English prof attacked in her garage

Carol De Saint Victor was hit several times by an unknown person on Nov. 5, police say.

By Michael Chapman
The Daily Iowan

A UI English professor is listed in fair condition at the UI Hospitals and Clinics in the aftermath of being assaulted in her garage on Nov. 5.

Carol De Saint Victor, 65, was attacked by an unknown person as she entered her garage at 332 E. Davenport St. shortly after 8 a.m., according to Iowa City police. She was struck several times with an unknown object, police said.

De Saint Victor, who sustained lacerations to her head and injuries to her hand, is scheduled to undergo surgery today at UIHC.

"She went into her garage, and someone was in there," said UI graduate student Jeff Lucas, 409 N. Gilbert St., who shares the unattached garage with De Saint Victor. "They hit her over the head."

He said police questioned him on Nov. 5 about suspicious people in the area before the attack and the circumstances during it.

"Someone was honking the horn," Lucas said.

Investigators are treating the incident as an aggravated assault, said

Iowa City Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake. Nothing has been discovered missing from the scene, so it cannot be treated as a burglary, he said.

Investigators met with De Saint Victor on Nov. 6, said Winkelhake, adding that he did not know the results of the meeting.

The attacker is described as a black man in his 20s, with a medium build and oval-shaped face, wearing a tan coat, tan pants and a brown stocking hat, according to police. De Saint Victor did not recognize him, police said.

The reason you lost that one match was so we would continue to call you coach instead of God. — Iowa Gov. Tom Vilsack

King of the mat now king of the hill

A select crowd previews Freestyle: The Victories of Dan Gable Sunday.

By Gil Levy
The Daily Iowan

The standing ovation given to Dan Gable at Macbride Auditorium Sunday is just an example of the immense respect felt for the former UI wrestling coach and Iowa hero.

Gable appeared at the screening of Freestyle: The Victories of Dan Gable, a documentary produced by David Gould.

Gable's triumphs and tragedies, along with wrestling achievements, are highlighted in the film, which was shown by Home Box Office, the UI Video Center and Shadow Bird Productions.

Among the guests at the invitation-only screening were UI President Mary Sue Coleman, UI men's Athletics Director Bob Bowsby, Iowa Gov. Tom Vilsack, Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, and those who were involved with the film.

Freestyle was inspired by Gould's memories of Gable during the 1972 Olympics in Munich, Germany.

"I watched Dan Gable dominate the world," Gould said. "I realized I was seeing something special."

Gable said there was more to the documentary than his achievements in wrestling.

"I had to go home to watch it again," he said. "The documentary is not just about wrestling — there's an unbelievable amount of meaning about life."

The film starts out by showing a modern-day Gable doing pull-ups in an empty gym, followed by a look into his life beginning with his childhood in Waterloo. It delves into his family life, how he dealt with the murder of his sister and how he became focused on wrestling at Iowa State University.

"It's all about life, things that may set you back and how to handle it," Gable said. "How you can turn major setbacks into greater achievements."

Freestyle mixes images of him wrestling in college, coaching at the UI and interviews with friends and teammates with unique footage from his childhood.

"He grew up with a camera in front of him," Gould said. "His father realized he was something special."

Gable won an unprecedented 181 matches while losing only one in his wrestling career at ISU.

He won a gold medal at the 1972 Olympics and coached UI to 15 NCAA team championships before retiring in 1997.

Currently, he is the co-head coach of the USA wrestling team and assistant to the UI men's athletics director.

"What makes him such a great person and coach is that you can talk to him about anything," said former UI wrestler Jeff McGinness.

"His background dealing with people makes him easy to talk to."

McGinness said Gable was open with his wrestlers about his past and what he went through, and he believes that wrestling should not be the only thing in a person's life.

"He drives everyone to be perfectionists," he said. "There's always something you can do better — in school, too. You need to have a balance on and off the mat."

McGinness did not attend the screening but said he still talks with Gable on a daily basis.

Coleman said she was happy that Gable's inspirational story can be shared with people outside Iowa.

"It's a wonderful story about life," she said. "It lets us appreciate what he's accomplished. I'm so proud."

After the screening, Vilsack declared Nov. 14 to be "Dan Gable Day" in Iowa; it is also the day the documentary will be aired on HBO. Leach presented a framed special order recognition from Congress honoring Gable.

"I'm pretty proud to be able to have the governor here," Gable said. "I'm pretty honored he'd go out and do that for me. I love this state and the people."

UI committee begins search for new director of IWP

The move comes after the UI president and provost restore the program's extended-residency status.

By Kate Thayer
The Daily Iowan

Searching for the UI International Writing Program's new director is the first step in restoring the program to its original form, said David Skorton, the UI vice president for research.

The decision to return the IWP to an extended-residency program was made by UI President Mary Sue Coleman and UI Provost Jon Whitmore on Nov. 5.

Skorton, who currently oversees the program, said he is receiving recommendations from the IWP Advisory Committee for potential members for the president's search committee.

"After the search committee is formed, the search for a director will take about three to four months with interviews and other typical things involved in a search process," he said.

The advisory committee has put forth the names of various members of the UI community involved in writing, literature and cultural studies for the search committee, said Jay Semel, an advisory committee member and the director of the Obermann Center for Advanced Studies.

"A major influence in the decision were reviews from the appointed task force and the Faculty Senate, as well as letters regarding the program and an open meeting held last summer," Whitmore said.

The IWP was placed on hiatus in May after a failed attempt to appoint a new director. After much opposition from the UI community, the hiatus was overturned in July, and the program was reinstated but downsized.

25-30 writers per year for three months; this semester, nine writers stayed for two weeks.

Skorton said he will soon start the recruitment process for the writers coming to Iowa City next fall.

"It is too early to tell how many writers will be coming," he said. "Hopefully, the program will be bigger; it depends on funding."

The program, which was originally under the jurisdiction of the College of Liberal Arts, came under Skorton's direction after it was reinstated.

"We are all very excited the IWP is continuing under the direction of Skorton's wonderful leadership and administrative support," said Sandra Barkan, assistant dean of the Graduate College.

Rowena Torrevillas, an IWP associate who has been involved with the program since 1985, said she hopes for full restoration of the staff and program.

"I have full trust in Skorton to put the program back together," she said.

Microsoft ruling may trip up Wall St. rally

In the wake of a ruling that the software giant is a monopoly, Bill Gates cites a need for a "fair resolution."

By Bruce Meyerson
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Branded a monopoly shortly after the stock market's closing on Nov. 5, Microsoft could put a drag today on Wall Street's record-setting rally as investors assess a judge's blunt antitrust ruling.

In the longer term, even if Microsoft agrees to certain punishments to settle its legal battle with the Justice Department, the software maker may eventually emerge as a marked company much like the leading tobacco makers, dogged by state and civil lawsuits aimed at its coffers.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson was extremely clear-cut in his findings on Nov. 5, declaring that Microsoft abused its dominance of the personal computer industry to stifle innovation and competition, hurting consumers.

Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates said in a letter published Sunday that the software maker is committed to "a fair and responsible" resolution of the antitrust trial.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department's top antitrust enforcer said on ABC's "This Week" that the government is "looking at a full range of remedies" to find the appropriate punishment for Microsoft.

Assistant Attorney General Joel Klein, on "Fox News Sunday," also said that "obviously, settlement is always an option." He refused to discuss specifics.

"We would need a settlement that deals with the very findings that the court made in this case, a settlement that produces consumer choice, innovation and competition in the market," Klein said.

The judge's decision was only a first step toward determining punishment for Microsoft that likely will affect the entire technology industry.

Help Me, Harlan

Dear Harlan:
I've been married for two years. For the most part, our marriage is OK. But one area I'm not OK with is our sex life. This is where we are at an impasse. I love having sex, and even like using different positions. I recently began a relationship with someone 16 years my senior. He's inventive and he's so experienced. I know that what I'm doing is morally wrong, but I still do it. Does this make me a bad person?

Never say never

Dear Never:
For someone who wants to save your marriage, you can't do anything more to destroy it. If you're even a little serious about attempting to save your marriage, stop the lying and cheating.

County ponders bond for new jail

■ A study suggests options for Johnson County jail.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

If Johnson County wants to build a new jail, a bond referendum would have to be passed to fund it, according to County Supervisor Sally Stutsman.

"We could always raise taxes, but such a spike wouldn't be realistic," she said. "If we had 10 years for saving up money for a new jail, we could. But something needs to be done now, and we really have no choice but a bond."

A study presented to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors and the jail-overcrowding study committee on Nov. 4 stated that the best way for the county to solve overcrowding problems in its jail is to build a new one.

Kansas City-based architectural consultant Bill Garnos, who conducted the study, said the cost for a 102,000-square-foot, 236-cell jail would be approximately $20 million.

The location of the jail was not proposed.

Passing a bond in Johnson County requires 60 percent of the voters' consent.

When the current jail, which opened in 1981, was up for a bond, it was turned down a few times and passed after the amount of the bond was reduced significantly, said Peter Hayek, the chairman of the jail committee.

Other supervisors and jail committee members also fear the suggested bond would be met with opposition.

"We'd have to make a terrific case for it," said Robert Kemp, a member of the jail committee. "If we're talking about a $20 million bond, we'd need to figure out a way to get support for it."

"I don't think it'd be a sure thing to pass," Stutsman said. "We'd have to do a great job of educating the public."

The jail committee will discuss different options for the next few months before making its final recommendation to the supervisors, Hayek said.

Options include expanding the current jail or building a minimum-security facility to operate simultaneously with it.

"The existing facility is crowded, dangerous and cannot meet minimum jail standards," the study stated. "The building is part of the problem — not part of the solution."

The study recognized four problems with the jail: insufficient inmate housing, inadequate space for intake and release, inadequate space for inmate programs and a lack of visibility in the cells.

The overcrowding has been caused by the enacting of mandatory jail-time legislation for charges of operating while intoxicated and domestic-abuse offenders and the growth of Johnson County, Kemp said.

The current jail has 92 beds; the study said that in 20 years, it will need 255 beds.

"This is an immediate problem," Hayek said. "We want to look ahead 40 years down the road, so that this isn't something that recurs every 20 years."

Council mulls transit's gas problem

■ Landfill gases are building up underneath the Iowa City Transit Facility.

By Heather Pavlica
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City City Council will decide on a method to treat and release landfill gases at the Iowa City Transit Facility's property during tonight's informal session.

Landfill gases such as methane, which is a greenhouse gas, have been building up underneath the facility, 1200 S. Riverside Drive, and need to be released into the atmosphere to prevent them from leaking into the building, said Joe Fowler, the transit director.

There are few regulations for releasing landfill gases into the atmosphere, but one of Iowa City's biggest concerns is the odors that are released without treatment, Fowler said.

"We want to be a good neighbor," he said. "We don't want to release the gases into the air without treatment and have the odor be offensive to the people around us."

Several sulfur-type organic compounds, which are trapped under a clay cap that covers the landfill, smell like rotten eggs or garbage when they are released, said Jim Buckhahn, project designer for Terracon, Iowa City's engineering consultant from Davenport.

Buckhahn suggested six options for landfill-gas abatement and recommended a carbon treatment, which uses a charcoal filter — similar to a Brita filter — to help eliminate the gases and odors released into the atmosphere.

The carbon treatment, estimated to cost between $15,000 and $20,000 for the initial equipment and approximately $7,000 to renew the filters four to six times a year, is the cheapest way to provide continuous filtering of the gases, Buckhahn said.

Approximately 600 cubic feet of gases per minute will be released into the air with the initial treatment, he said. This amount is not extraordinary, said Buckhahn, adding that there are more greenhouse gases released from hog farms and water-treatment facilities than from landfills.

Methane is an explosive landfill gas that cannot be treated with carbon; it accounts for approximately 30 percent of all gases released. Currently, methane and other landfill gases are released through ventilation systems in the facility. However, if methane builds up in a closed room, a spark can ignite the gas or even cause people to pass out from lack of oxygen, Buckhahn said.

A clay cap is constructed over the landfill to prevent the gases from mixing with rain water and polluting the ground water. This sealed-off, oxygen-less atmosphere is ideal for micro-organisms that produce greenhouse gases, said Pedro Alvarez, a UI associate professor of civil-environmental engineering.

The total amount of gas released will eventually decrease to approximately 350 cubic feet per minute because oxygen replaces the landfill gases, depleting the ideal conditions for methane-producing micro-organisms, Buckhahn said.

Iowa City is in the design phase for the project and has drilled and installed a tube in the landfill to prevent the gases from leaking into the building. Construction companies will bid on the project after the City Council decides on a treatment process, Fowler said.

Varsity House to stay put (for now)

■ Residents of the private dorm express relief that they won't have to move during Winter Break.

By Sky Eilers
The Daily Iowan

UI students living in the off-campus private dormitory Varsity House say they are relieved that it will remain their home next semester after earlier concerns that the house may be purchased by the UI.

"It's great that we'll be able to keep living here next semester. I would've had to move into a dorm during the winter and the cold," said Prido Lumbantoruan, a UI freshman.

The former Delta Tau Delta fraternity house, 322 N. Clinton St., is being leased from its owner, Omicron Holding Corp., to John Phipps, the owner of Varsity House. "I leased the house from Omicron for the fall semester, but it wouldn't commit to a whole year in hopes that the university would buy it," Phipps said.

The UI expressed an interest in the property in August and is in the process of negotiating with Omicron, said Linda Annis, an administrative associate for the UI business office.

"The UI interest is high because of the location of the property," she said. "It hasn't been determined what the property will be used for, but there does exist a great need for space."

Omicron, a group composed of Delta Tau Delta alumni, recently announced that the Varsity House will be able to extend its lease through the spring semester.

Delta Tau Delta's national headquarters suspended the UI charter in April for alleged violation of drug and alcohol policies. The fraternity will eventually be able to reorganize at the UI; it is currently in the first year of a four-year suspension.

Jeff Matula, a UI junior and a former member of Delta Tau Delta, said the chapter house isn't the focus of the fraternity and that he wouldn't mind if future Deltas relocated the chapter.

"It wouldn't bother me if we weren't in the same house," he said. "We weren't always in that house, but if we're on campus, that's the important thing."

Phipps said he will continue running the Varsity House, either in its present location or elsewhere.

"The principle of having a quiet house with no smoking or alcohol allowed has been somewhat of an experiment, and it has been very successful," he said. "A change of location, as long as it's somewhat near the campus, won't really affect my game plan."

Gov't like a hungry bear, Forbes says

■ Republican presidential candidate Steve Forbes was in Iowa City on Nov. 5.

By Steve Schmadeke
The Daily Iowan

Republican presidential candidate Steve Forbes, in the middle of a bus tour through Iowa, pitched his campaign vision to a crowd of approximately 300 in Iowa City on Nov. 5. Students of Iowa City City High School made up roughly half the crowd, adding a unique element to the atmosphere at the First Avenue Club, 1550 First Ave.

Those on hand listened as Forbes painted himself as an "independent outsider" and used homilies to create a picture of government as too intrusive and hungry for more money.

"Bears love honey," he said. "Even if they say they won't eat the honey. Bears and honey are like politicians and a big pot of money. They are victims of their own nature." Forbes said Democratic presidential candidate Al Gore has done a poor job on U.S.-Russia relations and reissued his challenge to the leading Republican candidate, Texas Gov. George W. Bush, to engage in a debate.

He also spoke of the need for strengthening the military, implementing a flat tax, phasing out abortion and giving people more freedom in choosing where they get their medical care.

Before Forbes arrived, students played pool or talked while flipping through pamphlets that described the flat-tax plan as "one of the most important and liberating ideas of our time."

"I don't agree with a lot of the things he says," said City High senior Curtis Enochson, who laughingly revealing the reason for his attendance: "Extra credit."

Philip Chantri, the director of Iowa Youth for Forbes, said local high schools were called beforehand to inform students about Forbes' speech, a typical practice.

Most people seemed impressed when Forbes arrived, but there appeared to be a general lack of enthusiasm as he walked around and shook hands. Unlike Gore, who recently had to push through an IMU crowd of eager handshakers, everyone at the First Avenue Club stayed in their seats.

Iowa City resident Charles Thayer, applauded Forbes' proposals.

Dressed in an orange Forbes 2000 T-shirt with a knit blue and white cap studded with Republican campaign buttons down through the years, Thayer said Forbes' speech was excellent.

"He's the most intelligent candidate," he said. "He's the only candidate we have that has a shot."

Children's museum to open on Nov. 16

A $500,000 grant from the state will ensure the completion of the second phase of the Iowa Children's Museum, located at Coral Ridge Mall.

The museum's first phase, which includes the changing gallery and city gallery, is scheduled to open on Nov. 16.

The second phase is expected to open within six months, said Melanie Dobiyan, founder and president of the museum.

"This grant is a big piece of the total campaign," she said. "We'll continue to raise money from private sources."

The second-phase additions include theater and preschool galleries, followed by third-phase construction of a science and engineering gallery.

The museum will be open Tuesday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Clinton to answer online queries today

President Clinton is set to answer the public's questions for an hour and half today during an online forum, which will be held from 6-7:30 p.m.

The first 15,000 people who log on to townhallmeeting.excite.com will be able to e-mail questions to Clinton.

The site will support an additional 35,000 people who can see and hear Clinton's responses. After the first 50,000 log on, others can read the session text as it takes place.

Chris Logli, a UI senior and the president of Students for Bradley, said he plans to log on and ask a question.

"I would want to ask him how he thinks the foreign-spending appropriations bill will be resolved," he said.

Peter Matthes, a UI senior and the co-chairman of communications for Students for Bush, would ask him about the budget battle.

"I would want to know what exactly were the sticking points," he said.

All questions will be screened before they are given to the president.

The forum is sponsored by the Democratic Leadership Council; Excite will provide the technology to hold it.

Relatives of crash victims bid farewell

■ Approximately 250 family members gather at a Rhode Island park overlooking the ocean.

By George Esper
Associated Press

NEWPORT, R.I. — Relatives of the victims of EgyptAir Flight 990 gathered Sunday to bid them a wrenching farewell, with one woman wailing "My baby, my baby!" and others holding onto each other after an emotional service at the edge of the sea where their loved ones remain.

Approximately 250 family members gathered on a clear, cold afternoon at a park overlooking the Atlantic Ocean as leaders of the Jewish, Christian and Islamic faiths offered readings, chants and prayers in three languages.

"Your loss is great, your pain deep, but you must find solace in the memory of those wonderful moments you shared with your loved ones," said Egyptian Ambassador Nabil Fahmy, who read from the Bible and the Koran.

Relatives were led to the water through a corridor formed by military personnel and caregivers including workers from Red Cross, National Transportation Safety Board and Salvation Army.

Some wept and wiped their faces with handkerchiefs as they dropped flowers into the sea and lingered to pray and meditate. Others left their flowers in a wicker basket. One woman was so overcome that she had to be helped to the beach. Others wailed and wept.

A military honor guard carried the basket to a Coast Guard helicopter, which hovered overhead briefly before slowly departing. The Coast Guard said the helicopter would drop the flowers at the crash site Tuesday and make photographs with a special camera to give to the families.

Some relatives scooped up sand and pebbles and took with them vials of water from the ocean as remembrances.

A number of them left for Kennedy Airport in New York and T.F. Green Airport in Warwick, R.I., immediately after the ceremony to return to their homes in Egypt, the United States and other points.

for 33 years, was on her way to her 8:30 a.m. Shakespeare class at the English-Philosophy Building at the time of the attack, said John Harper, director of curriculum and operations for the English department and a friend of De Saint Victor's.

De Saint Victor is "a warm, generous, and outgoing person," Harper said, adding that he spoke with her Sunday and she is doing well.

"She's conscious and quite lucid in conversation," he said. "It doesn't seem to be difficult for her to talk."

De Saint Victor declined to comment Sunday.

"I think she's better than can be expected," said English department Chairman Robert Brooks. "I don't think any of us could go through that kind of ordeal with the braveness and calmness she exhibited."

"She has been for more than 30 years one of my closest friends," said Robert Kelley, a UI English professor who received his Ph.D. with De Saint Victor at Indiana University, Bloomington, and began teaching with her at the UI in 1966.

De Saint Victor's classes were canceled on Nov. 5; the English department has found a substitute for today's classes and compiled a list of possible long-term substitute candidates, Harper said.

De Saint Victor is not expected to return until after Thanksgiving, he said.

Cayenne Sullivan, a UI senior and student in De Saint Victor's Shakespeare course, said replacing the English professor will be difficult.

"She's an excellent teacher, very thorough and thoughtful," Sullivan said. "She's very enthusiastic about the subject matter."

Microsoft antitrust ruling may drag down Wall St.

It's not clear whether investors will confine the initial punishment to Microsoft — which just a week ago was added to the influential Dow Jones industrial index — or lash out at the market's broader technology sector.

Judging from the harsh response on Nov. 5 in after-hours markets, where Microsoft's shares slid more than 4 percent from its NASDAQ close of $91.56, the ruling will present at least a temporary speed bump for both the Dow and the NASDAQ Stock Market, which has set record highs for six sessions in a row.

In fact, the prevailing hunger among investors for just about any Internet-related business may turn Microsoft's loss into a gain for other technology stocks, said Robert Streed, an investment strategist for Northern Trust in Chicago who manages the Northern Select Equity Fund.

"Because people want to own tech stocks, if you're reluctant to buy Microsoft because of the cloud hanging over the company, (part) of your technology money could be diverted into other investment ideas," Streed said.

"Longer term, I'm concerned about the state attorneys general and the entrepreneurial bar. They may keep after Microsoft looking for money for a long time ... bringing class-action lawsuits for all people who bought Windows," he said.

Streed noted that a leading target of many smoker damage suits was Philip Morris Cos., maker of best-selling cigarette brands like Marlboro.

"If this was some software company on the ropes, you wouldn't bother. That's why they went after Philip Morris instead of the people who make Skoal chewing tobacco. That's the entrepreneurial bar, you go after the deepest pocket," he said.

Coming amid such a powerful rally — the Dow has risen 7 percent in the past three weeks while the NASDAQ composite has soared nearly 11 percent in just seven sessions — the Microsoft ruling could sap the market's enthusiasm or at least provide a handy excuse to protect some of the recent gains.

Like any of the 30 stocks that make up the Dow, every point that Microsoft moves equates to a 4-point swing in the closely watched market barometer. So the Nov. 5 4-to-5 point drop by Microsoft on after-hours markets may translate into a 15-to-20 point loss for the Dow when regular NASDAQ trading begins this morning.

Psychiatric satellite clinic to open soon

The UI Department of Psychiatry plans to open its first satellite outpatient clinic, the UI Behavioral Health Services, in late December in Plaza Centre One.

The location offers an additional option for patients and staff outside the UI Hospitals and Clinics, said Sue Plancon, an administrator in the psychiatry department.

"It gives staff an appropriate level of confidentiality," she said.

The satellite clinic, above the former location of Hardee's, will provide five individual offices and a group room for patients who prefer a smaller or separate setting, Plancon said.

She said the psychiatry department, which has approximately 20,000 visits a year in its UIHC clinics, cannot say how many patients are likely to use the satellite clinic.

She said it is the only satellite outpatient clinic planned so far by the psychiatry department.

Nitro Girl nears final vote in dance contest

UI alumna Nicole Palomado will compete as one of eight finalists tonight for a chance to win the World Championship Wrestling's "Search For a New Nitro Girl" competition.

Palomado will appear on Monday Night Nitro at the Consecro Field House in Indianapolis. She will be representing Kansas City, the closest Midwest location to her home, Orland Park, Ill.

"Whoever wins the online voting tonight also wins $10,000 and the chance to audition as a Nitro Girl understudy," Palomado said.

Sunday in Indianapolis, Palomado and the other finalist met and had dinner with the current Nitro Girls and learned the routine they will be performing tonight.

The results of the vote will be announced Tuesday morning, Palomado said.

Forbes' visit, ideas out of touch with real world, real problems

On Nov. 5, Republican presidential candidate Steve Forbes spoke at the First Avenue Club. The room was dark and packed with cafeteria tables and pizza parlor chairs stuck snugly together. Behind the rows of tables was a dark dance floor surrounded by mirrors.

The advertisement with Forbes' picture offered a free lunch for listening to the millionaire magazine publisher talk about his ideas for the presidency. A long line streamed down the stairs to where bowls of watery chili were being served to spectators who were either on Social Security or in groups of high school students that had matriculated into the bingo parlor, giggling and forming cliques.

There was no music and no fanfare, much unlike the Gore visit almost two weeks ago in the IMU, where more than 1,000 people were in attendance and the song "Love Train" blasted over loud speakers to thunderous rounds of applause. Here, 250 people waited for Forbes to walk in, shake hands, and talk about international affairs, the Russian economy and his concepts of freedom based on the Declaration of Independence.

Comparing our nation's 18th century fundamental ideas of freedom to what he considers freedom today, however, seemed insulting. Forbes and fellow Republican Alan Keyes want to design and implement a moral agenda — based on what they believe to be liberating — that is hostile toward the working poor, women and people of color.

Keyes, who believes that the "moral challenge" should be the primary objective of national policy said, "We need leaders who are willing to confront the moral identity crisis in our nation, who are able to articulate and discuss the vital questions of principle that will determine the kind of people we are and want to be."

Since when has any country ever been moral? There has never been a nation or time period that has been considered to be right, even though the people living in them might have believed they were, based on their cultural values. The Romans thought they were right to persecute and execute people of the Jewish faith. The French during the Enlightenment period challenged the idea of religion that led to the second great reformation in our country, a period of conversion and evangelicalism. The sinful nature of man and the need for moral action were preached, leading to debate over the immorality of slavery and a women's right to education and to vote. As if they are debatable.

Today, Republicans believe we are entering another great reformation, a period of spiritual renewal in which the rights of a woman's body can be debated. There are some men who want to lead us into the new millennium and save people from immorality. Forbes and Keyes stress that marriage would be the solution to all of our problems. Keyes even goes so far as to say that marriage would save single mothers on welfare.

The only difference between the moral nature of our country now and that of 100 years ago is that women have the freedom not to be married and the right to leave abusive relationships, even if it does mean working while on welfare and raising children who are living in poverty. Our country has changed to units made up of stepfamilies and women in the work force who choose to be there, and are not just there because of a war effort.

George W. Bush would like to see the removal of social service programs and rely instead on poor, faith-based organizations to save people living in poverty. That is a novelty — poor missionaries organizing other poor people. I guess that would push it all under the rug and make room for Forbes' flat tax rate — cutting government, art and humanity foundations.

Republican candidates are so out of touch with the needs of the people. They are concerned with becoming leaders of the free world, leading poor and corrupt nations into a world where we monitor and tell them what is right. No one wants to die because of a nuclear world war with North Korea, nor does anyone want to die in their own country neglected with no personal freedoms.

Forbes' speech was dark, boring and uninspiring just like the dingy room he preached in — maybe that's how he treats people who are not as rich as him. In any case, I think I deserve more attention than he is willing to give a woman such as me, but he probably would not know that judging by the entourage he carries around with him. There was no person of color or women — besides his wife, who sat like a wall-flower content with not uttering a word — just white men in tight-fitted navy blue blazers with shiny gold buttons and beige khakis.

How is that for representation? He may know a lot about corporate America and international relations, but as far as leading a complex people with complex human problems, we have a better chance depending on Iowa winning a football game.

Tracy column close, but not quite right

In response to James Tracy's article on athlete exploitation (DI Nov. 4):

I would like to begin by agreeing with the foundation of Tracy's article on the exploitation of collegiate athletes. There is little doubt whether athletics at the NCAA Division 1-A level is a profit-making venture. Fortunately for the taxpayers of the state, the UI is one of only a few dozen 1-A schools that can boast of an Athletics Department not running a financial deficit.

I find Tracy's line of reasoning contradictory, though. He lauds the Ivy League for its philosophy regarding collegiate athletics.

Here's the Cliff's Notes version: It bases its program around the student-athlete experience, not $$$. Students participating in athletics are students, rather than athletes simply representing an academic institution. Its athletic programs are considered to be a part of the educational experience.

Unfortunately, his argument is weakened by his recommendations for change. He wrote that "... Athletics Departments can begin by paying fees to universities for the use of school grounds, facilities and trademarks." Is the Athletics Department an extension of the university or a sub-contractor in the business of building strong athletic teams?

Tracy goes on to mention that student-athletes should be compensated for their efforts (which is again contrary to the Ivy League philosophy he is fond of). His argument is unclear and contradictory.

I'm writing, in part, because he concludes the article stating that ideas for change in collegiate athletics are not coming forth.

I recently attended a conference at Drake University titled "Corruption in Collegiate Sports: The Way Out." The purpose of the conference was to address the indifferent and often complicit nature of university faculties as related to collegiate sport and academic integrity. Before the end of the conference, the participants formed a formal organization titled the National Association of Faculty for Collegiate Sports Reform.

Rest assured that there are people fighting for change — just not enough.

Lacking social interaction skills because of the French and Indian War

Remember when you were in third grade and the teacher forced you to study the French and Indian War? You whined and complained and demanded to know why you had to learn about the French and Indian War.

"How is the French and Indian War going to help me in the real world," you asked. And the teacher just smiled condescendingly and assured you that the French and Indian War was very, very important and you were just too young to realize it, so get back to studying. And the whole time you knew that she was lying. This is the feeling I get sometimes here in college.

College is important, people tell you. Everyone says you have to go to college if you want to make something of yourself. But I really don't think any of this is helping me. In fact, I think it's hurting me.

Because in the areas of my brain where I might be storing, say, important rules of social interaction, there are instead huge masses of useless knowledge about the French and Indian War, photosynthesis, T.S. Eliot, algebra, etc.

Here is an example of how this can be a problem. On Halloween, I was at a party, and the woman next to me asked what I thought she was dressed up as. Now, if I wouldn't have had all kinds of irrelevant crap cluttering up my brain, hindering important behavioral directives, I might have realized that this was a delicate situation. But all I could think of, for some reason, was that the French and Indian War lasted from 1755 to 1760, so I answered truthfully.

"An old crone?" I said. Looking at her shocked and disgusted expression, I immediately realized that this was the wrong thing to say.

"I'm supposed to be a princess," she said angrily.

"Oh," I said. Some historians consider the French and Indian War to be part of the Seven Years War, but it really is not. "I only thought you were an old crone because you were hunched over like that."

This was, again, the wrong thing to say. Apparently no one had ever told her that she had bad posture. There were tears. Her friends yelled at me. Sensing a pattern, I decided against telling her that my second guess was "land whale."

Yes, here we are spending the vital years of our lives in college, filling our heads with useless knowledge. This all became painfully clear to me the other day in the University Bookstore. As I was browsing, I saw that one of the required texts for a certain class was How to Win Friends and Influence People, by Dale Carnegie.

This book, for you want to make something of yourself. But I really don't think any of this is helping me. In fact, I think it's hurting me.

person's interests!" I am not making any of this up. This is far better than anything I could make up.

This book is the reason used-car salesmen are so sleazy. It's not as if people aren't insincere and annoying enough already without someone writing a book with specific instructions on how to become a fake, manipulative, grinning ape. Worst of all, this book has sold 15 million copies. Yes, that's a 15 with six zeroes after it. And now it's being taught as part of a college education. Someone in charge decided that this knowledge is absolutely vital for young adults about to enter the real world. If society hasn't hit rock bottom, it is very, very close.

Not that you are wasting your time. There are many benefits to a modern

By Alan Fram

WASHINGTON — Railroads and President Clinton's environmental efforts, White House officials said Sunday, will be part of a new program in which every year amounts of money will be used to purchase park land.

Republicans criticized the program, saying it would cost two-thirds of the extra money Clinton wants for the Department of the Interior's cultural programs. That would mean the GOP has been lined up to oppose the program since it was first proposed in 1995, and sending Congress to the polls by Wednesday

Scientists grow heart valves in test tube

ATLANTA (AP) — In search of spare parts, scientists for the first time have grown heart valves from a test tube, then shown that they like nature's own — at least in researchers said Sunday.

The approach, called tissue engineering, is intended to create a fresh set of heart valves to replace those that are faulty from birth, or recipient's own cells, researchers said. The valves will grow in recipient does and work without thinning drugs.

So far, the experiments have been conducted on lambs with the valves grown at Children's Hospital in Boston. Dr. Simon Hoerstrup, who described the results at the annual scientific meeting of the American Heart Association.

"What's exciting is the possibility of making valves that are exactly like your own. That's the potential here," said Dr. Valentin M. Fuster, director of the American Heart Association's research center in New York.

Heart valves open and shut to allow blood to flow in only one direction through the heart. When they deteriorate or become blocked, they must be replaced with either natural valves — made from metals, plastics, Dacron and other synthetic materials — or valves taken from pigs or other animals. Neither kind is ideal.

Senate probes Citicorp for $ laundering

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citicorp's banking powerhouse divisions spanning the globe, is under scrutiny for its handling of $1 billion in alleged drug money from a former Mexican president.

The inquiry into activities of Citicorp Inc., the nation's largest financial company, is shining a spotlight on the cloistered world of private banking, which discreetly caters to wealthy clients.

But, Senate investigators say, Citicorp officials evaded around the world to avoid banking to launder their money through the banking system.

The abuses occur because Citicorp's banking operations — which require a minimum deposit of $1 million — offer their clients secret offshore accounts, code names for owners and shell companies, they say.

The inquiry also is bringing the most powerful U.S. corporation, Citicorp Co., chairman to Capitol Hill. He is scheduled Tuesday before the Senate Government and Finance Committee on investigation. For a year, the subcommittee examined the private banking New York-based Citicorp notably its handling of all money for Raul Salinas, the former president of Mexico from 1988

Court to hear student-fees case

■ A decision in a Wisconsin student-fees dispute could affect all U.S. universities.

By Anthony Jewell
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — A lawsuit by a student who objected to the use of his student fees to support liberal campus groups at the University of Wisconsin could change the way fees are spent on college campuses nationwide.

The U.S. Supreme Court, which is to hear the case Tuesday, will decide whether public universities can use mandatory student activity fees to subsidize campus groups that pursue political goals.

"The decision will affect, literally, every college and university in this country," said Brady Williamson, who teaches constitutional law at the University of Wisconsin.

The suit was filed in 1996 by then-law student Scott Southworth. A federal trial judge and the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in his favor that the subsidies unlawfully force some students to subsidize views they find objectionable.

If the high court upholds those rulings, it could bar schools from using student fees to pay for politically active groups, or it could issue a less sweeping remedy allowing students to opt out of giving money to groups they find objectionable.

University spokeswoman Sharyn Wisniewski said the school appealed the rulings because the fees help pay for a system that gives students a forum to discuss and deal with issues that might not exist without fee-supported groups.

The fee in question is $15 per semester for each of the 38,000 students. The money is distributed through student committees elected by the student body.

Southworth and several other law students with conservative political views had challenged the funneling of the fee proceeds to 18 organizations on the Madison campus. Among groups they objected to were International Socialist Organization; Campus Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Center; and an AIDS-support network.

"We didn't believe that any student should have to pay fees that went to groups that they objected to on a personal, ideological or religious basis," said Southworth, now a lawyer and an aide to a state senator.

Pipe bombs injure 33 in Israeli resort

NETANYA, Israel (AP) — On the eve of final status talks with the Palestinians, three pipe bombs exploded in this Israeli beach town and wounded 33 people Sunday, raising questions about whether the Palestinians are able to contain terror.

The bombs detonated simultaneously at 10:30 a.m. local time (2:30 a.m. CST) at an intersection busy with ice cream vendors and automatic cash machines. Sunday is a work day in Israel, and most people run midmorning errands and take coffee breaks at that hour.

Police, who blamed militant Islamic groups for the attack, said four people had moderate injuries, while 29 others had minor injuries. A fourth bomb was defused by a bomb disposal unit at the beach.

Dozens of Palestinians were arrested, but all were released before midnight.

Police beefed up patrols on the border with the West Bank, which runs fewer than 10 miles from the outskirts of Netanya.

At the moment of the blasts, a bicycle parked by a lamppost was twisted into a blackened wreck.

"After the explosion, there was this silence all around, I didn't know where I was," David Ratzon later told reporters from his hospital bed, his torso and right arm wrapped in bandages.

Clinton proposes park-lands legacy

■ The White House pitches a new program for parks.

By Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Raising the profile of President Clinton's environmental efforts, White House bargainers used Capitol budget talks Sunday to propose a four-year program in which ever-growing amounts of money would be used to purchase park lands.

Republicans criticized the idea. Even so, they offered approximately two-thirds of the extra money Clinton wants for the Interior Department and other land and cultural programs. That underlined how the GOP has begun moving toward some White House demands in hopes of brokering a deal and sending Congress home for the year by Wednesday.

Clinton had previously proposed a "lands legacy" program that would spend $500 million for federal and local park land acquisition this year. But Sunday, his negotiators proposed boosting that gradually to $900 million by 2003. They would pay for it by tapping into $3 billion the government collects annually from offshore oil leases.

"Obviously, we feel land acquisition is a terribly important conservation priority," said George Frampton, acting chairman of the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

Republicans disparaged the offer, leaving its fate unresolved in ongoing budget negotiations.

"We're not going to create a new entitlement," or automatically paid program, said Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Despite that difference, there were other signs of progress as budget talks continued into the night.

Overall, Republicans offered to add $335 million to the $14.5 billion Interior measure, said a participating speaking on condition of anonymity, which Congress has passed and Clinton has threatened to veto. The administration counter-offered by asking for $124 million more.

The White House also proposed solutions to several provisions aiding mining, oil and other industries that it contends would harm the environment.

These included offers to let oil companies drilling on public lands avoid higher royalty payments until January, instead of the six-month delay Republicans want. And the White House would apply stricter rules limiting waste dumping by gold and other hard-rock mining companies only to future applicants.

Senate probes Citibank for laundering

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citibank, a U.S. banking powerhouse with operations spanning the globe, is under Senate scrutiny for its handling of millions of dollars in alleged drug money for a brother of a former Mexican president.

The inquiry into activities of a unit of Citigroup Inc., the nation's largest financial company, is shining a spotlight on the cloistered world of private banking, which discreetly caters to the very wealthy.

FILM REVIEW

By Van Griffin

Happy, Texas is a movie with a big heart and bad organizational skills. It's waiting for Guffman meets Kindergarten Cop, but it lacks the spirit and freshness of the former and the amusing interaction between the adults and the children of the latter.

Happy is clumsy and forgettable, lacking cohesiveness and ultimate autonomy against its comedic predecessors. The beginning is fast and funny, loaded with promising silliness. But the rest of the film moves slowly, and the crazy goings-on become tiresome and predictable.

Two jailbirds, Wayne Wayne Wayne Jr. (Steve Zahn) and Harry Sawyer (Jeremy Northam) escape from a chain gang and steal a camper. They then flee to a small Texan town called Happy, where their adventure really begins. The camper they stole had been ironically (and conveniently) already en route to Happy, where the owners of the vehicle were employed to put on a pageant for the town's children. Zahn and Northam are mistaken for the nationally renowned professional pageant pioneers, who also happen to be an openly gay couple. In order to remain hidden from Johnny Law, the escapees continue with the charade and encounter more than just identity crises.

The first five minutes reveal the personas of the two main characters. Zahn is quite hilarious, though his low, mumbling speech is often hard to understand, thus subduing the potency of his extremely physical humor. His performance holds the movie together, though his wacky behavior becomes borderline annoying.

Northam is less funny, and his relationship with Jo McClintock (Ally Walker) is boring and unconvincing. His best parts involve his interaction with Sheriff Chappy Dent (William H. Macy), whose affinity for Northam leads to quite the interesting love affair. Unsurprisingly, Macy is very good as the town's timid but proud sheriff.

The promising premise and misfit characters of Happy can't save the film from being sent to the hole for dumb behavior. The story progressively breaks apart and becomes a series of disjointed skits, some very funny and some very not-so-funny. Certain aspects of the story, such as the pageant itself, appeared to be completely overlooked. It is basically assumed that Zahn is, indeed, creating some performance with the children. Aside from a few short comical interludes, such as Zahn yelling profanely at the little girls or dancing caustically by himself, there is no visual display of the pageant until the end, when we get only bits and pieces. I wanted to see more of Zahn interacting with the girls he was so hazily teaching and less of him gibber-jabbing with the boring Northam.

It's weird, because some of the humor in Happy, Texas had a belated effect on me — certain incidents became funnier after the fact. It was like, "Oh, now I get it." But I think that sort of reaction tells one something about the movie's structural dissonance — I don't think of Happy as a whole, I think of it as a series of unconnected and disparate events. Unfortunately, this explanation sounds more like an alibi than a movie.

Soccer tournament ends season at Big Ten

Despite a No. 3 seed, the Iowa women's soccer team lost in the first round of the Big Ten Tournament and will not earn a berth to the NCAA tournament.

By Melinda Mawdsell
The Daily Iowan

The first ever Big Ten women's soccer tournament ended in the first round as the Iowa Hawkeyes fell to the Hawkeyes' season opener at night at the hands of the Selection Committee.

Prior to the release of the list, it was announced 11 new teams were getting bids for the NCAA tournament. This champion Michigan, State and Minnesota will be at the conference.

"I'm disappointed with the bids," said Gabbert. "It's disappointing when a team behind you in the (Minnesota) and makes it to the Big Ten. The Iowa Hawkeyes outshot Illinois but were unable to find the ball for only the third time in the tournament." "We were excited to be No. 3 seed, we went in with a lot of confidence to win," said Gabbert.

The game was scoreless until Illinois came out quick. Illinois scored the goal off a corner kick at the 47th minute.

"It wasn't a great game, quite a few good chances, but the second half. We did it and Illinois did it."

Ex-Hawk Bank injures knee in win over Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — Jacksonville running back Tavian Banks sprained his left knee in the fourth quarter of the Jaguars' 30-7 rout of the Atlanta Falcons on Sunday.

Banks, who started at Iowa, injured the medial collateral ligament after catching a 5-yard pass with the Jaguars cruising to an easy victory. He was taken off the field on a cart and will undergo an MRI today to determine the seriousness of the injury.

"I am concerned about Tavian Banks," coach Tom Coughlin said.

Banks, a backup to Fred Taylor, was hurt right after his foot nicked the sideline. Not hearing the whistle, he kept running and was taken down by Falcons cornerback Ray Buchanan, who didn't realize the play was over, either.

"The last thing you want to do is injure somebody," said Buchanan, who wasn't penalized. "That left a bad taste in my mouth to see him laying on the ground."

Banks started the Jaguars' previous game against Cincinnati, lining up with Taylor in a two-back set.

Wife of Colts DB dies of labor complications

INDIANAPOLIS — Nichole Muhammad, the wife of Indianapolis defensive back Steve Muhammad, died Sunday after giving birth to a stillborn baby.

Colts coach Jim Mora led off his postgame news conference with the announcement of Mrs. Muhammad's death during Sunday's 25-17 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs. The hospital said later that the baby was stillborn.

The couple's baby was stillborn at 5:50 a.m. Sunday, and Mrs. Muhammad died at 1:30 p.m., hospital officials said. They gave no other details.

McCord pulls out win at Senior Tour Championship

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. — Gary McCord, CBS Sports' irreverent analyst, again played the role he loves the most Sunday — golf champ.

McCord joked and hacked his way around The Dunes Golf & Beach Club the first two rounds, but capped a wonderful weekend comeback at the course where he earned his PGA Tour card in 1974 with a one-stroke victory at the Senior Tour Championship.

As he held the trophy up at the 18th green, it was easy to see where the victory ranks with all his fame as an analyst, author and golfer's wacky creative conscience.

"This is at the top of the pyramid," said McCord, who shot a 67 and was a 12-under 276. "Everything else is below it."

McCord had the tournament's low round with a 64 on Saturday and tracked money champion Bruce Fleisher for most of the final 18. But Fleisher lost a one-stroke lead by missing two short par puts on the 16th and 17th holes.

SAID WHAT?

"They're a good football team, but they're not 37 points better than we are. Our offense absolutely stunk today. It was the most pathetic thing I've ever seen in my life."

— Missouri football coach Larry Smith on the Tiger's 37-0 loss to Oklahoma on Saturday.

Slattery and Stockdale's return sparks Iowa secondary

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

An injury and a coach's decision shook up the Iowa secondary Saturday. Senior Joe Slattery started in place of sophomore D.J. Johnson at right cornerback, and Matt Stockdale played instead of Shane Hall at free safety.

Offensive line improving

Lost in the shuffle of Iowa's eighth loss was the offensive line's best performance of the season. Iowa had a balanced rush/pass attack, including 143 yards rushing, led by Bruce Nelson. Betts had some of the largest holes to run through that he's had all season, including one he took advantage of for a 47-yard touchdown.

"We showed a little of what we can do with the run game, and hopefully we can get that going more and more in the next two weeks," left tackle Bruce Nelson said. "We need to keep the pass game and improve on that as well."

Nelson was happy with the balance the offense showed, but said he still expects improvements to be made.

"That's what it's all about, you have to have a balanced offense," Nelson said. "We ran the ball well and we passed the ball. We just have to do it better. We can't rely on good. Every week we need to get better and better."

Wisconsin running back Ron Dayne's impressive performance means Iowa will play Saturday on ABC television. Dayne had 222 yards rushing in Wisconsin's win at Purdue Saturday, putting him

Iowa's Joe Slattery and Matt Bowen team up to break up a pass during the first quarter of Iowa's 40-24 loss to Illinois. Slattery returned to the starting lineup for the first time since the Penn State game Saturday.

Three costly plays were the difference between winning and losing against Illinois. Iowa ran the ball better than it has all year, but the defense could not stop the Illini.

Florida and Tennessee could play for the national title

■ If both teams win out, the BCS rankings could force a rematch of the two rivals.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

The way this wild and woolly college football season is playing out, don't be surprised if Tennessee gets a chance to defend its national championship against Florida in the Sugar Bowl on Jan. 4.

That's correct. These two bitter rivals from the Southeastern Conference's East Division could wind up in a rematch in New Orleans if they win the rest of their games.

"I have to believe if we continue to play as we have, we'll be one of the teams that has an opportunity, and that's all you can ask for," Vols coach Phillip Fulmer said Saturday night following his team's 38-14 win over Notre Dame.

Florida beat Tennessee 23-21 on Sept. 18.

With Penn State's 24-23 loss to Minnesota, the once second-ranked Nittany Lions dropped from the national title scene, leaving Virginia Tech (8-0, 4-0 Big East) at No. 2, the Vols (7-1, 4-1 SEC) at No. 3, the Gators (8-1, 6-1) at No. 4 and Kansas State (9-0, 6-0 Big 12) at No. 5. Penn State (9-1, 5-1 Big Ten) is No. 6.

Top-ranked Florida State (9-0,

Penn State linebacker LaVar Arrington lies on the ground as teammates Derek Fox (4), left, and Anthony King (19) kneel beside him after Minnesota kicked a field goal to defeat Penn State 24-23 in an upset with two seconds left in the game Saturday.

7-0 ACC) was off Saturday, but after playing Maryland next Saturday, the Seminoles meet the Gators at The Swamp on Nov. 20. Florida, after a shaky 13-6 win over Vanderbilt, plays winless South Carolina on Saturday. A victory over the Gamecocks (0-9) assures the Gators a spot in the SEC title game on Dec. 4, most likely against the winner of Saturday's Mississippi State-Alabama matchup.

The Vols might not show up for the SEC title game, but with wins over Arkansas, Kentucky and Vanderbilt, they are prime contenders to finish first or second in the final Bowl Championship Series standings, which uses polls and computers to determine who plays in its designated title game (this year it's the Sugar Bowl).

Of course, Virginia Tech is right in the mix, too. The Hokies play host to No. 19 Miami on Saturday after keeping their perfect season going when Shayne Graham kicked a 44-yard, last-play field goal for a 22-20 win over West Virginia. Tech also has games against Temple on Nov. 20 and Boston College on Nov. 26.

Because a weak schedule could hurt them in BCS standings, the Hokies could still finish undefeated and lose out to the one-loss Gators and Vols.

Of course, crucial games remain. Like last year, which played out to a dramatic final day finish when Kansas State and UCLA lost perfect seasons and Tennessee remained undefeated, this one could see another thrilling finish. At this point, nothing is certain.

"Call me selfish," Penn State's LaVar Arrington said, "but I only want to play in the Sugar Bowl. I hope we can still find a way to get there."

Among Saturday's other top matchups are No. 5 Kansas State at No. 7 Nebraska (8-1, 5-1 Big 12); No. 16 Michigan (7-2, 4-2 Big Ten) at No. 6 Penn State; and Iowa (1-8, 0-6 Big Ten) at No. 9 Wisconsin (8-2, 6-1), with Ron Dayne needing 99 yards to pass Ricky Williams and become the major-college career rushing record.

In other Top 25 games Saturday, it was No. 5 Kansas State 20, Colorado 14; No. 7 Nebraska 37, Texas A&M 0 and No. 9 Wisconsin 28, No. 22 Purdue 21.

(AP) The race to the Big 12 championship game became much clearer Saturday. By next week, it could be over.

Texas and Kansas State both can earn invitations to San Antonio by winning next weekend. The fourth annual league title game will be held in the Alamodome on December 4.

In the North, No. 5 Kansas State (9-0, 6-0 Big 12) can clinch the division with a victory over No. 7 Nebraska (8-1, 5-1) on Saturday. The Wildcats could still win the North with a loss to Nebraska, a victory over Missouri and a Nebraska loss to Colorado.

The Huskers win the title if they win their last two games or if Kansas State loses its last two games.

Hawkeye women fall in exhibition opener

The Iowa women's basketball team fell to a Brazilian All-Star team 91-66 Saturday.

By Lisa Colonno
The Daily Iowan

Just call Saturday's game a learning experience.

That is how the Iowa women's basketball team is referring to its 91-66 loss to Brazil's Parana Basquete Club at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The contest was the Hawkeyes' first exhibition game of the season.

Brazil got on the board first and never looked back, quickly building a 37-13 lead in the first 12 minutes and a 30-point lead by half time, 57-27.

Iowa's first-half woes stemmed from being outrebounded 15-3 on its offensive end and lack of clean passing which led to 14 first-half turnovers.

Brazil also took control of the first half by shooting 58-percent from the field, compared to Iowa's 39-percent.

"You think about that first half, I bet we gave up about 32 points in transition alone," coach Angie Lee said. "Our defensive transition was not good and that's something (that shows a) team that's young, not young as in age, but its young in the season. That hurt us in the first half. In the second half, we made the adjustments. I thought we came out and did a much better job with that."

But the Hawkeyes turned things around in the second half.

Brian Moore/The Daily Iowan

Iowa guard Cara Consuegra tries to dribble around a defender during Iowa's 91-66 loss to the Brazilian Parana Basquete Club Saturday.

Forward Randi Peterson came out strong and led both teams with nine rebounds. She also racked up 13 points in the second half to finish with a team-high 17 points.

The Hawkeyes outscored Brazil 39-34 in the second half. But the Hawkeyes could not cut into Brazil's lead, getting as close as 20 points.

"It was a big, fat learning experience," Peterson said. "Our transition defense, turnovers and just our passing we need to work on. They taught us a lot of things. They adjusted so quickly to a turnover or taking the ball out. We need to learn to do that too. You can catch team off guard like that like they did for about 32 points of the first half."

One part of the Hawkeyes' problems with Brazil could be attributed to Victoria Bullet. Bullet, who played for the WNBA last season and for Brazil that past three years in the offseason, put up 28 points for Brazil at center.

"From my experience, you can tell they are young," Bullet said about Iowa. "The girls on our team are probably their same age. It's just that, for (Brazil), they've been training three years nonstop — this is their job. This is (Iowa's) first game so they don't have the rhythm yet or the chemistry. They'll get it."

Iowa freshman Amber O'Brien had the pleasure of facing Bullet in her first game as a Hawkeye. She went five of eight for 10 points.

"You've got to look at Amber O'Brien," Lee said. "She is a freshman, comes in and gets her first start and she looked good. She did a lot of nice things."

Iowa has a couple of weeks to review Saturday's game and look ahead to Marquette who the Hawkeyes face Nov. 19.

"Obviously we have some weaknesses that are pretty glaring, but at the same time, it shows stuff we've been working on hard," forward Mary Berdo said. "We didn't know what to expect our first time on the floor in front of a crowd. We had a lot of nerves."

Sophomore forward Jerica Watson was the only Hawkeye to not see minutes Saturday. She sat out due to a one-game suspension for disciplinary action.

Fake field goal leads Illinois to victory

gave up 462 total yards of offense, including 289 yards passing from Illinois quarterback Kurt Kittner. Kittner made it look easy, showing poise in picking apart an Iowa defense that is no stranger to the numbers put up against it Saturday.

"26-24, you're in a position to win. All we had to do was stop them on defense," safety Matt Bowen said. "And we didn't." That they didn't. The defense seemed to fold after the penalty, giving up Illinois' last 55 yards of the drive without much qualm from Iowa. Bowen placed the blame squarely on his shoulders.

"That's what the defense is for," Bowen said. "If it wasn't, you'd just give them seven points and start at the 20-yard line."

The poor performance of the other two units overshadowed another solid afternoon offensively. Ladell Betts ran for 140 yards on 16 carries, including a 47-yard touchdown.

"I've been waiting for that (type of) game and I think the whole offense has been," Muller said. "Ladell ran hard, and the offensive line blocked great. Sometimes there wasn't a hole there, but he found a way to run. You can't put into words what he does out there, but he finds a way to get it done."

The halftime scoreboard could have read Neil Rackers 16, Iowa 10. The surprising part was that Rackers is the Illini kicker. Rackers kicked field goals of 50, 49, and 37, and caught an 18-yard touchdown pass off of a fake field goal from holder Steve Fitts. He added the extra point to cap off his big half.

"It was my goal in my four years here to score a touchdown," Racker said. "All week, we were down on the turf working on it. Our long snapper who is always a pessimist, said the play would never work. Steve (Fitts) and I knew it would."

Short yardage key for Iowa

Illinois a first down and they went on to score a touchdown.

Iowa faced a similar situation on its next drive. Needing two scores, Iowa went for it on the Illinois 33. They tried an option, but Ladell Betts came up just short.

Granted, it is hard to stop a QB sneak when there are only inches to go, but now it is time to get nit-picky about Iowa's team this season and that is a complement.

The days of Iowa putting up less than 200 yards in total offense are a fading fader than Chumbawamba's popularity. The team can move the ball now, even in the first quarter.

The offensive line consistently opened up holes for Betts, something he had not seen all season and quarterback Scott Mullen does not have to run for his life as often.

Sure, the defense still has a long way to go before they can compete real competitively with the rest of the Big Ten, but at least the games are still worth watching late in the third quarter.

Now that Iowa is competitive, they have to do the little things it takes to win. Soon, it will not be good enough for the Hawkeyes to just stay in games, they will have to convert the fourth downs and make the open field tackles. All the things that legitimate contenders do.

Next season, most of the starters are back and the rebuilding process can continue. If Turner can do it at Illinois, Ferentz can do it at Iowa.

"Ferentz is a hell of a coach," Turner said. "He just has to be patient and keep going. He will do just fine here and do it the right way."

If the team's improvement over the course of the season is any indication, he should be just fine.

Schwab holds off Zadick in wrestle-offs

The defending national champ solidified his place at 141 with a win in the first series of wrestle-offs.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

The Hawkeyes held their pre-season wrestle-offs on Saturday morning in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Matches in all 10 weight classes. Matches were held to decide which wrestlers would make up the varsity squad.

The Hawkeyes open the season at the Midlands Tournament in Omaha, Neb., on Nov. 13.

In a highly anticipated match up at 141-pounds, defending national champion Doug Schwab defeated redshirt freshman Mike Zadick 8-5. Schwab scored five points in the third period to give him the lead and seal the victory.

Coach Jim Zalesky was impressed with Schwab's performance, but doesn't quite know what to do with having two solid competitors at the same weight classes.

"Schwab won (the wrestle-off) and he is a proven competitor," said Zalesky. "We have to get together as a coaching staff and talk about what we are going to do at that weight and at some of the upper weights."

In other matches, junior Jody Strittmatter made his debut in Carver-Hawkeye at 125-pounds pinning redshirt freshman Tim Ironside in 2:33. Strittmatter is a transfer from Pittsburgh-Johnstown, where he was a two-time NCAA Division II national champion.

Iowa's other defending national champion T.J. Williams was impressive in his move up a weight class to 157 from 149 as he defeated Robert Mantle by technical fall at 4:45. At 184, senior Paul Jenn scored an 11-3 major decision over redshirt freshman Jessman Smith.

"It was good to see our guys in action," said Zalesky. "We could see where they were getting beat, where they were making mistakes, where they were okay and how conditioned they are. This shows us what we need to work on in practice and who is leading the weight classes."

HAWKEYE ROAD BRIEFS

Volleyball

The Iowa women's volleyball team dropped its ninth-straight match this weekend as it fell to the Northwestern Wildcats in three games (15-2, 15-4, 15-8).

According to coach Rita Buck-Crockett, the Hawkeyes, who started off conference play with three wins, have lost something and she can't quite put her finger on it.

"Something is missing," she said. "Our team spirit is missing. I think we have the will, but we haven't found the way."

One thing that Iowa has been missing for sure, is victories. The Hawkeyes haven't won a match since Oct. 8, and haven't won a single game since they played Indiana on Oct. 16.

Crockett said her team needs to get "back on track."

"Everyone needs to step up," she said. "We need to start playing like we know how."

The Hawkeyes (4-17, 3-11 Big Ten), travel to Wisconsin on Friday to take on the Badgers. The game is scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

Jeremy Schnitker

Men's Tennis

Tyler Cleveland is still fighting for a top spot in the Rolex Tournament that took place in Wisconsin over the weekend. Cleveland, who was the No. 3 seed going into the tournament, has not lost a set in the four matches that he has already played.

Cleveland plays Ryan Sachire, of Notre Dame, the No. 1 seed in the tournament, today at 9 a.m. in the semifinal round. Cleveland has competed against Sachire twice in the past, losing both times, but coming very close to victory during their second meeting. Sachire is currently ranked number two in the nation.

"Tyler basically has a triple incentive going into this match," said coach Steve Houghton. "He can avenge his last two losses to Sachire, he can advance to the nationals of this tournament, and he can move up in national rankings."

Other team members did not fair as well as Cleveland in the tournament. Jake Wilson, Petar Mandic, and Stuart Waters lost in the first round. "I was disappointed with the rest of the team's performance, but every player at the tournament was really good," said Houghton. "We have a lot of work ahead of us in preparing for the spring season."

Dawaf defeated Simone Duhme of Eastern Michigan, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5, to advance to round two.

Wiegler also advanced after a win over Szandra Fuzesi of Michigan, 6-4, 6-1. Neykova continued the Hawkeyes' singles success with a win over Pamela Floro of Southern Illinois.

Also in the first day of competition, Wiegler played her second-round match. She lost to Marine Piriou in three sets, 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 and was eliminated from the remainder of singles play.

Wiegler and Neykova, the No. 4-ranked doubles team in the country, came into the last tournament of the fall season seeded No. 1. The team did not get tested in the first round, however, and advanced with a bye to round two.

In day 2, Dawaf and Neykova were both defeated in their second-round singles matches by Michigan and Wisconsin respectively, knocking the Hawkeyes out of the singles bracket of the tournament.

Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — The sonville Jaguars played team that intends to return Georgia Dome in a few months.

Playing the role of Supercontender, the Jaguars beat the Atlanta Falcons 30-7 on the same field where the title game will be played.

Mark Brunell passed for touchdowns, Fred Taylor 124 yards and the top Jaguars defense set a team with nine sacks.

"I'm glad we got a chance to play here today," said line Kevin Hardy, who had two sacks. "I want to get use here, if you know what I mean."

Jacksonville (7-1), tie Tennessee for first in the Central coming into the day. Chris Chandler tumbling turf eight times and finishing the performance by sacking up quarterback Tony Stewart. The Falcons managed on first downs and 58 yards second half.

"It was a sharkfest," defend end Tony Brackens said.

Atlanta's last gasp came 99-yard kickoff return by Dwight to begin the second half. The game was nullified by a penalty, of cutting Jacksonville's 17-14, the Falcons still trail 10 points.

"We had some momentum said Dwight, who scored Atlanta's only touchdown with 29 left in the first half to tie team within 17-7. "We had a right before the half, it came out and busted one of it 17-14. But it didn't count."

Tavian Banks, a reserve running back for the Jacksonville Jaguars, sprained a medial collateral ligament when he was hit on the knee by Ray Buchanan in the fourth quarter. Banks was off the field on a cart and undergo an MRI on Monday to determine the seriousness of the injury.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay Lightning notched a win against the Florida Panthers.

Chris Gratton and Derick Brassfield scored within 66 seconds in the third period Sunday to lead the Lightning, worst team the past two seasons, to a surprising 3-2 victory over the Red Wings.

The Lightning snapped game winless streak against Detroit with victory since Jan. 12, last time Tampa Bay beat at home was Nov. 11, in a nine-game (0-8) drought.

"You never want to get on the bench, but you this was a great game. Bay coach Steve Ludz kept going back and forth."

Falcons lose big but Dwight scores TD

ATLANTA (AP) — The Jacksonville Jaguars played like a team that intends to return to the Georgia Dome in a few months.

Playing the role of Super Bowl contender, the Jaguars blew out the Atlanta Falcons 30-7 Sunday on the same field where the NFL title game will be played Jan. 30.

Mark Brunell passed for three touchdowns, Fred Taylor ran for 124 yards and the top-rated Jaguars defense set a team record with nine sacks.

"I'm glad we got a chance to play here today," said linebacker Kevin Hardy, who had two of the sacks. "I want to get used to it here, if you know what I mean."

Jacksonville (7-1), tied with Tennessee for first in the AFC Central coming into the day, sent Chris Chandler tumbling to the turf eight times and finished off the performance by sacking backup quarterback Tony Graziani. The Falcons managed only four first downs and 58 yards in the second half.

"It was a sharkfest," defensive end Tony Brackens said.

Atlanta's last gasp came when a 99-yard kickoff return by Tim Dwight to begin the second half was nullified by a penalty. Instead of cutting Jacksonville's lead to 17-14, the Falcons still trailed by 10 points.

"We had some momentum," said Dwight, who scored Atlanta's only touchdown with 29 seconds left in the first half to pull his team within 17-7. "We had scored right before the half, then we came out and busted one to make it 17-14. But it didn't count."

Tavian Banks, a reserve running back for the Jaguars, sprained a medial collateral ligament when he was hit on the left knee by Ray Buchanan in the fourth quarter. Banks was taken off the field on a cart and will undergo an MRI on Monday to determine the seriousness of the injury.

Jets 12, Cardinals 7

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — In a season of disappointment for both teams, the New York Jets were a little less pitiful Sunday than the Arizona Cardinals.

Keyshawn Johnson awakened from a game-long slumber to catch a 43-yard scoring pass from a struggling Rick Mirer with 5:29 remaining, lifting the Jets to a 12-7 victory. New York (2-6), winning for the first time in five home games, was helped by Arizona's sputtering attack, and the Jets sacked Dave Brown six times.

Johnson, a Pro Bowl wideout, somehow was matched with linebacker Rob Fredrickson on the winning play. He easily got behind Fredrickson and then sped to the end zone on just his second catch of the day.

Bills 34, Redskins 17

LANDOVER, Md. — On fourth-and-5, little Doug Flutie put a Michael Jordan move on big Dana Stubblefield.

All Stubblefield could do was stand helpless with his hands on his hips as Flutie jittersbucked for an 8-yard gain to set up the go-ahead touchdown. The Buffalo Bills had five scoring drives in their first six possessions, and Flutie scrambled for a first down on four of them in Sunday's 34-17 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Colts 25, Chiefs 17

INDIANAPOLIS — Peyton Manning can also run the football when he has to.

The Indianapolis quarterback passed for 290 yards, extended his streak of touchdown passes to 21 games and scored on a 7-yard scramble early in the fourth quarter, giving the Colts a 25-17 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday.

Ravens 41, Browns 9

CLEVELAND — Art Modell probably could have come to the game and bought a hot dog and souvenir program. The Browns posed no threat to his Baltimore Ravens, and neither did Cleveland's crowd.

Errict Rhett ran for 117 yards and two touchdowns Sunday, and Baltimore's defense thrashed Cleveland rookie quarterback Tim Couch in a 41-9 rout of the Browns.

Panthers 33, Eagles 7

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The Carolina Panthers got greedy again, and the result was almost an embarrassing historical footnote for the Philadelphia Eagles.

After forcing just five turnovers all season, the Panthers matched that total Sunday against Philadelphia and converted the Eagles' miscues into 20 points on the way to a 33-7 victory.

Bears 14, Packers 13

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Brett Favre can't kick field goals, so the Green Bay Packers couldn't finish off the comeback.

Favre drove the Packers 73 yards in the game's last 3:19, but Ryan Longwell's 27-yard field goal attempt as time expired was blocked by Bryan Robinson, and the Chicago Bears escaped Lambeau Field with a 14-13 win over the Packers on Sunday.

Lions 31, Rams 27

PONTIAC, Mich. — The St. Louis Rams and Detroit Lions — the NFL's two most surprising teams — put on a show worthy of first place in the NFC Sunday.

In a wild shootout, backup quarterback Gus Frerotte tossed a 12-yard touchdown pass to Johnnie Morton with 28 seconds remaining as the Lions beat St. Louis 31-27 for their fourth straight victory.

Buccaneers 31, Saints 16

NEW ORLEANS — Turns out, all Trent Dilfer needed was a week off and a game against the New Orleans Saints.

Dilfer, benched last week for Eric Zeier, returned Sunday to throw three touchdown passes as the Tampa Buccaneers beat the New Orleans Saints 31-16.

NASCAR rookie stars in Checker 500K race

■ The rookie won his second race of the season Sunday.

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

AVONDALE, Ariz. — Tony Stewart came of age Sunday, dominating the Checker Auto Parts-Dura Lube 500k, a race in which Dale Jarrett barely avoided disaster and took another step toward his first Winston Cup championship.

Stewart won for the second time this season, matching the rookie record set in 1987 by the late Davey Allison.

"I never would have thought we could have won one race," said Stewart, who previously won in Richmond, Va., on Sept. 11. "We knew the team was capable, but I didn't think they had a driver who knew how to win this year."

The 28-year-old Stewart started 11th in the 43-car field and took control of the race on the 159th of 312 laps around the one-mile Phoenix International Raceway oval.

The only time Stewart trailed the rest of the way was during a green-flag pit stop sequence. But even the stops worked in his favor as his Joe Gibbs Racing crew got him in and out in a hurry.

"They won that race for us in the pits," he said. "On the last stop (on lap 268), we went from a second and a half ahead to three seconds ahead. When you have Mark Martin in your mirrors, chasing you hard, you need all the edge you can get. That three-second lead made me feel a lot more comfortable."

Stewart's Pontiac beat Martin's Ford to the finish line by 2.081 seconds, a lead of nearly a full straightaway.

Jarrett, who came into the race leading Bobby Labone by 246 points in the championship chase, looked like a real contender early the race, although pole-winner John Andretti led the first 43 laps.

Jarrett led 50 of the first 148 laps. Then came trouble for the 42-year-old son of two-time series champion Ned Jarrett.

Raptors 109, Hornets 99

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Raptors may just be the team to beat in the Eastern Conference.

Vince Carter scored 25 points and five other Raptors scored in double figures as Toronto beat the Charlotte Hornets 109-99 Sunday.

The Raptors have won three straight games after losing their season opener. The Hornets, expected to be one of the top teams in the East, have lost two in a row after winning their first two.

"We can beat anybody," said Carter, whose team has also beat Miami and New Jersey.

Carter, known for his high-flying dunks, did much of his damage from the outside Sunday as all 11 of his points in the fourth quarter came on jumpers.

Suns 77, Spurs 74

PHOENIX — Jason Kidd gave Phoenix its first lead with a 17-foot jumper from the top of the key with 57 seconds remaining, hit another 14 seconds later, and the Suns held on to defeat previously unbeaten San Antonio 77-74 Sunday night.

Kidd got the second basket when teammate Penny Hardaway tipped an inbound pass from Tim Duncan of the Spurs directly to him. He passed the ball back to Hardaway, got it back and drove to the edge of the lane for the shot that made it 71-67.

On the Spurs' next possession, Avery Johnson missed a layup, Duncan failed to tap it in, and Luc Longley of the Suns rebounded with 33 seconds left. That led to a layup by Tom Gugliotta and a 73-67 lead with 27 seconds to play.

But the defending champions fought back, with David Robinson making a layup and Terry Porter hitting a layup and a 3-pointer over the next 22 seconds.

Chebet dominates New York Marathon

■ Joseph Chebet became the first person to win the New York and Boston Marathons since 1982.

By Bert Rosenthal
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Joseph Chebet made a vow before the New York City Marathon.

"If I lose this time, I will never go back to New York," the Kenyan told his coach.

Chebet can come back.

Ending the frustration of two straight second-place finishes, Chebet used a powerful finishing kick Sunday to outduel Portugal's Domingos Castro and win in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 14 seconds on a cool, windy day.

Chebet is the first marathoner to win in Boston and New York in the same year since Alberto Salazar in 1982. The only other runner to sweep those races in the same year was Bill Rodgers in 1978 and 1979.

"One day I was supposed to win New York," said Chebet, who also was second in Boston in 1998 before winning last April.

Adriana Fernandez, who also finished second last year, won the women's division by nearly 2 1/2 minutes and became the first Mexican woman to win an international marathon. She was timed in 2:25:06, the second-fastest in the race's history and only 26 seconds behind the record 2:24:40 by Australia's Lisa Ondieki in 1992.

"I was feeling very strong and decided to take off," Fernandez said about breaking away from defending champion Franca Fiacconi of Italy near mile 15. "It was very windy — some places almost stopped me. Probably without the wind, I could have broken the course record."

Chebet had to contend with the formidable Castro before taking charge with his late kick.

"He tried to push me hard, and I tried to push him very hard," Chebet said. "He made four or five surges and I covered them. I made some surges and he covered them. Then, I made one final move and pulled away."

Castro, the fourth-place finisher in the 5,000 meters at the 1988 Olympics after dogging gold medalist John Njugi of Kenya most of the way, was timed in 2:09:20. His twin brother, Dionisio, finished 33rd.

"Chebet is a strong athlete all the time," Domingos Castro said. "When he pushed, I was a little tired in my legs. In the last mile, I thought I could beat Chebet. I pushed, pushed, pushed."

Chebet and Castro ran side-by-side for about a mile until Chebet pulled away with about 1 3/4 miles to go. Between miles 24 and 25, he put in the fastest mile of the race, 4:43.

In winning, Chebet thwarted

John Kagwe's bid to become only the third man to win New York three straight years. The only two were Salazar, from 1980-82, and Rodgers, from 1976-79.

After last year's heartbreaking loss, when he was beaten by three seconds, Chebet said he would change his tactics.

"It's hard to take second-place finishes so often," he said.

His strategy worked perfectly in a field estimated at 30,000 that ran on a brisk, 46-degree day.

When Chebet entered Central Park, his coach, Gabriele Rosa, jumped from his chair in the press room and paced back and forth until the finish. When his protégé crossed the finish line, Rosa looked at the television screen and raised his arms in exultation.

"The race went as planned," he said. "He moved when I wanted him to."

"He is one of the top three marathoners in the world, in my opinion."

Lightning surprises Red Wings in Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Lightning finally notched a win against Detroit.

Chris Gratton and Darcy Tucker scored within 66 seconds early in the third period Sunday night to lead the Lightning, the NHL's worst team the past two seasons, to a surprising 3-2 victory over the Red Wings.

The Lightning snapped a ten-game winless streak (0-9-1) against Detroit with their first victory since Jan. 12, 1994. The last time Tampa Bay beat Detroit at home was Nov. 11, 1992, ending a nine-game (0-8-1) winless drought.

"You never want to get like that on the bench, but you said 'wow,' this was a great game," Tampa Bay coach Steve Ludzik said. "It kept going back and forth."

Gratton scored a rebound goal from the slot 55 seconds into the third period during a two-man advantage to break a 1-1 tie.

Frank Polich/Associated Press

New York's Petr Nedved is checked by Chicago's Blair Atcheynum (34) Sunday in Chicago.

Tucker added his goal just seconds after the power play ended.

Steve Yzerman scored his 48th career shorthanded goal for the Red Wings. The Detroit center now has 1,493 points and moved within one point of tying former Pittsburgh Penguins star Mario Lemieux for seventh place on the career list.

Tampa Bay, who scored six straight goals in a 7-4 win at Pittsburgh Saturday night, got 31 saves from goalie Kevin Hodson in his first start of the season.

Hurricanes 3, Capitals 2

RALEIGH, N.C. — Bates Battaglia scored early in the second period and linemate Ron Francis moved into a tie for fifth on the all-time assists list as the Carolina Hurricanes beat the Washington Capitals 3-2 Sunday night.

The Hurricanes were outscored a combined 10-2 in their previous two home losses in the team's new arena, but jumped in front early this time and had a two-goal second period to take control.

Carolina avoided losing its first three home games of a season for the first time in the franchise's 21 years.

Joe Sacco's first goal of the season 2:52 into the third period made it a one-goal game and Jan Bulis hit the cross-bar with 11 minutes left, but Carolina hung on for the win.

Rangers 3, Blackhawks 1

CHICAGO — Kirk McLean stopped 23 shots as the New York Rangers snapped a seven-game winless streak with a 3-1 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks Sunday night.

Mike York, Petr Nedved and Adam Graves each scored for New York, which had gone 0-5-2 since beating Atlanta on Oct. 17.

Wendel Clark connected early in the third period for the Blackhawks, who remain winless at home this season. Chicago dropped to 0-5-3 at the United Center.

Entering the game, McLean was 1-7-1 with a lifetime goals-against average of 4.99 against Chicago. But he enjoyed strong defensive support from his teammates and benefited from sloppy Blackhawks passing and offensive execution on Sunday.

Galloway says he'll report to Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Holdout wide receiver Joey Galloway, after missing eight games during his contract dispute, plans to report to the Seattle Seahawks on Monday, he said on Fox Sports Net on Sunday.

"We decided that going in, playing some football and getting the last year of the contract over with would be the best move," Galloway said. He added that he believes he has been "calling the shots all along."

By returning to Seattle on Monday,

Galloway can spend the minimum 30 days on the roster needed to count this as a full season. It would give him five seasons and thus make him eligible for free agency, if the Seahawks don't label him their franchise player.

"The first purpose is to play football. That's what I do, that's what I love doing," Galloway said.

"Yes, it gives me a lot more options at the end of the season if I am a free agent or labeled a franchise player."

Galloway has been fined more than $200,000 for his absence, plus missing his game pay.

After 40 years a Gibson step do

■ The director of the Services Group will June 30, 2000.

By Corrie D
The Daily Iowan

News of Richard Gibson has some UI officials concerned finding a replacement for his 40 years of service at the UI.

Gibson, a UI associate professor and the director of the Services Group, will retire on Monday, June 30, 2000.

Gibson retiring after 40 years of service at UI absentee, said Douglas True, president for financial services.

The search will begin to find a suitable replacement. Gibson oversees such things as custodial services, plant operations and labor of UI buildings, a division of 650 UI employees.

The Medical Educational Research building is in the final stage of construction. Gibson's leaving "might cause many administrative problems," True said.

The building is the project the UI has taken on. "That is why we want to get it done now," he said, adding that the building is expected to remain open until completion by fall 2001.

"He has eight months of work," True said.

Alice Fulton, the head of the Services Group, said she will be working with Gibson to ensure a smooth transition.
