U. S. IS TO QUIT AMBASSADORS

THE DECISION IS LEARNED FROM AUTHORITATIVE
SOURCES

ELECTION RESULT IS CAUSE

Ambassador Wallace Not To Participate At Conference To Be Held In Paris On February 9, It Is Stated.

Washington—The United States has decided to withdraw from the allied council of ambassadors, it was learned from authoritative sources.

Ambassador Wallace will not participate in the council of allied premiers in Paris on February 19, when the question of German reparations is to be discussed. This action has been decided upon on account of the unwillingness of the Wilson administration to interpret the mandate of the American people with regard to American policies in Europe, as it may have been expressed in the recent elections, it was stated authoritatively.

Representation on the council of ambassadors has been the most important link connecting the United States with the post-war situation in Europe. There remains the connection with the reparations commission and that on the Rhineland commission, but officials regard both of these as specific cases in which the United States is directly interested.

Officials of the United States are known to regard representation on the council as the maintenance of an anomalous position in view of the failure of the senate to ratify the peace treaty. The council was created largely for two purposes—settlement of armistice questions and the consideration of those questions regarding the treaty itself which still require treatment. The first has practically disposed of, and both the president and state department officers are reported to have taken the position that since the United States is a party to the treaty, it no longer can join in consideration of questions arising under it.

U. S. GOLD RESERVE GAINS

64 Percent of Imports Are From England; Exports Go to Argentina.

Washington.—A net gain in the country's stock of gold of $106,600,000 during the year just closed as against a net loss for 1919 of $291,000,000 was announced by the federal reserve board. Gold imports for 1920 totalled $4,248,700,000 as compared with $76,500,000 for 1919, while gold exports aggregated $322,100,000 as against $368,200,000 exported in 1919.

Silver imports for the year totalled $88,100,000 as against $89,400,000 in 1919 while exports of silver for 1920 amounted to $113,600,000 as compared with $239,000,000 the preceding year, making the net silver loss through exports for the year just past, $25,600,000 against $149,000,000 for 1919.

Of the total gold imports for the year, $274,000,000, or over 64 percent came from Great Britain, which the board said included $108,500,000 of gold formerly held by the Bank of England for the account of the federal reserve banks and returned late in the year to this country.

Argentina took $90,000,000 or about 27 percent of the total gold shipped out of the country during the year.

Over 60 percent of the total amount of silver brought to the United States during the year came from Mexico, Peru, with a total of $12,000,000 sent the next largest shipment. Of the total silver exports, over 84 percent was consigned to the far east, exports to China constituting over one-half of the total amount of silver shipped.

JAPANESE TO APOLOGIZE SOON

SENTRY ADMITS HE FIRED THE FIRST SHOT

Left His Post and Molested U. S. Officer in Uniform Who Was Proceeding in Manly Order.

Washington.—Japan will have to make profound apology and pay a heavy indemnity for the killing of Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, engineer officer of the United States cruiser Albany by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostok early in the morning of January 5.

This was the view expressed by government officials here after studying a report received from Rear Admiral Albert Gleaves, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet and official advice received by the state department.

Japan Theory Wrong. Japan's case was based on the theory that the sentry who shot Lieutenant Langdon fired in self defense. All official communications on the subject received from Japan indicated that while the killing of the American officer was regretted, the Tokio government had the original statement of the sentry as a basis for negotiations.

Admiral Gleaves, however, cabled the navy department that the Japanese sentry had so changed his statement before the Japanese court of inquiry that "his testimony and Langdon's ante-mortem statement practically coincide." "The Japanese court of inquiry, Admiral Gleaves stated, has ordered the court martial of the sentry.

Officer Was Molested. Official advice to the state department made public declares that the Japanese sentry "left his post and molested an officer in uniform who was proceeding in an orderly manner along the street." These circumstances surrounding the officer's death, the department announcement says, were established by the board of investigation and court of inquiry convened by the Japanese government.

The state department advises further show that Lieutenant Langdon was a "total abstainer and was not under the influence of alcohol at any time." This completely refutes the Japanese intimation that the officer was intoxicated at the time of his apparent assassination.

Sentry Claims Accident. Other important disclosures adverse to Japan's defense made in the elaborate official report to the state department includes declaration that the sentry testified that when he shot Lieutenant Langdon, it was due to accidental discharge of his rifle. The sentry has given three conflicting versions of the shooting. The statement of Admiral Gleaves and the "accidental discharge" defense of the sentry make the case almost impossible of settlement by Japan except on terms to be dictated by the state department.

FLEET SEEKING AIRPLANE

Destroyers Are Detailed To Hunt For Lost NC-6 in Gulf of Nicoya.

San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua.—The crew of the U. S. naval seaplane NC-6 and their machine are safe in a cove about 15 miles north of San Juan Del Sur.

Two divisions of destroyers attached to the Pacific fleet have been ordered to search for the naval seaplane NC-6, reported to be lost of the gulf of Nicoya, Costa Rica. The airship was participating in the group flight from San Diego to Balboa, Canal Zone.

The destroyer Munford is standing by the NC-6 of the same group, which was forced down and partially wrecked off the Gulf of Nicoya. The NC-6 crew is aboard the Munford.

GOV. LOWDEN SUCCEEDED

Len Small Takes Place As Governor of Illinois.

Springfield, Ill.—Crowds swarmed to the executive mansion to attend the reception of Illinois' new governor, Len Small, of Kankakee, who stepped to the helm of the state government. Frank O. Lowden, who ended his four years as governor when the oath of office was administered to Governor Small, left with Mrs. Lowden for St.

BAKER PROPOSES WATERWAY

IN 15 YEARS CANAL WILL BE TOO SMALL

No Great Consideration Given to Military Use But From a Commercial Standpoint.

Washington.—Construction of a sea level canal to parallel the Panama waterway was advocated by Secretary Baker. Within fifteen years, he said, the Panama canal would be inadequate to handle world commerce between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

"Commercial reasons primarily, and military consideration in a less degree indicate that we should begin preparing to build another canal," said the war secretary. "I believe it should properly be a sea level project. It should be built either through Panama at the point once considered through Nicaragua."

Harding Favors Plan. A suggestion made to President-elect Harding that the Panama canal be changed to a sea level waterway prompted Mr. Baker's statement. He did not favor such a project, he said, believing that the money should be applied to the construction of an entirely new canal.

"I have not given great consideration to the military consideration involved," Mr. Baker added, "and do not know what the navy department's plans as to the size of future battleships are, but it is conceivable that our next dreadnaughts may be of too great beam to pass through the present canal."

New battleships of the Massachusetts class, expected to be completed in 1923, are 105 feet wide at the water line and the width of the Panama canal locks 110 feet.

FLIGHT IS TO BE PROBED

Naval Court of Inquiry Is Expected By Daniels to Seek Details.

Washington.—A court of inquiry to go into all circumstances of the balloon flight participated in by Lieutenants Hinton, Farrell and Kloor, which carried the men from Rockaway, New York, air station to the shore of Hudson Bay, will be called upon the arrival of the officers at Rockaway station, Secretary Daniels announced.

The court will investigate the reported sale of the aeronauts' letters, Mr. Daniels said, and probably will inquire into rumors that letters were offered for sale by persons in the naval service. Reports that the balloon left Rockaway with insufficient provisions and no supplies and no firearms on board will be carefully investigated, the secretary added.

"If Lieutenant Farrell thinks that anything has been said injurious to his reputation as an officer he can present it to this court," Mr. Daniels replied. "If I find that this court has not the power to vindicate him in the event that he sustains his contentions, a special court can be convened for that purpose."

JEWS GOING TO PALESTINE

More Than 8,000 Return in Past Ten Months, Reports Indicate.

London.—Figures available with regard to Palestine immigration show that for the ten months ending September, 1920, more than 8,000 Jewish immigrants arrived in Palestine. This number included 3,000 pioneers, a further number of 2,000 of whom are shown to have come in during October and November. All the new arrivals have been supplied with employment.

Jerusalem reports received here show that 11,843 children are attending the Zionist schools in Palestine, which employs 602 teachers.

Women Growing Taller, Heavier. Philadelphia.—Women are growing taller and heavier, according to Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, director of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania. Statistics of women's colleges covering a period of sixty years show the average college girl of today is an inch taller than the college girl of 1860, he said. These statistics also prove the modern girl is six or seven pounds heavier. Dr. McKenzie attributed this increase to the increased interest in sports and outdoor life.

STRAIGHT BANKING ON SAFE AND SOUND METHODS.

FIREWOOD MAKES GOOD CASH CROP

Farmer Can Make His Farm Pay Substantial Profits by Producing Fuel.

USEFULNESS OF MACHINERY

Modern Apparatus Not Only Cuts Wood and Standing Trees, but is Used for Various Other Purposes About the Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The farmer's problems appear, all of a sudden, to have become the leading national problem. Congress is talking of little else than legislation aimed to help the agricultural interests. The bankers are busy explaining why they can't lend the farmer the cash he needs.

Modern Machinery Reduces Hand Labor in Filling the Woodshed.

men at all the big markets. Farmers themselves are organizing everywhere to force the prices of their products up to a point where selling will not mean a loss to them.

Meanwhile what the individual farmer needs is not talk, but cash. Certain things he must buy right along for himself and his family.

In this situation farmers who are hard pressed for cash may be overlooking the fact that all around them "money is growing on the trees," and the crop is just waiting to be picked.

Money in Producing Fuel. With one of the practical, low-priced power log saws now on the market, the farmer can make his farm pay substantial profits by producing fuel—a commodity that has held up well in price and for which there is an almost unlimited demand.

VALUE OF SILAGE

- One ton of silage equals one ton of sugar beets. Three tons of silage equal one ton of clover hay.

Lay Tile Drain in Winter. Tile drain those places where wheat, alfalfa and clover were heaved out last winter by frost.

Nurse Crop With Alfalfa. Alfalfa is usually sown in the spring with some nurse crop, and from 12 to 25 pounds of seed is sown per acre.

tions of the country there is timber in more than sufficient quantities for home use. There are live trees that need to be taken out to give room for younger ones to grow, or to clear the land for cultivation; there are dead trees that are allowed to decay; and on thousands of farms, the banks of rivers and creeks are lined with great logs and other drift wood.

For many years the farmer has been interested in, and has readily accepted, machinery that would save him time, labor and money. Now he is seizing upon a machine that actually makes money for him—as well as saving him time and labor.

Machine Cuts Standing Trees. One of the most popular log saws makes over 300 strokes a minute, and its engine pulls over four horsepower. This particular machine cuts down standing trees, too. By attaching this clever device, trees can be cut down with the level of the ground, so there will be no stump, or higher up, as desired.

HOG-PROOF GATE IS HANDY ARRANGEMENT

Cattle and Horses Permitted to Pass at Will.

Two Low Fences, About 18 Inches High, Serve to Keep Swine in Their Own Pasture—Other Animals Can Step Over.

A farmer uses this arrangement to keep the hogs in one lot, while allowing his cattle and horses to pass unrestrained into another pasture. The gate was removed from the hinges, and the space from post to post was boarded up solidly to a height of 18 inches from the ground.

Two Low Fences Across the Gateway Will Stop the Hogs, but Allow Horses and Cattle to Pass.

one that cannot turn is unable to face the wall and make the attempt to climb. All other stock, except small calves or colts, will step over the low walls. No wide cracks, offering footholds, should be left between the boards.

ESSENTIAL TO SPRAY TREES

One of the Things Farmers Generally Have Been Slow in Realizing in the Past.

Spraying fruit trees is one of the things farmers generally have refused to take hold of in the past. Now many farm bureaus have held spraying demonstrations and all have been so successful that it will not be long before the average farmer will consider it just as essential to spray his fruit trees as to cultivate his corn.

Reward is Greater. It is not such an easy matter to breed high-class live stock as it is to produce scrubs, but the reward is greater.

Think of Bird Friends. Put out food for the birds. They especially need it on stormy cold days, when tree buds or fruits are hard to find.

Millet Seed as Feed. Millet seed has about the same food analysis as corn or oats.

Paris Motifs in Gray and Green

All of Paris has been laughing over a play called "L'Air de Paris," in which the principal figure is an American ex-soldier. The successful plays, observes a fashion writer, always bring about a display of clothes both on the stage and off. The costumes for this play are a sort of reinstatement in the good graces of the Parisian of the house of Drecol, which has been somewhat criticized owing to the fact that it formerly was an Austrian organization, the parent house originating in Vienna.

The costumes made for the play "L'Air de Paris," are very typical of the work of the house of Drecol, which has catered more or less to conservative taste, while at the same time giving all its creations the Parisian touch so essential to successful local operations. The clothes made for this piece are just such as the smart Parisienne herself wears, and are in no sense eccentric theatrical things.

Vivid Hats Top Costumes. Extremely typical is an afternoon dress which emphasizes the continued popularity of pleatings and the taste for the cape wrap in harmony with the dress. The model is developed in gray serge and gray crepe de chine. Both the skirt and the cape are of sun-pleated serge, while the tunic bodice or top of the dress is of gray crepe de chine of exactly matching shade embroidered in black.

Covered With Feather Fringe

The Paris milliner is covering small, round turbans and coronets almost entirely with these feathers, which form a fringe not unlike monkey fur, but softer and more refined looking. The proper adjustment of these delicate breast feathers is to have them practically cover the top and sides of a small turban and hang in fringed-like ornaments over the ears.

The great vogue for lace is not confined to dresses. It was lavishly used on autumn hats, and is quite as prominent on those for midwinter. Used in this way, the lace is always black, sometimes draped around the hat and falling off in scarflike effect or forming large loops at the right side of small, close-fitting turbans.

From a standpoint of color everything remains dark with the exception of the vivid green and red notes. All of the new reds are on the rust shade and tone down into the loveliest coppery pinks. Entire hats are stanced a very high tone of coppery pink is used.

Green is apparently a favorite color, as evidenced in a dress of white cloth with a lovely matching mantle lined with vivid green and trimmed with black and silver embroideries.

Extremely modest in coloring and smart in line is a model of black and gray crepe de chine with lovely embroideries and soutache braiding, which on the gray are done in black and on the black in gray.

Callot is showing a number of grays in her winter line, and some of her most successful dresses are in this demure tone. An ideal dress is developed in gray valeurs de laine with trimmings of black astrachan fur and black embroidery.

Molyneux's winter showing for his Parisian trade is very successful. The Molyneux type of draped styles, accentuating the slender line of his mannequins, has been kept up in the additional models added to the line since the autumn collection.

An interesting and impressive accessory to the Molyneux collection is the huge lace fan matching the dress in the pattern of the lace or its ornamentation. Thus lace dresses which have metal embroideries are shown with huge fans of lace embroidered in the same pattern.

The chief characteristic of successful midwinter millinery in Paris is the utter simplicity, both in line and trimming.

Motor Hats of Red Ribbon. Ribbons continue to be greatly featured. A popular combination is a faille ribbon trimmed on panne velvet shapes. Plaited ribbon underbrims, in vivid colors, are used on hats of black velvet.

A feather novelty of the season is the breast plume of the heron dyed in navy, dark brown and black. The egrette of the same bird continues very much in vogue, but the high cost as well as the dressy character of the egrette make the breast feather novelty most welcome for medium dressy shapes.

made in these vivid hues. Again the color may appear in a splashy bow on the side of a black hat. Sometimes the brim facing is in one of these new reds. Coppery red feathers or flowers, the latter in the new hand-painted flat applique style, frequently are used.

The most adorable little hats for winter sports are in soft round shapes and made of rusty red or golden brown felt or dorelyn. Many of them turn up on one side instead of all the way around, as so many of the recent sports hats have done.

Soft, crushable hats for skating are made of brushed wool in ivory white, with bright-colored ribbons tied around the crown. Other effective ones of the same fabric are in the new pinkish reds and have accompanying scarfs made of two strips, one of brushed wool, the other of duvetyl in the same shade, thus giving the appearance of a striped material.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME

Every person mentally and physically able to do so should take the American Red Cross instruction in First Aid Treatment. It's a life-saver and a pain-saver on the farm, in the factory, on the street, at the office, in the home, wherever accidents may occur. Here's a young wife who ineptly wielded a can-opener and received an ugly gash across her wrist from the jagged can lid. Mother was there, however, with the First Aid kit and Red Cross instruction, and probably prevented a case of blood poison by giving prompt and proper treatment before the doctor arrived.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME

There remain in army hospitals throughout the country more than 25,000 soldiers still being treated for wounds received overseas. Red Cross workers give them the same sort of friendly aid—only more of it—that was given during the war. Furthermore, the Red Cross is teaching these laid occupations at which they can later make a living and is keeping in touch with their home folks in order that no dependents may suffer for lack of funds.

The "Greatest Mother" concept which was visualized in the famous art poster used by the American Red Cross in its second war fund campaign has had its symbolism adapted to the Red Cross works of the post-war era and will illuminate the main poster to be used in the Fourth Roll Call November 11-25. This adaptation will bear the title "Still the Greatest Mother in the World." Everyone is familiar with the original "The Greatest Mother in the World," the effectiveness of which has been shown in part by the fact that it has furnished a synonym for Red Cross that has come to almost a household term. More than any other symbol, except the red cross itself, the public has made it the trademark of the American Red Cross.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME

Health is at the foundation of human happiness. Through its Rural Service, Public Health Nursing Service and Health Center Service, the American Red Cross aims greatly to strengthen this foundation and to draw more closely than ever the neighborly ties that bind the American people together. Here is shown a Red Cross Public Health nurse attending a young mother with a brand new baby, seeing that both receive scientific care.

"Thine Is the Glory"

This painting, which hangs in National Headquarters of the American Red Cross, Washington, depicts the homage of America's fighting men to American womanhood as mobilized for service in the World War by this organization. It is the collaborative scientific and art creation of Major Joseph Gray Kitchell, late of the General Staff, U. S. A., and F. Luis Mora, of the New York School of Art. The face of the central figure is a composite of the features of a thousand Red Cross workers selected for the purpose.

M. W. Hedges of Roswell, H. H. Henson and A. C. White motored to Portales, Saturday.

M. O. Berryhill came in yesterday from Lubbock, Texas, for a few days stay here.

C. W. Ayers of Portales, was here this week. He recently sold his half section of land south of town to parties whose name we failed to learn.

Mrs. C. H. Swan died at her home in Elida, last Saturday. Mr. Swan came to N. M. about a year ago for the benefit of his wife's health and she seemed to be doing better until a short time ago when she turned for the worse. Mr. Swan accompanied the body to their old home in Tennessee, this week where she was laid to rest.

Mrs. Mattie Jones is in town today laying in supplies for her ranch northwest of town.

Mrs. Hugh Wagner died Thursday morning, Jan. 27, in the hospital at Clovis, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis on Saturday. She was ill only three days before the operation, but, the case had developed beyond the surgeons control and the life of a good young woman was prematurely ended.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagoner moved here about a year ago from Texas, and settled on a homestead south of town. They were readily recognized as desirable citizens and their acquaintances were soon their friends who now deeply sympathize with the grieved husband and his little infant son in their great loss. The remains were shipped to Cisco, Texas, where interment will be made in the presence of her loved ones and friends.

Rev. R. L. Day filled his appointment here Sunday, preaching two excellent sermons.

We understand that, at the request of his members, he has withdrawn his resignation and will continue as pastor of the church here.

Dave Howell, W. B. McCombs, and W. M. Best transacted business in Elida, yesterday.

J. W. Reed is in town today from his home north of town.

T. D. Gouty is freighting cake to the McCombs ranch south of town this week.

Mrs. J. M. Brockmon and Mrs. Minnie Kimmons went to Clovis Thursday to see their friend, Mrs. Hugh Wagoner and to take the Wagoner baby to his parents.

The revival meeting which had been in progress at Union Valley closed last Sunday with an all-day service. Rev. Gilliam organized a church with thirty eight members.

We understand that a Christian minister is conducting services there this week and has baptized eight of that faith.

Something for Nothing.

A woman who was too economical to subscribe for her home paper sent her little son to borrow the copy taken by her neighbor. In his haste the boy ran over a four-dollar stand of bees and in ten minutes looked like a warty summer squash. His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and failing to notice a barbed-wire fence ran into it, breaking it down, cutting a hole full of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a five-dollar pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into the cornfield and killed herself eating corn. Hearing the racket, the mother ran, upsetting a four-gallon churn of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole litter. In her hurry she dropped and broked, past all hopes of mending, a twenty-five-dollar set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled cream and into the parlor, ruining a twenty-dollar carpet. During the excitement the eldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven setting hens, and the calves got out and chewed the tails off four fine shirts. All to save $1.00—E. Moral, Scribe for the Kenna Record.

Highway Improvement

MATERIAL FOR ROAD MAKING
Careful Study of Amount and Character of Traffic Is First Important Essential.

Professor House of the Colorado Agricultural college is one of the best-known engineers in Colorado. He has been head of the civil engineer department at that college for several years and has always been in close contact with the affairs of the state. In speaking about roads, Professor House says:

"A great deal of agitation is being carried on at the present time, concerning the construction of concrete roads for Colorado. That some of our roads should be paved in this way, there is no question, but I think we should carefully guard against overdoing the matter. In order to be justifiable, road improvements must return in economic and social benefits an amount at least equal to the interest, depreciation and maintenance, over and above those of the old road.

"It is exactly the same as in ordinary business. The amount that should be invested in road improvement is that sum which will give the largest annual returns in benefits to the people of the community.

"It may be real economy to spend $20,000 per mile for one road and only $2,000 per mile for another, if the former carries more than ten times the service and costs just ten times as much.

"Before we run wild upon the subject of concrete surfacing for roads of Colorado the proper classification of the roads, and a careful study of the amount and character of the traffic over them should be made, and it is the duty of the state officials, before any general scheme of road improvement is decided upon, to make this careful study. The state is then prepared to determine upon the proper highway system that will be the most economical, and that will meet the traffic requirements of each road."

GOOD HIGHWAYS IN JAMAICA

Island in British West Indies is Awakening to a Realization of Improved Roads.

The island of Jamaica, in the British West Indies, rich in natural resources and active in trade, is awakening to a realization of the importance of good roads. The advent of the automobile has had much to do in the development of an agitation which now promises valuable results. The system of modern highways which it is proposed to build will mean the speedy development of parts of the island now more or less neglected because of their practical inaccessibility. Completion of a radial system of good roads would undoubtedly be followed by a general adoption of the motortruck for conveying the products to the sea. The increased speed and efficiency thus acquired would tend to promote larger production, and thereby increase the wealth of this already industrious island.

GOOD ROADS BOOST PROFITS

Where Farmer Can Haul but One Bale of Cotton on Poor Road, Man on Good Road Hauls Four.

The matter of opportunity in marketing is worthy of consideration. For the sake of example, suppose that two farmers living in separate counties, but at equal distances from the cotton market, learn by telephone that cotton has advanced in price $1 a bale. The man living on a bad road can immediately haul one bale of cotton to market, while the other can haul four bales because he lives on a good road. The rise in price means a profit of $4 to the one man and only $1 to his neighbor.

EVERYDAY FOODS.

A good breakfast dish which is sustaining may be prepared from an expensive cut of beef from the shank, the marrow adding much to its food value.

Take two pounds of beef cooked with the chopped marrow, cover meat and bone with boiling water and cook until tender. Let the meat stand after cooking until the next day, then chop fine. There should be three or four cupfuls of broth in which there should be cooked three cupfuls of oatmeal, to make a mush much like the ordinary breakfast food—not at all soft—because it must mold. When the oatmeal is cooked, stir in the chopped meat, celery salt, onion juice and any desired seasoning. When well cooked turn into well greased pans to cool. Cut in slices and fry. To serve for a main dish at luncheon or dinner serve with boiled onions, turnips or parsnips and a green salad.

Scalloped Potatoes.—Cut a peeled onion in very thin slices and cut in quarters. Melt three tablespoonfuls of fat, add the onion and cook very slowly on the back part of the range until softened, stirring occasionally. Slice a layer of potatoes into a buttered baking dish holding a quart. Sprinkle with the onion, with salt, pepper and chopped parsley; continue the layers until the dish is full; add milk or broth from leftover roasts until it can be seen through the potatoes. Let bake one-half hour. If uncooked potatoes are to be used, parboil them for five minutes and increase the time of baking to one hour or longer.

A New Salad.—Cook three tablespoonfuls of rice in boiling salted water to cover; after boiling ten minutes, drain and add one cupful of orange juice and cook in a double boiler until the rice is tender; cool, add one-half cupful of finely-chopped blanched almonds, sprinkle with salt. Arrange with balls of cream cheese on lettuce and serve with French dressing.

Societies, governments, nations fall when the secret chambers of individual hearts grow weak. But those secret chambers cannot be filled from the world outside. They can only be filled from within at the cisterns of Infinite Silence.—S. J. Barrows.

SEASONABLE FOODS.

During the winter when canned fruit is to be used in various ways, the following will be a salad that is unusual, and very good:

Plum and Cream Cheese Salad.—Take canned green gage plums, drained from their sirup and dry on soft paper. Cut open and remove the stones, allowing three plums with the cheese for each salad. Chop fine a dozen pecan meats and half a piment, rinsed in cold water and dried in a cloth. Beat these into cream cheese, adding cream if the cheese lacks moisture. Shape into balls. Make a nest of heart leaves of lettuce, on these dispose the plums with a ball of cheese in the center to take the place of the stone. Serve with French dressing, using lemon juice, one part to three or four of oil.

Baked Beans, New York Style.—Let a pint of beans soak over night in water to cover. In the morning drain, add fresh water and rub the beans through the hands to loosen the skins. Wash in a colander with cold water. Cover with cold water and return to fire to cook. Dip one-fourth of a pound of salt pork into boiling water, scrape the rind and score it, then put to cook with the beans. When the skins commence to curl, remove them from the fire and put them to bake in a shallow baking dish. Press the pork into the center of the dish and cover with a granite pan. Bake six hours in a moderate oven, adding water as needed. Do not add water during the last hour of baking. Remove the cover and brown during the last hour. Serve with mustard pickles, tomato catsup or any desired relish.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets that are Nausealess, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Druggists sell Calotabs only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.—(Adv.)

JOCKEYS MUST BE THIRTEEN

Rule Does Not Apply to Riders Coming From England—Must Contribute to Benefit Society.

No jockey can ride in France unless he is at least thirteen years of age, and the application for his license must be accompanied by a copy of his birth certificate. This does not apply to jockeys coming over from England to ride, as it is specially stipulated in the first clause of rule 78 that "jockeys holding a license from the English Jockey club are qualified to ride in France." Every applicant for a jockey's license is also required to forward a subscription to the benefit society for the assistance of trainers, jockeys and stable lads; jockeys who live within a radius of 80 miles of Paris have to send 40 francs, and others 20 francs. Under the new regulations, apprentices must be not less than thirteen and not more than twenty-one years of age.

Just as certain he was a victim of injuries, and like many of the real stars of the team, was obliged to withdraw even before it started on its overseas journey.

Many of the others were rendered unfit on the scene of action and before their great ability had opportunity to show and to make itself felt for the good of Uncle Sam.

This applies to Jole Ray, Pat McDonald, Matt McGrath, Sol Butler, Walker Smith and to Miss Charlotte Boyle of the swimming team.

After withdrawing and making recovery, Mucks tossed the discus a greater distance than any of the Antwerp contestants, even the winner, showing what he could have done had he been able to compete.

BARK OF TREES NOT WOOD

Scientist Corrects an Impression Which Has Long Been More or Less Widely Held.

Bark on trees and shrubs corresponds with the skin on animals. But it isn't wood, according to one scientist, and it isn't formed as wood is formed. It covers the wood, and it is generally an easy matter to separate the bark from the wood. Hemp and jute and flax are all bark—the outside covering of certain vegetable growths.

Bark is composed of three layers of tissue. The inside layer conducts food to the plant, and under a magnifying glass is seen to be made up of tiny fibers. Then there is the "green zone," as it is called, and this also is fibrous and helps feed the plant. The outside layer is cork, and is really dead. That is, these cork cells develop and die immediately, so one really sees only a dead tree when he looks at the bark. The cork of commerce is the bark of a certain kind of tropical tree, but the outer layer of bark of all trees is technically known as cork, and the little cells going to make it up are called cork.

"This is more comfort than I had hoped for when I came here, gentlemen. I am very grateful, I assure you. Of course this little revolution you're cooking up is no affair of mine, and I trust I need not assure you that your confidence is quite safe with me."

The Doctor and the Colonel immediately rose and bowed like a pair of marionettes. Webster turned to Ricardo.

"Have you had any experience in revolutions, my son?" he asked.

Ricardo nodded. "I realized I had to have experience, and so I went to Mexico. I was with Madero through the first revolution."

"How are you arming your men?"

"Mannifichers. I've got 20,000,000 rounds of cartridges, 25 machine guns, and a dozen three-inch field guns. I have also engaged 200 American ex-soldiers to handle the machine guns and the battery. These rascals cost me $5 a day each, but they're worth it; they like fighting and will go anywhere to get it—and are faithful."

"You are secretly mobilizing in the mountains, eh?" Webster rubbed his chin ruminatively. "Then I take it you'll attack Buenaventura when you strike the first blow?"

"Quite right. We must capture a seaport if we are to revolute successfully."

"I'm glad to know that. I'll make it my business to be up in the mountains at the time. I'm for peace, every rattle out of the box. Gentlemen, you've cheered me wonderfully. I will now go home and leave you to your evil machinations; and, the good Lord and the Jiggers willing, I shall yet glean a night's sleep."

Mother Jenks was waiting for Webster at the foot of the stairs. He paused on the threshold.

"Mrs. Jenks," he said, "Billy tells me you have been very kind to him. I want to tell you how much I appreciate it and that I stand willing to reciprocate any time you are in need."

Mother Jenks fingered her beard and reflected. "Ave you met Miss Dolores Ruey, sir?" she queried.

"Your ward? Yes."

"Ow does the lamb strike you, Mr. Webster?"

"I have never met many women; I have known few intimately; but I should say that Miss Dolores Ruey is the marvel of her sex. She is as beautiful as she is good, and is as intelligent as she can be."

"She's a liddy, sir," Mother Jenks affirmed proudly. "An' I done it. You can see with art a hewe wot I am, but for all that, I've done my dooty by her. From the day my sainted 'Enery'—a was a colonel o' hantillery under President Ruey, Dolores' father—hescaped from the burnin' palace with 'er an' told me to raise 'er a liddy for the syke of her father, as was the finest gentleman this rotten country'll ever see, she's been my guldin' star. She's self-supportin' now, but still I ain't done my whole dooty by her. I want to see 'er married to a gentleman as'll maintain 'er like a liddy."

"Well, Mrs. Jenks, I think you will live to see that worthy ambition attained. Mr. Geary is head over heels in love with her."

"Aye. Willie's a nice lad—I could wish no better; but wot 'e's got 'e got from you, an' where'll 'e be if 'is mine doesn't p'y big? Now, with you, sir, it's different. You're a bit older'n Billy, an' more settled an' serious; you've made yer fortune, so Willie tells me, an' not to go beatin' about the bally bush, I s'y, wot's the matter with you an' her steppin' over the broomstick together? You might go a bloomin' sight farther an' fare wuss."

"Too old, my dear schemer, too old!" John Stuart replied smilingly. "And she's in love with Billy. Don't worry. If he doesn't make a go of this mining concession, I'll take care of his finances until he can do so himself. I do not mind telling you, in strictest confidence, that I have made my will and divided my money equally between them."

"Gord bless you, for a sweet, kind gentleman," Mother Jenks gulped, quite overcome with emotion.

Hastily Webster bade Mother Jenks good night and hurried away to escape a discussion on such a delicate topic with Billy's blunt and single-minded landlady. His mind was in a tumult. So it was that he paid no attention to a vehicle that joggled by him with the cochoero sagging low in his seat, half asleep over the reins, until a quick command from the closed interior brought the vehicle to an abrupt halt, half a block in advance of Webster.

Save for an arc light at each end of the block, the Calle de Concordia was dim; save for Webster, the carriage and the two men who piled hurriedly out at the rear of the conveyance, the Calle de Concordia was devoid of life. Webster saw one of the men hurriedly toss a coin to the cochoero; with a fervent "Gracias, mi capitán," the driver clucked to his horse, turned the corner into the Calle Elizondo and disappeared, leaving his late passengers facing Webster and calmly awaiting his approach. He was within 20 feet of them when the taller of the two men spoke.

"Good evening, my American friend. This meeting is a pleasure we scarcely hoped to have so soon. For the same we are indebted to Lieutenant Arredondo, who happened to look back as we passed you, and recognized you under the arc light."

Webster halted abruptly; the two Sobrantean officers stood smiling and evidently enjoying his discomfort. Each carried a service revolver in a closed holster fastened to his sword-belt, but neither had as yet made a move to draw—seeing which, Webster felt sufficiently reassured to accept the unwelcome situation with a grace equal to that of his enemies.

"What? You two bad little boys up this late! I'm surprised," he replied in Spanish. He folded his arms, struck an attitude and surveyed them as might an indignant father. "You kids have been up to some mischief," he added, as his right hand closed over the butt of his automatic, where it lay snuggled in the open holster under his left arm between his shirt and coat. "Can it be possible you are going to take advantage of superior numbers and the fact that you are both armed, to force me into a duel on your terms, my dear Captain Benavides?"

By a deferential bow, the unwholesome Benavides indicated that such were his intentions. "Then," said Webster, "as the challenged party I have the choice of weapons. I choose pistols."

"At what range?" the lieutenant asked with mock interest.

"As we stand at present. I'm armed. Pull your hardware, you pretty pair of polecats, and see if you can beat me to the draw."

Captain Benavides' jaw dropped slightly; with a quiet, deliberate motion his hand stole to his holster-flap. Lieutenant Arredondo wet his lips and glanced so apprehensively at his companion that Webster was aware that here was a situation not to his liking.

"You should use an open holster," Webster taunted. "Come, come—unbutton that holster-flap and get busy."

Benavides' hand came away from the holster. He was not the least bit frightened, but his sense of proportion in matters of this kind was undergoing a shake-up.

"In disposing of any enemy in a gun fight, so a professional killer once informed me," Webster continued, "it is a good plan to put your first bullet anywhere in the abdomen; the shock of a bullet there paralyzes your opponent for a few seconds and prevents him from returning the compliment, and in the interim you blow his brains out while he lies looking at you. I have never had any practical experience in matters of this kind, but I don't mind telling you that if I must practice on somebody, the good Lord could not have provided two more delightful subjects."

He ceased speaking, and for nearly half a minute the three men appraised each other. Benavides was smiling slightly; Arredondo was fidgeting; Webster's glance never faltered from the captain's nervous hand.

"You would be very foolish to draw," Webster then assured Benavides. "If I am forced to kill you, it will be with profound regret. Suppose you two dear, sweet children run along home and think this thing over. You may change your mind by tomorrow morn—"

The captain's hand, with the speed of a juggler's, had flown to his holster; but quick as he was, Webster was a split second quicker. The sound of his shot roared through the silent calle, and Benavides, with his pistol half drawn, lifted a bloody, shattered hand from the butt as Webster's automatic swept in a swift arc and covered Arredondo, whose arms at the instant went skyward.

"That wasn't a half bad duel," Webster remarked coldly. "Are you not obliged to me, Captain, for not blowing your brains out—for disregarding your finer instincts and refraining from shooting you first through the abdomen? Bless you, my boy, I've been stuck for years in places where the only sport consisted in seeing who could take a revolver, shoot at a tin can and roll it farthest in three seconds. Let me see your hand."

Benavides sullenly held up that dripping member, and Webster inspected it at a respectful distance.

"Steel jacket bullet," he informed the wounded man. "Small hole—didn't do much damage. You'll be just as well as ever in a month."

He helped himself to Arredondo's gun, flipped out the cylinder, and slipped all six cartridges into his palm. Simultaneously he disarmed Benavides, expressed his regret that circumstances had rendered it imperative to use force, and strolled blithely down the calle. In the darkened patio he groped along the wall until he found the swinging rope by which he had descended from his room—whereupon he removed his shoes, tied the laces together, slung them around his neck, dug his toes into the adobe wall and climbed briskly to his room.

The next morning Webster waited until Dolores appeared and then accompanied her into the dining room for breakfast.

"Well, how did you pass your first night in Buenaventura?" she inquired, in the manufacture of breakfast conversation.

"Not very well. Jiggers bit me and woke me up, and finally I fell into a trance and had a vision—about you. After that I couldn't go to sleep again. I was fairly bursting to see you at breakfast and read your palm. I've just discovered a wonderful system."

"Show me," she flashed back at him and she extended her little hand. He picked it up gravely and with the dull tinge of a fork made a great show of tracing the lines on her palm.

"You are about twenty-four years old, and your ancestors were pure-bred Castilians who came from Madrid, crossing the Atlantic in caravels. Ever since the first Ruey landed on this coast the family has been identified with the government of the country in one way or another. When you were quite a little girl, your father, Don Ricardo Ruey, at that time president of Sobrante, failed to suppress a revolution and was cornered in the government palace, which was set afire."

"Through the bravery and devotion of a cockney gentleman, Colonel Henry Jenks, an artillery officer in your father's army you were saved from perishing in the burning palace. Colonel Jenks turned you over to his spouse, now known as Mother Jenks, with instructions to raise you a liddy, and Mother Jenks has carried out those instructions. Colonel Jenks and your father were executed, and Mother Jenks sent you to the United States to be educated. You had a brother, Ricardo Luis Ruey, older than yourself by seven or eight years, I should judge. In some mysterious manner you and your brother lost track of each other, and at the present moment he believes you perished in the flames that gutted the government palace."

"You are of a proud, independent nature; you work at something for a living, and inasmuch as you haven't been able to set aside a great deal of money from your earnings, you are planning to terminate your visit to your native land at an early date and return to the United States for the purpose of getting back to work. These plans, however, will never be consummated."

"Why? Because you are to be married to a nice man and live happily ever afterward, and about sixty days from now, if all goes well, I, John S. Webster, am going to introduce you to your long-lost brother Ricardo. You will first see Ricardo riding at the head of his victorious rebel troops as he enters Buenaventura. He will be the next president of this wretched country, if, fortunately, he is not killed in the revolution he is now fomenting against his father's ancient enemy. Your brother does not know you are living and it will be a proud and happy day for me when I bring him to you. In the interim, what do you propose having for breakfast? Ham and eggs sunny side up, an omelette or a cereal?"

He released her hand and favored her with the boyish grin that always had the effect of stripping the years from him as one strips the husk from a ripe ear of corn. She was gazing at him in wide-eyed amazement.

"Is my brother really alive?"

"He was as late as midnight last night. Do you recall the chap I saved from being assassinated in New Orleans?"

"Yes."

"Your worthy brother. And do you recall the chauffeur whose passage to this port I was forced to pay?"

"Yes."

"The same individual. I sent him ashore in the launch with Billy, and he has been housed at El Buen Amigo, but left early this morning for the back country to open a recruiting office."

She reached across the little table and squeezed his big brown hand impulsively. "You're the most wonderful man I ever knew. And does my poor brother know I am living, Mr. Webster?"

"No—and I'm not going to tell him. I think it will be much nicer to restore you to each other on the steps of the government palace on the day when the Rucy faction comes into its own again. That will make his victory all the sweeter. By the way, where was Ricardo when your father's ship of state went on the rocks?"

"At school in a military academy in Kentucky."

"It is a marvelous mix-up, which Ricardo can doubtless explain, Miss Rucy. I know he believes his sister perished with her father. Mother Jenks didn't know where he was and couldn't communicate with him—and there you are. However, little old Jack Fix-it will bring you together again in due course. In the interim, how about those eggs? Straight up—or flip 'em?"

She beamed across at him. "We are going to be such good, true friends, aren't we?" she urged. He almost shivered, but managed a hypocritical nod. "While we have only known each other twenty-four hours, it seems a great deal longer than that—probably because Billy has told me so much about you, and you're—so comfortable and easy to get acquainted with, and I—I can't very well express my gratitude for what you've done—for what you're going to do." Her voice faltered; she smiled roguishly through the tears of her emotion. "If I were only Billy, now, I could put my arm across your shoulders and settle the matter by saying: 'Johnny, you old horse-thief, you're all right.'"

"The best thing to do would be to cease puffing me up with importance. And now, before we climb out of the realm of romance and the improbable to the more substantial plane of things for breakfast, just one brief word of caution. Now that I have told you your brother lives and is in Buenaventura, forget it until I mention it again, because his presence here is his secret, not ours."

"All right, Caliph," she agreed. "I think I shall call you that hereafter. Like the late Caliph Haroun Al Raschid, it appears you have a habit of prowling around o' nights in queer places, doing good deeds for your subjects. But tell me about my brother. Describe him to me."

"Not now. Here comes the head waiter with a cablegram for me, I think."

That functionary came to their table and handed one of the familiar yellow envelopes to each of them.

"Well excuse each other," Dolores suggested. She read:

"Go you if I lose. You are a good, game little scout, and I like you fine. JEROME."

She glanced across at Webster, whose face was a conflicting study of emotions in which disappointment and amazement appeared to predominate. "You ancient scoundrel," she heard him murmur.

"What ho, Caliph! Unpleasant news?" she ventured.

"Yes—and no. I had one of the finest jobs in the world all staked out—and now the boss cables me it's filled—by a better man."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Well—as soon as I've had my breakfast, I'm going to cable Neddy Jerome and tell him I'm satisfied—satisfied to stay here and satisfied he's a liar. You see, Miss Rucy, he objected vigorously to my coming here in the first place—wanted me to take a 30-day vacation and then manage the Colorado Consolidated Mines company, Ltd., for him. I like Neddy and would have been glad to go to work for his company, but, of course, Billy comes first, and so I declined the offer. Later I changed my mind, and last night I cabled him I'd accept if he'd wait 60 days—possibly 90; and now he replies that he's sorry, but the job is filled by a better man. That's why I know he's a liar."

"I see. You figure there isn't a better mining engineer than you—eh, Caliph?"

He looked at her reproachfully. "No, but Neddy Jerome does, and I know he does because he has taken the trouble to tell me so more than once. And as a rule Neddy inclines toward the truth. However, it's just as well—"

He paused, staring hard at her. "By the way, you foretold this! Why, this is amazing."

She could have wept with laughter. "Well"—soberly—"I told you some other things equally amazing, did I not?"

"Yes, you told me other things more or less interesting, but you foretold this. How do you account for that?"

"The witness declines to answer on the ground that she may incriminate herself and be burned for a witch."

"Remarkable woman!"

"You were about to remark that it is just as well—"

"That Neddy's reconciled to losing me, because since cabling him yesterday evening I've changed my mind again. I'm going to stay here now."

"Indeed! Why?"

"Just to be obstinate. Apparently I'm not wanted here by the powers that be; so just to rile them I'm going to hang around Sobrante and argue the question with them. By the way, I see you received a cablegram also. Better news than mine, I hope."

She nodded. "I have a little business deal on back home. Haven't got a great deal invested, but it looks as if I might make $10,000."

He arched his eyebrows and favored her with a little disapproving grunt. Sounded like the prospectus of a fake mining promoter—yes, by thunder, that was it. Dolores was a school teacher, and school teachers and doctors are ever the mainstay of a swindler's sucker list.

"You won $10 from me yesterday," he challenged. "Bet you another ten I can tell you the nature of your investment."

"Go you, if I lose!" Unconsciously she was learning the argot of the male of the species, as exemplified in Neddy Jerome's cablegram.

"It's a mining property."

"You win. It is," she answered truthfully, starting to open her purse.

"Quartz or placer?"

"I don't know. Explain."

He chuckled at her ignorance. "Quartz is gold-bearing rock, and placer is gold-bearing gravel."

"Then my mining property is placer, because it has lots of sand."

"I knew it, I knew it," he warned her solemnly, and he shook an admonitory finger at her. "Black sand, eh? Is the gold very fine?"

"I think it is."

"Then you're stung good and deep—so don't delude yourself into thinking you have $10,000 coming. I never knew a proposition for saving the fine gold in black sand that didn't turn out to be a fizzle. It's the hardest thing in the world to save. Now, listen; you tell me the name of the film-fam artist that got you into this deal, and when I get back to the United States I'll investigate the company; if it's an out-and-out swindle, I'll take that promoter by the throat and choke your money out of him, the scoundrel! It is just these fly-by-night fellows that ruin the finest gambling game in the world and scare off investors in legitimate mining propositions."

"Oh, you mustn't—really, Caliph. He's an old man, and I only did it to help him out."

"There should be no sentiment in business, Miss Rucy."

"Oh, well, let's be cheerful and hopeful, Caliph, and discuss a more important subject."

She was very serious now, for by her meddling she had, she realized, so arranged matters that at a time when John Stuart Webster's very life depended upon his immediate departure from Buenaventura, he was planning to stay and face the music, just to be obstinate. "You must reconsider your decision to remain in this country," she insisted. "Your life may be the price of liberty of action, you know. Isn't Billy capable of developing the mine after you advance the cash?"

"I wouldn't advance him a cent for his mine until I had investigated it myself."

"Then you should make some arrangements to safeguard yourself while making the investigation, and leave Sobrante immediately thereafter. Isn't that a sensible proposition?"

"Very—if I felt like leaving Sobrante. But I do not. If that mining concession is a potential winner, I'll have to stick around and make a winner out of it before I go away and leave Bill in charge. Besides, I'm worried about Bill. He's full of malarial fever, and last night I got thinking about him and decided to send him back to the Colorado mountains for a few months. I want some regular doctors to work on Bill so he'll be fit when he gets back on the job."

As a matter of fact, this idea of sending Billy to the United States had but that moment occurred to Jack Webster; he reflected now that this plan was little short of an inspiration. It would give Billy and Dolores an opportunity to marry and have a honeymoon; it would leave him free of her disturbing presence, and enable him to leave Sobrante when the Gearys should return. He resolved to speak to Billy about it.

Women Prisoners Broke Rock.
Less than 50 years ago women prisoners in Tennessee were employed in breaking rock for street pavement.
