Lefty Driesell went 176-65 in his tenure at Davidson while leading the 'Cats to the postseason three times. Mike Maloy helped lead the 'Cats to three straight NCAA appearances.

Each man who ever wore the uniform of Davidson basketball, and each coach who ever sat on the bench to direct the Wildcats, deserves recognition and honor. That stipulation is made here at the top, at the very beginning.

Norman Shepard, for instance, coached Davidson for 12 seasons, from 1938 to 1949, and produced teams that won 19 games in two seasons, 18 games in two seasons and 17 games once.

Tom Scott coached the Wildcats for five seasons, and while his record was not spectacular, he was considered one of the most influential athletic directors in America, and it was he who hired Lefty Driesell, an obscure high school coach, to succeed him as Davidson's head coach. Talk about good executive decisions!

Terry Holland, Driesell's first Davidson recruit, coached the Wildcats for five seasons, had a record of 92-43 and won one Southern Conference championship. Many other former coaches made major contributions in their own ways.

Countless players made headlines for their excellent play and brought glory to the red and black. Space limitations, of course, prevent us from detailing all the achievements of so many.

Any objective evaluation of men's basketball at Davidson would likely come to the conclusion that two men and two coaching eras stand out as the crowning achievements of Davidson basketball.

Charles G. (Lefty) Driesell, Davidson's coach for nine glorious seasons, is one.

Bob McKillop, in his 33rd season as head coach of the Wildcats, is the other.

Driesell took over the Davidson program from Dr. Scott in 1960-61. Never one to tread lightly entering a room, Driesell's Wildcats shocked powerful Wake Forest 65-59 in the first game he ever coached at Davidson.

Driesell didn't come to Davidson to win every now and then or to pull an upset occasionally. His mission

- and it was a mission - was to have the best program in the country. To accomplish that, he knew he'd have to hit the road and recruit players who could compete at the highest level of college basketball while meeting the rigorous academic standards of Davidson.

That would have been enough to discourage most people, but Driesell had many doors slammed in his face in his days as a door-to-door encyclopedia salesman. There was always another door to knock on, another presentation to make, and the answer might be yes this time.

Play the percentages, Lefty thought then. Knock on enough doors and somebody is going to buy a set of books. It's the same philosophy he followed later in recruiting. There was another roadblock, a rather serious one. Davidson's basketball recruiting budget for the entire year was a whopping $500.

That didn't deter Driesell either. It made him a little bit angry but didn't stall him. Here's one way he overcame it. The athletic department had a green Chevrolet station wagon. Driesell packed his personal belongings, drove it to an airport in Ohio, parked in the terminal lot and slept in the vehicle overnight. The next morning he went to the airport restroom and shaved, changed clothes and met the parents of high school star Don Davidson at one of the terminal gates. They didn't know until much later that he didn't fly in. Driesell knew that coaches from North Carolina and Duke wouldn't have to drive that far on a recruiting trip, and he wasn't going to give them an inch.

Driesell proved to be one of the best recruiters ever. He brought the likes of Fred Hetzel, Dick Snyder, Mike Maloy, Jerry Kroll, Doug Cook, Barry Teague, Rodney Knowles, Don Davidson and countless others to Davidson. Most basketball historians would likely have Hetzel, Snyder and Maloy alongside Stephen Curry on the Mount Rushmore of Davidson Basketball.

Once he assembled the talent, Driesell coached them to play tough man defense, rebound and take good shots. He won 176 games at Davidson and lost only 65. His teams won three Southern Conference tournament championships, played in three NCAA tournaments and missed on at least two more they should have made.

For instance, in 1963-64, the 22-4 Wildcats lost in the SoCon tournament in Charlotte to VMI, 82-81. The teams had played twice in the regular season, with Davidson winning by 12 and 38 points. There was no comparison between the two teams, but that's tournament basketball. The best team loses sometimes. Fans enjoy watching it for the same reason they pull over to the side of the road to get a better view of a train wreck.

Davidson's 24-2 team of 1964-65, which Driesell said was one of his best, had won 23 games in a row when it was beaten in overtime by West Virginia in the SoCon tournament. Davidson didn't get a chance to play in the national tournament because of that loss.

"That team would have been a serious contender for the national championship," Lefty says, still smarting from the loss that ended his season.

Driesell's last two Davidson teams got within a breath of making the Final Four. The 1967-68 team was 24-5, defeated St. John's and Columbia in the NCAA tournament before losing to North Carolina. In Driesell's last season at Davidson, the Wildcats were 27-3, ranked third in the nation in the last national poll and beat Villanova and St. John's in the NCAA tournament. Davidson was one win away from the Final Four, but a two-point loss to nemesis North Carolina ended its season.

The Driesell era saw the Wildcats playing before capacity crowds of 11,666 fans at the old Charlotte Coliseum. The excitement of having such a great basketball program flowed across the campus like rampaging rapids, all the time enhancing the spirits and morale of students, alumni and friends of the college. Driesell's Wildcats were featured on the cover of Sports Illustrated and other national publications, and the widespread publicity dramatically increased the number of student applications to Davidson.

Driesell's goal was to play the best and beat them. He broke a long Ohio State home winning streak by routing the Buckeyes, 95-73. It was televised back to the Charlotte area and helped create even more excitement about Lefty and his team. The 1965 team beat Wake Forest, Ohio State, Virginia, Alabama and NYU.

The Driesell Era is known as "The Glory Years." Driesell and his players made a mark that will stand out as long as the sport is played at Davidson. It's no exaggeration to say that Lefty's miracle at Davidson is one of the greatest achievements in college basketball history.

Times change, of course. Rules are different, the environment changes. Bob McKillop faces obstacles today that weren't there 40 years ago. Recruiting, for example, has changed completely. While it used to be possible by hard work to whisk away star players that many schools didn't know about, there's no way to do it now. There are more recruiting services than there are fleas on a hound dog. Young players are ranked and written about from the time they enter junior high school. There are very few recruiting secrets out there. In fact, recruiting is a sport unto itself. There is no shortage whatsoever of recruiting nuts. They are in ample supply.

McKillop's tenure at Davidson, still ongoing, has produced a record of 607 wins, 373 losses. He's won more games than any basketball coach in Davidson history. His teams won seven SoCon tournament championships, dominated league play in the regular season and participated in nine NCAA tournaments, advancing to the Elite Eight in 2008. McKillop was Southern Conference coach of the year nine times. His 278 wins against SoCon teams are the most by any coach ever.
The Bob McKillop era reached new heights in 2007-08 when the Wildcats, led by Stephen Curry, came within a game of the program's first-ever trip to the Final Four.

In 2014-15, the Wildcats were predicted to finish 12th in the Atlantic 10 Conference, which they joined on July 1, 2014.

Not only did they capture the regular season title outright, earning McKillop A-10 Coach of the Year, the Wildcats received the school's first-ever NCAA at-large selection.

Three years later, Davidson knocked off nationally-ranked Rhode Island in the 2018 Atlantic 10 Championship, 58-57, to claim its first A-10 tournament crown and earn the program's 14th NCAA Tournament bid.

The consistency that he brings to his program is extraordinary. His brilliance in winning in conference play put a bull's-eye on Davidson's chest. If they would be honest about it, nearly every school in the SoCon would've listed Davidson as its number one rival. To win in this environment, where every road game is a festival, through thick and thin, in good times and bad, is what makes McKillop's program stand out.

He and his staff work extremely hard in recruiting. They not only look for players with good basketball talent and excellent grades, but also for young men who will fit in well with the players already in the Davidson program. If a player had scintillating basketball skills but showed traits of being selfish or unconcerned about others, he wouldn't end up at Davidson. McKillop doesn't recruit problems.

Talk to the young men in Davidson's program now, ask them why they came to Davidson, and to the man, they will mention McKillop's honesty in recruiting as one of their major reasons for coming.

Like Driesell, McKillop will not duck a fight. His teams always look to build a challenging non-conference schedule.

Ian Johnson, a 2006 Davidson graduate, and one of the best offensive inside players McKillop has ever coached, played professional basketball in Sweden. When asked to comment on his playing days at Davidson under McKillop, he said:

"By far the greatest dimension of Davidson basketball is the bond that grows between the players from year to year. It's a unity forged through innumerable hours of work on the court and an enormous number of defining experiences off it. I am able to recall the hard-fought championships, the significant victories and my best personal performances. But more than that, it is the faces of my teammates that I see, the guys I spent four years of my life with, and all the laughs, jokes, pranks and tears that we shared together. I can see how lucky we were to have so many great opportunities, and the way we seized them together… I'm still great friends with the guys I graduated with, and the bond that we share after four years of Davidson basketball is one that can never be replaced."

McKillop's style is to keep basketball in perspective. Certainly, he's passionate about winning. He encourages his players to experience the total college life at Davidson, which one could discern from Ian Johnson's remarks.

The McKillop era is still going strong. He is 71, has the energy of a hummingbird and should have many productive coaching years ahead. Driesell is retired from coaching and living in Virginia Beach, Va. McKillop marvels at what Driesell did at Davidson and keeps reminders of Lefty's success sprinkled around his office as a reminder that it has been done and can be repeated. What's wrong with dreaming?

McKillop's team in 2007-08, which went 29-7 and advanced to the Midwest Regional Final, began to mirror the Driesell teams of the 1960s. The 'Cats came within one shot of the Final Four, much like the 1968-69 Wildcats.

It would make no sense whatsoever to try to pick one era as superior to the other, Driesell vs. McKillop. Both have been superb in their own ways, surreal in their excellence. Driesell's "Glory Years" and McKillop's "Magic."

Two great coaches along with their excellent players and assistant coaches have written most of the headlines for Davidson basketball's first 100-plus years. Theirs has been an inspiring story.

And with McKillop, keep an open tab. The best might well be still out there for him and his program.
In 2020-21, Hyunjung Lee became the first player in school history to shoot at least 50 percent overall, 40 percent from 3-point range and 90 percent at the free throw line.

BOB MCKILLOP
1989-PRES.
Record: 607-373

The 2007-08 NABC National Coach of the Year led Davidson to the 2008 NCAA Tournament Midwest Regional Championship game. The Wildcats' unbelievable run ended with a two-point loss to eventual tournament champion Kansas, and Davidson finished the campaign with a final ranking of ninth in the ESPN/USA Today Poll. Under McKillop the Wildcats have advanced to postseason play 18 times (NCAA 9, NIT 8, CBI 1), including 14 of the last 16 years. The 10-time Conference Coach of the Year has won more games in Davidson history than any other coach.

LEFTY DRIESELL
Record: 176-65

Coming from the high school ranks where his teams at Newport News posted a record of 64-6, including a 57-game winning streak and a state championship, Charles "Lefty" Driesell was determined to put Davidson on the national map. As it turned out, he coached three of Davidson's six All-Americans, led the 'Cats to their highest national ranking, the Elite Eight in 1968 and 1969 and won SoCon Coach of the Year an unprecedented four straight times. His .730 winning percentage has yet to be surpassed at Davidson. Driesell also coached the 'Cats to six straight 20-win seasons.
NORMAN SHEPARD
Record: 170-119

Norman Shepard held coaching ranks at Davidson for 12 seasons while also assuming the position of athletic director. Shepard was active in basketball since his college days at Davidson and North Carolina, where he received his bachelor's degree. As coach of the Wildcats, Shepard's win total has only been surpassed by Lefty Driesell and Bob McKillop. Prior to Davidson, Shepard coached at North Carolina and in 1924 led an undefeated team to 25 consecutive wins and a recognized national championship. He ranks third in career wins at Davidson and fifth in winning percentage.

TERRY HOLLAND
Record: 92-43

As an assistant and player under Driesell, Terry Holland became the 13th Davidson head basketball coach. He continued where Driesell left off, leading the 'Cats to their third straight SoCon title and an NCAA Tournament berth in his first season. Holland never had a losing season and was league coach of the year in 1970, '71 and '72. During his five seasons, the 'Cats lost only seven league games. Holland ended his career after combining for 418 wins at Davidson and Virginia. He ranks second in winning percentage at Davidson with a .681 mark.

GEORGE CHEEK

1949 Helms Foundation (3rd)

George "Buddy" Cheek excelled in two sports — football and basketball — at Davidson College and was instrumental in one of the Wildcats' most successful basketball eras. He led Davidson to records of 17-8, 19-9, and 18-8 (54-25) in his three seasons with the Wildcats. Cheek was the first Davidson player to score 1,000 points in his career (including a freshman season at Tulane). He was an all-state and All-Southern Conference selection as a center in basketball and a third team Helms Foundation All-America selection in 1949.
FRED HETZEL

1963 - Helms Foundation, Converse Yearbook (2nd); 1964 - Consensus All-America (2nd), Converse Yearbook (1st), Helms Foundation; 1965 - Consensus All-America (1st)

Davidson's first three-time All-American, Fred Hetzel led Davidson's basketball rebirth in the mid-1960s under Lefty Driesell. The three-time Southern Conference Player of the Year helped Davidson to its first national ranking. The center from Washington, D.C., finished his career as Davidson's all-time leader in points (2,032) and rebounds (1,111). He was an inaugural inductee into the Davidson Athletics Hall of Fame in 1989-90.

DICK SNYDER

1966 - Consensus All-America (2nd), USBWA (1st), Converse Yearbook (1st), The Sporting News (1st)

Following in Hetzel's footsteps, Snyder was the Southern Conference Player of the Year and an All-America selection in his senior season. Snyder had a jump shot that one writer described as "softer than a Carolina sunrise." Snyder's sweet jumper allowed him to score 1,693 points in his career while averaging 26.9 per game during his All-American season. Considered the best defensive player ever under Coach Lefty Driesell, Snyder was inducted into the Davidson Athletics Hall of Fame with Hetzel in 1989-90.

MIKE MALOY

1968 - Converse Yearbook (2nd); 1969 - Consensus All-America (2nd), USBWA (1st), Converse Yearbook (1st); 1970 - The Sporting News (2nd), Converse Yearbook (2nd), AP (3rd), UPI (3rd), NABC (3rd), Basketball News (3rd)

A three-time All-America selection, Maloy led Davidson to three straight Conference titles and as many trips to the NCAA Tournament. Maloy's teams were a win away from the Final Four two years in a row but lost each time to North Carolina. He is Davidson's all-time leading rebounder and 11th leading scorer. He was a three-time All-SoCon selection and the league's Player of the Year in 1969 and 1970.

JOHN GERDY

1979 Helms Foundation

Gerdy finished his career as Davidson's all-time leading scorer with 2,483 points. In 1979, he was named Southern Conference Athlete of the Year and listed as a Helms Foundation All-American. He earned All-SoCon accolades in three straight seasons, from 1977-79. Gerdy is one of five Wildcats to break the 2,000-point barrier and ranks fourth on the Southern Conference all-time scoring chart. Gerdy was inducted into the Davidson Hall of Fame in 1994-95.

STEPHEN CURRY
2006-09

2008 - Consensus All-America (2nd) 2009 - Consensus All-America (1st)

The school's and SoCon's all-time leading scorer with 2,635 points, Curry was selected seventh by the Golden State Warriors in the 2009 NBA Draft. At the time, he ranked 25th in all-time NCAA Division I scoring, and his 414 career 3-pointers ranked fourth. In 2007-08, he set the NCAA single-season 3-point record with 162 while leading the 'Cats to the Midwest Regional Final and earning Most Outstanding Player honors. In 2008-09, he led the nation in scoring (28.6 ppg) earning consensus first-team All-America.
