FREIBURGER APPEAL

Out of great concern for the health of our fellow human beings do we - as established physicians of all fields, especially that of environmental medicine - turn to the medical establishment and those in public health and political domains, as well as to the public.

We have observed, in recent years, a dramatic rise in severe and chronic diseases among our patients, especially:

- Learning, concentration, and behavioural disorders (e.g. attention deficit disorder, ADD)
- Extreme fluctuations in blood pressure, ever harder to influence with medications
- Heart rhythm disorders
- Heart attacks and strokes among an increasingly younger population
- Brain-degenerative diseases (e.g. Alzheimer's) and epilepsy
- Cancerous afflictions: leukemia, brain tumors

Moreover, we have observed an ever-increasing occurrence of various disorders, often misdiagnosed in patients as psychosomatic:

- Headaches, migraines
- Chronic exhaustion
- Inner agitation
- Sleeplessness, daytime sleepiness
- Tinnitus
- Susceptibility to infection
- Nervous and connective tissue pains, for which the usual causes do not explain even the most conspicuous symptoms

Since the living environment and lifestyles of our patients are familiar to us, we can see - especially after carefully-directed inquiry - a clear temporal and spatial correlation between the appearance of disease and exposure to pulsed high-frequency microwave radiation (HFMR), such as:

- Installation of a mobile telephone sending station in the near vicinity
- Intensive mobile telephone use
- Installation of a digital cordless (DECT) telephone at home or in the neighbourhood

We can no longer believe this to be purely coincidence, for:

- Too often do we observe a marked concentration of particular illnesses in correspondingly HFMR-polluted areas or apartments;
- Too often does a long-term disease or affliction improve or disappear in a relatively short time after reduction or elimination of HFMR pollution in the patient's environment;
- Too often are our observations confirmed by on-site measurements of HFMR of unusual intensity.

On the basis of our daily experiences, we hold the current mobile communications technology (introduced in 1992 and since then globally extensive) and cordless digital telephones (DECT standard) to be among the fundamental triggers for this fatal development. One can no longer evade these pulsed microwaves. They heighten the risk of already-present chemical/physical influences, stress the body's immune system, and can bring the body's still-functioning regulatory mechanisms to a halt. Pregnant women, children, adolescents, elderly and sick people are especially at risk.

Our therapeutic efforts to restore health are becoming increasingly less effective: the unimpeded and continuous penetration of radiation into living and working areas – particularly bedrooms, an essential place for relaxation, regeneration and healing – causes uninterrupted stress and prevents the patient's thorough recovery.

In the face of this disquieting development, we feel obliged to inform the public of our observations – especially since hearing that the German courts regard any danger from mobile telephone radiation as “purely hypothetical” (see the decisions of the constitutional court in Karlsruhe and the administrative court in Mannheim, Spring 2002).

What we experience in the daily reality of our medical practice is anything but hypothetical! We see the rising number of chronically sick patients also as the result of an irresponsible “safety limits” policy, which fails to take the protection of the public from the short- and long-term effects of mobile telephone radiation as its criterium for action. Instead, it submits to the dictates of a technology already long recognized as dangerous. For us, this is the beginning of a very serious development through which the health of many people is being threatened.

We will no longer be made to wait upon further unreal research results - which in our experience are often influenced by the communications industry – while evidential studies go on being ignored. We find it to be of urgent necessity that we act now!

FREIBURGER APPELL

Blatt: - 3 -

Above all, we are, as doctors, the advocates for our patients. In the interest of all those concerned, whose basic right to life and freedom from bodily harm is currently being put at stake, we appeal to those in the spheres of politics and public health. Please support the following demands with your influence:

- New health-friendly communications techniques, given independent risk assessments before their introduction and, as immediate measures and transitional steps:

- Stricter safety limits and major reduction of sender output and HFMR pollution on a justifiable scale, especially in areas of sleep and convalescence
- No further buildout of mobile telephone technology, so that exposure to radiation does not become many times higher
- Education of the public, especially of mobile telephone users, regarding the health risks of electromagnetic fields
- Ban on mobile telephone use by small children, and restrictions on use by adolescents
- Ban on mobile telephone use and digital cordless (DECT) telephones in preschools, schools, hospitals, nursing homes, events halls, public buildings and vehicles (as with the ban on smoking)
- Mobile telephone and HFMR-free zones (as with auto-free areas)
- Revision of DECT standards for cordless telephones with the goal of reducing radiation intensity and limiting actual use time, as well as avoiding the biologically critical HFMR pulsation
- Industry-independent research, finally with the inclusion of amply available critical research results and our medical observations

The scientists at the conference endorsed and extended the 2002 Catania Resolution. The revised resolution is attached.

Benevento Resolution

The International Commission for Electromagnetic Safety (ICEMS) held an international conference entitled "The Precautionary EMF Approach: Rationale, Legislation and Implementation", hosted by the City of Benevento, Italy, on February 22, 23 & 24, 2006. The meeting was dedicated to W. Ross Adey, M.D. (1922-2004). The scientists at the conference endorsed and extended the 2002 Catania Resolution and resolved that:

1. More evidence has accumulated suggesting that there are adverse health effects from occupational and public exposures to electric, magnetic and electromagnetic fields, or EMF¹, at current exposure levels. What is needed, but not yet realized, is a comprehensive, independent and transparent examination of the evidence pointing to this emerging, potential public health issue.
2. Resources for such an assessment are grossly inadequate despite the explosive growth of technologies for wireless communications as well as the huge ongoing investment in power transmission.
3. There is evidence that present sources of funding bias the analysis and interpretation of research findings towards rejection of evidence of possible public health risks.
4. Arguments that weak (low intensity) EMF cannot affect biological systems do not represent the current spectrum of scientific opinion.
5. Based on our review of the science, biological effects can occur from exposures to both extremely low frequency fields (ELF EMF) and radiation frequency fields (RF EMF). Epidemiological and in vivo as well as in vitro experimental evidence demonstrates that exposure to some ELF EMF can increase cancer risk in children and induce other health problems in both children and adults. Further, there is accumulating epidemiological evidence indicating an increased brain tumor risk from long term use of mobile phones, the first RF EMF that has started to be comprehensively studied. Epidemiological and laboratory studies that show increased risks for cancers and other diseases from occupational exposures to EMF cannot be ignored. Laboratory studies on cancers and other diseases have reported that hypersensitivity to EMF may be due in part to a genetic predisposition.
6. We encourage governments to adopt a framework of guidelines for public and occupational EMF exposure that reflect the Precautionary Principle² -- as some nations have already done. Precautionary strategies should be based on design and performance standards and may not necessarily define numerical thresholds because such thresholds may erroneously be interpreted as levels below which no adverse effect can occur. These strategies should include:
 - 6.1. Promote alternatives to wireless communication systems, e.g., use of fiber optics and coaxial cables; design cellular phones that meet safer performance specifications, including radiating away from the head; preserve existing land line phone networks; place power lines underground in the vicinity of populated areas, only siting them in residential neighborhoods as a last resort;
 - 6.2. Inform the population of the potential risks of cell phone and cordless phone use. Advise consumers to limit wireless calls and use a land line for long conversations.
 - 6.3. Limit cell phone and cordless phone use by young children and teenagers to the lowest possible level and urgently ban telecom companies from marketing to them.
 - 6.4. Require manufacturers to supply hands-free kits (via speaker phones or ear phones), with each cell phone and cordless phone.
 - 6.5. Protect workers from EMF generating equipment, through access restrictions and EMF shielding of both individuals and physical structures.

² The Precautionary Principle states when there are indications of possible adverse effects, though they remain uncertain, the risks from doing nothing may be far greater than the risks of taking action to control these exposures. The Precautionary Principle shifts the burden of proof from those suspecting a risk to those who discount it.

- 6.6. Plan communications antenna and tower locations to minimize human exposure. Register mobile phone base stations with local planning agencies and use computer mapping technology to inform the public on possible exposures. Proposals for city-wide wireless access systems (e.g. Wi-Fi, WIMAX, broadband over cable or power-line or equivalent technologies) should require public review of potential EMF exposure and, if installed, municipalities should ensure this information is available to all and updated on a timely basis.
 - 6.7. Designate wireless-free zones in cities, in public buildings (schools, hospitals, residential areas) and, on public transit, to permit access by persons who are hypersensitive to EMF.
7. ICEMS³ is willing to assist authorities in the development of an EMF research agenda. ICEMS encourages the development of clinical and epidemiological protocols for investigations of geographical clusters of persons with reported allergic reactions and other diseases or sensitivities to EMF, and document the effectiveness of preventive interventions. ICEMS encourages scientific collaboration and reviews of research findings.

We, the undersigned scientists, agree to assist in the promotion of EMF research and the development of strategies to protect public health through the wise application of the precautionary principle.

Organizations; The Porto Alegre Resolution; 2009

The Porto Alegre Resolution

We, the undersigned scientists, were honored to participate in a workshop organized by the Universidade Federal do Rio Grande do Sul and the Public Ministry of Rio Grande do Sul and sponsored by the Brazilian Health Ministry, the International Commission for Electromagnetic Safety, the Porto Alegre Environmental Council (COMAM/PA), the Rio Grande do Sul Center for Health Vigilance (CEVS/RS) and others, entitled, "International Workshop on Non-Ionizing Radiation, Health and Environment" which took place on May 18 and 19, 2009, in Porto Alegre, Brazil.

This resolution follows several international resolutions agreed to by concerned scientists and medical doctors over the past decade, including resolutions developed by the International Commission for Electromagnetic Safety [1], based on evidence and consideration on documents such as the BioInitiative Report [2] and a special issue of the journal Pathophysiology on electrical and magnetic fields, published in August 2009 [3].

We agreed that the protection of health, well-being and the environment requires immediate adoption of the Precautionary Principle, which states, "when there are indications of possible adverse effects, though they remain uncertain, the risks from doing nothing may be far greater than the risks of taking action to control these exposures. The Precautionary Principle shifts the burden of proof from those suspecting a risk to those who discount it", until new scientific discoveries are recognized as the only criterion for the establishment or modification of non-ionizing radiation exposure standards;

We recognize that, in Brazil as well as all over the world, where there has been an unprecedented explosion in the availability and use of non-ionizing electromagnetic fields for electrical and wireless communications technologies (mobile and cordless phones, WiFi and WIMAX networks, RFID, etc.), as well as major electrical grid and wireless broadband infrastructure changes, this assessment should inform risk management to take proper steps to protect the public from long-term, low-level exposure to extremely-low frequency as well as radiofrequency electromagnetic fields that have substantially increased in the ambient environment in recent years.

We are concerned about the body of evidence that indicates that exposure to electromagnetic fields interferes with basic human biology and may increase the risk of cancer and other chronic diseases. The exposure levels at which these effects have been observed are many times lower than the standards promulgated by the International Commission for Non-Ionizing radiation Protection (ICNIRP) [4] and the IEEE's International Committee on Electromagnetic Safety (ICES) [5]. These standards are obsolete and were derived from biological effects of short-term high intensity exposures that cause health effects by temperature elevation and nerve excitation discovered decades ago. Recent research indicates that electromagnetic fields could cause detrimental health effects even at very low levels of exposure. The ICNIRP and IEEE/ICES standards are being supported and promoted by interested parties to avoid precautionary technical planning, precautionary laws, and precautionary advice to the public.

We are deeply concerned that current uses of non-ionizing radiation for mobile phones, wireless computers and other technologies place at risk the health of children and teens, pregnant women, seniors and others who are most vulnerable due to age or disability, including a health condition known as electromagnetic hypersensitivity. We strongly recommend these precautionary practices:

1. Children under the age of 16 should not use mobile phones and cordless phones, except for emergency calls;
2. The licensing and/or use of Wi-Fi, WIMAX, or any other forms of wireless communications technology, indoors or outdoor, shall preferably not include siting or signal transmission in residences, schools, day-care centers, senior centers, hospitals or any other buildings where people spend considerable time;
3. The licensing for siting and installation of infrastructure related to electrical power and wireless broadband telecommunications, particularly, cellular telephony, Wi-Fi and WIMAX, should only be approved after open public hearings are held and approval granted with full consideration given to the need to apply the Precautionary Principle. Sensitive areas should be avoided to protect vulnerable populations;
4. Mankind shall be encouraged to continue to discover new means of harnessing non-ionizing electromagnetic energy, aiming at bringing benefits to society, through definition of new standards of human exposure, which are based on the biological realities of nature and not solely on the consideration of economic and technological needs.

We, therefore, urge all nations to join Switzerland, Italy, Belgium, Russia China, the U.S. (for the FCC standard for partial exposure of the head) and other countries and regions that have chosen to adopt a more precautionary strategy, aiming to assure more safety to the public while maintaining good service quality.

We make an urgent call to all nations to convene a panel of experts, selected from candidates recommended by civil society groups (not only those preferred by the affected industries) to discuss precautionary technology, laws and advice in order to develop policies that reconcile public health concerns with further development of wireless communications technology such as mobile phones as well as electric power transmission and distribution systems.

Dear Ms. Martin:

Thank you for inviting me to provide my professional opinions on the SmartMeter safety issue. I will address two questions raised in the attached letter. But first, here is some background information:

1. Currently there are no national or international “standards” for safety levels of radiofrequency (a range of 3 kHz to 300 GHz) devices. What FCC is currently using are “guidelines” which have much lower certainty than a “standard”. One can go to many governmental agencies’ websites like NIOSH, EPA, FDA, etc. to verify this. Therefore, for anyone to claim that they meet “FCC” standards gives a false impression of safety certainty compared to “guidelines” which implies that a lot is “unknown.”

2. The current FCC “guideline” was adopted by FCC based on EPA’s recommendation in 1996. EPA made the recommendation “with certain reservation”. There was a letter by Norbert Hankin, Center for Science and Risk Assessment, Radiation Protection Division at EPA describing the current FCC guidelines (The letter can be found through a Google search). According to Hankin’s letter, the FCC current guidelines were solely based on “thermal effect” of radiofrequency, a level at which radiofrequency can cause heat injury. As we know, heat injury is not what the public is concerned about regarding radiofrequency safety. Their concerns are about cancer, miscarriages, birth defects, low semen quality, autoimmune disease, etc. Hankin’s letter, specifically emphasized that the EPA recommended guidelines that FCC is currently using do not apply to non-thermal effects or mechanisms (e.g., cancer, birth defects, miscarriage, autoimmune diseases, etc) which are the focus of the public’s concern. Hankin’s letter states “Therefore, the generalization by many that the guidelines protect human beings from harm by any or all mechanisms is not justified.”

3. In addition to being limited to only the thermal effect, the letter also states that the current FCC guidelines recommended by EPA were only based on experiments on animals in laboratories. Establishing firm safety standards usually requires evidence from human studies such as epidemiological studies. The current FCC guidelines were based on animal studies only, not human data, which may explain why they are only considered as guidelines rather than standards. Furthermore, the thermal effect, used to establish the FCC guidelines, was based on acute thermal effect. It did not even deal with chronic long-term intermittent effect. In fact, Hankin's letter also states “exposures that comply with the FCC's guidelines generally have been presented as “safe” by many of the RF system operators and service providers who must comply with them, even though there is uncertainty about possible risk from nonthermal, intermittent exposures that may continues for years”

4. Electromagnetic fields (EMFs) can come from sources with a spectrum of frequencies. EMFs from electric power sources usually have a frequency less than 1 kHz, while radiofrequency (RF) generated by SmartMeters are reportedly in the range 900 MHz to 2.4 GHz. While overall research on the EMF health effect remains limited, there are more reported studies examining the EMF health effect in power line frequencies (< 1 kHz) including some of my research¹⁻³ than in RF. It is not clear at this moment whether the findings on the EMF health effect at lower frequencies (i.e., < 1 kHz) can be applied to RF range. If the underlying mechanisms are similar, the findings in lower frequency EMFs can then be applied to RF range for SmartMeter. Many studies of power frequencies reported associations with childhood leukemia, miscarriage, poor semen quality, autoimmune diseases at a level much lower than those generating thermal damage as used by FCC.

5. Many chronic diseases that the public is concerned about (e.g., cancer) have a long latency period and take decades to show symptoms. Most wireless network and devices have only been used widely in the last 10 to 15 years. Therefore, many studies evaluating RF health effect related to cancer risk previously, if they failed to identify an adverse health effect, are not appropriate to be used as evidence to claim the safety of RF exposure since the latency period has not been long enough to show the effect even if an adverse association does indeed exist.

6. While the underlying mechanisms of the potential EMF health effect are not totally understood at present, skeptics have been focused on the EMF thermal effect, especially those who are NOT in the profession of biomedical research, such as physicists. It is now known that EMFs can interfere with the human body through multiple mechanisms. For example, it has been demonstrated that communication between cells depends on EMF signals, likely in a very low level. External EMFs could conceivably interfere with normal cell communication, thus disrupting normal cell differentiation and proliferation. Such disturbance could lead to miscarriage, birth defects, and cancer.

To address the two questions raised in the letter:

1. Whether FCC standards for SmartMeter are sufficiently protective of public health taking into account current exposure levels to radiofrequency and electromagnetic fields. First, FCC currently has only “guidelines”, not standards as explained above. Second, as described in the background information above, the current FCC guidelines only deal with thermal effect, which was also based on animal studies only. Meeting the current FCC guidelines, in the best-case scenario, only means that one won’t have heat damage from SmartMeter exposure. It says nothing about safety from the risk of many chronic diseases that the public is most concerned about such as cancer, miscarriage, birth defects, semen quality, autoimmune diseases, etc. Therefore, when it comes to non-thermal effects of RF, which is the most relevant effect for public concerns, FCC guidelines are irrelevant and can not be used for any claims of SmartMeter safety unless we are addressing heat damage.

2. Whether additional technology-specific standards are needed for SmartMeter and other devices that are commonly found in and around homes, to ensure adequate protection from adverse health effects. Safety standards for RF exposure related to non-thermal effects are urgently needed to protect the public from potential adverse health effects from RF exposure that are increasingly prevalent in our daily life due to installation of ever-powerful wireless networks and devices like SmartMeter. Unfortunately scientific research is still lacking in this area and some endpoints like cancer take decades to study. The safety standards are not likely to be available anytime soon. The bottom line is that the safety level for RF exposure related to non-thermal effect is unknown at present and whoever claims that their device is safe regarding non-thermal effect is either ignorant or misleading.

In summary, we do not currently have scientific data to determine where the safe RF exposure level is regarding the non-thermal effect. Therefore, it should be recognized that we are dealing with uncertainty now and most likely for the foreseeable future. The question for governmental agencies, especially those concerned with public health and safety, is that given the uncertainty, should we err on the side of safety and take the precautionary avoidance measures? Unknown does not mean safe. There are two unique features regarding SmartMeter exposure. First, because of mandatory installation, it is a universal exposure. Virtually every household is exposed. Second, it is an involuntary exposure. The public that are exposed to SmartMeters do not have any input in deciding whether they would like to have the SmartMeter installed. The installation is imposed upon the public. Governmental agencies for protecting public health and safety should be much more vigilant towards involuntary environmental exposures because governmental agencies are the only defense against such involuntary exposure. Given the uncertainty of the SmartMeter safety, one rational first step of public policy could be to require household consent before installation of SmartMeters. Finally, because of the nature of universal exposure, many susceptible and vulnerable populations including pregnant women and young children are unknowingly exposed 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Usually, the threshold of harmful level is much lower for susceptible populations.

RE: Reassessment of Exposure to Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Fields Limits and Policies (Docket No. FCC-2013-0204)

To Whom It May Concern:

The American Association for Justice (AAJ), formerly the Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA), hereby submits the organization's response to the Federal Communications Commission's (FCC) Notice of Inquiry on the subject of the biological effects of radiofrequency radiation and the reconsideration of current exposure limits. See 77 FR 33654.

AAJ, with members in the United States, Canada and abroad, is the world's largest trial bar. It was established in 1946 to safeguard victims' rights, strengthen the civil justice system, and protect access to the courts. In the nearly twenty years since the 1996 release of the FCC's Report and Order outlining the Commission's radiofrequency radiation exposure limits, the number of mobile phone calls per day, the length of each call, and the amount of time people spend using mobile phones have all increased.¹ Moreover, given the increasingly compact size of most cell phone models and standard mobile usage where personal devices are typically held directly against one's ear, the FCC standard is clearly outdated. AAJ urges the Commission to reevaluate its reliance on decades-old data in setting its radiofrequency radiation (RF) exposure limits. The Commission must also review recent scientific studies which demonstrate a connection between radiation exposure and the incidence of cancer. Finally, the recent FCC reclassification of the ear ("pinna") as an extremity, allowing exposure to higher levels of radiofrequency radiation, must be reversed, either through rescission of the Order or lowering overall exposure limits for extremities.

I. The FCC Must Performed Appropriate Due Diligence in Setting Standards for Exposure to Radiofrequency Radiation

In a 2005 DC Circuit case where the U.S. Chamber of Commerce petitioned for review of Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) rulemaking, the court conducted a "consideration of costs" analysis in determining whether the agency's actions was consistent with the public interest.² The court considered two factors: (1) the ability of the SEC to develop new data or to consider existing empirical data in undertaking the rulemaking and (2) whether the SEC considered the costs of the conditions it was imposing.³ While the Court in Chamber of Commerce v. Securities and Exchange Commission ultimately held that the SEC did not exceed its statutory authority, in the current case, the ready availability of scientific studies and the potentially devastating public health risks associated with prolonged human exposure to radiofrequency radiation both point to a different conclusion. Here, a cost-benefit analysis clearly indicates that the overall costs of regulation and potential burdens on industry pale in comparison to the Commission's duty to protect the members of the public, particularly in light of recent scientific studies.

A. Consideration of Empirical Data

In re-evaluating radiofrequency radiation exposure limits, the most urgent area in which current standards should be modified is the standard for extremities, particularly in light of the March 27, 2013 Order by the FCC reclassifying the ear as an extremity, subjecting it to nearly three times the level of radiation previously allowed.⁴ The rationale of the FCC in adopting the extremity classification of the pinna is based on the determination of the IEEE which makes the argument that because the tissue composition of the pinna is similar to the other extremities, the ear should be classified accordingly and subject to the higher SAR threshold of 4W/kg.⁵ Notably, the IEEE report itself admits calculations showing that the absorption of RF energy has a minimal impact on pinna temperature was subject to "limited experimental measurements" and that the "temperature effect on human pinna would vary significantly [emphasis added] from model to model of mobile phones because of differences in the heat generated by various devices."⁶

There are several problems with FCC's reliance on the determinations of the IEEE. First, the IEEE study was released in 2006 and the speed with which cell phone manufacturers innovate means that both mobile phone and wireless technology have undergone substantial changes. Data based on devices used nearly a decade ago should not be relied upon to determine current RF energy standards and in the past few years, a number of American and international health and scientific bodies have contributed to the debate over cell phone radiation and its possible link to cancer. The International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC), part of the United Nations' World Health Organization, said in June 2011 that a family of frequencies that includes mobile phone emissions is “possibly carcinogenic to humans.”⁷ The National Cancer Institute has stated that although studies have not demonstrated that RF energy from cell phone definitely causes cancer, more research is needed because cell phone technology and cell phone use are changing rapidly. These studies and others clearly demonstrate the need for further research into this area and highlight the importance of reassessing the FCC’s order to determine if it is protective of human health.

⁴ "Proposed Changes in the Commission's Rules Regarding Human Exposure to Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Fields," Changing the Specific Absorption Rate (SAR) of 1.6 W/kg averaged over 1 gram of tissue to a SAR limit of 4 W/kg averaged over any 10 grams of tissue for extremities such as hands, wrists, feet, ankles, and pinnae. ⁵ IEEE Stud C95.1-2005, IEEE Standard for Safety Levels with Respect to Human Exposure to Radio Frequency Electromagnetic Fields, 3 kHz to 300 Ghz, Rationale for applying the peak special-average SAR values for the extremities to the pinna: "The pinna consist of skin, cartilage, fat, nerves, blood vessels and muscle tissue, a composition similar to that of the extremities... Temperature increased in the pinna from heat generated in the device and from RF absorption are not harmful even if imposed on an initial pinna temperature that is close to body core temperature."

In addition, despite sharing tissue composition similar to that of extremities, the IEEE study fails to address a significant difference between the pinna and the extremities of the human body such as the hand, feet, wrists, and ankles: the former’s proximity to the brain. While the pinna may function as a barrier between RF radiation and the brain, it is composed of permeable cartilage and RF radiation, like sound waves, are guided from the projecting part of the ear which lies outside the head, to the inner ear canal before ultimately reaching the brain. To compare the pinna and the body’s extremities is an over simplification and an inaccurate analogy in regards to the effect of exposure to RF radiation. In considering changes to its current RF exposure limit rules, the FCC should move towards a safer standard, one that takes into account the mounting evidence of adverse health effects caused by cell phone radiation exposure. AAJ proposes that one immediate change the Commission must make is to reverse the recent pinna reclassification which has the potential to create long-term public health consequences.

B. The Costs of Rule Implementation

The second prong of the U.S. Chamber v. SEC ruling considers the potential costs of the agency rulemaking.⁸ There, the court considered efficiency, competition, and capital formation as negative outcomes from the proposed rule’s redefinition of a company’s board composition.⁹ Here, a much greater urgency is warranted as potential costs must take into account the latency period between cell phone usage and the presentation of symptoms attributable to radiation as well as the disparate impact of radiation on children.

1. Latency

Diseases like brain cancer are known to exhibit a long latency period.¹⁰ For example, the survivors of the atomic bombs that fell at the end of World War II did not demonstrate any increased rate of malignant cancers of the brain until four decades later.¹¹ Moreover, carcinogens such as tobacco were not firmly identified as increasing the risk of cancer until more than ten years after first usage.¹² The effects of long-term cell phone radiation exposure will likely follow this pattern as a Swiss personal monitoring study found that mobile phone use currently accounts for one-third of total exposures to wireless and microwave radiation.¹³ With more than 5.9 billion reported mobile phone users worldwide, the impact of cell phone radiation taken in the aggregate, constitutes an environmental carcinogen whose risk still remains in the discovery process. At a time when cell phone use has become an ubiquitous part of everyday life yet manufacturers have little impetus to reduce RF emissions due to stagnant FCC exposure limits, AAJ urges the Commission to undertake a thorough and impartial review of its standards.

2. Disparate Effects of Radiation on Children and Long-Term Users

A second cause for concern is the impact of cell phone radiation on children and long-term mobile phone users. Today, cell phone usage begins at a much younger age than in past decades as mobile devices are relied upon for communication, entertainment, and even use as navigational tools. However, studies indicate that radiation may have a disparate impact on the youngest cell phone users as “[h]igh resolution computerized models based on real human imaging data suggest that the higher conductivity and higher permittivity in children’s brain tissues, together with their thinner skulls and small heads, will lead to higher SARs in their brains from microwave frequencies when compared to adults.”¹⁴ Indeed, a recent study conducted by researchers from Tel Aviv University has established a clear connection between long-term cell phone users and molecular changes that can lead to cancer.¹⁵ Comparing the salivary glands of 20 long-term cell phone users who averaged 30 hours of use per week over a span of 12 years with 20 deaf subjects who did not use cell phones, scientists found that the cell phone users’ saliva indicated higher levels of oxidative stress, a process that is a “major risk factor for cancer.”¹⁶

In a December 2012 letter to then Representative Dennis Kucinich supporting H.R. 6358, the Cell Phone Right to Know Act, the American Academy of Pediatrics argued that “[t]he differences in bone density and the amount of fluid in a child’s brain compared to an adult’s brain could allow children to absorb greater quantities of RF energy deeper into their brains than adults. It is essential that any new standards for cell phone or other wireless devices be based on protecting the youngest and most vulnerable populations to ensure they are safeguarded through their lifetimes.”¹⁷ Yet, not only does the FCC make no distinction between the levels of cell phone radiation advisable for children and for adults, the agency takes the opposite approach in its Order, reclassifying the pinna and effectively making cell phones less safe for the segment of the population most at risk for future harm. Before developing new limits on RF exposure, the FCC must conduct a thorough analysis into the long-term effects of radiofrequency emissions, particularly on children whose physiological make-up and overall lifetime exposure may warrant a separate and more conservative standard.

II. Conclusion

Nearly half of the world's mobile phone users are under the age of 30 and live in developing countries.¹⁸ Moreover, even as the Davis study cautions that brain cancer is the "tip of the iceberg," the rest of the body is also showing effects other than cancers.¹⁹ In the United States alone, the Central Brain Tumor Registry of the United States estimates that about 10,000 people will develop glioma, or tumor of the brain this year. Given the growing evidence of harm arising from human exposure to radiofrequency emissions, the FCC must lower its current exposure limits beginning with rescinding its Order reclassifying the pinna as an extremity, a rash decision which will put future generations at risk of an invisible but menacing carcinogen. AAJ urges the FCC to ensure public safety by committing to more robust exploration in this area.

AAJ appreciates this opportunity to submit comments in response to the Federal Communications Commission's Notice of Inquiry seeking input on whether its exposure limits should be more restrictive, less restrictive, or remain the same. Maryland
SMART METER AWARENESS

FCC Docket Nos. 03-137 and 12-357
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Sir or Madam:

Maryland Smart Meter Awareness (MSMA) greatly appreciates the opportunity to comment on the FCC's current standards for exposure to radio frequency radiation (RF) emanating from wireless devices. MSMA is a grassroots organization of about five hundred Maryland residents formed to educate the people of Maryland about the dangers of smart meters and to raise public awareness about the biological effects of wireless radiation with regard to all wireless technologies. We feel very strongly that there is an urgent need for more stringent regulation standards for Radio Frequency Radiation (RF) in the United States.

For the last eighteen months, we have been totally immersed in the scientific literature regarding RF, and listening to experts. MSMA has concluded that the FCC guidelines are no longer adequate to protect the public. They are inadequate both because RF exposure levels have been set far too high and because they fail to address the cumulative impact of multiple sources of RF in the homes and businesses. This obviously includes indoor environments, but it also includes outdoor areas such as backyards, patios, and areas adjacent to workplaces. As new wireless devices proliferate throughout society, they fill our airspace and communities with RF. Thus it is no longer useful to just have an FCC standard focused on devices and technologies. We also need a maximum permissible exposure standard for RF for both the home and business environments such that all biological systems will be protected from being exposed to dangerous levels of RF. One need only look around the world to other governments who have carefully examined this issue more recently to get an idea of how outdated the US standards indeed are. Currently, standards for wireless devices are 10 times lower in India than in the US. In Russia, exposure to 1000 microW/cm² (compare to WiFi) is acceptable for only 15 minutes a day.

The most common sense guidelines in the world for pulsed microwave radiation come from the Czech Republic. WiFi is pulsed radiation, which is known to be more harmful than non-pulsed radiation. The Czech guidelines for pulsed microwave radiation allow exposure to 4 microW/cm² for a 6-hour day (school day). This is 0.4% of the FCC Guideline. The reason for the lower maximum is that the several countries with stricter guidelines (Czech Republic, Switzerland, China, Hungary, Poland, etc.) do not base their guidelines solely on heating; these countries base their guidelines on biological effects that include changes in calcium flux, changes in the permeability of the blood-brain barrier, and damage to DNA.

It is worth noting that even though Switzerland has one of the lowest allowable emission regulations people are still becoming ill from RF. MSMA urges the FCC to establish an independent health advisory team made up of medical experts to study the literature on the biological effects of non-ionizing radiation. This is of critical importance if the FCC wishes to establish credible guidelines that are indeed protective of health and the environment.

Below are three lists of useful references. The first is a list of government and independent organizations that have either banned wireless technology or at least have issued a warning about this technology. The second list consists of doctors and scientists who have called for stricter regulation and/or a moratorium on wireless technology. The third list consists of the latest studies linking radio frequency radiation with adverse health effects.

Should anyone have any questions about these comments, please contact me at (410) 358-4616 or send me an e-mail message at: jlibberconsulting@gmail.com.

AFFIDAVIT OF ELIZABETH A. KELLEY

State of Arizona

Pima County

- I. Elizabeth A. Kelley, attest that my statements are true to the best of my knowledge.

Comments submitted on: ET Docket No. 03-137

And,

WT Docket No. 12-357.

1. My name is Elizabeth A. Kelley. My address is 3031 N. Gaia Place, Tucson, AZ 85625.
2. I am the Director of the Electromagnetic Safety Alliance, Inc, a nonprofit organization registered in the State of Arizona. Our website is www.electromagneticsafety.org. This organization engages in public education and advocacy regarding the adverse health effects of radiofrequency radiation and electromagnetic fields.
3. Until 2010, I served as managing director of the International Commission for Electromagnetic Safety, www.icems.eu, composed of scientists and medical doctors who conduct research on electromagnetic radiation and fields. This organization has issued resolutions advising more precaution based on their review of the science since 1998, including the Benevento and Porto Alegre EMF Resolutions. I was a signer to the Porto Alegre Resolution.
4. I frequently give presentations on the health, scientific and policy issues related to human exposure to radiofrequency radiation and electromagnetic fields. I have briefed members of the U.S. Congress and staff as well as state and local public officials too many times to count over the past 17 years. I testified before the Stewart Commission, chaired by Dr. William Stewart, who is a Member of the British Parliament, as well as the UK's National Radiation Protection Board, in 2000. I testified before the Mayor and City Council of Porto Alegre, Brazil; before members of the Japanese Parliament as part of a presentation I gave conference in Tokyo in 2003, and at conferences held in Italy, sponsored by CODACONS, an Italian national consumer rights organization, and the International Commission for Electromagnetic Safety.

4. I presented to staff who work for Members of the U.S. Congress at a workshop held in the U.S. Capitol in 2003, organized by the EMR Network, Inc. I served on a committee of the National Institute of Building Services and helped develop voluntary guidelines to guide safe access and accommodation by public facilities and services for persons who are functionally impaired due to electrical or chemical sensitivities. I have testified before the Arizona Center for Disability Law about how persons who are functionally impaired due environmental illness are discriminated against by new White House initiatives to provide more wireless assistive devices to those with physical disabilities. I have collaborated with the EMR Policy Institute, Electromagnetic Health, Inc., and the Center for Safer Wireless, Inc, the North American Institute for Building Biology and Ecology, Inc., and numerous citizens groups and local government agencies across the U.S. to organize and present at workshops, conferences and public forums. I am a co-founder of the International ElectroMagnetic Alliance, based in Norway. I am a past member of the International Bioelectromagnetics Society and have attended many of their annual conferences.

5. Because of my high visibility I am frequently contacted by citizens for advice and assistance. For example, I receive inquiries on a daily basis from parents who are worried about their children using cell phones or their being involuntarily exposed to WiFi signals in their school classrooms; those people who are opposing a proposed cell tower near their home; from people who have become highly electrically sensitive and want to ask their local utility to remove a wireless digital "smart" meter, a Power Line Communications or, other EMF emitting utility meters, from their home.

6. Through these interactions, I have learned that as society is undergoing rapid change in wireless technologies, and as these technologies advance there is simultaneously the emergence of a major public health problem where people's health and well being is being adversely affected by involuntary, Chronic exposure to wireless transmitters. Such exposure conditions are responsible for causing harm to a segment of the population that is growing as wireless technologies are expanding. Some people are no longer to live in their own home or, having retreated to a living in a remote area, they are now experiencing ill effects due to new and toxic sources of EMF from newly deployed wireless enabled infrastructure for wireless broadband and/or smart grid. Many people tell me they are not able to find a safe place to live, work, pray or play that is free from exposure to electromagnetic radiation or electromagnetic field hazards.

7. Due to Federal preemption, the widespread manifestation of harm or concern is not being acknowledged. Mainstream media is promoting more wireless technologies. The U.S. government health agencies and the FCC are silent. It has taken decades to for the U.S. government to investigate the link between smoking and lung cancer and to issue a health advisory. It took another 15 years before then U.S. Surgeon General Richard Carmona, MD, after confirming that second hand smoke also caused cancer for governments to issue protective policies that regulate places and spaces where people are protected from second hand smoke. With all these early adaptors and more and more studies coming from other nations of the world where this research is taking place that mortality and morbidity rates are increasing among cell phone users, their children and in communities where cell towers have been placed, it is past time for Congress and the Administration to intervene with the business as usual approach by the FCC and take action and revise its rules to assure greater health protection

8. From the founding of the Electromagnetic Safety Alliance, Inc. and before, through the Council on Wireless Technology Impacts, Inc. a national non-profit organization that I founded and directed, and, the Ad Hoc Association of Parties Concerned about the FCC's Radio Frequency Human Health Guidelines, AKA "Ad Hoc Association", a national non-profit organization that I directed, I have attempted to educate the FCC with scientific reports, affidavits and numerous demonstrations of health harm from the current FCC electromagnetic guidelines. David Fichtenberg, who was an officer in these organizations, and me, as the Director, of the Ad Hoc Association, in representing fifty-four (54) members of this organization, submitted public comments on FCC's proposed rulemaking to revise these electromagnetic guidelines starting in 1997, under Docket Nos. 97-4328(L).

9. Following FCC's issuance of the final rule, the Ad Hoc Association filed an appeal on behalf of its members with the U.S. Court of Appeals to challenge these rules, under Docket Nos. 97-4328(L); 98-4003(Con); 98-4005(Con); 98-4025(Con); 98-4122(Con). The major legal issues raised in the appeal were: 1) The Guidelines for Evaluating the Environmental Effects of Radiofrequency Radiation, 11 F.C.C Rcd. 15123 (1996), and, 2) Constitutional violations under the 10th, 5th and 1st Amendment, and statutory violations pursuant to FCC procedures for reviewing requests for relief from State and Local Regulations pursuant to Section 332(c) (7) (B) (v) of the Communications Act of 1934, 12 F.C.C. Rcd 13494 (1997). The lead attorney in the consolidated appeal was James R. Hobson, Esq., of Donelan, Cleary, Wood and Maser, P.C., Washington D.C. Filing an amicus brief in support of the petitioners on behalf of citizens in New England was the law firm of Seymour and Landy in New York.

10. The Ad Hoc Association appellate court appeal of this final rule was combined with appeals filed simultaneously by the Cellular Phone Task Force and the Communications Workers of America. That combined appeal became known as Cell Phone Task Force vs. FCC, as named by the court, was represented to the appellate court by James Hobson, Esq., of Donelan, Cleary, Wood and Maser, P.C., Washington D.C.

11. The petitioners claimed in lengthy arguments, supported by numerous affidavits and scientific information, that FCC Guidelines violates the Americans with Disabilities Act and the Rehabilitation Act; that FCC was arbitrary and capricious in enacting the Guidelines in violation of the Administrative Procedures Act (APA), specifically 5 U.S.C. 706(2)(A); that FCC violated the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) by failing to prepare an environmental impact report; 4) that FCC exceeded its powers when it prohibited state and local governments from regulating the operation of personal wireless service facilities according to the FCC's radiofrequency guidelines; and, by preempting state and local powers to consider health and environment in making wireless telecommunications decisions, the Federal Telecommunications Act of 1996 (47 U.S.C. 332(c)(7)(B)(iv), is unconstitutional.

12. The U.S. Court of Appeals denied this appeal in February 2000. The impact of that legislation, and the FCC's response, was summarized succinctly by the Second Circuit in Cellular Phone Taskforce v. FCC, 205 F.3d 82, at 88 (2d Cir. 2000).

See the court ruling at on this consolidated appeal at:

<http://transition.fcc.gov/ogc/documents/opinions/2000/97-4328.html>.

13. In December 2000, the offices of Whitney North Seymour, Jr., Esq., Seymour and Landy, filed a writ for certiorari with the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of the EMR Safety Network, the Council on Wireless Technology Impacts and other citizens groups and individuals nationwide. The court denied the writ for cert in 2000.

14. It is our desire to revise the FCC's RF safety guidelines by lowering them to make them more biologically compatible based on the precautionary principle and as a result of a strong federal public health oversight capability that places as the top priority, ensuring the health and welfare of the citizens and residents of the United States; issue and maintain electromagnetic radiation and electrical and magnetic field exposure guidelines on a timely basis that are biologically based and assure the population that health and safety protections are in effect.

15. Through a coordinated approach, inspired and supported by Congressional legislation and White House Policy Initiatives, a federal interagency working group composed of U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Food and Drug Administration, the National Institutes of Health, the Centers for Disease Control, the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, the Department of Labor's Occupational and Health Administration, the Federal Communications Commission, the Department of Energy's Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the National Institute of Standards and Technology, and other related agencies will ensure that new and emerging technologies that employ radiofrequency radiation and electrical and magnetic fields do not pose a risk to mankind or the environment.

16. Such activities would include but not be limited to a sustained federally sponsored independent EMF research program; a research agenda that conducts clinical and epidemiological studies and reviews studies reported outside the U.S; the ongoing development and promulgation of uniform federal electromagnetic health and safety guidelines that are biologically based, taking into account the most vulnerable including fetal, neonatal, early childhood and young adult development, pregnant women, those with neurological and immune deficiencies, those who are functionally impaired due to electrical hypersensitivity and the elderly in the general public as well as military, industrial and office workers who are more highly exposed to increasing power densities due to environmental electromagnetic pollution from electrical and wireless devices and infrastructure.

17. We strongly urge the National Institutes of Health to adopt the May 2011 position of the World Health Organization, classifying radiofrequency radiation (RFR) as a class 2b carcinogen and its 2001 position, classifying extremely low frequency electrical and magnetic fields (ELF) as a human carcinogen. This would give U.S. recognition to the view held by the European Environmental Agency and many nations of the world that electromagnetic radiation and electromagnetic fields (EMF) is an environmental toxin and that there is an emerging public health issue related to chronic EMF exposure that must be addressed on behalf of all citizens and residents of the United States.

18. We ask the current U.S. Surgeon General of the United States to take immediate action as the “nation’s doctor” by immediately undertake an investigation into growing evidence that the health of the people is at risk due to chronic EMF exposure to cell phones, other personal wireless devices, electrical appliances and infrastructure for Personal Communications Services and emerging infrastructures to deploy wireless broadband and smart grid infrastructure nationwide. In a recent communication from the Office of the U.S. Surgeon General to a letter I sent through U.S. Senator John McCain, we were informed that since electromagnetic radiation was not on the list of preventive health concerns, they did not plan to investigate it.

19. Most these recommended changes must be put into place prior to the issuance of FCC rules to revise its current radiofrequency health and safety guidelines

20. See additional comments that we subscribe to want to see incorporated by reference that were submitted to the FCC on February 5, 2013 by the EMRadiation Policy Institute on ET Docket No. 03-137 and WT Docket No. 12-357 (Procedure Docket No. 12-357).

Organization; Wildlife and Habitat Conservation Solutions; What We Know, Can Infer, and Don't Yet Know about Impacts from Thermal and Non-thermal Non-ionizing Radiation to Birds and Other Wildlife. Dr. Albert M. Manville PhD.; 2016

A BRIEFING MEMORANDUM: What We Know, Can Infer, and Don't Yet Know about Impacts from Thermal and Non-thermal Non-ionizing Radiation to Birds and Other Wildlife — for Public Release

Albert M. Manville, II, Ph.D., C.W.B.¹; Principal, *Wildlife and Habitat Conservation Solutions, LLC*²; Adjunct Professor, Johns Hopkins University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, DC Campus³; and former U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agency lead on avian-structural impacts — including from radiation

July 14, 2016

Introduction

There continues to be an active yet unsettled controversy about current radiation safety standards and their effects on humans and wildlife (www.livingplanet.be), most especially (1) with the exponential growth of ultra-high frequency (UHF) microwave radiation of electromagnetic fields (EMF) ranging from 900 MHz to 2500 GHz. The 900 and 1800 MHz fields are commonly used in communication devices such as cellular (cell) telephones, their antennas, related “smart” phones, digital “smart meters,” computer wi-fi communication systems, and other sources of point-to-point and Internet communication. Much less attention is being paid to (2) frequency modulated (FM) impacts on migratory birds, including bandwidths ranging from 70 to 110 MHz also briefly discussed in this memo.

However, as concluded in this memo, the impacts from radiation especially at the non-thermal level (thermal effects are generally pretty clear) have already been well documented. Most scientists consider non-thermal effects as well established even though the implications are not fully understood. For example, in the June 2016 Scientific American Blog (Portier and Leonard 2016), in response to the question, “do cell phones cause cancer?” The authors response was clear: “probably, but it's complicated. The degree of risk almost certainly depends on the length and strength of exposure — but we still don't know how significant the actual danger is.” These same issues pertain to impacts to wildlife from both thermal and non-thermal effects emitted from cellular (cell) communication towers and FM antennas (discussed in detail beyond). The radiation effects on wildlife need to be addressed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the Department of Commerce, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) and other governmental entities.

Focusing in the remainder of this memo primarily on wildlife impacts, radiation effects can be characterized as “near-field” (near the source of radiation), “far-field” (some distance from the source) or “intermediate.” Negative reports of near-field (i.e., very close to power sources such as on or very near cellular antennas and antenna arrays) thermal radiation effects (capable of heating tissue) on laboratory animals and wildlife have been published in the scientific literature since at least 1950. An example includes Clark 1950, cited in Tanner 1966. Much of the controversy about effects involves “far field,” non-thermal, low-level radiation impacts on humans, laboratory animals and wildlife. These are effects that can occur further away from the peak source of radiation (i.e., the tower antennas) due to signal attenuation, signal interference from objects and water droplets in the air, and other physical obstructions and disturbances. As concluded by Beason and Semm (2002), non-thermal effects had been the most difficult to explain because the mechanism by which they affect biological tissue was usually unknown or unclear. With much more current research and recent discoveries, the explanations are becoming much clearer as new research results become available and causality becomes more evident.

For human exposures, however, the FCC has operating rules. These rules require that power to cell and other broadcast towers must be turned off when workers are on and/or climbing the towers — due to health impacts and safety concerns from the thermal radiation.

Complicating the issue is the fact that there currently are no standards for wildlife exposure, including by the licensing and regulatory rules and procedures of the FCC. Other than a letter from the Interior Department's (DOI) Director of the Office of Environmental Policy and Compliance to the Commerce Department's National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA; USDOJ 2014) — Attachment A involving effects of tower collisions and non-thermal radiation on migratory birds which I authored — neither DOI nor the FWS have any policy or quasi policy that currently addresses radiation effects to migratory birds. Arguably, “effects” need to be determined by the EPA, which has no funding for this, and regulated as part of a National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) site review for a proposed cell tower, including both thermal and non-thermal effects.

Undebatable, however, is the exponential growth of cell phone technologies with an estimated 7 billion cell phones now available worldwide to a human population of 7.4+ billion (NPR March 2016 news report based on 2015 data). With this growing cell phone use and the communication systems that transmit and receive the signals from them, as well as the paucity of government regulatory oversight, this memorandum very briefly summarizes some of the major studies and take-aways conducted primarily on laboratory animals and wildlife, especially migratory birds. The issue represents a growing and troubling concern since migratory birds are in decline (at least 36% of which are in trouble species-wide in North America [USFWS 2008]), and which face additional uncertain impacts from non-ionizing, thermal and non-thermal radiation (Manville 2015, 2016).

Tests on laboratory animals such as chicken embryos, mice and rats are used as surrogates to predict harm to humans, protected migratory birds and other wildlife which, for practical, ethical and legal reasons in the United States would not otherwise be subjected to laboratory studies on impacts from radiation. Furthermore, scientists generally do not want to perform harmful experiments on either humans or protected wildlife such as migratory birds. Studies on the negative effects of non-thermal radiation to wild birds in Europe are clearly relevant as predictors of what will/is likely/is happening to wild birds in North America — the Bald Eagle as such as example due to its population growth and growing proximity to existing and proposed cell towers. That is why the published research results from European avian studies are so troubling.

Biological Systems and EMF

Living systems operating in animals support a variety of oscillatory electrical and/or biochemical activities which have been well documented to be affected by EMF. However, the direct relationship between electromagnetic radiation and wildlife health continues to be complicated and in cases involving non-thermal effects, still unclear. We know, for example, that brain waves are electrical, the heartbeat is electrical, the cell membrane has an electric field potential, cell division is electrically influenced, communication between neurons is electrical, and all of the hormonal and enzymatic activities are electrically regulated. Even the chemical-mechanistic model of the human and animal anatomy is essentially an electromagnetic model, because all chemical reactions involve the sharing, trading, or exchange of electrons at the elemental level (www.livingplanet.be) as explained by scientist J. Everaert in his website.

As J. Everaert further explains, there are studies showing frequency-specific biological effects, and studies demonstrating that a high frequency signal modulated at certain low frequencies, or a signal that is pulsed, has more harmful effects than an unmodulated, steady carrier wave (www.livingplanet.be).

Early Studies on EMF in the Microwave Bandwidth

Dating back to at least 1950, Tanner (1966, citing Clark 1950) concluded that much had been published on effects of microwave radiation on body tissues and animals, but most of the early experiments were concerned with the production of heat and its physiological effects. Tanner et al. (1967) looked briefly at the effects of microwave radiation on domestic chickens, and concluded that thermal effects were manifested by a rise in temperature of the irradiated birds, which were accompanied by physiological responses based on intensity and duration of the radiation field — escape or avoidance — but that non-thermal effects that impacted other physiological systems were more difficult to discern. Tanner (1966) and Tanner et al. (1967) discovered that birds' feathers are known to have piezoelectric properties, capable of conducting EMF/RF deep within bird body cavities. This finding can help, in part, explain increased bird sensitivity to EMF/RF radiation. In this early research, however, it remains unclear if thermal and non-thermal effects were adequately differentiated.

Wasserman et al. (1984) conducted field studies on 12 flocks of migratory birds subjected to various combinations of microwave power density and duration under winter conditions at Monomet, MA, with birds from 2 additional flocks serving as controls. Increased levels of aggression were noted in some of the irradiated birds suggesting effects, but calling for further study.

More Recent EMF Studies on Birds, Other Wildlife and Laboratory Animals in the Microwave Bandwidth

There is an increasing body of published laboratory research that finds DNA damage at low intensity exposures — well below levels of thermal heating — which may be comparable to far field exposures from cell antennas. This body of work would apply to all species, including migratory birds, since DNA is DNA, whether single-strand or double helix. The first study to find such effects was conducted by H. Lai and N.P. Singh in 1995 (Lai and Singh 1995). Their work has since been replicated (e.g., Lai and Singh 1996, as well as in hundreds of other more recent published studies), performed in at least 14 laboratories worldwide. The take-home message: low level transmission of EMF from cell towers and other sources probably causes DNA damage. The laboratory research findings strongly infer this relationship. Since DNA is the primary building block and genetic “map” for the very growth, production, replication and survival of all living organisms, deleterious effects can be critical.

The entire thermal model and all FCC categorical exclusions for all of the devices we see today, rests on the incorrect assumption that low-level, non-ionizing non-thermal radiation cannot cause DNA breaks because it is “so low-power” (B. Levitt and H. Lai, Comments Filed Jointly to FCC, ET Docket No. 13-84, 2013). These issues need to be adequately addressed by the appropriate authorities including the FCC, EPA and FWS. Currently they are not.

In laboratory studies by T. Litovitz (2000 pers. comm.) and DiCarlo et al. (2002) from the standard 915 MHz cell phone frequency on domestic chicken embryos showed that radiation from extremely low levels (0.0001 the level emitted by the average digital cellular telephone) caused heart attacks and deaths in some embryos. Controls, however, were unaffected (DiCarlo et al. 2002). In replicated experiments, similar results were obtained by Grigor’ev (2003) and Xenos and Magras (2003). These findings are important since similar evidence exists for lethal and injurious impacts to wild birds in Europe from cell tower radiation, and based on anecdotal reports from the U.S., are very likely also occurring in North America (Manville 2016).

In field studies on wild birds in Spain, Balmori (2005) found strong negative correlations between levels of tower-emitted microwave radiation and bird breeding, nesting, roosting and survival in the vicinity of electromagnetic fields. He documented nest and site abandonment, plumage deterioration, locomotion problems, and death in Wood Storks, House Sparrows, Rock Doves, Magpies, Collared Doves, and other species. While these species had historically been documented to roost and nest in these areas, Balmori (2005) did not observe these symptoms prior to construction and operation of the cell phone towers. Results were most strongly negatively correlated to proximity to antennas and Stork recruitment and survival. Twelve nests (40% of his study sample) were located within 200 m of the antennas and never successfully raised any chicks, while only 1 (3.3%), located further than 300 m, never had chicks. Strange behaviors were observed at Stork nesting sites within 100 m of one or several cell tower antennas. Those birds that the main beam impacted directly (i.e., electric field intensity/EFI > 2 V/m) included young that died from unknown causes. Within 100 m, paired adults frequently fought over nest construction sticks and failed to advance the construction of the nests with sticks falling to the ground while nests were being constructed. Balmori (2005) reported that some nests were never completed and the Storks remained passively in front of cellsite antennas. The electric field intensity was higher on nests within 200 m (2.36 ± 0.82 V/m) than on nests further than 300 m (0.53 ± 0.82 V/m). However, the EMF levels, including for nests < 100 m from the antennas, were not intense enough to be classified as thermally active. Power densities need to be at least 10 mW/cm² to produce tissue heating of even 0.5 C (Bernhardt 1992).

Balmori and Hallberg (2007) and Everaert and Bauwens (2007) found similar strong negative correlations among male House Sparrows and electromagnetic radiation in their studies. In another review, Balmori (2009) reported health effects to birds which were continuously irradiated. They suffered long-term effects including reduced territorial defense posturing, deterioration of bird health, problems with reproduction, and reduction of useful territories due to habitat deterioration.

Beason and Semm (2002) demonstrated that microwave radiation used in cell phones produces non-thermal responses in several types of neurons of the nervous system of Zebra Finches. The brain neurons of anesthetized birds were tested with a 900 MHz carrier, modulated at 217 Hz. Stimulation resulted in changes in the amount of neural activity by more than half of the brain cells with most (76%) of the responding cells increasing their rates of firing by an average 3.5-fold as opposed to controls — a clearly definitive study showing non-thermal effects. The other responding cells exhibited a decrease in their rates of spontaneous activity suggesting potential effects to humans using hand-held cell phones affecting sleep (Borbely et al. 1999). The Beason and Semm (2002) theoretical model could also help explain why birds may be attracted to cell towers, an important theoretical premise that they previously hypothesized in regard to Bobolinks (Semm and Beason 1990).

In a meta-review of studies through 2008, and based on laboratory research they conducted, Panagopoulos and Margaritas (2008) determined maximum radiation distances for both cell phones and for communication towers, based on the Global System for Mobile Telecommunications (GSM) and the Digital Cellular System (DCS). This maximum radiation distance corresponds to an intensity around 10 mW/cm² for both types of radiation in regards to the RF components — i.e., Bernhardt's (1992) threshold for thermal heating effects. Panagopoulos and Margaritas (2008) recorded an "intensity window" — a thermal effect — around 10 mW/cm² RF exposure where bio-effects became even more severe than at intensities higher than 200 mW/cm². This "intensity window" appeared at a distance of 20-30 cm from the cell phone antenna, corresponding to a distance of about 20-30 meters from a base station antenna. This could be considered a classic nonlinear effect and would apply to far field exposures. Since cell phone base station antennas are frequently located within residential areas where houses and workplaces are often situated at distances 20-30 m from such antennas, not to mention birds nesting and roosting close to these antennas (e.g., Balmori 2005), humans, migratory birds and other wildlife may be exposed up to 24 hours per day.

Based on their research and meta-analyses, Panagopoulos and Margaritas (2008) concluded that large decreases in reproductive capacity were being caused by GSM and DCS radiation fields. This included extensive DNA fragmentation on reproductive cells of experimental animals induced by these fields, exerting an intense biological action able to kill cells, damage DNA, and dramatically decrease the reproductive capacity of living organisms, including populations of wild birds and insects. They cautioned, however, that the physical parameters of these radiations, including intensity, carrier frequency, pulse repetition frequency, distance from the antenna, and similar factors provided inconsistency and lack of standardization making it difficult to correlate specific thermal and non-thermal effects to specific types of radiation. Their take-away message, however, was clear: bio-effects to migratory birds, other wildlife, insects, laboratory animals and humans continue to be documented from thermal and non-thermal exposures, as well as effects from intermediate exposures between the near-field and far-field levels. All migratory birds are potentially at risk, whether they be Bald Eagles, Golden Eagles, Birds of Conservation Concern (USFWS 2008), Federally and/or State-listed bird species, other birds in peril regionally or population-wide, or birds whose populations are stable.

Cucurachi et al. (2013) reported on 113 studies from original peer-reviewed publications and relevant existing reviews. A limited number of ecological studies was identified, the majority of which were conducted in a laboratory setting on bird embryos or eggs, small rodents and plants. In 65% of the studies, ecological effects of RF-EMF (50% of the animal studies and about 75% of the plant studies) were found both at high as well as at low dosages. Lack of standardization and limited sampling made generalizing results from the organism to the ecosystem level very difficult. Cucurachi et al. (2013) concluded, however, that due to the number of variables, no clear dose-effect relationship could be found especially for non-thermal effects. However, effects from some of the studies reviewed were well documented, and certainly can serve as predictors for effects to wild, protected migratory birds and other wildlife in North America.

Engels et al. (2014) investigated “electromagnetic noise” emitted everywhere humans use electronic devices including from cell phones and their towers. While prior to their study on European Robins, no “noise effect” had been widely accepted as scientifically proven, the authors in this double-blind experiment were able to show that migratory birds are unable to use their magnetic compass in the presence of urban electromagnetic noise. The magnetic compass is integral to bird movement and migration. The findings clearly demonstrated a non-thermal effect on European Robins and clearly serves as a predictor for effects to other migratory birds including those in North America.

Levitt and Lai (2010) reported numerous biological effects from cell tower radiation documented at very low intensities comparable to what the population experiences within 60–150 m distance from a cell tower, including effects that occurred in studies of cell cultures and animals after exposures to low-intensity RFR. These reported effects were genetic, growth, and reproductive in nature; they documented increases in permeability of the blood-brain barrier; showed behavioral responses; illustrated molecular, cellular, and metabolic changes; and provided evidence of increases in cancer risk — all applicable to migratory birds, other wildlife and to far field exposures in general. They cited published, peer-reviewed examples of effects that included:

Dutta et al. (1989) who reported an increase in calcium efflux in human neuroblastoma cells after exposure to RFR at 0.005 W/kg. Calcium is an important component in normal cellular functions.

Fesenko et al. (1999) who reported a change in immunological functions in mice after exposure to RFR at a power density of 0.001 mW/cm². These results can serve as predictors for impacts to wild animals.

Magras and Xenos (1997) who reported a decrease in reproductive function in mice exposed to RFR at power densities of 0.000168— 0.001053 mW/cm². The results also serve as predictors for reproductive impacts to wildlife.

Forgacs et al. (2006) who reported an increase in serum testosterone levels in rats exposed to GSM-like RFR at specific absorption rates (SAR) of 0.018— 0.025 W/kg. The results also serve as predictors for reproductive impacts to wildlife.

Persson et al. (1997) who reported an increase in the permeability of the blood–brain barrier in mice exposed to RFR at 0.0004– 0.008 W/kg. The blood–brain barrier is a physiological mechanism that protects the brain from toxic substances, bacteria, and viruses. These findings have clear applicability to wildlife including migratory birds.

Phillips et al. (1998) who reported DNA damage in cells exposed to RFR at the SAR of 0.0024– 0.024 W/kg. DNA is integral to the very function and survival of all living organisms, including migratory birds.

Kesari and Behari (2009) also reported an increase in DNA strand breaks in brain cells of rats after exposure to RFR at the SAR of 0.0008 W/kg. The results also serve as predictors for impacts to DNA in wildlife. And, Belyayev et al. (2009) who reported changes in DNA repair mechanisms after RFR exposure at a SAR of 0.0037 W/kg. DNA is integral to the maintenance and repair of cells and cellular function in all animals. All sources from above were cited in Levitt and Lai (2010).

In a 2-year study conducted by the National Toxicology Program (NTP) of the National Institutes of Health (May 2016), NTP (Wyde 2016) reported partial findings from their $25 million study on cancer risk to laboratory rodents from cellphone radiation. The report summarizes a long-term exposure study to cell phone radiation, with statistically significant evidence of DNA damage from non-thermal exposure to cellphone radiation to laboratory mice and rats. Controlled studies on laboratory rats showed that cellphone radiation caused 2 types of tumors, glioma and schwannoma, the results which “could have broad implications for public health.” The report has been characterized as a “game-changer” as it proves that non-ionizing, radiofrequency radiation can cause cancer without heating tissue. The researchers controlled the temperature of the test animals to prevent heating effects so the cancers were caused by a non-thermal mechanism. The report on the mice component of the study will be released at a later date. Not surprisingly, much of the media coverage contained considerable bias or “media spin” intended to create doubt about the study’s important findings regarding cancer risk from exposure to cellphone radiation (Moskowitz 2016). The implications are troubling for migratory birds and other wildlife.

Likely Impacts to Migratory Birds from Frequency Modulated (FM) Signals

FM signals travel in line-of-sight paths, so antennas are located on the highest ground available to blanket an area wherever the target signal recipients are located, also providing convenient perches for migratory birds. FM digital (on/off) signals which simulate pulsed waves pose additional health concerns to migratory birds, especially from thermal heating which will be coupled with the UHF’s from cell phone providers often colocated on the same antennas (e.g., see cellphonetaskforce.com; work of Dr. O. Johansson). This creates a very dangerous frequency potential for protected migratory birds such as Bald Eagles since the length of the FM signal is about 6 feet, creating a full-body resonant effect for both humans and Bald Eagles — an Eagle wingspan extends to about 6 feet. Power levels for FM transmission (e.g., 6,000 Watts for a commercial radio station) are far higher than that for a colocated UHF antenna(s), exacerbating thermal heating effects.

Modulated FM signals infuse the atmosphere with lower frequencies which become more bioactive, even at lower power intensities. These, in turn, coupled with a UHF cell phone frequency(s) will create greater thermal and non-thermal effects. Generally the approved level of power for an FM transmission antenna is considerable. The FCC does not measure the modulated signal, only the carrier signal (Levitt 1995). Let's evaluate a hypothetical FM antenna array, with a carrier signal of 104.9 MHz at 47 meters above ground level (AGL), and an effective radiated power of 6,000 Watts. Here, nesting, roosting, feeding and potentially breeding birds such as Bald Eagles using this hypothetical tower would almost certainly be affected by thermal heating, in addition to non-thermal impacts. These issues need to be assessed including through the NEPA review process (either an Environmental Assessment or an Environmental Impact Statement) by FCC and FWS.

The specific absorption rate (SAR) is the energy absorbed per unit of biological tissue, usually expressed in watts per kilogram or milliwatts per gram of tissue, and the SAR is used to focus on "harmful effects" to humans. SARs peak in the bands of 70 — 100 MHz (Cleveland 2001). However, as previously mentioned in this memo, there currently are no standards for wildlife exposure to RFR — both from FM and UHF radiation — including for Bald Eagles and all other protected migratory birds. These issues need to be addressed both by FCC and FWS.

Summary Recommendations

Levitt and Lai (2010) concluded that the obvious mechanism of effects from RFR are thermal (i.e., tissue heating) — which is what FCC bases its current radiation standards on, even if they are more than 30 years out of date and rejected both by the Department of Interior and Department of Commerce (USDOI 2014, Manville 2016) as incomplete. However, for decades, there have been questions about non-thermal (i.e., not dependent on a change in temperature) effects, whether they exist, and what specifically causes the effects to surface. The sources cited above should help dispel that doubt or at the very least show that non-thermal effects do indeed occur, have been well documented, and can have significant deleterious effects on migratory birds and other wildlife.

Practically, as Levitt and Lai (2010) concluded, we do not actually need to know whether RFR effects are thermal or non-thermal to set exposure guidelines. Most of the biological-effects studies of RFR that have been conducted since the 1980s were under non-thermal conditions, including the most recent NTP (2016) studies. In studies using isolated cells, the ambient temperature during exposure was generally well controlled. In most animal studies, the RFR intensity used usually did not cause a significant increase in body temperature in the test animals. Most scientists consider non-thermal effects as well established, even though the implications are not fully understood.

Scientifically, Levitt and Lai (2010) concluded that there are three rationales for the existence of non-thermal effects:

1. Effects can occur at low intensities when a significant increase in temperature is not likely.
2. Heating does not produce the same effects as RFR exposure.

3. RFR with different modulations and characteristics produce different effects even though they may produce the same pattern of SAR distribution and tissue heating.

There is virtually no non-thermal research to indicate what is safe for either humans or wildlife, including migratory birds which are highly sensitive to perturbations in ways humans are not (see previous citations). Unfortunately, there also is very little far-field, distance-to-safety research for wildlife — most especially for migratory birds — as this has not been studied with that focus in mind. What little EMF/RF field research on wildlife that has been conducted, its focus has been on behavior, mortality and reproductive outcomes (e.g., B. Levitt and H. Lai, Comments Filed Jointly to FCC, ET Docket No. 13-84, 2013; Balmori 2005, 2009; Balmori and Hallberg 2007; Everaert and Bauwens 2007; Engels et al. 2014; Wasserman et al. 1984; and Semm and Beason 1990).

In summary, we need to better understand, tease out, and refine how to address these growing and poorly understood radiation impacts to migratory birds, bees, bats, and myriad other wildlife. At present, given industry and agency intransigence (with the exception of the Interior Department and Department of Commerce both which are now beginning to address non-thermal radiation issues), massive amounts of money being spent to prevent addressing impacts from non-thermal radiation — not unlike the battles over tobacco and smoking — and a lack of significant, dedicated and reliable funding to advance independent field studies and better understand the etiology and consequences of impacts, we are left with few options. Currently, other than to proceed using the precautionary approach and keep emissions as low as reasonably achievable, we are at loggerheads in advancing meaningful guidelines, policies and regulations that address non-thermal effects. The good news: there appears to be an awakening at least within a significant segment the scientific community to the realization that these issues must be addressed — for the health of humans, wildlife and our environment — and DOI and the Department of Commerce are also beginning to address non-thermal effects to migratory birds.

Next Steps

The following suggestions would help significantly advance the need to address effects/impacts from non-thermal radiation on migratory birds and other wildlife:

- We desperately need to conduct field research on thermal and non-thermal radiation impacts to wild migratory birds and other wildlife here in North America, similar to studies conducted in Europe. Specifically, the research focus should center on causality for “near-field,” “far-field” and “intermediate” effects, ideally based on some standard, agree-upon radiation metrics. The metrics need to be consistent with standards for intensity, carrier frequency, pulse repetition frequency, distance from the antenna, and similar factors. The research must be based on peer-reviewed monitoring and testing protocols (e.g., upgrades to the Manville 2002 peer-reviewed research protocol submitted to the U.S. Forest Service for studies on cell towers in Arizona, and key methodologies used in studies previously referenced in this memo, among others). The research needs to be conducted by credible, independent third party research entities with no vested interest in the outcomes, and the results need to be published in refereed scientific journals, made available to the public.
- Studies need to be designed to better tease out and understand causality of thermal and non-thermal impacts from radiation on migratory birds. Results need to be carefully compared with findings from Europe and elsewhere on wild birds, and efforts need to be made to begin developing exposure guidelines for migratory birds and other wildlife based on dose-effect and other nonlinear relationships. We do not actually need to know whether RFR effects are thermal or non-thermal to develop and set exposure guidelines (Levitt and Lai 2013).

- To minimize deleterious radiation exposures, these guidelines should include use of avoidance measures such as those developed by the electric utility industry for bird collision and electrocution avoidance (APLIC 2006, 2012) — both publications which I co-authored. In the case of Bald Eagles, the communication tower guidelines refined and updated by FWS (Manville 2013) — and submitted to the FCC and industry — recommend one-mile disturbance free buffers during active nesting of Ferruginous Hawks and Bald Eagles, and 0.5-mile buffers around other active raptor nests, based on nest studies conducted by the Wyoming Ecological Services Field Office in that State; Guideline #5). Impacts must address collision mortality, crippling loss, and injury; mortality, injury, population viability and survivorship based on impacts from radiation; as well as disturbance and habitat fragmentation. The updated 2013 Service Guidelines were intended to be inclusive.
- Studies need to be conducted on the use of “faux” branches (i.e., metal arms that mimic pine or fir branches) on cell and/or FM towers intended to disguise the towers as trees, but provide nesting and roosting opportunities for migratory bird including Bald Eagles, which will almost certainly be impacted both by thermal and non-thermal radiation effects. Additionally, birds such as Bald Eagles and others are subject to possible impalement from the sharp metal arms, with enhanced chances of injury and death due to disturbance from tower maintenance. Even if these “faux” branches are not constructed, Eagles for example tend to use the tallest objects available for roosting, so impacts from roosting, feeding and breeding on the antenna supports all must be considered by FCC and FWS.
- Agencies tasked with the protection, management, and research on migratory birds and other wildlife (e.g., FWS, U.S. Geological Survey, National Park Service, U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management, and USDA Wildlife Services, among others) need to develop radiation policies that avoid or minimize impacts to migratory birds and other trust wildlife species. This means supporting — and where applicable — conducting research, and developing policies that help minimize radiation impacts.
- As Levitt and Lai (2010) concluded, we do not actually need to know whether RFR effects are thermal or non-thermal to set exposure guidelines. Most scientists consider non-thermal effects as well established, even though the implications are not fully understood.
- Given the rapidly growing database of peer-reviewed, published scientific studies (e.g., <http://www.saferemr.com>, School of Public Health, University of California, Berkeley), it is time that FCC considers thermal and non-thermal effects from EMR in their tower permitting, and incorporates changes into their rulemaking regarding “effects of communication towers on migratory birds.”
