted by you, but from your response to my communications with you, I inferred that it was viewed with benign indifference.
I believe that the additions and adjustments I have made have been a considerable improvement to the original, which did contain some text and formatting errors. There were also errors in the Gael Linn recordings, which I have to a great extent edited out.
The result is a pdf file of just over 30MB, which is a stand-alone file, not requiring any external files, but would benefit from direct internet access for feedback of error notifications, see page #245.
There are about 6 blank pages free for adding your advertisements.

There is still considerable interest in this edition, I have had over 200 copies downloaded while it was under development via box.net. Now though the file is too large to be handled by their free server, so I have put the file, now locked, and encrypted, on another server, for whose service I am paying.
You can find the file at:
<http://sangallensis.150m.com/Irish/TYI1961.pdf>
<<http://sangallensis.150m.com/Irish/TYI1961.pdf>>
This file is then somewhat interactive. The list of contents is linked to the text, so that clicking on an item switches to the page that the item is on. references on the various pages automatically switch to the referred page, and items in the vocabularies call up the incorporated sound files for the pronunciation of the relevant word. Also the covers of the record set have been incorporated into the back pages, and a re-typeset text image incorporated, with links to the additional material on the recording.

Further, and this might be a problem, I have, in the back pages, incorporated a scanned copy of the chapter from O' Cuiv, which is referred to in the text. This has been reported as particularly useful.

I would be pleased if you could now take over the project for general publication. I am naturally prepared to give continued support, as long as I am able, for error correction, and format updating. This work has been done Pro Deo, and no payment is expected for this product, which I freely acknowledge, never belonged to me.

If, however, you have no interest in this work, I would desire a notification to that lack of interest, so that I may continue to make the work freely available, and so that other servers may carry it without risk of your justifiable ire.

Best regards,
David R Smith.
(B.A.2,1, Science & Technology, Open Univerity.)
168 Bristol Road,
Frampton Cotterell,
Bristol, BS36 2AX,
U.K.

eMail
DaveAt168@btinternet.com

WWW
<http://www.btinternet.com/~daveat168>
<<http://www.btinternet.com/~daveat168>>

EBook of The Forgotten Gospel in PDF format (~5MB)
TheForgottenGospelEBook.pdf
<<http://www.btinternet.com/~daveat168/TheForgottenGospelEBook.pdf>>
<<http://www.btinternet.com/~daveat168/TheForgottenGospelEBook.pdf>>

Click here <<https://www.mailcontrol.com/sr/wQw0zmjPoHdJTZGyOCrrhq==> to report this email as spam.

-

Please consider the environment. Do you really need to print this email?

-

Click here for company information http://www.bookpoint.co.uk <<http://www.bookpoint.co.uk/>> or here for our Email Disclaimer
<http://www.bookpoint.co.uk/EmailDisclaimer.aspx>

Bookpoint Limited, 130 Milton Park, Abingdon, Oxon, OX14 4SB. An Hachette UK Limited company registered in England and Wales under company no. 978415

Please consider the environment. Do you really need to print this email?

Click here for company information <http://www.hachette.co.uk> or here for our Email Disclaimer

Hachette UK Limited, 338 Euston Road, London, NW1 3BH. Registered in England and Wales under company no. 2020173

Best regards,
David R Smith.
(B.A.2,1, Science & Technology, Open University.)
168 Bristol Road,
Frampton Cotterell,
Bristol, BS36 2AX,
U.K.

eMail
DaveAt168@btinternet.com

WWW
<http://www.btinternet.com/~daveat168>

EBook of The Forgotten Gospel in PDF format (~5MB)
TheForgottenGospelEBook.pdf