

Fam. *NORMANELLIIDAE Lang, 1944 sensu Huys & Willems, 1989

(grad. nov. Huys & Willems, 1989)

Lang (1948, p. 1621) claimed the priority for the definition of the subfamily Normanellinae, referring to his 1944 paper (see appendix). Consequently, the family Normanellidae Nicholls (1945a) falls under article 23 of the ICZN (see Huys & Willems, 1989).

About the genus Cletopsyllus Willey, Soyer (1966) and Itô (1971a) mentioned the family Normanellidae Nicholls. However, in his monograph (p. 1436) Lang unified the genera Cleta (= Laophontopsis), Pseudocleta, Normanella and Cletopsyllus in the subfamily Normanellinae, which was enough to distinguish them from other genera of the Laophontidae. However that may be, Huys & Willems (1989) reinstated the Normanellidae Lang, with two subfamilies:

Subfam. Normanellinae Lang, 1944Genus Normanella Brady, 1880

Key to the species: Lang, 1965b (p. 529).

Normanella minuta (Boeck, 1872)

Amendments: Griga, 1963; Marinov, 1971 and 1977; Apostolov & Marinov, 1988.

The chaetotaxy of Griga's specimens (pereiopods 2 and 4) seems intermediate between N. mucronata typica and N. mucronata reducta Noodt (1955d). But Griga made no reference to the work of Noodt (1955d).

INDEX

Names considered currently valid are in bold type (family names in capital letters, genera and species names in bold italics); names of doubtful forms (dubia, incertae, incertae sedis, inquirendae) are in italics; names of synonyms and nomina nuda are in ordinary Roman characters.

Taxa new since the previous edition (1988) are marked by an asterisk (*). To facilitate research, names of subgenera are listed in alphabetical order of generic names; those not identical with the nominative genus name were placed between brackets to indicate their subgeneric status. The subgeneric names feature also in the alphabetical listing of the species names, with an initial capital letter.

In case of multiple cross-references, the page numbers where the corresponding taxon is dealt with is underlined; page numbers where the taxon is simply mentioned, is in ordinary characters, not underlined.
