“...the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in.”

Welcome

On behalf of the Charles Sturt University community, it is my pleasure to invite you to celebrate this momentous occasion.

Graduation is an important milestone that marks the completion of your current studies and the beginning of a new chapter in your lives.

Your paths may be varied as you go on to take first jobs, promotions, research, perhaps another degree... but you all share something special. You are now lifelong members of the Charles Sturt University family.

As Australia's largest regional university, we are proud of the continuing contributions our graduates make to communities and the world around them. You too are ready to make your mark on this world.

I encourage you all to take forward the ethos of Charles Sturt University as you embark on your future endeavours – and apply the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in.

Chancellor

Our ethos

Yindyamarra winhanganha. This is a Wiradjuri phrase meaning ‘the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in’. It’s at the heart of everything we stand for here at Charles Sturt University.

It’s the reason we strive to create a world worth living in. It ties us to the First Nations Peoples whose land we are fortunate and proud to share, and to the diverse communities across Australia that we serve. It is also the driving force behind what we teach to, share with and learn from our students.

And it embodies the mission of our university, which is to develop and spread insight and knowledge in order to create a better future – through expanding educational opportunities, delivering exemplary career-focused courses and enabling original research. Because we believe in making a difference.

Our history

Our ethos, yindyamarra winhanganha, has been part of the Charles Sturt University narrative from the very start. Our history dates back more than 125 years, to the establishment in 1895 of a vocational farm at Bathurst designed to give rural people access to skills and education.

Over subsequent decades, agricultural and teaching centres were set up in Wagga Wagga and Bathurst, disseminating knowledge so individuals could improve their prospects and better serve their communities.

Charles Sturt University officially became a university in 1989, merging the former Mitchell College of Advanced Education and the Riverina Murray Institute of Higher Education, and incorporating educational facilities at Albury Wodonga, Bathurst and Wagga Wagga.

Since then we have continued to grow, and now give students from across Australia and the world access to quality university education.

Today we have campuses in Albury Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange, Port Macquarie and Wagga Wagga. We also have Charles Sturt University Study Centres in Brisbane, Melbourne and Sydney as well as study locations in Canberra, Goulburn, Parramatta and Wangaratta.

Our delivery of world-class online education is informed by more than 50 years of experience in distance learning. The majority of our degrees can now be studied online.

We have unique partnerships with a wide variety of organisations, including TAFE providers, the NSW Police Force, the Anglican Diocese of Canberra and Goulburn, the New South Wales Department of Primary Industries, Commercial Radio Australia, the Islamic Sciences & Research Academy of Australia, and universities in China and Sri Lanka.

We also have many partners around the world, enabling our students to undertake international study experiences, further expanding their horizons.

The man from whom the university takes its name – Charles Napier Sturt – was a British soldier who sailed to the colony of New South Wales in 1827 to pursue his passion for exploration.

The university mace

The Charles Sturt University mace is the symbol of the university as an independent academy of scholars constituted under legal authority.

The mace is crafted from timbers indigenous to the locations of Charles Sturt University campuses. It reflects the traditions and authority of the university, and symbolises its multiple geographies and responsibilities to the people of rural and regional Australia.

The university message stick

A gift from Dubbo City Council, this wooden message stick draws on elements of local indigenous culture to represent the entire Wiradjuri nation, whose borders encompass our campuses at Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange and Wagga Wagga.

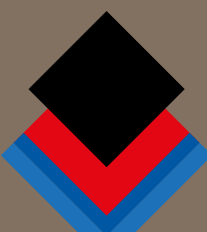

Young and old emu feathers, which hang from the mulga wood message stick, denote students of all ages. A possum painting represents the local Wilay Wiradjuri people and red ochre lines depict the Macquarie, Murrumbidgee and Murray Rivers on which the university's Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo and Wagga Wagga campuses are located.

Coat of Arms

The Coat of Arms bears the arms of the university at the centre. The helm sits above the arms showing a knight's helmet crowned with three golden stars atop which sits the crest – a lion holding three keys. The mantling is dressed in green and gold at either side of the helm and arms. 'For the Public Good', Charles Sturt University's motto, is inscribed to the motto scroll at the base of the arms.

Tammy O'Connor

Bachelor of Nursing

Tammy O'Connor admits she is one of those rare and lucky people who knew early on how she wanted to make a real and lasting impact on this world.

I studied a Bachelor of Nursing at Charles Sturt University and I knew as soon as I started that I wanted to become a midwife. To me it seemed like such an awesome career.

After graduating I worked as a registered nurse and quickly enrolled in the Graduate Diploma of Midwifery at Charles Sturt while working in the maternity unit as a student midwife. The uni gave me a great platform to learn in a safe environment, and provided a good stepping stone into my career. That's why I completed a Master of Midwifery through Charles Sturt University. It opened the door to those higher level positions, including my current role as a clinical midwifery consultant for the Western NSW Local Health District.

“The beauty of nursing and midwifery is it can take you anywhere.”

Tammy's 'anywhere' turned out to be parts of NSW which rarely received the health and educational support services they required. Realising women in remote areas needed access to antenatal and postnatal care, Tammy has been instrumental in implementing an outreach maternity program.

I believe it's a basic human right for women to access a midwife during their pregnancy, regardless of their location. Working and living regionally provides me with the opportunity to work within the primary healthcare model of midwifery. It's what I love!

Courtney Glazebrook

Bachelor of Education (Birth to Five Years)

Courtney Glazebrook is creating new beginnings by treasuring the past. Passionate about First Nations education, she is driven to make a difference in the lives of young Aboriginal children by giving them the best start to their educational journey. As the director of Towri Multifunctional Aboriginal Children's Service, each day, when she opens the Towri doors, Courtney makes practical progress in her quest to cultivate a strong, connected and inclusive community.

Towri encompasses health, education, community engagement and family support. Early childhood care has such great flow on effects for families. While we're providing care for children we're also building platforms for parents, giving them the opportunity for employment and better health. We are building the capacity of whole communities. When children thrive so do communities.

I have the opportunity to create tangible change. What we do, what we teach and what we advocate for directly impacts upon the community and everyone in it. I have learned, through my Charles Sturt University studies and through my career, to question different regimes of truth.

"Aboriginal people are strong. We are connected. We are progressive. And at Towri we are creating new beginnings for those who come through. That really excites me."

Chandan Rauniyar

Bachelor of Information Technology

Chandan Rauniyar has long been fascinated by the power of computing and the impact it can have on people's lives.

I have always been amazed by computers and what complex software could do. I was interested in software development and it seemed like such an awesome career – being able to develop complex computer software that is capable of transforming lives.

So I decided to study a Bachelor of Information Technology at the Charles Sturt University Study Centre in Melbourne. I majored in software development, learning about the principles of software development, data structures, and database design, as well as the ethics and security issues around computing.

With a little help from the Study Centre team, Chandan was able to step into his career at the cutting edge of software development with confidence.

After graduating, I managed to secure a scholarship for Study Centre Melbourne's Internship Program. With help from the careers team, I got selected as an intern at an IT company in Melbourne. As an intern, I was able to apply and develop my skills in the context of a small business. This invaluable industry experience helped me in then landing my first job as a software developer in a multinational company.

Dafydd Francis

Bachelor of Paramedicine

I want people to know the unprecedented worth of my scholarship. It went beyond monetary value. It saved my mental health. I was able to concentrate on the important things and not stress one little bit about money.

Uni is a tough gig. Juggling course requirements and placements, a social life, a couple of jobs and the everlasting battle with Centrelink (which can become more than a little tricky at times). But with the support of Charles Sturt donors and supporters, a huge amount of that burden has been lifted from our shoulders.

I believe that our gratitude should not only be shown with an offer of thanks, but by the way we carry ourselves through our university career – and in our actual career that will follow. Through our scholarships we've been given the opportunity to make the absolute best of our university experience.

You're always part of our community

Graduation is a momentous occasion. Your degree is officially conferred and you also join a very special community.

Today you become one of our Charles Sturt University alumni, joining more than 230,000 talented people across the world.

The Charles Sturt University alumni network is full of people just like you, working across countless industries, doing important and impactful work, who are happy to share their time and expertise with their fellow graduates.

As one of our alumni, if you choose to pursue further study, you'll receive a 10 per cent discount* on any fee paying postgraduate course at Charles Sturt University, plus a range of other benefits and support, including:

- access to our online library network
- professional development opportunities
- networking and social events
- career advice and support
- discounts at our dental clinics, allied health consultancies and veterinarian services
- discounts on Charles Sturt wine purchases
- access to on campus facilities in Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange, Port Macquarie and Wagga Wagga. These include libraries, computer labs, meeting rooms and sporting and social spaces.

There are so many reasons to stay in touch. To ensure you know about all alumni activities and offers, keep your contact details with us up to date.

Congratulations

On behalf of Charles Sturt University, I congratulate you on the successful completion of your studies.

While graduation is a little different this year having adapted to the challenges of COVID 19, you can take pride in your achievement as recognition of your hard work and dedication.

Learning is the product of an active collaboration among university students and staff. In acknowledging your contribution to the intellectual life of the university, I also recognise the commitment of our academic and professional staff in supporting our students to achieve the best in their studies.

Thank you for joining the Charles Sturt community as one of the newest members of our alumni. As alumni, you will have the opportunity to maintain and grow the professional and friendship networks that you have forged and will also gain access to member benefits enjoyed by thousands of our alumni around the world.

I am confident that your studies have equipped you to have a bright future, undertake a successful career and enable you to be an active citizen contributing to the public good.

Once again, congratulations and best wishes for the future.

Perceived Effectiveness of Correctional Education Programs as Seen Through the Lens of Two Stakeholder Groups: Indigenous Students and Their Teachers

Interviewing and surveying [non-Indigenous] teachers and Indigenous youth at three correctional centers in Ontario, Canada found that participants agree on a majority of the academically-focused issues canvassed but vary greatly with respect to the perceived cultural focus within correctional education. Continued attention is warranted on professional development for teachers, as well as a clear focus on culturally responsive teaching and cultural safety.

Couple Relationships and the Paradox of Shame: a Pastoral Counselling Enquiry

"The paradox of shame lies in its capacity to hinder or to promote relational trust vulnerability and intimacy. Shame is examined in the literature of psychology, sociology and theology and demonstrated in an experiential study with practising relationship counsellors. The need for greater awareness of shame's active role in couple difficulties and its value for facilitating growth is advocated, grounded in theological foundations, and given guidelines for practice."

A choice no choice; The lived experience of people who identify as transgender (non-binary and/or gender diverse) in Australia

This thesis raises the voices of people who identify as transgender (non-binary and/or gender diverse). Unlike previous studies which focused on individual adversity, this research adopts a strengths perspective via Interpretative Phenomenological Analysis to explore lived experience. The key theme is that identity is not a choice – it is who they are – an expression of internal and external self. Implications for change to professional practice conclude the thesis.

Doctor of Philosophy

With Higher Degree by Research University Medal – Amanda Miriam Cooke

Towards a reconceptualisation of risk-taking in early childhood education

The thesis explores educators' perceptions and practices of risk-taking in high quality early childhood education settings in Australia. A range of factors that support educator risk-taking in early childhood education are identified. The thesis provides new ways of thinking about children's risk-taking and educators' risk-taking, and reveals risks educators take in the pursuit of high quality early childhood education.

Paul Stephen Baker

Pentecostal Imagination and the Retrieval of Identity: Toward a Pneumatology of History

The thesis explores the problems associated with collective identity by looking at the particular case of Pentecostalism. The identity of a community which spans two millennia of church history raises questions about the criteria one might employ in order to recognise various instances of that community. By bringing together Pentecostal theology and hermeneutical philosophy, a model is developed which attempts to discern the Pentecostal Spirit from within history.

Place-specific policy development in non-metropolitan cultural and creative industries

Place-specific policy development in non-metropolitan cultural and creative industries. Cultural and creative industries provide cultural, economic and social benefits to communities. This research investigates policy options in the sector and how to apply place-appropriate approaches that will assist non-metropolitan creative enterprises and practitioners to develop and thrive in regional and rural settings.

Aref Chaker

Sunni Theological Exegesis: A Critical Study of Ilāhiyyāt in Al-Māturīdī's Ta'wīlāt

This thesis investigated theological views of al-Māturīdī (d. 944) in his Qur'anic exegetical work ta'wīlāt ahlal-Sunnah. Al-Māturīdī is the founder of the Maturidi theological school followed by about two-thirds of Muslim today. The thesis produced a more comprehensive understanding of al-Māturīdī's theology previously ignored in scholarship and has the potential to change the understanding of al-Māturīdī and the historical development of Islamic theology.

Mukesh Chander

Citizenship, Alienation, and the Stripping of Citizenship from Mujahidin: A Constitutional Justification

This PhD research analysed the constitutional basis of stripping Australian-born persons of their citizenship if they engaged in prohibited activities outside Australia. The research unveiled how the Government already had power to restrict the liberty of those posing risks to community safety and security. This thesis unearthed that a cohesive theory of social covenant can provide useful tools to examine the relationship between citizenship and alienation.

Atilla Ergi

A Comparative Study on the Possible Coexistence of Destiny and Free Will with Detailed Analysis of Fethullah Gülen's Perspective

This study examines the theological arguments proposed by Fethullah Gülen on the reconciliation of predestination and free will. It includes a comparative analysis of arguments put forward by Muslim scholars, Western theologians and philosophers on the similarities and differences regarding Free Will and Destiny. Despite some progress, the issue is unsolved.

Faala Sam Faamatuainu Aмоса

Courting A Public Theology of Fa'a-vaе for The Church and Contemporary Samoa

Aмоса proposes a fa'a-vaе public theology, building on Samoa's motto - Fa'avae I le Atua Samoa. The impetus for this theology is the case of an individual taking the Congregational Christian Church Samoa to court, a sign of the times: the relations between ekalesia (church), fa'a Samoa (tradition), tulafono (law) and malo (government) has fragmented. Fa'a-vaе public theology gives-fe et (agility, mobility) to these structures: they need not be static and standoffish.

Leanne Margaret Gibbs

A study of practices enabling the emergence and development of leading within exemplary Australian early childhood education sites

This thesis presents a study of practices that enable the emergence and development of leading within exemplary Australian early childhood education settings. It uses the theories of practice architectures and complexity to conceptualise leadership and leading as a dynamic ecology of practices within complex environments. The thesis reveals new thinking on the practices of leadership in early childhood education and the role organisations play in their development.

John Charles Grimes

Anzac and the sacred: Australian religious experience and the Great War

This history PhD thesis examines how various Australian soldiers and chaplains understood or expressed their experience of the Great War, and early war commemoration, in religious or transcendent terms. The significant breadth and depth of religious and transcendent experience for some Australian Great War soldiers challenges longstanding historical accounts of AIF soldiers as secular in outlook or as generally unconcerned with religion.

Eleanor Louise O'Donnell

The Relational Power of God: Considering the Rebel Voice

This thesis argues against God as omnipotent and for God's power as relational. It is the quality, not the quantity, of God's power that matters. The theology of power that emerges, using Process and Trinitarian theology, ensures freedom for creature and creation and enables a viable response to the problem of evil and suffering. It concludes that social relationships are best modelled on the power-sharing solidarity of the trinitarian God.

Francis Ogojo Okello

HIV Prevention in Uganda Through 20 Years: A Social Ecological Analysis Using Mixed Methods

This study examined why Uganda's prior HIV decline was not sustained post-2002 and how prevention can be revitalised. Reduced stigma, declining AIDS deaths, female poverty, weaker local leadership, and frequent policy changes contributed to the unsustainable decline. New infections can be controlled by updating risk reduction and promotion strategies, improving response coordination, local leadership and predisposing socio-cultural and poverty-based infection drivers.

Brendan David Pratt

Christianity and Advanced Consumer Culture: Shaping a Response with Reference to the Seventh-Day Adventist Church in Australia

Christianity exists within advanced consumer culture where all things, including the spiritual, are able to be packaged. This effects believers, shifting the way church members practice their faith as embraced through consumerism. Following an exploration of the origins and nature of consumerism, the thesis explores avenues within the Adventist tradition that can mitigate consume and the remnant.

Monica Ann Short

The Anglican Church of Australia engaging with people living with disabilities and people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds in rural, regional and remote communities

This thesis amplifies the voices of people living with disabilities and people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds about their rural Anglican church engagements, via co-operative inquiries. An innovative integrated lens based in social work, sociology and theology demonstrated how the church can be an holistic experience of welcome, connection, participation and belonging. The research concludes with the enduring significance of faith.

"Setting Hearts on Fire". Reverend Canon John Charles Chapman and the Shaping of Anglican Evangelicalism and Australian Religious Life, 1968 - 2001.

This thesis, the first academic study of this Australian Christian leader, examines key facets of his contribution in preaching, missiology and ecclesiastical reform. It sheds new light on the principles that energised this significant Australian religious movement as it navigated a period of immense change, and marks Chapman as a central figure in the generation of post-war leaders whose work has given Australian evangelicalism its contemporary shape and dynamism.

The impact of high performance human resource practices on staff retention outcomes

The study examined the impact of high performance human resource practices on retention outcomes. Data were collected from 250 participants from four Australian corectional facilities. Results revealed several significant interrelationships between high performance work systems, job satisfaction, work status congruence, person-job fit, person-organisation fit, work engagement, organisational commitment, career adaptability and the intention to quit.

Doctor of Psychology (Clinical)

Katherine Elizabeth Campbell

Midlife and late-life risk factors for the development of depressive symptoms and the role of chronic stress, positive affect and negative affect

This thesis utilised data from the Women's Healthy Ageing Project (WHAP), an ongoing longitudinal, epidemiological study examining factors that contribute to women's healthy ageing in a sample of community dwelling Australian women. The research examined the long-term impact of lifestyle and health variables on the later development of depressive symptoms in women as they transitioned from mid-life to late-life, utilizing data points spanning twenty years.

Doctor of Philosophy

Xue Fei Cao

A comparative study into counter terrorism policing strategies in China and Britain

This study sought to extend current conceptions of community policing for the policing of terrorism. Terrorism, policing and community policing were all critically analysed, as were two distinct models of community policing, one common in Western nations and the other common in China and other collective societies. Building on the strengths of these models and addressing their weaknesses, a new form of community policing was developed for the policing of terrorism.

Kathleen Clough

Eliminating banknotes: policy considerations for Australian tax evasion

Eliminating Banknotes: Policy Considerations for Australian Tax Evasion." It explored whether a policy that called for the abolition of all banknotes could benefit Australian society. The thesis examined the impact of tax collected in three countries that had experienced a measurable decline in the use and reliance of cash and found an increase in tax revenue collected—a trend that was attributed to the situational crime prevention theory.

Tuan Dung Pham

Factors impacting on the negotiation of mutual recognition arrangements/agreements of authorized economic operator programs

International traders with a history of compliance and a commitment to supply chain security are recognised as 'trusted traders' and therefore receive priority treatment from their national customs authority. Their trusted trader status may also be recognised by customs in other countries, provided a mutual recognition agreement is in place. The research identifies factors that impact the negotiation of such agreements and presents a model to facilitate the process.

Hany Samir Abd El-Shahid Salib

Drivers of sustainability reporting quality in Australian listed companies: an empirical test of a conceptual model

This study examined a proposed conceptual model by investigating drivers of sustainability reporting quality. The drivers are stakeholder engagement, stakeholder power and sustainability strategic posture. Data collected from annual reports, sustainability reports and the websites of the top 200 Australian companies listed in the Australian Stock Exchange, were content analysed. Findings showed significant relationships with the three drivers.

Eyad Shammout

Cultural orientations and materialism in Jordan: consumers' perception of brand luxury

This thesis investigated the influence of cultural orientation, individual and social factors on consumers' purchase intentions towards luxury goods. The quantitative study showed that cultural hierarchy influenced materialism. Yet, materialism only influenced intentions to purchase luxury brands when consumers' desired to display status and group membership. The findings provide in-depth insights into the luxury market for both scholars and practitioners in Jordan.

Darren Bradley Yates

Development and implementation of locally-executed data mining on mobile devices

Sophisticated data mining algorithms are generally executed on powerful computers to extract useful knowledge and make predictions. This thesis proposes methods to execute data mining algorithms on smartphones through the development of efficient lightweight algorithms, intelligent use of smartphone hardware and smartphone clustering. Local data mining on smartphones can remove the necessity of sending sensitive data to servers with its accompanying risk to privacy.

Nuts to You, Life Changing for Me

Worldwide there has been an unprecedented rise in the number of children experiencing food allergies. Although having one of the highest prevalence rates, the Australian context remained relatively unknown. By examining both quality of life and specific knowledge and attitudes, this study looked to discover the 'lived experience' for both patients and caregivers. Another focus was to determine differences between those living in metropolitan and regional areas.

Greek Migration Experiences and Later Life Emotional Wellbeing: A Qualitative Study

This research explored experiences of migration, connection to culture and the impact on older Greek persons' emotional wellbeing as they aged. Experiences of migration played a pivotal role in building resilience and themes of selflessness, isolation, sense of community and identity around homeland which emerged from the data. Outcomes will inform policy and practices to ensure culturally appropriate and culturally sensitive aged care for post-war Greek migrants.

Knowledge, learning and culture: seeking agricultural sustainability among Indigenous farmers in Papua New Guinea and Vanuatu

This thesis developed and tested an alternative to current agricultural extension practices. Coined the Extension for Sustainable Agricultural Development model, this alternative approach integrated Indigenous agricultural knowledge and culture from farmers in Papua New Guinea and Vanuatu with Western science, creating a new knowledge system. The research study found that this model empowered Indigenous farmers and improved local sustainable agricultural practices.

Equine gastric ulcer syndrome: Observer reliability in ulcer grading and investigation of pharmacological and clinical influences on gastric pH

This thesis provides important contributions to the understanding of the reliability of grading systems for EGUS, the pharmacokinetic and pharmacodynamics of enteric coated omeprazole in horses. The thesis also provides new knowledge of gastric physiology in sick foals and evidence that non-selective administration of acid suppressive therapy to foals is unnecessary. These findings can be used to facilitate optimisation of welfare in horses with gastric ulceration.

Effect of high and extreme high temperatures on berry tannin composition in Vitis vinifera cv. Shiraz

The effect of high temperature, mimicking heatwaves, was investigated on berry physiology and composition, focussing on tannins as important contributors to grape and wine quality. Spring heatwaves affected seed concentration while late summer heatwaves did not, although berries were shrivelled and skin tannins decreased. Most differences were no longer evident by harvest or compensated upon winemaking, which is a positive outcome for the Australian wine industry.

Towards improving cardiovascular disease care among Arabic-speaking immigrants in Australia

The model of care for cardiovascular disease developed from this thesis research can save lives, enhance quality of life and reduce the hospitalisation of Arabic-speaking immigrants settled in Australia, being the third language group in Australia. Erini is and was passionate about addressing the high levels of cardiovascular disease in this group, and this initiative can assist all in this group and many other similar immigrant groups.

Evaluating outputs and outcomes: a study in transformation

We need to detect and understand intended and unintended outcomes of a project. But, most project evaluation ignores the unintended. Including experiences of participants helps to understand unintended impacts. This PhD builds a new approach to evaluate complex projects with multiple participants and outcomes. Rather than a tool applied on conclusion of a project the approach is integrated into design, operation and evaluation of projects. It enables participants to interact, appreciate, learn and transform as an integral part of a project.

*Investigations into the population structure of the ovine parasitic nematode Haemonchus contortus: A comparison of isolates from differing climatic and geographical regions of New South Wales*

Populations of the pathogenic sheep worm, Haemonchus contortus, were collected from temperate and summer rainfall regions of New South Wales (NSW) and evaluated for their variability in morphology, hatching temperature and genotype. Insight into the level of variation present within and among H. contortus populations, could help to explain presumed changes to the epidemiology of this important parasite in NSW.

The effects of hydroperiod on macroinvertebrate assemblages of temporary and permanent floodplain wetlands and how this relates to taphonomy and the palaeoecological record

Temporary and permanent floodplain wetland environments could be distinguished based on their assemblages of macroinvertebrates collected, live in sediment traps and as subfossils. The presence of hard parts largely influenced which macroinvertebrates persisted in the palaeoecological record. Thus, subfossil macroinvertebrates can be used as indicators of wetland wetting and drying cycles, and to reconstruct historical wetland conditions.

Male shift workers and cardio-metabolic function: the role of homeostatic desynchronisation and exercise as an intervention

Blake's thesis examined the cause of increased cardio-metabolic disorders among male shift workers and the effectiveness of exercise as an intervention to improve their health. Results indicate that misaligned biological signals play a potential role in disease development and both a one-off exercise session and 12-week training programs can improve cardio-metabolic function, however, employees face barriers to exercise participation and adherence.

The effect of processing conditions and pulse type on flake properties

This research investigates the influence of industry-relevant processing conditions on the flaking quality of Australian chickpea and Faba bean splits, using a cereal flaking production line. Findings include how reduced steaming changes starch and protein structures, and the subsequent effect on flake attributes. These findings provide direction for further ready-to-eat pulse research and the development of commercially viable, healthy, innovative pulse foods.

*Efficacy and mechanisms of bacterial biocontrol agents against Leptosphaeria maculans (Desm.) causing blackleg disease of canola (Brassica napus L.)*

The efficacy of spore forming bacteria belonging to the genus Bacillus to control blackleg disease of Canola was investigated, with studies on the underlying mechanisms of control. The bacteria were found to have the potential to inhibit the growth of the blackleg pathogen through multiple modes of action. These bacteria have the potential to be used in the future management of this disease as part of integrated disease management strategies.

The influence of soil properties on nitrifying organisms and nitrification inhibition efficacy of 3,4-dimethylpyrazole phosphate (DMPP)

Nitrification is soil biological process that converts nitrogen to forms which can be lost from the soil. The efficiency of nitrogen fertiliser can be improved with the use of DMPP. For the first time in the world, it was proven that the effectiveness of DMPP is influenced by the stratification of soil pH affecting the presence and activity of specific soil microbes responsible for nitrification. This research enables improved efficiency of DMPP use in agriculture.

Kendal Krause

The influence of exotic fish on an emerging zooplankton community: impacts to zooplankton abundance and composition

Kendal's research examines the impacts of invasive fish species on emerging zooplankton communities in a mesocosm environment. The influence of fish predation and sediment disturbance was studied using four test fish species: Murray cod, gambusia, carp and weather loach. Kendal revealed that invasive fish species can alter both zooplankton community composition and abundance, which could have detrimental impacts on food availability for native fish species.

Bridgette Grace Logan

Verification of the production system of origin for grass and grain-fed beef

Current verification of beef production systems is dependent on expensive audits and reliant on producers following various brand guidelines. Consequently, a non-destructive on-site method to discriminate between production systems was developed. Chemometric modelling of Raman spectra can accurately differentiate between cattle production systems across Australia. Thus, providing the beef industry with a portable, rapid and accurate national verification system.

*Quantifying the habitat requirements of an endangered marsupial predator, the northern quoll (Dasyurus hallucatus)*

This thesis quantifies the ecological niche of the endangered northern quoll (Dasyurus hallucatus) at multiple scales within its northern Australian range. Results suggest the species niche has recently contracted significantly, and that populations are most likely to persist in habitat characterised by high rainfall and ruggedness, and minimal fragmentation. Together, findings provide theoretical insight relevant to the conservation of threatened species globally.

Jennifer Millera Niem

Biological control of grapevine trunk diseases using bacterial endophytes from grapevines

This research identified an antagonistic bacterial endophyte, Pseudomonas poae BCA17 that showed biocontrol potential against grapevine trunk diseases (GTDs). BCA17 inhibited growth of the GTD causal organisms and the diseases they incur in grapevine plants. Further, BCA17 can colonise and persist within the plant tissues and may be an alternative solution to combat GTD. An array of antimicrobial compounds and mechanisms worked synergistically to suppress GTD.

Exploring the utility of taxidermy Murray cod (Maccullochella peelii) as a historical record

Historical knowledge from biological specimens is fundamental for the conservation and management of priority species and landscapes. This thesis presents a validation of a non-traditional source of Murray cod data — trophy taxidermy specimens. The verified specimens of this large, long-lived and vulnerable Australian freshwater fish can now be confidently re-accessed to provide historical evidence to explore past conditions of Murray-Darling Basin rivers.

Jhoana Lawas Opena

Impacts of pasture legume phase on the seedbank, establishment, and growth of barnyard grass (Echinochloa crus-galli) in drill-sown rice.

Water-saving systems such as drill-sown rice and delayed permanent water are adopted by Australian rice growers to address competition for water use. Barnyard grass proliferates in these systems during early rice growth. Research showed pasture legumes were better than crops in suppressing barnyard grass seedbank build-up through reduced seed viability and enhanced seed mortality on the soil surface. Allelopathy was also shown by legumes but varied between species.

David James Orchard

The role of helper bacteria in facilitating mycorrhization of Biserrula pelecinus L., a pasture legume new to Australia

This thesis provides evidence that soil bacteria of the genera Pseudomonas, Bacillus, Microbacterium, and Arthrobacter promote the formation of beneficial associations between the pasture legume biserrula and root-inhabiting fungi. The research explored the dynamics of root-associated bacterial communities in a biserrula-wheat pasture-crop rotation, indicating that management of the whole rhizosphere is necessary for the enhancement of biserrula growth in pastures.

The development of allied health students' collaborative practice capability in higher education

Collaborative practice is becoming increasingly important in the delivery of high quality and cost-effective healthcare, highlighting the importance of developing collaborative practice capability in allied health students. This research has enabled construction of a comprehensive, praxis-based model to guide development of allied health students' collaborative practice capability in higher education contexts.

Defining regional sensory variability of premium Australian Shiraz wines

The concept of terroir or the 'taste of place' in wine is well understood as a concept but rarely explained with any scientific rigour. This thesis explores these regional differences in Shiraz wines using various sensory methods, chemical analyses, and climate data, all collected from wines carefully selected to represent each region. This novel approach has led to a comprehensive understanding of the regionality of these six Australian Shiraz producing regions.

Andrew Portman

The effects of lentil flour substitution on composition, rheology and product quality of baked and extruded products

Australian lentils are a high value crop, however, frost events diminish their visual appearance affecting their export value. This study investigated if downgraded lentils could be blended with wheat flour to produce high-value food products. The addition of lentil flour enhanced the nutritional value of end products with minimal effects on quality. These findings provide value-added opportunities for downgraded lentils which are otherwise used for stockfeed.

Nancy Saji

Effect of rice bran polyphenols on biomarkers associated with cardiovascular disease and Type 2 diabetes

The aim was to investigate the role of rice bran (RB) polyphenols in modulating risk factors associated with cardiovascular disease and type 2 diabetes. RB polyphenols via its potent anti-inflammatory and antioxidant properties alleviated biomarkers associated with disease development and/or progression. RB as a functional food ingredient with therapeutic benefits could increase the economic viability and sustainability of the Australian rice industry.

Bashar Mohammed Thejer

The role of progesterone receptor membrane component 1 (PGRMC1) in cell biology

Dr Thejer discovered cellular functions influenced by the protein PGRMC1, including effects on actin cytoskeleton, cell migration, DNA mutation rates, and epigenetic gene regulation. Effects were similar in scale to variances between different cell-types. Findings implicate PGRMC1 in the mechanism of regulated gene expression induced by the eumetazoan gastrulation organiser, critical to embryology, health, and cancerous, neuropathological and reproductive diseases.

Michelle Rosemarie Toutounji

Factors that influence the starch digestibility of rice

Rice is arguably the most important source of dietary carbohydrate in the world so understanding how it is digested is warranted, especially for people with Type 2 Diabetes. This study investigated the influence of nitrogen fertiliser application, paddy storage, degree of milling, and retort processing on the starch digestibility of rice. The insights from this study may help the rice industry to access premium markets and improve the availability of 'diabetic-friendly' rice.

Sofiya Tsimbalyuk

Proteins in health and disease: a structural approach to understanding cell mechanisms

This thesis investigated the high-resolution protein structures using the Australian synchrotron. Key findings included the mapping of important protein interfaces important for cancer stem cell progression, bacterial pathogenesis and viral infection. The outcomes provide an important basis for the development of drug targets for a range of important diseases and pathogens including breast cancer, multi-drug resistant bacteria, Hendra virus, and Nipah virus.

Sashika Madhupani Yalage Don

The Aureobasidium pullulans volatile metabolome and potential antifungal activity against Botrytis cinerea and Alternaria alternata

Volatile organic compounds produced by the yeast Aureobasidium pullulans were identified and found to be effective in inhibiting Botrytis cinerea and Alternaria alternata, two fungi responsible for plant disease. Volatile organic compound production was largely dependent upon the availability of carbon in the growth media. Antifungal activity was shown to be due to a disruption of fungal cell wall structure and interference with respiratory enzymes.
