Serve As Emissaries To Carlisle, England

INTERNATIONAL friendship ties were strengthened this summer by the goodwill tours of two prominent Dickinsonians, President Edel '15 and Dr. F. E. Masland, Jr., '18.

Both shared high honors in Carlisle, England, as U. S. emissaries taking part in the 800th anniversary celebration of the granting of the royal charter of the British city. President Edel and Dr. Masland are shown on the cover of the ALUMNUS with the Lord Mayor of Carlisle, England, Irvine Burrow.

President Edel also served as exchange minister preaching in churches in the British Isles, by appointment of the National Council of Churches. Dr. Masland participated as a delegate to the World Council of Churches in Geneva, Switzerland. Mrs. Edel and Mrs. Masland accompanied their husbands on the goodwill tours.

President Edel was received in Carlisle and London as a prominent American educator and churchman and honorary freeman of the British border city of Carlisle, England, an honor he received in 1951 and accorded only one other American, Woodrow Wilson.

In Carlisle, the Edels and the Maslands were guests of the city and a special meeting of the Council was held in their honor. Gifts were exchanged and President Edel presented Dickinson College Priestley and anniversary commemorative Wedgwood plates to city officials. He received in turn a hide-covered writing pad embellished with the city's coat-of-arms. Dr. Masland was presented with an oil painting of the town hall.

The people of Carlisle, Pa., in addition to having President Edel and Dr. Masland go to Carlisle, England, as their official emissaries, also presented the people of the British city with an oil painting of the Cumberland County courthouse painted by Professor John D. Pusey, artist-in-residence of Dickinson College.

Plans were also discussed at the special meeting of the council for implementing a scholarship program first broached by Dickinson College two years ago in an international telephonic exchange between the two Carlises.

The celebrations of the octo-centennial of Carlisle, England, were from July 6 to 9. Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were to take part but the Queen was prevented from attending due to illness. Prince Philip participated in the ceremonies, and the Edels and the Maslands were presented to him.

During the anniversary celebrations President Edel and Dr. Masland marched at the head of an historic procession which included Prince Philip and other British notables. Special permission was granted for President Edel to read the Scriptural lesson at an anniversary service in the 1,000-year-old Carlisle cathedral. President Edel was the first American to participate in a cathedral service in Carlisle, when he last visited the British city in 1951.

During President Edel's stay in England, he was also presented to the Queen Mother in Salisbury, and met the Prime Minister at Oxford University. He had lunch with Clement Atlee, along with a director of the British Railways and the Chairman of the British Steel and Iron Commission. He also had lunch in the House of Lords and was admitted to the floor of the House of Commons during a recess of the House.

While in London he was tendered a luncheon in his honor which included a representative cross-section of the most important names in the British financial and industrial fields. Many of those present also were prominent political figures.

The Edels were dinner guests of Sir John Wedgwood, head of the famous Wedgwood potteries, in Barleston, which President Edel had visited on other trips to England and which makes the Priestley portrait medallion for the College's annual Priestley science award.

Serving as exchange minister President Edel occupied pulpits of several historic British churches, including the pulpit in Wesley's Chapel, London, where John Wesley preached during the last 30 years of his life.

President Edel also preached at Emanuel Congregational Church, Kent; Wigton Road Methodist Church, Carlisle; St. James Church, Birmingham; Worthington Presbyterian Church, Sussex; St. John's Church, Scotland and Abbey Presbyterian Church, Dublin.

President and Mrs. Edel crossed the Channel to Paris and toured the Continent by automobile during the month of August and part of September.

Dr. and Mrs. Masland visited European carpet mills and refugee camps, the East-West Germany barbed-wire border and Friedland where refugees are arriving in a steady stream from East Germany and Poland. These latter visits were in line with Dr. Masland's work as a member of the Division of Inter-Church Aid Service to Refugees of the World Council of Churches.

Three Faculty Men On "Refresher Year"

PROFS. Ralph Schecter, William Drum Gould and William Sloane are the first faculty members to be granted a "Refresher Year," the new sabbatical-type program at the College providing a year's leave of absence every 10 years with full salary.

The plan, which was approved by the Board of Trustees in May upon the recommendation of President Edel, is intended to increase the teaching effectiveness of faculty members and their usefulness to Dickinson.

Any faculty member granted the Refresher Year must present to the President an acceptable plan of study, travel or research covering the year and must file a report of his activities upon his return.

The leave may be granted to any member who has served the College for 10 years and who may, by reason of age, be expected to have two or more years to serve upon expiration of the leave. A teacher may defer his Refresher Year without losing his right to request it.

While the program was under study, the faculty indicated an overwhelming preference for the Refresher Year as over against the usual sabbatical plan with leave every seventh year with half salary.

Profs. Schecter, Gould and Sloane are taking their year now. Prof. Schecter, of the English Department, who also teaches courses in music appreciation, is using the period to revise a teaching manual he wrote some years ago and has been using in his music classes.

Prof. Gould, chairman of the department of philosophy and religion, was preparing, as this was being written, to set off on a world trip taking him to educational and religious centers from Cairo to Tokio for the purpose of engaging in studies in the field of comparative religion and Indian philosophy.

Prof. Sloane is assembling material for a new book on children's reading as a sequel to his successful "Children's Books in England and America in the 17th Century," a scholarly book which has had several printings since it was first published in 1955. A member of the English department, his study will take him into many of the leading libraries along the eastern seaboard.

Come to Homecoming to See Campus Changes

ALUMNI planning to come back for Homecoming, November 7 and 8, will certainly want to make provisions while in Carlisle for inspecting the campus changes that have brought remarkable advances to the teaching and learning facilities of the College in the space of a single year.

Since last commencement the C. Scott Althouse Science Hall has been completed and major alterations have been made to the interior of Tome and the main room of the College Library. Improvements in Tome, which has been altered from end to end, from basement to roof, and the Library are so extensive that former students will have difficulty recognizing them now.

Althouse Hall, new home of the departments of chemistry and geology, will be dedicated on Saturday of Homecoming weekend. Built and furnished at a cost of $615,000 and incorporating the best current developments in laboratory construction and equipment, it has ten fully equipped labs, ten lecture and classrooms and five offices. Private laboratories for the faculty adjoin the offices.

One of the many fine features is a centrally located science library which was made possible by a gift of $35,000 from Irene duPont, of Wilmington, Del., in memory of his grandfather, Alfred Victor duPont, an early science student at the College. To contain 9,000 volumes, it is the first and only departmental library at the College.

The largest of the lecture rooms accommodates 110 students. This is a plush, arena-like room having eight tiered rows of theatre-like seats upholstered in Dickinson red mohair. It is now the college's largest lecture room. The building has an emergency lighting system and a central ventilating system serving all labs.

A spacious flagstone terrace which in time may rival the Old Stone Steps as a favored lounging place of students, sets off the front of the three-story stone building and leads into a beautiful entrance lobby trimmed in Italian marble. Walls throughout are faced with glazed tile, Vinyl asbestos tile in various designs covers all floors and a graceful hand railing of bronze sets off the stairways.

Standing just west of and in line with West College, Althouse Hall is the first new science building at Dickinson since 1884 when Tome was built and is an enduring monument to the lifetime interest in science by Dr. Althouse, the trustee, who was the major contributor and for whom it has been gratefully named. Prof. Vuilleumier, chairman of the chemistry department, says it is "a dream come true."

Amazing changes have been made to Tome, which has been completely altered for the exclusive use of the physics department. The once drab interior with its dingy lighting, dark woodwork and time-worn appointments, now has the bright appearance of a new building and teaching facilities to match Althouse Hall.

Many thousands of dollars has been expended on new equipment for the nine laboratories (there were only two heretofore), two 65-seat lecture rooms, four offices and a variety of special rooms. A new feature is a machine shop for making and repairing demonstration equipment.

The center section of "new" Tome will house the College's first planetarium, the gift of Roscoe O. Bonisteel, '12, Ann Arbor, Mich. This is the latest Spitz model with a 30-foot dome. The College has been assured by the makers that the planetarium will be ready for demonstration by Homecoming.

Among other new features in Tome are a 32-foot Faucalt pendulum, a show piece that can be used to demonstrate many basic principles of physics, and a library of Dictaphone "belts" for the self-tutoring of students in need of more mathematics and other basic subjects for good progress in the department.

Dr. Henry L. Yeagley, new chairman of the physics department and formerly of the Pennsylvania State University faculty, said the changes in Tome were planned with an expansion of the physics curriculum in mind. "Without question, the department is now as well equipped and its facilities as fine as any liberal arts college in the state," he said.

Changes to the main room of the library have eased the problem of overcrowding and greatly improved the lighting. Flooring was laid between the stacks of the mezzanine which formerly had only a narrow runway around them. A wide balcony was built at the west end of the room. The additional space has made possible the rearranging of some sections and the addition of many tables.

Dean Ness Writes Book On Teaching Problem

DR. FREDERIC W. NESS, '33, the academic vice-president and dean of Dickinson College, is the author of a widely distributed 84-page report on the efforts of colleges and universities across the country to recruit students for the teaching profession.

It is entitled The Role of the Colleges in the Recruitment of Teachers. Prepared for the Commission on Teacher Education of the Association of American Colleges, it was published in mid-summer by the association under a grant from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

Coming one year after the publication of A Guide to Graduate Study, which he also prepared for the Association of American Colleges, the new book is the second major contribution by Dean Ness to the increasing efforts of higher education to meet the crisis imposed by the teacher shortage.

It is based upon a survey which sought to find out what is being done at 900 colleges and universities to identify and motivate the right kind of students for college teaching. Dean Ness found that out of 500 institutions which returned the questionnaire only 284 had what they considered to be clearly defined recruitment programs.

The report abstracts the programs, presents in detail a few which seem particularly thorough or well integrated (Dickinson's being among this group) and summarizes efforts being made by graduate and professional schools to encourage college teaching.

Dean Ness, declaring that traditional methods of recruiting no longer suffice, warns in the publication that the nation may lose the race for survival through education unless more colleges institute well-defined methods of teacher recruitment and unless the teaching profession itself takes the leadership in meeting the problem.

"No formal program, however well conceived and deftly conducted," he writes, "will succeed unless the individual faculty member can transmit to his students something of the conviction that the rewards of teaching are more than off set by any sacrifices it may demand."

The report points to the sharp decline in the number of new full-time teachers holding a doctor's degree. Whereas 31.4 per cent of the new teachers in 1953-54 held such a degree, only 23.5 per cent had this training in 1956-57.

Dean Ness expresses the fear that the number may fall to 20 per cent by 1960 and warns, "If this present trend continues we may shortly suffer not so much from a paucity of teachers as a paucity of adequately trained teachers."

The Association of American Colleges has sent copies to its 741 member institutions. In addition, 5,000 copies have been distributed by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation as part of its program to stimulate interest in careers in college teaching.

Alumni Council Holds Annual Meeting

MRS. KATHERINE SMITH CARPENTER, '25, and C. Richard Stover, '36, were welcomed as new members of the Alumni Council as the group's commencement meeting when all officers were reelected and the suggestion was made that Alumni Trustees be required to report to the Council at least once a year.

Mrs. Carpenter, who lives in Jersey Shore, Pa., is the law partner of her husband, Clyde E. Carpenter, '26, and son, Clyde, Jr., '48. Stover, a varsity football player in his student days, is vice-president of the Carlisle Deposit Bank and Trust Company. He is married to the former Lena B. Ritner, '35.

Three other persons elected to the Council in the mail balloting have served on it before. They are Homer M. Respass, '17, Balto.; William M. Young, '21, Harrisburg, Pa., and Winfield C. Cook, '32, Norristown, Pa. A new member is Doris A. Weigel, who was elected at the Senior dinner in May as the representative of the Class of 1958. All terms are for three years.

The tellers also announced the reelection of Dr. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, as Alumni Trustee for a term expiring in 1962. The officers of the General Alumni Association were reelected as follows: C. Wendell Holmes, '21, president; Charles F. Irwin, Jr., '27, vice-president; Respass, secretary, and Hyman Goldstein, '15, treasurer.

Holmes in a brief report said the association could look back upon the year as "one of its very best." Alumni giving and association membership were at an all-time highs, a number of new alumni clubs were established and most somnolent ones revived, he said.

The Council heard Dr. Gilbert Malcolm, the alumni secretary, suggest that it consider sponsoring courses and lectures at the College for alumni desiring to continue their education beyond graduation. He said such programs, sometimes referred to as "Alumni Colleges," are gaining popularity on campuses across the country. He felt that many Dickinson alumni would welcome the opportunity to return to the campus for an occasional weekend for courses designed for them and taught by regular members of the faculty.

Officers of alumni clubs were advised by Dr. Malcolm to spread their annual meeting dates throughout the year rather than bunch them in the early spring, if they want speakers from the campus. By avoiding conflict in dates, clubs are in a better position to get the speakers they want.

His suggestion for sponsorship of alumni courses will be further considered at the Homecoming meeting, November 7, when a proposal put forth by Dr. Bell, one of the four Alumni Trustees, will also be considered. Dr. Bell, pointing out that the office of Alumni Trustee was established 25 years ago as a means of providing alumni with a voice on the Board of Trustees, proposed that these representatives be required to attend at least one Council meeting a year for the purpose of making a report and sounding out Council opinion on issues as they may arise on the Board of Trustees.

Brief remarks were made by President Edel and George Shuman, Jr., financial vice-president and development director. Dr. Edel, who will retire next March, said the best years of the College are yet to come and he asked that alumni give the new president the same fine loyalty he has received.

Shuman introduced Winfield C. Cook as chairman of the 1959 Annual Giving Fund and spoke warmly of the services rendered by J. Milton Davidson as chairman for the past five years. While the fund has reached all-time highs, the full potential of alumni giving is far from being realized, he said. Thought is being given to conducting personal solicitation in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Reading and elsewhere as a means of reaching more alumni.

Four Alumni Become Trustees of the College

FOUR prominent alumni were elected trustees of the College at the June meeting on the Board held at Kings Gap, Carlisle, Pa., on May 29. They are Harry W. Lee, '18L, attorney of Reading, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Edward G. Latch, '21, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church, Washington, D. C.; William S. Jenkins, '31, attorney of Frostburg, Md., and Dr. Edward C. Raffensperger, '36, physician of Harrisburg, Pa.

A trustee and vice-president for six years of the Dickinson School of Law, Mr. Lee is also a trustee of Albright College and of the Community General Hospital in Reading. He has been a trustee of the Methodist Church for 20 years and also serves as its attorney.

Mr. Lee is the husband of the former Mildred H. Price, '18, who is a daughter of the late Rev. Joseph H. Price, '92, one time pastor of Allison Methodist Church, Carlisle.

He serves as a director and general counsel for the American Casualty Co., the Valley Forge Insurance Co. and the Valley Forge Life Insurance Co. He is also a director of the Reading Trust Company.

One of the leading lawyers of Reading, he was appointed Standing Master of the Board of Governance of the Pennsylvania Bar by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court for a five-year term in 1953 and was reappointed to another five-year term earlier this year. He has been president of the Berks County Bar Association. He is a member of the county, state and national bar associations.

Brighter Prospects for Football Season

A BETTER football team at the College this Fall is predicted by the coaching staff which began working Sept. 3 with a 48-player squad that includes 13 letter-winners and a dozen other boys with some varsity experience.

Numerically and weight-wise, the 1958 squad is larger than last season's group. In addition, there appears to be more talent and a keener competition among the players for starting positions.

"We have the potential for improvement," said Donal Seibert, the head coach, who is in his second season at Dickinson. "I believe we also have more confidence and the desire to win which last year's team lacked."

The coaches are working to correct two other weaknesses of the 1957 eleven—the lack of dependable line backers and the absence of a good running attack. They feel that the team must pose a threat on running plays if the most is to be realized from the superior passing expected again from Dave Wachter, the quarterback.

Assisting Seibert are David Eavenson and Charles Ream, regular members of the College coaching staff, and Rogers Herr and Robert Nye, Carlisle school teachers and former coaches, who are helping on a seasonal basis. Nye is a brother of Charley Nye, a Dickinson star of the '20s.

Dickinson's 73rd season opens Sept. 27 at Lancaster against F. and M., undoubtedly the strongest of the eight teams on the schedule. The Parents Day meeting with Haverford on Oct. 11 and the Homecoming game with Wilkes on Nov. 8 are the big home attractions. Wagner and Allegheny will also be met on Biddle Field.

The team is well heeled in linemen, notably ends and guards, but there is a shortage of experienced backs. The return of Jim Laneve, a guard, and Barclay Surrick, halfback, former players who were not on the squad last year, should help.

1958 Football Schedule

|----------|---------------|------|
| Sept. 27 | F. and M.     | Away |
| Oct. 11  | Haverford     | Home |
|          | (Parents Day) |      |
| Oct. 18  | Susquehanna   | Away |
| Oct. 25  | Wagner        | Home |
| Nov. 1   | Allegheny     | Home |
| Nov. 8   | Wilkes        | Home |
|          | (Homecoming)  |      |
| Nov. 15  | Johns Hopkins | Away |
| Nov. 22  | Ursinus       | Away |

John Quirk, 190-pound sprinter, who was sidelined last season by injury, is a potential star.

Quarterback Wachter, Jan Skladany and Bob Worthington are the only lettermen among the backs. But up front are such fine holdovers as Bill Smith, Barry Dasher and Hugh James, ends; Charles Zwally and Bob Faunce, tackles; Lee Shipman, Scott Clements and Tom DeMarino, guards, and Jack Stafford and Tom Moore, centers.

Backing up the lettermen are a fine group of sophomores and a large freshman contingent. A number of the freshmen had good high school records and are expected to be of considerable help to the varsity.

To Represent Dickinson

Professor Milton R. Priddis, '17, from Rochester, N.Y., will serve as the delegate of Dickinson College at the 50th anniversary convocation at William Smith College, Geneva, N.Y., on September 27. Back in 1946, he was the Dickinson representative at the centennial celebration at the University of Buffalo.

He and his wife recently returned from a two months automobile trip to the Pacific Coast, in which they visited the national parks and Canada and the United States.

Closes Thirty Years' Service on Faculty

DR. FRANK AYRES, JR., the Susan Powers Hoffman Professor of Mathematics and chairman of the department at the College, retired in July at his own request in order to travel and devote more time to the writing of textbooks. He and Mrs. Ayres will continue to live in Carlisle. They are the parents of Mrs. Margaret Ayres Jacobs, '51.

Dr. Ayres came to the faculty in 1928, was promoted to associate professor in 1935 and to head of the department in 1943. Graduated from Washington College, Md., in 1921, Dr. Ayres began teaching mathematics that year at Ogden College and was on the Texas A. and M. faculty when called to Dickinson.

Appreciation of his "effective teaching and creative scholarship" was expressed by the Board of Trustees of the College in a resolution placed upon the minutes of the Commencement meeting. "By his abilities and devotion through almost a lifetime of service, Frank Ayres added to the glory of the College," the resolution stated.

A music enthusiast and a flutist, he played at one time in the College orchestra and in Carlisle chamber ensembles. As chairman of the cultural events committee for a number of years, he was responsible for the appearance of many noted artists on the campus.

His Outline of Theory and Problems of Differential and Integral Calculus and Outline of Theory and Problems of Differential Equations, published by the Schaum Publishing Company, N. Y., became best sellers and their use at colleges and universities across the country extended Dr. Ayres' contribution to the teaching of mathematics far beyond the Dickinson campus. The first was published in 1950, the second two years later. His articles have appeared in the National Mathematics Magazine and other publications.

The Dickinson chapter of Phi Beta Kappa recognized his scholarly attainments when in 1944 it elected him to

Dr. Ayres underwent major surgery in Carlisle Hospital shortly before his retirement but has since made a full recovery.

Appointed to Beaver Chair in English

APPPOINTMENT of Prof. Ralph Schecter, a Dickinson teacher for 36 years, to the Thomas Beaver Chair of English Literature was announced in June by President Edel along with seven faculty promotions.

One of the most versatile members of the faculty, Prof. Schecter has been equally at home in three teaching fields, English, speech and music. Soon after coming to Dickinson in 1922 he organized the band and orchestra and directed them for 25 years. He continues to teach music appreciation courses in addition to his English and public speaking classes.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Prof. Schecter also spent a year at the University of London where W. P. Ker, the authority on Scottish poetry, was one of his teachers. While in England he also studied conducting under Sir Henry Wood.

Dr. Edel in announcing the appointment said Prof. Schecter is "one of the ablest teachers at the College and has the affection and respect of students, colleagues and alumni." The Thomas Beaver Chair, established in 1872, is one of the oldest at the College.

Among the new promotions was that of Dr. Donald T. Graffam, to full professor in the department of education and psychology. Advanced to associate professor were Dr. Asa W. Climenhaga and Dr. Clifton E. Mayfield, education and psychology; Dr. John W. Dixon, Jr., fine arts; Dr. Warren J. Gates, history, and William H. Benson, mathematics. Joseph G. DuCharme, coach and physical education instructor, was made an assistant professor.

Two Teaching Abroad

Dickinson faculty members Harold W. Weigel, '30, and Donald W. Flaherty are teaching abroad this academic year under grants provided by the Fulbright and Smith-Mundt programs, respectively.

Dr. Weigel, associate professor of German, who also had a leave in 1951-52 to teach in Vienna, is exchanging classrooms with Dr. Anna M. Stark of the Max Josef Stift Maedschen-Oberrealschule, in Munich, Germany. Dr. Weigel will remain at the Munich school until the close of its term next July when he will be joined by Mrs. Weigel, member of the Dickinson library staff, and they will tour Europe.

Dr. Flaherty, assistant professor of political science, is in Hong Kong as visiting lecturer in American Civilization at New Asia, Chung Chi and Chu Hai Universities. He also has had prior teaching experience abroad, having been on the West China Union University faculty from 1947 to 1949.

Dr. Weigel hopes to visit Erwin Wickert, '36, in Heidelberg, and Hermann Stucke, '56, in Stuttgart, before his term begins. Both were exchange students at Dickinson. Wickert has become a leading writer in Germany. Stucke is doing graduate work in economics at the University of London.

Heart Attacks Claim Two Faculty Members

THE sudden, unexpected deaths of Mrs. Lucy Holt Doney, catalogue librarian of the College, and Dr. Montagu Frank Modder, Visiting Professor of English and a well-known writer and illustrator, saddened the college community.

Mrs. Doney, mother of two Dickinsonians and the widow of Dr. Paul H. Doney, professor of English at Dickinson from 1929 until his death in 1941, died July 3. She was stricken in the kitchen of her Carlisle home while preparing dinner and died within a few minutes.

Dr. Modder, a teacher for 36 years, was finishing his first year on the faculty when he died May 30 in the midst of Dickinson commencement festivities. He had attended the Alumni Luncheon and returned to his home near the campus for a mid-afternoon nap. He died quietly in his sleep.

Mrs. Doney was appointed to the library staff in 1943, two years after her husband's death. She took a leave of absence in 1953-54 to earn a master's degree in library science at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. At the time of her death she was head cataloguer and held the faculty rank of associate professor.

Born in a Minneapolis, Minn., parsonage in 1900, she attended Willamette University and graduated from the University of Washington in 1922. She married Prof. Doney in 1924 and four years later came to Carlisle upon his appointment to the faculty. A Methodist, she was a member of the American Association of University Women and the American Association of University Professors.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Frederick Laufer, '47, Camp Hill, Pa.; two sons, Hugh H. Doney, '52, a graduate student at the University of Texas, and John M. Doney, at home, and a brother, Herbert B. Holt, of Pasadena, Calif.

Dr. Modder, who was 67 years old, came to the Dickinson faculty just a year ago upon his retirement at Beloit College where he taught English for 22 years. He taught also at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, and West Virginia University.

A facile writer and gifted illustrator and cartoonist, he contributed hundreds of articles and drawings on social, political and literary themes to the Christian Science Monitor, the Milwaukee Journal, Beloit Daily News and other papers. He also wrote and illustrated for magazines in England and India. Among his books were "Pictorial Shakespeare," "Spirit of Britain" and "The Jew in the Literature of England."

Dr. Modder was born in Colombo, Ceylon, where his father was a British judge. He served with British forces in the Middle East and France in World War I. He was a graduate of Royal College, in Ceylon, and Springfield College, in Massachusetts, and had his Ph. D. degree from University of Michigan.

He is survived by Mrs. Modder and their twin daughters, Mrs. William K. Strong, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. J. Sherman Smith, Media.

Advances to Important YMCA Post in Milwaukee

WILLIAM G. GREEN, '29, who survived the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor and has gone from one difficult task to another throughout his career, was appointed Assistant General Secretary of the YMCA of Milwaukee and Milwaukee County with responsibility for public relations in July. This is one of the country's top YMCA posts in an association which operates 11 branches and a camp, with an annual operating budget of over two million dollars and a property valued at over eight millions and a membership last year of 36,200.

The promotion came to him a little more than a year after he went to Milwaukee as Associate Executive Secretary of the New Central YMCA. Most of his earlier career had been with the YMCA or USO units associated with the armed forces.

A native of Altoona, he engaged in business in New York and New Jersey after his graduation from the college before he entered YMCA work in 1936 as Activities and Promotion Secretary at Trenton.

In April 1941, Bill accepted the invitation of the Armed Services Department of the YMCA to the position of Program Secretary at the Armed Services YMCA in Honolulu. He was going about his daily tasks there on memorable December 7, 1941, when he was one who survived the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor, which plunged him into relief work for evacuees of Pearl Harbor and Hickham Field and five years of service in Hawaii.

Having organized and directed the first Overseas USO Mobile Entertainment Unit in Hawaii, he was appointed Program Director of the Armed Services YMCA-USO at Honolulu early in 1942. Bill served in this capacity throughout World War II. During the peak of war service, he directed program activities for over 15,000 service personnel every day.

In the Spring of 1946, after V.J. Day,

WILLIAM G. GREEN

he returned to the mainland and was assigned Program Director of the Armed Services YMCA at Boston. Two years later in January 1948, he drew a similar assignment at Fairbanks, Alaska, where he served military personnel at Ladd and Eielson Air Force Bases and at the Army Arctic training center at Big Delta. He was flown to Point Barrow on the rim of the Arctic Ocean to install recreational programs for Navy Seabees stationed at this outpost. In 1950 he was appointed Executive Secretary of the Armed Services YMCA at Fairbanks.

Bill drew another challenging assignment in April 1951 when he was named Director of the USO Club at Rantoul, Illinois, serving the 18,000 Air Force personnel at the Chanute Air Force Base. While there on recommendation of the Commanding General he received the Special Citation Award for Outstanding Service in the Field of Military Recreation. This assignment brought him nearer to Dickinsonians than he had been in years and he was elected vice president of the Dickinson Club of Chicago.

Bill is married and has three children: Douglas, 12; Alison, 10, and Scott, 8.

Fine Attendance At Del-Mar-Va Club Dinner

WITH 56 present, the Southern Del-Mar-Va Dickinson club set a new high for attendance at the fourth annual dinner held in the George Washington Hotel, Ocean City, Md., on August 1. Several alumni spent the week-end at the popular Maryland resort.

The Rev. Ralph L. Minker, Jr., '47, pastor of the Atlantic Methodist Church there and president of the club, presided ably. Kendall McCabe, '61, of Berlin, Md., a pre-ministerial student, offered the invocation and at the close, the Rev. Howell O. Wilkins, '44, pastor of the Hillcrest Methodist Church, Wilmington, pronounced the benediction. During the dinner, the president's father, Ralph L. Minker, '20, led some group singing.

James Kenney, of Salisbury, a senior student, was the featured speaker. Others who spoke briefly were Vice-President Gilbert Malcolm; Financial Vice-President George Shuman; C. Wendell Holmes, president of the General Alumni Association, and Winfield C. Cook, '32, the new chairman of the Annual Giving Fund, who spent the day with his two sons fishing. They landed several marlin.

Among those from distant points were H. Monroe Ridgeley, '26, president of the Dickinson Club of Hagerstown, and his wife; Charles C. Duke, Baltimore Trustee; Carlyle R. Earp, '14, and his wife, of Baltimore, and Dr. C. Law McCabe, '43, and his wife, of Pittsburgh, who were visiting Law's mother at Fenwick Island.

William E. Matthews, Jr., '19, made one of the long drives on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula, when he came from Smyrna, Del. Marvin H. Tawes, '26, vice-president of the club, came from the other end when he drove from Crisfield, Md., with his wife and his brother, A. Wellington Tawes, '12, and his wife. Dr. J. Paul Slaybaugh, '21, president of Wesley Junior College, drove from Dover with his daughter, Eleanor, '49, who is now Mrs. H. Walton Jones. Raymond W. Hallman, '31, secretary-treasurer of the club, made the trip from Seaford, Del. Harry T. Smith, '26, past president of the club, came with his wife from Salisbury, where he practices dentistry. William T. Guy, '48, and his wife also came from Salisbury and Austin A. Banks, '09, from nearby. M. Wilson Harris, '18, drove from Centerville, Md., and met his classmate, James Hector McNeal, of the University of Delaware faculty, who has a cottage at Bethany Beach.

In Technical Research

Edgar H. Hamilton, '25, has collaborated with G. W. Cleek and O. H. Grauer on the research reported in a technical paper appearing in the June issue of The American Ceramic Society Journal. The paper is entitled, "Some Properties of Glasses in the System Barium Oxide-Boric Oxide-Silica."

Mr. Hamilton, ceramic engineer, has been with the National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C. since 1929. He has done graduate work at George Washington University. Mr. Hamilton conducted chemical analyses for the Insecticide and Fungicide Board of the U.S. Department of Agriculture prior to joining the Bureau of Standards.

Publication of a paper by the American Ceramic Society in either of its two technical magazines, the Bulletin or the Journal, is a mark of recognition for its author since the society's publications are the principal American sources of technical information in the nonmetallic minerals field.

Chief Of Army Branch

Lt. Col. Arthur G. Bouton, '36, has been assigned as chief of the clinical psychology branch at the Army Medical Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Tex. His wife, Eleanor, is with him there.

Five Athletic Coaches Speak At Harrisburg Dinner

A NEW twist was given to the Harrisburg Alumni Club annual dinner last May when three of the College's five athletic coaches shared the speaking program with President Edel. Many younger alumni were among the 75 persons in attendance at the West Shore Country Club.

Coming just as the most successful spring sports season in Dickinson history was drawing to a close and not so long after the swimming team had finished its schedule undefeated, the dinner turned into a victory celebration and a salute to the coaches who had helped bring about the fine record, which included Dickinson's first national Class C title in lacrosse.

With such evidence to support them, Coaches David Eavenson, Donald Seibert and Joseph DuCharme said that a creditable coaching job can be done at Dickinson under present policies (high admission standards, no athletic subsidies) but, they chorused with considerable emphasis, "it isn't easy." Said Eavenson, the director of athletics, "Alumni can help by encouraging good students who are also good athletes to come to Dickinson."

Robertson C. Cameron, '28, presided

in the absence of John D. Hopper, club president, and presented to the College for the Annual Giving Fund a check for $50 from the club. This was accepted by C. Wendell Holmes, president of the General Alumni Association.

Dr. Edel observed that the dinner completed his last swing around the circuit of annual Dickinson club dinners before his retirement next March after nearly 13 years as president. "It does something to a man to be president that long," he said. "It is a great experience to attempt to place the College among the best in the land."

The president said he will leave with many joys and satisfactions. That he expects to be kept busy in his retirement at his seaside home in California was indicated by the remark that there remain "many things to do, many boats to build, books to write, places to visit, fish to catch."

The club elected the following officers: Howell C. Mette, '48, president; John A. Rose, '48, first vice-president; Robertson C. Cameron, '28, second vice-president; Franklin C. Brown, '47, secretary, and William M. Young, '21, treasurer.

Dickinsonian Again Heads Principals Association

MEMBERS of the New Jersey Secondary School Principals Association prefer the Dickinson product for their leadership. For the second consecutive time the association elected a graduate of the College as its president at the annual meeting in May when Edward Glaspey, '31, succeeded George W. Meyer, '25.

By a nice co-incidence, Glaspey's classmate at Dickinson, Robert LaVanture, was elected second vice-president and member of the executive committee. LaVanture, a former Red and White football center, is principal of the Morristown High School.

Glaspey, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the College, has been principal of Haddon Heights High School since 1954. Before that he was head of the school's English department and assistant principal.

He earned a master of arts degree in English at Tufts University in 1933. He took additional graduate work in English at Columbia University and in educational administration and supervision at Rutgers University.

A well-known schoolman, he has represented Camden County in the Delegate Assembly of the New Jersey Education Association and has served on the executive committee of the Philadelphia Suburban Principals Association.

In Conferences With European Business Heads

JOHN Lamb McIntire, '37, public relations executive, is the official representative of the American Public Relations Association at a series of conferences in Europe with industrial and professional leaders.

He undertook the assignment in the face of less than complete recovery from a disabling spinal injury he suffered in an automobile accident six years ago. It was not until last winter that he was able to resume his usual work schedule and to exchange a cane for a continuous-traction brace which permitted him to move about again and to drive a car. With wry humor, he has described the brace as "the latest thing in neckwear."

McIntire began his Western European assignment in mid-summer and will have talked with leaders of industry and the professions in 11 countries before returning home this fall. In addition to representing the public relations organization, he is American delegate to international discussions in Switzerland and several other countries to evaluate recent developments in medical, psychiatric and psychoanalytic research.

He is president of McIntire Associates, a public relations, marketing and research service in Narberth, Pa., near Philadelphia. He was formerly associate director of the Devereux Foundation and was associated for many years with the Re-education Division of the Pennsylvania Hospital Institute. He is recognized in this country and abroad as an authority in the field of motivation-analysis.

A native of Philadelphia and a member of Beta Theta Pi, he is a brother of James L. McIntire, '36.

JOHN L. McINTIRE

the Susquehanna River.

The West Shore Senior High School he heads is a separate school entity with its own 42-member joint board. In addition to being the chief administrator of the entity he also carries the title of high school principal. The school, scheduled to open next year, will serve seven communities.

Wert has taught in the region since beginning his career in 1932 as a teacher of social studies in the Lemoyne High School. He became principal of the school in 1946 and was serving as supervising principal of the West Shore School District when elected to his new post in June. He will continue to reside in Lemoyne.

He also has business interests and is president of the Beetem Lumber and Manufacturing Company and a director of the Lemoyne Trust Company. He is past president of the Cumberland County Education Association and the Cumberland County Principals Association. He is a brother of Howard M. Wert, '28, a teacher at the Cranbrook School, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Youngster Lands Top Insurance Post

JOHAN D. HOPPER, '48, lawyer and insurance representative, who is best known to Dickinsonians as one of the College's all-time basketball greats, became general agent of the Harrisburg, Pa., agency of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa last May, less than six years after entering the insurance field.

Insurance men congratulated Hopper on achieving the top executive position of a large agency in such a relatively short time. They said such appointments usually go to older men having more years of experience.

Hopper went with the agency in 1952 upon entering the insurance field. A successful salesman from the start, he gave special attention to group insurance, pension plans and estate planning, and his knowledge of the law and tax structure made him particularly helpful to clients. His volume of sales soon made him eligible for the company's Production Club.

He was captain and leading scorer of that great 1946-47 basketball team at the College, which lost only two games in 17. Some of his scoring records still stand. He went on to the Dickinson School of Law, graduated in 1951 and returned to the College the following winter as head basketball coach after the death of Charles "Chick" Kennedy. He gave up coaching after one season upon being admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Active in alumni affairs, he is immediate past president of the Dickinson Club of Harrisburg and in May completed a three-year term on the Alumni Council. He has served on important committees of the Council.

A member of Beta Theta Pi, he lives in Camp Hill, Pa., with his wife, the former Ann Bowman, and their four children.

A member of the class of 1944, he received his Bachelor of Laws degree from Brooklyn Law School. He is a director of the Honesdale Golf Club, a past director of the Honesdale Junior Chamber of Commerce, and a former secretary-treasurer of the Wayne County Sportsman Association.

Heads Program in Peru for World Bank

DR. LEWIS H. ROHRBAUGH, '30, vice-president and provost of the University of Arkansas and authority on the social and agricultural ills of the world's underdeveloped areas, is winding up a special assignment to Peru by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank).

Since mid-July he has been consultant for an international team of experts engaged in setting up a long-range agricultural development plan for the South American country. His primary concern is with the organizational and administrative aspects of the plan. He is scheduled to return home about November 1.

Over the past 14 years Dr. Rohrbaugh has been on somewhat similar missions to Egypt, Greece and Iraq at the request of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, State Department and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. He was a consultant to the UNRRA for its organization.

His current mission was brought about at the request of the Peruvian government and organized by the World Bank and the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations. On his 10-member team are other experts from the Netherlands, Norway, the United Kingdom and the U. S.

In 1944-45 while he was director of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Graduate School he was loaned to the UNRRA to serve first at Cairo as director of the Balkan Missions and then as deputy chief of the Mission to Greece. He served as chief of the State Department's first Point Four Mission to Iraq from 1951 to 1954.

Retired But Still Going

The Rev. Dr. Karl K. Quimby, '11, retired because of age at the January meeting of the Methodist Board of Missions, then in March he was retired as Chairman of the Board of Directors of Religion in American Life and in June he took the retired relation with the Newark Annual Conference. But he has not quit and is busy at tasks most congenial to his spirit.

LEWIS H. ROHRBAUGH

Dr. Quimby is serving as part time Assistant in Public Relations for the American Bible Society in New York. He is the author of the John Milton Sunday School Quarterly for the Blind, writing lessons for 3,000 sightless Sunday School teachers, and this fall he will be Special Lecturer in Methodist Polity and Program at the Biblical Seminary in New York.

He and Mrs. Quimby returned this month from a flight to Great Britain. Dr. Quimby was invited by the World Methodist Council, British Section, to visit the British Methodist Conference as their guest July 7-14 at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England and to spend two months on a preaching itinerary in England and Ireland.

Edits Three Important Works On Health

DR. HARRY D. KRUSE, '22, is the editor of a 400-page volume Integrating the Approaches to Mental Disease, a Hoeber-Harper Book, published by the Medical Book Department of Harper Brothers, New York.

The volume was published following two conferences held under the auspices of the Committee on Public Health of the New York Academy of Medicine, of which Dr. Kruse is the Executive Secretary. The jacket correctly states that "this book is a unique articulation of the complex problem of the casualty of mental disease. Forty-eight authors, reflecting the various viewpoints and disciplines concerned, explore the subject together in an effort to reach a unified concept of psychiatric disorders. The result is an essential book for all who have a panoramic view of the latest thinking of the experts on mental disease."

In writing the Preface, Dr. Kruse stated that "This is a book for all, whatever their special field, who are interested in mental disease or engaged in investigating the antecedents conducing to it, who seek a panoramic view of this area with its vast, complex constellation of influences, who wish to observe specialists attempting to design a plan for uniting different divisions into a joint enterprise, a multidisciplinary approach, and who want to know the difficulties and obstacles, surmountable for the most part, that are encountered in the endeavor."

Earlier, Dr. Kruse edited another important work, "Alcoholism As a Medical Problem," which was sponsored by the New York Academy of Medicine and the New York State Mental Health Association. "In this penetrating book, eight experts, tackling the subject from different vantage points, bring alcoholism into focus as a disease. The responsibility of the physician for the care and treatment of the alcoholic is clearly revealed. More importantly, the authors show that the disease now carries a hopeful, not a hopeless, prognosis, and that it is now possible to arouse motivation for treatment earlier in the course of the disease." Surely every physician who may be called upon to deal with this problem will find himself better prepared if he has read this book.

A third work of Dr. Kruse is a brochure "Problem Drinking and Alcoholism," which is written in non-technical terms.

The booklet sets forth the newer orientation and view points about problem drinking and alcoholism. It summarizes the causes and consequences of problem drinking and alcoholism; it shows how they are the concern of many segments of community life—medicine, law, correction, religion, education and welfare; it outlines methods of prevention and types of treatment, together with facilities and personnel engaged in conducting them and summarizes what is being done and needs to be done.

"Problem Drinking and Alcoholism" was prepared under the auspices of the Advisory Committee on Alcoholism of the New York State Interdepartmental Health Resources Board.
