New Paths to Take -----

On the Road Again

Yes, CHS is on the road again. The 1996-1997 school year starts as a small winding path and quickly blossoms into the fast lane. The travelers on this journey are the teachers, students, and other personalities of Coventry High School. There are many new faces amongst this crowd including a new principal, Mr. Wilkinson; a new head of guidance, Mr. Egan; two new vice principals, Mr. Rearick and Ms. Marquis; as well as a whole score of new teachers. For the senior class, this year is the road trip of a lifetime. They will reach the end of their high school path and journey on to a broader, defined path that will lead to their future. The Juniors are struggling through a rocky section of the path. They have their first tough classes, college decisions to start considering, and many aspects of maturity to face. As for the sophomores, well, now that they have found their way comfortably onto the path, they strengthen themselves for the long road ahead. Finally, the freshmen are the farthest behind on the road. Most of them cannot even find the path. With all of these different people ambling along the 1996-1997 school year, many interesting things are sure to happen. There will be signs along the way--teachers, guidance counselors, and coaches. Those people will help through the rough times and lead the way to success. Now and then students will stop along the road to play sports, join activities, and take classes. Every step of the way they will acquire knowledge. For now they are just on the road again. Hang on, it's going to be quite a ride.

At the Crossroads

"Two roads diverged on an open road, and I took the one less traveled by..." CHS represents the junction of these two roads. At the junction many options are presented to students as they develop the rest of their lives. At one point is the radio station, WCVY, where those in tune with their musical side go. Those more physical people turn to the path where the gymnasium is at the end. Some students strict in nature tend to take a sharp turn down AFJROTC way where they involve themselves with the drill team or the color guard. At the core of this junction is the student council where the activities are either approved or denied. Then comes DECA who gives to all. The school store is a stop in the road that provides a variety of snacks for students. These organizations are stops at the junction of the crossroads of life. Alone, they are just stops, but together they form Coventry High School.

CHS is also a crossroads of a different sort. It is a place where a myriad of different personalities and people come together every day. This diversity makes Coventry High School unique from other high schools. Like any crossroads, there will be collisions, but there will also be an opportunity to see or do something different any time. Diversity makes every school day an adventure and opens students eyes to the various kinds of people they will meet in the real world. We have big people, small people, blonds, brunettes, Asians, African-Americans, Caucasians, and many more. CHS is its own melting pot of culture.

A Senior studies hard so that she will not have to take the final exam.

Audra Tellier and Jeff Klein show their Class of 1997 toga spirit. Thankfully, they chose to wear clothes under their togas.

Heather Shibely and Michaela Thompson pause in room 216. Friends are an important part of senior year. Bob Bickford, Jill Argall, and Chrissy AJ relieve their stress with a smiling contest. I think Bob is winning!!

Seniors '97

From the first day of high school, the Class of 1997 had one thought in mind, "When do we get out of here?" The time has finally arrived. Seniors '97 are moving on to bigger and better things. Their was a year of preparation for college and future careers. They spent many hours filling out college and scholarship applications. In school and out of school they learned many education and practical lessons for life. Between sports, student council, community service, and many other activities, Seniors '97 were very busy. They attended their last Holiday Dance, Homecoming and Thanksgiving Day games. At Class Day they found themselves sitting in the places of the seniors they had so envied last year. Soon they were walking across the stage, accepting their invitations to the future--their diplomas. For the Class of 1997 their paths were unfolding before their very eyes. These paths were leaving CHS in a myriad of directions. Who knows where they will lead?

Pete Valois and Nate Horodysky entertain themselves while waiting for Dr. Girard to start class.

Michelle Kiernan lunges through the door so she will not be late for Social Psych. Too bad for Kelly and Melissa, Kiernan edged them out.

Wonderful Tonight

The Junior Prom for the Class of 1997 was held on April 26, 1996. The place was the Rhodes on the Pawtuxet where everyone was all attired in their elegant dresses and formal tuxedos. Once everyone arrived, the picture lines were formed to capture the moment forever. After smiling for the camera, couples mingled in the dining room. Soon everyone passed through the receiving line where the guests were introduced and the favors were handed out. The night had begun. Dinner consisted of chicken and rice that to some was appetizing and to others not. The delectable feast was capped off with fruit cups. After dinner the music began and the dance floor became packed. Dancing continued until the time came to crown a new prom queen. The reigning queen, Melanie Malloy, opened the mystery envelope and told the class of 1997 that Alison Cresse was their prom queen. Alison and her date then danced to the song "Son of a Preacher Man". Before the night had come to a close the theme song was played more than once. As the clock chimed eleven o'clock the numerous couples started to dwindle and go their own way. Reluctant to leave, the Juniors had enjoyed a wonderful celebration. They took with them many sparkling memories of a night that none would forget.

Neil Corse and friend enjoy a refreshing soft drink at the bar.

Brandy Silva and Liz Creelman make sure they arrange plans for after the prom. Remember to tell your dates!

Bianca Dino and Heidi Bedard show off their dresses and their dancing spirit.

Lauren Aubin gives Dr. Girard a dirty look. Even sweet Lauren can only take so much English.

It's Been a Long and Winding Road

On September 7, 1993 the Class of 1997 stepped through the doors of Coventry High School for the very first time. We were starting on a road that would be lengthy, winding, full of surprises, and brimming with fun. If only we had known how much we would get lost.....

Our Freshman year was a year of new experiences. Led by Class President Ernie DiMicco, we stumbled over this part of the path. Joining us in learning the ropes was a new principal, Mr. Deasy. We were just beginning and so was he. Most of our year was spent adjusting to life at high school. CHS was bursting at the seams as we brought in a record number of students. The lunchroom was always packed and the upperclassmen invariably said, "There are too many freshmen!" Culminating the year was the elegant Freshman Formal held, of course, in the school cafeteria. We danced the night away, united as a class. The end of the road was nowhere in sight; but getting there promised to be the adventure of a lifetime.

Sophomore year began with a twist--the first date we wrote in our notebooks read "August." Summer vacation was cut a few days short so that we would be able to accommodate for snow days. After having several snow days the year before, the administration was not taking any chances. The weather was promptly uncooperative and we ended up with only one day out during the year. Classes kept us busier than they had in the past with the addition of Honors Courses to our schedules. Early in the fall we were introduced to the dreaded PSAT for the first go around. Ernie DiMicco was reelected as president and was indispensable in helping to plan our Sophomore Lock In. We spent the whole night at school, something most students would dread to do, but had a great time nonetheless. By the end of the year many of us were suffering through Driver's Ed and taking to the roads. Our path through high school was halfway done and cries of "Are we there yet?" began to pass from our lips.

Our Junior year was a revolution. We were deprived of the big lockers in the new wing by the sneaky seniors. As if the loss was not bad enough, we had to stare at the little lockers very early in the morning since school now started at 7:15. Many first period classes were chalked up for a loss because everyone was asleep. Sleep was a precious commodity especially since most of us had one or both halves of the dynamic Pike duo. There was still time for fun. We attended our first big formal dance when the Junior-Senior Winter Formal, themed "Let it Snow," was held at West Valley Inn. Breaking tradition, the dance was in January instead of December. It was a night that no one would forget. Later that winter our wrestling team set a national record by winning its fifteenth straight state title. Partway through the year we survived a change in principals as Mr. Magerian took over the principalship when Mr. Deasy was promoted to town superintendent. Class president Kathy Arcoraci led us on to our Junior Prom held on April 26, 1996 at the spectacular Rhodes on the Pawtuxet. The theme was "Wonderful Tonight" and we chose Alison Cresse as our queen. The night really was wonderful as our class became closer to each other and made one of the biggest turns in the road. After the prom it was time to buckle down to some last minute studying before we all tried our hands at the SAT on June 1st. With most of the work out of the way, Class Day rolled around. We said good-bye to the outgoing seniors and gave shouts of joy as we turned our rings and became seniors ourselves. We had reached the end of the uphill section of the road. In the near distance we could see the end. So we put on the cruise control and started to enjoy our Senior year.

Ready to roll we went back to our studies in late August. We were a little busier than we had anticipated due to the swarm of college and scholarship applications. Filling out these forms seemed to be a whole class by itself. Many changes accompanied the beginning of our final year. We had a new principal, Mr. Wilkinson; a new head of guidance, Mr. Egan; two new vice principals, Mr. Rearick and Mrs. Marquis; as well as a whole bunch of new teachers. The changed systems took a little getting used to but we soon got the hang of it all. In an exciting campaign, Bob Bickford was elected president to lead us through our Senior Year. For the first semester we were swamped with Dr. Girard tests, physics and chemistry labs, and other academic worries. As soon as our mid-year transcripts left for college and the class rank was finalized, life got a little easier and the pressure let up. Our Junior-Senior Holiday Dance was again held at West Valley Inn in January. This time the theme was "A Snowfall to Remember." With less than a half year left, we were dancing on Cloud Nine. Our class started another tradition. We seemed to have a little trouble waking up in the morning; as a result, we came flying into school with no time to spare for a good parking job. The Class of 1997 created its own twisting road--through the parking lot. The rest of the year was a blur as seniors anxiously waited for acceptance letters. In May we attended our Senior Ball at the beautiful Newport Marriott. The dance was our final party as a class. By the end of the night we realized that the finish was quickly approaching. Class Day was on June 12, 1997 and was a day to remember the good times we had. We said good-bye to our CHS classmates and left the building for the last time. In our red and white, we walked across the stage at the Warwick Musical Theater on June 14 to receive our diplomas. The Class of 1997 is now at the end of this road. Stretching out into the sunset is a new path for every graduate. We are now free to journey onto these twisting roads. There will be many more turns and crossroads in our lives; however, we will always know that if we follow our footsteps backward, we are all united from a common point. Like being freshmen again, the end of the road is still invisible; however, it soon become another new beginning. There is always another bend in the road.

Juniors '98

Finally, we're halfway there. In just two short years the Class of 1998 will be done with high school. But there is so much to do before then. Junior year is jam-packed with activities and fun. As the rest of our friends get their driver's licenses, our social lives take a big jump for the better; however, we find that there is very little time because junior year is one of the busiest academic years in high school. Mr. Pike and Mrs. Murphy keep us busy with wars and discoveries, we enjoy Melville and Twain, and a bunch of other American authors, and we have to suffer through SAT's and the beginnings of college applications. There are up-sides to being a junior. At long last we get to attend the coveted Junior-Senior Winter Formal and go to our Junior Prom, both experiences we will never forget. Better yet, we go to Class Day and with a quick ceremony become Seniors. Yes, Junior year is a good year. It's a year of many twists and turns in the road. If you don't keep up with the fast pace, you're likely to be left behind. Only the strong will survive. It's a long haul, but the downhill is right around that last bend.

'98 Just Around the Bend

Ryan Hollis was elected as president of the Class of '99. It will be his task to guide them during the all-important Junior year.

The pressures of the Junior year take their toll on the students. Making career choices, taking SAT's, selecting colleges to apply too cause wear and tare and make the year seem endless. Look at what this stress has done to your fellow classmates. Tara Renfrew's clutching of her hand indicates her stress. John Gregory has just been overcome with work and responsibilities. Sarah Groleau is clutching that pen and can't relax. Just kidding, everyone.

Sophomores '99

The Sophomore is a student in the middle. Sophomores no longer have to hear the upper classman say "Freshmen!!" with an attitude. Also, a Sophomore gains some maturity, but is still not completely ready for the future. A Sophomore has several "responsibilities" - to become more independent and self-aware, to develop into a young adult of the 90's, to gain the respect of faculty and peers and to develop an understanding of the needs of the society. A Sophomore is still interested in having fun. The class of 1999, the last graduating class of the century, sponsored the lock-in dance and the Sophomore semiformal at Evelyn's Villa. These events help to develop the social side of a tenth grader. Perhaps the most important event of the year is the ordering of class rings. The rings are symbols of the friendships, experiences and education gained at Coventry High School. The Sophomore year is one of transition, growth, maturity and fun. It will provide many great memories for the future.

'99 Choosing the Path

Megan Doucette was elected President of the Class of '99. Under her leadership, the Sophomores make the transition to underclassmen.

Class Officers: Laurie Hoffman, Secretary; Jessica Houle, Vice President; Ryan Hall, Student Council Representative and Kathleen Fitzpatrick, Treasurer.

Social Committee: Steven Schayer, Tom St. Germain, Shannon Golomb, Josh Sutton and Lauren Lavoie.

Have you ever studied smiles. They tell us a lot about people. Our resident smile-ologist gave the following interpretations. Matt Gudas is content. His relaxed smile tells us he is calm and collective. Vanessa Amaral, on the other hand, has a little smirk with her smile. She is a person in control of her emotions. Chris Simpkins, pretending to be asleep, is really a dynamo of action. Don't let that straight smile fool you.

Eyes are another window into someone's personality. The degree to which the eyes are open and the direction tells what a person is thinking. David Fish, with eyes wide open and looking slightly downward, indicates that he is fully aware of what is going on around him. Jeremy Lima, with eyes almost closed and looking downward, is a reserved, inward individual. Mike McKnight, looking straight ahead is outgoing and social.

Afterglow

I'd like the memory of me
to be a happy one,
I'd like to leave an afterglow of smiles when day is gone.
I'd like to leave an echo
whispering softly down
the ways,
Of happy times, and laughing times, and bright and sunny days.
I'd like the tears of those who grieve to dry before the sun,
Of happy memories that I leave when life is done.

Freshmen '00

From the dawning of time, freshmen have had to live up to the stigma of being called "freshmen." Everybody hates it, but at some time, we are forced to live with the evil name. In a school the size of CHS, it's pretty easy to get lost. Freshmen feel lost for the better part of the year. We always seem to be one step behind the upperclassmen. We haven't yet learned the ropes of surviving in high school. Every day is an adventure in which we learn something new. By the end of the year, we're well prepared to move onto the next part of the road for some smooth sailing (figures they would leave the freshmen with the potholes). Freshmen year does have its upsides. We can always use the excuse, "Hey, I'm a freshmen. What do you expect?" Freshmen aren't all that bad. Some of them are actually pretty good kids. And anyway, this freshmen class gets to hold the distinction of being the last graduating class of the new millenium. That's quite an accomplishment, even if they're only freshmen.
