The Declaration of Independence

July 4, 1776

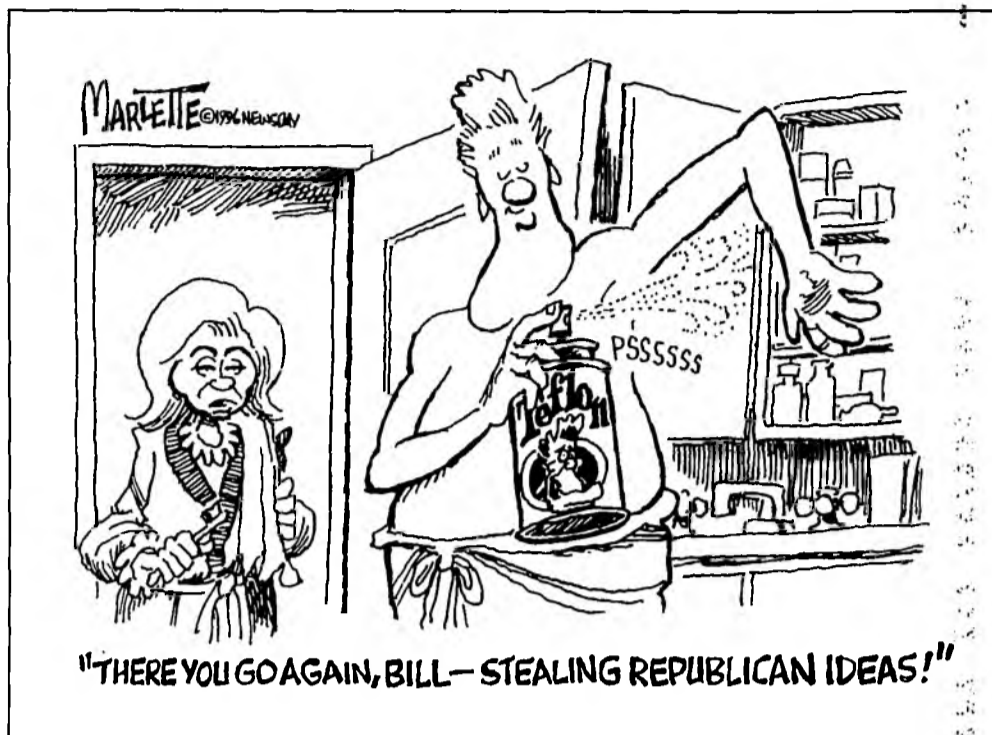

When in the Course of Human Events, it becomes necessary for one People to dissolve the Political Bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the Earth, the separate and equal Station to which the Laws of Nature requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the Separation.

We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by the Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness — that to secure these Rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Powers from the Consent of the Governed, that whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these Ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its Foundation on such Principles, and organizing its Powers in such Form, as to these shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly all Experience has shewn, that Mankind are more disposed to suffer, while Evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the Forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long Train of Abuses and Usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a Design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their Right, it is their Duty to throw off such Government and to provide new Guards for their future Security. Such has been the patient Sufferance of these Colonies and such is now the Necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government.

The History of the present King of Great-Britain is a History of repeated Injuries and Usurpations, all having direct Object the Establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid World ...

In every stage of these Oppressions we have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble Terms: our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated Injury. A Prince, whose Character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the Ruler of a free People ...

We, therefore, the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the Rectitude of our Intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly Publish and Declare, That these Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political Connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm Reliance on the Protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor.

July Fourth Fireworks Can Be Dangerous

To the editor:

As the Fourth of July approaches, we all look forward to the traditional, dazzling displays of color and sound in the night sky. Public fireworks displays have been part of our celebrations for many years.

Unfortunately, there are always amateurs who want to conduct their own private displays and the result is often serious injury and/or property damage.

In 1993, the N.C. General Assembly made certain types of fireworks legal again in the state. These so-called "safe and sane" pyrotechnics became widely available.

The law is specific about the kinds of fireworks which can be sold by stores and used by individuals.

Any device which exceeds the specified amount of explosive material or which launches itself or moves around under its own power is still illegal. This includes firecrackers and Roman candles. Last year, the legislature made it unlawful to sell any fireworks to persons under the age of 16.

A survey by UNC and the N.C. Department of Insurance showed that in 1994, more than half of fireworks injuries were caused by fireworks that are illegal in North Carolina. A third of those injuries were to children under the age of 16.

Remember, even sparklers burn at 1,400 degrees. It is tragic and unnecessary for anyone to lose their eyesight, hearing, fingers or hands to fireworks accidents. And you are responsible for property damage caused by the use of fireworks.

This holiday, enjoy fireworks displays put on by certified professionals who are operating under a permit issued by the Fire Marshal's Office. Play it safe. Don't play with fireworks.

George Frye Jr.
Davie Fire Marshal

Habitat Holds Another Successful Fund Raiser

To the editor:

Many thanks to all who supported the Habitat Gospel Sing on June 22. The night was hot and sultry but the gospel groups—The Craft Brothers and The Sounds of Faith—who donated their time and talents presented an inspiring, enjoyable evening of terrific gospel singing.

Through fund-raisers such as this, supporters such as these, and wonderful volunteers such as these, Habitat for Humanity of Davie County is able to help provide shelter for those in need.

Diane Crisp
President, Habitat for Humanity of Davie Co.

Red Cross Grateful For Support Of Davie People

To the editor:

On behalf of the NWNC Chapter of the American Red Cross and its Davie County Service Center, I would like to thank the community for supporting several Red Cross events held during the month of June.

The Davie YMCA provided facilities and instructors for our "Learn to Swim" program June 3-7 where 35 individuals received free water safety and swimming instruction. On June 8 we sponsored "Dine Out Day." Several local restaurants participated by donating 10% of gross sales for the day to the Red Cross.

The money raised will support emergency services, blood services, and health services in our county. On June 24 our local service center sponsored a bloodmobile. My thanks to each and every donor who participated. We achieved 100% of our collection goal. The summer months are a crucial time for blood collection. You have given a precious gift to patients in our local hospitals. I also want to acknowledge those volunteers who came out to support our local disaster program by attending meetings and training sessions. These individuals are a vital part of our service to the county.

I just want the community to know how much I appreciate their support of our efforts to deliver services to the people of Davie County.

Jean Cleary
Board Member NWNC Chapter

'Tis The Season For 'Mater Sandwiches

*I wish that I could ever grow, a loaf of bread, with crust just so
Add some mayonaise, just right
A slab of tomato, what a sight.
Some salt and pepper, if you please
And into culinary heaven, I will ease.*

It never fails. When July comes around, along with the barbecues and fireworks and flags, thoughts in these parts turn to one thing - tomato sandwiches.

Around here, you could serve them at a country club social or at a pauper's picnic. The result would be the same. Instant, lip-smacking delight.

You can make a meal out of them. They can be a snack, or anything in between.

But talk about the proper ingredients, and you can start a heated argument. The only thing required by all is that the tomatoes be home grown. A tomato grown in a greenhouse, no matter what kind of gimmicky growing medium is used, is no good for a tomato sandwich. They're barely tolerable cut up in a salad.

The traditionalists require square cornered, white bread. The mayonaise must be one of the Southern brands, such as Duke's or JFG, and it must be loaded. High test, with lots of fat. The salt must be white and the pepper black, used "to taste," which in most cases, means generously. Mayonaise must also be applied generously.

If you're wearing Sunday clothes, you have to be careful eating a traditional tomato sandwich. That thin white bread can come apart quickly when the juice from the tomato and mayonaise start to flow. That flow can quickly run down your wrist to your elbow, as well. Have a napkin nearby, because there's no way to eat a tomato sandwich without having a little bit left on the corner of your mouth.

Some of the more modern tomato sandwich aficionados prefer low-fat mayonaise. They'll even go for low-fat bread, maybe even a low-fat wheat bread. They'll leave off the salt, too. Call it a sign of the times. Some people these days won't eat anything unless it's low fat. Marketers are making a mint off these folks. You could call that version a Yankee tomato sandwich, but it's not. Mention a tomato sandwich of any variety to a Yankee, and you'll likely get the same look you'll get if you mention grits and saw mill gravy. They don't appreciate a tomato sandwich. If you don't believe me, try ordering one in New Jersey.

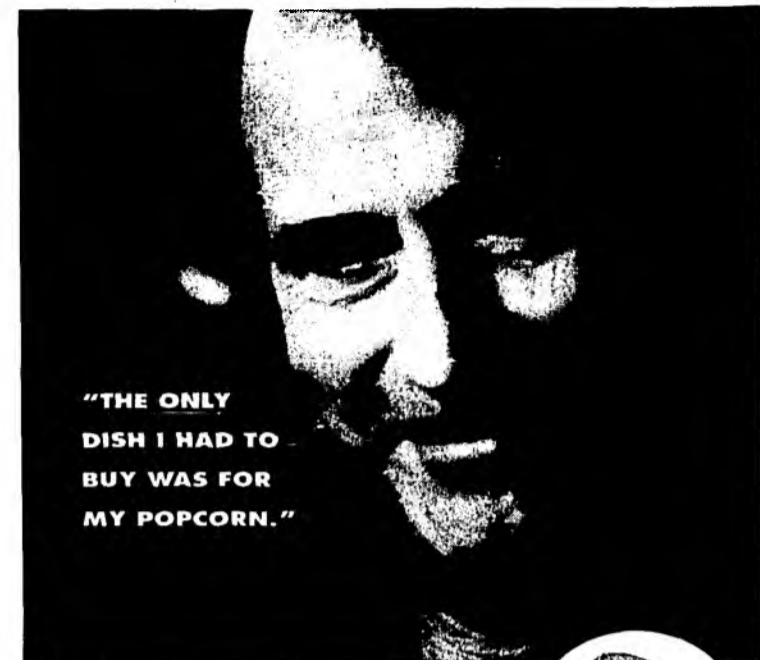

Home gardeners especially appreciate the value of a good tomato sandwich. They put plants in the ground early, and often. These gardeners baby these plants, adding fertilizer and water when needed, checking on them daily. In the back of their mind, that first sandwich of the year keeps them working. They check on their neighbors' gardens, wondering who will get to enjoy that first sandwich.

Some will argue about the best tomato for a sandwich - Beefsteak, Big Boy, Better Boy, German Pink - just to name a few. Some want a single slice to be big enough to cover the bread. Others don't mind using three or four or five slices. It really doesn't matter, as long as it's ripe and juicy.

It's that special time of the year, again. Be sure to buy an extra loaf of bread and jar of mayonaise at the grocery store. And enjoy. In a couple of months, they'll be gone.

Winning The Coveted Patricia Schroeder Award For Patient Care Means A Lot To Us. Sending Clyde Kizziah Back Home To Sarah A Week Early Means More.

The Patricia Schroeder Award for Innovations in Patient Care Quality is given to just one hospital in America each year.

We are extremely honored to be the recipient of the 1996 award for developing processes that lowered hospital charges, improved the quality of patient care, and decreased length of stays.

These efforts, spearheaded by a dedicated team of physicians, nurses, allied health professionals and many others, resulted in dramatic changes. Including a 50 percent decrease in the average length of stay and a 35 percent decrease in charges for patients with congestive heart failure.

Improving health care like this is what we're all about. If we win awards in the process of doing it, that's fine. If we don't, that's fine, too.

Because we aren't here to make contest judges happy. The people we want to make happy are Clyde and Sarah.

And you.

They presented the award to us. But you're the real winner.

Group Takes Petition To Utilities Commission

 been speculating about what happened. The surge happened when a tree limb fell across a 4,000 volt power line near the Maple Street substation, causing it to touch a 24,000 volt line. From the time the lines met until the power shut off, customers who had been receiving power from the 4,000 volt line were getting a combination of voltages, Bralley said.

After visiting the site, Bralley and Long agreed there was no way anyone would have seen it to report if the limb had fallen on Saturday. But residents still had a number of questions and complaints for Diamond.

At that meeting, Bralley suggested that Diamond arrange a meeting for residents to address their questions about the surge to technical experts from Duke Power and encouraged the group to postpone submission of the petition until such a meeting could be held.

Speaking with a representative for the Utilities Commission, Long said he was given an extension, allowing the petition to be submitted after the group had met with Duke Power representatives.

But after that meeting, victims of the power surge said they are still not satisfied with the answers they have received from Duke Power about what happened.

Long said he still believes the company has been negligent in its clearance of rights-of-way around power lines.

Because it was based on the belief that Duke Power had known about the fallen tree limb before the power shut off May 12, it may have to be revised, Long said.

Under the advisement of a representative of the Utilities Commission, Long said Friday that the group may be able to proceed with the petition as it is.

Historically, when investigating this type of incident, the Utilities Commission has found the power company not to be negligent, Long said.

"If the Utilities Commission finds Duke Power was not negligent, I think the door is closed on us," he told the group.

But residents have done everything possible to this point to deal with Duke Power, he said.

"I think there's not much other choice," he said.

Even if the Utilities Commission were to find that Duke Power had been negligent, it cannot order the company

Kevin Long has led the group in its efforts to negotiate with Duke Power.

Duke Power Denies Negligence In Surge, Agrees To Several Customer Requests

 Maintenance cost and repair time is also higher, he said.

Similar problems would be created by cutting the lines to prevent them from touching.

Because the wires would be so much heavier, poles would have to be moved closer together. It could also create more problems during winter storms. The weight of ice on the lines might cause them to break more easily, Bowen said.

Duke Power has even tried running the lines side by side, but there's no cure, he said.

"If I knew of a cure, I would do it," he said.

A number of residents are wondering if some of Duke Power's equipment that was damaged by the ice storm and might not have been completely repaired could have caused this problem, Long said.

But Bowen assured the group that was not the case.

After the ice storm, Duke Power had 20 crews to follow up after repairs to make sure everything was safe, he said.

"This was not the result of any negligence," he said.

Whether the incidents were related or not, people are now wondering what can be done to prevent this from happening again.

Anticipating that question, Bowen said he had contacted some Duke Power employees who were meeting with representatives from a company that builds surge protectors to see if there were any devices available to help with this type of surge.

Unfortunately, surge protectors are built to protect against lightning—not against a sustained surge like the one experienced in Mocksville May 12. There is nothing on the market to take care of this residentially. Whether or not a standard surge protector will work is potluck, he said.

Many people are also wondering why some homes were hit while others were spared, Long said.

One of the requests the group is making of Duke Power is that the company check homes for proper grounding.

Bowen agreed to do this for any customer who experienced damage from the power surge.

To request this free service, customers may contact Judy Anderson at 910-727-4342.

Bowen said a note will be left on the door to let customers know someone has been to their homes to check grounding.

If there is a problem with the way a home is grounded, it is not Duke Power's responsibility to fix the problem. It is up to the property owner to contact an electrician, Long said.

The local building inspector can let residents know in what range their homes should be grounded, Town Manager Terry Bralley said.

Long asked if people should unplug appliances during a power outage to prevent damage from a surge when power is resumed.

"That is a good precautionary measure, but, in the case of the May 12 surge, it would not have helped because the damage was done before the power shut off," Bowen said.

Miranda Bryan disagreed.

She said she was at home when the power went off that morning and noticed no damage before leaving for church around 11 a.m. When she got home from church, her apartment was filled with smoke, coming from her clothes dryer.

Knotts argued that the damage was done when she left for church but was not detectable until power had been restored to the dryer.

"It could have burned down the whole complex," Bryan said.

She said Duke Power was making no effort to help its customers.

If she treated customers the way victims of the power surge had been treated by Duke Power customer service representatives, it would result in instant dismissal from her job, Bryan said.

Long said one of the reasons for all the confusion were the conflicting stories people had been told when contacting Duke Power about the problem.

A lot of the answers customers received from Duke Power representatives were incorrect or based on speculation. Many were met with poor attitudes. Some were even given phony names to contact, he said.

In his own situation, Long said he began calling Duke Power May 12.

When he was told that Duke Power would not accept responsibility for the damage, he asked for something in writing. After waiting about three weeks, he had received nothing. Calling back, he was told that no letter was sent because he had gotten his answer over the phone. When he again requested a letter, he was told one would be sent in a couple days. A week and a half later, he called and was told his letter had been mailed that morning, Long said.

Knotts said he is comfortable that 99.9 percent of the people who file a claim with Duke Power get a written response.

However, a representative may try to nip the situation in the bud and save the letter writing if the customer accepts the company's response by phone, he said.

But Long, who said he argued with the representative for about 20 minutes, told Knotts that was definitely not the case.

Anyone who filed a valid claim with Duke Power should have received a letter from the company, he said.

"You say 99.9 percent. We've blown that ratio right here in this room," Long are properly grounded and sending letters to those who need them.

The group's final request of Duke Power was a letter of apology.

"This would not be a letter of guilt but a letter of apology and a pledge to support its customers—possibly a letter to the editor of the local paper, Long said.

But Knotts said he felt Duke Power had adequately apologized through a letter from the president of the company to Laura Martin, a victim of the power surge who had written two letters to Duke Power's president, and Knotts' verbal apology to the group at the meeting.

He said he would apologize to anyone who was treated "anything less than professionally."

"I encourage you to believe that's not the norm at Duke Power," he said.

Knotts said an additional letter of apology is unnecessary.

But Diamond said that he has a responsibility to the people of Davie County as district director.

He will write an appropriate letter and ask the Davie County Enterprise Record to publish it, he said.

Diamond said he understood Knotts' position but wants to write the letter "because our customers here are important to us."

Want A Rezoning? You May Need To Decide Exact Plans First

 Planning board member Sam Daywalt agreed, telling Potts that "you're operating illegally, now."

Potts has leased the property to Gary Stowers, who has been operating a wood chip business.

"I don't want billiard halls there, or a body shop," Potts said, referring to two of the businesses allowed in a highway business zone. "If I sold the property, I would put restrictions against it."

Potts said that although he had no plans to sell the property, it is not suitable for housing because of the nature of the area (nearby businesses) and the fact it is on a busy, growing highway.

The board received a letter from Lester and Carolyn Hockaday, who have lived adjacent to the property since 1959.

They claimed that Royster never abided by the conditions set forth by the county when the property was rezoned in 1992.

"We have had to put up a light outside our house that burns all night long because of all the loitering that takes place in the back of the property. Another problem we are concerned with is the fact that the fire department says that if there was a fire in this building that due to the nature of the previous business, they would not put the fire out but would let it burn.

"This building is within 30 feet of my bedroom window. I do not feel comfortable knowing that this would occur," the Hockadays wrote.

"It has been impossible for us to be able to be outside because of the dust blowing across our yard. We feel that it is time for us to be able to enjoy the home we have worked so hard to build and look forward to retiring in peace," they said.

Other residents called the property an "eyesore." All said a business has no place in a residential neighborhood.

"The zoning is not only ambiguous, it should be firefighting," said Lawrence Davis.

DMI Honors Volunteers, Members For Revitalization Efforts

By Jeanne Houpe
 Davie County Enterprise Record

Downtown Mocksville has a good sense of community. Downtown Mocksville Incorporated Coordinator Polly Gales told members and volunteers at the annual DMI banquet June 18.

Many people have given time, energy and money into revitalizing Mocksville's downtown, and it has made a definite difference, she said.

From stopping on the sidewalk to talk to picking up trash, these efforts should not go unrecognized, she said.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to several organizations for their volunteer efforts downtown.

Among these were the Mocksville Police Department, Mocksville Public Works, Mocksville Garden Club and the Mocksville-Davie Jaycees.

The police department does a lot more downtown than people realize. They check on every business owner daily and assist with downtown promotions, Gales said.

"We're blessed to have a very supportive police department," she said.

Gales presented an award to the Mocksville Garden Club for the work it has done to beautify the downtown area by planting flowers in the planters on the sidewalks.

She also thanked Agriculture Extension Agent Karen Furell for her help with this project and mentioned several organizations that will be accepting responsibility for individual planters.

The Mocksville-Davie Jaycees were recognized for efforts to bring people downtown through their annual Heritage Day celebration and co-sponsorship of the Mocksville Christmas Parade.

Gales, who is a Jaycee, gave special thanks to the organization for helping her develop the leadership and time management skills that have helped her in the role of DMI coordinator.

Whenever there is a festival or event downtown, Gales turns to the Public Works Department for help, cleaning the streets, setting up cones and locating needed equipment, she said.

Public Works employees are also responsible for helping put up the Christmas lights each year, working a lot of volunteer hours to see that it gets done properly, she said.

Recognized for making improvements to the building housing Star Furniture was owner Claude Horn.

Among the renovations were replacement of glass, restoration of the porch and removal of the old metal awning, which was replaced with a new canvas one that matches others downtown, she said.

Horn's efforts really cleaned up Main Street and made a definite impact downtown, she said.

Also recognized was Margaret Foster, who reworked the outside of a building she owns downtown.

She has done a lot of work in the community for a long time, Gales said.

"We appreciate her staying with us downtown," she said.

Barbara Shortt was honored for her efforts at the old Sears building. She recently began restoring the building, which is now ADA approved. Shortt is doing artistic things with the building, Gales said.

Shortt said a new business will be moving into the downstairs portion of the building, she said.

Andy Beauchamp has done wonders cleaning up Depot Street, creating 25 new parking spaces downtown and restoring a building that was nearly destroyed, Gales said.

In addition to Beauchamp's own office, the building is home to the Paper Back Shack, Ablest Temporary Service and TNC Kart Shop.

Mary Lou Musselman was recognized for completely restoring the storefront of her business, Happy House Miniatures.

"It's one of the prettiest I have seen so far," Gales said.

Musselman has been a mainstay for the downtown area, she said.

One of Mocksville's newest businesses is a restaurant located on Main Street, American Cafe.

It is a showplace for Davie County, Gales said, praising owners Mark Walker and Dean Allen.

They also bought the building beside their restaurant and will soon be restoring it as well, she said.

Four Arrested For Tire Thefts In Cooleemee

COOLEEMEE - Steal something from a respected resident here, and you can expect to get caught.

Four people have been arrested by the Cooleemee Police Department and charged in connection of a breaking, entering and larceny from Osborne's Service Center the weekend of June 14-15.

"After the work of the theft hit the street, phone calls began coming in from concerned citizens who provided information leading to the suspects," said Police Chief Tim Wooten.

The police department received the report on June 18, when owners of the business went to a storage facility on Hwy. 801 to retrieve tires. Edgar Osborne found that he was missing approximately 60 new tires, with an estimated value of $3,200.

Charged by Cooleemee Police Officer W.H. Joyce were:

- Freddie Wayne Nichols, 22, of 175 Watts St., Cooleemee, charged with felony breaking and entering and felony larceny. His bond was set at $7,500.
- Kevin Neil Coughenhour, 19, of 225 Stonefield Lane, Granite Quarry, charged with accessory after the fact of breaking and entering and felony possession of stolen property. His bond was set at $5,000.
- Robin "Pokie" Eugene Foster, 20, of 225 Stonefield Lane, Granite Quarry, charged with accessory after the fact of breaking and entering and felony possession of stolen property. His bond was set at $2,500.
- Deron Lee Coughenhour, 27, of 4170 Ridge St., Salisbury, charged with accessory after the fact of breaking and entering and felony possession of stolen property. His bond was set at $2,500.

All are scheduled to face the charges at preliminary hearings July 11 in Davie District Court.

A total of 44 tires have been recovered to date, and some apparently had been sold, Wooten said.

Highway Patrol Steps Up DWI Enforcement For July 4

RALEIGH—Removing impaired drivers from North Carolina's roadways will be the focus of the State Highway Patrol's efforts during the July 4 holiday period.

The Patrol and law enforcement officers statewide will step up enforcement of DWI laws with "Booze It & Lose It" checking stations in all 100 counties. The effort is in conjunction with MAD's National Sobriety Checkpoint Week.

"Research shows that appeals to do what's right don't work for people who drink and drive," said Richard Moore, Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety. "What deters them is the risk of getting caught and losing their license."

As they always do on busy holidays, Troopers will also be looking for speeders and other violators. They will also be available to investigate accidents and assist stranded motorists.

"We'd like this holiday to be as safe as possible for everyone," said Colonel E.W. Horton, commander of the Highway Patrol. "Our goal is to save lives and prevent injuries. In addition to driving sober and slowing down, motorists should also remember to use seatbelts and child restraint seats, drive defensively, and take frequent rest breaks."

The July 4th holiday period begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 3, and ends at midnight, Sunday, July 7. Last year, 16 people were killed and 1,740 injured on North Carolina highways during the July 4th holiday weekend.

Motorists with cellular phones are encouraged to report accidents or other traffic violations by calling "HP" (47), which will connect them toll free with the Patrol's statewide communications network.

Investments To Be Discussed

How is the Town of Cooleemee's money invested? How much money is invested, and where?

Those questions should be answered at the town board meeting on July 16.

Mayor Jackie Morton asked the questions at a budget hearing last week, but was told by board member Lynn Rumley that the discussion wasn't appropriate for a budget hearing. Rumley made a motion that an "investment report" be issued at the board's next meeting.

Jerome New CDBG Certifying Officer

Jack Jerome is the new certifying officer for the Community Development Block Grant, replacing Jackie Morton, who resigned.

Now, the snag is a letter questioning why one house was not included in the block grant area, which will provide road, sewer and housing rehabilitation services to areas along Clark Road and Hickory Street.

A state official plans to visit Cooleemee, meet with the CDBG advisory board and inspect the house in question. After that ruling, funds can be spent, Jerome said.

Speaking Policy Stays The Same

Residents must still get on the agenda to be able to speak at a town board meeting after the board failed to act on a motion that would have changed that policy.

Board member Lynn Rumley wrote the new policy, which would allow residents of the town to speak without prior agenda approval, but would not allow non-residents that right without being on the agenda. Her motion failed for lack of a second.

Scott Dobbins & Co. Okd As Auditors

Scott Dobbins & Co. was hired as the town auditors, at an estimated cost of $2,940, an increase over last year of approximately $90.

Pool Opens; Park Improvements

It took a lot of volunteers working a lot of long hours, but a new pump was installed and the town swimming pool opened on time, Lynn Rumley told fellow town board members last week.

Also, trash cans with liners have been installed around the park and will be emptied regularly, she said.

Police Get Help In War On Drugs

The police department has received several military surplus items to help fight illegal drugs, including bullet-proof vests, a vehicle, a safe and flares. After used for that purpose for a year, the items could be converted to another town use or sold, Police Chief Tim Wooten said.

Double Play Leads To Concord's Win, Sweep

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Besides the fact that Mocksville-Davie could never get Jason Bowers out when it needed to, the story of Concord's 5-4 win in Game 3 of the Southern Division best-of-5 playoff series, which concluded Concord's 3-0 sweep of Mocksville, came down to the double play that Mocksville didn't turn and the double play that Concord did turn.

In a 4-4 game in the top of the eighth with Concord runners at first and third and one out, ninth batter Jose Escandon hit "a pitcher's best friend."

Here a sharp grounder toward the middle where Mocksville shortstop Brian Anthony could field on the run. But after tagging second for the second out, his throw sailed high, over the fence into out-of-play territory, resulting in a two-base error and a 5-4 Concord lead.

An argument could have been made that Chris Crutchfield interfered on the play, raising his arms and not sliding, but the bottom line is Concord scored the winning run.

"Yes, we knew the slide rule. You can't do that," Coach Scott Goins of Concord said of Crutchfield.

What if the base umpire would have ruled the runner out at first? "We couldn't have argued," Goins said.

The other half of the double-play saga took place in the bottom of the ninth with Mocksville trying to tie or take the lead.

Jeff Prince singled to right-center field, and Charlie Wands roped a 0-2 pitch down the left-field line to put runners at first and second with no outs. That prompted Goins to lift his starter, Brad Esarey, for hard-throwing closer Bowers.

Bowers first confrontation was against Stephen Ashworth, who hit .396 on the year.

Bowers jammed Mocksville's No. 3 hitter, forcing him to ground into a 4-6-3 double play as Prince advanced to third.

Now needing a hit to tie the score, Bowers wisely pitched around Carlton Hire, who was 3-for-4 on the night with three doubles, to face Jody Vestal, who was hitless for the game.

And Bowers coated Vestal into a lazy fly ball to center to complete the three-game sweep.

"I have a lot of respect for (Mocksville)," Goins said. "I was concerned that it would be a tight ballgame and wondered how we would respond."

"We gelled this time of the year, and that's what you hope for."

Mocksville-Davie Digs Own Grave With Silent Bats, Errors

Mocksville-Davie American Legion baseball coach George Daywalt is employed by the Davie County Landfill, burying garbage, and from time to time, he buries himself in the shade, avoiding the temperatures.

But, for three days in a row, as Daywalt left work to come to the ball park for a first-round Southern Division playoff series against Concord, a sizable underdog before the first pitch, he found that his team had their own backhoe.

And after Concord erased Mocksville's home-field advantage in an 8-2 win at Rich Park in Game 1 of the best-of-5 series, the young men dug a hole for their grave.

The dimensions were set in Game 2 at Concord, as Mocksville fell behind 8-0 after the first inning and eventually lost 9-7.

In Game 3 at Rich Park, Concord punched Mocksville into its homemade bed headfirst in a pulsating 5-4 win, cutting Mocksville's life-support system off like a fingernail.

With the sweep, Concord duplicated 1994, only then it was 4-0.

Two three-year vets, Charlie Wands and Carlton Hire, blamed the leather for the headfirst tumbling act. "Our defense was our weak point at the end of the season," Wands said of the 10 errors in the series.

"I expected to meet Rowan (County) and was looking forward to it," said Wands, Mocksville's leading hitter at .405. "I hate losing ... We didn't get a few breaks."

Said Hire: "Mostly, it was all the errors we committed. We couldn't put them away and we couldn't come back. I thought we'd win and get a chance to play Salisbury (or Rowan County). I would have liked to have gone on and played Salisbury, it's always a big thing. But that's the way it is."

Mocksville's magic against Concord has been missing since the 1991 club that went 28-10.

In '89, Mocksville's best team ever (37-15 and runner-up in the state) trailed Concord 3-0 in the best-of-7 series. Mocksville, miraculously, stormed back to win four in a row.

The next summer, Mocksville swept Concord to run its postseason streak to seven in a row over Concord.

Post 174 did it again in '91 to make it 10 in a row. Since then, Mocksville has lost seven in a row to Concord in the postseason.

And with the nightmarish ending to the '96 season, one in which Mocksville finished at 13-13, its second straight year at .500 or below, Mocksville has slowly retreated from the second wave of Southern Division (only trailing juggernaut Rowan County for years) contenders to the backwash of rank mediocrity.

Unable to get the clutch hit — our local diamond heroes lost seven games by two runs or less and four one-run setbacks — accelerated the spiral toward the unpopular .500 club.

"It seems like we could never get the big hit and never the big defensive play," Assistant Coach Jerry Walsler said.

And eventually that sapped the energy from the numerous followers,

Who mostly sat on their hands in the last portion of the up and down year. "The little zip wasn't there," Coach George Daywalt said.

He was referring to his players, but the statement was compatible to both.

The culprit was Concord's hitting machine-closer Jason Bowers, who went 8-for-13 in the three games, including seven RBIs and two saves. "He throws as hard as anybody in the league," Daywalt said, "and maybe harder. If he gets to that point (in a save opportunity), their in pretty good position."

The irony of the '96 season: Mocksville accumulated a .317 team batting average, second highest since '87, but it was one of the most disappointing years. Only the '90 squad (.333) hit better in the last decade.

Also, Mocksville received almost flawless relief pitching in the three

Football Camp To Be Held

All-Stars Romp Over Walkertown In Tourney

Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Who says to go with your first instinct? How about your fourth?

That's what Davie National All-Star coach David Poplin did when making out his lineup for a first-round double-elimination District II major division tournament game against Walkertown Saturday at the Davie Youth Complex.

"I made out four different lineups," an ecstatic Poplin said afterward. "My fourth choice produced a 20-0 blowout victory over visiting Walkertown."

The only thing that could stop the bleeding was the 10-run rule, which stopped the game after four complete innings.

And after pondering his starting pitcher, Poplin went with Travis Allen. Poplin was right again.

Allen threw a perfect game, while striking out six and getting six ground-ball outs to face the minimum 12 batters. Not one ball left the infield off Allen, who threw a blazing fastball along with an occasional offspeed and curveball.

"I didn't know today (who I was going to start on the mound) until I got out here," Poplin said. "Have six pitchers who can throw."

In a recent practice, Poplin had a face-to-face meeting with Allen. "He had been pitching high during the regular season," Poplin said. "And I got a hold of him and said, 'Hey, you've got a defense that you now. Keep the ball down.'"

Poplin, along with assistant coaches Rick Alred and Dean Seaford, knows this is just one game. "We're going to play a whole lot better (competition)," he said.

But it's understandable why Poplin would struggle with nine starters. His veteran club — made up of 10 rising seventh graders, two rising eighth and three rising sixth — is loaded with talented 12-year-olds.

McKenzie Willoughby, who went 2-for-3 with five RBIs, gave Allen more than enough run support on his three-run homer in the top of the first inning.

The line-drive had just enough loft to get over the left-field fence to score leadoff man Jason Hogue, who walked, and Chris Seaford, who had the first of 16 hits for Davie.

Davie added two more in the opening frame.

Neil Rice singled, advanced to second base on a wide pitch and scored on Dave Poplin's hit to center, the first of three hits for Poplin, who also drove in four runs.

Allen's bat was just as deadly as his arm, as he drove in Poplin for a 5-0 lead.

Allen matched Poplin and Chris Seaford with three hits each, and Allen duplicated Willoughby's game-high total of five runs batted in.

As if Walkertown didn't have enough problems, the visitors committed four of their six errors for the game in the second and third innings to fall behind 10-0.

Centerfielder Jason Murray dropped Hogue's fly ball to start the second. Seaford followed with a single, and Allen duplicated Willoughby's game-high total of five runs batted in.

Seaford came around when the third baseman, Evan Gouffrey, mishandled a throw from home.

Davie gave itself a chance to end the game early with three in the third.

Allen reached on shortstop Chad Dillon's error, Jacob Garner singled to right and Seaford drove both of them home with a hit to right.

Willoughby immediately followed with a double as the ball soared over the rightfielder's head.

The fourth inning saw Davie send 14 men to the plate, striking five singles, two doubles and 10 runs in the inning.

Allen was responsible for four RBIs in the fourth alone on two two-run doubles. The other big blow was Poplin's two-run single.

Willoughby and Rice each walked with the bases loaded off Walkertown reliever Cole Smith, who came in after Chris Davie was beaten to death for three innings.

Garner also had an RBI hit in the monster inning.

There wasn't much Coach Joel West of Walkertown could do except pack up his equipment and leave Davie County as quickly as possible. It was that bad.

"The boys hit the ball," Poplin said. "That they did."

• First baseman Daywalt had five put-outs. Second baseman Willoughby had three assists, while third baseman Rice and pitcher Allen had one each.

• Patrick Lowery, who took over at first in the fourth, made one unassisted play, a nice stab of a ball that was headed down the right-field line for at least a single.

Splendid Relief Pitching Goes To The Wayside In Legion Playoff Action

games, only to lose all three. Ryan Lambert gave up one earned run in 5 1/3 innings in Game 1; Brian Anthony held Concord to one run through seven innings of work in Game 2; and Stephen Ashworth surrendered just one unearned run in five innings of Game 3.

"That's two earned runs in 17 1/3 innings of relief - an ERA of 1.03 from the bull pen compared to the team's 5.30 ERA for the year.

"The middle relief has been wasted," Daywalt said. "We stopped them right there but we didn't make the plays."

In the wake of the messy aftermath, and it doesn't get any messier than after Thursday's 5-4 loss, Mocksville could only think about its ninth inning rally, which was thwarted by Bowers.

Trailing 5-4 with runners at first and second and no outs, Ashworth stepped to the plate. A .396 hitter, Ashworth grounded into a 4-6-3 double play.

One out later, with the series barely over, Mocksville wore the look of frat brothers who rusted belatedly into history class and realized that the instructor was passing out a pop quiz - and dates were required. They had been swept - to the same bunch that Mocksville had outscored 28-15 in two regular-season wins.

When asked if bunting Ashworth ever ran across his mind, Daywalt displayed his inner strength. "I could have bunted (Ashworth)," Daywalt said, "but he had been hitting better than anybody."

"Say if I bunt him and he moves the runners up, they are going to walk Carlton (Hire) - like they did - and it takes the bat right out of his hands (a .377 hitter who already had three doubles for the game).

"They kind of had us there, anyway. It didn't work ... The question ran across Daywalt's mind again. "I had to (let Ashworth swing away)," he assured himself.

And like recent playoff failures - Mocksville hasn't advanced to the Southern Division championship series since '92 - Post 174 was ousted in the first round for the second straight year.

As Concord slipped into the second round against immortal Rowan County, Mocksville slipped into a familiar self-analysis, one that Dale Jjames had to practice during last year's 13-15 season.

"It goes back to we were unable to hold anybody down," Daywalt said. "Concord was playing good. They were playing better than anybody in the league when we faced them.

"Their pitching is better than average, but the last game didn't bother me as much as (Game 2)."

Said Walsler: "We had a little inexperience in some spots. There's four Commandments in baseball: No. 1 is the big hit; No. 2 is the big defensive play; No. 3 is put it in play; and No. 4 is make the routine plays."

Obviously, Mocksville came away with flunking test scores. "The hard plays you're going to make 10 percent of the time," Walsler said. "You've got to make a good percentage of the routine plays. Nine out of 10 times if you miss a routine play, here comes a hard one."

Oddly enough, Walsler, who will begin his first season at the helm of Davie High's program next year, found reason to crack a smile during the dreaded good-byes, hugs, tears and regrets.

The calendar flipped another page. "It's one day closer to February," said Walsler. "It's one day closer ..."

Wildlife Resource Commission Verifies Addresses

RALEIGH—Wildlife Resources Commission's data processing section will be mailing a return post card to holders of Lifetime Sportsman Licenses to verify addresses for sending big-game tags and other mailings to license holders.

The card must be returned to the Wildlife Commission to obtain the big-game tags for the 1996-97 hunting season. Postage for the return card will be paid by the Commission.

"Every lifetime sportsman license holder must obtain the big-game tags by mail through the Raleigh office," said Maj. Tyson Lauey of the Commission's Division of Enforcement.

There is no charge for big game tags to holders of the lifetime sportsman licenses, including those who have the Age 70 Resident Lifetime Sportsman License, but they must return the card to get the tags.

The cards will not be mailed to holders of infant and youth lifetime licenses, but big-game tags will be sent to them on written request. While hunters under age 16 do not have to tag their big-game harvests, some parents want the younger hunters to tag harvests so they will be familiar with the procedures when they begin hunting on their own.

While the postal card, which will be mailed during the week of June 10-14, must be returned to obtain the big-game stamps, that is not the case with the 1996-97 hunting, Fishing and Trapping Regulations Digest. That publication is being printed now and scheduled to be mailed by mid July.

The postal cards should be returned as soon as possible. Those not receiving return postal cards by June 28 should write BIG GAME TAGS-DP, N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, Division of Administrative Services, 512 N. Salisbury St., Raleigh, N.C. 27690-0433. Name, address, telephone number and license number must be included.

Defensive Gems, Pitching Lead To Perfect Game For All-Stars

There was only one other play in which Walkertown threatened to reach base. In the first, a ground ball by Will Shields, the second batter, was headed into center field when Willoughby backhanded the ball to save a hit.

"With his perfect game on the line, Allen struck out the last batter of the game on a 3-2 pitch, which caught the outside corner.

"On Monday, Davie played a second-round game. As of Saturday evening, Poplin said the bracket pointed toward a date with High Point American, but it was not 100 percent until team officials talked with George Groce, the District Administrator.

"If Davie stayed in the winners bracket after Monday's game, it will travel to the home of the Winston-Salem Nationals, the neutral site for third-round games, this Saturday at 4 p.m.

"The double-elimination tournament has 22 teams.

"The remainder of the 15 member team is Greg Brooks, Chris Stein, Kellen Miller, Cody Wright, Daniel Hollifield and Ben Allred.

Mocksville-Davie Legion Ends Season In Heartbreaking Loss At Home

up nine hits, but only two from the fifth through the eighth. Also, three of his five walks came in the first. All four runs were earned as he walked five and struck out four.

Mocksville, taking advantage of Esarey's erratic start, scored three in the bottom of the first to give starter David Whitaker plenty of working room.

Prince, Wands and Ashworth drew walks and Hire doubled home two with a shot in the left-center field gap. The next batter, Vestal, hit a sacrifice fly to center for a 3-0 lead.

"We dug a hole early and it gave me some grey hair," Goins said. "Again, they (Concord) played loose. They didn't get uptight when Mocksville went up 3-0. They acted like it didn't phase them."

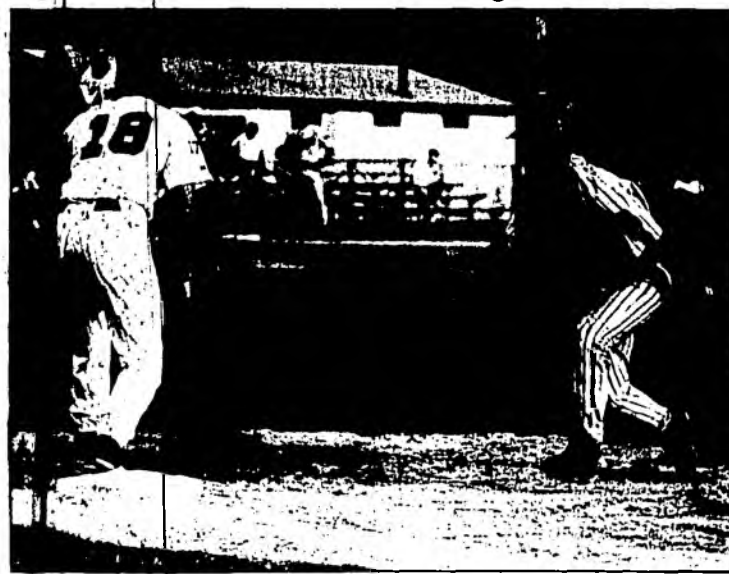

"Honest, I was surprised (Esarey) went that long after the way he started," Goins admitted. "I basically knew, we needed seven or eight innings out of him... We needed as much as we could get out of him."

Said Esarey: "My last two outings I've struggled in the first inning, but I was hoping (Goins) wouldn't take me out. He told me to relax."

"I didn't think we'd sweep them, but the pitching came through."

Whitaker walked two and hit one batter, but Concord was still without a hit going into the third inning—with the top of the order due up.

Jared Caputo drew Whitaker's third free pass, and Casey Reynolds singled to enter to set the table for Concord's early middle, Phillip Brant and Bowers tied the game with an opposite field three-run homer to left-center.

Mocksville regained the lead at 4-3 in the fourth, but it could have been even worse. Joey Cutts walked, Jansen Keene singled and Anthony singled to load the bases with the top coming up with one out.

Prince's sacrifice fly was all Post 174 could muster.

Concord came back to tie the score for the second time on Brant's solo home run on the first pitch from Whitaker in the fifth. Then Bowers followed with a chopper up the middle, which found a hole, marking the end for Whitaker.

Ashtworth came in to retire three in a row, and that's the way things stood until Concord scored one in the eighth.

Bowers ended up with a save for winner Esarey and Ashworth (1-1, 2.70) suffered his first loss, despite pitching the last five innings on four hits, one run (no earned runs) and no walks.

Whitaker, on the no-decision, finished the year tied with Destry Swaim with three wins. Whitaker (3-0), along with a perfect record, finished with a ERA of 3.90.

Mocksville blew a golden opportunity in the seventh. Wands led off with a walk, and one out later, Hire doubled for a team-high 11th time this year to put runners at second and third with the score tied at 4-4.

But Vestal and Nathan Ireland were retired to end the inning with no runs. Goins didn't play the percentages and it worked.

"Honest, it didn't even cross my mind to walk the batter," he said. "We went straight at them. Now that I look back, it wouldn't have been a bad idea."

* Goins feels the difference was Concord's defense compared to Mocksville's, which has been shaky throughout the year. Post 174 made 75 errors in 26 games.

Mocksville made 10 in the three games to Concord's three. And Concord played error-free ball in Games 1 and 3 at Rich Park. "We had a couple of holes defensively coming in," Goins said, "but this is the kind of defense that we can go a long way on."

"Three errors in the whole series? At this level, that could have been the difference in the series."

* Brant and Bowers did more than their part. Concord's two and three men went a combined 15-for-27.

Brant was 7-for-14 and Bowers was 8-for-13 with seven RBIs and two saves.

Legion Loses First Game Of Series

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Concord American Legion coach Scott Goins said he's scared of Mocksville-Davie, its opponent in the first round of the Southern Division playoffs.

And for good reason. Mocksville showed Concord's pitchers around for 28 runs in two wins during the regular season.

But Concord started off what coaches call the "real season" with a convincing 8-2 win in Game 1 of the best-of-5 series Tuesday at Rich Park.

Mocksville wasn't doing the scaring on this night. It was Concord who scattered a large portion of the crowd to their cars by the eighth inning.

And Concord starter Jason Hathcock scattered seven hits in a complete game win. He issued seven walks, but only faced more than four batters in an inning twice. With only five strike outs, Hathcock relied on his defense, who recorded 12 ground-ball outs and two double plays.

The first game of this series was never in doubt, as Concord stole Mocksville's home-field advantage.

"I get scared when I see Mocksville come to bat," Goins said. "They have a way of putting things together."

But it was Phillip Brant and Jason Bowers, the No. 2 and 3 hitters in Concord's order, who stole the show from a Mocksville team who averaged right at nine runs per game coming in.

Brant (4-for-4) and Bowers (4-for-5) accounted for eight of Concord's 12 hits, more than enough production since Mocksville only had seven hits and committed five errors in the field.

"We need Jason to swing the bat well," Goins said. "He makes things happen... He's the key to our team. If he has a good night, we usually do pretty well."

Coach George Daywalt of Mocksville tipped his hat to Hathcock, who, with the exception of the fourth, never allowed Mocksville to put a serious rally together. And he was coming off a disastrous outing against Rowan County.

"We didn't hit the ball but that boy (Hathcock) didn't back off," Daywalt said. "We didn't swing at good pitches but that was because he was in command."

"We didn't really have a big rally," said Daywalt in amazement.

Concord, the No. 5 seed, jumped all over Mocksville starter Charlie Wands for three runs in the top of the first, and chased the right-hander with three more in the second to go up 6-0, though two were unearned.

"The problem was getting behind early," Daywalt said, "and we couldn't fight back."

Ryan Lambert replaced Wands with two outs in the second, and held Concord to two runs (one earned) through 5 1/3 innings to give Mocksville a chance. "Lambert did great," said Daywalt of his young left-hander, who struck out five and gave up five hits and two walks. "He's getting better each time."

The fourth turned out to be Mocksville's only hope.

Lambert, who found himself in the No. 4 hole since Mocksville didn't use a designated hitter, walked to lead off the inning. Then Carlton Hire singled, Jody Vestal walked and Jansen Keene singled to left, driving home the first run and leaving the bases loaded with still no outs.

After an RBI fielder's choice by Charles Miller, it was obvious that this wasn't Mocksville's night.

Brian Anthony lined a hard shot that appeared headed for center field, but at the last second, shortstop Jared Caputo leaped up to make the catch.

But unable to hold on, the ball bounced away and Keene was easily forced out at second base. Neither Keene or Vestal, who was on third, could advance because they had to freeze on the line drive.

Then Jeff Prince bounced out to third to end the threat. "We made the plays," Goins said. "You have to play good defense in a series like this."

Concord threw the final dagger in Mocksville's heart in the sixth.

With two outs, nobody on and Lambert cruising, Concord's Casey Reynolds walked and Brant had an infield hit to third, but the runners ended up at second and third because of Wands' throwing error.

Bowers then sent a soft liner toward the second-base bag. Shortstop Anthony tried to come over and play the short hop, but it ended up in center field for a two-run single, putting Concord ahead by the final margin.

"They (Brant and Bowers) hit, especially in the early part," Goins said. "They got it going and that got the other guys clicking."

Justin Draughn became Mocksville's third pitcher and held the visitors down over the last two innings. Looking at Concord's side of things, it was important to steal a game on the road. "That's the key since we're the fifth seed," Goins said.

"It's essential, obviously in a three out of five series. The first game is a big one... It gives us some flexibility to do some things."

Lambert came into the game with an ERA of 9.20 in 13 2/3 innings. But the numbers didn't reflect his outing. "The lefty shut us down," said Goins of Lambert. "We've had difficulty against left-handers."

Fluke? Mocksville Trails Concord By Two Games

Fluke or no fluke, Concord leads Mocksville-Davie 2-0 in the best-of-5 Southern Division playoffs series.

Garner Selected For Leadership Program

Kristin Garner, daughter of Dick and Helinda Garner of Mocksville, has been selected to attend the Legislator's School for Youth Leadership Development at Western Carolina University.

Garner

She is a rising 11th grader at Davie High School. The school offers some 300 rising eighth-through 12th graders an opportunity to develop skills in leadership, critical thinking and communication. The three-week residential program utilizes the cultural and recreational resources of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Students participate in academic and special interest courses in phonology, journalism, computers, art, outdoor recreation, education, activities and other topics. Community service work and discussions about current issues, led by state and regional leaders, are aspects of the program. It is funded by the General Assembly.

Local Boy Scouts Earn 50 Mile Patch On Mountain Hiking Trip

Eight Davie Students Earn Degrees At UNC

Eight Davie residents were awarded degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill at May 12 commencement ceremonies.

Mary Felicia Bennett of Route 5, Mocksville, earned a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Thomas S. Browder of Advance earned a doctor of dentistry degree.

Elizabeth Kirk Burnette of 172 River Drive, Advance, Bermuda Run, earned a bachelor's degree with distinction in public health.

Elise Prichard Eskew of 435 Bear Creek Church Road, Mocksville, earned a bachelor's degree with highest distinction in music education.

Dale Edward Prillaman of 298 Holly Lane, Mocksville, earned a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Aaron Clifford Reese of 256 Briar Creek Road, Advance, earned a bachelor's degree.

Rajesh Bharat Shah of 157 Riverbend Drive, Advance, earned a bachelor's degree in business administration.

The Boy Scouts Troop 515 Center Meeting Room at 525 Holly Cross Lane, recently completed an extensive hike through the North Carolina mountains, June 14-18.

The trip consisted of six scouts and leaders completing the Boy Scouts' 50 Mile Fossil or Afton award.

The unit hiked 42 miles over the Appalachian Trail starting at Fontana Dam, climbing 3,000 feet to the top of Coah Bald, then finishing by climbing down to the Nantahala Gorge. There they completed the trip by going 8 miles down the Nantahala River in white-water rafts.

Coah Bald is a 5,000 high mountain with a grassy top. It has a great view of the Smokey Mountains and the valleys around Fontana Lake.

The trip took 5 day/4 nights of camping on the Appalachian Trail. The hikers carried all of their food and supplies with them on the hike in backpacks weighing up to 30 pounds. After 4 days on the trail, food became important, especially candy. Someone tried to buy a candy bar from another scout for $5. The scout would not sell it to him.

The trip ended with nighttime ceremony on a swinging bridge over the Nantahala River during which the scouts learned the meaning of teamwork and trust. Afterwards, the 50 Mile patch was given out at the campfire ceremony.

Leaders attending were: Tommy Evans, Scoutmaster; Steve Barron; Grady McClamrock; Cliff Edwards. Troop 505 members were: Brian Rucker, Bradley Evans, Dusty Potts, Brian Miller, Luis Soto, Kevin Hancock and Stephen Long.

Sixteen boy scouts from two Davie County troops hiked 42 miles over the Appalachian Trail in June.

Leaders attending were: Tommy Evans, Scoutmaster; Steve Barron; Grady McClamrock; Cliff Edwards. Troop 505 members were: Brian Rucker, Bradley Evans, Dusty Potts, Brian Miller, Luis Soto, Kevin Hancock and Stephen Long.

Projects included setting up and stocking a salt water aquarium with animals and plants collected during field trips to the ocean, nearby inlets, sounds, and marshes; and conducting research on the behaviors, life cycles, and habitats of animal and plant specimens.

Plants are under way for the Davie High School class of 1976 20th year class reunion Saturday, Nov. 30 beginning in the high school gymnasium.

A Magical Moment Olympic Torch Carrier Gets The Chance Of A Lifetime

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

When he saw a sign posted on the bulletin board at Sara Lee Knit Products where he has worked for nearly 10 years seeking runners to represent the company carrying the Olympic torch, Darryl Medford volunteered — never imagining he would be chosen. Finding out just two weeks before he was to carry the torch in Winston-Salem, Medford went out and bought some running shoes and began practicing, running on U.S. Hwy. 158 near his home. His wife, April, laughed, saying he would come back from running in the heat of the day to tell her he was dying. But he kept practicing for his big day. "He's proud of it, and we're proud, too," April said. It was one of the greatest days of his life — a chance he may never see again, he said.

With his wife, stepdaughter, Dana Myers, and other relatives amid the crowd gathered alongside Reynolda Road to watch him carry the torch, Medford said he felt like a movie star for a day. It was an honor to be a part of history, he said. Medford said he felt like he was part of the torch as he carried it. "It felt great," he said. Knowing the flame had come all the way from Greece made it seem almost magical, he said. "The hardest part was giving the torch back," he said. Each torch bearer was given an opportunity to purchase the torch he or she carried for $275. Unable to afford his torch, Medford said that, besides the glory of the moment, he has the commemorative 1996 Olympic Torch Bearer Coca-Cola he was presented and the uniform he wore to show his grandchildren some day.

Dream Fulfilled Davie Man Becomes Part Of '96 Olympics

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

When he was growing up, Ryan Parker dreamed of being part of the Olympics. Last week, for the short time it took him to run about half a mile on Winston-Salem's University Parkway, that dream became a reality for Parker. Holding his head high and smiling at the cheering spectators, he passed the Olympic flame to the next torch bearer who would carry it a step further on its journey to Atlanta for the 1996 Summer Olympics. One might have mistaken him for a gold medalist as family members and strangers alike gathered around to pose for pictures with him. There were even a few autograph seekers in the crowd. His dream of being an Olympic athlete may not have been fulfilled, but he can always say he was a part of the Olympics, Parker said. "I think the Olympics will mean more to me, especially the opening ceremonies," he said.

When he sees the Olympic flame, Parker said, "I can say I helped it get there." Parker said he feels fortunate to have been chosen. "I'm just old, average Joe who got a great opportunity," he said. An employee of Champion Products, Parker was chosen to represent the company. A division of Sara Lee, he said Champion is the official outfitter of the Olympic games. Since he was selected, Parker said he has been training by running and riding his bike. With what he was told was one of the hardest runs on a straight incline and the temperature in the 90's, he was glad he was prepared. "I was real proud of him," said his mother, Ernestine Parker. Just having the torch relay this close to their home in Advance and being able to see it is a once in a lifetime opportunity, said his father James Parker.

Spectators watch from the curb, as the Olympic flame is passed to Ryan Parker so he can begin his run.

Ryan's father, James Parker, waits on the roadside with Bradley Hurse, the son of Jeff and Rebecca Hurse of Coolemees, Ryan's mother-in-law Sarah Scott, friends Shelby Crook and April Crook, and Ryan's wife, Jamie, to see the once in a lifetime event.

"But having my own son carry it..." he said. "It was a thrill." Seeing so many friends from the community and church come out to support his son made the whole thing a real blessing, he said.

Parker agreed that what made the experience most special was being able to share it with family and friends.

"It was great to have my family here," he said, posing for a picture with his wife, Jamie, and 4-month-old daughter Madison, who was dressed in a patriotic outfit.

"I've never seen anything like this before," said Bradley Hursey of Cooleemee, who went to watch Parker's run.

"It's something we'll never see again," said Parker's neighbor Joe King.

Photographers and cameramen filmed the action from a van in front of Parker.

Friends, family members and spectators gather around Parker to take pictures.

Advance News

By Edith Zimmerman
Advance Correspondent

A large crowd attended the 5th Sunday night singing at the Methodist church. It was under the direction of our organist Sue Folsom. Many groups, plus the congregation participated in the service.

We welcomed Jonathan and Karen Martin as new members to our church Sunday morning.

Jack and Dot Carter have returned from a two week vacation to Alaska. They were accompanied by Bill and Ailene Potts of Mocksville.

In Anchorage they enjoyed tours and spent the night in Carson Spry's house, while Carson was in Advance visiting his mother Athene Spry. Time was spent at Denali National State Park and at Mt. McKinley, where they saw much wildlife, grizzly bears, mountain goats, caribou and red fox. Then to Fairbanks for the afternoon. A riverboat ride, Riverboat Discovery, was interesting observing the Eskimo culture and dog sledding demonstration. They were able to see Susan Butcher who is dog sledding champion for the past three years, going from Fairbanks to Nome. They drove to Tok, dog sledding capital of the world. A stop at Haines Junction was very enjoyable where they saw shows at the Culture Art Center and saw Indian Chilkot dancers.

Taking a ferry from Haines the group went to Skagway and on to Whitehorse in the Canadian Yukon. In Dawson City they saw a melodrama about the town and the gold rush days. Much of their traveling was on dirt roads but the scenery was breath-taking. In Palmer they saw moose and much wildlife, then on to Seward, a coastal town.

Taking a boat tour they saw glaciers, and approaching the Kenai and Russian rivers where many people were fishing as the salmon were running upstream. On a drive to Homer, they met a man visiting from Minnesota, who had entered a fishing derby and had caught a halibut weighing 379 lbs. From Homer, they went to Nintchik Village, a Russian colonists village settled in the 1800s; seeing churches and graveyards of the Russian Orthodox.

In Portage, the group saw many more glaciers, and back in Anchorage, they saw the Wildlife Bird Refuge. June 21 was Solar Day, the longest day of the year, where the sun didn't set. The whole state of Alaska observed this day with big celebrations. The Carter's and Potts' drove over 2800 miles.

Gene and Jackie Markland of Johnson City, Tenn. visited Lili Carter one day last week. They also visited Eld and Anna Lee Myers. Gene's sister, Marie and husband Hubert accompanied them on the visit.

The association, with over 29,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on over 12 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best

Alzheimer's Support Group Supports Caregivers

An estimated 4 million Americans suffer from Alzheimer's Disease (AD), a slowly degenerative brain disease that impairs memory, attention, and judgment.

AD poses enormous challenges to those with the disease, to their families, and to health care providers.

The financial costs are small, however, compared to the human toll taken by this disease. Patients face the inevitability that their "self" is disintegrating.

Caregivers face the despair of seeing their loved one's minds and personalities fade as they become totally dependent. Families frequently assume difficult physical and emotional burdens, as well as economic hardships, in caring for patients over prolonged periods.

The Alzheimer's Support Group is available for caregivers to provide a supportive and encouraging environment in which to share their common experiences. A support group gives its members the chance to vent their frustrations, anger and disappointments, as well as share their successes in a safe, non-judgmental setting.

Caregivers, as well as individuals interested in learning more about AD, can benefit from the monthly Alzheimer's Support Group held every second Thursday at the Davie County Senior Center. Meetings begin at 7 p.m. in the East Room.

Call the Senior Center at 634-0611 for further information.

"All of the health departments and individuals nominated have done outstanding work in their communities to improve children's preventive health services. Glaxo Wellcome is proud to be able to recognize their dedication, creativity, and hard work," said Robert A. Ingram, president and chief executive officer. ## Spiritual Resources: Lead Our Nation

By the Rev. Glenn Sellers
In the Old Testament book of 1 Samuel it is recorded how the children of Israel went from Theocracy to a monarchy. The Israelites were having problems with some of their neighbors. They had also lost their most valuable national treasure the Ark of the Covenant. They decided they needed a king who would fight their wars for them. Evidently they had fallen so far from God they had forgotten the key to their success and prosperity. God had told them in the book of Deuteronomy if they would obey His voice and follow Him He would curse them and bring calamity upon them. All they needed for success and prosperity was to follow the Lord their God. When they came to Samuel to ask for a king, God warned them about the consequences of having a king and of the freedoms they would have to give up. That didn't seem to matter to them at the time and so God gave them a king which they later regretted. The bottom line was they didn't want to accept the responsibility that came with their freedom. With freedom comes responsibility. The responsibility of self government. As with a Theocracy the republic which we now enjoy demands self government of its citizens if it is to survive. Christians today are also in a unique position as far as the survival of our government is concerned. From the Scriptures we learn that our God is in control of the rising and falling of governments and the Bible also tells us that righteousness exalts a nation. Therefore, it is our responsibility as Christians to influence our nation by bringing truth to bear upon our society. To do our best to lead our nation to become a more moral and righteous nation. God tells us to expose darkness and evil, we are to be salt and light in this world. As we celebrate this Fourth of July holiday let us renew again our commitment to being salt and light that we might continue to have the privilege of living under this great government.

Using the same assumptions, a 10-year delay is starting to fund the plan results in a loss of $970,000, and a 15-year delay costs the retirement fund $1,287,328.

"Unfortunately, many individuals do not fully recognize the importance of active control of their retirement funding," Poindexter said. The results of his and Jones' study appear in the February 1996 issue of the American Association of Individual Investors Journal.

Another factor crucial to the accumulation of retirement wealth is the amount of money that one invests. This may seem obvious, but Poindexter and Jones' analysis clearly illustrates what a big difference investing more money year after year can make.

Friends Remember Bob Lemmons As Asset To County

By Floyd Fausett

On Monday, July 1, R.H. "Bob" Lemmons passed away following several months of declining health.

Those of us who knew him personally mourn the loss of a good friend. More importantly Davie County has lost a valuable asset. After retiring as a lieutenant with the Miami Police Department, Bob returned to the area of his youth. In due course, he returned to law enforcement as a deputy for Sheriff George Smith and later as Chief Deputy with Sheriff W.R. Woolen.

The deputies, detectives, jailers and civilian employees who served during his tenure will remember that the efforts expended and the battles fought were always for the benefit of the personnel and the department, never for self benefit.

In September, 1996, Bob was diagnosed with cancer. Totally in character with all the events of his lifetime, he fought the all consuming fight with courage and spirit - and never gave up. Davie County is a better place to live today because he played a great part to make it so. Let us never forget that his bright star helped light the darkness. May this light shine in our lives forever.

Investments Key To Bigger Retirement Nest Egg

If you are depending on a nest egg to provide you with the easy life when you retire, history indicates that the egg will be a whole lot bigger if you invest wisely, preferably in stocks, and if you start investing early in your career.

An analysis of 401(k) plan contributions by two North Carolina State University finance professors, Dr. J.C. Poindexter and Dr. Charles P. Jones, shows that the time at which a person begins contributing to his plan, the percentage of pay he contributes, and the way he allocates his assets in the plan make a tremendous difference in the amount of money he will have at retirement time.

And this holds true for all attempts at saving money, the professors say. "The lessons to be learned from this analysis are transferable to any savings program, whether it is for retirement, for college education or for some other purpose," Poindexter said. "Of course the numbers will differ based on factors that affect individual plans."

Consider one of Jones and Poindexter's analyses of the power of a saver's choices given 40 years possible for contributing: a five-year delay in starting a 401(k) plan may result in a retirement funding reduction of more than half a million dollars. The results were based on these assumptions: $40,000 current salary with four percent annual growth; six percent rate of contribution to 401(k); 10 percent rate of return (which is historically consistent with an all stock portfolio).

Using the same assumptions, a 10-year delay is starting to fund the plan results in a loss of $970,000, and a 15-year delay costs the retirement fund $1,287,328.

"Unfortunately, many individuals do not fully recognize the importance of active control of their retirement funding," Poindexter said. The results of his and Jones' study appear in the February 1996 issue of the American Association of Individual Investors Journal.

Another factor crucial to the accumulation of retirement wealth is the amount of money that one invests. This may seem obvious, but Poindexter and Jones' analysis clearly illustrates what a big difference investing more money year after year can make.

Cooking, Biking, Speaking Davie County Welcomes 100 To Northwest District 4-H Activity Day

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

The fruit that adorned Andrea Whitley's hat last week at North Davie Middle School wasn't edible.

"The fruit she mixed together in a bowl at the Northwest District 4-H Activity Day was edible, as she made 'Andrea's Fruit Salad' during one of 36 categories in which 4-Hers could participate.

"I got the recipe from one of my sister's friends and I changed it around because it was very fattening," Andrea said. Her recipe included yogurt, vanilla, orange juice, grapes, apples, kiwi's, strawberries and bananas. She used yogurt instead of cream cheese in the original recipe.

"I needed to make it low fat," she said, adding that her family enjoys the fruit concoction.

Approximately 100 4-Hers from 13 counties made presentations at the district activity day, and were aided by 300 or so parents and volunteers. The organized presentations with props last from 6-12 minutes each, said Tracy Carter, Davie Cooperative Extension 4-H agent.

Categories ranged from cooking to public speaking, horses and bicycling. "Kids are doing activities that relate to their 4-H projects," Carter said.

"They build a lot of self confidence with their public speaking abilities ... in being able to get a point across to a crowd," Carter said. "I've done this myself. That makes me value this process even more."

Seven Davie 4-Hers made presentations. Approximately 25 Davie residents volunteered as "room hosts," many are members of home extension clubs, are master gardeners or 4-H leaders.

Presentations were made during the morning, and in the afternoon the crowd gathered for talent, speeches and awards.

Sara Stutts of Davie County participated in the public speaking category, talking about, "Are You A Couch Potato?"

"I went to the library and didn't find a lot, so I wrote it from my own experience," she said. Sara will be a sixth grader at North Davie Middle School this year.

Miriam Brierly made a breakfast drink with goat's milk, which she buys in the canned milk section of the grocery store.

"I added bananas and honey and vanilla and blended," she said. "Everybody knows cows give milk, but nobody knows goats and sheep have milk. Some people who are allergic to cow's milk can drink goat's milk."

Hosting the district event, which used the theme "More Than You Ever Imagined," is rotated from county to county, Carter said.

Wearing a hat decorated with fruit, Andrea Whitley works on her low fat fruit salad.

Eggs' Sales Could Rise With New Discovery

Now that nutritionists have discovered that the much-maligned egg doesn't contain as much cholesterol as was once thought, many researchers and economists hope that egg sales will rise along with consumers' confidence.

"North Carolina produces 1.6 billion eggs each year and consistently ranks in the top 10 of the egg-producing states in the country," says Dr. Kenneth Anderson, a poultry scientist at North Carolina State University. "The egg industry generates $66 million a year in revenue and employs more than 300 people. We're hoping that the recent good news about the egg will help improve the economic picture even more."

Anderson says that no other food undergoes more relentless quality inspection than the egg. Each and every egg undergoes a visual examination known as "candling." The candler views each egg as it spins over a special lighting device that shows the shadows of each component inside the egg. The size of the air cell, the intensity of the yolk shadow and albumen all attest to the freshness of the egg.

"The smaller the air cell and the thicker (lighter-shadowed) the albumen, the fresher the egg," says Anderson, who is also a North Carolina Cooperative Extension Service specialist at N.C. State. "And as eggs age, the yolk shadows appear darker. The eggs are graded from AA to A, to B and down to checks (rejects), which can be used in animal feed. After washing and inspection, the higher grade eggs go into their new cartons and are placed immediately into a 45-degree cooler. If you handle them correctly after you get them home, eggs are among the safest protein-rich foods you can eat."

Anderson suggests refrigerating your eggs as soon as you get them home from the supermarket, and storing them in the carton in which they were purchased. Eggs stored at a temperature range of 38-40 degrees Fahrenheit will stay fresh for at least one month. Of course, you should avoid eating eggs that have been cracked or kept at room temperature for more than two hours.

Despite the good nutrition and product-quality news, time factors may cause some of us to skip eggs for breakfast.

"Another reason that per capita egg consumption has gone down over the past two decades is due to the way Americans eat breakfast," says Anderson.

"More people are apt to eat on the run—grabbing a muffin or a roll—and don't usually have time to cook breakfast, except maybe on the weekends. But if you plan a little ahead, you can turn eggs into a 'fast food' to round out your breakfast or lunch."

If you like hard-boiled eggs, you can create a perfect eat-on-the-run breakfast if you prepare them ahead of time. Properly hard-boiled eggs can be stored in the refrigerator in their carton for a week. When you're heading out the door, simply grab a hard-boiled egg and little packets of desired seasoning, pop them into the bag with your bagel or muffin and fruit, and you will have a quick, well-rounded breakfast that staves off hunger pangs until lunch. Also, ready-to-eat hard-boiled eggs are perfect for deviled eggs and egg salad sandwiches that make for great picnic fare.

But if you've gotten out of the habit of boiling eggs—cooking them too long, or too little or ending up with cracked eggs—or if you find that the whites of the cooked eggs stick to the shell and make peeling tedious, Anderson suggests the following steps for creating the perfect hard-boiled egg.

• Use eggs that are at least one to two weeks old. Eggs that are too fresh won't peel as easily.

• Allow eggs to reach room temperature before cooking them.

• Place eggs in a sauce pan and cover completely with cool water, with the water's surface an inch or 2 above the eggs.

• With the burner set on medium, bring the eggs to a gentle (not rolling) boil.

• Remove the sauce pan immediately from the heat source and let stand for 15 minutes.

• Rinse in cold water and peel, or store for future use.

You should end up with hard-boiled eggs that are not cracked, are cooked through without the green "sulphur" ring around the yolk (which results from over cooking), and are easily peeled.

"Eggs are such a perfect food," says Anderson. "They contain folic acid, 12 minerals and all vitamins except for C. One egg provides 15 percent of our daily protein needs. Each egg contains only one and a half grams of saturated fat, 215 milligrams of cholesterol and 75 calories. For a person who has normal blood cholesterol, eggs can be a healthy component of a weight-loss or weight-maintenance diet."

Davie Women Learn To Be Strong, Bold, Beautiful

The New You: Strong, Bold & Beautiful.

Those words were enough to attract 20 Davie women to a workshop at the Davie Family YMCA June 21, to learn about the benefits of diet and exercise—and receive makeup and fashion tips.

The women learned about the importance of good nutrition from Cathy Manson of the Davie County Health Department.

They visited the YMCA's weight room where they were taught proper weight-lifting techniques and how to use the equipment by Janet Packett of Healthy Carolinians of Davie County, who coordinated the event.

Michelle Shaver of the YMCA discussed the benefits of aerobic conditioning and presented information on the local YMCA.

After these sessions, they received skin condition and color analyses followed by a complimentary makeover from local BeautiControl consultants.

To cap off the day, participants were invited to a fashion show at the Mocksville Wal-Mart, which was sponsored by the store.

She said she was pleased with the turnout for the workshop and the age range—teens to senior citizens. Participants agreed the event was fun and helpful, she said.

Possibilities Are Innumerable With Potatoes

By Babs Wilkinson
N.C. Dept. of Agriculture

Potatoes are always a good buy in the supermarket, and North Carolina's white rounds are coming to market which means an even better buy. This type of potato is great for baking, boiling, and frying and are generally moist and firm. They make great potato salad because they hold their shape so well; and, are just the right size for baking in the oven and roasting on the grill.

New potatoes (which make wonderful potato soup) are the small potatoes that are dug early before the skins have set. They are best boiled or steamed. Because the skins are tender, there is no need to peel them before adding them to a recipe.

Drain potatoes, reserving dressing mixture. Layer half each of potato slices, parsley, egg slices, and dressing mixture in a shallow 2-1/2 quart serving bowl in order listed. Repeat layers once. Sprinkle with pimento. Cover and chill thoroughly. Yield: 8 servings.

DEVILED POTATOES
3 cups mashed potatoes
2 egg yolks, beaten
1/2 cup onion, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon hot sauce
3/4 cup crushed potato chips
3/4 cup Cheddar cheese, grated
1/2 teaspoon paprika

Combine potatoes, egg yolks, onion, lemon juice, garlic, salt, dry mustard, pepper, and hot sauce. Stir and pour into a greased baking dish. Combine potato chips and cheese; spread over potatoes. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 20 minutes or until cheese is melted.

COLORFUL POTATO SOUP
1 medium onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

3 cups peeled, diced white round potatoes (about 2 pounds)
1 cup grated carrot
1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

Add potato, cover, reduce heat, and simmer 15 minutes. Stir in carrot, salt, and pepper; cover and simmer 15 minutes or until potato is tender. Combine flour and 2 tablespoons cooking liquid, stirring with a wire whisk until smooth. Stir flour mixture into soup mixture; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Reduce heat to low; stir in sour cream and parsley. Cook just until thoroughly heated. Yield: 8 cups.

POTATO & ONION BAKE
2 tablespoons butter, softened
5-6 large, white round potatoes, peeled
2 medium onions
1/4 grated Parmesan cheese salt and pepper, to taste
2 tablespoons butter

Spread 2 tablespoons softened butter on a 24 inch X 16 inch sheet of heavy duty foil. Slice potatoes and onions and place on foil. Sprinkle with cheese, salt and pepper. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter and seal foil with a double fold. Place on an outdoor grill over low coals (or bake at 350 degrees) for 50 minutes.

1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon pepper
8 large hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 (7-ounce) jar diced pimento, drained

Cook potatoes in boiling water to cover 25 to 30 minutes or until tender; drain and let cool slightly. Peel potatoes, and cut crosswise into 1/4-inch thick slices. Place potato slices in a bowl. Combine olive oil and next 7 ingredients in a small bowl, stirring with a wire whisk until blended. Pour dressing mixture over warm potatoes; toss gently. Cover and chill at least 4

Hunters Get Grace Period

RALEIGH—A grace period has been put into effect by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission for North Carolina fishermen and hunters whose current licenses expire in early July because new licenses did not arrive from printers in time to go on sale July 1 as scheduled.

Licenses should be in the hands of agents throughout the state by mid July. Enforcement officers will not issue citations to citizens who have current (1995-96) licenses until such time as the new licenses are received by agents.

Prior to 1995-96, licenses were good from July 1 through June 30 of the following year. However, that has been changed and licenses now are good for one year from date of purchase. For example, a license purchased on Aug. 1 is good through the following July 31.

About 700,000 fishing and hunting licenses are sold in North Carolina each year, and the new staggered purchase system takes some of the early July pressure off license division staff members and agents throughout the state.

Beginning Monday, July 1, most North Carolina hunting and fishing licenses will be issued by the Commission through the use of a toll free number and a MasterCard or VISA credit card. This computerized toll free system may be accessed only by using a touch-tone telephone. The numbers are 1-888-2HUNT/FSH (1-888-248-6834) and is operational 24 hours per day, seven days a week.

In addition to a credit card, applicants should have an identification number (driver license or hunting license), and paper and pen or pencil to write down their conformation number. Citizens applying for a hunting license must have successfully completed a hunter education course or have a number of a previous hunting license.

Fishermen throughout the state don't have to worry about a fishing license of any type on July 4 as that day is a "free fishing day" on all waters. Free fishing days are now offered at some time of the year by 44 states and the District of Columbia.

July 4 was chosen as North Carolina's "free fishing day" because most citizens do not have to work on that holiday, providing the chance for first time fishing experiences for thousands of citizens.

"We invite every person in the state to try some of the many types of fishing North Carolina has to offer," said Fred Harris, chief of the Commission's Division of Boating and Inland Fisheries. "North Carolina has more than 2,000 miles of trout streams, many large impoundments and many creeks and rivers. A person doesn't have to travel far from home to try his or her luck at fishing. We hope every person fishing on this free day has a really good time and catches a few fish. We also hope many of them will begin fishing on a regular basis."

Harris said more boats will be on the state's rivers, creeks and lakes this week than any other week of the year and the urges boaters to be very careful. "Fishing, boating and other water-based recreations are fun and can be accident free if we all practice safe boating skills and are careful around and in the water," Harris said. "We urge all boat operators not to operate their boats while or after consuming alcoholic beverages."

Five Servings Of Fruits Vegetables Improves Daily Diet

If you're looking for an easy way to improve your diet, take the fifth that is, five servings of fruits and vegetables daily.

Like most Americans, you probably fall short of this recommendation from the National Cancer Institute—averaging about three servings a day.

If you think that meeting the five-day requirement means revamping your eating habits, think again. Consider that a single serving is equal to:

- 1 cup of leafy vegetables or 1/2 cup of other kinds of vegetables.
- 1 medium-sized apple, orange, banana or other whole fruit.
- 1/2 cup of small or diced fruit, such as grapes or cantaloupe.

- 1/4 cup dried, such as raisins or prunes.
- 3/4 cup of 10 fruit or vegetable juice.

Add a glass of orange or grapefruit juice and fresh fruit to your morning breakfast. For lunch, top your sandwich with sliced cucumber or tomatoes. Or, sit down to a bowl of vegetable soup, black beans and rice or a salad made from dark greens, such as spinach, romaine or escarole. Add broccoli, cauliflower, green peppers and carrots to salads made from iceberg lettuce. Finally, at dinner add vegetables such as broccoli, zucchini and yellow squash to your favorite pasta recipe. Mom may not have realized it at the time, but she had your good health in mind when she included fruit with your lunch and a vegetable with every dinner. Today, researchers have uncovered that fruits and vegetables are packed with nutrients that protect against neural tube defects (in newborns), heart disease and various cancers. Take advantage of all that fruits and vegetables have to offer. Each day, eat three or more servings of vegetables and two or more servings of fruit. These tips are provided by Partners National Health Plans of North Carolina.

Lorin Wood and Ladd Dezenford recently opened Bermuda Mini Warehouses at Bermuda Quay Shopping Center. Jessica Dezenford also helps with the busis.

Mini-Warehouse Business Opens In Hsdale

HILLSDALE - Lorin Wood and Ladd Dezenford were at Music at Sunset at Tanglewood Park to relax and enjoy an evening of music.

While there, they also dreamed up an idea for a new business - mini-warehouses - in eastern Davie.

For about three weeks, Bermuda Mini Warehouses has been open next to Bermuda Quay Shopping Center off Hwy. 158 (Look for the huge American flag.). The company specializes in fenced, high security storage buildings in a lighted travel and parking area, with plans in the works for a climate controlled facility.

"We're trying to make it the Cadillac of mini's," Wood said. "We want to dress it up for the neighborhood. We've landscaped it so it will be nice."

Bermuda Mini's features an electronic security gate, and a paved, lighted and dry storage areas. Sizes for rent include 5- by 5-feet, 5 by 10, by 10 by 15 and 10 by 20. There are 150 total units. A surveillance camera will be added for security. Wood is a contractor who lives near Mocksville. Deprf the owner of Southern Comps who lives in Clemmons. They did they hope to build a successful wife to operate, not to sell. Dezf's wife, Jessica, also works at Beta Mini's.

Units may be rented at any time (Call 998-9661 office is closed), and arrangement is made to have items moved from another storage area, Dezenford said.

Linda Bost Named Principal At Davie High School

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie High School has a new principal.

At a special meeting Tuesday evening, the Davie County Board of Education chose Linda Bost, who had been one of the school's assistant principals.

"We believe you can do great things," Board Chairman Jerry Swicegood told her. Many people have contacted school board members endorsing Bost for the job, he said.

Board member Mark Jones said he found that Bost has garnered the respect of the DHS faculty and staff.

Bost, who was recommended for the position by Superintendent Dr. Bill Steed, said she is counting on as principal is the support of the faculty. She believes in the faculty, students and parents.

"They, in turn, are gracious enough to believe in me," she said.

As principal, she would like to give everyone associated with the school a place where they can develop and grow. "I want the school to be open and inviting to parents and the community... to be recognized as a vital part of the community."

The way things are going in our culture today, schools are the best place for kids to be, she said. When a student wants to quit, Bost tells them that more people care about them at school than they will ever find in one place again.

The responsibility of the schools in the lives of children is as heavy or heavier than it has ever been. The first priority is getting young people ready for the business world and college, she said.

Her main goal is instruction - in the classroom, the science lab or on the football field, including character education.

Her husband, Roger, is a teacher and head football coach at Statesville Sr. High School. Her parents taught her there was nothing nobler than a teacher. "I still believe that," said Bost, who taught for 14 years in Davidson and Iredell counties. Two of her three siblings are educators, and all but one is married to a teacher.

Bost replaces W.G. "Dub" Potts, who left last month to accept a job in the Central Office.

"I think Davie High is a wonderful school," Bost said, "and we're going to work to make it even better."

When she came to Davie, Bost said it felt like a match - this is where she needed to be.

She is working on her PhD in educational leadership with a concentration in curriculum and teaching at UNC-Greensboro.

Nothing Finer? July 4th Showed Town's Charm

Ever wish you lived somewhere else? Ever feel the grass is greener or that life is finer in the big city? Chances are you weren't at Rich Park for the Fourth of July celebration.

Amid the music and fireworks on the nation's birthday, it was hard to escape the conclusion: We live in a pretty nice place.

More than 2,000 people heard patriotic music from the Winston-Salem Symphony and watched a classy fireworks display. Some spread blankets on the ballfield and came with picnics.

There were children and parents and grandparents, all basking in relaxation and joy. Surprisingly, temperatures dipped during what is normally one of the hottest times of the year. Those who had paid attention to the weather forecast brought light jackets. Others wished they had.

Throughout the evening, there was constant evidence of the goodness of the community. Rich Park was donated to the town generations ago by a man concerned about the welfare of the community. The ballfield was constructed as a war memorial after World War II. Young people, summer workers for the recreation department, directed traffic and organized the parking — not a small task. Youth council members sold glow-rings to raise money for their activities. The Davie County Arts Council and the recreation department organized the music and fireworks.

The visit by the symphony was made possible by Mocksville Savings Bank, sponsor of the performances in recent years. The town has been blessed by a number of locally-owned, successful businesses and industries. Blessed because they also have a community conscience. We almost couldn't have a Christmas Parade without Christy Trucking. Steve Beaver uses his entire fleet to pull flatbed trailers loaded with youth football teams and cheerleaders. It's a wonderful parade, involving hundreds of children. The symphony's visit last week wouldn't have been possible without Mocksville Savings Bank. The bank's support for community projects and activities has been solid.

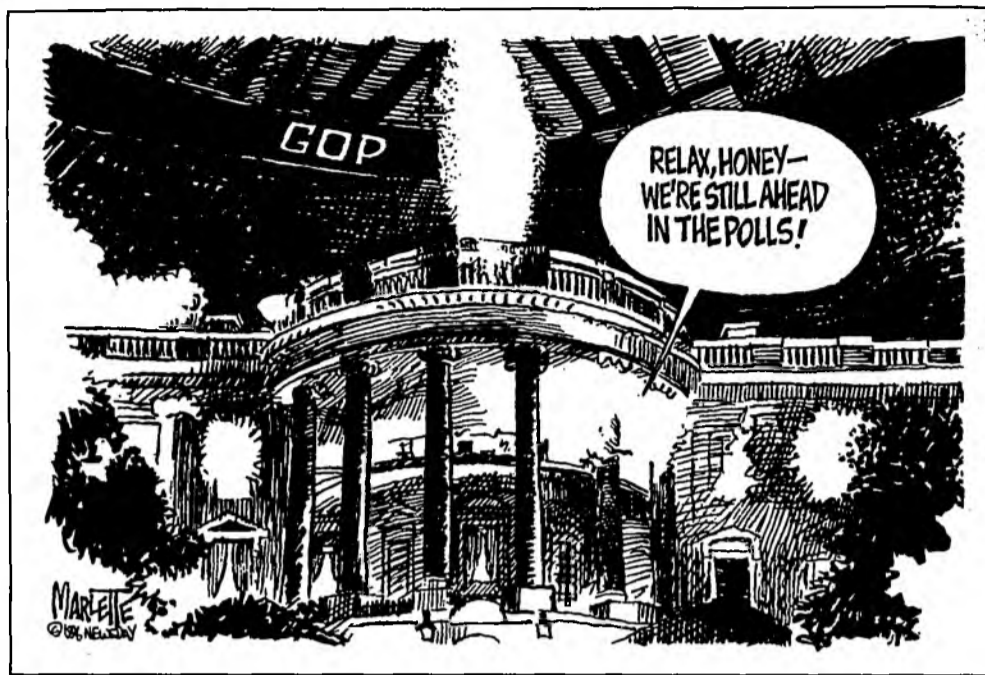

Sometimes we forget to say thank you. Sometimes we take benevolence and generosity for granted. Sometimes we forget that volunteers aren't paid. They're not doing it for the money.

Without them, we would all stay home for the Fourth of July. There was a time when we didn't have fireworks. There were no symphony performances. No place to go... unless we went somewhere else.

The Fourth of July celebration, the Masonic Picnic, the American Legion ball team, the volunteer firemen, the churches, the hospital auxiliary, the civic clubs and more combine to make the community a little special. Sidewalks, the YMCA, Brock auditorium, tennis courts and other things serve to unite us and keep us from living all our lives in a cul-de-sac.

Is this the best place in the world? There may be other places with their own claim to peace and tranquility. Their rains may be more gentle. Their temperatures may be more moderate. But this place seems just fine.

Political Corruption, Fraud Surround Grant

To the editor:
If you pay state, federal, or Davie County tax wake up and smell the Coolseemee sewers. The stink is worse than you would normally expect. It's the stink of secret meetings, wheeling and dealing, political corruption, and fraud.
Coolseemee doesn't need more sewers. They have enough provided by Davie County. That's what they tell the Local Government Commission so they can spend funds received from the one-half cent sales tax. Otherwise, they would have to use part of this tax for sewer construction as required by N.C. Gen. Stat. 105-487. To date approximately $300,000 of this tax money should have been spent on sewer construction, but not one dollar has been. Coolseemee needs more sewers. This is what they said when applying for a Community Development Block Grant for $726,850. This grant is federal money administered by the State of North Carolina. Talk about a conflict of interest. Remember the Coolseemee Town Board was telling both these stories; need sewer, don't need sewer at the same time. One of them has to be a lie and fraud. Think it can't get any worse? Wrong.

This grant is not paying for the sewer line Roger Spillman wants across vacant land belonging to him in Coolseemee. That would have been too much of a waste even for the federal government so Davie County stepped in with $100,000 plus of your county tax dollars to do it. I am not saying Roger Spillman bribed county officials, only that the county board has always said it was not in the sewer business until Mr. Spillman offered $10,000 to get a sewer line across his property.

Patient Is Refused Help

To the editor:
Have you become ill recently unexpectedly, and needed to see a doctor at the Davie Family Medical Center? This happened to me today, and when I went to the center in an attempt to receive treatment, the receptionist refused to let me see a doctor, or even a P.A. since I had not known I would be ill in time to make an appointment in advance. Who instructs these receptionists as to the treatment we are entitled to? Dr. Kimberly, do you not want to see your patients anymore?

Is this the type of treatment the citizens of Davie County deserve? Why must we be referred to the emergency room to see a doctor we have never seen before when without warning we become ill?
Warren C. Carter

Family Appreciates Support

To the editor:
I am writing to express appreciation of the Lemmons family to the vast number of friends, neighbors and Macedonia Moravian Church, who provided the support and out-flow of love throughout Bob's 10-month illness. I am especially touched to all those who responded so tremendously at the time of Bob's passing when we needed it the most. The splendid performance of the law enforcement officers involved in the funeral service brought a message of comfort to each of us at a particularly sad time. Please accept the thanks of the family to all who shared in our pain and sorrow. We shall be eternally grateful.

Fire Fighters Stop Church Fire

To the editor:
We at First United Methodist Church want to commend members of the Mocksville, Fork, and Center Volunteer Fire Departments for their fine performance of duty on Tuesday, July 2, in quelling the fire in our education building started by a lightning strike. Their bravery and knowledge of procedure surely kept our building from being badly damaged. We also extend our thanks to Richie Hamilton (Jerusalem VFD), Wendell Sain (Country Line VFD), and Todd Naylor (Farmington VFD) for responding to the call.

We were overwhelmed at the number of pastors and members from churches of all denominations who called offering not only condolences but their help. Thank you for your generosity of Christian spirit.
Above all, we thank God who kept everyone safe and spared the building from further damage. The staff, members and friends of First United Methodist Church
Tamara Rollins, Barbara Basham

Swimsuit Shopping Provides Healthy Dose Of Reality

Do you ever have times when life seems to be going along a little too well? Things are falling into place much too easily and you begin to get a little suspicious.

I know I'm into one of these "phases" when the bank sends me my monthly statement and I can actually balance my checkbook to the penny. Or when I open the Duke Power bill anticipating the need to see about a second mortgage in order to pay it, and discover they're sending me a refund. If all that happens on the same week my son finds every single pair of his baggy pants in the laundry and is forced to wear clothes that actually fit and my daughter doesn't have to be carpooled a distance equal to a cross country trek in a single afternoon, I know I'm in real need of a pie-plate full of reality in the face. And I know just how to get it.

Lynn Hall

When I'm feeling a little too organized, a little too smug about having paid all the bills and actually having a little cash left over, a little too gleeful about having written my column before the weekend so that I don't spend Saturday and Sunday agonizing over what I will come up with on Monday, I simply take myself off to the mall for an afternoon of swim suit shopping. Nothing else quite wallops you up side the head like a full-length view of yourself in a bathing suit. Talk about dunking your ego in a ice cold bucket of water, this is it. I haven't purchased a bathing suit in about four or five years and had no intention of ever owning one again, but in what I can only describe as what must have been some sort of out-of-body experience, I found myself in my car, driving to the mall with the intention of locating something "suitable".

If this wasn't incredible enough, when I arrived at the store, I found they were playing a video on the television set in the swimsuit department, that must have been written with me in mind. The narrator was explaining just how far bathing suits had come in the last decade in their ability to make "anyone" look good. The viewer was advised never to simply try on one or two suits. Fifteen was recommended as a good number in order to make a well-informed decision. Sounded like reasonable advice, except for the fact that I could not find even three suits I like well enough to try. And it was just as well. After trying on only two suits, I found my self esteem had dropped to somewhere around my ankles and my head reeling from a good left hook of reality.

My daughter was waiting for me when I came out of the dressing room.
"So, did you have any luck?" she asked.
I nodded. "I'd say so. After what I just saw staring back at me from the dressing room mirror, I'd say I'm lucky my heart's still beating."

In The Mail ... Admiring Old Glory

To the editor:
I just purchased a new U.S. flag in honor of the 4th of July celebrations. After nouncing its pole to the house, I was reminded of the deaths of our service members in Saudi Arabia this week. Out of respect for them, I lowered both my U.S. and N.C. flags to half mast.
I was now faced with the disposal of the old and faded U.S. flag. As a veteran, I knew that this is properly done by burning it. I proceeded to do so with much hesitation and remorse. Call me sentimental, but after starting the fire I took a step back and saluted that old flag one last time. As that flag burned, I thought of my friends who are still in service, those now veterans like myself, and of my family members which have served in the past. I then thought of all those folks who serve their fellow country men as civilians while watching the fire spread.
Until finally I realized just how much that old flag, now blackened and turning to ash, meant to me. Just as my spirits began to really take a nose-dive, I heard the snapping of my new flag in the wind. So I walked over in front of my flags to watch them sway with the breeze. A smile came back to my face as I stood there admiring those bright colors. Suffice to say that today has ended on a high note for me.
I suggest everyone take a moment to pray for the families of those deceased service members the next time they see "that old flag" hanging from some stranger's porch. Perhaps they too have memories tied up in that faded piece of cloth.

The Thursday before Mother's Day, I started feeling some tingling and weakness in my arm. At first I brushed it off, but it kept occurring so I went to see my doctor. When he told me I had a brain tumor, the first thing that popped into my head was, "Oh my gosh, I'm going to die."
In less than two weeks, I was admitted to Forsyth Hospital for surgery. The doctors and staff were so kind and reassuring and the preoperative care made such a difference. I met everyone that would be involved in my surgery and recovery. They walked me through every step, so I knew just what to expect.
My tumor was attached to a nerve and was the size of a walnut, but it wasn't cancerous. The neurosurgeon at Forsyth Hospital was able to remove it and repair the nerve. As I was waking up from the anesthesia, he was right there with me. When he asked me to smile, I could! Now, I'm doing great, thanks to the folks at Forsyth.

For April Roscana, Having A Brain Tumor Was The Last Thing On Her Mind.

Surgery of any kind is a traumatic experience. Particularly when it involves the intricacies of the brain. Last year the surgeons at Forsyth Hospital performed more than 500 brain operations. But just as important as our technical experience and modern facilities is the level of care and understanding our patients receive prior to surgery and during recovery. We believe the more information our patients have about their condition, the better able they are to help in their recovery. This "peace of mind" gained through knowledge and information is a powerful tool in helping our patients think beyond surgery to a return to healthy life.

Community Offers Help To House Fire Victims

thought that his son was up watching television. About 30 minutes later, he woke up again.

"I woke up again smelling smoke," he said. "I raised up in bed to turn the light, and then the light came on by itself. That's when I saw the smoke. I told Sarah to get up, we've got to get out."

Once outside, Anderson said he began calling to his son, who was in an upstairs bedroom.

"I went back in that smoke-filled house to get some clothes," he said. "I sat on the back porch to put my shoes on, and that heat slammed the door behind me. Then I started moving."

Center and Sheffield-Calahalan firefighters were on the scene quickly, and kept the fire from spreading across the house, built in the mid-1800s by Sarah's ancestors. Much of the contents of the house was destroyed or damaged by the heat, smoke and water - including several pieces of antique furniture, some of which were family heirlooms.

Jimmy Neal Anderson said the family had insurance, but he wasn't yet sure the following morning if it would cover the loss. There's no way some of the items could be replaced, he said. They hope to stay on the property while the house is being cleaned and repaired.

Firefighters, the Red Cross, neighbors, family and fellow members of Center United Methodist Church stayed with the family throughout the night, helping clean and offering places to stay.

"It's just wonderful what has been offered," Jimmy Neal said.

"I'm glad we didn't get hurt, and there's a bunch of nice people who have been here to help us," Millard said.

Hamptonville Man Is Charged With Attempted Murder At Davie Trailer

A Hamptonville man has been charged with trying to kill an acquaintance at his Davie County home.

James Franklin Chandler, 55, was arrested by the Davie County Sheriff's Department for attempted murder, discharging a firearm into an occupied dwelling and misdemeanor larceny. He was placed in the Davie County Jail in lieu of a $200,000 bond, pending a July 11 first-appearance hearing in Davie District Court.

Chandler went to the home of Dewey Wesley Pinnix, 56, on Chinquapin Road in northwestern Davie County with the intention of killing him, said Lt. Jimmy Phipps, chief of detectives. The two, former co-workers, had a disagreement.

Chandler went to Pinnix's trailer early morning on July 4, knowing that he usually sits in a certain chair and watches television, Phipps said. "He walked up to the outside of it where he thought the man would be sitting, and he shot a gun through the side of the trailer, trying to kill him."

Pinnix may have been saved by the barking of his dog. He had been sitting in the chair, and got up to look out the window when he heard a dog barking outside, Phipps said. The shotgun blast had gone through the chair where he had been sitting.

Chandler was very intoxicated when officers arrested him late that night. He was picked up by the Yadkin County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff's Department, ALE Make 27 Arrests At Farmington Event

At least 27 people were arrested at a Fourth of July celebration at Farmington Dragway which featured music by the Charlie Daniels Band.

The crowd was estimated at 7,000 people by Davie Sheriff's Chief Deputy Mark Howell.

The sheriff's department made a felony arrest when Deputy M.D. Cundiff tried to break up an argument between two people at the event.

One of those people, Floyd Taft Ellis III, 26, of Bethesda Lane, Mocksville, shoved and hit the officer. When he was arrested, police discovered approximately a gram of cocaine in his pocket.

Ellis was charged with felony possession of cocaine and misdemeanor assault on a law enforcement officer.

He was placed in the Davie County Jail in lieu of a $20,000 bond, pending July 18 first-appearance hearing in Davie District Court.

Lt. Jimmy Phipps, chief of detectives with the sheriff's department, said that several members of the department worked the event, along with 10 officers hired by the promoters.

Seven Alcohol Law Enforcement Officers also worked the event, arrested 26 people on 31 charges: on three for felony possession of marijuana, five for misdemeanor possession of marijuana, one for carrying a concealed weapon, 15 for under possession of beer, three for giving beer to an underage person, one being intoxicated and disruptive and one for resisting arrest.

Advance Man Arrested

An Advance man faces five charges after beating up his wife and fighting officers on July 4.

Kelly Wayne Peacock, 31, of Cornet Road, was charged by Davie Sheriff's Deputy W.L. Whitesides with assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury, assault by pointing a gun, assault on a female, assault on a government officer and possession of marijuana. He is scheduled to face the charges July 18 in Davie District Court.

Deputies were called to the Peacock home just after 2 a.m. July 4. Peacock had hit his wife, Kimberly Ann Peacock, causing cuts and threatened her with a .22 caliber rifle. Whitesides reported.

Tamra Rollins, Church Secretary "It was a very frantic few minutes." Lightning Strike Starts Fire At Church

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

A lightning bolt started a fire at Mocksville's First United Methodist Church the afternoon of July 2, but church members are counting their blessings.

"They're thankful that no one was injured. They're thankful that damage was mostly limited to a roof. They're thankful the steeple and sanctuary were not struck. The church is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the sanctuary this year. "We're fortunate it was the education building rather than the sanctuary," said Jack Corriher, chairman of the church's building committee.

A pitched roof was added to that building about 10-12 years ago, on top of a flat tar and gravel roof that was left. That tar and gravel roof saved the building and its contents from damage. "That was a lifesaver. There was minimal damage inside," he said. "It protected the contents of the building. We were very, very fortunate."

Corriher estimated repair costs at $60,000. The old roof will be lifted off, and a new one placed on the building. The work should be completed in about three weeks.

The ordeal was scary for two church employees and employees at Eaton Funeral Service, just across the parking lot from the building. Tamra Rollins and Barbara Basham were in their offices at the back of the sanctuary building when the storm came through. They had looked out the door once at rain gushing over the gutters, wondering if they were blocked, Rollins, the church secretary, said.

"We had heard several strikes (of lightning)," Rollins said. "We remarked, boy, that one was close. We did some things in the office and began to smell smoke."

They picked up the telephone to call for help, and the lines were dead. They opened the back door and saw smoke billowing from the education building.

Carl Lambert and Josie Miller were at the back of the funeral home building, yelling for the two women to get out of the church.

The ordeal was disturbing to Miller, who is a member of the church and knew that Basham and Rollins were likely inside.

"We heard this bad pop like lightning had struck somewhere," she said. "Ron (Dixon) said it sounded like the church."

At first, they didn't see anything. Within a couple of minutes, flames were shooting through the roof. They called 911, and Miller's thoughts turned to the two women. She went to warn them.

"I called over there, and the phone wasn't working. I ran out the (funeral home) door and they came out the (church) back door," she said. "It was a very frantic few minutes," Rollins said.

The education building houses Sunday School classes, and during the school year, a pre-school program is operated there, Rollins said. Services were held in the church Sunday as scheduled.

Members of the Mocksville, Fork and Center fire departments responded to the scene, pulling out the flames before a crowd of church workers and downtown office workers who had gathered in a parking lot across the street.

Mocksville's aerial truck was used to reach the flames that went through the roof.

Garbage Collection Fee Increase OK'd

Davie Sanitation last week received permission to pass along inflation costs, as well as higher landfill fees, to its customers.

County commissioners approved a 56-cent increase in monthly charges for residential garbage collection, to $13.10 a month. The company had requested an increase to $13.60 a month.

The company had not received a cost-of-living increase in four years, and this year, the county began charging an additional $2 a ton fee at the landfill, said H. Russell Barber of Davie Sanitation.

County commissioners said that although more cost-of-living increases could have been approved in past years, a 10 percent increase was too much at one time. They approved a four percent raise.

Barber also said because of growth in the county, the company was looking at upgrading and expanding trucks and facilities.

"You must be doing something right. We haven't received any complaints in months," said Commissioner Diane Foster.

Lee Barber said that customers should first direct complaints to the company.

"I understand that Mr. (Carl) Boon (a county commissioner) has received some calls," Barber said. "I only wish they had called me first. I prefer to handle things that way."

Barber said Davie Sanitation's rates, when compared to tipping fees among surrounding counties, are still among the lowest.

NOTICE TO THE CITIZENS OF DAVIE COUNTY

On July 1st, 1996 the Davie County Board of Commissioners raised the Tipping Fee for solid waste from $45<sup>00</sup> per ton to $47<sup>00</sup> per ton. This increase was due to rising tipping costs at the regional landfill and passed on to Davie County.

Effective August 1st, 1996 our rate for Curbside Service will increase from $12<sup>00</sup> per month to $13<sup>00</sup> per month. Our increase was approved and set by the Board of Commissioners.

We apologize for this increase but have no control over these matters. Thank you for your patronage and understanding in this matter.

Man Plants Garden At Rest Home

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Marshall Bowles had a suggestion for a worker trimming a scraggly tree next to the Davie Village rest home. Just cut it down. That would be a nice place for a vegetable garden.

Now, Bowles is growing water-melons, tomatoes, squash, cucumbers, peppers, and cantaloupes. There's seven sunflower plants for the birds.

At age 74, Bowles lives at Davie Village with his wife, Lucille. A former resident of Duke Street in Mocksville, he's been there for about three years.

"It's just a small place. They cut a tree there, and I said, why can't I plant a garden. He was going to trim it up, and I said just cut it down and I'll plant us a garden."

The fertilizer and seeds were all donated.

"I planted it about the last week in May. It ain't but about a month old," Bowles said. "I'm out here ever morning at 6 o'clock watering it. That's what it takes to make a garden, water and fertilizer. I'm trying to make it grow fast, to out-grow the bugs and the worms."

He scratches the ground to add the fertilizer. Black plastic and mulch help reduce the need to pull weeds.

"This is my life, enjoying something like this. I get out here by myself and talk to the plants," he said.

Bowles tied tree limbs together to make a trellis for the cucumber plants to climb. "I didn't have room for them to spread out, so I thought I would go up with them," he said.

What is his favorite home-grown vegetable? "I like all kinds of fresh vegetables, but a tomato sandwich is awful good," he said.

"You do something that makes you happy and that makes you feel better. It gives you up," he said. "You won't be one of those who say 'oh, I can't do this, and I can't do that'."

"That's the way I feel. If you do something you enjoy, you'll feel better."

ASU Study Shows Low Fat Diet Helps In Weight Loss

A weight loss study at Appalachian State University shows people lose more weight eating a low fat diet than by reducing only their caloric intake.

And the low fat dieters maintained better nutrition, too, a factor in more than just weight loss.

The 10-week study began in January 1995 based on the debate between health practitioners favoring low fat and those favoring low caloric dieting: Is reduction of calories necessary, regardless of macronutrients consumed, in order to cause weight loss?

Appalachian's researchers say no. Dr. Denise Martz presented the findings March 16 at The Fourth International Congress of Behavioral Medicine held in Washington, D.C.

Martz and others randomly divided 75 university faculty and staff concerned with holiday weight gain into low fat and low calorie groups. Each week, the participants weighed in and kept a one-day food log. Researchers analyzed the logs with a computer program, which in addition to reporting fat and calorie consumption, found the low fat diet group ate somewhat healthier foods than the low calorie group.

By the end of the 10 weeks, everyone had lost about 10 pounds. But, the low fat dieters lost an average 12 pounds while the low calorie dieters lost only an average eight pounds.

While the study confirms a person can lose more weight by cutting fat intake, it also shows he or she does so in a more healthy way, Martz said.

"We found it was hard to eat a low calorie diet and keep a nutritional diet, but it was possible to have good nutrition with a low fat diet. The low fat group ate healthier in that they had more iron, more fiber, more carbohydrates. That's because you can cut out fat and not quantity," she said.

That healthy diet translates into reduced risk of other ailments, such as heart disease, diabetes and certain cancers, Martz said.

Staying on a low fat diet is relatively easy, she added, because people don't have to deprive themselves of meals. In general, Martz recommends people eat more breads, fruits and vegetables.

The research team comprised of Martz, assistant professor of psychology, Susan Perry, MSN, health promotion coordinator, and students Allyson Andrews, Pamela Yarrington, Jennifer Ackerman and Patricia Croom.

Davie Churches Re-Aligned

After months of praying and working together, the Farmington, Wesley Chapel and Mt. Olive United Methodist churches (which formerly made up the Farmington UM Charge) were officially re-aligned at the June 1996 session of the Western North Carolina Annual Conference.

Mt. Olive is being served part-time by Gary Foster. Farmington and Wesley Chapel now compose a newly formed 2-point charge with the Rev. Tammy Talbert continuing as pastor.

Farmington and Wesley Chapel celebrated this historic occasion in the life of the new charge by joining together for an ice cream social at the Farmington Community Center on June 30; 80 people enjoyed a time of fellowship and a feast of ice cream and other desserts.

Farmington UMC is located at Hwy.

801 N. and Farmington Road and will be holding Sunday School at 10 a.m. and morning worship at 11 a.m. each Sunday.

Wesley Chapel is located on Pino Road off Hwy. 801 N. and will be holding morning worship and Sunday School at 11 a.m. each Sunday.

"All are invited to come and worship with us as we continue to go and grow in new directions," Talbert said.

Spiritual Resources: A Perfect Day

By Shirley Cottle

July 4. It was a beautiful evening, different from most of the 4th's in years past in this small southern community. Usually the temperatures are well into the 90s, and the chance of thunderstorms prevail.

But today was different. The sun was merciful with the pleasant 80s being the degree readings. A breeze was blowing and the humidity very low.

The county park was filled with spectators. Many had brought a picnic meal and were sharing in the fun of the gathering. Lawn chairs were set up and blankets spread out. The sun was still shining brightly and the sky was a bright blue with just a few clouds to add to the beauty, when the symphony orchestra from a nearby large city began tuning up as a prelude to the evening concert.

Soon the sounds of the woodwinds and brass filled the air in patriotic tribute to America, past composers, and popular musicians. Children were dancing about, and toes were tapping. Flags and balloons were everywhere. Soon the fireworks display would begin. As the sun dropped behind the tree tops and the last refrains of the orchestra played, the evening turned cool and the stars began to show their luster in the heavens. Anticipation was running high now, as it was nearly time for the yearly fireworks to begin. Soon the night sky would be ready for the splash of colors that exploded one after another.

As I cast my gaze from one group to another, one tiny gathering in particular caught my attention. It was a picture of completeness and peace, of strength and beauty. My eyes in particular fell on the young man sitting behind me. In his lap and lying on his left shoulder was his young son. He had snuggled securely there and was held lovingly by his father's left arm. On the young man's right shoulder, a beautiful young woman rested her head and his right arm was around her affectionately. As they watched the sky above, and whispered the ooh's and awe's of the display of lights, it was as if God had reached down and gave them His Fatherly blessing. There had been much sadness for this young man in years past, but now it had turned to joy. As I turned my own gaze back to the night sky, I was reminded once again of the eternal love that never abandons us. What a tremendous end to a perfect day.

WDSL Seeks More Air Time To Broadcast Davie Sports

baseball coach and Benjie Brown, who was recently named the new football coach, has been working day and night since the first of June with Davie's first practice 19 days away.

"We just feel that it would give a big lift to the community," Wishon said.

But the community would have to return the favor. The favor would be greenbacks from sponsors. "We'll have to have backing and support from different organizations," Wishon said. "Public support means a lot. Anything the local advertisers can give, it would give us more of a chance for nighttime."

WDSL has received a resounding okay from Davie High coaches and also from big shots Howard Coble, a U.S. Congressman, N.C. Sen. Betsy Cochrane and Rep. Julia Howard.

But anyone who used to listen to Davie football and basketball games on WDSL on taped-delay can only wonder where Otis Snow is? Would he make a return to microphone equipment that didn't have to be duct-taped together?

Snow, the voice of Davie (along with color man Marion Pitts) from 1970-77 and then again from 1980-88, took the same train out when Mike Carter left the football scene in 1988.

Toward the end of Snow's era, I kept the stats for him and haven't seen him since his hiatus, which has climbed to eight years.

Like a one-man FBI, I went looking for Snow on Monday.

And I was reassured about the snowy mystery - he wasn't home. His wife said that duct-tape or not, Snow was more than likely done.

But Wishon is thinking along the same lines. "Well, it's best to get somebody that is local (to do the announcing)," he said. "Someone that knows the teams. Most whoever you hire, you want somebody that knows something already, like past statistics."

Wishon, who started working at WDSL in 1988, has pushed away the idea of taped-delay. "Carrying the late games lost interest," he said confidently.

"So if you're going to carry, you might as well carry it live, but you have to have the support of businesses to offset the cost. There's hidden cost you have to take care of."

Walsler, who never seems lost for ideas, is gung ho over the latest ordeal. "We're fortunate to have a newspaper that covers every sport probably as thorough as any in the state," said Walsler, noting that radio would be another asset to Davie High.

"(Live broadcast) wouldn't just be good for me and the school, but it would be tremendous for the kids. How many chances in a lifetime do you have to have your name on the radio? There's so many pluses and no minuses. Nobody can tell me a minus."

Walsler, in his own words, said if the shoe fits, wear it. "We need to make hay when we've got the grass. We're on a roll here," he said with his voice gradually raising. "The people are excited, and if they're not, they need to go to the hospital. "It ain't going to hurt attendance. It's going to get more on the ball park... A county of Davie County's stature, which has been here for 800 million years or whatever, deserves this."

When will the Federal Communication Commission pass the envelope? "I'm waiting on paper work to get back on the license," Wishon said. "Then we have to do some testing on the territory and then approach the FCC."

"I want either 24 hours or at least until 1 in the morning and then pick back up at 5 a.m. We need the extra time ... I prefer 24."

Wishon summed up roughly a 30-minute discussion in one short sentence. "Political red tape holds up things, lets put it that way," he said.

Walsler's dead, or rather, dangerously serious. "If we get it, I'll run naked through the town square," he said.

With red tape surrounding every move, will the long arm remove the tape that covers WDSL voices after sunset?

If so, we might need tight surveillance around the square.

Mocksville Racer Wins At Dragway

Mocksville's Todd Howard, a first year Quick 8 racer, captured his first ever win at the Farmington Dragway Saturday night.

To do so, Howard had to knock off King's Rickie "Trickie" Smith, who has been a Pro Stock champion several times.

Howard, who drives a Mustang Machine & Tool sponsored Pontiac Trans-Am, ran a 4.29 ET at 171 MPH to surge past Smith's Chevrolet Corvette.

This marked Howard's fifth win of the year on the Quick 8 racer's association tour, and is near the top of the points standings after this race.

Moser Pockets $600
In the Sportsman division, Bobby Moser Jr. of Advance took his first win of the season in his Farmington Machine backed Ford Mustang.

Moser turned in a 7.83 ET at 86 MPH to defeat Kemersville's Brian Williams in a Chevrolet.

The win was worth $600 to Moser, and also moved him up to 11th in the current Farm Points Series.

The annual Kids Day will be Saturday night at Farmington. There will be big wheel and bicycle races for kids under 12 and everyone receives a trophy. This will be a Farm points race for Top Eliminator and Sportsman.

In the absence of Amy Call, who has been forced to miss recent action because of other commitments, David Stein took center stage in the 597-251 loss at Grandview.

Stein was a triple-winner for Hickory Hill, taking the distance freestyle, backstroke and breaststroke. Mitchell Roberts was the only other multiple winner. He captured first place in the distance freestyle and individual medley.

Alison Alexander (individual medley), Alexandra Wannenburg (freestyle), Sally Riddle (freestyle), Neely Alexander (backstroke), Betsy Riddle (backstroke) and Bailey Marrs (breaststroke) won one event apiece.

The Hurricanes took top honors in two relays, the medley relay and the freestyle relay.

Taylor Harmon, Lauren Davis and Nichole Fullerton were involved in each winner. Meg Brewer was part of the medley relay team, and Hollie Roberts contributed in the freestyle finish.

The 'Other' Call
Every time one of Hickory Hill's opponents looks up, there is one of the Call girls racing in front.

This time it was Dana Call who took first-place honors in three individual events in a 561-294 loss to Clemmons West here Tuesday.

Call won the individual medley, freestyle and butterfly.

The Hurricanes had two double winners, Roberts and Brent Gaither. Roberts won the distance freestyle and butterfly, while Gaither outdistanced the field in the individual medley and freestyle.

Wright's Flawless Pitching Holds Down High Point

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

HIGH POINT - "Man oh man." Those words from Assistant Coach Rick Allied couldn't have described the Davie National All-Stars' mood any better, following their 10-9 win Monday (July 1) at High Point in the second round of the District II Major division double-elimination tournament. "Man oh man," Allied yelled, while the team ran from the field, after a mob scene on the pitcher's mound, to hug anybody that was willing. "I'm a nervous wreck," he said. The victory paved the road for Davie's showdown against Southwest Forsyth (see separate story) in the third round at the Winston-Salem Nationals, the neutral site for third-round games through the finals. Davie routed Walkertown 20-0 in the first round but this was a different story.

Davie's dominance picked up where it left off as it surged ahead 5-0 after two innings, but High Point showed poise on its home field, fighting back to eventually lead 9-7, and the score was deadlocked at 9-9 going into the sixth and final inning. Davie's pitcher brought a rare feature to the table for this age. "He could throw a curveball on any count," Poplin said. "If you can throw a curveball on any count to a 12-year-old ..."

"He was better than what we've faced so far, but he wasn't overpowering. He had an overhand curve and the fastball was not blazing." Looking at the bright side, Davie probably just happened to be in the wrong bracket.

Poplin said he was catching glimpses of other games and felt good about Davie's chances at making some noise from the loser's bracket. "I feel we could have played with either one of the teams I saw on one field," he said. "We probably got a hold of one of the two best teams."

"I've got all the confidence in the world in our team. We've got to forget and go on."

"It's knowball," said Poplin of Davie scoring its 25th unanswered run early in the contest. "It boosted our confidence, but I knew we'd face a lot better teams, especially when you go to a big city like High Point American."

In a game with 19 combined runs, the last thing you think about is dominate pitching, but Davie's Cody Wright nearly did everything right when he relieved starter Chris Seaford in the third inning with no one out.

Wright pitched four scoreless innings to lower the team-ERA to 1.20 through two games. The right-hander gave up three hits, but only the first batter he faced had a solid single - two were bunted for hits.

Wright didn't play in the first game and his time finally came. "He's my ace in the hole," Poplin said. "I told him before the game to be ready."

Poplin was pleased with Wright's six strike outs but even more impressed with no walks. "Since he started with us in practice, we've thrown him down some," Poplin said. "He can throw harder ... believe it or not."

"A couple of times he tried to over-throw, but as long as he throttles back, he's pretty tough to hit."

"With the game tied at 9-9 in the top of the sixth, Andrew Daywalt led off with a ground-rule double as his ball bounced over the center-field portable fence. "I've got confidence in Andrew," Poplin said. "He can hit when his mind's on what he wants to do."

One out later, after Daywalt had moved to third on a wild pitch, Ben Allied, who fouled off several pitches, hit a slow roller to first for the second out, but he brought home Daywalt for what proved to be the winning run.

"Ben will put the bat on the ball at every opportunity," Poplin said. "A one-run lead didn't seem nearly enough, as the top of High Point's order was due up in the bottom of the sixth. But Wright struck out the side - one looking and two swinging - to end the game. It was the fourth batter in a row to go down on strikes, and he retired 11 of the last 12 High Point batters he faced."

Four Davie runs in the first put High Point in a hole early. Jason Hogue reached on the shortstop's error, and later scored the first run on a wild pitch. Seaford singled and came around on McKenzie Willoughby's sacrifice fly to left.

Two batters later, Dave Poplin singled home a run, and Travis Allen knocked in the fourth with a base hit to right.

Rice's ground-ball out score Hogue, who again reached on an error to begin the second, for a 5-0 lead. "(Hogue) is doing what we need him to do," Poplin said.

High Point sent shock waves through the visitor's side with six runs in the third for its first lead of the game. And all six were unearned on two costly errors, and each team committed five for the game. "If we'd not been so shoddy in the field, we would have won pretty handily," Poplin said. "M and Rick said, 'Look, it's not over.'"

Davie bounced back with two runs in the third to take a 7-6 lead. Allen was aboard on a fielder's choice. Jacob Garner reached on the second baseman's errant throw and Hogue smoked a liner that was misplayed in right field to knock in Allen.

Seaford put Davie up with his third hit of the game, this one a high chopper over the pitcher's head for an infield hit.

Three more High Point runs in the third called for Poplin to take out Seaford after two innings. Out of the nine runs that Seaford allowed on six hits, only two were earned, but he still wasn't himself.

"I don't really know (what was wrong), Poplin said. "Chris was up, up and up. He's a real good pitcher. He usually down ... a good ground ball pitcher. I went out and asked if he was tired, and he said, 'Yes. He'd been sick.'"

Trailing 9-7 through three innings Davie scored one each in the fourth and fifth to set up the dramatic sixth.

In the fourth, Daywalt reached on tough fielder's choice to score Neil Rice all the way from second base.

Mocksville Falls To Concord, Eight End American Legion Careers

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

In a bizarre episode, eight Mocksville-Davie players and six regular starters saw their American Legion baseball careers come to a crashing end.

Concord swept Mocksville in the first round of the Southern Division playoffs three games to none, waving good-bye to starting shortstop Charlie Woods, first baseman Stephen Ashworth, catcher Carlton Hire, infielder Jeff Prince, infielder-outfielder Joey Cutts and DH-catcher Jody Vestal.

The six of them combined to hit .353 (208-588) on the year, helping boost Mocksville's team average to .317, the second-best mark in 10 years.

Chris Nixon, who saw limited action behind the plate, is also gone along with left-hander David Whitaker.

Wands ended up with a team-high .405 batting average, and also led runs (34), hits (45) and walks (21).

Wands also contributed on the mound, winning two games out of four decisions in four starts and 25 1/3 innings. He only gave up 24 hits, but in his last couple of starts, his ERA rose to 6.05.

In three years at Mocksville, Wands of West Forsyth played in 75 games, connecting for 91 hits in 273 at-bats for a .333 average. He had three home runs and drove in 35 runs.

Coach George Daywalt's comments: "His pitching took away from him some, but he still ended up with a .405 average. He worked hard and wanted to win. We've never had a team-captain before but he was it. He gave us the leadership that we didn't have."

Stephen Ashworth, West Forsyth's Just like Wands, West Forsyth's

Ashworth was near the top in several offensive categories. He hit .396, smashed three home runs and had 27 RBIs, including 17 extra base hits. Ashworth was second in runs (31) walks (17), hits (44) and doubles (9). He had five of the team's eight triples.

On the mound, Ashworth was 1-1 in 23 1/3 innings, striking out 21 and walking eight. The right-hander had a 2.70 ERA, second behind Jansen Keene.

In a rare four-year career, Ashworth was 83-for-254 (.327) in 97 games. He had a 3.81 ERA in 87 1/3 innings and struck out 93.

Daywalt's comments: "I've been with him for four years and have seen all his ups and downs. He came into his own with his hitting this year. I feel sure he can play college ball, and can probably go in any program and play soon. I feel like he's going to sign with somebody in the next couple of weeks."

Jeff Prince, leadoff man of West Forsyth was over .300 for most of the year before falling to .297. He was one of the top four in at-bats (111), runs (30) and hits (33).

In three years - and he played in two games at age 15 - Prince hit .317 (65-205) in 73 games.

Daywalt's comments: "He's as solid as a rock. The perfect kid for anybody to coach. He gives 100 percent every time out and was the best basemenner by far. Jeff is just a real good heads-up ball player."

Carlton Hire, When you talk power numbers, West Forsyth's Hire was the big slugger. He hit .377, walloped four homers and drove in a team-high 37 runs.

He was one of three players to have 40 or more hits and led the team with 11

Hire Vestal Ashworth Wands Prince Nixon Cutts Whitaker
Doubles. In three years, Hire was 70-for-209 (.335), drove in 53 runs and launched six homers in 71 games. Daywalt's comments: "He's a whole lot like Jeff Prince - never a problem and works harder than anybody on the team. He had never played first base and I don't think he made an error there. He's a real easy, coachable type kid. I think he's going to play football (at Guilford) and a little baseball. I think he can do it."

After a slow start at the plate, Forbush's Vestal watched his average soar to .316. Daywalt's comments: "He's a team player all the way. We had two catchers (Vestal and Hire) with equal ability and they got along, talked and became friends. It made it a lot easier on me because a lot of times you'll see jealousy. He's a good clutch hitter and had key hits when we really needed it. Jody's going to Surry Community College to play."

Starmount's Nixon had a tough time finding playing time behind Hire and Vestal, both of whom hit well over .300. Nixon was hitless in five at-bats, but was someone that every Legion team needs. Daywalt's comments: "He did a lot of work in the bull pen and never fussed. It's tough to have anybody to do that. Late in the year he came into his own. He's a real good defensive catcher and has a good arm."

Southwest Halts Davie All-Stars' Hot Streak

The Southwest Forsyth All-Stars couldn't have run into a hotter baseball team when they faced Davie Nationals Saturday at the home of the Winston-Salem Nationals in the Major division winner's bracket quarterfinals. But in the end, Southwest couldn't have made a bolder statement. Southwest demolished Davie 17-2 to advance to the semifinals. On the flip side, Davie will now have to survive the loser's bracket for a chance at the District II title.

The reason for the shocking margin of defeat was due to Davie's deadly offense and pitching in the first two games.

After wins over Walkertown (20-0) and High Point (10-9), Davie was averaging 15 runs per game, 13.5 hits and the team-ERA was 1.20. Also, Davie had scored in every inning.

But that got to show a couple of things: How potent Southwest is and how past performances mean nothing when you go between the white lines.

Davie took on Kernersville Monday (July 8) at the same site. If Davie prevailed, it will play Wednesday night at the Winston-Salem Nationals, which is located just past Clemmons on Phillips Bridge Road.

Davie coach David Poplin couldn't do anything but hand over compliments - and a lot of them.

"Those guys ... everybody in their lineup could hit," he said. "It was unusual. They hit line drives, hard ground balls."

"It was really amazing."

Travis Allen, who threw a perfect game against Walkertown in the first round, was ruffled up for 2 1/3 innings. Dave Poplin came in to mop up the last 2/3, as the game was called after Davie's at-bat in the top of the fourth due to the 10-run rule.

Southwest's pitcher brought a rare feature to the table for this age. "He could throw a curveball on any count," Poplin said. "If you can throw a curveball on any count to a 12-year-old ..."

"He was better than what we've faced so far, but he wasn't overpowering. He had an overhand curve and the fastball was not blazing."

Trailing 9-7 through three innings Davie scored one each in the fourth and fifth to set up the dramatic sixth.

In the fourth, Daywalt reached on tough fielder's choice to score Neil Rice all the way from second base.

In a game with 19 combined runs, the last thing you think about is dominate pitching, but Davie's Cody Wright nearly did everything right when he relieved starter Chris Seaford in the third inning with no one out.

One out later, after Daywalt had moved to third on a wild pitch, Ben Allied, who fouled off several pitches, hit a slow roller to first for the second out, but he brought home Daywalt for what proved to be the winning run.

Davie Big League Continues Seesaw Year

The Southwest Forsyth Big League pitching staff handcuffed Davie to five hits, while running away to a 13-3 victory Sunday at Poindeexter Field in Clemmons.

The loss prevented Davie, 10-11, from climbing over the .500 mark.

Chris Meacham was tagged with the loss, while David Potts, Scott Cornatzer, Chris Dinkins and Jeremy Helton had the only base hits. Helton had a pair of singles to go 2-for-2.

Davie scored all three runs in the fifth. The big hit was a two-run single by Helton.

Davie Demolishes Walnut Cove In by far the best offensive display of the year, Davie demolished Walnut Cove 23-6 Wednesday at the Davie Youth Complex.

Caleb Whitaker earned the win on the mound, and Jason Desnoyers came in to get the save.

Offensively, Meacham was the star, going 4-for-5, including two doubles. But he wasn't all as Davie doubled out 19 hits.

Helton was 2-for-5 with four RBIs and a home run. Whitaker was 2-for-5 with a double and two RBIs; Timmy Norman was 2-for-4 with two runs; and Steven Nail was 3-for-5 with two RBIs.

Also with hits, Shane Allen, 2-for-6; Potts, 1-for-3; Cornatzer, 1-for-3 with four runs; and Jonathan Cresson, 1-for-5 with three runs.

Davie Stays Even The Davie Big League baseball team split a doubleheader against Walnut Cove to keep its record at .500 (4-4).

In the opener, Walnut Cove clobbered Davie 16-2, but the home team salvaged the day with an 11-8 win in the nightcap.

Dinkins went seven innings on the mound to earn the complete-game win. The offense was led by Whitaker, who went 3-for-4. Scott Cornatzer and Potts each went 2-for-4 and Allen, Jonathan Cresson, Brown and Nail had one safety pitch.

Following a three-hit performance in the first game, Whitaker made the most of his lone hit in the second game.

In the seventh, Whitaker crushed a two-run home run to center field for his first-ever long ball. "Andy Ward said, 'That ball is out of here,'" Whitaker's father, Bob, said in amazement. "As long as I played, I hit them off the fence, but never hit one out.

Legion Expects 10 To Return In '97

Midway through the year, Rogers had a hot streak when he had four hits in nine at-bats, finishing at .208. Next year the rising senior will be counted on to help out on the mound as well.

Daywalt's comments: "He had a little hot streak. He always knew what was going on. He handles the bat real well. His biggest asset is he's smart, always looking at the other team's signs. He'll make a great Little League coach. He's always positive to me."

Anthony batted a steady .302, and was 1-1 on the hill in 24 1/3 innings. The right-hander had a fourth-best 4.07 ERA.

Daywalt's comments: "He's real versatile and had good times pitching ... and bad. Brian has a real strong arm, and it was real tough on him with his job. He had to get up at 5:30 (a.m.), and I can understand that ... He needs to work on his hitting, but like Destiny, he'll be a year wiser."

Nathan Lambert Ireland of Starmount has two years remaining, so this was a time to sit and learn.

With Ward's absence late in the year, he found himself in the lineup at second base - and he made the most of it. Ireland was 6-for-19 (.316).

Daywalt's comments: "He needs to work on his hitting, but he's a good glove and has good speed. He'll be really important in what we do in the next couple of years. He's a real good hustler. He's another good kid ... I had the best bunch of kids. I was lucky. I never had any trouble."

Gray Williams Forbush's Williams never really had a chance to contribute from the bull pen because of reoccurring arm problems.

The right-hander did manage to work nine innings of spot duty. Daywalt's comments: "He came in with arm problems. He tore tendons in his wrist. He pitched in spots and pitched real well a couple of times. We just wanted to get his arm well and I think we did that. What I like is he'll throw hard, and just walk out there not afraid of anyone. All the players like him - he's doing some junk all the time - he's a team player."

Ryan Lambert West Forsyth's Lambert, despite his 6.38 ERA, was valuable out of the bull pen in the Concord series.

The left-hander, who has two years left, came in to throw scoreless ball for over five innings in Game 1.

Lambert was 1-1 and struck out 24 and walked just 14 over 24 innings. Daywalt's comments: "My man Ryan Lambert. He was one that came in with not a lot of confidence. One time he got mad and slammed his glove down on the bench. We had a nose-to-nose discussion, and from then on, I couldn't have asked anymore from him. At times, he had more pop and was as good as anybody at the end."

Can News

By John "Cain" Godwin
Cana Correspondent

"Yea haw... This past weekend the Ruritans sponsored the rodeo at the Circle T Ranch. I took Liz and Chip, my cousins, this year for their first time. The rodeo was great. One bucking bronco did a complete flip. That was one wild horse. I couldn't believe it. When someone actually rode Yack Attack (half yack and half buffalo). We all got the biggest laugh at the little cowboys (elementary age) riding the sheep. They had to ride for 3 seconds and with only one hand. If you have never been to this rodeo you should make a real effort to make it there next July 4. These cowboys really know how to make you feel proud to be an American. With cowgirl flags flying and riding beautiful horses and fireworks going off, it was great.

We had a great 4th of July lunch on top of the hill at Valley View at Cana. This is where the old Henry Howard house was. A meal with our extended family is always fun. From Jeep rides to fly fishing to tossing the old baseball, it was all fun. Many thanks to Bill Ferebee for picking all of those blackberries. Everyone made such of a fuss over the blackberry pie. It isn't the 4th of July without a blackberry pie.

The Charlie Daniels Band came to Cana last week. OK Farmington. I wonder if I could book him to sing at the Corn Shuckin' for a bowl of chicken stew.

Shady Grove Farms Hosts Beef Field Day

The 1996 edition of the Tri-County Beef Field Day was held Saturday, June 1.

Jeff Smith and family, of Shady Grove Farms, served as the hosts. This year's field day was sponsored by the North Carolina Cooperative Extension Service, Davie and Yadkin Centers, and the Davie County Cattlemen's Association.

The crowd was greeted by comfortable temperatures. After a few brief introductions, Ronnie Thompson, Extension director for Davie County and Dr. Ron Jarrett, Extension director for the West Piedmont District, discussed the role Extension is playing and the future role of Extension.

Extension Agents Phil Rucker and Teresa Lambert led the group through a rotation of demonstrations to promote more efficient management practices. The first stop was the herd health area.

Dr. Mike Whicker (Advance Veterinary Services) and Steve Parker (MERK & Co.) discussed the need to maintain a quality herd health program. When prices are down, sick, wormy just plain unhealthy cattle will sell below their potential. Nobody wants to buy problem cattle. Both presenters stressed that producers are not saving a dime by cutting herd health, more than likely it will cost you down the road. Using the correct amount, of the proper product, at the proper time will help keep your herd healthy at the least possible cost.

After some hands on time, with some of the different products, the crowd gathered in the hay field to watch Tri-County New Holland demonstrate some cost cutting hints.

Hay is one of the more expensive feeds a beef producer can feed (considering the fertilizer, the time and fuel used and overall expense of hay equipment) so producers need to make the best quality hay to justify costs.

Hay needs to be cut, dried, raked, baled and stored properly to maintain the nutritional value. If just one of these procedures is flawed, the end product could be of low quality and livestock will not be as productive. "You don't have to have all the latest equipment, just common sense, the willingness to put forth the effort, a few basic pieces of equipment and a little luck from Mother Nature is all you need to put up quality hay," Rucker said. "It costs just as much in time and money to harvest good hay as average or sorry hay. With a little planning, you can utilize your time harvesting quality forage instead of wasting your time making sorry hay."

Several producers tried their skills on the hay equipment while others discussed new equipment and hay making strategies with New Holland representatives.

The next stop was the Fencing and Grazing Demonstration. Lewis Sapp (Gallagher Power Fence) and Kelly Jo Driggins (Natural Resources and Conservation Services) discussed how to increase profits by increasing the stocking rate without increasing your acreage. The secret is utilize different forages with intensive grazing.

Fescue is the major grass in our area, Rucker said. During the hot dry summer months, fescue all but stops growing.

"If it wasn't for clover, common bermuda-grass and some weeds, some cattle might starve to death during the summer. By utilizing summer annuals or grasses the complement fescue (grow during the summer) cattle will be able to graze and be productive all season long. By implementing intensive grazing, producers can stock pastures at higher rates."

Freedom To Farm Program Signup Deadline July 12

Farmers and farm owners are reminded that they must sign up by July 12, to enroll their farms in the 7 year Freedom To Farm Program.

This is the only time during the next seven years that farms can enroll in the program. Farmers who do not enroll by July 12, will not have another opportunity to enroll and will be eligible for payments.

Any farm with a wheat, feed grain or upland cotton acreage base is eligible to be enrolled in the program. Persons who have not enrolled their farms should visit the Davidson-Davie County FSA Office at 301 E. Center St. in Lexington, or call 1-800-524-3389.

Also keeping animals moving from field to field allows cattle to graze the young and tender growth while giving grass in other pastures time for re-growth. Intensive grazing is simple to set-up. Step-in posts, poly tape or poly wire and a charger box are about all the equipment you need. The increased production will more than pay for the initial cost of the equipment.

After a meal of beef barbecue, Roy Swisher (president of Davie Cattlemen's Association) gave a few remarks and thanked all involved in helping the event.

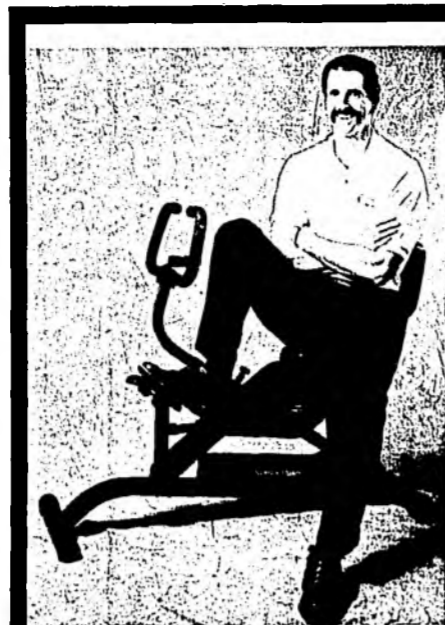

Bryan Blinson, executive director of the N.C. Cattlemen's Association, spoke on the need to reduce operating costs while not reducing the quality of our product. He re-emphasized that cutting herd health was not the way to go.

"Make sure your dollars invested are being used wisely. Cull animals that don't rebreed, don't wean a heavy calf or require high maintenance," Blinson said.

He also discussed the marketing options for cattle producers with graded feeder calf sales and retained ownership being two of the best options. The main topic stressed was always keep a positive attitude.

"If the farmers always talk about how bad the cattle business is, the public will sooner or later lose faith in the producer and then stop buying their product. The cattle industry is in a slump but it will rebound, we just need to be ready to capitalize when it comes back," he said.

After giving out several door prizes, sponsored by the trade show participants, the hosts, speakers, presenters, sponsors and beef producers in attendance were thanked for being part of the field day. The crowd visited the trade show, once again, as they began to head home.

Charles Dunn, President: "We're just very thankful that no one was hurt." Hillsdale Bank Robbed Monday Afternoon

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

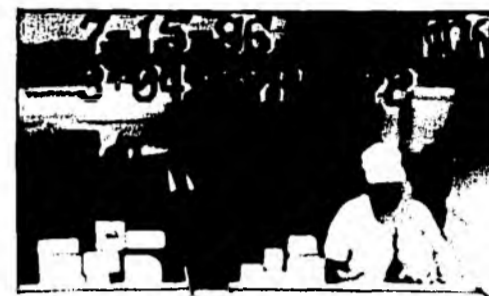

At about 3 p.m. Monday, a white man walked into the Hillsdale branch of Mocksville Savings Bank wearing a ball cap and sunglasses, carrying a yellow gym bag.

He walked to the nearest teller, and handed her a note saying to remain calm and to hand over money. He kept a hand in the bag, and said he had a gun.

Moments later, he calmly walked out of the bank. It was the first robbery in the 75-year history of Mocksville Savings, and according to bank president, Charles Dunn, things couldn't have gone smoother.

"We're just very thankful that no one was hurt," Dunn, who works from the bank's Mocksville office, said. "We are going to be back open for business tomorrow and we feel like it was an isolated incident. The

Friendship Sells Franchise; Better Service Promised

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Friendship Cable is being sold, and the new owner promises to make the cable television service a local company.

Mel Welch, general manager of Genesis Cable, said the company would conduct all business from the Mocksville office, including billing and customer inquiries. With Friendship, calls and bills went to and from South Carolina, with workers also being dispatched from that state.

"I think this will be beneficial," Welch told county commissioners, who approved the sale of the franchise. "Customers get to know the people in the office and office personnel get to know the customers."

There will be no answering machines, with after hours calls going to a voice mail system. The workers doing the job will be the ones returning customer calls, and all receptionists will be trained to handle many problems by telephone, Welch said. Genesis specializes in rural systems, and although there are no plans for a rate increase, that could be a possibility when the system is upgraded to allow more, and clearer channels.

New channels could be added at customers' request.

County commission chairman Larry Hayes said the biggest complaint about Friendship service was not being able to call a Mocksville office. "What we hear, is nobody here can call this office. I would like to stipulate that the office here be maintained as a full service Office," Hayes said.

"You won't have to stipulate it," Welch said. "I can sympathize with the customer."

With the competition from satellite systems, cable television companies have no choice but to offer better service to survive, Welch said. "The one thing they can't compete with us in is customer service. That's what people want. If they have a problem, they want somebody they call and help them out."

Man Charged After Ramming Truck Into House

A Winston-Salem man who was mad at his girlfriend drove a truck into a house early Sunday morning.

Grant Nelson Nifong, 23, was driving the 1995 Chevrolet truck, pulling a horse trailer, at an estimated 50 mph when it hit the house, reported N.C. Highway Patrol Trooper P.T. Hennelly.

The house on Bear Creek Church Road was used for storage, and no one lived in it, Hennelly reported.

Nifong admitted that he had intentionally driven the truck into the house because he was upset with his girlfriend.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $5,000, to the house, owned by Robert P. Smith of Winston-Salem, $10,000.

House At 239 Clark Road Left Out Of Block Grant Project

"That house, right now, is not in the project area. We've discussed it with the rep, and there's nothing we can do."

- F.E. Isenhour

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Why was a house at 239 Clark Road left out of a plan to revitalize the community?

It was just an oversight, and there's a good chance that it won't be added to the program, members of a Community Development Block Grant advisory board were told last week.

F.E. Isenhour, who is heading the grant work for Benchmark, a private company hired to administer the grant, said the house was left out apparently as an oversight when the grant application was made about a year ago. Only houses in that grant can be fixed, replaced or torn down, without special approval of the state, which isn't likely.

The only hope to have the house added to the program would be if there's money left over after all planned work on the $750,000 grant, and it could be used under a "community option" plan, Isenhour said.

"That house, right now, is not in the program area. We've discussed it with the rep. There's nothing we can do," Isenhour said. "I would hope we could come up with some savings and do something with that house."

One neighboring resident shook his head. "That's an eyesore to the community and you say it's not in the program." The house apparently was the topic of a meeting the previous week with Isenhour and Gary Wilson of Benchmark, Donald Ham of the N.C. Division of Community Services, County Manager Ken Windley, Cooleemee town commissioners Bill Gibson and Jack Jerome, who is the board's liaison with the grant.

North Cooleemee resident Bessie Wilson, also a member of the advisory group, said the town violated the state's open meetings law when Mayor Jackie Morton joined the meeting about an hour after it started. She said Morton had not known about the meeting, but went to the town hall after hearing it was taking place.

"I'm saying it was a secret meeting," Bessie Wilson said. "There were two commissioners and a mayor."

When area residents tried to go into town hall, Gibson met them at the door and told them it was a private meeting. Morton and Wilson were later allowed inside.

Bessie Wilson said that Benchmark's Gary Wilson and Isenhour waffled on the reason why the house at 239 Clark Road was left out of the program.

"Finally, Mr. Wilson said I'll be honest with you, I just overlooked it," she said. "All we're (advisory board members) saying, it should be addressed."

The grant calls for adding a county sewer line along Clark Road and Hickory Street, and improving housing in both areas that would benefit low- to moderate-income residents. Plans are to work with the N.C. Department of Transportation (DOT) to have Clark Road paved.

Isenhour said residents should begin to work in the area soon.

The only problem now is trying to get DOT to work with the state agency that releases grant monies. "DOT requires up front money, and the grant doesn't allow money to be paid up front," he said. "We're trying to get those two state agencies to work together."

While those negotiations are taking place, Benchmark employees will begin verifying information for the housing work. Jobs on house work will be bid two to three at a time, and local contractors are welcome.

There will be a contractor's meeting where all guidelines are spelled out, Isenhour said. He asked advisory board members to spread the word to local contractors.

"We'll work on two or three houses all along, getting the most severe needs first."

Presidential Bid Falling Victim To Katie Couric?

In earlier days, it had been one of my long range goals. To serve you as President of the United States. I could do it. Supreme commander of the armed forces. Czar of the free world. Titular head of a political party. All-around good guy to some. Director of the black plague to others.

I've changed those goals. First, there was the thing about independent Congressional investigators. That was discouraging. I'm not financially prepared for the legal expenses. But maybe North Carolina, in my presidency, would be spared the grilling that Arkansas has received because of Bill Clinton.

Then, there was the airplane crash on the White House lawn. And the mad gunman. And the crazies who plan to blow up the federal government. Even that wasn't a total discouragement. Just let Montana secede.

The real problem was Katie Couric. There's no way I could answer her questions. She's just too slick. I would fall flatter than Bob Dole. A career politician, majority leader of the Senate, several times a candidate for president, a vice presidential nominee, a World War II hero ... and he stumbles over a simple question about cigarettes.

Stumbles and falls all over the pavement. It was sort of like Babe Ruth striking out at a pickup softball game. You had to feel for the guy.

This wasn't Dan Rather staring down Richard Nixon. Or Sam Donaldson at his nastiest. It was the Today show - light and breezy.

I have tongue-tied disease, too. That effectively eliminates me from being a serious contender for the job. I can't remember what day it is, much less the finer points of the federal budget, the Central European policy or the Haitian immigration limits.

To survive, politicians have to master the art of pretending to answer a question without even coming close. George Bush was good at that. His responses were so disjointed that you never really knew what he had said. Four years ago, Ross Perot gave the same budget-fixing answer to every question posed.

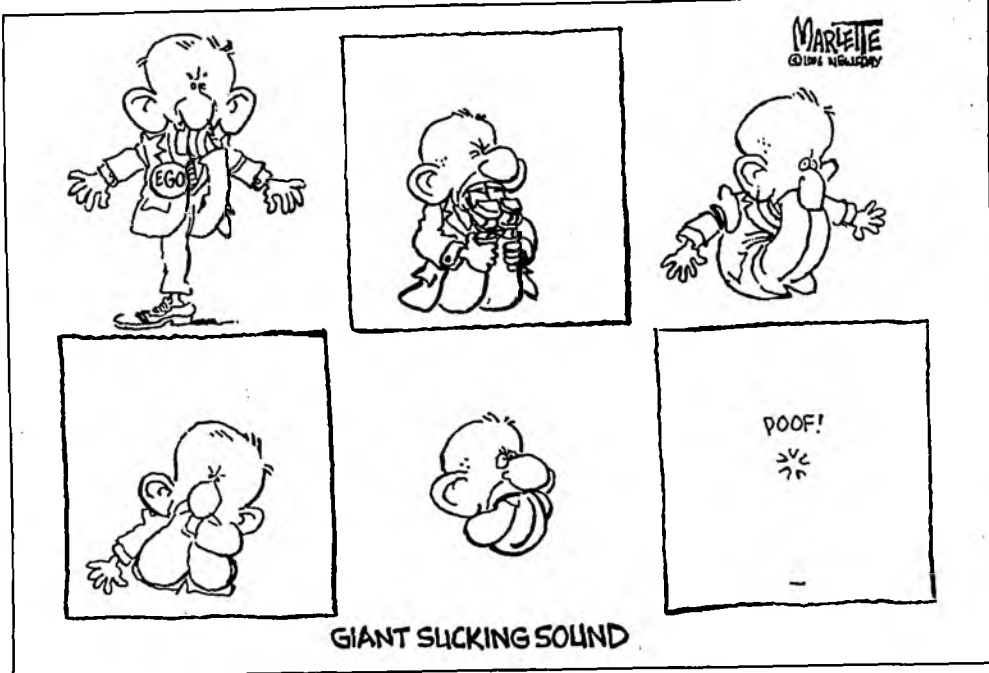

Ask him whether tobacco was addictive, and he would spend 10 minutes describing the dangers of the federal deficit.

I went to a presidential candidate's speech once with a gaggle of national media. I thought the speech was carefully crafted and full of important news. They didn't find one word newsworthy. They had heard the same speech 50 times that week. Same jokes. Same points. Same memorized delivery.

It was a performance. Our presidential candidates have become actors. Some didn't think Ronald Reagan was qualified for the presidency because he had been an movie star. By today's standards, he had the ultimate qualifications: The ability to be comfortable in front of the cameras. Smoothness. The ability to be glib and poised in every situation.

What about his opinions, his views, his ideas? No problem. That's what pollsters are for. They tell today's candidates what to think.

Best Start Program Needs Support From Davie

To the editor:
I am a senior peer counselor with an early intervention family support program in Forsyth County. We work with many Davie County residents in our daily efforts to empower lower income families that are served by WIC, Medicaid and Reynolds Health Center. We provide friendships, crisis intervention, child development, parenting skills, breast feeding help and many, many more services.

I am a resident of Davie County and would like to see residents and other ministries of Davie County show support for our program. We are always in need of donations. All items are tax deductible. We serve families with children so any donation of children and baby clothes, baby equipment, baby food formula, diapers, food and of course, cash, is greatly appreciated.

We also have peer counselors who visit Forsyth Hospital every day to see if there are any needs we can help with. With newly delivered parents. One other service we provide is to the Hispanic community we offer translation and support services with three Hispanic translators available to meet their needs.

Confused Nation In A Frenzy

To the editor:
We try to solve our problems, but they never get solved. We try to speak our minds, but we never speak. We try to cry for the ones we love, but we never cry. We try to laugh to ease the pain, but we never laugh. Hypocrites of promises. Killers of truth. Lovers of anger. Haters of listening. Writers of lies. That's what we are. But we keep denying, and keep denying to ourselves about what's actually true, and keep on criticizing each other. Racism, predominant over most of us. Destroying our ability to accept differences. Faith, confusing most of us. Crushing our chance to believe what we want.

We judge the book by its cover, and the man by the color of his skin. A confused nation in a frenzy to be on top. We have to be better. Our buildings reach the sky. Our cars must be able to fly. Our computers must remember everything our brains can't. Our walls have to be fat. Our children must be perfect even though we show them how to do things we don't want them to. Government, so overrated we would rather watch a commercial than the annual State of the Union Address.

Fighting for what you believe in has become a bore. There is no point in trying to get what you want. Even though the government asks for kids' opinions, they'll never do anything about our concerns except forget about them. With the way the world is now, we wonder why kids are trying to commit suicide. They are being pulled between doing their parents bidding, and trying to bring this world into the next decade. They're tired of the policies, and rules. If we want freedom, we get thrown into a mental institute. If we stay out past midnight, our parents assume we're either dead or smoking crack with the wrong crowd. This country

Grandma's Warnings Of Danger Put Me On Right Track

Watching the Olympic trials, I found myself wondering if I could have been a gymnast. That sounds pretty silly coming from someone who can't even do a cartwheel.

It's not because I was good at gymnastics that I have those thoughts. It's just that, as a child, I was extremely flexible. I loved to stand on my head and turn flips on the living room floor. It was there that my "what could have been" dreams died.

"Get up from there. You're going to break your neck," Grandma would shout. "Get that yungun up from there before she's killed."

Now I realize that Grandma was only trying to protect me, but that protection has resulted in a lot of embarrassment over the years.

Since I was forbidden from doing anything that might have been perceived as the slightest bit dangerous when I was a child, I still don't know how to do a lot of fairly simple things - like roller skate.

When I was in eighth grade, my P.E. class spent a couple weeks on gymnastics, and I always found an excuse not to participate. If I had really been gifted as a gymnast, I should have overcome my fears and discovered my natural ability. Instead, I was afraid of getting hurt. After all, for 13 years I'd been warned about breaking my neck. And I was ashamed of being the only girl in my class who couldn't do a cartwheel or a hand spring.

The other great fear that lingers is water. Instead of saying I can't swim, I say that I'm not a very good swimmer.

What that means is that I can swim rather awkwardly from one end of the swimming pool to the other. But, if someone threw me in the middle of a lake, I would drown.

I don't know how to tread water - whatever that means. I can do what I've heard called a dead man's float - not a very encouraging name. But I cannot float on my back. I'm afraid of getting water up my nose when I inevitably sink.

With the security of a lifejacket, I have tried not to let this fear hold me back from activities like water skiing and kayaking. I'm a little too old to care that I can't do a cartwheel or roller skate, but swimming is different.

When my boyfriend informed me that anyone who didn't know how to swim was never going to learn, I became irate. I don't think he'll try to tell me what I can't do again. I'd like to learn, and I have no one to blame but myself for not learning to this point. I have let pride get the best of me.

In college I didn't want to be the only person in swim class who actually took the class to learn to swim rather than for an easy A. My aunt, who was also raised by Grandma, had to take swimming in college for her P.E. major. I always thought it was kind of funny - better her than me. Now I think, perhaps, it would have been better if I'd been forced to learn.

I still like to take swimming lessons, but pride is still in control. I couldn't bear to be 20 years older than all my classmates - especially when that means I've had 20 more years to build up fears of the water.

Surely there are enough people like me out there to prompt someone to offer an adult class that I can afford. Either I'll hear about just such an opportunity or I'll be looking back 20 years from now at what could have been if only I hadn't been so proud.

From time to time I guess we all think about what could have been, but I choose not to waste a lot of time like that. I firmly believe that things usually work out for the best.

At the same moment that I wondered if I could have been a gymnast, I was thankful that I was not. If I had dedicated my life to winning a gold medal at the Olympics, I would have missed out on many of the other things that have brought me happiness over the years.

Grandma wouldn't let me do a lot of things I wanted, but she made me write my ABC's and numbers every day before I was allowed to play. Thanks to her, I could read long before I ever started school. And, thanks to her, I grew up dreaming of bringing pleasure to others with my writing rather than my acrobatics.

Second Session To Center On Unspent $700 Million

By Rep. Julia C. Howard
This, the second extra session of 1996, is a new day and a new beginning. Old things are put away and new bills are introduced.

This session, the new bills will begin with House Bill 1. What we will be doing this session? The debates will center around how to deal with $700 million that has not yet been spent. The forces that are on one side want to spend it all and on the other side want to limit the spending to $398 million, leaving the rest for issues of concern about the future, which include block grants, intangibles tax refunds, bond payments, possible needs in the prisons and a cushion just in case the projections for the future growth in the economy do not hold.

The first item of business in both chambers is to pass tax cuts; the second is to deal with local issues and then the budget. This week the House passed a bill dealing with tax cuts, a budget bill and several local bills. If I were a gambler, I would bet before we leave town we will also deal with congressional redistricting.

When the General Assembly is in the Bellline around Raleigh, keep in mind the members are exposed full-time to government-paid lobbyists lobbying for the needs of government, and government employees who have an inherent desire for their own job.

However, it is the General Assembly's job to balance ever growing government with the needs of society. The balance must include appropriate compensation, benefits and rewards for government employees as well as an understanding that Americans are currently being taxed at the highest rate ever in peace time. Somewhere that tax rate, used to provide more government, has to balance so that people not involved in government can also be rewarded for their initiative and ambition.

I have been contacted by both angry and appreciative employees. I have been contacted by angry private citizens who ask me what I am doing down here and say stay at home and let us rest in peace. I have also been contacted by private citizens who say, "We do need more support from our government, and I am willing to pay for it," although it has been said time and time again that every dime that is spent creates additional costs in the future. Capital construction costs for buildings means maintenance and additional employees in the future to fill those buildings. If you increase salaries, you are not going to take it away from the employees.

This year the retirement benefit is presented as not costing anything because it comes out of the surplus earnings in the Retirement System. However, in order to continue the increased benefit, the General Fund must provide $48 million per year as long as the cost of living provided this year remains in tact. It would be nice to give everyone their request, but the legislature has the responsibility for balance for the entire state and for each citizen in it.

A number of issues we are addressing were addressed by one chamber or the other in the session just ended. Those issues will move fairly quickly this session but new issues are also being introduced.

H 8 is a tax reform act and deals with removing the unconstitutional tax provisions and working out an arrangement to collect use taxes due on tangible personal property purchased out of state.

H 12 would give a four-percent increase in retirement benefits to state and local government retirees. This four-percent increase does not cost the General Fund anything this year because the $4.8 million to pay for it comes from the surplus earnings within the pension plan. However, as long as state employees continue to receive the four percent granted this year, the General Fund will have to come up with $48 million each year to keep it in tact.

H 13 would provide for the election of Superior Court judges by judicial district in 1996 with a legislative study of the issue to make a recommendation to the next session of the General Assembly. I like the idea of electing judges by district. I would be interested in knowing what you think about this issue. There is quite a push to either go back to having them elected statewide or to have them appointed by the governor.

H 18 is the Tax Reduction Act of 1996. It is the tax cut package passed by the House last year. It would cut the food sales tax one percent a year over a four-year period, allow an investment tax credit for business property used for research and development, phase out the soft drink tax over three years, reduce the sales tax on electricity and natural gas used in farming and manufacturing, and also clarifies that, when you buy a bundled package such as cellular telephone and the cellular telephone services, you only pay taxes on the sales price. This bill exempts from income taxes up to $35,000 of severance pay received due to a plant closing. The eligibility for the home-state exemption is increased to $15,000 of income and $20,000 of property.

While this bill does phase out the food tax over a four-year period (if phases out several taxes), some who claim they want to eliminate the food tax are trying to reduce this to a one percent reduction this year saying they will do it again in the future. The food tax was passed on a temporary basis and has been put into the future long enough. It is time to show where you stand and either vote to phase out the food tax or not to phase it out. As far as the fiscal responsibility for the future, if the economy dips (that would be the only reason to change this), the General Assembly comes back into session in January and can stop the phase out if it considers it prudent. This session of the General Assembly has said they want to get rid of the food tax. This is an excellent opportunity to do it.

H 22 would eliminate the soft drink tax on chocolate milk.

H 23 increases the monthly pension payments for qualified firemen and eligible rescue squad workers from $135 to $140 per month.

H 30 would provide federal retirees a refundable tax credit without interest for the state income taxes they paid for 1985-88. You may remember these taxes were declared unconstitutional, and it was also ruled in a court law that the state is not obligated to refund unless a petition for refund was submitted under the guidance of the law, which meant 30 days after they filed. I feel in fairness to the retirees, they should receive a refund. If the best way to handle that refund is to give tax credits, they are still entitled to the refund.

H 33 would assure the counties they will be paid for the housing cost of inmates awaiting transfer to the state prison system. Currently the counties are paid $14.50 per day. This increases the rate to $40 per day which is considered the approximate cost.

H 42 would establish a state policy for prisons without televisions, weight rooms, basketball courts, game rooms or other facilities not necessary to insure the health and safety of inmates. They would be provided with educational opportunities and the opportunity to acquire marketable skills.

H 45 would repeal the requirement that there be a judicial review of life sentences without parole after 25 years and every two years thereafter.

H 47 would abolish the second primaries by saying anyone who gets a plurality in a primary wins the election. I think we are getting further away from the concept that majority rules. A person should be required to get at least 50 percent of the vote plus one in order to be elected.

H 53 is an appropriations bill which appropriates the four-percent pay increase and the additional funds for schools so that the public education system will be ready to open and operate this fall. It is hoped that this bill will pass quickly and then the other issues in the budget can be debated.

H 64 would reduce the corporate income tax from 7.5 percent this year, graduated to 6.75 percent over a four-year period and would authorize the corporations to make a tax deductible contribution of that tax reduction to the public school systems.

H 65 would allow a $50 income tax credit to each homeowner in the state.

H 67 would allow left turns on red in certain situations.

H 68 would allow refund tangibles tax to all who paid it.

As you can see, there have been a number of ideas introduced this session. Some of them will be ruled ineligible, some will not be considered before time runs out. If there are any issues of concern to you, please contact us as soon as possible because this session is expected to move rapidly.

Thank you for your interest in good government. I hope you have a good week.

Event Provides Free Drug Kits For Police

To the editor:
I am writing on behalf of WDSL Radio to express our sincere appreciation to the local businesses that supported WDSL's 2nd annual Drug Free Davie County Day that was held June 28 at the Davie YMCA. We also would like to thank the Davie YMCA for the use of their facilities, and the staff for their help during the event. We also want to thank Mike Gerner and the Davie Parks and Recreation staff for bringing their summer group to the event.

The Davie County Sheriff's Department along with the Cooleemee and Mocksville Police Departments had displays set up for the children to see the bad side of drugs. The Healthy Carolinians along with Beverly Hills Weight Loss Center also consulted with individuals about their health care practices. WDSL Radio thanks all of the officers and individuals involved in the program. We also send out a big thanks to McGruff the Crime Dog for coming out.

WDSL was able to raise money for 60 drug kits to be distributed between the Davie County Sheriff's Department and the Cooleemee and Mocksville Police Departments to be used in combating drugs on the streets. WDSL also wants to thank Chief Richard Sink and the rest of the staff of the Mocksville Police Department for the beautiful plaque given to the station.

Want Reality? Get Off The Couch, Step Outside

is known for being free. That's all fine and dandy, but why do I still feel so caged up?

You want to see reality? Get off the couch and out of your dining room table chairs and take a step outside into the real world. Take a long, hard look. When you've got enough, keep standing there. See what the next generation of children are expected to handle.

We are going to have to fix all of your mistakes, and deal with all the other countries, in which we owe money to for things we didn't even buy. Its ridiculous. Why do I have to take on your problems? Why do I have to pick up after your mess? I don't expect to breeze through life with no work to do, but I won't have a life by the time I have to get out into the working world. My taxes will be so high that I'll have to live in the gutter. The gutter will probably have a tax on it, too. It's come down to the point where I'm not afraid of dying anymore. I'm afraid of living.

I've told you my view. Now isn't there something we can do together to help fix our nations many problems?

from all the children at Young Children's Learning Center

There is this lady that we know who takes care of us and helps us grow. She's loving, caring, kind and sweet. No other like her we will ever meet. She takes care of us in every way and brightens up our every day. She's always there to dry our tears and help erase our every fear. We're thankful to have her in our lives each day. We want her to know we love her in every way.

person didn't act violent. We're insured and covered, so everything should be OK."

Sheriff's Detective Lt. Jimmy Phipps described the lone robber as a stocky white man in his late 20s. He has light brown hair and was clean shaven. When he left the bank just after 3 p.m., he was wearing a white ball cap with a green or teal stripe around it, a white t-shirt with faded logo and worn blue jeans. He was carrying the yellow gym bag.

The money was put in the gym bag, and a red dye pack may have exploded soon after the man left. Bank personnel and officers don't know what type of vehicle may have been used, or where it could have been parked.

Anyone who may have seen anything around the bank on Monday afternoon at that time may contact the sheriff's department detective division or Davie Crimestoppers at 634-1111.

There were no other customers in the bank at the time of the robbery, and the teller's fellow employees weren't aware of what was happening. "Nobody knew the bank had been robbed until she went and locked the door and said, 'we've been robbed,'" Phipps said.

Dunn said that employees, the sheriff's department and everyone else involved did an outstanding job.

"It couldn't have been better. They immediately locked the doors, and there happened to be no other customers in the building," Dunn said. "It had been a very busy day up until that point."

The Davie County law enforcement officers were to be commended for the prompt and thorough concern expressed. On behalf of our entire staff, I want to thank them and congratulate each of the departments for a job well done.

"Several other people volunteered their assistance ... and were all very helpful and sincerely concerned for the safety and security of our staff."

"Of course, we all hope this kind of thing will never occur, but I am delighted to report that again in Davie County, when problems do occur, you will be surrounded by professional and personal help," Dunn said.

Grand Jury Indicts Teen For Murder

A Davie County grand jury this week indicted a Mocksville teen for second-degree murder.

Man Held Without Bond After Assaulting Wife Saturday Night

A Mocksville man was being held in the Davie County Jail without privilege of bond Saturday night after forcing himself on his wife.

Michael Laurence Wolford, 31, of 739 Junction Road, was charged by the Davie County Sheriff's Department with second-degree forcible sex offense, assault on a female and communicating threats. He is scheduled to face the charges, one felony and two misdemeanors, on Aug. 29 in Davie District Court.

According to a report by Deputy M.S. Norman, Wolford grabbed his wife around the neck, twisted her arm and kicked her in the back before forcing her into the bedroom.

Letter To Editor Contained Errors

Editor's Note: A letter to the editor in the July 11, "Patient Is Refused Help," issue contained a couple of errors of fact. First, the writer was not refused help but offered an appointment later in the day because his condition was deemed non-emergency. Second, the letter wrongly named the clinic where he sought treatment. He did not seek treatment at Davie Family Medical Center, operated by Dr. Bob Foster. The Enterprise-Record regrets the errors.

Gardening Relaxes Prison Inmates

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

When they get a chance, Willie Ward, Stanley Purcell and Bob Jennings grab a shovel and hoe and head to the garden.

They search for watermelons, tomatoes, cantaloupe, honeydew, cucumbers and peppers. They don't mind the sun and the sweat. The rewards are great - the fresh food and the therapy. All three are convicted murderers, incarcerated at the Davie Correctional Center. Growing a vegetable garden helps to keep them out of trouble.

"In our spare time, we try to do something positive," Ward said. "If you've got some idle time, you need to find something to do. You try to keep a positive attitude in here. I do want to get out some day."

"When we started digging this garden and sweating, I thought Willie had lost his mind," Purcell said. "I didn't think anything would grow here in this red clay."

They added leaves, coffee grounds, whatever they could find.

"You won't find much help when it's time to dig, but when it's time to harvest, man ...," Ward said.

Other inmates share in the garden's bounty.

"Everybody on the yard gets to share," Jennings said. "It's a whole lot better. You know where it comes from, and who has handled it."

Jennings also believes the gardening is therapeutic.

"A lot of times you may have a lot on your mind and you can get out and work in the garden, and it helps. Prison is what you make of it. If you want to make a better life for yourself, you can learn one here. It's not going to be forced down, but you can learn if you want to," Jennings said.

Prison life also teaches control.

"In here, you have to have control. It teaches you a lot of control. You've got rules. In here, you're told when you can do anything," he said.

R.H. Whit, assistant superintendent of the Davie prison, also believes the garden helps.

"It's very therapeutic, and though it doesn't come near to providing all the vegetables we eat here, it offsets the cost some ... and they enjoy," Whit said.

What's going to happen after the last watermelon is harvested? Purcell has an idea.

"I'd like some tump salad."

Bob Jennings, Stanley Purcell, and Willie Ward share their garden's bounty with inmates.

Body Was Missing Man

A decomposed body found in a woods area off Campbell Road Tuesday afternoon is believed to be that of a Mocksville man missing for approximately three weeks.

Robert Lee Holman, 45, had been visiting elderly relatives in the area, and frequently used paths through woods between Campbell Road and Holman Street, said Davie Sheriff's Detective Lt. Jimmy Phipps.

The body found Tuesday was wearing the clothes Holman was last seen wearing three weeks ago, and no foul play is suspected, although the body has been sent for an autopsy, Phipps said. Holman didn't work, and didn't have a wallet and normally didn't have any money. A watch was still on the arm of the body found Tuesday.

It was found by children riding dirt bikes in the area.

Officers had searched the area last week, but hadn't gone as deep into the woods. The body was near a path, and there was no attempt to hide it or no apparent sign of foul play, Phipps said.

Man Charged With Arson

COOLEEMEE - A Davie man has been charged with first-degree arson after setting fire to house on Watt Street last week.

Kelly Lynn Johnson, 20, of 4310 Hwy. 801 South, was charged by Cooleemee Police Officer Bill Joyce after the incident at 8:40 p.m. July 13.

Officers were called to 175 Watt St. where a disturbance was taking place.

"They found Freddie Nichols in a fist fight with Mr. Johnson," said Police Chief Tim Wooten.

After the fight had broken up, Johnson went into Nichols' house and set clothing on fire in a closet, Wooten said. The Cooleemee Fire Department was called, and there was no severe structure damage to the house, only to items inside it, he said.

Johnson was drunk and fought the officers who attempted to arrest him, Wooten said. He was being held in the Davie County Jail without privilege of bond, pending a Sept. 12 first appearance hearing in Davie District Court.

COOLEEMEE - Police here are looking at their options with the dance hall in North Cooleemee.

There had been a few months without complaints from neighbors along Neely Street, but the parties appear to be getting out of hand again, said Police Chief Tim Wooten.

Early morning on June 28 and again last weekend, officers answering calls in the area found approximately 200 people gathered in the parking lot and street. Both crowds were dispersed without a lot of problems, the chief said.

"The police department is receiving several complaints of illegal drug and alcohol consumption on the property, and the investigation is continuing," Wooten said.

Planners To Hear Zoning Request

There will be a meeting of the Town of Mocksville Planning Board on Tuesday, July 30, at 7 p.m. at the Mocksville Town Hall.

George F. Wilson for the Prudential Carolina Realty submitted a request to rezone property from Industrial to Residential (R-15) Special Use. Special Use involves single family residential development. The property is located on the north side of Milling Road behind and beside the Baker-Milling Road Plant formerly known as Wonder Knit. This property is further described as being parcel 23.01 of Davie County Tax Map 1-5.

Roy Harris and Johnny Marklin represented by land surveyor Grady Tutner, have submitted for final plat review a 40 lot single family residential subdivision titled Colonial Estates Section One. This subdivision is further described as lying on the east side of Jericho Church Road and represents a 42.684 acre area of development.

Carolínians Uninformed, And Disapprove Of State's Court System

By David Williamson
UNC-CH News Services

CHAPEL HILL—North Carolina residents are "woefully uninformed" about state courts and disapprove of them despite the system's generally high standing compared with those in other states.

That's the finding of a two-year study that featured a telephone poll of 805 adults conducted statewide last fall.

An article on the study, including the survey and a series of focus groups from the mountains to the coast, appears in the summer issue of Popular Government, a quarterly publication of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's Institute of Government. Author Michael Crowell, former faculty member at the institute, is a partner with the Raleigh law firm of Tharrington Smith.

"Participants in the 10 focus groups were asked to estimate the number of cases filed in state courts each year," Crowell wrote. "No one came within 2 million of the correct number."

Including all infractions and minor traffic misdemeanors, the N.C. court system resolves about 2.5 million cases annually.

"Most people, however, think the courts deal with only a tenth of that volume," he said. "They thought that the courts receive about 18 to 20 percent of the state budget, when in fact the proportion is under 3 percent."

The Commission on the Future of Justice and the Courts in North Carolina, which Crowell directs, conducted the focus groups and commissioned the poll by Wilkerson & Associates of Louisville, Ky., to learn what North Carolínians think of their courts.

To many people around the country, North Carolina's judicial system is a model, Crowell wrote. Thirty years ago, the state eliminated justices of the peace and about 1,400 local courts, replacing them with a statewide district court system supported by a central administrative office. It also provided state funding for all court officials and district attorneys and later established the N.C. Court of Appeals.

"Other states are still struggling with such reforms in the 1990s," he said. "Meanwhile, North Carolina courts have generally operated efficiently at a relatively low cost to taxpayers and with no real scandals."

Only 40 percent of respondents knew that justices of the N.C. Supreme Court are elected, and fewer than one in 10 could name a judge. Only 30 percent could remember voting for one. "With the electorate so ill-informed about judicial candidates, North Carolina is fortunate that very few scoundrels or incompetents have run for office," Crowell said.

Only 38 percent of those polled gave the state court system a favorable rating, not much more than the 33 percent who rated it unfavorably, he wrote. By comparison, percentages of favorable ratings of law enforcement, public schools, the news media and the General Assembly were 68, 66, 65, and 51, respectively.

More than half of those polled thought the courts had an "extreme or very serious problem" with leniency for criminals. Almost three-quarters believed the courts worked better for wealthier people.

"Unfortunately, many judges and lawyers would agree," Crowell said. "Two-fifths of the state's citizens felt that judges were biased. Those who had had contact with the court system were twice as likely as others to give it low marks."

"Whether they deserve it or not, the courts have been caught in the increasingly widespread public dissatisfaction with government generally," he wrote. "Indeed, the judiciary may suffer more than other government institutions because the courts devote less time to public information than almost any other agency."

More positively, the poll showed public willingness to consider change. Every suggested reform received at least 50 percent support; 84 percent favored establishing a family court, 71 percent mediation before domestic trials and 65 percent arbitration or mediation in civil cases.

The poll's margin of error was 2.9 percent at a 90 percent confidence level.

"Considering the general lack of knowledge about the courts one should not make too much of the support expressed for particular changes," Crowell wrote. "Still, the poll shows an open-minded public willing to experiment with new ways of resolving disputes."

The poll's margin of error was 2.9 percent at a 90 percent confidence level.

Stone St. Announces Increased Earnings

Stone Street Bancorp, Inc., the parent holding company for Mocksville Savings Bank, Inc., SSB, announced consolidated earnings of $546,000 for the quarter ended June 30, compared to earnings of $231,000 for the same period in 1995.

Earnings per share for the quarter totaled $ .30.

Total assets decreased to $109.1 million at June 30, from $116.1 million at March 31. The decrease resulted primarily from the $5.7 million reduction in amounts payable under remittance agreements from the March 31 level which was unusually high due to the activities related to the stock conversion. Deposits decreased to $68.4 million at June 30, from $69.8 million at March 31, as a result of activity related to the stock conversion. Stockholders' equity totaled $39.4 million at June 30.

All My Ex's Come From Shinn's Hive

During last year's NBA draft, George Shinn, the Charlotte Hornets suspect owner, stopped portraying guard Kendall Gill as the bad apple and started promoting him as a rejuvenated corner piece to the franchise's future success—again.

Shinn revealed that Gill had overcome depression and was ready to dribble Charlotte's ball once more.

During last year's draft, Shinn actually allowed Coach Allan Bristow to have a word or two, and the former man in charge approved the trade that returned Gill to Charlotte.

This shocking about-face momentarily silenced Shinn's enemies.

But time has passed, and now Shinn, who has enough money to choke a horse, has inserted titles to most of the roster.

You have Ex-president Spencer Stophen, Ex-personnel director Dave Twardzik, Ex-guard Kendall Gill, Ex-center Alonzo Mourning, Ex-ability, Ex-point guard Kenny Anderson, and now, Ex-forward Larry Johnson.

Shinn has nearly cleaned out all of Mecklenburg County.

The only problem is, he "Ex'd" the most useful part, Mourning, and wrote a death sentence (better known as a contract) to Johnson, handing over an insane $84.5 million Shinn's way of writing has been with an eraser. Now he has a blank team and bitter memories.

Five years ago when champagne was opened, minutes after drafting Johnson from UNLV, the spotlight was reflecting off Johnson's gold tooth and his personality was glowing throughout the league. He had the game and the power to anchor the franchise well into the 21st century.

Two years later, Johnson's heat-of-the-moment contract illustrated talents he didn't have. It also severely damaged the league's salary structure, which has steadily gotten worse.

This made Shinn the culprit, an idiotic man who threw his money around like a spoiled teenager.

But you can look at the contract two different ways. The countless cash showed Shinn's commitment to Johnson as the team leader.

A team meeting would have sufficed.

But then came along Mourning, the No. 2 pick the year after Johnson arrived. Clearly, Mourning meant more to the Hornets on the floor, and this left less money under the salary cap to find a strong supporting cast.

Why this never occurred to Shinn is beyond reason. When the Hornets started slipping to mediocrity, the fans turned on Johnson. A back

Erin Sherrill's Homer Lifts Davie American Minor Girls

The Davie American Minor girls left Rural Hill smiling.

So did North Forsyth, the losers. It was that kind of a game.

Davie's Erin Sherrill stroked a two-run homer in the sixth and final inning, breaking up a tie and capping a five-run sixth for Davie to pull out a 10-7 come-from-behind win in the first round of the double-elimination District II All-star Tournament.

"We were all still smiling after the game, even the losers," Assistant Coach Cuthi Birkes said. "It was really, really good defensive game."

Birkes wasn't ready to stop describing the atmosphere. "It was a real exciting, great game."

Despite Sherrill's game-winning home run and complete-game pitching, many played a part in the thriller. "Not one person won the game, that's what was so great about it," Birkes said.

(Erin) pitched a great game, even the other team played a real good game."

Trailing 7-3 going into the bottom of the sixth, Davie scratched for two runs to tie the game at 7-7 before Sherrill's blast.

Davie will try to stay in the winner's bracket at King on Thursday.

The all-stars are consisted of Kelli

Lawton, Kelly Mitchell, Lindsay Reese, Sherrill, Brittany Holt, Kuren McDaniel, Courtney Springer, Dana Vestel, Allison McNeil, Laura Riddle, Jenna Groce and Hailey Dunn.

The head coach is Ray Birke and Dave Mitchell, who also helps in practice, is Tournament Director.

Blaze Air King Of The Hill

What's up with Blaze Air? The Class C men's softball team took Rock Hill, S.C. by storm last weekend, winning the King of the Hill tournament.

"I don't know what's gotten into us," said Sam Maphis, who was one of five players to hit over .600. "I really don't know."

Regardless of what it is, it's starting to become routine. This was Blaze's seventh tournament title in 11 tries so far this year.

And this time it was Russ Whitlock who led the assault, going 15 for 19 (.789) to take the MVP award.

Buddy Jenkins, Terry Bodford and Chris Lundy each hit over .600.

As a team, Blaze hit a blazing .563 (111-197), averaging 22 hits per game.

Having won the winner's bracket in the double-elimination tourney, Blaze needed to win at least one of two against Ron's Softball.

Ron's sent Blaze to the limit by winning the first game 17-13, but Ron's celebration was short-lived as the locals bounced back to win the final game 23-10. A 14-run third inning gave Blaze an insurmountable lead.

To open the tournament on Saturday, Blaze outslugged Chantew 20-16, then pummeled Calvert's Amoco 15-3 before sending Ron's Softball to the loser's bracket 14-1.

Allison Buckner "I feel like I was in the right place at the right time."

Davie Resident Taking Part In Olympic Opening Ceremonies

By Jonathan Sparks
Davie County Enterprise Record

It's a gathering of the finest athletes the world has to offer.

The 1996 Summer Olympic Games in Atlanta, Ga. promises to be an amazing display of athletic ability. The United States will be represented by people like Grant Hill, Carl Lewis, Gail Devers, Allison Buckner...

Wait a minute, Allison Buckner? Isn't she from Davie County?

That's right. Davie County's own Allison Buckner is preparing for the Olympic Games. She's not in the 100 meter dash, she doesn't do platform diving, and she's not on the Dream Team.

Buckner will participate in the opening ceremonies of the Olympic games, showcasing her talent in what the Olympic Opening Ceremony Committee says will "celebrate the energy and outstanding talents of the young people of the United States."

Buckner is a member of the North Carolina State University Cheerleading Squad, ranked number two in the country. N.C. State's squad was recruited to be in the "University of the World Cheerleaders," a group of nearly 400 men and women assembled from colleges around the United States to help open the games.

She is a 1994 graduate of Davie High School, where she was class president and a member of the cheerleading squad. From there, she went to N.C. State to become a dean's list student in psychology and zoology while cheering for the Wolfpack.

The N.C. State squad is one of 20 chosen to participate in the opening ceremonies based on their national ranking and videotaped demonstrations of their skills.

Does she feel like one of the greatest athletes in the world? "I feel like I was in the right place at the right time - 1996."

The NCSU squad is staying at Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga. They travel 180 miles every day to Olympic Stadium in order to practice their routine. They have been practicing all summer as a squad, and have practiced with the other schools three times a day for the past two weeks in preparation for the ceremonies.

Among other schools participating with the Wolfpack are Maryland, Georgia Tech and Florida State.

Folks at home can catch a glimpse of Buckner and the "University of the World Cheerleaders" Friday, July 19, at 8 p.m. on NBC.

Don't Blame Larry Johnson For Taking Money

Injury sapped his jumping ability, a major setback when considering his height (6-5) against towering cranes. Out of necessity, he moved to the perimeter, becoming a jump shooter and then the darts came flying from all angles.
The hard-to-please fans needed a scapegoat.
Johnson was never worth $84.5 million, but who is? Well, there is a man named Michael.
But as the finger pointing increased and filled seats decreased, Johnson regained most of his two-time All-Star form and his know-how.

During the stretch-run of '96, Johnson's revived back carried the Hornets like a horse, tirelessly carrying forgettable teammates and aging vets through the last gasps of a hard year.
The Hornets didn't make the playoffs, but no honest fan could blame Johnson.
Shinn's ego prevented him from re-signing Mourning, running him out of town on Opening Day of last year.

The rebellion from the fans started to show after a short trial. On most nights, there would be 5,000 no-shows. Shinn and his few friends insisted that they couldn't sign free agents under the restraints of Johnson's contract.
The question was could Charlotte trade Johnson for equal value? It was answered last week. The Hornets received Anthony Mason, who is equal or better in brawls, and Brad Lohaus, a 7-0 three-point gunner.

Now a book on Charlotte would read like a satire, featuring Shinn's absurd moves. Sinking from contender to pretender and maybe lottery contention would highlight other chapters.
Don't blame Johnson. If Dwight Sparks were to roll over and offer me three times my value, what would I do?

Furches Goes Undefeated In League Play

Wherever you find Libby Sigmon, you normally find a winner.
That's been the case in the Mocksville/Davie Parks and Recreation co-ed softball leagues. Sigmon's troops have won four straight co-ed titles.
Last year, Furches Motor, her team in the women's league, knocked off Shores, the undefeated regular-season champs, in the tournament.
And this year, Furches just completed a 15-0 regular season to win the league by five games over Shores (10-5).
The team is made up of Rhonda Driscoll, Teresa Arnold, Jennifer Eaton, Jenny Williams, Janis Barney, Jonette Williard, Daphne Beck, Amanda Sigmon, Dottie Sigmon, Melanie Adams, Tonya Dillard, Regina Draughn, Audrey Williams and Hollie Williams.
Furches has blown by the competition despite having to play without some regulars for various reasons.
"It just depends on who shows up on what night," Coach Sigmon said. "We've played through graduation and things like that."
"You know how seniors do, but they've been pretty faithful. We have had a good year. When they're all there, we do pretty good."

Davie National Major All-Stars Make It To District Quarterfinals

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

The Davie National Major All-Star team traveled a road that had seldom been traveled, winning two straight games to advance to the quarterfinals of the double-elimination District II Tournament.

Then they made a U-turn. Davie collided with Southwest Forsyth and Kernersville, two Little League baseball powerhouses, which ended Davie's postseason by combining to outscore Davie 27-3. Kernersville held Davie to only two hits in recording a 10-1 victory Tuesday (July 9) at the home of the Winston-Salem Nationals.

"(Southwest and Kernersville) were definitely more talented," Coach David Poplin said, "and we handled it pretty well. We came out of it with a straight face."

Kernersville sent a towering kid to the mound, and that meant as much as any curveball he threw. "Their pitcher was a pretty big kid," Poplin said. "He intimidated us a little. He wasn't us fast as what we've seen - especially like last year's pitchers - but enough speed to intimidate us."

"If he'd been a small kid, we probably could have hit him. I don't think we struck out that many times," said Poplin of the six times that Davie struck out.

When Davie made contact, Kernersville gobbled up everything in sight. "Their great fielding team," said Poplin, whose team only managed two hits, Patrick Lowery and Ben Allred had one apiece.

Their right up there with Southwest Forsyth in fielding, maybe better. They caught all the hard ground balls that we hit throughout the game."

Sound fundamentals were evident on the Kernersville side. "Somebody has been working with them," Poplin said. "When they fielded a grounder, they would bring the glove up to the chest. "Glenn baseball coach Dale (James) will have them in the future."

Poplin is content to look in the mirror, but realistically, Davie could have played a couple more games in another bracket.

"If the draws would have been a little different - from what I saw on the other fields - maybe we would have seen (Southwest and Kernersville) a game or two later," he said.

Now the talented group of rising seventh graders will have to move up to the bigger field, 90-foot bases and mounds that are 60 feet, 6 inches from home plate.

"We were definitely proud," Poplin said. "I enjoyed working with them. We've got a good group of Dads ... if we needed anything, we got it."

"We're going to keep working with these kids."

Losing starter McKenzie Willoughby went 4 1/3 and Cody Wright wrapped up the last 1 2/3.

American Major Girls 'Have A Good Time' Playing In District II Tournament

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

South Forsyth recorded a 10-0 win against the Davie American major girls fast-pitch softball team to eliminate Davie from the District II All-Star Tournament Wednesday at Kries Field in Winston-Salem.

South had a firm grip on the game even before the first pitch. South seized control by merely walking from the parking lot toward the playing field.

Gene (Queen) saw them coming from the parking lot and said, "We're in trouble," Coach Keith Handy of Davie said. "It was one of those nights."

The loss in four innings - because of the 10-run rule - ended Davie's postseason after one win and two losses. After dropping a 14-2 decision to Stacey County in the first round, Davie clobbered King 13-2 before being eliminated the next night in South.

"The girls had a good time," Handy said. "The girls didn't let the games get them down."

Davie didn't get down even though there wasn't much to get up about following the South game. "There's nothing I want to talk about," laughed Lisa Handy, the scorekeeper.

"Our pitchers couldn't get it going. We did all right, we just couldn't get it going."

Stacy Queen and Jenna Richie had the only hits.

Gene Queen and Tony Gajewski were Handy's assistant coaches. "The all-star team was made up of Stacey County, Dawn Singleton, Christina Gajewski, Lee McClamrock, Tracy Allen, Ashley Williams, Sheena Smith, Dana McClain, Jenna Richie, Brandy Sain and Lauren Cornazer."

Davie Kicks King Rarely will two hits win a ball game, and almost never will two hits win a game by 11 runs.

But Davie American used just two base hits to rout King 13-2 Tuesday (July 9) at the Davie Youth Complex in the loser's bracket of the District II All-Star Tournament.

Singleton and Gajewski had the lone singles and Singleton did the job in the mound, going all five innings. The game was called after five due to the 10-run rule.

"We had a lot of walks," said Lisa Handy of the 13 that King issued. "That's how we got a lot of our runs. They didn't have real good pitching."

Three plays seemed to boost Davie's confidence. In the second inning, Williams' catch ignited her teammates. "Ashley made an amazing catch in the second," Lisa said. "It put the team on a roll and we kept rolling."

One inning later, shortstop Handy fielded a grounder, touched second base for one out and fired home for a double play. "After that we got higher and higher," Keith said of his daughter's outstanding play. "It got us pumped up."

And with the game in jeopardy of going the full six innings, Handy came through again - this time at the plate. Handy laid down a bunt with the bases loaded. Little did anyone know that Handy would end up at third base on the play, bringing in three runs to stretch an eight-run lead to 13-2.

Davie occasionally bunted, but it was the fake bunts that kept King's pitchers off-stride. "We would fake bunt and it kept their pitchers messed up," Keith said. "Their first pitcher only faced three batters."

"They couldn't pitch to us."

Stokes Upends Davie In 1st Round The Stokes County Major division All-star girls fast-pitch softball team defeated a jittery Davie American 14-2 in the first round of the District II Tournament Saturday (July 6) at the Davie Youth Complex.

"We had the juicers and it wasn't worth a hoot," said Lisa Handy. "But we're going to do better tonight (against King)."

Thrust into the loser's bracket, Davie hosted King on July 9 in a do or die situation.

Davie only managed four hits against Stokes County's pitching staff. Handy, Cornazer, Singleton and Queen were responsible for the hits.

Walks Perplex American Sr. Girls

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

KERNERSVILLE - The Davie American senior girls were left perplexed after losing to King and North Forsyth in successive nights, which eliminated Davie from the double-elimination District II All-Star Tournament.

Perplexed over 32 walks in 11 innings. That mind-boggling number led to a 16-6 loss to King Thursday and a 12-2 setback to North on Friday. Both games were played at Kernersville's Swim Park.

And Coach Kenny Foster was lost for answers. "If I knew what just happened last night (Thursday), I'd be making a lot of money," said Foster, describing the 18 walks and flimsy glove work in the field.

"It just wasn't our night. My hitters aren't hitting. We just got no breaks and blew up (on defense)."

It was probably a good bet that Foster was wondering the same thing after being eliminated by North 24 hours later.

North Shuts Down Struggling Davie North Forsyth took advantage of 14 walks issued by starter Dana Smith to cruise to a 12-2 win, which eliminated Davie. The game was called after six innings due to the 10-run rule.

Smith went the entire way, giving up 11 hits and 12 runs (11 earned). She struck out four.

North starter Amanda Palmer huffed Davie hitters on her way to a complete-game win. The hard-throwing right-hander only allowed three hits and one earned run, striking out eight and walking six.

Davie scored single runs in the top of the third and sixth.

Ashley Bracken's single just over the shortstop platted Dawn Williamson, who reached second base on shortstop Nicole Clifton's throwing error and stole third, to cut North's early lead to 2-1 after two and a half innings. But six North runs in the bottom of the third all but decided the outcome. North added two each in the fifth and sixth to stretch the margin to 10.

In the sixth, Amanda Bailey's base hit to right knocked in Hailey Queen, who was pinch-running for Natalie Foster, to make it 10-2. But North ended the game early with two in the bottom half.

Two of Davie's three hits were picked up by Bracken, who went 2 for 2 with an RBI and a walk. Bailey was 1 for 3 with a run batted in.

King Walks To Win Jessica Whitley pitched brilliantly in an 18-7 first-round win over Kernersville, but the Davie ace wasn't herself against King, going four innings and giving up 17 walks and 15 runs (10 earned).

The reason Foster was so flustered: King only managed three hits off Whitley, but somehow managed 16 runs to win in five innings.

Two of King's five hits for the game came off reliever Smith, who entered in the bottom of the fifth but never recorded an out, as King pieced together two hits, a walk and one game-ending run.

Again Davie only had three hits, one each coming from Bracken, Foster and Whitley. Davie drew 10 walks to stay in contention until King's eight-run third to surge ahead 11-4.

King added four more in the fourth for a 15-5 advantage.

Three of the first four Davie runs crossed on either a wild pitch or error. In the third, Bailey had the first RBI on a sacrifice fly to right field to regain the lead for Davie at 4-3.

A bases-loaded walk to Foster brought home Jennifer Mitchell in the fourth, and Amber Hamm's groundout allowed Bailey to score in the fifth.

The third inning proved costly for Davie on each night. King scored eight runs in the third to take a commanding 11-4 lead, and North pushed across six to go up 8-1.

Despite winning one game, Davie only had eight hits for the tournament. In 1990, Davie won its only senior girls District championship, but from 1987-93, Davie was the runner-up each time. "We have been one of the most consistent senior girls programs over the last 10 years," said Kenny Wood, who coached Davie American for 15 years before giving it up after the '95 year.

The Davie senior girls have sent 11 teams to the District finals, but King or East Surry has long been a road block.

Winning The Coveted Patricia Schroeder Award For Patient Care Means A Lot To Us.
Sending Clyde Kizziah Back Home To Sarah A Week Early Means More.

They presented the award to us. But you're the real winners.

The Patricia Schroeder Award for Innovations in Patient Care Quality is given to just one hospital in America each year. We are extremely honored to be the recipient of the 1996 award for developing processes that lowered hospital charges, improved the quality of patient care, and decreased length of stays. These efforts, spearheaded by a dedicated team of physicians, nurses, allied health professionals and many others, resulted in dramatic changes. Including a 50 percent decrease in the average length of stay and a 35 percent decrease in charges for patients with congestive heart failure. Improving health care like this is what we're all about. If we win awards in the process of doing it, that's fine. If we don't, that's fine, too. Because we aren't here to make contest judges happy. The people we want to make happy are Clyde. And Sarah. And you.

Rotary Sponsors Awards

The Mocksville Rotary Club announced on July 2 that it will provide $500 in mini-scholarships to the Davie Campus of Davidson County Community College during the 1996-97 academic year.

The scholarships will go to AHS and GED students, allowing them to enroll in Continuing Education and certificate programs while completing their high school programs.

Davie Campus Dean of College Services John Thomas said the eight to 10 scholarships available during the year will enable students to enroll in classes that will enhance their job-seeking skills.

Thomas, who approached the club about scholarship assistance for literacy students last fall, said, "We found there was a need, and many students did not have the money to take a Continuing Education course, even if they were eligible. We will now be able to meet the needs of some of these students due to the generosity of the Mocksville Rotary Club."

Ralph Greco, president of the Mocksville Rotary Club, made the official presentation of the funds to the Davie Campus at the club's July 9 meeting.

Literacy is among Rotary International's focuses worldwide.

At Wesley Chapel we are having an attendance drive. Each Sunday a different family is responsible for "filling the pews." The first Sunday Gene and Marie Miller had Johnnie Shelton, Pat Howard, and Lonnie Gene Miller to "fill the pews." Last Sunday Roland and Betty West did their homework well by visiting several neighbors and former members. They filled the pews with 13 visitors. They were Susan, Amy and Missy Cujas, Frances and Jason Tutterow, Emily Hill, Betty and Carl Grisson, Lonnie, Lisa, Sarah and Rebecca West and Janie Dixon. It was so nice having all these visitors.

Bob and Louise Dill and their daughter, Finn Craver, her husband, Dennis and their children, Matthew and Megan spent last weekend in Atlanta. They stayed with Bob's sister and brother-in-law, Cooper and Lena Lowery. While there Fran and Dennis and the children attended the Country Music Jamboree at the Atlanta Motor Speedway. For three weeks in July, Rian and Lindsay Thomas are spending three weeks in Hawaii with their cousin John Scull. They are 15 years old and are rising sophomores at Davie High. Their parents Roy and Dacia will welcome them home along with their cousin, who is returning with them to spend three weeks at their home on Cana Road.

Anne Essie Barnes, her husband, Dr. Brooke Barnes and children, Edward and Elizabeth returned to their home in Onancock, Va. on Saturday. They had spent a few days with Anne's parents James and Lelia Essie.

James and Lelia Essie spent Sunday in and around Boone. They celebrated the birthday of their daughter, Mary Ellen Candillo, with a luncheon at the apartment of Joseph Candillo, Mary Ellen's son, who is a student at Appalachian State University and then visited the Old General Store at Todd, and other points of interest.

Well, Cana avoided another Hurricane.

Cana Road got the lines repainted and it is much easier to stay out of the ditches. Angell Road is all torn up. It appears that they are going to repave Angell.

Roy Taylor can grow tomatoes. Those stripes are great.

Have you seen the Boogey man, I love. Ha, ha.

Happy Birthday to Darlene Latham and Kim Summers.

jungle and Mt. Everest.

"When you enter the rooms, you'll feel like you're there," said church member David Owens.

Each night VBS participants will move to a different setting, he said. In preparation for the event, Susan Shortt has been directing youth from the church in skits about each of the destinations which have been performed during Sunday morning services, Owens said.

"The week will end Aug. 2, with a cookout for VBS participants and their families.

Redland's VBS will be open to children ages 2 through middle school. Transportation will be available to anyone wishing to attend. To make arrangements for transportation, call Teresa Paudie at 998-8246.

Spiritual Resources: God's Gift To Us

By Shirley Cottle

For the devilion this week, I would like to express my gratitude for this space that is shared so generously with many Christian writers in our county. When Dwight Sparks asked me to write for this particular portion of the newspaper, I really thought he was joking. At that time (about 3 1/2 years ago) Dwight's pastor was the weekly writer, and I sort of "filled in" occasionally. Then two years ago the situation changed as the pastor moved and I had the pleasure of sharing with several other persons in our county. Now there are six of us, coming from 3 denominations, writing on a rotating basis. Our working backgrounds are different, and our styles of writing are varied, but we hold one thing in common, we love to tell the wonderful stories of the faith we have in our Lord Jesus Christ!

Recently one of our writers, Louis Savage, left this earthly world for the heavenly world eternal. Even when he did not feel well, he would head for his manual typewriter (most of us use computers now) and bring forth a message for the week. I am grateful for his devotion and diligence. He wrote the conviction of his heart and his understanding of what God wanted to be said for that time.

This week was to be the week for Richard Eskow. But he is on one of those wonderful events we call our "vacations." So look for him again next month. He is a rich story teller with words. Also this month, Hazel Smoot will be absent from her place on the schedule, but only for this time. Hazel has had knee replacement surgery and is recuperating. You may wish to share your gratitude and love for the way she lifts us in her writings by sending her a card at: 627 Duke Whitaker Road, Mocksville.

Glenn Sellers and David Gilbreath take time from their busy pastoral duties too, and give to us words of truth and guidance that place them in a special place in my heart. Both said 'yes' to this devotional writing with prayerful consideration and big smiles. Then in recent weeks, we have been blessed to have Tom Torpy join the writing group.

The Apostle Paul wrote these words which are recorded in 1 Corinthians 12:7: "But in each one is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good."

It is my prayer and hope that you will have been as blessed as I, and that you share my gratitude for the gift of these writers. The manifestation of the Holy Spirit that they give to us for our common good through their words, and the freedom of speech to share in this way, are God's good gift to us.

There are goats everywhere at the Jerry Lynde farm in the Farmington community, a hobby that is becoming profitable. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Getting His Goat

Pastor Uses Experience On Breeding Farm

Jerry Lynde calls his goats from the pasture to the trough when it's feeding time.

By Jeanne Houpe
 Davie County Enterprise Record

What is the world's popular meat? Most might guess beef or chicken—maybe even pork or fish. But it's unlikely that many thought of goat—at least not in this part of the world.

Goat meat is not a popular food in the United States, but worldwide more goat meat is consumed than any other kind, according to goat farmer Jerry Lynde of the Farmington community.

And, as more people move here from countries where it is a popular food, the demand for goat meat is rising in the United States. The meat is lean and low in cholesterol, he said.

Lynde, who is pastor of Faith and Victory Family Worship Center in Mocksville, said he first became interested in breeding goats when his father and brother approached him about establishing a partnership. They purchased the goats, and he raises them.

Since he had experience managing an 80,000 acre ranch in Montana before entering the ministry, he said he thought caring for the goats would make a nice sideline job.

The Lyndes raise goats to sell to others interested in getting started in goat herding.

The business grows steadily as word spreads about their farm. Last year they sold about 40 goats, Lynde said.

A lot of cattlemen have become interested in goats because cattle prices have dropped, he said.

Goats are less expensive to raise. A farmer can keep five goats for every one cow, and they can eat almost anything, he said.

The goats do really well in the Davie County climate, he said. Most of the females are able to give birth twice in a 13 month period, and 80 percent of the time they have twins—usually one male and one female.

Three sets of triplets have been born on the Lynde farm this year, he said.

Lynde and his wife, Marilyn, care for about 75 goats on their 25 acre farm. Their biggest money-maker is the South African Boer goat, which weighs 250 to 275 pounds when full grown and sells for $2,000-3,000.

For the person who may not be prepared to spend that much money, the Lyndes also sell cross breeds with Nubian and Saanen goats for $250-500, he said.

Lynde breeds several types of goats on his Davie farm.

They're not only useful, they can be kind of cute, as well.

Caring for 75 goats in addition to pastoring a church keeps Lynde very busy.

Goat Business Booming In Rural Farmington Area

Though these are meat goats, the Lyndes would find it hard to eat any of their goats. These are strictly raised to be sold as breeding stock to help others interested in getting into the business, Lynde said.

"They are all pets," he said. In fact, nearly every one of them has a name. There's Al Boer, Bridgette Boerloe, Humphrey Boergoat and Zsa Zsa Goboer.

Last year on July 4, they found Albert—a kid that had been abandoned by his mother. "He was just about dead," Lynde said.

Feeding him with a bottle, they were able to save his life. Now he's a regular pet, following Lynde wherever he walks on the farm. When he was younger, Mrs. Lynde would even take Albert in the house with her.

Lynde said he has a picture of his wife and the young goat asleep on the couch.

Recently, she has been feeding another, Buddy, with a bottle because his mother was unable to give milk, he said.

The Lyndes do 95 percent of their own veterinary work—helping with births and giving shots.

There are no mean goats on the farm, and they are smart animals, according to Lynde.

That's easy to believe, as three week old Missy plays in the yard near the picnic table where Lynde sits in the shade behind his home, and the other goats race to follow him as he says simply, "Come on, kids."

Caring for 75 goats in addition to pastoring a church keeps Lynde busy.

If he ever had to choose between the two jobs, Lynde said pastoring his church would come first, but for now he is enjoying being a "sheep herder" and a goat farmer.

The Lyndes have two sons, Tyler, 23, and Travis, 21.

County Manager Ken Windley: "Contractors don't really need work. Everybody's in Atlanta." Jail Construction Bids $2 Million Higher Than Projections

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie County commissioners are watching their hopes to build a new jail slip through their oil-slickened hands. When bids were opened earlier this month, they came in more than $2 million over budget. And those bids were for a less expensive project than commissioners had hoped for when talks began nearly two years ago.

"Contractors don't really need the work," said County Manager Ken Wind-ley. "Everybody's in Atlanta." Already taken out of the proposal for the 72-bed jail was a kitchen and new offices for the sheriff's department. With those cuts, Crier-Fripp Architects in May increased the construction estimate from $4.2 million to $4.8 million, Windley said.

When the bids were opened, the architects were "floored," Windley said. Commissioners first had a problem with the new jail when oil began surfacing downhill from where the jail is to be built, behind the courthouse and beside the current jail. While the origin of that fuel oil hasn't been definitely identified, the county is handling the problem well enough that state environmental authorities have given the go-ahead for construction.

The delay could have been costly, and could prevent the building of the jail anytime soon.

The project had borrowed $2 million for the county, and had budgeted the rest. Windley said on Monday that he doesn't see county commissioners putting another $2 million into the project at this time.

Next Monday, Windley and others are going to meet to try to negotiate with the low bidders. They'll take the results to county commissioners on Aug. 5.

"If that doesn't work, county commissioners could accept the bids, reject the bids and re-bid, or wait a while," Windley will likely recommend that commissioners reject all bids and wait before seeking more bids.

"If we bid again and it still comes in over, there will have to be some hard decisions made," he said.

The need for a new jail hasn't decreased. The current jail, built to hold 19 prisoners, held 31 on Monday and routinely has as many as 40, Windley said.

The county considered cutting the number of beds in the new jail from 72 to 56, but that wouldn't save money because new plans would require the county to abide by new building code rules, which would make construction more costly.

The money borrowed to build the jail has been invested. "Fortunately, we've been able to make some interest money."

A New Commitment

Owners Vow To Make Davie's Only Radio Station A Success

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Things are changing at WDSL. With recent approval from the FCC, the radio station that has provided its listeners with local news and entertainment from sunrise to sunset nearly every day since 1964, has new owners.

And they hope that's just the beginning of the changes that will take place at frequency 1520 AM—WDSL, according to station manager Gary Tilley, who is one of the new owners.

"This is a new WDSL with a new commitment," he said. "It's a new kid in town."

Everything has to be FCC approved, but the new owners have a lot of ideas, Tilley said.

Among their hopes for the station are to increase broadcast time past sunset. During the winter months, most people aren't even home from work when the station signs off at 5:15 p.m. Public Relations Manager Jonathan Wishon said.

"If we can go nighttime, we would like to carry a lot of local sports programs," Tilley said.

So far people have been very responsive to that idea, he said. In addition to local sports, Wishon said WDSL is an official Carolina Panthers station and one of only four Indy car stations in the state.

Unfortunately, the station won't be able to broadcast the Panthers' first pre-season game because it's at night, he said.

If WDSL gets FCC approval to go night-time, one of the next goals for the new owners will be to increase the station's wattage from 5,000, Tilley said. That would make the station's signal clearer.

According to Tilley, plans are in the early stages to build new studios at the WDSL broadcast tower located on Eaton Road.

The new owners have also been looking at the possibility of adding a remote van, which will allow the station to broadcast from various locations without much difficulty, he said.

That's just a part of the equipment the owners hope to add. The Smithsonian Museum might be interested in some of what's there now, he said.

Without 24 hour police coverage, the community relies on programs such as ElderWatch and Crime Prevention, along with the sheriff's department when Coolceemee has no officer available. The grant will enable officers to provide service "24 hours a day, seven days a week, 99 percent of the time," said Wooten.

The application for the COPS grant was submitted by Wooten March 15 and was processed quickly, but there may be a two-to three month delay until the money is dispersed. The cost to Coolceemee residents will total roughly $51,688 for the three years combined. The federal government will pay approximately $155,000.

The part-time officer would become full-time, Wooten said. With more full-time officers on staff, Wooten said he will devote his time "to administrative duties such as

Hillsdale Sewer Lines Closer To Reality

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Two new developments are being planned and more will likely hit the books when plans to extend sewer lines into the Hillsdale community are revealed in a month or two.

Although county commissioners have vowed not to spend any money on the project, officials have been studying options to provide a sewer system to the rapidly-growing area in eastern Davie.

The best option, according to County Manager Ken Windley, is to buy capacity from the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Utilities Commission, and extending their system across the Yadkin River. The only loophole is for Forsyth County commissioners, Windley said, and their action is expected within a month.

"They've given us a ball park figure, but there's no agreement on cost," he said. "The ball park figure, however, is less than we could do it (build a separate sewerage treatment system)."

The cost of extending the system would be on the backs of developers and others who would benefit, and possibly by the N.C.

Coolceemee Could Get 24-Hour Police Protection With Grant

By Morgan Harper
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Twenty-four hour police protection. The police department has received a COPS grant for three full-time police officers, which will allow the town to offer 24 hour community protection and service.

The estimated total federal funds will be approximately $155,000 for three years.

The Coolceemee P.D. employs three officers: two full-time (including the chief) and one part-time. With the COPS grant, the total number will rise to five.

"As a result of changing times, our community began experiencing an increase in illegal drug activity and related crimes," Chief Tim Wooten said. "With an increase in crime, more law enforcement is needed. The town's design is to solve the problem through manpower."

Without 24 hour police coverage, the community relies on programs such as ElderWatch and Crime Prevention, along with the sheriff's department when Coolceemee has no officer available. The grant will enable officers to provide service "24 hours a day, seven days a week, 99 percent of the time," said Wooten.

High Fashion? Coffee Stages Big Revival

What kind of town has Winston-Salem become? Walking downtown the other day, I saw an ambulance pull up to the curb.

The Expresso Ambulance. A young woman jumped out and quickly carried eight cups of coffee into an office.

Who orders coffee from a delivery service? What kind of coffee aficionado must have a quick cappuccino delivered to his desk?

How much does it cost? Coffee has returned in high style. Someone gave me a latte once, with a ton of whipped cream and chocolate shavings on the top. It was so good I went back for another.

Only then did I learn the true measure of the gift — $2.95.

That shouldn't be so shocking. I pay ... Well, I'm not going to tell you how much I spend on a pound of coffee shipped from Seattle.

It's about three times over the grocery store prices. But the coffee is about three times better.

When I was a boy, I awoke to the aroma of coffee perking in the pot. Coffee percolators were wonderful machines. It was a mystery what made them work. Why the water started bubbling up as it got hotter. It was science in motion. Making coffee took forever. Then I watched as my father sipped the hot liquid and took great, slow pleasure in drinking it.

Then came the days of convenience. Not a single moment could be wasted. That's when we found a short cut for making coffee. In fact, it could be done instantly.

There was only one problem with instant coffee. It tasted terrible. The aroma was gone — half of the appeal of coffee. It was fast. It was convenient. But it was no fun. It was no challenge. It was bland and terrible. Not even the brilliant TV commercials for Taster's Choice could mask the lack of flavor.

Coffee consumption fell. America became more fond of colas. Some even began drinking Coke for their breakfast diet of caffeine.

Coffee now enjoys a remarkable revival. Coffee-houses have sprung up in the most unexpected places. Convenience stores and fast food restaurants now boast of their cappuccino machines. They're virtually everywhere now.

You're nobody if you don't have your own bean grinder. Coffee purists are as bad as wine tasters. A little on the snobby side.

My coffee is black. There's an oily film on the top. The bottom of the cup looks like a tar pit. But it tastes great. I wonder about that unfiltered residue at the bottom of the cup. I hesitate to make anyone a cup for fear of frightening them. For fear of liability. What would the Surgeon General say?

Call the Expresso Ambulance. — Dwight Sparks

Advance Family Thanks Friends For Kindness

To the editor: I am writing on behalf of the Hart Family in Advance to express our deep appreciation to the vast number of friends, neighbors, co-workers and acquaintances who offered their sympathy, prayers and love after the recent loss of my wife and Brian and Jennifer's mother, Kelly Hart. We were especially touched by the outpouring of support and comfort that was expressed to all of us at a particularly sad and difficult time. Please accept thanks from all of our family, to all who shared in our pain, loss and sorrow. I would like to give a special thanks to all of my good friends and neighbors on Westridge Road. They opened their homes, kitchens and hearts to my

'School Tools' Project Benefits Needy Children

To the editor: It was great to see the "random acts of kindness" the people of Davie County performed Saturday, July 20. The response to the Tools for Schools program has been greater than anticipated. It was heart warming to see the boxes nearly full of "stuff." A great big thanks to all those who donated some "school tools" to be used by a needy student. It is this type of donation that adults can easily make while allowing their children to see that they really do care about those that may be less fortunate than themselves.

All the material collected through this project will be used by the Davie County School system to benefit needy students here in Davie County.

What does one receive for participating in the project? The good feeling that comes from helping a fellow person, and maybe helping a needy student break the cycle of poverty by assisting them in getting an education.

How does one participate? Simply by dropping school supplies in one of the collection boxes located at Wal-Mart.

Local Teens Help Less Fortunate

To the editor: On July 8, a group of teenagers from First Baptist Church of Mocksville came to the beach not for your usual vacation, but to work as part of the N.C. Baptist Assembly's first Missions Boot Camp. Co-sponsored by N.C. Baptist Men, an auxiliary of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, the camp brought together teenagers from your area and more than 200 other younger people from across the state to help less fortunate residents of Brunswick and New Hanover counties. The teenagers painted houses and built porches as part of construction teams, lead Backyard Bible Clubs, and clown and sang on the beach. These projects were designed as a way to get teenagers involved with others and to see life outside their usual awareness.

Let The Games Begin: The Olympics In Good Ol' Boy Country

Who would've thunk it? The Olympics in Atlanta. Yee-haw. Hot dang. Twenty years ago, a male gymnast would have been laughed out of town. Eyebrows would have been raised at a female gymnast, as well. How could she do that in public?

Now, the town is embracing them. The capital of the Old South wants to be a part of the world.

Just imagine what those good ol' boys think about the goings on in Atlanta these days.

"Elmer, I wuz a walkin' down Peachtree the other day, and you wouldn't believe what I heard. They wuz people talkin' in all kinds of tongues."

"Naw, Eugene. Them wasn't strange tongues. The Olympics is in town. Them people is from New Jersey."

"Aw. That explains it all. I couldn't understand a word they wuz sayin'."

Mike Barnhardt

They understand swimming, but not Olympics style. You swim in rivers and ponds, not in a pool that cost more than a lifetime of pickup trucks. And what about that sound they use to start the races. Any good ol' boy worth his weight in pickled pig's feet knows that you start a race - of any kind - with a gunshot.

Synchronized swimming? To a good ol' boy, that's doing the cannonball off the railroad trestle with your best buddy, hitting the water at the same time, re-surfacing together and letting out a collective "Yee-hawwww."

The good ol' boys are embarrassed that the good ol' US of A didn't win a medal in the shooting competition. But deep down, they know if the target had been an old pop bottle on a fence post, the good guys would have one. And they would bet the farm they could out-shoot those foreigners at an old fashioned turkey shoot.

Fencing? "Elmer, I've got a neighbor dat put up a mile of barbed wire in a single day, by hisself. I know durn well if we can get him in the Games he can win one uv dem gold medals. That wud be somethin', wouldn't it?"

"Eugene, ya daggone fool. Fencing ain't got nothin' to do with keepin' yer cows in the pasture. It's sword fightin', like they used to do in the Old Country."

Despite all the odd sports (ballroom dancing in four years?), the good ol' boys can join all other types of Southerners to be proud that the Olympics are being held here. Forget the silly costumes and spirals at the opening ceremonies. Forget that Ray Charles didn't even sing "Georgia." Did Coca Cola refuse to let the Pepsi man into "their" Olympics? If that's the case, I'm switching brands. Forget that the stupid mascot "Izzy" was nowhere to be found. Forget that the cauldron is more impressive than the flame.

It's the Olympics. They're in the South. And the dreams of thousands of young people from around the world are being realized - right here in our back yard.

Who knows, if they're considering ballroom dancing, maybe the Olympic Gods will make stock car racing an official sport some day. Those good ol' boys would appreciate it.

William Davis Needed A Brain Surgeon To Help Treat His Kidney Disease

Who would have thought a patient with kidney problems needed to be checked for brain aneurysms? In fact, with the kind of kidney disease William Davis has, the occurrence of aneurysms in the brain is quite common. So before William's kidney specialist treated his kidneys, the neurosurgeons at Forsyth Hospital examined his brain, found a potentially life threatening aneurysm, and repaired it with microscopic surgery. We call this approach to healing "team" medicine. It simply means the doctors and staff at Forsyth work closely together using all their knowledge, experience and technology to provide the best course of treatment for their patients.

"We have some developers in the area anxious to get sewer ... and the county commissioners have indicated they're not going to put any more into it."
At least one of those developers, Davie County commissioner Jeff Harrison, has already announced plans to build a new shopping center with a Food Lion and Revco on Hwy. 158 at Hwy. 801. Another group headed by Bill Dumette is working on plans for a tract of Bahson property they purchased across from Bermuda Run on Hwy. 158.

Windley said the talks with the commission would be a million gallons of the capacity "perpetually." How far lines are extended into Davie County would be decided later, with those benefiting paying the cost.

New Owners Committed To Local Radio Station

Listeners have probably already gotten used to some of the station's new voices, which include Tilley's during the morning show and that of his 18-year-old son Matthew in the afternoon.
But not everything is changing at WDSL.
The station will maintain a country music format with a bluegrass flavor and a lot of gospel and spiritual programming.
Dwight Barker's daily bluegrass program is one of the station's most popular offerings, he said. Barker has been doing radio since 1953 and had a television show in the 1960s. His WDSL show is the only radio show he has continued to do, Wilson said.
Listeners can expect to hear such familiar programming as local news, obituaries, birthday listings and the "swap shop" and "Musical Memories", he said.
WDSL also tries to provide benefits for its listeners in surrounding communities like Yadkinville, Woodleaf and Cleveland by announcing barbecues and other such fund raisers held there, he said.
A growing birthday list shows that the number of listeners is growing, Tilley said.
To be successful WDSL needs the support of the community, he said. Already he has seen that support growing with more listeners and sponsors.
And as much as WDSL needs its listeners, he said, "This town needs this station."
"It's just hard to imagine a town without a radio station."
Suggestions and ideas from the community are welcomed, he said. Tilley wants people to know that he and the other owners are not just here to make a fast buck. "It's a family business," he said.
Being part owner of a radio station is a dream come true for him, Tilley said.
The staff is made up of good people trying to do what's best for the station, he said.
"We have a long way to go, but we're getting there."

Shots Fired At Dance Hall

COOLEEMEE—Police are investigating another disturbance at the dance hall on Neely Street.
It appears that someone who was refused entry into the dance hall went to their car, got a sawed-off shotgun and fired a shot toward the building, Wooten said. No one was hit.
When that shot was fired, others got guns and began firing them, he said.
"We're still looking into the place for illegal activity," Wooten said.
"Upon arrival, officers encountered a crowd of 150 to 200 people, several of which were attempting to leave," Wooten said. They made several traffic stops, and are still plying together the events of the night, and are looking for who fired the shots.

Three Arrested At The Glen

Three residents of The Glen were arrested Saturday night after a disturbance in the parking lot of the apartment complex.
Three Mocksville police officers were on the scene, and at least one of them was assaulted, said Asst. Chief Wayne Stoneman.
William Lamont Dillard, 19, was charged with resisting, delaying and obstructing an officer, being intoxicated and disruptive and damage to government property. His bond was set at $5,000.
Rachelle Denise Dillard, 22, was charged with obstructing, delaying and resisting an officer and disorderly conduct. Her bond was set at $1,000.
All three are scheduled to face the charges Aug. 29 in Davie District Court. Stoneman said that Chatman was the first arrested, soon after officers responded to a disturbance call in the parking lot. He was in a patrol car when the other two confronted Officers M.A. Grant, K.D. Hendrix and D.C. Swain.
Dillard is accused of shoving Hendrix.
Chatman, Stoneman, kicked the window out of a patrol car while officers were dealing with the unruly crowd.

Police Department To Increase Protection Through COPS Grant

as supervision, public relations, crime prevention programs, follow-up investigations and filling in the schedule when patrol officers take time off."
With the federal funds being made available to Cooleemee, the police department will be able to pay the salaries and benefits of the new officers. The costs to the town will include the fueling of the police cars and new uniforms.
The department will continue to utilize its six auxiliary officers who donate their time, especially over busy weekends.
Allotted six reserve positions by the town board, Wooten said the department will "try to give as much consideration to the reserves" as possible to fill the new positions.
The COPS grant is equal to two-thirds of the town budget, adding $55,000-60,000 per year to the town. At the end of the third year, the town can either pick up the funding of the positions, or eliminate them. There may also be the option of extending the grant, Wooten said.
The department will have more contact with the community due to the number of available officers allowed by the grant. Plans include becoming acquainted with senior citizens, increasing the number of officers on the street, and involving the youth of the community in interactive programs.
The department also plans to organize meetings in neighborhoods to provide information and crime prevention techniques, utilize foot patrol, and make officers available at recreational events to answer questions and provide information.
"It is our goal to improve relations between all of our citizens and the law enforcement officers that serve them while improving police services," said Wooten. "We were really a first time community here, and we're trying to reach out and touch as many agencies as possible."

National Guard Unit Undergoes Change

The Mocksville National Guard unit has recently undergone a massive transition from being an infantry unit to a combat heavy engineer unit.
The unit will be able to better support the local community through various projects, and will be able to better support the community by training young people in skilled trades.
The unit has positions available in such job areas as carpenters, plumbers, and electricians. "These job skills will better prepare our young people for the real world," said Lt. Commander Andy M. Davis.

If proper procedures are followed, the unit can support the local community through construction and maintenance projects. An example would be construction, upkeep, or maintenance to local schools, city or county projects.
Another change that is taking place is the amount of travel the unit members will be doing in the future. For example, SGT Scott Lavoie from the Mocksville National Guard unit will be deploying to Russia this summer to support construction projects conducted by the 505th Engineer Battalion.

Man Ordered To Pay Restitution After Shooting Neighbor's Dogs

By Lynn Hall
Davie County Enterprise Record

Just needed to let the dogs get to know her. They also worked out an arrangement whereby the neighbor would call Richardson or her mother, Marty Phipps, before walking so that they would tie the dogs.

Taking the stand in his own defense, White said the dogs chase his cows, had gotten into the hen houses on his farm and also had chased and killed geese that stayed on a pond on his place. The day he shot the dogs, he said one of his cows had separated from the others in order to give birth. He was with her and the dogs were circling around so that she could not stop moving.

After a while, White said he went to get a gun, and while in the house the dogs moved to the hen house and then to the pond. He admitted killing the dogs, but said that cow was worth $6,000.

White's mother and two other neighbors testified that the two dogs were aggressive and people were afraid of them. One man said two days before White shot the dogs, he and another neighbor had done to talk to Richardson and her mother about the problem.

Judge Robert Johnson issued a prayer for judgment on condition White pay Richardson $200 restitution for the dogs.

Road To Riches: Legs, So-So Jump Shot

A fast-food figure invented the colored hair and Dennis Rodman perfected it, but only the NBA can catapult high schoolers into slick millionaires.

Ronald McDonald's niche was selling happy meals, and he conquered it with a big smile and wife popularity.

If a poll were taken, the American public would rank Rodman considerably below a soap-opera slimeball on the character scale, but they intend to buy burgers from McDonald's with Rodman starring in its latest commercial, shown only in states that are willing to risk income for quick market success and lots of loot.

Meanwhile, the NBA keeps growing despite a plague of sluggish stars, problems internally and a watered-down league.

Chicago splashed through the regular season (72-10) and playoffs like a whale in a breeze and bass pond, drowning everyone until Seattle somehow won two games on its way down the drain.

The lopsided series did little to TV viewers, which was the

One thing's certain, Tribble will not miss getting up before the sun. Alabama practiced Monday-Friday from 5:30-7:30 a.m., then had breakfast, began weight lifting from 2:30-4 p.m. and then two more hours of practice.

They could sleep late on Saturday - 30 minutes later. Practice started at 6 a.m. and Sunday was the only off day. Tribble reflected back on career in the SEC. "Most of the people that make it started swimming around 8," he said. "It got worse and worse," Tribble said. "It got to the point where I couldn't swim anymore. The doctor said the

Mariners Bringing Successful Season Home To Davie

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

The Carolina Mariners, a local 14 and under AAU baseball team, have traveled all over the state and beyond. They recently ventured to Florida, but regardless of their whereabouts, the results have been similar.

They've had success, and then some. The Mariners have posted a 39-11 record and now they're coming into our living room.

The Carolina Mariners Summer Classic - for 10, 12, 14 and 16 and under divisions - will be held at Smith Grove, Rich Park and the Davie Youth Complex (behind North Davie) starting Thursday and ending on Sunday.

Davie residents involved with the Mariners include: Coaches Carl "Dink" Smith and Steve Ridenhour, and infielder Ross Smith, outfielder J.C. Willard and pitcher Drew Ridenhour.

And there will be several more Davie County teams participating in the Summer Classic.

Last weekend, the Mariners won the Fort Mills Summer Sizzler in Fort Mills, S.C., and three of the four victories were shutouts. Skip Crider, Brian Hatley and Adam Perstani each had a shutout performance from the hill.

Carolina, who won the N.C. Regionals; and finished second in the state behind the Piedmont Panthers, recently captured the Cocoa Expo International at Cocoa Beach, Fla.

Californians Coming On Tuesday, July 30

The Carolina Mariners will find a stern test when they show up at Rich Park on Tuesday.

Waiting on the Mariners will be a 15 and under team from California. The west coast squad has qualified for the national tournament.

Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

Four players from Carolina were selected on the all-tournament team. East Rowan's Brett Peiffer, who was also the MVP and batted .556, West Rowan's Hatley (.381), Ridenhour (.455) and West Forsyth's Crider (.300).

Smith didn't make the all-tourney squad, but he did hit .500 (6-12) in limited action.

On the way to the title, the Mariners defeated a team from Puerto Rico, and they turned back Merritt Island of Florida 14-2 in the finals.

With the national AAU 14 and under tournament slated for Aug. 3-10 in Kingsport, Tenn., three Mariners (Peiffer, Hatley and Ridenhour) are hitting over .400. Smith is over .300, and Willard has seen spot duty due to joining the team late in the year.

Injury Sidelines Collegiate Swimmer

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Brian Tribble was the exception to the rule.

He didn't grow up at country clubs, dreaming of making it big one day and tirelessly practicing the freestyle before he could spill it.

The Davie YMCA was completed in June of 1991 and Davie High had its first swim team in 1992, the year that Tribble, who was then a junior, took the sport seriously and shortly later realized his potential.

The rest of the Central Piedmont Conference realized it, too - the rest of the state for that matter.

Tribble was two-time all-conference, twice named all-state and a YMCA all-american before graduating in 1993.

Word got around. Tribble went to Alabama on a partial scholarship, contributing for three years, and now a shoulder injury will force him to bypass his senior year.

Swimming is over but Tribble - who will still travel with the team to lead underclassmen and show senior leadership - will graduate next year with a major in corporate management and a master in human resources.

Maybe more impressive than anything he's ever done in the pool, Tribble has done academic all-SEC and on the dean's list throughout his first three years.

An ailing right shoulder called for Tribble to hang up the trunks. He noticed the pain during his freshman year.

"It got worse and worse," Tribble said. "It got to the point where I couldn't swim anymore. The doctor said the scar tissue stretched ligaments in the top of the shoulder. It was worse when (the doctor) got in there. He had to redo the AC joint.

One thing's certain, Tribble will not miss getting up before the sun. Alabama practiced Monday-Friday from 5:30-7:30 a.m., then had breakfast, began weight lifting from 2:30-4 p.m. and then two more hours of practice.

They could sleep late on Saturday - 30 minutes later. Practice started at 6 a.m. and Sunday was the only off day. Tribble reflected back on career in the SEC. "Most of the people that make it started swimming around 8," he said. "It got worse and worse," Tribble said. "It got to the point where I couldn't swim anymore. The doctor said the scar tissue stretched ligaments in the top of the shoulder. It was worse when (the doctor) got in there. He had to redo the AC joint.

Rubbing Elbows Former DHS Football Standout Coaches With Panther Players

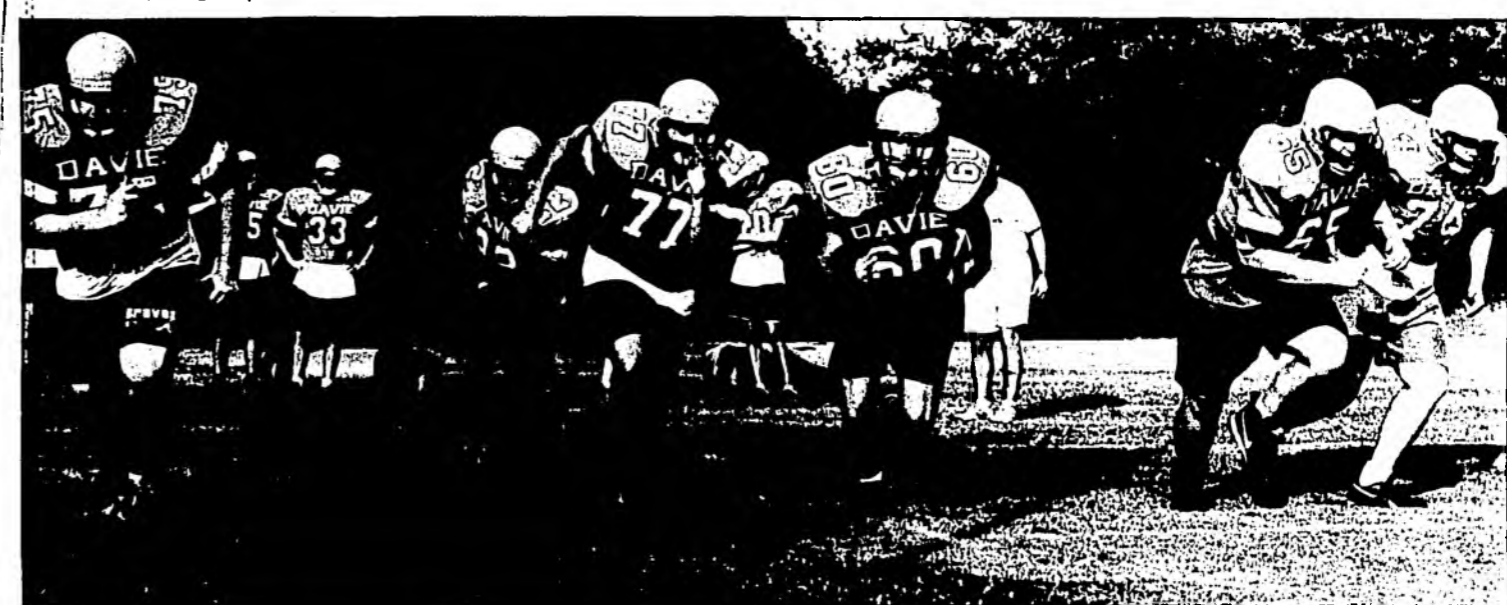

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

He never played big-time college football. He's never coached on the high-school level, and his only experience is at South Davie as an assistant.

With the odds piled against him, Kevin Wiley managed to get a "dream" opportunity and ended up beating the odds.

Wiley, a former all-conference linebacker at Davie High (1989-91) who played one year at Glenville St. (W. Va.), ran across a brochure at the Davie YMCA and filled it out with nothing to lose.

Surprisingly, Wiley wound up on the coaching staff of the Gerald Williams Football Camp at Catawba College.

War Eagle Coach Has Mixed Feelings About Team's Mini-Camp

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

"Well, it's a start. Davie football coach Benjie Brown held a mini-camp last week, attempting to get a head start on the rest of the Central Piedmont Conference and implement his system.

"How did it go? Brown had mixed reactions from his office Monday, but the positives outweighed the negatives.

"I saw some improvement by a lot of people," Brown said. "I thought the kids caught on with the general concept that we threw at them.

"We got to the point where we could line up well and got started in the right direction. The fundamental technique is far from where we need to be."

But, all in all, the non-mandatory camp served its purpose. "I thought we achieved our goals," Brown said. "It's a slight head start.

"They were exposed to things that they will be exposed to (in the upcoming season)."

Brown received some pleasant surprises. "An unexpected surprise was there was some older kids that haven't played football before," he said.

On the flip side, Brown is hoping some top prospects decide to suit up when the mandatory practices begin July 30. If not, Brown and the War Eagles will be prepared to go to war without them.

As of now, between 60 and 70 have committed to play. "That's off a little," he said. "I hope that improves once it's required to be here. I hope we get between 80 and 90.

"There's several that need to be here that were not. There's plenty of opportunity to play if they come on out and participate. I hope they get their stuff straight before the season."

From 5-6 p.m. the troops split up with the offense in the weight room and the defense attending a meeting. The units switched after 30 minutes.

Then from 6-8, it was time to hit the practice field. "They worked really hard," Brown said. "We do have a start."

Many of the players have been lifting weights while the coaching staff has studied films.

"The coaches have put in a lot of time," Brown said, "and if we have a lot of success, they need to be credited. I've told them stuff they probably already knew," Brown said.

Brown is referring to coaches Jerry Walsler (defensive backs), Jeff Ward (volunteer with defensive backs), David Hunt (defensive ends), Scott Young (defensive line), Devore Holman (volunteer with defensive line), Tim Shuford (linebackers), Macon England (running backs) and Brian Cantrell (receivers).

"The kids have been working hard, too," he said. "We've put a lot of time (into weight lifting). Some have been lifting Preparation for the upcoming football season started in early June.

"I hope that improves once it's required to be here. I hope we get between 80 and 90.

Shaq's Departure Leaves Void In Magic, NBA Goes On

second largest audience ever behind the Phoenix-Chicago finals in 1993. That series showcased puncher and attention grabber Charles Barkley up against Michael Jordan, the greatest display of hoops on Earth.

Television money controls sports and ratings signify that the pros have overtaken the college game. That's impressive considering the NBA has to grab large audiences during bikini weather, when people move away from the couch.

Last year's NCAA tournament final featured Kentucky, college's leader in all-time wins, against Syracuse, a surprise participant from TV country (New York). Still the game was a bust, marking the lowest rating of any championship game in 23 years.

Soon after the title game that few cared to watch, college experts came to a conclusion: Blood-sucking NBA teams have sucked all the young talent from the college ranks, severely hurting the NCAA.

Talk around the Final Four surrounded Syracuse center John Wallace, who decided to return to school for his senior year, bypassing a chance to be drafted around No. 20 to better his skills - and graduate.

There was a time when hardship meant a kid left school early. These days, Wallace was hardship for staying and his draft position backed it.

College coaches congratulated Wallace's decision to study and move up to somewhere between the No. 5 and No. 8 picks. He served as an example for others who contemplate the inevitable choice, which is always a mismatch: Go to class or cash checks.

But when Draft Day arrived one month ago, Wallace slipped into New York's hands at No. 18, one spot behind South Carolina's Jermaine O'Neal, who has yet to do anything outside of the 12th grade.

The about-face hardly served as a lesson for future jump shooters, who routinely forego college - or at least after a year or two - for big bucks.

Diminishing talent in the NCAA has never been more evident than now.

Detroit's Grant Hill, who stayed at Duke the old-fashioned four years, slapped college diaphans right in the kisser, saying, "I don't sit around anymore and watch college basketball," Hill said. "To me, it's boring."

Hill probably meant it's not as exciting as Bobby Hurley whipping assists right and left for easy dunks, back when Duke won back-to-back national championships in 1991-92. Back when Christian Laettner's play was good enough to put him up with the greatest clutch players of all time.

Hill's remark put the present college game in its place, but the NBA is still searching.

The players voted to keep their union, thus accepting a deal to increase average salaries from $2 million to $3 million. But, like most business deals in sports today, the players never signed the contract and last season was played with the big issues on hold.

Along with the salary increase, the deal devised a plan to reduce rookie salaries, hoping to keep talent on campus, and make free agency an easy access.

They would never act like the baseball world.

The NBA owners and players might fuss and exchange threats, but they would never stoop low enough to cancel the playoffs.

Last week, annual gunshots were fired in the negotiating war. A battle for high-priced free agents was heard all across the sports landscape.

Chicago re-signed Michael Jordan for one year and $25 million, the largest contract in the history of team sports.

Jordan just released a want ad: Need help with W-2 Form.

Shaq O'Neal threw loyalty into the waste basket, fleeing Orlando for glamorous LA. He said it wasn't for the money, but it took $123 million to sign him for seven years.

Horace Grant is still a Magic - for around $50 million - but the price of popcorn just went up.

Rodman, who hasn't signed but is asking for $10 million, is still Rodman.

Reggie Miller, who turned down an offer to be on Spike Lee's good list in New York, has been reported as saying that he'll stay with Indiana, not without an arm and a leg from the boss.

Juwan Howard left Washington to play for his hero, Pat Riley, in Miami. His contract, $98 million for seven years, makes you wonder if he really came because of the coach.

Dikembe Mutombo, who struggles to put the ball in the hoop, was given $70 million over seven seasons to join the Hawks.

Kenny Anderson, whose shooting accuracy is a mere 41 percent, cashed in at $50 million over seven years for Portland.

Allan Houston put together a strong '96 year and was rewarded by New York for seven years and $56 million.

Head-hunter Dale Davis stayed put in Indiana for seven years and $42 million.

The plan to keep kids in college has backfired.

Now, their swarming the NBA like college students with the midnight munchies. They sign, stay a required three years and jump ship.

"It's encouraging them to leave," said Jay Bilas, who played center on the Duke Blue Devils' 37-3 team in 1986. "The sooner they get to the NBA, the sooner that three-year clock begins to run. Why stay in college when they can make the money now?"

The new trend is predictable for veterans: When a team feels the urge to sign a big-name free agent, he can hang around a couple of years, work on his game (if endorsements allow time) and then flee to another willing city.

O'Neal's leaving was the most alarming. It will wound the Magic but the NBA, despite itself, will be just fine. In this day and time, it almost always is.

Wiley Spends Week With NFL Veteran

Williams, a member of the Carolina Panthers who is about to begin his 11th year in the NFL, ran the camp which is one of 20 being sponsored by Sports International across the nation this summer.

"I saw a brochure on (the camp) at the Y, picked it up, called the number - calling more or less to volunteer or whatever," Wiley said. "I called to be a counselor, watch the kids or do something like that."

Wiley dialed a number to ask questions and he was quizzed. He told them about his limited experience and waited for a response. "They said, 'OK,'" said Wiley with excitement evident in his voice.

"Two weeks later they called me back and said, 'You've got it.'"

Wiley found himself surrounded by scouts, college and professional coaches and several players from the Panthers. In fact, Wiley was one of only three high-school coaches invited to the camp.

"It was Randleman's head coach, East Mecklenburg's and me," Wiley said. "I don't know if we were the only three chosen or the only three that sent in."

"I don't know, but we were the only three there."

Wiley was impressed with the Panthers that were on hand. Defensive backs Brett Maxie and Michael Reed, running back Dewell Brewer, defensive end Mark Thomas and Williams all attended and spoke at one time or another.

Wiley's persistence to improve his knowledge, which will help when South Davie cranks up in August, has helped put his foot in the door.

"The fact that I was on the staff this year, then when they send out the another to the 130 or so youths.

"You want to talk about people that are very professional, I mean they speak like scholars. They're extremely, extremely professional ... very patient. They're extremely nice, I mean you couldn't ask for nicer people."

The coaches were told to teach more than football. "We were told to emphasize that it's a football camp, but the main emphasis was to tie football into life," he said.

"Football and life go hand-in-hand. (The Panther players) spoke on drugs, how important it is to keep your grades up, to be a hard worker and how it went on to effect you in life.

"There's more important things than football, but there's a lot to learn in football that applies to life."

Coming into the camp, Wiley already had respect for the Carolina players, simply because their pros. Later, his respect grew even more.

"I was in awe," Wiley said. "They automatically earn my respect because they're professionals, but the thing I respected the most was the time they took with the kids."

"Just to see those pros with all that money and all that experience in the NFL, to go around 8-year-olds, middle school and high school players and take time to go over drills and do it with them."

"They would joke and throw a ball with (the campers), and let the kids chase them around the field."

Wiley's persistence to improve his knowledge, which will help when South Davie cranks up in August, has helped put his foot in the door.

"The fact that I was on the staff this year, then when they send out the application for coaches next year, I'm already on their mailing list," he said.

"I automatically go to the top of the list for coaches to go in."

Wiley was just doing his daily routine, lifting weights, at the YMCA when his golden opportunity came before him.

After tripping over the brochure, he proudly walked away $200 bucks richer. "You can't beat that," Wiley said.

Two From Davie Go To Camp
Thad Johnson and Adam Bailey, both rising freshman at Davie High, each participated in the Gerald Williams Football Camp.

The camp, which completed its first year, is expected to grow. "We have around 130 here this week, and that's not bad for a first year," Catawba football coach David Bennett told the Salisbury Post.

"Hopefully, this will keep growing and we can get 400, 500 kids in here eventually. The Ark Monk Camp was the first one they started, and they're getting close to 700 now."

Williams said: "We're talking to them about football, but we're also trying to tell them a little bit about life. What we're trying to do here is not only make them better football players, but better people as well."

Feedback from coaches indicates that Johnson improved drastically at the camp.

"They couldn't believe that he's only going to be a freshman in high school," Wiley said. "They spoke very highly on that. He took a lot to heart."

Johnson won two awards during the week. *The camp was held July 8-12.

Tribble Ends Career On High Note

They recruited me as a project. They changed my strokes and basically told me that everything I knew was terrible.

Tribble couldn't have left the sport in better fashion. "This past year in the SEC championships, we had a split 44.4 seconds in the second leg of the 400 freestyle relay," he said.

"We got disqualified, but if not, we would have made the qualifying time for the NCAA championships. We had a false start or we would have made it to the Big Dance. I guess you'd call it."

"It was the fastest I'd ever been. It's a good way to go out."

"Tribble's greatest moment came in 1993, while swimming for the YMCA in the 250 freestyle relay. "We were national champions, that's the biggest thing, I guess," Tribble said. "We weren't expecting to do that good but it all came together. Nobody expected it until it actually happened. There's not too many people that have pins that say national champions."

Davie County supported Tribble from the beginning. "We really appreciate the support from Davie County," said Sheila, his mother. "There was an awful lot of people who backed him. We just appreciate that."

"It's sad, but he had fun and we're going to ride it out with a good attitude."

Dove Season Begins Labor Day

RALEIGH—North Carolina dove hunters will open the first of three split seasons at noon on Labor Day under shooting hours and dates approved Wednesday by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

Hunting hours from Labor Day through Saturday, Sept. 7, will be from noon until sunset. For the remainder of the season, hunting hours will be from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset.

The first segment ends Oct. 5. The second segment is Nov. 25-30 and the final segment is Dec. 13 through Jan. 11. The limit is 12 doves per day, the possession limit is 24.

Dove season in most years opens on Saturday before Labor Day, but under federal guidelines the season can not open prior to Sept. 1 which falls on Sunday this year.

Seasons also were set Wednesday for webless migratory game birds.

These include Sept. 2 through Nov. 9 for king rails, clapper rails, sora rails, Virginia rails, gallinules and moorhens. The woodcock season is Dec. 7 through Jan. 20, the common snipe season is Nov. 14 through Feb. 28. The special permit Canada goose season is Sept. 3-30 except in the northeastern counties of Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Hyde, Perquimans, Tyrrell and Washington where it opens Sept. 3 and closes Sept. 20. There will be no Canada goose season in Currituck and Dare counties.

A proposal to stock Pisgah National Forest in western North Carolina with 20-30 elk was discussed, but the matter was tabled until the October meeting.

Tornado Strikes State Fairgrounds During 4-H Show

By Morgan Harper
Davie County Enterprise Record

The Bits and Bridle 4-H Horse Show has seen a lot of new things this summer.

Some of them probably saw the new action movie Twister. Some of them went to the state show in Raleigh July 10-13.

None of them would have thought that the two events might have something in common, or that if they did share a likeness, that the Bits and Bridle Horse Club would be stuck in the middle of it, but they were.

Like a scene right out of the film, a tornado landed in Raleigh the afternoon of July 12, striking the North Carolina State Fairgrounds where the 4-H clubs had gathered for the state show.

The tornado swept through quickly, tearing the roof off of Barn D, and injuring no people or animals.

Fourteen people from this area in Davie County attended the show. Three of the seven youths, Jenna Durham, 9, Tiffany Turner, 10, and Celeste Renegar, 17, were there to compete, while the others came to cheer for them.

4-H leader Robin Durham was one of the seven people from the Bits and Bridle Club in Barn D with their three horses when the tornado came through. She recalls no warning. "Everybody was walking up and down with their horses, and all of the sudden the roof came off," she said.

Tiffany Turner, who reports and also competes for the club, was getting ready to go to the main arena when the roof came off. On her way to get another number for Celeste Renegar who was about to compete, Turner said "I saw a big old glob of dust, then we all just got down." After the initial winds passed, everyone headed to the main arena to await further instructions.

The tornado whipped through in less than a minute, but leader Durham recalls "it seemed like forever."

Despite the fear the group felt in Barn D, all three girls placed and came home with ribbons. "It is our first year of 4-H showing, and they've had a good time," said Durham.

Maybe they'll go to the movies to celebrate, but if they do, they won't have to see Twister. They've seen that one already.

Pauline and Franklin Smith spent two nights with her sister Ruby McBride to attend the funeral of a brother-in-law, "Toots" Riddle. We visited a sister, Pansy Allen while here. They went home to Troy on Friday.

that David is also a pretty good cook, he grilled all the burgers and hot dogs.

Some played horseshoes, croquet and volleyball, while others sat in the shade, sipped iced tea, and talked with friends. There is no better way to spend a summer Saturday afternoon than to enjoy Christian fellowship. About 50 people attended bringing food and lawn chairs. Everyone relaxed and had a great time.

Postal Carriers Learn About Dangers Of Animals

If you see a sick wild animal, leave it alone. That's the advice Davie Animal Control Officer Robert Cook had for Mocksville Post Office employees at a safety seminar last week. "Don't try to help a wild animal. Leave it alone or call us. Don't feel sorry for it and try to help it," he said. Cook said that although there have been no confirmed cases of rabies in Davie County, incidents have been reported in neighboring counties. "It's coming this way, and it's due to the over-population of wild animals." Cook said rabies shouldn't be confused with distemper, another disease rampant among wild animals. If an animal appears drunk, in a stupor and staggering, it likely has distemper, a disease that will eventually lead to its death. Animals such as this can be shot and buried by local residents, Cook said. An animal with rabies, when it is contagious, is aggressive. It foams at the mouth and has a wild look in its eyes. "Any time the animals is dangerous it will be aggressive, its eyes will be wild and there will be foam at the mouth. This is how they dispel the virus, right before they die," Cook said. "This is when you're in danger." That danger period lasts from 5-12 days before the animal dies. If a pet is bitten by a potentially rabid wild animal, that pet must be killed unless it can be proven that the wild animal wasn't rabid and the pet had been vaccinated. "There's no way around this. The answer is to get your pet vaccinated," Cook said. Joan Holyfield, post office supervisor, said that carriers are often subjected to wild and domesticated animals. "There's been something in the news about rabies every week," she said. "All of our carriers get out of their vehicles for parcel deliveries, and a lot of them have children or grandchildren who play outside. Some of the articles I've been reading say these animals will walk up to you."

The bride wore a Victorian-style satin gown designed with an open sweetheart neckline and cup sleeves accented in roses. The fitted bodice was embellished with beaded lace, floral medallions of pearls and crystal sequins. The back bodice was enhanced with covered pearl buttons leading to the waistline adorned with a trio of roses and long streamers accented with heavily applied lace, pearls and sequins. The deeply embroidered scalloped alencon lace hemline flowed into a full chapel. Her headpiece was also made of a single satin rose and satin leaves entwined with pearls and sequins, with a fingertip length veil of illusion. Featured in the bouquet were wild flowers of summer colors. It was made by bridesmaids presenting flowers to the bride after being escorted to the altar by her father and brother. Upon completion, the bouquet was accented with a white French wire lace bow, tied delicately around the flowers by her father to symbolize his love for his only daughter. Reception Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's father and relatives hosted reception at the Sheffield Community Building. Buffet tables invited guest to barbecue, slaw, baked beans, and all of the trimmings. The decorations consisted of natural ivy running the length of the tables complemented with floating candles in bowls of colored water. ## Spiritual Resources: Let God Be Your Coach

By David Gilbreath

Billy had been playing basketball as far back as he could remember. His heroes were Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson. He attended basketball camps, played on recreation league teams and spent hours practicing the skills necessary to be like his heroes. When basketball tryouts at the local school began, Billy was there. In fact, Billy arrived early and stayed late. During tryouts he gave every ounce of effort imaginable. On the morning following the final day of tryouts, Billy rushed eagerly to the gym to view the coaches' list of those players who had made the team. Others had arrived before him, several with downcast looks and eyes filled with tears, while a few had smiles bright enough to light the darkened room. Billy looked up and down the list, but his name was not on it. "Surely there must be some mistake," he thought. "I know I was not quite as good as the best players, but I did as well as some who were on the team. What happened?"

Billy's experience was not unlike many youngsters whose dreams have been dashed by such events. Parents often are equally hurt because of the horrible pain their child experienced. I have seen several different approaches to this experience by youth and parents. One such approach is to quit playing the game. The young person and his parents agree that he just does not have what it takes. A second approach involves blaming the coach. "He played favorites. I was better than others who did make the team. The coach just is not fair." A third approach is to go to the coach and ask him to assess one's skills and the areas on which he needs to work. Then, to work to improve in those areas and try again the following year.

Like his hero, Michael Jordan, Billy may find that the extra year of maturity and work on the fundamentals are the recipe for success. Many of us find ourselves at the same place in our spiritual lives. We struggle to compare ourselves to others in the church whose lives are not much different than our own. "That should be good enough to satisfy God," we muse. But God wants the lives of His children to rise above mediocrity. It is impossible to please God without the faith to respond to him personally. Our Heavenly Coach desires a personal relationship with each one of us. Give God the opportunity to personally coach you. You'll be glad you did. (John 21:22)

At the YMCA we don't treat childcare like it's only child's play.

This year our school year includes, 7 professional days, 20 holidays, and 5 early release days. One of the advantages to our after school program, is your child will have childcare those days at no additional cost to you. Our child-care sites are state licensed, with programming in Character Development, computer enrichment, environmental education, swimming, sports, arts and crafts, leadership skills, drama, singing, and most important, teaching children about caring for one another. We also offer before school care beginning at 6:30am until school begins.

To us, child's play is serious business. Which is why we design our childcare programs to be fun as well as educationally stimulating. It's also why our professionally-trained leaders give children the individual attention and encouragement they need. And, why we teach them important social skills, like sharing and how to get along with others.

Recognizing Symptoms May Save Lives Of Heart Attack Victims

"Sudden death" from heart attack is the leading medical emergency in the country. But according to the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA), many of the 500,000 deaths have been prevented if the victim or bystander recognized the symptoms early enough and activated the emergency medical system. And oftentimes, cardiac emergencies are coupled with other injuries. Prompt and appropriate treatment until emergency medical system responders arrive is critical. "Learning CPR and First Aid is easy; we teach you how to prevent injuries and respond to cardiac emergencies or injuries that do occur," said Jane Long, Red Cross director for Davie County. "Knowing what to do in a life-threatening emergency can help save the life of a loved one, neighbor, or co-worker."

The following classes are available at the American Red Cross in Davie County. All classes meet OSHA requirements and daycare requirements for North Carolina. You must come in to pre-register and pay the course fee prior to the course date. There will be some reading to be completed prior to the course date. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis. For more information call (704) 634-1347. Community CPR, 6 1/2 hours, $35, certifies participants to assist adult, infant and child victims of choking, breathing, or cardiac emergencies, Aug. 3, Saturday, 8-3:30; and Sept. 10 and 12, Tuesday/Thursday, 6-10 p.m./7-9:30 p.m. Infant/Child CPR, 5 hours, $28, certifies participants to assist in infant and child victims of choking, breathing, or cardiac emergencies, Aug. 10, Saturday, 8-1; and Sept. 21, Saturday, 8-1. Community First Aid and Safety, 9 hours, $40, certifies participants in the skills of rescue breathing, first aid for choking, CPR for adults, children and infants and caring for life-threatening bleeding, sudden illness and injuries. Successful completion will result in 2 certificates: Community CPR (valid for 1 year) and Community First Aid and Safety (valid for 3 years). State requirements for daycare can be met by completing this course, Aug. 29 and 31, Thursday/Saturday, 6-10 p.m./8-1 p.m.; and Sept. 16, 17, 19, Monday/Tuesday/Thursday, 6-10 p.m./7-9:30 p.m./7-9:30 p.m. Standard First Aid, 6 1/2 hours, $33, teaches the essential skills needed to handle first aid emergencies until professional medical care arrives. This course meets the OSHA requirements for first aid training. Successful completion will result in 2 certificates being earned: Adult CPR (valid for 1 year) and Standard First Aid (valid for 3 years), Aug. 20 and 22, Tuesday/Thursday, 6-10 p.m./7-9:30 p.m.; and Sept. 28, Saturday, 8-3:30.

Davie Teacher Attends Workshop

Stephen Havner, a biology teacher at Davie High School, will explore classroom uses for the World Wide Web during a workshop at Wake Forest University in July. Havner will be among math and science teachers from 24 high schools participating in the workshop. "A lot of schools have access to the Internet and these teachers are learning how to take advantage of the technology," said Edward Allen, a Wake Forest math and computer science professor who developed the workshop. The free workshop is funded by a $35,000 grant from the Dwight D. Eisenhower Professional Development Program. Wake Forest is also supporting the workshop. Participants will be given software, books and a modem. Also, Wake Forest is providing free network access for a year to workshop participants. During the workshop, teachers will design lesson plans that tap the Web's resources. Through this virtual textbook, teachers can access hourly weather maps for meteorology lessons or tour paleontology museums when studying prehistoric life. The Web can be used to excite students about learning, said Leah McCoy, a Wake Forest education professor assisting with the workshop. For example, McCoy suggests using space shuttle data from NASA's Web site for math exercises. One of the workshop's goals is for the participants to share ideas with other teachers. To help achieve this goal, participants will post their lesson plans on a home page. Participants can reserve a Wake Forest computer lab to help introduce the Internet to other teachers from their high school. Workshop participants will meet again in the fall and the spring to discuss their uses of the Web.

Tyler Hayes started riding on a used bicycle that wouldn't make it up steep hills, but he didn't let that stand in his way.

A Natural Nine-Year-Old Tyler Hayes Shines On BMX Race Track

Davie County Enterprise Record

When you're 9 years old, riding a bicycle is like breathing. It comes naturally. Up and down the driveway, across the yard, maybe a few ditches and between a few trees, Tyler Hayes has taken it a step further. He puts on a brightly colored helmet and safety suit, and pedals quickly up a steep hill to go over the top in a quick ride to the bottom. There's bumps and jumps and curves and swerves. Tyler is a BMX rider, and after just a year at the sport, he's already won so many trophies that he usually turns them down for other prizes. Every weekend, the Hayes family, including dad Charles Jr. and mom Lisa and little sister, Kaylee, 4, head for Burlington or Tanglewood for another BMX race. "In June, I went to Arizona and placed second," Tyler said. He races in the rookie division, but plans to move up to better competition in the novice division later this year. "He's done really well," his father said. Tyler saw his first race last August. "We just went out to Tanglewood to watch them race a little bit," his father said. "I asked Tyler if he would like to do this. He really didn't think his son would be interested. He got his first bicycle at age 6, a used bike they repaired, and he fell and got hurt going down the first hill. He loves it. It's good exercise, really a good sport." Hayes hopes more Davie County children will get involved. Tanglewood's BMX track is a top-notch facility, and it's convenient. "We need more Davie County kids," Hayes said. "We have nights where kids can go ride and learn. They don't have to have any special equipment, we can provide them with some." Races are held every Saturday night at Tanglewood, and on some Thursdays.

Tyler's father, Charles Jr., is proud of his son's accomplishments. BMX racing has become a family affair for the Hayes'.
