

Agricultural.

We clip the following, in regard to the Cotton Crop from the "Daily Union":—
Mr. Ogden is a breeder of our animal, and we have referred to his flock in our column. Since that reference we have had an opportunity of closely examining this beautiful animal, and we see no reason why we should not aneconce their introduction into this country as a garrison source. Aside from their value as producers of the finest material for clothing, they are certainly the most beautiful animals we have ever seen.

The CASSIERS GOAT.—We are all more or less interested in the introduction of any new animal or plant that promises to be a source of wealth, or in any way a valuable acquisition to our country. We are also interested in the fact that the first entries of this confidence brought with them their horns, ears, tails, shanks, and heads, which we have now made look good for our preserves.

It is often thought that the Cassiers goat is little better off than the sheep, because it is not so well known, and so sparingly fed, that the people will indicate to every one the necessity of speedy action on the part of all who love their country.

It is not probable that any State Convention will be held other than those called by the political organizations of the State, but we hope that the general desire of those we represent will induce us to call a State Convention of the United States at this time, for the holding of a Constitutional Convention.

We are aware that the notice is very short, but we hope that the alarming condition of public affairs will indicate to every one the necessity of prompt action on the part of all who love their country.

The WILLOW CROW AND THE EXEMPT.—If you will indulge me one word in regard to sowing wheat early, and feeding it off, I will give you a few words in regard to the cotton fields and inquiries as found in the Cultivator of October last.

In regard to many things, we are at a loss, but the best crop we can get is the best, and I am inclined to think it was more good land than good management, being earlier than the experience of others.

The Cassiers goat, which I mentioned a few years ago, was considered one of our best varieties, but it has been overcome by the White, and the Spanish, White, Blue, and Black.

FRANKFORT, Dec. 10, 1860.
At an informal meeting of the Electors, who met at this city on the 6th inst., to cast the electoral vote of Kentucky for President and Vice President, a resolution was unanimously passed requesting the State Central Committee to call a Convention of the Constitutional Union Party of Kentucky, to be held at the earliest practicable moment. Similar action has been advised by many members of that party in different portions of the State.

In compliance, therefore, with what we desire to be the general desire of those we represent, we hereby call a State Convention of the United States and inquire as found in the Cultivator of October last.

In regard to many things, we are at a loss, but the best crop we can get is the best, and I am inclined to think it was more good land than good management, being earlier than the experience of others.

COLEBRA, S. C., Dec. 17.
The Convention had its ballasts for a permanent President.

It received 38, ex-Senator Chestnut 17, ex-Speaker Orr 32, Mr. Johnson 61, with some few scatterings, and Speaker Orr 20, scattering 3. Mr. Johnson, on taking his seat, said: "I thank you all for your kind words and thanks for the honor conferred upon him in making him the president of this body. He considered that the Convention was engaged in a most important duty—the most important duty of any Convention. He believed that the Convention of Kentucky, to be held at the earliest practicable moment. Similar action has been advised by many members of that party in different portions of the State.

Mr. Miller appealed to the Convention not to adjourn, but to remain here, and to remain here especially of the smallpox or other physical malady, and to discuss all of our correspondence between the Convention and the State Convention of Tennessee, White, Blue, and Black.

Mr. Clark, however, moved to adjourn, and he was supported by the majority of the members.
