

DIPTERA SPECIES RECORDED AT WINDSOR FOREST AND GREAT PARK

This is based on the Appendix to The two-winged flies (Diptera) of Windsor Forest and Great Park, a supplement to Volume 28 (2021) of Dipterists Digest. It comprises an inventory of the Diptera species recorded from Windsor Forest and Great Park. The list as published was contemporary with that article, but provision of this on line version has the potential for updates with any additional records that might in future be obtained.

All records of Diptera that have been ascertained from those parts of the Crown Estate in the hectads SU97, SU96 and SU86 are included. Records for each species are arranged under the recording areas that have been defined within each of these hectads. The list is in systematic order of families, following the July 2021 update of the Diptera checklist, as available on the website. Within each family species are listed alphabetically.

In the published version, the recording areas and the names of the recorders are abbreviated, but here the site and recorder names are spelt in full.

Compartments of the Royal Estate

For purposes of biological recording in the 1980s, the Estate was divided into recording compartments designated A to U (Fig. 1), with numerous subdivisions based on topography and habitats. Not all parts of the Estate have received any attention in recording of Diptera and many of those in private areas were in any case not accessible for recording. Compartment A has always dominated most recording effort by dipterists, though in recent years more attention has been given to other areas, including some in hectad SU86 which are omitted from Fig. 1. In the species list the compartments are sometimes indicated as Comp G, etc. (depending on what was reported by recorders). Numbers of particular trees (e.g. tree 103) are those on attached metal tags.

The recording areas are listed below in north to south order of hectads, and alphabetical order of Compartments within each hectad, with the relevant compartment and 1km grid reference also stated. Most of the Estate is in Berkshire; areas marked * in SU97 are in Surrey. In SU96 most of the Valley Gardens and eastern part of Virginia Water are in Surrey.

Some significant records from Silwood Park, which adjoins the Estate in SU96, are mentioned. It is a field station of Imperial College, at which much research-based recording has taken place, but it is outside the Estate and no attempt has been made to compile data from there.

Recorders who appear in the species list

The data presented is attributed to 61 recorders, including all dipterists and some others who are known to have recorded Diptera on the Estate; a few others who contributed odd records are named only in the list. The dates on which each recorder is known to have visited are listed chronologically; years are in the 20th century except where indicated. [Numbers in square brackets, following the list of dates for each recorder, are the number of species attributed to that recorder in the following species list]. Museums cited are the Natural History Museum, London (NHM), Oxford University Museum (OXUM), and the National Museum of Wales, Cardiff (NMW).

SPECIES LIST

Families are arranged in the taxonomic order of the British Checklist (Chandler 1998b and updates on the Dipterists Forum website); nomenclature follows the latest update. Within families all species are listed alphabetically, without separation into subfamilies and tribes.

For each species records are arranged under the three hectads of the national grid that include part of the Crown Estate: SU97, SU96 and SU86 in that order. Within these sections, the locations are indicated by the recording areas listed above, roughly in the order of the recording compartments. The area or compartment is followed by the year or years of the record, followed in brackets by the recorder's name and the precise date, together with details where appropriate of gender and other relevant information, e.g. where rearing has taken place or if a particular habitat or niche within the recording area is significant.

For species recorded regularly in an area in consecutive years this is indicated by stating the range of years involved, and a range of months (without precise dates) is also given where there are several records spread over two or more months in any of the years involved. The Malaise trap records are usually given only as a month or range of months for the year concerned. If one recorder is responsible for all records of a species, or for a number of consecutive records, the recorder's name is given once after the list of records so attributed.

The following symbols are used and precede the species name in the list:

† Saproxylic without any association with a fungus

‡ Developing in saproxylic fungi (including species that may also develop in terrestrial fungi)

↓ Developing in terrestrial fungi (not recorded from saproxylic species)

Acknowledgements

The records presented here have been compiled from various sources, including the publications listed in the References below and previously unpublished data, both from my own recording and from that by other entomologists who have visited the Estate. For my own contribution, I thank the Crown Estate and Natural England for permission to record there. Data from other recorders were gathered by the Nature Conservancy Council and its successors from the 1980s onwards, and more recently by the Recording Schemes affiliated to Dipterists Forum. Wherever possible, all those known to have recorded Diptera at Windsor have been contacted to ensure the accuracy of the data attributed to them, and I am grateful for their input.

Material caught in Malaise traps in 1992 and 1993 was kindly made available by Keith Porter of Natural England, and material from traps run at High Standing Hill in 1994 and 1995 was provided by James Brock. Specimens trapped by Tony Russell-Smith in 2012 were received via Chris Spilling, and I am grateful to Tony for information about these. The following are thanked for identification of Malaise trap material: Henry Disney (Phoridae), Martin Drake (Dolichopodidae), Paul Gatt (Sphaeroceridae), David Gibbs (Pipunculidae), John Ismay (Chloropidae), Iain MacGowan (Lonchaeidae), Adrian Plant (Empididae and Hybotidae), Keith Porter (Syrphidae and Lower Brachycera), Olga Sivell (Calliphoridae), and Alan Stubbs (Tipuloidea). Some of them also assisted with identification of specimens collected by me, and Peter Langton is responsible for all identifications of Chironomidae.

To enable historic data to be accurately represented, museum collections containing Windsor specimens were consulted. For that opportunity I am grateful to Gina Allnatt (Doncaster Museum and Art Gallery), Dmitri Logunov (Manchester University Museum), Erica McAlister (Natural History Museum, London), and Adrian Plant (National Museum of Wales), and for their assistance during my visits to these institutions.

I am indebted to all the recorders who have contributed to knowledge of Windsor Diptera in almost a century of recording since Horace Donisthorpe first brought this locality to the attention of dipterists by finding species that he realised might be of some interest to them. Others who have assisted in many ways were acknowledged in the main article.
