The Hamilton/Trenton Marsh: A Diamond-In-The-Rough

You may have heard the story of the poor farmer in Africa who owned several hundred acres of land. Unable to flourish as a farmer, and convinced that greener pastures lie beyond, he left his home to search the world over for his fortune. He tried his hand in the factories of the towns, at fishing along the coast, and as an independent craftsman. By and by, he ran out of money and had no choice but to sell his land to care for his family.

Several years passed and the farmer returned to his home village. Imagine his surprise when he learned that the new owner of the land was no longer a poor farmer, but instead, one of the wealthiest men in the region. How had it happened? The new owner had discovered—uncovered—diamonds, buried in his own backyard.

A similar opportunity lies before us now with the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh—a wilderness, just a few miles from home, where water and land meander together, where eagles hunt, beaver flourish, wildflowers and wild rice dot the landscape, and humans play and connect with the natural world and a history that runs deep. Visitors from across town, across the country and across the Atlantic Ocean have enjoyed the marsh for birding, hiking, canoeing, fishing, painting, photography and other educational and recreational activities. The Hamilton/Trenton Marsh is a diamond-in-the-rough—a buried backyard treasure.

These valuable wetlands are a regional treasure worthy of attention, respect, protection and preservation. Preservation of the marsh goes far beyond protecting natural and cultural resources. There exists great potential to develop the marsh into a unique and major regional attraction linked inextricably to the communities surrounding these valuable wetlands. By enhancing the diverse resources the marsh harbors, surrounding communities could explore and honor their roots, celebrate, with a deepening sense of pride, the richness of the region, and reap the associated economic, educational, and 'quality of life' benefits. Enhancement of the rich natural and historical resources and the development of relevant programming would encourage educational and recreational activities for students and residents. These same resources also make the marsh a prime site for tourism.

For each community bordering the marsh the opportunities are exciting and endless. Possibilities include:

- developing a nature reserve and visitors center with indoor educational facilities,
 - building wetland board walks, observation decks and towers,
 - providing outreach and educational programming,

Foundation Awards Grant

The Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation has awarded D&R Greenway a $25,000 grant to develop a proactive strategy for land protection. Greenway is undertaking a strategic planning process which will identify priority sites to protect in the watershed of the D&R Canal. The grant also supports outreach activities and the acquisition and protection of these environmentally and historically significant lands.

Greenway Receives Grant

D&R Greenway received $10,000 from the Curtis W. McGraw Foundation. This unrestricted grant supports our land preservation and public education and outreach efforts throughout central New Jersey.

New Jersey State Land Trust Rally

Mark the date and plan to attend! The second annual New Jersey Land Trust Rally will be held on Saturday, March 7 from 9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. at the Woodrow Wilson School in Princeton. Cost is $30 ($35 at the door). Learn about land conservation and how you can get involved. For more information call Beth Davidson at (908) 234-1225.

Wish List

New or used binoculars, electric typewriter, picnic table, dehumidifier, flip chart easel, field trip bags, TV and VCR. Call us if you can help. ☺

Common Ground Greenway Elects New Officers

The board of trustees of D&R Greenway recently elected new officers for 1998. Chosen to lead the organization was Neil Upmeyer of Stockton. Charles M. Hartman of Princeton was elected vice-chair. Also re-elected as vice-chairs were Hella McVay of Princeton, and Edmund T. Stiles of Hopewell. Alan Hershey of Pennington was re-elected treasurer.

The newly elected chairman, Neil Upmeyer has served on the Greenway board for eight years. He is the president of the Center for Analysis of Public Issues in Princeton and Editor of the Center's magazine, New Jersey Reporter, which is devoted entirely to the coverage of New Jersey public issues and politics. Founded in 1970, the Center is a non-partisan institute for public policy analysis. Neil is also the host of a weekly public affairs television show, New Jersey Reporter, which can be seen on affiliates of the Cable Television Network of New Jersey (CTN).

Prior to joining the Center, Neil was Vice President of the Gallup Organization where he was responsible for public affairs research projects. During his six years with Gallup, Neil conducted opinion surveys on a variety of topics including politics, health care costs, the environment, and international affairs. He also served in New Jersey state government with the Election Law Enforcement commission and as the Director of the Election Division in the Department of State.

Conservation Options

Easements as a Conservation Tool

BY LINDA J. MEAD

When many people think of easements, they picture the right to access a property. These types of easements are known as right-of-ways and are used to allow access over a neighboring property for a driveway or to allow utilities to run across private property.

D&R Greenway commonly works with another type of easement, one that restricts future uses rather than allows new rights. This type of easement is an important tool for preserving open space, and the natural and cultural values that make a property special. It is called a conservation easement.

In 1997, Greenway protected over 700 acres of land using conservation easements. These lands continue in private ownership for their owner's enjoyment while future use is ensured to be consistent with conservation. These protected lands benefit all of us by permanently protecting water quality, wetlands, forests, wildlife habitat, agriculture, and in some cases providing for passive recreational opportunities.

The 589-acre Institute Lands property in Princeton is the largest single ownership property pro-

Vice-chair, Charles Hartman is a managing general partner of the CW Group, Inc., a New York City-based venture capital organization dedicated to the professional management of several funds for the health care and biological fields. He previously spent seventeen years at Johnson & Johnson in research, marketing and general management positions.

He is Chairman of the Finance Committee and the Development Committee of the Hastings Center's Board of Directors. Chuck is also the central New Jersey representative for Earthwatch, which has six hundred members in his geographical area. He also serves on the boards of a number of biotechnology and health care services companies and has reviewed books relevant to technology and strategic

New Trustee Named

The board of trustees recently elected James W. Trowbridge of Princeton to the board. Jim is Senior Vice President with Americas Society and Council of the Americas, Inc. in New York and Washington D.C. He is responsible for program planning and operations dedicated to fostering broader understanding of contemporary economic, political, and cultural issues of the Western Hemisphere and promoting economic integration and free trade.

Jim is also a principal in Trowbridge Consultants. This firm provides consultants in education development, foundation management, corporate contributions planning, and nonprofit strategic planning and fundraising. He was previously a program consultant with the Ford Foundation in New York.

In announcing his appointment, D&R Greenway's chairman, Neil Upmeyer, said, "We are pleased to have Jim on our board. He brings to the Greenway board the kind of talent and expertise that will help our organization grow."

Trowbridge has received several fellowship awards including the Population Council Fellowship, the Ford Foundation Fellowship, and the Rockefeller Brothers Foundation Fellowship. He holds a B.A. from Yale University and an M.A. from the University of Chicago. Welcome Jim! 🍀

Volunteers Needed for Spring Field Work

D&R Greenway is seeking self-motivated volunteers to help with field work this spring at several of our properties. Activities include removing exotic and invasive species, posting property signs and clearing and maintaining trails. We also need volunteers to help with property inventories including identifying plant and animal species, documenting historical uses and archeological values.

Weekday and weekend opportunities are available for volunteers who like outside work, have a background or experience in biology, botany, natural resource management, or related fields or who have experience reading survey maps. If you have these skills and time to help, call Lauren Bonica at (609) 924-4646. 🍀

Environmental Educator of the Year Named

Patricia Orban Quinby, Director of Public Outreach for D&R Greenway, has been chosen Environmental Educator of the Year for her work with the general public in a nonformal education setting by the Alliance for New Jersey Environmental Education (ANJEE).

Patti was honored recently at the Annual ANJEE conference at Rider University. ANJEE is a nonprofit organization representing over 300 individuals from 200 institutions throughout New Jersey. ANJEE's goal is to create, through education, an awareness, understanding and concern for the quality of the environment and the conviction that human well-being is dependent on a healthy environment.

Patti was recognized for creating and directing Greenway's widely recognized Hamilton/Trenton Marsh project. She has developed and implemented an outreach program to promote and enhance the marsh that has reached more than a quarter million people. Her photography featured the marsh in the 1996 Hamilton Township Muni-pal Calendar that was mailed to 37,000 homes. Her leadership, materials and programs have encouraged more than 8,500 community officials, industry leaders, residents, and students to participate in her creative series of nature walks, historical talks, tours, canoe trips, workshops and school events.

In presenting the award, president Frank Gallagher and executive director Pat Kane commended Patti for her efforts in environmental education saying, "Your achievements are impressive and an inspiration to all."

Congratulations Patti! 🍀

- developing a biking/walking trail connecting Waterfront Park to the marsh,
- creating hiking and bridle trails in the upland areas,
- building a model Indian village site,
- restoring the historical homes along the bluffs,
- showcasing an archaeological dig site, and
- providing boat tours through the waterways.

While these efforts would require initial financial support, they could be developed into self-sustaining initiatives, that in fact, contribute to the economic success of the overall project and the region.

Project Development

During the past four years, D&R Greenway has been successful in building public support and laying the groundwork for a management plan to permanently protect and preserve the marsh. Our programs have reached a broad audience including residents, students, educators, the media and government, community and business leaders throughout the region. We have established effective partnerships with federal, state, county and local governments, schools, historical societies and community groups.

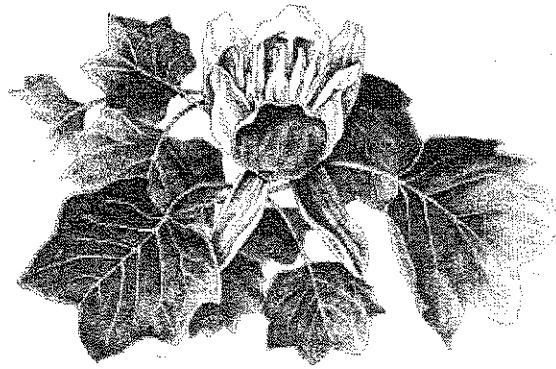

Nominated by the Mercer County Board of Freeholders and the Washington Crossing Audubon Society, D&R Greenway received a Delaware River Greenway Partnership Award in recognition of our efforts to raise public awareness of the marsh, preserve open space, and enrich the area in environmental and cultural education.

Community Support

In the summer of 1995, task forces were established and facilitated by Greenway to address public access and recreation, protection of natural and historical resources, and development of an educational program and facilities. Through the task forces, partners including government and business leaders, schools and concerned citizens spearheaded a major enhancement project at John A. Roebling Park, the only public access to the marsh in Mercer County and the location of most of Greenway's education and outreach programs.

Partners secured $80,000 in funding and in-kind contributions and matched those funds with an additional $55,000 of in-kind contributions and services to complete this successful enhancement project. The enhancements include a 28,000 square foot educational display of native plantings. Local school children grew wildflowers in classrooms and more than 100 trees and shrubs and 1,000 perennials were purchased, planted and labeled. Two walking trails were created and an attractive concrete bridge installed to complete the trail around the lake. The loop trails at Watson Woods were also enhanced with fresh blazing, log bridges and signs.

Partners supervised the design, production and installation of access and interpretative signs. Funding was received from the National Park Service, Middlesex-

Future Plans

The focus of the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh Project continues to move toward strengthening partnerships by building on the task force structure and gaining commitment for long-term stewardship. A committee has been formed to develop a Coordinated Management Plan (CMP) that will address six key goals. These are to:

- permanently protect the critical environmental habitats, historic resources and conservation values of the Marsh;
- maintain the integrity of the natural and cultural resources of the Marsh through good stewardship practices following resource management guidelines;
- provide for the enjoyment and recreational use of the Marsh by the public;
- develop an education program and facilities to educate local citizens, schoolchildren, property owners, business leaders and others about the unique resources of the Marsh and their value to the environment and to the community;
- encourage activities that will enhance the economic viability of the region while protecting the unique resources of the Marsh; and to
- develop a management structure to oversee long-term stewardship of the Marsh.

The CMP will include a land use plan and a strategy for implementing the plan. It will delineate roles and responsibilities for partner participation and identify a flexible strategy to monitor and modify the plan to meet future challenges and opportunities. Partners include representatives from federal, state, county, and local governments, businesses, schools, landowners, other conservation groups, community groups, and residents.

On Friday, March 6, from 9:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon, D&R Greenway will host a public forum in the Student Center at Rider University in Lawrenceville. At the forum, members of the public will have the opportunity to express their support and concerns and influence the process that will determine the future of the Hamilton/

Preserving our Heritage

Protecting our Future

Delaware & Raritan Greenway, Inc. continues on the path of success. Through our year-end appeal we raised more than $20,000 and gained more than fifty new members. It is with great appreciation that we recognize and thank all of you who have supported our organization through the year with your financial gifts and generous contribution of time and hard work. Your dedication and commitment to D&R Greenway and the protection of the lands we treasure, is what enables us to achieve the results we do. A heartfelt thanks for your continued support and confidence in D&R Greenway!

1997 Accomplishments

Green all the Way

Nearly 1,000 acres of land permanently preserved along the Greenway:

- Northern Stony Brook Greenway expanded by 200 acres.
- 589 acres of woods and farmland at the Institute for Advanced Study protected, generating the largest Green Acres award for a land preservation project in the state.
- 116-acre farm along Moore's Creek expanded Kuser Mountain Preserve.
- 67 upland acres buffering the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh protected through a state partnership.
- Public-private partnership formed to protect and manage the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh.

Our Future Legacy

10,500 schoolchildren, residents and community leaders reached through:

- Nature walks, canoe trips, illustrated lectures and exhibits showcasing the abundant resources of our natural environment and the enhanced value the natural world brings to our quality of life.
- Sixty school programs to instill conservation stewardship in over 1,300 students.
- A year-long community internship for 35 inner-city high school students from Trenton.
- A monthly newsletter on the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh for 4,700 students.

Stewards of the Land

Opportunities for public enjoyment of open space enhanced through:

- One hundred volunteers who made a difference by maintaining and monitoring protected lands, planting and trail-building activities, and assisting with educational efforts.
- Plantings, bridges, benches, and trails installed to enhance the 230-acre John A. Roebling Park, the only public access to the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh in Mercer County.
- Trails maintained for hiking, birdwatching and nature study at Greenway's preserves.

Thanks to all our partners for our continued success in protecting the Delaware & Raritan Greenway!

planning for various publications.
Chuck received a B.S. in chemistry from the University of Notre Dame and an M.B.A. from the University of Chicago. He has been a Greenway board member for three years.

In the first order of business, Upmeyer acknowledged outgoing chair, Cathleen (Kate) Litvack of Princeton. In the past three years under Kate's leadership, Greenway protected more than 1,600 acres of land in central New Jersey.

In early 1997, 589 acres of woods and farmland at the Institute for Advanced Study were protected. Greenway led a lengthy partnership effort to protect these lands generating the largest Green Acres award for a land preservation project in the state. The keystone of the Stony Brook Greenway and the largest remaining undeveloped tract of land in Princeton Township, the Institute Lands are steeped in history and include a world-renowned birding and wildlife sanctuary.

Later in the year, Greenway protected nearly 200 additional acres along the Northern Stony Brook Greenway outside of Hopewell and in East Amwell Township. Additionally, a 116-acre farm was protected along Moore's Creek expanding the Kuser Mountain Preserve.

During Kate's tenure as chair, D&R Greenway also spearheaded a successful outreach program aimed at permanently protecting the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh. This 1250-acre wetland along the Delaware River is chock-full of wildlife and boasts a rich human history dating back more than 6000 years. Working in partnerships with Hamilton Township, Mercer County, PSE&G, and others, Greenway led a major enhancement project at the county-owned Roebing Park that included enhancing trails and planting more than 100 trees and 1000 wildflowers in the park.

More than 10,500 schoolchildren, residents and community leaders enjoyed Greenway sponsored nature walks, canoe trips, illustrated lectures and exhibits showcasing the abundant resources of this natural environment and the enhanced value the natural world brings to our quality of life.

Today the project continues to move toward strengthening partnerships and the development of a protected by conservation easement in central New Jersey. This conservation easement is held jointly by Greenway, the state and Princeton Township. It prohibits future subdivision, provides for trails, and allows agricultural, recreational and educational activities to continue on the property.

A conservation easement secured by Greenway in the Washington Crossing area allows for residential use in a defined "building envelope," and encourages continued farming while prohibiting other types of development on the prop-coordinated management plan aimed at permanent protection of these valuable wetlands.

To date, D&R Greenway has preserved some 2,600 acres of land in central New Jersey, valued at nearly $40 million. The organization has garnered nearly $20 million from public and private sources for land preservation. ❁

erty. Other conservation easements protect streamside lands and large tracts of woodlands from development, while allowing use of the property consistent with open space conservation.

A variety of benefits may accrue to the property owner. Benefits range from tax deductions, to financial compensation for development rights value, to the satisfaction of creating a legacy of conservation for future generations.

Greenway is always seeking new opportunities for conservation. If you would like to explore the benefits of protecting your property, call Linda Mead at 609-924-4646. We hope to hear from you. ❁ address them to Linda Mead or Patti Quinby at D&R Greenway, 570 Mercer Road, Princeton, NJ 08540. Comments may also be faxed to (609) 924-5577. For more information call the D&R Greenway office at (609) 924-4646. ❁

D&R Greenway gratefully acknowledges the generous support received from The William Penn Foundation, Public Service Electric and Gas Company and Rider University for the Marsh Forum.

Spring into Action in a Green Way

Now's the time to show your support and enjoy the great outdoors! You can make a big difference by participating. Put your voice and feet in action to follow your heart! Help to protect the marsh by participating in the public forum and the trash stash. Come out for trails day and lend a hand to care for open space.

Greenway is also offering several programs to help you learn more about and enjoy the wild world.

These events are open to the public. Registration is required at least one week prior to the program (two weeks prior to canoe trips) and will be confirmed. A full refund will be made if notice of cancellation is received at least 72 hours prior to the program. Call (609) 924-4646 to cancel. No refunds will be given after that time. For more information or to register, use the coupon on page 11 or call the Greenway Hotline at (609) 452-0525.

Hamilton/Trenton Marsh Forum

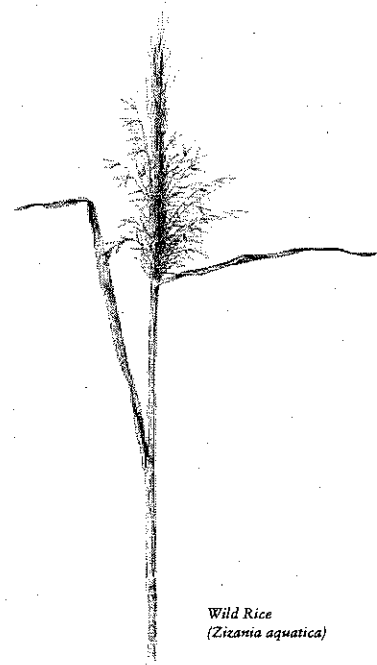

*Fri., March 6, 9:00 a.m. - noon.
(Registration 8:30 a.m.)*

Greenway is hosting a public forum in the Student Center at Rider University in Lawrenceville. At the forum, members of the public will have the opportunity to express their support and concerns and influence the process that will determine the future of the Hamilton/Trenton Marsh, the diamond-in-the-rough that lies waiting in our backyard. If you are unable to attend and would like to send written comments, please address them to Linda Mead at D&R Greenway, 570 Mercer Road, Princeton, NJ 08540; fax (609) 924-5577.

Hamilton/Trenton Marsh Trash Stash

Sat., March 14, 9:00 a.m. - noon.

Greenway partner, NJ Community Water Watch, a statewide project of NJPIRG Law and Policy Center will be taking the reigns and co-hosting the third annual Hamilton/Trenton Marsh Trash Stash with D&R Greenway. Buried bottles, tossed tires and other timeless treasures will be removed from the Marsh. Individuals and groups

Integrating the Natural Landscape into the Built Environment

Sun., April 26, 2:00 - 4:00 p.m.

Islands of trees, winding boardwalks, natives shrubs and exotic creatures are available to all those seeking a natural landscape in a built environment! Learn how you can incorporate these aspects into your landscape. D&R Greenway and Friends of Princeton Open Space are cosponsoring a lecture by Doug Kane, professor of environmental design at Delaware Valley College. Mr. Kane is currently developing an innovative ecologically based environmental design program. Registration fee is $10 for members and $15 for nonmembers.

Go Bird! Migrating Marvels at the Marsh

Sat., May 9, 9:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.

The Hamilton/Trenton Marsh is filled with flighty feathered friends! Spring is the best time to see the greatest variety of long-legged waders, webbed feet paddlers, and the powerful sharp-clawed birds of prey. Discover more about beaks, wings and other avian things on an exciting walk lead by Dr. Charlie Leck. Dr. Leck is an associate professor of Biology at Rutgers University, where he teaches courses in ornithology and ecology. The fee is $3/person ($5/family) for members; $5/person ($10/family) for nonmembers.

Paddle the D&R Canal

Enjoy the scenery of central New Jersey from the viewpoint of, and at nearly the same pace as, the old time boatmen. Learn about the historic communities and houses that line this central New Jersey treasure while enjoying an easy paddle.

D&R Greenway and the Mohawk Canoe Club are cosponsoring a series of trips on the canal. The dates are May 30, June 28, August 8, September 8, October 4, and October 18 (rain date). Paddlers who complete the series will receive an award from the canoe club. You can paddle on all five trips or just one—it's up to you.

Bull's Island to Moore's Creek

Sat., May 30, 9:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

Join us for the first leg of the series and paddle on the 'feeder' canal from Bull's Island south for about 10 miles to Moore's Creek. This is one of the most popular sections of the 66-mile long D&R Canal State Park. We'll paddle past the historic Prallsville Mills site and along the scenic Delaware River, portage around two locks, and travel through the historic City of Lambertville.

Registration fee per person to rent a canoe is $20 for members, and $25 for nonmembers. Maximum per canoe is two adults and two children under 16. Children under 16 are free when accompanied by two adults. We will match singles with partners when possible. If you bring your own canoe cost is $5 per canoe for members, and $10 per canoe for nonmembers.

National Trails Day

Sat., June 6, 9:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

Join others across the country in this national event to spruce up the old and bring in the new D&R Greenway trails and properties. If you like to do field work, plan to join us. This program is free; advanced registration is required. 🌿

Plan to join us on Sunday, May 3, from 4:00 - 6:00 p.m. for our annual awards event in honor of Donald B. Jones. This year's program will be held at The Lawrenceville School and will include an exhibit of the unusual landscape paintings of contemporary painter and geographer Spelman Evans Downer.

Delaware River Sojourn

Celebrate the Delaware! Ride the river and learn about its rich natural and human history. The Sojourn continues from June 20 through June 27, beginning near Hancock, NY and paddling to Trenton. D&R Greenway and the Mohawk Canoe Club are cosponsoring one day on the Lower Delaware. On Friday, June 26 we'll paddle from Frenchtown to Stockton, then enjoy a scrumptious feast and campfire at Bull's Island State Park. Participants are not required to complete the entire trip. You can participate as many days as you would like. Call Pocono Environmental Education Center (PEEC) at (717) 828-2319 to register. 🌿
